

A WEEK AT A TIME

by J. M. RANKIN

A STEP AT A TIME

Well, it was no joke about our having gone hunting the wily and well-developed elk, bear and deer. All of which we saw, but few of which we slaughtered. And particularly a step at a time is the best way to climb the Rocky Mountains—or any one of them.

OF PEOPLE

And the men who went along with us, Nolan Womble and Ray Bullock, old hunting companions, good cooks, fire-builders, water carriers, rifle shots, and uncomplaining when hunting luck is bad. We have remarked before that the most important thing on earth is people, and even bear hunting had no little dealing with people.

NO PACIFIC IN SIGHT

After this Lewis and Clark, John Sevier, or even Daniel Boone have nothing on us. We scaled the heights and crossed the Continental Divide. We looked down on the Pacific slope, but no Pacific could we see. Nor deer. Womble professed also that he didn't even see an elk, though personally we saw four, and Bullock took a shot at one of the five he saw. Too far off though.

SNOW ON THE MOUNTAIN

And that snow. From one to two feet deep. A tracking snow, joyfully exclaimed the experienced hunters. "Hurray, then!" we cried. But to walk all day in that without waterproof shoes or boots and at an elevation of ten thousand feet above sea-level takes a heap more breath than there is to be had very often. But we tracked a band of fifteen elk for three hours, heard their bugle at us—Womble called it "rodding"—and then never got a sight of them.

A MYSTERY TO CHARLIE

Smart people would soon get enough of that, but not we. We worked at it three days. And one bright day of sunshine on the snow blistered our faces. Then we decided to hunt bear. We crossed the Continental Divide from Southfork, Colorado, over to Pagosa Springs. Lots of bear there everybody told us. Charlie Hazelwood there at the Springs told us just where to go out a Ray Murray's, and we put in a day. Some signs, but no bear. "I can't understand how you missed them," sighed Charlie when we told him of our luck. Saw Del McCollum and he sympathized with us and sent regards to his sister Louise here.

TEXAN MEETS TEXANS

Then down the road south toward the New Mexico line aiming to stop at Bryant's ranch to hunt for deer. Stopped a cowboy—oh yea they have real cowboys in Colorado—and asked him where we could get hosses. We were footsore and weary. He guessed we could find some nearby, volunteered that he was from Texas and introduced himself as Joe Thornton formerly of Plainview. He begged to be remembered to his old school-teacher, Herbert Nicholas, now at "criek" for "creek." Or do we say ranch of R. E. Amyx.

WESTERN HOSPITALITY

Along a dangerous mountain road, some three miles off the highway, the Amyx Ranch. Joe left us in the car, talked to Amyx a few minutes then introduced us. There was Rube's son, Glen, six foot-two, nineteen, practically speechless at first but blossoming into good English when he got acquainted. Speaking in clear, palatal tones like an Englishman, but saying "criek" for "creek." Or do we say "creek" for "criek"? And Rube's brother, A. D. who was willing to do the talking, while Rube mainly grinned, and told us he wouldn't charge us for horses or cabin or anything else. A. D. said he planned to hunt tomorrow anyway and would go with us. Glen still said nothing. We took Thornton back to the road and his horses, then returned to the ranch

Poultry Show Is Planned

Community Project To Be December 1 - 3

December 1, 2 and 3 were decided upon as dates of Slaton's next annual Community Poultry show when the Poultry association met Tuesday night in the chamber of commerce office in the city hall with N. C. Dickson, president; A. C. Strickland, superintendent of the show and vocational agriculture teacher in the high school; directors C. Z. Fine and W. L. Muerer; and Raymond Lee Johns, chamber of commerce manager, present.

Johns was voted to succeed A. J. Payne as secretary-treasurer of the association and manager of the annual show. He will also serve on the finance and catalogue committee as editor of the catalogue and premium list, and on the executive and judging committees.

Rules of the previous year's show were in part changed and adopted at this meeting and December 15 was set as a meeting date for the election of officers and directors of next year's show.

Work will begin soon on soliciting advertising and compiling the show catalogue and premium list. W. M. Cates was named to assist on the finance and catalogue committee in this work. Strickland was named also to serve on the judges committee.

Added to the show this year will be exhibits of registered livestock by 4-H club and vocational agriculture boys on Saturday, December 3, the last day of the show.

Place the exhibits will be shown has not been definitely decided upon as yet. Complete details will be disclosed a few days preceding the show at the time of the mailing of the catalogues and premium lists to poultry and livestock fanciers in the Slaton trading territory.

Shopmen And Families Eat And Play Tuesday

Santa Fe Shopmen and their families with many friends met at the club house Tuesday night for a wienie roast and a program of fun and enjoyment that featured a kangaroo court of one Roy Ely who was variously charged with embezzlement, forgery, patronizing a hot dog stand and other high crimes. He was found guilty and assessed the penalty of sitting in the electric chair which had previously been occupied by the witnesses—to their discomfort—and his. The Clark family furnished music and the occasion was a huge success from the point of view of those who attended.

FIRE DESTROYS WILSON HOTEL

Fire of undetermined origin last Sunday evening destroyed one of the landmarks of the South Plains when it laid in ashes the old Hotel at Wilson. The building and contents were a total loss, and a number of transients at the hotel lost their belongings. Extent of loss and insurance if any, have not been learned.

James W. Turnbow, engineering sophomore of Slaton, will serve as 1st lieutenant of the 1st platoon in Company A of the Texas Tech R.O.T.C. unit during the fall semester.

Dr. Payne Moves To New Clinic Building

Dr. Payne Clinic at the corner of Panhandle and Lubbock streets has been completed and is now occupied by Dr. Payne and his office assistants. The new building is a beautiful structure of tile and stucco, built according to the ideas of Doctor Payne in the light of modern medical and engineering practice. It is fire-proof and the walls within are sound-proof. The building is air-conditioned for all weathers, and the floors are covered with Johns-Manville rubber-tile which is sanitary, silent and pleasing to the eye.

