Dr. Leon H. Sullivan Speaks Here Friday

Dr. Leon Sullivan, founder and chairman of Opportunities Industrialization Centers of America (OIC) will be in Lubbock tomorrow, Friday, March 3rd. He will be guest speaker at the National Guard Armory, 2821 4th Street, beginning at 6:00.

A tea will be given in his honor at the Lubbock Opportunities Industrialization Center (LOIC), 2200 East Broadway, from 1 until 3 p.m.

The citizens of the South Plains and West Texas are invited to meet this great Black American.

Washington, CNS—Launching a campaign for one million new jobs for minority workers in the next decade, Rev. Leon H. Sullivan has surprised veteran observers in the nation's capitalby, almost evernight, forging a new coalition of church leaders, businessmen, congressmen and grass roots citizens to "Build America—Together."

The drive for more jobs and a new manpower bill to replace one vetoed by President Nixon was forcefully started during the 8th annual Convocation of the Opportunities Industrialization Centers, Inc., here last week.

Sullivan, founder and chairman of the board of the rapidly growing OIC training program met with top executives of General Motors, General Electric, Chase Manhattan Bank and other firms at the Sheraton Park Hotel to urge 10,000 businessmen to provide 100,000 jobs annually for Blacks, Chicanos and Indians in the next 10 years "to prevent national bankruptcy and domestic chaos."

OIC leaders also led a new type march on Capital Hill by meeting with some 40 Senators and Congressmen and administrative aids in an unusual breakfast in the new Senate Office Building to seek support for a new OIC manpower training bill. About 500 persons attended the breakfast.

We Need Brotherhood Week Every Week of Year!

Last month, February, which is only a few days behind us-should be considered every month and week of the year. In the month of February, we as Americans concentrate on the Brotherhood concept. Don't you think we should look forward to the Brotherhood feeling each and every day of the year?

In the country in which we all live, America, it's rediculous that we have to wait for a ntaional month or holiday to really think about brotherly love. We are all Americans and we all can and should contribute something positive to the greatest country on earth.

We've been conditioned so much in the West Texas community about the difference between races that we often forget that we are all human beings looking for the same goals in life.

A great American, Rev. Leon Sullivan, founder and leader of the National Opportunities Industrializatio. Centers of America, will be a guest speaker at a banquet tomorrow evening at the National Guard Armory here in Lubbock. He'll be great, and in advance, everyone should expect to enjoy his presentation. We are sure that the Rev. Mr. Sullivan will talk about the great things in America and some of the resources we are missing from many of our citizens.

It's a shame that we have those who forget about the beauty of life by infiltrating their negative ideas in the minds of weak people who listen to them. We must, as Americans, implement the real Americanism to all people.

In our community, and let's not fool ourselves, there are two groups of people—this is no means related to the race, color or creed of people-but to the status of many Americans. In West Texas, we find people who are in the Have status and the Have Not category. Regardless of the economic status of each group, we are all Americans and all Americans should be given the opportunity to pull oneself up the socio-economic ladder in the various communities.

If we, as Americans, would pitch in and compliment the talents of all people, we could contribute a great deal to erasing many of the obstacles which block the path of progress of many West Texans.

As citizens of West Texas, we could become authors of making every day a brotherhood day. We could extend the goodness of February and other religious holidays in which we think about our brothers. We need this type of spirit in West Texas, as well as the entire country.

