Tigers Show Class In Armistice Day Conflict

TIGERS DEFEATED OLD RIVALS 12-0; SPECIAL TRAIN FOR FANS

The annual classic, Armistice Day, between the Golden Tornadoes of Lamesa and our fighting Tigers was one long-to-be remembered. This cleans the slate for 1929. Thanks to the assistance of local interest, a special train was made possible for approximately 500 fans, young and old, were there backing our Tigers to the limit. It was no place for one with heart failure or high blood pressure, for the thrills were many.

The entire citizenship of Lamesa met the Slaton special with cars and a ride was free for all. Mighty fine courtesy was extended to the Tiger fans, even though they won. A mighty fine spirit was shown and the Slaton folks sure do appreciate this sportsmanship. There is no reason why it should not always be that way. Slaton looks forward to next year, to reciprocate, and we will.

Regardless as to what might be the opinion of the Avalanche Sports writer, Slaton is still in the running for the district. While Slaton and Brownfield are tied, rest assured the Tigers will play.

After a heavy rain at Lamesa, with a field wet and slippery, the Tigers took the kick-off, the game was on, the fans were on their toes cheering their teams. Wonderful work, interference, passing, blocking, scrimmage. Oh! Boy! The second quarter brought the coveted touchdown, of course for the Tigers.

The Lamesa lads fought a wonderful game and were game to the last, but the Tigers were there. The third quarter gave the fans another thrill in a touchdown for the Tigers. Elation, jollification and exhilaration, all three were in evidence on the Slaton sideline.

Dignity was forgotten. Coach Wright evidently had administered the necessary drops and they worked. The eleven worked fine, every man a star. Are we blue, no sir.

The check-up showed that while the score stood 12 to 0 in favor of our Tigers, that the Tigers gained 175 yards and the Tornadoes registered 371-2. The Tigers completed three passes out of seven, and the Tornadoes failed on the air route. A pretty clean game as the Tigers were given three 5-yard penalties to the Tornadoes one for 10 yards.

In the mingling of the purple and white, black and gold, the setting was all that one could ask for. But did you notice the bevy of girls that wore the purple and white? Our girls, the finest in the land. That was the pep squad and we all got an eye full as the newly organized band came into sight. Looks as though they will have a peppy leader in Z. D. Davis. We have surely needed a band and now let's keep it going.

The good old Santa Fe brought us all safely into port. Slaton was there to meet us on arrival.

To the Tigers, to Coach Wright, to the Pep Squad and to the Band, We Greet You. We will be there again, fighting on the side lines just as hard as you are in the scrimmage. Let us do it again. In other words, encore.

The duller the visitor the longer he stays.

Brazilian Beauty

Senhorita Yolanda Pereira de Rio de Janeiro, who was crowned "Miss Universe" in an international beauty contest in South America.

The Highway Patrol made Slaton a quiet visit and incidentally slipped a little white slip to some of the boys. Guess they are after us.

Reorganize High School Band Here

Under the direction of Z. B. Davis, formerly director of the Shamrock band, the Slaton high school band is being reorganized after a period of inactivity which began about two years ago. Twenty members have been included in the band thus far, and others are expected, Mr. Davis says.

The band accompanied the Slaton delegation to Lamesa on Tuesday, furnishing music for the Slaton-Lamesa football game. Fans were enthusiastic over having a band to accompany them and assist in stirring up enthusiasm for the game.

All members of the band had their railroad fares to Lamesa paid for by the Slaton Chamber of Commerce and the Slaton Rotary club, these organizations sharing equally in the expense, which totalled $22.00.

Brownfield Man Is Speaker for Legion Meeting

L. L. Martin, of Brownfield, was the principal speaker for a special meeting of Luther Powers Post of the American Legion and Legion Auxiliary, held last Monday night, at the clubhouses. Mr. Martin represented the Brownfield Legion Post, and gave a patriotic address at the meeting here.

Following the address refreshments were served to those present.

Charter Granted To Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry Show; Home In Slaton

The State of Texas has granted a charter to the Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry Association, which was organized here last August and which will sponsor the first annual poultry show for the Panhandle-Plains area in Slaton on December 10, 11 and 12. Word that the charter has been granted came from Austin this week.

Incorporators include: Taylor White of Tahoka, president; J. O. Roberts, of Rotan, vice-president; L. A. Wilson, Slaton, secretary-treasurer; and thirty members of the board of directors, located throughout the 54 counties of Northwest Texas which are included in the association's territory.

Brownfield After Tigers Scalp

Cotton Ginnings Boosted to 2640 Bales in Slaton

Setting the highest record made during any week of the season, the five Slaton gins that are operating this season received 512 bales of cotton last week, bringing the season's total receipts to 2,640 bales for these five gins.

Ginners estimated that the cotton crop in this immediate area is about 80 to 85 per cent harvested. If this be true, the final ginning total for the season will exceed the 3,000 mark in Slaton. This is about the average figure which was given by estimates made early in the season by cotton men. Some estimated the total at 4,000, while others were as low as 2,000 bales. It now seems practically certain that the total will pass the 3,000 mark, possibly reaching 3,500 bales. This does not include the gins at Posey, McClung and Union.

Passenger Plane Here Staurday and Sunday

Two government, licensed transport pilots, with headquarters at Chicago, are on a "barn storming" tour of the south and they will be in Slaton on Saturday and Sunday with a licensed airplane for the purpose of carrying passengers at so much "per each."

"Communism" Was Subject of Rotary Speech

An International service program was held last Friday by the Slaton Rotary club, three addresses being made on the subject of "Communism," which is now being tried out in Russia.

"What is Communism?" was the subject discussed by L. T. Green; "Does Communism Offer a Real Threat In This Country?" C. C. Hoffman, Jr.; and "What Would Likely Be the Effects if Communism Should Become a Ruling Force In This Country?" Lloyd A. Wilson.

A vocal quartette number was given by Claude F. Anderson, Walter Olive, Allan J. Payne and Lloyd A. Wilson.

Victors at the luncheon were: Dean James M. Gordon, of Texas Tech, Dr. Charles Wagner, Lubbock; and H. C. Dickinson, Jr., Lubbock.

