SPECTACULAR PARADE TO OPEN STAMPEDE FRIDAY NOON

MEMPHIS TAKES THIRD STRAIGHT GAME OF SEASON

The Blanks Wellington in an Unevenly Matched Game Fair Park Last Friday

Memphis Cyclone won their straight game of the season, they easily defeated the Wellington, by an overwhelming score of 96 to 0, at the local stadium Friday afternoon. At no time during the entire game was the goal ever in danger, and only one attempt to make first down was made by the Wellington outfit. Memphis failed to attempt to make first down. Thirty yards was the nearest the visitors ever came within Memphis goal line.

Cyclone presented a much more backfield than their opponents which tore through the Wellington and around the ends for gains at will. The Memphis launched an aerial attack with

WOMAN DIES VERY SUDDENLY LAST SATURDAY

Mother Dies at Her Home in Eli Community Saturday; Funeral at Lakeview Sunday

Florence Berry, age 73, with-coming, suddenly died at her home in the Eli community, Saturday morning. Although she had been in health for the past five months, she apparently doing nicely at the time of her death, and she and her husband were preparing to move into their new home here, which they recently built, on Monday morning services were held at the Church at Lakeview Sunday morning at 10 o'clock with Rev. W. T. Tidwell officiating. A large number attended the funeral, including several Memphis friends, since Mrs. Berry was well known in Hall County, having lived there for the past eight years.

Mrs. Berry is survived by three sons, C. W., J. A. and R. J. Berry, who are living at home at the time of her death, and three married daughters, S. S. Perkins, of Eli; and Florence Stewart, of Eli and Josie Berry of Denver, Colo., whom were here for the funeral. She is also survived by Mrs. and Wilson, an adopted daughter who has lived with her since childhood.

Florence Berry was born in Florida, in 1851, where she lived until 18 years of age. Moving from Tallahassee, she came to Nashville, Tenn., where she resided continuously until eight years when she came to Memphis. She has been a consistent member of the Baptist Church for a number of years.

CONGRESS IS WOUNDED IN SHOOTING AFFRAY WITH NEGRO MAN

Mayfield, colored, age 35, and seriously wounded Jesse, the woman with whom he was living, in a quarrel, on the Cham-farm, four miles west of town, Friday morning. Although the cause of the negro's injury is serious it is thought she will recover.

The details and origin of the trouble have not yet been secured, but reports received to the effect that Mayfield approached the woman's quarters with a shotgun, and she, resenting his actions, confronted him with a pistol. Rather than firing at once, the couple grappled for each other

Demonstration Against Bar on Japs

In direct contrast and with but few hours apart was the scene of the public demonstration in Tokyo against the action of congress of the United States on Japanese immigration, and the warm reception tendered to the army officers on their arrival at the empire capital.

Mrs. J. A. Horton Succumbs to Lingering Illness Here Friday

Mrs. J. A. Horton, age 74, passed away Friday at her home on South Sixth Street. Although the news of her death came as a shadow of sorrow to her many friends and relatives, it was not unexpected, since she has been an invalid some three years and in a critical condition for several weeks past.

The body of the deceased was shipped to her former home, Nocona, Texas, Saturday morning, where funeral services were held and interment made Sunday afternoon.

She was the mother of eight children and is survived by only three of them, H. D. Horton, Cora Davis, and Mrs. Geo. Hammond, all of whom live in Memphis.

Mrs. Horton was born in Georgia. When only an infant her parents moved to San Augustine, Texas. She was married there and moved to Nocona in 1889, where her husband died in 1909. She moved here four years ago where she has resided continuously until her death. Mrs. Horton had been a consistent member of the Methodist Church since childhood.

Forecast Indicates "Cyclone" to Hit Hedley This Friday

The forecast shows that the Cyclone local gridsters, will hit the Hedley eleven to-morrow and if the dope put out by the "vanes" holds up, as it has in the past, the storm king may play havoc with the nery Hedley boys.

Although there is no fear among Coach Bolton's boys in regard to the Hedley game, overconfidence on the part of the Cyclone may keep the score closer than is predicted.

Stiff practice and scrimmage has been held all week and at no time will Coach Bolton let the boys lose their form, despite the prospects of easy games.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Grundy are visiting in Amarillo this week.

