Fewer Voters Are Registered

Eastland County Tax Collector Nancy Trout reports that the list of registered voters in her office is holding fairly steady - but slightly under that of last January.

In January, 1990 the total of registered voters in all County Precincts was 11,002. The August 1990 total is 10,959.

The Tax Office has been making continual revisions on voters, Mrs. Trout says. Some names have been taken off because of death or moving away, but other people have been coming in almost daily to register.

Mrs. Trout urges any County resident who is not registered to come to her office (first floor of courthouse) and be listed.

With the General Election on Nov. 6, 1990, the effective cutoff date for that election would be Friday, October 5.

Summer Reading at City Library

A summer reading program for children of all ages is being held at the Rising Star City Library from 9:30 to 10:30 each Thursday morning.

Several school teachers are working with the program and urge area children to take part in the reading program. Reading is fun!

General Rains Fill Tanks, Raise Lakes

A slow-moving cold front met some Gulf moisture in Eastland County this past Saturday and Sunday. The result was general rain in most parts of the area, with 3 1/2 inches in Cisco, 3 inches in Ranger, 3.75 for Rising Star, and even heavier rains reported across the south part of the county. Rising Star's total for Thursday through Sunday was 4.2 inches.

The total in Eastland was considerably less, reports Ron Bailey of the ASCS office.

Sunday's total in his rain gauge was 1.8, with very little for Saturday. The blue cloud that rolled in from the northwest on Saturday split before it got to Eastland. Cisco got a good rain from that one, though - water ran curb deep in places on Main Street.

Randy Johnson of the Pump Station at Lake Cisco reports that the gauge there showed 3.2 inches for Saturday and Sunday. The lake has risen seven inches from these latest rains, and things are looking good. He mentions there is still room for some more water, however.

Lake Cisco had gone down about 12 inches since the early spring rains, but these August rains have nearly put it all back, Johnson says.

Lake Leon has caught over five inches of water recently, an operator at the Eastland County Water District Pump Station reports. Both forks of the Leon River have been running, although there are no reports of flooding in lowlands.

Three-inch rains were general around the town of Ranger, but no serious flooding was reported. The Flatwood community received about 2 1/2 inches, with totals higher toward Gorman and DeLeon. Carbon reported 2.10 in Sunday's rain, with other totals earlier.

There was no flooding in Eastland County to match that in neighboring Comanche County. DeLeon received almost 3 inches of rain in 48 minutes Sunday morning, bringing the town's two-day total to about 5 inches. The heavy rains brought water over a bridge in the main part of town, and two cars were washed off roads.

Drum Corps Turns 50

The Drum Corps for Rising Star High School was organized in 1939-40 with Martha Jay Childress as the sponsor. There was no band at that time so the beat of the drums made the half-time performances of the pep squad snappier and more entertaining.

The Drum Corps will be celebrating its 50th year at the 1990 Homecoming. We would like to get in touch with everyone that was a member of this corps if you, or someone you know, were a member please send name and address to Ms. Florine Forbes, 1504 S. Travis, Amarillo, TX 79102.

1990 Homecoming Edition Planned

A Homecoming 1990 edition of the Rising Star Record is being prepared. If you are interested in paying tribute to someone that influenced your life while growing up in Rising Star, please send your contribution to Ms. Florine Forbes, 1504 S. Travis, Amarillo, TX 79102.

Copies of this edition plus extra copies of the 1988 edition will be handed out at the door at the end of the October 6, Saturday morning, program in the high school gymnasium.

Bloodmobile Will Be Here Tuesday

The Meek Community Blood Bank needs the help of all the Big Country residents. The need is for blood donations. At the present time, donations are drastically reduced. Summer is historically a difficult season for us to maintain the necessary inventory for the area.

The current goal is to collect 60 donations per day. Unfortunately, less than 20 donors per day are giving their blood.

This is not a unique problem for Meek. The summer shortage is felt nationwide. Because of the shared shortage, there is not always blood available to purchase from other blood banks.

