Triathlon pumps cash into local economy

The Lifetime Triathlon, which took place at The Harbor Oct. 6, injected an estimated $419,000 into the local economy, with $14,500 of that in hotel/motel tax paid to the City of Rockwall and $7,500 in charitable donations, according to a news release from the municipality.

The annual event drew 1,247 athletes. Forty-one were competing professional tri-athletes along with 55 athletes from Rockwall and 60 percent of the athletes from the greater DFW area.

Other highlights of the triathlon included:

· More than $200,000 in hotel revenue and $85,000 in restaurant revenue

 Six countries represented Mexico, United including Kingdom, Australia, Denmark and the Czech Republic

• 25 states represented

The preliminary event report was presented to the Rockwall City Council by Lifetime Tri: Dallas on Oct. 21. A final report is expected before the end of the year.

Musings of a 20-something ...

Character induces writer's creativity

"My mommy is the best mommy in the world. She's making me my favorite chocolate chip pancakes. And today is especially special so I know she'll make the smiley face.

"Last time she made it, she made the smile with the whipped cream that makes those funny noises when it comes out of the can. And the eyes were bananas with a chocolate chip right in the middle to make it look like the black part of your eye. My mommy never lets me have any chocolate chips while I'm waiting for them to cook, but she said today is special so she brought me a few on a plate."

Up until a few nights ago, I had almost forgotten about the story of the 7-year-old little boy named Kaden, who only wanted a new Monopoly game for his birthday. Little did I know that during that creative writing class early in my college career that I was a writer.

Before then, I knew I could write. I wrote papers in high school -- and even in my first English class in college -- that my teachers always spoke very highly of.

Honestly, I don't even remember the professor's name from that

I remember it being a night class, despising the drive from Plano that late at night and the strangest conversations that our class would get into.

So strange, in fact, that one girl brought the book 'What's Your Poo Telling You?' to class one night because apparently we had happened upon that subject in a previous class.

The only field trip we ever took was to Borders where we read our final stories out loud. Where other people could hear.

I had never let anyone outside of friends and family read any of my stuff, let alone perfect stranger. And to read it to them? You must be

Since I finished the last draft of that short story about the little boy for that class, it has been sitting on my computer untouched.

In the story, the little boy ends up getting the Monopoly game. You know what, I'll let him explain what happened.

"Wait a second. There's no board in this box. Or boat. Or thimble, Or shoe. Or even any of those red and green houses. All that's in this box is money. Not even the kind that's all different colors that usually comes with the game either. This is all real money. The kind that I don't like. I didn't get my game after all. All I got was this stupid money. Stupid, stupid money."

And that is how the story ends.

You see, his parents didn't have much money. All he knew about "real money" was that it made his parents fight.

I, as the writer, know how the money got there, now, it's time for him to find out how.

Volunteers needed to aid nursing home residents

The North Central Texas Council of Governments' Area Agency on Aging Ombudsman Program needs volunteers to help residents of nursing and assisted-living facilities throughout Rockwall, Collin and Hunt counties.

Ombudsmen advocate for residents' rights including, but not limited to, dependable and consistent care and an environment that promotes the residents' dignity, self-determination and communication, according to the NCTCOG news release.

Volunteer ombudsmen also receive and investigate complaints made by, or on behalf of, residents or their families. Since many residents do not receive regular visitors or have close relatives, it may be difficult for them to enlist advocates. Volunteer ombudsmen serve as advocates for all residents, connecting them to their broader communities, affirming their rights and assisting them in resolving concerns.

No prior experience is required to serve as a volunteer ombudsman, but volunteers must be at least 18 years of age and complete a free training course that consists of both classroom study and training at local nursing homes, lasting up to 34 contact hours. After training, volunteers serve an internship, working two to three hours per week in their assigned facility.

Hours are flexible and are determined by each volunteer. Training will take place Nov. 12 and 19 and Dec. 3 and 10 in Wylie. Classes will run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Registration is requested.