Wellington Squad Perishes When Cyclone Sweeps Grid

Eleven husky gridsters—select young men of the Wellington High School—were caught in the violence of the terrible Cyclone which swept Fair Park here Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and, although fighting valiantly throughout the on-weep of the storm, perished without having scored a single mark of merit.

When the dust clouds cleared away, the mixing of the elements had obscured from view every star in the Wellington sky—not even a satellite looked down upon the funeral.

The funeral procession was formed at the southeast corner of the public square, immediately after the disaster at the park, where a large wooden casket, grotesquely draped in black crepe, was loaded onto a truck, immediately followed by six pall-bearers, members of the high school pep squad, burlesquely dressed, with white canvas gloves. The "grief-stricken" mourners, dressed in black and gold, all members of the local squad, joined in the procession with much weeping, wailing and otherwise exaggerated sorrow; in fact, not a pair of dry eyes could be found in the twenty-five or thirty cars of attendant students of the Memphis High School, who joined in the procession. Although the funeral was of the modern, jazz type, the sorrowful tones of 96 to 0 could be heard at every turn.

The procession paraded through the business section of town, arousing more interest among the supporters of the Cyclone than any burlesque in the history of the Memphis High School.

Interment was made at Wellington Saturday morning.

FEDERAL ENGINEER INSPECTS HIGHWAY; PLANS APPROVED

Federal and State Engineers Go Over Proposed Route of C. to G. Highway

Federal Engineer O. B. Kercher, accompanied by Capt. G. G. Edwards Division Engineer for this section of the State, was in Memphis, Tuesday, October 14, for the purpose of going over the new route surveyed for the Colorado-to-Gulf Highway, through Hall County, over which a high top of hard-surfaced road is to be built, with two thirds of the expense met by State and Federal aid.

The engineers met with the Commissioners Court, Tuesday afternoon and discussed minor details pertaining to the routing of the road through Memphis and Estelline. Although the engineers had some objections to the present routing through the business section of Memphis, it was the opinion of the Court that no changes will be made, as seven blocks of the city pavement are included in this route, which runs via the square to Tenth Street and which would mean a great saving to the county.

A change of routing through Estelline was suggested, but the matter will be thoroughly investigated before a change is made, it is understood.

Location of the route of the Highway and plans and specifications of the county engineer were approved in every respect, and no changes will be necessary unless the one mentioned above is made at Estelline. In that case a new survey at that point

Miss Maxine Temple left Monday where she will visit with her aunt, Mrs. Lillie Davis Powers, for a few days.

Although a threatening cloud came up last night very little rain fell and at the present time weather conditions for gathering cotton are favorable and the gins are expecting the biggest run of the season next week.

The stage is all set at the fair park and the setting is wild. The 20 head of Brahma range steers for bull-dogging, together with the roping calves and bucking horses are in the corral.

DR. AND MRS. VARDY CELEBRATE THEIR 25TH ANNIVERSARY

One of the most enjoyable occasions of the year occurred Saturday evening, when Dr. and Mrs. P. L. Vardy invited some fifty friends to help them celebrate their 25th anniversary. The house was artistically decorated in lavender and gold as well as a profusion of Autumn flowers.

Mrs. Gilmore of Turkey, ably assisted her mother in contests and games. Mrs. Miller and B. L. Prewitt were the prize winners.

After several musical selections by the Grundy brothers and Miss Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner sang, "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

A delicious dinner was served, during which Dr. and Mrs. Vardy were presented with many beautiful and useful gifts of silver. At a late hour the guests departed, each hoping they might have the pleasure of helping celebrate the golden anniversary of these good people.

A report from the H. Clifton gin on Monday, stated that the plant had turned out 249 bales up to that date, which is more than twice the amount ginned by both gins two weeks ago. A report from the other local gins was not given, but it is known that the ginning average is steadily on the increase.

Due to the fair weather of the past week, the cotton is opening rapidly and the daily ginning average is increasing accordingly. Pickers have been coming in constantly, but the demand is not yet supplied, it is said.