Slaton Baptists In Amarillo for Convention Meet

Several Slaton people went to Amarillo early this week to attend the annual sessions of the Texas Baptist convention, which opened there Monday, continuing through Friday.

Hatcherymen of Section to Meet At Poultry Show

Hatcherymen of the Texas Panhandle-Plains section will hold a meeting in Slaton on Wednesday, December 10, opening day of the first annual poultry show to be staged here by the Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry association, it was announced here this week.

The hatcherymen will have their meeting at the Slaton clubhouse at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and will remain here for the annual meeting of the association on Wednesday night. This banquet will also be held at the clubhouse. All exhibitors at the show, together with officers of the association and the hatcherymen will attend the banquet, which will be given by the Slaton Chamber of Commerce. Officers of the association for the ensuing year will be elected at the banquet.

FOOTBALL SHOTS

Uncle George Marriott attended, even though he is still suffering with hay fever and a loud cough.

L. A. Wilson, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, simply beamed. Smiles radiated all day.

J. E. Rucker, almost sans clothes, talked so fast that the only word one could understand was "Tigers." Anyway, you know the old story, "A lean dog for a long chase." He can do 100 yards in 10 flat. Watch him.

R. L. Smith, another of the eagle eyes, who is a fan plus did not slip an eccentric. He had the old jouncing bar hooked up in the short nocked on the quadrant, all glands poked, a clean fire, no clinkers, a fine head of steam. When the Tigers made the first touchdown he lost his dignity. Why not? There is a Smith on the team that is kin to the old eagle eye.

Charley Taylor just would not be left, he was there. Poor little Jimmy had to remain at home, but Charley told him all the fine points when he returned.

W. H. "Bill" Smith had his bells on. You know Bill Slaton was his special guests. Some host, we tell you. Bill forgot the Santa Fe when the Tigers got into the fray.

Judge Baldwin, we are going to call him Roy Baldwin this time for we were all boys down there. Roy was the bean-brummel of the party. Fine kid-toe boots laced to perfection, a rain coat that shed water, clean shave, hair parted in the middle, with his tonsils removed, he still has the voice to cheer, and he did.

Tess Bruner, representative of Uncle Sam from the postoffice, is adept at licking, that is stamps, stating "we can lick the Lamesa bunch."

Percy Minor, who is not a Junior, had his tomahawk out and did the scolding, ably assisted by M. F. Braden, of the ticket office department, and our friend Tusha, of the passenger department, Amarillo.

Dad Green, he of pedagogic fame, was the most consistent worker on the grounds. He worked the line from goal to goal, never missing a step or a puff. You all know about these long fellows. All good sports.

Coach Wright got his little cap all tied into a gordian knot, but the Tigers cut it for him. The Coach would make a mighty fine Indian. He is a pretty goon "injun" anyway.

W. R. Lovett, formerly with the Santa Fe expert to take charge of the Service Cafe on East Texas avenue, Monday, November 17.

BROWNFIELD TO FIGHT HARD FOR MOST CRUCIAL GAME OF SEASON

Election day is approaching in Poland so the Warsaw police are being outfitted with bullet-proof steel jackets and helmets.

Legion Meetings On Friday Night

Regular meetings of Luther Powers Post, American Legion, and the Legion Auxiliary unit will be held on this Friday night at the clubhouse, it has been announced by Jim A. Elliott, Legion commander, and Mrs. F. B. Tudor, president of the local Auxiliary.

Important business is to be transacted at these meetings and members are especially urged to attend, these officers said.

Some people are as care-free in signing a note as a petition.

Boy Scouts Hold Places of Trust In Schools Here

With only one exception, all boys holding places of responsibility in Slaton public schools, such as serving as class officers or holding other places of leadership, are Boy Scouts, or have been Scouts within the past year. This statement was made yesterday by R. D. Griffin, pioneer Boy Scout worker in Slaton, who is in close touch with all Scout work here.

Mr. Griffin said much credit for this situation is due the training these boys have received from Scouting, and that Slaton people should recognize the vital importance of the influence which are exerted upon boys of this community by the Boy Scout organizations here.

Pitts Delivered Armistice Talk At High School Auditorium Tuesday

E. L. Pitts, of Lubbock county, judge-elect of Lubbock county, was the principal speaker here Tuesday morning in an Armistice Day program at the high school auditorium at 10 a. m.

Pupils of the high school and a number of citizens heard the address. The Slaton high school band, led by Z. B. Davis, director of the newly organized group, played "The Star-Spangled Banner," after which Mr. Pitts spoke. He recalled the sacrifices made by the American soldiers and the American people during the World War, and urged the people to uphold

After defeating the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes, 12 to 0, at Lamesa on last Tuesday afternoon, the Slaton High Tigers have cancelled their non-conference game with the Lubbock Westerners, scheduled for Friday, and instead will play the Brownfield eleven in Slaton at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon for the sub-district championship.

The game with Lubbock was cancelled because it was impossible to play the Lubbock game and also meet Brownfield and play other games in the district, if Slaton wins from the Brownfield eleven, within the time limit allowed.

Having played to a scoreless tie with Brownfield four weeks ago, and in view of the fact that both teams have not had conference defeats this season, the Tigers will have a hard battle when they face the Terry county boys here this (Friday) afternoon. The importance of this game, however, is now greater than was that of the Lamesa scrap, and the Slaton eleven will do its best Friday afternoon.

In the Brownfield camp, rumors were stirring late yesterday that a special train would bring several hundred Brownfield fans to Slaton on Friday to witness the Slaton-Brownfield game. It is said that the whole town of Brownfield will close and that everybody there will be here to back the Brownfield eleven.

Slaton fans will turn out en masse, for the occasion, and other fans from Lamesa, Tahoka, Lubbock, Spur, Lockney, Littlefield and many other South Plains towns are expected to be here.

Tickets for the game should be bought early, if local people wish to save themselves time and money. A reduction in price was made effective on tickets bought early, but this reduction will not apply at the gate.

