In Tuesday's game with Abernathy, the boys team lost 57-55 in a conference game. The final points for Abernathy came as a result of two free throws by George Heath after the buzzer sounded.

The Tigers led at the end of the first three quarters, but a scoring spree for Abernathy which netted 23 points in the final period moved the Antelope into a tie. The two free throws gave them their victory.

Scoring for the Tigers saw Jerry Hogue leading with 21; Randy Sanders with 16; Douglas Corley, 15.

Cancer Detection Film Showing Planned Tuesday at Slaton Theatre

Open and free showing of what could easily be a life-saving film, "Breast Self-Examination," arranged by the Lubbock County Unit of the American Cancer Society, will serve as health and life insurance for women in Slaton.

The picture will be shown at the Slaton Theatre on Tuesday, February 11, at 9:45 a.m. Physicians will be present to answer questions after the showing.

The motion picture, which has played a vital role in the never-ceasing nationwide public education program of the Cancer Society, demonstrates a simple method of detecting early signs of breast cancer.

"Many women have unwarranted fear of cancer, because of unverified hearsay about it," Dr. O. W. English, president of the ACS unit said this week.

"Seeing the Breast Self-Examination film and learning the easy technique it portrays have set countless minds at ease. Specifically, that technique is designed to detect possible lumps which may or may not spell the beginning of cancer.

"Thousands of women, however, following the teachings of this picture, find no lumps at all. Actually, the greater number of such lumps are found benign, harmless."

The suggested examination is merely precaution, wise precaution. For when a lump is found in the early stage, treatment can start immediately, with excellent chances for cure.

Early detection of cancer is saving more and more lives each year. In the last 30 years life expectancy at birth in the United States, for all races, has risen from 54 to 68 years. For women the present expectancy is 71 years, and for men 65 years.

The picture was produced jointly by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Showing of the film is open to all women of Slaton and the surrounding area.

NOT SCIENCE ALONE

It needs to be reiterated that science is not the only subject fit for the attention of keen, inquiring minds. There is danger of forgetting this salient fact in the heat of controversy over proposals for a federal scholarship program to encourage the study of science and engineering.

The primary questions about the plan suggested by President Eisenhower are whether such a program of aid to education is desirable or not, and whether the amount requested by the President would be sufficient for the job. Many persons, among them a great number who yield to no one in their concern with educational problems, still believe that any federal aid to education is dangerous. Others believe not only that there should be federal aid, but that the amount proposed by Mr. Eisenhower is far too little.

Entirely aside from those central questions, however, is this other one that demands serious thought. Leaders among the world's civilized nations have always fostered the arts and social studies as well as science. Is the United States now virtually to turn its back on that tradition, with a crash program for education in science and little or nothing for education in other fields?

The question is an exaggeration, but the issue is nevertheless a real one. Though we certainly need many more scientists and engineers and technicians than we are now developing, our culture also needs intelligent men and women in other fields. It would be a tragic error to concentrate on weapons and technology to such an extent that our culture would be warped out of shape. There is a danger here that we dare not ignore.

POLICY OF LIBERATION

Dr. Augustus Popa, Roumanian delegate to the Assembly of Captive European Nations, has written an interesting pamphlet, "Does Liberation Mean War?" which merits attention. Popa insists that a policy of liberation conducted by the United States and its Western allies could avoid, rather than precipitate, war. It is a startling thesis, but one that deserves thought.

Dr. Popa points out that, for years after the end of the Second World War, Western Europe lay exposed and indefensible against Soviet attack. Yet there was no attack. The Kremlin is cautious, this Roumanian thinker believes, and will not risk all-out-war unless the West allows it to gain overwhelming superiority. The West, Popa thinks, should conduct a bold counter-offensive against the Kremlin in the non-military field. "It would be logical," he writes, "for the free powers to use the freedom granted by the military stalemate as boldly for the furtherance of freedom as the Soviets are doing it for the triumph of tyranny."

