

Record Budget Is Approved By UF

A record budget of $37,100 for the 1968-69 Deaf Smith County United Fund was approved, and Johnny Clark was introduced as chairman of the annual drive which starts early in October, at a board meeting and awards dinner in Hereford Country Club Thursday evening.

The budget total, comparing with the $32,465 figure for the current year, is larger because of requests for increases from almost every agency served by the United Fund. Debbs Knox, president, explained in presenting the budget.

Larger amounts for such youth organizations as Camp Fire Girls and summer baseball leagues are asked to serve the growing number of youngsters as the county's population grows and request for increases in USO and Red Cross funds is attributed to demands created by larger military forces in the Vietnam conflict.

Awards were presented at the dinner to Elmore Rains, United Fund president the past year, and Dean Herring, drive chairman.

Each was given an engraved plaque and Rains also received the Golden Rule Award from the state United Fund organization.

Clark, superintendent of Hereford Schools, spoke briefly after he was introduced by Knox who served as drive chairman in the spectacularly successful campaign two years ago when Deaf Smith County was the first in Texas to reach its United Fund goal.

The new drive leader asked for cooperation "to accomplish what we set out to do, and not disappoint people who depend on us."

Items in the budget include $7,200 for Boy Scout work, the same amount as in this year's budget; $6,369 for Camp Fire Girls compared to $4,000 this year (this does not include funds for the Camp Fire building now under construction, which is being financed by service clubs of the community).

The Pony League in the summer baseball program has been allotted $2,025 compared to $1,490 this year; the Colt League, $1,250 compared to $1,000; the Little League $2,581 compared to $2,100.

Amount budgeted for the USO is $475 compared to $225, and to the Red Cross, $11,000 compared to $10,250. The $4,200 for the Salvation Army is the same as last year's figure, as is the $750 to the Council on Alcoholism. Smaller amounts go to the Cerebral Palsy Center in Amarillo, for local United Fund expenses and to the Texas United Fund.

SATURDAY FIRE — A fire Saturday morning at the Merlin Weber farm, one mile North of Hereford, completely gutted a boxcar containing furniture and other items. Hereford firemen answered the call at 9:38 a.m., and battled the fire for some minutes before containing it. Estimate of damage was not available at press time.

Piano Workshop Scheduled Here

A three-day teachers' workshop for piano is scheduled for area teachers Monday through Wednesday in the Hereford High School Band Hall.

Tuition fee is $10.

Mrs. Ivan Fowler, Guild judge from Lubbock, will give this workshop on group work for all interested teachers. It is requested that interested teachers mail their reservation form to either Mrs. Tom Burdett, 135 Sunset Dr., or Mrs. Wilton Green, 219 Elm, both Hereford, Texas 79045.

Screenings Set For Children Next Two Days

Robert Holman reported that eight-to-possibly-ten more appointments have been made for screening for possible retarded children, to be conducted at Northwest Elementary School tomorrow and Tuesday by the Amarillo State Center For Human Development. The total earlier in the week was 22.

"The total is now thirty to thirty-two children with appointments," the assistant school superintendent said.

Holman also stated that appointments can still be made for area children who might need the free examination on Monday and Tuesday. They should either contact Northwest School or call his office at 364-0607.

The screenings are for children less than six years of age who are slow in development. Also included are individuals past school age who are unable to adjust to community life.

These examinations are in advance of a Satellite Day Care Program. Such satellite programs have already been instituted at Borger, Pampa, Childress, Dimmitt and Dalhart in the Texas Panhandle.

Rose Discusses Water Situation

Water development for the High Plains, present and future, was surveyed in a talk at Dawn Community Building Friday evening by Austin Rose, a director in Deaf Smith County Water Association. Some 50 residents of the Dawn neighborhood were present.

The meeting was sponsored by Dawn Home Demonstration Club and its members served homemade ice cream and cookies after the program. R. C. Godwin, president of the county water association, was another guest, who spoke briefly of plans for organizing a water district to implement the long-range project described by Rose.

This project, under study by federal and state agencies as well as local organizations, calls for bringing surplus water from the Mississippi River to the Texas Panhandle-Plains. Maps were shown with possible routes for the water up river channels.

The speaker said cooperation of all agencies is necessary for the project, and cooperation of communities along the route chosen, which could benefit from use of the water for recreation and navigation.

He explained purposes of the County Water Association and Water Inc., the regional organization of which he and Godwin are members.

Godwin said a water district would have to be formed in counties where the water would be used, and told of moves already under way in the complicated process of forming such a district under Texas law. First step will be hearings in various communities, he said, and these are scheduled to begin next month.

Argen Draper, County Home Demonstration Agent, was introduced by Mrs. Dick Golden, president of the sponsoring club.

ers mail their reservation form to either Mrs. Tom Burdett, 135 Sunset Dr., or Mrs. Wilton Green, 219 Elm, both Hereford, Texas 79045.

Mrs. Fowler has combined group lessons with her private teaching and has conducted several experiments aimed at improving her methods in order to make them as effective as possible.

An honor student as a music major at Texas Tech, she has studied in seminars at Germany, Beirut, Italy, and at Aspen, Colorado. She has also done graduate work in organ under Dr. Judson Maynard at Texas Tech.

Topics for each day, of which most will be slanted towards group work, are listed as teaching techniques, materials, and suggested achievements for the first year student and second year student. Also included will be the needs and goals of the fourth and fifth year student.

Time for the lectures on these dates are set for 2:30 to 5:30 p. m. Private lessons will be given from 9 to 11 a. m., in which each teacher present may schedule a private session with Mrs. Fowler (to last 30 minutes.)

Mrs. Fowler was asked to return at this time to the Hereford workshop because of the many helpful suggestions which she gave the Hereford Guild teachers for integrating class work, including theory, technique, ear training, sight-reading, and improvisation she has given in the past, the Guild reported.

Coach Named To Directors Board

Larry Wartes, head football coach and athletic director for Hereford High School, has been named to the post of director for the Texas High School Coaches Association.

Wartes, who will begin his second year with the local system, left Saturday, July 27, for Ft. Worth for the annual meeting of high school coaches from throughout the state. Other coaches who were members of the delegation representing Hereford, included Larry Dipple, Bill Narrell, Cuby Kitchens, Pat Hughes, David Bornstein, Walter Bryan, Jeff Smart, Ray Don King, Grady Allen, Bill Briscoe and Fred Upshaw.

All of the coaches attended meetings of their respective sports including football, baseball, basketball, track and a meeting for trainers.

Meeting at the Will Rogers Coliseum, state coaches attended lectures and watched demonstrations on football and basketball skills while on Wednesday they watched the College All-Star basketball game and the College All-Star football game on Thursday.

Sporting a record and reputation that is perhaps one of the best in the state among football mentors, Wartes was selected to the board along with 12 other coaches from throughout the state who attended the week-long confab.

The group of coaches stayed in Ft. Worth through Friday and returned to Hereford with the exception of Wartes who stayed to attend a regional directors board meeting Friday night. He returned Saturday.

Pierce Joins Staff Of Highway Patrol

Raised in western Oklahoma in Cheyenne, Wayne Pierce, newly hired Highway Patrolman, enjoys fishing, boating and hunting, and his job as a highway patrolman.

From Amarillo in 1966 as a police officer, Pierce went to school in Austin taking the required courses for a highway patrolman.

"I studied everything connected with law enforcement," explained Pierce.

In March of 1967, Pierce and his wife Lynda and two children Rusty, 4, and Rhonda, 2, who now reside at 801 Brevard, moved to Farwell where he began his first job as a highway patrolman. Three days ago after receiving a notice, Pierce and family moved to Hereford.

Pierce has been in police work in Amarillo since 1959 and started the new course because he decided that if he was going to be in law enforcement, he might as well try to progress. Seventeen weeks of school in Austin prepared Pierce for this job of law enforcement and when the opening in Hereford came up, Pierce and his family took it.

"I like it in Hereford," states his wife Lynda, "and I hope that we stay."

Skiing isn't Pierce's favorite sport, but his wife enjoys it whenever they take off to go boating. Lake Meredith is the usual spot for their fishing and boating. Pierce enjoys catching bass and pike.

As for hunting, birds are his favorite prey and he usually hunts in western Oklahoma when he goes.

"I take off for these activities everytime I get a chance," he said.

At the time, Pierce is not a member of a civic club, but he figures that if he stays here and gets settled, he will try to join something.

Fellow Ministers Laud Fooks' Book

By EARL MOSELEY
Staff Writer

A new book has been released titled "Fellowship of Believers." It is an idea presented for people who are interested in a wider fellowship among believers in Christ.

The author of the book is Leslie Eugene (Gene) Fooks, a minister who has preached the Gospel of Christ in Hereford for the past five years.

What Fooks has written is an eclectic approach to Christianity. An eclectic is one who follows a choice he thinks best in doctrines and opinions from various sources. And the author stresses that his book is definitely for general readership.

"Regardless of our church denominations, it follows the theme of fellowship as far as we — all Christians — can," he said. "The emphasis is on our likenesses in all churches, a mature perspective in our differences."

Fooks, who is minister of the Church of Christ at 148 Sunset Drive, has already received strong comments from ministers of the area who have seen the manuscript — of other denominations (which he firmly wishes to "play down" as far as their general tag is concerned).

Rev. Gerald Mann, the new pastor of the First Baptist Church in Hereford, told the Brand: "It is indeed refreshing to encounter a spirit of cooperation from a representative denomination. Not be given a spirit of cooperation has come up with this book."

Rev. Mann urged that all people should read "Fellowship of Believers," and praised it highly. He said that he approved its meaning of "Let's get together" strongly.

It was pointed out by both ministers separately to the Brand that there had "too long been a practice toward lack of cooperation" between the various churches. Fooks stated that such attitudes have blown the real meaning of Jesus Christ "completely out of proportion, to the extent that more often than not it has served the devil's purpose."

Dr. Winfred Moore, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Amarillo, wrote: "Personally, I appreciate the fact that you have taken the time to do the research which you have done to present the case for 'Fellowship of Believers.' Believing as I do so strongly in the worth of the local church and being as opposed as I am to any kind of mechanical effort to bring all churches together for the sake of bigness and 'Unity,' I do appreciate this approach to understanding and fellowship. I believe you have something here that will be a blessing to individual Christians and to groups of believers."

Fooks has pointed out that believers in Christ have been so divided over the years, by reason of communication, etc. He said that a discussion group has been conducted since 1962 including members of all faiths "and we have learned that we agree more than we disagree."

But Fooks does not believe that an ecumenical council (worldwide in extent and influence) would work — where the hierarchy would hand down orders for the individual churches to follow.

Instead, he said, "Let's start at the grassroots level. Let this fellowship spread horizontally in stead of vertically — without commands from the hierarchy. Every movement of both religion and politics started at the grassroots level. Christ Himself went to the grassroots people. So did democracy. You cannot start at the top."

Eugene Brink, minister of the First Christian Church in Hereford, said, "I hope that this paper opens many doors of involvement with other Christians in the search for that unity of the church for which Jesus prayed."

Fooks agreed that there is nothing new in the idea of his book. "But we do know that, as of now, Christianity is losing ground. This past May 25 Gallup Poll shows that Christian influence has dropped to 18 per cent. In 1957 — only eleven years ago — it was rated at 60 per cent. There is obviously a great problem now. I believe that it can only gain ground through the unity of the Christian churches. Generally, it has been turned over to the church hierarchy (See MINISTERS, Page 2)

Local Faculty Members To Attend Reading Conference

Faculty members of Hereford Public Schools have active roles in the sixteenth annual Reading Conference of the Texas Association for the Improvement of Reading, to be held at West Texas State University Tuesday through Thursday. Many other teachers here will attend the sessions.

Mrs. Naomi Hopsop of Hereford, area vice president, heads the local planning committee which has made preparations for the conference. Other committee members are Mrs. Frances Halter of Amarillo, Mrs. George F. Aull of Borger and Dr. Ruth Lowes of WTSU.

Mrs. Audrey Powell is another committee head from this city, to serve as chairman of evaluation. Miss Gladys Setliff will be chairman of the Intermediate Section, one of four section chairmen.

The publicity committee, with members from cities over West Texas as far south as Odessa, is headed by Mrs. Charlie Holt; other Hereford members are Mrs. D. C. Martin, Lavada Shannon, Mrs. Darrell Carr and Mrs. Anita Messenger.

Entertainment on two of the assembly programs will feature Hereford faculty personnel. Bob Holman and Roy Hartman, assistant school superintendents, will present a comedy dialogue at the Wednesday afternoon session, and Ben Gollehon will be vocal soloist Thursday afternoon.

Displays of art work by students of several ages will be on view in conference rooms. These include large figures produced by special education students of Mrs. Estelle Wiley at Bluebonnet School here, and crayon pictures by "pre-first graders in Dimmitt schools taught by Mrs. Lydia Garcia, who will teach in Hereford next term.

Speaker featured at the conference will be Miss Rachael M. Maxey of Wichita Falls, president of the Texas Association for the Improvement of Reading; Dr. Doris Kerns Eddins of the State University faculty at Buffalo, N. Y.; and Dr. William R. Powell of the College of Education, University of Illinois.

