Funeral services were held at Mason Friday morning at 10:30, at the Christian Church there, the Rev. Ray officiating, and interment was made in the Mason cemetery. A number of relatives and friends from here and other places were in attendance.

Bertha Clark was born at Mason, and received her education in the schools of that area. She was married to Shed Cravy, and later, after his death, she was married in 1913 to Leslie Crouch. She had been a member of the Christian Church since girlhood.

Three children preceded her in death, Ray Crouch, who died at 29, Eula May Cravy, who died at 16, and Carrie Ellen Crouch, who died in infancy.

Post Script

Pews at the First Baptist Church have evidently been much used—seems the ladies have been kicking lately about snagging their hose on them. So the men decided to stop this talk by getting together and having an old-fashioned work bee, which they did Monday night. For their evening's work they have a complete sanding job on the pews to show. In the work party were about 18 members who used electric and hand-powered sanders to finish the job.

The paving project on the west side of the courthouse square has been completed and courthouse officials are already using it for parking purposes, thus making more room for parking on the south side of the courthouse. Trucks and other vehicles will have to get accustomed to using it—we haven't seen too many parked there as yet. It is one of the outstanding improvements of the spring months.

Members of the city council met with the commissioners for a short time Tuesday to discuss the possibility of caliching some streets in Eldorado, details to be worked out at a later date if the general plan is OK'd. It is still in the talking stage.

Also still in the discussion stage is securing of city facilities for the proposed new Page-Derrick addition on the new Merton highway, which will probably be progressing into the development stage this spring. More about this as plans are worked out.

Homecoming Date

Homecoming will be held on July 16, according to announcement made by officials. All are urged to make vacation plans this year in accordance with this date.

Weather Fails To Co-Operate With Ranchers on Wool Show

By W. G. Godwin

A program that had been arranged with sheep and goat men of the industry and co-ordinated by the local Sheep and Goat Improvement committee, did not receive co-operation from the weatherman here last Saturday. Efforts are being made to have lesser demonstrations in different parts of the county. These will be announced later.

The preparation of wool for market is a phase of sheep production often neglected. Many ranchers excel in all other phases of ranching but fail to put their clip up in an attractive manner.

Preparing wool for market begins with a breeding program. A sheep cannot exceed its inherited ability to produce wool, even with superior feed and management.

A rancher should select his sheep for uniformity of fineness and length, maintaining his size. Ranchers should contact their shearing captains and explain how they want their wool prepared. They should explain in detail and not leave it up to the captain, and should be able to demonstrate certain steps. The ranchman should prepare a good clean place to shear, catch pens, immediately around the shearing floor, should be sprinkled several times a day to keep down dust.

Shearing boards should have trip boards to help the shearer in throwing the animal. The rancher should provide a sweeper to keep the boards clean, and the tags swept up and bagged. It is his responsibility to see that black fleeces or black spots, hospital cases, and all coarse fleeces are bagged separately.

The shearing crew will not do any more than is required, but will usually respond to the request of the rancher. The shearer can undo in five minutes what has taken the sheep 12 months to produce. The method of shearing is not important as long as a good job is done and the fleece comes off in one piece.

Ranchers should observe and insist that the legs are sheared down towards the body, (2) that the shearer shears the side to the tail bone before sitting the sheep up to shear the head, shoulder and opposite side, (3) No stepping on fleeces or kicking of fleece during shearing, and (4) use only new oil on shearing heads, and not burnt lube, as burnt lube is the most difficult of impurities to remove.

The fleece should be rolled with the flesh side out. The pick-up boy should start at the neck and keep folding the belly and back wool under and rolling it towards himself. When the fleece has been rolled in this manner the britch wool comes up last and permits removal of tags or coarse portions. If the fleece has been properly rolled, the side wool, which represents the largest part of the fleece, will be exposed for buyer examination. This method is the most practical and permits the "pick-up boy" to start rolling the fleece before the shearer has finished. The buyer wants to see the largest and best part of the fleece—he knows the belly and leg wool is present.

The fleece is laid on the tying board for tying. The twine should be placed under the fleece from corner to corner, crossed, and then include the other corners and tied only moderately tight.

Use the flat packed bag method. A fleece is placed in each corner and tromping is done only along the seams. The fleeces should be packed in the bags firmly but not too tightly. A flat bag is easy to stack and handle. Such bags show the wool to the best advantage.

Bags should never be placed on the ground without a tarp for protection. When a bag is rolled on the ground the wool picks up a coating of dirt which injures the appearance when opened. Insist that the truck be clean that hauls your wool and a tarp be placed over the bags.

