

Reese to Mark 25th Year With Public Open House

Colonel Schuyler Bissell, 64th Flying Training Wing Commander at Reese Air Force Base has announced that the base will sponsor a public open house on Sunday, October 6 between the hours of 1:00 and 5:30 p.m. in honor of the 25th Anniversary of Reese's continuous active service as an Air Force Base.

Featured attraction of the day's activities will be the first local appearance of "The Thunderbirds," The U.S. Air Force's Aerial Demonstration Team flying the T-38 Falcon, the same aircraft flown by student pilots at Reese in the later stages of their year-long Undergraduate Pilot Training Program.

High performance Air Force aircraft will be on display along the flightline. The Confederate Air Force Wing at Hobbs, N.M., and a private collector have been invited to participate. They have been asked to provide training aircraft such as used at Reese during the past 25 years.

The modern aircraft will be flown to Reese from other Air Force Bases throughout the country for the static display.

The Lubbock Christian College and the South Plains College marching bands will provide musical entertainment during the afternoon and the Lubbock Radio Controlled Model Airplane Club will demonstrate their version of the Thunderbird's maneuvers.

Many base facilities will be open to visitors during the day.

Lubbock Army Air Field (later to become known as Reese AFB) came into existence on June 23, 1941. The field was officially opened on January 22, 1942 and remained active throughout World War II until it was closed down on December 31, 1945.

The base was reactivated by the Air Force on October 5, 1949 and officially named Reese AFB on November 5, 1949 in memory of First Lieutenant Augustus F. Reese, a Shallowater, Texas native killed in combat in 1943. Reese has remained continuously active since 1949 and to date has graduated more than 20,000 pilots from its training program.

Reese AFB is located six miles west of Lubbock, Texas, off Texas Highway 116. (The Lubbock - Levelland Highway).

Anniversary Celebrated at Mt. Vernon

Townhouse Meeting is Set Monday Evening, Oct. 7

A "Townhouse Meeting" will be held at Mae Simmons Community Center Monday evening, October 7, beginning at 7 p.m., according to Rev. A.L. Davis. "We need a forum to let the community know of our problems," says Rev. Davis. Although this effort will be sponsored by organizations in East Lubbock, according to Rev. Davis, special efforts have been made to invite all ethnic groups of East Lubbock to participate. Some of the Lubbock personalities invited to participate in the forum are: Mayor Roy Bass, Wayne Finnell, president of Lubbock Clearing House; Dr. Jack Steele, dean of the College of Business Administration at Texas Tech University; John Logan, executive secretary of Lubbock Chamber of Commerce; A.C. Verner, president of First National Bank and others. "Organizations in East Lubbock have given up their complete cooperation," says Rev. Davis. "The entire community of East Lubbock needs to attend this forum so people in position will know of our many problems," he continued.

Black Cannot Collect Damages, Court Rules
Hartford, Conn. — (NBNS) — Since a "truly private club" has a right to associate with whom ever it pleases, a black man barred from the club because of his race cannot collect damages, according to a landmark ruling by a three judge federal panel. The judges found against Louis Cornelius Jr. of Groton, Conn.

Klan Growing
St. Cloud, Minn. — (NBNS) — The national director of the Ku Klux Klan, a 24 year old, David Duke, declared at St. Cloud State College that the Klan is "growing faster now than at any other point in its history."

Attica Inmate Gets 4 Years
One of the 61 persons indicted in connection with the 1971 Attica Prison riot has been sentenced to up to four years in prison on charges of unlawful imprisonment. Richard Bilello, 44, had pleaded guilty Aug. 30 to the charge, although he had been indicted on additional charges of kidnapping and coercion as well. Now serving a 40 year prison sentence on a murder conviction, Bilello told the judge he was "trying to wash the blood off my hands."

"We've had nineteen pastors and four bishops at the Mount Vernon United Methodist Church" said George Woods, one of the charter members of the church. Last Sunday afternoon, Lubbockites stopped by Mount Vernon United Methodist Church and wished their pastor, Rev. Joe H. Carter, and members a "Happy forty-fifth anniversary."

"Our church has been in Lubbock since 1919," admitted Woods, "and we have an interesting history". Mr. Woods made known how the church was named "Mount Vernon". He made it known that Mount Vernon had been named Moses Chapel and Caprock in the past. "Mrs. Juanita Long, who was known as Mother Long, was responsible for renaming our church", the longtime resident of Lubbock said.

Rev. A.W. Wilson, pastor of Bethel A.M.E. Church, delivered the sermon of the hour. His subject: "Wash Up", was an inspiration to those in attendance. "We're gonna have to clean up our churches and quit being hypocrites," said Rev. Wilson. His text was found in John 9:10-11. Rev. Carter expressed his sincere appreciation for those persons who helped to make this service a success, both financially and spiritually. "I am so happy to see so many people working with us," said the minister who recently came to Lubbock.

Special music was rendered by the choir from Oak Lawn United Methodist Church. Other music included Senior Choir No. Two of Bethel A.M.E. Church, under the direction of Mrs. Sudall Brown. Brother and Sister, Lon and Lillian Griggs, sang a duo. Lillian recited a poem: "Do Your Best."