For more details or to register, contact Pat Borgfeldt, Area Agency on Aging, at 817-360-0984 or email PBorgfeldt@nctcog.org.

VA makes flu shots available

PREGNANCY AND DENTAL CARE

against scheduling dental exams, but all that has changed. Now, in recognition of the fact that hormonal changes associated with pregnancy can exert significant effects on dental and oral health, pregnant women are being encouraged to visit the dentist before, during, and after their pregnancies. Bacterial growth in our mouths that is influenced by hormones has the potential to create problems related to bone density, as well as to potential difficulties in pregnancy. With this in mind, pregnant women and those with intentions of having children have every reason to visit the dentist. In fact, pregnant women should view dental visits as part of their comprehensive prenatal care.

Too many pregnant women are not getting timely dental care. Dental treatment during pregnancy is considered beneficial and delaying oral care may be capable of having serious consequences. At McNEW DENTAL we keep abreast of all the new techniques that are available in today's world of dentistry. Call 469/338-4603 today and schedule an appointment. We're located at 1300 E. Ralph Hall Pkwy., Suite 114, where we are currently accepting new patients. "Smiles are contagious and best when shared."

P.S. Hormonal changes experienced by (post-) menopausal women should prompt regular visits to the dentist. www.mcnewdental.com

n God's Word

by Timothy W. Burnett Rightly Dividing God's word ... The earth's history revisited

One enjoyable part of rightly dividing God's word is comparing the earlier known words in the ancient texts with the words used in the King James Bible, or other Bibles.

Some helpful study materials include Young's Analytical Concordance to the Bible (YACB), the Brown-Driver-Briggs Hebrew-English Lexicon and J.H. Thayer's Greek-English Lexicon.

The above resources utilize the numbered reference system used in Strong's Concordance.

Although it is a blessing to learn from teachers who have a strong understanding of the ancient Hebrew and Greek languages, people can use the books as reference tools without having the same knowledge.

On the subject of rightly dividing God's word, let's turn to the first two verses in the whole Bible, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep" (Genesis 1:1-2).

At first glance it would appear that what God created was originally "without form and void," with "darkness upon the face of the deep."

A word study of the word "create" in the context of God's works reveals a conflict.

Throughout the Old Testament, Gospels, and New Testament, all references to God's creations imply perfection. What God does and creates is always understood to be perfect.

It says in Psalms 111:2-3, "The works of the Lord are great, sought of all them that have pleasure therein. His work is honorable and glorious: And his righteousness endures for ever."

When someone creates a beautiful painting, would it be said that the painting was without form and void, with only darkness on its face, and then start describing how the painter made it beautiful and perfect?

No ... anytime something is described as being created, it is understood that the finished product is the creation.

The key to identifying the conflict is in the word "was," found in

The word "was" finds its translation from the ancient Hebrew word "haya," which meant to be, become, come to pass, come to existence, happen, fall out. Interestingly, the words "was" and "become" do not appear in the

Using the Bible study tools in www.blueletterbible.org helps to find the Strong's number for haya, which is used to find the Hebrew word in Briggs Hebrew-English Lexicon. The meaning of the Hebrew word "haya" uses nearly four pages of the Lexicon (Strong's number 1933, pp. 224-228).

The one common thread throughout the uses of haya is change from one condition to another. Something either good or bad comes to pass, resulting in a change of conditions.

The words "without form and void" are translated from the ancient Hebrew word "tohu va bohu" which in essence me; vanity and waste. In context, it would refer to the earth a wasteland (imagine a desert). It is used often in the cor being wasted by an enemy.

Part of rightly dividing God's word involves search on a particular subject.

There is no record throughout the Bible of God crea there any record of God's works being in vain. Alas, the God being darkness. Instead God is light.

With this in mind, it can be more perfectly understo originally created was not in a condition of "tohu."

Something came to pass to cause His original crear uninhabitable wasteland in darkness. The cause of this in the earth's history is the subject of another Biblical With this knowledge, people can at least be stre integrity of God's rightly divided word.

