City Council Approves City Tax Roll

The city council at last Thursday's meeting approved the $1.1 billion City Tax role, allocated 3rd year Community Development Funds and discussed county fire protection with the County Commissioner's court.

Shortly after approving the tax role, Jimmy Marshall, the long-time city hall critic who has tied the recently voter-approved bond money up in litigation, walked up to the podium in front of the council. His arms were loaded down with books.

Marshall wanted to talk about the approval of the tax rate, which was done with no discussion by the council or from the audience. Mayor Roy Bass pointed out that Marshall was not on the agenda to speak, and referred the matter to City Attorney Fred Senter. Senter said it (Marshall speaking) was "up to the council."

"You should allow citizens to discuss the tax rate," Marshall told Bass.

"We only approved the tax roll, Mr. Marshall—the tax rate has been set," Bass said.

At the time of the setting of the tax rate, citizen discussion was allowed by the council, Bass said. He asked Marshall to "please be seated," and declared him out of order.

Marshall stepped back from the podium and said, "You don't want to sell those bonds, do you? I thought you wanted to sell the bonds."

"The bonds are going to be sold, Mr. Marshall," Bass said.

"I don't know about that," the critic said as he walked away from the podium and out of the room.

The council apportioned the

The $378,000 station was to have been built with bond money, but since the bonds are tied up in litigation prevention a sale and the land sale option runs out Oct. 1, the council decided to use the Community Development money.

"It's a sad thing that we have to take this money," Councilman Bill McAlister said. "It's another way Mr. Marshall's actions have hurt the people more than the council."

The council also allocated $75,000 of the CD money for a weatherization program to be conducted by the Community Service Department. The department will determine eligibility for the project, will install insulation in needy homes.

The Rev. Adolphus Cleveland of the Lubbock Housing Authority got part of his $100,000 request, though hardly what he asked for, when the council allocated $10,000 for "seed money" for a day care center in East Lubbock. The council also approved $80,000 for emergency power backup system (not an interconnect) for the water pump.

The council met with county commissioners at lunch to discuss, among other things, the possibility of the Lubbock Fire Department answering a call outside the city.

After the meeting, the council decided to offer the county a deal of $62,500 a year for emergency fire service. Figuring the cost of each response to be $1250, the flat rate is good for up to 50 calls. Any more than 50 calls will result in an extra $1250 per call, and no money will be refunded for less than 50 calls.

LISD Announces Policy For Reduced Price Meals

The Lubbock Independent School District has announced its policy for free and reduced price meals and for free milk for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch and Special Milk Programs.

Application forms are being sent to homes during registration

Estacado Vs. Dunbar

Once again it's Estacado vs Dunbar time and both schools already are geared up for the big bout.

Each school has activities scheduled throughout the remainder of the week. Dunbar will have a giant pep rally at 10:10 a.m. Friday morning. Friday has also been declared Shade-Out Estacado Day. Every Panther has been asked to wear sunglasses and fade out those Matadors.

The activities end Friday night with an after game dance.

Estacado has also scheduled various activities for the week.

Thursday the Matadors will observe "Sock It To 'Em Day." A Sock Hop will be held in the Gym during homeroom period and prizes will be given to students wearing the wackiest socks.

Bill McAlister of KMCC will be on hand for activities Friday morning.

Mayor Roy Bass will be the guest of honor Friday at 2:30 p.m. at the Estacado Pep Rally which will be held in the Estacado Gym.

The mayor will deliver the keynote speech in conjunction with Estacado's Tenth Anniversary.

To both teams we say good luck.

or the opening day of classes in a letter to parents from Supt. Ed Irons. Additional copies of the application forms are available at the principal's office in each school.

Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. The information provided on the application will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility.

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced priced meals and free milk. In addition, children of families not meeting these criteria may be eligible if the families have unusually high medical bills, shelter costs in excess of thirty per cent of their income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, or disaster or casualty losses.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, they should contact the school.

Irons noted in his letter to parents that in the operation of the child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin.

Under the provisions of the policy, each school's principal will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may make a request, either orally or in writing, to Bill Parker, director of pupil personnel services, 1628 19th Street, telephone 747-2641, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The school district's policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

Interested persons may review a copy of the complete policy which is on file in each school and in the office of the director of cafeterias, 1628 19th Street.

Estacado PTA

The Estacado High School PTA is having its first meeting Monday, Oct. 3 in the school auditorium. After the meeting there will be an open house, and all the classrooms will be opened, giving the parents their first opportunity to meet with their children's teachers. The public is invited.

The Dunbar High School Panjammers are shown performing at The State Association of School Board and Administrators Convention in San Antonio last weekend. The Panjammers and the Monterey High School Stage Band were the only musical groups invited to the convention.

Eggs and Arrogance

When the Lubbock school board turned down a bid to enroll Lubbock schools in a federal program to feed breakfast to hungry children, the trustees said that they just didn't want to get into the breakfast business.