A lobby and two offices fill the front of the building and two examination rooms, a rest room, a laboratory and an emergency ward complete the space allotments. Office equipment, lights, sterilizers and instruments are all selected to add to the note of quiet assurance given by the building in general.

Doctor Payne can well be proud of the Clinic and the people of the town and community can also be proud of the building and equipment that supplements the excellent medical service that was already available in Slaton.

Game Management Gains Momentum

State Leader Speaks To South Plains Men

Martin Donley, of Lubbock, game warden and officer in charge of game management conservation, for this area was in Slaton Tuesday to deliver a consignment of signs for use in the local Game Management Association's campaign to build up the game resources of Lubbock and Crosby Counties.

Some twenty-five members have already signed up to close their land to quail hunting this year in an effort to assist the natural forces that have put for years. Mr. Donley, however, says the best crop of game in the country we do not yet have the supply of quail here the area could support and should have, but with the co-operation of the land owners and other sportsmen for one more year, we can have here next year the kind of quail shooting that makes Pennsylvania, New York and other densely populated states, the envy of Texas.

The signs are stored at the Citizens State Bank and may be had for thirty cents each. The mounting of the signs on any land automatically makes the land so covered a part of the game preserve and the law will protect that land against unlawful hunting on it.

In a meeting at Lubbock this week, Mr. Callendar of College Station talked to land owners and sportsmen of three counties about the benefits to be derived from a game planning organization. The attendance at the meeting represented Lubbock, Crosby, Dickens, Garza and other South Plains counties. The prospects are good that most of the land in these counties will be put under the experimental project for the present year.

Epworth League Held Union Meeting

The Epworth League of the Slaton Methodist Church entertained the other Leagues of this Union Monday evening October 17 at the church.

A musical program was given which followed a recreational hour in the basement of the church.

There were 170 young people present, coming from different towns.

Willis Petty Buys Filling Station

Willis Petty, local high school student, last week purchased the filling station at the corner of Texas and Garza, and is meeting old customers of the stand with the up-to-date service to be found in first class stations. He hopes to make new friends for his service and his business. In the columns of the Slatonite he renews the announcement of last week.

TIGERS TO FACE ANTELOPES IN CRUCIAL GAME TONIGHT

Dope Is Even; Both Teams Undefeated

Oh, you didn't aim to go. Well, it isn't too late to change your aim and go. But you don't like football! How come, you don't like football. It's too rough? Well, life's a rough game anyway. But who's gonna play? Tsch! Tsch! Don't tell me you didn't know this is the night for the annual Tiger-Antelope clash—or crash—or smash.

Yeh, it's likely to be a rough night. Antelope steaks are right juicy when you get 'em, especially for Tigers. But rumors are abroad to the effect that the Antelopes are swift and sure this season and that it is gonna be some Tiger that catches an Antelope here this fall.

And they are big, too, they tell us, these Ante-ops. Oh, some of 'em are reputed to be six ax-handles long and three ax-handles wide. And mean as a bunch of bitin' shotes. Say they'll run right over a Tiger and never look back. Buck and kick like nobody's business. Looks like a pore Tiger won't have any chance in that mele.

Slatonites! Tiger supporters! Now is the time to come to the aid of the team. The visiting team is coming in rare strength to try to break the string of victories the Tigers have hung up over the Antelopes. The visiting town—if what we hear is true—is coming to see the job well done. Post has a fast big team that is coming with hopes this year, with a string of victories behind and evil intentions, so far as we are concerned, ahead of them.

The dope for tonight's game is few and far between. And after all dope is just something to start a fight over among folks who don't wear football equipment. But Post is getting the reputation of craving competition and liking it rough. The Tigers are definitely weak in some phases of the game, but Coach Hamilton promises for the boys that they will give a creditable account of themselves. And win, lose or draw that's all we ask of them.

P.S.—In a long-distance telephone conversation with a rabid fan at Post, Wednesday, we learned that the Post people are coming up here, AND they are bringing a team. Our team is assured, let's see about the people! (Ed)

Survivors Are Listed

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Mrs. C. C. Hoffman of Slaton and Mrs. L. O. Sparks of Tahoka; a brother, Luther B. Nevels of Yoakum county; and a sister, Mrs. Dale Summerville of Los Angeles.

SAFETY ANNOUNCEMENT

Again we ask you—for safety's sake—to drive cautiously after this game. There will be hundreds of pedestrians crossing the streets and highways in front of your car. Don't be the driver who will run down one of them.

And, pedestrians, be careful to cross the streets only at designated crossings and under the protection of proper signals. Do not be in too much of a hurry. Help drivers help YOU to live.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR ATTENTION. MAY WE HAVE YOUR COOPERATION?

Slaton Defeats Tahoka 28 - 0

The Slaton Tigers won their first conference game in the Class B division last Friday night. They defeated the Tahoka Bulldogs by an 28 to 0 win.

Tucker ran 7 yards for the first touchdown. The try for point failed. Stotts ran 3 yards for the second touchdown. Again the try for extra point failed. The third score was a touch-back counting two points, when Slaton blocked a kick and recovered the ball over the line. In the second period Tucker ran 40 yards for another touchdown. Clack kicked for the extra point. In the third period Dickson ran 6 yards for the fourth touchdown. Clack converted for point.

First downs for Slaton were 12 to Tahoka's 7. Slaton had 3 penetrations, to one for Tahoka. Slaton attempted 4 passes, one being intercepted and the other three not good. Tahoka attempted 13 four being good. Ward, Clack and Stotts each intercepted a pass. Slaton penalties were 6 for a total of 60 yards and Tahoka 4 times for 26 yards. Yardage made in scrimmage were Slaton 270; Tahoka 54. Tahoka made 50 yards on passes. Slaton lost 16 yards in scrimmage, Tahoka 8.

