WHY NOT A COUNTY PLANNING BOARD?

In recent weeks there has been some talk of the appointment of a County Planning Board to work in cooperation with Texas Planning Board in assembling information relative to the various resources of Texas.

We see no reason why Schleicher county should not have a planning board—and there are various ways in which the board could help in planning the future development of Schleicher county. A group of 12 men, men representing every form of resource in this county, could make some startling discoveries with only a little effort and study.

The purpose of such a board would be that of guiding and accomplishing a coordinated efficient and economic development of the county which will, in accordance with present and future needs and resources, best propote the health, safety, comfort, convenience, prosperity and welfare of the people of the county. Such a county plan should make recommendations, among other things, as to the conservation of natural resources including land, water, and mineral; economic distribution population; adequate educational and institutional facilities and such other matters within the county as will tend to create conditions more favorable to economic security.

The Texas Planning Board solicited the cooperation of this county as early as April 1, 1936, at this time asking information with reference to mineral resources in this county. If any cooperation was given, we have not been able to find any record of it.

In recent communications, members of the Texas Planning Board have pledged their cooperation to this county, and they will work with a county board in helping to bring about needed development.

The Texas Planning Board has recently completed an exhaustive study of the wool industry in Texas with the view of determining whether a wool scouring plant in Texas would be possible, or profitable. Their report on this study was published in the May issue of the Texas Planning Bulletin, and should be of interest to everyone in this county who is interested in the wool industry.

The Texas board also sent Judge McKinney a brief review of the resources of Schleicher county, as prepared by this board on the meagre information available to them. This review is merely an outline for use of a county planning board, and anyone who will study it will see that each report on possibilities of this county can be expanded so as to give the county a far better rating. The report covers some of the following subjects:

Location of county, history, topography, climate, soils, native vegetation, mineral resources, population, agriculture, livestock, industries, financial aspects, educational facilities, etc.

"For Better Or For Worse!"

A Negro once appeared in court, seemingly very anxious to obtain a divorce. The judge inquired if he didn't take his woman for better or for worse when he married her.

"Yassuh, judge," the Negro replied, "but dat woman is wusser'n I tuk her to be."

A Mexican boy and a girl of the same nationality appeared before Johnnie Isaacs last Saturday and obtained a marriage license. They were Jauquin Lopez and Refujia Lunderana, both of Sonora. They came out of the clerk's office, crossed the hall to the judge's office to have the ceremony performed.

Now, Judge McKinney, had never officiated in this capacity before, but he surmised that the contracting parties had never been married before so he met them on even ground in that respect.

Being the type of person who doesn't "fall down" on his official duty, Judge McKinney proceeded with one of the most binding ceremonies you've ever heard. It was unofficially reported that he was as scared as the Mexicans were, but he concluded the ceremony with the pomp and dignity of a veteran.

Mr. Mexican paid off like he had received a bargain, and the couple smilingly departed, ready to face the future.

Feeders Meeting Is Held Friday At Big Spring, Texas

Schleicher ranchmen were represented at the feeders' meeting which was held at the U. S. Experiment Station at Big Spring last Friday. Among those attending was Forrest Runge, who gave a brief report of this meeting upon his return home.

The purpose of the experiment was to determine whether it was more economical to keep feed out before animals at all times and attempt to force, or coax, them to eat more feed, or to feed them all they would readily clean up in a given period of time. To help along in the coaxing, black strap molasses was added to the ration.

It was the unofficial consensus of opinion that the limited steers should have been fed a slightly larger percent (that is instead of 80 percent, about 90 percent) for best results.

It was further brought out there that in experiments conducted at another station, where corn was the main protein constituent, better and cheaper grains were received where, instead of feeding 16 pounds of corn, half the corn allowance and 8 pounds of molasses (a carbohydrate) substituted gave much better results. This is quite a factor when corn was selling at $50 per ton, and molasses at $25.

Rev. Wheeler will go to Miles next Sunday morning to preach for Rev. Leggitt, but will be with his own church during the remainder of the meeting.

All people of this territory are cordially invited to attend each and every service. Services will be held at ten o'clock each morning, and at 8:30 each evening.

County Judges In Monthly Meeting Here Wednesday

County judges of Crockett, Sutton and Schleicher counties held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday of this week in Eldorado. These meetings have been held regularly for the purpose of discussing county problems, especially problems pertaining to relief.