He created the heaven and the earth to be pe inhabitable.

> Margie VerHagen, executive director of Meals on Wheels, began the program by informing a full house that more than 40,000 meals were delivered each year in Rockwall County.

> Andy Crocker, Extension program specialist for gerontology and health, Texas AgriLife Extension Service, said four things impacts people's health the most: environment, 19 percent; lifestyle, 50 percent; genetics, 21 percent; and access (too much of anything such as drinking, eating, smoking, etc.), 10 percent.

Royse City mayor credited with saving man's life

by Millie Jean Coppedge

When the citizens gathered at the Royse City Senior Citizen's Center for lunch Oct. 28, little did they know someone's life would be saved before lunch was over.

Everyone enjoys visiting, catching up on the news and partaking of a good meal at the center. The main entree of the lunch on Monday was barbecued ribs.

Shortly after everyone began to eat, C.H. (Chuck) Montgomery began coughing and clutching at his neck tightly with both hands. Everyone's attention turned to him as he struggled more and more. He was taking in some air at first, then stopped coughing and breathing, turning red in the face.

At this point everyone knew Montgomery was in trouble. He could not breathe. His airway was blocked. The room fell silent. Everyone felt panicked, but no one knew what to do. Some didn't know the Heimlich maneuver and others, especially the ladies, were much too small to have given the procedure.

Sharon House, who helps prepare the meals at the center every day, quickly called 911 and stayed on the phone with the operator throughout the ordeal

Buddy Sheppard hurriedly got behind Montgomery and tried to perform the Heimlich maneuver but couldn't get his arms around the man enough to get a strong grip. The Heimlich maneuver is a procedure used when someone is choking to help dislodge food or other objects from the choking persons airway.

Jerrell Baley, mayor of Royse City, pushed forward, got behind Montgomery and did two quick, strong Heimlich thrusts, lifting Montgomery completely off the floor. His actions dislodged the portion of the barbecued ribs Montgomery had lodged in his throat, and Montgomery began to breathe again.

"The ambulance arrived within five minutes," Bailey said. "It was all over by then and Montgomery didn't want to go to the emergency room/ hospital. The paramedics checked all Montgomery's vital signs and determined that he was all right."

Heath curfew ordinance sent home by 4-3 vote ...

Below is the continuation of story published in the October 31, 2013 edition of Rockwall County News, by Brittany Williams

Councilman Rich Krause compared the ordinance to the drunk driving law stating that the law is put in place, yet people still choose to break it by getting behind the wheel after they have had too much to drink.

A motion was made to extend the ordinance, which failed by a vote of 4-3.

Council also was presented with a presentation by Shelley Garrett representing the Leadership Rockwall class of 2014 presenting the council with an opportunity to construct a butterfly garden in the Town Center Park located behind city hall.

Leadership Rockwall is responsible for the dog park at Harry Meyers Park and disc golf in Fate.

"It has to benefit the community in Rockwall County, so we figured it was time for a project in Heath," Mrs. Garrett said.

The 7,800 square foot garden would feature xeriscaping, educational signage for life cycle and species of butterflies and a butterfly wing display for a photo op for children. The proposed round shaped garden will be sectioned to feature each of the four stages of metamorphosis of a butterfly. to cost approximateproject is expected Rockwall would cover. $24,000, which Leadership

Estimated cost for maintenance would be $9,000 to $10,000 a year, which includes weeding and watering. Following in the park board's footsteps, Council unanimously supported the project.

The next scheduled city council meeting is scheduled for Nov. 11.

Baley seems a little embarrassed to talk about what happened.

"I am not a hero," he said when those at the center praised him, remembering what had happened a few days ago.

There are times when Baley has business appointments or other activities and is unable to get to the center for lunch. All those years Baley served as a fireman may be the reason Montgomery is alive and back at the center to spend time and enjoy meals with good friends.

