

Good Morning

It is now reported that worms, instead of being silent, actually utter low, moanlike sounds. The phenomenon is noticeable especially during the income tax season.

Believe Mahan Is Flushed in Texas

KIRBYVILLE, June 15.—A man, officers said they were tipped was William Mahan, sought in connection with the George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping, escaped after a gunfight with officers near a CCC camp five miles east of here last night.

Jasper County officers said they received a tip yesterday that Mahan was riding around town in a sedan. They located the car, containing two men, parked in front of the CCC camp last night. The one believed to be Mahan was dozing, an automatic pistol in his hand. As H. B. Powell, night marshal, approached, the other man, a Kirbyville resident, called: "Look out! officers!" then jumped from the car.

The man believed to be Mahan sped away, firing a pistol.

Ship Goes Into Spin At 3,000 Feet in Heavy Cloud

Although the pilot, E. M. Ewen, Jr., escaped without injury, an airplane belonging to C. L. Sloan, Jr., local aviation enthusiast, was completely demolished in a crack-up four miles northeast of Memphis, at about 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Even miraculously escaped "without a scratch" when he "mashed" the plane to the ground after it had gone into a tail-spin at an altitude of about 3,000 feet. He was enveloped in thick, foggy clouds which formed a "visibility ceiling" of about 300 feet when he discovered the plane in a spin.

Up Side Down

"I didn't have any idea the direction to the ground but leveled the plane off the best I could. When I continued to lose altitude, I gunned it and came out of the clouds up-side-down about 200 feet from the ground," Ewing said.

"I didn't have enough time to flop it over so I decided to mush it in. The plane struck the ground on one side, taking off a wing and bounced, taking off the other wing and knocking the motor out. Without wings or motor, the crate came to a halt on the third (Continued on page 3)

All rural schools in the county will be classified for the new year at a special meeting of the County School Board Tuesday in the county superintendent's office, it has been announced by H. W. Kuhn, president of the board.

Schools will be classified as to the number of grades to be taught and the number of teachers employed at each school next term. All patrons or members of rural school boards are especially invited to appear before the board during the day, Mr. Kuhn said. "We feel that the people should have a say in the affairs of their schools," he said.

Other problems of rural schools will also be discussed at the meeting, he said.

ATHLETIC FIELD PROPOSED

Five other work-relief projects were asked by the local relief office in applications filed last week. The new field, if built according to the application and preliminary plans of the school board, will be located five blocks north of the high school, between 11th and 12th Streets, on property owned by Memphis Independent School District.

CCC ENGINEERS ARE EXPECTED THIS WEEK

To Lay Out Erosion Camp To Be Established in July

Construction engineers who will lay out the government CCC soil erosion camp to be established here in July, failed to arrive yesterday but are expected by local officials to be here the first of this week to work out details in connection with the actual construction of the camp.

Mayor J. A. Whaley was informed last mid-week that the construction engineers would be here "within a few days" to work out a problem experienced by local officials in serving the present camp site at the Fair Park grounds with sewage lines.

Major O. E. Beazley, commanding army officer for this district and other camp officials selected the Fair Park grounds as the camp site two weeks ago, with the provision that utility lines be extended to serve the camp.

Mayor Whaley and a number of other local officials expressed the opinion yesterday that a new camp site might be selected by the engineers when they arrive here the first of this week.

'Pigs Is Pigs,' Says Novelist, But Local Jury Says 'They're Nuisance'

"Pigs Is Pigs..."

But when the law declares pigs a nuisance, that's something else again.

"Pigs Is Pigs," the popular humorous story by Ellis Parker Butler, was discussed at length by Memphis attorneys yesterday before Justice W. L. Wheat. The discussion came up during the trial of Roy E. Cooper, of Turkey, charged with operating a hog ranch at turkey, which the prosecution contended was a nuisance.

Extracts from the Ellis Parker Butler story were introduced by Defense Counsel Dave Fitzgerald and referred to by County Attorney Carl Periman, attorney for the prosecution.

A fine of $10 and court costs was assessed Cooper by the jury, after deliberating over an hour. More than 50 persons heard the trial. The charge was filed in this precinct June 4 by R. D. Rivers, constable at Turkey. A similar charge filed at Turkey on June 3 resulted in a hung jury.

Darkest Strike Clouds Clearing

The darkest clouds disappeared from the labor horizon Saturday when the projected strike of bituminous coal miners was called off.

John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, cancelled the call for the strike to begin Sunday at midnight after a joint conference of union officials and coal operators agreed to President Roosevelt's suggestion that current wages, hours and working conditions be continued through June 13.

Omaha was placed under martial law and the entire Nebraska National Guard called to preserve order in that strife-torn city.

Drastic steps were taken after city officials proposed that the operation of street cars there cease at night.

A settlement appeared in the offing in the strike of employees of the Toledo, O., Edison Company when Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward McGrady said he would request union officials to fly to Washington for a parley.

Horace E. Tarver Is 'Hooked' by Nimrod

Horace Tarver suffered an unusual, painful injury while fishing at Brookhollow Country Club lake Friday afternoon.

Two large hooks from a Downglac were buried in Tarver's neck when another angler cast from their boat. He was rushed to a local hospital where the hooks were extracted.

"It's regrettable, but I don't think it hurt me half as much as it hurt the fellow who did the casting," Tarver said.

FIREMEN FAIL IN DRILL TEST

Although the drill team of the Memphis Volunteer Fire Department failed to show in the annual drill contests at the El Paso convention last week, their record time of last year was lower than that of the first place winner this year.

Chief M. G. Ray and six members of the local department composing the drill team returned Friday from El Paso where they attended the annual convention of the Texas Firemen's Association.

The Cameron drill team won first place in the drill contest with a time of 20 seconds. Last year Memphis won second place at the annual convention at Mineral Wells with a drill time of 19.2 seconds. Their time this year was 25 seconds.

