Earth is perhaps one of the friendliest little towns in America. (Wish everyone could live here for a while) Makes me really feel sorry for people who live in New York and other large overgrown cities who have no way of meeting and becoming friends with the vast population that inhabit these large cities. Doubtless though, New Yorkers are like any other human beings. I imagine its a built in feature in the Human Nature to desire friendship no matter what part of the Globe you may inhabit....

Through the years many people have attempted to explain "What is a Friend," their selection of words have varied but their meaning has always stood out clearly as something to be desired. Longfellow says: Ah, how good it feels! The hand of an old friend. DeVillars says: God save me from my friends, I can protect myself from my enemies. Emerson says: A friend may well be reconed the masterpiece of nature. Eliot says: Animals are such agreeable friends, they ask no questions, they pass no criticisms. Franklin says: There are three faithful friends: an old wife, an old dog, and ready money. Cicero says: Friends make prosperity brighter, and lighten adversity by sharing its griefs and anxieties. The Bible says: A man that hath friends must show himself friendly, and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

Those chain cigarette smokers who as yet have failed to turn from their chain smoking ways, perhaps feels like a few "here in Earth seem to feel" that just any old coward can stop smoking but it takes a real he-man to face up to Lung Cancer....

Two modern mothers were strolling through the park one day killing time until a fashionable bridge party was to take place. one of the women noticing a baby in a parked baby carriage near by, said, "What a beautiful child." The second lady agreed, "It is a remarkable looking baby!" She strolled over to the carriage and looking down said, "Well, it should be, it's my baby." The other replied, how do you know? She snapped, Think I'm dumb or something, I recognize the nurse coming down the path.

This thing about being called as a juror sure has its exasperating moments... (especially after you've already went over once a week early because you failed to read the invitation carefully.) I worked late Monday night getting ads layed out so I could get off to Littlefield by 10A.M. Tuesday... I rushed, but for the life of me I arrived a wee bit tardy, and sneaked in just in time to answer roll call.... Shortly thereafter Judge Davis told as he had previously had 15 cases on his docket to be tried, but that all 15 people had come in and plead guilty and paid their fines, leaving his docket clean for Tuesday. We were excused to return to our work... one of the group of jurors later called to tell me the real reason those people had all plead guilty He explained it was because they had read my column last week and decided if they had jurors in the mood I was in they'd be convicted anyway, and being a conservative lot of law breakers, they decided to plead guilty, pay their fines and get it over.... (Sorry, we jurors just plain scared those folks into pleading guilty) But.... as things stand now we jurors gotta go back Thursday morning for some other cases... wonder if this group of folks will be that scary??? Reconc we can be that lucky twice????

Texas Tech now has a little Giant hand fed press that doubtless survived the flood on Noah's ark, to use in the Journalism Department. We enjoyed visiting with Ralph Sellmeyer, journalism professor and a Tech student who drove over to the office Monday to pick up the old press. Ross had donated to Tech... Professor Sellmeyer who attends many of our Panhandle and West Texas Press meetings was employed by a Weekly Newspaper near Kansas City, Kansas, prior to coming to Tech four years ago. (Hope those Tech students never have to stand and poke papers in that old press as many hours at a time as we did only a very few years back.)

We must remember that our public schools will furnish our leaders tomorrow with the basic human, moral and spiritual foundations necessary for more advanced training and knowledge. Astronauts, blast-off, time capsule, moon shot--- these words are all part of our space age vocabulary. Our changing times require many different things, most of all the ability to grow with the challenge presented by our awesome scientific developments. Never before in the history of America has our school system been so important! Never has such emphasis been placed on the development of projects which were unheard of ten years ago.

We as Texans, have always been proud of our public schools. Today, the public school system is faced with its greatest and most important challenge. For our schools must produce the scientists--the engineers--the physicists--the astronauts who will blast off to chart new courses toward an unbelievable future.

Our Texas public schools can meet the challenge, if they get the interest and support they require and deserve. You can help by visiting school during the 14th Annual Texas Public Schools Week, March 2-6. Learn what your school is teaching and how. Find out what their needs are and what goals they are trying to reach. You'll find it an education for you and a vitally important contribution to your community and to our children's future.

