Snags haunt Comanche Peak

DALLAS (AP) — Utility officials say they can't estimate when the Comanche Peak nuclear plant will open, or how much it will cost, because of troubles plaguing the facility.

The plant was once believed to be near completion with many of its problems behind it. Texas Utilities, the owner, had scheduled completion in mid-1987, and had set a target cost of $5.46 billion.

But in the first 3½ months of this year, Comanche Peak's owner, Texas Utilities, reported 31 potentially serious safety problems, compared with 54 for all of 1985.

The utility filed 5,207 "nonconformance" reports in the first three months of 1986, compared with 7,669 for all of 1985.

The latest trouble spots were reported as part of a new comprehensive plan to check work in part of the plant. Utility and regulatory officials say inspectors had been overlooking problems.

"It's taking probably a lot longer than anybody would ever have thought," said Vince Noonan, Comanche Peak project director for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Noonan said he was forced to scrap plans for the NRC to finish its work at Comanche Peak in August and he is now planning a supplemental budget request to extend the effort "at least through the end of the year."

That means the plant probably can't begin operation before 1988.

The Dallas Morning News reported the design quality of the plant — first challenged by Comanche Peak opponents in mid-1982 — still appears to be its most severe problem.

The latest estimate by Texas Utilities shows in Unit 1 of the plant, 3,700 pipe supports — more than 40 percent — will have to be removed or modified. That compares with an estimate of 120 pipe supports that officials had estimated in October would be affected.

- All 4,500 cable tray and conduit supports in Unit 1 are being examined for design problems. Half of those have been checked with design drawings, and only 800 have received a preliminary design review.
- Supports for heating, ventilation and air conditioning also face design problems, but that analysis and hardware inspection still is preliminary.

Council resists hike in pension pool of firemen

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

The City Council, at a work session Monday, reaffirmed its decision that any increase in the firemen's pension pool would come by way of salary cuts.

Paul Brown, vice president of the Fireman Retirement Board of Trustees, distributed a memorandum to the council requesting the city bump its contribution from 6 to 9 percent effective May 12. Under state law, the city must match fireman contributions up to 9 percent of their salaries.

In April, the council approved an across-the-board 3 percent raise for all city employees. Coucilmen cited a provision in the revised budget ordinance that allows them to trim pay rather than contribute to the pension fund beyond money budgeted for the 3 percent pay hike.

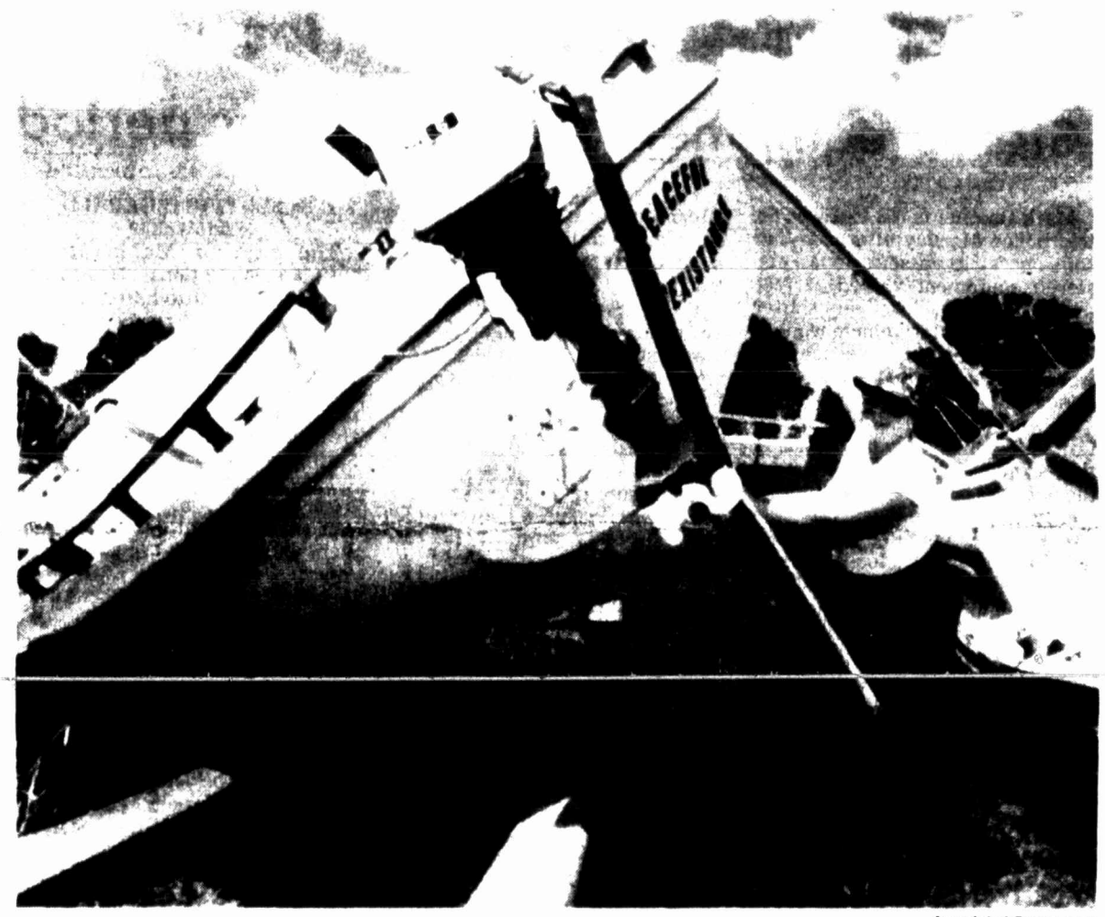

Councilman Russ McEwen, who recently resigned from the firemen's retirement board citing conflict of interest, said, "I don't think there's any action we need to take whatsoever. It's already been voted on with the passage of that ordinance."

Brown said the retirement board will meet June 10 to discuss possible litigation with the city. Meanwhile, he said members of the board will seek opinions from the State Retirement Review Board.

The local retirement board has retained Austin attorney David VanOs to represent firemen in this issue, Brown said. About $11,000 has been appropriated from the retirement fund for legal fees, he said.