The need for human blood continues. No synthetics or substitutes have been found, and the safety and availability of the community blood supply depends on the willingness of healthy people to donate on a regular basis.

Let's have some all-American blood: "LET'S ALL PULL TOGETHER." Keep on with "just say no" to drugs, but when you are asked to donate blood "just say yes."

The Meek Bloodmobile will be in Rising Star Tuesday, August 14, at the city library from 2 to 7 p.m.

It will be hosted by the Saturday Club, with help from the Rising Star Rural Fire Department and BestFast Foods. Club members will serve refreshments to those who wish to donate. Let's say "yes" to this worthy cause.

Contel Provides Free Emergency Calling

Beginning July 1, 1990 emergency calls placed to police, fire department and ambulance emergency services are now toll-free, Contel recently announced.

Contel customers can now make emergency phone calls without long distance charges. Jim Feaster, Contel customer services director, said, "Contel's customers will still dial the emergency number as it is listed in the telephone book. Even though the number will be dialed like a long distance number, no charges will be applied to the customer's bill." Feaster also stated, "Contel customers should contact their Contel Service Office to have the charge adjusted from the bill should they ever receive a charge for calling one of the emergency numbers."

The toll-free emergency calling will remain in effect until 9-1-1 emergency communications service is available.

The strong support and encouragement of Public Utilities Commissioner Jo Campbell for the advancement of telecommunications services in rural Texas played a major roll in bringing this service to fruition.

Weather

The unusual wet weather the last two weeks of July has continued into August. It rained Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday for an accumulation of 4.2 inches or more. Sunday's rainfall was the heaviest, with 3.5 to 4.2 reported. Lesser amounts fell to the west of town Sunday with one gauge catching about 2 inches. The rain was very general but amounts varied considerably.

Front Page Of First Edition Still Around In 1965

Mrs. Vada Arnold, and Mrs. W.E. Ellis (not pictured) members of the staff in 1965, held a copy of the first issue of the Rising Star Record published August 9, 1890 for this photo, published October 21, 1965. The six-column paper had four pages and contained advertising and news with many names still familiar to many folks in 1965. The newspaper became The Rising Star with that 1965 issue.

The following article, written by the late Vada Arnold, was published in the October 21, 1965 edition of The Rising Star, 75 years after the first newspaper was published.

roamed the countryside. Wild coyotes were in abundance and Comanche Indians were here and made frequent raids, sometimes killing entire families.

The fertile land had not been cultivated for there "was not a man to till the soil."

In the year 1880, Thomas W. Anderson drifted out to this country from Nevada County, Ark. and recognized the value and possibilities of the land. He located on the present site of Rising Star and established the first post office in a small storehouse 12 by 14.

In 1883 the first flour mill and cotton gin were opened. The same year H.E. Anderson succeeded his father as postmaster and storekeeper. In 1883 a school house was built of lumber hauled here from another part of the state.

During 1886-87 a drouth extended through central Texas and virtually stopped all building and improvements in the village of Rising Star.

In 1889 a notary office and music store were established by Capt. W.P. Bucy. A general mercantile store was built and operated by a Mr. Halbert. The store burned the same year. Later a "mammoth" two-story building was erected by the Masonic Lodge.

In 1890 the Smith Hotel and Feed Stables were established, also a blacksmith shop, a barber shop, drug store and meat market.

On August 9, 1890 the first newspaper was published in Rising Star by a young printer and lawyer by the name of Charles D. Spann from Brownwood. Spann was editor and printer in charge until 1893, when he was elected county attorney.

He sold the paper to Jim

Whittaker, a school teacher in the community. Mr. Whittaker was not a printer and after much difficulty in printing the paper, he made a deal with the Brownwood Bulletin to have it printed there. In 1896 Mr. Whittaker was killed in a difficulty with George Komegay, another printer here. Mr. Komegay was acquitted on a charge of murder and later became a minister.

After the death of Mr. Whittaker, Rising Star was without a paper until 1899 when Albert Tyson, a young lawyer, bought the print shop and put out a paper which was called the Rising Star News. In 1900 the name was changed to the Rising Star X-Ray. Mr. Tyson continued to publish the paper until he died by his own hand in April, 1908.