Motor Vehicle Inspections Lag Behind

Motor vehicle inspections are lagging behind with less than thirty per cent of the required vehicles in Region 5 displaying a 1964 inspection sticker, according to Captain Alan Johnson Motor Vehicle Inspection supervisor of this area for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"With the deadline for obtaining inspection stickers drawing near only 30 per cent of the vehicles in Lamb County have been inspected," the Captain said. "If this trend continues, vehicle owners can expect to wait in line in order to get their vehicles inspected by the April 15 deadline.

Some 5,000 official inspection stations over the state are ready and capable of handling the inspection of Texas registered vehicles without delay if owners will not wait until just a few days before the deadline.

Captain Johnson called attention to the fact that since the beginning of the inspection program, vehicles having a defect that was a causative factor in fatal accidents decreased from 13% to 4%. "The purpose of the motor vehicle inspection program is to discover any maladjustment which might become a link in a cycle of events leading to an accident and by removing the link, prevent the accident," the DPS supervisor said.

The Captain reminded us that we as Texans experienced our worst traffic fatality record in history, and is expected to go some higher before the books are closed on the official 1963 traffic fatality count. Vehicle defects were involved in some of these fatal accidents, therefore, to eliminate this type of accident drivers need to see that their vehicles are safe to operate and keep them safe throughout the year. He added that vehicles involved in traffic accidents should be re-inspected after repairs have been made.

"Any driver operating a vehicle registered in Texas, that is required to be inspected, on public roads after April 15 without a valid 1964 inspection sticker will be operating in violation of the law," Captain Johnson said.

Law Suits In Texas Show Increase Over '62

Attorney General Waggoner Carr today releases figures for the year of 1963 which reflected an all-time record in number of cases handled in a one year period.

The office disposed of 3,389 law suits for the period of Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, a 69% increase over the preceding year when 1,998 cases were closed. Of the record number of cases Carr's office won 2,638, were lost 122 and 629 were disposed of in some other manner.

The Attorney General also pointed out that a record number of cases, 3,288, were filed during the same period which named the State as a party. This figure represented a 47% increase over 1962 when 1,997 cases were filed.

In commenting upon the figures, Carr said "We have had an outstanding year, and I am proud of the record compiled by our attorneys during this period, not only for the won and lost record, but for the tremendous number of cases which they have handled."

Carr concluded by saying, "I wish to publicly thank every member of our staff for the dedication with which they have performed their duties. The record speaks more highly of their devotion than anything I might say."

Lamb County Failed To Reach Bond Sales Goal For 1963

"December E and H savings Bonds sales in Lamb County totaled $11,151 according to Mr. C. O. Stone, chairman of the Lamb County Savings Bonds committee. This figure represents 70.8% of the 1963 sales goal which was $330,000. The total for the months preceding is $233,734.

Savings Bonds sales in Texas for 1963 totaled $145,334,910 which represents 96.5 percent of the state goal of $150,000,000 This is an increase of 1.5 percent over 1962 sales.

"I was happy to note the sales increase during 1963 over sales in 1962 and feel confident it was a direct result of the wonderful support given by bond volunteers, newspapers, radio & TV station, organizations, and others. The Texas Savings Bonds Committee salutes these groups for their patriotic support of the Bond Program," Chairman Stone said.

Interplanting Shows Proof Increased Cotton Production

Increased cotton production improved quality, and a big boost to profits is the enthusiastic story told by Frank Moore of Plainview in describing the results from three years of interplanting grain sorghum with cotton in Hale County.

The six-row interplanting pattern runs two cotton-one blank, two grain sorghum-one blank, across the field. In comparison with yields from solid plantings the system has increased cotton production by 50 percent and grain sorghum production by 40 percent, with a cotton micronaire average a full point above the either solid or simple skip-row system.

"This yield increase for cotton came under conditions where wind and sand damage, were not a factor" Moore explains, adding that "when wind and sand damage enter the picture production figures can be doubled by interplantings." This is assuming that the two crops are planted at the same time in order to allow cotton to get maximum protection from the faster-growing sorghum. To emphasize the importance of this protection, Moore related that the only April cotton he was able to save under the extreme weather conditions of 1963 was cotton planted in this manner.

