The United States Army Field Band

U.S. Army Field Band to Appear in Civic Center Theater

The evening of May 1, 1978 will be filled with music when the United States Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus of Washington, D.C., appears in a free concert at 8 p.m. in the Civic Center Theater, sponsored locally by the Parks and Recreation Department and Civic Lubbock.

As the official touring musical representative of the United States Army, the Field Band has traveled more than two million miles since its formation in 1946, including concert tours of Canada, Mexico, the United Kingdom, Europe, the Far East and Central America.

Also appearing with the band is the 25-voice Soldiers' Chorus, a select group of highly-trained vocalists with a repertoire of patriotic medleys, Broadway show tunes, spirituals and operatic selections.

In addition to performing before American and foreign heads-of-state, the chorus was specially honored to be selected to sing at the Prayer Breakfast for the late John F. Kennedy, following his inauguration as President of the United States in 1961.

Both the Field Band and the Soldiers' Chorus perform frequently on network radio, television, and in motion pictures.

Tickets for this performance may be obtained free of charge in person or by mail from any City Community Center, or Civic Center Executive Offices. To receive tickets by mail, please include a self-addressed stamped envelope with your request.

RDS to be Topic of Medical Meeting

Respiratory Distress Syndrome (RDS) a potentialcrippler and killer of newborns, will be the focus of a symposium in Lubbock May 6.

RDS is marked by a hunger for air and labored breathing. It can lead to blindness, cerebral palsy or death. Infants with RDS usually are premature, have low birth weight and lack sufficient lung maturity.

The symposium for physicians, nurses and respiratory therapists will focus on causes of the syndrome and management of infants with the disorder.

Sponsors are the American Lung Association of Texas, West Texas Area; the South Plains Perinatal Association; the Texas Society for Respiratory Therapy, Northwest Region; and Texas Tech University School of Medicine. The symposium is supported by the West Texas Children's Foundation.

Part of the problem in treating infants with RDS in West Texas is access to a specially equipped medical center. Vast distances often must be travelled and transport of the mother and infant, if born away from a center, is a problem.

For those infants which must be transported to a medical center for specialized care, the same considerations and needs must be handled en route that would be dealt with in a neonatal intensive care unit.

These considerations include support of breathing with medication and mechanical means, maintenance of body temperature and fluid levels and protection from infection. Trained personnel and adequately equipped vehicles are the important factors in transport, Mullins said.

The symposium will deal with obstetrical aspects of RDS, immediate and long-term complications of the syndrome and transportation of the mother and newborn. Workshop sessions will deal with ventilator devices, long-term complications and nursing aspects of management.

Information on the symposium may be obtained through the TTUSM Office of Continuing Education (806) 743-2929; the American Lung Association, West Texas Area (806) 763-0951; or the South Plains Perinatal Association (806) 743-2868.

Symposium sessions will be held in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Alderson PTA To Meet

Alderson Junior High School PTA will meet Tuesday, May 2, in the auditorium at 219 Walnut Avenue to elect officers for 1978-79. Program theme will be the Spring Music Concert.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Lubbock Branch announced Lubbock Mayor Dirk West as the guest speaker for its Fifth Annual Freedom Fund Banquet to be held on Friday, June 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the Texas Tech University Ballroom. The theme for the banquet is "Our New Day Begun." The program will include the crowning of the new Miss Black Teenage Lubbock. Mrs. Kate Noble is chairperson of the Freedom Fund Banquet and Mrs. Joan Y. Ervin directs the Miss Black Teenage Lubbock Pageant.

Meet the Candidates Tea Slated Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chatman announced this week they will sponsor a "Meet the Candidates Tea" this Friday, April 28th between the hours of 7 and 9 p.m. at the Mae Simmons Community Center, East 23rd Street and Quirt Avenue.

The general public and all candidates for office in the general primary are invited to attend.

Black Leaders Urge Vote Against Legalizing Pari-Mutuel Gambling

Seven leaders of major Black church groups in Texas have urged people to vote against legalizing pari-mutuel gambling May 6 because of the harm they feel it would bring on the black community.

"Whatever affects the majority community always hurts the black community worse," said Presiding Bishop C.D. Coleman in a letter to pastors of the 8th Episcopal District of Christian Methodist Episcopal churches of Texas.

Six Black Baptist leaders wrote to pastors, "We know that it is the people who are caught in the curse of poverty that are tempted to gamble the most.

"Our people have been swindled enough; we do not need the lure of a 'something for nothing' temptation," they said.

The Black Baptist leaders are Dr. M.L. Price, president of the Missionary Baptist General Convention of Texas and pastor of Greater Zion Baptist Church, Houston; Dr. Caesar Clark, president of the Baptist Missionary and Education Convention of Texas and pastor of Good Street Baptist Church, Dallas.

Dr. W.A.I. McDonald, moderator for the East Texas Baptist Association and pastor of St. Louis Baptist Church, Tyler; Dr. L.B. George, president of the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance in the Fort Worth area and pastor of Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Fort Worth; Dr. Harold Branch, pastor of St. John Baptist Church, Corpus Christi; and Dr. R.W. Worsham, president of the American Baptist State Convention and pastor of the True Vine Baptist Church, Houston.