Royse City Mayor Jerrell Baley and Chuck Montgomery demonstrated Friday during lunch how Baley performed the Heimlich maneuver at the Senior Citizen Center during lunch Oct. 28, saving Chuck's life.

Sovereignty and Responsibility

by Debra Medina

WeTexans.com

On Tuesday, June 25, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down section 4 of the Voter Rights Act of 1965. This new ruling rightly restores the responsibility for protecting the right to vote on several states that were previously required to have federal oversight of their election laws. This ruling is a victory for state sovereignty, but with sovereignty comes responsibility. Which begs the question, is Texas ready and willing to accept that responsibility?

Every ten years our state legislature is tasked with redrawing district lines across Texas to reflect updated federal census data. Fairness and equity should be the goal in redrawing the maps, but unfortunately we see nothing but partisanship and animosity every redistricting year. While we did not wade into the redistricting news during the 82nd legislative session, we do want to point out the purpose of this process and how justice has been abused and neglected in this arena.

Districts are to be redrawn to accommodate population growth and are to be a fair and equitable representation of the demographics of each region. Unfortunately, this is a framing of the process you will never hear addressed under the pink dome. The process is always a school yard brawl between the two parties to wrangle as many votes and protect as many of their incumbents as possible leaving the voters of Texas walking off the field with black eyes and bloody noses. The tug of war between political parties over district lines, each trying to gain advantage over the other, needs to stop.

Additionally, the same view of equity should be applied to any election laws we choose to implement as a state (including the controversial Voter ID law passed in the 82nd legislative session and subsequently struck down by federal courts for being "intentionally discriminatory.") Our goal should always be to protect the right to vote while guarding against disenfranchisement and discrimination at all fronts. Since 1965, the Federal Justice Department has had the final responsibility to ensure our state met this goal. That all changed with the June ruling. Now the responsibility to achieve that goal lies solely with our elected officials, and the responsibility to keep those elected officials in line lies with us, Texas citizens. Are we ready to shoulder that?

Those of us advocating for state sovereignty, as guaranteed under the 9th and 10th amendments to the U.S. Constitution, leadership in Texas. We are yet to have a real discussion of justice and equity when it comes to redistricting and The blame for this can be laid squarely at the feet of on The debacle in the Texas senate at the end of the first sn once again put on public display the ineptitude of those with responsibility to protect citizens through lawmaking

For too long, our elected officials have cared more political careers than the people of Texas they've swome must work to raise up new leaders, to demand that elected uphold their oaths, to insure as our Bill of Right equal rights and equality under the law. With every state up for election in 2014, Texans have an opportunity in turbulent course. Let's courageously accept the response run the course before us with determination to, under new return to the ideals of a representative republic, one to liberty, integrity and justice before the political future da

What was not said about Iraq

by Ron Paul RonPaulInstitute.com

October was Iraq's deadliest month since April, 2008. In those five and a half years, not only has there been no improvement in Iraq's security situation, but things have gotten much worse. More than 1,000 people were killed in Iraq last month, the vast majority of them civilians. Another 1,600 were wounded, as car bombs, shootings, and other attacks continue to maim and murder. As post-"liberation" Iraq spirals steadily downward, Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki was in Washington last week to plead for more assistance from the United States to help restore order to a society demolished by the 2003 US invasion. Al-Qaeda has made significant recent gains, Maliki told President Obama at their meeting last Friday, and Iraq needs more US military aid to combat its growing influence. Obama pledged to work together with Iraq to address al-Qaeda's growing presence, but what was not said was that before the US attack there was no al-Qaeda in Iraq. The appearance of al-Qaeda in Iraq coincided with the US attack. They claimed we had to fight terror in Iraq, but the US invasion resulted in the creation of terrorist networks where before there were none. What a disaster.