Court of Honor for Scouts Will Be Held Nov. 20

A court of honor for Slaton Boy Scouts in Troops 31 and 37 will be held next Thursday night, Nov. 20, at the Slaton Clubhouse, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, it has been announced by R. D. Griffin and L. B. Hagerman, Scoutmasters.

A special invitation to all the fathers and mothers in Slaton is extended for them to attend this court of honor. The attendance at last court of honor was splendid, about 150 people being present. Scout leaders are hoping the parents will turn out in similar fashion again. The Scouts are said to be doing fine work, and when courts of honor are held, the presence of the parents is a great benefit to the boys. Scout workers declare.

Raymond Johnson, Santa Fe engineer, who met with a painful eye accident has fully recovered and has taken his run again.

BRUCE BARTON

"QUOTA MAD"

A famous advertising agent was talking with me about business in these United States.

It is his function to prepare the advertising for several large manufacturers, and to consult with them on their sales problems. He goes home every night all tired out. He says he doesn't know anybody in business who is getting any real fun out of it.

"I'll give you my program for a typical day," he said. "I come down to my office a little before nine, and there is the sales manager of a shoe company waiting for me. His pockets are full of charts. His company's sales are 20 per cent ahead of last year, but is he satisfied? Not for a minute. He must set the mark for next year 50 per cent ahead."

"Then I go over to the office of a food manufacturer. He has just closed up the best year in his history. And we try to figure out how he can do twice as much again!"

"I lunch with the officers of a cement company. If they would get together with their competitors, and agree to curtail production just a little, they could all make more money. The price of their product might have to be raised a trifle, but I doubt it, because the sales expense would be much less. But will they curtail? Never. Every year must show a bigger figure. The quotas must go up and up."

"The trouble with this country is that we have gone crazy on the subject of volume. We are quota mad." As he talked I recalled a conversation I had some years ago with an American who represents a French manufacturer in this country.

"I have a heart-breaking time with that Frenchman," he said. "Every year I go over there and plead with him to double his factory. We could sell twice as much of his stuff if he would only turn it out. And do you know what he says? He just waves his hands in French fashion and sputters: 'Why should I double my plant and work twice as hard? I and my family are making enough money. We have a good time. We enjoy our lives. Why should we work ourselves to death?'"

That seems to us Americans a very terrible utterance. It is treason to the spirit of modern business. Of course, a man should force production, and his sales, and force his own poor mind and body until he dies at the age of sixty with an order blank in his hand.

Somewhere between the French attitude and our attitude there must be a half-way point that would combine the best elements of both.

"Life," says the Bible, "is more than bread, and the spirit than raiment." It also asks the question, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own life?"

Or, in modern language, what's the use of killing yourself by being quota mad?

Miss Vinta Bowen was a visitor in Amarillo, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hannan, of Amarillo, spent Sunday here as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Marriott, and family.

Konjola Ends Neuritis and Stomach Pains

Grateful Man Eager To Endorse Famous Medicine That Did So Much for Him.

MR. W. T. BRYANT

"Konjola is the best medicine ever made," said Mr. W. T. Bryant, 1009 Morrell street, Oak Cliff, near Dallas. "Neuritis became so severe in my legs that I could scarcely walk. There was a constant aching in my back and shoulders. I could never get a perfect night's rest. My bowels were irregular and I was constantly taking cathartics. I always had a sour stomach, frequent accumulations of gas and severe headaches. My vitality was at low ebb, and I felt miserable."

"After giving Konjola a trial I am like a different man. Konjola restored my organs to normal condition and they now function perfectly. I am no longer bothered with indigestion or constipation. The neuritis pains have completely left me and my entire system is in good condition. Konjola deserves all the praise it gets—and more."

When taken for six or eight weeks, Konjola the new and different medicine, will work wonders that will astonish those who suffer from the stubborn ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and of rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Slaton, Texas, at the Red Cross Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

ELEVENTH INSTALLMENT

Through his friend Lombard, Giles Chitttenham meets the "other Julie," the notorious woman who ruined Rodney's life. She tells him that she is going to die; the doctors have given her up as incurable and she is leaving England. She is worried about her cousin, the girl Chitttenham loves. That Julie—his Julie—is going in fast company, among them a common little American girl named Sadie Barrow.

And Sadie Barrow is Giles Chitttenham's wife. He did not know that she was in England. That night he meets her at a party at his mother's home. They pretend to be strangers.

Giles learns that Sadie Barrow, his wife, has gone for spiritualism and is attending seances by a medium named Chryer.

He calls on Julie, who is cold to him. He reproaches her for her reckless life. They quarrel, and she leaves with Lawrence Schofield. Her friend, Mim Lennox, tells Giles that Julie really loves him. Lombard calls on him and says he is in need of money.

He threatens that if Chitttenham does not give him money he will spread the tale that he and Julie had spent the night together at St. Bernard Pass. Giles is indignant and shows Lombard out. Later Julie and Schofield go to a movie together and the pictures remind Julie of the Alps. She finds Chitttenham waiting for her. Schofield becomes suspicious. On the way home they get a newspaper which contains the death abroad of the other Julie. At her flat she finds Chitttenham waiting for her. She confesses to him that she loves him.

Now Go On With the Story

"You can't say it! Julie—" With a fierce little movement he drew her into his arms and kissed her lips.

"I love you," he whispered. "I've never loved any one but you. Forgive me, Julie—"

She put her hands against his chest, trying to hold him from her.

"Forgive you?" And then what? she asked hoarsely. She began to cry, softly and brokenly. "You might leave me alone—you might leave me alone," she sobbed, helplessly.

She knew she had reached the end of her endurance. She knew that if she gave into him now there would be no retracing her steps. She tried to think of Lawrence Schofield—tried to believe that he was far the better man of the two, and that with him she would stand a better chance of happiness, but common-sense and logic died against the magic of Chitttenham's arms and the touch of his lips. She only knew that during all the weeks since they parted in Switzerland, she had ached for this moment, dreamed of it and longed for it, and that now, in spite of her proud defiance, it had come, and when Chitttenham asked again:

"Do you love me? do you want me after all, Julie?" she had no answer.

She let him draw her closely into his arms, and when he pressed her head down against his shoulder, she closed her eyes with a little sigh of pent resignation.