In other business, Fire Chief Carl Dorton told the council he ordered the suspension of firefighter Jimmy Bertran. Bertran was suspended May 5 through May 15, three shifts, without pay for what Dorton called lack of moral character, intoxication while off duty and conduct prejudicial to good order.

Oil prices dip after topping $17 a barrel

NEW YORK — Oil futures prices have hit their highest levels in more than 14 weeks, driven upward by heavy demand for gasoline, short supplies for the kinds of crude used to make it and technical market factors, analysts say.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for June delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, closed Monday at $17.16 a 42-gallon barrel, up $1 from Friday's settlement price. The price eased slightly at midmorning today to $16.90.

June contracts for refined products also showed strong gains on Monday. Unleaded and regular gasoline both were up more than 1 cent over Friday's closing prices — unleaded at 55.75 cents a gallon, vs. 54.38 cents and regular at 55.76, up from Friday's 54.41 cents.

Unleaded eased slightly at midmorning today to 55.25 cents a gallon and regular fell a bit to 55.30 cents a gallon.

In less than three weeks, crude prices have soared by nearly $4 a barrel. The rally marks a sharp reversal of the precipitous drops that took place a few months earlier, when oil was plunging from a late-November price near $32 a barrel.

The near-month contract had not traded for more than $17 since Feb. 7, while Friday's close was the first time since Feb. 14 that oil had sold for more than $16.

After hovering mainly at levels between $11 and $14 per barrel between March and April, the June contract, which closed at $13.34 on April 30, broke through $14 to $14.73 on May 2, and passed the $15 mark, at $15.21, on May 7.

Madison Galbraith, senior energy specialist at Merrill Lynch Energy Futures, said there was "a lot of refinery buying" in the crude market.

"What it comes down to is, they haven't bought it, they need it, and they're going to buy it," he said.

Over the last two months, gasoline demand has picked up, as dealers prepare for the Memorial Day opening of the summer driving season.

Refineries have increased their demand for crude by 1.45 million barrels daily since March 21.

Two of those widely used light crude grades are West Texas Intermediate and Brent crude from the North Sea.

Economy reflects growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy grew at a surprisingly strong annual rate of 3.7 percent in the first three months of the year, a five-fold increase over the previous quarter, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, turned in its best performance since a similar 3.7 percent increase in the first three months of 1985.

The news on inflation was even better. A price index tied to the GNP rose at an annual rate of 2.5 percent from January through March, its best performance in almost two decades.

While the Reagan administration today reaffirmed its prediction of a 4 percent growth rate from the final quarter of 1985 to the same period this year, the upward revision from last month's 3.2 percent estimate caught analysts by surprise. Many had predicted that the first quarter GNP rate would be revised downward to 2.5 percent or lower.

Still, the stronger-than-expected growth did not impress many analysts, who noted that the gain came from an upward revision in the growth of business inventories.

That change added $7 billion to GNP growth, but economists said this will subtract from growth in the current April-June quarter as businesses are forced to work down unwanted inventories, especially a record high level of unsold cars.

"It is stronger than everybody thought it would be, but it is strong in a bad way," said David Berson, senior economist at the New York investment-firm of Merrill Lynch. "When the strength comes from an increase in business inventories at a time when sales are flat, that means production is going to be cut to reduce those unintended inventories."

Berson noted that domestic auto manufacturers have already announced production cutbacks in the current quarter and he predicted growth will dip below 2 percent from April through June, even weaker than the 2.2 percent growth turned in for all of 1985.

But he said lower energy prices and lower interest rates would push growth in the second half of the year to 4 percent or higher.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the GNP report, coupled with "continuing good news from virtually every sector, makes for a solid first quarter." He added that the figures released today "reflect the sustained strength of the American economy."

A companion report today said that after-tax profits of U.S. corporations fell by 4.9 percent in the first quarter to an annual rate of $139.5 billion. This was the biggest decline since a 23.8 percent drop in the first three months of 1982 in the midst of the last recession.

The first quarter increase in GNP growth represented a sharp rebound from growth at an annual rate of just 0.7 percent in the October-December quarter last year.

Much of this change came from a swing in the country's huge trade deficit, which analysts also believe is only a temporary improvement.

Fiberflex lays off 16 more

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Fiberflex Products Ltd. laid off 16 employees this morning, said chief executive officer Chris Christopher.

The layoff lowers the company's total workforce to 100, he said.

Christopher said the layoff, the third since April, was the result of a "simple supply and demand" situation in the glutted oil market.

The oil fiberglass sucker rod company laid off 25 employees in early April and 22 persons April 28, reducing the workforce to 135.

"We hope to have reason to recall (the workers)," Christopher said, "but we'll continue to cut back while oil production is slow."

Christopher said he was encouraged by the steadily rising price of oil, which netted $17 per barrel this morning. However, he said a lag time exists before the price of oil affects the demand for drilling and equipment.

He said he hoped by July productivity would increase.

Christopher said major oil companies could spend "robustly" towards the end of the year if oil prices continue to increase and stabilize.

The suspension was ordered 180 days after an investigation of Bertran, stemming from a November 1985 scuffle at the Greenhouse club.

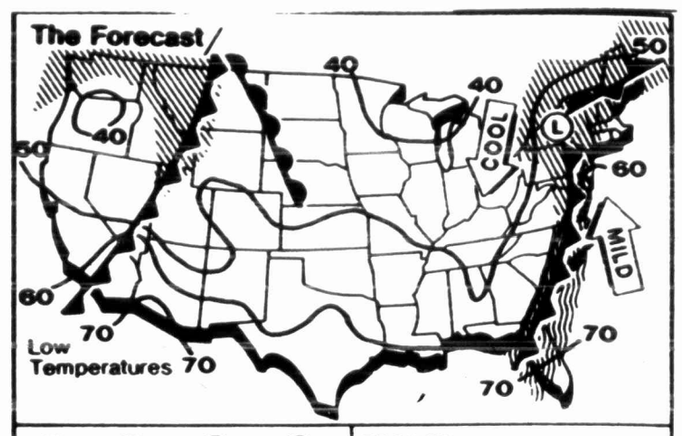

Dorton said he delayed ordering the suspension for 180 days, the limit under civil service law, because he was "brand new at the game" of issuing suspensions under civil service guidelines and he wanted to investigate the case to the "nth degree."

Bertran Bertran has appealed the suspension.