The West conducts a non-military campaign that is feeble when contrasted with that of the Soviet Union. Dr. Popa's proposed remedy for this state of affairs is a stimulating contribution to the great debate about free world policy.

TWIGS NEED SUPPORT

That much-banded phrase, juvenile delinquent, generally evokes a picture of a high school youth partial to rock 'n roll, long hair cuts and tight jeans. This tends to obscure the important fact that most delinquent youngsters have their first brush with the law between the ages of 11 and 13. A great number of them have already shown signs of maladjustment at the age of 10.

Regardless of what one may think about the proper way to deal with offenders in their late teens, it is apparent that delinquents of 11 or 12 need kindness and understanding much more than they need severe punishment. The first contact with the police or court can be a terrifying experience for a child. At this point in his life, society has everything to gain by offering not merely lectures and admonition, but genuine help.

There is nothing new about this. But it is worthwhile to bear in mind that well known relationship between the way a twig is bent and the way the tree grows.

Vice President Nixon looked so delighted in those pictures showing him eating some of his 45th birthday anniversary cake that he should be assured almost a solid cak ebakers' vote.

The fellow who keeps his mouth shut never gets named a fool—but isn't likely to be listed in Bartlett's Familiar Quotations, either.

A PAIR THE REDS CAN'T STAND

STRENGTH FOR THE WEEK

The Smallest Bible

Sometime ago in a daily newspaper there appeared this filler: "Halifax, N. S. . . . James W. Bradley has what he believes to be the world's smallest Bible, measuring only five-eighths of an inch. It was printed for the Oxford University press in 1859 and presented to Bradley for good school attendance in 1897."

Now that would be a small book indeed. It would take a powerful magnifying glass to detect a single word of it.

In a deeper sense, there are a host of people who seem to have very small Bibles. They quote two or three texts of their own choosing and leave out the rest of the Book. When you hear them speak it would seem their entire Bible consists of these texts—and nothing else. It is like picking up a rock from the bottom of Grande Canyon and saying, "Look, I brought the Grande Canyon home with me." There are those who insist that the chief function of the Bible is the charting of future events. The pages of the Book of Daniel and the Book of Revelation are well worn but, for them, much of the content of the other 64 books is left out.

It is said that you can prove anything by the Bible and this statement is hardly exaggerated. In Leviticus 25:44-46 (Moffatt) we read, "You may buy male and female slaves from among the nations that are round about you . . . and they may be your property." Try it—and you will probably land in the penitentiary. Such a statement takes no account of the teachings of Jesus concerning the sacredness of human personality. Some would quote the Bible in defense of their private schemes of racial discrimination. They often overlook such words as "God hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell in the face of the earth." (Acts 17:26).

It is amazing the number of wars in which the nations of the earth have participated, which have been conceived as "Holy Wars." Peace efforts have been blocked by those who shout "The Bible says there shall be wars to the end of time." They forget these words likewise found in the Bible, "They that take up the sword shall perish with the sword."

Did not Jesus himself become known as the Prince of Peace?

Undue emphasis on one particular phrase has in history been the cause of innumerable denominational splits. We believe in denominations. There are many roads to the throne of God. Jesus said, "Other sheep have I which are not of this fold." But different interpretations of one Biblical phrase is insufficient grounds for the splitting of a group in the two opposing camps. The use of few scattered passages of scripture to prove that "we are right and everyone else is wrong" is, to me, the evidence of exaggerated intellectual egotism, or just plain ignorance.

The Bible is the greatest book among men. The fact is it is a whole library of 66 books and God speaks from every page but only as we read all of it do we see in proper perspective the Father God and His Son, Our Saviour.

Halloween was originally a church festival, All Hallows Eve, to honor all departed saints.

Guarding Tomorrow's Freedom

How to maintain a lasting peace . . . how to preserve full employment . . . how to ward off recession . . . how to keep our high standard of living. Those are problems which continually face the Government of our country.

