Slaton-Lubbock Paving Is Open To Traffic Now

The last link of the recently completed highway paving from Lubbock to Slaton was opened to traffic late last Friday. The paving is 20-foot concrete on an 80-foot right-of-way, the distance being 16 miles. Work on the paving was started on May 15.

The hard-surfacing of the road is the initial part of a county paving program voted last December. Including state and federal aid, the entire program will involve expenditure of about $2,700,000, of which the county's part will be $991,000, including the taking up of outstanding bonds in Road District No. 1, amounting to $21,500.

Other projects in the county's paving program will be taken up as rapidly as all plans can be completed. Work on the right-of-way of Highway No. 9 south of Lubbock is now in progress. Roads yet to be paved include State Highways No. 53 and No. 9 entirely across the county, and State Highway No. 7 from Lubbock northwest to the county line. The Slaton-Lubbock road is part of Highway No. 7. Only a small part of the road in this section of the county is unpaved, and it will be hard-surfaced as soon as all details relative to right-of-way can be definitely settled, it is expected.

"Corporal Eagen" To Be Staged By Local Legion Post

Screaming Comedy of the American Rookie To Be Presented At High School Auditorium

On next Thursday and Friday, October 16 and 17, the local Post of the American Legion will present a stage production of a dramatic drama of the American rookie, "Corporal Eagen." The proceeds of this show will be the American Legion Post's contribution to the United Charities, local benefit association recently organized to take care of the relief necessary by families who have had misfortune and sickness, and unemployed fall upon them. It is a rollicking comedy of rookie life and is a scream from start to finish. It is not only comedy, but also has a great deal of patriotism and is staged in a very spectacular manner. It is without doubt the greatest show ever offered by an amateur cast. It is put on under the direction of the Universal Producing company and everywhere the show is acclaimed an unusual success.

The scene is laid in the Company Street of Camp Shove-Off, with the army barracks as the background. It is an unique and sensational production.

The story of "Corporal Eagen" centers around Red Eagen, an Irish doughboy, played by Dayton Eckert, and his screwing funny Jewish buddy, Izzy Goldstein, played by A. C. Swint. Eagen and Goldstein have only been in the army thirty days, just long enough to think they know it all and really know nothing. They pretend to be very brave and in fact are very scared, when anyone is around. Red Eagen is looking for a big promotion because he told his girl, Sally O'Neil, played by Pauline Owens, that he was going to be Captain. However, instead of getting a captain's job, he gets in bad with the top sergeant, played by Alvin O. White, and is put on K. P. His buddy, Izzy, is thrown on K. P. for laughing at him. The guard, a very hard-boiled character, played by H. B. Griffin, finds Sally and sends her to the guardhouse to be shot at five bells. Red and Izzy start out to save her and while walking guard, Red accidentally captures the spy, saves his girl, and is promoted to corporal. The nurses are played by Frances Adams and Hazel Mansker. Not only the plot and the story of the play are funny and sensational, but the show opens with a patriotic pageant which includes 250 local youngsters as well as the grown people of the cast.

Another speciality is the Men's Sailor and Soldier chorus dressed in uniforms singing a number of old army songs. The big laugh feature of the show is the Awkward Squad composed of eighteen business men playing the part of eighteen green rookies, they Lodges of Perfection, of the Scottish Rite, celebrated this Feast Day, being in the seventh month of the Hebrew calendar. This year falling on the 15th day of the Hebrew month of Tishri. It is a bringing together of brethren in a spirit of Thanksgiving and brotherly esteem.

A nicely arranged program was featured, with the usual toasts. Those attending from Slaton, were: T. A. Worley, Jr., Claude Anderson, Warren C. Tillman, S. A. Peavey, M. J. Nelson and T. E. Roderick.

Slaton Gins Gets 1,252 Bales; 31 Per Cent Co-Op

Slaton ginners had received 1,252 bales of this season's cotton up to last Saturday afternoon, according to figures compiled after a check-up of ginnings was made at that time. Five of the six gins here are operating. Rains last week hindered picking, and very little picking was done this week until Wednesday. Unless additional rain is received, picking will proceed normally during the remainder of the week and next week.

Thirty-one per cent of the cotton ginned here so far this fall has been marketed through the Cotton Co-Op association, according to figures released by I. E. Madden, receiving agent here for the association. He said 390 bales here had been handled by the association here thus far. This is 31 per cent of 1,252 bales, the amount ginned. The report was given out early this week.

Slaton Pastor Resigns To Take Tullia Pastorate

Rev. Z. B. Dally, pastor of the First Christian church here for the past eighteen months, has resigned to accept the pastorate of the First Christian church of Tullia. He has already moved to that city and has assumed his new duties there. The local church will not secure a pastor at present, it was indicated by members. Services will be conducted temporarily by the district evangelist of the church, it was announced.

Let's Beautify Highway No. 7

With the opening of Highway No. 7, now a fact and the almost completion of Avenue H in Lubbock, gives one a thrill as they glide over the new paving. Slaton and Lubbock should be proud of this great improvement, and the first completed in Lubbock county.

While we should have pride upon its completion, and we have, would it not be nice to think of beautifying the highway with trees set on either side. Eventually the growth will add materially to the scenic effect of this highway.

We are wondering if there could not be a concerted effort on the part of Slaton and Lubbock with a get-together meeting and the county commissioners whereby some plan could be worked out in creating a beautiful highway.

Other sections of the country have improved their right-of-way by planting trees, and what a pleasure it is to drive in these beauty spots. Slaton and Lubbock can have it if the effort is set forth. Let's think about it.

represent soldiers who have only been in the army thirty days and every-one portrays a particular type of character.

The minstrel is also a big hit with D. E. Kemp acting as interlocutor with all the soldiers, sailors, and chorus girls on the stage singing all the old time army songs with four prominent business men acting as end-men. A full list of the characters will be found on another page of this issue and reserve seats will go on sale on Wednesday at Teague's Drug store. The reserve seats are at no extra cost. You will find the show a sensation and well worth the price of admission.

97 Farmers Sowing 1,000 Bushels Seed Wheat Distributed By Slaton Chamber of Commerce On Terms

Tigers Win Over Lockney, Idalou

Two victories in as many days were chalked up by the Slaton High Tigers on last Friday and Saturday, playing the Lockney High eleven here on Friday afternoon and the Idalou Wild Cats on Saturday afternoon.

The score with Lockney was 13 to 0, and with Idalou, 34 to 0. The Idalou game was the first conference game the Tigers has played this season. Lockney is also in this district, but is not in the same section of the district that Slaton was placed in for preliminary play. Slaton might be forced to meet Lockney again later in the season.

