NOSIN.....
WITH POLLY

Mrs. Everett (Matt) Patterson is a woman of many talents, she can yell for joy when that Pony team makes a score, at the same time she's jotting down the scores, fighting mosquitoes and literally chewing her pencils and yelling words of comfort and encouragement to the boys such as "Don't Be Nervous Now Fellows."

When the ball season is over, I expect son John will have come through it in fine shape, but Matt will probably require major surgery to remove sawdust and pencil leads.

I was never aware that taking the flag down from its pole atop the Postoffice required any special talent.

However, after observing Beedie Welch at the task, I'm convinced it requires a special skill and perhaps a little practice especially on a windy day. (She got it down and folded away, personally, though I think she has more talent as a basketball player than at letting down flags.)

My son Phil turned thirteen Monday and the idea of his being a teenager really made him proud (and likewise made his mom feel older than Methuselah now that her baby is a teenager).

I guess though now we can be classed as veterans, as we've been going through this teenage business for five years with Polly Jean, and believe me we've been damaged considerably from shock of sudden changes. This one day a child, the next day an adult stuff really gets tough on parents.

However, it's tough on boys too. He was playing ball on the Pony League Monday night at Littlefield, when a fast ball hit him on the elbow. We took him for X-rays, they ended up X-raying both arms to see if they could determine the extent of his injuries. We took him again Tuesday for another examination. The doctor has him wearing his arm in a sling this week, still not sure of his injuries. Friday he will X-ray again before making a final decision.

In the meantime, Phil is discouraged. He didn't expect to be ushered into the teenage world with such a BANG!

Ran upon this little story recently while reading the Texas Tax Journal and thought I'd pass it on to you.

ECONOMICS IN NINE WORDS

ONCE UPON A TIME there was a king who did not understand the science of economics. So he summoned all the economists of his realm and inquired of them diligently that they might inform him. But their explanations were long and wordy and often disagreed. In vain he tried to understand. At last he dismissed them all and sat moodily on his throne, his brow furrowed. Could no one explain this puzzling science?

Then a page boy came forward. "Your majesty," he ventured, "There is still one economist in the realm who has not come to the palace, for he is very old. Perhaps he has the knowledge you seek."

The king shook his head. "He would be like the rest," he said gloomily. "Still," the page boy continued, "I have heard that your father found him to have great wisdom."

"Very well," the king replied, "Let this old man be called to the palace. Tell him I wish to learn of the science of economics in words that even a page boy can understand. Charge him to impart this knowledge in a single sentence. If he cannot do so, permit him to ignore my summons."

The page boy bowed and departed. On the morrow he returned, bringing with him the aged economist. The king spoke sharply, "I have listened long to your fellow economists until my head aches with their tortured sentences. I trust you understand the terms of this audience. Tell me in a single sentence of the science of economics. If you cannot do so, begone."

"Your majesty," spoke the ancient one, "I understand your need and I am ready." "Very well," said the king. "Proceed." The white head nodded slowly in dignified assent. "Here is the sentence, your majesty. Mark it well. The science of economics is contained in these nine words:

"THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS A FREE LUNCH."

An alert went out to Texas motorists recently as the Texas Department of Public Safety predicted 27 motorcides will occur on streets and highways of this state during the three-day Fourth of July weekend.

The period covered by the prediction, during which time the Texas DPS will conduct its Operation Deathwatch, extends from 12:01 a.m. Saturday, July 2 through 11:59 p.m. Monday, July 4. The DPS Statistical section keeps the official state records of the holiday death count on the calendar day basis, in contrast wire service counts using fractional parts of days, and different holiday periods.

The DPS prediction released by Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director, emphasized that 4,000 cars will be damaged requiring garage repairs, some a total loss - during the three-day period. The report said that 1,500 persons will receive bodily injury with some persons being crippled for life.

"These are some of the factors on the grim side of the holiday," Garrison said, "but it is necessary to relate them in order to explain the seriousness of the holiday traffic situation to Texas motorists."

"The Fourth of July is a holiday in which Texans go out of doors and do lots of driving. I wish everyone a good time during the July Fourth weekend. At the same time I would like to advise them to be careful."

"Let someone else drive if you drink, watch your foot and keep it refrigerated, and don't mar your holiday with personal injury, death, or damage to your automobile. We will have on the highways to help you every available patrolman. You can make their job easier by planning safety into holiday activities."

THE BOLL WEEVIL

This bug has a $300-million bite. He's easily recognized, but not so readily prevented from doing this tremendous amount of damage to cotton crops annually.

Long snout and dark color are the easiest identifying points of boll weevils. These pests overwinter in trash or protected places near cotton fields, and emerge from hibernation in early spring. They do their damage by feeding and egg-laying punctures within the cotton squares or bolls. Punctured squares flare open and fall off.