Following the death of Mr. Tyson, a local stock company composed of D.E. Jones, D.M. Jacobs and C.E. Anderson took over publication of the paper. Robert Brigham, who had worked for Mr. Tyson, was editor and publisher.

In 1909 C.E. Anderson and Lanham Brown were publishers of the Rising Star X-Ray. During the years from 1909 to 1911, the X-Ray was in the hands of a number of different editors including George T. Barnes, Smith Brothers and others.

In 1911 J.J. Gregg purchased the paper and operated it until 1918 when he sold it to W.T. Curtis.

In the early part of 1924 M.S. "Doc" Sellers took over as owner and he changed the name to the Rising Star Record. Shortly after Mr. Sellers took charge, a typesetting machine and modern equipment were installed.

Rising star once boasted of

three newspapers published at the same time. In those days printers drew their wages in the form of orders on local merchants in payment of their accounts to the newspaper.

In 1944 Jack kMcCarty came here from Goldthwaite and began work for Mr. Sellers. Mr. McCarty became co-owner after a few years and upon Mr. Seller's retirement purchased the remaining interest. In 1953 he purchased the Cross Plains Review and sold the Record to Mr. and Mrs. F.D. Hicks who published the paper until July, 1954 when B.A. Butler, the present (1965) owner and publisher acquired the paper.

Mr. Butler changed the name from the Rising Star Record to The Rising Star October 21, 1965. He sold the paper to H.V. and Gaynell O'Brien April 1, 1972 and they are currently owners and publishers. Editors since they bought the paper have been Bobbie Sansom, James Steel, Emma Jean Steel, Evelyn Donham and current editor, Carolyn Ratliff.

THE RISING STAR

100 Years Old Today

The articles on this page were first printed in a special historical edition of the Rising Star Record August 26, 1937; 'Doc' Sellers was editor and the masthead proclaimed that his newspaper was "sewing the most prosperous sections of Eastland, Brown and Comanche Counties."

Special Edition Of Old Rising Star Record Gives Interesting History Of Rising Star; Many Changes Noted

S.H. Clark Won Prize Offered by Atlanta Constitution With Second Largest Watermelon Grown in United States; Story of How Rising Star Was Named Is Told.

We were interested the other day in coming across a copy of a special edition of the Rising Star Record, issued by Sid Smith in 1904, containing the following write-up of the early history of the community. It is interesting to note the changes that have been made in the 33 years since this story was published.

On January the 6, 1876, six families from Gregg county settled in the fertile valley where now the thriving little town of Rising Star is situated. The families were those of W.W. Smith, Isaac Agnew, Allis Smith, Andy Agnew, Dave McKinney, and Fletcher Fields.

These families settled places near the present site of the Star and began the improvement of their claims.

The nearest railroad point was Fort Worth. From this town and Waco the people hauled their supplies and there marketed their products. The country, in those days, was open post oak. High sage grass clothed the face of the earth and afforded hiding places for the prairie chickens and wild turkeys which roved unmolested through the woods. Deer were to be seen on every hillside and valley.

The name Rising Star was given the place by the Post Office authorities at Washington when application was made for the establishment of a post office, the name Ausborn was suggested by the applicant, but for some reason this name was not granted and the name Rising Star was given by the department.

A man by the name of Ausborn was the first post master. He kept the office at his home, two miles east of the present site of the town. He was also the first dispenser of justice in this community.

Inclination for Enlightenment

The people early evinced a strong inclination for enlightenment by the erection of a log house 14x14 for a school house and the employment of a certain Bill Welch as a teacher.

Mr. Welch was a man in his manner thoroughly in harmony with the times. He often taught under the branches of trees and not infrequently attended school bare footed.

The school house was situated a mile and a half east of the present Rising Star. A few years later a box school house was built near the cemetery and here a great number of the most substantial citizens of the community received their education.

An amusing incident still remains in the memory of some of our people. Squire Doyle of Pioneer was the master. The squire was a good teacher but a little rusty on arithmetic, the most important study to the boy.