It was a long time before either of them spoke again. Chitttenham did not attempt to kiss her, he just held her in his arms, his cheek against her hair, as if she had been a tired child who had come to him for comfort and protection.

It was Julie who moved first.

"Bim will be in soon. Poor Bim, I've been such a beast to her lately."

She drew a little back from him, looking at him with eyes that were all wet and ashamed, and yet happier than he had seen them since that night in Switzerland.

It was typical of Julie that now she had given in, she was ready to acknowledge herself fully beaten. With Chitttenham's first kiss she put the past behind her and kept her eyes close to the future. For the moment the present was all sufficient. The great ache and unhappiness of her heart had been taken away; he was here and he loved her. The happiness of that knowledge and the relief of her own admission that she loved him, for a little while blinded her to everything else.

"Bim is away—" Chitttenham said. "I rang her up before I came here. She was called out of town—I forgot what reason she gave—some friend, I think—"

Julie flushed.

"I wonder if that was true? Or, if it was I who really drove her away. I've been horrible lately—"

He folded her close to his heart once more.

"It's all over and done with," he whispered.

"Is it?" A little line of pain crossed her forehead. "You must be a wonderful man if you can say that with such confidence," she told him sadly.

"What do you mean?"

She closed her eyes wearily before the insistence of his.

"I mean—I suppose no miracles have happened, have they?"

"Only that you are here, in my arms."

"That is not what I mean."

He knew what she meant, and he answered her directly.

"I am still married, if that is what you mean, Julie?"

"Yes." He could hardly catch the whisper.

He turned her face from its resting place against his shoulder, and kissed her.

"I shall ask my wife to set me free. We are nothing to one another."

Julie shivered.

"Suppose she won't consent?—Shall you tell her about me?"

Chitttenham hesitated.

"She may not be sufficiently interested to want to know. She and I have not been anything to one another for a long time. Where are you going?"

Julie had risen to her feet, gently disengaging his arms.

"I am just wondering how all this came about," she said brokenly. "How I—how you made me give in to you. It was the last thought in my mind when I came in. No—don't touch me, leave—"

For he had risen also and moved towards her.

"Giles—do you think I've been very easy to break?"

Chitttenham winced. Her words hurt him. She looked infinitely pathetic as she stood there, her face still stained with tears, and her lips trembling. He made a swiftly passionate movement towards her.

"Julie—do you really love me, my dear?"

The hot color rushed from her chin to her brow.

"Will it sound very horrid of me if I say that I wish I didn't?" she whispered. "No—no, stay there. I want to talk to you. It's still all so unreal—I feel so muddled—as if it's just a dream that I can only faintly remember. Tell me—why did you come back this evening?"

"Because I heard that you were to marry Schofield."

"Oh!" Her eyes fell. Poor Lawrence! She had forgotten him completely.

"And now—what do we do now?" she asked softly.

Chitttenham held out his arms.

"Come here, and I will tell you."

She went to him readily enough and for a little while everything was forgotten in kisses, and the foolish words of lovers which yet hold all the wisdom of the world.

The chiming of a clock brought them back to earth.

She pushed him from her.

"It was your fault," she said feverishly. "I was weak enough to let it be your fault. I suppose I haven't any pride, or I should just have gone on and got over it."

"I'm glad you didn't, Julie."

With a sudden impulse, Julie raised his hand to her lips and kissed it, then with a reculsion of feeling she almost angrily pushed it from her.

He took her face between his hands, and kissed her passionately.

"Nothing shall ever part us any more," he whispered against her lips. But she was not satisfied.

"Giles—supposing she won't divorce you?"

"I am not afraid of that."

"But supposing she won't?" Julie insisted feverishly.

"Need we suppose any such thing?"

"I want to suppose everything. I want to know what the worst is that we may have to face."

Chitttenham looked away from her, and there was a hard line about his mouth.

"If such a thing happened—it would be for you to say—" he answered at last.

"What do you mean?"

He looked at her sadly.

"That then there would be only one way in which we could belong to each other, Julie."

She did not pretend to misunderstand him, but the hot blood rose to her soft hair and her eyes fell.

"Would you care well enough for that—if there was no other way, Julie?"

For a moment she was silent, then with a swift little gesture she turned to him, hiding her face against his breast.

It was two o'clock before Giles thought of leaving the flat.

"Such a scandal!" he teased Julie. "Neither of us would have a shred of reputation left if our best and dearest friends knew how abominably we have been behaving."

Julie made a little grimace.

"I haven't any best and dearest friends except Bim—" she answered, and then abruptly: "Giles, what do you think of Sadie?"

"Sadie—" He was glad that as her cheek was resting against his shoulder, she could not see his face. It seemed an ill omen that at this moment she should speak of his wife. He avoided a deliberate answer.

"What a question! I hardly know what to say," he said lightly.

"I only asked because she has spoken about you several times. I think she rather likes you."

"Nonsense!"

His voice sounded almost angry and Julie looked up at him in surprise.

"Don't you want her to like you? She and I are great friends. I prefer her to any one I have met since—" She stopped with a little shrug of her shoulders.

"Since you and I met on top of the world," Giles added for her.

It was nearly three in the morning when he left the flat, and the streets were silent and deserted as he walked away through the darkness, pausing for a moment to look back at the lighted window where Julie stood with her face pressed to the pane to catch a last glimpse of him.

Behind him was the sound of other steps, a little slower than his, and yet in some strange way seeming deliberately to be dogging him.

Chitttenham glanced over his shoulder, irritatingly conscious of being followed.

A taxicab on the lookout for a late fare turned the corner, and Giles hailed it. At all events it would put an end once and for all his interested follower. As he slammed up the door he glanced backwards along the road the way he had come.

The man was passing beneath a street lamp, and in the sudden light his figure seemed strangely familiar, although for the moment Chitttenham could not place the resemblance.

The taxicab moved away and then all at once he knew—it was Lombard! That was the resemblance he had seen—Harry Lombard!

For an instant he was conscious of angry premonition; what did it mean?—then he laughed at himself. The idea was preposterous! Why should Lombard have followed him? He remembered their last meeting—and Lombard's detestable insinuations.