Late Wednesday, it seemed almost certain that the Tigers would not have a game this week. The team was scheduled to play Post or Qanah at Slaton but neither team would come for the game without being guaranteed more expense than the Slaton eleven would offer.

On Friday of next week, the Tigers are scheduled to meet Brownfield, at Brownfield, and on the following Friday they are to be pitted against Spar at Spar.

Rotary Debate Held on Friday

A debate was held last Friday at the luncheon session of the Slaton Rotary club, the subject being, "Will the Completion of the Paved Road from Slaton to Lubbock be Detrimental to Slaton Business Interests?"

John W. Hood said the highway would NOT be detrimental, and Tom A. Worley, Jr., argued that it would. The discussions were highly interesting, and ended with the general feeling in the minds of the members that the advantages of the paved road will be greater than the disadvantages.

Some of the outstanding facts about Slaton's development during the past decade were emphasized by brief talks by Horace G. Sanders, J. Tom Overby, J. T. Pinkston and C. C. Hoffman, Jr. It was pointed out that Slaton's growth in population since 1920 was greater in percentage than was enjoyed by either of the ten largest cities of Texas.

This Friday's program will be given by Tom J. Abel, George W. Shanks and L. T. Green, making classification talk.

BYPU School At Baptist Church Well Attended

A training school in B. Y. P. U. work is in progress this week at the First Baptist church here, the school having begun last Monday night. It is under direction of Miss Grace Conn, of the state B. Y. P. U. department, Dallas.

Four classes have been held each night this week, and one class has been conducted each afternoon. Friday night will be the closing time of the classes. The meetings begin at 7 o'clock each evening, ending at 9:20.

A total of 125 people had been enrolled up to Tuesday night, and a larger number was expected for each succeeding night of the week. A goal of 300 people in the regular B. Y. P. U. meetings at the church next Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock has been set, and everybody is urged to attend and help reach this goal.

Installation of B. Y. P. U. officers for the coming year will be held Sunday evening, after which Miss Conn will speak at the evening service, starting at 7:30 o'clock, it was announced by Rev. W. F. Ferguson, pastor of the church.

On Sunday morning, installation of officers of the Sunday school for the coming year will be held. It is hoped that at least 600 people will attend Sunday school at the church Sunday morning, according to G. J. Catching, superintendent. The attendance last Sunday was 583.

The B. Y. P. U. training classes this week are being taught by Miss Grace Conn, senior and adult depart-

Ninety-seven Slaton farmers are busily engaged in sowing seed wheat this week which they secured from the Slaton Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development for planting fall and winter pastures. The seed was sold to all these farmers on credit, notes being taken in payment. The notes do not bear interest and no security was required. A committee of five Slaton men represented the Slaton Chamber of Commerce in approving applications that were turned in by the farmers for the seed. This committee was composed of J. S. Edwards, chairman; P. G. Stokes, Sam E. Staggs, J. W. Hood and J. L. Bradley. These men were appointed by the Chamber of Commerce president, W. H. Smith.

Following the rains which covered this section last Sunday and Sunday night, amounting to from one-half to one inch or more of precipitation, farmers thronged the Chamber of Commerce on Monday morning, ready to receive the seed wheat and start planting it. The stream of farmers continued coming in for the wheat through Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and even then they had not all called for the seed. It was expected, however, that the others would get the seed by Thursday or Friday.

On Monday and Tuesday, 792 bushels of seed was distributed to 77 men. The wheat had been in storage in the Terminal Grain and Heads Handling company elevators here since early in September, waiting for sufficient rainfall to justify its distribution for sowing pastures in this territory, each farmer received an average of slightly over 10 bushels. This means that 2,000 acres of pasture will be sown in this territory, besides the other seed that many other farmers are sowing. It has been estimated that at least 3,000 to 4,000 acres of pasture is being sown in the Slaton section.

All notes taken in payment for the seed distributed by the local Chamber of Commerce were made payable one year from now and will be carried during the year by the Chamber of Commerce. No effort will be made to use the notes as collateral at banks.

Farmers who secured wheat from the local Chamber declared that this is the ideal time of the fall season for sowing pastures, and are very hopeful that they will receive additional moisture later to carry the wheat through the winter, making good grazing for livestock. A tremendous saving of feedstuff will be seen if this proves true, they said. Many of them stated that by getting the seed they would be able to meet their family expenses through the winter when otherwise they could not have done so. By having pastures, cows, chickens and hogs will be cared for, these animals providing almost a complete living for the farm family.

Storage facilities for the seed were furnished without charge by the Terminal Grain and Heads Handling company, and officials of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce are very appreciative of the service thus rendered by the owners of this plant, according to L. A. Wilson, secretary of the local Chamber.

The decision to distribute the seed wheat to farmers was reached several weeks ago by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of City Development. Applications were received for 700 bushels of the seed wheat before the rains fell, and after that the remaining 300 bushels was soon taken by other applicants on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

The Chamber of Commerce will not distribute any more seed this season, it was announced by officers of that body.

Mrs. M. R. Finney, of Columbus, Ga., and Miss Elizabeth Czerkus, of San Antonio, arrived last Sunday for a visit with their brother, Rev. P. Czerkus, pastor of the Lutheran churches of Posey and Southland. They expect to return to their respective homes Friday.

Mrs. Mollie Hill was a Lubbock visitor Sunday afternoon.

W. R. Lovett returned Tuesday night from Larned, Kansas, where he and Mrs. Lovett attended a gathering of relatives and friends, this being Mrs. Lovett's old home; Mrs. Lovett went on to Newton, Kansas, and Marceline, Mo., for a short visit with relatives before returning to Slaton.

General Rainfall for This Section

Rainfall measuring from one-half an inch or more than an inch fell in this section of the South Plains last Sunday afternoon and Sunday night. Light showers had preceded the rain of Sunday.

The total precipitation in Slaton was .53 of an inch during the past week, according to G. H. Orr, local weather observer. In the surrounding territory, the fall was heavier in places and some lighter in places. More than one inch was recorded in the Southland territory, it was said by farmers there.

The rains fell slowly, not causing serious damage to unpicker cotton. Farmers will now be able to sow fall and winter pastures.

Baptist Sunday School Record for Year Given

A review of the work done the past year by the Sunday school of the First Baptist church here was given last Sunday by the superintendent, G. J. Catching. Some of the main features of the report follow:

Attendance average for the different months—October, 475; November, 489; December, 488; January, 452; February, 493; March, 530; April, 566; May, 539; June, 518; July, 522; August, 500; and September, 533. The attendance average for the year was 518 per Sunday.