Tomorrow they may blaze into issues that must be solved by the factions and interests that make up our democracy. Each of these factions and interests will demand to be heard — and they will be heard.

The press of America will report and comment on what each and every party to an issue has to say. The public will know what is going on. It is only thus that the best interests of America can be served over and above the interests of any one faction or any limited-interest group.

This vital function can be performed only by a press that is free to write and free to publish the story of national issues, unfettered by dictation from any source.

Today's freedoms can be secured and tomorrow's freedoms guarded only by a press that owes allegiance to no ogre of tyranny bent upon shaping our destiny to suit its own ends.

If the press of America is, in a real sense, to remain the guardian of our future, we must preserve the freedom it possesses today.

Science, Math, Graduation Requirements In South Plains Schools Being Studied

What are South Plains high schools doing about science and math classes and graduation requirements? The West Texas School Study Council, headquartered at Texas Tech, is seeking answers to these and other questions as part of the new organization's first year of operation.

The Council now has an affiliate membership with the Association of Public School Systems and will have access to all research studies completed by that organization, Dr. Berlie Fallon, Tech associate professor of education and executive secretary of the Council, announced. Twelve South Plains school systems and Tech are participating in the WTSSC to conduct research on local and regional education problems. Tech graduate students in education also contribute to the Council, Fallon said.

Research committees are being formed to study three immediate problems in public schools: (1) Standardized testing programs in the member schools; (2) Science and math curricular improvements; and (3) High School graduation requirements for the 1958-59 school year.

Fallon said that during the fall semester, Tech graduate students in education research class completed literature surveys in about 20 different areas of public education of interest to the WTSSC.

Covering the best of educational theory and the best of current practices in selected school systems through the nation, the graduate studies included surveys of programs for gifted children, closed circuit TC experimentation, reporting pupil progress to parents and optimum space needs in elementary, junior and senior high schools.

"During the spring semester, we'll begin editing and publishing the graduate reports for distribution to member schools," Fallon stated.

Public school systems in the council include Slaton, Andrews, Brownfield, Denver City, Hale Center, Hereford, Kermit, Lamesa, Levelland, Littlefield, Plainview, and Seminole.

Executive committee members include Fallon, Lee Vardy, Slaton; Dr. Ralph Schilling, Littlefield; T. A. Roach, Andrews; N. L. Douglas, Hale Center; Fred Cunningham, Hereford; and O. W. Mareom, Levelland.

Five companies are requesting the special rates. They said they plan to insure only more expensive homes. Loss ratios are higher in the $5,000 and under bracket, they explained, and cost of handling offsets commissions.

Board recognized this, but asked, "Who is going to take care of the $5,000 home owner?" CREDIT RULING CONTESTED—An Amarillo insurance firm has filed suit to prevent new, lower credit insurance rules from going into effect March 1.

State Board of Insurance had issued an order that would bring an estimated 50 per cent slash in credit insurance charges.

Attorney for Cosmo Life Insurance Co. contend the Board exceeded its authority. Credit insurers say the order would wreck their business.

Numerous state officials had urged the change on the premise that excessive insurance charges were being used as a means to charge borrowers exorbitant rates.

A COMPLETE AUTO SERVICE FOR WILSON

AUSTIN, Tex.—From the Panhandle to the Valley, a good, safe topic for a rousing speech right now is "The Tidelands—They're All Ours."

Texans haven't been stirred up on this issue since 1953. That was the year Congress passed the Submerged Lands Act which recognized the coastal states' ownership of off-shore lands to their "historic boundaries."

Texas won title to land three leagues (10 1/2 miles) from shore in its independence treaty with Mexico. Texans, at least, were convinced, this was the "historic boundary." Hence, the state began operating in three-league territory, leasing tracts to oil, gas and sulphur companies to gain money for the public school fund.

Now the fat's in the fire again. Last year outgoing U. S. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell filed suit in the U. S. Supreme Court contesting Texas' claim to more than three miles of tidelands. Other 7 1/2 miles, he said, belong to the federal government.