Maliki also told President Obama last week that the war in next-door Syria was spilling over into Iraq, with the anti-Assad fighters setting off bombs and destabilizing the country. Already more than 5,000 people have been killed throughout Iraq this year, and cross-border attacks from Syrian rebels into Iraq are increasing those numbers. Again, what was not said was that the US government had supported these anti-Assad fighters both in secret and in the open for the past two years. Earlier in the week a group of Senators - all of whom had supported the 2003 US invasion of Iraq - sent a strongly-worded letter to Obama complaining that Maliki was far too close to the Iranian government next door. What was not said was that this new closeness between the Iraqi and Iranian governments developed under the US-installed government after the US invasion of Iraq. Surely there is plenty of blame that can be placed on Maliki and the various no-doubt corrupt politicians running Iraq these days. But how was it they came to power? Were we not promised by those promoting the war that it would create a beach-head of democracy in the Middle East and a pro-American government? According to former Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill, in early 2001 as the new Bush administration was discussing an attack on Iraq, then-Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld said, "Ima region would look like without Saddam and with a allied with US interests. It would change everything and beyond it. It would demonstrate what US policy

We see all these years later now how ridiculous t I have long advocated the idea that since we in, we should just march out. That goes for U also for US efforts to remake Iraq, Afghanistan everywhere the neocon wars of "liberation" h nothing but chaos, destruction, and more US energy We can best improve the situation by just leaving The interventionists have unfortunately neither lear from the Iraq debacle nor have they changed their still agitating for regime change in Syria, even as t Iraqi government for the destabilization that spills over agitating for a US attack on Iran, with Members of Congre legislation recently that would actually authorize US for It looks like a very slow learning curve for our bipart Washington. It's time for a change

The market is a beautiful thing

by Sheldon Richman

Future Freedom Foundation (fff.org)

Market advocates tend to respect the intellect of their fellow human beings. You can tell by their reliance on philosophical, moral, economic, and historical arguments when trying to persuade others. But what if most people's aversion to the market isn't founded on philosophy, morality, economics, or history?

What if their objection is aesthetic?

More and more I've come to think that is the case, and I believe I witnessed an example recently at a lecture I gave at St. Lawrence University. During the Q&A a woman asked, in all sincerity, why society couldn't do without money, since so many bad things are associated with it. She also suggested that cooperation is better than market competition. I replied that since money facilitates exchange and exchange is cooperation, it follows that money facilitates cooperation — a lovely thing, indeed. Government, I added, corrupts money.

I also said that competition is what happens when we are free to decide with whom we will cooperate. I don't know whether my response prompted her to rethink her objections to the market, but I am confident her objection was aesthetic. For her, money and competition are ugly. Perhaps I didn't respond on an aesthetic level; it's something I have to work on. But I tried, and so must we all when we encounter these sorts of objections.

Like that nice woman, many decent people dislike markets because they find them unattractive. And they associate markets with other things they find unattractive besides money and competition: (rugged, atomistic) individualism, selfishness, and profit. F.A. Hayek noticed this, writing in "Individualism: True and False": "The belief that individualism approves and encourages human selfishness is one of the main reasons why so many people dislike it." If that's the case, philosophical, moral, economic, and historical arguments may fall on deaf ears. The objections must be met on an aesthetic level

In other words, advocates of free markets must demonstrate that markets are things of beauty. Fortunately, that is not hard to do.

Uncommanded harmony

The freed market is a political-legal setting in which people are at liberty to peacefully pursue their chosen plans. This activity generates, unintentionally, an undesigned order that facilitates cooperation and coordination among even distant strangers, making each person's pursuit more effective and efficient than otherwise. The price system is the primary means by which that is accomplished. To many people, the price system seems impersonal and cold, but it is the key to the market's beauty, for it is what gives the market its coordinative and corrective power, which, although generated by individuals' purposive action, transcends them.

The market is beautiful not because it lives up to some mathematically elegant equilibrium model — but because it does not! Its beauty lies in its power to coordinate activity and correct errors. And it does that work without compulsion or authoritarian central direction. As a result, when truly free — no privileges, no arbitrary restrictions — the market gives all a better chance at living in any peaceful way they wish. How lovely!