The entire school made a general average of 67.82 per cent on the six-point record system during the year. Twenty-eight people who attended the Sunday school were received by baptism as members of the church, and 56 members of the school were received by letter.

A total of 369 letters were written in the interest of the school; 862 cards were written; 1,228 telephone calls were made; 106 meetings of Sunday school classes were held; members of classes read 19,241 chapters of the Bible; 374 bouquets of flowers were sent to sick people; 3,374 visits were made in the interest of the Sunday school; and visits to sick people totaled 949.

Woodie Rogers visited the first of the week with his parents while here with the Harley Saddler company. Woodie states that he is enjoying his work, but was glad to see homefolks and friends.

New Mayor Takes Oath of Office

Slaton's new mayor, T. M. George, took the oath of office last Friday night, October 3, at the regular meeting of the city commission, and assumed his regular duties at his office in the city hall on Saturday morning. He is located in the northeast room of the city hall, first floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Thornton are the proud parents of a six and a half pound baby girl, Mrs. Thornton is the daughter of Mrs. A. A. Devore, 1245 South Ninth street.

Chicken Thieves Quite Busy Here

One, Joe Anderson, colored, who has so many aliases that it is quite impossible to keep up with him, was taken into custody by Chief of Police Tom Abel, Saturday morning. Anderson is accused of having visited some of our local poultry growers and lifted their chickens and disposed of them in the Slaton market.

Abel states that Anderson is quite a foot runner, crossing the Santa Fe tracks and making for the country here was apprehended out in the J. T. Pinkston vicinity.

Well, they got Anderson, but he confessed to having gotten the chickens. He will probably get some time when court action has been taken.

Anderson was transferred to the county jail at Lubbock to await trial.

W. R. Lovett returned Tuesday night from Larned, Kansas, where he and Mrs. Lovett attended a gathering of relatives and friends, this being Mrs. Lovett's old home; Mrs. Lovett went on to Newton, Kansas, and Marceline, Mo., for a short visit with relatives before returning to Slaton.

Farmers Getting Seed Wheat Give Farm Statistics

The 97 farmers around Slaton who this week have been getting seed wheat from the Slaton Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development, to be used in sowing fall and winter pastures, have furnished much interesting and valuable information to the Chamber of Commerce on the application blanks each applicant for seed was required to fill out and sign.

Some of the statistics thus obtained are shown below:

- Average number of acres cultivated by each of the 97 farmers, 163.
- Average cotton acreage, 100.
- Average feed acreage, 64.
- Average number of livestock, including mules, horses, cows and hogs, 14.
- Average number of chickens, 116.
- Fifty-four of the 97 men have hogs; ninety-four of the 97 have chickens; and 95 out of the 97 have milch cows.

Seventy-five per cent of them reported that, if they are successful in getting the seed planted and growing so that they will have pastures for their livestock, they will be able to meet their necessary living expenses through the coming winter.

Move Begun for Planting Trees Along Highway

J. J. Clements, Lubbock mayor, announced last week that the Lubbock City commission would cooperate with the Slaton City commission and the county commissioners' court in planting shade trees along the recently completed paved highway between the two cities. W. R. Blake, of Lubbock, was appointed by Mayor Clements to work on the project from that city. It is planned that citizens would donate trees, material and labor.

The Lubbock mayor said he would confer with Mayor T. M. George, of Slaton, relative to the plan, asking cooperation of the Slaton City commission.

Quarterly Meet of BYPU Groups Held On Sunday

The quarterly meeting of the Lubbock Association B. Y. P. U. was held last Sunday at the Calvary Baptist church, Lubbock, with about 75 delegates attending from the First Baptist church of Slaton. Eight churches from over the association were represented. Total attendance was over 300.

T. C. Gardner, of Dallas, head of the state B. Y. P. U. department, was the principal speaker. He outlined plans for an associational B. Y. P. U. revival, which has been in progress at several churches of the association during the week.

The next quarterly meeting of the body will be held at Levelland on Sunday, January 4.

The Slaton delegation captured the efficiency banner for the past three months, showing a better record in B. Y. P. U. work than was shown by other churches of the association.

Woolever Makes Good At Canyon

Ronald "Runt" Woolever, a graduate of Slaton High, year 1929, got ataste of college football last Friday night at West Texas State Teachers college, at Canyon.

He was substituted for Cooper in the last half of the game, at the guard position. He appeared to like it fine and did well with his assignment and will doubtless prove a very valuable man to the Buffalo eleven before the season is far gone. Woolever is a low, heavy set well-made man and sure likes football.

He never failed to stop the Panhandle Aggies in their attempt to penetrate his sector. It is believed that Woolever will get into the game with the Wild Cats of Abilene Christian college, who invade the Buffalo range this Friday night. He may not get started but he is the type of man that can deliver in the pinch.

Go to it "Runt."

State Exhibits To Be At State Fair

Four State exhibits will be featured at the 1930 State Fair of Texas, Oct. 11 to 26. They are from California, New Mexico and Florida.

California will have two exhibits in the Educational Building, one from the Imperial Valley and one from Los Angeles District. These two exhibits consist mostly of citrus fruits, scenery views and other products of California.

Florida will have an exhibit of citrus fruits, sponges, fish products, and other products of the State. Florida will show fresh fruits at the 1930 State Fair. An embargo against Florida fruit at the 1929 State Fair, when the Mediterranean fruit fly was found in the Florida fruit, kept that State from exhibiting fresh fruits.

New Mexico will have more of a general agricultural exhibit. Gov. Dillon recently notified T. E. Jackson, president of the State Fair, that he would again send the New Mexico exhibit to the State Fair. The New Mexico exhibit will be larger and the highway department of that State will have a special exhibit showing the highway system of the State.

In addition to the State exhibits there will be three sectional exhibits from Texas featured at the State Fair of Texas. The sectional exhibits will be from the Panhandle Plains section of the State, from East Texas, and one from South Texas. These three sectional exhibits will all be in the Agricultural Building.

SAVING BY SPENDING

Saving bank deposits are growing again. They were drawn down all over the country, for a while after the business slump last fall. Now they are coming up again, indicating that the American people as a whole have not lost the habit of laying something aside for a rainy day.

A considerable part of the recent withdrawals from savings banks, the officials of the national association of such institutions report, was to take advantage of opportunities offered to buy property of different kinds at bargain prices. The unthrifty had to sell, the thrifty had the wherewithal to buy.