Mr. Woods gave special welcome from the congregation of Mount Vernon. Other greetings were given by T.J. Patterson, president of East Lubbock Business Association, and Dr. F.L. Lovings, president of the Lubbock Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Brother Harold Chatman served as master of ceremonies and Brother B.J. Strong was chairperson of the committee. The Mount Vernon Choir sang a special number. Rev. A.L. Dunn gave invocation and Rev. J. Scott gave benediction.

Dunbar Class Reunion Set Here

Ms. Joyce Graves, chairperson for the 1964 Graduation Class of Dunbar High School, announces that plans are being made for a splendid week of activities for the 1964 class this month. A meeting has been set for Sunday afternoon, October 6, at 4 p.m. at the residence of Ms. Graves, 2105 East 4th Street, Apt. 44, to finalize plans for the activities.

The tentative schedule of events include the following:

Sunday, October 20, from 4 to 6 p.m. there will be a tea honoring all teachers who taught at Dunbar High School during the 63-64 school years with class members attending;

Thursday, October 24, at 8:30 a.m., there will be an assembly program in the Dunbar auditorium. Group attendance is urged; 2:30 p.m., Thursday, October 24, is the time of the homecoming pep rally. Again, all class members are urged to attend; and Friday, October 25, a private party for class members and their spouses. The address and time will be given at a later date.

"We are working real hard for a terrific program during this week for the class of 1964," says Ms. Graves. "All graduates of the Class of 1964 are asked to attend this important meeting. If class members don't attend the meeting, they will not have an opportunity to give input to activities for the class," she continued.

"Helping People Is My Aim In Life"

"The problems of East Lubbock are part our fault, too," says George Scott, Jr., Assistant Dean of Students for Administration at Texas Tech University "We have not done our part in voting as we should; we've not understood the power of the ballot," he continues.

A native of Taft, Oklahoma, Scott came to Lubbock in 1953 as a science teacher and head football coach of the Dunbar High School Panthers. He also served in the capacity of boys' counselor, from 1958 to 1959, and became the assistant principal of Dunbar from 1959 through 1965. He became principal of the "maroon and white" in 1965 through 1969.

During his involvement at the high school level in Lubbock, Scott has seen many problems in our local schools. "The lack of opportunity for our kids and our parents not motivated have caused many problems in the predominately black schools," he said.

A man who has been on the firing line in the Lubbock Public School system, Scott says: "Black kids haven't had the opportunity, because they haven't seen the image. There hasn't been many success stories for our black kids to see."

"Lubbock has an excellent public school system for some segments of the community, but it is not completely reaching the needs of many minority students," he elaborated. "When I use the term minority students, I am talking

Northern Segregation

A civil rights study group headed by William Taylor, former head of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, has charged after a long study that school segregation continues in the 33 northern and western states, that schools in these states are now more racially segregated than schools in the southern and border states—where segregation was formerly required by state law.

The report, out this month, says the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Office of Civil Rights has often uncovered evidence of segregation in western and northern states and done little about it.

Meanwhile, the great crusade to integrate schools in the southern and border states has been carried on. The result of relatively rapid massive integration in the Deep South states, ironically, is that the schools in these states have resegregated themselves.

Private schools have gobbled up the big majority of white students in these areas and the public schools, with lowered standards, morale and academic excellence, have become minority schools. In border states and states where the minority student percentage is not great, results have been encouraging.

Few argue any longer over the theoretical, Christian or moral aspects of integration. But it is evident that the law has been applied unevenly in the great hypocritical tradition of non-southern reformers of the South. (The same tradition afflicts some politicians who do little in their own districts but who readily damn practices further away).

Too fast for the common good in a few states, too slow in many, and good results in some; that seems to be the box score on the federal government's placing of pupils in the schools thus far.

Crime and TV

The latest shocking report on crime reveals that violent crime in America rose 47 per cent in the last five years.

This report follows repeated warning by psychiatrists, sociologists and editors that commercial television's continued glamorization of crime and flood of television violence teaches crime to the impressionable, young and unintelligent.

Since crime is the nation's number-one problem and disgrace, Congress cannot forever shirk its responsibility to act to clean up commercial television programming. Little has been done in that direction, despite public relations propaganda from the television networks.

The problem is money; sponsors can attract viewers with shock, horror and crime and both the networks and sponsors are out to make money primarily. The public interest will continue to come second until Congress either forces the Federal Communications Commission to act with new authority or acts itself.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

I am beginning to believe that integration is hurting our predominately black schools in East Lubbock. I say this without any reservations as it was an editorial several years ago in the West Texas Times that predicted some of the same problems we are encountering in the black community today. I don't believe that Supt. Ed Irons knows exactly what is happening in one of the elementary schools in East Lubbock, namely Ella Iles Elementary School. A meeting was scheduled to be held last Wednesday because of this drastic situation.

Something has got to be done about the problems at the Ella Iles School. Regardless who is hurt in this matter, something has to be done now! I can remember last year when the same type of problems were existing and things seemed to blow over. The symptom was dealt with, but the cause still exists.

A group of ladies met last Saturday evening about the situation at the school. My source tells me that they will invite the superintendent of the Lubbock Public Schools and appraise him of the matter. If the situation is like it is, I say take it to the Lubbock School Board of Trustees. If there is no results there, take it to Judge Halbert Woodward, and if they are not satisfied with his solution, take it to the Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) people.