Another program of federal "hand-outs" would ruin the moral fiber of our young people, they solemnly held; lunch program or no, it was parental responsibility to feed kids. Even after the state legislature ordered the state's schools to take advantage of the program, the Lubbock trustees, ever the guardian of our children's morality, voted to hold out until the absolutely last minute and will not give food to hungry kids from poor families until next school year.

Turns out, the trustees were talking out of one side of their mouths and shoveling eggs into the other. The Lubbock school district has been in the breakfast business a long time.

In an exclusive story, the Times last week revealed that the trustees have been getting together before public meetings for years and eating breakfast on the taxpayers money.

As for the trustee's moral fiber, that seems a little frayed. There's a law against elected officials meeting in secret and discussing public business, and when reporters from the Times sat in on the meeting, the trustees edged perilously close to breaking that law. In a statement typical to the school board, president Charles Waters dismissed that law as a "technicality." How dare the public ask to be let in on its business? Indeed.

The trustees gave every indication they'll continue to eat the taxpayers' food before their regular meetings. Of course, they won't be honest enough to tell the public that.

So, tell you what: Next time we'll tell you when they're going to have a regular meeting and if you happen to be in the neighborhood of the Furr's cafeteria in Town and Country shopping Center at 6:30 in the morning, you can drop by and at least enjoy the satisfied faces of the school board as they consume your gift. Maybe if there are some scraps left over, you can take them to some hungry kids.

Oh, if you get there a little early, you might as well order something for the members of the school board. They'll take scrambled eggs with a side order of hypocrisy.

Baker & Lamp Posts

Senator Howard Baker (R-Tenn), Senate Minority Leader, recently told a national television audience if Bert Lance and Jimmy Carter happened to be Republicans, Lance would already have been hung from the nearest lamp post.

While Baker exaggerates, he has a point. The working media is traditionally Democrat. Also very strong minority ownership of the eastern media has an effect. (Those who have been persecuted or discriminated against, usually, perhaps understandably, gravitate left.)

Carter and Lance, however, have been taken to task in the media. The scandal has probably been more costly to Carter politically than he realizes. The media, though employing a softer approach, has nevertheless done its job.

Houston's Message

In Houston, an antismoking campaign directed by Dr. Richard Evans, University of Houston psychologist, has cut the rate of cigarette addiction among junior high school students dramatically.

Instead of the cancer-later-in-life scare, the Houston campaign has stressed the immediate health hazard of smoking, focused on techniques tobacco companies use in luring youngsters to the habit.

Films included visual explanations as to how poisonous gas and nicotine enter the body when smoking begins. The advertising techniques of using handsome young men and girls, hiding health warnings on packages, etc., were examined. Students were told how to say "no" to social pressures from other youth to smoke.

The Houston campaign may point the way for other schools.

SEC Investing ITT's Role in Chile
By Jack Anderson
with Joe Spear

Copyright, 1977, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON—Five years ago, we broke a startling story about the secret shenanigans of the Central Intelligence Agency and the International Telephone and Telegraph company in Chile. We reported that the CIA and ITT had worked together to block the late Chilean President Salvador Allende from taking office.

Both the CIA and ITT denied our story. It took a Senate investigation to get the facts out. But ex-CIA director Richard Helms and ITT boss Harold Geneen allegedly withheld facts from the Senate.

Now we've learned that a grand jury has recommended multiple-count indictments against Helms and Geneen. This has produced rumors that an angry Helms has threatened to bring down others, including former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, if he is indicted.

The rumors became so persistent that Kissinger confronted Helms privately. The former CIA chief said he had no intention of embarrassing Kissinger.

Helms feels he merely carried out orders. He was supposed to protect secret intelligence operations. This was the reason, he explained, that he didn't tell the Senate everything he knew.

The securities and Exchange Commission, meanwhile, is conducting its own secret investigation into ITT's role in Chile. SEC investigators have already interviewed Geneen. And just last week, the SEC investigators questioned Edward Korry, the former U.S. ambassador to Chile.

According to sources close to the investigation, Korry gave details of ITT's misconduct in Chile. He also provided the investigators with a list of witnesses who can offer more information. The charges involve alleged fraud and perjury.

Restless Republicans: The Democrats are taking a battering in Washington. Bert Lance has lost the fight for his political life. House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill has been linked to the Korean payoff man, Tongsun Park. Other Democratic congressmen have been accused of accepting cash from the Koreans. And President Carter is slipping in the polls.

All this has brought new hope to the Republicans. Both Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan, according to their friends, are interested in a rematch in 1980. Both men are in excellent health and appear younger than their ages. But Ford will be 66 and Reagan will be 69 in 1980.

So some of the younger Republican leaders are also stirring. In Texas, both ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally and ex-CIA director George Bush have presidential ambitions.

Bush has frankly discussed his intentions with Ford. Bush has also received some early advice from Ford's campaign manager, James Baker. Meanwhile, Connally is putting together a campaign organization.