Briggs Robertson got a chance at football Friday night and made two nice runs, but Slaton was penalized 15 yards both times. Billy B. Clack was the outstanding man in the game.

Let's all go out to the Tiger field tonight and help the Tigers beat the Post Antelopes.

They report a most enjoyable visit, not the least enjoyable event of the trip being the game between the Pittsburg and Coffeyville teams Friday night. The game saw every Slaton boy on the roster as one of the starting line-up, and the final score showed Coffeyville the better team by a score of 13-6.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Welch of Hobbs, N. M. visited Mr. Welch's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Welch. Also they visited his sister, Miss Ruby Welch.

Weekly News Review President's Peacemaker Role Seen as Campaign Strategy

Politics On Tuesday, November 8, the United States will elect an entire house of representatives, one-third of its senate and a host of governors.

FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT At election time, a peacemaker.

party purification, November's election has resumed normal political color for the first time since 1930.

As in 1936, this year's Republican candidates can base a strong campaign on New Deal failure. Unlike 1933 and 1936, this year's Democratic campaign becomes essentially a defensive proposition.

World Peace: The world may never know if President Roosevelt helped smooth over the Czech-German crisis, but his final message to Adolf Hitler and simultaneous pleas to every other world power came only a few hours before the Reichsfuehrer called his historic Munich parley.

Business Peace: If the administration's foreign policy helped win world peace, it also helped U. S. business. Unshot has been a tremendous stock market upturn, greater steel and automobile production, higher railroad loadings.

Industrial Peace: When the American Federation of Labor convened in Houston, Texas, the President messaged his desire for a settlement of the factional war between A. F. of L. and John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Domestic In 1930 the census showed 25.3 per cent of all U. S. women over 16 were gainfully employed. By 1937, said John D. Biggers, resigning as head of President Roosevelt's unemployment census, the percentage had jumped to 31.7. Reasons: (1) technical and cultural changes; (2) economic necessity. Mr. Biggers found the corner bakery and laundry relieved Mrs. Housewife of many duties, leaving her free to boost the family's income or replace an unemployed husband as breadwinner.

His comment: "This is an economic and social trend worthy of consideration." A much more blunt comment came from the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, famed radiator and faculty member of the Catholic university at Washington: "The only real success for a woman, the only real vocation is motherhood..."

Until this year, most U. S. citizens regarded the foreign spy as a comic strip and fiction character, although government intelligence officers have long known the nation is infested with agents from Russia, Germany, Italy and Japan. First real action to combat spies is the house committee on un-Americanism which has heard evidence connecting espionage with everyone from Shirley Temple to unnamed industrial magnates.

Regardless of who holds power when civil service is expanded, it will create furore in the minority ranks because present job-holders will be favored. On this assumption, a furore will come in Republican ranks February 1 when 81,000 Democratic workers in so-called emergency agencies are moved into civil service classification.

Religion

Last March, just before Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler marched into Austria, Vienna's Theodore Cardinal Innitzer urged Catholics to vote for German annexation as a means of blocking Communism. Though Cardinal Innitzer knew German Catholics had suffered at the Reich's hands, he plumped for Nazism because Herr Buerckel, Hitler's representative, had quoted the Saviour: "Render unto Caesar that which is Caesar's and unto God that which is God's."

Criticized by the Vatican, Cardinal Innitzer moreover was to learn that "Caesar" Hitler would take all he could get, shearing every vestige of power from the Catholic church. Early in September the cardinal protested when marriage was made a state affair, when Catholic schools were frowned upon, when Catholics were ousted from hospitals.

THEODORE CARDINAL INNITZER After Nazism, he changed his mind.

strove to push Catholicism into the background, to raise Austrian youth in Nazi ideology instead of Catholic theology.

When Cardinal Innitzer protested, a mob strongly reminiscent of the Middle Ages descended on his palace, made it a shambles, threw 60-year-old Father Johann Kravanik from a second-story window. The Cardinal himself was cut by flying glass but appeared next morning at Vienna's famed St. Stephen's cathedral.

Only official Nazi answer to Vatican protests has been shoulder-shrugging, but Vienna's mob scene may have far-reaching effects. Already seen is a surging German religious revival which is bound to crash headlong into the state's domineering program. From this point, Germany might either become an anti-Christ state or modify its religious position. Meanwhile, church and state are girding for battle.

Old Trickery Again Being Used In Writing Views of a President

That Intangible Personality, the 'White House Spokesman,' Is Back on the Job; Makes Goats of Writers; Taxes Blamed for Added Burden Business Carries.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — The "White House Spokesman" is back! That ghostly, shy and sometimes playful figure has been resurrected from the grave where President Roosevelt interred his intangible personality early in March, 1933.

I could not help laughing a bit the other day when the "White House Spokesman" reappeared on the front pages of metropolitan daily newspapers, in the work-a-day clothes of "authoritative White House sources." Grieving as most writers did that this trickery had to be employed in order to write a President's views, I enjoyed the humor of the situation, nevertheless.

But restoration of the "White House Spokesman" to his place of eminence is a serious matter. Use of such a disguise, such a mask, has no place in American life. Many a time in the period when Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover occupied the White House, there were stories sent to all parts of the nation that came from the "White House Spokesman."

Some stories were trial balloons; some were expressions of a personal opinion by the President which he was not quite ready to espouse publicly, and others were pieces of just plain trickery, given out with the understanding that the President should not be directly quoted.

Just Kidding and Fooling Readers of Newspapers

Well, without questioning the sincerity of purpose, the fact remains that the writers were the goats. And here they are being made the goats again, and the public, the readers of newspapers, are to be kidded and fooled some more. What's the excuse? There is none. It is the same old ostrich and the same old sand in which he is hiding his head; so why do it?

The present, and rejuvenated, "White House Spokesman" had a good deal to say, behind this shadowy veil, about the desirability of a truce between business and labor, a truce with the administration in Washington. The bitterness between industry and government was made almost into a parallel with European conditions, and the "Spokesman" went further to suggest that some method of getting together, comparable to the European "settlement," should be used here.