He had a key to Ray's Third Part.

The advanced class comprised the then promising youths, Joe Cone, Jim Smith, Leonard Hull, Allen Leach and George Cox. The boys laid a plot for their dear teacher and appointed Leonard Hull to steal the key. This he did, and hid it in the ceiling. This broke up the school as the squire never came to school again.

The key was found when the house was torn down several years later.

In 1878 Uncle Tommie Anderson bought from Dave McKinley the land on which Rising Star is located.

He in the same year moved the office to his home and built a little box store house. He carried a small stock of groceries and dry goods at this place until 1883. In this year a larger store was opened up about three hundred yards northeast of the little store, (the present site of the town).

Rising Star is situated about 23 miles south of Cisco and about half way between Cisco and Brownwood in the center of a fine agricultural section. Its population is about 700.

Businesses Listed

It has seven general merchandise stores carrying stocks of from four thousand dollars to forty thousand dollars, four drug stores, three blacksmith shops, two newspapers, two restaurants, one hotel, two livery stables, two photograph galleries, two barber shops, as fine a phone system as you can find anywhere, five church buildings, one bank, one jewelry store, two gins, one cotton yard, one tin shop, one acetylene light plant, one dental office and one school building costing $4,000. The school employs seven teachers and has enrolled this year 332 pupils.

It is seventeen miles from Carbon, the nearest railroad point, thirty-five miles from Comanche, twenty-eight miles from Brownwood, thirty-three miles from Coleman, about thirty-five miles from Baird.

Making Rising Star a railroad point we estimate that it would draw from an area of nine hundred square miles. Estimating that there are four families to the section of land, (which we believe is a conservative estimate) and five persons to the family, there are eighteen thousand inhabitants in this territory. About ninety per cent of the population are engaged in agricultural pursuits and the remainder are merchants, mechanics, etc. This territory includes the most densely populated portions of Eastland, Brown, Comanche and Callahan counties.

About forty percent of this territory is now in cultivation and the remaining sixty percent is timbered land. The timber is principally post oak, black jack, spanish oak and mesquite. The post oak is especially plentiful. Building materials consisting of useful earths, sand and stone is abundant and of the very best quality.

The principal products are corn, oats, cane and cotton. Vegetables and fruits of all kinds grow luxuriantly without irrigation. The country is especially adapted to truck and fruit growing and these would be profitable industries with convenient shipping facilities.

Prizes Won

In 1901 S.H. Clark of this community was awarded a premium by the Atlanta Constitution for the largest watermelon grown in the United States. H.E. Anderson of Rising Star sent the largest cabbage head exhibited at the Farmers' Congress at College Station in 1903 and S.H. Henry the largest onion and these were grown without irrigation. For the season of 1903 there were ginned 19,283 bales of cotton within a radius of ten miles of Rising Star and of this number 4,400 were turned out by the two gins at Rising Star.

The different merchants of Rising Star sold in 1903 $228,500 worth of goods. Eight four-mule teams are kept constantly on the road hauling freight to and from the railroad. During the cotton season this number is increased to twenty-five and thirty.

Improved land is valued at from $10 to $20 per acre and unimproved from $5 to $10 per acre. A committee appointed by the citizens of this community in 1903 for the purpose of getting as nearly as possible an accurate estimate of the taxable values of real and personal property of about the same territory as above indicated reported as follows:

"We estimate the value of real estate at $5,000,000."
"We estimate the amount of personal property to be $261,502."

No Boll Weevils

The country is especially free from troublesome insects of all kinds. Grass hoppers, boll weevils, cotton and fruits of any kind have never disturbed the people of this section.

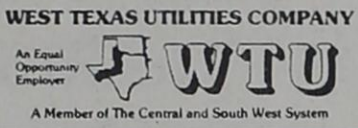

The soil is a dark sandy loam with a red clay subsoil. Marlites lime and phosphate the most useful natural fertilizer known exists in abundance throughout the country and by the gradual disintegrations of this, the soil is kept constantly fertilized and will not become unproductive for many years. The clay subsoil furnished an impenetrable basin for the water which readily sinks through the sand.