Three Republican Senators—Howard Baker of Tennessee, Robert Dole of Kansas and Charles Percy of Illinois—have been bitten by the presidential bug. And at least two governors—Robert Ray of Iowa and Jim Thompson of Illinois—also have their eyes on the White House.

Most of the prospects plan to campaign actively in the 1978 congressional campaign. They remember it was Richard Nixon's stump work that won the right friends and influenced the right politicians. He later cashed in their political IOU's to gain the Republican nomination.

Spotless Shepherd: The White House, believe it or not, has run a security check on a dog.

He's a sturdy German shepherd named "Turkey." But he's no ordinary dog. He carries an identification card on his collar—complete with picture.

Turkey, it seems, helps topatrol the White House grounds. Like all White-House personnel, he underwent an intensive FBI background check. The FBI made sure he had nothein in his pedigree indicating mental or emotional instability.

The FBI's investigation of Turkey's past was so extensive, according to a Secret Service spokesman, that the dog's pawprint is now recorded in FBI files.

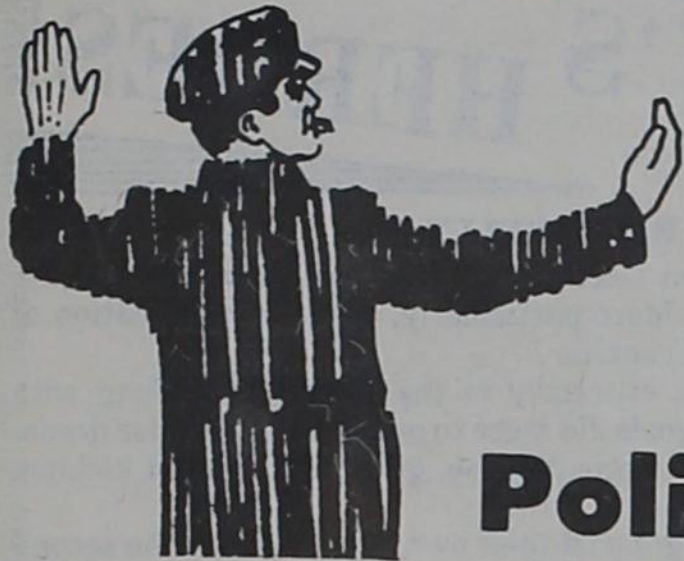

Watch on Waste: The federal government wants tourists to be comfortable when they visit Washington. So the Park Service provides handy restrooms for their convenience. Last month the Park Service equipped these restrooms with seven toilet-paper holders. This, no doubt, is in the public interest. But we've now learned what they cost the taxpayers: $575 for the seven holders. That comes to $82 each.

— Some local governments are coming up with novel ideas on how to spend federal money designed to relieve unemployment. Local officials in Ventura County, Calif., for example, have developed a unique plan that will consume $385,000 and put 100 people on the payroll. They will conduct a census. But they'll be counting dogs instead of people.

Bible Study: The awesome responsibilities of the presidency haven't disrupted Jimmy Carter's religious studies. The president has told visitors that he has read the entire Bible twice before, and is now reading the Holy Scriptures for the third time. He and First Lady Rosalynn Carter, he says, are each reading alternate chapters of a Spanish-language Bible.

Brenda Faye Brown, 1832 E. 1 Street told police that a wire was used to get into her car.

Around the Hub City

Rev. and Mrs. R.L. Caro and Mrs. S.R. Anderson traveled to Amarillo last week to attend church services at the Amarillo Number Two District Holy Convocation with the Rev. N.C. Coffey, district superintendent, presiding.

Rev. Caro, district superintendent of the Harvest Field District, preached a dynamic message.

His text, "A Worthy Goal."

The service was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Anderson rendered a beautiful solo, "His Eye is on the Sparrow."

The group reported a safe trip and a glorious time in the Lord.

The Outreach Breakfast Club met in the home of Mrs. Clara Etta Brown, 3616 East 15th on Sept. 24th.

Mrs. Dorothy Hood, devotion chairperson, brought a beautiful topic; "almost" from Acts 26:28-29. Mrs. Hood said that although "almost" is an innocent looking word, it has been the destruction and downfall of many.

A very tasty breakfast was served.

Many testified about God's goodness and went rejoicing about the good time they had.

Atzatlan Mural May Have Hope

The Atzatlan mural chipping since it was finished and eventually abandoned by the city council as being too costly to restore, may have one last hope. Tim Mitchell, of Tech-Nique Painting Contractors, is going to try to do what the city has been told cannot be done. Working independently, he is going to attempt to seal the painting. The dirt behind the concrete wall, serving as a canvass for the mural, has been pulled back. Water from the dirt had been seeping into the wall, which was improperly cured.

Luciano Perez, Director of Human Relations, estimates Mitchell's chances for success as 50/50.

He's going to attempt to seal the back side, and seal the portions the wall where there is no paint. He's also going to try to cure the concrete and then seal the paint itself, Perez said.

Mitchell is volunteering his services, he's not getting paid for his work.