I can remember when I came to Lubbock in 1958 when if a principal or teacher in the black schools did something against the wishes of a black mother or father, that mother or father went up to the campus and dealt with that principal or teacher.

In 1974, this seems to be a different approach. What has happened to those parents who were concerned about the welfare of their children as they were in 1958. If you would have heard the things I've heard over the past two weeks, I am sure you will go to your child's school.

Many of us have talked about how East Lubbock can become a viable community as it has been in the past. I am beginning to wonder about that statement since our kids are not being treated like they should. If the kids don't get the education they need, there is no need to develop East Lubbock.

Think about this and start getting involved with the problems which our kids are facing in some of the schools in East Lubbock. If this doesn't bother you, then you'd better do something—like move out of East Lubbock quick. Our kids need our help now!

The ladies who are working on the Ella Iles Elementary School problem need your help now. Give them you help. If there's one black child down, they they all are down. If you think I'm shucking you about some of the problems, then ask your little Johnny or Mary when they come home from school.

Check it out anyway you want, but remember the longer you wait on doing something, the more you are hurting your child's future.

An incident occurred to one of our young black girls last Friday evening, shortly before midnight in her own front yard. Someone unknown, according to the parents of the young lady, jumped on her and beat her up. The young lady was coming from the Mae Simmons Community Center after working at a social function for the boys and girls of Dunbar High School.

Of course, the young lady should have called home for a ride, but she chose to walk home with several of her girlfriends. The girlfriends deserted her for a ride with some fellows, but she had to get home and she continued to walk to her residence on East 28th Street. When she got in the yard, her unknown assailant did his cowardly act.

The young black sister was beaten by the unknown person for several minutes. It should be known that the young sister is a diabetic and was taken to the hospital immediately after the incident because of her "sugar going up."

This young lady could have been the daughter of any parent on East 28th Street or any street in the city of Lubbock. Surely, someone knows who is responsible for this terrible act on a young sister. If we are going to be black people, fighting for our rights and moving in the same direction, this kind of mess will have to cease.

Whoever is responsible for this incident, you did a cowardly act and should be dealt with. However, since this incident has happened, it should open our eyes to what is going on in East Lubbock. Some of you parents condemn the printing of the "Police Beat" in this newspaper. It is printed to let you know what is going on. I realize that people across the Maxon-Dixon Line committ crime, too, but there are some black brothers and sisters who are doing the same thing.

What has happened to this Dunbar High School senior has happened. Let's do something now to prevent these types of acts in our community in the future. If you know who is responsible for this act, inform the police.

It's getting to the point where Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan and Councilman Bryce Campbell are contradicting themselves everytime they open their mouth. Check out their statements on the expansion of the City Council.

Mrs. Jordan said: "I could argue that just because a person lives in a certain area of town he may not represent that area effectively." On the other hand, Campbell said: "When I ran for office I said I was opposed to it, and I still am."

Evidently they are not thinking about running for office again.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS LOVE KISSINGER

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1974, from United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)
 Washington—Since Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's role in the CIA "destabilizing" operation in Chile was revealed, he is once again being accused of perjury. Kissinger's critics are asking the same question asked of former President Nixon: Is anyone above the law?

Foreign diplomats, however, are upset over the attacks on Kissinger. Some have let it be known that they consider Kissinger almost indispensable to continuing the East-West detente and settling the Middle East crisis.

With Richard Nixon gone, only Kissinger has a personal relationship with the key leaders—Soviet party leader Brezhnev in Moscow, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai in Peking, President Sadat in Cairo, President Assad in Syria and Prime Minister Rabin in Israel.

The Soviets are particularly uneasy over Kissinger's future. They have developed a special relationship with him, which they want to continue. They respect him as a formidable adversary. But they have developed a trust in him that makes it possible to deal with him. They are unsure whether they could establish the same relationship with his successor.

It was to quiet these fears that President Ford gave his ringing endorsement of Kissinger at the United Nations.

Since the CIA Chile operation was revealed, meanwhile, secret diplomatic cables have been pouring into the State Department reporting that foreign leaders everywhere believe the CIA is also working against them.

The cables from India, for example, report that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi believes her government may be a CIA target. And Greek leaders, according to the cables from Athens, are convinced that the CIA was behind the trouble in Cyprus.

We have seen secret documents which tell of CIA bribes to leaders in Africa, Asia and Latin America. But we have also seen intelligence reports of Soviet and Chinese undercover activity to undermine democratic governments.

The question is whether the United States should get down and operate on the communist level.

Economic Knaves: President Ford's economic advisers have managed to make themselves look foolish.

His economic czar, Alan Greenspan, told a group of poor people that stock brokers have suffered the most from inflation. Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns blamed the public for runaway prices, and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz suggested that Americans kill off half their pets to save food.

But the participants in President Ford's economic summit have a better suggestion. In their private discussions, they have agreed generally that the President has to make a clean break with the economic policies of President Nixon if he hopes to restore public confidence.

Public confidence is the most important weapon to fight inflation. And the public simply has lost confidence in the Nixon economic team, which President Ford has now inherited.