Well, I imagine there is none in our country who do not hope for, and believe in the need of, a lasting peace between business and government. As the shadowy form said, as it floated over Hyde Park, there has been too much name calling, too many charges and recriminations. The condition has slowed up general business; it has made the relief rolls full to overflowing.

There was another phase of the "Spokesman's" backfence snarling that is bound to disturb the neighbor's sleep. It was tantamount to a demand that business stop misrepresenting the government's attitude — this being the New Deal attitude — toward business. That is to say, there was a veiled charge that business, which is to say, "the economic royalists," have been lying about the government's programs and objectives, no mention being made of some of the abortive results.

Blame Taxes for Added Burden Business Carries

The news dispatches from Hyde Park made reference to unfair stories about taxes. The "Spokesman" specifically asserted that business interests were all wet when they asserted that federal taxes are heavier now than one, three or five years ago. It struck me as being a queer complaint, because federal taxes are higher; there are more of them in number and the rates on nearly all the old ones are higher. Treasury figures show that the federal government collected $3,115,000,000 in taxes five years ago. The same official figures show collections of more than $4,100,000,000 three years ago, and in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, the collections were announced as $5,290,000,000. Then, on June 30, this year, the official figures recorded collections of $6,240,000,000. To be absolutely fair, it must be considered that business was at its lowest ebb five years ago. Hence, tax payments were at the lowest. But, without attempting to cite all of the increases in rates and new taxes invoked, new taxes and new rates have been responsible, too, for the increased burden which business carries.

It is important, also, in connection with the consideration of taxes to call attention to the federal government's budget condition. At the end of September, when the first quarter of the fiscal year was completed, there was a deficit of more than $700,000,000. The Treasury had been called upon to pay out $700,000,000 more than it had taken in by way of taxes. If my country school multiplication still serves me, there is a deficit indicated for the current fiscal year of approximately $2,800,000,000 since there are four quarters in each year. It may be less—or it may be more.

No 'Breathing Spell' Ever Has Taken Place

In the matter of a truce between the government and industry, I believe I recall accurately the famous "breathing spell" of several years ago. Roy Howard, the Pittsburgh and New York newspaper publisher, wrote a letter in which he told the President of the need for cooperation between the government and business and suggested at the same time how encouraging it would be if business could be assured that government harassment of business was at an end. If I remember, Mr. Roosevelt said in his reply that the major portion of his New Deal reforms was completed and there would be a "breathing spell." It was about that time, too, that Vice President Garner was reported to have said it was time to let the cattle get fat; that they had been chased around until they were just skin and bones. He meant, of course, that if business was going to expand and re-employ workers, then on relief, the government must quit taking everything the employers received. Well, neither the "breathing spell" nor the fattening process ever has taken place.

Further, reference might be made to the fact that, not the "White House Spokesman," but numerous spokesmen for Mr. Roosevelt have been having great fun riding astride the neck of business. One can refer to the activities of Robert H. Jackson, trust buster extraordinary; to Thurman Arnold, who succeeded to Mr. Jackson's job in the department of justice; to William O. Douglas, or to Secretary Ickes. Each of these has had several turns swinging a bludgeon at business men, and they will swing them some more.

So, perhaps Mr. Roosevelt's analogy in which he compared the European situation and "settlement" with the idea of a settlement between government and business was not so far wrong. Perhaps the "settlement" by which Hitler took over great chunks of Czechoslovakia is the way the "authoritative sources" or the "White House Spokesman" would have our government take over most private industry.

Needs Encouragement From Leaders in Public Life

The "White House Spokesman's" suggestion about a truce and cooperative effort between business and government brought a response from Charles M. Hook, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, who assured the President that "there will be no rattling of sabers as far as the manufacturers are concerned." He said there would be an upward surge in business "if there is encouragement from leaders in public life." I am not able to say what is meant by the "no saber rattling" beyond the obvious meaning of a willingness to keep the collective business mouth shut.

Actually, it appears the crux of the whole problem is to be found in the fact that throughout the Roosevelt administration there are many officials who blab and blab and have little or no idea of the matter they are discussing, while on the business side of the fence the fellows who pop off most are incapable of far vision.

SYNOPSIS

Young Rex Hale calls on Casper Kneeland, friend of his father, in New York, and finds him proudly successful but strangely preoccupied.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

When the games ended Bert and Hale went upstairs together. Hale had expected to say a brisk good-night at the door of his room.

"Come in and have a cigarette," he invited, and Kneeland was across the threshold before he had finished the sentence.

"I don't intend to keep you very long," he began apologetically, "I just want to say, now I've a chance to do it, that—well—that I think your being here for this summer is a corking idea.

Kneeland was taken aback by the directness of the question. He flushed and stammered.

"Why, the usual reasons, I suppose. Fit in, and all that sort of thing," he said uneasily.

Hale made a perfect smoke ring. "In what way can I help your father?" he asked quietly.

"I don't know what's on Dad's mind," he said slowly. "He hasn't mentioned the matter to me except to say you'd be here this summer and handle his home mail.

"That's a different matter," he said stiffly. "Craig's my best pal. We've been together pretty constantly the last five years.

Young Kneeland's voice dropped. "The same thing, but more of it. He tells me about his damned experiments, and his clinic cases.

about his work at night, though. You've heard his gay prattle at dinner. He comes to my room when we go upstairs and talks his head off.

"Not whole ones," he muttered at last. "Bits. Pickled in a small vat he has up in his laboratory. He gets the things from his hospital.

On the face of it, the thing was simple enough. A case of scientific passion, selfishness, and utter self-absorption. Hale was looking below the face of it, and his own face grew grave. His reply was still casual.

"Craig is a self-centered type," he said. "He has lived and worked alone so long that he has lost his sense of proportion.

