October, Cooperative Month

Bailey County Electric Cooperative is among the thousands of cooperative organizations planning special observances during October, traditionally designated Co-op Month.

Theme for 1973 observances is "Cooperatives... People with Purpose." Says manager J. W. Coppedge, "That about sums up all co-ops. For instance, years ago most rural areas had no light and power, but fortunately many did have groups of people with the purpose and persistence to establish their own rural electric systems. Today there are nearly a thousand of these systems--similar to ours here--serving about 20 million consumers across the nation."

Mr. Coppedge explained that many other kinds of cooperatives across the nation meet many other kinds of consumer needs... credit, housing, health care, food... "You name it, there's a co-op doing it," he said, adding that co-ops, by their very nature -- "people working together to help themselves" -- tend to go far beyond their basic responsibilities.

"We co-op people see our purpose as very broad, and constantly expanding. We're concerned about community betterment, consumer well-being, and improving the environment. And rural electric cooperatives, especially, are deeply involved in helping find solutions to the energy crisis."

Cotton Meet Set October 8 In Earth Show Barn

"An excellent crop can turn into trailer loads of headaches if producers do not plan well enough for cotton harvesting and handling," says Buddy C. Logsdon, County Extension Agent.

"Growers might be able to save themselves hundreds or even thousands of dollars by taking advantage of information to be offered at two meetings in Lamb County for producers and area citizens in the Earth, Springlake, Pleasant Valley, Sunnyside and Dodd at the Earth Show Barns, October 8 at 1:30 p.m. and at Littlefield in the "Willy Room" of the Lamb County Electric Coop Building, October 8 at 7:30 p.m.," Logsdon advised. Designed to update producers on facts harvest-aid chemicals, cotton harvesting and field storage, the meetings are sponsored by the South Plains

Development Program and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Specialists with the Extension Service based at Lubbock will present facts on the use of harvest-aid chemicals, equipment systems with specific information on labor, time and cost comparisons.

They are Roy Childers, area agricultural engineer-cotton mechanization, and Robert B. Metzler, area agronomist-cotton, and Marvin Sartin, area economist-mnagement.

Accompanying the specialists will be District Extension Agent Billy C. Gunter and Buddy C. Logsdon, Lamb County Extension Agent.

National 4-H Week Is October 7-13

4-H youth and their volunteer adult leaders throughout Texas and the nation are "getting it all together" as they observe National 4-H week, October 7

"Traditionally, since 1927, National 4-H Week has been a time for 4-H'ers, their leaders and friends to take stock of the year's accomplishments and achievements," says Dr. Don Storner, state 4-H and youth leader for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "4-H Week has been a time to look to the future of 4-H in each community, the state and nation."

"4-H Gets It All Together" is the theme of this year's observance and in countless ways, 4-H has "gotten it together" by involving more young people between the ages 9 and 19 than ever before. Latest available figures show some 5.5 million young people across the nation participate in 4-H annually. About 146,000 of these are in Texas.

4-H groups exist in nearly every U. S. county and in about 85 countries around the world.

"Begun after the turn of the century as an educational program for rural youth, 4-H today brings together both rural and urban boys and girls of all racial, economic and social backgrounds," points out the Texas A&M University System 4-H leader.

The 4-H program is designed to appeal to young people whether they live on a farm, in the suburbs or in the city. And through individual and group efforts they learn about the world around them, other people, customs and lifestyles like and different from their own.

"And that's what the theme '4-H Gets It All Together' is all about. It's about young people of different backgrounds getting to know each other and interacting and working together to solve mutual problems, such as energy, fuel and electric conservation, improving health habits and standards, protecting our natural resources, and better agricultural efficiency," says Storner.

The Texas Agricultural Extension, the parent organization of 4-H, through its county Extension agents, works closely with the youth of the state in providing an exciting and challenging 4-H program, notes the 4-H leader. And dedicated volunteer adult leaders, almost 14,000 in number, give of their time and efforts to "make the best better" in 4-H.

"A class reunion is a time when old school mates get together to find out who is falling apart."

Kelley-Clark Vows Exchanged Saturday In Church

In a beautiful and impressive candlelight ceremony in the First Baptist Church in Earth at 7 p.m., Saturday, September 29, Miss Donita Sharal Kelley of Lubbock and Roger Don Clark of Lubbock, exchanged vows in a double ring ceremony. Rev. David Hartman, pastor, officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Kelley of Earth and Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Clark of Lubbock.