Each judge states that he is receiving some good ideas through these discussions, and the meetings are also serving to create a spirit of closer relationship between these neighboring counties.

Mr. T. H. Langham of San Angelo, director of relief for the 19th district of Texas, was also present at the meeting Wednesday.

RATLIFF MAKES CHANGES IN STORE

Changes which have greatly improved the appearance of the store have just recently been completed at The Ratliff Store. The changes are chiefly in the ready-to wear and shoe departments, and in the office.

Fixtures have been so arranged as to furnish more room in the store, and gives the shoe department advantage of light from a rear window. These departments have been made more convenient and attractive by these changes.

Agriculture May Be Included To School Curriculum For '37

At the last regular meeting of the Board of Education of the Eldorado Independent School District, it was voted to include vocational agriculture in the school curriculum. Inclusion of the course in the curriculum for next year depends only upon whether or not Federal and State appropriations for vocational work are sufficiently large to make it possible to subsidize new departments. It is thought that the appropriations will be large enough to provide subsidization for both existing and beginning departments.

Mr. A. J. Bierschwale, Agriculture Supervisor for Area 2 of Texas with headquarters at Alpine, met with the Board at its request to furnish the information necessary relative to beginning a department. Mr. Bierschwale, who for many years was at Sterling City, made the statement that there has been a large increase in the number of new departments during the past two years.

The local Board feels that the course would be a practical addition to the present curriculum because of the fact that this section is devoted almost entirely to farming and ranching. An instructor for the course will be selected within a short time.

Members of the Board are B. E. Moore, president, Jess Koy, C. E. Knight, W. R. Nicks, H. B. Rees, John Williams, T. H. Wilton, and Leslie L. Baker, Secretary.

Both licenses issued during May were to Mexicans. They were: Jesus Sefientes and Manuela Sautellano, both of Eldorado, issued May 6th; Jauquin Lopez Refujia Lunderana, both of Sonora, issued May 29.

Pupils Of Reynolds School Pay Visit To San Angelo Stores

By Josephine Faught

On May 19th we, the Reynolds School, left the school house at 6:45 a. m. for San Angelo, where we spent the day seeing the many things that we had read about and discussed in our school work this year.

Our first stop was at the Western Reserve Building, where we went to the top and got a bird's eye view of the city.

Our next stop was at the Telephone Building. Mr. Marion Clay made the hour very interesting by his thorough explanations on the different operations of the system. We were shown how they kept a record each day of the number of calls that came through the system, which was on an average of 4100 calls daily. He also told us that amount of telephone cable just in San Angelo would more than reach around the world which was 26,771 miles of cable.

Mr. Clay made it more interesting by showing us where Eldorado was on the long distance switch board, and just how the little red light would flash on when anyone from Eldorado was calling. This was a profitable hour for all of us.

Then we drove around and saw some of the damages done by the flood last September.

We went to the city park and had our lunch. This was enjoyed most of all, since we were too excited over our trip to eat breakfast. As soon as lunch was finished, we decided to see the fire trucks. We gave six big red trucks a close inspection.

Our next desire was to see an ambulance. We went to the Johnson's Funeral Home and a man carried us through the home, explaining what each room was used for. Then he carried us to the garage where we saw an ambulance.

Our next visit was to the West Texas Museum. There we saw many interesting sights. We saw one of the first printing presses, just like the picture we had seen in our text books. We saw birds mounted from the smallest, which was the Humming bird to the largest, the Eagle. We enjoyed the Indian exhibits also those from the Phillipine Islands. Our hour in the museum was well spent in seeing many things that we never expected to see.

Our next stop was at the Nehi Bottling company. Here we saw how quickly the bottles were washed, filled, tested and made ready for shipment. The testing of the drink was most interesting since we now know that when we drink a Nehi drink, it is free from any sort of dirt. Here we enjoyed a drink given us by the manager.

It so happened that we had four future cowboys with us who had a great desire to see how their saddles, bridles, and boots were to be made. The manager explained the stamping of designs on the leather; he also let us watch how the designs were tooled on the leather. The boys enjoyed this visit most of all it seemed.

At 2:30 o'clock we were to sing over the radio. We went to the studio a few minutes before time for the program so we could decide if we should let the microphone frighten us. We soon decided that it would take one bigger than the one we had to use, to frighten us. Our program was dedicated to our parents and Supt. J. Carlton Smith.