Whether you live in Amarillo, Midland, Odessa, Abilene, Slaton, Lubbock or any other West Texas community, let's all get in the mood of extending our Brotherly love to all brothers and sisters of our community. This great country belongs to all

We are all great people, regardless of who we are or what part of the track we live on. America is great, and we all can make it even greater if we extend the month of February to every day of the year. Let's all start now, making every day brotherhood day. America will continue to grow and so will all of West Texas.

by Dr. R.W. Jones Gimme and Foolish Loyalty

The past week was Brotherhood Week and Amarillo's television and radio media really participated. They interviewed members from a variety of ethnic groups. Other than the Chicano representative, most of the time was a waste, because no one else faced the dastardly demon-discrimination. In fact, we should raise money and enter them all in the next Winter Olympics because they were experts at skating around the true issue, and in some instances outright fear was shown on the faces of some when asked if they had experienced discrimination, in Amarillo. The joke of the year was the answer, "We must live with the prejudices of others and tolerate discriminatory practices in order to survive." How can we expect loyalty to the movement from a person who makes such a categorical statement for thousands to hear? It is obvious that people who would make such a statement have no loyalty for or to themselves.

Before proceeding, I must inject a few excerpts from my favorite book of the Bible-Ecclesiastes: "When the fool walks through the street, in his lack of understanding, he calls everything foolish." "He who digs a pit may fall into it, and he who breaks through a wall may be bitten by a serpent."

How many times have you seen it happen when a person belittles another the results are usually that he falls into the pit he has dug for someone else.

The personality of many people is overshadowed by the trait "gimme" and all they look forward to is a handout without earning the fruits for which they beg.

There is a movement going on at the University of Texas which was started by a few Blacks to get a large number of Black students into the University. This movement would be of great value if the University were not already seriously working on that situation. These students are asking for the loyalty of all Black students even though this might jeopardize their futures by loss of their loans or scholarships as shwon by a similar sympathetic loyality at Eastern New Mexico University. I think that what I am trying to say here can best be said by quoting excerpts from the keynote speech of Judge William H. Hastie at the National Convention of NAACP in 1971. At that time he said, "The Black person who glorifies his blackness is just as guilty of racism as the bigot who espouses white superiority." "Black racism is no better than white racism."

"For generations," Hastie said, "Many Caucasians have glorified their whiteness, making spurious virtue out of color and compensating for their own shortcomings by consoling themselves that at least they are white.

"Now many Negroes are practicing the same arrogant self deception, glorifying their blackness, making a spurious virtue of color, and compensating for their shortcomings by shouting, 'Black is beautiful'. Such a 'racial mystique'," the jurist said, "overemphasizes racial differences and carries with it hostility."

"Self Hate" is a phrase that has started filling the Sociology classrooms referring to the militant Negro or the Negro who disagrees with the establishment and thinks for himself. The explanation is the dis-satisfied Negro hates being a Negro and that is why he uses so many new terms of identity-Black, Afro-American, et cetera. I am not so hung up on epithets, nor do I hate myself, unless I hate myself because I have to live within the law and not be the true militant I am; or I hate myself because, through compassion, I've given the image of being passive; or I hate myself because I refuse to let that serpent bite me without having an antidote to counteract his venom. I am sure that a lot of people of speia hue think the same way.

Loyalty is a word that our youth need to learn the meaning of and memorize it. They forget so easily. It is a lesson they must learn, "That in this complicated world the time will come when they will have to stand on their own feet in order to earn their place in the sun, not through partying and cavorting, but through work."

There is no way loyalty can be depended upon from a person or group of people unless there is a common cause and a single goal with the benefits enjoyed by all equally and the work distributed equally.

Coheleth says: "He who heeds the wind will never sow and he who watches the clouds will never reap."

As I See It

by T. J. Patterson

As I See It, we've got a lot to do with our kids if we're going to make our community a much better place in which to rear them. We had an editorial in last week's edition about keeping the kids out of the Santa Fe switching yard. Less than three days after the editorial hit the streets, a 10-year-old Black brother was killed in that very switching yard. This tragic occurance hurt this writer very much, but it still happened.

We've got to start paying attention to our children! The kids need your help, Mom and Day! Why not start giving it to them? They are tomorrow's leaders. They have a lot of talent that will help our country if we give them an opportunity!

I would, at this time, like to express my appreciation to the Sante Fe people for calling our attention to the fact that young people are using the tracks, rather than the overpass, to cross back and forth in the area.