Blunt Advice: Republican congressional leaders have given President Ford some blunt advice. They reminded him that he started out making decisions by himself when he first took over the Republican leadership in the House. This got him into hot water, so he began listening to the other leaders. He was far more successful, they suggested, after he began consulting with them.

As President, he has relapsed into making decisions all alone. He failed to consult Republican leaders about pardoning former President Nixon. The decision has backfired badly.

He also failed to consult them about removing George Bush as Republican National Chairman. Changing the party leadership at the height of the political campaign has brought an outcry from Republican candidates all over the country.

The President agreed with their advice and has dutifully promised to consult them hereafter on major decisions.

Nixon's Woes: Friends of Richard Nixon tell us he is in no condition to testify at the Watergate trials. He is so depressed, they say, that he can't bear to discuss Watergate. Any cross examination, they fear, would cause his emotional collapse.

They definitely hope, therefore, that the court will accept his phlebitis condition as medical grounds for excusing him from the witness stand. The discovery of a new blood clot in his lung has strengthened his case.

Nixon had been subpoenaed earlier to be deposed in a Watergate related lawsuit. But his friends feared he couldn't stand the emotional strain. They persuaded him to enter the hospital the day before he was scheduled to testify.

Our court sources believe Judge John Sirica will eventually order independent doctors to examine the former president. Sirica is expected to study their diagnosis of Nixon's physical and emotional incapacity before ruling whether he must testify.

If the doctors believe he is too ill to appear in court, the judge is expected to order Nixon's deposition taken quietly at San Clemente—perhaps on film so it can be shown in the courtroom.

Watch On Waste: The President wants to trim $5 billion from this year's budget. He invited key Senators to the White House for a dinner the other evening to discuss budget cuts. Budget Director Roy Ash gave them a list of proposed savings. The Senators couldn't agree on any of them. Each Senator stoutly defended his own pet projects while arguing strenuously that the other fellow's ought to be cut.

Washington Whirl: President Ford is fiercely opposed to the campaign reform that Congress is fashioning. He objects vigorously to the public financing of presidential campaigns. He has pulled strings on Capitol Hill, therefore, to kill the campaign-spending bill. In the aftermath of Watergate, it is likely that Congress will pass the reforms. And Ford, rather than risk public wrath, will undoubtedly sign the bill....The General Services Administration is holding in "courtesy storage" some 1,000 boxes of gifts that Richard Nixon received while he was in the White House. The value of the gifts is estimated in excess of $2 million. Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has assigned a task force to examine the questions raised by the foreign gifts, particularly the jewelry. As of now, say our sources, he is leaning toward the conclusion that most of the gifts belong to the government....Some major stumbling blocks stand in the way of a Cuban-American detente. There is the billion-dollar question, for example, of the property Fidel Castro seized from U.S. interests. On the other hand, Castro would like to get rid of the U.S. Naval base at Guantanamo. The two governments will probably agree to resume normal travel, but it is not likely the United States will give up Guantanamo or that Castro will make full payment for the seized property.

DEAR EDITOR

Editor:

West Texas Times:

May I commend you as editor of the West Texas Times for your excellent coverage on East Lubbock affairs.

I particularly enjoy reading about activities involving my friends living in East Lubbock, and the front page news briefs containing items we never see in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

I really feel the section entitled Police Beat could be eliminated as I see no value in reading about details of frequent break-ins in any part of the city.

I read the editorial page and follow with interest and enthusiasm the activities of ELBA, the problems with city hall, and your constant encouragement of better participation by all citizens in government affairs.

Enclosed find my check for renewal of my subscription for another year of reading the West Texas Times.

Sincerely,
Elayne Banks

To The Editor

West Texas Times:

It seems that some officials of government and the big oil industry are predicting the price of gasoline to continue its upward spiral. Some economists declare that the price may go to $1 or more by some time in the new year. The insistent refrain is that the "era" of cheap energy, of fuel, has passed forever.

"If this be true", states the Hobbs Daily News Sun "then the American dream, or standard, or norm, or whatever you want to call it . . . is also passing forever and the land of opportunity will become the land of deprivation. The great mass of Americans will soon come to know the kind of hard-scrabble living that has been a way of life with millions of people in Europe and other places around the world."

Abundant and cheap fuel has not only provided comforts, pleasures and luxuries for millions of Americans, it has been the prime mover of our great industry. It is the base of our economic achievements. The Sun concludes: "To accept without alternatives, or protest, the blanket statement that 'cheap money' is gone forever is to accept a stark way of life unknown to most Americans."

Will someone take the helm here with resolution and wisdom before it is too late? It just could be that another depression would make the one in the 30's look like a Sunday School picnic.

Yours truly,
Bob Tieuel, Jr.

I wish I could say this column is returning to the regular place in our publications because of the many, and varied, requests over the past year or so to return to writing by my friends. But, alas, I can't. Thought I have been asked by several to not—or better yet—never; continue to contribute a column, I can't honestly say more than one, or possibly two, persons have inquired as to my health, and why I haven't been contributing to our weekly efforts. So, once again, to all of you "out there in reader land", I'll attack the keys of a worn and sometimes very tired ole typewriter. If I might at times make some sense, keep your cards and letters coming.