Claude, Lamesa and Schulenburg drill teams tied for second place, Chief Ray said.

Chief Ray was nominated fourth vice-president of the association but was defeated by Fred Klopp, of Taylor, by a margin of 100 votes. E. P. Hall of Weatherford was named president for next year and Fort Worth was selected the next convention city.

Over 600 delegates registered at the El Paso convention and approximately 2,400 visitors were present. Delegates and members of the drill team from Memphis who accompanied Chief Ray to El Paso last week were W. V. Coursey, Alvin Massey, Harry Aggren, Coy Ragdale, James Hammond and Buck Whitfield.

Titlists Are Named In Two Flights, Consolation

Thomas Hampton, the medalist, and Regnal Greenhaw, two young former Greenbelt titlists, neither of whom have ever won the city crown, will battle today for the championship of the Memphis Country Club.

Their match will be over the 36-hole route, with one round being played this morning and the second this afternoon.

The third flight title also will be decided today, with John Deaver playing Tom Harrison over 18 holes. Consolation titles probably will be decided, also.

Dr. L. M. Hicks captured the first flight title yesterday, defeated Ed Foxhall, 1 up.

O. V. Alexander defeated C. O. Thompson, 2 and 1, for the fourth flight crown.

In the only consolation title decided, Winfred Swift defeated R. S. Greene, 4 and 2.

Again it was George Thompson's night. His effective—yes, spectacular—delivery added another victory to Hedley's standing and another loss to Tarver's. The score, 9 to 2, is incompatible with the number of hits each team made. George kept the six hits he allowed Tarver's scattered so that they were able to score only twice.

Harrison's won a spotty game from Bullard's, 19 to 7, in the closing contest. This victory removed Harrison's from the cellar, which is now occupied by Tarver's and Bullard's teams.

Spradlin, fast young catcher imported from Estelle, was removed from the Bullard line-up in the second inning with a nose injury. The injury resulted from a collision between Bailey Gilmore, sliding into home, and Spradlin. No bones were broken.

Altogether Bullard's used three hurlers, two of them recruits from Estelle way. Southpaw Hubert Maddox was effective for Harrison's, but was relieved by "Dizzy" Roberts in the seventh when his charley horse took a turn for the worse.

Tuesday's contest should prove interesting. In them, Turkey takes on Thompson's and Salisbury tangles with DeWitt's.

GREAT GOLF

By Art Krenz

COOPER SOUTHPAWED WAY TO VICTORY IN SALT LAKE OPEN

A bad second shot on the eighteenth hole that ended up beside a fence almost kept "Light Horse" Harry Cooper from winning the Salt Lake City Open of 1929.

The bad break came in the third round, on the same hole that Olin Dutra had taken a seven shortly before. The green was guarded by a canyon 80 feet deep.

Cooper was forced to play a left-handed shot. With a southpaw masher that he always carries in his bag, he successfully sank the ball on the green and sank the putt for a four. This gave him an eighteen-hole total of 69, and he went on to win the tournament with 283.

When confronted with having to play a shot of this sort, the main thing to keep in mind is to keep the head down and the eyes on the ball. If the head is down, one is sure of elevation. While in other shots the left arm should be kept fairly straight, here the reverse holds true. The right should be kept straight throughout the swing.

Donkey Softball To Be Played Monday

One-Eyed Trotter

Laughter and excitement are to be combined with a worthy cause here Monday night when Thompson's Tumblers tangle with Lemons' Leapers in the first donkey softball game of the season.

The game is to be played under the floodlights of Fair Park Stadium, beginning at 8:15 o'clock, and the proceeds are to go to the Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored Boy Scout troop here.

Educated donkeys will furnish the excitement—and local players will provide the laughter. The animals (donkeys) are to be imported for the contest. They are especially trained for this game, educated in the art of bucking at just the right time, kicking, running backwards, lying down, refusing to do any of these, etc.

One or two of these contests were held here last year and proved to be exceptionally interesting. The donkeys are said to be even more highly trained this year than they were last.

Miss Margaret Milam, went to Clarendon Friday and will be the guest of Mrs. J. Ed Teer until tomorrow.

Volvo Arion, One-Eyed Connelly of the trotters, will attempt to crash the select circle of Hambletonian winners when the Kentucky Derby of the harness world is run at Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 14. Volvo Arion, which can see the opposition creeping up on him only on the starboard side, makes his Grand Circuit bow at Toledo on July 1. The standard-bred is the property of William Stubble, of Newburgh, N. Y.

A. Travis and son, Arthur, of Roswell, N. M. came Friday for a visit with his mother, Mrs. A. W. Travis, 616 South Sixth Street. Mr. Travis and family lived in Memphis a number of years before moving to Roswell.

Head Play Seeks Handicap Title With Fine Comeback

By MAX RIDDLE

(NEA Service Turf Writer)
NEW YORK, June 15.—After three bitter years of trying, Head Play at last has laid low the old saying, "They never come back."

A cripple most of the time at 3 and 4, his recent impressive victory in the famous old Suburban Handicap was brilliant proof that the son of Man o' War's full brother, My Play, has returned to the top.

Head Play's 1935 record now shows victories over Azucar, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap; Cavalcade, considered one of the best developments in years, and Discovery, Cavalcade's hardy rival of 1934.

Even Head Play's staunch admirers never conceded that Mrs. Silas B. Mason's horse was anything better than a superlative mudder—his bad underpinning seemed to mitigate against fast track running—but his Suburban was run over a fast track, refuting this contention.

Not only that, but Head Play hit the mile and an eighth pole in that race in near world record time. He finished out the mile and a quarter, unpressed by Discovery, in 2:02, fastest time of the year for the distance. Not a dozen horses in American history have equalled or shaded this mark.