Parnell School Gets Benefit of Student Carnival

A new and interesting program given by the Parnell School Friday evening in the way of a School Carnival, which was a social get-together for the whole community, the proceeds will be used for play-land equipment.

There were many kinds of booths, beautifully decorated, in the different rooms and hall, including candy pop-corn stands, conundrum cafe, fortune telling booth, a Tex-hold-up, swimming match, green game, and a booth where hot chocolate, sandwiches, pies and cakes were served; there was also a side-show where a very interesting school program was given.

The people of Parnell showed they are behind their four wide-awake bustling school teachers, in turning out almost to the person, the entire community and helping to make their first school carnival a huge success.

The new teacherage here is nearing completion and will be a credit to our school.

Memphis Takes Third Straight Game of Season

Barage of forward passes that netted them gain after gain, which was countered by the accurate passing of the Cyclone backfield, and the speedy work of the ends in going down the field to receive them. The line was the job at all times, holding back the Wellington offensive and plunging great holes through their defense. The visitors defense would not hold many long runs of 55 and 60 yards were made at frequent intervals, both through the line and around their ends. The visitors fought hard battle, but seemed utterly hopeless, when they were thrown for loss on most every play of their offensive attacks.

Coach Bolton's squad is working with perfect team work, which is so essential in the building of a winning team, and every man displayed the fighting spirit, characteristic of the local team.

From the showing made in the three previous games the wearers of the Black and Gold should easily be considered in the Bi-District finals, unless they should become over-confident and lose the determination they now have.

STARS IN "THIS FREEDOM"

FAY COMPTON and CLIVE BROOK in "THIS FREEDOM" A WILLIAM FOX Special Production

Excellent acting by Fay Compton and Clive Brook will be noted in the leading roles in the William Fox picturization of A. S. M. Hutchinson's "This Freedom." This story of home vs. a career and the resulting chaos caused by a woman too ambitious for her own welfare will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Monday and Tuesday. Fay Compton, who at present is acting in London, will be remembered for her roles in "A Woman of No Importance" and "A Bill of Divorcement."

LARGE NUMBER OF BUICK AUTOMOBILES ARE SHIPPED TO ALL PARTS OF WORLD

Granting that the automobile business is a fair barometer of general commercial conditions and certainly we have found it so at home, the comeback of Europe is going to be much quicker than even the most optimistic have dared to hope, says E. T. Strong, General Sales Manager of the Buick Motor Company.

The sales of Buick cars certainly sets at naught the almost uniform predictions of Europe's prosperity to come well into the future and only after some very careful planned and well executed stimulations.

Two trainloads of Buick cars bound for foreign shores left the Buick factories during the week of September 15 to 20.

While the shipment of trainloads of automobiles for export will undoubtedly be a surprise to many it is a rather common thing with the Buick. During the month of August, for instance, five trainloads of Buicks left the factories for exporting points, and trainload shipments for September will no doubt surpass the month of August.

Aside from Italy and France where unfavorable tariffs practically prohibit the sale of American made motor cars, there seems to be no one spot in the world where Buick cars are not being purchased: England, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Bolivia, Colombia, Venezuela, Cuba, Porto Rico, Central America and to many many others that are even very little thought of in daily life, shipments of Buick cars are constantly on their way. At home, too, Buick sales volume reflects a prosperous condition of business and commerce another indication that the world is rapidly recovering from its business depression. Nations and individuals alike rally quickly, and as they rise, turn to the purchase of necessities. That they buy American made motor cars in large quantities is a tribute to American industry.

No Return Ticket Issued To Woman On Downward Path

"Women don't sip, they drain; do not trifle, they plunge," exclaims "Keggo" the governess in one of the dramatic moments in A. S. M. Hutchinson's "This Freedom" which Wm. Fox is now presenting in photoplay form. Athlene Seyler, one of the best known character actresses in England, gives a remarkable characterization in this role of a dipsomaniac.

Hutchinson uses this character as one of the minor incidents in his story based on a woman's rights. The governess is discharged from the household Rosalie and Harry Ocleve, the two chief characters of the story, because she is discovered drinking. Freedom for women is advocated by Rosalie as having no sympathy for circumstances like this. The last scene of "Keggo" is when she is realizing that "they don't issue return tickets to women. There's only departure no return."