The rapid reproduction cycle takes about three weeks from egg to adult weevil.

Several good farming practices can reduce weevil attacks. Select early-maturing varieties and plant early on well-prepared land. Fertilize adequately and cultivate frequently to speed cotton growth.

When weevils are found, hit them hard with insecticide. In widespread field trials during 1959, a new-type insecticide, called Sevin, showed great promise. It's the farmer's newest weapon to destroy weevils, yet is safer to use than many other materials. Hardly weevils that had developed resistance to chlorinated hydrocarbons like DDT, were killed in droves by this new-type pesticide.

To keep cotton profits high this year, continue sound management and take advantage of the latest pest control developments. Adult weevils do the most damage, so it pays to spray or dust early to prevent them from eating into your cotton profits. FMS

Cotton Root Rot Damage Predicted

College Station. — If rains occur during June, July and August, cotton root rot losses will be high, this prediction comes from Dr. Harlan E. Smith, extension plant pathologist.

He bases it on the amount of disease carry-over in the soil from last year, and the late cotton crop. The disease occurs in all areas of the state except the Panhandle, High Plains and sandy soils of East Texas.

It is known that the disease fungus is carried over in the form of seed bodies or sclerotia. A minimum of 25 to 30 of these sclerotia per cubic foot of soil are necessary to cause disease. Due to the large amount of root rot the past two years, a high count of sclerotia are present in all infested soils, according to Smith.

When cotton roots grow close to the sclerotia in moist soil, the seed bodies of the fungus germinate and attack the cotton root. Within a few days large patches of dead cotton appear.

The disease is nearly always more damaging on late than on early cotton. Early cotton is more likely to escape some of the damage.

Smith advises growers to start planning preventive measures immediately for the 1961 cotton crop. Deep plowing, 10 to 14 inches deep, with a mold board or disc type plow is recommended in a few areas, because of the type of subsoil, this will not be possible. However, deep plowing to as great a depth as possible will be helpful.

in reducing root rot, the following year, he says.

Local county agents can supply copies of the publication MP-361, "Root Rot Losses of Cotton Can Be Reduced," and additional information on practices which will aid in reducing plant disease losses.

As an outdoorsman you should learn all you can regarding mother nature — especially how she provides for you, as well as for the game you love.

I enjoy our modern frozen foods and mechanical gadgets just as much as the next fellow. But I think it is good to know how the Indians and the early pioneers survived without these conveniences.

Having nothing but what mother nature provided, our predecessors survived because of their knowledge and ingenuity in using what they had.

Each animal, plant, shrub, tree, bird, grass or what-have you, had its own place in nature. But most of them can be put to some extra use, to serve man — if he knows, or can discover how to use it.

Generally this discovery comes about as a matter of necessity. However, the factor of necessity seldom arises in our modern day world. Nevertheless, it's still good to retain part of this knowledge, even today.

Many camping families, boy scout groups, the Armed Forces, etc., attempt to learn what they can about survival, dependent upon mother nature. I have yet to hear anyone who studied it say that he had been wasting his time.

Let's just look at one, often abused and criticized product of mother nature, that abounds throughout Texas. Let's see what she has performed in the way of survival for man.

The small, misshapen, scrawny little mesquite tree has been sooted at by tourists in Texas for many years. Yet Texas owes a great deal to this determined and useful projection of love from mother nature.

In the early days of Texas, when its population was composed of Indians, Mexicans and early white settlers, the mesquite tree was like the present suburban shopping center.

This little sprig of life provided so much for the existence of these people that I am surprised that Texas has not erected a mesquite tree statue in undying admiration for this so often abused creation of nature.

The mesquite tree was perhaps the prime heat supply of our early day people, as it provided kindling for both heating and cooking.

The oft-mentioned barbecue of today started with meat prepared over the wood from mesquite trees. This wood imparts a flavor to the meat that is relished by many barbecue experts of today.

The delicate leaves of the mesquite were, and sometimes still are, placed in men's hats — to help keep the head cooler in hot weather.

Mesquite tree leaves often were used as poultices, as were the leaves of many other plants and trees.

Household bleaches of today may be better, but the earlier Texas inhabitants were quite pleased with the results of boiling mesquite tree leaves with their clothes, to make the apparel white.

The mesquite bean, that hangs in long slender pods from the tree, also found many uses. The beans were ground between stones. The result — Ole — was flour.

This was a potent and variously used flour. It made a tasty and energy-providing bread, even now enjoyed by some. The uncooked dough was the beginning of the now famous tortillas and tamales.