Much of the money withdrawn from the savings banks has been for the purpose of making first payments on homes. Home building in most parts of the country is not reviving as fast as had been anticipated, but there has been an active business in the purchase and sale of houses already built.

Probably the first long step toward getting ahead in the world, that is taken by the majority of Americans, is when a man and his wife go into debt to buy a home. There are unfortunate ones who never have the grit and moral courage to save up the first ten or twenty per cent of the cost of a home. There are others who are so afraid of wings, sometimes that they won't buy a home until they have the money to pay for it in full, in cash. But in between there is a great average group who do not hesitate to borrow as much as one or two years' income on the security of a house and lot, and then put their noses to the grindstone to pay off the debt.

It is so much easier to save when one has a definite objective. When there are monthly installments of principal and interest to be met, even the most frivolous and easy spending individuals usually find some way to meet them, whereas merely putting money into a bank to accumulate at interest does not seem so important. And when the money is put into a home, it is surprising how soon the sense of ownership of property tends to make the home-buyer more careful about other expenditures.

Our advice to every young couple who do not own their own home is to buy a home and buy it now. There never was a more favorable time to build or to buy improved real estate. Building materials are lower than they have been in years, money can be borrowed on easier terms than for years, and labor is abundant at normal wages. In almost every community in the United States the man with $500 in hand or that he can get, hold of within a short time, can buy or build a $5,000 home as good as one for which he would have paid probably $6,500 a year ago, and which will probably be worth $6,500 in another year or two from now. The man with $1,000 can have a $12,000 to $15,000 home—if his income justifies such a house.

If everybody who needs a home started to build now, the business depression would come to an end within six months.

A GREAT OLD SPORTSMAN

For the fifth time in 32 years Sir Thomas Lipton has tried and failed to "lift" the America's cup, the world's most famous yachting trophy, which has been on this side of the Atlantic ever since the "America" won it from the yachts of all the world in 1852. Now eighty years old, Sir Thomas will hardly be able to build another "Shamrock" to contest for the cup which Harold Vanderbilt defended this time with his "Enterprise."

For once, the general sentiment of the people of America in an international sporting event was a hope that the other side would win. Sir Thomas has won the respect and admiration of every true sportsman by the persistence with which he has welcomed defeat after defeat. Everywhere before the races people were saying: "I hope the old man wins it this time; he deserves it."

It was a sporting gesture on the part of Will Rogers, the cowboy humorist, when he suggested that Mayor "Jimmy" Walker of New York receive contributions of a dollar each from the American people to buy Sir Thomas a cup inscribed "To the World's Gamest Loser." The response was instantaneous. In one day more than $1,000 in dollar bills flowed in to Mayor Walker's office. Sir Thomas will go back to Europe with something more valuable than the America's cup would have been to him, the knowledge that he has won the affection and esteem of the people of a whole nation.

THE TIMES

Not changing the subject, how are general conditions out your way? We have been asked that question pretty regularly lately. In a trip to El Paso, that was asked by very near all we came in contact with. It is a wonderful way to open a conversation. We have listened to lurid reports of drought, terrific heat, complete crop losses, highways lined with desperate hitch-hikers, factories closed, families starving to death, banks busted, collections impossible, and other things to sad to relate.

There have been discouraging moments, no doubt of that. But there is more optimism and confidence in the air right now than there has been for more than a year and even the most chronic complainers are beginning to feel that business might be a whole lot worse, after all. As one merchant said the other day, "I can't back up. I've got to go ahead. And that being the case, I'm going to step on it harder than I ever stepped on it before," which sounds to us like mighty good advice.

AUTUMN APPROACHES

When the frost nips the pumpkin, and the autumn leaves turn yellow, and the chill of the fall sinks into our home, then the fire upon the hearth becomes a cheerful companion of the advancing season. Its snapping flames invite one to contemplative thought and bright conversation. Some of man's wisest thoughts have been uttered in family and friendly circles as people gathered about the hearthstone, and mused and meditated over their observations of life. From the flames we describe grotesque forms, of animals and faces, and lucky is he that may have had in an earlier day the old familiar hearth and the memories that are still with us. For the fire on the hearth gives a very cheerful touch to a cool fall evening. Fire is a symbol of home. It stands for the arts that bring comfort and well-being. The household that has good arrangements for fire making is going to be well warmed and fed thru the winter.

As we look at the dancing flames, home seems good. The intense desire of our age for motion and wandering is repressed to some extent.

Blessings on every man who adds a good hearthstone to the dwelling he erects. He adds to human happiness and wisdom.

RUSSIA IN THE WHEAT MARKET

The theory of the Soviet government of Russia seems to be that if every economic institution in the world can be destroyed, in some mysterious way "the common people" will be benefited thereby. It is based on the old Marxian Socialist idea that human nature is essentially honest, capable and industrious and that, given a chance at his own share of the world's wealth, every man would keep his hands off the other fellow's share, do his own share of the world's work and all would be happy.

The theory is as wrong-headed as its author. Everybody who knows anything about human nature knows that is not the way humanity is constituted. Everybody who knows anything about economics knows that the way to build up prosperity is not to begin by tearing down the foundations of industry and business. But the little Socialist clique which just now dominates the millions of unintelligent Russian peasants—dominates them by force—is trying to tear down the world's economic foundations in the hope of making everybody who works so dissatisfied that they will all become revolutionists and communists.

That is clearly the motive behind the Russian government's effort to depress the price of wheat in the United States. By "short selling" in the Chicago market, the Secretary of Agriculture states, the Soviet government has "beared" the wheat market to the financial detriment of every wheat grower. But we have no idea that this will accomplish its apparent purpose, that of turning American farmers into Bolsheviks.

VATICAN

Few people realize that the Vatican, the residence of the Pope at Rome, is the largest and finest palace in the world. It contains 11,000 rooms of all sizes, including halls, chapels and living apartments. There are 80 grand staircases and 200 smaller ones. Nobody can estimate the value of the treasures stored in this building, but they include all of the gifts of jewels and precious metals which have been made to the successive Popes by devout Catholics for the past 1,500 years. There are tens of thousands of paintings and art objects each worth a fortune.

"Rockefeller himself could hardly pay for the tapestries and paintings in the Vatican and Henry Ford would be bankrupt before he had half finished, if he started to purchase these treasures at their actual value," says James T. Nichols, who recently returned from Rome.