Micronaire average on interplanted cotton in 1963 averaged 4.3 as compared to a 3.3 average for cotton from a simple skip-row pattern. The secret to the higher micronaire is in the over-all maturity of the crop induced by higher growing season temperatures and the early season aid to growth furnished by wind and sand protection. To get maximum benefits from the temperature factor, Moore irrigates only between planted rows, leaving blank rows dry. By not applying 58 degree irrigation water to the blank rows they are allowed to absorb and retain more of the heat from full sun light. This heat is then radiated around plants at night, helping to keep ground level temperature up to the desirable 70 degrees or above. Also, the protection of the grain sorghum helps to keep the wind from dissipating the available heat. With only one post-planting irrigation, interplanting helped Moore produce 74.8 bales from 35 acres with only 12 light spot and one full spot bales in the lot.

The High Plains Research Foundation at Halfway, credited with developing the interplanting system under the direction of Delbert Langford, is continuing crop climate studies to determine the effects of temperature on growing cotton with the aid of a $5,000 grant from Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. These studies are under the direction of Dr. Arthur Gohlke.

Moore began using the Research Foundation's findings on interplanting in 1961, with only 1000 acres involved, and has interplanted 500 acres both in 1962 and 1963, with good result. He plans to plant over 1200 acres to this system in 1964, and believed that widespread use of the system could substantially increase the total High Plains cotton production, perhaps as much as 50 percent.

Sudan Man Is State Chairman To CROP Board

The Texas CROP-CWS Board at its annual meeting in Austin recently elected Mr. Joe T. Salem, a Methodist Layman of Sudan, Texas, as chairman of the body for 1964.

CROP is the community Resource program of Church World Service and conducts appeals in the state, through county and community committees, for farm commodities and cash to purchase food and self-help supplies for the overseas program of the churches. It is composed of members of the major Protestant denominations and farm and ranch organizations and is sponsored by the Texas Council of Churches.

Adopted for the year was a goal in value of commodities and cash of $150,000,00 and an additional goal of 300,000 pounds of used clothing and blankets through the United Clothing Appeal of the denominations which the organization helps to promote.

A State CROP Week was established as October 25 to 31, with October 25 to be the Texas CROP Sunday.

Mr. Salem is an active and dedicated layman in his own church in Sudan and conference serving his fourth year as conference Lay Leader of the Northwest Texas Conference of the Methodist Church.

In Summertime Electric Range Keeps Cook Cool

If your kitchen's so hot in summer that your cooking's splash, you may need an automatic electric range to put wintertime finesse into hot-weather meals.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, an electric range is 80 per cent efficient—30 per cent more efficient than other types of ranges. Since electric cooking elements are in direct contact with pots and pans, heat goes directly into the food, instead of into the kitchen.

There's less heat loss from electric ovens, too, because they are insulated on all four sides and at the top and bottom.

Add the fact that automatic timers and thermostatically controlled surface units on new electric ranges free you from watching and waiting while food cooks. You'll come up with a much cooler summer and more tasty, nourishing meals.

Pond water can be automatically purified as it is pumped from the reservoir. One quart of the proper chlorine solution from a hypo-chlorinator will purify 1,000 gallons of water.

If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land.—(Isa. 1:19)

Whenever faced with difficult circumstances we must remember that Christ is with us in all adversity; that He cannot fail to bless our life.

Fallout Shelters Needed By Everyone

College Station, Feb.--Since massive shielding is the only known protection from gamma radiation, everyone needs some type of shelter from radioactive fallout. This shelter need not be expensive or fancy, but it should be carefully planned to protect the family. The simplest and least expensive shelter is one included in the home when it is constructed. It can serve a dual purpose as an extra bedroom, utility or recreation room, photographic darkroom, or other facility. Underground shelters can also be built near the home. The cost, size, location amount of protection and ventilation are some factors to consider when building a shelter. If a fallout shelter cannot be constructed, a suitable area in the home should be located and steps taken to make it as safe as possible. The safest places in homes are usually basements, hallways, large closets or rooms with no windows. In addition, nearly every community has buildings that offer some protection. The safest part of a multi-story structure is in the center of the middle floor. The government is designating certain areas of large buildings as shelters and stocking them with survival supplies. Though different type structures provide varying amounts of protection from fallout, it is important to know how much protection is needed. If the dose level is high, an underground shelter will be needed for adequate protection. But above all remember that any shelter is better than none. Even tunnels, mines, caves, and culverts would provide some emergency protection. HOME ECONOMICS HELPS. Enrichment of flour and cereal adds about one-third

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

According to the newspapers Oswald's wife has admitted that he confessed having fired the shot intended for General Walker, and she also states that she has no doubt that he was the assassin of President Kennedy and the attempted murderer of Governor Connally. He fired the fatal shot into the face of the brave officer whom he murdered also. This latter occurrence plainly points to Oswald's guilt-why should he have risked killing a man who was simply questioning him?