Chitttenham's face grew grim.

Supposing Lombard had been waiting outside Julie's flat during the past five hours?

When Chitttenham was dressing in the morning his mother rang through on the phone.

"I only rang up to ask if you will come this afternoon?"

"Why do you want me to come? You know I'm an unbeliever."

There was a little hesitation before the plaintive voice came again.

"To tell you the truth, I'm just a tiny bit nervous! I've never been mixed up in anything of the kind before, and I thought with you here—"

"The evil spirits couldn't get you, eh?—don't worry—" Giles laughed. "I meant to come anyway."

"And, Giles—in case you're angry at meeting her again after what happened the other night—Miss Farrow is coming! I know I said I wouldn't have her in the house any more, but after all, one must be broad-minded—"

Giles guffawed.

"It takes all sorts to make a world," his mother went on. "So you will be nice and polite to her, won't you, dear?"

"I think I can safely promise you that."

He smiled to himself as he hung up the receiver. It seemed absurd that his mother should have thought it necessary to ask him to be polite to Julie!

He had hardly finished dressing when a message came to say that Lombard was down stairs waiting to see him.

BLIND

The most terrible affliction which can come to a human being, in all probability, is blindness. The problem of helping the blind to become self-supporting is finding new solutions constantly. The latest is the discovery that blind girls, because of their keen sense of touch, are very useful in offices where there is a large amount of mailing to be done.

The Brooklyn Bureau of Charities has set up a mailing business employing only blind girls for this sort of work. All sorts of quantity mailing is done for business houses. These girls formerly had no other occupation than weaving coarse rugs, at which they could earn only from $6 to $8 a week. In the mailing work they earn from $15 to $20 a week. And for addressing mail, crippled girls, who cannot work at occupations requiring physical exertion, are employed.

That is the most practical sort of charity.

HELP

Out of a fund of $30,000 established by former Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, more than $77,000 has been loaned to boys and girls on New Jersey farms to enable them to purchase purebred cows, swine or poultry. More than 1,000 boys and girls have been helped in this way to get a start in producing better dairy products, pork and poultry, and the effect upon farmers generally in showing them the advantages of purebred stock have been incalculable.

That sort of help for the farmer is decidedly practical. There is always a market for first-grade products of the sort which New Jersey thus encourages, especially in the vicinity of great terminal markets like New York and Philadelphia.

Felt Bad After Eating

"BEFORE I started taking Black-Draught, three years ago, my health was very bad," writes Mrs. C. C. Carson, 945 Concord St., Beaumont, Texas. "I suffered constantly from constipation. I had headache when I got up in the morning, and I felt dull and sluggish. I hardly ate a meal that my food agreed with me. Frequently I would have gas on my stomach, and felt awful."

"I read about Black-Draught, and I thought it might help me. After I had taken it a little while, I felt much better. It relieves constipation. I keep it on hand so when I need a laxative I will have it. In the three years I have been taking it, I have never found anything as good for constipation."

Let Us Hope They Have Not Died In Vain —By Albert T. Reid

DID THEY DIE IN VAIN?

Twelve years ago, on November 11, 1918, the guns ceased firing and the embattled nations of the world called a halt to the war which had raged for four long years, and in which all but a few minor countries among the civilized nations of the world had been involved.

From the consequences of that terrific struggle, the world has not yet recovered. Indeed, generations will have passed before all of the human and economic waste of that war will have been repaired and replaced. Much that was lost can never be recovered. Other young men will grow into manhood, do their share of the world's work, but the millions who perished with their life work still unfinished can never return.

Among all of the nations involved in the war there has been growing up anti-war sentiment, which may eventually have the effect of keeping some of those countries out of future wars. That is, however, to be doubted. Our own country, in the words of our war President, Woodrow Wilson, went into the war in the hope and belief that by so doing we might put an end to war as a means of settling international disputes. The United States of America took the lead in establishing a League of Nations, the avowed purpose of which is to bring about closer international understandings and so prevent trivial irritations from developing into serious quarrels.

Our country is a member of the World War Court of International Justice, before which it is hoped that, eventually, nations will try their grievances against one another as individuals do in the civil courts of peace.

All of these efforts for peace, however, fade before aroused national hatreds. There are war clouds all over the world today. There is actual warfare in Asia, several of the nations of South America have lately resorted to arms in their internal revolutions, there is unrest in India, which may easily and unexpectedly come to a climax in war. And threatening the peace of the entire world is Red Russia, controlled today by irresponsible and fanatical visionaries who have avowed their purpose of compelling the entire world, by force, to accept and adopt their particular political and social program.

It must be the earnest hope of every intelligent person that our boys who perished in the great conflict shall not have died in vain, that their sacrifice may prove in some way to have advanced the cause of peace and put an end to the horror and waste of war. But let no one delude himself with the belief that other and greater wars than the world has yet seen may again devastate civilization.

HOOVER ISSUES THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

President Herbert Hoover, in his annual proclamation, designated November 27 as a day of national thanksgiving. The president in his proclamation suggests that "a proper celebration of the day should include that we make sure that every person in the community, young and old, shall have cause to give thanks for our institutions and for the neighborly sentiment of our people."

"Our country has many causes for thanksgiving," Mr. Hoover said. "We have been blest with distinctive evidence of divine favors. As a nation, we have suffered far less than other people from the present world difficulties. We have been free from civil and industrial discord. In a large view we have made progress upon the enduring structure of our institutions. The arts and sciences that enrich our lives and enlarge our control of nature have made notable advances. Education has been further extended. We have made gains in the prevention of disease and in the protection of childhood." It is well that we should give thanks to Almighty God for the many blessings bestowed upon us as people, going back to the first thanksgiving when the colonists repaired to worship and give thanks.

Let no one in Slaton feel the day with other than giving thanks for material blessings and spiritual as well.

BUY NOW FOR CHRISTMAS

The slogan "Do Your Christmas shopping Early" has a genuine importance this year. Usually it is merely a reminder that if you delay too long in selecting the things you intend to give at Christmas you run the risk of finding things you want are "out of stock." This year it means that putting money into circulation now will hasten the return of "good times."