Bishop Coleman warned in his letter to Black Methodist pastors over a wide area of Texas, "I need not tell you that behind the innocent sounding words, 'pari-mutuel betting,' lurk all the evil and corruption of organized gambling.

"We do not need the additional problems brought on by legalized gambling. Nor do Black families need the added woes and stresses that accompany racetrack betting," he said.

Police Brutality a Major Concern Says Civil Rights Commission Head

In his speech at a luncheon which preceded the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Spring meeting of its national Board of Directors, U.S. Commission on Civil Rights Chairman Arthur S. Flemming said that police brutality would be one of the Commission's major areas of concern. Earlier, SCLC president, Rev. Dr. Joseph E. Lowery had emphasized the organization's own concern over the rising number of unarmed Blacks killed by law enforcement officers.

(Two such recent cases resulted in SCLC protest marches, one in Prince George County, Md., where the victim was handcuffed when slain, and the other in Gadsden, Ala. on April 4, the tenth anniversary of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s assassination.)

Flemming, who stressed in his address that civil rights progress has not kept up with vast changes in American life, summarized the Commission's interest in such traditional areas as school desegregation, housing and employment. "Because of a comment

President Lowery made ... about the march in Gadsden, I want to identify one other area of (the Commission's) concern," said Flemming. "In the past year this Commission has been on the receiving end of a number of very significant representations relative to police brutality, directed particularly against members of minority groups. We have heard from Philadelphia, Chicago, Houston and other cities."

He pledged that, "We're going to make this whole issue of police

Cabinet Gets a Shakedown Carter's Message: Shape Up

Copyright, 1978, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON—Last week, President Carter summoned his senior aides and Cabinet members to Camp David for consultations. Afterward, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said: "(The president) made it damn clear that we've had 15 months now, and the shakedown cruise is over."

Other participants reported that the president scolded his subordinates in the sharpest language they ever heard him use. He told them, in effect, to shape up or ship out.

The subordinates were jolted for they had never heard Carter use harsh language. He has always been calm, cool and courteous in their presence. Only his closest intimates have seen him angry. Even then he doesn't explode but becomes ominously quiet. Aides have learned to recognize the president's angry mood by a muscle that starts twitching in his jaw.

But Carter hasn't always been so critical of his Cabinet. We've had access to secret Cabinet minutes and here's how he has handled his subordinates in the past. On Nov. 21, he said he was "pleased with the harmony that prevails among the Cabinet." On Jan. 9, the president said he was "proud of the Cabinet." On Jan. 30, he told his subordinates that he had "generated a compatibility among the strategic planners of our government unknown in former administrations."

On Feb. 27, he thanked the Cabinet "for a superb job in helping to secure congressional action" on canceling the B-1 bomber. On March 6, Carter told his Cabinet that he "continues to feel confident" about the Administration. The primary reason for his confidence, he said, "is that the Cabinet is a cohesive group whose individual and collective judgment" he trusts.

He has frequently singled out individual Cabinet members for praise. But last weekend the president used different language. He was so harsh it left the Cabinet stunned.

Population Alarm: The world's population explosion is causing grave alarm inside the White House. The National Security Council has secretly labeled runaway birth rates as "a threat to the national security." Some of our strategists believe overpopulation will soon become a greater menace than nuclear warfare.

Already, underdeveloped nations are running out of food and plunging into debt in their attempt to keep up with the burgeoning population. Yet the United States has completely botched its efforts to control the population explosion.

Our bungling bureaucrats have offended the underdeveloped nations by ignoring their religious and cultural inhibitions. Some American investigators made themselves completely unwelcome in Kenya shortly after they arrived. Egypt agreed to a birth control program, but it never got beyond the paperwork. Brazil simply ignored the U.S. efforts.

Apparently, the State Department's idea of population control is to shower underdeveloped countries with birth control devices. Each year, the foreign aid agency ships millions of prophylactics, birth control pills and other contraceptives to underdeveloped nations. The latest available statistics are for 1976 when the United States distributed $11 million worth of contraceptives and $14 million worth of pills around the world.

But the bureaucrats run into problems when they go shopping for the best buys. To get a good price, they purchase huge quantities. This creates a surplus that must be disposed of. So American embassies around the globe find themselves inundated with pills and prophylactics.

The U.S. embassy in Indonesia, for example, cabled the State Department frantically that it was surprised to learn it was getting a consignment of more than 50 million prophylactics. The embassy took a quick inventory of the birth control devices already on hand and concluded that the Indonesians already had far more than they could be expected to utilize.

However, the embassy promised it would "try to greatly expand present usage rates."

International Mystery: The defection of Arkadi Shevchenko, who was the chief Soviet diplomat at the United Nations, is developing into an international mystery. Last week he announced through his U.S. attorney that he would disobey orders to return to the Soviet Union. Yet he still hasn't sought asylum in the United States.

The story has created a furor around the world. At the United Nations, Shevchenko's fellow diplomats were shocked. But no one outside the grim little Soviet clique knew why the Kremlin tried to recall him nor why he chose to defect.

We've uncovered an important clue to the mystery. Shevchenko's 48-year-old wife, Lengina, and their teen-age daughter, Anna, were hustled out of the United States on April 9 and flown back to the Soviet Union. The women were held incommunicado at the Soviet Mission in New York City for two days before their departure. Shevchenko was unable to get through to them.