From this the moisture rises and keeps vegetation growing for weeks after the same parched on the black lands.

Some Sort of Monument Should Be Built Honoring Pioneer-Heroes, Founder of First Newspaper Here Says In Article

Charles Dickens Spann, Who Published First Issue of Rising Star Record Here August 9, 1890, Says Memory of Those Who Sacrificed for This Community Should Be Exalted

By CHARLES DICKENS SPANN

In midsummer of the year 1890 a 21-year-old printer-boy resigned his job as foreman of his father's newspaper and print shop in Brownwood, loaded up his few household belongings, bought a cheap buggy and a blind horse, and drove, with his young wife and twin daughters of about two months of age, up to the village of Rising Star, and embarked upon his first venture in business by establishing a newspaper which he named THE RISING STAR RECORD, the first issue of which was of date August 9th, 1890.

The first newspaper was an all home-print six-column weekly that was printed on an Army hand-press, from type set up by hand, and this Brownwood printer-boy served as editor, printer, pressman, devil and all other positions connected with this newspaper and printing enterprise, until he annexed the services of a Rising Star youngster named Oran McClure, the son of Rev. J.A. McClure, pastor of the Missionary Baptist Church in Rising Star, which preacher's boy said printer-boy taught to "play the devil" and thus started him off in the printing and publishing game, which he pursued the rest of his life.

Boxing Plank Office
At the beginning The Record was housed in a 10x12 office of plain boxing plank, pine shingle roof, with no ceiling which, together with a two-room dwelling of the same material, which housed the aforesaid prolific beginning of a family belonging to the poor young printer-boy, constituted the initial "plant" of Rising Star's first newspaper enterprise. It was located on a lot donated by Dr. J.R. Lyon, one of the pioneers of Rising Star, and among its most well-beloved and enterprising citizens, who like many others of his class there, has long since passed on to his much merited reward, but the memory of his many good deeds in a large area over which he practiced his profession with self-sacrificing and marked success will continue to follow in the hearts and minds of many generations of people of that section.

There should be a fitting monument erected at a suitable place in Rising Star, and a scroll, or honor roll, of the many hero pioneers both men and women who so nobly gave the best years of their lives, as well as self-sacrificing and courageous endeavors to the establishment of civilization and laid the foundations of progress and advancement that have so solidly followed and are now evident on every hand in the present lovely city of Rising Star and its environs. Those early heroes were well-known and rallied to the support of this young printer-boy in carrying forward this first newspaper enterprise at Rising Star. Many of them later enthusiastically supported him for the various official positions which he filled in Eastland county and the section of Texas in which it is located.

Like to Mention Names
He would love to exaltingly mention all of them herein by name and set forth their many acts and deeds of much deserved praise, but recognizing that space in this special edition of the Record must needs be given to other worthy articles similarly prepared upon other subjects, he realizes that he must refrain from enlarging upon this phase of the historical beginnings in and around Rising Star, by again suggesting that some sort of a memorial should be made and dedicated to the memory of all these early pioneers and heroes in such manner as that their names and deeds shall be permanently perpetuated through the generations to come.

(Editor's note: Lillian Medcalf, now Lillian Bailey of May, wrote the poem in 1981 and won an award from World of Poetry.)

Newspapers Of Rising Star

Like most West Texas towns, Rising Star has seen a number of newspapers come and go. The first paper to be established in the town was the Rising Star Record by Charles D. Spann, a young Brownwood printer and lawyer. The first edition was published on August 9, 1890. Spann continued in charge of the paper until 1892 when he was elected county attorney. He sold the paper to Jim Whittaker, a school teacher of the community and moved to Eastland. Mr. Whittaker was not a printer and after experiencing difficulties in getting out the paper made a deal with the Brownwood Bulletin to have it published there.

This arrangement was continued until 1896 when Mr. Whittaker was killed in a difficulty with George Kornegay, who was writing the news from Rising Star for a Brownwood paper. Mr. Kornegay was acquitted on a charge of murder and later became a minister and is still an itinerant pastor.