A trial disclosing the probable communist conspiracy back of the murders will never take place now because someone, as Attorney Henry Wade says, "with plenty of money wants Rubenstein cleared." To the communists human life is expendable, if it suits their cause, and the ends justify the means. It is frightening to know that, due to laxity in our law enforcement communists who have been ordered to register are allowed to refuse to do so and that the conspiracy is treated as simply another political party when it should be outlawed. The purpose of international communism is destruction of the free world! Khrushchev, himself, says that he "will bury us," and that our children will live under Soviet slavery.

According to the Scott and Allen Report, and Administration was advised three weeks before the assassination, that there was a plot in Moscow, to train assassins for killing in America and Britain, to cause "anarchy, chaos,

Why Lawyers Defend Criminals

If you do not provide for the proper defense of all who are accused of crime, then the innocent, when falsely accused have no way to prove their innocence. So, under our law, we look on a man as innocent until he is found guilty under proper court proceedings. From this, it follows that all of us have the right to be represented by a lawyer. Since the lawyer has a duty to represent you, much criticism of him for doing so is unjust. Should a lawyer defend persons in court if he knows or thinks they have done the acts of which they are accused? Yes the worst criminal has a right to a fair trial. This he cannot have unless a lawyer sees that he has a fair jury and that it bears only lawful evidence against him. Sometimes the defense counsel arouses public feeling by his sincere efforts to see that his client has every proper legal safeguard. The public may misunderstand these legal moves. For the public they seem to be an unethical effort to defeat justice, by delay or by taking advantage of certain "technicalities."

Attorneys should tell people that it is one of our basic democratic rights to be considered innocent until legal evidence proves our guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. All who are charged with crime have a right to an attorney's aid. An attorney swears to see that the accused gets each protective legal right to which he is entitled.

Shall we continue to appease the Communist Conspiracy? Never! Wake up, America! Sincerely, William S. Hammond

If we but express our belief in God in the strongest of affirmatives we will invite into our experience the full expression of God-life and overcome all trace of fear.

—(Mark 5:36)

Ginners Oppose Acreage Diversion

A campaign to preserve the state's cotton acreage history and strong opposition to a proposed voluntary diversion of cotton acreage came from the Texas Cotton Ginners' Association board of directors Tuesday in Corpus Christi.

At the organization's closing session of the annual Directors and Allied Industry meeting the group adopted a 12-point legislative position which favored any legislative program providing for a reasonable income to the grower but which would not force the market to pay any supplemental income.

Association president C. L. Walker, Jr., Temple, and legislative committee chairman Burrus C. Jackson of Hillboro said the resolution particularly opposed any program which would attract cotton into government stocks.

Directors voiced immediate concern over the state's release and reapportionment program for cotton acreage. The ginners' organization favored the present law and opposed the recently proposed voluntary diversion plan which would pay growers for not planting cotton, Jackson told directors the diversion plan had no chance of passage in time for the 1964 crop. But, many growers, believing such legislation might affect their 1964 crop, are not releasing unwanted acreage. In some instances cotton farmers who have already released acreage are asking for the acreage back from their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees.

This development threatens to hurt the economy of every community, county and region of the state, Jackson said.

The ginners' organization resolution also opposed any cotton program without a minimum acreage of 16,310,000 acres, the present minimum.

The directors reaffirmed their earlier stand favoring a one price system for domestic and foreign mills and asked that no limitations be placed on government payments to cotton growers. The resolution also asked for quotas to remain in acres and not in pounds or bales.

Another section favored the handling of cotton through normal trade channels since "we believe in the principles of less government control instead of more government control, and a free marketing system."

Basically, the ginners' document pledged support to any cotton program which will permit cotton to move to consumers at a free market price and thus reduce the stocks on hand.