Wool is the highest priced agricultural commodity sold on the market—usually around $1.65 clean basis, per pound. The days spent shearing can mean many dollars by correct preparation or many dollars lost by incorrect preparation. It is sincerely hoped that a co-ordinated effort will be made by all ranchers, starting now, to be at the shearing pens demonstrating, helping, showing and supervising the correct preparation of wool—because much depends upon just that.

REA Power Consumption Increase Two Fold

College Station.—REA power consumption on Texas farms has increased more than twofold during recent years. The average monthly power consumption per farm on REA-financed lines in Texas increased from 70 kwh in December 1947 to 149 kwh in December 1954, figures released by the Rural Electrification Administration show.

REA now serves 317,698 farms in Texas, the largest number of any state.

This jump in power consumption is evidence that farmers are making electric power do more work for them. Electric farm equipment not only affords a big opportunity for labor saving but also enables the progressive farmer to increase his production, reduce waste and improve the quality of his farm product.

Automatic watering and feeding equipment for livestock, barn cleaners, electric water pumps, milking machines and coolers, pig, lamb and chick brooders, ventilating fans, crop driers, yard and barn lights, feed grinders, freezers and electric hand tools are only a few of the many labor-saving uses to which farmers are profitably putting electricity.

TEXAS' Marlene Comer of Moody is shown in front of historic Bruton's Parish Church in Williamsburg, Va. She is the Texas representative in the Betty Crocker Search for the American Home-maker of Tomorrow. The 48 state winners toured Washington, D. C., Williamsburg and Philadelphia as guests of General Mills and each received a $1,500 educational scholarship.

'Thought For The Week
Ministerial Alliance

Why Join The Church?

Every thinking person MUST face this question: "Why should I join the Church?" The denomination doesn't make so much difference but every one should join the Church and following are seven reasons why:

1. The Church is the one institution that our Lord designated to carry on his work in the world.

2. I wouldn't want to live in a community where there is no Church.

3. It would be selfish and utterly wrong for me to desire or expect the benefits of the Church while I refuse to support it by not being a part of it.

4. By staying outside the Church I am teaching others to do the same, for action is more convincing than words.

5. The Sacraments of Baptism and the Lord's Supper, given by our Lord, are within the Church and faith, love and loyalty to Christ should induce me to obey his commandments.

6. I need the help of God's Church and the Church needs me.

7. I would be speechless in the presence of God at the judgement if I had refused to obey Christ here. Therefore I should join the Church and do all in my power to make it what it ought to be. Please read Eph. 1:22-23, Luke 11:23, 1 Cor. 11:23-26, Matt. 22:12 and Rev. 22:14-15.

It is a well recognized fact that to produce a crop you must have moisture. It is also recognized that if soil is going to produce a crop and maintain itself in a good productive condition it must be able to absorb moisture. This means your soil must be in condition to absorb this moisture rapidly and allow it to penetrate deeply into the ground instead of running off. It needs this additional depth of storage to furnish an adequate supply of moisture to growing crops.

If you live in an area where the average annual rainfall furnishes barely enough moisture for farming then it is vitally important that every drop of moisture be made to count.

When you receive a good rain and find it has wetted the soil only half or three quarters of the depth it should have, then something is wrong. Quite often an inch or two of moisture means the difference between making a crop or a complete failure. It is at times like these that the storage capacity of your soil is your most important asset.

You, as farmers can increase your soils water holding capacity. That is one phase of the drought which can be whipped. Every drop of moisture falling on the soil must be held as storage until needed.

The water absorbing rate of your soil is most important. It is this rate which determines how much of a rainfall will be absorbed and also the amount that will run off. The condition of your soil determines its water absorbing rate and its water holding capacity. Residues of legumes, grasses, or other plants are absolutely vital to the intake of water. To keep your soil porous it is necessary to grow a legume with a hardy taproot. The residue of these crops should be returned as a soil conditioner and protection from erosion. The constantly forming plowpans must be opened or your water absorbing rate will be low. Deep rooted legumes are the best means of opening up the soil and the only way of doing it that will also add organic matter at the same time. In fields where deep rooted legumes have been grown, the water absorbing and water holding capacity of soils have doubled. Growing legumes in a regular crop rotation gives insurance that your soil will be fertile.

Examination of fields with high rate of runoff is apt to show the soil's surface forms a crust and that a few inches down is a concrete-hard soil layer called plow pan. Clovers and grasses give the most effective help in such soils. Legumes, such as vetch, peas, and guar help but not as much as clovers.

In Martin-Howard Soil Conservation District many farmers say the improved condition of their soil has resulted in 25% better yields. Concho Soil Conservation District cooperators around Veribest state that planting guar the past few years doubled their cotton crop last year.