There are whispers that Shevchenko was having an extra-marital love affair. His new love, according to the rumors, caused him to defect. If the rumors are true, his family may have refused to take his calls.

But it is also possible that the Shevchenko women were returned to the Soviet Union by force. They were personally escorted to the airport by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin. According to our sources, Dobrynin and Shevchenko were close personal friends.

We have also learned that Soviet authorities have taken pains to assure Shevchenko that his family is in no danger.

period which ended April 7. That amounts to about 42 percent of the nation's demand, Wallace stated.

Purchasers nominations and additional demand for Texas crude oil in May totaled 3,551,424 barrels a day, up 7,627 from April.

Texas' estimated calendar day allowable for May is 3,558,816 barrels of oil with actual calendar day production of about 2,910,000 barrels.

Deaths Increase

Motorcycle accident deaths increased 111.6 percent and injuries 47.7 percent during the four months of 1977 after the legislature repealed the law requiring riders to wear helmets.

The Department of Public Safety said 110 motorcyclists died in accidents during September-December. Fifty-two were killed during the same period in 1976.

Motorcycle deaths for all last year increased 45.2 percent over 1976, DPS said, although registrations increased less than 10 percent.

The law was repealed on urging by motorcyclists.

Helmets are still mandatory for riders and passengers under 18.

Courts Speak

The Texas Supreme Court allowed the estranged husband of the late Cndace Mossler to challenge her $10 million will.

In another ruling, the high court affirmed lower court decisions granting $80,500 in legal malpractice judgments against Don Yarbrough, who resigned his Supreme Court seat last year as the result of prolonged legal troubles.

The Court of Criminal Appeals set aside life sentences of Jefferson and Harris County men convicted 10 years ago.

Citing failure to schedule a sanity hearing separate from a DeWitt County trial, the Court of Criminal Appeals dismissed one of two murder convictions against a Michigan man.

A district judge in Beeville ordered fines for 72 Iranian students found guilty of trespass in refusing to leave the Bee County College gymnasium after a meeting with the college president.

AG Opinions

A trial court clerk cannot refuse to file pleadings which appear inadequately certified under the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure, Attorney General John L. Hill said.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

Names of applicants for municipal court appointments are public information and should be revealed.

The Montgomery County child welfare board is a governmental body within the meaning of the open meetings act, but may meet in closed session for the limited purpose of discussing case files of persons receiving or applying for public assistance.

Short Snorts

Dry pastures in South and West Texas have caused the deaths of thousands of sheep, according to the State Department of Agriculture.

More than $1 million in grants for emergency assistance have been approved by the governor's office.

A U.S. district judge in Washington ruled the federal government cannot prevent Attorney General Hill from challenging in a Texas court constitutionality of the "prime farmlands" section of the new federal strip mining statute and accompanying regulations.

Guy G. Mathews, has been named director of the Railroad Commission Liquefied Petroleum Gas division effective May 6.

Nineteen applications for permits to sell $17.4 million in securities in Texas were filed with the State Securities Board during the last two weeks.

The House Committee on Agriculture and Livestock held a public hearing in Lubbock April 25 on grain storage elevators and their operation.

An application for a charter of Interstate Bank of Texas in Garland has been filed with the State Banking Department.

A $403,500 grant for pesticide law enforcement has been awarded to the Texas Department of Agriculture by the Environmental Protection Agency.

AUSTIN—State Insurance Board Chairman Hugh Yantis has taken a stand against an increase in home-owners insurance rates.

The board is expected to vote on the matter in June.

Board statisticians recommended a 13.1 percent hike which would cost homeowners about $43 million in additional premiums. There has been no adjustment in rates since July 1976.

The chairman indicated he may vote for selective increases in some categories but not for a general statewide adjustment.

At the same time, Yantis announced he is seeking to discourage "deposit term" life insurance policy sales.

And he directed a staff attorney to come up with proposed penalties for insurance firms and agents who sell policies to old people which they do not need or cannot afford.

Yantis said deposit term life insurance cannot be banned, but purchasers can be warned of what they are getting into. Deposits are forfeited if policyholders drop the 10 year policies or fail to make payments.

The board chairman said companies and their agents should be made accountable for selling unneeded insurance to the elderly whose judgment as to their requirements may be faulty due to age.

Penalties for victimizing the elderly could run as high as loss of license, the chairman indicated.

Allowable Set

The Railroad Commission ordered continuation of the legal producing rate for most Texas oil fields at 100 percent of market demand for May.

The finding means Texas wells, with few exceptions, will have wide open producing allowables for the 15th month in a row. Actually, all-out production has been authorized nearly every month for six years.

Chairman Mack Wallace said crude and petroleum imports into the U.S. averaged more than eight million barrels a day for the four-week

Letter to President Carter

State Senator candidate Delwin Jones' letter to President Carter concerning the "farm bill":

April 16, 1978

Dear Mr. President:

I have always been one to "call the shots as I see them". This practice makes this letter necessary.

It is my feeling that you and the Congressional leaders have failed this nation at a critical time by your recent positions and actions toward agriculture.