"Awfully sorry," he said. "I had no idea how late."

"If I were you," he suggested cheerfully, "I wouldn't let Craig make any more night visits.

"All right. Let him clear his brain some other way," Hale retorted. "I think he needs some mental housecleaning.

"I don't sleep much," Herbert confessed. He added in a relieved tone, "I think I'll take your advice.

He stood by his open door for a moment, looking after young Kneeland's disappearing figure. He had learned through the casual talk around him since his arrival that the son of the house slept at the rear end of the upper hall, next to his father's room and bath and on the same side as Hale's room. Beyond the elder Kneeland's room was Joan's room. This was directly opposite that in which Craig made himself comfortable, with Ainsworth as his next-door neighbor.

Hale locked his door and strolled toward his writing table. He felt very wide-awake. He decided to write a letter or two to quiet his nerves before trying to sleep.

Now, directly under his eyes, one of his sheets of letterpaper lay before him. It was white, with the words "Halcyon Camp" embossed across the top in dark green.

not these things at which Hale looked. He had seen them before. The paper was a sheet from his own supply. But directly in its center, erect and malignant, was a very clever pen and ink sketch of a cobra coiled to strike.

WHY WATE FOR THIS?

This time Hale did not grin over the message. He looked at it thoughtfully for a long moment. Then he impaled it on a pin, and picked it up. He dropped it into an envelope, took a bill-case from an inside pocket, put the envelope into it, and restored the case to the pocket.

Arabs Hold Date Palms Dearer Than Wives, Would Sell Her Rather Than Twig of Tree

It took this country ten years to discover something was wrong with its 1890 purchase of baby palms, says Popular Mechanics. The trees grew at the prodigious rate of two feet a year; but mostly they were barren, and fruit of the producers was inferior.

"Twice as Cold"

Such an expression as "twice as cold" has no meaning because there is no definite point of the thermometer from which we reckon cold.

house. The cabin—that had once been the Amyx home, was swept, a fire blazed in the great rock fireplace, wood was piled on the hearth, a home made badstead, home made chairs stood about. Rube showed us in. "Here is your home."

TREES WERE THICK

We ate and slept and got up for the bear hunt. Glen went along. He rather believes in doing things and then telling about them—or rather doings things and not telling about them. Up over the mountains on the mountain-bred horses, going where horses couldn't possibly go—but they did. Through oak-brush and aspen, that we had got to calling aspirin trees and then headache trees because you couldn't see through the groves. Womble swore they were so thick in places you could stick out your hand, close it and couldn't get it back without cutting down trees.

A HERMIT BUT NO LION

Saw the old home of the famous Bill Hardick of fifteen years ago who was represented in the Denver Post as a hermit with a lion guarding his door. A. D. told us the old fellow was a hermit, but didn't have any lions.
A shotgun though convinced those who knew him that they should leave when invited to do so.

WOMBLE GETS THE CREDIT

There was plenty of bear sign and fresh sign. We hunted every way but with dogs. And when we found our particular bear, he didn't have a chance. You get about three bloodthirsty Texans shooting at a bear with high-powered rifles and one of them within a hundred yards, and it is good-bye Cuffy. A bullet neatly placed between the eyes permanently rubbed him out. Mr. Womble, the gentlemen from Ropes, gets the credit.

SAW WHAT WAS WHAT

We can't say that bear hunting is such dangerous sport, nor that a bear ought to be killed, but Rube Amyx heard a commotion in the hog shed two weeks ago at two o'clock in the night. He blundered right out to see

Lubbock's Industrial Progress Provides
Real Opportunity For Slaton Says
Contracting Firm Directors

"Officials of the Lubbock city directory publishers state that at least 3,600 new names will appear on the new directory for 1939, according to the results of their present survey.
This being true, Lubbock is not alone holding its progress, but adding matterially to its constant flow of new population. As a consequence, our boundaries must extend rapidly if we are to keep pace with this new influx of citizenry. Nothing tends to hold population quite so effectively as reasonably priced residence sites and ease of financing. Slaton, being an easy 25 minute drive on good highways is fortunately situated to lead goodly portion of this new population.
If Slaton is quick to realize its opportunity in this respect, it will likewise find a consequent demand for its commercial building sites and gain assistance to Lubbock in absorbing a both in new population and new commercial activities."

This message of friendly, neighborly advice was extended The Slatonite reporter while interviewing Everett O.
Ingle, member of the firm of Sikes and Ingle, general contractors, with offices at 120 Avenue F in Lubbock.

The many activities of Ingle & Sikes Construction Company during the past several years, serves as a reflection of progress itself, since they have figured in a long list of services to the commercial builder all over the section. Through the untiring efforts of the officers and directors of this firm, many achievements have been accomplished which have proven a valuable aid to the progress of Lubbock.

The personnel and directorate of Ingle & Sikes Construction Co. have acquired a most intimate knowledge of the daily development and progress of the South Plains area. Many commercial builders have come to know the genuine sincerity of these pioneer contractors, whose advice and counsel is sought on all matters pertaining to grading; excavating, selecting sites, types of building most suitable to their clients, and suggestions relative to types of material most adaptable to our climatic conditions.

The confidence is well deserved too, for the constant endeavors of this firm in the conduct of its affairs, is to make each individual feel that they are considered in a personal and individual manner and that their interests will be safely concerned. Nothing is lacking in their service, regardless of the proportions of the project. They are equipped to render instant service with a corps of highly trained experts prepared to begin work at almost any what was what and it was a bear that had come over the mountain to see what he could see, and had decided to have a bit of pork. The little hog shed was just six feet square and was practically full when Rube and the bear and four pigs got together in it. Rube vacated as soon as he discovered what was what. Got a gun and fired at Cuffy as he went out the corner of the hog pasture. Missed with all shots.