For information concerning a production or conservation problem contact your local Soil Conservation District Supervisor, or the local office of the Soil Conservation Service.

Livestock Raisers Warned Of Poisonous Plants On Range Land

College Station.—Livestock raisers are warned to be on the alert for death-dealing poisonous range plants, especially after the late-season freezes in March.

Buds, leaves and tender shoots of all trees in the oak family possess a toxic substance which may cause severe illness in cattle, goats, sheep and horses. These plants were made even more toxic by the cold weather in March, A. H. Walker, extension range specialist says. The poisonous condition of oak exists from the time the bud begin to swell until the new leaves turn dark green in color. Low growing oaks—low enough to be reached by livestock—cause most of the trouble. Cattle are most commonly effected.

Walker says livestock should be moved from any area where poisonous vegetation is found until the danger period passes.

Severe and prolonged dronth have many ranges "ripe" for invasion by bitterweeds, a plant especially toxic to sheep. Deferred and rotation grazin are recommended controls for this plant.

Loco and peavine are other poisonous-to-livestock plants. Walker says animals should not be allowed to graze pastures containing these plants until sufficient growth of other plants can satisfy the forage needs of grazing animals. The common cocklebur in the seedling stage is very poisonous to hogs and to cattle, in a lesser degree.

Sudangrass—Best Bet For Summer Grazing

College Station.—Sudangrass is an old standby but still the livestockman's best bet for temporary summer grazing.

Seeded now, Sudan will provide green grazing in six to eight weeks, says Ben R. Spears, extension agronomist. And by staggering your plantings at three to four week intervals the season of temporary grazing can be greatly extended. Different plantings should be fenced separately and grazed in rotation.

Moisture conditions are generally favorable for planting in the eastern part of the state, Spears points out. In addition to providing lush summer grazing for livestock, temporary pastures give permanent type pastures a much needed rest.

Red Finds a "Sweet Solution"

Red Jackson found a slick way to get his cows to eat what's good for them. Seems they were passing up the tall green grass—full of minerals and vitamins—and eating the short grass, which is naturally sweeter.

Red solved the problem by spraying a solution of corn syrup over the grass that was going begging. The cows sure went at it. Red says it's lucky for him—and the cows—that every one of them has a "sweet tooth."

Next week, according to Red, he's going to have his cows clean up all the weedy grass along his fences—after he sprays them with more corn syrup, of course.

From where I sit, some folks, like Red, are always trying out new tricks—and others stick with the old tried and true methods. Just a question of preference, I guess. Like the way you may enjoy coffee with meals, while I prefer a cold glass of beer. So let's not allow any bad feelings to "crop up" by thinking ours is the only choice.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM your State CAPITOL

Austin.—Natural gas, trading stamps, cigars, cigarettes, snuff, gasoline, uranium, and beer license fees would be taxable under the bill to provide $100 million additional state revenue for the next two years.
 Revealing sharp difference of opinion over the bill was the fact that it passed House engrossment by a close vote of 74 to 69.
 Without surprise, the Legislature found it easier to spend money than to raise it. A few examples:
 Liberalizing of the teachers retirement system by constitutional amendment was voted by the House
 Governor Allan Shivers asked for emergency consideration by the Legislature of a bill to pay indemnity to owners of sheep and goats destroyed in an effort to halt a scabies epidemic.
 Extension of the veterans land program was approved by a Senate committee. (Theoretically, this program is self-financing. The state issues bonds to buy the land, and the bonds are retired as the veterans make payments on their property.)
 Requested by the governor was an appropriation to give underprivileged children the Salk polio vaccine.
 Proposals were made by the Travis County delegation, that the state sponsor a supplement to state employee retirement benefits in the amount of $600,000 per year.

Car Dealers Licenses
 Seventeen amendments were added in the House before the car dealers licensing bill gained initial approval. Principal provisions of the bill would:
 Make new car dealers pay $50 for a sellers' license, and used car dealers $25; prohibit offering for sale as a new car any vehicle that had been driven or towed more than 50 miles; and require dealers to post $10,000 bond.
 Original purpose of the bill, before the amendments were added, was to prevent used car dealers from offering latest model cars for sale as "new" cars.

Trinity Bill Fades
 A big segment of the Texas population lives in the Trinity River valley. Hopes of those people for an organization to administer flood control, water conservation, and irrigation were dimmed when the Senate water committee rejected a Trinity River Authority bill and sent it to a subcommittee.
 Rep. Barefoot Sanders of Dallas who pushed the bill through the House, blamed the railroad lobby for its failure in Senate committee.