Agriculture has always been, and will continue to be, the national and international basic strength of this country.

Your failure to recognize this, and the inept actions of Congress last week have dealt a severe blow to agriculture and to our country. You think that you have protected the consumer from an increase in cost of living, but you have not. In reality, you have done a severe injustice to the city-dwelling consumer who believes that the food supplies of this nation originate on the grocery shelves.

The recent actions of Congress will drive a lot of young farmers out of business during 1978. Many of the farm youth of today will not choose to be farmers of tomorrow. The loss of these young people from agriculture will be felt by consumers for at least 30 years to come. The price to the consumer will eventually increase, because simple economics will make it necessary for farmers to make a profit or quit farming.

If you destroy agriculture by bankrupting the farmer, then you will destroy our nation through a severe depression for all industry, and a short supply of food and fiber for the needs of our population.

Yes, I am disappointed by your negative leadership. I am discouraged by the Congressional leaders who betrayed a lot of young farmers in recent weeks. I have been an active farmer for 31 years and I have never seen the morale of the farm people so low as it is today.

Sincerely,
Delwin Jones

KELLY'S HEROES

by Joe Kelly

When Rex Dockery was named head football coach at Texas Tech, there was a big to-do made over "continuity" in the program. Good! Everybody's in favor of continuity in any successful program. The only trouble is that continuity is a misleading term.

Despite the popular phrase, "everyone is created equal," everyone is not created equal. I don't think I was created equal in intelligence to Albert Einstein. I do think I was created with more intelligence than a Bowery bum—except, he just might turn out to be a genius who decided aw, to hell with it. That would be my luck.

Which is a long way to getting around to Texas Tech's athletic department. They are, of course, looking for a successor to J.T. King, who is marking the days, literally, on the calendar until Aug. 31. That's the date a brilliant career ends.

Every indication is that the powers that be will go elsewhere for a successor, when they have someone on the staff right now who is capable of taking over and keeping the program moving.

I refer, of course, to John Conley. Now, John isn't a native Texas Techsan, having earned a degree at Kansas State. But he was born in Texas, coached brilliantly at Snyder and has done an outstanding job at Tech, both as coach and assistant athletic director.

Continuity? Shoot, John served well under King, the man who finally brought Tech up to SWC standards, and served him well as assistant AD. Why is there any need to look further?

Indeed, the administration at Tech set the stage for naming John the AD. Instead of accepting King's recommendation for football coach, the administration selected Dockery because of "continuity."

Well, whoopee and a rousing yippee! By this reasoning, Dockery was to Steve Sloan what John Conley was to J.T. King. Therefore, if "continuity" is to be served, Conley is "in" as AD.

It isn't, apparently, as simple as that. John says that he wouldn't care for the job, thank you. That's understandable. If I'm to be executed at high noon, I don't really want a big breakfast. Give me some grits and red eye gravy and let's get it over.

John, not known for his reading in Sanskrit, has read the handwriting on the wall. Continuity refers to the whim of the administration, not the actual situation. When the announcement comes, eventually, it probably will be said that we need broad horizons. Whatever happened to continuity in the program?

The All Sports banquet the other night was a great success again, with Cholly Mac of LSU regaling the audience and paying tribute to Tech, King and Lubbock.

Along the line many outstanding athletes were honored, and deservedly so. It is only fitting that this great area pause, once a year, to honor the young men who serve this institution and whose success reflects credit on Tech and West Texas.

It would be even more fitting if spring sports kept pace with football and basketball. Maybe that's too much to ask. But, as I've said before, it would be a blessing if Tech dropped the curtain on the sports program after basketball concluded—or else presented a program that could compete on equal terms.

The spring football game comes up tomorrow night and I hope that there will be a good turnout. However, after 30 years of covering Tech spring football, anything in excess of 2,000 will be a mammoth crowd.

Here's an opportunity to see the athletes competing for starting jobs, the players who will make up the varsity next fall. There's as much competition now as in the fall and the true football fan will appreciate the effort put forth.

At the dinner the other night, I sat opposite Tres Adami, along with Herman Brown and Jim Schiermeyer. I had a chance to talk with the promising Raider quarterback.

In his opinion, the receivers are a little better than before, there's a lot of youth in the lines that needs aging and he's enthusiastic about the prospects. As for himself, he's not working on any particular phase, just his overall game. He has the chance to be outstanding, because he's had good experience.

Another man who deserves tremendous credit for what he has done for Tech is Field Scovell. Field, as usual, was at the dinner, all smiles and greeting friends left and right.

For those who don't know Field, and it's hard to imagine anyone not knowing him, he's a former Aggie, a former member of the Tech Board, father of John Scovell and a heckuva Tech booster. He's done a lot for Tech and remains loyal, despite some shoddy treatment.

I can't think of Field without remembering the classic Tech-Arkansas game here. Field was present, officially, to extend an invitation to the Cotton Bowl for the Razorbacks. All they had to do was beat Tech, which looked as easy as shooting fish in a barrel.

But something funny happened. The Raiders put up a great goalline stand at the end and beat the Porkers. It was, of course, an upset of major proportions.