The tragedy has happened, let's start anew helping our young people have a better tomorrow. Show them each day that you love them.

Thought of the Week: "Give to the world the best that you have, and the best will come back to you. Give love, and love to your heart will flow, a strength in your utmost need. Have faith, and a score of hearts will show their faith in your work and deed."

It looks as though we'll have a traffic light at East 24th Street and Quirt Avenue. This action came about last Thursday at the City Council meeting when approximately $2,000 was made available for the traffic signal.

Many people labored in this effort, such as the United Black Coalition, along with this media and

I'd like to tip my hat to the city fathers for making a positive step for our Brothers and Sisters of East Lubbock. This move will certainly help, because there is a lot of traffic on Quirt and East 24th Street.

In looking at all of the activities happening in our community, especially East Lubbock, there needs to be some type of calendar so all organizations and agencies can know what is happening and when to schedule events. This type of calendar should be made public so everyone will have an opportunity to know what is going on.

We'd like to suggest to all organizations that they began such an effort, which will help all of us. We'd be more than happy to publish such a calendar each Thursday.

For example, there were three activities on tap for tomorrow evening. One of them, the basketball game between South Plains Funeral Home and the Lubbock Police Department, was cancelled. There are still two remaining; namely, a banquet featuring Dr. Leon Sullivan and the Prairie View Choir. Both are to be good programs and we all should participate in each of them. The question to ask, at this time, is Lubbock really large enough to support two such important programs on the same vening?

Regardless of your answer, we all need to help both efforts be a success. So let's make them both be something all of us can really be proud of.

If you have any suggestions about a community calendar appearing in the West Texas Times, then write me at Box 225. We'd appreciate your input.

Charles Brown, Struggs Junior High School Principal, Believes-Practices Communication

Struggs Jr. High School's principal believes that communication is the basic ingredient for the success of today's schools. Charles Brown is so convinced of this that he and members of his staff have started meeting with parents in the homes of children enrolled at Struggs.

Brown and his counselors, Mrs. Doris Powell and Larry Marshall, visit the homes upon invitation in order to answer questions, explain school procedures, and get acquainted with parents. Lending valuable assistance in these meetings, says the principal, is Mrs. Olga DeLeon, a counseling intern from Texas Tech. Most of the sessions are held in the homes of Mexican-American students. Brown says this is because recent integration has brought a number of children from this ethnic group to Struggs.

Brown. He urges these visits, and comments that parents shouldn't wait for an open house or special invitation to come to school.

Brown has a tremendous appreciation of parents who were given short notice that their children would be transferred to Struggs, and comments that he is proud of how smoothly integration at the school has taken place. He commends the cooperative attitude of his school's parents for helping make this possible. He says that he also appreciates the support of the central school administration during this transition.

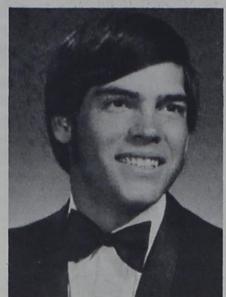

Brown has seen his faculty change from 100% black to the present assignment of four blacks. His student body now has all three ethnic groups enrolled in the seventh and eighth grades. There are 432 students enrolled, and the "Parents should visit the schools staff of teachers numbers twentyat their convenience," according to three plus the supportive staff, principal, and counselors.

The junior high principal is no newcomer to Lubbock. He is a Dunbar graduate, and has taught in Lubbock since 1955 when he joined the Ella Iles Elementary faculty as fifth grade teacher. He later served at Iles as assistant principal and principal before transfering to Struggs. He opened Struggs as principal in 1965, and has held that post since then.

The principal has three children, two of them enrolled in Wheatley Elementary School and one in Denver University. His late wife Myrcie, also a teacher, died in 1970. He holds bachelor and mastor degrees from Prairie View A& M, and has completed a year's postgraduate work at Texas Tech.

