Eagles Trample Sonora, 40-0

Captain Kerr Stars With 77 Yard Run

No Game This Week

Unleashing and lashing a superlative running attack, the Eagles of Eldorade EV h School floated their banners of Black and Gold over Fair Park last Seturday, stampeding over the Sonorn Brones for a 40 to 0 victory. In so doing, Coach Williamson's bors more firmly entrenched themselves as bidders for the cham sons up of district 17. They have cleared two hurdles in that direction at top speed and will enter the third opportunity Saturday, October 27 when they meet Junction here.

It was a gime marked by a number of scinti atting plays; a game in which the Eagls orilliant running attack was a raralleled only by their own defensive streigth; a game in which every Eagle, who got in the play, from Captain Kerr to the weakest sub fitute, played a jam up

Ken's Ren Features

Captain Billie Kerr holds the spotlight for the outstanding achievement of the afternoon. The second fall got underway by Sonorakickiny off to Elderado. Milton Spurgers received the kick on his 33 yard line. Spurgers handed the ball to Ke. 4, the Engle Captain tearing out down the sideline and racing 77 yards for the touchdown.

The Elderado boys were far superior to the Browns in every department of the game. They compiled eighteen first downs to only four for Sonora. Trey gained 236 yards on running plays from the line of scrimmage to only 52 for Sonora. They com; letel three ont of five passes, attempted, for : 7 yards. Two of these prisses were good for touchdowns,-- one form Paul Davis to Jack Hext was good for 14 yards and a torehd wn while the other one, from .'oe Turner Hext to Paul Davis, was g od for 16 yards and a touchdown. The larones completed three pas es out of seven, attempted, f r 15 yards, one was incomplete and 3 were intercepted.

On the Jerense, the Brones were almost helpk so against the Eldorado's running attack. Joe Turner Hext, Paul Davis, Ardrian McDanials, Bill So ith and R. J. Alexander were all able to go off tackle or plow through the line at will for good yardage.

Comparative with this, the Eldorado line sparkled as brightly as did it's backfield. After a brief spell in the first half, when Sonora ran up their total of four first downs, the Eagle forward wall surged and became almost impenetratable.

How the Touchdowns Were Made

The initial score came late in the first quarter. J. Logan punted to Hext on Eldorado's 35 yard line, the elusive Eagle back returning the ball to midfield. At this juncture, the Pagles launched a drive which carried them over on ten consecutive plays. After an incomplete pass, McDanials went off tackle for 10 yards and a first down. Alexander picked up 9 yards on two line plays. Hext- went off-tackle ror 4 yards. After a fumble by Alexander, which Hext recovered, the Eagle puarterback went off-tackle for 9 yards. Paul Davis entered the offensive spurt by picking up 5 yards and placing the ball on Sonora's 11 yard line. McDanials went off-tackle for 7 yards and Arexander followed with 6 yards and a touchdown. Hext made the extra point by skirting right end.

The Eagle scoring was halted for the remainder of the first halr, their second touchdown coming on Captain Kerr's scintilliting return of the opening kick off of the second half. Sam Cloud converted the extra point by sending the ball through the center of the uprights from placement kick.

The applause accorded to Captain Kerr's fine exhibition had hardly died down when the third Eagle touchdown was made. After Eldo-

Turn to Lotteries to Expand Incomes

Profit in Them.

London .- A number of hard-pressed Muropean governments are helping to balance their top-heavy budgets through the medium of legalized lot-

The vision of sudden fortune, by the simple expedient of buying an inexpensive ticket, lures millions of dollars each year from the pockets of rich and poor alike. And in every instance the national exchequers are benefited.

The principal countries where lotteries are permitted in Europe include France, Italy, Spain, and the Irish Free State, the last of which, in its racing sweepstakes, has the largest and most widely known of all.

For Different Purposes.

The rules of conducting lotteries vary in each country as do the stated purpose for which they are run. The Irish Free State hospitals benefit under the sweepstakes which are run in connection with three outstanding British horse races each year.

The Red Cross and the University City in Spain are allowed certain extra drawings for their own profit, while France and Italy allocate their shares to governmental departments as they think fit.

The biggest lottery of all is the Irish Sweepstake. Run three times a year, on the occasions of the English Grand National, Epsom Derby and Cesarewitch Handicap, it receives subscrip-

Many European Nations Find tions from more than 100 countries. Since 1930, when it was started under the registration of the Irish Hospita Trust, Ltd., lucky ticket holders have been paid more than $100,000,000. By far the greatest number of tickets in this sweepstake are purchased in Britain, where it is illegal for any person to sell them. However, the tickets are smuggled in and sold. The money goes back to Ireland.

Out of these receipts and those from ther countries, the Irish hospitals have benefited by more than $30,000,-000 during the past four years. The government itself received 25 per cent of the hospitals' share, and in addition since 1932, has also realized $2,500,000 in taxes on the "sweep."

Has Longest Record.

The Spanish National Lottery has the longest record of consistent performance. It dates back to 1763, when Charles III, looking for new means of supplementing his privy purse, hit pon this method.

In Spain, three draws are held regularly each month, in addition to five extraordinary draws, two of which are for the special benefit of the Red Cross and the University City. The lottery has grown to such an extent that last year the gross receipts amounted to $57,750,000.

Of this amount prize-winners reeived $40,356,100, wages and adminstration expenses took $1,513,480 and the remaining $15,888,240 went to the

The popularity of the lottery in France is shown by the fact that it practically impossible to buy a ticket for as many as five days before a drawing. It is only recently that the lottery was legalized, and its ob ject was to pay war veterans' pensions with the government's share of the proceeds.

Prize money takes 60 per cent of the total receipts; expenses are estimated at 5 per cent and the remaining 35 per cent goes into the national treasury to be applied to war pensions. The participant in the lottery has a one to nine chance of winning a prize, the ghest of which is $320,000

In Italy the government reaps about $6,380,000 a year from the lotteries which are conducted weekly by the state. The drawings are made in the eight principal cities, and large returns are possible from very small outlay.

Norman Town Turns Its Back on Coeducation

Coutances, Normandy.—By unanimous vote, this town has taken a united stand against co-education.

The reason given for this action is that "male school teachers cannot teach girls their future roles of wife and mother," and that "children of France are disconcertingly precocious."

Despite this anti-co-educational feeling in Normandy, there are 3,520 "mixed" schools in France. Wherever possible it is the principle of the French school system to keep boys and girls separated.

THE STORY OF DEMETRIUS

LEONARD A. BARRETT

There is an ancient story regarding silversmith named Demetrius. He was at the head of a group of craftsmen who made silver shrines for heathen temples. Most of these shrines were dedicated to the goddess Diana. It was a very lucrative business. perhaps the most prosperous of that day. The business continued to advance and every person connected with the enterprise was happy for the reason that his living was secured and there was plenty of money available for the luxuries of a pagan world. All went well until something happened! The business of the company gradually began to fall off. When activity was almost "nil" Demetrius decided to call a meeting of the directors of the corporation for the purpose of discussing the serious condition which confronted them. Demetrius addressed his directors something like this: "Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth. Not only is our business in danger of being destroyed, but also the great temple of Diana despised.' His address indicates a very hostile and vindictive attitude of mind. He cannot understand why any other force has the right to interfere with the financial progress of his company. Having ascertained the cause of the financial calamity, Demetrius relates that a certain man lecturing to the people down in Ephesus, the center of the heathen world, told them that, "There were no gods made with hands." The influence of this man became so great that many persons were turning away from the heathen temples and abandoning their loyalty to the heathen goddess, "and the image which fell down from Jupiter."