After the game I was in the dressingroom, doing a story for the Dallas Times-Herald. I ran onto Field and we talked briefly. Then he spied son John, draped in a towel.

As they embraced in joy and affection, John said quite matter-of-factly:

"Gee, Dad, I didn't mean to upset the Cotton Bowl plans."

"Well," Field replied in obvious pleasure at his son's achievement, "you sure did a damn good job of it!"

Donny Anderson was at the dinner the other night and spoke briefly, as all former athletes should do! He mentioned the fact that he was proud of having played a part in Tech's emergence in the SWC.

It reminded me of an incident when he was a freshman. One of our cub reporters came in, a smile on his face, beer on his breath and tattletaling on his mind.

"Hey!" he exclaimed. "I just came from the dorm. You ought to have been there. Donny was sitting in a chair leaned back against the wall, a beer in one hand, a cigar in the other and telling everyone how he was going to lead Tech out of the wilderness!"

You know, the funny thing is that he came pretty doggoned close to doing just that before he departed.

Girl Scouts to Begin Registering for day Camps

Brownie, Junior and Cadette Girl Scouts in Caprock Council will begin registering in May for 14 council-sponsored day camps.

Daisy patches, designed by Sherrie Montgomery of Crosbyton will be presented to the anticipated 1,000 girls who will attend. A council patch contest for 1979 day camp insignia will be part of this year's day camp program. The Crosbyton Day Camp had a patch contest and submitted this year's winning design.

May 19 has been set as the registration date for Squirrel Haven Day Camp in Lubbock. The first of the Lubbock camps, Squirrel Haven, is scheduled June 5-8, Mackenzie State Park. Mrs. Frank Falbo, 4217-52nd Street, will register girls from Monterey, Winchester and Southeast 8 service units at her home. Mrs. John Mallory and Mrs. Cecil Bartlett are directors.

Two other camps, Wildlife and O-We-Go, will combine and are scheduled June 19-23 at Mackenzie Park. Mrs. Denzil Minyard is director. Mrs. Donald Goetz and Mrs. Robert L. Pyles, Reese, will serve as assistant directors. Registrations will be taken through May by Mrs. Billy M. Indian Lore, photography, dramatics, ranching heritage, basic rescue and water safety and world games will be other program emphasis, as well as cooking, tenting, hiking, crafts and songs, and games. Approximately 120 women and men will be coordinating activities. Registered nurses and first aid personnel will be in attendance.

Both Scouts and non-Scouts may register for any of the camps. Units for pre-school boys and girls and special program for school age boys of day camp staff are provided.

Other day camps are scheduled in Plainview, June 5-9; Littlefield, June 19-23; Levelland, June 12-16; Lynn County, May 30, 31, June 1; Yoakum County, June 12-16; Ralls, Lorenzo, and Crosbyton, June 26-30; Idalou, June 19-23.

brutality one of our basic thrusts. We're going to make some in-depth studies. We are going to hold some public hearings, and I hope we can come up with findings and recommendations that will become a rallying point."

Also present at the April 11 luncheon, which was attended by 200 Kansas City-area black and white businessmen, civic leaders, and government officials, were Dr. Ralph D. Abernathy, President Emeritus of SCLC; SCLC officers, Hosea Williams, National Executive Director; Rev. Emmanuel Cleaver, West Central Region Vice President; and local Chapter Chairman, Rev. Jesse L. Douglas.

Following their board meeting, SCLC notables, including Congressman Walter Fauntroy, addressed an overflow crowd of nearly 1,000 at the Jamison Memorial C.M.E. Temple Church.

International Postal Rates Proposed

A Postal Service proposal for new international rates calls for no increase in air mail postage. The cost of mailing a half-ounce letter to most overseas countries will remain 31 cents.

The proposed international rates, published in the Federal Register, call for increases, however, in surface mail rates of 12 per cent, on the average.

Comments on the proposed rates will be received by the Postal Service by May 10. The Postal Service says that new international rates will become effective on the same date as the changes in domestic rates and fees pending before the Postal Rate Commission.

For letters to Canada and Mexico the proposed rate is 16 cents for the first ounce and 13 cents for each additional ounce. There is no air mail rate to these two countries.

The Postal Service has independent authority to set international rates and fees.

The surface mail rate for letters to countries other than Canada and Mexico would rise to 20 cents for the first ounce from the existing 18-cent rate.

Printed matter and small packet rates would rise from 14 cents to 20 cents for the first two ounces.

International parcel post rates would rise 10 percent, on the average.

Because the present rates for air mail, including air parcel post, are fully paying for this service, the Postal Service sees no need to increase them.

Harry Ledbetter's Money Management Program

As a fiscal conservative, I have developed a comprehensive program to effectively manage the $2 Billion dollars on deposit in the State Treasury. Here are aspects of it:

Rate of Return: The State Treasurer should not play politics with our tax money. I pledge to put the taxpayer's money to work earning the highest interest available.

Cash Flow Forecasting: Using modern management techniques, we can accurately determine how much money the state needs in liquid funds. The state's obligations must be paid on a timely basis at minimum administrative cost.

People all over Texas are responding enthusiastically to my campaign. I appreciate your support. I know that the public trust must be earned, and it is a responsibility I accept. I ask for your vote on May 6th. If you share my concerns, encourage your friends and neighbors to vote for Harry Ledbetter for State Treasurer in the

HARRY LEDBETTER
Democratic primary election May 6th.