"Tim is from the neighborhood, he grew up with and is friends with these people," Perez said. He offered to help "when he learned about our plight."

A Christian

Composed by Deanna Nelson, age 9—St. Luke Baptist Church Sunday School:

To be a good Christian you should never fight,
Or be bad to people with all your might.
But you should always be nice and kind and sincere,
And be someone other kids like to be near.
When the teachers say something you should always obey,
To be a good Christian you should I say.
You should always have reverence to God above,
For He gave His Son and that is Love.
There's much more about how to be better,
But if I say it all I'll be here forever.
Goodbye, Goodbye, I'm saying now,
Be a good Christian because now you know how.

KELLY'S HEROES

By JOE KELLY

Texas A&M literally kicked Texas Tech out of Jones Stadium and the Southwest Conference lead. More particularly, it was a combination of David Appleby and Tony Franklin.

Appleby's booming punts, especially in the second half, along with Franklin's kickoffs and field goals did more to puncture the Raider dream than anything else. And the Aggie defense, given that kind of kicking, kept Tech bottled up.

Indeed, the Raiders never got past their own 26 yard line in the second half. Everything they tried failed and the only thing that kept them in the game was an Aggie fumble recovery and Mike Mock's heroic punting.

Eventually, Mock tired and the Aggies managed to get close enough for Franklin to drive the final nails in the coffin. There was little or nothing Tech could do about it.

Franklin is incredible. I was on the sidelines for the final five minutes or so. Standing near Tech bench I had a good view of the go-ahead field goal.

It was typical. Franklin got his foot into the ball and it took off like a rocket. Franklin gets unbelievable height in his kicks. Opposing teams have little or no chance of blocking a kick unless they get there about the time the ball leaves the ground.

There will be those saying that the season is all but over for Tech. That's nonsense. It was a defeat, but it wasn't the end. There are a lot of games left—for both teams.

It was a big victory for the Aggies, but they still have seven tough games left. And the Raiders, with one loss, are far from out of the race. Sure, it slowed the team down, but it sure isn't the end. Tech can come back and still win or tie.

A lot of folks forget that, even without Rodney Allison, the score was 17-17 with five minutes left to play. Thus, you have to give credit to Tres Adami for doing an adequate job. When the Raiders grabbed a fumble, they capitalized on it and Adami was at the throttle.

An Allison Adami isn't, but how many quarterbacks in the country are there that are that good? Adami can do an adequate job and, for most of the games, that will be enough.

"We're going to have to regroup," a solemn Steve Sloan said after the game. "We'll have to modify our offense. We have two non-conference games, Rice and then a week off before Texas. I hope that Rodney will be back by that time."

Sloan and Adami will have a lot of intensive work together this week, along with a sophomore Tech hoped to red shirt.

"We had hoped to red shirt Johnson," Sloan said, "but we can't now. He's our backup."

Adami took Tech on one 69-yard drive late in the second quarter. That ended in Blake Adams' missed field goal. Outside of that one thrust, the Raiders couldn't move the ball.

Indeed, they were fortunate to be tied with five minutes left. A&M picked up 88 yards rushing and 99 yards passing the last half, while Tech had a minus six yards rushing and only 33 passing. Tech lost 35 yards attempting to pass the last half.

Defensively, the Raiders were brilliant and that goalline stand has to be one of the most impressive performances. And George Woodard was held well in check. He average "only" 3.2 yards and Dickey, the most dangerous, averaged only 2.8 yards.

Mock's kicking was more than adequate and Adams set a new Tech field goal record. But Mock spent most of the second half kicking from the back end zone line.

Offensively, the Raider were inept. They had enough drive to turn a fumble into a touchdown. Otherwise, they could not move the ball. They had only two first downs the last half.

You have to give credit to the Aggies, who obviously were more determined to win. Their defense didn't give Tech a chance to get out of the hole and the kicking game kept Tech there. It was a disappointing performance, even though the Raiders were in the game with less than four minutes remaining.

Would Allison have made the difference in the outcome? That question can never be answered. You have to believe that he would have and that Tech probably would have won with Allison on hand.

But, you kon't KNOW that and there never will be a chance to prove it. In the final analysis, A&M won because of brilliant kicking, stout defense and absence of enough big plays by Tech.

So, as Steve said, Tech must regroup, fit the offense to what Adami can do and play with inspiration. Anything less than 100 per cent from now on could spell a drouth at Raiderland.

Steve's humor was blunted a bit, but he wanly came up with some to relieve the tension. And fans had better get their "I Believe In Steve" buttons out, because you I know that he's going back to work with his staff and they, for sure, haven't given up. Tech can still have a great season and on that you can make book.

Outreach Program Aims To Include More Black And Chicano Women

The YWCA has begun conducting a survey to determine the needs and special interests of Black and Chicano women.

Through this survey, the YWCA hopes to decentralize its activities into the Black and Chicano communities by providing activities which would be of interest to the women in these communities.