The altar was decorated with candelabra holding long orange tapers enhanced by greenery and fall leaves. Baskets of lovely mums in shades of fall colors were used in decorations throughout the church. The windows were enhanced with orange candles encircled at the base with an array of colorful fall leaves. A table placed in the entry of the church was draped in green with an arrangement of colorful fall mums. In front of the arrangement was placed an open bible, belonging to the bride's grandfather, the late Bill Clayton of Springlake. Near the bible, stood a unity candle embedded with a copy of the couple's wedding announcement. Wedding selections preceding the ceremony were presented by Mrs. Eldon Schaefer at the piano and Mrs. Larry Tunnell at the organ. Mrs. Jimmy Craft, soloist, sang, "Someone, Somewhere" and "The Wedding Prayer" accompanied by Mrs. Tunnell. Two recordings by the three Kelley sisters, were played. They were "Twelfth of Never" and "Whither Thou Goest." The couple lit the lovely unity candle during the playing of the last recording.

The beautiful bride, given in marriage by her father, walked down the aisle adorned in a gorgeous formal length gown designed of white Peau De Sole and lace. The empire bodice was encircled with satin ribbon with lace overlay and fashioned with a narrow band of ruffled Cluny lace around the high neckline and bordering the round lace yolk. The long lace sleeves featured double ruffled cuffs. The skirt was fashioned in an "A" line and extended into back fullness that fell into a chapel length train with a double lace ruffle bordering the hemline. The bridal veil of imported illusion, was held in place by a Juliet cap designed of matching lace and accented with seed pearls. For traditional sake, the bride wore rings belonging to her great grandmother, grandmother and her mother. Her wedding gown was something new and for something borrowed, she carried a handkerchief belonging to the mother of the groom and a bible from her mother. She wore two blue garters made by Mrs. Forrest Simmons and Mrs. Lucille Martin. For prosperity and good luck, she slipped two pennies into her shoe, one was minted in the year of her birthdate and the other, the groom's birthdate.

The bride's bouquet was of multicolored roses, tucked away in the bouquet was a handkerchief belonging to her great grandmother and a string of pearls wore by the bride when she was a child. Attendants were Miss Anita Kelley, the bride's twin sister, and Mrs. David Jacques, also her sister from Lubbock. They served as maid and matron of honor. Mrs. Allen Hatfield, Springlake, cousin of the bride, and Miss Sharla Haberer, Lubbock, completed the list of attendants. The attendants were dressed in identical moss green dresses designed with an empire bodice accented with double ruffles of candlelight lace around the high necklines. The short sleeves were trimmed in velvet ribbon. The "A" line skirts featured triple rows of lace ruffles along the hemline. They wore matching candlelight lace covered Juliet caps accented with green velvet ribbons and tulle. To complete their costume, they wore candlelight satin gloves trimmed with lace.

A Ian Kerr served as best man. Groomsmen were David Jacques, Gary Clark and Ronnie Rummel, all of Lubbock. Ushers were John Kelley, Sam Dewhurst and Jim McGee. Mrs. Karen Hudgeons, sister of the groom, registered guests. Distributing programs and rice bags were Susan Clayton and Cheryl Clayton.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was covered in a white lace cloth and centered with a lovely arrangement of gorgeous fall flowers complimented with candles. Crystal appointments were used to serve the wedding cake, punch, nuts and mints.

For a wedding trip to New Mexico, the bride chose a long dress of floral print, accented with beige lace. She wore a corsage of roses.

The bride is a graduate of Springlake-Earth School and is currently a senior Home economics major at Texas Tech.

The groom is a 1971 graduate of Texas Tech with a degree in Industrial Management. He is currently employed at Bran-Jon and Clark Electric in Lubbock.

The couple will reside in Lubbock following their return from their wedding trip.