Dr. Eddins will discuss Choral Speaking for Elementary Schools and Dr. Powell, Multi-Media Approaches to Reading Instruction. Other topics include Reading in the Non-Graded School, Literature of the Panhan-

He illustrated that his book has left many details unsaid. The reader is left free to supply these details if he is stimulated to do so. The ball has been lateraled to the reader. Let him who has the interest, the courage and the fortitude run with it."

Fooks strongly maintained that "if the common, ordinary individual doesn't take an interest (in Christianity), we are going to lose out in this country. The people in the United States will go pagan, no matter who is in political power!"

He explained that that was his position in "playing down" the church denominations at the present, because it was far more important that all church-goers who believe in Christ as their Savior set these titles behind them and come together for the common cause of Christianity.

Fooks gave credit to several laymen in the 1967 Discussion Group for the idea of his book. Among them are James W. Witherspoon, Ivan Block, O. L. Click, Martin Gilliland, O. Z. Golden, Eugene Debs Knox, Bill Thompson, Neil Cooper, Dick Godwin, W. P. Axe, Alton Hollingsworth, Elmer Patterson, J. C. Reese, Dale Young (who also drew the illustrations for the book).

Pic Thompson, Johnny Clark Jr., Jackie Fooks, Reuel Lemmons, John D. Alkin, Bruce Coleman, Joyce Hickman, Nicky Dameron, Carl McInore, Clifford Trotter (minister of the First Methodist Church in Hereford), Clint Formby and Wayne Thomas, from other groups.

Also, Ralph Graham, Minister of the First Christian Church in Plainview; William S. Banowsky, Minister of the Broadway Church of Christ, Lubbock; Orris W. Sougstad, Pastor of the Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church of Amarillo.

"Probably never before in the history of the Christian faith have believers tried so diligently to come together on common ground. The ecumenical movements within the ranks of Christianity makes this evident. Leaders in the various Protestant bodies and in the Roman Catholic Church are praying and working diligently to bring about some meeting of the minds."

Fooks wrote, "Surely all believers can walk at least 50 per cent of the way to full agreement, hand in hand, arm in arm, shoulder to shoulder, in the faith 'once and for all delivered unto the saints' (Jude 3)."

where his father was one of the pioneers to the region (fifty miles west of Hereford). Gene Fooks was in the United States Army Air Force from 1941-45, in the European theatre of war. He returned home to continue his education, and has worked on a farm, delivered newspapers, worked as a photographer both in the aerial department and on the ground, as a bookkeeper for a business firm and a business teacher.

He has been in the ministry 21 years.

"Fellowship of Believers" is not his first book. Fooks also wrote "The Tipton Home Story" a human interest story of the children's home in southwest Oklahoma where his wife, Dorothy, spent a part of her childhood with her brothers and sisters.

He also wrote two of the short stories and edited "Select Short Stories By Christians." In addition, he has written many articles and pamphlets which have been published.

Fooks said that there is "no fat" in his new book. "If a person reads it too fast, he is going to miss a lot. I have written it to plant an idea in people's minds."

In discussion of the commercial prospects of his "Fellowship of Believers," he said that there was "no money" in writing the book. "The purpose of the publication is to read the book. It will not make any money unless it should 'catch on' in other places."

There are strong possibilities, however, that it will catch on in other places. At least, those interviewed on the subject other than Fooks believe that it should — in commercial response and spiritual practice.

A student of history and national politics Fooks is an active member of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and the Hereford Lions Club. Moreover, he serves as chaplain for the American Legion Post 192 of Hereford and for the Hereford Composite Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol.

He is also active on the boards of the Blue Haven Yough Camp Deaf Smith County Historical Society (Museum), the local chapters of the United Fund and the Red Cross, and the Deaf Smith County Council on Alcoholism.

"Fellowship of Believers" is rated as "highly readable" and "inspiring."

Tailwater Control Is Being Applied

A subject of great concern to all High Plains residents is methods of control of waste water from tailwater losses. The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District has long considered control of tailwater waste one of the primary functions and responsibilities of the District, and has been instrumental in helping to design and construct numerous tailwater return systems which now dot the High Plains by the hundreds.

Mr. Cecil Curtis of Route 1, Dimmitt, Texas, who farms 5 and 1/2 miles north of Springlake, has approached his tailwater problem by incorporating a unique innovation which has proven eminently satisfactory in solving his own particular problem. By looking at his practices other farmers can find some solutions for their own individual problems with regard to tailwater waste.

Mr. Curtis' system has an orthodox tailwater pit with return pump situated in the center of the east side of his farm. But whereas the usual tailwater return system has the return water flowing directly into the pit, carrying much silt into the pit with the water, resulting in the rapid buildup of silt in the pit which necessitates expensive cleaning out at regular intervals — Mr. Curtis has his tailwater returning to the pit by flowing through two bermuda grassways. This is accomplished by two diversion terraces that empty into waterways at each end of the system. These two grassways are 60 feet wide and one-fourth mile long each. When the water reaches the pit, all silt has been removed, and the water is as clear as when it was pumped from one of the two 8-inch wells incorporated into this system. Mr. Curtis has installed a 6-inch asbestos return line from the tailwater pit back into his regular irrigation line.

This system has been in operation for about two years and the silt buildup has not reached the point where "floating" back on the land with a 2nd leveler has become necessary. The bermuda grass has a rapid growth because it has been watered so often and can be utilized by grazing during non-watering season or baling for hay when the growth reaches baling height. Mr. Curtis estimates that this system saves him at least 25 per cent of his water from the two wells. The bermuda is of the Midland variety and the returned grass seed will not germinate, resulting in contamination of the regular crop. The Soil Conservation people of Lamb County are justifiably proud of this installation which is proof of what can be accomplished with complete cooperation among all interested parties.

Accident Occurs Friday Afternoon

A citation was issued Friday to a vehicle traveling east on Bradley street after a slight collision with a parked truck. David Diez Jr., driving a 1964 Chev. 2-ton pickup east on Bradley, stated that another car was meeting him and with the parked 1964 Dodge 2-Ton truck belonging to Rufus Weathers of 113 Bradley, there wasn't enough room to pass. Diez started to back the car up losing control and striking the left rear of Weathers vehicle with the right front windshield of his vehicle. Damage to Diez pickup was estimated at 500 and damage to the Weathers vehicle was around $25.

"The other actor is a character, a part of yourself. You need him and he needs you. We are doing the play together for an audience," she said.

By Marshall Day

Now, for the first time in heaven knows how many months, sports takes on that last final lull for about two weeks before it comes time for those first "two-a-days" that the football boys will be going through.

Most of the time, it isn't too difficult to fill this space on the sports page but now is one of those other times when it is a real mind-racker. Nothing is actually going on. Baseball has seen its final out of the year for all of the local teams, golf will have very few tournaments left to fill the remaining summer months, basketball seems like a thing from another world, track has long since burned the cinders and football seems like it was eons ago that the Whitefaces played that big one with the Dumas Demons.

Now, it starts all over again with football, then will come the rest of the sporting events as they fall in their own places along with the coming seasons. Football starts that old cycle all over again, but with it hopes of a better and more prosperous year for the Whitefaces, and another chance for those over-enthusiased fans to get their lungs back in shape.

Football for the Whitefaces actually began November 17, 1967 when the final second of the Dumas game ticked off the clock. Coaches and returning players got it into their heads then and there that there would be a better next time. Coaches began digging into the back of their brains for those little plays, miscues and slips that had cost the game and district title on that fatal day last November. Players made another mark in their books that Dumas had won another from them, but the next time more preparatory work would be put into the game in hopes that a different score could be chalked up in it's place this year.

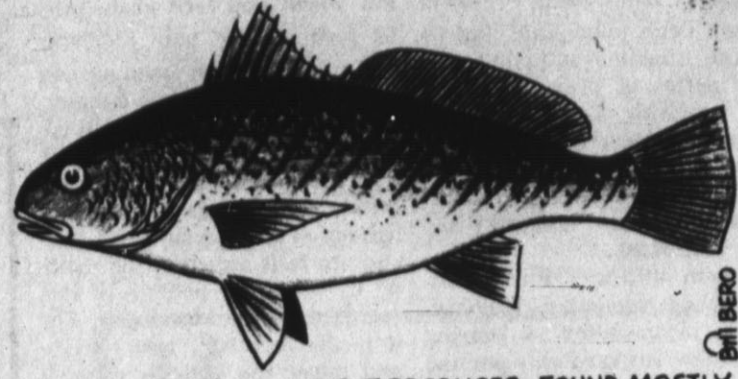

Exactly 110 days from now, the stage will be re-set for the same battle and hopes are turned the same way they were last year — that Hereford will come out the victor in the annual battle. This game will be the last one of the district season for the Whitefaces but to make this one count, they must win each of the other four district games while also hoping to take the other five non-conference titles prior to the beginning of district.

Heading the helm for the second year will be head football coach and athletic director, Larry Wartes. Wartes, along with his other assistants, are looking forward to proving TEXAS FOOTBALL, the magazine which predicted a third place district finish for the Whitefaces, wrong. Along with Wartes and his coaching staff are thousands of fans who are looking forward to the same thing.

If perhaps by some chance you don't think that Hereford carries its tradition just pretty darn far, listen to what was passed along to a Hereford resident. Though not always a winning tradition, as like that of Dumas for example, the Hereford Whitefaces can boast of having carried their tradition perhaps farther (literally) than any other district team.

The little message passed along went like this: "A car with a Texas license plate passed me on the highway the other day. Lettering in the rear window spelled out 'Hereford Whitefaces.' Which leads me to believe the nickname of the football team at Hereford, Tex., high school must be 'Whitefaces.' Appropriate, huh?"

The little statement was at the tail-end of a column by Marve Russell, editor of the Nebraska Farmer, a farm magazine, and was dated July 6, of this year. This little note was passed on to Laquita Robison from her brother, Dr. Glenn Robison of Hastings, Neb. which all goes to show that we aren't just known around the Panhandle.

Something needs a little boost. That something is the men's softball league that is just getting started. If you or any of your friends feel that you would like to work some of that "excess weight" off and replace it with a couple of work-hardened muscles, now is your chance to do so. Just give Joe Christopher a ring at 364-2786 and tell him you would like to play. As of yet, there have been no definite plans as to organizing a league due to not enough interested persons showing up at the meetings.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

One Angry Citizen

Let Congress levy a tax on cats, and any cat owner could challenge the constitutionality of the law in the courtroom.

But suppose you have no cat. Could you still challenge the law, simply because you feel Congress is getting out of line? May any angry citizen raise the issue of constitutionality, just on general principles?

Ordinarily, no. The right to challenge the constitutionality of a law is limited to those who are directly involved. Unless you have some personal stake in the matter, you lack what the law calls "standing" to sue the government.

Why not let anybody sue? Partly because there might be a court-clogging flood of lawsuits. And partly because basic constitutional questions might be decided without the safeguard of having the arguments made by persons motivated by a real interest in the outcome.

What kind of a personal interest must you have to bring such a case?

The most obvious kind is financial. As a cat owner in the example above, you would have a direct interest — because the tax would come out of your pocketbook. Likewise, a property owner was held qualified to challenge a zoning law, because it would cut the dollar value of his land.

Even if your interest is not financial, it may still be weighty enough to justify a suit. Thus, a court al-

R. C. Valentine Funeral Is Held

Funeral services for Rella Cleveland Valentine, 80, of Vega were conducted in First Baptist Church of that city Saturday morning by the Rev. C. Kay Tate pastor and the Rev. Clyde Cain of Avondale Baptist Church, Amarillo.

Mr. Valentine, a retired mail carrier who came to Deaf Smith County in 1926 from New Mexico and moved to Vega in 1940, died in a local hospital Thursday morning. Born Feb. 7, 1888, in Illinois, he married Maude Jones Dec. 9, 1915 in Estancia, N. M. He was a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors are his wife; five daughters, Mrs. Billy Broadus and Mrs. Betty Barkley of Vega, Mrs. Roy Absher and Mrs. Joe Nisbitt of Dalhart and Mrs. Billy Wilderson of Abilene; two sons, Jimmie of Wildorado and Joe of Farmington, N. M.; two brothers, Gale of Detroit, Mich. and Bob of Carbondale, Ill.; 16 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Nor can you ordinarily sue when your complaint is purely theoretical. In one case a motorist, although given only a mild sentence for drunk driving, challenged the validity of the state traffic law. He argued that, under this law, the judge could have imposed a sentence so harsh as to be "cruel and unusual."

But he got nowhere. The court said he had no standing to complain about what might have happened—but didn't.

DON'T WALK... RUN TO

KINSEY-OSBORN MOTORS

By MELVIN YOUNG
If you plan to do any fishing this summer, better hurry. When the first of August rolls around, the beginning of school is just around the corner. As a matter of fact, most merchants are already advertising school clothing and it won't be many days before you see the displays of school supplies go up in all the stores.