His favorite hobby is fishing, and a frequent companion to the lakes is Willie B. Collins, a custodian at Struggs.

Your Destiny

Amarillo-For some time in my life, I paid little or no attention to many of the latest songs, but as I work with people more and more each day, I am beginning to see a lot of people in songs. When I thought of "Your Destiny" and wondered if you are planning it or waiting for it to be chartered like a flight plan by the top brass; it was then that the song came to me, "It's Your Thing, Do What You Want with It."

I had a chance to speak at the Shiloh Baptist Church Sunday before last at the 11:00 o'clock worship hour. I urged the people to let their couriosity overcome them to the extend that they would want to know how their tax dollars were being spent and if they are being properly represented in the planning process.

As a Black person or that of a minority group, do you feel that someone who has never been black or poor, denied the right to hold a good job, to have a decent place to take their family, ect. can plan for you?

No way! But until you start planning your own destiny, these things will continue to be done whether you like it or not and once it is done, all there is left for you is grin and bear it.

What I am saying to our readers is, "get up, get envolved, be one of the planners of your destiny."

Mrs. Bessie Peters surprised her many friends last week. Mrs. Peters and Mr. L. R. Terry exchanged wedding vows Friday, February 25th, in the Sanctuary of Johnson Chapel with Rev. A. J. Davis officiating the ceremonies. Mrs. Terry is very active in her church, she is a member of the gospel choir. She is the daughter of Mrs. Irene Leakes. Only a few friends were present.

Mr. Jessie Smith, a long time resident of Amarillo and a member of Carter's Chapel passed away Saturday, February 26th, at Northwest Texas Hospital after several weeks of illness in his home at 1907 N.

Assembly of Washington High School of Tulsa, Oklahoma to Make Amarillo Appearance

Amarillo-A 45 minute original assembly, "Black Is," written, pro- ber said, "I feel that 'Black Is' is duced and featuring 26 junior and a learning experience for the white senior Speech and Journalism students from the Mass Media class at Washington High School of Tulsa, Oklahoma, will appear March 3, at 8:30 a.m. at Horace Mann Junior High, 10:30 a.m. at Travis Junior High, at 1:00 p.m. at Crockett Junior High and at 2:45 p.m. at Bonham Junior High.

The assembly is being sponsored by The Emergency School Assistance Program (ESAP) Community Project. George Parrish, Project Director, said "The main purpose of the program is to promote understanding and acceptance of what it means to be black in a white society." Parrish further states that when he saw the assembly in Tulsa, he was sold on the idea of bringing the cast to Amarillo, and with the cooperation of the Amarillo Public School System, this idea has become a reality.

"Black Is" is a different type of history lesson designed to show how and why the blacks feel the way they do about certain issues. It (Black Is) causes no racial tension, but makes a person think about what black really is. It is stimulating, educational and enjoyable.

Goals of Blacks Set Out by Students of Amarillo High Schools

Amarillo-The goals of brotherhood and unity of the races was underlined week before last by black students at Palo Duro, Amarillo and Tascosa High Schools, in special assembly in observance of "Black History Week".

The Amarillo High production, written and directed by seniors Johnnie Mae Rector and Loretta Jackson traces the heritage of the American blacks from their days in Africa up to the present.

At Palo Duro 35 black young people planned the program themselves under the direction of their teachers, Mrs. Mary Louise Cast and Mrs. Patricia Latham. The program included a Langston Hughes story told by senior Nathan Williams, a dance choreographed by students, a series of sports interviews by Curtis Stevenson as "Scoopy News," and the entire cast singing the gospel songs of "Glory, Glory" and "Oh, Happy Day." Featured soloists were Roosevelt Tinner and Marilyn Calloway, both seniors.