According to Vivian Mendez, special programs director, there has been a lack of participation from Black and Chicano women during the past few years.

Ms. Mendez said there are various reasons for this decline in participation among these groups. Mendez said the concept has developed that the YWCA is a middle class program. However, Mendez said, the program is for all women of all races.

Another reason for the decline Mendez said is because of the location of the YWCA.

Mendez said, "There was more participation among black women when the YWCA was located on Broadway, but when we moved to 35 Street, Black women became less involved." The location also pushed away participation among Chicano women. Mendez said failure to recruit minorities has also contributed to lack of participation among non-white women. Once we find out the interests of Black and Chicano women; we hope to take these activities to them.

The survey is being conducted in the Parkway area right now, and we hope to begin offering special programs for the women of this community by next spring, Mendez said. Once we are established in that community; we hope to branch into other communities.

There will be a small fee for the activity, but it will be a limited one and arrangements can be made to pay the fee, Mendez said. According to Mendez, membership to the Y will be optional, but the women can still participate in the activities in the community.

We realize the process will be a slow one, but we also realize that it takes time for any program to be a success, Mendez said. The survey, will be conducted through Oct. 24, and we will be going to laundromats, beauty shops, churches and any place we can get answers, Mendez said. Mendez said, "We hope to be a positive force in bringing all women together."

Brownie 'Come-Along' Scheduled

More than 100 Brownie Girl Scouts from Caprock Council have registered to attend a Brownie "Come-Along" at Camp Rio Blanco October 1, 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

Brownie Scouts from Slaton, Floydada, Wolfforth, Plainview, Levelland, and Lubbock have registered for the "Come-Along." Miss Sharon Washburn, Program Services Director; and Miss Lavica Strother, Field Director, are coordinators of the program.

Third grade girls interested in becoming Junior Girl Scouts will meet other scouts and join in the activities.

Stations will be set up to exhibit several aspects of scouting including camping, knot tying, earning badges, songs and games. A secret event will be the final activity.

In connection with the

"Come-Along" there will be a workshop on the campsite for the adults who transport the Scouts. Mrs. James Russell will be in charge of this event.

The cost of bedding is going up, says Glenda Moore, housing and home furnishings specialist, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "Expect to see a two to five per cent rise in bedding prices before winter," the specialist says.

Sheridan's Ride

By JACK SHERIDAN

Readers of this column may remember back to the Wednesday, Sept. 7, issue of the West Texas Times. This contained an article, a "Tribute to Ethel Waters," on the day following her funeral at the Church of the Resessional, Forest Lawn, Glendale, Calif. It was a few words of love for a woman known to me as "Mom" and to whom I was "Son Jack," proudly so.

Many of you know that Ethel Waters had been ill for many years, heart and progressive complications. What you do not know is that following her August, 1975, appearance as soloist in Jones Stadium with the Billy Graham Crusade, she became steadily worse and her public appearances were curtailed. She was 80 when she died on Sept. 1 and she died in the home of a Mr. and Mrs. Paul DeKorte (Julie) in Chatsworth, California, after a torturous and cruelly drawn-out final span.

Rarely has devotion and the following of the precept of Christian living been so flamingly underscored as it was during the nine months period that the DeKorte family harbored, nursed and cared for the ailing, great star. That they did and unstintingly. Those are sparrows that His eye must surely be on constantly.

This weekend I received a letter from Julie DeKorte, along with a couple of superb glossy photos of Miss Waters and a copy of the funeral arrangements at Forest Lawn (Paul DeKorte sang at the services, "Finally Home" and a duet with Dick Bolks, the organist, "Just a Closer Walk with Thee" and the service was conducted by Dr. Grady Wilson of the Billy Graham Association). Also in the funeral folder, which listed the birth, in Chester, Pa., October 31, 1896 (Hallowe'en — or "Hallowed Eve" to use the proper term— and certainly it was) and the death Sept. 1, 1977.

Included in the folder was the verse and chorus of the song most identified with Miss Waters, the rock of her faith, the title of her autobiography, "His Eye Is on the Sparrow."

"Why should I feel discouraged, why should the shadows come, why should my heart be lonely away from heaven and home, when Jesus is my portion? My constant friend is He: His eye is on the sparrow, and I know He watches me; His eye is on the sparrow, and I know He watches me. I sing because I'm happy, I sing because I'm free, for His eye is on the sparrow, and I know He watches me."

And the blessed Julie DeKorte took time this week to write to me of the past months leading to the passing of Miss Waters and there are a couple of excerpts that I want to share with you.

"It hurt me how everyone was saying she died in poverty. She paid her own way until the end, and although she didn't have a large bank account, still she did have a little nest egg to give to Billy Graham Associates. As you know, she was extremely generous in her lifetime, and gave away most of what she had—she did not waste it.