Artist to Give Free Demonstration

The American Handicrafts in Lubbock, Texas will host internationally noted artist and author, Robert H. Garden, in a free public oil painting demonstration, on May 1, 1978 at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Mr. Garden will render a completed, realistic oil painting in 30-40 minutes; demonstrating revolutionary fine art techniques which allow anyone, artist or notice, to complete an oil painting in 3 hours. These methods are covered in 61 illustrations in his book, Anyone Can Paint, I Promise, recently released by David McKay in New York.

Along with the learn-as-you paint method of teaching Garden has employed in his art classes for several years, he has also developed the paint-as-you go method of travel. This summer he led a group of artists through five European countries stopping in the Alps to set up their easel, capturing a Paris street scene on canvas, and painting the glorious windmills of Holland. Painting landscapes under the direction of professional artists is not a new concept, says Garden. "I've been doing this for five years, and it's just now beginning to catch on."

After returning from a Paint-Along Workshop in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico and before leaving for another similar tour in Australia and New Zealand Robert Garden will demonstrate his talents in oil painting and autograph copies of his book at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. in the American Handicrafts Store in Lubbock. He will return to the Lubbock American Handicrafts to conduct a unique one-day workshop (10 a.m.-5 p.m.) in which participants will complete two oil paintings (16x20 and 18x24) on May 5, 1978.

Information and registration forms may be obtained at American Handicrafts, 4010 34th, Lubbock, Texas phone 795-6062.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

The column this week may not be as long as is sometimes the rule, but, believe me, it is a report that tells of the goodies that have taken place in this city on the entertainment scene encompassing one single gala, star-studded weekend!

Springtime is generally conceded to arrive on or around March 21 in these parts its coming is heralded by the breaking out of blossoms, daffodils, tulips and the crocus. Well, those and winds and dirt, too, of course.

But, don't you believe it! Spring becomes really official when the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra joins with assorted local talents to present its wildly-popular, traditional Pops Nite programs, two nights of the same program in the comfortable Memorial Civic Center Theatre. So, Spring got underway with a resounding bang this Monday and Tuesday.

The program devised this year by Conductor William A. Harrod was, perhaps, the most Pops of Pops Nites in many a year. The pattern was familiar; there were five stellar singers drawn from New York, Texas Tech University and the city, with the senior Texas Tech Choir, directed by Gene Kenney, thrown in for what was most certainly good measure. The full orchestra ensemble performed superbly and there was an added novelty this time in the appearance of the local group known as the Flatland Bluegrass Band, two guitars, bass, mandolin and banjo with vocal treatment and accompanied at times by the muted, sympathetic orchestra. The five young men in the latter group scored a mighty success, the Choir outdid itself and the five principal soloists gave it everything they had and that was a-plenty.

The whole scintillating she-bang got off before a full house Monday (repeated Tuesday, also) with Harrod and his yeomen (and female persons) providing a rousing curtain-raiser with Gliere's "Russian Sailor's Dance." Then came a real "pops" number by the orchestra, the lilting country western hit of a season or so back, "Tie a Yellow Ribbon 'Round the Ole Oak Tree."

There was a preponderance Monday of the more senior citizens in the enthusiastic audience and you can imagine what Dean Kincaide's arrangement of the "Big Band Fantasy" did for them. Nostalgia flowed by the proverbial wine, intoxicating memories, as the orchestra ripped off such golden oldies that brought back the themes and performances of those long now, lamented big, big bands of the Dorseys and all the rest.

Kathy Harrison, Lubbockite now of New York City, was the lead off principal vocalist and she soared into a pert and pretty "Musetta's Waltz" from "La Boheme" of Puccini. And the only other female star this year, Sarah Watkins, a tried and true veteran Texas Tech music major, followed her right handily to give us "So In Love" from "Kiss Me, Kate" by Cole Porter.

The keystone of the program was, of course a salute to the music of Lerner and Loewe and the orchestra gave us an overture, potpourri of those famed American Theatre tunes, before barrel-voiced, bearded William G. Hartwell boomed, along with the Choir, the marvelous title tune from "Camelot." That meant that soloist (Opera Theatre director, instructor, tenor, man of all seasons) John Gillas came forward in his too-seldom seen and heard role of performer to touch us with "If Ever I Would Leave You" from the same show.

"Paint Your Wagon" meant Harrison and Gillas doing "I Talk to the Trees," the Metropolitan Opera finalist, Plainview's and Tech's Terry Cook spreading his lucious bass over "They Call the Wind Maria," with the Chorus, and the singing ensemble rollicking along with "There's a Coach Comin' In," coupled with "I'm On My Way."

The Flatland Bluegrass Band headed the second half nicely. These boys have it made in their specialty from the lead singer to the little, roly-poly boy thrumming the big bass, a performer who fascinated Conductor Harrod no end. They did "Duelling Banjos," "Mary Lou," "Fox on the Run" and "Rocky Top Tennessee" and won a solid ovation.