Police Detective Bill King, who investigated the case, declined comment this morning.

King will testify at a Civil Service Commission hearing today at 4 p.m. The commission is expected to decide if the suspension was just.

Hospital sale to be final after period of transition

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

The sale of Malone-Hogan Hospital to National Healthcare Inc. will be finalized after a 45- to 60-day transition period, a company official said Monday.

Dale Mulder, vice president of finance, spoke at an afternoon press conference after National Healthcare officials arrived in Big Spring to meet with hospital staff.

The hospital ownership group from Dothan, Ala., announced on Wednesday it had reached agreement with Hospital Corporation of America to acquire six hospitals, including the 153-bed Big Spring facility.

Mulder said corporate personnel from HCA and National Healthcare would visit the hospital during the transition period to conduct audits of equipment and services.

Changes in medical services and rates will not be determined during the transition period, Mulder said.

"We don't know this hospital yet," he said. "You don't make radical changes on day one.

"We plan to listen to the community, the medical staff and employees for direction," Mulder said. "We do a lot of listening."

Any new services will be determined by a group system management team consisting of a vice president, comptroller, nursing director and marketing-sales person.

A management team will visit Malone-Hogan once every seven weeks, Mulder said. The first visit has tentatively been scheduled for next Tuesday through Thursday.

What changes Malone-Hogan might undergo will depend on the makeup of its patients, he said.

"The community drives the hospital. We don't dictate from Dothan what the hospital needs," Mulder said.

He said a particular need would be met by "making adjustments if service so dictates."

A declining local economic base, for example, which narrows the patient's ability to pay for services, would be met by offering cost effective programs, including same-day surgery and emphasis on outpatient care, Mulder said.

Weeks resigns Chamber job

John Weeks, manager of the Chamber of Commerce Convention and Visitors Bureau, resigned Monday under pressure from the executive directors, he said this morning.

Chamber directors cited personality conflict as a reason for requesting his resignation, Weeks said.

John Arrick, chamber president, was unavailable for comment this morning.

The chamber will hire someone as soon as possible to fill the vacancy, said executive vice president LeRoy Tillery. No specifications have been set yet for the position, he said.

Weeks said he has been with the chamber for three years. His job included persuading conventions to come to Big Spring, he said.

Part of Weeks' salary comes from the hotel/motel occupancy tax, collected by the city, said city secretary Tom Ferguson. Half of the tax money, which will amount to about $105,000 this year, goes to the Convention and Visitors Bureau, Ferguson said.

However, the city had no part in asking for Weeks' resignation, said Councilman Gary Don Carey.

Forsan school wraps up building project finances

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

FORSAN — The school board wrapped up the financial end of its $4 million building program Monday night after listening to a report from Larry Donham of the architectural firm of Huckaby and Donham.

Donham told board members his firm will refund $56,206 to the school district, because of problems in construction resulting from errors the firm made.

Superintendent J.F. Poynor said that the building program was initiated with a $4 million bond issue in April 1984.

In other business, board members:

- Postponed renewing student insurance with Keystone Insurance after Business Manager Rob Roberson reported the family of Ryan Hamby was having difficulty collecting money to pay for Hamby's broken arm.
- Voted to take bids for all property and liability insurance, with the understanding they may only purchase fleet insurance.
- Decided to offer summer school for students in grades one through eight who would be retained otherwise.
- Voted to hold a two- to three-day curriculum workshop in the summer. Teachers who attend will be paid $50 a day.
- Voted to take bids on a new telephone system. The school district now rents its phones, and Poynor said they might be able to save in the long run by owning their own phones.
- Voted to hire a half-time Spanish teacher and a full-time clerk in the administrative office for next year.
- Voted not to charter buses in the future, but to use Forsan vans and buses. For safety reasons, Poynor said they may hire drivers on long trips.

CIA pushes charges

WASHINGTON — CIA Director William J. Casey is trying to tighten the tap against leaks of U.S. intelligence secrets by seeking criminal charges against NBC-TV for reporting that U.S. submarines eavesdrop in Soviet harbors.

Casey said Monday that the NBC report, if true, violated a 1950 law against the willful disclosure of U.S. ability to make and break codes, and that he had referred the matter to the Justice Department.

John Russell, a spokesman for the Justice Department, said he had no comment on the matter. Network spokeswoman Sharon Metcalf said "NBC has referred Casey's allegation to legal counsel to review," and had no further comment.

NASA cover-up denied

WASHINGTON — The presidential Challenger commission is convinced that no cover-up was intended even though some NASA documents about the space shuttle were destroyed after they had been ordered saved for investigators, administration sources say.

The panel sent an FBI agent to interview officials at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., last week after learning of the document destruction there from an anonymous letter.

Although the documents concerned the shuttle's booster rockets — which are suspected of causing the accident on Jan. 28 — the panel has decided there was no attempt to conceal evidence.