Walker said the deadline for release and request of acreage is February 4 in the southern half of the state and the reapportionment deadline is Feb. 25. Releases and requests must be made by March 4 in the northern zone of Texas with final reapportionment set on March 25. Planting of cotton will start in the Rio Grande Valley around February 10, Walker said. He urged ginners to contact farmers and encourage them to go ahead with release of unwanted cotton acreage.

Should acreage be held, 75% must be planted to retain full history credit. Should farmers hold acreage and not plant it, they will lose their cotton history for future allotment purposes, Walker said. This will bring about a similar loss in county and state allotments.

Farm Bureau Seeks End Of Agriculture Controls

A national farm leader has called on the new administration to reassess the unsatisfactory experience with a government-controlled economy in agriculture and take steps to permit greater freedom for the market to operate.

"Farmers are ready to lead the way," Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, asserted.

Mr. Shuman said that farmers "have indicated in many ways their rejection of a government-managed agriculture—they ask only to be unshackled and given the opportunity to produce for consumers rather than for politicians."

He added that "Farm Bureau will gladly cooperate with the administration in any sincere re-evaluation of government agricultural programs and policies."

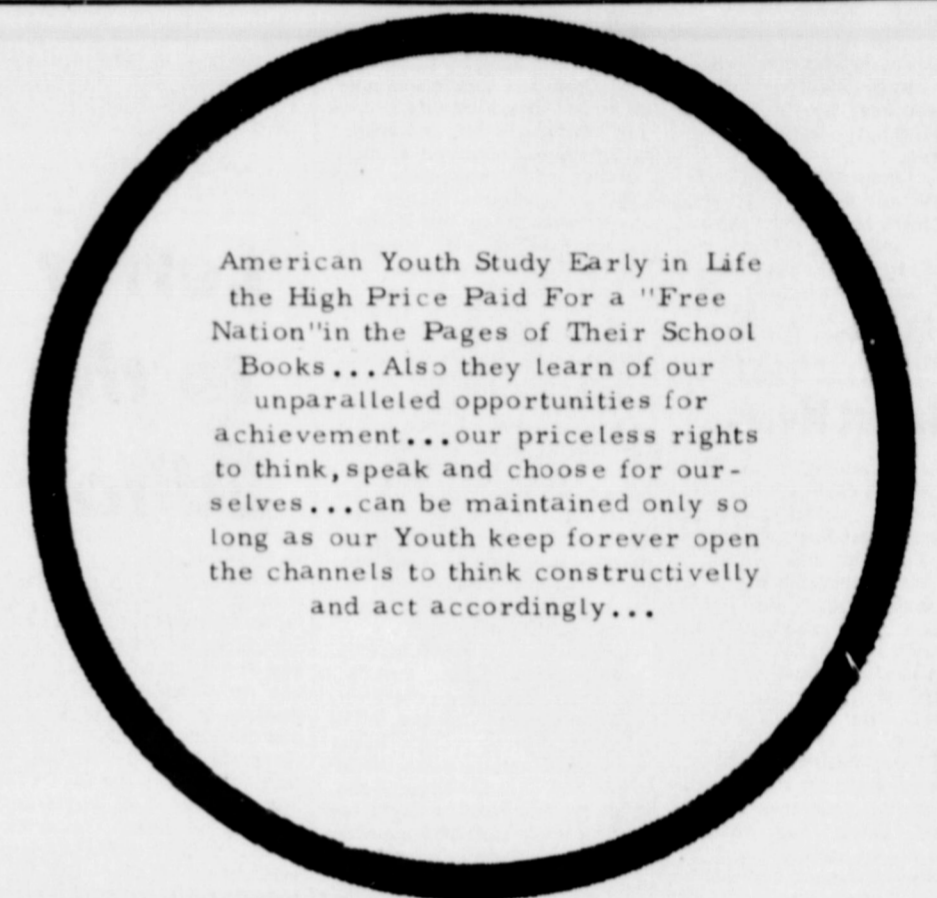

"The time is here," he said, "to clear the decks for competition in both domestic and world markets," but he pointed out that if farmers are to do this, "it is imperative that the entire national economy be more definitely market-oriented."