Back to Lerner and Loewe it was "Brigadoon," "Gigi" and "My Fair Lady" engaging all hands for a melodic sequence to close the program. Of all these numbers, all done expertly and most professionally, perhaps the two men, Bill Hartwell and John Gillas, scored the heaviest mitting, Bill for "Gigi" with the Choir, Gillas with the lovely "On the Street Where You Live."

Rodgers and Hammerstein were not part of the program but the words of one of their biggest hits certainly had application—"It Was a Grand Night For Singing" (and singing) and congratulations go out to all involved in this mighty and so-entertaining event.

Incidentally, there'll be a repeat Summer Pops Nite by the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra in the Civic Center Exhibit Hall Friday June 16 when the solo artists will be Peter Nero, the pianist.

Congratulations are also in high order for the many hands involved in the joint community production of the musical, "Finian's Rainbow" seen and heard at the Civic Center Theatre last Friday and Saturday. The show, directed superbly by John Gillas, with musical director Kyung Wook Shin, Lubbock Civic Ballet choreographer Diana Moore high on the honors list. The show was the amalgamation of all the talents of Civic Ballet, the Tech Music Theatre, University Theatre, the Lubbock Civic Ballet and Civic Lubbock, Inc.

Well, they said it couldn't be done, 65 or so local performers from University to grade school on one stage in a professional performance but it could, did, can and will continue to do so. It was another "grand night" and though the cast list is too great a list to be singled out, special kudos are extended to Danny Grant, the show stealer as Og, the fey leprechaun, Pat Donnelly, a lovable man, as Finian, Shannon Campbell as his daughter and the exquisite dancer Jennifer Smith as the mute Susan. They were all good, the whole cast down to the bit parts, I mean, and it was a touch of the Old Green all the way. Delightful and memorable in every way. I'll have a second helping of ventures like this one, please.

SCLC's Lowery Attacks Federal Minority Business Guidelines

Dr. Joseph E. Lowery, President of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) has labeled recently issued Department of Transportation guidelines regarding minority businesses as "devastating to businesses owned by blacks and other minorities seeking government contracts."

The guidelines, which state that agencies receiving Federal grants must target certain portions of their major contracts to minority firms, define a minority firm as any company with 51 percent ownership by a member of a racial minority or by a woman regardless of her race.

Lowery said the regulations pit women against racial minorities and are unfair to both. "They constitute a ploy to dilute efforts to maximize minority business utilization, while appearing to give due consideration to the need to combat sex discrimination," he charged. "The issues of racial and sex discrimination are separate issues that deserve the nation's best efforts to eliminate from the American scene. But neither cause is served by permitting a business owned by a white female who may be as 'rich as Rockefeller' to qualify as a minority business, thus denying contractual opportunities to businesses owned by racial minorities."

Dr. Lowery has wired President Carter and Transportation Secretary Brock Adams demanding reconsideration of regulations that appear to contradict Executive orders regarding minority business utilization. He also sent wires to Congressional Black Caucus leaders.

Dr. Lowery is also a member of the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority (MARTA) Board of Directors and objected to the guidelines when he first learned of them through his MARTA position. He added that SCLC opposes sex discrimination and supports equal rights for women, including the Equal Rights Amendment.

May 1 is Save the Children Day

May Day belongs to children. Governor Briscoe made it official when he declared May 1 Save the Children Day '78 in Texas.

In the proclamation the Governor urged "all the citizens of our state to celebrate this day in such a way as to call attention to the children of our families, our communities, our country and of the world."

Initiated by Save the Children, the international child assistance agency headquartered in Westport, Connecticut, festivities have been intentionally planned throughout the United States and abroad to coincide with May Day. The purpose is to focus public concern on the needs of poor children, their families and communities throughout the world, and to serve as an annual occasion for rededication to serving the needs of children everywhere.

In schools throughout the United States children will compose letters to world leaders asking for new efforts toward world peace. Formal proclamations of the day will be issued by governors and mayors of states and major cities in the United States. On American Indian reservations, such as the Hopi in Arizona and the Zia and Jemez Pueblos in New Mexico, children will plant trees and undertake clean-up projects.

A vacant lot in Bedford-Stuyvesant Brooklyn will be transformed into a vegetable and flower garden by school children, their teachers and parents and a volunteer group of Save the Children headquarters staff members.

In the 17 countries where Save the Children maintains field offices there will be observances appropriate to each participating country's traditions and cultures.

Save the Children works in 230 communities in the United States, helping people in Appalachia, inner cities, the rural south and among the American Indians and Chicanos. The 46-year-old organization also assists children and their families in 203 areas overseas—in Bangladesh, Cameroon, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Greece, Guatemala, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Israel, Italy, Korea, Lebanon, Mexico, Tunisia, Upper Volta and Yemen.

Blacks Asked to Renew Fight to Protect Gains: "If Blacks in the United States are to protect the gains they have made through years of suffering, litigation, and direct action, they must implement a new force of power in America today, and renew their fight for progress toward total freedom," is the advice given by James C. Cummings, Jr., Chairman of the National Black Republican Council.

"Black Americans have made considerable progress through the courts, on the streets, and to some extent, through political action," the Republican Chairman pointed out. "However, the structure of progress today is threatened and tomorrow could disintegrate," he added.