Brock addresses union

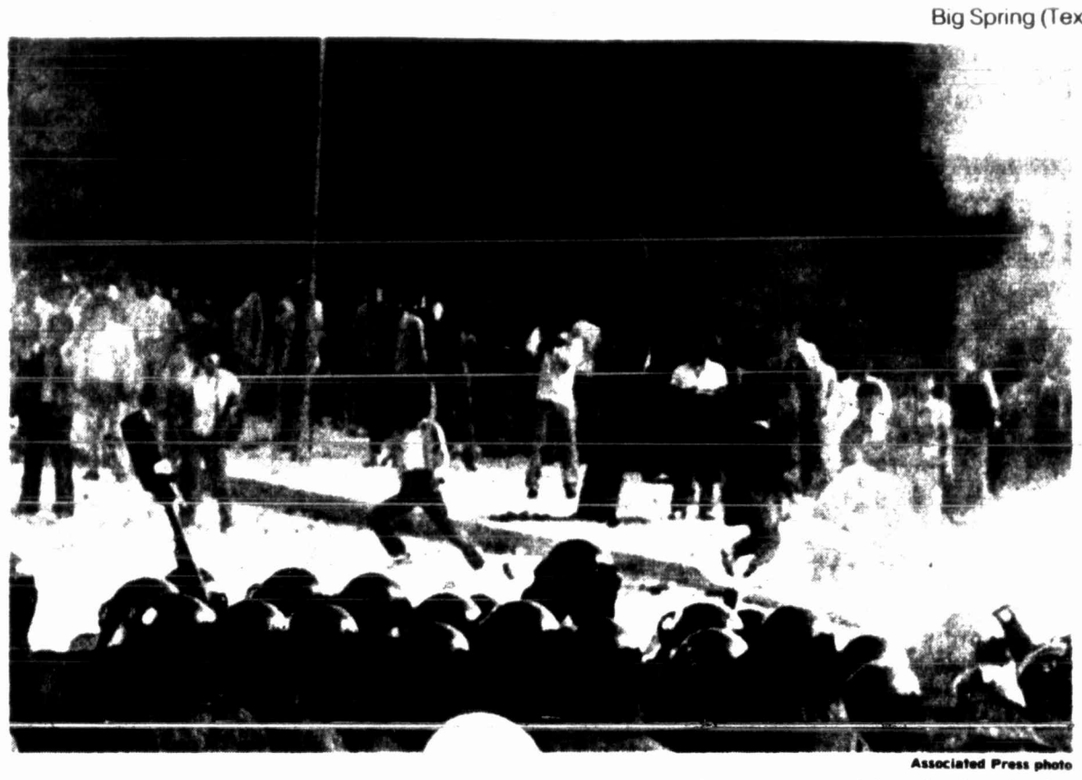

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Labor Secretary William Brock drew cheers when he said he was addressing the Teamsters convention even though its president faces racketeering charges, but delegates listened in stony silence as he asked if it isn't "just plain time to clean house."

The 2,000 delegates gave their embattled president, Jackie Presser, a thunderous standing ovation on Monday when he accused investigators in Brock's department, a Senate subcommittee and "certain elements of the media" of waging a five-year vendetta against him.

Hostage memories linger

COKEVILLE, Wyo. — Pupils who spent three hours as hostages before a bomb blast that burned scores of children and adults still dream of the attacks and say "it's gonna be scary going back" when school reopens this week.

"When the school building, the teachers and the students are ready, that's when we'll open the school," Cokevill Elementary School principal Max Excell said Monday night. Teachers were to begin planning today for classes.

South Korean student dives to death

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A student set himself on fire and then plunged to his death from a fourth-floor window during a violent anti-government demonstration today at Seoul National University, a news agency reported.

The demonstration broke out after riot police moved onto the campus to disperse about 3,000 students who were listening to a leading dissident speak at a school festival.

The Yonhap News Agency said the speech by the Rev. Moon Ik-hwan was interrupted when about 1,000 police surrounded the area and the fighting began.

Police fired tear gas and about 600 students hurled rocks and other objects, the news agency said. Other sources say the number of student demonstrators was higher.

Student sources said fighting spread over wide areas of the campus of the state-run university that is considered South Korea's most prestigious school.

Yonhap said that during the melee, Lee Tong-soo, a 22-year-old freshman in the school's horticulture department, shouted "out with U.S. imperialism and police" and dived from the fourth floor window of a school building after dousing himself with a flammable liquid and igniting it.

Officials said he was dead on arrival at a hospital.

Yonhap said a notebook was found in his pocket in which he had written, "the masses are foolish, but never die. Only history will judge my agonizing struggle."

There were no immediate reports of other casualties.

Lee was the third Seoul National University student to set himself on fire in recent weeks. Two others set fire to themselves when police moved in to arrest them during a demonstration April 28. One died in a hospital, and the other is reported to be in serious condition still at a hospital.

South Korean schools this week are holding a series of campus festivals, and some of them reportedly are being linked with observances of the sixth anniversary of the Kwangju uprising.

The Rev. Moon, a well-known civil rights activist and head of the United Minjung (Masses) Movement For Democracy, was said to have been speaking on the topic "reflection on the Kwangju struggle" when his lecture was broken off because of the violent outburst.

Anti-government demonstrations have taken place almost every day throughout the spring on campuses in Seoul and provincial areas. Many of the protests have had anti-American overtones.

The number of such protests increased last week, and more observances of the Kwangju uprising were scheduled this week.

The student-led revolt in the provincial capital of Kwangju began May 18, 1980, and lasted nine days before it was put down by the military. It since has become a highly emotional issue among South Korean students and other opponents of the government of President Chun Doo-hwan.

Government authorities say 191 people died in the Kwangju uprising, but dissidents and human rights groups say the toll was much higher.

Vote tally at stand still

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — The three-member Central Elections Board collapsed under criticism from the governing party's presidential candidate who claimed victory in last week's general elections despite an official tally indicating he was in second place.

Vote tallying still had not resumed Monday night after being suspended without explanation Sunday morning. When the count was halted, opposition leader Joaquin Balaguer was ahead by 35,000 votes with 92 percent of the polling stations reporting.

Two of the board members resigned after Jacobo Majluta, the 51-year-old candidate of the governing Democratic Revolutionary Party, accused them of favoring Balaguer, of the Social Christian Reform Party.

Security alert continues

DOVER, England — Undercover British police are riding ferries and Hovercraft between England and the European continental to prevent an attack by Arab terrorists, but police and news reports say security is not as stringent in some European ports.

Police searched cars and baggage at Dover and 12 other English ports on the English Channel and North Sea in the third day of a security operation that encompassed ports in seven countries.

It began following information from Interpol, the Paris-based international police organization, that a Middle East group with Libyan connections planned to detonate a car bomb on a vessel in retaliation for the April 15 U.S. bombing raid on Libya.

Quakes rock Taiwan

TAIPEI, Taiwan — Two earthquakes jolted eastern Taiwan within 12 minutes of each other today, loosening rocks that killed one person and seriously injured another, officials said.

The first quake, measuring 5.8 on the Richter scale, was recored at 1:25 p.m. (1:25 a.m. EDT). Its epicenter was located six miles north of Hualien, an eastern seaport 72 miles south of Taipei, the weather bureau reported.

Storms batter islands

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea — Typhoon Namu battered Guadalcanal and the rest of the Solomon Islands with 115 mph winds that destroyed homes, flooded rivers and knocked out power. News reports said at least 50 people were missing and thousands were homeless.

The out-of-season storm roared in early Monday, according to Dykes Angiki, news editor of the Solomon Islands Broadcasting Corp. It did its worst damage outside the capital of Honiara on Guadalcanal, the site of the first U.S. victory against the Japanese in World War II.