Money passes from one person to another in change for commodities. Everybody, of course, must decide for himself what sort of commodities he is willing to take in exchange for his money. There are some things, the value of which is beyond question, which can be bought cheaper now than for several years. There are other commodities which only a few can afford in the best of times. In urging our readers to spend their money now we do not wish to be understood advocating foolish spending. But there are some things which everybody needs, and recognizes the need of, and if those are bought now by all who can possibly afford to buy anything at all, the fact remains that that money has been put into circulation again and will hasten the day when more of us can afford to buy luxuries.

The first suggestion that has come from President Hoover's Commission on Unemployment is the proposal of Col. Arthur Woods, at its head, that a great national campaign of repairing and painting be begun. There are few houses or other buildings that are not in need of either repairs or painting. The money spent on such things is money well invested. If everybody who has been thinking of adding a bathroom, or reshingling a roof, or putting on a couple of coats of fresh paint on the house, or doing any of the necessary things which must be done sometime, would do it now, that would help a lot toward making general business better. Such a program would give immediate employment to workers in the building trades, it would mean added business for lumber and hardware merchants, and by putting more money into circulation would enable those who received it to buy more liberally from merchants in other lines.

"Buy Now" is not an invitation to reckless spending, but we believe it is sound advice to all who can spend anything at all.

DOING THINGS DIFFERENTLY

Sometimes a difficult situation can be altered by the simple process of doing things differently from the way in which they have been done. A case in point is the feeding of wheat to cattle and hogs.

Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board said the other day that the feeding of wheat has become so general that it may absorb enough of the surplus wheat to affect prices in favor of the farmer. A few progressive farmers started this several months ago, when the bottom first dropped out of the wheat market.

If everybody who is feeding beef cattle or hogs would feed wheat, those who have tried it assure us they can produce more beef or pork per bushel of wheat fed than by feeding the same amount of corn. At the present comparative prices of the two grains, this is economy. As this is written, there is a spread of less than three cents a bushel between the prices of wheat and corn on the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat is abnormally cheap, corn not much below a normal price for this time of year. The only reason why corn is usually fed to livestock and poultry instead of wheat is because corn is so much cheaper. At anything like the same price, wheat is the more profitable to feed.

The general feeding of wheat instead of or in combination with corn, through this winter, would do more for farm relief than any amount of new legislation could accomplish.

BUNK

A rumor is being circulated all over the country, to the effect that President Hoover is shortly to give his approval to the manufacture of beer containing 2.75 per cent of alcohol. The brewers, according to the rumor-mongers, are ordering new machinery by the million-dollars' worth, and before New Year's Day expect to put several hundred thousand men at work making beer, buying quantities of grain from the farmers for this purpose, and thus at one stroke restoring farm prosperity, eliminating unemployment and repealing the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Law!

It is interesting, but it is all bunk. Nothing of the sort will be done. It would not be worth paying any attention to, were it not for the fact that it is not only being passed by word of mouth to business men, bankers and others who are in doubt whether to believe it or not. Even if the President desired to open the door for the free manufacture and sale of beer, of which desire there is not the slightest evidence, there is no authority under the Prohibition law or any other whereby he could do so. The law is extremely clear and explicit. No beverage containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol can legally be made or be sold in the United States, and only Congress can change that. The likelihood of any such action by the present Congress or the next is about equal to the likelihood of a collision between the earth and the moon.

We know whereof we speak, when we say again that this wide-spread rumor, which come of the city newspapers have been printing as if it were true, has no foundation except in the imaginations of the people who wish it were true.

BOULDER

Things are moving in the Hoover Dam project at Boulder Canyon on the Colorado river. Power lines are about to be run to the site, to furnish energy for the handling of the immense masses of stone and concrete which will be required to build the dam. Engineers are being appointed, plans have been made for the town to house ten thousand workmen who will be employed on the job, bids have been asked for some of the materials which will be required.

It takes time to carry out a great project like this. Five and one-half years is the lowest estimate from the day construction begins until the great dam is finished. It takes a lot of time to prepare to begin work.

That is the difficulty about relying upon public works to relieve a sudden stress of unemployment—it takes so much time to plan them and provide for financing them that by the time the work is ready to begin the period of unemployment may be almost over.

VOL. 1 NOVEMBER 14, 1930 No. 11

Published in the interest of the people of Slaton and vicinity by PANHANDLE LUMBER CO. H. G. McChesney, Editor

It has always been my ambition to write a column something on the order of O. O. McIntyre, Arthur Brisbane, or Erasmus Tack, and so dear reader this is my first attempt. Just as these men have written of the things that affect us today, so will I. My subject will be the depression under which we are suffering.

This little story will illustrate my idea of the cause of these so-called "hard times". Once there was a doctor in a small western town who enjoyed a good practice—many patients would write him telling him their ailments and he would write them his advice. One day he received two letters, one from an old man suffering from stomach trouble, the other from a Saturday night hang-over. The doctor wrote the old man that he had better get his house in order for he had little time left on this earth; to the young man he wrote that his advice was to get up, eat a big breakfast and go out and do a hard day's work, then he would be okeh. Some how he got the letters mixed with the result that the young man died and the old man lived another twenty years. Now all of us are more or less like the old man and the young man. We think and act in accord with the things we hear. Now let's all think GOOD TIMES SEE GOOD TIMES—and TALK GOOD TIMES and the result will be GOOD TIMES.

the habit of going to him to write their letters for them. In New York state alone, by the Census of 1920, there were 425,000 persons over 10 years old who could neither read nor write, and all but 10,000 of these were over 21. Nor were they all foreigners; more than 30,000 were native-born whites. The number is probably smaller now; the 1930 Census figures on illiteracy are not yet available. But there were more than three million white folks over ten years old, and nearly two million negroes, who could not read in any language, in 1920, and the probability is that there are still three or four million illiterate citizens.