"Jimmy Carter rode to the White House on the backs of Blacks. And as soon as he was deposited on Pennsylvania Avenue, he closed the front gates on Black people and began turning back the clock of Black gains," Cummings charged.

"Do you see what placing the overwhelming bulk of Black votes blindly in the hands of one party get you?" Cummings asked. "If the day comes when a candidate for president of the United States is elected without receiving a decent amount of Black votes, the total Black population of this nation would be left with nothing," he charged.

If the day comes when a candidate for President takes the Black vote for granted, ignores Blacks but receives substantial majority of the black vote and wins, the Black man in America would be absolutely powerless, Cummings predicted.

He believes Blacks can only have power in the political arena when they are in a position from which they can effectively negotiate. We must have balance between both major political parties and we must have both parties understand they run the risk of not receiving our vote.

Today, more than ever since the end of the so called civil rights era, there is a need among Blacks for a new force . . . to follow the battle in the courts, and the battle in the streets. Today, Cummings believes we need a powerful third force. Only through effective political action can the gains of yesterday be consolidated and molded into a force which can fulfill the dream tomorrow.

"The only effective political action for Blacks is significant participation in both major political parties. Make your vote count," he concluded.

Black Preaching: "Two recently published books by Black preachers on the art of preaching have been written with such eloquence and power that the books themselves testify through the written word to the power of the spoken word in the Black preaching tradition. They are small, powerful volumes tracing vital roots of preaching in history and human experience." From Harvard Divinity School - Bulletin - March 1978.

The books are: The Recovery of Preaching by Henry H. Mitchell and How Shall They Preach by Gardner C. Taylor. Both authors liken preaching to theatre, and the preacher to an actor, who, to be effective, must be expert in taking on the roles of the other. The vitality of the best Black preaching is attributable to the high degree of empathy felt by the preacher for the congregation, asserts Dr. Mitchell. The preacher knows how to "sit where the people sit." Dialogue is a broad term he uses for this loving rapport between preacher and people.

If there is one message that both experienced preachers want to get through to the young preacher, Black or White, it is that the young preacher must accept the responsibility to draw on the depths of his or her soul to find food for the congregation. Nothing less—including clever ideas, slick interpretations of difficult passages, impressive vocabulary—will "feed" the sheep.

Chimes: When Edward Brooke was elected to the U.S. Senate from Mass. in 1966, most Americans were shocked to learn that the only Black senators to precede him were both elected in the state of Mississippi. A book just released by the University Press of Mississippi by Dr. George Alexander Sewell gives a new image to the achievements possible for Blacks in the often closed society of Mississippi. It is called "Mississippi Black History Makers" and includes biographies of such notables as Charles Evers, B.B. King, Leontyne Price, famed opera singers; Richard Wright and James Earl Jones. Check it out at your local library.

We remember well the many days we spent (in the 50's and 60's) in the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, never dreaming that room 306 would someday become a shrine to the memory of the late Dr. Martin Luther King. It was his room when he was assassinated by a sniper's bullet just ten years ago. The owners (The Baileys) were members of the mission Methodist (C.M.E.) church that I pastored in Orange Mound, Memphis (Grady Chapel). Mrs. Bailey has gone but Mr. Bailey lives today and well as could be at 60. How time marches on!

Three Lubbockites Honored

Three Lubbockites were honored Thursday by the FAA for their rescue of a pilot from a burning aircraft near the Town and Country Airport November 16, 1977.

Presentations of the FAA's Certificate of Appreciation will be made to the trio by Henry L. Newman, FAA Southwest Region Director. A brief awards presentation was scheduled at 11 a.m. in the General Aviation District Office, Old Terminal Building, Lubbock International Airport.

Honorees include Kevin McKelvey 2733 91st Street, Lubbock, and Texas Tech University students Robert Williamson and John A. Couch, both of 120 Bledsoe.

The aircraft caught fire after it crashed north of the airport when approaching for a landing. The left wing struck the ground, causing the plane to cartwheel and burst into flames.

Williamson was a passenger in the plane when it crashed and although injured, managed to free himself. The pilot was injured and trapped in the cockpit. His clothing was burning and the fuel tanks located in the wings above the cockpit were in immediate danger of exploding.

As Williamson attempted to free the pilot, he was joined by Couch and McKelvey. Couch, a flight instructor, was standing a short distance from the crashed aircraft, and McKelvey, a farmer, was working in a nearby field.

Together, the rescuers were able to free the pilot, Edwin F. O'Connor, 6715A Hartford Ave., from the plane, which was totally destroyed by fire. O'Connor was hospitalized, suffering from burns, and is still convalescing from his injuries.

Two very different vehicles on the same roadway. But the motorcycle and the automobile can safely share the road.

Automobile drivers can put a "motorcycle sense" into their everyday traffic skills. Like keeping an eye out for motorcycles and giving them the room they need on the roadway. Don't let a cyclist's maneuver surprise you.

Cyclists should be sure they are easy to spot. Riding with the headlight on at all times and wearing bright-colored clothing can help. Even then, it's safer to assume you are invisible. Never take it for granted the car driver has seen you.

When each of us, motorist and cyclist alike, better understands the problems the other faces, driving will be safer for all of us.

Texas has room to share.