Soviets blame 'enemy radio voices'

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet newspaper today reported that worried Kiev residents streamed to railway stations after the Chernobyl accident, but blamed their fears on "enemy radio voices" it said were spreading rumors about the disaster.

Diplomats at the Swedish, British, Canadian, Italian, Danish, Finnish and Japanese embassies said their ambassadors declined a Soviet invitation to visit Kiev and an area near the Ukrainian capital where evacuees from the Chernobyl area are living.

Other Western legations, including the U.S. Embassy, were still considering the offer, but were expected to turn it down, diplomats said.

Most of the diplomats said the offer was rejected because their governments wanted to send experts, not ambassadors, to the area and wanted the experts to visit the plant itself, not just Kiev which is 80 miles south of Chernobyl.

For the sixth day, there was no update on the Chernobyl casualty toll, which American Dr. Robert Gale, who helped treat the worst radiation cases, has said was 13 dead, with 24 in grave condition.

The last official report on casualties came last Wednesday in a speech by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, who said nine people were dead and 299 hospitalized.

Many of the nationally circulating newspapers carried lengthy stories on Chernobyl today, focusing on various aspects of the cleanup operation but offering no detailed update on efforts to cover the ruined No. 4 reactor in concrete and decontaminate the station and its surroundings.

The armed forces newspaper, Krasnaya Zvezda, said experts working on the salvage operation still cannot approach the reactor and are relying on detailed photographs taken several times a day by military pilots in airplanes or helicopters.

For about two weeks after the accident, extra airplane flights and trains came into Moscow from Kiev and many of those arriving brought young children whom they feared would be exposed to radiation.

But, although some press reports have suggested that concern was heightened by the initial delay in reporting the April 26 accident, the official press has sought to play down the reaction in Kiev.

Polar expedition revives our spirit

A space shuttle, two unmanned rockets and a Soviet nuclear-power plant share a common link. All failed recently in a fearsome progression that knocked the wind out of man's technological assault on space and the atom. But five men and a woman, equipped with a passel of dogs and wooden sleds, persevered through frostbite and weariness to reach the North Pole. The adventurers of the Steger International Polar Expedition thus offered reassurance that the human spirit — the same spirit that moves people to explore space and exploit nuclear energy — endures.

In her taped diary, Ann Bancroft spoke of the emotional drain of losing two team members to injuries and of the physical strain brought on by cold and hunger. The low point came when she began to doubt that the team would reach the pole. But "a good night's sleep" revived her flagging spirits. When she reached the pole days later, she concluded that the journey "stands for hope."

And human resilience and determination. No frontiers were opened — Robert Peary had been there long before. No technological breakthroughs were achieved — team leaders Will Steger and Paul Schurke sought to restage the 1909 feat by using only supplies they carried along and a sextant for navigation. Nonetheless, critics complain that the Steger expedition lacked authenticity because charter planes ferried out the injured and took the expedition home from the pole.

Such complaints discount the individual achievement. And for people shaken by the Challenger and Chernobyl accidents, their triumph was like a good night's sleep. The failure of rocket ships and nuclear plants may reveal man's limits, but the Steger expedition proved that man can overcome those limits.

Art Buchwald

"Mr. Michael Deaver, please. David Stockman calling."

"Just a moment."

"Yeah, David, what's up?"

"Mike, I'm calling you on a business matter. I want you to handle my public relations."

"I'm not interested, David. I've got enough trouble with mine."

"Listen to me, Mike. I've been getting bad press lately and I'd like you to turn it around. I can pay."

"David, the only reason you want to hire me is for my access to the Oval Office. Well, buddy, that access isn't for sale."

"I don't care about your access to the Oval Office. I want you because you're the best P.R. man in the business. Anybody who could make the President change his mind on acid rain is a genius."

"In a nutshell, David, what's your problem?"

"For some reason everyone in Washington is bad-mouthing me. Even the President called my book fiction. I put in a lot of time on it and it hurts when all my friends in the White House give me bad reviews."

"You don't have any friends in the White House."

"That's why I want to hire you. I'd like you to persuade everybody into thinking I'm really a nice guy."

"I can't do that, David. If I took you on I'd lose every client I have, including South Korea."

"Why South Korea?"

"They don't like you there, David. You wrote a 'kiss-and-tell' economics book, and that's the worst kind. I didn't appreciate the way I came out in the book either."

"Aw come on, Mike. It was all in fun. I made you out to be a glorified press agent for the President. In this country that's someone to be admired."

"David, I have several reasons for not taking you. The most important one is that if you become my client I'll lose my White House pass. Then in order to get in and see the President I'll have to stand in line with all the tourists. That pass means more to me than 10 new clients. You should have realized you'd create an image problem when you wrote the book."

"It's not my fault that Reagan's politics triumphed over fiscal common sense. All I tried to do is show how wrong we all were. I took as much blame as I laid on the White House staff. Mike, you're the only one who can help me."

"What can I do?"

"See if you can get the President to give me a blurb for my book. If he does, Don Regan and Caspar Weinberger will have to follow suit."

"Why should the President endorse your book?"

"That's what I'm hiring you for — to figure it out."

"Thank you, but no thank you."

"Mike, I've never asked you for anything in my life. One photo of Nancy reading The Triumph of Politics to the President is all I'm asking for."

"It can't be done."

"Why not?"

"The President doesn't like books about deficits and tax hikes. They bore him."

"I didn't say it would be easy, Mike. If it were easy I wouldn't be hiring you. But just think what a coup it would be if you could make me look good with this administration."

"Even I couldn't pull that one off, David. I was in the White House mess yesterday, and do you know how they refer to you there? — 'Stockman, a.k.a. Judas.'"

Defense cuts hit military families

Jack Anderson

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — The public may be confused about Gramm-Rudman cuts in defense spending, but it's simple enough for a first-grader to understand — if the kid happens to be one of the 156,000 students who attend schools for U.S. military families overseas.

The $26.8 million lopped from the military schools' current budget amounts to a 4.9 percent cut. This translates into a whole catalog of personnel, equipment and activities reductions that affect every school-age military dependent overseas.