Ever since the day three years ago when he won the Hawthorne Juvenile Handicap in sleeking style, Head Play has been a horse of tremendous promise. Yet misfortune has dogged his trail from the beginning, only permitting him to show occasional flashes of his true form.

Poor Ride Costly in Derby

There was the Kentucky Derby of 1932. Few, if any, now believe that had he been given a proper ride, Broker's Tip could have beaten him. That was the Derby in which both the horses and their jockeys fought a bitter battle down the stretch.

The following week Head Play scored a smashing victory in the Preakness, winning with greater ease than any horse since the days of Man o' War. But it was his last victory until early this year.

In his next three starts he always was in the money, but the lameness which ever since has bothered him was developing. Even in that condition he was good enough to beat most of his opposition, but though sheer courage could carry him most of the way, it was not enough to bring him home in front of such as Mr. Khayyam.

He was retired for several months, and in October showed a meager effort in the Maryland Handicap in which he was beaten by War Glory and Sun Archer. But once more he had to be retired.

This time he was away more than a year, coming back to the races last Christmas Day, when he was last in the Christmas Stakes at Santa Anita.

Always Bad Actor at Post
Head Play's victories this year have been scored in the mud; that is, all save those over Cavalcade and Discovery. Cavalcade gave Head Play plenty of weight in their first meeting, but Mrs. Mason's thoroughbred gave most of it back to him by his wild antics at the post. Head Play always was a bad post horse. He led all the way, and at the end his jockey eased him up when it was apparent Cavalcade could not gain.

The Suburban was something of a repetition, except that for once Head Play was willing to let another horse set the pace. Once again he refused to start from the stalls and he delayed the break for some time. Yet at the finish he had plenty left, and Discovery could not gain on him.

Ewen said that he was "mighty glad I'm here to tell about it. It was a real sensation but I don't think I would like to try it again."
"No, I was never very scared," he said, and witnesses vouch for his calmness after the crash. He reported for duty a few hours later at the Farmers Union Supply Company, where he is employed.
47 Hours in Air
The plane crashed on the Jess Brown place, two miles north of the landing field, which is two miles northeast of town. The plane was a Great Lakes "Training Type" machine with a 100-horse-power motor. It was purchased by Sloan last February.

He said that he planned to go to Amarillo today to pilot another ship. "I think my nerves are o.k., but I want to make sure," he said.

UNDER the DOME at AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER (UP Staff Correspondent)

AUSTIN, June 15.—It was just 12 years ago that oil was discovered on land belonging to the University of Texas. In that 12 years it has greased the way for a rapid advance from a small campus, dotted with wooden shacks, to one of the best equipped college plants in existence.

"The benefits of education — are essential to the preservation of a free government," wrote Gen. Sam Houston when Texas set up its free government 99 years ago.

So the great expanse of land that came to Texas with its independence was apportioned largely to public schools and to the University of Texas. Income from such lands cannot be spent directly. It goes into permanent funds. The permanent funds are invested and the income from the investments, alone, is available for current use.

When oil was struck on land leased by the University, the land income grew to such size that regents visioned a comprehensive building plan. Despite all the wealth piling up, only a small annual income upon it was immediately available. The late R. L. Batts, Austin, who obtained his education in the University of Texas, devised the plan that made an early building campaign possible. The annual income was pledged for 15 years. The campus was enlarged. New buildings started, the last now is under construction.

Many give the "doodle bug" or divining rod credit for discovery of the great East Texas oil field after geologists had pronounced the territory dry. There is an equally amazing story of the way the University discovered its latent wealth in oil.

An oil prospector with a lease that was about to expire started to haul an oil rig to the leased land from the nearest railroad switch. The heavy timbers broke down the wagon. There was not sufficient time to get new hauling equipment to reach the place he had chosen as most favorable. The rig was set up where the wagon had collapsed. He drilled there and struck oil.

State Highway Engineer Gibb Gilchrist could make a neat living in Tin Pan Alley if he were to forsake road building as a vocation. A Texas song with both words and music by Gilchrist has a hit and a patriotic appeal that is apt to bring forth a Rebel yell from any audience that includes a native Texan.

The song had its "premiere" at Wichita Falls when a banquet was given for Harry Hines, new chairman of the State Highway Commission. "Singing Mayor" Shepard of Wichita Falls chose it for his opening number.

Texas' first public drawing for places on the Constitutional Amendment ballot for next August 24 was attended by a "public" made up of Gerald C. Mann, many read TNG's stuff. If as many as a dozen can be found who read it, then he would know that EVERYBODY reads the rest of The Democrat.

Ex-Cabinet Deb Is Altar Bound

A former "cabinet daughter," Miss Marion Jardine, above, who made her Washington debut when her father, Dr. W. M. Jardine, was secretary of agriculture in the Coolidge administration, will be a June bride. She will wed George Robert Stannus, hotel executive and yachtsman of Biloxi, Miss., at her Wichita, Kan., home.

secretary of state, W. W. Holcomb of the secretary of state's office, and three capital newsmen. The time set for the drawing arrived. Mann ordered that the "public" be admitted. In walked the reporters.

The Secretary of State read the law ordering that the proposed amendments be given ballot positions by lot. He wrote the titles of the seven amendments on strips of paper and placed them in his hat. The hat was proffered to the first newswriter.

He drew "old age pensions," which will be at the top of the ballot. The hat came to Ed S. Newton, veteran capitol correspondent for the San Antonio Express. "Well, boys, here goes liquor repeal," he joked.

It was, and repeal of state constitutional prohibition became No. 3. Newton came in for a lot of kidding from fellow writers.

Gov. Allred vetoed a San Jacinto River reclamation district bill because it permitted a tax levy without a vote and because it let directors fix salaries for themselves. He had another personal reason not to like the bill. It began its legislative journey with provision that the governor should name directors. When it emerged from the Senate, this had been changed. The Lieutenant Governor was to name them. Appointive power is about the only power left to the governor. Allred doesn't like to see any of it taken away. Legislators recall that he let them know that if they would not trust him to name all appointive members of a state planning board, they ought not let him name any.