Visited Middle Fork lake, up near Red River, N. M. last week and pulled in a few trout. For the old boy who fishes quite often, neither the size nor the quantity would be especially exciting, but since this was our first experience at fishing the mountain lakes, it was quite a thrill. And we've always heard stories about the difficulty of reaching these lakes but never really realized how true they were. Middle Fork can be reached by Jeep, on foot or horse back. There are other lakes in the Red River vicinity that can only be reached by walking and we suspect that the fishing in these lakes is excellent, although we haven't tried them. We're sure some of the other local anglers have.

Speaking of fishing, wouldn't it be nice if we could get a couple of low-water dams along Tierra Blanca Creek and get it stocked with fish. There's no better pastime for a youngster than fishing and it's a shame to let Tierra Blanca remain in its present state. There is enough run-off water from irrigation wells as well as the creek full if we had the dams. Andrew Ker-shen has built a series of low-water dams on his farm and the project has been quite successful. We're not sure whether Andy has stocked the creek with fish, but we understand that it does stay full of water with a little going over the top of the dams most of the time.

A dam, located just west of the city disposal plant, another one up near the main street bridge and perhaps one out by the Highway 60 bridge would keep a lot of water backed up in the creek. The city has already cleaned up the acreage west of the Highway 60 bridge and this could be made an ideal recreation area.

Former Residents Plan Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. David Henry Allmon of Granis, Arkansas, who lived in the Hereford area about 25 years, will celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary on Sunday, August 25.

The couple was married on September 17, 1918, in Floyd County, Texas. However, due to conflicting schedules the observance is being held early.

Mrs. Allmon is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Williams of Farmington, N.M., and Mr. Allmon is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Will R. Allmon of Mena, Arkansas.

The Allmons were residents of Castro and Deaf Smith counties for 25 years. They moved to the Frio Community in 1921 and to the Westway Community in 1937. In 1945 they moved to Arkansas.

Assisting with the celebration will be their son, Jack and his wife Dorothy; their daughter Wanda and her husband, Leon Loyd; two granddaughters, Miss

Kiwansians Hear Grain Spokesman

Kiwansians enjoyed a program given by Melvin Barton, representative of the Castro County Grain Growers and Producers, at the regular noon luncheon held at the Fellowship Hall.

Barton gave a speech on Japan and Thailand and their growing needs in agriculture.

After returning from a government tour of these countries, Barton had this to report: "Five men traveled with me to the Department of Agriculture in Washington D.C. to receive a short briefing on what to expect in Japan or Thailand. From Anchorage, Alaska, we flew to Tokyo and met with Agriculture officials there. Japan has a population of 100,000,000 people and 14 per cent of their land is for farming. They depend on imports for their hogs and poultry which they do have room to raise. The main crop is rice and now the U. S. is their largest supplier of soybeans, not only for oil and other such needs, but for human consumption."

Barton spoke further on the uses of soybeans then conducted a question and answer session, later showing films of Japan.

Waldo Baxter was chosen as Kiwanian of the month for his outstanding work in the club, and Tom Burdett dismissed the members with a scripture reading from the Bible.

Meeting Called For Community Players Tuesday

A membership meeting of Hereford Community Players, to consider bylaws approved by the board of directors this week, will be held at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in Community Center. It is announced by Mrs. John Gilliland, president.

Bylaws drafted by a committee of board members were read by Darrell Rose at a called board meeting in the Cason House Thursday evening, and approval was voted. The board also chose Orval Watson as its chairman.

Present members and residents of the area who wish to become members of the newly organized drama group are invited to the meeting Tuesday, Mrs. Gilliland said.

Board members discussed informally plans for the fall, after reports that a proposed summer play has been deferred because of casting difficulties during the vacation season.

TFB Prexy Halts Policy Discussions

Texas Farm Bureau President Sidney Dean today said that he has no intention of taking part in a series of proposed public debates with Texas Farmers Union President Jay Naman to discuss Farm Bureau policies. Dean's remark's were in answer to a statement issued by Naman this week.

Naman attacked Farm Bureau policy development, charged the organization as bearing the major responsibility for the low wheat and feed grain prices farmers are now receiving and suggested that Dean answer these charges in public debate.

In regard to Farm Bureau policy development, Dean said, "The 105,633 farm and ranch families who make up the membership of the Texas Farm Bureau are well aware of the method by which all policies of this organization are developed. For it is the members who initiate and adopt the policies through member and delegate action at county, state and national conventions."

The president of the state's largest farm organization termed the remarks blaming Farm Bureau for causing low prices of farm commodities as ridiculous, and said, "The low price of wheat and feed-grain, as well as other commodities, is the result of present supply management programs which have been and continue to be opposed by Farm Bureau."

"In 1963, the Secretary of Agriculture and his supporters promised $2 wheat if given a supply-management program. Having had this program in effect for several years, wheat prices are now at a 26 year low. And after more than thirty years of efforts in supply-management legislation, farm parity income is at its lowest ebb," Dean added.

Howard Jones, coach at Southern California some years back, sent his Rose Bowl teams there five years and registered no defeats, a record which still stands today.

Gas Industry Is Developing New Climate Control Plan

NEW YORK —Home owners can look forward to a new concept in home climate control that will banish the furnace from the basement, according to a gas industry research expert.

Dr. Richard H. Gale, director of research and development for the American Gas Association, told a recent meeting of the New York Society of Security Analysts that the industry was concentrating the bulk of its resources in developing this new home climate control system.

Dr. Gale said the industry hopes to convert the present market from a cooling and heating market into a new unit market. "This new unit," he said, "will have the ability to heat, cool, humidify, dehumidify and freshen the air within the home from a single package located outside the house. This unit will, in addition, furnish all the hot water required by the household."

The A.G.A. scientist outlined the industry's entire research program for the analysts and placed the overall research price tag for 1969 at approximately $10 million. He said the greatest emphasis in money, manpower and overall effort will be associated with the systems approach to the home as it concerns gas appliances. The industry hopes to capture 50 percent of the air conditioning market with the new home climate control systems, the analysts were told.

Dr. Gale touched on a number of other projects including heat transfer which he described as "the basic technology and the key to the use of natural gas."

"We are pleased to tell you," he said, "that we are presently involved with three key projects in new modes of heat transfer. Two of these approaches approximate technical breakthroughs and the third is a unique new manufacturing method for increasing heat transfer surface. I expect that these developments will result in new improved gas-using products within three years."

The A.G.A. executive also noted that the industry recently marketed "something sexy for the gas range" — an electronic ignition system that makes all other ignition systems obsolete as far as gas ranges are concerned. He said a similar system was being developed for use in the outdoor gas grill.

Dr. Gale touched briefly on gas supply, noting the favorable initial results of Project Gasbuggy, a research program being conducted with the Atomic Energy Commission to develop additional gas reserves through the use of nuclear energy. He also said that the Institute of Gas Technology announced just recently that it will begin construction on a pilot plant to synthesize gas from coal. This program is sponsored jointly by A.G.A. and the Office of Coal Research of the U. S. Department of Interior.

"The supply will be there when we need it," he told the analysts.

"Vacation" Home Total Increases

COLLEGE STATION — Increased leisure time, rising income and congested major metropolitan centers has fostered a dramatic change in the vacation or second home market.

A current Census Bureau report indicates that about 1.7 million households now own more than one home, and about 300,000 additional households have plans to purchase a second home within the next two years.

The National Association of Home Builders estimates the demand for second homes could reach 150,000 units a year by 1970 and 350,000 a year by 1975, reports Jane Berry, extension housing specialist with Texas A&M University.

The cabins, shacks and unfinished shell houses of yesterday are being replaced by vacation homes which might well pass for the house next door. In keeping with the traditional vacation home spirit, families want to "rough it" in a house with most of the comforts of their first home. Mrs. Berry says.

According to the government study, 65 percent of the homes surveyed have 3 to 5 rooms and almost all have a kitchen or cooking facilities. About 90 percent have electricity and about 80 percent have running water and standard bathroom facilities.

The increasing size and elaborate furnishings and equipment in leisure homes have pushed the average price up to between $12,000 and $15,000 said a spokesman for the National Association of Home Builders Study Group on Vacation Housing.

While financing has long been a stumbling block to the vacation home market, a widely-supported provision in the recent housing bill could ease the situation by providing FHA insurance for second homes. Lenders have been reluctant in the past to make direct loans for vacation homes except in choice locations near highly populated areas, says the specialist.

Small Talk

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

This business of house painting on a do-it-yourself business may be getting out of hand.

LAVON BOYER told me last week she will spend her vacation repainting the trim on her house — maybe not quite as large a feat as Wilma Baugous' but nothing trivial. And the Marlin Gillilands had started early in the week on a complete interior paint job at their home.

Looks like maybe I'll have to get back to work on the porches at my house that are sort of half painted. My work on them was interrupted by the rainy spell a few weeks back, then there was some company and you can't paint with company around, and when they had gone it was too hot to paint. It still is, in my opinion, and I sort of resent all the good examples being set by more energetic people around here!

ATTENDANCE AT the Saturday night showing of Texas in Palo Duro Canyon was on the program for the George Warners' guests Saturday evening, and a brunch at the Warner home Sunday morning before some of the crowd goes on to Colorado.

Ruth Warner's sister, Mrs. Tom F. Sneary, with Mr. Sneary and their daughter, Barbara Anne, came up from Dallas bringing their house guests, the Milton Adams and children, Beth, Bob, Becky and Brad of Kansas City. Mrs. Adams and Tom Sneary are sister and brother.

Also in the party are Margo McAlister of Abilene, who has been a guest of the Warners several days.

Barbara Anne and her brother Loy, have spent many summers in the Warner home, and he is expected later this month for a visit. Right now he is in Europe on a student cruise in the Texas Clipper, and writes that he is having a wonderful time and especially liked the stop in Gibraltar because "they speak English there." He will be a freshman in Texas A&M this fall.

BIRTH OF A SON to Second Lieut. and Mrs. Cliff Lewis of Rapid City, S. D., is announced to friends here. Mrs. Lewis is the former Avie Justice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Justice, 210 Ranger.

Mrs. Justice was in Rapid City to welcome her grandson, who weighed 7 pounds 7 ounces at birth Thursday, and was named Kerry Ladell. Justice visited in his daughter's home earlier and expects to go back to visit the new addition to the family.

ANOTHER THING that is perhaps getting out of hand is that elephant stew recipe. Several remarks have been made about it to me and to Sue James who passed it on to me.

Now comes a gentleman with a question that I'm passing to Mrs. James without a moment's hesitation: "Do you know anybody with a recipe for using left-over elephant stew?"

Shower Honors Carole Coffey

Entertaining for the numerous brides-elect of late summer, in a series of parties which have enlivened the usually dull August social scene, included an afternoon shower Saturday honoring Miss Carole Coffey. She and Carl Stapp Jr. are to be married Aug. 24.

The home of Mrs. Nolen LeGate, 118 Elm, was decorated with flowers and candles, in shades of yellow which Miss Coffey has chosen for her wedding as guests called during the tea hour.

In the receiving line with the bride-to-be were her mother, Mrs. Marvin Coffey; her fiancée's mother, Mrs. Mary Stapp, and the friend chosen as her maid of honor, Miss Patty Roach. A beige dress cut on simple lines, sleeveless and with collar, was worn by Miss Coffey.

Mrs. B. L. Edwards was at the bride's book where callers registered. Mrs. Ricky Hutson and Miss Judy Summers poured punch and served petits fours and party mints.

Yellow roses in a footed crystal bowl were placed between yellow tapers in crystal holders on the table, which was covered with snowy cutwork linen.

CARD OF THANKS
Words cannot express the deep appreciation we feel for all the acts of kindness shown to us after the short illness and death of our beloved brother Arthur Denney. To those who sent flowers, cards and food and called during our time of sorrow, we are most grateful. To the ladies of the Avenue Baptist Church who served us such a lovely meal, we also wish to express our sincere thanks — and to Rev. H. V. Fields, pastor of Grace Gospel Church, who officiated at the final rites, we ed with snowy cutwork linen. On the hostess list were Mmes. W. N. Dowell, R. B. Hutson, W. C. Russell, Art Lewis, J. C. Price, Lloyd Sharp, C. P. Worthen, Robert Hichman, Ernest Wade, Curtis Roach and Joel Hodges.

we wish to say that we will long remember his comforting words. May God's blessings rest upon each of you.

Diploma Helps In Becoming Officer

Last year, 8,226 college graduates entered the United States Army with the intention to become officers. Equipped with college diplomas and all the benefits an affluent society could provide them, they were an impressive group.

Most of these young men were successful and in their search for a commission or are in the final stages of training to receive their gold bars. In classes with them were a group of high school graduates who had been carefully selected for intelligence and potential leadership qualities from the ranks of regular Army soldiers.

Make no mistake about the difficulty of the course they completed. It was designed by experts to measure them both as men and as men who were destined to lead other men under the most rugged conditions.