When all this news spread about the ancient city of Ephesus excitement rose to a very high pitch. A riot was final ly prevented by the wisdom of the town clerk who persuaded the strikers and their sympathizers to appeal to the courts where justice would pre-person whose duty it is to govern others, whether children or adults, gain their respect and love or esteem, as the case may be, if they are good disciplinarians. They may even be strict, good disciplinarians are apt to be, but they are also prone to be just. There is a vast difference between being severe and being strict. In the first instance there may be no measure of justice, or actual relation or balance between the offense and the punishment. It is particularly noticeable in governing children, where it will be found that a slight unruliness often brings an unmerited, severe correction, and a real offense goes with but slight punishment. The state of mind of the parent or teacher, often has as much to do with the lightness or severity of the punish ment as the misdemeanor itself.

When a person is a good disciplinarian there is not found this fickle-ness. Children and others know where they stand. Consequently they consider whether er not it is worth while to do the thing which will bring down upon them a severe punish-ment. What is more, they will be inclined to realize their wrongdoings would deserve the penalties meted out to them. There is a fine sense of justice in children. There is also an inbred respect for authority, until they find it is mis-applied even when the rules seem arbitrary rather tham, to them, reasonable.

T. E. L. CLASS OF BAPTIST CHURCH MEET

The T. E. L. Class of the First Baptist Church Sunday School met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. George Williams for a bustness and social meeting.

Mrs. A. J. Quinn led the devotion al. Reading scriptures John 4: 35-38 and Mathew 9: 37-38, and reminding us that the harvest is truly great and the laborers are few, challenging us for a more useful life in the Lords work. Mrs. Cozzens led in prayer, especially praying that the coming revival meeting will be a fruitful one.

The officers for the year were elected as follows: Mrs. George Anderson, president; Mrs. Gordie Atexander, First vice-president; Mrs. Mattie Cozzens, secretary and Treasurer and Mrs. J. L. Ratliff,

After the business session, an hour was spent in contests. In the first contest, the different parts or the human body were used and compared with other things. This was very interesting and most ov the questions asked would have gone unanswered had not Mrs. Ratliff, our teacher, aided in bringing out the answers.

About twelve picture readings from the Bible were displayed, each member present having an opportunity to read the verses. Mrs. Cozzens had a 1903 copy of the Success from which she read "Baseball from the Bible" where many terms were used to illustrate happenings of the Bibical times. She also gave to the class a recipe for making a cake from the Bible, several stories of child life were told, illustrating the child's play and immagination as real to him as our daily life is Refreshments were served to Mrs. George Anderson, Mrs. Mattie Cozzens, Mrs. Ray Jones, Mrs. W. T. Whitten, Mrs. Ferris, Mrs. Rex Mc-Cormick, Mrs. J. L. Ratliff, Mrs. George Wiliams, Mrs. A. J. Quinn and Mrs. Gordie Alexander.

Mrs. Dora Oliver and Mrs. Otis Buie went to San Saba Saturday where they attended the bedside or Mrs. Oliver's father who is ill.

WHAT CLUB WORK HAS

MEANT TO ME

(A talk given by Mrs. Ira Hudson at the Arhievement Program of the Woman's Home Demonstration Club, October 10, at the home of Mrs. Gordie Alexander.)

"The Demonstration Club work has certainly been worth a lot to me; and I am aware of the fact that it could have done more for me than it has. For various reasons -the depression and the fact that we are renters rather than homeowners -Ihave not taken ad antage of the general home and yard improvement plans given in the demonstration work; but I have considered the little I have done: painting bedroom and breakfast room furniture following the demonstrations as closely as I could: well worth my time. I have stored much valuable information for future use.

"Probably learning to can products so as to keep them safely means more to a lot of us. I have helped my mother can vegetables by the open kettle method only to have a great part of them spoil; but following the demonstration methods with a pressure cooker, I have lost only two jars in two years, both due to defaults in the mouth of the jar.

"The social contact of my clubwork has been worth a lot to me since I came to this county as a stranger two years ago. From my associations in the club, I have learned to know my neighbors and their needs and can better follow God's advice to 'help one another." Mrs. Ira Hudson were removed from the scene by the bullets of the assassin, Petrus Kalemen, who slew King Alexander of Jugo slavia and Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, in Marseilles. "Another Sarejevo?" was the question in every mind, and, indeed, there was some slight danger that the crime would start another great war. Alexander was just beginning a "good will" visit in France, which was closely tied up with Barthou's plan for an accord between France and Italy, and Barthou was soon to go to Rome to further the scheme. Jugoslavia is allied to France but is not at all friendly to Italy, and Alexander hated Mussolini personally, believing that the duce gave moral support to the rebel ous Croats. But the king did not want war and was willing to help along the proposed accord if it was not inimical to his country.

If trouble does follow after the assassinations it probably will start with revolution in Jugoslavia. Only by assuming and exercising dictatorial powers was Alexander able to keep peace in the hodgepodge that comprises the Kingdom of the Serbs; Croats and Slevenes, otherwise Jugoslavia, and it is not certain that there is anyone else there who can do it. Civil war might tempt some other nation to intervene and grab part of the realm, and in that case a general conflict might be pre-

Alexander's eldest son Peter, who was in school in England, was prompt ly proclaimed king and, being only eleven years old, will rule under a regency of three men who were named in the political will of the murdered monarch. Whether these three can hold the kingdom intact is a question. Only the Serbs are really loyal to the royal house, though all the people had admired the strength and bravery of Alexander, whose life had been attempted four times before.

The death of Alexander was held expecially important to Germany by the statesmen of that country, for they had looked to him to curb to a considerable extent the alleged ambitions of Mussolini. He was considered a tial ally.

possibility of trouble in the Balkans. but also deeply mourned the death of Barthou, one of her ablest statesmen and, indeed, one of the ablest in Europe. He had been working assiduously on his pet scheme of a security pact for eastern Europe; and, although Germany had scored him for trying to baild a diplomatic and economic ring about the reich, last June he personal lx negotiated an accord between France and Germany that was believed to give assurance of peace.

Petrus Kalemen, the assassin, who was quickly killed by the French pofice, was found to have been traveling on a forged Czech passport. Two men who accompanied him on his mission of death were captured near the Swiss border and another was being hunted down in Fontainebleau forest. Where they came from and what organization was back of the assassinations had not een learned at this writing. The po ice thought they belonged to a secret Macedonian revolutionary society.