"This summer was very difficult. Mom (Miss Waters) suffered a great deal. The last two weeks—I hardly left her bedside. We prayed (she and I) so hard that the Lord would release her from her worn out body, and Praise the Lord, He did. The last night was particularly difficult. I sat by her all night and when dawn came—the Lord took her. I wish you could have seen the peaceful look that came over her face. I resented not being able to see what she was seeing after we talked about it so much. I felt cheated.

"I feel at loose ends. For nine months my life has revolved around caring for her. I couldn't leave the house without a nurse here. Now the children are in school, and Mom is gone. The room looms dark and there's no smile as I pass—no noise from the TV and radios to fill the house. But NEVER would I wish her back."

Loving kindness is what it's all about and Paul and Julie DeKorte carry that proud jewel with them and the gratitude of so many of us who knew Ethel Waters as Mom and to whom we were Sons and Daughters, unforgettably and gratefully, for all time.

I went off to the Civic Center Friday night solo and stag unfortunately to attend the dinner dance that Civic Lubbock, Inc. put on in the cavernous Exhibit Hall featuring the Glenn Miller Orchestra which has gone on as a big band operation all the 25-plus years since the band leader disappeared on a flight over the English Channel during World War II.

It was a packed downstairs at the tables but sparse in the no-meal, seats only fringing balcony. The cocktail hour at 6:30-7 p.m. was a bust, no service at the tables mainly, and the dinner was good and varied (prime rib and all the fixin's). Table service (coffee, etc.) was carried out by young, pretty and well-meaning ladies with a modicum of experience. But, they tried, bless 'em.

The band appearance was preceded by some 1940s film clips of newsreels that apparently nobody paid any attention to whatsoever and the decor consisted of some varied-color hangings from the girders with some pseudo-crystal chandeliers and the inevitable mirrored sphere turning over the heads of the dancers.

From where I sat (a long way away from the dance orchestra platform) it looked as if the dance area was too small and jammed, packed like sardines in a can. The music was Miller all the way and listenable, bringing back memories of a schoolday past for me and those college dances so long ago. The hall is girdered and that means echoes and the reliance on amplification, which did not help much. The effect was about the same as is achieved in the lofty, metal-laced Municipal Coliseum whenever a musical organization has moved onto that stage.

Seems to me it would have been a happier thing if the Banquet Hall, with its stage and its good acoustics, had been utilized, but Mickey Yager and company know what they are doing, I assume, and I was grateful to be on hand.

Ah, well. It's back to the Civic Center come next week when the Lubbock Symphony launches its Mondays-Tuesdays 1977-78 season with Lenus Carlson, baritone, as soloist. An event to be anticipated.

And Showplace 4 will bring back the Clint Eastwood success "The Outlaw Josey Wales" on Friday, while Home Box Office on television will be showing the same film for those who have the facility from Lubbock Cable-TV right in one's own living room. And when the newspaper ads for the commercial networks tout "Rooster Cogburn" and "Gable and Lombard" as "first time on TV," don't you believe it. We've been HBO-ing those films for months now. Without commercials or editorial cuts, either.

Home Buyers Should Not "Wait 'Til Next Year"

The average cost of a new single-family home has increased more than 100 per cent in 10 years, and this trend is likely to continue, says Kenneth E. Graeber, economist in real estate with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. His information is based on recent U.S. Department of Commerce reports.

Given population and inflation trends, Graeber projects an average home appreciation rate of 8 per cent annually. "If the trend continues, homes selling for $35,000 today might sell for $63,000 in 10 years," contends the Texas A&M University System specialist.

"Many families have postponed purchasing a home in hopes of saving up to buy or build their 'dream' home. However, inflation may prevent these individuals from ever owning their own home," notes Graeber.

Studies indicate that buyers of similar income levels who previously owned homes pay 20 to 30 per cent more for homes than buyers who previously rented. "This is, in part, due to an accumulation of equity in the first home which can be reinvested in the next," points out the economist.

"Other individuals have postponed purchase until interest rates decline. Any benefits gained by waiting for lower interest rates could be offset if homes cost increased.

"A properly selected and cared for home will remain one of the better investments for most families," contends Graeber. "The motto of 'Wait 'Till Next Year' might best be reserved for football."

Along Freedom Road

Black-owned and operated banks have grown rapidly in recent years, and there are now 48 such banks with aggregate total deposits of $781 million and aggregate assets of $821 million.

So far this year, the banks have also received federal deposits amounting to $96 million. Twenty-five years ago, there were only ten black banks.

Women now outnumber men by 200,000 in university undergraduate schools, and college enrollment among blacks has doubled since 1970, according to the Census Bureau.

In 1970, female undergraduates totaled 46 percent and men outnumbered them by 400,000 while last year women made up 52 percent of the undergraduate student body.

Only 370,000 blacks attended college in 1966 as compared to 522,000 in 1970 and 1,100,000 today.

Blacks now comprise 10.7 percent of all college students under 35, more than double the 4.6 percent level in 1966.

However, while the proportion of black high school graduates going on to higher education is about the same as whites, black enrollment is heavy in low-cost, low-status institutions, particularly community colleges, according to Harold Howe II, former U.S. Commissioner of Education.