It began with eight weeks of basic combat training followed by another eight rugged weeks of advanced individual training, which refined the skills of the soldier learned in basic. Both of these courses placed heavy emphasis on good physical conditioning as well as intensive attention to the broad range of knowledge a soldier needs. They learned to march, to fire the weapons a 20th century soldier has at his command and to take care of themselves under any conditions — in garrison or in the field.

Basic and advanced training, however, are designed to train the individual to follow in preparation for teaching him to lead. From the moment he hits the front gate at his officer candidate school, whether it be infantry, artillery or engineer, the emphasis is on how to command. And it is no easy task for leadership skills are not inborn but are developed.

Young Americans have responded. The new officers are sharp, keen and as well qualified as any this country has ever had. A look at the cross-section of any OCS class reveals academic degrees in a bewildering variety of subjects from astronomy to zoology. Most of these have an application in the broad band of Army skills.

Further information on how to become an officer candidate is available from SFC Bert Pinales, local Army recruiter, whose office is located at the Post Office Bldg. Room 322, 207 East 5th Ave. Amarillo, Texas, Phone 373-4214.

SFC Bert Pinales can be contacted at the Local Board in Hereford, Texas.

FHA Assists Area Farmers

Farmers and cattlemen are acquiring needed land resources by forming grazing associations and obtaining financial assistance from the Farmers Home Administration, the agency's Deaf Smith-Oldham County Supervisor, James Gouddy, said this week.

A grazing association is composed of a group of family farmers and ranchers who join together to acquire and develop land to provide seasonal grazing for livestock belonging to its members. The nonprofit association is owned, operated, and managed by its members.

"Small farmers," Gouddy said, "can increase their incomes, make better use of land and water resources, and develop larger equity in land through use of a grazing association. This program often provides small farmers with their only opportunity to remain in farming on a profitable basis."

Other advantages of an association include providing opportunities to improve livestock quality, gain bargaining power in the market place, build more stable operations and strengthen the rural community. "Results benefit the entire community," Gouddy said, "because associations accomplish better use of land and water resources and provide expanded tax bases and more local buying power."

The grazing associations now in operation in Texas range in size from 4 to 43 members, depending on the number of livestock to be supported and dimensions and quality of land.

Eligible to form associations are neighboring farmers and ranchers who operate family size units. Financial and technical assistance is provided by the Farmers Home Administration. Additional aid often is provided by the Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and the Extension Service.

Loans are available to qualified borrowers for periods up to 40 years at an interest rate of 5 percent. Interested individuals should contact James Gouddy, County Supervisor at 313 West 3rd Street in Hereford, form a steering committee, and begin looking for suitable acreage.

Trucks, Buses To Be Checked

DALLAS, Tex.— Owners of trucks and buses in Northern Texas were advised today by District Director of Internal Revenue Ellis Campbell, Jr., that a thorough check will be made to insure compliance with provisions of the Federal Highway Use Tax Law.

Mr. Campbell said that lists of owners of taxable motor vehicles are being compared with Federal Highway Use Tax returns filed, to assure that all taxable vehicles were reported and to determine whether they were reported in the correct tax categories.

Mr. Campbell pointed out that highway use tax revenue collected by the Federal government is returned to the states to help pay the costs of the Interstate Highway System now under construction. IRS Publication No. 340, "Federal Use Tax on Trucks, Tractors, and Buses," can be obtained without charge by dropping a postcard to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service.

ACES AFTER 35 YEARS
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — After 35 years of golfing James Day of Darien, Conn., says it feels pretty good to get a hole-in-one. Day's ace came on the 168-yard 13th hole of the Lakeside course here in June. He was playing with Dave Holmes and James Pearce of Midland, Mich. and Jack Ernst of New Canaan, Conn. Day used a 5 iron.

UNITED FUND DRIVE CHAIRMAN — Johnny Clark, superintendent of Hereford School, was introduced as chairman of the annual United Fund drive in a meeting held Thursday, August 1 at the Country Club. At the meeting, a record budget was approved for the local organization.

GOP Task Force On Agriculture OKs Numerous Recommendations

Panhandle Congressman Bob Price, a member of The House of Representatives Republican Task Force on Agriculture said the group had approved a number of recommendations and other information for consideration by the Platform Committee of the 1968 Republican Convention. Congressman Odin Langen (7th Dist., Minn.), Chairman of the Task Force, submitted the Agricultural Plank recommendations to Governor Walter J. Hickel of Alaska, Chairman of the Platform Subcommittee on Agriculture and Natural Resources.

the traditional concern which the Republican Party has had for the importance of Agriculture that began with the establishment of the Department of Agriculture under President Lincoln," Price said. "The material and recommendations we are submitting to the Subcommittee encompass a number of Task Force proposals and studies aimed at restoring the economic level of rural America through the expediency of adequate farm income. Our primary objective must be an adequate price for the farmer's commodities to stabilize farm family income and subsequently provide the economic stimulation so badly needed in rural America. "The farmer's economic position has slipped considerably under eight years of Democrat Administration," Price said. "With wheat prices at a 26-year low, the parity ratio at depression-year levels and farm production expenditures setting new upward records, our future food supply is being threatened as our food producers face extinction." Price said the Republican Party has a great opportunity on the farm scene. "When the nation's largest single industry is in trouble, all America is threatened," he said. "There are no easy solutions, but the Republican Party can do no less than to tackle the problem with firm resolution. The American farmer is the keystone of our national strength."

Draft Quota Is Down In Texas

AUSTIN, Texas — The September draft call for Texas is 683, the smallest monthly quota since June 1967, Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director, said Tuesday. He pointed out, however, that the July 1968 call for the state was little higher than the September quota — a total of 695. Because of budgetary limitations, there will be no pre-induction physical-mental examinations in August. It was announced earlier there would be none in September, but later a total of 5267 was authorized for that month. Monthly draft quotas for Texas in 1968 are: January 1659, February 1165, March 2048, April 2378, May 2223, June 1961, July 695, August 895, September 683. 1967 monthly calls ranged from a low of 674 to a high of 1421.

The Deaf Smith people at the District Dress Revue Thursday were jubilant about Jane Witkowski winning one of the four top places. This means that Jane made a very good impression and represented Deaf Smith County well in her appearance and behavior. The next showing will be at the State Fair in Dallas.

MISS JONNIE Kay Johnson, who is Miss Wool and Mohair was stunning in the three wool ensembles she modeled. She has longer than shoulder length hair, and is one of the prettiest persons you've ever seen.

THE FIRST SESSION of the clothing shortcourse went very well. Approximately 30 women attended and agreed it was a good demonstration. It is easy to learn something at every place where people are talking about sewing.

Next in the series of the Clothing Shortcourse is Tuesday at 2:30 at the Bull Barn. The same subject matter will be given Tuesday at 8 p. m. This was planned for working women who tell me they miss so many things by working in the afternoons.

The program is on The Knits Are Coming. Of course, the knits are already here, but there are more on the way. The local stores have very lovely knits and an excellent selection.

The home sewer is in luck in the area as local merchants have put out an honest effort to keep fabric and all sewing supplies for your use.

THE REVOLUTION in fabrics has caused changes in home laundry equipment. This release indicates the choices available in new equipment:

Durable press fabrics have brought about improvements in home laundry equipment. All leading brands now feature models which include the special cool-down cycles in washers, and the automatic controls in dryers which are required for durable press finishes, says Doris Myers, Extension home management specialist.

Several companies are using "solid state" controls on their top-of-the-line models which provide an unusually wide range of agitation and spin speeds, according to the Texas A&M University specialist.

NOW IN ITS initial phase, some sources predict that further development of such controls can eventually produce a "truly automatic" washer — on one that senses water hardness, clothes whiteness and detergent effectiveness, and then automatically adjusts washing action for each type of load.

As more apparel and home furnishings become washable, home laundry appliances are gaining increased recognition and popularity as servants that help the family to look better and stay healthier, says Mrs. Myers.

Today's upgraded equipment provides one of the greatest home conveniences at a fraction of what similar services would cost if performed by outside professionals, she reminds home makers.

MORE CANNING is being done than ever this year. It is true all over the nation as jar companies and companies selling other canning equipment report soaring sales.

Bilingual Studies To Face Congress

These next few days are critical ones for one of the most important education programs before Congress — bilingual education. The Senate has been considering a bill to finance education programs, and I am doing everything I can to see that bilingual education is financed.

Bilingual education is a new idea for teaching children from non-English speaking families. In Texas, we have 750,000 school age Spanish speaking children of Mexican heritage, and many speak little or no English. That is why their average education level is such a handicap to them, and that is why so many Mexican-Americans wind up on the bottom of our economic structure in Texas. Bilingual education would give these children a chance to compete with their English-speaking classmates. It would provide instruction for them in Spanish as well as English, to help them become fluent in both their native tongue and our national language, English. Bilingual education teaches two languages and makes the pupil literate in each language.

This is a new concept, but it has been thoroughly tested. Bilingual programs in San Antonio and South Texas have brought splendid results. That is why I introduced the first Bilingual Education Act in Congress last year, and that is why Congress passed it into law and authorized $30 million to be spent this year for bilingual programs in local schools. That $30 million is not really enough — but it is a politically realistic sum. It amounts to only $10 per eligible child — not enough for a complete program.

Unfortunately, the Bureau of the Budget cut back those funds. The Administration needed new funds to fight the war in Vietnam and so it cut back bilingual education to just $5 million, a mere token for the three million youngsters in the nation who speak little or no English.

Recently the House of Representatives voted 96-95 to cut out even those $5 million. If their view prevails the federal government will turn its back completely on the education needs of these three million children. I have asked the Senate to restore those funds. Joining me in support of these funds were Republican Senators Murphy and Javits — and Democrats like New Mexico's Senator Montoya. It was a bipartisan appeal.

In Texas adults of Spanish surnames average only 4.7 years of school, compared to 11 years among Anglos. There can be no doubt that language is a prime factor in this education gap.

It is unwise to rob the children of America of an education, to use the money on wild foreign ventures.

The House of Representatives has said to these three million children from non-English speaking backgrounds: "We won't educate you."

I say, and I hope Congress will agree, we can't afford not to educate them.

(From the off of Sen. Ralph Yarborough.)

National Smile Week... Aug. 5-10

HARD AT WORK — Businessmen can smile, too, believe it or not. Come to think of it, that might be why they do so much business.

By Vickie Inman
Staff Writer

Everybody, on the count of three, SMILE!
Bet you didn't know the week of Aug. 5-10 is National Smile Week. Not many of the persons pictured on this page did either.

One lady taking her youngsters to the library seemed frustrated when asked to smile to celebrate the week-long event. She looked up in panic, and as she was moving quickly out of the range of the camera, said uncertainly, "Smile? Today?"

Yes, ma'am... it's National Smile Week.

How about the businessman at the bank? Well, he wanted to know just how he was going to smile and do business at the same time.

Sir, it's National Smile Week. Just try, this once, please?

Most responded with a foot-long grin, even the fellow stopped at a red light. After all, it's not every day someone stands in the middle of the road and says "Smile, this is National Smile Week."

Nope, you don't find many people who do that.

The camera wasn't quite fast enough for one dignified bank official who obligingly gave a huge smile, minus a false tooth. By the time the camera was set and adjusted, he had a full set of teeth again.

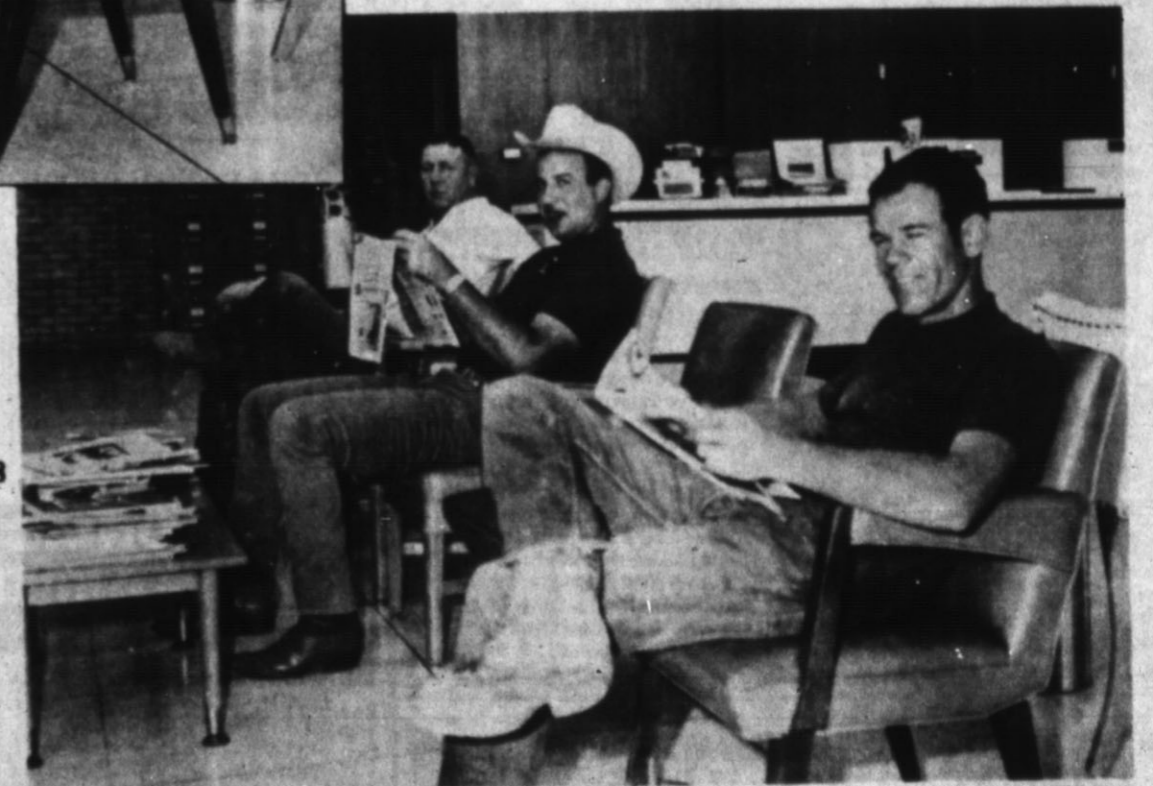

Some people are naturally shy about getting their picture taken, even the Hon. H. C. Williams, county judge. When he realized the camera was for real, he protected himself the best way he could. With what? A thick book of "Vernon's Civil Statutes of the State of Texas," of course.