Jefferson Davis' birthday, this week, was observed as a state holiday.

The governor proclaimed it and asked all state departments and offices to close.

How little real attention was paid to the birthday of the Confederacy's president was illustrated by three legislative committees calling meetings for that day. It was only after protest that they were postponed until Tuesday.

THE NOSEY GUY

Today is Father's Day—the only day in the whole year that he can claim, and before the day is over he likely will be called upon to do something for the other members of the family, such as filling up the car with gas and oil and let the rest of the family drive to the picture show, the ball game, or to a picnic supper in the country; furnish the cash for ice cream, candy, cigarettes, etc., while he will sit on the front porch to read the Sunday paper after all the others have looked it over and scattered the section from the front room to the back porch, or, he may have to turn the ice cream freezer, kill and pick the chicken for dinner, shell the peas and string the beans, and watch them cook while the family attends church. Yes, it is his day, just like all the other days of the year—to do with just as he pleases, if it pleases him to do what the rest want him to do.

Some of the fathers may be remembered with a new pair of socks or a tie; some may even be relieved for a day of any work or worry; while others will continue in the same old way without any one giving him one thought or attention.

This Father's Day idea is a good one. Mothers have been having their day for many years—and are entitled to all the happiness and attention that can be bestowed upon them. But until lately Dad has not had much attention. He, also, deserves all the attention that can be bestowed upon him, for hasn't he had a hard time the past several years—years of depression and drouth and uncertainty making ends meet and providing the family with some of the necessities and a few luxuries of life? It would be hard to get along without Dad's part in the scheme of things, and his long-headed counsel and guidance that steers the family's course over many shoals and pitfalls. Don't forget your Dad!

Wilbur Don McCarty is the name of the son born to Editor and Mrs. John McCarty of the Dalhart Daily Texas Thursday night. Maybe John will start up his Cactus and Sage column which has been neglected for several weeks.

Some of the readers of this column didn't seem to like the HOOEY column published Thursday. They say it was too much hooley in a bunch. One man said that, Hooley Long is "public enemy number 1 so far as I'm concerned, and I just don't like to read about him."

It is gratifying to know that some people read the column even if they do not agree with what is stated therein.

One occasionally hears a remark something like this: "No one reads the old Democrat anyway." Such persons would change their minds if they had to answer the Democrat's telephone for a few hours after a paper is published containing an error or misstatement of facts. He would decide that every line is read by every member of every family in the community. One way to test it out would be to find out how

Heads Nation's Women's Clubs

Named president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in one of the most spirited campaigns in recent years, Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson of Tulsa, Okla., shown here after her election at the Detroit convention, won by a last-minute switch of votes. She defeated Dr. Josephine Peirce, of Lima, O., 559 to 538.

The Sodolitan Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church surprised their teacher, Mrs. Sam Foxhall, on the occasion of her birthday Wednesday afternoon with a handkerchief shower at the home of Mrs. Claud Johnson, 404 North Tenth Street.

The reception room was tastefully decorated in the class colors which were carried out with flowers.

The honored guest was assisted in opening the dainty package. After this, Mrs. Foxhall was invited into the dining room to cut the beautiful cake decorated with candles, representing the number of pupils in the class. Mrs. Leck Moreman of Corpus Christi, who was a visitor in Memphis during the week, was complimented at a lovely bridge party given Thursday afternoon by Mrs. A. H. Miller and Mrs. T. Harrison at the home of Mrs. Miller, 714 South Eighth Street.

Honoring Mrs. Charles Champion, who before her recent marriage was Miss Faye Baskerville, Mrs. E. T. Prater and daughter, Winifred, entertained with a miscellaneous shower at their home, 203 East Main Street, Thursday afternoon. The house was attractively decorated with sunflowers, carrying out a color scheme of yellow and green.

As the guests arrived they registered in a beautiful bride's book, presided over by Miss Flossie Rodgers.

After the honor, attractive in a blue crepe dress made on tailored lines with white accessories, had been seated in the place of honor, Billy Jo Prater read "When Sister Faye Got Married." Mildred Cooley sang two songs, "Love Ship" and "I'll Always Be True," accompanied by Mrs. M. McNeely.

The shower was introduced when Marjorie Don Stone entered, dressed in yellow, drawing an improvised truck laden with gifts.

After the gifts had been unwrapped and passed to the guests to admire, a delicious iced punch and cake were served, carrying out the yellow and green motif, to Mrs. J. S. Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliott © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

Katharine, frantic when she does not hear from him next day, tells VIOLET MERSER, her friend, that she thinks Michael has run away.

Katharine, frantic when she does not hear from him, believes Michael has tricked her.

Sally goes to New York and locates Michael in a hospital.

Sally, unaware of Michael's marriage to Katharine, locates him in a hospital and takes charge of the situation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI
No woman in all the world had ever been so grievously humiliated, Katharine Strykhurst was certain of that.

An older—indeed, a wiser and less sensitive woman—would have taken affairs into her own hands. This brooding girl knew nothing to do but wait. She had no weapons with which to battle the problem that faced her. All she knew was that a gay, handsome, reckless youth had bidden her come and she had gone. Like the merest will-o'-th-wisp, she had followed him to marry him, only to be cast aside.

This much she knew. Michael Heatheroe had married her and then had gone away. The newspapers a day or two later had announced the news of his inheritance. Katharine had waited every day for a sign from him. None had come. Later she had heard, through some casual gossip, the story of his accident. "Now," she said to herself, with a fast-beating heart, "now at last he will send for me."

But there was only silence. Silence and the growing conviction of a fearful wrong done.

She had confided in Violet Merser in the first flush of her anger. Violet had advised her to wait and see what happened. This Katharine had done. And nothing had happened . . . not a thing to reassure her. Not one message had come through from the man whose hand she had taken that day in a sleepy Connecticut town. Her ring she had given to him.