Of this claim, Texas officials have this to say: ATTY. GEN. WILL WILSON: "It was Louisiana who knocked over the coffee pot." Things were going along fine after passage of the 1953 law, explained Wilson, until Louisiana (limited to three miles of tidelands) decided that if Texans could have three leagues, so should they. Louisiana filed suit for the extra land. Federal government replied that "no state" owned more than three miles out.

"This," observed Wilson, "struck Texas in a tender spot." But neither Louisiana nor other coastal states have the same sort of case as Texas, he emphasized. At the time Louisiana entered the Union, the commonly accepted boundary of a country was the distance a cannon could fire from shore—or three miles.

Texas, however, said Wilson, won the right to three leagues in 1836 War for Independence, and U. S. officials recognized this when the state entered the Union.

Today the value of the contested lands is estimated at $500,000,000. Ruefully, Wilson noted he's been allotted only one hour before the court to argue for it.

LAND COMM. EARL RUDDER: "U. S. court knocks down Texas' claim to the 10 1/2-mile shoreline, then 'Russia, Mexico or anybody else can claim it.'"

Rudder took note of reported discussion among Mexican attorneys. Their view: If Texas did not get title to the territory from Mexico in 1836, then Mexico still owns it.

Urging that the title not be clouded, Rudder pointed out that the land is not only valuable for its minerals, but vital to defense.

GOV. PRICE DANIEL: "This lawsuit is another step in the process of chipping away the authority of the states. It seeks not only to repudiate solemn treaties by which Texas entered the Union, but to destroy the legislative intent of Congress."

"The President has by every public act acknowledged this boundary. Yet his own attorney general has sued..."

Governor Daniel has expressed the belief that Brownell, who filed the Texas suit on his last day as attorney general, acted out of pure spite.

READY FOR BUSINESS—A new state board has opened shop. It's business: to lend money for dams and reservoirs to hold some of the water that has been rushing wastefully into the Gulf.

Water Development Board instructed its executive secretary to notify some 1,000 cities and water districts that it's ready to start considering applications for funds. Board can lend up to one-third the cost (with $5,000,000 limit) of a water conservation project.

Newly-organized Development Board met jointly with an older group, the State Board of Water Engineers. Members of the two boards promised to work harmoniously with no trespassing on each other's territory. Development Board will pass on the legal and financial angles of a proposed project; Board of Water Engineers will study from the engineering viewpoint.

Take a 10-Story Drop in Your Car—It's Better than a Wreck

"For just a moment, try to imagine the results if you were behind the wheel of your car then drive it off the top of a ten story building. It leaves you with a rather awesome picture doesn't it?"

This thought provoking question was asked today by J. O. Musick, General Manager of the Texas Safety Association, as he set the theme for the Association's annual Slow Down and Live Campaign.

"Of course no sane driver would attempt such a foolish thing," Musick continued. "And yet, if the same motorist crashed into another car while traveling 60 mph, he will meet with equally disastrous results."

Musick said he did not believe that speed, in itself, is necessarily bad, but highly desirable for efficiency's sake. With our modern transportation system, speed is essential. Whether it is for police cars, taxicabs, ambulances, or in simply getting us from one place to another.

"No, speed is not bad," Musick said. "But, we must be able to determine at what speed we can travel with a maximum of efficiency and a minimum of danger."

Here in Texas, the traffic expert pointed out, all speed limits are clearly marked. And yet, these speed limits cannot be considered safe at all times. In other words, they are greatly affected by weather and traffic conditions.

"A safe speed, then, is one that is not too fast for conditions," Musick said. "Thus, it is up to the individual driver to determine what is a safe speed, within the given limits."

To help the average motorist determine what a safe speed would be under specific conditions, Musick offered the following seven-point check list: First, drive at a speed that will enable you to stop in the assured clear distance ahead. Second, slow down before you get to curves and intersections. Third, at night, drive at the speed which will let you stop within your headlight range.