Here are some of the results of the cutbacks in funds, culled by our associate Stewart Harris from copies of recent orders issued by the Pentagon:

- Cancellation of 1986 summer schools.
- Cancellation of all field trips.
- A moratorium on purchases of new textbooks and miscellaneous equipment.
- Drastic reduction of the teaching staff by attrition. One out of three teachers who leave the system will not be replaced.
- A freeze on hiring of art, music, physical education and other "specialty" teachers.
- A 25 percent reduction in purchases of audio-visual equipment.

One program canceled as too costly — the annual Pacific region basketball tournament — was rescued by Northwest Orient Airlines. When the Pentagon canceled the tournament by cutting back on extracurricular travel, the airline flew the competing school teams to Japan from South Korea, the Philippines and other U.S. military bases.

The decision not to replace one-third of the teachers who quit or retire means that the military classrooms will be packed even tighter than they have been. Already the military's classes are more crowded than their civilian counterparts: Currently there are 24.3 students for every teacher in the military system; the average for civilian classes is about 23 children nationwide, according to National Education Association figures.

And even before the cuts, the military spent much less on its pupils than the U.S. average. Jack Rollins, president of the Overseas Education Association, said the Pentagon's expenditure this year per pupil was $2,998.40, compared with the national average of $3,814.

The Pentagon "is in essence running one of the poorest school systems in the United States," Rollins said.

In a letter to military school administrators, Joseph Larkin, director of the system's Atlantic region, made this pointed observation: "As you become aware of the cuts we have already made, you will think they are harsh. You will be right."

Footnote: In a written response to our inquiries, the Defense Department confirmed the $26.8 million, 4.9 percent budget cut. It also disclosed that the opening of the 1986-87 school year will be delayed until Sept. 5 as an economy measure. The Pentagon claimed that students in the military school system have exceeded the national average on college entrance examinations for the last 10 years.

SUPERNEW NIXON: If nice guys finish last, do not-so-nice guys at last finish nice? Former President Richard Nixon, who built his career on being mean and relishing it, turned into Mr. Charisma the other day on a New York Air flight from the Big Apple to Washington. He signed autographs for the flight attendants, swapped stories with the crew, chatted amiably with passengers who came over to talk and generally made himself the most popular passenger on board. Learning that the captain was a woman, Nixon stopped by the cockpit on his way and commended her for the smooth flight. He told her it was the first time he'd ever flown with a woman pilot.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Libyan dictator Moammar Khadafy is reportedly pondering whether to permit a Soviet base in his country as a response to the U.S. bombing attack. But it's hard to see how Libya could support many more Soviet bloc "advisers" than it already has. Congressional sources estimate the numbers this way: 2,000 to 5,000 Soviets, 18,000 Romanians, 18,000 North Koreans, 10,600 Poles, 5,600 East Germans, 5,400 Czechs and several thousand Bulgarians and Hungarians, for a grand total topping 70,000. Khadafy naively believes that it's safer to have Soviet satellite personnel than Russians.

GUEST EDITORIAL: Former Nixon aide Charles W. Colson has written a response to our recent suggestion that there is merit in Virginia Gov. Gerald Baliles' plan to require literacy as a condition of parole. Colson objects to the idea on constitutional grounds, and also faults it as unfair to the most disadvantaged prisoners. "What's more," he writes, "as an inmate I can tell you that this is the kind of thing that backfires." It would also, he says, be an expensive way to teach adults to read, considering the cost per inmate of keeping people in prison. Finally, Colson said, "Prisons ought to punish, not try to 'cure' criminals."

Detective job needs doing

By EDDIE CURRAN

When coaches, boosters, etc. of big-time college athletic programs do wrong, they're perceived much in the same way as white collar criminals of the past. We see them not as criminals, but as bad boys who got too carried away with the game. Some of us can even empathize with them. Come Saturday, all we care about is the thrill of victory.

Knowing this, just how outraged can we allow ourselves to become when it is revealed that our beloved team wasn't so much recruited as bid for. Thankfully, my beloved team is not TCU.

TCU, as you may know, was recently punished by the NCAA for violations unbefitting a school with Christian as its middle name. There is no way near enough room to list all of TCU's infractions, but here is some of what they did for one prospect:

Before his senior year in high school, an assistant coach at TCU found him a job, and arranged transportation to and from the job. Soon before the signing date, a "representative of the university's athletic interests" gave him $10,000 in cash. Twice in his senior year he and other fellow prospects were picked up from their homes and taken to hotels, where they spent the night and were entertained by... prostitutes.

The situation itself may or may not seem frightening. What is frightening is that it was set up by adults who wanted something from the prospects. We need a big tackle. We don't have a punter. Get 'em some girls.

That is wrong, and it should be punished. And yet, most fans, myself included, don't want to hear about it. Winning is everything in big-time college sports. Would you rather root for a team that goes 11-0, with constant rumors of corruption by coaches and boosters, or for a team that goes 3-8, and places eight players on the academic all-America team?

Being an Alabama fan all my life, I know the joy and mania which comes when a team has a great year. The happiness and enthusiasm carries over from Saturday into the week. There's something to look forward to, something to talk about, and come Saturday, something to yell about and go nuts over. It is very important.

Fans are an innocent, joy-loving lot. They can't be expected to taint their joy by dwelling on under-the-table payments. They're more likely to wink and laugh when told that the running back drives a Cadillac. That's why we need the NCAA detectives. Just because we're not going to do it doesn't mean it doesn't need to be done.

Dear Abby

Marriage that bridges cultures needs a strong foundation

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the American woman signed "Moonstruck," who was in love with an Iranian man and wanted to marry him. I married a man from a Middle Eastern country so perhaps I can give her some advice.

We have been married for 15 years and I couldn't want a better husband, but not all American women have been as lucky with men from foreign countries. Here are some things to consider:

1. What kind of visa does he have? If he already has a green card, he's probably a good bet. Some men marry American women just to get permanent resident status in this country. An American woman should be cautious about marrying someone who is on a tourist or student visa. She should also be aware that if she does marry a foreigner with a criminal record or who is considered to be an undersirable alien, he could be deported even if he is already married to an American.

2. How long have you known each other? Marrying someone from a different country, especially if there are language barriers and vast cultural differences, can create serious problems. Don't rush into marriage. Get to know each other very, very well. If it's love, the waiting won't hurt.