Mr. Shuman said that "clearing the decks for competition" will not be accomplished "merely by blocking new attempts to increase government intervention in agriculture," but "existing government production control devices and artificial pricing mechanisms" must be eliminated as rapidly as possible.

"We may never find a better time than now to dispose of these legalistic and costly structures which have become such a burden on farmers and taxpayers alike," he said.

JUNIOR HIGH GIRLS CAPTURE DISTRICT TOURNAMENT

Springlake Junior High girls captured the district tournament Saturday night in Bovina to tie Farwell for first place in district competition and necessitate a play-off game to be held Friday in Muleshoe at 7:30 P. M.

Meeting Lazbuddie in the first game, the local fermes had no contest as they out-scored the Longhorns 45 to 16. Susan Britton paced the girls with a 25 point output.

The second game for the girls was with Sudan and the going was somewhat tougher as the Springlake lasses downed the Sudan Hornettes by only four points, 30 to 26. Again it was Britton with 20 points that kept the locals in the game and in the district running.

Meeting their arch rival Farwell in the final game of the tournament, Springlake eked out a narrow one point victory--38 to 37. Once again it was Britton who scored 27 in this game to have a 72 point overall total and a 24 point per game average during the three game tournament.

Also scoring for Springlake was Gregory with a total of 28 points for a nine point average and Pat Bryant with 13 for a 4 point average.

The Junior High girls urge all the fans to come to Muleshoe Friday for their play-off game with Farwell and boost them to first place in the district.

USE AND MANAGEMENT OF IRRIGATION WATER

The use and management of irrigation water to produce agronomic crops and pastures which will bring ample economic returns to the irrigator and conserve his soils for future productions is called Irrigation Water Management. This is a management practice which involves many factors. The quantity of irrigation water used for each irrigation may be determined by the moisture holding capacity of the soil, the application of water at a rate and manner that the crops can use it efficiently, and the prevention of erosion when applying the water.

The moisture holding capacity of the soil is that amount of water held in the soil after all downward movement of applied water stops. The water held at the various levels in the soil and prevented from moving downward is known as the moisture holding capacity for that part of the soil. Different soils have different moisture holding capacities due to their depth, organic matter content and texture.

The needs of the various crops for moisture varies from crop to crop. One element in determining this is knowing when the period of maximum water use for each crop occurs, in its growth stage. For example, grain sorghums begin their heaviest need for moisture about 25 days after planting or at the seven leaf stage and reach their peak of water use in the middle of the booting period while cotton plants begin their heavy need for moisture about 45 days after planting or when the first squares appear and reach their peak of water use during the peak of the bloom period.

The application of water so that the plants can use it efficiently may vary with the type of irrigation system. When using a furrow type surface system the length of run would be held to a length that will allow efficient distribution of water down the furrow. If the length of run is too short an uneconomical use of water occurs. If the length of run is too long the plants closest to the water source may become water logged while the plants farthest from the water source receives insufficient amounts of water.

The prevention of erosion comes high on the list of Irrigation Water Management practices. Should the grade of slope of the furrow water-erod become to great the soil will be removed from the area closest to the water source. Channels may be cut in the furrow exposing plant roots or water may pile up at the end of the furrow and become lost by spilling over as run off.

The personnel of the Soil Conservation Service are ready to help the farmers of Lamb County in planning any Irrigation Water Management problems that they may have.

Soil Test For Nitrogen

Because of the large economic importance of nitrogen in this area, it would be highly desirable to have a more specific soil test to determine nitrogen needs. A large amount of research work has been done on developing a better nitrogen test.

Several types of nitrogen tests have been used to determine nitrogen needs of soils. The test that has been used for the longest period of time is the determination of organic matter. It measures the easily decomposable portion of the organic matter. This gives an indication of the nitrogen supplying power of the soil. To properly predict nitrogen needs, this test has to be related to past cropping history, past fertilizer use, soil type and yield potential. Such a test will not measure recent applications of ammonium of nitrate nitrogen.

Tests have been developed which determine the nitrification rate of soils under ideal conditions. Such tests appear to work very well under some conditions, but are of less value in areas where decomposition takes place rapidly.

PARTY LINE
Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Petty of Floydada visited in the Earl Walker home Monday.

Our state university laboratories have found that nitrification rate tests do not predict nitrogen needs in our soils any better than the organic matter test.