Catfish As American As Apple Pie

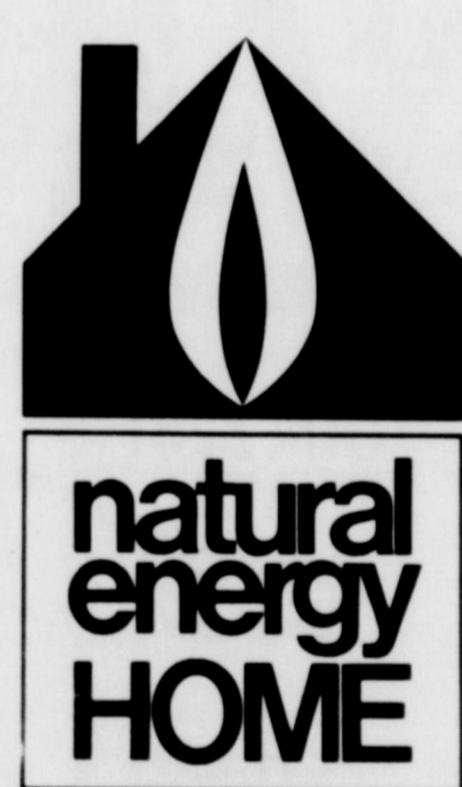

For an All-American taste treat, serve catfish. "It's as American as baseball and the Fourth of July," Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System noted. "Catfish provided sustenance for explorers, pioneers and American Indians. They also graced the tables of nobility." Whether from a lake, fishing hole or modern catfish farm, they provide an abundance of high-quality protein for growth and body-tissue repair. When faced with more than enough fish for a meal, freeze the extras for another day. "To freeze, dress fish as if for immediate use. Cut them into steaks, fillets or leave whole if small. "Place two layers of waxed paper between fillets or steaks so individual pieces can be separated easily. "Wrap in moisture-vapor resistant material or a plastic bag to make an air-tight package. This prevents the fish from drying out during freezing. "Store in the freezer at zero degrees F. for no longer than six to nine months. Frozen catfish may be cooked with or without previous thawing. Allow extra cooking time if frozen. When brooding fish for frying, let it thaw first to make handling easier, she suggested. Thaw fish in the refrigerator in its original wrap. "Roll fish in cornmeal or a mixture of cornmeal and flour. Fry in hot fat for about four minutes. Turn carefully and fry four to six minutes longer or until golden brown. "Drain on a paper towel and serve with hush puppies and cole slaw for an oldtime favorite."

ADD FLAVORFUL VARIETY to your favorite stuffing recipe by using several different kinds of bread--whole wheat, rye, pumpkinseed, etc., along with enriched white bread.

SIMULATED LAYER LOOKS, such as sweaters with a layered look collar or contrasting sleeves, are much cooler than wearing the real layers of several garments.

DROOPING CELERY can be rejuvenated by trimming the butt ends and placing stalks in water.

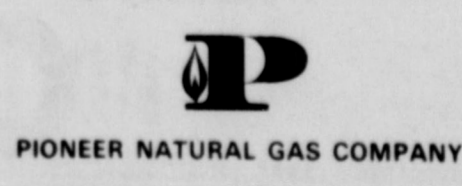

A TWO-YEAR-OLD is old enough to say "thank you, hello and goodbye." However, don't force him--instead, show pleasure when he makes the right response.

natural energy HOME

CLEAN ENERGY FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW

A Natural Energy Home uses natural gas for heating, cooling, water heating, cooking and clothes drying to save you money and help conserve our cleanest natural energy resource... natural gas. That's because electricity in West Texas is generated by burning natural gas, and in the process of generating and transmitting electricity to your home, 2/3 of the gas energy is lost. So, by using gas directly in the home for the jobs it can do, you're helping to conserve it and you're getting more energy for your money.