She had not a shadow of proof. Not, she reminded herself hotly and proudly, that she wanted any. Oh, but it had been a warning she had given to the hawks."

She writhed at the thought. Violet watched her through the days with a growing anxiety. There was a savage pity in the eyes she turned to the fair-haired girl. Long ago Violet, too, had suffered just such a hurt and it had embittered her earlier years. It was a grievous shame, thought the older woman.

There was such a thing as an unalmond, Katharine mused dully one sunny afternoon.

"Of course. I wondered when you'd think of that," said Violet, consolingly. She had not dared to mention the word herself.

"But the publicity!" Katharine groaning, buried her face in her hands. To think that her defeat, her folly should be dragged into the open for all the world to see!

Violet suggested that these things were often handled discreetly so that no least word was printed in the newspapers. She had known once of such a case . . .

The girl, listening, lifted a haggard face.

"Why don't you go to New Mexico, as Evelyn asked you to?" Violet asked reasonably. "Put the thing into the hands of some lawyer who can be trusted and go away and think no more of it."

It was, however, more easily said than done. Victor Strykhurst himself, Katharine reminded her friend, was a lawyer. To whom could they go? No one, assuredly, in their group of acquaintances. "I'm afraid to trust anyone," Katharine said in a tone of bitterness that startled her hearer.

Evelyn Vincent was going to New Mexico to stay with some friends who kept an informal sort of inn there. She had suggested weeks before that Katharine accompany her. At the time the plan had seemed far away and nebulous to the girl. Now it seemed a Good-given way out of her difficulties. She could bring her painting things, Evelyn said. The colors and shapes of things on the desert were truly divine.

Bertine vetoed the plan at once. Katharine, sick with fury and despair, turned to her father.

"Bertine doesn't want you to go off God-knows-where with this woman," he fumed. "We've never heard of her." Something in the white haggardness of the girl's face stirred him. He said suddenly, "You're not ill, are you?"

"No. No." She clasped and unclasped her hands. "But I feel I need and want a change. Miss Vincent is a friend of the Merser's."

His face altered. "Whose?" "That nice woman in whose house I stayed when I . . ."

"Yes, yes. I remember." He said the words hastily. "You've made friends with them?"

Katharine's darkening eyes roved to the window. The interview was exhausting all her feeble strength. She so seldom slept these nights. The hours from dark to daylight were her particular scourge, so difficult to be got through.

"I like her, yes. She's been very kind to me."

"Well—well." He promised to think it over. It was maddening, the girl decided, going out into the coolness of the garden, to be dependent on anyone. Next spring she would come into her mother's money. Then neither Bertine's galley 2 two sun 16 story . . . S whims nor her father's strictures should trouble her.

Next spring! At the thought of the hours, days and nights to be lived through, her spirit fainting, and she groaned. A dark, slim, alert figure appeared in the darkness of the rosebed.

"Oh, Dr. John! Where did you come from?"

He gave her a smile and a glance.

"I thought I'd run in. Had to see a patient up the Post Road a mile or two."

She had not seen him in weeks. "You look a bit seedy." "You look a bit seedy. John was far too keen-eyed for her pleasure. The first think she knew, she would be blurring out the whole wretched story to him.

"Oh, I'm fine, thanks." "You look it," he offered dryly. She leaned against the stone balustrade of the terrace, and he glanced at her with something like hunger in his eyes. Her sleepless nights, her lack of appetite had put a fine edge on her strong young beauty. She had a transparent look. There were black shadows smudged under her eyelids where they fluttered down to hide her look of sick despair.

"Zoe's back," Katharine said in the silence that followed.

"Oh, is she?" "She's splendid now," she went on, trying to make conversation.

"She got through a bad time. She'll never have that particular bell to live through again," said the doctor cheerfully, knocking his pipe against the wall.

What fools women are, thought Katharine drearily. Was it true that "love is of man's life a thing apart; 'tis woman's whole existence?"

She wanted to ask John about this. He was so calm and temperate and sure about things. But she didn't dare. One kind word would set her off. She'd felt so superior when Zoe was going through her difficulties. Kind, of course, but superior all the same. And John would be horribly disappointed in her if he knew what a crashing fool she had been!

So the moment passed and Katharine kept silent, and half a mile away in an ugly house with mullioned windows a dark-haired girl paraded before the mirror and slyly hid away a plain gold wedding band.

Up in the hills near a shabby, shingled house a young man wandered in the kitchen garden where chickens pecked at dry grass and horses thrust their noses inquiringly over a gate. The young man felt lost and lorn and all at sea. He rubbed the back of his head thoughtfully as though trying to remember something he could not quite take in . . .

Fate was weaving a net intricately about all of them. The girl with the crystal eardrums

Ingrid as Bride

The carefully preserved orange blossoms and lace veil in which her mother was married 30 years ago, were worn by Princess Ingrid of Sweden when she became the bride of Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark at Stockholm. Atop her veil is a cluster of myrtle which she left at her mother's grave together with the bridal bouquet.

THE VOICE OF THE UPPER RED RIVER VALLEY

ONE'S AS BAD AS THE OTHER REPRESENTATIVE P. L. Gassaway of Oklahoma, plans a demonstration to tell "Why Huey Long Should Be Eliminated." And we wonder, who is going to eliminate Gassaway?

Pulling stunts just as idiotic and simple as some of the things laid on Huey's shoulders, Gassaway says he will invade Baltimore on horseback June 20 to deliver another verbal assault on the Louisiana Kingfish.

The Oklahoman plans to ride a horse through Baltimore to the Elks Club, where he will deliver his speech under the auspices of the Calumet Democratic Club.