GAMES

Human nature demands play. In time of stress and worry, play is the best relief from nervous strain. That accounts for the sudden and immense popularity of the newest outdoor game, "Tom Thumb golf." Is it estimated that, even in this financially difficult year of 1930, more than one hundred million dollars has been spent in building and equipping Tom Thumb golf courses. They are everywhere, and attract tens of thousands who have never played real golf.

Cottonseed hulls dyed green are used for the fairways and greens of these miniature golf courses.

Another current sport is the revival of the old game of backgammon. For years nobody heard of backgammon; the younger generation didn't know what the curious design on the back of the checkerboard meant. Now fashionable society has taken it up, books on backgammon are being published, rules and instructions are being broadcast by radio and newspapers are starting backgammon columns.

GRENFELL

The young college men who have been assisting Dr. Grenfell in his medical mission work among the deep-sea fishermen of Labrador are on their way "out." The ice is closing in behind them and for the next nine months the man who has given his life to helping others will be isolated from the world, as he has been every winter for nearly forty years.

Grenfell was a young doctor in London. Dwight L. Moody, the famous American evangelist, was speaking there. Happening to pass the hall, Grenfell dropped in, heard Moody's message, stayed to talk, decided that from that night on he must devote his life to the service of others. The medical mission to the fisher folk was the result.

Great Britain has honored her native son by conferring knighthood upon him. He is Sir Wilfred Grenfell now in his old age. America has given liberally of money and man-power to aid in the work. The example which this self-sacrificing doctor has set has had and still has a quiet but powerful influence on thousands of other young men who are trying, in their own selected sphere, to emulate Grenfell.

It is difficult to recall any successful man who attributes his success to failure to advertise.

On Tuesday, September 9, the seniors held their first class meeting. Several matters of importance were attended to. Paramount among them was the election of officers. The class voted that the following students should be at the helm for the following year:

- Robert Rayburn, president.
 - Clyde King, vice-president.
 - Doyle Catching, treasurer.
 - Elizabeth Alford, secretary.
 - John Rayburn, reporter.
- Mr. Lemon has been elected to succeed Mrs. J. S. Tekeli as senior sponsor, but we can never forget the work she has done for us.

The president also appointed a committee to submit a list of names for the "Tiger Cage Staff" to be voted on by the class.

WEST WARD NEWS

Thursday and Friday the sixth grade had a contest in arithmetic. The two captains were Mary Lee Thompson and J. W. Smith. The contest was very close but Mary Lee's side finally won.

In our music class we have twenty-six pupils. Miss Head is our teacher, and we have been writing music and studying rhythm. Today we are having a test.

The low sixth grade of the Junior high school was surprised, not by a new teacher, but the same teacher with a new name—the former Miss Elizabeth Smith, now Mrs. S. J. Oliver.

DEBATING CLUB

Those who are interested in cultivating the forensic art meet with Miss Irene Armes in room 16 on September 8. No organization has been created up to this time, only the division of the group into two sections, one composed of boys and the other, girls. The debating hopefuls are optimistic concerning a successful season.

TENNIS CLUB MEETS

Those interested in tennis met with Mr. Wilhite and Mr. Sanders and elected the following officers: Merle Garguies, president; Odie Hood, vice-president; Allene Sprinkle, secretary, treasurer and reporter. It is not known whether we will be able to play any this fall, but we will start with a bang next spring—remember—you can join.

THE PEPPY JUNIORS

The Juniors met in room 16 for the purpose of organizing the class. The following officers were elected: President, E. G. Reese. Vice-President, Dail Cooper. Secretary, Lorena Soage. Treasurer, Wilson Lott. Reporter, Pauline Owens. Yell Leaders, Theresa Lokey and Claxton Mullinex. Pink and white were selected for the class colors and the larkspur was chosen as the class flower. The juniors seem to have gotten off to an early start by having had one party already. They met at the clubhouse on September 19, 1930, for a rollicking good time. A large number were present with Miss Armes, our sponsor, as chaperone, and Mr. Lemon, as guest of honor. The juniors are striving to have the best junior class in the history of Slaton high—So seniors, just watch that junior class go.

THE GLEE CLUB

The Glee club organized with a membership of twenty-six and elected the following officers: Wayne Smith, president. J. L. Benton, secretary-treasurer. E. G. Reese, Sergeant-at-Arms. James Merrill, reporter. We need more members and would like very much to have any other boys who are interested in the work. We hope to do good work this year and accomplish something worthwhile.

FRESHMEN ORGANIZE

The freshman class met Tuesday, September 9, 1930, and elected the following officers: Jack Forgerson, president. Reo Hood, vice-president. Mary Virginia Whitehead, secretary and treasurer. Scott Starns, reporter. Yell Leaders, Trixie Jackson and Cecil Lovett.

CHORAL CLUB

At our first meeting we elected officers for the year '30 and '31, namely: President, Joan Drewry. Secretary-Treasurer, Elizabeth Alford. Librarian, Tilly Pohl. Sergeant-at-Arms, Monette Patterson. Reporter, Mildred Swafford. Pianist, Katrina Houston. The festival music has been ordered and we expect to do some real work soon. Our one aim is to make this a better choral club than has ever been created in Slaton high. "Watch the Choral Club Win!"

HEALTH CRUSADERS

The Health Crusaders of East Ward are surely advancing toward knight-hood. The Crusaders of old, were heroes while we, too are heroes and glorifiers of health. Our health rules are kept and we have codes or honor, the same as they. So take notice and watch the Health Crusaders fight the dirt and germs which are enemies of our children.

HOME ECONOMIC CLUB

The first meeting of the Home economic club was held Monday afternoon, September 22. The constitution and by-laws were read and the initiation of new members discussed.

There were comparatively few new members and the club urged that more girls join. A better year is anticipated for the club than ever before. Join, Girls! in time for initiation.

SOPHOMORE CLASS REPORT

The Sophomore class, the best that Slaton high school has ever known, met Tuesday, September 9, 1930, in the auditorium to elect new officers. Sergeant-at-Arms—Cleo Smith. Reporter—Juanita Campbell. Yell Leaders—Arvell Harris and Thelma McCollum. The meeting closed with three hearty yells for the sponsors, Mrs. P. W. CHINA

Civil war in China is not so serious as newspaper dispatches suggest. China is a huge country, covering almost half as much ground as the United States and having three times our population. Disturbances in one region have little effect on distant parts.

It is surprising, nevertheless, to read in the U. S. Commerce Reports that new apartment houses from 7 to 20 stories high are being built in Shanghai, that a commercial broadcasting station is under construction and another by the Nanking government, and that other new enterprises are being undertaken.