Berna Dean Mallory, a senior and mistress of ceremonies, explained to the audience that "Some people think the black power sign is one of violence and revolution, but it's really one of unity, of togetherness, we are united, not devided; it means that love can exist between blacks and whites." They concluded by singing the black's 20th Century theme song and raising clenched fists in the "Black Power" sign.

At Tascosa, talks by black students and Rev. V. P. Perry, chairman of the school board's Citizens Advisory Committee on Human Relations; Lloyd Willis, a study hall aide at Tascosa, and Albert O'Neal were featured.

George Parrish, writer for the West Texas Times, said, "I had a chance to attend the assemblies and feel that these young people are to be commended." He added, "It took a lot of guts to do the things they did. I was disappointed that more parents were not on hand to encourage their children."

Karen Rice, a senior cast memcommunity. The purpose being to educate whites to what blackness is all about. I feel the assembly accomplishes this very well. I hope that the 'Black Is' assembly does get rid of some of the myths that whites have about blacks, but if it doesn't help the goal of integration, maybe we will be able to

Who's going to win the Southwest Conference basketball title? If someone could read the future, he could bet a few bob and come up with a good profit for his vision. Never has this conference been so muddled at this late date with five teams vistually equal in all respects dled at this late date, with five teams virtually equal in all respects. I've rubbed the fabled crystal ball and come up with an either/or answer. . . Either SMU will win it outright, or it will be a five-way tie and Texas Tech wii, go to the NCAA pre-Midwest Regional playoffs.

Okay, so how do you figure this? That's simple. SMU has games against two of three bottom dwelling clubs, Rice and Baylor. By all odds, the Mustangs should win both games. That probably would win them the title.

Meanwhile, Tech plays TCU and A&M; A&M plays Texas and TCU; TCU plays Tech and Texas; Texas plays A&M and TCU; and if you're thoroughly confused, join the club.

Since this is being written before Tuesday night's games, the outcome of the race is being predicated on success at home and on the road by the five teams involved in the championship struggle.

SMU has the best home record (6-0), but the worst road mark (2-4). Thus, it is conceivable that the Ponies would beat Rice at home and lose to Baylor in Waco. That would give SMU a final 9-5 record.

A&M, Texas and TCU all have 5-1 records at home and 3-3 records on the road. Thus, A&M and TCU should win Tuesday night games, but lose Saturday night, giving them 9-5 records.

The Raiders have the best road record (4-2), but the worst home record (4-2) among the five leaders. They probably will drop the TCU game, but win the Aggie contest. That would make them 9-5, also. And since the other four teams have been to the NCAA playoffs more recently than Tech, the Raiders would represent the conference.

All of which is speculation and doesn't take into account the possibility that one or two, or even three, teams might become inspired, play over their heads and win both final games.

Since it is a unique situation, let's examine it a little more closely. In the final two games among the leaders, TCU is 1-0 against Tech and 1-0 against Texas this season; Texas is 1-0 against A&M; and A&M is 1-0 against Tech. TCU here has the edge because it beat Tech on the road. All other victories were on the home court.

SMU is through with the leaders, splitting with TCU, A&M and Texas, beating Tech twice. Its other loss was an upset by Arkansas.

Tech lost a pair to SMU, TCU lost a pair to A&M and Texas lost a pair to Tech, further complicating the picture. That gives the edge to SMU should there by only a two-way tie.

Arkansas has been the big spoiler with victories over SMU and

A&M, while Baylor upset TCU and Rice, in the year's biggest shocker, whipped A&M.

Like the man said, a $2 bet on the winner might return a pretty fair bundle.

This has to be one of the biggest sports weeks in the year. In addition to the windup of the SWC basketball race, the junior colleges take over the spotlight with their regional tournament in Municipal Coliseum. The winner goes to the national tournament.

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes also is moving in for an extended stand, with enough all-star names to make any fan drool. The Southwest Conference swimming meet takes place here, too, there are high school basketball playoff games, Tech baseball and track teams are in action and there is tennis, too.