A stunt that might be expected of a wrestler who is a stranger in town and is attempting to attract a large crowd to the armory to pay shekels into his flattened pocket. A typical Gassaway concoction, as it were. Just as the NRA filibuster was typically Huey Long.

The zoo is always a popular place. And you will find the largest crowds gathered around the monkey cages. It is only natural for people to seek out simple little creatures at whose antics they can get a good laugh.

That is why, no doubt, the Longs and Gassaways will always be with us.

So long as they stick to the Calumet Democratic Clubs, let's enjoy them to the fullest. But when they begin to grab off power in political circles, occupy the time of sane legislators who are attempting to accomplish something and block important action and progress, they are getting out of place.

We say, "Eliminate Huey and Gassaway."

'HERO OF YPRES' UNSUNG

WHEN Viscount Byng, famous British war-time troop commander, died the other day the newspapers were full of tributes to "the hero of Ypres."

It was Byng who commanded in the bloody salient about that Belgian town when the Germans rimmed it with heavy artillery, drenched it with poison gas, and poured the flower of their army into it in a desperate, vain effort to smash their way to the sea.

In all its centuries of fighting the world has seldom if ever seen any more bloody or determined struggles than the one which raged about Ypres. And because we like to personalize all combats, we speak of how Hindenburg tried to take the place, how Haig parried his thrusts, how Byng heroically beat him back; and Byng is and always will be "the hero of Ypres."

Such a way of speaking is natural. We seem to be unable to make a hero out of a whole army. And no army is ever much stronger than the man who leads it; if he cannot diffuse some of his own fire and determination into it, it will fail, no matter how brave and sturdy its individual members may be.

And yet there is a great deal of injustice in this habit of ours.

For the real hero of Ypres, like the real heroes of all the other great battles of the World War, was not any bemedaled general. He was a bowed, weary, dirty, nameless private soldier, a man who lived in mud and ate his food, when he got any, in the hideous reek of the battlefield, and endured terror and strain and agony greater than anything even Dante could imagine for his inferno.

This man has never had his just dues. Probably he never will get them, because the only men who can really understand what he went through are the men who stood at his shoulder and suffered with him, and they do not talk much about it.

But we must not forget him when we start talking about the "hero" of this battle or that battle. His were not the mistakes of command. He never sacrificed a company, or a battalion, or a whole army, because of stubborn pride, or misunderstanding of the conditions of modern war, as some of the generals did.

He never sent someone else out to go through a hell that he himself did not have to enter. He was there, in the thick of it, silent and dogged and heroic with a heroism that passes all ordinary understanding.

It is no use trying to learn his name, for there were millions of him. He came from every nation and wore every uniform; he left his bones at Ypres and Cambrai, at Verdun and along the Somme, by the Masurian Lakes and on Gallipoli peninsula.

The glory of war passes him by. The titles and the medals go to the generals. But the real hero of the war was the unsung private soldier.

SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS—1935

HEALTH BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Two couples went out into a nearby woods and picked a large quantity of mushrooms. Into the pan in which these fungi were cooked, a quarter was dropped, in the belief that any poisonous mushrooms would be revealed if the silver coin became tarnished. The quarter did not tarnish, so that night, the four sat down and had a hearty meal of the delicacies.

Side Glances

By George Clark

"Oh, you are too! You're just as important as any man in the world."

This incident should bring home to you two important lessons: 1. To be sure that mushrooms are not poisonous, buy them from an experienced dealer who can take the responsibility. 2. If you do happen to feel any symptoms of mushroom poisoning, as I have described above, call a doctor immediately, because prompt action means the difference between life and death.

There are more than 80 species of poisonous mushrooms in this country, the most deadly type being the Amanita phalloides. It is responsible for more than 90 per cent of the deaths from mushroom poisoning. And there are almost a many tests for poisonous mushrooms. Most are unreliable. The case I have recalled shows that even the silver test, one of the most popular in use, can't be depended upon.

In scientific learning and mass production, this nation has led the world, but we have been most remiss in solving the problem of the redistribution of production for the benefit of mankind.

There cannot be and there should not be any such thing as equality among men, save equality of opportunity and equality in respect to provision for social and economic security.

It is high time that Congress limit the terms of federal judges, including those of the U. S. Supreme Court. How can you expect humanitarian decisions from judges getting $20,000 a year and having life terms?

They suspect that the Rural Resettlement Administration will prove to be a millstone around the young doctor's neck. Many of Administrator Tugwell's friends fear exactly the same thing.

Secrecy veils the build-up and the planning activities of the Tugwell organization, on the theory that the less said now, the better. One gathers from what seeps out that this is the most conspicuous piece of good judgment of which RRA can yet be accused.

It's nothing new to find a New Deal agency floundering around, seeking its bearing. But the character of the personnel being recruited for this one, with a very few outstanding exceptions, is such as to make Tugwell's admirers break into frequent spasms of tears.

No shabbier trick has been pulled in this administration than when the powers wished on Tugwell the expensive, mismanaged Subsistence Homestead program, which seems to stand as New Deal Mess No. 1.

It appears now that Dr. Tugwell is trying to wish Subsistence Homesteads back on the Interior Department and it will be well for him if he is spared the headache of liquidating it.

Hope Rex Fools Foes Barring a reversal of present form, most of the prize lemons in the disintegrating NRA will find jobs with RRA.

Tugwell has been allocated $100,000,000 to date for his job of resettling, re-employing and rehabilitating stranded farm families. More will be available if he can get that spent.

It is commonly feared that Tugwell, as an administrator, is a valuable presidential adviser. Liberals, especially, would hate to see him join the procession of Moley, Douglas, Berg and others of life. They hope Rex will make RRA more than a flop.