China is far from being paralyzed by its internal wars, and may come out of them stronger than before they began.

SIXTH INSTALLMENT

Giles Chittenham swears to avenge the death of his young half-brother Rodney, driven to suicide by the notorious Julie Farrow who had spurned his love. He will make Julie love him, then throw her aside as she threw Rodney. He meets her in Switzerland, goes with her to the hotel on the St. Bernard Pass, and succeeds in winning her love. To his amazement, he discovers that he has fallen overwhelmingly in love with her himself! And he is married, to an American girl with whom he has nothing in common. Then he discovers that this girl is not the same Julie Farrow who ruined Rodney, but her cousin of the same name. She scorns him when he confesses his love and his inability to marry her. They meet later in London, where she is going the pace that kills. Another man, Lawrence Schofield, wants to marry her, in spite of her wild life.

Now Go On With the Story

In the morning he rang her up. Bim Lennox answered.
 "Julie? Oh, I'm sorry—she's not up yet. Who is it?"
 "Lawrence Schofield. She told me I might ring."
 "Oh—well—if you will wait a moment. May I give her a message?"
 "I want her to lunch with me if she will."
 "I will tell her."
 It seemed an eternity till Bim returned.
 "Julie will be delighted. Will you call for her at half-past one?"
 "I shall be delighted also."
 So that was that!
 Schofield felt a boy as he turned away from the telephone. Nearly fifty! Nonsense! he was a young man, and in love for the first time.
 He might have been less elated had he heard Julie's comment when his message was conveyed to her.
 "Schofield! who on earth—don't know the man."
 Julie was half asleep still; her head was spitting, and there was a queer dread in her heart.
 He was here last night. He brought you home," Bim said patiently. "He wants you to lunch with him. He is waiting on the 'phone."
 "Oh—well, say what you like—anything."
 Bim went away without answering, and when she returned Julie was still sitting up in her bed, her hands clasped round her knees, a little frown of pain between her eyes.
 "What did you say?"
 "I told him you would be delighted to lunch with him, and he is calling for you at half-past one."
 "I told you to send him away."
 "You didn't. You told me to say what I liked, so I said you would be delighted. I like the man."
 "Go with him yourself then."
 "I would have done it if he had asked me."
 Julie lay back on her pillows.
 "Where's the tea?"
 "Just coming. Is your head very bad?"
 "The very devil," Julie followed Bim to the door with envious eyes. "How on earth do you manage to look so fresh at this ungodly hour?" she said.
 Bim turned around with a faint smile.
 "I don't drink too much for one thing," she said lightly.
 Schofield came for Julie in a big car.
 "It's awfully good of you to come," he said nervously.
 "It's awfully good of you to ask me," Julie said. She looked at him and was touched by the genuine pleasure in his eyes.
 "Are you living in town?" she asked.
 "I am only staying in a hotel at the moment," Schofield answered, and then added: "I think I told you last night."
 Julie had forgotten everything about last night except those little cameos of pain in which Giles Chittenham had featured.
 "Of course you did," she hurriedly said, and racked her brain to remember what else he had told her.
 "It was perfect waste," so Julie told Bim afterwards. "Sinful waste taking me to such a place. I had no appetite—the sight of the food almost unnerved me. However, I managed to make some sort of a show, but I'm afraid he was disappointed."
 But in spite of no appetite and a headache, Julie quite enjoyed herself. There was something about Schofield which is was impossible not to like. He was so anxious to please, so attentive and kind.
 "Are you a married man?" Julie asked impulsively, and he flushed and shook his head.

 "No—my wife died—not long ago." She drummed her slim fingers on the table conscious of Schofield's eyes upon them.
 "You—you are not married?" he asked.
 "Good Lord no!" Julie laughed. "No, thank you," she said again loudly.
 "Why do you say that?" She flushed and looked away.
 "Why? Oh, I don't know. I prefer independence, I suppose."
 "But if you met the man who—who thought the world of you—some man who would be kind and—devoted?"
 "Are there any such men?" she asked cynically.
 "There is one here," Schofield said. She turned her head slowly and looked at him in blank amazement.
 "I beg your pardon," she said at last.
 Schofield's honest eyes met hers unflatteringly.
 "I said there was one here," he repeated. "I suppose you are surprised. I have not forgotten that we met last night for the first time, but directly I saw you everything was changed for me. I have never—never felt for any woman what I felt for you last night. I daresay you think it presumption on my part to have said as much as I have done, but some day if there is no other man you care for—"
 Julie gasped.
 "You're not—you're not asking me to marry you?"
 "Some day I want to ask you if you will."
 Julie felt as if she were dreaming. She broke out desperately:
 "But you know nothing about me—nothing!"
 "I know you are the woman with whom I could be perfectly happy."
 She laughed derisively.
 "That is a bold statement. If I were to tell you—"
 He just touched her hand with his.
 "Nothing would make any difference."
 "Are you—just—joking?" she asked.
 "No."
 She looked at him for a long moment in silence; she felt as if she saw him now—for the first time. He was not young, as he had told her, and he was not good-looking, but there was something in his face—a steadfastness and sincerity which was like balm poured into her aching heart.
 "I don't want you to say anything now," he was telling her. "If you will just let me see you—often! and be your friend."
 "I don't know why you are so kind to me."
 "I am being kind to myself."
 She looked away, winking the tears from her lashes.
 He was so simple and sincere. He was like a breath from her old peaceful life. Lately she had seen so little of simple honesty and sincerity. Sometimes she thought she had left all those things behind her on the snow-capped mountain tops.
 "Where have you been hiding all these years?" she asked impulsively. He told her quite frankly.