You really should plan to see some of the JUCO games. It's entirely possible that you'll see some future Tech, or other SWC team, players in action. In addition, you'll see some outstanding players, brought here by the efforts of the Lubbock Amateur Athletic Assn. and the Chamber of Commerce.

The FCA gathering brings to Lubbock not only outstanding athletes, but athletes who profess their Christianity unashamedly. In this day of callous materialism, it is refreshing to see athletes Stand Up For Jesus. It is refreshing, also, to see athletes unaffected by so much that is seamy that has infiltrated the sports world.

The part FCA plays in sports can't, I don't believe, be emphasized enough. Today, more than ever before in sports history, insidious forces of evil have wormed their way into the vast field of athletics.

The typical thought you have of an athlete is a superbly trained person, physically near perfect, with alert mental faculties. It is a Godgiven heritage, no matter the amount of effort expended to perfect the person. The FCA recognizes this and the athletes give living testimony that good still remains very much alive and vital in athletics.

THE ROUNDUP-Looking for omens? Tech's game with A&M will be the 13th played by the Raiders at home this season. . . . Martin Terry's 28 points for Arkansas against Tech tied him with Clyde Rhoden and Vernon Murphy for the most points by a Razorback against Tech . . . . Tech's fantastic 16-0 mark against Arkansas here is almost without challenge. . . . Mark your calendar for this event; The National Water Safety Congress. It will be held in Dallas May 10-12.... Don't look now, but there's a good chance that Tech not only will present Ronnie Littleton to the crowd at the half Saturday, but also announce that the Wichita Falls Blue Chipper has signed with Tech . . . . Vern Hilliard, Tech track coach, says that if your high jumper can't do 6-10, forget it. It wasn't too long ago that 6-8 would win the SWC . . . . Vern also says that if you can't do 16 feet in the pole vault, cover the jumping pit . . . . Look for the JUCO regional tournament to be back here next year. The Lubbock Amateur Athletic Assn. is going after it again . . . . Do you know the definition of thinking? Thinking is when your mouth stays shut and your head keeps on talking!

Afro-American history notes for busy newspaper readers. Author's note: Our thanks to publishers who aid in developing inter-racial understanding and goodwill by carrying information of our almost forgotten past.

Although black explorers, adventurers, missionaries, trappers, cowboys, homesteaders and soldiers traveled the length and breadth of this land, white historian William L. Katz admits blacks were for the most part omitted when history was put into print.

When historian Frederick Jackson Turner told how the frontier shaped American democracy, he ignored the black experience. Turner and other historians of Western Americana discussed the vast array of slaves moving westward from the Carolinas and Georgia into Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas. According to these accounts no blacks were or did anything of significance.

The story of the black frontiersmen was ignored when historians told of Ponce de Leon, Chief Osceol, Davy Crockett, Billy the Kid, Bat Masterson, General Custer and Buffalo Bill. Yet, they are mentioned in explorers' dairies, government reports, pioneers' reminiscences and frontier newspapers. These black pioneers do appear however in sketches by Charles Russell and Frederic Remington, and in early photographs by professional and amateur cameramen, military and civilian.

Like other Americans, they helped shape our many frontiers. The black frontier experience was almost untouched until the 20th Century and only now undergoing scrutiny by scholars and others who seek truth in the story of the building of a great country-America. For the next several week we shall take a fresh look here at these early pioneers. who, in spite of dark skins, often made notable and lasting contributions.

Black History Prizes for Bellringers: A ten dollar bill will be given to the reader sending this column the name of the first black graduate of West Point Military Academy and the year of graduation. A five dollar bill will be awarded the bellringer sending in the name of the first black college graduate in Texas and the two colleges he attended. Only postcards will be eligible and the ones bearing earliest postmark will be selected. Address in care of this newspaper of P.O. Box 1204, Midland, Texas.