The determination of nitrate nitrogen at monthly intervals at different depths would be one way to determine nitrogen needs. You can quickly see, however, that labor in sampling and in laboratory work means that this method is not feasible. A single test on nitrates fluctuate in the soil. During a dry period, nitrates may accumulate to 20 to 30 pounds in the surface. Following a rain or snow, nitrates will move downward, leaving only 2 to 3 pounds or less in the surface.

Since there is no "perfect" nitrogen test, how is the best way to determine nitrogen needs? My suggestion is to rely on a laboratory with a good reputation and good background. Nitrogen recommendations based on research in the area, organic matter level, previous cropping history, etc., and made by a competent agronomist should give you best results. Give the laboratory and the agronomist all of the information you can and he can give you sounder nitrogen recommendations.

Lubbock Man Dies of Heart Attack in Earth

W. J. Crossnoe, 62 years old was pronounced dead at 9:45 Thursday morning in the Earth Clinic by the attending physician, Dr. W. D. Holt, 45 minutes after artificial respiration was rendered in an attempt to revive the man, who had suffered a heart attack earlier while sitting in a pick-up in front of Saunders Lumber Co.

Crossnoe was rushed to the clinic by an unidentified person, who being unfamiliar with Earth stopped Eldon Trotter, enroute, to ask directions to the clinic. Trotter alerted Carroll McDonald, who was near the bank building to get the fire department resuscitator. McDonald contacted Perk Lee who brought the resuscitator to the clinic. There the three men attempted artificial and mouth to mouth respiration in their further attempt to revive Crossnoe before Dr. Holt arrived at the clinic.

Crossnoe was associated with a concrete finishing firm in Lubbock and was working in Earth on the Arthur Miller home.

Funeral services were held at 2 P. M. Saturday at Caprock Church of Christ in Lubbock. Survivors are his wife, two sons, Willie Xon and Marvin Ray, both of the home and a brother, Homer Crossnoe of Rising Star.

Town hall democracy still works

Hunger, hardship, danger—the price of self rule came high! No wonder our early settlers prized the right to have a say in their town meetings. Today, rural electric cooperatives give millions a chance to take part in this pure democracy which has contributed so much to the strength of America.

The name has changed, but the rural electric annual meeting has the same rule-by-the-people freedom that characterized the colonial town meeting. Once a year, the member-owners of these local cooperatives get together to find out how their business is doing, and to take an active part in running it.

Free exchange of views, and frank discussion of policy give any interested member a chance to have his say. To become a director, with policy-making authority, a candidate must win the confidence and the votes of a majority of his fellow members. Plans, programs, and progress reports are subject to searching review.

The sanctity of the ballot and the basic freedoms of assembly, speech, and private ownership are American ideals. They find full expression in a business activity in America's rural electric systems.

Are we going to allow our public servants in Washington to vote us into such bondage? Our only hope is to inform as many of our friends as possible to: ---write their Senators, newspapers, radio and television stations and to keep informed, ourselves, to what is happening in our government. While Southerners are carrying the burden of the opposition, others are awakening to the fact that they are losing their basic freedoms. Earth News-Sun

Dear Ross,
As president of the Altrui Jr. Study Club, I wish to express the appreciation of the club members for the fine cooperation we receive from your newspaper. The amount of space given annually to our club projects is unestimable. With all the communications media available these days, it is still the newspaper that puts information into our hands in retainable form--to be read, digested, and kept.

The Altrui Jr. Study Club is a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the largest group of organized women in the world, having 11,000,000 members in 15,500 clubs in the United States and in 54 other countries. The General Federation program in this administration highlights: an extensive campaign to obliterate illiteracy from the United States and throughout the world; a Dimes for Liberty project to help build the Museum of Immigration at the base of the Statue of Liberty; cooperation in building the Cathedral of the Pines as a memorial to women who have died in all our wars, and many other worth-while projects. However our club has the privilege of choosing any project we wish to emphasize, always keeping in mind the needs of our local community.

Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold, president of the General Federation, has declared that the General Federation of Women's Clubs has always strongly advocated the freedom of the press and that it has never been more important than it is today when more than half the countries of the world live under a complete blackout of news through censorship. Again, accept our deep thanks
