Rains Not General

To read the rain reports each day in the daily papers of Texas, one could get the idea that all of West Texas is being soaked with rain. We wish they could be so, but such is not the case. The rains have been spotted and follow about the same path each day. Where they have fallen they have been doing some good, but it will take a good general rain over all of Texas, before they will take Texas out of the drought district. —Mertzon Weekly Star.

What Makes A Teacher

When I am introduced as a teacher, I am usually asked what I teach. When I say "first grade," I generally hear a very flat "Oh."

I have never been certain whether it is an expression of pity, sympathy, disgust, or perhaps disinterest. Always I wish I had the time to explain to them like this:

Yes, I teach the first grade. Where else would a handsome and very young man put his arms around me and ask, "Do you know that I love you?"

Where else could I tie so many hair ribbons and belts and daily get to see a style show of pretty dresses and shirts?

Where else could I wear the same dress day after day and be told each time that it is pretty?

Where else could I walk up and down aisles and have warm little hands touch me?

Where else could I have the privilege of wiggling loose teeth and receive a promise that I may pull them when they are loose enough?

Where else could I eat a soiled piece of candy from a grimy little hand and not become ill? (I have to eat it because he watches to see that I do.)

Where else would the future look as bright as it does amid an energetic group to whom nothing is impossible?

Where else could I guide the first letter formations of a chubby little hand that may some day write a book or an important document?

Where else could I forget my own aches and pains because of so many cut fingers, scratched knees, bumped heads and broken hearts that need care?

Where else could I forget taxes and even the "state of the nation" because Stevie isn't grasping reading as he should and other methods must be tried?

Where else would my mind have to stay so young as with a group whose attention span is so short that I must always keep a "bag of tricks" up my sleeve?

Where else could I feel so close to my Maker as I do each year when, because of something I have done, little children learn to read?

Yes, I do teach first grade, Mr. and Mrs. America. And I love it!

about 8,500 head. Twelve markets had 139,000 cattle and calves.

Despite this big offering, stockers and feeders sold strong to unevenly higher at Fort Worth. Some of the just fairly good kinds, that had to sell for slaughter a week ago, sold well to stocker buyers, a decided improvement.

Slaughter steers and yearlings were steady to weak. Slaughter calves ruled firm. Cows were steady to 50 cents lower, and the larger portion sold steady. Some buyers tried to buy grade cows sharply lower by 50 cents to $1 per hundred and complained that cows here were higher, grade for grade, than at other major markets. Salesmen successfully resisted these bearish offers. Bulls closed 50c lower.

Good and choice fed steers and yearlings drew $18.00 to $21.50 and choice to prime drylot cattle are quotable dollars above that range. Common and medium butcher stuff sold from $1.00-17.00; with ratty yearlings from $8.00-10.00.

Ft. Worth.—Corn Belt observers according to an article compiled by Homer Hush in Wallace's Farmer this month, seem to be coming around to the view that June was the "low" time for cattle. This thrusts into the discard the idea that was prevalent in those parts that late fall would be the better time for feeders.

Corn Belt observers, Hush reports, also feel that rains in the drouth areas will "strengthen the hands" of the cattle growers. Yep! There's no argument there.

In fact, on the basis of Monday's cattle trade, it looks like the stocker and feeder buyers were unlimbering and more orders were on hand than was the case for the past couple of weeks. At Fort Worth Monday there was the biggest cattle and calf run since July—

Range Management

W. G. Godwin, Co. Agent

Weather conditions must be taken into account when range management plans are being made on a sustained yield basis. A study of rainfall records and range conditions over most any ten average year period will show drought conditions a rather common occurrence. Study of rainfall charts for 48 years shows that rainfall is short two years out of five in Schleicher County. In this county in ten average years, one year can be expected to be almost a complete drought. Two years will have very low rainfall and the other seven years will be near average or above. Grazing the range on sustained yield basis, means leaving enough seed and plant residue on the land during the good years to furnish forage for livestock during the bad years. Normally, grass produces 50 to 70 per cent more growth than it needs to survive. This amount of forage can be grazed with the remaining 30 to 50 per cent left to insure seed production and a reserve food supply for the plant itself. Generally, it is best to graze only about half of the forage production. To back up the value of this range grazing practice, a six year study plan made at the Spur Experiment Station is cited. Yearling steers were grazed on 12 native grass pastures. On six of the pastures 71 steers were allowed to graze 51 per cent of the grass by grazing. On the other six pastures 108 steers utilized 76 per cent of the grass. During the 146 day grazing period the 71 steers gained 10,508 pounds as against 10,044 pounds for the 108 steers. When steers were graded 58 per cent of the 71 graded good or better, compared with 3 per cent for the 108 which had grazed off 76 per cent of the available grass. The six properly used pastures, stocked with 37 fewer steers, actually produced more beef and the steers sold for more money because of higher quality. But more important, was the fact that the properly grazed pastures were left in much better condition. Producers should not restock the drought damaged pastures until plants have had a chance to make adequate root growth and regain some of the vigor which they have lost. Ranges are greening in some sections of the county where showers have fallen and this new growth should not be grazed but deferred.