In 1905 Booker T. Washington, leading black spokesman of the day, visited the all-black town of Boley, Oklahoma, and found it, "the most enterprising and in many ways the most interesting of the Negro towns in the United States." He wrote later in a national magazine that "Boley, like the other black towns that have sprung up in otherparts of the country, represents a dawning race consciousness. . In short, Boley is another chapter in the long struggle of the Negro for moral, industrial and political freedom.'

Langston City, Oklahoma, and home of Langston University-founded shortly after Boley in Oklahoma-will be treated in a story in this column by request of many readers, as will all-black Taft, Oklahoma. Early day black leaders sought, in fact, to make Oklahoma an allblack state. More later.

ment, OIC chapters led by active ministers, prepared to mobilize support for job training legislation as they had for public accommodations and voting rights, Maurice Dawkins, Convocation Coordinator, declared.

In his dramatic speech before the nation's top press, Sullivan almost preached a sermon as he warned "If we do not prepare our people on a massive scale with a new manpower training program and new job opportunities, the results to the nation will be devastating. . . . "

Spellbinding his sophistocated audience with Biblical imagery and fundamental doctrine, Rev. Sullivan declared.

"If we do not begin to significantly solve the problem now, by the year 2000, taking just the Black population alone, one out of every two will have to be subsidized by some form of relief, costing the nation, at today's cost, $50 Billion Dollars in welfare; and for the whole nation the cost could well exceed $200 Billion Dollars. This condition will lead to national bankruptcy, and domestic choas. We must deal with the situation now when it is still at proportions that can be handled.

The Philadelphia minister, who is the first black man elected to the Board of General Motors, urged "industry and business create the jobs and let OIC recruit and train. . .thereby create the productivity to produce more, increase purchasing power to buy more, and to thus make the wheel of America's prosperity go round and round.

"In this new American alliance," he added, "we will help each other; American industry and the people." Government cannot solve the problem, the minister said, because "government is too tied up in the conditions that create the problems."

Sullivan said the poor had been exploited by too many government programs which provided big ideas, big offices, big payrolls and no help for the poor.

Although the OIC leader praised business for their support of his program, he was extremely critical of organized labor for not helping in the training and hiring of OIC graduates. "I don't know what Labor thinks of us. They seem to think we are some kind of competitor," he declared in answer to a question.

Explaining that he has been a union man all of his life, Sullivan declared, "we are going to train brick layers and construction workers to build America."

It was noted that Richard C. Gerstenberg, chairman of the board of General Motors; Virgil B. Day, vice president of General Electric and J.D. Hodgson, Secretary of Labor, attended the Convocation and pledged their support to the OIC program.

The organization also presented awards to key Black government officials for their efforts to aid minority groups. Citations went to Samuel C. Jackson, assistant secretary for Housing and Urban Development; Robert Hampton, U.S. Civil Service Commission; John Wilkes, Director, Office of Contract Compliance, and Robert Brown, special assistant to the President. John Jenkins, Director of the Office of Minority Business Enterprise, was also cited.

OIC leaders cancelled a scheduled visit to the White House without explanation, but Dr. Sullivan said in a speech before the National Press Club that, "Mr. Nixon is no better or no worse than any other President Mr. Nixon goes up and down with Negro voters, according to his actions." The minister added, "But Republicans will have to get 30 percent of the Black vote to win in 1972 and Mr. Nixon will have to 'level off' if he is going to get it."

The first OIC was started by Rev. Sullivan in 1964 in an abandoned jail in Philadelphia. The organization has trained 85,000 persons out of 140,000 applicants for jobs now totalling $400,000,000 annually in payrolls. The minister said he will need $100 million to carry out his new program.

Sixth Annual Lincoln-Douglass Tea Held Here Sunday

"I'm concerned about the quality of my life, rather than the quantity," seemed to be the main thought given by T. J. Patterson, editor of the West Texas Times, who was main speaker at the sixth annual Lincoln-Douglass Tea last Sunday afternoon at Mac Simmons Community Center.