But Cuffy killed four pigs. Maybe that influenced the Amyx's to want to put up a bit of bear meat for winter use. So we loaded the critter on a hoss, got him back to the ranch house, peeled him and dedicated the carcass to taking the place of the four little pigs so foully and prematurely murdered. They will have a lot of bear meat. Womble will have a bearskin rug. The rest of us had a whopping good time. And lots of adventure.
You ought to go bear hunting once in a while. It might give you a new point of view.

BOARD of CITY DEVELOPMENT and CHAMBER of COMMERCE NEWS

RAYMOND LEE JOHNS, MANAGER

For a time the tremendous inflow of migratory agricultural laborers was causing us a bit of serious worry. A month ago one might have met conveyance after conveyance filled to more than capacity with Mexican cotton pickers coming from points south and east to gather "the bumper cotton crops on the South Plains." At least some of them said they had heard the crops here were even better than those last year, which accounts largely for the fact that those who came last year went home at the close of the harvest of a 162,000-bale crop in Lubbock county and a 152,000-bale crop in Lynn county to the south, and told the ones who did not come, so this year it looked for a period as though we were going to receive all of them from South Texas.

been forewarned that the crops are light here and that we have slight need of a large number of workers, so that now they have ceased coming so rapidly and the situation looks as if it would soon take care of itself. The object in turning back as many as possible was to afford this territory possible relief from stranded migrating workmen this winter. Without available charity funds the situation might become rather serious if underprivileged peoples kept moving this way and found little or no work to do, for in most cases the lot of them have only enough money to "make the Plains."

The author of this column picked up some new ideas on his trip to Dallas about community improvement, met many of his fellow workers in chamber of commerce work, and learned that Galveston will be the meeting place for the next Chamber of Commerce convention in June, 1939. A spokesman from the coastal city explained that a beach party and bathing review and a Gulf cruise on a coast guard cutter will be part of the entertainment.

Our boys won't. Yep, they beat Tahoka all right. There wasn't as large Salt Improves Coffee.—The flavor of coffee is improved if a little salt is sprinkled on the bottom of the pot before the coffee is put in.

To Clean Satin Slippers.—Rub slippers with a cloth dipped in a little alcohol to which a few drops of lemon juice have been added.

Flowers and Vase for Sick.—It is an excellent idea when sending cut flowers to a hospital to send an inexpensive vase with them. Nurses often find it difficult to find vases enough to hold flowers.

Well-Fitting Hose.—Children's stockings ought to be selected carefully. Short ones cramp toes and will eventually make them crooked. Too long ones wrinkle and twist, irritating toes and heels. Also, children should be taught to wear a fresh pair of stockings each morning. Don't allow your youngsters to wear galoshes in the house or classroom.

To Press Ribbons.—Dampen ribbons and iron them between tissue paper.

Bright Clothes for Children.—You may not like vividly colored clothes, but they are the safest thing to wear in traffic. It is advisable to dress children in such costumes to help protect them from accidents.

But Why Suffer? Here's how you can "Alkalize" anytime-anywhere—the easy "Phillips" way!

WHY SUFFER from headaches, "gas," "upsets" and "biliousness" due to acid indigestion—when now there is a way that relieves excess stomach acid with incredible speed. Simply take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets at first sign of distress. Carry them with you—take them unnoticed by others.

Results are amazing. There's no nausea or "bloating" feeling. It produces a "gas" to embarrass you and offend others. "Acid indigestion" disappears. You feel great. Get a bottle of liquid "Phillips" for home use. And a box of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets to carry with you. IT LOOKS as if the skids had been put beneath another foreign star. Columbia has had Dolly Haas on the payroll for a year—at $1,250 a week, which may be a tidy little sum and nothing more to Columbia, but is a lot of money to a lot of us—and she was scheduled to play the lead in Lubitsch's "The Shop Around the Corner." She didn't make any other pictures; just waited for that one.

So—Lubitsch recently moved into the Selznick-International studio, ready to begin work on the picture, his first as head of his new unit in association with Myron Selznick. But he wanted, not Dolly Haas, but Janet Gaynor, for the lead. A disappointment for the lovely Viennese, no doubt. Incidentally, the demure Janet goes right on increasing in feminine charm all the time.

Janet Gaynor

Ronald Colman's marriage to Benita Hume rather startled a lot of people, who felt sure that he'd never marry again. It wasn't exactly the sort of ceremony that might have been expected, but Colman's knowledge of the publicity that attends any star's wedding no doubt prompted him in keeping his application for a license secret, and having a police judge perform the ceremony.

Ever since 1920, when he and his first wife separated, there have been rumors to the effect that the dashing hero of "If I Were King" was going to marry someone or other, although he has never been one of those young men about Hollywood who used rumored romances as a sure-fire way of garnering publicity. The beautiful Benita is just the wife one would select for him—best wishes to them both!

The fates seem to be agin' Ralph Bellamy, so far as owning a home is concerned. Last winter the California floods washed away his $50,000 home in North Hollywood. This summer the Connecticut hurricane washed away the house and much of the land on his farm in that state. Looks as if he'd have to buy him a trailer and settle down in that.

I like Kate Smith; I like her new radio program Thursday nights, which keeps her right up there with the topnotchers. But I do not like her when I am waked up at the crack of dawn to receive a pale blue turtle with "Greetings From Kate Smith" across its painted back, accompanied by a box of fish food.

Any time the movies need a young and handsome man to conduct an orchestra—and really conduct it, too—they can't do better than to raid the field of radio and take Macklin Marrow. He has been guest conductor of practically all the big symphony orchestras, both the Boston and he is undeniably both young and handsome. What's more, it was accidentally discovered, the other day, that he screens well.

A friend of his got involved in making a commercial movie. She took a look at the young man sent by one of the model agencies, and they wouldn't do at all. Then she remembered him. Unlike many radio big-timers, he was delighted to do it, just for fun and to oblige a friend. With that picture serving as a screen test he should be able to sign his name to a Hollywood contract if he ever wants to.