Hutchinson's novel is the most discussed book of the year and has been read by more than a million people. Denison Clift, filmed the picture in England with the help of the author. Fay Compton has the role of the woman banker who tried to have a career and run a home at the same time. "This Freedom" will start an engagement at the Palace Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1924

YOU COULDN'T DO IT AT HOME

What would happen to a man who would deliberately throw trash and dirt on the floor of his home, after his wife had swept and cleaned up? You know, so do we. Still every morning there is a number of Memphis merchants around the square who sweep their waste paper and dirt out their front door and onto the street to be blown around and litter up the streets immediately after they have been cleaned by the sweeper.

The merchants pay taxes to maintain the street cleaning department, which cleans our streets early every morning, then they undo all that this department has done by throwing more trash into the streets to remain all through the day and until early the next morning. A small wire cage to burn waste paper in can be secured at little or no cost and will certainly aid in keeping our town free from this inexcusable nuisance.

WHY DO THEY PICK ON MEMPHIS?

Hundreds of beggars are inflicting themselves upon the Panhandle owing to the good conditions prevailing in this section. Beggars find out the conditions of various sections of the country, and then flock there by the hundreds. If the country owes this class a living, it would be much cheaper for the state to take them up and maintain them by taxation. Those who contribute to the upkeep of this class are encouraging a traffic which is becoming a menace, and many have found that it is easier to beg, and more profitable to beg, than to work.—Randall County News.

It seems that Memphis has more than her share of these mendicants, as at least two or three have been on our streets every day for the past two weeks, this is a gross imposition on the generosity of our citizens. If the citizens care to donate to charity certainly plenty of charitable work to be done among families of our own community, without encouraging the presence of the professional beggars. Following is an amendment from City Ordinance No. 184:

Be it ordained that it shall hereafter be unlawful for any person or persons to solicit alms or financial assistance for himself or any other person or any charitable institution, association or organization from house to house or upon any public street, place or thoroughfare within the city limits of Memphis without first having obtained a license from the City Health officer. Approved 5th day of December, A. D. 1922.

Why then, if it is unlawful for persons to beg on our streets is such permitted to be done? If they all have a license, a license certainly must not be very difficult to secure; if not, then this practice should be eliminated. Why not?

Echoes of the News

Political hay fever is abroad in the land and it cannot be cured by a straw vote.

Pugilists are probably the only class who are really working when they strike.

Now there would be some sense in a law retiring congressmen on account of age.

Some of the political forecasts being printed now will look mighty funny after November 4.

Some folks are now taking the stump who will be taking the count after the November elections.

Gaston Means may tell the truth yet, says an exchange, but how are you going to identify it?

Secretary Wilbur was once a judge, but not, it is to be presumed, of what to say in a political speech.

A New York checkup shows that 65,000 horses still work in the city's streets. There are several automobiles used there also.

The soda fountain is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary. Where would the drug store business be if the fountain hadn't been thought up?

Latest figures show that Chicago has had 493 deaths through auto accidents so far this year. That rate all over the country would mean something like 40,000 deaths during the year, certainly enough to impress the public with the need of doing something about it.

Nothing like doing a job you are at the right way. A Texas justice of the peace with a record of 9,674 weddings in 18 years boasts that he does his work so skilfully that the first woman he ever married came back for two more ceremonies at later intervals.

Westinghouse Mazda Lamps

"The right lamp in every socket means more money in your pocket."

THE LAMP that screws into the electric fixture is a most important part of your lighting system.

There are two kinds of wrong lamps; one of them, the old-style carbon lamp that wastes electricity and runs up your light bills! The other "wrong" kind of lamp is one unsuited to the style of fixture in which it is used or to the task it is supposed to do. A lamp may be too big and glarey—or too small—or not the right shape. The lamp display at our office will help you decide about this.

The right kind of lamps that give you more light for less money, are Westinghouse Mazda Lamps. Sizes are determined by the number of watts consumed. 40 to 100 watt Mazdas are probably the most popular listed.