Public officials, postmen, ranchers, policemen, bankers and bystanders on the street — they all smiled, with a little encouragement. Children are the best smilers, though, because they don't need reasons. They don't think it's silly to smile, either.

So, get set! This is, uh, now what week is this?

BEFORE AND AFTER — All these men needed to bring the smiles to their faces was a little encouragement. Waiting to see someone can be boring but a smile always helps pass the time.

GOOD SMILERS — Children make the best smilers because they're not self-conscious about smiling, even before a camera.

CANDID SHOTS — Smiling can be contagious, as these men show. Who can argue with someone who combines friendliness with business? It's a winning combination.

CLEAN UP SPOTS—Summer not only brings warm weather but weeds and tall grass as well, creating eyesores around town. As a rule, Downtown Variety Park is neat and clean (lower right), but visitors often forget to use the conveniently located wastebaskets. Usually street litter is not as bad as that in the lower middle picture, but the Wednesday night rains gathered the paper cups and cigarettes butts before the city's sanitation workers had a chance Thursday morning to sweep the streets, as they do every day except for Sunday. City Manager Dudley Bayne said property owners are responsible through a city ordinance to keep their portion of the sidewalks and lots free of unsightly weeds and trash.

Musical Needs Cast Members

Meetings have been announced in advance of the "Good News" presentation — which is described as "sort of a play but practically all music." Elise Beene said that the songs are real gay — not hymns but have sort of a message. "And it's fun!"

"Good news" will be presented beginning September 3 and will run from 12 to seventeen performances, Bill Devers will direct.

Site of the meetings is the First Baptist Church at Main and Fifth streets. They will begin on Sundays at 3 p. m. and on Tuesdays at 7:30 p. m. Miss Beene said that it was open to all church people. The ages include those of the eighth grade through college students.

"We have had between 20 and 40 at previous meetings," Elise reported, "but we could use a hundred. We need more people who like to sing — especially boys. And we certainly need more guitarists."

She said that "Good News" was first presented by the people of Glorieta last summer. Glorieta is a Baptist-supported camp ground in New Mexico about seventeen miles from Santa Fe.

PLENTY OF VARIETY
CHICAGO — Piano finishes, once confined to deep red mahogany, now are changing with fashion trends.
Today, walnut leads in popularity, with cherry in second place. Mahogany, in nut-brown finish, is a close third, while maple, oak, ebony, and pecan share fourth place.
Constance Wagner, consumer education consultant, said there was a time when geography might dictate a choice of wood, finish, and even style in a piano. But this is no longer true.

"With so many Americans on the move, and with publications yielding so much influence from coast to coast, regionalism has little to do with individual taste today," she said.

Mrs. Maggie Morris... dahlias at left, zinnias in foreground

Goatheads To Dahlias

Pioneer Is Gardener With Showplace Yard

By SUE COLEMAN Women's Editor

"Lots of goatheads!" is Mrs. Maggie Morris' succinct description of the yard at 129 Avenue A when she moved there 21 years ago, a yard where flowers bloom now from February far into November, sometimes in splashes of color which slow traffic, like the gladiolas which were July showpieces north of the house.

PLANS FOR THE yard, and most of the work in it, have been done by Mrs. Morris through the years and she refuses to let advancing age and an ailing heart stop her favorite hobby. Her 83rd birthday will be celebrated in September.

She no longer mows the lawn, and during the past four years when she has been ill a good deal of the time she has foregone some of the more strenuous tasks. But unless she is confined to bed she spends part of each day outdoors, coaxing her flowers into the succession of bloom which keeps the yard bright.

Advised by her doctor to use a cane when she walks outdoors, Mrs. Morris reported to him that she is following his suggestion. A garden hoe, she says, gives excellent support if she needs it, and is also handy when she sees a weed or stray bit of grass in a flower bed.

DAHLIAS ARE the most showy of her flowers at present, with sections of the back yard devoted to large lavender and yellow blooms. To be seen from the street are crepe myrtle bushes gay with varied shades of pink, perennial phlox and summer lilies.

Jonquils and other early spring bulbs began the parade of bloom, followed by iris, peonies, white lilies and climbing roses. Zinnias are flowering now for late summer color, and chrysanthemums are waiting for fall opening.

Mrs. Morris has always had a vegetable garden, she says, to add flavor to the family menu. She has reduced its size and variety, but finds room to plant a few rows of beans and black-eye peas, and lately sowed some turnip seed in a flower bed where the greens will look pretty as well as provide food.

INTEREST IN YARD work is the result of Mrs. Morris' lifelong liking to be outdoors. Her father was a farmer and rancher and most of her adult life was spent on a ranch also.

"She always wanted to do the outside work, so we shared work in our home by leaving that to her and more of the housekeeping chores to me," says her daughter, Mrs. Jack Baker, who with her husband shares the present home with Mrs. Morris.

Mrs. Morris does not scorn traditional feminine tasks; she likes to cook and sew, and still does part of the housework as well as gardening.

A MEMBER OF the J. H. Harris family which came to Hereford in 1899 when the town was less than a year old, she lived on the place her father bought, a section of land just north of the cemetery. As a student in Hereford schools, she was a member of the famed Overstreet Class, designated by the name of its pioneer teacher.

She attended school here until her marriage in 1904 to Claude Moreman. They lived on the Moreman ranch 20 miles northwest of town. Her husband was killed in a hunting accident only a few years after their marriage, and she later married the late John I. Morris.

In early days on the ranch, Mrs. Baker can remember riding in a buggy to Hereford, cutting the open country unchecked by fences. Soon the farmers moved in, Mrs. Morris adds, with fences and plowed ground which limited travel to the roads.

BOTH WOMEN call the winter of 1918 their most difficult on the ranch, as snow piled up in a big blizzard and there was no feed for the cattle.

Mrs. Morris did her share of ranch work, and enjoyed it.

"I could run a row binder and stack feed as well as a man," she states. "In fact, the men said I did it better than any of them."

When she moved to town and chose the lot where she now lives, it was in the outskirts of Hereford. The time was during World War II and material could not be purchased for new housing; however, she could get lumber to build onto an existing house, so Mrs. Morris had a grainery moved to the lot and added to it.

SHE PLANNED the house in detail; when she showed her sketches to the builder and asked if he needed a blueprint, he told her the drawing was exact enough to use as it was. Built with framework of massive timbers, the former grainery makes a house that never shakes in a West Texas wind, and with the new wing it affords a comfortable home with spacious rooms.

Mrs. Morris began work on the yard at once, spading it to set grass and planting the trees which now shade the house.

It wasn't long before the prairie goatheads were only a memory, and the snowy-haired mistress of the house intends to keep the yard in its present trim, even if her hoe does part-time duty as a cane.

SQUATTER

With attention constantly centered on the presidential race, voters need prompting to take a look at candidates on the home front.

As one of the leading 50 states, Texas cannot afford to be ignored by its own voters. Too much is at stake in a state government whose activities daily affect the welfare of every citizen.

The Texas Legislature will convene early next year, before any President is ever inaugurated. State lawmakers deserve attention this year, whether in the form of praise or criticism.

This state is instrumental in building roads, financing local school systems, maintaining colleges and universities, controlling liquor, establishing a proper state tax policy. Furthermore, the state is responsible for attracting and administering federal aid. All these are items of great impact. Another issue, water, is important to farmers on the Plains. Although federal officials may help solve this problem, it will be Texas state officials responsible for investigating action.

Granted, paying attention to national politics is important for any voter wishing to vote intelligently. But no matter who wins the Presidency, the war in Vietnam will not come to a sudden halt; no matter who wins the Presidency, the problem of crime in the streets will not be solved. One single leader cannot produce results by waving a magic wand in a nation as divided as the United States.

Where voters need to look is to their congressmen and to their state and local officials. A President will accomplish nothing if officials of lesser but effective power positions block his way.

People who respond only to national appeals for votes are inviting trouble in the form of degenerate state government. A state that does not respond to the needs of its people turns over its power to the federal government by default. This has plagued states particularly in civil rights.

If voters really want a change, they will have to vote for it from the courthouse to the White House. Power is located all along the way, from the local political hack to the governor to the United States Senator. All these people have a share in determining policy, in creating national unity or disunity.

Where Will Inflation Stop?

When inflation gets a toe-hold, where does it stop?

The answer to that question apparently has escaped the people planners in Washington. In the meantime, inflation continues.

The steel-labor wage pact negotiated this past week will mean an approximate 6 percent annual increase in wages and other costs for the steel mills over the next three years. This increase certainly will be passed on to makers of automobiles and other steel products, and eventually to the consumer as the cycle continues. By the expiration date of the new contract, steel workers will have realized little for their efforts due to increases in consumer products.

Former President Espouses Hard Line

On the eve of the national political conventions, former president Dwight D. Eisenhower has called on delegates of both the Democratic and Republican conventions not to write a "camouflaged surrender" plank into their party platforms. Eisenhower's effort comes on the heels of pleas by Vietnam "doves" in the Republican party who claim that Republicans can win in November by wooing war-frustrated Democrats, adding "a substantial additional vote" to their party. The leader of the doves appears to be Harold E. Stassen, perennial aspirant for the party's presidential nomination. He has submitted a peace plan and challenged Rockefeller and the front-running Republican Richard M. Nixon, to appear personally before the platform committee and to "be specific" on the positions.

On the Demo side, vice-president Hubert Humphrey appears to be stuck with the administration's hard-line policy on Vietnam and is taking some verbal lashings from Eugene McCarthy who has been campaigning far and wide against the war. Humphrey would probably like to abandon the position but cannot.

Republicans generally have sided with Eisenhower's views on Vietnam, although there is a minority within the party that would like to take a more dovish position.

Certainly, there is a considerable vote among the "doves" that will be picked up by the Republican party in the event Rockefeller should get the nomination, but we doubt that this minority will offset the vote that could come from both Democrats and Independents who are unhappy with the "no-win" policy of the past few years. A large segment of the population would like to end the war in Vietnam, but they believe, as did General Douglas MacArthur, that "there is no substitute for victory." The current situation in Korea should be ample evidence that only total victory can bring about a lasting peace.

On the other hand, farmers throughout the nation are suffering from high machinery costs and low prices for commodities. Wheat and grain sorghum are at the lowest level since depression days and vegetable markets fluctuate so rapidly that generally a farmer doesn't know what he will receive for his produce until he gets his check. At the same time, his costs continue to rise on the farm. Not only machinery, but farm labor too, is at an all time high.

And still the cycle continues.

What about the elderly people and others who must survive on a fixed income? Certainly they will feel the pinch of higher prices more than anyone else. Pensionaires, who must stretch their meager incomes to pay the high cost of living find the going a little rough in an inflated economy. Foods, rent, clothing and other necessities are generally higher, yet the monthly pension check remains the same.

Businesses too, are affected by inflation. Merchants report profits slipping yearly, even in the face of rising prices on the merchandise they sell. Most find it difficult to keep employee salaries at a decent level. Many have found that it no longer pays to keep marginal workers on the payroll and also find it difficult to keep and train young people due to the present minimum wage situation.

But whose responsibility is it to curb inflation? Labor, business, government? Or do we continue down the inflation path until our money is worthless?

Certainly it isn't reasonable to ask either business or labor to bear the brunt of inflation's blows alone, and the only alternative would be a more sensible fiscal and monetary policy on the part of the federal government. Spending cuts by the government would help measurably and with the increase in taxes effective in July, we could hope for a little relief from the present situation. Some politicians may find the going rocky when they have to abandon some of their favorite spending projects, but financial responsibility is as important in the federal government as it is in the family unit. It appears that we're long past due on the federal level.

Tax Plan Bites All

The Treasury Department has come up with a plan that could provide relief for the beleaguered middle-class breadwinner. The plan is aimed at simplifying tax forms and taxing all income.