That is where we should place our emphasis. Frédéric Bastiat knew what he was doing when he called his (unfinished) magnum opus Economic Harmonies. His purpose throughout was to show that the market setting harmonizes people's deepest interests and enables them to further their own causes by cooperating with others through exchange. For him, a central feature of the market is its inexorable transfer of wealth from the private to the "communal domain," as technological innovation and competition increasingly substitute the gratis services of nature for arduous human labor. As a description of this harmony, his book is a work of art — as is Ludwig von Mises's Human Action, which is dedicated to showing that markets are social cooperation. (That nearly was the title of the work).

To most people the quintessential market "force," the law of supply and demand, seems sterile and cold, but it is the market's beauty in action, and we must find ways to communicate it in that way. Adam Smith saw it. Indulge me as I quote from The Wealth of Nations (book 1, chapter 7):

The market price of every particular commodity is regulated by the proportion between the quantity which is actually brought to market, and the demand of those who are willing to pay the natural price of the commodity, or the whole value of the rent, labour, and profit, which must be paid in order to bring it thither. Such people may be called the effectual demanders, and their demand the effectual demand; since it may be sufficient to effectuate the bringing of the commodity to market....

When the quantity of any commodity which is brought to market falls short of the effectual demand, all those who are willing to pay the whole value of the rent, wages, and profit, which must be paid in order to bring it thither, cannot be supplied with the quantity which they want. Rather than want [i.e., do without] it altogether, some of them will be willing to give more. A competition will immediately begin among them, and the market price will rise more or less above the natural price....

whole value of the rent, wages, and profit, which must be paid in order to bring it thither. Some part must be sold to those who are willing to pay less, and the low price which they give for it must reduce the price of the whole. The market price will sink more or less below the natural price....

If at any time it [quantity] exceeds the effectual demand, some of the component parts of its price must be paid below their natural rate. If it is rent, the interest of the landlords will immediately prompt them to withdraw a part of their land; and if it is wages or profit, the interest of the labourers in the one case, and of their employers in the other, will prompt them to withdraw a part of their labour or stock from this employment. The quantity brought to market will soon be no more than sufficient to supply the effectual demand. All the different parts of its price will rise to their natural rate, and the whole price to its natural price.

Representatives from Griffin Construction Company will be at the future development site of the OAC Senior Living Center to allow residents an opportunity to transplant trees which would otherwise be lost when development occurs. The development site, located at 1870 S. John King Blvd, Rockwall, TX 75032 is best accessed by citizens from South John King Blvd.

Trees are available for residents to transplant free of charge between 9:00 am and 2:00 pm on Saturday, 11/2/13. While the trees are free, interested residents should come prepared with any tools and equipment that may be needed to dig and transplant them. Another option is for the residents to hire a professional to transplant the trees. All costs associated with transplanting trees will be the responsibility of the resident. The Developer/Owner shall not be held liable for any damage, injury or expenses that removal of trees may cause to any individual or equipment. If you have any questions please do not hesitate to contact: David Bradshaw at 903-821-5653.

Lady Eagles headed to State after rallying to 150 Heritage Christian Academy came back after losing the first two games

Tuesday night to defeat Waco Vanguard Prep three games to two in a TAPPS 2A Regional volleyball match.

By defeating Vanguard, the Lady Eagles advanced to Friday's state semifinals. The young HCA team is scheduled to play at 1 p.m. at Navarro College in Corsicana against Denton Calvary Academy. Calvary eliminated Heritage Christian's four-time TAPPS District 3-2A champions in the Regionals last year.

Heritage Christian advanced to the Regional round by defeating Faith Academy of Marble Falls 25-13, 25-10, 25-12 in the Bi-District round and DeSoto Canterbury School 25-22, 25-23, 25-12 in the Area competition. The victory over Canterbury was partial vindication for two playoff losses that knocked the Lady Eagles out of the playoffs HCA prevailed in two close games, then advanced by third game.