Plant Closed Up
Following the death of Mr. Whittaker, according to best information available the printing plant here was closed up and Rising Star had no paper until September, 1899 when Albert Tyson, a local lawyer, acquired the plant and established a new paper, which was first called the Rising Star News. In about 1900, when the X-Ray first came into prominence, he changed the name of the paper to the X-Ray, under which name it was continued until 1925 when the name was changed to the Record by the present publisher.

Mr. Tyson continued to publish the paper and practice law at the same time. His style of writing was often vitriolic and he never stood back on making public his sentiments, not only on the issues of the day, but anything that struck his fancy. In his masthead he listed himself as "Horse, Snake, Lying and Fighting Editor." However, he was a great believer in Rising Star and was one of its greatest boosters. He died by his own hand in April 1908.

Following the death of Mr. Tyson, a local stock company took over the publication of the paper. The company was composed of D.E. Jones, D.M. Jacobs, C.E. Anderson and others. Robert Brigham, who had been in the employ of Mr. Tyson, was listed as editor and publisher.

Civic Enterprise

The company did not continue in business long as we find early in 1909 Anderson and Brown listed as publishers. The Anderson was the Rev. W.E. Anderson, now pastor of the Methodist Church at Bangs and his partner was Lanham Brown, now of Dallas.

In speaking of his newspaper experience a few days ago the Rev. Mr. Anderson stated that he and Brown, neither one of whom knew anything about the newspaper business, took the paper purely as a community enterprise and intended to carry it on only until an experienced man could be gotten to take over the proposition.

From that time until 1911 the paper seemed to have been in several different hands, among others a Mr. Fryar having charge for a while and a Mr. Irby taking a fling at newspapering here.

In 1911 J.J. Gregg, now located at Santa Anna, as owner of the News, came into the picture and continued as publisher of the paper until 1918 when he sold it to W.T. Curtis, who early in 1924 sold it to its present publisher, who has been in continuous charge longer than any other publisher to own the newspaper.

The paper was hand set and used a gasoline engine for power until taken over by the present publisher when a typesetting machine and modern equipment was installed, the plant now being one of the best equipped weekly newspaper shops in this section of the state.

Other Papers Listed

Other papers published in Rising Star include a Rising Star Record established by the late George T. Barnes in 1901. This paper was later taken over by the Smith Bros., and continued for several years before being absorbed by the X-Ray. There was also, at one time, a Rising Star Signal, published by Bige Hardin and another paper by John Adams, now of Houston.

The town at one time boasted three newspapers being published at the same time. This was back in the days when anyone who felt the urge for self-expression could for a few hundred dollars get together a bunch of old type, a second hand Washington hand press and begin the publication of a newspaper. Advertising was all "Traded out" and most subscriptions were paid with a load of wood, a bushel of potatoes or what have you.

Printers drew their meager wages in the form of orders on local merchants in payment of their accounts with the newspaper. We note in an old issue of the X-Ray where it boasted a $3,500 plant. In this day and time $15,000 is considered a conservative investment for a modern newspaper plant. Which is probably why there are not so many weekly newspapers today.

Children Of Working Parents Need After-School Care

By 1995, 80 percent of all school-age children will have mothers in the work force, and many of those children may be left to care for themselves after school, says Texas Medical Association.

When parents don't arrive home from work until after 5 or 6 p.m., their children face a number of safety risks, such as fire, falls and molestation, said TMA member Jerry Newton, M.D., school health doctor of San Antonio Independent School District.

In addition to physical danger, these so-called "latch-key" children are deprived of nurturing and other social-emotional needs. Some sit fearfully behind a locked door watching television, while others roam the streets where they risk getting involved in alcohol and drugs.

Finding quality after-school care for children often is difficult and expensive. TMA supports the concept of after-hours care in the schools, particularly in children of low-income families.

"After-school care at school is an excellent way to provide day-care for working parents," Dr. Newton said, because the physical facilities (building, utilities, playground) already are there.