Survey Shows Tourists To Be Enthusiastic About Mexico Vacations

American tourists are enthusiastic about vacationing in Mexico, according to a survey recently completed at the Laredo office of the Texas Division of the American Automobile Association by the International Travel department of the Three-A. The survey included interviews with more than 400 motorists returning from trips into Mexico.

The travelers spent an average of 14 days "south of the border," and spent an average of about $14 per day per person.

Nearly all 98.9 percent, visited Monterrey; almost as many, 79.8 percent, visited Mexico City.

Roads were found in good repair by three out of four of the travelers who were pleasantly surprised to find automobile repair service, gasoline, oil, tires and car parts readily available.

Of the group, about 100 thought the prices were low, half thought they were medium, while a few said they found prices quite high. Nine out of ten found accommodations to their liking, with good food and service.

About half agreed Mexican hospitality and courtesy were outstanding; opinions of the others ranged from "good" to "just fair."

One interesting sidelight was that three out of four of the tourists said they would be interested in traveling all the way to the Panama Canal or beyond on the Pan American highway when it is completed. Finally, the Three-A survey showed that 95 percent of the motorists who had visited Mexico would recommend the trip to their friends at home.

The Texas Division of the AAA maintains border stations for the convenience of travelers to Mexico at Laredo, Brownsville and El Paso.

Highway Department May Change Color Of Stop Signs To Red

That highway stop sign may be red instead of yellow, if the present trend continues, according to the Texas Division of the American Automobile Association.

The idea of using red-colored STOP signs has been kicked around by highway experts for many years but it has not been accepted by most states until recently because of certain difficulties. Red paint, for one thing, fades, and a plain red sign with white letters doesn't stand out as well at night as the lighter-colored yellow.

But now, with the use of beaded reflective sheeting for the lettering, the signs can be made to stand out like a sore thumb at dangerous intersections. And in daytime the red background is perfect, according to the highway engineers who have been testing the new-type warnings. They point out that motorists just naturally think of "danger" when they see red, because red has been accepted internationally as the danger color.

In Florida, the state highway engineer made a comprehensive survey of the effectiveness of yellow in time to come to a full stop. When red stop signs were substituted in the test, at least half the drivers observed the sign in time to stop short of the intersection.

Many Texas cities already have switched to the red and white stop signs.

On a vacation trip to Carlsbad Caverns and other places in New Mexico are Mr. and Mrs. O. Sudduth, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Sockwell of Eden and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sockwell, of Alpine. The O. Sudduths were accompanied by Billy Arnel and Rosanna Sudduth, their grandchildren, of Dexter, New Mexico, who returned home after spending the summer here.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Johnson have recently returned from a ten-day family reunion. It was held at Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Burden's summer home on Grand Lake, which is located at the foothills of the Ozarks in northeastern Oklahoma. Many recreations were enjoyed while there of which swimming, fishing and boat riding played a major part. Also, one of the highlights of the trip was visiting the Will Rogers memorial museum in Claremore.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, those attending the reunion were Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Burden and Tom of Wichita Falls and Tulsa; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burden of Tulsa; Mrs. W. B. Terpening, Bill and Bob of Eugene, Oregon; and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Johnson, Elaine, Tom and Denny of Midland, Texas.

McAlpine Friday night were Mrs. Bill Ratliff and three daughters of San Angelo, Pat McAlpine and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Biggs and Glenn, Juanita McAlpine of San Angelo, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Queen of Balinger and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Crider and Rickie. Deer Herds Affected By Prolonged Drouth

Austin.—Some losses to central Texas deer herds have been traced to lack of nourishment because of the record drouth, according to the director of wildlife restoration for the Game and Fish Commission.

He said the fatalities have been limited to areas missed by scattered showers which have revived many ranges during the last six weeks.

The director said recent studies had centered around a ranch near Austin where upwards of twenty deer carcasses were found. One stricken buck, a five pointer in the velvet, was taken to Texas A & M where Dr. R. D. Turk, member of the veterinarian staff, observed the animal before it died and then conducted an autopsy.

The director said the examination showed conclusively that the deer suffered from malnutrition, brought on in part because the ranges have been reduced by the drouth.

"We find that the deer got their stomachs full but there simply is not the required nourishment to sustain them," he explained. "This particular deer's stomach contained semi-dried oak leaves, cedar needles, a little dry grass, a few wild grapes and some native bean seed."

The director said the drouth's effects seemed to be particularly noticeable among young deer such as fawns and yearlings. One trait of deer that is proving costly during the present dry spell, reported the director, is their tendency not to migrate. "In other words," he related, "they remain in the blighted areas even though better food conditions might prevail, say in a river bottom or other low terrain, within reasonable reach."