TIVIL war in Spain was precipitated by the radical elements, starting with a 24-hour general strike which was declared by the Socialists and

There was no telling how many had been killed or wounded, but certainly the casualty lists were terribly long.

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, chief of staff and now in command of the G. H. Q. combat air force and also of the ground forces, is planning to develop a fighting fleet of super battle planes. The first step will be the organization of the G. H. Q. air force of at least 1,000 planes grouped in five "wings" based on both coasts and in the Middle West. This would bring the army corps up to about 2,300 planes, making an aerial fighting fleet approximately the equal of any in the

GOV. GIFFORD PINCHOT of Pennsylvania has in the past been in sympathy with much of President Roosevelt's program, but he has now definitely broken away by coming out in favor of the re-election of Senator David A. Reed, anti-New Deal Republican whose defeat would be most welcome to the administration. Immediately after Pinchot announced his stand in a speech at Wilkes-Barre, Postmaster General Farley con-

Gov. Pinchot ferred with Mr. Roosevelt and then, as chairman of the Democratic National committee, gave out a stinging attack on Pinchot. In it he referred to Sen ator Reed as "perhaps the most out-standing foe of the President's policies," who, if elected, would "do everything in his power to hamper the President's program and to make a misdeal out of the New Deal."

It is said that the Pennsylvania Democrats are importuning the President to take a hand personally, and perhaps make a speech in the state, in an effort to win over rock-ribbed Pennsylvania and retire Senator Reed in a defeat which could also be construed as a close friend of the reich and a poten- slap at Pinchot and Andrew W. GOVERNMENT crop benefit checks for more than $352,000,000 have been paid to farmers participating in the production adjustment program, according to figures compiled by the AAA. Some $575,000,000 additional is scheduled for payment under programs now in effect, nearly 60 per cent of it before the end of this year. Thus, the farmers' stake in the AAA approximates $1,000,000,000.

Payments already made or to be made before January are included in the estimate of the bureau of agricultural economics which places 1934 cash farm income at about $6,000,000,000 compared to $5,000,000,000 last year and $4,333,000,000 in 1932.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has made it plain that the Civilian Conservation corps, one of the least criticized features of his recovery program, is to be continued indefinitely. He wrote to Robert Fechner, director of the corps, saying:

"I have been greatly interested and encouraged by the fine report from your visits to CCC camps in many parts of the country.

"This kind of work must go on. I believe that the nation feels that the work of these young men is so thoroughly justified and, in addition, the benefits to the men themselves are so clear that the actual annual cost will be met without much opposition or much complaint.

Mr. Fechner had reported to the President that the cost of the CCC during its eighteen months of operation had amounted to $443,000,000.

THERE is an interesting report cir-L culating in Wisconsin, especially in Madison. It is to the effect that President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin is looking toward the Republican Presidential nomination in 1936 and that this idea explains his refusal to permit Lloyd K. Garrison to remain in Washington as head of the national labor relations board. The Madison Capital Times said It understood Doctor Frank feels the Republican party is in need of a "liberal" candidate, yet not a "dangerous" liberal, and believes he is in a position to qualify.

To interviewers Doctor Frank declined to comment on the newspaper story. He said his insistence that Garrison return to his duties as dean of the law school was solely in the interests of the university.

USE of the taxpayers' money for the government operation of factories in competition with private enterprise was condemned by the board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers, which acted on petitions received from seventeen large trade associations. The manufacturers assert that such government experimentation merely results in depriving employees in private industry of their jobs, creating employment at one point and unemployment at another.

But to furnish necessities required through government operated factories is the wrong way to do the right thing."

CONFERRING with the full mem-bership of the new national industrial recovery board headed by S. Clay Williams, President Roosevelt let it be known that he was far from satisfied with NRA enforcement in the past and asked the board to devise more vigorous and effective methods.

Price-fixing and production control were discussed but not at length and with the general understanding that, although price-fixing policies of the Johnson regime would be reversed on paper, no sweeping action would be taken to unset existing codes and any action at all would come slowly.

A TTORNEY GENERAL CUMMINGS has called a national conference to discuss crime which is to open in Washington December 3 and continue three days. President Roosevelt is to address the first session in Constitution hall. The conference will be invited to give broad and practical consideration to the problem of crime in these principal aspects:

Causes and prevention of crime. 2. Investigation, detection, and apprehension of crime and criminals.

DELEGATES to the American Federation of Labor convention in San Francisco adopted unanimously and with cheers a resolution proposing adoption of a six-hour day and five-day week for all workers, private and government. A committee appointed to investigate possibilities and merit of shorter work peri ods reported favors

William Green, president of A. F. of L. made an impassioned

William Green speech in favor of shorter work periods during which hesaid the federation can be expected to mobilize its economic strength to make a concerted drive on industry and owners of industry for adoption of a six-hour day and five-day week and that legislation by congress would be sought at the forthcoming session so that there will be enforcement of this economic reform, not to make less work for those already employed but to create work opportunities for more people. Resolutions as adopted provide for no reduction in wages to result from shorter work periods. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, won a victory when the convention voted unanimous ly for the organization of workers into single unions embracing whole industries, as distinguished from craft unions limited to particular trades. The executive council was instructed to issue charters for the creation of national and international unions in the automotive, cement, aluminum and other mass production industries. The council also was ordered to inaugurate organization campaigns in the iron and steel industries.

The federation also went on record in favor of pensions for the aged, for mothers of dependent children and for sickness and unemployment benefits.

BEVERLY HILLS .- Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see as we prowl. One of the best ocean trips I have had in all my messing around these various oceans, was the one took away back when I first started out on this trip. It was really in two parts. One leg of it was from the mainland to Honolulu. and the other was from Honolulu to Yokohoma on the Empress of Canada. We had a fine bunch on the Canada. We wasent out long before we all had kinder got acquainted. I think I wrote you one day about the Ambassador from Brazil who was on his way to his new post in Japan. He had been in Copenhagen, those guys have a great life. He had been for four years in Russia before the big war, then in Austria during the war. Then all over the place, he and his wife and two cube children. They move to Japan just about like we would think of moving across the street. Then of course we had the old mysterious fellow on there about 76 years old, in this case. Nobody knows where he is going or why. The purser said he makes these trips often. And that one time at the Japanese immigration, they asked him what he was doing, he said he was going to buy ammunition for Manchuria. Well on account of Japan at that time annexing Manchuria that dident sound so "Hot." But these mysterious ones are on every boat I ever saw. I think the lines have em along to keep the passengers amused and in arguments about who and what they are. This one had whiskers, that made him all the harder to dope out. We had quite a few Britishers, and of course saw more dress suits than we had seen in years. When that dinner bugle blows an Englishman is just like a fireman. He jumps for his dress shirt, pumps, and high collar, and he is ready for the blaze. But they look well in em, and you cant blame em much. Maby if I dident look like a mule with a lovely horse blanket on, I might be right there

Then there was an old gal en from Kansas City, she had prowled these oceans, said she just dident have anything else to do, that she only had at home her "Negro maid and a dog" and she would get tired looking at em. and have to leave. She knew everybody on the boat or off it. And everybody in Kansas City. Said she met me at Fred Harveys one night at Kansas City. She was a likable soul. Headed for China, get whats coming to em.