Water Bill Falts
 Trouble was ahead for a proposed constitutional amendment rated high on the list of administration-recommended water legislation.
 Purpose of the measure would be to let the people vote on whether to authorize $100 million in bonds to finance water projects of the state. Passed by the House, the resolution was patched with amendments. The Senate refused to concur and asked for a conference committee.

One of the highlights of their program is Torrini's lightning fast comedy cartooning. While watching Torrini create pictures and cartoons everyone in the audience will have the desire, even though he may not be artistically inclined, to pick up pencil and paper and copy Torrini's drawings and also to create new original ideas of his own. The drawings are done in black and white and in many vivid colors.

The rapid fire line of patter that accompanies each magic trick and each picture that is drawn, holds the complete attention of every person in the audience.

WHAT PRICE SPEED?

Speed—excessive, reckless speed is the greatest killer stalking the Nation's highways today.

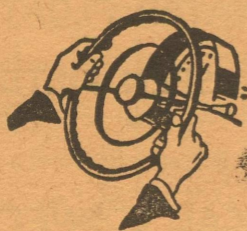

In one out of every two driver accidents resulting in deaths and injuries, speed is directly responsible for this carnage on the highways. Other lethal causes, such as cutting in and out, passing on curves and hills, driving off the roadway, are indirectly the result of quick bursts of speed.

And the speed death toll is climbing! Faster roads, super-powered cars urge drivers beyond their human limitations to a quicker and more frequent rendezvous with Death.

Rural highway fatalities due mainly to speed soared from 22,000 in 1949 to 28,200 in 1952 and over 31,000 in 1953. Those are the dead—and for every death count fifty injured, maimed, crippled for life.

Is this the price you and others are ready to pay for the momentary thrill and the ever-present danger of death from speed? It takes only a split second to change speed exhilaration into speed tragedy.

The decision is in your hands—be sane, be sensible, slow down and live!

SLOW DOWN—LIVES ARE IN YOUR HANDS!

First Baptist News

The Hardin-Simmons University choir will present a program at the First Baptist Church Saturday evening, April 30 at 8:00.

The choir, composed of approximately 55 voices, is under the direction of Dr. Euell Porter, an outstanding music director. He has been with Hardin-Simmons for several years and will be with Baylor University beginning this fall. This will be one of the most outstanding musical programs to be presented in Eldorado this year. Everyone is invited to attend.

We have missed getting this article in the paper for the last two or three weeks. I have been out of town in a revival with the First Baptist Church, Artesia, Colorado. This small church is in the extreme north-western corner of Colorado and its pastor is our former associate, Rev. Darwin Welsh. The Welsh family moved to Artesia from Trent, Texas, where he was pastor of the First Baptist Church, the first of March 1955.

The Artesia church had the grand total of sixteen members March 1, 1955. In the almost two months since, the membership has grown to 31, almost doubled in two months. The church was meeting in a small 20x40 building. By an amazing and almost miraculous series of events, they bought an old unused building in a much better location. The building is 50x50 on a lot 50x100. This gives them room for a larger auditorium and several small rooms for Sunday school classes. Previously the Sunday school was divided into two classes, the nursery (all who could not read), and the ones who could read in one class regardless of age.

The move to this "new" building was made just this last Saturday night, April 23, and we had our revival services there Saturday night and again Sunday morning. This is a small group but one of the most determined groups that I have ever had the opportunity to work with. They have very little but are doing very much.

I took some pictures of the church and town and some of the members, which I will show here in our church as soon as I get them back from the developers.

We were glad to hear all the good reports of the work here while we were gone. Thanks to all who helped carry on during this month.

Go to church somewhere next Sunday; you will feel the difference.—J. C. Hancock.

Your teachers and parents can be justly proud of you. We hope that you will return from time to time, either singly or in a group. With kindest regards, I am, cordially yours—Doyle Graham, manager."

Ground Meat Becomes Special Treat

If a loaf or patty is your usual way of serving ground meat, here's an idea to put to immediate use. Shape the meat around wooden skewers to resemble drumsticks and, after baking, add decorative paper frills.

The drumsticks are seasoned in the Swedish manner with nutmeg and paprika. To follow the Swedish theme, round out the menu with tangy beer, whole boiled potatoes, buttered beets and a relish tray of dill pickle strips and black olives.

Ground Meat Drumsticks

- 1 1/2 pounds ground veal
- 1/2 pound ground fresh pork
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt

- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 egg, beaten
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1 cup dry bread crumbs (about)

Combine veal, pork, salt, pepper, paprika and nutmeg. Mix lightly. Divide mixture into 8 portions and form into the shape of chicken drumsticks. Insert a wooden skewer into the narrow end of each. Combine beaten egg and water. Dip drumsticks in egg mixture, then in bread crumbs. Place on a cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, 30 minutes. Makes 8 servings.