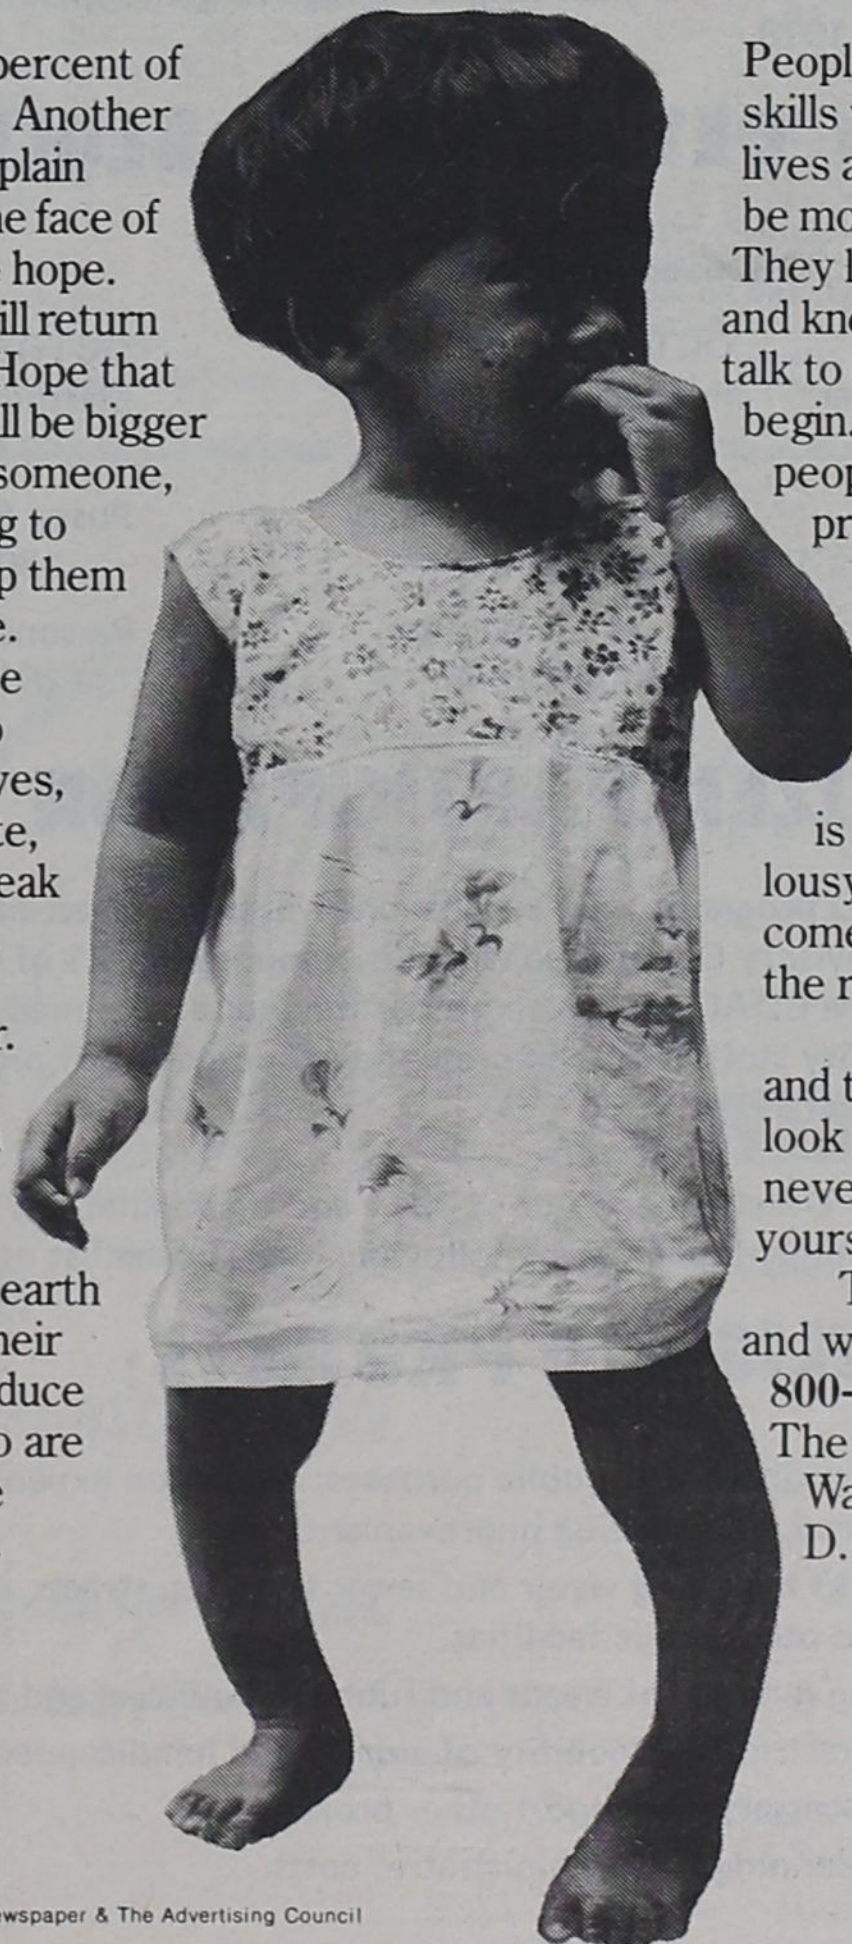

Roast any size turkey, but always in one continuous cooking period, says Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Let window shopping pay off for you, says Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Take along a descriptive checklist of your needs, and make even the most casual window-shopping tour an exercise in comparison shopping. It might save dollars, steps and time in sales watching, the specialist says.

TAKE THIS AD TO DINNER

More than fifty percent of the world is starving. Another twenty percent, just plain hungry. And yet, in the face of starvation, they have hope. Hope that the rains will return to the African Plain. Hope that the Asian rice crop will be bigger this year. Hope that someone, anyone, with anything to offer will come to help them fight the battle for life. Someone in the Peace Corps. They'd like to stand up for themselves, these prisoners of fate, but they're just too weak to stand up. But with the Peace Corps a flame begins to flicker. They've seen others like you before. Seen the changes you can bring. Two thousand wells on the parched earth of Sahel. Seen how their knowledge helped reduce the grain losses. Who are they? They're people pretty much like you.

People with commitment and skills who've assessed their lives and decided there must be more than just having a job. They looked into themselves and knew it was time for the talk to end and the work to begin. They're very special people, these people. Totally prepared to give everything they've got. And getting back even more than they give. That's the beauty of the Peace Corps. The work is hard and the pay is lousy, and the progress comes a drop at a time. But the rewards are infinite.

Join the Peace Corps and then take a good long look in the mirror. You'll never look the same to yourself again.

If you discover that your ancestors were in Maryland, you may find helpful information in Maryland Slave Owners and Superintendents, 1798,

Volume 2 by Bettie Carothers. Softbound, 74 pps., indexed. Order from Ms. Carothers, 1510 Cranwell Road, Lutherville, Md. 21093, $6. The work includes the existing records of the 1798 federal tax assessment list for the counties of Prince George's, Queen Anne's, Talbot, Somerset, and St. Mary's.

Items given for each county are the name of the slave owner (and his superintendent, if any), the number of slaves owned, and the name of the town or hundred where the slaves were located. A few entries have additional information, such as Jane WILSON of Queen Anne's County, whose superintendent was Solomon WILSON, a "malotto." The four slaves of Ann WHEELER of Prince George's County were "a woman (sic) and 3 children who were allowed by their Mistress to labor for their own maintenance."