An English capitalist on here, that I had met on the boat one time from Kong Kong to Singapore. He was telling me about the Japanese manufacturing so many different things. He is in the chemicals and medicines, said he thought the British nad the asparin trade sewed up, and here low and behold, comes along the Japanese one day and unloosed a mess of asparin. He seemed to think there was nothing that they wasent doing and doing pretty good. And away underselling anyone else. Well what can you do about it? You Well what can you to used to do it. Now we cant, so we got no right to holler. Of course its with low wages, but there is India, you cant get lower wages than they have there, and here the Japanese are underselling the British with cotton goods that they have bought in India, shipped away from there, manufactured it at home then shipped it back, and undersell them. Well there must be some economical management in there somewhere, outside of wages, you cant lay it all onto wages. You could eliminate the whole amount of the wage and then they could do it still. So they must just be doing the whole job in a menty economical way. I doubt if any of their stock in on a market, and if the company managers and directors are getting any big cuts out of it. Well anyhow thats going into what they call economics, and when you go into them, you have entered the forest without an axe or a light or a compass. You just argue around in circles. The only thing you can go by is results, and the Japanese are getting em now. So that stops all the arguments right there. We dont ever want to even try to compete with their cheap labor. So we have to figure out some other way to cut our costs. Anyhow I dont know anything about it, I just happened to think of it. And I assure you I wont do it again.

Washington - Whatever may be gleaned from recent developments in Washington, it can NRA Will be stated with certainty that President Continue Roosevelt has now set his mind definitely to continue the National Recovery administration as a governmental unit. It may well be that the organization will be changed as to form; it may be possible that the name will be revised and that there may be revision of methods. But there can be no equivocation about the fact that Mr. Roosevelt intends to maintain NRA and that he has acted at this time to give notice of his decision in advance of the convening of congress.

Observers here have taken note of the unusual emphasis placed upon the President's part in NRA reorganization plans. They think this was done at the behest of the Chief Executive with the thought in mind that it would serve as a reassurance to hundreds of thousands of people throughout the country. I believe there can be no doubt that a good many people, some influential, some just the mine-run, have questioned the flying qualities of the Blue Eagle. Their dissatisfaction and distrust has been shown in many ways and thus it appears logical that Mr. Roosevelt would seek to allay their

Under the new set-up of NRA, the President has taken active leadership. Of course, he has been the leader here tofore, but there has always been the disposition on his part to allow the former administrator, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, to guide his own ship. Despite the fact that Mr. Johnson was given a free hand, it was easy for Mr. Roosevelt to take control because, after all, he is President of the United States.

By dividing management of NRA among the heads of three boards, it is generally believed that the President has made it easier for himself to assert his influence and his ideas more directly than has hitherto been the case. This is particularly true when the personality of the former administrator is considered although the President had only one man with whom to deal under that circumstance.

Politically minded people in Washington seem to be wondering, however, what the effect will be on Mr. Roosevelt. Suggestions have been heard that by taking a direct hand in NRA Mr Roosevelt has put himself "out front" where, some seem to think he may be the target for some of the "rotten eggs" about which the bombastic Genera Johnson spoke so frequently. The retiring administrator said frequently he did not mind being the target, but many times Mr. Roosevelt has taken eccasion to fight back at his critics by calling them tories, unawakened Rip van Winkles, and other such descrip tive terms.

It is yet too early for a general reac tion to be evident among conservative business men on the Opposition President's NRA re-Active organization program. Those who have given voice to their feelings thus far, however, have indicated that the right wing group in the country are finding small unction from the new program. Indeed, the undercurrent of information which we get in Washing ton is to the effect that there are more secret meetings and definite moves among business interests to ward off; any left wing swing by the administration than there has been at any time since Mr. Roosevelt took office.

The President's recent radio speech to the country was generally understood as a conciliatory move on his part and it seems not to take a stretch of the imagination to link that speech and NRA reorganization with these various movements against the overhanging threats of such liberals as Donald Richberg, former Chicago labor lawyer, who is certainly the most influential man in the new NRA set-up. Everywhere I go, I find that business interests are accepting the reorganization of NRA as notice of its continuation and it may be possible that one result of this interpretation of the President's act is the growing opposition movement mentioned above. Business generally is mindful that the matter of continuing NRA must be decided by congress. They recognize that the present recovery act expires next June and that the President will lay before congress a comprehensive program early in January after congress returns. Their efforts in opposition, therefore, naturally will be directed to the congress in an effort to accomplish some of the changes in the law which they believe advisable to permit free and untrammeled commerce and industry.

With regard to the President's determination to continue NRA it needs to be pointed out only that if he had wanted to scrap that unit of his recovery set-up, the retirement of General Johnson afforded an excellent opportunity. It was then that he could have allowed the organization to disintegrate and could have transferred to various agencies of the government that are permanent in character such functions as he desired should continue. But he did not do that. He acted with dispatch. This is best shown by the chronology of events. It appears that the President made up his mind over one week-end. He received General Johnson's resignation on a Monday and announced it on a Tuesday. His return to Washington on Wednesday was followed immediately by conferences with Mr. Richberg and a quick announcement of the new program. It is evident, therefore, that when the President decided something had to be done, he moved at once to get rid of General Johnson and to start the new machinery through orders issued to Mr. Richberg.

Formulation of industrial policies henceforth are regarded as likely to be more on the basis of trial and error than heretofore has been the case.

Banking and other financial interests of the country are apparently quite disturbed over the Financiers trend toward easier Disturbed bank examinations.

Mr. Roosevelt lately has told the treasury that the bank examiners were too hardboiled in going over loans held in portfolios of banks and that he was anxious to see a more uniform system developed than the examining methods long in use. The fear seems to be that the bank examiners will relax too far in granting approval for loans outstanding. Heretofore, banks have had to toe the mark and any questionable papers or any loan that gave evidence of not being liquidated in accordance with its terms was promptly called to the attention of the bank management with instructions to make corrective adjustments on the books. If, as some financial authorities expect, bank examiners become too lenient it is suggested in many quarters that the banks again may find themselves with paper upon which they cannot realize just as occurred at the beginning of this depression. It was bad loans that forced the closing of many banks. Then, too, many observers are finding it difficult to reconcile the President's attitude with the frequent criticisms he has made of banking practices heretofore employed. I am reminded also of the stinging rebukes that have come from the senate committee on banking and currency after its investigation of the banking structure. Time after time that committee, which proceeded with its investigation with a blessing from the White House, has attacked banks and bankers because of bad loans and worse judgment in dealing with the borrowers. The question has been asked several times lately whether banks are going to be willing to make loans that are in some respects a gamble even under the President's urge if, later, they will be subjected to attacks in the halls of congress.