We next enjoyed a picture show. The picture was a good lesson for all youngsters, since it was about three small boys who tried to start out as criminals, but quickly found out that it wouldn't pay.

Our next visit was to the Western Mattress Company where we watched the cotton renovated, and run through the machinery. The cotton was pretty and fluffy, again ready to be made into new beds.

We had some shopping to do, since each of us had some money we just had to spend, so Mrs. Sparks and Mrs. Gardner carried us to Woolworth's where each of us bought a souvenir, which we hope to keep always.

It was now growing late, but we felt that we must visit the ice-plant and ice cream factory. Here we found a youngster thirteen years old, who had worked at the Banner plant seven years. He carried us through different ice vaults. We saw the men taking out 300 pound blocks of ice, which was very interesting. He then carried us to the ice cream part of the factory. Here we saw ice cream being made in large quantities. This was the first air-conditioned building we had visited.

It was now 6:45 and with some objections from the students we started for home. We had our supper at the Irion County Historical Marker. We arrived home at 9:15 p.m.

We wish to thank Mr. Smith for letting us spend the day in observation also our parents in cooperating with us on this trip. We feel that it was a day well spent and one that we will never forget.

New Speed King Of West Assigned To Regular Run

The Santa Fe's new Super Chief, crowned Speed King of the West by virtue of its record shattering run between Los Angeles and Chicago, went into regular service between the two cities Tuesday night.

Although it will make its one round trip weekly on a schedule of 39 hours and 45 minutes, the silver streamliner arrived in Chicago Monday morning, on a trial run, only 36 hours and 49 minutes after leaving Los Angeles, setting a new speed record. Record time formerly was 38 hours and 49 minutes, until the Santa Fe Flier clipped two hours from that. The famous "Death Valley Scotty" run from Los Angeles to Chicago was accomplished in 44 hours and 54 minutes. This was in 1905.

The Super Chief leaves Chicago, on regular schedule, each Tuesday evening, arriving in Los Angeles Thursday morning; leaves there Friday evening to arrive back in Chicago Sunday. The streamliner succeeds the former Super Chief. This luxury train is hauled by a 3,600 horsepower diesel locomotive.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Evans, Jr., spent the week-end in San Angelo, visiting with Mrs. Evans' mother, Mrs. L. D. Head.

A ranch made from pipe extends the length of the closet and a shelf for hats; a shoe rack on the door; tie and belt racks complete the closet. A large storage space for blankets is located above the closet.

"Pluck" Is That Thing Which Causes "Luck" To Help You Succeed In Life, Dean Davis Tells Local Graduates

THOSE WHO SUCCEED ARE THOSE WHO ADVANCE IN CHANGING WORLD DAVIS SAYS

Speaking on "Education in a Dynamic Age," Dean J. Thomas Davis of John Tarleton College at Stephenville delivered a splendid address to the graduates of Eldorado High School and a large assembly of relatives and friends on Thursday night of last week. This marked the last exercise in which the 1937 seniors gathered as a high school class.

Dean Davis began his address by defining the words "luck and "pluck" as they play a part in the lives of our present generation. "I have no patience with the person who sits down on the curb-stone, spits on the pavement and whines because luck never comes his way," Dean Davis said. "Luck can help us to succeed, but pluck is that attribute which we possess, that eternal vigilance, which forces luck to come into our lives and play its part."

In his address, Dean Davis brought out three words as important ones in our lives. "Achievement," he said, "is a summary of what we have accomplished, industry—the ability to do the tasks that are before us today; and hope—our faith and our preparation for the tasks of tomorrow."

In his unique and interesting manner, Dean Davis brought out the fact that this is an "ever moving world" and an "ever changing world." He said that everything which has life is constantly on the move—when it ceases to move, it becomes dead. He went into detail to show that the world is constantly changing, going back into the prehistoric ages and telling how science and discovery have proven that the world is ever changing.

He pointed out that animals large in stature and powerful in body failed to survive because they lacked the brain development to withstand the changes. He told how races of people have completely diminished because they failed to keep in step with these changes, of how men of today are limited in their ability because they failed in early life to prepare themselves to take advantage of opportunity. He showed how the Indians of North America lost their vast territory because they were "a lazy people"—they lacked "pluck".