3. Could you be happy living in his country? You may have to if things don't work out for him here. Although most Americans think this is the greatest county in the world, many immigrants cannot adjust to living here. And if the political situation in his country changes for the better, he may want to return and take you with him. How would you feel about that?

THE VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

DEAR VOICE: Thank you for a valuable letter.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago I wrote to you requesting a copy of your booklet titled "What Every Teenager Ought to Know." This booklet has been very popular; in fact, one of the health teachers here at school uses it in her class.

For that reason I am requesting six more copies. I agree, it contains what every teenager ought to know.

BONNIE L. RAASCH,
LIBRARIAN, C.B. VERNON
MIDDLE SCHOOL,
MARION, IOWA

DEAR MS. RAASCH: Thank you for what I consider high praise. The teen booklet has also been used at both Baptist and Catholic summer camps. Many teachers have suggested that it would be even more helpful if it were given to children ages 10 to 12. Our children are maturing physically much earlier today than they did 25 years ago. To order, send a check or money order for $2.50 (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dera Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

★★★

DEAR ABBY: In your advice on car thieves, you missed an obvious point. When the prospective buyer asks permission to test drive the car by driving it around the block, be sure you are in the car during the test!

MORT EISENBERG,
DELRAY BEACH, FLA.

DEAR MORT: Surely you jest. A person risks more than auto theft when he or she gets into a car with a stranger.

★★★

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printged with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Dr. Donohue

Not all types of epilepsy are inherited

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My daughter was diagnosed when she was little as having epilepsy. An EEG taken after she had several episodes of fainting and hand rigidity diagnosed it. She was on Dilantin for eight years before she was taken off it. It has been five years now and she has had no epilepsy episodes. She is contemplating marriage. Is there increased chance of birth defects? Or heredity? Is there a chance of her having more seizures?

I'm afraid I'm going to have to respond with statistics rather than absolute assurances. But I can tell you outright that epilepsy of the type your daughter has (grand mal type) is not usually inherited. It results from sudden burts of brain cell activity that may be the result of brain scar forming from an old injury. It may also occur as a complication of some other medical problem or, as in most cases, for reasons we cannot pinpoint.

I can also tell you that a woman's history of seizures does not pose any threat of birth defects. Now let's talk about the statistics.

When a person has been seizure free from two to four years, many doctors discontinue medication. If seizures began in childhood, 70 to 80 percent of those taken off medication will be seizure free thereafter. That seems to be your daughter's category. When seizures start later in life, as many as 50 percent may have a recurrences and have to start the medicine again.

The longer a person is seizure free, the better the chances of remaining that way. No one can give you 100 percent assurance, however, but your daughter's long seizure-free period bodes well for her future. I gather from your letter that the important question relates to inheritance. That, I repeat, does not usually occur with your daughter's form.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Say a word, please about blood donation. I work in a blood donation center, and we encounter many people who truly believe they can get AIDS by donating blood. I mean in the process of donating blood. It sounds ridiculous, but they do. How about setting the record straight? — Mrs. F.J.

You are not alone in expressing concern. A survey by the American Association of Blood Banks shows that as many as a third of all Americans still believe this. Of course, it is not so. The process of blood donation is AIDS-free and always has been.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

Aggies capture SWC baseball tourney

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Maury Martin singled in the winning run to cap a five-run seventh inning as Texas A&M downed Baylor 7-6 Monday to win the Southwest Conference baseball tournament.

The Aggies will take a 44-21 record against South Florida at 3 p.m. Thursday in an NCAA South Regional tournament in Tallahassee, Fla.

A&M, co-champions of the regular SWC season, won the tournament with three straight victories, beating Arkansas 4-0 and Baylor 8-0 and 7-6.

Baylor southpaw Blaine Beatty, who turned back Texas 13-5 on Friday, held the Aggies through six innings and was nursing a 6-2 lead as A&M came to bat in the seventh.

Jeff Schow led off with a solo homer over the leftfield wall. Then with one out, Scott Livingston singled, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Mike Scanlon's single up the middle to make it 6-4.

Pat James' hard grounder hit Scanlon for an automatic second out. Fred Gegen worked Beatty for a walk to move James to second. Then Don Wren's grounder was first bobbled by second baseman Shawn McAfee and then got past rightfielder Brad Douglas. Both James and Gegen scored on the two errors and Wren raced around to third.

Bruce Aguilar came on to relieve Beatty (10-4,) and Martin singled between third and short to score Wren.

The victory went to lefthander Pat Wernig (8-4,) who came on for starter Gary Geiger in the second inning. The Bears then had a 4-1 lead.

Baylor upped it to 6-1 in the fifth when Mike Malinak hit a two-run homer. A&M got one back in the bottom of the fifth when Ever Magallanes doubled home Martin, who had singled.

Magallanes, who had eight hits in 13 appearances, was voted the tournament's most valuable player.

Baylor finished the tournament with a 40-22 record.

Two other SWC teams made the NCAA playoffs. Texas will start against Southern Illinois in a Central Regional matchup in Austin and Arkansas will meet Oregon State in a Midwest Regional contest in Stillwater, Okla.

West German teen does number on Navratilova

BERLIN (AP) — The long domination of women's tennis by Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd ay be nearing an end, thanks to West German teen-ager Steffi Graf.

Graf, a modest 16-year-old, is challenging the two long-reigning leaders and is surpassing even her own goals.

"My aim for this year was to stabilize my position in the top 10 in the world. Now I am already No. 3," Graf said Monday after beating Navratilova 6-2, 6-3 in 64 minutes to win the West German Open.

It was Graf's 20th straight singles victory and fourth consecutive tournament championship.

It was also Graf's first career victory over Navratilova, and the world's No. 1 female player broke into tears after her upset defeat. In three previous encounters, Graf had failed to take even a set off the American.

In their last match prior to Berlin, Navratilova demolished Graf 6-2, 6-2 March 22 in the Virginia Slims Finals in New York.

Since then, Graf has been unstoppable. Her first-ever tournament victory came in Hilton Head, S.C., where she defeated both Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia and Lloyd, the No. 2-ranked female in the world.

Graf then won at Amelia Island, Fla., where she outplayed compatriot Claudia Kohde-Kilsch, and in Indianapolis, where she defeated Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina in the the final of the U.S. Clay Courts Championships.