On the bank loans the President is convinced that bank examiners have Examiners lot of loans that are Too Stringent perfectly good. They have been forcing the banks to charge off this paper as a loss., In other words, Mr. Roosevelt. believes that under the old rules of examination a too stringent attitude was adopted by the administrative authorities in the treasury and the bank examiners carried out those rules lit-

In the background, it is to be remembered, however, there is the federal deposit insurance corporation. This agency guarantees that the depositors will be repaid in full up to a limit of $5,000 on each account. It would seem to be that the existence of this insurance corporation ought to fend off any particular fear. But bankers know and a good many of the political and administrative leaders recognize that the corporation could not withstand wholesale bank failures. It draws its funds from assessment of member banks and, therefore, when its present reserves are exhausted banks must dig up more. Following this line of reasoning, one cannot help arriving at the conclusion that a series of bank failures, resulting from bad loans, would throw more of a burden upon the good banks than they can carry. Thus it is made to appear that a high percentage of bankers in the country after all are going to continue to exercise their judgment on the type of loans they make and will not be influenced materially by administration wishes. Some, of course, will extend credit with abandon, and it is this group of hankers who eventually will witness the deposit insurance corporation paying off their depositors.

Consumers must look to a change in their diet as regards some items of food during the coming winter, according to a statement from the Department of Agriculture. Through the bureau of agricultural economics the department said that it expected some increases in prices between now and the end of the year but that the climb in price levels likely would be more gradual and not so large as has occurred in the last three months. This fact, it appeared, was traceable to the shortage of some kinds of food resulting from the drouth in the central states and a superabundance of some other kinds produced in the eastern half and far western sections of the United States. The department suggested that the full effect of the drouth on retail food prices will not be felt entil next spring. At that time, supplies of meats, dairy products and poultry products will have been reduced.

LET'S DECLARE WAR

The great army of flies which is invading our territory is probably being attracted by the sheep slaughtering program. At any rate, there are more flies today than this scribe has seen in the quarter of a century in which he has lived. The only consolation that one has is that one's neighbor has just as many flies to put up with. Everybody is bothered with them by the thousands. But the point that we started out to make is that this army which is now invading our country is capable of killing about as many of our citizens as the German army did. There is a slight inclination toward an epidenic or sickness here anyway, and as flies are our most ruthless distributors of germs, we'd better declare a war right now against this invading army. Many people are already fighting them, but it takes co-operation to do thing effectively (and incidentally that's another point that we'd like to make.)

FOREIGN MENACE

An article, without dateline, titled "Russian Cotton Production Limited By Transportation", appeared last issue of the Success and someone for some reason attributed the article to the editor. We deny authorship of such an article. Foreign competition with American cotton is a menace, whether Russian, Brazilian, or whatnot; and regardless of what limits foreign production now. those obstacles will be removed if foreign countries see that the United States plans to continue it present

The real solution of the problem lies not in decreasing production. but in incresing consumption by lowering the tariff and by finding new uses for cotton.

THE RESULTS OF RELIEF

The new Deal paradox which reports simultaneously a decrease in unemployment and an increase in relief rolls illustrates the effect that continual relief is having on the self-respect and independence of American people. Whether we feet it or not, relief is rapidly creating a situation resembling socialism where the population depends upon the government for its existence. There is plenty of room for improvement in the way things are now being handled.

THE JOB OF BEING A

The job of being a legislator is not a soft one. Handling affairs of the government in such a way as to call forth the minimum amount of criticism is a difficult matter. We suggest that a more efficient group of legislators would be developed if the legislators were paid a straight saary and required to be about the soverign state's bustness all the time. They should be required to spend their spare time in study-studying the needs of their districts and studying the best methods of solving current problems. There would be no such thing as a special session since they would be on straight salary and subject to call at any time.

We admit that science has done many wonderful things; in fact, science is about three jumps ahead of our present social and economic life. #### Heavy Additional Burden Should Government Take Over Railroads.

WASHINGTON .- Many students of sovernment in Washington expect soon to see President Roosevelt brought face to face with the question of whether the railroads shall be preserved as assets of private business in this country or whether they shall be swallowed up in the rapidly expanding structure of government. Indeed, according to the best informed sources here, it is not unlikely that the railroads and private business interests soon may demand that the President state his position either for er against government ownership.

The President has not said anything indicating his attitude. On the record of the past, however, some observers believe he would not be averse to taking over the railroads. These point to the many experiments which he has authorized in the field of government ownership and operation of various types of business. But certainly it can be said that private ownership advocates are alarmed concerning the trend of affairs.

It is not surprising then that various groups and organizations opposed to government ownership are becoming active. Their expressed fear naturally is that the government will destroy their businesses by the simple process of taking them over. Nor is it surprising to observers that taxpayers are becoming exercised because taxpayers naturally are averse to any additional burdens.

Foresee New Taxes.

In the case of the taxpayers, acquisition of the railroads would mean new taxation to pay the interest on the government railroad bonds, not to mention the necessity of raising funds for retirement of those bonds when they mature. Some authorities recently have stressed also the additional expense of government incident to the operation of the rail lines. This expense, it is said, would be measured by the number of political jobs created by the legislation authorizing purchase of the roads.

When the federal government took over the railroads during the World war, there were several hundred highly paid officials immediately attached to the government payrolls under the director general of railroads. It was said then that these officials were necessary for protection of the government's interests. It is to be remembered in this connection that in those days the condition was one of government operation; under the current agitation, the condition would be one of government ownership as well as operation.

This question of taxation is admittedly the one giving government ownership advocates the most trouble. They recognize that, for the govern ment to buy the railroads, it means adding a staggering sum to the national debt, already more than $27,200,000, They are aware that it means taxpayers must cough up enough extra funds to pay the interest on the debt as well as taxes for retirement of the bonds.

But there is another factor in the way of taxes. It has not been mentioned to any extent in argument dther for or against government ownership. This factor involves the taxes now being collected from the railroads by the states, cities, and counties and other taxing jurisdictions. These are funds which will be lost to those taxing jurisdictions if and when the railroads are taken over by the federal government for the reason that federal property is not subject to taxation.

Thus, if there is government ownership of the railroads it is calculated by Interstate Commerce Commission experts that the federal government. states, cities and counties will lose a total of approximately $280,000,000, annually. Certainly the loss of so much income by the treasuries of those jurisdictions will make it difficult for them to pay their own operating expenses. In other words, they will have to raise tax rates on their citizens who already will have been subjected to increased federal taxation to meet the interest and sinking fund for the government railroad bonds.

The significance of this threat to the treasuries of taxing districts, whether they be states or lesser subdivisions, becomes the more apparent in the opinion of authorities when it is recalled that during this depression period more than four hundred issues of bonds sold by municipalities, counties, road districts, levy districts and school districts and other such units have gone into default. The condition was so bad that congress enacted what has come to be known as the municipal bankruptcy bill. This law gives taxing districts the authority to compremise their debts with the bondholders, who are scattered far and wide throughout the country, but in compromising the debts in every instance of record thus far the bondholders have taken losses ranging from 5% to more than 20%.

In the case of holders of municipal bonds and other securities of that kind it is not fiction that thousands of widows and orphans own securities issued by such units of government. If the income of those units of government is cut off or measurably reduced the enthorities point out how their buying power obviously would be reduced altogether eliminated.