Dean Davis is one of the most interesting speakers ever to address a graduating class of Eldorado High School, and his address was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were present.

At the close of his address, the Lions awards, perfect attendance awards and other awards for outstanding school activities were presented to the various students. Prin. Tom D. Riddle then presented the diplomas of graduation to each of the eighteen members of the graduating class.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

Austin. — Preliminary maneuvers in house and senate at the first called session of the 45th legislature, considering nothing but repeal of race horse gambling, furnished no surprise, but ran true to prediction. The house state affairs committee quickly brought out the Bradbury bill for repeal by a 14-to-1 favorable vote, and rejected a bill by Conde Hoskins to make repeal effective Aug. 1, 1939. It also tabled bills providing for local option on horse racing. The house probably will finally pass the Bradbury repeal bill and send it to the senate before this is published.

Meanwhile, in the senate, where the real fight is to develop Frank Rawlings of Fort Worth began his parliamentary maneuvers by seeking to send a bill, identical with Bradbury's measure, to the state affairs committee instead of the criminal jurisprudence committee, which favorably reported a similar bill in the regular session. The state affairs committee carries a definite majority of anti-repeal senators, and Rawlings had hopes of stifling the bill in committee there. But the senate, by a tie vote refused to aid him after it had likewise refused a motion by Senator Nelson, repealist leader, to have the senate consider the bill as a committee of the whole. The votes indicated a very close division, with the repealists having a slight edge.

Anti Strategy

Anti-repealists plan to fight the battle out along these lines: First, they will propose to postpone the effective date of repeal until 1939. Failing in this they next will seek to substitute a local option measure permitting counties to vote on pari-mutuel betting; then, as a last-ditch move, they plan to try to attach many amendments to the bill, including changes that would outlaw raffles, trades days, church auctions, bank nights and other technical "gambling" affairs. Thus, they hope to kill the bill by making it unwidely and unworkable.

Governor's Plans

Gov. Allred, if the senate acts in time on race betting, plans to submit a law making operation of "bookie" shops a felony, and another outlawing dog racing, which at present is not illegal under decisions of the highest Texas courts. He has said definitely he will not propose any revenue measures at this session, but will give the legislature a rest after this special session and then call a session "for revenue only" later, after he has had time to study the taxation situation. With several constitutional amendments, which if passed will call for substantial appropriations, it is quite likely the revenue session will be held in September or October after the special election in August.

Austin Watches Washington

All eyes were turned this week toward Washington, eagerly awaiting the final outcome of the most important rebellion in congress against President Roosevelt since advent of the New Deal. When the national house kicked over the traces this week and earmarked a third of the billion and a half relief fund, refusing pleas of administration leaders to leave its control solely in the hands of the president, and then cut Harry Hopkins' salary to $10,000 a year, every congressman and every state had a big stake in the development. If the congressmen stand pat, Texas stands to get about $33,000,000 for WPA projects already approved, for which towns and counties have issued bonds to raise matching funds. In addition, Texas highway commission would get about $9,000,000 additional federal road funds. The state also would receive a large sum from the rivers' and harbors' fund, much of it to be spent on lakes and ponds in the West Texas dust bowl. The Texas legislature memorialized the Texas delegation to stand pat on the earmarking program and Chairman R. L. Bobbitt of the highway commission is in Washington on the same mission. Observers here claimed the house action indicated clearly the congressmen are "fed up" on the Hopkins "boondoggling" WPA program, and the congressmen, with elections coming up next year, want some pie definitely earmarked for their respective districts before they turn loose of the relief funds.

Powerful County Lobby

The recent regular session again demonstrated that there is no more powerful political force in Texas than the county courthouse rings when they organize en masse for or against something. The county politicians came to Austin in swarms to support the constitutional amendment resolution which would have given them four-year terms and the measure that proposed $3000 annual salaries for the legislators. Despite the fact that the four-year office amendment would have virtually wrecked the state's political machinery, leaving the Democratic party without any method of paying the cost of holding primary elections for the state officers, the house rallied 107 votes in favor of it, under the lash of the county lobby, and the chance of perpetuating the representatives in office another four years without an election.

Vann M. Kennedy, Austin newsman and secretary of the state Democratic committee, hastily briefed the measure showing how it would let down the bars to Negro voters, destroy the party machinery and leave no way to elect state officers, congressmen, railroad commissioners and district judges, and succeeded in heading off the resolution before a senate committee. But the heavy vote in the house, and the violent efforts of the county politicians to pass the measure regardless of consequences, showed a definite trend toward government "by the politicians" for the politicians" in Texas.