Dorothy Thompson, our most famous woman news commentator, has also discovered something about herself as the camera sees her. She's on the air now on a program that includes Phil Spitalny's orchestra, and the other day a picture was taken of him leading the orchestra, with her at the microphone. It couldn't be sent out to the papers; the dignified Miss Thompson—or Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, just as you like—looked exactly like a pretty blues singer, instead of an important commentator on world affairs!

Harry Duncan of the "Radio Rubes" declares that he can tell which parts of the country are having bad weather by the amount of fan mail he gets from those sections. During New England's hurricane week the "Rubes" averaged two hundred letters a day, and he knew that the storm was really terrific when the postman brought four layer cakes. Thinks all New England must have been moored to their radios.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Charlie Farrell's next stop on his come-back trail will be the male lead in "Tailspin," with Alice Faye . . . "Drums" ought to go down on your list of the new pictures that you must see . . . Paramount wasn't too pleased when their starlet, Ellen Drew, told Philadelphia reporters that she has a three-and-one-half-year-old son.

Lesson for October 23

OUR DAY OF REST

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:8-11; Luke 13:10-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy.—Exodus 20:8.

Rest—how full of meaning that little word is when we recall that it means quiet for the struggling one, calm for the troubled, repose for the weary, tranquillity for the disturbed, cessation of labor for the worn-out one. God in His infinite wisdom saw that without rest man would soon destroy himself, and He made provision for one day in seven when labor should cease and man should be free for that re-creation of soul and body which should fit him for the labor of the week. Men in their greed have coveted the time God gave for rest and have used it for themselves, and the ragged nerves and broken bodies, to say nothing of the impoverished spirits of our day, testify that it can be done only at our peril.

Our study centers around Scripture passages which have to do with the Jewish Sabbath, but since it was essentially a day of rest, and afforded an opportunity for the worship of God, the principles surrounding it are applicable to our day of rest—the first day of the week, the Lord's Day.

I. Why We Keep a Day of Rest (Exod. 20:8-11).

1. God commanded that there should be a day of rest—one out of seven—and that should be sufficient to cause His people to "remember" the day "to keep it holy." It is cause for grave concern that Sunday has become a day of swimming, hiking, auto-driving, golfing, and one might go on with the list almost indefinitely. Many men or women who have had built into their own characters the stalwart virtues nurtured by family attendance at the house of God, have not only forgotten their own need and responsibility but are destroying every vestige of interest in divine worship in the hearts of their children. It is serious business to go astray oneself, but infinitely more serious to mislead one's own children.

Notice that the day of rest was to be not only for the family but also for servants and for visitors. The employer who operates his factory or office on Sunday violates this commandment. Note also that the man who is to rest on the seventh day is supposed to work on the six days. Some folk neglect to do both.

2. God's command is strengthened by the divine example (v. 11). We are not able to do all things that God does, but here we are privileged to follow His example.

II. How We Keep the Day of Rest (Luke 13:10-17).

The incident recorded by Luke does not give us an exhaustive list of things to be done with our day of rest, but it is interesting to note that our Lord was

1. In the house of God (v. 10). Jesus was in the synagogue. The distinguished Apostle Paul never became too great or too good to attend divine worship. We all need to go to church (if it is at all possible for us to do so) to fellowship with others in the things of Christ. Let us have a revival of church attendance, and not only on Sunday mornings, but also on Sunday night and for midweek prayer meeting.

2. Alert to the needs of others (vv. 11, 12). It is not indicated that the woman asked to be healed. Jesus saw her need and met it. We can not do what he did, but there are needs that we can meet if we are but alert to see them and willing to help.

3. Active in service (v. 13). In spite of the criticism which He knew would come from the lazy and helpless standers-by, Jesus did the work of God. We may glorify God by being ready—yes anxious—to serve in the church. Our daily work is set aside on the Lord's Day not that we should be indolent, but that we should be free to do the Lord's work.

4. Contending for the faith (vv. 14-17). Jesus met the unjust criticism (which, by the way, was leveled at the poor woman because the critic feared Jesus) by a masterly appeal to the law of the Pharisees (vv. 15, 16). But He did more than that, for He ably defended the rights of humanity as superior to the formalities of man-made law. The law is always supreme until the Lawgiver comes, and no law can hinder Him by its letter, as He fulfills its spirit.

We may not speak as Jesus did, that is to declare what the law is, but we may in His name, and by His grace and power declare the full counsel of God, defend it against its critics and withstand those who while bearing the name of Christian leaders only hinder the work of Christ (compare III John 9, 10). For such service we need His guidance, His wisdom, His power, and His grace.

The Wise Man

The wise man is like the druggist's chest, silent but full of virtues; and the blockhead resembles the warrior's drum, noisy but empty.—Sadi the Persian.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Vitamins And Vision; Explains How and Why You Should Feed Your Eyes

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

FOR a number of years, scientists have stressed the importance of a well-balanced diet as a means of maintaining health, promoting growth and preventing disease. Recently, an even more significant development has occurred. It has been determined that a carefully chosen diet is absolutely necessary to preserve the general health and efficiency of every bodily function and that there is a close relationship between a good diet and good eyesight.

Your Food and Your Eyes

Many people regard their eyesight as one of the five senses which operate in some mysterious manner of their own! If they suffer from indigestion, they recognize that it is quite apt to be due to something they ate. If they are troubled with stomach, liver or kidney complaints, they quickly appreciate that prolonged dietary indiscretions may be at the root of the trouble. But it never occurs to them that what they eat may affect the eyes just as profoundly as it affects the internal organs.

It is not uncommon, during an attack of biliousness, to suffer a disturbance of the vision. But that disturbance usually disappears with the disorder that caused it. On the other hand, a deficient diet may produce eye troubles that have a far reaching effect upon health, efficiency, and even personal safety.