40 Watt	$.27
50 Watt Mill Type	.30
50 Watt Daylight Blue	.45
60 Watt	.32
75 Watt	.45
100 Watt	.55
150 Watt	.70
200 Watt	.95

These lamps come in various shapes and the glass is finished clear, frosted, white, blue, etc., for various pleasing lighting affects.

Let us send our lighting expert to your home at no cost to you to look over your fixtures and give you a list of proper lamps for each socket. Its the real money-saving thing to do.—PHONE 181.

CONTEST CONTINUES TO ATTRACT READERS

High Lists of 68 Words Net Two Memphis Ladies $2.50 each as Reward for Efforts in Democrat Misspelled Word Contest

After a careful check and recheck of the huge file of letters which was this week sent in to the Democrat Misspelled Word Contest Editor, the lists of Mrs. Lee Thornton and Mrs. M. E. McNally, both of Memphis, containing 68 words, each, proved to be the largest number submitted. The third trial has proven to be a charm for these ladies, since they have entered lists each week and a check for $2.50 each has been mailed to them according to the rules of the contest.

Miss Wilella Brice, of Memphis, Edwin Owens, of Indian Creek and Mrs. Arch Owens of Indian Creek, tied for second honors with lists of 67 words each. Third places were taken by Mrs. B. B. Edmiston, of Waco, George Tipton of Memphis, and Cleo Guthrie of Memphis, who submitted lists of 66 words each. A majority of the letters contained over sixty words, which tends to prove that the contestants are proving more perfect in the search for the words. The winning lists were not perfect, however, since there is a total of 70 words misspelled.

On With the Contest
The Democrat and Contest Editor are exceedingly well pleased with the interest thus far shown in the contest and it will be continued with the $5.00 cash prize offered as long as the interest of the readers justifies such.

Although each week's results bring some disappointment to contenders, to use the words of many contestants, they all can't win, and they are trying again. The fun to be derived from the search takes away the grind of it, and the chance to win offers some excitement, all in all, the contest is progressing very nicely.

Conditions to Remember
The following conditions should be remembered by contestants:

Mis-spelled words in DISPLAY ADVERTISEMENTS only will be counted.

Lists should be neatly arranged. Lists received later than Wednesday at noon will not be counted. A few were late this week.

In case of a tie the $5 cash prize will be equally divided among the winners.

Not to be announced until next week's paper. For this information see the program.

DID'NT GRASP THE JOKE

The average Englishman's failure to get the point of the witty sayings of Americans was never displayed more amusingly than in the Paramount picture "Ruggles of Red Gap" to be shown at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. Ruggles, the English valet of Cousin Egbert, the former played by Edward Horton and the other by Ernest Torrence, on his first visit to America is persuaded by his master to ask a certain person what day of the week it happens to be. If he says Tuesday and it is Tuesday Ruggles is to "poke him in the eye." But Ruggles insists that it is Tuesday, and the man is sure to answer in the affirmative. "That's just it," exclaims Egbert marveling at this fellow's denseness. But does Ruggles ask the question? If so, what happens? The answer is giving amusingly in the picture, is given in the picture. Don't miss it.

American Legion Notes

Good Attendance

The attendance at the meeting last Thursday night was a good showing, more than twenty members being present, and three new members came in.

Why not make a showing like this at every meeting? All that is necessary is for each member to come and remind all others that it is meeting night and he is expected to be on hand.

Tonight is meeting night and let's make another splendid showing and have thirty or forty present with a few to spare and bring in ten or twelve new members also. Be on hand.

Six Years Ago Today

Just six years ago today this ex-buck was wearing a pack on his back stogy around the docks of the White Star Line in New York harbor awaiting orders from the big guy to embark for "sunny" France aboard the big ship Olympica. That day was a nice warm fall day and will be remembered many years. The crowd of khaki-clad buddies was as large as the population of some of our large towns, totaling more than 45,000 men and officers. It was one of the largest convoys ever sent out on one boat and we made the entire trip without a convoy of submarine chasers, which was probably the first boat to make the trip across alone. The trip across was made without mishap other than a few of the boys trying to feed all their rations to the fish.

How many of the readers of this article was on that boat? Speak up.

God bless salesladies who can keep a man from feeling embarrassed when he is shopping for his wife, says Allen Crundy.