If you mixed this mesquite bean flour with water you have a choice of two useful products — a stomach medicine or a potent liquor. Could be that the old-timers needed both at the same time.

Lastly, we come down to the root of trees itself. Roots were boiled into a stomach and bowel medicine (undoubtedly never patented) and an excellent dressing for wounds.

You could forecast your planting by this tree, too. It never freezes after the buds appear and I hear tell that a very cold winter is a-

A New Image of Thrift

Mrs. Vivian Ackerman had looked into her mirror hundreds of times since she was a little girl, but this was the first time she had seen the image of "Mrs. United States Savings Bonds of 1961." The Tucson, Arizona, housewife won the coveted title over 52 competitors in the "Mrs. America" finals at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., last week. As the Treasury's leading woman's volunteer during the next 12 months, she will spend part of her time touring the country in the promotion of Savings Bonds and Savings Stamps. The attractive brunette is the mother of three children. Her husband, Harry, is County Attorney for Pima County, Arizona. Mrs. Ackerman succeeds Mrs. Jean Lemons of Wichita, Kansas, "Mrs. U. S. Savings Bonds of 1960."

ways forecast by an extra large crop of mesquite beans.

Now, don't you agree that we've abused this tree? That we've treated it unfairly?

True, it's not a thing of beauty. But after all — beauty is only skin deep.

Plan Safely Your July 4 Weekend

"Planning for your safety is as essential in your July 4 trip as planning for the trip itself," said Major Harry Hutchison, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, in announcing the Department's detailed program for the July 4 weekend.

Fourth of July week-end accidents are being planned now, Major Hutchison explained. People plan to drive a four-day trip in two days or they plan to drive too far without rest.

"This kind of planning means that they will exceed legal speed limits to reach their relatives or friends and return during the holiday period, or they will attempt to cover the last few miles when fatigue has endangered their ability to stay alive," Major Hutchison said.

We have found that thoughtlessness, impatience, and fatigue ac-in voice and a minor in piano. He was also tenor soloist with the Bison Glee Club at O.B.U.

Since his college graduation he has served four years as minister of music at First Baptist Church in Joplin, Mo., and previously as minister of music at Crestwood Baptist Church in Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Cram is also a musician and holds the B. M. degree from O. B. U. and has taught in the Oklahoma public school. They have a small daughter, Susan.

Bread and Butter Stocks

Soap and sewing machines are mundane things in today's market of glamor stocks featuring companies associated with the space age of electronic marvels and automation, but those companies which supply day-to-day humdrum necessities are growing rapidly with the population. Furthermore, we tend to overlook the burgeoning demand in other lands for the ordinary things still looked at over there as luxuries but which Americans take for granted in their daily lives.

The individual seeking the excitement of near term capital gains had best ignore this letter, but the more patient investor who desires good values in companies producing articles used in every day life which should grow modestly as the population increases over the years may find some gratifying situations in this group.

The reader may not use Colgate-Palmolive's products but plenty of people do, especially overseas. Men who have tried Gillette's super-blue blades swear by them. Kellogg's ready-to-eat cereals are served on many of America's breakfast tables today and demand for them is growing. The average two or three car family owns a compact car and in many cases it is likely to be one of American Motors' Ramblers. When the teenage girl returns to school this fall it is quite possible she will be attired in Bobbie Brooks' clothes.

As the demand for education grows, American Seating will benefit, a leading producer of school equipment. At lunch time at least one member of the adult family is likely to use Mead Johnson's new dietary food, Metrecal. Singer Manufacturing is participating in America's daily life as the world's largest producer of sewing machines, a market which it has been able to maintain in the face of strong foreign competition. Chewing gum continues to be a favorite, especially among the younger generation and American Chiclets has been one of the prime beneficiaries as a result. At supper time ice cream and other dairy products are frequently served with Beatrice Foods reaping the rewards from growing sales. After dinner the growing demand for stereophonic phonographs as a medium for home entertainment has benefited Magnavox and Motorola. Finally, Simmons Co. is a leader in supplying beds for the home. Many of these conveniences for day-to-day American living are being purchased through the medium of loans and Beneficial Finance Co. is a fast-growing company in the small loan field.

Of the fourteen stocks we have recommended, Simmons Co., American Motors and American Seating offer the best statistical values. As far as growth is concerned, Motorola, Magnavox and Bobbie Brooks are likely to show the most spectacular growth pattern while American Chiclets, Beatrice Foods, Beneficial Finance, Colgate-Palmolive and Kellogg Co. show the steadiest continuous growth pattern.

Greatest increases in 1960 earnings over 1959 are likely to be shown by Mead Johnson, Bobbie Brooks and Gillette Co.