Fourth, drive with traffic. You are probably going too fast if you are passing many cars and too slow if a number of cars are passing you. Fifth, where children are playing, be able to stop in a car length or less.

Sixth, when you're tired or inattentive, stop and rest. Seventh, ALWAYS use common sense, this will mean never taking chances. Just as you wouldn't drive off a ten-story building, neither should you drive 60 mph when conditions make 45 mph safer.

Texas Economy Gets Boost from Railroads—1/2 Billion Per Year

Texas railroad expenditures contribute nearly a half billion dollars a year to the state's economy.

A total of $445,197,441 was paid in salaries, state taxes and for fuel and the purchase of thousands of other items needed to run Texas trains in 1956.

In announcing the total expenditures in Texas, Quin Baker, chairman of the executive committee of the Texas Railroad Association pointed out that salaries of railroad men are spent over all but a handful of the 254 counties in the state.

He added that purchases of material, equipment and supplies are also made in all sections of Texas.

Supplies and equipment which companies were unable to purchase in Texas amounted to an additional $187,186,035, Baker said.

Salaries accounted for more than half of the total railroad expenditure in Texas, the total being $236,754,729. It was paid 51,314 employees. They averaged, from porters on up, $4,609 a year. Rapidly increasing operation costs of railroads is shown by the hike in salaries the last several years. In 1949, employees were paid $182,293,000. The 1956 total is an increase in eight years of more than $54,000,000 to Texas employees.

"Strict regulation of rates charged by the railroads, the only type of carrier which is not subsidized by city, state or national governments, has prevented the rails from earning profits anywhere near comparable to other large businesses," Baker pointed out. "Yet," he said, "the railroad industry is making improvements to its facilities throughout the Nation at a rate of one billion, one hundred million dollars a year and has done so annually for the last eleven years."

Texas expenditures included the huge sum of $22,632,911 in '56 for fuel and diesel oil with which to operate trains over the state's 15,000 miles of main tracks and nearly 7,000 miles of switch, yard and terminal tracks.

Use of electric power in Texas began in the 1880's. First power plant was at Galveston.

HERE'S HOW STATE DIVIDES ESTATES WHEN THERE IS NO WILL.

The death of an intestate person (one who has made no will) may give rise to many problems regarding distribution of his separate estate. In the preceding column we investigated the manner of dividing the community estate upon the death of husband or wife. Now we shall see that, where separate property is involved, a completely different set of rules applies in determining heirship and apportioning the estate among the rightful claimants.

It may be well to recall that the separate estate of a husband or wife includes property owned by either before marriage, and that which is acquired after marriage by gift or inheritance. Any other property acquired after marriage is presumed by law to be community property until the contrary is clearly proved.

Now, here is a general idea as to how your separate property will be divided if you do not make a will with contrary provisions prior to your death.

If your husband or wife survives and if, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of previously deceased children, the children and their descendants immediately obtain a full (fee) title in two-thirds of the real estate involved. The surviving spouse receives a life interest in the remaining one-third of the real property, which passes on the children and their descendants upon the death of the spouse.

The rule for distributing personal property—cash, stocks, bonds, furniture, or any other items not constituting real estate—is different. Here the surviving spouse gets full ownership of one-third, and the chilren and their descendants inherit the balance.

Now suppose your husband or wife survives, but there are no surviving children or their descendants. In this case the surviving spouse inherits all of the personal property involved.

With regard to real estate,
the survivor obtains full title to one-half, and the other half is divided between your mother and father, if both survive you.
If only one of them survives, he or she receives only half of this portion, and the other half (or one-fourth of the entire real estate) will be divided among your brothers and sisters (and their descendants) who survive.

If there are no surviving brothers and sisters and their descendants, then the one surviving parent inherits the full one-half.

Where no parents survives, but there are brothers and sisters (and their descendants) surviving, then the surviving husband or wife inherits all of the real estate.