The graduated income tax has come to be a soak-the-rich concept. But there are too-frequent disclosures that many of the rich are not soaked but skipped. It does not sit well with the ordinary taxpayer when he reads that multimillionaires get by with paying no income taxes at all.

Estimates vary, but the middle class is paying somewhere between two thirds, and four fifths of all income taxes collected. Those below get special tax treatment, and those above can hire experts to steer them clear of paying. As a result, neither group participates in tax support to the degree of the middle class.

Those in the middle are aptly described as our society's forgotten men and women. Relative to tax reform, chances are good that they will be forgotten again.

A New York Times News Service dispatch has pointed out that reform would face tough sledding this year in a Congress preoccupied with elections. Tax reform has been scuttled even in relatively calm years.

Too, let it be noted that there is a lot of resistance from those who like things just the way they are — both those who worship the welfare-state aspect of the graduated income tax and those whose wealth has helped them graduate clear out of the paying class.

The stinger is that the forgotten middle class also is preoccupied with elections this year. And, just as it pays the majority of taxes, it also holds the majority of votes.

Wallace May Cause House To Decide Next President

By BERT MILLS

Washington, D. C. — November 5 is Election Day, but nobody can be sure our next President will be elected then. The decision could be deferred until January 6, 1960, when the House of Representatives may be called upon to decide the winner.

This prospect is sending shivers up and down the spine of politicians and professors of political science. It has happened twice before, early in our history, and came close to happening in the last five elections. The man who could make it happen again is George Wallace.

Southern governors expect that Wallace will win five states and 47 electoral votes. They think he might win four others with 44 more votes, or a total of 91. Wallace himself predicts an even higher total. One Congressional study concluded that the electoral votes of at least 31 states could be affected by the Wallace candidacy.

Assuming Wallace does anywhere near as well as predicted, and assuming a neck-and-neck race by the major party nominees, there is a reasonable prospect that when the Electoral College casts its ballots on December 16, no candidate will command the 270 votes needed for election.

What would happen in that event? The outcome would remain in doubt for three more weeks until the House of Representatives convened on January 6. That would be the 91st Congress House, elected in November, the makeup of which cannot be safely predicted now.

12th Amendment Governs This situation is covered by the 12th Amendment to the Constitution, which provides for the House to choose among the three candidates with the most electoral votes. But instead of all 435 Representatives having a vote, each state has but one vote, with a majority required for election.

That means the magic number is 26 — a majority of 50. It is entirely possible neither the Democrats nor the Republicans could command such a majority and that Wallace would hold the balance of power. There could be a deadlock. It happened back in 1801 when 36 House ballots were necessary.

The last time the House decided a Presidential election, a loser became a winner. John Quincy Adams trailed Andrew Jackson by 15 votes in the Electoral College. But Henry Clay threw his 37 votes to Adams, forcing the election into the House where Adams was chosen. Historians have tagged this 1825 event as "the corrupt bargain."

It has never happened, but there could even be an Acting President. In case of a continuing House deadlock, the Senate elects a Vice President who serves as President until the House reaches a decision.

Bipartisan Group Offers Solution

A bipartisan group headed by Reps. Charles E. Goodell (R., N. Y.) and Morris K. Udall (D., Ariz.) is at work to insure that if the Electoral College cannot choose a President, the House will elect whichever candidate wins a plurality of the national popular vote.

Called the People's Presidential Committee, the group is seeking pledges from House candidates that in the event of an impasse, they will vote with their state delegation to elect the popular vote winner, regardless of party. The national nominating conventions will be asked to make the same pledge in their party platforms.

A similar effort is in progress in the Senate to insure that the popular vote winner for Vice President is named to that office. The whole plan is based on the theory that it will receive public support, and that the House vote would be virtually automatic. Pledges will be made public in advance. Of course, George Wallace does not like this plan and calls it unconstitutional.

The long-term solution is a Constitutional amendment. The Electoral College was one of the few major mistakes made by the founding fathers. But at least 100 attempts have been made to abolish it, without success. Constitutional amendments take years to achieve, since ratification by the states is necessary following Congressional action. It is too late to follow that route this year.

THE BOOTLEG — Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Blindweed farm takes a wry look at progress this week. Dear editor:

As everybody knows, cars have become so efficient and prevalent that you can now cross New York City on horseback quicker than you can by automobile, and I wasn't surprised to read in a newspaper I got up and walked 100 yards for last week that it is frequently quicker to fly by old-fashioned propeller planes than jets.

A jet will fly faster per mile, once it's in the air, but frequently it has to wait in line for other big jets to take off, then when it streaks to where it's going it has to circle around over the airport for two or three hours waiting for other jets to land.

This is what's known as carrying progress too far too soon, like educating a boy so much he won't work.

Or take the telephone. I read in that same paper an article bragging about how automatic equipment has enabled the telephone systems to handle the billions of telephone calls now being made daily in this country.

"If it weren't for automatic equipment," the article said, "it would take every woman in the United States to serve as telephone operators to handle all the calls now being made every day."

Yeah, but if all the women were tied up as telephone operators, how much do you reckon that'd reduce the number of calls? Off hand I'd say by 85 per cent at least, which of course would eliminate the need for all that automatic equipment.

Frequently man has a tendency to get so balled up in progress it slows him down to where he was before progress set in. I know a neighbor who spends more time and sweat trying to start his power lawnmower than it'd take to cut his grass with a push-type mower, and if more people would keep cows you wouldn't need any kind of mower.

And I never have understood the garbage disposal problem in cities. Why doesn't everybody keep a hog?

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Uncle Sam's Selective Service

Editor's Note: Below are questions now being asked at draft boards. The answers are by Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, State Selective Service Director, 209 W. 9th Street, Austin, Texas 78701. He will welcome your questions.

Q — They say I have to register with the draft board at 18. I'll arrive in Chicago that day for a two-weeks vacation from Houston. May I delay registration until I get back to Texas?

A — No. You must register on your 18th birthday, or within 5 days thereafter. Go to any board in Chicago and register, giving your residence address in Houston. Your registration card will be sent to Houston.

Q — Where may I obtain legal advice regarding my draft status?

A — Government appeal agents are appointed for local boards who are, whenever possible, persons with legal training and experience. They have authority to take appeals from local board classifications, either on behalf of a registered man or the government. They may suggest to local boards a reopening of any case where the interests of justice, in their opinion, require this action. This service is available to a registered man without cost. You are advised that you can see the government appeal agent each time the local board classifies you. Your local board, at your request, will arrange a time and place of meeting.

Q — My son is 17 years old. He wants to volunteer for induction even though he has not yet registered for the draft. Can he do this?

A — Yes, provided the parents consent. He should complete and file with the nearest local board two copies of SSS Form 254, Application for Voluntary Induction. The parents will have to consent to this by signing both forms. A guardian may also sign these forms when he consents in any case.

Concerning Veterans

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — My sister is married to a World War I veteran who draws 100 per cent service-connected disability compensation. As his health is extremely bad and he is in his 70's, I am concerned about her financial welfare in the event of his death. Will she be entitled to any benefits as the widow of a disabled veteran?

A — Possibly. If a veteran dies as a result of a service-connected disability, his widow is eligible for death compensation. This amounts to $120 monthly, plus 12 per cent of the monthly basic pay now being received by a serviceman whose rank and years of service are the same as those of the deceased veteran.

If the veteran's death is not the result of a service-connected disability, the widow may be eligible for a pension from the Veterans Administration. Detailed information may be obtained from the VA regional office where her husband's veteran records are kept.

Q — I am a war veteran but have never asked for any benefits from the Veterans Administration. Can I get a free medical examination?

A — Medical examinations are made by VA only in connection with an application for some sort of benefit, such as hospitalization, or to determine if a condition is service-connected on behalf of a registered man or the government. They may suggest to local boards a reopening of any case where the interests of justice, in their opinion, require this action.

This service is available to a registered man without cost. You are advised that you can see the government appeal agent each time the local board classifies you. Your local board, at your request, will arrange a time and place of meeting.

Q — My son is 17 years old. He wants to volunteer for induction even though he has not yet registered for the draft. Can he do this?

A — Yes, provided the parents consent. He should complete and file with the nearest local board two copies of SSS Form 254, Application for Voluntary Induction. The parents will have to consent to this by signing both forms. A guardian may also sign these forms when he consents in any case.

SHOE POLISH SUSANS
BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Tradition calls for the Preakness winner to be draped with a floral horseshoe of Black-Eyed Susans, the state flower of Maryland.

Since Black-Eyed Susans do not flower until July, Pimlico substitutes yellow daisies. Their centers are daubed with black shoe polish.

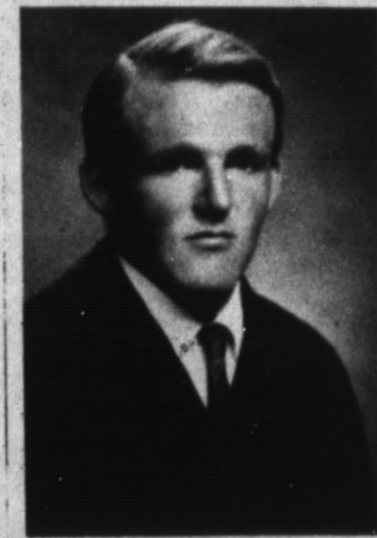

AUSSIES SMOKE LESS
MELBOURNE — Australians are smoking fewer cigarettes, according to the Anti-Cancer Council in Victoria.

The council said cigarette tobacco consumption had fallen by 8 per cent between the period 1958-61 and 1965-67.

ted. The VA is not permitted to give a veteran a free examination for some private purpose of his own.

Q — May I use my G. I. loan to buy a house strictly for investment purposes?

A — No. The law says that to obtain a G. I. home loan a veteran must certify that he intends to occupy the property personally as his home. If the G. I. loan is for improvements, he must certify that he is the owner and occupant of the home.

Miss Cynthia McMinn Is Gene Streun's Bride

The marriage of Miss Cynthia McMinn and Gene Duane Streun was solemnized in a late afternoon ceremony Friday in Summerfield Baptist Church and the couple left on a Colorado honeymoon trip. After August 14 they will be at home at 504 East Fourth Street.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. P. McMinn; the bridegroom is the son of Jack Streun and the late Mrs. Streun. Both families are residents of Summerfield community.

The Rev. E. M. Weathers of Amarillo, a former pastor of the church which both the bride and bridegroom attended, conducted the double ring service in which Mr. McMinn gave his daughter in marriage.

Paired fern trees and seven-branch candelabra were set at the altar on either side of a large bouquet of white gladiolas and mums as a setting for the ceremony.

A prelude of wedding music comprised vocal solos by Mrs. R. C. Godwin and organ selections by Mrs. Joe Sheeltz of Melrose, N.M. Songs chosen for the wedding were O Promise Me, Whither Thou Goest and Wedding Prayer. Mrs. Sheeltz accompanied the soloist and played the marches.

Mrs. Charles Jacks attended Miss McMinn as matron of honor and Lee DeLozier of Arlington was best man. Bridesmaids were schoolmates of the bride, Miss Barbara Brownlow of Hereford and Miss Elizabeth Ann Blythe of Lubbock.

Joe Streun of Dimmitt and Dr. Bill Carmichael of Bedford served as groomsmen. Ushers were the bride's brother, Bill McMinn; a nephew, Skipper Dones of Elizabeth, Ind.; Wayne DeLozier of Lubbock and Jerry Don Lance.

A small niece of the bridegroom, Cynthia Streun, daughter of the Joe Streuns, was flower girl and Craig Lookingbill, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Lookingbill Jr., carried the rings. Candles were lighted by Miss Lee Ann Dones of Elizabeth and Brian Goodin, niece and nephew of the bride.

A snowflake satin gown which she designed was worn by the pretty bride. The long-sleeved empire bodice was of lace, which also overlaid the squared chapel train and edged the hem of the slim skirt at toe-tip length.

A narrow band with Dior bow at center front encircled the high waistline and tiny satin buttons fastened the petal pointed sleeves and the bodice back.

An heirloom piece in the bride's costume was a ring which belonged to her great-grandmother. The bridegroom's gift, a gold heart necklace set with her birthstone, turquoise, accented the portrait neckline of her gown.

Three roses made of silk organza with lace and pearl ornament were clustered above her forehead to hold the lace-bordered French illusion veil which floated over her shoulders.

Her bouquet, a white catlaya orchid centered in white roses, was showered with streamers of English ivy and stephanotis blossoms. She carried it on a white Bible, a graduation gift from Summerfield Baptist Church.

In similar style to the bride's gown, dresses of her attendants were of aqua satin with back bows and long streamers replacing the train. Bows of the material covered with circles of sequin-sprinkled net were their headpieces. Their short gloves and shoes were white and each carried a white carnation.

Sisters of the bride acted as hostesses for a reception in the church educational building after the wedding. Mrs. Calvin Goodin served the cake, Mrs. Jerry Barrett of Amarillo and Mrs. Jay Dones of Elizabeth ladled punch in turn.

Miss Ginger Goodin was at the guest registry, Mrs. Ronnie Andrews of Hereford and Miss Patti Simpson of Dimmitt assisted in the houseparty.