SUGAR

The announcement by the Department of Agriculture that the Federal sugar cane experiment station at Canal Point, Fla., has developed a cane which yields a third more sugar to the acre than any previously known variety, and is at the same time resistant to cane diseases, is of importance to everyone in the United States. We consume several times as much sugar as any other nation in the world. The sugar producers have had difficulty in competing with foreign sources. The sugar industry in Louisiana was practically wiped out a few years ago, by plant diseases; the Mississippi flood of 1928 almost finished the job. But the introduction of a new type of sugar cane from Java, known as "P. O. J. 213," has rejuvenated the Louisiana sugar industry, which is now producing five times as much sugar as in 1926.

The new cane developed in Florida called "C. P. 307" yields a ton or more sugar to the acre of cane than does "P. O. J. 213." That should mean, eventually, both a reduction in cost of sugar to the consumer and better profits to the grower.

FRAUD

A Florida man shipped a carload of oranges to a produce dealer in Virginia. The dealer sent the shipper a check for $250. The Florida man invoked the recently-enacted Federal Produce Agency Law and haled the dealer into the Federal court. The proceedings disclosed the fact that the net proceeds of the sale of the fruit was nearer $700 than $250. The court ordered the dealer to pay the shipper an additional $463, with interest, and to pay it before November 4 or go to jail.

It looks as if there is at least a way in which shippers of farm products can get the money due them. State and local laws don't protect them; the death the other day of Thomas Young, whose occupation was that of "public writer," in a good-sized town close to New York city, revealed the fact that hundreds of persons in White Plains who could not write were in gained the position which we occupied in 1860.

Birds on Uncle Sam's Pension Roll

Thomas Ross, pigeon expert of the U. S. Army, with two of the homing pigeons that served in the World War, carrying messages for the Signal Corps. "Mocker," on the left, had an eye shot out. "Spike," at the right, carried 52 messages across hostile territory.

There were approximately 5,200 ships under 30 different flags, engaged in international commerce last year. They carried 111 million tons of freight, worth more than eight billion dollars. American ships carried more than 45 million tons of this.

Most of these 5,200 ships are very small craft. We are not building small ships for foreign service, but large ones. Our foreign fleet consists of only 671 general cargo ships and 259 oil tankers, yet they were able to carry almost as much cargo as the remaining 4,200 ships of all the rest of the world carried! And we are carrying cargo and passengers to and from every port in the world.

There are 177 seaports in the United States, including our insular possessions. There are more than 1,400 foreign seaports. Into practically every one of these the American flag has floated in the past year. Fifteen years ago there was not a single American-flag ship flying to African ports; today there are 22 ships under our flag, each making several trips a year to Africa. In 1914 there were just six American ships regularly engaged in traffic with Europe; now we have 230 ships on regular European routes. From five American ships running to South America in 1914, we have grown to 90. There were only five of our ships operating out of Pacific Coast ports to the Far East in 1914; today we have 140 ships running to Asia on regular routes.

And our young men and boys are taking to the sea again, like their seafaring ancestors of the last century. For American ships must be manned, under the law, with American crews, paid wages on an American scale, fed by American standards and otherwise treated better than the seafaring men of any other nation are treated.

MISS JOHNSON HONOREE AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Mildred Johnson was the honoree at a surprise birthday party Saturday evening when her sister, Miss Jewel Johnson entertained at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Johnson, who reside about three miles west of Slaton.

Games of touring, bridge and "42" were enjoyed during the evening after which refreshments were served to Misses Edda Belle Benton, Frankie McAtee, Ada Belle Johnson; Mrs. Lucy Clopton; Messrs. Bud Williams, Bill Layne and Mr. Avin Abernathy.

Miss Johnson was the recipient of several nice gifts presented by the guests.

MRS. BALDWIN HOSTESS TO THURSDAY CLUB

The Thursday Bridge club was delightfully entertained in the home of Mrs. R. A. Baldwin, 905 West Garza street, on November 7.

The members present were Messdames H. W. Ragsdale, R. W. Ragsdale, W. B. Hestand, J. A. Hightower, J. A. Gillies, Briggs Robertson, A. L. Robertson and one guest, Mrs. Kenneth Kimbro, of Dallas.

The hostess served a delicious two-course luncheon.

Adrian Owens, popular young diamond merchant, is confined to his home with a right nice case of mumps. It is bad enough to have the mumps, but to miss out on the Slaton-Lamesa football game was just too much. Adrian states that if they had remained away until after the game it would have pleased him more.

Wichita Man Talks About His Troubles

Lost Steadily and Could Not Find Relief; Every Sign of Indigestion Gone After Using Argotane

The remarkable experience of C. N. Ritter, resident of 2102 Kemp Blvd., Wichita Falls, Texas, is another striking evidence of the extraordinary merits of Argotane. In speaking of his long time suffering from indigestion and headaches and subsequent relief, Mr. Ritter, said:

"I am telling all my friends about Argotane and all of my family are taking it after seeing what it has done for me.

"My trouble has been growing worse instead of better, all the time," he continued. "It was almost impossible for me to eat a meal without suffering from gas and sour stomach afterwards. I began losing weight and had fallen off until I only weighed one hundred pounds, a way below my weight, and I could not find anything to relieve my pain or build me up.

"After I had suffered month after month without getting any better, someone gave a statement on Argotane that convinced me and I started taking it. As I have said before, I have gained in health and strength and I haven't felt a sign of the old indigestion trouble since. I have taken Argotane only a few weeks so far, but from the way I have improved already, I am glad to recommend it to everybody."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Slaton at the Teague Drug store.

Roy Cobb attended jury in Lubbock the first of the week.

Uncle Sam Goes To Sea Again

American Flag Now Flies In Every Port in the World—British Our Only Rival

By CALEB JOHNSON

Uncle Sam has taken to the sea again.

We have been hearing a great deal about the American Merchant Marine, these past few years, but few realize the extent to which shipping flying our national flag has regained the commanding position on the high seas that is used to occupy before the Age of Steam.

Before the Great War there were so few American ships sailing to foreign shores that our flag was almost totally unknown in many of the most important ports of the world. For nearly sixty years that condition had been getting worse from year to year. Today the United States ranks second only to Great Britain in the number of our ships engaged in foreign commerce, and only Great Britain exceeds us in the annual volume of ship construction. And that condition is getting better, from our point of view, from year to year.