UP THE ROPES—Training for track, football and basketball all entail climbing ropes to strengthen the arms. Projects such as this relay race do much to aid in the training for athletic activities, according to Coach Leonard Ehrier, pictured here with two of his Slaton High School athletes.

BEEF SHISH KEBABS WITH SPECIAL SAUCE

INGREDIENTS:
5/8 teaspoon non-seasoned meat tenderizer
1 1/2 lbs. stew beef cut in 1 1/4 to 1 1/2" cubes (about 26 cubes)
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 clove garlic, minced
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1/2 cup catsup
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons beet or cane sugar
1 tablespoon apple cider vinegar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 1/2 cups uncooked white rice
3 cups water
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
12 1 1/2" chunks raw green pepper
12 tomato wedges
12 pieces cooked onion or tiny canned whole onion
12 mushroom caps
1/4 cup water

METHOD: Sprinkle all sides of the meat with the meat tenderizer. Pierce the meat all over with a fork. Let stand at room temperature 30 to 40 minutes, or overnight in the refrigerator. To make the sauce, melt the butter or margarine in a small saucepan. Add the garlic and cook slowly, about 10 minutes. Slowly add the tomato sauce.

catsup, 1/2 teaspoon salt, black pepper, Worcestershire sauce, sugar, vinegar and mustard. The sauce may be stored, covered, in the refrigerator.

About 30 minutes before the meal, put the rice, 3 cups water and 1 1/2 teaspoons salt into a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover with a lid and leave over this low heat 14 minutes. Remove the saucepan from the heat but leave the lid on until ready to serve, at least 10 minutes.

Alternate the meat cubes, green pepper chunks, tomato wedges, onions and mushroom caps on metal skewers. Allow space between for thorough cooking. If the skewers are about five inches long, allow two filled skewers for each serving. Place the filled skewers under the broiler. Top with some of the sauce. Broil about 10 minutes on each side or until the meat is browned. Add a small amount of the sauce from time to time. Serve immediately over the hot cooked rice. Thin the remaining sauce with the 1/4 cup water. Heat and serve with the Shish Kebabs.

This recipe makes 6 servings.

Ford's Rangers Make Drugstore Cowboys of Today's TV Westerns

Western gunslings of television fame are Eastern dudes in comparison to "Rip" Ford and his Indian fighters who battled the wily Comanches in West Texas during the late 1850's.

William J. Hughes, instructor and doctoral candidate in history at Texas Tech, describes "Rip" Ford's Indian fight on the Canadian River in the current issue of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Review.

When Regular Army contingents were transferred from northwestern Texas to more troublesome areas in other territories, the Comanche horsemen swept through white settlements in 1857 "and the reeking casualty lists and tools of vanished or destroyed property again began to mourn," Hughes writes.

The Federal government stilled in answering pleas of the settlers for more protection and finally Governor Harding R. Runnels obtained $70,000 from the State Legislature to mobilize an additional 100 men to bolster the Ranger ranks.

John S. "Rip" Ford, who had proved himself with Col. Jack Hays in earlier years, was named Senior Captain of the group and by February 1858 the Rangers were on the march.

"Most of the men, like Ford, carried two Navy Colts, and every man had at least one, as well as the familiar muzzle-loading rifle," Hughes writes.

"The firepower of the force was estimated at 1,500 rounds without reloading."

While the Rangers had no uniform, "broad-brimmed hats, pulled low over the eyebrows, and high boots, into which trousers were tucked gave a certain uniformity to the column, as did the cap-and-ball rifles with walnut butts protruding forward from rawhide boots."

The punitive expedition was joined by Indians from the Texas reservations and representatives of at least a half-dozen Indian nations accompanied the Texans, Hughes reports.

Marching with the Rangers were the Caddo-Anadarko group, the cannibal Tonkawas, a mixed command of Shawnees and Delawares, the Wacos and the Tahuacacos.