White carnations in a candelabra arrangement centered the white net cloth laid over satin appliqued with blue wedding bells on the bride's three-tiered cake which had bride-and-groom figurines on the top tier.

Miss Judy Lookingbill served coffee and cakes at the groom's table, which was covered with blue linen. The flowers were red roses grown in the bridegroom's garden.

For travel Mrs. Streun changed to a copen blue silk linen dress with matching lace coat and white accessories. The orchid from her bridal bouquet was pinned at the shoulder line.

She was one of the honor graduates in Hereford High School class of 1968, a member of the National Honor Society, typing award recipient and president of Tri-Hi-Y last term. She re-

Army Psychiatrist Recounts Role Of G. I. Before And After Combat

Maj. Franklin D. Jones — Originally from Hereford, now an Army psychiatrist with experience in Vietnam.

Experiences of a psychiatrist in Vietnam has been further described by Major Franklin Del Jones of Hereford in Military Medicine, Vol. 132, No. 12, in December 1967.

Following psychiatric residency at Walter Reed General Hospital in Washington, D. C. (where he has returned as Assistant Psychiatric Consultant), he was assigned to the 25th Infantry Division which he accompanied to Vietnam.

Maj. Jones, who is married to the former June Kim and the father of four children, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oren Jones of 218 Avenue A in Hereford.

Maj. Jones wrote: The 25th, the "Tropic Lightning Division," was, in early October 1965, located at Schofield Barracks in Hawaii. As its nickname implies, the 25th is a trouble-shooting organ of the Pacific Army, consisting of about 16,000 men trained for warfare in tropical and jungle conditions and capable of rapid mobility and deployment.

(Jones was also functional chief of the Mental Hygiene Consultation Service, serving garrison and division personnel, as well as dependents.)

Since the initial elements of the 25th were deployed to Vietnam in December 1965, the author witnessed the deployment process, which itself deserves comment.

For several months prior to deployment, rumors of impending deployment were rife, but they were not based on any official information. These rumors hardened and became semi-official in mid-to-late November with official notice being withheld and given one day prior to departure for reasons of security.

A number of anxious soldiers who complained primarily of this uncertainty had his anxiety relieved when deployment became semi-official. Many of the cases seen during this time were referrals by commanders bent on "weeding out unreliable" while some represented the obvious manipulations of men attempting to evade hazardous duty. Manipulations often took the form of repeated disciplinary infractions and even candid avowals by a few that they wanted out "with any kind of a discharge."

A few presented as alleged and unconfirmed homosexuals and an even smaller number claimed to be conscientious objectors, although their religious did not advocate this form of pacifism.

With regard to the problem of reliability, commanders continued (even later in Vietnam) to seek psychiatric intervention for dealing with these men, complaining that one "eightball" might get a whole squad killed by sleeping on guard duty, making noise on ambush patrol, or stepping on a mine. In general, it was sufficient to explain to the men that this type of manipulation (indicating to the commander that he was unreliable) might only succeed in getting him into a more dangerous position (such as forward observer).

It was also called to the attention of the commander that rewarding bad behavior with escape to noncombatant status was not only unfair and bad for morale but would also encourage such behavior. The commander's role in motivating these reluctant warriors was stressed.

Profiting by the experience of a Marine unit at nearby Kaneohe which deployed suddenly, leaving a large number of dependents "stranded" on the island of Oahu with administrative responsibilities (such as, what to do with the family car, etc.), the Commanding General augmented the role of the Army Community Services Program, utilizing among other administrative and legal personnel the Division social work officer and one senior social work specialist. This loss of personnel did not noticeably hamper the mission of the MHCS, primarily because the ACS program took care of many dependent problems which otherwise might have had to be handled by MHCS.

However, some dependents, mainly with situational anxiety problems, were then seen. A very small number were seen with valid requests for compassionate reassignments for their husbands but many were seen because of frank manipulations, such as threats of suicide if their husbands were deployed.

A firm stand coupled with patient explanations of applicable regulations was almost universally successful in dealing with these cases. The soldier patient load dropped markedly at this same time (337 in October 1965, to 246 in November and 209 in December). This decline in soldier patients may in part reflect seasonal influences and the author's attempt to decrease the number of clinic patients through development of a field program of consultation to commanders.

The anticipation of action and relief from the frustration of constant, repetitious, boring training as well as the disappearance of uncertainty about deployment probably also played a role in this decline.

The initial elements of the 25th, the 4,000-man Second Brigade and supporting elements (the Third Brigade, which left at the same time, is not considered a part of the 25th for this presentation since it was deployed about 200 miles away from the base camp), arrived in Cu Chi during the dry, hot season. The area, located in Viet Cong-dominated territory about 20 miles northwest of Saigon and about ten miles from an outcropping of the Cambodian border in flat, delta-like land, was ostensibly "cleared" of Viet Cong after heavy fighting by these initial elements with the aid of the First Infantry Division.

The camp was located in an abandoned peanut field and rice paddies between two graveyards which gradually became incorporated into the compound as it expanded. Small villages were nearby on all sides. Scrub trees, orchards, and rubber plantations were within rifle range around the perimeter, but sniping and mortaring on the base camp itself, present initially, became sporadic and then became almost nonexistent with the development of a good perimeter of barbed wire, mines and bunkers which were manned at night by infantrymen and also by support elements, including medical enlisted specialists.

The compound quickly became recognized as a safe refuge, an opinion which was not altered by a rather accurate mortar bombardment of the headquarters and surrounding area in late July.

Almost no material deprivation was suffered by the men. Most of them were quickly housed in wood-floored and framed tents with screened walls. The main obstacle to comfortable living was the climate. The initial inescapable heat and dust were replaced by inescapable heat, humidity, and mud in late March when rain became a daily or every other day phenomenon. Despite the use of thousands of gallons of petroleum products as dust inhibitors, the dust was never conquered, even in the rainy season. Daily showers and numerous fans (there was never a breeze) salvaged this situation.

Although flour contamination by weevils produced some wry comments about mixing meat and bread dishes, the food was always good and plentiful. Generator troubles were ironed out and all types of electrical conveniences and diversions were available: these included fans, refrigerators, television sets, radios, and motion pictures.

The beneficial effect on morale and presumably on the number of psychiatric casualties of this remarkable logistical support should not be overlooked. Morale remained high although there was some grumbling about the early contingents about the newer men "having it easy" and not appreciating the pioneer efforts of the "Old timers."

This resentment was returned in kind by the "newcomers" who envied the more numerous and elaborate conveniences possessed by their predecessors. Adeptness at "scrounging" supplies and equipment seems to develop with tenure.

Casualties of all kinds were relatively few and psychiatric casualties were quite infrequent.

In March when the Second Brigade with attached artillery, mechanized, and support units were in Cu Chi, the MHCS saw only about 15 patients. In mid-April with arrival of the First Brigade and other units nearly doubling the number of personnel, 32 patients were seen. In May when the full complement were present, 75 patients were seen, an average number for the next five months.

Conditions exhibited in about two-thirds of the patients seen were consistently diagnosed as character and behavior disorders (situational reactions which included fright reactions are in this category), while nearly a third, generally up for legal or administrative action, had conditions diagnosed as no disease found, and a small number diagnosed as psychotics.

Only about 4 patients a month were hospitalized, usually by a general medical officer in order to control aggressive behavior or anxiety, but, with few exceptions (psychotic individuals who were evacuated), these were only overnight hospitalizations.

Although a few combat cases were seen, mainly fright reactions occasioned by imminent danger or witnessing the death of a friend, the majority of the cases seen were generated by disciplinary infractions. These cases were quite common in support units and were rather similar to those seen in a garrison unit except for frequent problems with alcohol and specific avoidance symptoms.

The high rate of alcoholic incidents was no doubt related to the heat and lack of potable ice as well as the group permissiveness toward many forms of behavioral license present when one goes to war.

The considerable amount of leisure time also aided this development. The alcoholic incidents usually involved the brandishing or firing of a weapon in a populated area by a frenzied soldier who had been drinking. Such soldiers would often wind up in the hospital overnight as there was no stockade in the camp. Disciplinary action usually succeeded in curbing this activity, although it became a problem of such magnitude that a Standard Operating Procedure for dealing with "berserk" soldiers who sequestered themselves was promulgated by command.

This SOP recommended clearing the involved area of personnel, bringing in friends, chaplains, commanders or others deemed influential or persuasive to men, and considerations for using tear gas or wounding if all other efforts proved ineffective.

Chronic alcoholism as opposed to these acute incidents usually showed up as a job inefficiency in a man who had a history of alcoholic excesses in the past. Treatment by total abstinence was impossible in most cases and administrative handling usually resulted. One case of death, presumably by aspiration, occurred in a man who was heavily intoxicated.

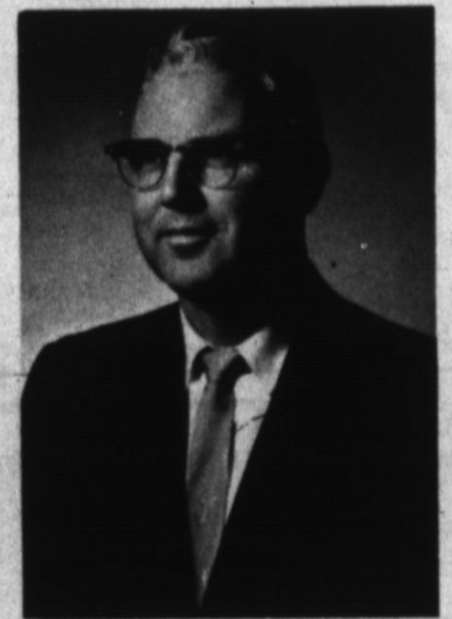

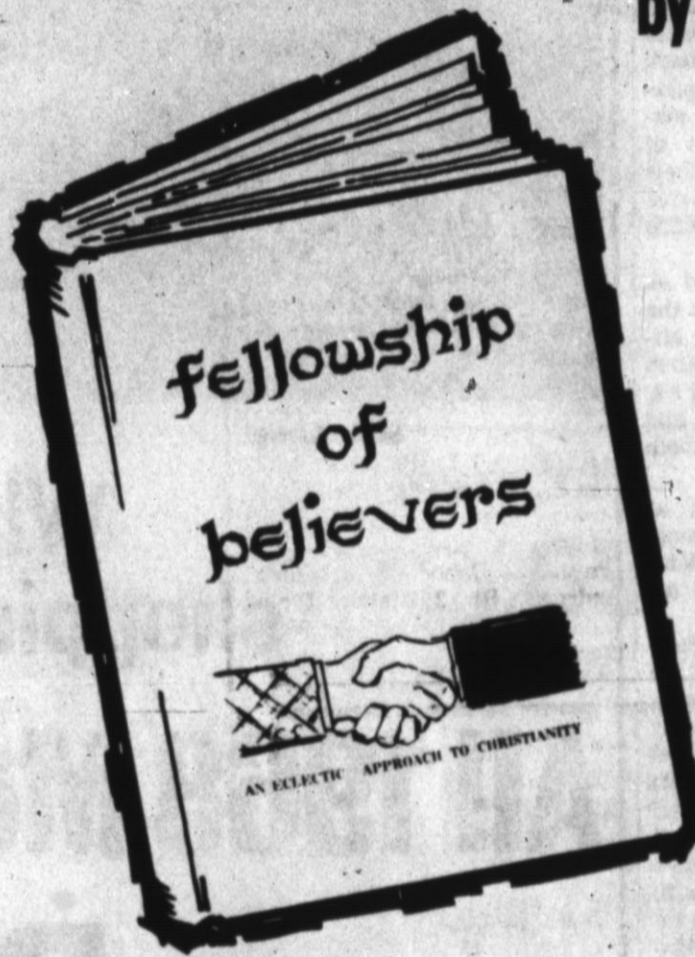

The specific avoidance symptoms might consist of something like helmet headaches in a man trying to avoid patrol duty, or sleep-walking in a man who did not wish to be quartered near the perimeter. One especially severe case of noise intolerance (a frequent complaint) occurred in a clerical worker who had been an exemplary soldier until some time after the base camp was mortared in July. It is interesting to note that during the attack which resulted in 2

About the author

What others say

"Personally, I appreciate the fact that you have taken the time to do the research which you have done to present the case for Fellowship of Believers. Believing as I do so strongly in the worth of the local church and being as opposed as I am to any kind of mechanical effort to bring all churches together for the sake of bigness and 'unity', I do appreciate this approach to understanding and fellowship. I believe you have something here that will be a blessing to individual Christians and to groups of believers."

Dr. Winfred Moore, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Amarillo, Texas

"We believe, with you, that there is a fellowship of believers growing in the world. The artificial, scripturally indefensible, walls that Christians with sincere doctrinal differences have erected between themselves must be brought down. We are meant by the lord to live in fellowship and harmony together; and through that fellowship build a bridge of faith and love across which others may be led to Christ."

W. T. (Bill) And Pic Thompson, — Bill is Manager of the Chamber of Commerce in Hereford, Texas. Pic Teaches English in High School.

