Bullock Says Increasing Sales Tax Likely

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Friday said floor amendments to a tax package passed by the Texas House could change the bottom line figure the taxes will raise.

"The tax package was loaded with amendments. We are sorting through this bag of confetti to see what it will realistically raise," Bullock said.

He said a full analysis would be in the hands of Texas lawmakers by Monday.

"The final yield on the bills will reflect not only what lawmakers took out—such as breaks for the elderly and for crop insurance—but how the law would be enforced and administered," he said.

"We can't say how much less until we go over it line-by-line, section-by-section and total out the changes and corrections," Bullock said.

Estimates for increasing the sales tax to 6 percent and extending the gasoline tax to 15 cents a gallon are likely to hold, he said.

"We've had less than a week to look at the insurance tax. There's not another anywhere in America so we have little to go by," Bullock said.

Review Board Meets

Carson County Appraisal Review Board met last Wednesday hearing taxpayers complaints from 10 persons who appeared in person and answered two complaints made by letter. A spokesman from the appraisal office said the complainants represented a cross section of the county.

Ladybugs for Texas Committee Appears Before County Court

McLean's fifth grade "Ladybugs for Texas" committee just keeps on rolling. Last week, a delegation of committee members appeared before the Gray County Commissioners Court. After listening to a presentation by members of the committee, the court agreed to name the ladybug as Gray County's official insect.

Committee spokesperson Erin McCracken said, "They asked us a lot of questions about how we got started and why we chose the ladybug over other insects. We just answered their questions as well as we could."

After passing the motion to name the ladybug as the county insect, the commissioners said they would do what they could to get the state legislature to name the ladybug as the official state insect.

The committee, which has also succeeded in having the ladybug named as the official insect by the City of McLean, is going to be continuing its campaign. According to Miss McCracken, "Our next step is to contact people who sell or use ladybugs, like nurseries, to see if we can get their support. We might also contact Channel 7 to see if we can get on their morning show. The group has already received publicity from Channel 10 and several local newspapers.

We will continue to keep you informed about the committee's activities.

Class of 1940 students at the recent reunion were Granville Boyd and Marie Eudey Fennell.

1988 International Stockmen's School Set for Feb. 18-21, 1988

The 1988 International Stockmen's School, set for next Feb. 18-21 in Houston, will feature more than 150 lectures by outstanding authorities from the United States and a number of other countries.

The school is scheduled just ahead of the annual Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo.

"As one of a kind, the International Stockmen's School has a worldwide reputation for presenting research and technology on the cutting edge of progress," said Dr. L.S. "Bill" Pope, director.

"Indications are that the 1988 school will be the best ever, covering subjects dealing with beef cattle, horses, dairy cattle and range and ranch management," he added.

Subjects included in the program will deal with nutrition, breeding, management and economics. "In addition," Pope said, "there will be more live animal demonstrations next year than in 1987 at the Astrohall arena, which should be invaluable to stockmen.

The school generally attracts 300-400 stockmen from the U.S., Canada, Mexico and Central and Southern America. A number of presentations are translated into Spanish.

Besides the educational activities of the school, an International Stockmen's Hall of Fame has been established to honor outstanding world leaders. This collection will be one of the most impressive arrays of stockmen and leaders who have guided the world's livestock industry, Pope said.

Tax Appraisals Getting More Accurate, According to Report

Property tax appraisals in Texas were more accurate in 1986 than in previous years, according to an annual study performed by the State Property Tax Board.

However, the agency's 1986 Property Value Study also shows a 1.5 percent drop in the property tax base of Texas school districts from 1985 to 1986, led by a sharp decline in the taxable value of oil and gas reserves.

According to the study, a typical property in the state was appraised at 93 percent of its actual market value on Jan. 1, 1986. These appraised values formed the basis for 1986 tax bills. By comparison, tax appraisals were at a 90 percent level in 1985 and 81 percent in 1983.

The study estimates the total taxable value of the 1986 school district tax base stood at $691.9 billion, down from $702.3 billion the year before. Taxable values in 604 of the state's 1,062 school districts were lower in 1986 than the year before.

"Troubles in the oil and gas industry were the main reasons for the drop in taxable value," said Ron Patterson, SPTB's executive director. He noted that the value of mineral reserves, mainly oil and gas, dropped by 26 percent from 1985 to 1986. Industrial property and rural land also posted significant value drops.

Patterson said the study's appraisal level findings indicate that most appraisal districts are doing a better job of appraising property. "Appraisals as a whole are getting closer to market value, and our figures indicate that appraisal levels for individual properties are more uniform," he said.