"I've lived in a country town—I've just been a nobody, a junior partner in a highly respectable firm of solicitors. My wife died—she was never very strong, and then a distant relative died too and left me some money—quite a lot of money."
 "Lucky you!" Julie said.
 "Yes," he answered, "I think I was very lucky," and his eyes were on her face. "I hope my luck will continue to hold," he added.
 "I think you deserve that it should," Julie said. You are the kind of man who would spoil a woman terribly," she said.
 "It would give me great happiness if I had the right to spoil you."
 She laughed rather sadly.
 "It's such early days. Soon—perhaps quite soon—you will know me better, and then you will wonder why you ever thought me nice at all. I've got all sorts of vices."
 "I don't believe you."
 They spoke of the others who had been at the Faun.
 "I tell you who I did like," Schofield said. "That tall fellow—what was his name—Chittenham?"
 Julie caught her breath.
 "Oh, yes—I forgot that you met him."
 "I like him," Schofield said again meditatively. "I believe I've met him before somewhere, but I can't quite remember. If I were a woman, he is the kind of man who would attract me."
 "He detests all women."
 "Nonsense! a man like that—"
 Julie broke in excitedly:
 "I tell you he does—ask any one who knows him! he's a woman-hater."
 "Then there must be a good reason for it."
 "Conceit, I should think!" Julie said flippantly. "He imagines that all women are running after him."
 Schofield looked surprised at her vehemence.
 "It sounds rather as if you dislike him."
 Julie shrugged her shoulders. There was a little hard look in her pretty eyes.
 "I don't dislike him," she said, "I'm just quite indifferent."
 Since his introduction to Dris at the Faun, Giles saw a good deal more of her than he wished to see. At first he had accepted her invitations in the hope that perhaps Julie might also be included, but he had always been disappointed.
 Once when he had mentioned her name to Doris she had frowned.
 "Oh, Julie! I think I've shown her at last that her room is preferable to her company. She's really too impossible. You know who she is running about with now?"

 "No."
 "Lawrence Schofield."
 "I don't know him."
 "You do. You were introduced at the Faun one night. He's a harmless sort of man with heaps of money, but his wife has only been dead about a month, and it's a bit soon, don't you think?"
 "Soon for what?"
 "To get married again."
 There was a little silence, then Chittenham asked quietly:
 "Is he to marry Miss Farrow, then?"
 "So people say. He's years too old for her, of course, but he seems absolutely devoted, and she says it's only his money she wants, and as it's what we all want, I suppose you can't blame her."
 "I suppose not! though I understand Miss Farrow to say that she never intended to marry."
 Doris laughed.
 It was the next day his mother telephoned him. He could not go with her.
 Giles wondered as he hung up the receiver, what his mother would have said had he told her that his engagement was to meet the other Julie Farrow whom his brother had loved.
 The invitation had come about in quite a casual way.
 Only the night before Lombard had called in at the hotel where he was staying.
 "Will you come along and have some dinner with me this evening? Quite a small party," he had said.
 "Ladies?"
 "Two—one of them Julie Farrow—the real Julie this time," he added rather maliciously.
 Giles frowned.
 "Did you tell her I was coming?"
 "I said I should ask you if I could find you."
 "And she made no objections?"
 "None. I think she was entertained at the thought of meeting you."
 There was a little silence which Chittenham broke.
 "There's one point I can't get quite clear, he said. "This Julie—the famous one—isn't she a married woman?"
 "She was. There was a divorce."
 "I see, and she still calls herself Farrow?"
 "It was her maiden name. She went back to it when the case was over."
 Giles laughed shortly.
 "It seems to be the fashion," he said, and he remembered that Sadie had done the same thing after he and she had agreed to each go their separate ways.
 "Well, I'll be there at eight," he said.
 "And—Chittenham—"
 "Yes."
 "What about—do you ever run across the other Julie?"
 "I have met her once or twice."
 Lombard looked relieved.
 "I'm glad to hear that. I thought—well—you seemed so upset when we were in Lausanne—"

 "What the devil are you driving at?"
 "Oh, nothing, nothing—only you cut up rough with me if you remember You cut up rough over that mistake I made. And it was quite pardonable on my part. You'll see for yourself tonight. They're very much alike—especially if you don't know them very well."
 It was quite true. Giles found himself unable to keep his eyes off the "other Julie" when they met at dinner that night.

Awake Half the Night Weak and in Pain

Night after night I could not sleep," writes Mrs. Mary J. Roberts, 117 West Franklin St., Raleigh, N. C. "I would lie awake half the night. I was dizzy and weak, suffered frequently with pains in my side and small part of my back.
 "When I was a girl, my mother gave me Cardui, and it did me so much good, I thought I would try it again. I took five bottles, and I feel like a new person.

Way of Life

BRUCE BARTON

WIVES

One could draw many interesting lessons from the recent biography of the great English barrister, Sir Edward Marshall Hall.

For instance, it furnishes a striking commentary on the difference between our method and the English method of administering justice. Sir Edward appeared in most of the celebrated trials of his time. Any one of them would have dragged on for weeks over here. The longest of them lasted only eleven days in England. A majority were wound up in less than a week.

We are ahead of the English in most departments of modern business. We are even with them in medicine, in science, and, perhaps, in literature. In the law we are woefully, shamefully and in excusably behind.

But at the moment I am more interested in one very human little incident in Sir Edward's life which occupies only a paragraph, and was perhaps overlooked by most readers.

He had just been elected to Parliament and had prepared a speech with which he hoped to dazzle the House and make his reputation. Again and again during the long night session he tried to catch the Speaker's eye, but each time he was overlooked in favor of some older member. So he went home with his speech still undelivered, its ringing sentences still ringing in his head.

There in bed lay his little wife, who had been asleep for hours. But Sir Edward, so much disappointed and so on fire with his own oratory, could not let her sleep. Forthwith he woke her up and insisted that she listen to the whole long speech.

Is there any wife in the world to whom something of the same sort has not happened?

I knew personally one of the leading men of the last generation. For years he had gone home every evening and—detail by detail—told his wife the whole story of the day's proceedings: what he did, what he said, and what other men had done and said to him. When she died at a ripe old age, the husband seemed organically sound and good for another ten years.

Go into a restaurant and watch the couples at their meals. See the man expanding under the encouraging smile of girl, talking along, showing what a great fellow he is. And she, asking questions which are much dumber than they need to be, deliberately concealing her own wisdom in order to make him appear the wiser.

They are a great invention, these women, and particularly those of them who do us the honor to become our wives. Whenever any one tells me that, with the increasing wealth of the country, the wives are growing more idle, I contend that they still earn their living handsomely.

And would continue to earn it even if they had to do nothing but listen to us talk.

Improved Roads Brings Changes

North Carolina's Experience Typical of What Happened All Over the Country

By CALEB JOHNSON

30 years ago there was not a mile of hard-surfaced road—brick, concrete or asphalt or any of the other familiar road surfaces of today—anywhere in the United States outside of the limits of a city or incorporated municipality. Today 660,000 of our 3,000,000 miles of public highways are hard-surfaced. This year of 1930 has been the biggest road-building year in our history. By the end of the year we shall have spent close to $2,000,000,000 for new highway work.

Who pays it? And why? The taxpayers pay for the roads, and we pay for them because we want smother traveling for our automobiles. About half the money comes from the Federal and State treasuries, the other half from county and town taxes. And there is no other expenditure of tax funds which we begrudge less, unless it be the taxes we pay for schools.