Why the Sudden Change to Liquid Laxatives?

Doctors have always recognized the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can be thus regulated to suit individual

The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that a properly pre-pared liquid laxative brings a more natural movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna -a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is obtainable at all druggists.

It has been announced to the students of the Eldorado school that the plans for assembly programs will be different from those of any previous year. The former plans were to have assembly each Wednesday mornnig at ten minutes until nine o'clock. All of the students attended these programs.

The new plan is to have chapel each Wednesday morning at ten thirty o'clock. The programs will occupy all or a great part of the third forty-five minute period of the day. Each of the remaining five periods will be forty-five minutes later than usual; therefore, ou Wednesday there will be eight periods in the day.

WASHINGTON STATE: Makes High Honors In English Test For Freshman

A letter was received recently from W. B. (Hoot) Gibson, honor graduate of the Eldorado High School in 1934, stating that he was having the "longest best time" than he had ever had. He is attending Washington State College, where his uncle, Buck Bailey, is Footbate Coach. W. B. is coming out for football. 131 are trying out for the freshman team.

The 1,300 freshman in the schoot were given an English Placement test recently. This comprehensive test consisted of 17 mimeographea sheets. W. B. ranked among the highest 20 students of the total 1,-300. This entitled him to take advanced English, but if he had made a low grade he would have been required to take sub-college, or non-credit English. Friends of W. B. will be proud of this record. Congratulations to him and best wishes.

W. B. was one of the best allround students ever to attend the local high school. In addition to the fact that he led the senior class of '34 in scholarship, he was also a mainstay on the football team and one of the members of the debating team which won the district championship for Eldorado for the past two years. This year he is taking Chemistry, Mathematics, Mechanical Drawing, English I and English VIII and also military training.

- Eagles' Screams -THE NEW SCHOOL BUILDING Lois Whitley

The tile roofing is being put on the ship-lap of the gym now, and the steel beams have been placed over the remaining part of the building. Very soon the whole building will be complete with rea tile roofing, since the workmen are progressing rapidly.

During the day the building is a scene of busy activity. At noon there is a dreary stillness about the structures. About one o'clock work is resumed and hammers beat a tattoo for sleepy geometry students.

There are minature crashes, shouts of instructions, laughter, more hammering, occasional sawing, and many other incessant noises through out the day to keep students reminded of the great day coming "when the new building will be sompleted.

By day the building presents the aspects of a modern castle under construction, but by night when your imagination is given full reign the black steel outline from a distance suggests the ruins of ancint tombs. Nearer, after you can clearly discern the ribs of steel that will support the roof, you can suppose it is the remains of a great fire. It looks gigantic, too high for words There is an air of neglect around the unfinished building. Tools of the workmen lying idle, sounds or construction dead, you even feel an if the race of man that started the great structure were suddenly sweps away by some unexpected disaster, and their task remains unfinished. It seems a haunted house, from the inside looking up, perhaps because of the spaciousness and decayed look that darkness gives things. It's eerie and the wind sweeps through in short beats. You feel shivery, and get in a "big hury" for no neason at all, but as you step out the side entrance into the blaze of light from a rather how bonfire and hear the shouts or football fans, you can only think of the symbal it presents of what it is to be.

CHAPTER I

The secret itself was still safe. It was clear that the public could not yet have learned it. No: the nature of the tremendous and terrific Discovery remained locked in the breasts of the men who had made it. No one had broken so badly under the burden of it that he had let slip any actual details of what had been learned.

But the fact that there was a secret, of incomparable importance, was

David Ransdell received plenty of proof of it, as he stood at the Europa's rail, and the radiograms from shore were brought to him. He had had seven, all of the same sort, within the hour; and here was another.

The first, arriving less than an hour ago, offered him one thousand dollars for first and exclusive informationto be withheld from all others for twelve hours-of what he carried in his black box. It was signed by the most famous newspaper in New York.

Within ten minutes the offer had jumped to five thousand dollars, made by another paper. Plainly, the knowledge that there was a secret of utmost importance had spread swiftly!

The thrilling and all-absorbing fact of it was that David Ransdell himself did not know what he carried which could become of such amazing concern. He was merely the courier who transported and guarded the secret. Those who had entrusted it to him knew that he would never violate his word. Least of all, would he sell out to others. Moreover (if curiosity tried him beyond his strength) he had Professor Bronson's word for it that the contents of the box would be utterly meaningless to him. Cnly a few, with very special training, could make out the meaning.

Cole Hendron in New York-Dr. Cole Hendron, the physicist-could make it out. Indeed, he could determine it more completely than any other man alive. That was why Dave Ransdell, from South Africa, was bound for New York; he was bringing the box to Cole Hendron, who, after he had satisfied himself of the significance of its contents, would take the courier into his confidence.

Dave gripped the rail with aggravated impatience for arrival in the city. He wondered, but with secondary interest only, under the circumstances, what it would be like in America. It was the native land of his mother; but David had never so much as seen its shores before. For he was a South African-his father, an Englishman who had once ranched in Montana, had married a Montana girl and had taken her to the Transvaal. Dave had been born at Pretoria, schooled there, and had run away from school to go to

He had been summoned at night to the great mansion of Lord Rhondin, near Capetown. Lord Rhondin himself, a big, calm, practical-minded man, received him; and with Lord Rhondin was a tall, wiry man of forty-odd, with a quick and nervous manner.

"Professor Bronson," Lord Rhondin sald, introducing Ransdell.

"The astronomer?" Dave asked as they shook hands.

"Exactly," said Lord Rhondin, Bronson did not speak at all then, or for several minutes. He merely grasped Dave's hand with nervous tightness and stared at him while he was thinking, patently, of something else-something, Dave guessed, which recently had allowed him too little

"Sit down," Lord Rhondin bade. They were in a big, secluded room given to trophies of the hunt. Animal skins covered the floor; and lion and buffalo and elephant heads looked down from the walls, their glass eyes glinting in the light which was reflected, also, by festoons of shining knives and spears. "We sent for you, Ransdell," said Lord Rhondin, "because a very strange discovery has been made—a discovery which, if confirmed in all details, is of incomparable consequence. I tell you that at the outset, Ransdell, because I must refrain for the present from telling you anything else about

Dave felt his skin prickling with a strange, excited awe. There was no doubt that this man-Lord Rhondin, industrialist, financier and conspicuous patron of science—thoroughly believed what he said; behind the eyes which looked at Dave Ransdell was awe at knowledge which he dared not reveal. But Dave asked boldly,

"Why can't I tell you?" Lord Rhondin repeated, and looked at Bronson. "Why not tell him?" Bronson asked.