A dynamic panel, based their discussion on the theme of the program, "Where Freedom Exists," talked on Vigilance, Education and Order. Participants were Mrs. Willie M. Washington, Harold Chatman and R. J. Givens.

Mrs. R. B. Thompson, gave the greetings. Mrs. Joan Y. Ervin, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Lubbock Public Schools, gave a warm welcome to everyone

Pretty little Eunice Young, a School, did her version of the "Creation." She was assisted by Mrs. L. S. Graves, principal and founder of the private institution. Prayer was given by Rev. George Flemings, pastor of Reiks Chapel Baptist Church; benediction was given by Rev. A. L. Dunn, pastor of New Hope Baptist Church. Rev. Adolphus Cleveland, minister of New Jerusalem Baptist Church, served as master of ceremonies.

Patterson made it clear that we must start now developing ourselves to compete in the world of works. "We've got to start now with a revolution of our minds if we're going to make it in this world, regardless if we live in the city of Lubbock or West Texas," he said.

A special photo display was made possible by E. C. Struggs Junior High School, Charles E. Brown, principal. This effort was sponsored by the Lincoln-Douglass The director of the annual fete, Club and Reiks Chapel Mission. Supporters included NAACP and United Black Coalition.

VA Program Opens New Job Opportunities

A Veterans Administration drive to develop new job training positions for veterans with business firms produced 7,300 new job "slots" in November. A total of 26,500 have been developed since the agency launched an expanded national on-the-job training "outreach" effort in mid July.

leads to a permanent job, it was turn remains at $5.00.

To identify job "slots" added in November, officials said specialists made 9,000 visits to 8,000 business establishments. These firms developed 3,000 new OJT programs (many of them small) in which veterans can participate under the G.I. Bill.

VA employees made 7,300 visits to 6,500 establishments in October, resulting in 3,400 new programs and 6,900 job "slots," officials revealed.

In August, first full month of the stepped-up program, specialists made 5,900 visits to 5,200 firms. These contacts resulted in the development of 2,000 new programs, and 4,800 job "slots."

Under the intensified OJT "outreach" program, specialists from VA regional offices visit local firms to encourage them to establish programs for veterans, and assist in setting them up.

VA officials noted that while taking OJT a veteran with no dependents receives a starting stipend of $108.00 monthly from the agency, and at least one-half the salary (from employer) of the job for which he is training.

They pointed out that finding jobs for veterans is not a primary responsibility of VA (Dept. of Labor has that), however, VA is a leading employer of veterans and sponsors or promotes various job-finding activities such as job marts, job banks and job counsel-

(GEMINI May 21 to June 20) . . . Your keynote this week is 'SENTIMENTAL.' Circumstances bring situations together that should evoke charity, compassion and mercy from you; especially since dependents or those younger are involved. Be understanding, even sentimental this week.

(CANCER June 21 to July 22)... Your keynote this week is 'EMOTIONAL DEPTH.' Your affairs this week center around and are direct result of deep-rooted emotional incidents. Emotions can open flood-gates of depth in self or others. Make sure emotions don't undermine ability to function.

(LEO July 23 to Aug. 11) . . . Your keynote this week is 'COLD FACTS.' Realistic cold facts take root. Attitudes toward self or others makes significant, subtle changes in outlook. Emotional problems confront you this week and some heart-rending realities bring severe lessons home.

(VIRGO Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) . . . Your keynote this week is 'UTILIZE.' If you're in situation not necessarily to your liking, turn it around and utilize what it has to offer. Concentrate on status-quo to extract the best available. Could be blessing in disguise this week.

(SCORPIO Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) . . . Your keynote this week is 'HAMMER-HEAD.' Little progress is made this week, unless you use hammer-head tactics. Put your shoulder to wheel of fortune. What's earned comes the 'hard-way', dearly won! Earn the right of your convictions Scorpio