But, he emphasized, after-school care should not "be an extension of school." Children should not do homework or other academic tasks, but rather engage in "free play."

"Children need to develop social skills by playing with other children, and they can't do that when adults are always telling them what to do," said Dr. Newton.

Play "ought to be fun and not geared toward physical fitness," he continued. Parents should be caregivers "encourage children to participate" for their own enjoyment and "not to perform or perfect athletic skill."

Besides play, after-school programs ideally should offer nutritional snacks, arts and crafts projects, and enrichment activities such as music.

In most large cities in Texas, after-school care is available at some public schools, usually in cooperation with a non-profit community organization.

In 1989 the Texas Legislature passed a law requiring school districts with more than 5,000 students to have two public hearings annually to assess the need for schoolage care and its availability in the community.

Whether seeking public or private after-school care, TMA encourages parents to choose quality programs. Anything less is not worth the risk.

The Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of more than 29,000 physician and medical student members. It is interested in educational programs on cancer prevention or early detection and treatment.

Some of the programs demonstrate "Breast Self-Examination," the simple technique of checking for unusual lumps or thickening in the breast. "The Cancer No One Talks About" is a program about cancer of the colon. "Let's Call It Quits," an adult film, shows the humorous, yet serious side of a man as he tries to quit smoking. "Eat Smart" is a program on developing good nutrition sense.

We would also be glad to show adults the educational materials that the American Cancer Society has produced for students about health education, prevention, and detection of the disease. Parents need to know what their children are being taught.

daily journal, I've been thinking about our times. I read advice on financial conditions, best investments and interesting institution failures. "Invest in highest quality," they urge, after mentioning a lot of high-return opportunities for large investors, to whose class I do not belong. I continue to buy U.S. Savings Bonds, which is about my speed.

If you think, with us, that our whole society, finance and all, is about to fall, believe that the Bible is the only foundation that has stood the test of time. You cannot trust the other side. They are greedy, giddy and guileful.

Hope in God, for I shall yet praise him. He is the only one who is offering hope.

Dental Dialogue by Cone C. Rice, D.D.S.

Sinus Toothache

Q. Is it possible to have a toothache from a cold?
A. Yes. The sinuses are bony openings in the upper jaw. There are several sinus cavities located right above your upper back teeth. If you have a cold, sometimes congestion occurs in these cavities, and that can cause a toothache. One way you can judge if you have a sinus toothache is if your back teeth are sensitive to hot or cold liquids, or if they feel loose when you bite down. If you think you have such a toothache, a visit to your dentist is in order. After an examination, he or she will probably prescribe a decongestant to relieve the pressure, and perhaps an antibiotic as well.

There's Still Time to See 'Hello, Dolly!'

By Jackie Kincheloe
CISCO - "Hello, Dolly!" is the talk of Eastland County. Those who have seen it are still discussing the discoveries they have made as to hidden talents of friends and neighbors. Now, there's no intention of giving away all the show's delightful secrets, but a few tidbits might whet your appetite for what is in store for theatergoers.

Mindy Stephenson is not only a delight at which to look, but she will treat the audience to a one-handed cartwheel. Silverware will fly in one musical number.

The costumes are stunning and accented by actual period accessories such as hats and gloves. You'll be transported to turn-of-the-century New York through a colorful array of fashions. Many hours of meticulous handwork went into appliques and other finishing touches to perfect the wardrobe down to the most minute detail.

--A Goodbye--

The Chambers Grocery, which has been serving this community for over ten years, will be closing their doors this Saturday, August 11th. Larry and Bobbi wish to express their gratitude to each and every customer for their patronage and loyalty throughout the years.

Larry and Bobbi would like for everyone to know that they will keep their meat market open for customers who would like larger orders of beef, such as whole, half and quarter beefs.

If there are any questions, please feel free to contact Larry or Bobbi Chambers at 643-6510 from 8 a.m. - 6:00 p.m.

Once again, thank you all for your many years of continuous business. Our deepest appreciation,

Larry and Bobbi Chambers