In the old days of wooden sailing ships the United States led the world. In the first 75 years of our national existence Yankee shipyards built more crafts than were built anywhere else. Our ship builders and designers strove to improve their models, until in the 1850's the Yankee Clippers, the towering wooden sailing craft which penetrated to the utmost reaches of the globe, were the fastest and most profitable merchantmen afloat. They were at once the admiration and the despair of the British, our only rivals on the Seven Seas.

Then three things happened, almost at once.

The iron ship and the screw propeller were introduced into the ship-building picture, and the United States became embroiled in a war between the States.

So long as ships were built of wood and propelled by sails, we had the advantage over everybody else; we had the timber and the workmen and the expert knowledge of ship construction; we also had a population living almost entirely along the seacoast, with a natural taste for the sea, and from this coastal population we could man our ships with the best navigators and sailors to be found anywhere.

When it came to manufactures of iron and steel, we were woefully behind Great Britain. We had built a good many steamships, to be sure, but they were most sidewheel crafts for river and coastwise use and unfit to voyage to China, India and around the Horn, in the wake of the old sailing clippers. We had not trained up a body of seagoing engineers who understood machinery. And just as these innovations began to demonstrate that the day of the wooden sailing ship was past, all of our national energies were concentrated upon our own internal war.

The Civil War over, we found that the British had captured our foreign carrying trade with their iron steamships. We did not worry very much, for we had the problem before us of opening up and developing our own West. Steel ships succeeded iron, but it was almost fifty years before we had developed sources of iron ore, and steel mills to utilize it, in sufficient strength to enable us to divert any considerable part of our product to the building of modern ships. And just as we had got to the point where we could compete on even terms for the water-borne traffic of the world, another war broke out.

As we had lost our ocean commerce to Great Britain when we were deeply involved in a war, so we began to recapture it when Great Britain got into the greatest war in history. We seized our opportunity, and a comprehensive system of Governmental aid to merchant shipbuilding and operation was adopted, comparing with the Government subsidies with which the British had stimulated their own shipping industry.

Now, as I have said, we are second only to Great Britain, and a very close second; and we are gaining every year.

Last year, for example, 41 percent of all of the ocean commerce between the United States and the rest of the world, was carried in American ships. This year's figures will be larger. In another year or two crafts flying the American flag will be carrying more than half of our foreign trade; in another five years we will have re-

As the little guests arrived they were given red, white and blue caps and flags as favors. Various games were enjoyed and Mrs. Lee Green entertained the little folks with interesting stories.

While refreshments were being served and enjoyed, Mrs. L. B. Hagerman told the story of "Little Black Sambo."

The little guests present included: Maxelene and Wallace Cooper, Ray and Lavera DeBask, Mozell Fogerson, Lee and Artell Green, Mary Ellen Brown, Dickie Ragsdale, Kenneth Tanner, William Curtis Kidd, and Marshall Verrn Ross.

ED RAINWATER, COLORED, BURIED HERE TUESDAY

Ed Rainwater, colored, who was killed on the Slaton-Lubbock highway Saturday night while en route to Slaton, was buried Tuesday afternoon.

Funeral services were conducted at the Negro schoolhouse in the east part of Slaton, with the local pastor in charge. An extended program was rendered. Burial was in Englewood cemetery.

The deceased was 43-years-of-age and had made his home on the Klattenhoff farm for a number of years. He was killed when the car which he was driving collided with a wagon and team.

He is survived by a wife and ten children.

LOCAL GOSSIP

James Collar, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Collar, is making a short visit with his family and friends over Armistice Day. James is doing his junior year's work in Abilene Christian college. We are all glad to see James and to know that his school work is progressing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tomlinson and Dr. Marvin C. Overton, Jr., spent the week-end in Abilene visiting friends.

W. P. Florence, son Earl, and son-in-law, Mr. Lane, were scouting the country for some days. Mr. Florence states that they visited New Mexico, getting over into the Rio Honda valley going as far west as Carrizozo. W. P. did not give the information as to what they were hunting for.

LIFE

Our bodies live longer than those of our grandparents did. Dr. Charles H. Mayo, famous physician of Rochester, Minn., tells us, but our brains die just as young. What is the use, Dr. Mayo asks, of living to 90 if the brain begins to decay at 70? He is optimistic about it however; he thinks that medical research will find means of prolonging mental life as well as physical life.

In the matter of length of life we have made great progress in a short time. The normal age to which each newborn child can expect to live in America is 50; in India it is only 20. In Colonial days in America, in the 1600's, the average age in this country was only 20, because so many children died in infancy, and their elders succumbed early to the hardships of pioneer life.

COTTON

More than 45,000,000 acres of land was devoted to growing cotton in the United States this year. That is five million acres too much, in the opinion of Carl Williams, the cotton expert of the Federal Farm Board.

What is needed in the South, says Mr. Williams, is the production of more food which the South single consumes. He says there are single cities in the South where the consumption of meat and dairy products is more than the production of those commodities.

FIDELIS CLASS MET WITH MRS. M. L. ABERNATHY

Following the resignation of Mrs. Barney Wilson, at the last meeting, Mrs. R. M. Champion was elected as president and presided over the business session. This was followed by a social program planned by Mrs. Bill Johnson.

BLUE BONNET SEWING CLUB MET WEDNESDAY

The members of the Blue Bonnet Sewing club have had various experiences as a club. One time a called meeting was held at the home of a member who had entirely forgotten that the club was to have met with her. However, last week was the time a meeting was ever reported a week before meeting actually took place, the exact cause of which is yet unknown.

Anyway, the first regular bi-monthly meeting for November was held Wednesday, November 12, at the home of Mrs. L. D. Kent, on West Gazza.

Plans were completed for the annual entertainment of the husbands of club members, which will take place at the clubhouse November 20.

A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed. Bountiful and delicious refreshments, in keeping with Thanksgiving, were served to seventeen members and two guests.

Mrs. McAtee will be the next hostess on November twenty-sixth.

T. E. L. CLASS MET ON WEDNESDAY

The T. E. L. class of the First Baptist church Sunday school held their regular class meeting on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. W. B. Montague.