A great salute—and a tip of the ole hat to one Mr. J. Fred Bucy, Jr., of Texas Instruments, for his informative—and (as far as most of the people in the Lubbock "Ivory Tower" set were concerned) earth shaking revelations in his speaker role at the annual United Way Kickoff luncheon last Thursday at Lubbock's Municipal Coliseum. Admittedly he may—or may not—have stepped on a lot of toes telling the people of Lubbock and West Texas what is actually wrong with this country—for that matter what is probably wrong with the local area—he certainly upstaged everyone and everything else in Lubbock as far as what was discussed over coffee between Friday and Sunday morning. (Of course after that impressive Tech win over Texas—which has been long in coming and was "Oh, So sweet!") Mr. Bucy and his so-called "tirade", as one editorial called his presentation, could certainly have been considered forgotten.

"Forgotten" except to the extent that Mr. Bucy, in his "tirade", did the one thing that probably will allow the United Fund to continue to remain on people's minds a little longer than up to the exciting week-end just past. He shook people in this area to the point that they will continue to talk about his presentation long after they wonder whether or not Texas Tech will win another football game this year. And this writer believes that is most important. I feel that if it is important that the United Way be funded—and the United Way be supported from year to year by the average person in Lubbock and Lubbock County—then the "United Way Kickoff Speech" should be remembered beyond the usual Friday-night Texas Tech Pep Rally and the all consuming Tech victory over Texas.

The United Way Kickoff Speech should be remembered long after the "Monday morning quarter back sessions" and talked about long after the "Cotton Bowl Preparations." I feel and strongly believe that that may be the case—especially if some of the local "holier than thou" people who think they were insulted, continue to be "insulted" by Mr. Bucy's remarks. If they are still "insulted"—which I personally doubt will last much longer than a snowball in hell—then there certainly won't be any problem in raising the $1 million plus budget this year.

Again, Mr. Bucy, my salute—and a hat tip—for making a lot of people who thought responsibility ended with their attendance at the annual "Kick-Off Dinner" wonder if maybe the show might just fit.

Did you see recently where one of the members of the Lubbock City Council wondered if maybe it would be easier to solve the fire call problem outside the city limits by annexing certain areas around the City? Seems that if that were done, according to this councilperson, then the people who needed fire protection would pay city taxes and would certainly be entitled to city fire protection. Interesting to note that Fire Chief Sharp stated that the recently annexed areas can't even expect to receive the required three to five minute call response needed to meet standards, and he also felt that any more annexed areas would not be afforded much better service.

Maybe the best thing to do is raise Lubbock County taxes—and by the same token—raise the money necessary to take care of the additional city's charges to make "out of city" fire runs. Since more than 50% of the money to run Lubbock County comes from inside the city of Lubbock, raising county taxes would certainly let the city residents pay for the additional charges to get the county residents fire protection.

Of course this wouldn't be good politics unless someone explained that the county politicians were "putting in on" the "city slickers" since the "city elected officials" were "charging the full fair price" to county residents to come out and certify that there certainly was a fire at a particular location, and someone certainly should be more careful next time—although it was impossible to save anything, which is about the most an $800 plus fire run outside the city limits now amounts to.

One would certainly wonder when the time will come in Lubbock—both the city and the county—when politicians realize that passing the buck doesn't make that much difference to the taxpayers, since the taxpayer gets the bill in the final action—though the service and results are often a long time coming.

A thought to remember, you can always get someone to agree with you if you say what he likes to hear!

Tel-Med Program of Lubbock is Now Available to City Residents

A healthful education concept is now available for Lubbock residents. This concept will be known as Tel-Med of Lubbock. Tel-Med of Lubbock will provide health and medical information on a variety of health subjects concerning children, men and women.

Several organizations have been combining efforts with West Texas Health Systems since January to make Tel - Med a reality in Lubbock. This program will be the first of its kind in the state of Texas and becomes the twenty-fifth such program in the nation.

Tel-Med, Inc., the parent organization, is headquartered in San Bernardino, California.

This telephone health library, which will include some forty Spanish tapes of interest to the Mexican American community, has been approved by the Lubbock-Garza Medical Society.

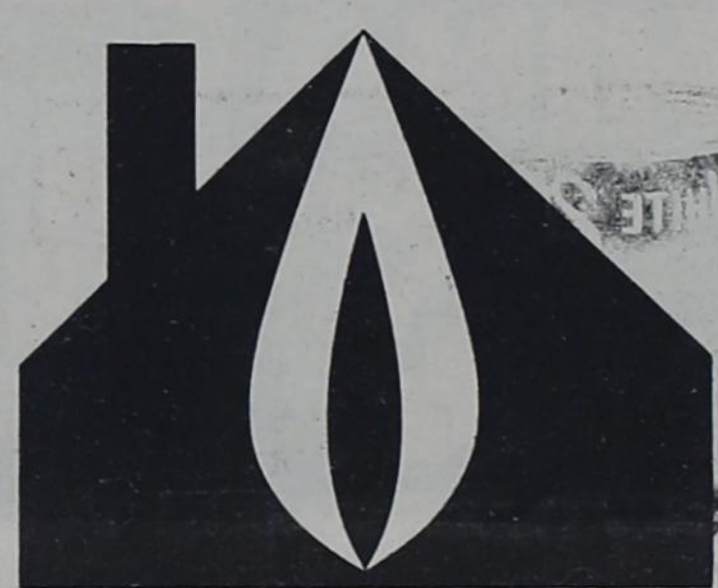

Several local agencies and organizations are providing financial support, others are providing financial support, others are providing printed brochures, and the Lubbock Independent School District is contributing space for housing Tel-Med.