The Democrat's Sunday Page For Farmers

Conducted By James A. Jackson, Hall County Agricultural Agent

First Drawing for Alaska Farms

Hope and anxiety reigned as this group of modern American pioneers, brought from impoverished midwestern farms to carve new futures in Alaska's Matanuska Valley, excitedly awaited the drawing that would determine their future homes and farms. In this scene, Martin W. McCormick, former Michigan farmer, is drawing from a box the slip of paper designating the 40-acre tract that will support him and his family. Fears of separation from old friends were lessened by the announcement that slips might be "swapped."

PROGRAMS FOR COOPERATIVES IS PLANNED

To Be Held in Connection With A & M Short Course

COLLEGE STATION, June 15.—For the first time in the state, a program has been planned for cooperatives in connection with the Farmers' Short Course, July 28 through August 2, it was announced by J. Wheeler Barger, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics and the chairman of the arrangement committee.

The three-day "Institute of Co-operatives" will be attended by managers, directors, leaders of Texas cooperatives, and all those interested in cooperative farm efforts. Two daily sessions will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. "Fundamentals of Organization" and "Important Management Problems" will be discussed Monday. The second day will be taken up with discussions on "Cooperation in Cotton Marketing," "Ginning and Oil Mill Operations," and "Cooperative Purchasing" followed by demonstrations on ginning, dressing poultry for market, grading and packing fruits and vegetables. A banquet is scheduled for the evening. The last day, Wednesday, will be devoted to a round table discussion by various commodity groups such as fruits and vegetables, cotton ginner, wheat, rice and others.

"Although this is the first one to be held, the Institute of Co-operatives promises to be popular and to become an annual affair," Barger said. "It will be a place for exchange of ideas and education."

Discussions will be conducted by leaders of various types of cooperatives of the state; specialists in cooperation with A. & M. College; representatives of the Bank of Cooperatives at Houston; and representatives of the Division of Cooperation of the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C.

Those who are going to attend this affair are expected to enroll in advance with J. Wheeler Barger, Department of Agricultural Economics, A. & M. College, Barger as chairman of the committee in charge of the Institute will be assisted by committee-men, S. A. McMillan, Extension agricultural economist in farm management; and Paul Cunyus, assistant poultry husbandman.

30 Acres of Land 'Overrun' by Oats

ARCHER CITY, June 15.—Z. T. Burkett, dairyman living near Archer City, states that he is glad that he terraced 30 acres of land last fall. The land was seeded to oats for grazing purposes only. A freeze in February killed all the oats. He replanted the land in spring oats and his dairy cows have fed off the pasture since the oats were big enough for pasturing. Burkett says that it looks like he is going to be forced to cut the oats the cows have been unable to eat, according to a report of the Archer County agricultural agent.

Glove-Making Hints Are Given by Agent

DICKENS, June 15.—"Cut the glove on a true bias of the material to insure a smooth fit," Mrs. W. A. Harris, Espuela Home Demonstration Club member of Dickens County said in giving a demonstration last month. She went on to say that when gloves have been cut, first stitch the lines on the back of the hand then sew in the thumb and inside finger pieces to back and front before sewing the side seam. The cuffs may be gauntlet or closed or any other preferred style.

Americans are not well schooled. There are 64,000,000 in the country who have not finished high school, 32,000,000 have not finished the eighth grade and only 1,200,000 have finished college.

To Have Chance To Sell Certificates

The remaining unsold certificates in the 1934 Cotton Certificate Pool may be repooled for sale by use of a simple trust agreement which will be given the producer at the time he receives his second check. These trust agreements may be signed and turned in to the county office where they will be immediately forwarded to Washington. If the trust agreements are not signed within 15 days the certificates will be turned back to the individual producer in the form of 1935 certificates.

It is reasonably sure that all of the certificates left in the "Special Pool" will be sold this summer. It is probable that the price received will be five cents per pound or $25 per bale. The charge for handling these certificates will be very small—even less than the 20 cents per bale charge made this year. It therefore seems reasonable that most people having certificates remaining in the pool would leave them there for sale and buy back out of the "Regular Pool" any certificates which they may need above their 1935 allotment. This is the best of crop insurance, the only cost being the small handling charge which would be assessed against the "Special Pool."

Mr. Deal was of the opinion that certificates could be bought from the "Regular Pool" next fall at the same price at which certificates would sell from the "Special Pool" created this Spring; therefore a man could insure his crop to the extent of the certificates which he has remaining in the pool at a cost which would not exceed 20c per bale. This is a rate much below any rate charged by any insurance company.

Hall County will have remaining in unsold certificates some 7,000 bales of 1934 certificates. This would represent approximately $175,000 figuring these certificates at five cents a pound. Were all of these certificates left in the pool the total cost of handling them would not exceed $1400.

MAKES BUTTONS OF WALNUT

BEAVER CITY, June 15.—Buttons made from walnuts add distinctiveness to a dress. That is the opinion of Mrs. Ray Ackerman, wardrobe cooper of Beaver Creek Home Demonstration Club in Wichita County. She saw the walnut through the middle, removes the meat, adds a coat of shellac and has a one-inch walnut button. Mrs. Ackerman has already received an order for one dozen of these buttons at 10 cents each.

Stories in STAMPS

HOLLAND OF THE CARIBBEES

STEEP, red-tiled, gabled roofs, rainbow-tinted houses, streets scrubbed spotless—that sounds like Holland, and it is—Holland of the Caribbees. This beautiful spot that is so Dutch is Curacao, the little island in the lower West Indies that has belonged to the Netherlands since 1634 and that today is an important export center. Here it was that the famous Curacao liqueur, made from a peculiar variety of orange, originated, and here it is today where travelers are reminded of the land of dikes and canals.

In 1934, the Netherlands issued a special stamp commemorating the 300th anniversary of this island's accession to Dutch territory. The illustration is that of Willemstad, the chief city, built very much like any city in Holland.