The genealogy collection in the Mahon Library has acquired a copy of Black Genealogy: How to Begin by James D. Walker. It will be available for use as soon as it is catalogued.

Mrs. Harriet Stapleton, Rt. 1, Box 395-B, Swansboro, N.C. 28584 is compiling a book entitled Stapleton Families in the U.S. Pre-1850. There were many STAPLETONS in Missouri after the Civil War, and Mrs. Stapleton believes she may be able to help present day descendants with their research. She also has bits of data regarding free black STAPLETONS in North Carolina in the 1700's and in Tennessee in the early 1800's. Correspondence concerning the STAPLETON family will be welcomed.

The federal censuses for 1790 through 1840 listed only the names of the heads of the households, giving approximate ages for the males and females comprising the household. These censuses contained categories for the number of all other free persons besides Indians and the number of slaves. For the first time, the 1820 census schedule enumerated the black population (divided into the headings of male and female; by broad age groups. Unless they were free heads of family names of blacks were not included on the census. An important aspect of the 1840 schedule was its listing the name and age of pensioners for Revolutionary or military service in each household.

CITIZEN PARTICIPATION

is an important part of the CD program. Your suggestions will be received and considered by the Community Development Advisory Committee which is composed of 21 of your fellow citizens from throughout the City. The CDAC will also consider the input from mail-out survey cards, plus recommendations from the City staff, and then present a proposed list of projects to the City Council for public hearing on November 17th.

The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 and the regulations issued by the Department of Housing and Urban Development include the following items in the list of

ELIGIBLE PROJECTS:

1. Costs of buying and selling property for public purposes; relocation expenses for persons and businesses which are displaced; and housing improvements.
2. Construction of public works including water and sewer facilities, streets, street lights, traffic signals, sidewalks, parks and other public facilities.
3. Code enforcement including removal of weeds and rubbish, junk cars and sub-standard houses.
4. Removal of barriers which restrict the mobility of elderly and handicapped persons.
5. Public services which are necessary to support other projects.
6. Community development planning and administrative costs.

In addition, each project included in the Community Development Program must either primarily benefit low or moderate income families, or contribute to the prevention or elimination of slums or blight, or be an urgent community need.