Tel-Med is a collection of 186 tape recorded health messages to provide information as well as motivation. Through the use of these messages, it is expected that people will become self-informed, motivated to take preventive measures toward better health, and help guide people to make use of health facilities that give assistance in certain areas.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

Mr. Webster, you just didn't publish a dictionary with enough adjectives to cover Texas Tech's victory over Texas. By now, every possible one has been used—and if anyone is tired reading them, no one would admit it Sunday morning.

It was an impressive triumph. Indeed, the Raiders did to Texas exactly what the Longhorns have been doing to other teams through the years. Tech literally outpowered the powerful Horns.

It was especially sweet for Jim Carlen, who had come close four times previously without seeing the Big Red win. Jim couldn't keep a partially concealed smile off his face at the post game press conference, but he was generous in his praise.

He said Tom Wilson called the bomb. He said Richard Bell had called the defenses. And he praised all his aides, while admitting that he shut down Tech's offense at the half.

Shutting down the offense might not sit well with everyone, but it made sense. Texas' Wishbone isn't suited to playing catch up football and Jim didn't want to take any chances on helping Texas get back in the game. Besides, the defense was doing great work.

Indeed, the defense was magnificent. It played the option well, the bread and butter of the Texas attack, and it stopped the power sweeps, trademarks of Texas supremacy.

It started out like a typical Texas game. They kicked off, held Tech, forced a punt and then began the usual methodical drive to the goal. This is Texas. Here we come. Stop us. Get a seven on the board and make the other team play catch-up.

But a funny thing happened. Tech stopped the UT drive, forced a field goal. No one knew it at the time, but it was all over. After that the Raiders controlled.

Indeed, Tech took the ensuing kickoff and went 80 steady yards for a 7-3 lead. And they scored on one of the plays that Texas loves close in, the quick pitch and end sweep.

Then, to add insult to injury, Tech used the bomb to literally bomb Texas out of contention. This, too, is one of the favorite ploys of the Horns. After that, Tech was the aggressor by playing brilliant defense and forcing Texas mistakes.

The Horns were frustrated thoroughly. In all, they drove 44 yards, 55 yards, 84 yards, 45 yards and 31 yards all to get only three points.

Six times Texas was inside Tech's 30. The Horns reached the 35, 16, 17, 23 and 25. They scored a field goal, lost the ball three times on downs, had a pass picked off and lost a fumble. It was a study in frustration and a tremendous tribute to the defense that the Raiders threw up.

Another little noted comparison was on third down conversions. In the first half, for instance, Tech converted on seven of nine; Texas on three of six. In the second half, with Tech playing conservatively, the Raiders converted three of eight; Texas, three of ten.

For the game, Tech converted 10 of 17; Texas, six of 16. In fact, Tech's first three touchdowns came on third down situations.

If you were at the game, or saw it on TV, you probably noticed that on his 77-yard bomb, Lawrence Williams turned around and motioned a couple of times to Raymond Clayborn.

Why had he done it? "Clayborn had been talking to me," Williams said with a grin. "I can't tell you what he said, but you know he's supposed to be real fast. Anyway, I got 10 yards behind him on the pass, so I motioned to him. I just wanted to see if he was as fast as everybody said he was!"

For Pete's sake, don't start talking about (1) Ranking in the Top 10; (2) Southwest Conference title; or (3) Cotton Bowl. One game does not a season make, even though it is a giant step in the right direction.

A tough—despite the loss to Baylor—Oklahoma State comes in Saturday. And, looking down the road, you can't sell A&M, Baylor, SMU, Arkansas or Rice short. Even TCU did a good job last week and will have to be considered.

The question here is, can the Raiders remain high the rest of the season? Obviously they did a year ago. Just as obviously, they must this year if they want the same success.

The Raiders were emotionally flat for New Mexico, which becomes more and more obvious. Tech shut Texas down with only 58 total yards the first half—and the Lobos aren't in the same class with the Horns. I think this team has matured and is on its way. Stick with them and you'll be rewarded.

Incidentally, the cream of the Southwest sports writers were present Saturday, including Denne Freeman, the AP sports editor. You may remember that I said, on August 29, I hoped Denne was on hand to see Tech win.

Denne had "given" the title to Texas, using the psychological edge the Horns had over teams like Tech, A&M, Arkansas. I said, also, that I hoped Rosy Leaks was well and played the whole game. Oh, well, even a blind hog can find an acorn every now and then!

Get on out to Jones Stadium Saturday and help yell the Raiders on. How Sweet It Is!

Services Held at Tahoka for Relative Of Lubbockite

Funeral services were held at White Funeral Home Chapel at Tahoka, Texas, for Mr. Frank Mims, 48, at 2 p.m. last Thursday with Rev. M.L. Brown, pastor of the Pleasant Grove Baptist Church, officiating.