It was not always thus. In the beginning of the motor era, when the automobile was a rich man's plaything, the last thing in the world the farmer or other small town business man would have consented to be taxed for roads for motor cars to run on.

The average farmer would not even pay for better roads for his own travel to and from town. Every sort of pressure was brought to bear in the effort to educate the people of the country to the economic value of good roads, even in the old horse-and-wagon days, but all of those efforts got practically nowhere until the advent of the cheap automobile put motor cars within the reach of everybody.

As soon as the use of the car became general, good roads became a necessity which everybody recognized. And when the Federal government, in 1912, adopted a policy of paying a quarter or more of the cost of main highways, road building began in earnest.

The result has been a revolution in our own time, in so many lines of business and industry that it would be difficult to enumerate all of them. But nowhere has this new era of good roads and cheap cars had such a revolutionary effect as upon the farmer and the small town business man.

There are many cities in which the principal part of the milk supply is brought in now by motor trucks, instead of by train as formerly. And in every country town, dealers can get new supplies of merchandise in by truck more speedily and more satisfactorily than they ever did by railroad.

One day during the summer just past I was driving from New York to Philadelphia. At a filling station where I stopped for gas three large trucks heading the other way were drawn up. The drivers were all obviously farm boys, and they betrayed their Southern origin in the accent with which they spoke to each other and the filling station man.

"What part of Virginia do you boys come from?" I asked one of them, at a venture. My guess was pretty close. They were from North Carolina, and had started out the previous morning with their trucks loaded with potatoes and fresh vegetables for the New York market. They would reach New York that night, after a 600-mile trip and turn their produce over to the wholesale distributor about three days earlier than it would have reached the same market by rail. They told me that they made trips several times a year, bringing in the products of a cooperative group of North Carolina farms, and always got prices away above the standard market quotations because their goods were fresh and had not been handled between the farm and the terminal market.

One of the most interesting examples of what good roads have done for a single state is that of North Carolina, whose road-building program has been one of the most progressive and comprehensive. Between 1919 and 1926 North Carolina built $125,000,000 worth of highways.

In that period the number of farms in the state increased by 13,000, at a time when the number of farms in the nation was decreasing.

Forty cooperative farm marketing associations were developed in the state, shipping thousands of tons of poultry, eggs, hogs, fruits and vegetables which the state never before grew for outside sale. Roadside markets and city curb markets—the immediate result of the good roads—stimulated the growing of truck produce and formed an outlet for the farm surplus; with the cash thus obtained, the farm women put modern conveniences into their homes, dressed themselves and their children better, painted their houses and beautified their yards—thus creating substantial business for a variety of merchants. The true value of North Carolina property multiplied eight times between 1900 and 1926, while the entire United States was increasing the true value of property by four times. Through the new roads, the State was enabled to recover its "lost provinces"—those sections to the far east and west that were formerly foreign to the State so far as transportation connections of any kind were concerned. As a direct accompaniment and outgrowth of the new good roads North Carolina built consolidated rural schools valued at $35,000,000. At Asheville there was a 200 per cent increase in dollar business between 1919 and 1926—the period during which the good roads were built. In the Winston-Salem territory, the retailers reported a 65 per cent increase in purchasing power per capita. The Greensboro Chamber of Commerce testified that the good roads widened the retail territory of the city to an irregular area extending from 15 to 50 miles. The fine roads widened a simply tremendous boost to the State's tourist traffic. In 1920, North Carolina itself had about 140,000 motor vehicles; now it has not less than 485,000.

Here we see concrete proof of the business benefits from highways—not idle theories, but authentic and attested facts.

The modern motor car has given to the business man, as an individual, a wonderful freedom of movement—an ease and flexibility in the scope of his activity—which he never enjoyed in other eras. It has relaxed all kinds of once-rigid commercial bonds. It has helped to make business fluent, copious, easily impelled and diffused, swift to reach its goals—and vastly more complex than anything our fathers knew.

Garner Suffered 10 Long Years

Wichita Falls Man Says Argotane Has Restored Him To Health

"I tried for ten long years to find a medicine that would relieve me of my suffering, but all my efforts failed completely until I got hold of this Argotane," said L. B. Garner, a well known bottler employed at the Nehi Bottling works, and who lives at 2514 1-2 Fillmore street, Wichita Falls, Texas.

"During all these years," he continued, "my stomach was in such bad condition that everything I ate disagreed with me. I would often be bloated up with gas that I was hardly able to get a good breath. My appetite was very poor, and what little I did eat didn't seem to give me any nourishment at all, and I just went downward until sometimes I did not run-down and no-account I did not feel like doing any work at all. In fact, my entire system was in very bad condition. I tried a great many different medicines and treatments, but I just seemed to get worse all the time instead of better.

"Then my wife, who had used Argotane with such good results bought me a bottle and I just want to say from that time on I didn't have to bother about any other sort of medicine, for I commenced to improve right from the start, and now I am as well and hearty as I ever was in my life. I never have that tired, worn-out feeling any more, and my stomach troubles have been completely overcome. I have a dandy appetite, and eat anything I want and I never suffer the least bit afterwards. I am in better shape generally than I have been in many years. Yes, sir, I have taken a great many different kinds of medicine in my life, but this Argotane beats anything I have ever tried. I am glad to have the opportunity of recommending it to everybody."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Slaton at Teagues Drug store.

A Charming Transparent Velvet Gown

The last word in Paris and the first in New York is velvet. For morning, night and noon, neighees, pajamas, Sunday night supper frocks, formal and informal evening and afternoon wear, everything is velvet. The sophisticated street ensemble, or the smart befores for the debutante are in black and white or rich autumn colors, but velvet is the favorite material. The above costume is of black transparent velvet. It is one of the most distinctive models of the season combining dignity, charm and elegance. The outstanding features are the delicately shirred white georgette collar which emphasizes the new draped neck line, and the flaring sleeve with its turned back cuff. The belt is a knotted cord braid fastened with a rhinestone buckle. The collar is also fastened in the back with four rhinestone buttons. Beret is of black velvet, shoes of patent leather and gloves black suede.

The folks who ask if education pays, will have all doubts set at rest before long when they see the price paid for football tickets.

The folks who can't get out to attend some meeting for town improvement, can usually do so when a chicken pie supper is gotten up.

It is claimed that automobile speed should be limited, but it is at least somewhat limited by the trees and poles the speeders run into.

Kind-Hearted Lady: And so you have nine brothers and sisters! My! It must take a lot of toast every morning for breakfast!