Ford's scouts discovered a Comanche encampment in the vicinity of the Fort Smith-Santa Fe "bull wagon" road where it topped the Washita-Canadian divide. The battle began about 7 a.m. and was over by 1 p.m. when the remaining Comanches fled northward.

A surprising and little known fact about the Tonkawas is revealed by Hughes.

"As the Rangers again plodded through the debris of Iron Jacket's shattered village, commenting on the piles of gorgeously beaded buffalo robes, the bales of dried meat, and the heaped containers of corn-meal, salt and coffee obtained by the Comancheros, Ford was astonished to notice that among the bodies of the Comanche braves there were some which lacked hands and feet."

The reason soon became clear for "The missing extremities gangled from Tonkawa saddle bows; those wolfish people were planning a victory feast."

The battle came just in time for one of the prisoners revealed that the Comanches were drying and packing meat for use on a campaign against the settlers and reservation tribes, Hughes said.

Ford's official report tells the true value of the expedition:

Proper Example Termed 'Must' for Youth To Grow To Stable Adults

Ed. Note: This is one of a series of articles on the state's growing problem of juvenile delinquency by one of Texas' foremost authorities on the subject, District Judge Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas. By Judge Sarah T. Hughes

In order to grow into mature, stable men and women, boys and girls need parents with right attitudes, high moral and ethical standards, and religious faith.

A recent article in a national magazine dealt with white collar crimes—ways in which some business and professional men evade the law, cheat just a little, do whatever they can get away with in order to keep from paying as much tax or to make just a little more money.

Smart? Not With Children

Such actions are frequently not frowned on by friends or neighbors. The man who gets by may even be considered smart. But with children to raise, the standard of conduct for parents should not be what pleases others but what is good and right. Children learn more from example than from being told. Do you remember during the war how many people got more gas, coffee, and meat than they were entitled to? And some even bragged about getting around ration limitations. The children were bound to know. And if parents cheated and got away with it, it must be all right to cheat at school, so they reasoned.

Example Almost All-Powerful

And if a child hears his mother tell his father an untruth, then isn't it all right for him to fib just a little if he has to get out of a tight situation?

Just telling a child to be honest, to tell the truth, is not enough. Moral-ethical ideals can't be inculcated by education and religious teaching alone. Little effect will be had on behavior, still less on character, unless right attitudes become a part of the individual—that is, have been learned through constant example and living.

Old-Fashioned Virtues Needed

Perhaps we need a rededication to the old-fashioned virtues—honesty, truthfulness, industry. I am reminded of a story my pastor told of an engineer who, deep in the Amazon jungle, received word of his wife's serious illness. He began a forced march to the coast. One morning he awoke to find the natives had not yet packed; they were simply sitting. In reply to his question as to why they were not ready to go, the leader replied, "We are waiting for our souls to catch up with our bodies."

Our Souls Must Catch Up

In this modern day we certainly need to slow down our bodies so our souls can catch up—our physical progress has outgrown our spiritual development.

In addition to the attitude of parents towards honesty and truthfulness, how do they act towards each other? Are they kind, considerate, loyal affectionate, or are they selfish, nagging, disloyal, cool? Do they work together, plan together, have the same interests, or does each go his or her separate way? Are they understanding and tolerant of each other's ideas, or are they constantly on the verge of an argument?

Extremely Hard Job

I have in mind a college senior who was asked by her professor what she was going to do when she graduated. She looked up at him in amazement and said "Nothing! I'm going to get married." Little did she realize that marrying and raising children was one of the hardest jobs she could undertake. She would need all her education, training, and experience if her children were to be worthwhile citizens. If parents are immature, unstable, juvenile in their attitudes, the children begin life handicapped.

Stable Home Atmosphere

Children need a home atmosphere where there are stable, mature adults with right attitudes towards life. With such a foundation they already have a head-start in combating the trials and temptations of living. In my next article I will discuss severity of punishment.