But Rhondin went abruptly to business: "We asked leave for you, Ransdell, because I have heard you are a particularly reliable man. It is essential that material connected with the discovery be delivered in New York city at the earliest practicable moment. You are both an expert pilot who can make the best speed, and probably true; but so very much is involved that it would be most disastrous if even a rumor of what we be lieve we have discovered were given out. For that reason, among others, we cannot confide it even to you; but we must charge you personally to convey this box to Doctor Hendron, who is the scientific consultant of the Universal Electric and Power corporation in New York. He is now in Pasadena, but will be in New York upon your arrival. Time is vital-the greatest speed, that is, consistent with reasonable safety. You should reach Doctor Hendron not later than a week from Monday. You may return, then. if you wish. On the other hand"he paused as crowded considerations heaped in his mind, -"you may be indifferent as to where you are."

"On the earth," added Professor

"Of course—on the earth," Lord Rhondin accepted.

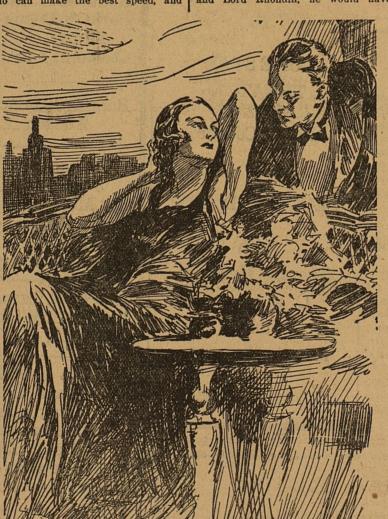

"I would go myself, Ransdell, you understand," Bronson then proceeded. But my place, for the present, certainly is here. I mean, of course, at the observatory. . . . It is possible, Ransdell, in spite of precautions which have been taken, that some word of the Bronson discovery may get out. Your errand may be suspected. If it is, you know nothing-nothing, you understand? You must answer no inquiry from any source. None-none

Until now, nothing had happened to recall these emphatic cautions; but now, something was out. A boy was approaching with another radio:

"Twenty thousand dollars in cash paid to you if you grant first and exclusive interview regarding the Bronson discovery to this paper."

It was signed by the man who, an hour ago, had opened the bidding with one thousand dollars.

Dave crumpled it and tossed it overboard. If the man who sent it had been in that trophy-room with Bronson and Lord Rhondin, he would have

"You Can Kiss Me. I Like to Be Kissed. But Don't Propose." "Why Not? . . See Here, Eve, I'm Through With Christmas Kisses With You."

it, I will put the material in your care; and-can you start tonight?"

"Yes, sir. But-what sort of material? I must ask, if I am to fly with

"Chiefly glass-photographic plates." "How many of them?"

Lord Rhondin threw back a leopard skin which had covered a large black traveling case. "They are packed, carefully, in this. I will tell you this much more, which you may guess, from Professor Bronson's presence. They are photographic plates taken by the greatest telescopes in South Africa, of regions of the southern sky which are never visible in the northern hemisphere. You are to take them to Dr. Cole Hendron in New York city, and if the-the implications of these plates were absolutely certain." At this, Professor Bronson started. but again checked himself before speaking, and Lord Rhondin went on:

deliver them personally to him and to no one else. I would tell you more about this unusual errand, Ransdell,

you are dependable. If you will take | realized that the matter on their minds completely transcended any monetary consideration. . . . . . . . . . . . .

The evening in New York was warm. On the high terrace of the Hendron apartment Eve found that her search for a breath of fresh air was fruitless. For a moment she gazed into the mist and monotone that was Manhattan, and then stared over the city toward the channels to the sea. "Suppose those lights are the Eu-

she asked Tony. "It left quarantine before seven; it's somewhere there," Tony said patiently. "Let's not go back in." Eve leaned against the balustrade and looked down at the lights; and he, desirous of much more, bent jealously beside her. Tony laid his hand possessively on Eve's. She turned here hand, lessening subtly the possessive-ness of his, and said, "You can kiss me. I like to be kissed. But don't propose." "Why not? . . . See here, Eve, I'm through with Christmas kisses with "The implications, I may say, are | you."

He put his hand on her shoulder. and turned her away from the panorama of the city.

"Is there some real trouble, Eve?" he inquired gently.

"No: there's no trouble. Tony." "Then there's somebody else ahead of me—is there? Somebody perhaps in Pasadena?"

"Nobody in Pasadena-or anywhere else, Tony." "Then what is it, tonight? What's changed you? "You're not listening to me even now. You're thinking instead." "What do you want me to do?"

"Feel! "Oh, I can do that, too."

"I know, then why don't you-and stop thinking?"

"Wait! Not now, Tony. . . . Do you suppose that's the Europa?" "Why do you care? See here, Eve, is there anything in that newspaper story your father and you have been denying all afternoon-that something unusual is up between all the big scientific leaders?" "There's always something up, in science." Eve evaded. . .

The doors were flung wide open. In the drawing room a half dozen people continued to dance. Another group surrounded the punch bowl. Some one stepped out and asked Eve to dance, and she went in with him.

Tony Drake wandered in from the

An arm encircled his broad shoulders. "Hello, Tony. Say-give me the low-down on what shot the market to h-l today."

Tony frowned; his eyes were following Eve. "Why do you compliment me with thinking I may know?"

"It's something happened in Africa, I hear. Anyway, the African cables were carrying it. But what could happen down there to shoot h-l out of us this way? Another discovery of gold? A mountain of gold that would make gold so cheap it would unsettle everything?"

"Cheap gold would make stocks dear-not send them down," Tony ob-

"Sure: it can't be that. But what could happen in South Africa that-" Tony returned alone to the terrace. His senses were swept by intimate thoughts of Eve: A seductive perfume. Gold lights in her red-brown hair. Dark eyes. The sweep of a forehead behind which, in rare company, a woman's instincts and tendernesses dwelt with a mind ordinarily as honest and unevasive as a man's. All the tremendous insignificances that have meaning to a man possessed by the woman he loves.

He stood spellbound, staring through the night. Anthony Drake was an athlete-that would have been the second observation another man would have made of him. The first, that he owned that uncounterfeitable trait which goes with what we call good birth and breeding, and generations of the like before him.

With this he had the physical sureness and the gestures of suppressed power which are the result of training in sports. He had the slender waist of a boxer, with the shoulders of a discus thrower. His clothes always seemed frail in comparison with his physique.

He also had intelligence. His university companions considered it a trivial side issue when he was graduated from Harvard with a magna cum laude; but the conservative investment house with which he afterward became affiliated appreciated the adjunct of brains to a personality so compelling. His head was large and square, and it required his big phy sique to give that head proportion. He was blue-eyed, sandy-haired. He possessed a remarkably deep voice.

He was entirely normal. His attainments beyond the average were not unusual. He belonged more or less to that type of young American business man upon whom the older generation places its hope and trust. Eve was really a much more remarkable human being-not on account of her beauty, but because of her intellectual brilliance, and her unique training from her father.

Yet Eve was not the sort who pr ferred "intellectual" men: intellectual ism, as such, immensely bored her She liked the outright and vigorous and "normal." She liked Tony Drake; and Tony, knowing this, was more than baffled by her attitude tonight. He believed her when she told him that her tantalizing abstraction was not because of another man. Then, what was its cause?