Sophomore Madison Hill led Heritage Christian with Baylee Hawkins had 16 assists and three service aces an Minter had three blocks. HCA's most experienced plave Fauley, came up with 11 digs.

By winning their 14th match in a row, the Lady Ea season with a 13-0 home record at the Rockwall Indoor Against Faith Academy, Hill had 13 kills, Hawkins pro and seven aces and sophomore Brenna Biggerstaff adder

HCA clinches playoff berth, plays for district

Heritage Christian Academy's playoff berth with Friday's 74-51 victory over Denton Calvary Academy.

Robert Huckabee said, "I spent hours looking at scenarios."

With one game remaining in the regular season, the Eagles now know they will be in the playoffs. They just don't know when, where or whom they will be playing in their post-season opener.

They don't even know whether football thought they clinched a they'll finish first, second or third in TAPPS 6-Man District 3-I. But they do know they won't have to win Saturday at Dallas The Covenant To be sure, HCA head coach School, top-ranked among the state's TAPPS 6-Man I teams, just to reach the playoffs.

"They're very strong, and we're a little bit banged up," Huckabee

The Eagles played against Calvary (2-6 overall, 1-3 in the district) without defenders Ben Migneault, out because of a hand injury, and Eli Cates, who sat out because of a headache. During the game at Hobart Wisdom Field, Cole Carpenter went down with a shoulder injury.

"We didn't play our best, but we played good enough to win," Huckabee said.

"We were pleased to be able to do it offensively. Colin (Westmoreland) had a good game, and Wyatt (French) had a good game. They ran the ball well, and we were able to get a couple of touchdown passes because we could run effectively."

The coach said Westmoreland's and French's skills complement each other.

"They have completely different running styles. Wyatt gets up to the line quickly, and will run over people. Colin is more shifty and more likely to go side to side. We can rotate them. Wyatt plays a little less on offense because he plays defense too."

Going into Saturday's game, the Eagles (5-4, 3-1) could finish first, second or third in the district. Covenant (8-1, 4-0) currently holds first place.

If HCA could defeat the Knights, Heritage would be the district champion and would host a Bi-District game the next weekend. If the Eagles lose, they would place second and receive an automatic playoff berth if Calvary could defeat Dallas Tyler Street Christian Academy, which h over HCA. But the third if they lose i Tyler Street wins

Lady Eagles open basketball season Tuesday

Rockwall County's private school basketball teams will open play Tuesday, when the Heritage Christian Academy girls travel to Quinlan Boles for a 6 p.m. game.

The Lady Eagles are hoping to defend their TAPPS District 3-2A title. They also are scheduled to play Friday and Saturday, Nov. 15 and 16, in the Dallas Thunder Round Robin tournament at First Baptist Church in Terrell.

Rockwall Christian Academy is scheduled to host Dallas A-Plus Academy Tuesday, Nov. 19.

The HCA boys and The Fulton School's boys and girls are scheduled for their first game Tuesday, Dec. 3. The Eagles would host Crowley Nazarene Christian Academy that night, and the Fulton girls and boys are scheduled to play at RCA.

Falcons hope to take district title into playoffs

The Fulton School will be in the football playoffs.

By winning their final game Saturday, the Falcons also would earn the right to host at least one postseason game the following weekend.

Coming off a bye week, Fulton (7-2) will visit Longview Trinity School of Texas (4-5) for TSOT's Senior Night at 7 p.m. Saturday.

The winner would become the TAPPS 6-Man District 3-II champion, with an Area playoff game at home. The losing team would be the district runner-up, and would compete in an Area game at a neutral site.

"We'll have 11 bodies healthy," Falcons head coach Josh Johnson said. "The bye couldn't have come at a better time, but we lost 2 days of practice last week because of the [rainy] weather."

Fulton is ranked fourth and Longview Trinity 20th in the state among TAPPS 6-Man II teams by sixmanfootball.com, which listed the Falcons as 45-point favorites.