Night Blindness Explained

For example, it has been established that there is a definite relation between your vision and the vitamins in your diet; between your ability to drive a car safely at night, and the amount of vitamin A-containing foods that you consume.

To understand this astonishing fact, it is necessary to know that vision under faint illumination is accomplished by means of chemical changes in the pigment at the back of the eye. This is known as the "visual purple" of the retina and one of its important components is carotene, which is the active form of vitamin A.

The visual purple might be compared to the film in a camera. When you are in a dim light and the eyes are suddenly exposed to bright light, the visual purple is greatly reduced or bleached. This change results in a stimulation of the optic nerve and enables you to see clearly.

When an adequate supply of vitamin A is present in the body, the visual purple is rapidly regenerated. But when the supply is inadequate, a much longer period elapses before the corrective chemical change takes place. During the intervening time, many people find it difficult to see.

That is the condition known as "night blindness." And it accounts for the fact that a large proportion of serious motor accidents occur at night. Victims of this deficiency disease are first blinded by approaching headlights, then cannot quickly readjust themselves after the oncoming car has passed. Their ability to drive safely is subsequently impaired for they cannot clearly see the road ahead, and they may miss dangerous curves, pedestrians or other vehicles.

A Common Complaint

Unfortunately, the prevalence of night blindness is not generally recognized, though it is held that urban dwellers are more conscious of it than those living in the rural areas. This is borne out by the fact that ocular disorders from vitamin deficiency are less common in urban than in rural areas.

Children Often Victims

Since the discovery of the close connection between vitamin A and the ability to see in dim light, scientists have tested large numbers of school children to determine whether vitamin A was present in their diet in adequate amounts. It was revealed that from 26 to 79 per cent of the children examined had incipient night blindness.

The same deplorable conditions were found among adults. Mild to moderate degrees of vitamin A deficiency were present in from 10 to over 50 per cent of each group tested.

Yet here is the remarkable thing—in nearly every case, a diet rich in vitamin A for a few weeks restored the vision to normal.

A Significant Experiment

An even more striking example of the power of food to affect the eyesight is to be found in the report of an experiment in which breeding sows were given food in abundance but lacking vitamin A for 160 days before and for 30 days after breeding. In three litters of 35 pigs, all were blind. In another litter of 14 pigs, all were sightless. But under normal feeding, the same animals produced litters of pigs with normal eyes and vision. This experiment justifies the conclusion of one of our most noted food scientists, that the deficiency of essential food elements may so alter vital processes that even pre-natal changes may occur.

Cause of Other Eye Disorders

Night blindness is not the only eye disease caused by an improper diet. Xerophthalmia or conjunctivitis, characterized by excessive dryness of the eyeball, has long been known to be caused by a vitamin A deficiency. It is also well known that a liberal amount of this vitamin will prevent that serious disease and will even effect a cure where destruction of the cornea has not progressed too far.

This suggests the tremendous importance of including in the diet foods rich in vitamin A—cod- and other fish-liver oils; milk and other dairy products; green leafy and yellow vegetables; and egg yolk.

Experiments with rats, whose dietary requirements are similar to those of man, show a close connection between cataract and a deficiency of another vitamin—vitamin G. This is found most abundantly in meat, milk, eggs, fruit and vegetables.

Were she concerned about protecting the blessing of good eyesight alone, that would be sufficient reason why every homemaker should plan meals that are rich in vitamins. But it is not only the eyes which are dependent upon vitamins, for they have many other functions to perform.

An improper diet may cause people to drive automobiles blindly at night so that they are dangerous not only to themselves and their passengers, but to everyone on the streets and roads. A deficient diet will also send them through life with half-efficient bodies, half-efficient brains, half-efficient senses.

That is why I urge you to learn everything you can about food, so that in planning meals you will not only feed your eyes, your husband's eyes and your children's eyes, but will take advantage of the wonderful discoveries of nutritional science to make every member of the family so efficient that they will enjoy the best of health each day of their lives.

Questions Answered

Mrs. G. C. L.—Yes, indeed, nutritionists do approve of a mid-afternoon snack for most school children. A glass of milk and a slice of buttered bread with jam or preserves; fruit juice and oatmeal cookies; or a chocolate milk shake and graham crackers will provide fresh energy for late afternoon play. Without the between-meal lunch, some children become so fatigued that nerve strain results. Take care, however, that the snack does not destroy the appetite for the evening meal.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

"DEAR Mrs. Spears:—I want to thank you for the clear diagram of how to hang draw curtains in your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. This was just what I have been needing as we have casement windows and no shades in our living room. With a pull of the cord my new curtains shut out the light or the outside view. I wonder if you would help me with another problem? I do not want to make the curtains for the rest of the house. Thought I would buy ruffled net ones. Do you think they would be too commonplace? J. T."

Answer: Here is a suggestion for hanging ruffled curtains that will make your windows little different from those of your neighbors and lend no end of style to your rooms. Double curtain rods are needed to give the crossed effect and a valance board is added to the top of the window as shown. Here the valance is the sort that comes with ready made curtains and the top is folded back to make it double. In thumbtacking it to the valance board, do not stretch it—just "ease it on" so that it hangs well. If you feel that the windows need color, the valance and the backs may be of plain glazed chintz that repeats the strongest color in your room color scheme. A contrasting valance may be either plain or gathered.

Let Father and Young Son and Little Sister help you make the home a center of interest. Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator contains many useful things that every one may take a hand in making. Book 2 shows you with pictures how to make many novelty gifts. Books are 25 cents each. Order both books today and get the patchwork quilt leaflet picturing 36 authentic embroidery stitches free. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Buried City in Kentucky

An ancient buried city was discovered at Wickliffe, Ky. There are nine mounds, some of which have been excavated under the supervision of Col. Fain W. King and his wife. The burial mound contains 153 burials of three distinct types. The bodies were buried with pottery, tools, implements and jewelry.

In one mound the remains of 63 children were found with their dolls and other playthings.