Tony was drawn from his reverie by the appearance of Douglas Balcom, senior partner of his firm. His presence tere surprised Tony. No reason why old Balcom should not drop in, if he pleased; but the rest of the guests were much younger.

Slightly incredible as this may seem,

there is a trick in it, and I'll tell you what it is. Shooting skeet one knows exactly where his target is coming from. One also knows within three seconds just when it will flash into view. And you know exactly its line of flight. The fact is, one does not need particularly keen eyesight to shoot well. But to see all the game that gets in front of you in the fieldthis does require all the eyesight you can muster. Thus, with two gunners of equal shooting skill, the one with the keenest eyesight will in all probability get the most shots in the field

Naturally, what I say here does not apply to skill in rifle shooting, because with the single-bullet gun and iron sights the man with the keener eyes is always the better shot.

and will, on that account, kill the most

Knowing that I shoot the shotgun a little better without spectacles, I frequently hunt in the field without wearing them. But on such occasions I like to hunt alone. I use my ears and do not want a distracting sound of a companion rustling through the brush. Many a rabbit and grouse I have killed where, but for my ears, I would never have seen them to get a shot. Alone, I always hunt very slowly, so that I can catch quickly any sound other than my own. But even so, I imagine many a rabbit gets up within easy shooting distance of me that I never see. The secondary reason why I do not like to wear spectacles afield is that they are a nuisance in rain or fog. But going without them is somewhat dangerous in this respect: you may be hit in the eye by switching brush with painful and even serious consequences. Without your "specs" on your eyes are slow in their protective reflexes.

The primary reason why I prefer to shoot without glasses is, as I have said, that I shoot better without them. For it is true in shotgun shooting, that if you see well enough to distinguish your target, you can see well igh to hit it with a load o All shotgun shooting should be done with the eyes at what I used to refer to as "wide vision." Since then, one of my oculist friends has given me the correct term for this. He calls it keeping the eyesight at "universal focus." In other words, keep your eyes focused on no particular object. This is particularly applicable in skeet shooting. But it applies in the field, too. Keep your eyes wide open. See everything clearly in your field of vision. When the target or bird flashes out do not strain your eyesight in intense concentration of focus on it. Maintain your sight at universal focus. In this way you will be alertly aware of the target, aware of the line and speed of its flight, and also aware of your gun without concentrating too much of your attention on it.

Failure to keep the eyes at universal focus is largely responsible, in my opinion, for most shooters declaring that they cannot shoot with both eyes open. Certainly you can't shoot with both eyes open if you are trying to look intently at your gun barrel from breech to muzzle, and at the same time are trying to see the flying target! It just can't be done. Even the crack aerial rifle and pistol shots could not make their astounding records with this kind of alternating eye attention. I am convinced that all good shots on moving or flying targets, regardless of whether they shoot with shotgun, rifle, or pistol, use this universal eye focus in their shooting. If you can acquire this trick-and you certainly can-you just can't help becoming a much better shot. C. Western Newspaper Union

Victoria Falls Statue in Honor of Livingstone

Near the mighty falls which he discovered in 1855, says the Detroit News, David Livingstone will finally be honored by a statue which is erected where the spray of Victoria Falls will fall upon it forever. He is pictured with a walking stick and Bible just as he disappeared into the African wilds and was found again by Stanley, whom he greeted calmly, as if they were meeting in a drawing room, with the historic "I am David Livingstone."

Mystery and superstition have hung over these African falls from time immemorial. Livingstone had much trouble persuading his African followers to accompany him.

Now the Cape to Cairo railroad crosses the river less than half a mile below the falls, and is rapidly dispelling the old fears, though some of them still linger among the natives.

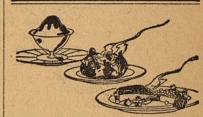

Sparrow and Linnet Take Turns Sitting on Nest

A recent issue of the British publication, Cage Bird World, related an extraordinary story of a hen hedge sparrow and a linnet that insisted on nesting in the same spot. Since neither would give in, the two birds finally constructed a joint nest and both deposited eggs in it. During the incubation period the birds were observed to take turns on the nest, but when it was time for the eggs to hatch the linnet was driven off. Two baby sparrows and one linnet were hatched in the nest, but only the sparrows survived.

rado had kicked off too Sonora on the Broncos' 36 yard line, Jos Turner Hext intercepted a passgiving the Eagles the ball on Sonora's 46 yard line.

On a series of nine consecutive ground gaining plays, with Hext, McDanials and Bill Smith all participating in the ball carrying, the ball went over for Eldorado's thira marker. Hext scored the touchdown with a beautiful spin off tackle. Smith attempted goal but failed.

The next score came about in practically the same manner. Endorado kicked off to Sonora. And on the initial play after the kick off, as before, a pass was intercepted. Milton Spurgers intercepted this pass, giving the Eagles the ball on Sonora's 40 yard line. Paul Davis, McDanials and Hext were the ball carriers this time on an offensive drive which payed off on seven plays. Hext again made the touchdown and followed up by circling end for the extra point.

At this stage, Coach Williamson sent in a flock of substitutes and they, not to be outdone by the first stringers, quickly piled up the remaining two touchdowns. Following a series of offensive attempts and exchanging of punts by both teams, McDanials received a Sonora punt on his own 28 yard line and raced the ball back to Sonora's 18 yard line. Davis picked up 4 yards on an off tackle play and then passed to Jack Hext, subbing for his older brother Joe, who carried the ball over. Hext failed to convert kick into extra point.

With Sonora in possession of the ball on their own 43 yard line, Jack Hext again came in for a flashy bit of work by intercepting a pass and racing it to the Brones' 12 yard line. The Eagles were penalized on this play for clipping behind and the ball was carried back to Sonora's 27 yard line. Joe Turner Hext came back into the game at this stage and passed to Davis for 7 yards. Williams gained 4 yards through the line and another pass from Hext to Davis carried the ball over for the final marker. Cloud converted the extra point.

In the matter of outstanding players we pick all of the Eagles. Joe Turner Hext, Paul Davis and Ardrian McDanials were the most consistent ground gainers of the Eldorado backfield men. Bill leg, looked very impressive for the short spell he was in the game. R. J. Alexander, even though he was guilty of fumbling at critical moments, played his usual steady game before going out in the first halr with injuries. Then too, Jack Hext entering his initial game of the season, turned in a stellar performance. Jark has been nursing a shoulder injury sustained in preseason training. Pancho Bradley came in for some of the glory by demonstrating that he can carry the ball. George Williams Jr. entered the game for a brief period and picked up 4 yards on a running Richard Jones and Captain Billy Kerr turned in some excellent work at the end postions. Jones broke through on a number of occasions to smear plays behind the line of scrimmage and throw the opposition for a loss.

Felix Susen, Jack Shugare, John E. Rodgers, Edward Butler, Milton Spurgers, Marshalll Davis, Sam Smith, Harold Susen and severar others came in for a big play in forming a line bulwark which was impregnable thru out the game.

For the Brones, the work of J. Logan, Johnson, M. Smith and Barrow was outstanding.