Notes

Jim Ferguson wrote a piece for the papers last week listing Rail Commissioner Ernest Thompson, Attorney General Bill McCraw and Highway Commission Chairman R. L. Bobbitt as leading candidates for governor. Jim classifies them as all being of about the same school of political thought and strongly hints that a candidate of the Fergusonian school would make a better governor. . . Some here regarded it as an opening bid for another Ferguson "boom," but with Jim's influence waning steadily, nobody took it seriously but old Jim himself.

When she was 19, she was married to James S. Tisdale. At the time of her marriage she didn't know how to do anything but sew, she had said. Mr. Tisdale's grandmother was a tailor and soon taught Mrs. Garrett the profession. She combined the art of dressmaking with the knowledge of tailoring and clever ideas of buying goods to sell to her customers and soon amassed $75. A cousin in Richmond, Va., upon her request bought a small stock of dry goods and groceries for her and Mrs. Garrett and sold them within a week for twice the purchase price. She then bought a larger stock of dry goods and groceries and sold them. She would sew until 2 o'clock at night.

After three and a half years of strenuous work, Mrs. Garrett's health failed and she lost all. Regaining her health, she reopened her business, with the aid of her friends. Soon debts were paid and her family was clothed with the money remaining. Upon the advice of a brother, in 1882 the couple moved to Abilene, Texas. Their possessions consisted of $300, but their family was larger in proportion, for by that time they had seven children. After reaching Texas she worked in the field, sold wood, knitted, crocheted and ironed bachelors' shirts to help support her family. During the depression of 1884-85 she took no help from the government but her family never suffered. She never believed in "too much relief work," believing it breeds idleness. Abilene in those days was a tent city. The first hotel was then being constructed. The Tisdales moved out to the ranch near Cedar Gap and for one year Mrs. Tisdale taught school for $40 a month.

Invested Money
This she invested in land, sheep in improvements on an old survey and one barrel of molasses to "fill the children up." The land investment served as the beginning of her land ownership in Texas. Among her many duties was the milking of 18 cows, with some assistance by her older boys. The county judge of Taylor County a Mr. Cauley, who was an old bachelor, gave some goats to Mr. Tisdale and the boys. The hair from these she used to make saddle girths and ropes. Drouth and low prices were much in evidence during the first few years of their residence in Texas.

From Taylor County, the Tisdale family moved to Kimble county on the Llano River and after living there for five years it moved to Menard County. Here they bought nine sections of ranch land, located near the corners of Tom Green, Concho, Schleicher and Menard Counties.

Mr. Tisdale was away from home much of the time, running sheep on the open range, and Mrs. Tisdale was left in charge of the ranch. About 25 years ago, soon after the locating in Menard County, her efficiency in the management of the ranch was attested to by the fact that her neighbors stated that she was the "best ranch manager" that they had ever observed. She worked hard and did all that a man could do in ranch work. In her spare time she and her children took the mohair from her goats, spun it into thread, and then made the thread into saddle girths. These she sold by the gross at 50 cents each. Sales were made at San Angelo, Junction, Menardville, St. Louis, Fort Worth. From this industry she made money and thus made her ranch pay. She reared 10 children and after these had reached maturity, Mr. Tisdale died in 1917. She then sold the ranch and moved to Barnhart. Here, she married the second time, to H. N. Garrett of Barnhart. Later she moved to Eden and then to Eldorado.

Mrs. R. L. Sample left the first of this week for several days' visit with her sons and her sister in Austin.

Judge Davidson especial expressed the feeling of friendship which his county held for Schleicher, stating that their problems were pretty much the same. "We look to Schleicher county, which, because of its good soil and enterprising farmers, has greater opportunities in crop production, to supply us with feed," he said, "and I believe that when our pocketbooks will justify we can buy all of the surplus feed produced in your county."

Judge McKinney told club members briefly of the plans for organizing a County Planning Board for this county, giving in brief detail some of the functions of the board.

We take this means of expressing our heartfelt thanks to our many friends in this county for the many kindnesses shown us during the illness and death of our beloved mother and grandmother. Your words of sympathy and deeds of kindness will ever live in our memory.