Scott Anthony says no clothesline ever breaks under the strain of the kind of wash which the modern girls hang out to dry.

Additional Donors

Below we publish a list of new and late donors to the American Legion Building Fund. These donations are highly appreciated by the Legion and are thankfully received, if you have not made a donation and wish to do so, it will be gladly received by H. H. Lindsey. The new donors and the amount of donation follows:

- $25.00—W. E. Gerlach, White & Miller.
- $15.00—Meacham Drug Co., Seago & Simmons, F. J. Goffinet.
- $10.00—R. F. Garrett, A. T. Lokey.
- $5.00—Lee Rushing, I. W. Neely, John Deaver.
- $2.00—I. D. Mullis.
- $1.00—Billy Cousins.

Under Orders

The orderly officer was making his rounds.

"Halt" cried the sentry. "Who goes there?"
"Orderly officer."
"Advance, orderly officer."
He began to advance.
"Halt" cried the sentry again.
He halted.
"Look here," he said, "this is the second time you've halted me."
"Yes, sir," said the sentry. "I was told to shout 'Halt' three times and then shoot."

The stock salesman, after painting a beautiful word picture, said: "Now Mr. Jones, you know this company hasn't got a dollar's worth of watered stock in it. How much are you going to buy?"
"Young man," said Oren, "the next stock I buy is going to have four legs, and I will water it myself."

It's funny about nature, making the prunes more healthful than strawberries, says Bill Alexander.

No man will ever amount to much until he learns the difference between growing and swelling, says Mac Tarver.

"Couldn't you bribe him, or something?" Gerald asked eagerly.

"Old Johnny fairly cornered me," Carruthers explained. "The two ladies, he told me, had declared their desire to remain incognito. It was not, therefore, the business of a gentleman to be inquisitive. Whereupon I came away with my tail between my legs. All the same, I don't believe he has the least idea who they are."

Gerald sighed.

"I shall know her sooner or later," he muttered, "but it's such a waste of precious time."

"You won't forget that we promised to go and see Myrtle early?" Christopher reminded him.

Gerald stared at his friend.

"Myrtle? Who the devil—Why, the child from the violet farm, of course! I'd forgotten all about her."

Myrtle came flying to the door. Christopher saw her eyes travel over his shoulder, he saw the sudden cloud upon her face. A queer little stab of pain startled him by its very poignancy.

"Monsieur Gerald, he is not with you?" she asked disconsolately.

Christopher shook his head.

"He was up late last night," he explained. "I went to his room but he was fast asleep. I dare say he will come on presently."

"He promised to be here early," she said. "Has he spoken of me? Has he said anything about sending me back?"

"Nothing," Christopher assured her. "Do you still feel that you don't want to go back?"

She stood quite still in the middle of the little apartment and looked at him. Something about her was altered. It seemed almost as though she had passed from girlhood to womanhood in the night.

"I will not go back," she declared fiercely. "It is not that I mind poverty or hard work. It is Pierre Leschamps. I could not bear him near me. He shall never come near me, otherwise I shall die. Even you, Monsieur Christopher, you do not wish me to die."

Her eyes were swimming with tears. She leaned a little towards him and Christopher patted her encouragingly. Her lips were very close to his, fresh and sweet and quivering. Christopher, conscious of a rare and almost overwhelming temptation, turned away brusquely.

"Come outside," he invited. "I will take you on the terrace, and we will sit in the sunshine."

She clasped her hands, herself again almost immediately.

They wandered down from the fashionable part of the promenade to the pebbly beach and along the sands. Myrtle was never tired of the wonder of it all. Often, however, she cast an anxious look backwards.

"You do not think Monsieur Gerald will be searching for us?" she asked timidly.

Christopher was conscious of a curious sense of annoyance which he could not altogether explain. He led the way up the steps and on to the terrace.

"We will take a seat here," he suggested. "We can see the hotel and the turning to your lodgings, and you can watch for him."

She acquiesced willingly, and for the next half hour she divided her attention between the entrance to the hotel and the passers-by. At the end of that time she became a little self-conscious.

"It is not right, Monsieur Christopher," she said, "that I sit here with you in these clothes and without a hat. People look at us so strangely."