Mims, who had been a patient at a local Lubbock hospital several times prior to his death, passed away Sunday at the V.A. Hospital

Women's Day At New Hope Church Sunday

After much preparation and determination, the special Women's Day activities at the New Hope Baptist Church was quite a success. Their special aim was to beat the men who had their special day earlier in the month. This special effort was to increase the church's budget. Both efforts were achieved.

The women, all in white, had charge of the services throughout last Sunday. A special mission chorus furnished music. Devotional was led by Mme. Beaty and Colquitt. Public offering was led by Mme. Sheffield and Cox. Introduction of speaker, Mrs. Vivian Jones, who is a member of the First Baptist Church of Eastland, Texas, was done by Mrs. Joan Y. Ervin.

Her theme, "Building Bridges Over Troubled Waters," was well prepared and eloquently delivered. Mrs. Jones is vice president of the Women's Convention of the West Texas District Association, at Big Springs, Texas.

A native of Robinson City, he came to Tahoka 40 years ago from Cameron, Texas. He was a veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Army. He was employed as a farm laborer. He was an uncle of Lester Charles Brown of Lubbock.

Other survivors include a daughter, Barbara of Tahoka; a son, Frank Jr., of Lovington, New Mexico; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Mims of Tahoka; two sisters, Mrs. Mattie Lee Johnson of Phoenix, Arizona, and Mrs. Jewel Lee Jelks of Houston; two brothers, Eli Mims, Jr. of Denver, Colorado, and Albert Mims of Phoenix, Arizona.

Burial was held in the Tahoka Cemetery.

Lubbockites attending the services were W.H. Pitts, Jr., Mrs. Althea Richardson, Mrs. Ruby Glaspie, Mrs. Nannie Marie Carroll, and Charles Lester Brown.

Special remarks were given mission president, Mrs. Sar Riddles; Rev. A.L. Dunn, past Mrs. R.B. Thompson, district missionary of West Texas, was presented by Mrs. Floren Stokley. Mrs. Thompson delivered an inspiring message from the general theme of the day "Women".

Pastor Dunn was idle last Sunday and watched the women give the men, who were present and including the absent ones, good old Christian walloping fund raising. The exact figure unknown at this time. The women of New Hope Baptist Church showing the men they'll have move up a little bit higher. "Women done women in white."

Registration Must Be Before Oct. 5

Texas Secretary of State Mark W. White, Jr. today issued reminder to any qualified person wishing to participate in the November 5th General Election that they must be registered October 5th, 1974. A voter registration application may be obtained at the County Tax Assessor Collector's office in the applicant's county of residence. The application may be filed either in person or by mail.

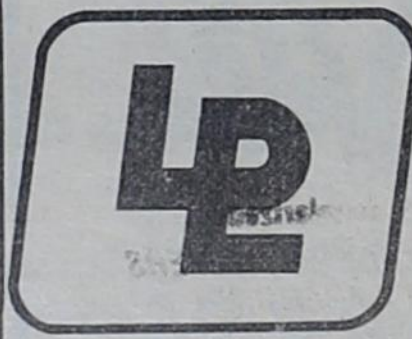

Many counties maintain branch offices in various locations throughout the county, and deputy registrars may be assigned to other areas. The Tax Assessor Collector's office should be contacted for specific information.

Secretary White noted that registration is valid for three years and is automatically extended for the succeeding three-year period by voting in a primary or general election. Consequently, many voters who have participated in prior elections need not make application to renew the registration.

The Black Experience: The ideas underlying the gains of (civil rights) seem to have penetrated neither the hearts of men nor the seats of power. Norman Dorsen, an honor graduate of Harvard Law School is the author of several important books on civil liberties and a frequent advocate before the United States Supreme Court. In his introduction to one of his latest books: The Rights of Americans in 1972, he wrote not too optimistically that "hate, rancor, suspicion, and violence pervade the American nation. Even more ominously, the mood of government is—one cannot avoid the term—repressive."

"We have witnessed official threats to the mass media; prosecutions under statutes infringing the right of free speech; accelerating invasions of privacy through wiretapping, electronic eavesdropping, and the new menaces of computer data banks and indiscriminate government dossiers; bills to authorize preventive detention; retrenchment in respect of the rights of black people; and failure to satisfy the minimum economic needs of poor people."

Now is the fall of 1974, with the resignation of Richard Nixon as chief executive officer of the United States, there are many libertarians who would say that a new era in civil liberties may be in the offing. Only time will tell.

Dorsen continues: "There is a universal interest in certain rights—the privacy of one's home and relief against Comstockian sex laws and Draconian drug laws. Finally, widely disparate groups—for instance, women, students, and servicemen—are now rebelling against ancient discriminations and seeking the full protection of the law. In short, the security of individual rights is, or should be, of universal concern. As John Donne recognized long ago, no man's freedom may be diminished without reducing the freedom of all."

Dorsen concludes: "The courts and the Congress include many men determined to resist encroachments on liberty. There are highly motivated lawyers, indefatigable civil liberties organizations, and brave clients ready for battle; above all there are millions of Americans, dedicated to a free society, who fear repression and are determined to oppose it. These favorable omens are reflected in the uninhabited protest that exists all around us." end of quote.