Appraisal levels in 117 of the state's 253 appraisal districts were equal to or better than the statewide level of 93 percent. However, appraisal levels in 24 districts were under 80 percent of market value. In addition, appraisals in close to two-thirds of the districts were less uniform than those in the state as a whole.

SPTB completed its 1986 study on May 29, 1987, after a three-month appeals process during which school and appraisal districts sought adjustments to the study's preliminary findings.

"The Property Value Study performs two functions," explained Patterson. "It provides a report card of sorts on the tax appraisals performed by county appraisal districts. It also estimates the taxable wealth available to each of the state's school districts, which is an important factor in determining the amount of state aid the districts receive for the 1987-88 school year."

Patterson stressed the 1986 study reflects mineral values as of Jan. 1, 1986, before crude oil prices tumbled from $28 to $15 per barrel. "The taxable values of oil and gas reflect the present value of future income from the reserves," he explained. "Investors at the end of 1985 were already viewing the oil market as risky and offering lower prices for oil-producing properties. This perceived risk, as well as the ongoing depletion of reserves, were the main reasons for the drop in our taxable value estimate."

The uncertain oil market contributed to a slowing Texas economy during 1985. In addition, industry and agriculture were suffering from shrinking markets and falling prices for their products.

The market value of residential real estate, the largest single component of the school district tax base, grew by only three percent from 1985-86. The value of commercial real estate, on the other hand, grew by eight percent in the same period.

"Our study tells us that, for most types of property, appraisal districts are coming closer to meeting the standards that state law sets for tax appraisals," said Patterson. "The law requires individual properties to be appraised at market value, and mandates similar treatment for similar properties."

Oil and gas reserves were the only type of property where the quality of appraisals deteriorated. The SPTB study indicates that these properties were typically appraised at 109 percent of their market value for 1986 taxes, compared to 104 percent the previous year. "The uncertainty in the oil market at the end of 1985 probably made appraising these properties more difficult," said Patterson.

The Russian Tsar and the German Kaiser their titles took from the Roman Julius Caesar.

Tips Offered To Cut Air Conditioning Costs

The pleasant warming sunlight that streamed in your windows last winter can easily become a costly overload on your air conditioning this summer, said an energy specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The best way to reduce unwanted solar heat gains is to block the sun before it enters your home," said Wee-lon Echols. Shading windows with remote, external or internal devices offers a variety of solutions. Echols noted, remote shading uses objects that are not part of the building to provide shade. Trees, shrubs, vines and walls can be used to block the low morning and evening sun from east and west surfaces. She said deciduous trees are particularly good for shading south-facing windows because they provide shade in the summer and shed their leaves to admit sunlight in the winter.

When building a house, orientation is critical to minimize summer heat gain, maximize summer ventilation potential and maximize winter solar gain, Echols warned. A building elongated along the east-west axis will have less surface area to the east and west to minimize solar gain. East and west walls should have no windows. She noted, a light colored roof will reflect solar radiation that would be absorbed by a darker roof.

Exterior and interior shading devices also provide a good way to block the summer sun. Exterior shading devices can prevent up to 95 percent of the sun's heat from reaching the interior of the home, said Echols.

Ag Dept. Releases Wheat Program

Almost a full month late, the United States Department of Agriculture released its 1988 provisions for the wheat program today, Congressman Beau Boulter said.

Boulter, who was successful in including an amendment to the 1985 Farm Bill requiring the Department of Agriculture to announce its wheat provisions by June 1st of each year, said he was glad the Department finally issued its guidelines but angry that they were a month late. Boulter pointed out that the delay may cause inconveniences for some wheat farmers.

Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng announced a required 27.5 percent acreage reduction and a loan rate of $2.17 a bushel. Lyng said the loan rate represented a 20 percent reduction from the basic loan rate of $2.71 and was made necessary to maintain American wheat's competitiveness in domestic and international markets.

Boulter was critical of the USDA for not meeting the June 1st deadline. "In failing to meet the deadline, the USDA has not only shown disregard for a mandate of Congress but also has inconvenienced our wheat farmers. The delay was unwarranted and unjustified."

Boulter noted that wheat farmers need to know the basic provisions of the wheat program in order to make proper management decisions.

Secretary Lyng also announced that the established target price for wheat will be $4.29 a bushel, which is a statutory minimum and two percent below the 1987 target price.

In addition, producers will be required to maintain in acreage conservation reserve an area equal to 37.93 percent of the program payment acreage.