"You look very nice," Christopher assured her, "and besides, it is no one else's business but our own."

"Then why do they look at me so strangely?" she persisted. "It must be because I have no toilette, no hat, my shoes are ugly. Indeed, monsieur, it is no place for me. Here are friends of yours coming, I am sure—the beautifully dressed young lady who looks at me so curiously."

"It is Gerald's father and sister," he whispered.

She was suddenly very white and frightened. Christopher rose to his feet. Lady Mary nodded a little coldly. Lord Hinterley acknowledged his greeting with some surprise.

"This is your little protege, I suppose?" Mary remarked, looking at Myrtle.

"This is Myrtle," Christopher asserted. "We are waiting for Gerald now to decide what to do with her."

"You wish to leave home, I understand?" Mary asked, turning to the girl, who had risen to her feet.

"I will never return there," Myrtle replied—"no, not even if Monsieur Gerald himself commanded me to. I would sooner throw myself into the sea."

"Isn't that a little extreme?" her questioner rejoined coldly.

"The misery I should have to face if I returned would also be extreme," Myrtle declared. "I am hoping to find some work here."

"That should not be difficult," Mary observed, and they passed on, Mary with a nod to Christopher which lacked much of its usual cordiality. Myrtle looked after them and there was trouble in her face.

"They do not like me," she said. "They do not think that I ought to be here with you. They are right, of course. I am just a little peasant girl in peasant clothes. Let us go."

Christopher's remonstrances were in vain. She turned and walked away, and he was obliged to follow. Just as they were leaving the promenade, however, they came face to face with Gerald, issuing from the hotel. He gave a little start as he recognized Myrtle. Except for a careless thought when he had first awakened, he had forgotten all about her. It was characteristic of him, however, to behave during the next few minutes as though he had been thinking of no one else.

"So Christopher has been stealing a march on me!" he exclaimed. "Has he shown you all the sights, Myrtle?"

"I waited a long time for you," she replied. "We have been sitting on the terrace."

"And Myrtle has been a little troublesome," Christopher said. "She is going back to her rooms to hide because of her clothes."

"Clothes?" Gerald repeated. "Why, of course she must have clothes. We ought to have thought of that when we brought her away."

"But, monsieur," she began timidly, "even the clothes which I have at home—my communion gown—"

Gerald waved his arm.

"Come along," he invited. "We will transform you. We will go to Lenore's. Madame Lenore is a great pal of mine. Myrtle, you shall have clothes fit for a duchess."

"Then they would not be fit for me," Myrtle objected, doubtfully.

"Nor, I should think," Christopher added, "would they help her to obtain a situation."

Gerald, however, would listen to no remonstrances. He ushered them into a quiet but sumptuous-looking little establishment, only a few doors from the Hotel de Paris. A Frenchwoman, dark and attractive, came forward to welcome them.

"Ah, monsieur—milord!" she exclaimed. "It is good to see you again. Her ladyship was here only three days ago. I ventured to ask if you were to be expected."

"Madame," Gerald declared, "I am here on business. We have with us a princess—the Princess Myrtle."

"A princess?" Madame repeated, with a wondering glance at the girl.

"A princess in everything but clothes," Gerald explained. "That is your part. We hand her over to you. Dress her, madame. We will return in an hour."

Madame's eyes sparkled. She looked at Myrtle appraisingly.

"Mademoiselle will be worth dressing," she assured them joyfully. "Return, as you say, in an hour, milord, and I can promise that mademoiselle shall be all that you desire."

Christopher for the first time intervened.

"Look here, Gerald," he said, "I don't think that you are giving madame quite the right idea."

"In what respect?"

"Mademoiselle is the daughter of working folk," Christopher explained. "She requires clothes of good quality, if you will, but clothes in which she can seek a situation. That is so, is it not, Myrtle?"

The girl's eyes were fixed anxiously upon Gerald.

"I should like to have what Monsieur Gerald would wish me to have," she replied.

"Mademoiselle has a figure so fashionable," Madame Lenore murmured; "so slim yet so elegant, and an expression altogether spirituelle. I have some frocks only this morning arrived from Paris, in which she would seem a dream."

"We do not desire mademoiselle to become a dream," Christopher said, sternly.