The Black Press: "Blacks developed their suspicions of Richard Nixon from his early political campaigns in California when he used all manner of unethical tricks to win out over Helen Gahagan Douglass. They knew then, and the record thruout his political career proved them correct, that if he used gutter tactics against a white woman, he would use them against Blacks. Nixon's tactics no doubt caused Varderman, Tillman, Glass, Bilbo and other racists before his time to turn over in their graves. Black people in America took a sigh of relief on August 15, 1974, when President Nixon announced his resignation, and we pray to Almighty God there shall never be another like him." From The Black Dispatch (Oklahoma City, Oklahoma).

In the same issue of The Black Dispatch, Eddie Jackson, columnist, writes: "The twin problems of inflation and uneven opportunity are still with us but the incessant anxiety, suspiciousness, aloofness and antiBlack aroma of the Nixon administration, has been replaced by something very plain, natural and straight forward. The tone is different, and it is possible to hope again."

The Blackoriented Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority was founded in 1908 at Howard University in Washington, D.C. to "foster scholastic excellence, high ethical standards and service to others", meeting recently in a national convention in Miami Beach, Florida, heard Publisher John Johnson of Ebony declare: "Blacks are not taking full advantage of their economic opportunities. There should be a national movement for economic progress, starting now. In the past four years, the gap has widened between median income of white families and that earned by Blacks. This relative decline reversed a 20 year trend of gains by Blacks, and during which time the number of Black elected officials doubled from 1,500 to 3,000." He made a special plea for registering Blacks and a "get out the vote" campaign in 1974. It was reported that the NAACP, the A. Phillip Randolph Institute, headed by Bayard Rustin and the Voter Education Project, whose director is John Lewis of Atlanta, have announced the formation of "Operation 74 Registration", in a joint effort.

about all kids who happen to be in a lower socio-economic circle; and this includes whites, blacks and browns," said the former Dunbar principal.

He talked about the enrollment of Dunbar High School (approximately 472 this fall) which is apparently declining. "Dunbar can't compete because the number of students to carry out additional academic programs do not exist," he said. It is Mr. Scott's feeling that something will have to be done so the kids who attend schools like Dunbar High will have an opportunity to have the same type of academic programs as Monterey, Coronado or even Estacado High Schools.

"The lack of motivation in our predominately minority high schools has affected students continuing their education at the university level," he made known. He went on to add: "These students are not exposed to opportunities, therefore, they have little desire to pursue their opportunities in the advanced education community."

In talking about Texas Tech University where he became the first black administrator in the history of the institution, he says: "Texas Tech, no doubt, has made substantial progress, but it, too, needs to improve in the enrollment of black students, faculty and staff. Surely, I am pleased over the progress I've seen over the past five years that I've been here," he said, "but Tech must keep on keeping on as it has in the past five years."

A man who is concerned about helping his fellow man, he feels as though the black student in education must do his part also. "Nothing will ever happen unless we (blacks) do our part at the college, university or public school level," he blasted.

Not only is Mr. Scott appraised about the educational situation in the Hub City, but has kept quite close to the happenings in local government, such as the city and county. His personal vita lists his involvement as YMCA board member, Community Action Board member, Guadalupe Center Board member, Lubbock Association for Retarded Children, Tax Equalization Board, Lubbock Park and Recreation Board and Upward Bound board of directors.

"The problems in Lubbock are part our (black community) fault," he continues to elaborate without any reservations. "We have not done our part at the polls as we should have, therefore, we haven't been given an opportunity to participate in the functions of government, i.e. county or city," he continued. "We can change this, however, if we would get up and take time to vote in every election," he said.

When asked the question: "Does East Lubbock have a chance to become a viable part of the community?" He says: "It has an opportunity, but someone will have to help East Lubbock from the outside, just as southwest Lubbock has been helped by outside people. We must keep in mind that it will take dollars to that also."

Mr. Scott is quite concerned about the positions taken by persons who live outside the east Lubbock community, but still make decisions which affect people who live in the east Lubbock community. He cited an example recently at a Planning and Zoning Board meeting when a board member voted to expand the present operation of the junk yard between Green Fair Manor and Coronado Apartment complexes. "This is funny, but it isn't funny to me because that darn junk yard is not far from my front yard."

"Of course, there are other organizations, such as South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) who feel as though they can make decisions for persons who have no representation on that particular board," he cited.

In Lubbock, George Scott, Jr., is known by many people of the community. He has been asked from time to time about his political ambition. He quickly says: "I have no immediate plans for the political arena, but I like living in Lubbock and want to contribute something to the community." Without any doubt, as he says: "I've lived in East Lubbock for 21 years and would have some positive input to several elective posts, but I have no immediate plans," he said.

From a science teacher to assistant dean of students at Texas Tech University is a path taken this far by Mr. Scott. He hopes to continue in his endeavor in the Lubbock, Texas community. Along the way, he admits there have been problems, but he is always willing to help people in the right direction.

He admits that the most important thing for all citizens of Lubbock to do is "get involved now, because tomorrow is too late." If we do this, he says: "We can't help but help someone along the way."