SECOND COTTON PAYMENTS TO BE LARGER

Made Through National Farm Loan Associations

Information was received this week that second payments on the surplus certificates pooled would be somewhat larger than previously estimated. There have been sold approximately 69 1/2 per cent of the certificates which were surrendered to the pool. The expense of the pool amounts to only a fraction more than 26 cents a bale on the entire number of certificates surrendered. There has been received from the pooled certificates $10 a bale, this will leave a balance payable on these certificates of approximately $3.70 per bale after taking out the 20 cents a bale expense.

Information has been received to the effect that the writing of these checks was begun on Friday, June 7, it is expected that they will begin to arrive in the local office around June 20 or 25.

Remodels Closet at Only 30-Cent Cost

SINTON, June 15.—By using white wrapping paper given to her by the groceryman, a piece of scrap lumber for another shelf, and an old broom handle for another clothes rod, Miss Anita King, clothing demonstrator for the M'elastic Home Demonstration Club in San Patricio County, has remodeled her clothes closet. The only cash expenditure was 30 cents for paint for the shelves, rods and the floor, which were given two coats of paint.

Miss King's closet is 6' x 3' x 7'. Forty-two yards of the white wrapping paper were used plus homemade flour paste. The result is a neater closet, more rod space to hang up her clothes, and a shoe shelf.

FARM PLUMBING
Although plumbing lightens considerably the work of the farm housewife and probably contributes more to the convenience and comfort of the home than any other equipment, only 944,202 farms had water piped into the dwelling according to the latest records, says the United States Department of Agriculture. This figure represents 10 per cent of the total number of farms. The remaining 5,294,446 farms have little or no plumbing.

HEAVY SOIL EROSION

Unless the land is terraced, continuous cropping of cotton in the highly erosive soil which makes up approximately 36,000,000 acres in Oklahoma and Texas will result in wearing all the top soil away in 30 years and leave the stiff clay subsoil which produces only about half as much of the work of the United States Department of Agriculture soil-erosion experiment station at Guthrie, Okla., indicates. The experiments at this station, known as the Red Plains station, show that unless some grain or grass crop is grown the soil loss amounts to 32.5 tons an acre a year and that 14 per cent of the rainfall is lost by run-off. Where grass was grown on similar slopes, the soil loss was only 60 pounds to the acre and only 1.7 per cent of the rain was lost.

GARDEN GOSSIP

H.M. Tenny

Recently I received an interesting letter from a reader, telling me how she makes her rose selections. I'm passing it on to you because I believe you will find it of value in your gardening.

"While modern nursery and seed catalogs do give a vivid description, both by the printed word and by the splendid new color illustrations," she writes, "I find it much more to my liking to make regular trips to the various nurseries in my locality and see for myself the things as they actually are."

"Not that most nursery firms are not reliable, but there is a difference in seeing the things in print and seeing them in their true form. So, I select the things I believe I shall like, from the various catalogs, and then take my list with me and ask to see the real thing in bloom."

"In this way," she continues, "I am able to keep abreast of the new things in the garden world, and am better able to choose only the finer things. For instance, I read in the newspaper, and in garden magazines about a marvelous so-called 'black' rose produced recently in Germany. Actually, when I visited the rose nursery advertising it, I found it was merely another deep crimson and not at all black. Of course it is a nice rose, but no better in my opinion than many American introductions."

"But the main idea in making regular visits to the various nurseries is to know just how things are going to look in my own garden. I keep a record of everything I select, and then, when the proper time for planting comes along, the plants are sent on to me."

"Every summer," she concludes, "while on vacation trips, my husband and I make it our business to visit the nurseries in other states and cities. Quite often we see things in bloom which we think we would like to have. By doing this during the summer season we do not have to buy things blindly."

I don't think this is a bad idea at all, do you? After all, it is a bit difficult for some of us to look at a dormant plant and feel sure that it is just what we want. By making it a practice to visit the different nurseries during the growing season, will profit in the long run. Not only because of getting better selections and seeing the plants in life, but after the planting season is over, the nurseryman has more leisure and is better able to go through the nursery and explain things in detail, a thing he is unable to do throughout the planting season.

Miss Katherine Bennett returned Friday night from Los Angeles, Calif., where she spent more than two weeks on a vacation and sight seeing trip. She reports a very interesting trip.

Jean Harlow, William Powell In 'Reckless'

Jean Harlow and William Powell, two of screen's most famous and colorful stars, become a co-starring team for the first time in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Reckless," which opens today at the Ritz Theatre. The union of the two popular stars takes place in a lavish musical production against a dazzling background of theatrical Broadway. It introduces many new song hits and dance ensembles. Although they have been seen together frequently in public life during the last few months, the teaming of Miss Harlow and Powell as co-stars smote Hollywood as a complete surprise because the teaming of Miss Harlow in the new film was never hinted until the actual work began before the cameras.

Miss Harlow is cast as the bewitching dancing star who introduces the new songs and dances in the production, and Powell appears as the front-page promoter of everything from flagpole sitters to trained fleas. Franchot Tone plays the reckless socialite son of a grumpy millionaire and falls in love with the dancer. David O. Selznick is the producer and Victor Fleming the director. May Robson, Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton, Robert Light, Rosalind Russell, Henry Stephenson and Louise Henry also have prominent parts in the picture.

'The Girl From 10th Avenue' Is Love Story

"The Girl From 10th Avenue," currently showing at the Palace, features two well known screen personalities, each of whom are especially talented for this type of picture. Bette Davis heads the cast with Allison Skipworth. Miss Davis has scored in numerous recent appearances. The story is one that has an especial appeal for women. Hollywood reviewers have classified this picture as "sophisticated material in its atmosphere, but down-to-earth in plot." It is a story of the conflict of two women, one wealthy and with position, the other with neither of these, for the love of one man.

Ian Hunter has the male lead while Katherine Alexander has the role of the wealthy third member of the love triangle with Miss Davis. Miss Skipworth is cast as Miss Davis' close friend and benefactor.

It'd likewise be news if a bull should throw a congressman.