"The book FELLOWSHIP OF BELIEVERS points up the dangers and traps that one can easily fall into, as well as the fact that an individual, a group or an organization can misconstrue or fail to understand the important teachings of Christ. . . . These truths as pointed out in this book in my opinion make it most valuable thought-provoking discussion."

James W. Witherspoon, Attorney at Law, Hereford, Texas
"We sincerely believe that this work constitutes a significant contribution toward unity of Christians everywhere regardless of denomination. Your emphasis on all those things which unite Christians is certainly constructive and indeed refreshing when we have emphasized for so long those things which tend to divide us."

John D. Alkin, Attorney At Law, Hereford, Texas
"This is an appeal for the realization of the Una Santa on earth as it is in heaven."

Orris W. Sougstad, Pastor of the Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church, Amarillo, Texas

"I thank you for the excellent manuscript, FELLOWSHIP OF BELIEVERS it really has worked up my appetite."

Dr. William S. Banowsky, Minister, Broadway Church Of Christ, Lubbock, Texas

"I hope that this paper opens many doors of involvement with other Christians in the search for unity of the Church for which Jesus prayed."

Eugene Brink, Minister, First Christian Church, Hereford, Texas

"This dissertation not only identifies immediate points of agreement but proceeds to establish a basis for further agreement and unity. No one can force the ultimate contribution of this amazing instrument, but knowledgeable clergymen and laymen are agreed: it will be immense."

Combat...

deaths and about 100 wounded of whom about one half had to be evacuated from the Division, no psychiatric cases were seen. When these "semi-neurotic" symptoms were unsuccessful in achieving an environmental change, they generally disappeared. In rare cases they became markedly exaggerated (paralysis, blindness, etc.) or were replaced by characterological defenses (refusal of orders, absence from a post, alcoholism, etc.)

Combat fatigue was never seen in the Division by the author. The extremely low incidence of this syndrome in Vietnam is thought to reflect the overall low incidence of psychiatric illness in Vietnam.

The rate for Vietnam (January 1965 through December 1966) was about 12 per thousand troops per year, remarkably low compared to 37 per thousand per year for Korea. The rates during World War II, in combat areas, ranged from a high of 181 per thousand troops per year.

Perhaps a part of this consideration of factors in the overall lowered incidence of psychiatric disorders, especially combat fatigue, is the question of diagnosis itself. Not every frightened soldier in combat who comes to medical attention should be termed combat fatigue, yet this did become a wastebasket term for such cases for some general medical officers.

Some of these cases so diagnosed and referred are but indirectly related to combat. The commonest example of such cases would be that of a soldier wounded and hospitalized who developed anxiety or conversion symptoms as the time for return to duty neared.

Actually, the author saw no more of these cases during his tenure at Third Field Hospital in Saigon than in Division.

Still another factor in the lowered incidence of psychiatric casualties is the excellent morale-elevating effect of the recognition by the troops that they will not become isolated away from medical care which, when needed, will be rapidly available and effective. This factor is related to the almost universal utilization of helicopter evacuation of the wounded.

The percentage of medical casualties evacuated with neuropsychiatric disorders reveals a decline when figures for 1965 (6.6 per cent) are compared with those for 1966 (4.3 per cent). These percentages, however, refer to Army casualties evacuated to the continental United States not only by the Army but also by the Navy and Air Force, who may tend to evacuate psychiatric casualties more rapidly than does the Army.

A group of symptoms and behavior disorders recognized since Korea as the "short-timer's syndrome" also made its appearance in the 25th. This tendency of soldiers to exhibit mild anxiety and some phobic feelings ("If I go out there again, I'll get it for sure") in the terminal weeks of fixed tours was quite prevalent. It was given recognition by some commanders with a practice of keeping men out of combat and ambush patrol during the last month of their tours.

One problem in all divisions and extremely important to the effectiveness of the division psychiatrist became apparent by the peculiar geographical deployment of the initial contingent of the 25th. In late December 1965 and early in January 1966, the Second and Third Brigades were deployed to Cu Chi and Pleiku, Vietnam, respectively, areas about two hundred miles apart. Subsequently, the remainder of the Division, including Headquarters, was deployed to Cu Chi, leaving the Third Brigade in a semi-autonomous position.

One medical company from Medical Battalion accompanied the Third Brigade to render support. Included in the personnel of the medical company was the least-experienced social work specialist, a Pvt. E-2, with only a few months of military service. He was not utilized as a social work specialist and most of the physicians and commanders did not realize that his services should have been made available to them. The other medical company position, that of psychology technician, was filled by a surgical technician who was placed there so that he might be promoted. This situation is in marked contrast to that of the Second Brigade in which two senior social work specialists (Specialist E-6) one with a secondary psychology technician Military Occupational Specialty were deployed. These specialists set up and o-

Artillerymen Had Problems

The first artilleryman had more than a few problems. The first was to fire his clumsy device without having it explode and remove him from the scene. Next, if he was to be effective, he had to determine what he wished to hit and experiment until he found the correct combination of barrel elevation, powder charge and cannonball. He also had to hope devoutly his target would do little moving about and spoil all his calculations.

It would be interesting to see his reaction to what the United States Army artillerymen call combat surveillance and target acquisition. Behind this somewhat mind-bending combination of words lies several thousand years of experience. The soldier of earlier times found it improved his visibility to climb upon a horse, or climb a tree, or go to the top of the nearest hill, or even use a balloon, circa Civil War.

Twentieth century Army artillerymen have more tricks up their sleeves than the oldtimer could have imagined in his wildest dreams. Drone aircraft hum over enemy-held areas, sound and flash ranging systems locate guns by flashes or sound reports and giant searchlights illuminate the whole scene when darkness falls. But all these devices have one purpose. To provide the finest possible artillery support to the combat forces of the United States Army.

There are openings for young men in the Combat Surveillance and Target Acquisition career group of the Army according to SGT Bert Pinales, local Army operated a functional and efficient MHCS, screening and treating patients, and forming liaisons with appropriate physicians and commanders. The arrival of the psychiatrist in mid-March did not change this basic arrangement.

It is believed that this problem of personnel malassignment could be solved by placing all of the psychiatric personnel in either the Headquarters Company of the Division or of the Medical Battalion and arranging for their placement by the division psychiatrist or social work officer.

recruiter. SGT. Bert Pinales said those interested may apply for this and dozens of other Army career fields before they actually enlist. There is no obligation, of course.

WESTGATE At King's Manor

Westgate is a vital part of the Program for Life in King's Manor. It is open to the public for nursing care, but residents both in The Manor and on Cottage Drive hold pryor claim to an obligation by The Home above the applications from the public involving any vacancy in the service at the Nursing Facility.

The same design for incentive to be active and responsible as is so obvious at The Manor is also applied intensively at Westgate. Our staff under the supervision of Manson Waits, Administrator at King's Manor, Miss Althal LeClair, Supervisor of Nursing Service, and Mrs. Byrdie Fellers, Admissions and Payroll Officer, are trained in the philosophy of "permissive care" and participation by our residents in their concern for each other. This a growing science in American Gerontology.

In another four months we shall have 47 beds for care. We shall be in compliance for "medicaid", the successor to the "vendor's program". Our monthly budget will be near $10,000 and our staff must be larger.

The Church, with help from the "King's Manor Founders' Association", will provide several thousand dollars per year in subsidy care above the fees we charge our residents. This will also help move on to another NEW FACILITY yet to come, which will provide for some who fall into emotional instability or the "senile syndrome". We are not now able to keep this classification for care.

So We Would Remind You . . .

That on Monday evening, September 9, at 6:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall at First Methodist Church, here in Hereford, THE THIRD ANNUAL SESSION OF THE ASSOCIATION OF KING'S MANOR FOUNDERS WILL BE HELD. Two hundred persons who have turned in a gift of from TEN DOLLARS to A THOUSAND DOLLARS, or even more, will hear DR. MARVIN L. NEARLY GHOST TOWN

KONEYTRA, Israeli-held Syria (AP) — The Military Government reports this war-scarred city, almost completely abandoned by Syrians as Israeli troops stormed the Golan Heights in June 1966, may be a ghost town in a few months. The 150 remaining inhabitants of the original 20,000 now want to move to Syria because they despair of an early peace settlement in the Middle East.

Talk of Texas

CAPITOL MURDER — Robbery, not political revenge, was the motive for the only assassination to occur on the steps of the State Capitol in Austin.

Louis Francke, a member of the House of Representatives from Fayette, had stopped by the office of the House Sergeant-at-Arms on February 19, 1873, to pick up his per diem and travel reimbursement as the Legislature neared adjournment. Then he had gone down to a Congress Avenue saloon, ordered a beer and paid for it with a large bill. Returning to the Capitol about 7 p. m., Representative Francke was attacked by two men who apparently were lying in wait for him on the steps near the main entrance. He was beaten about the head with a rock, robbed and tossed down the entrance steps. He died a few hours later.

Although a number of witnesses had noticed two strange men on the Capitol steps and a grocer nearby remembered selling them some beer, they were never apprehended.

BUT NOT GOLD-PLATED? — James M. (Silver Dollar) West, the eccentric Houston millionaire, collected Cadillac automobiles almost like other hobbyists collect stamps.

When he died in 1957, he owned 41 Cadillacs. To keep them bright and shiny, he built his own automobile paint shop and installed $50,000 worth of the best painting equipment available.

CORRECTING THE HISTORIANS — Mrs. Jane Long, the "Mother of Texas," usually is cited as the first known woman of English descent to bear a child in Texas. She wasn't.

The honor goes to Mrs. Jack Dill, who moved to Texas with her husband and four children in 1793. She gave birth to a daughter, Helena, in Nacogdoches on September 8, 1804. Jane Long's child was not born until December 21, 1821.

Actually, Mrs. Dill may not have been the mother of the first white child born in Texas, either. There were many settlers who came to Texas in the late 1790's, and some probably had children after they arrived. The Dill child, however, is the first birth for which records exist.

COW COLLEGE — When the Baptists decided to erect a new building for their Cleburne Institute in 1888, the contractor agreed to take his pay in beef cattle.

To raise the equivalent of the $8,000 needed to build the two-story brick school, the Cleburne newspaper conducted an advertising campaign under the headline: "Anybody can give a steer."

Apparently the campaign was successful, because the new building was opened for classes in September, 1872.

THE PASSING PARADE — In 1897, when a new sawmill was opened in western Orange County, the owners laid out a new townsite and named it, appropriately, Lemonville.

But Orange County's Lemonville is no more. The timber played out more than 40 years ago, and the town disappeared without leaving a trace.

Manuel Valdez . . . Back from Vietnam.

Valdez Reports On Home News Effect

Marine Sergeant Manuel Valdez returned to Hereford on June 26 after six-months of service in Vietnam. Now in the Marine Reserves, he said that he did not want to go back to Vietnam again. "I hope I don't get called back," he stated.

"But if I am called back, I will go because it is my job." In the Marines since May 1966 after his graduation from Hereford High School in 1965, Valdez reported that this country is now pretty much "involved in the war there. We are fighting the cause of counties involved in Communist control, which is what the United States has agreed to do. And we are doing alright, O. K. Lots of people don't agree with us being there, but we are fighting for a cause." He said that he only had a six-month tour in Vietnam (almost all the others spend a year there) because his enlistment was up. It was his first trip to Vietnam after spending 17 months at Hawaii. He liked it so much there that he requested an additional seven days on the islands immediately prior to his discharge on Treasure Island, San Francisco, California.

"I now plan to enter junior college on the G. I. Bill," he said.

Although born at Eagle Pass, Texas, twenty-two years ago, he started school and graduated in Hereford. His address is 511 Knight.

Valdez reported disturbing influences from many American press stories there. He said, "We read several stories from all the (stateside) newspapers in Vietnam. We are displeased with all the racist violence, demonstrations and assassinations here while we are fighting."

"Many of us get to the point, if I died over there or over here it didn't matter."

He pointed out that they were fighting to keep people free, and it is very discouraging to see what is going on within the United States. "It isn't demoralizing (to the armed forces man), but it isn't good either."

But he excluded Hereford from the demonstrations and unrest. "Hereford is small, nice and quiet." He explained that it was not like the larger cities,

Assistance Helps On Lamb Farm

"Conservation doesn't cost, it pays," says Arnold King of the Soil Conservation Service. Albert Lamb, of Hereford, has converted about 100 acres of steep, low producing land into improved pastureland, with technical assistance from the Soil Conservation Service. Mr. Lamb used cost-share assistance available through the Great Plains Conservation Program. This program was developed in 1957 to assist farmers in carrying out a conservation plan in a short time.

Wheat grazing used in combination with his improved pasture provides year-round grazing in the spring when the cattle are taken off of the wheat pasture, and in the fall while the young wheat gets established. During the summer months, Midland bermudagrass is grazed.

Good management is the key to having a profitable operation. A fertilization and rotation grazing program is necessary to get maximum production from pastureland.

The piece of land was once an "eye sore" on the farm and now Mr. Lamb is proud of both the increased profits and the improved appearance of the farm.