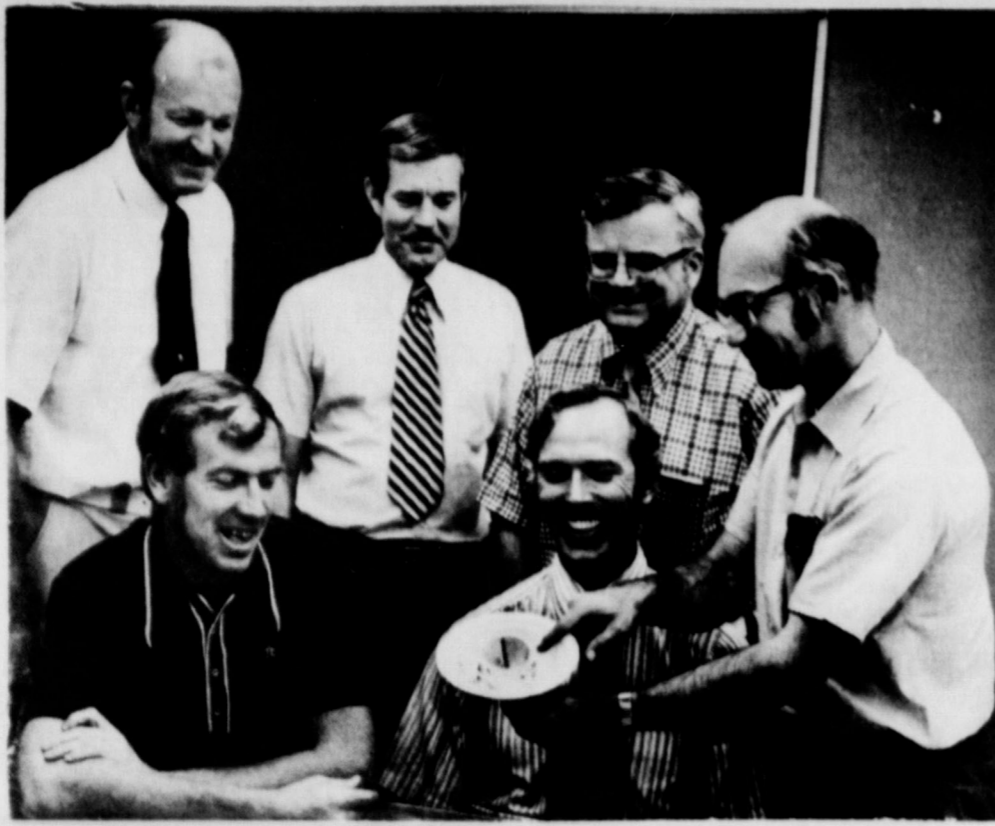

Control PinkBolo

Scientists at the University of California here have overcome a major obstacle in their search for a pollution-free way to control the pink bollworm, the most destructive cotton pest in Far West states and target of the heaviest uses of insecticides.

A team of entomologists headed by Dr. H. H. Shorey has identified the insect's true sex pheromone, successfully synthesized a chemical duplicate the call "gossypure," and is testing it as a behavioral control measure.

The sex pheromone is a chemical produced naturally in the body of an insect and given off to stimulate mating behavior in the opposite sex. Shorey's tests of gossypure mark the first use of a man-made duplicate of insect pheromones to control a major pest as an alternative to poisonous chemicals.

The achievement of the California research team is being hailed by experts because it promises to lower significantly the amount of insecticides used what Shorey calls a "communications disruption technique." The effect is similar to the effect of the odor of onions on man, he said.

Shorey's experiments with hexalure started in 1971. Tests this year with hexalure and gossypure covered 300 acres in the Coachilla Valley California.

Cotton Incorporated helped underwrite Shorey's research, along with California growers, who assess themselves for additional cotton insect research through the State Department of Agriculture. Also participating were the Rockefeller Foundation and the University of California Department of Entomology at Riverside.

Shorey's next move will be to attempt gossypure control of the pink bollworm in the entire Coachilla Valley of California next year.

The pink bollworm--or "pinkie," as the pest is known familiarly to cotton entomologists--has inflicted annual cotton losses estimated at $50 million over the past five years.

BEFORE TASTING any home-canned meats or vegetables, boil the food at least fifteen minutes. Poison from food spoilage can kill with just one taste.

WHEN SORTING laundry, separate "lint-givers" from "lint-holders." Turning "lint-holders" inside out will help.

THE FAMILY has the basic biological function of reproduction, and is the carrier of heritage and culture.

by western cotton growers.

"It also opens up the possibility of effectively containing an economically important cotton pest that lately has exhibited decided tendencies toward eastward migration," said Shorey.

Working with Shorey were Drs. H. E. Hammel, Lyle D. Gaston and R. S. Kaae, all of the University of California. They published their findings in the August 31 issue of "Science."

Shorey's team has spent the last three years developing techniques for using a near-duplicate of the female pheromone of the pink bollworm called "hexalure." Experiments with hexalure to confuse the male and thwart mating have proven successful enough for cotton growers to request treatments for their fields.

Gossypure is proving vastly superior to hexalure. Shorey said first tests of his new substance show it to be from 100 to 1,000 times as effective as hexalure.

The principle of gossypure as a suppression measure is

Caution Given On Seed Desiccants

Pollinator rows, in hybrid seed production which is to be used or sold as grain, should be harvested prior to using a desiccant on seed rows, according to Grain Sorghum Producers Association Executive Director Elbert Harp. Harp stated that no desiccant is registered for grain sorghum to be fed or grazed.

"Since EPA has not approved the use of chlorates and other chemicals for desiccating grain to be fed, farmers are urged not to use these chemicals on seed fields before cutting the pollinator rows," warned Harp. Grain that has been treated could be condemned if residual carryover were found by EPA. Harp stated that such grain should not be hauled to an elevator.

Grain Sorghum Producers Association has been working to get clearance for the use of sodium chlorate and urea on grain sorghum for feed, but to date clearance has been granted for seed production only.