Nematodes Limits Yield Of Vegetable Gardens

College Station, — Are your garden vegetables poor producers? If so, the plants may have been damaged by root knot.

Root knot occurs in all areas of Texas, and is usually more common in sandy soils. The disease is caused by nematodes. Nematodes are small, microscopic worms belonging to a group of animals known as roundworms.

Plants damaged by nematodes show lack of vigor as indicated by stunting, wilting and yellowing of the leaves. Loss of leaves often occurs. Plants may die. Vegetables are usually small and unfit to eat.

To examine suspected plants, carefully remove roots and soil with a shovel. Diseased roots have abnormal galls or knots. Avoid confusing root knot with beneficial nodules or legumes. Root knot swellings are a part of the root itself. Nodules are easy to push off of the root.

Nematodes are controlled by a combination of cultural practices and the use of nematocides.

company drivers on poorly planned trips. Major Hutchison continued. During our detailed program every available commissioned officer will be used to augment our regular patrol in order to reduce traffic accidents to a minimum.

Hutchison said the detailed program during the July 4 week end will be the Highway Patrol, backed up by all other commissioned officers of License and Weight and Motor Vehicle Inspection Services, working extra long hours to apprehend speeders and other hazardous drivers.

Radar will be used, along with all other ways of traffic law enforcement, Major Hutchison warned.

"We are going to do our very best to reduce traffic accidents during this Fourth of July week end, but we will need the help of every driver to accomplish the job," Major Hutchison concluded.

Loggerin' is the term cowboys use for riding out of the chute at a rodeo with the hand, or hands, gripping the saddle horn.

Cotton Bacterial Blight Most Serious Disease

College Station, — Bacterial blight of cotton causes more damage than any other plant disease in Texas. It generally is most severe on the High Plains and the Coast Prairie, in the irrigated valleys of the Trans-Pecos areas and in the sprinkler irrigated areas on the Rolling Plains.

Bacterial blight causes more than one-fourth of the total cotton disease yield loss in Texas. During each of the two years it has caused about $37,500,000 damage in lower yields. Too, additional losses occurred in the form of low and spot grades of the harvested fiber.

Small, angular, brownish or blackish spots occur on the lower leaves. Later the disease may spread to the higher leaves. Only a few spots are necessary for the leaves to drop. Yield reduction is, on the average, about one-half the percent premature loss of leaves. Small, circular, dark-green spots occur on bolls. These spots enlarge, dry up, stain lint and prevent normal opening of the boll.

The disease causing bacteria enter through air breathing ports (stomata) in the leaves, bolls and stems. They also may enter the plants parts through wounds.

The blight organism is carried overwinter in the soil on old plant trash and on or in planting seed. Wind-driven splashing rains, epinkler irrigation or whirlwinds spread the bacteria from plant to plant in the fields.

The only known practical prevention is the growing of resistant varieties. Acala 1517 BR, Acala 1517 BR-1, Blightmaster, Austin, Rex and Mebane B-1 are available for commercial production. Many new resistant-varieties are being developed.

A huge, sprawling oak tree stands proudly in the middle of a street in Columbus, Texas, west of Houston. It was beneath this tree that Judge Robert M. Williamson (Three-Legged Willie) held court in the Third Judicial District of the Republic of Texas, in 1837.

It is related that on one occasion an irate lawyer, who was commanded by Judge Willie to "produce the law," imbedded his dagger in the Judge's table saying, "Here's the law!"

Judge Willie is reported to have laid his pistol calmly on the table with this retort: "Here's the Constitution which overrules the law."

More and more people are enjoying the fine sport and the great fun of fishing in Texas . . . and savoring their delicious catches at their dinner tables.

Texas' gulf coast is a fabulous "dream come true" for anglers. Many return home with ice chests full of such tasty salt water fish as speckled trout, red snapper, flounder, and many many others.

The big ones are there too! Fact of the matter is the world's record catch in a giant sea bass was made in Galveston Bay. It weighed a mighty 551 pounds.

Everyone, young and old, has read about "Old Rip." He has traveled as a dignitary all over the USA and even visited Pres. Calvin Coolidge in the White House. (Which, incidentally, is pretty good for a little old "Horny Toad.")

What made Old Rip famous? This little horned frog slept for 31 years in a dehydrated state in a little tin box in the cornerstone of the courthouse in Eastland, Texas. You can see him today in his plush casket at the Eastland Courthouse and read his fabulous story again.

Northeast of Crowell, Texas, at the cradle of the Panhandle, is the Pease River Battlefield. It is best known as the spot where a band of Texas Rangers recaptured Cynthia Ann Parker twenty five years after she was kidnapped by the Comanche Indians, in 1836.