Lois Rudd Resigns After More Than Two Decades As Driver Barry & Young

With tears and mixed emotions, Mrs. Lois Rudd of Springlake resigned her school bus driving job Friday after 26 years of driving a Springlake Earth School bus.

Mrs. Rudd gave up her position because she had so many irons in the fire, plus the thought after the November of years, she perhaps should give up her job to a young person. Her thought of losing touch with her many school students brought forth a spring of tears that seemed never to stop flowing. Her resignation became effective Friday, then Tuesday she found time to substitute for a co-worker and drive one of the school buses.

Through the years, Lois has been described as an "old mother hen to her flock." She liked them all, and in all the years never had to take a student to the office. She herself, took care of her own bus student discipline problems. Through the years her most severe discipline was handled by putting one or two students off the bus and making them walk home. However, she commented, after a punishment of that sort, she had no more problems with those students again.

Starting her bus driving career in 1947, she has driven every year since, with the exception of a two year period when she was not even a substitute. Therefore, five years she substituted before taking the job back for good. The first bus Mrs. Rudd drove was an old, old International bus. She said during the first semester of that year, a few times George Laing rode the fenders and held a book over the carburetor to keep it running. She, like most women, didn't know why, but it helped it to run.

Later on that year, the school bought a new Ford chassis and on that, they used the same old bus bed.

She recalled at one time the bus drivers were paid in September and drove without being paid again until in March of the following year, when funds became available to catch up on their back pay. Mrs. Rudd's experiences include driving without a heater, windshield wipers, defrosters, etc. She said that many times it was necessary to push the windshield up so she could see out from between the bottom and top glass to keep on the road bed. The kids, she explained used blankets to keep them warm during those days when there was no heat in the buses.

Many times when the bus stopped, she got out with the students and played ball until someone came to help them. She has been stuck in the mud, stuck in the snow, but through it all they had many good times.

She has driven the bus for the parents of the students that is riding the buses she has been driving for the past few years, as a generation of students has already passed her way in the more than two decades she driven the bus.

In summing it up, she declared, "I know I'll miss my kids, but it's time I stop for I can't seem to do all the things I feel I must do."

"Eyewitness" To Be Available Soon

A veteran Texas newspaperman who saw 189 men die in the electric chair at Huntsville prison has written a book about his experiences which his publishers hail as "the definitive work on crime and punishment."

Appropriately, the book is titled "Eyewitness." The author is Don Reid, who "covered" the Texas prison system for 35 years for the Huntsville Item

Services Held Friday For Kin Of Local Couple

Funeral services for Stanley Rogers, 26, of Tempe, Arizona, were held Friday afternoon in Tempe. Rogers died Wednesday afternoon from a fall.

Rogers is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Byers of Earth and was a former resident of Earth. Mr. and Mrs. Byers returned late Sunday night from Tempe after attending the services.

and the Associated Press. Reid successively was reporter, editor and publisher of the Item. Last month, at 66, he became publisher-emeritus.

Reid did more than witness the 189 executions. He spent long hours with most of the men he saw electrocuted. He listened to their stories, studied their cases, read their last wills and testaments, and stood beside them when they died. He haunted courtrooms and police stations where some of the cases had their beginnings. He pored over records few men are privileged to examine.

"No law enforcement officer, no district attorney, no Supreme Court justice, no prison official has Reid's first-hand knowledge of capital crimes and the people who commit them" said Jack Donahue, editor of Cordovan Press of Houston, Reid's publisher. "His fund of knowledge is unique. In this time of this Great Capital Punishment Debate his conclusions should not be disregarded." Reid has seen men confess to the vilest crimes then die serenely. Others, claiming innocence to the end, fought every step of the way from Death Row to the chair, spewing hatred at their captors and dying with a curse on their lips.

One, "Humpty" Ross, a twisted gnome with gorilla strength, broke loose from his guards and tried to strangle Reid. Some condemned men considered him their "only friend on earth."

Because Reid listened and studied, and acted in their behalf, a half dozen men are alive today who otherwise would have ridden "Old Sparky," the convicts' name for the electric chair. Chiefly because of Reid, Texas has a modern parole system. And he helped initiate a rehabilitation program for first offenders unmatched in the U.S.

"Reid wrote this book for every American citizen, from Chief Justice Warren Burger to the man on the street," said Donahue. "Burger can profit from it no less than the bumpkin legislator, the cop on the beat or the housewife with a mind of her own."

"Eyewitness" will be in bookstores across the country by mid-October.