With her victory over Navratilova, Graf has now beaten all of the top-ranked players this year and has emerged as a title contender at the French Open, which starts next Monday on the clay courts of Paris.

"Navratilova is still the No. 1 in the world. And Chris Evert Lloyd is still unchallengable for No. 2 when she plays faultlessly," Graf said. "But they don't like playing on clay.

"Whether I can get even closer to them in Paris, well, we'll just have to wait and see. Before, I used to be a little bit scared of playing Martina and Chris. Now, it's their turn to be scared of me."

The No. 1 ranking among women's tennis players has belonged to Lloyd or Navratilova for so long that it's difficult to remember when someone else was at the top. In fact, it was 1974 and the name was Billie Jean King.

Between them, the Lloyd and Navratilova have won 30 Grand Slam singles championships.

Graf said that for the time being at least she was contnt to leave the No. 1 ranking in familiar hands.

"I don't want to put extra pressure on myself," she said. "I am going to relax at my home in Bruehl, near Heidelberg, where I can have all the peace I want. I will read some books and a lot of newspapers to catch up on world affairs, in which I am very interested."

Graf's father, Peter, who also is her coach, said his daughter is very relaxed before matches, often deeply involved reading books in the locker rooms right up to the moment she is called out to the court.

Graf trains for long hours every day and her father has installed a court near the family house. She lifts weights and also runs and jumps rope with weights tied to her ankles to improve her speed.

On court, she displays formidable power. A right-hander, she has a punishing forehand and a wicked service.

Graf's latest impressive series has finally helped her steal some media attention from another German tennis star, Boris Becker, who stunned the world by becoming the youngest man, at 17, to win Wimbledon last year.

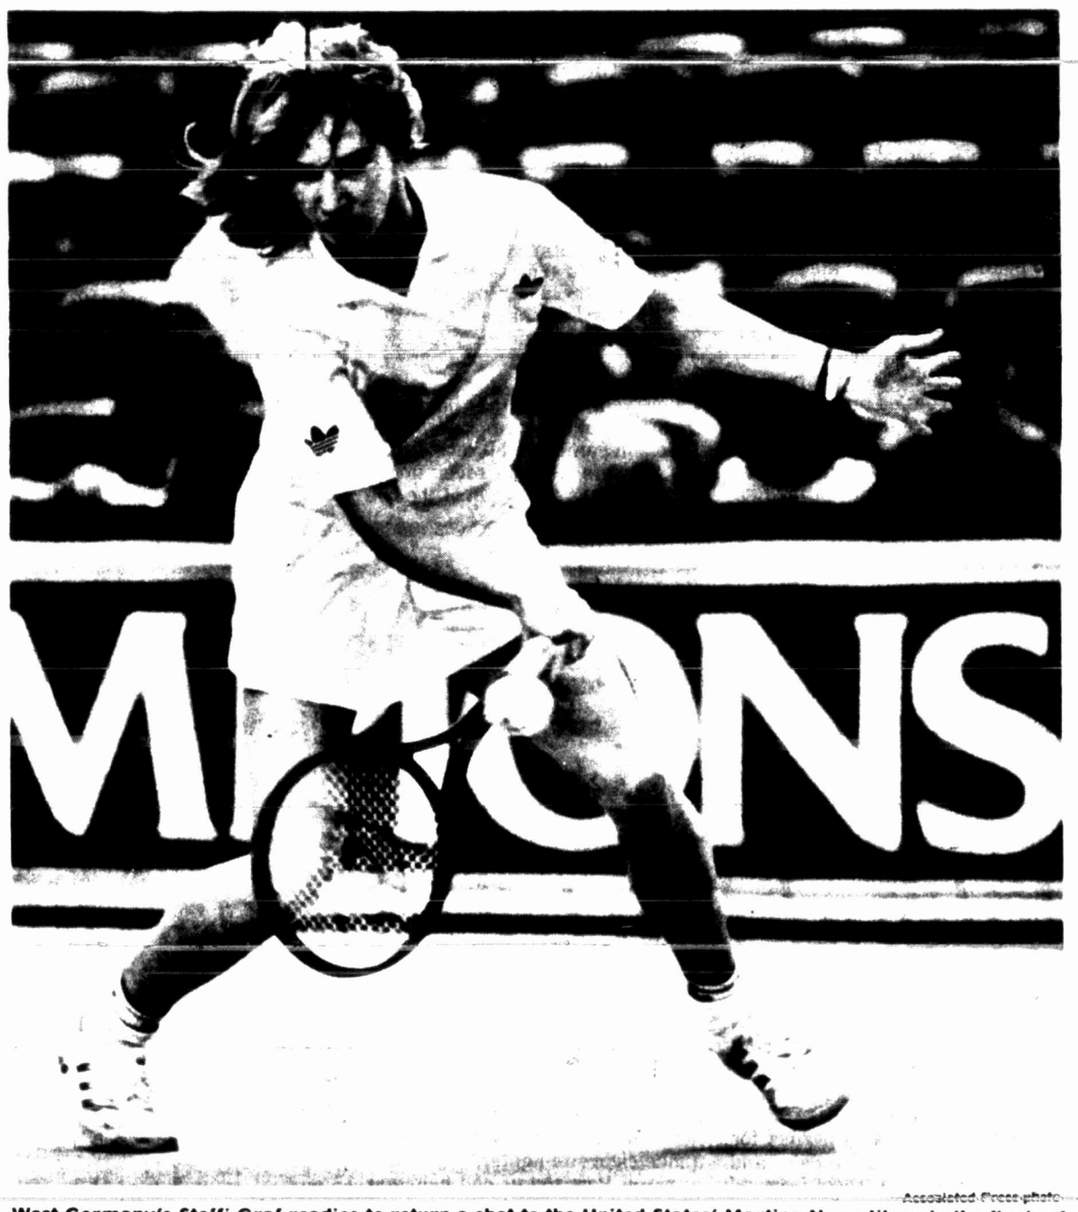

Becker, who is having an up-and-down season this year, was credited for promoting the game in West Germany and creating a tennis boom. Graf doesn't mind living in Becker's shadow.

"I am a very relaxed type, and I am not arrogant," she said.

While Becker's sensational rise had focused attention on West Germany's men tennis players, it is the women who have been quietly climbing the ladder of success.

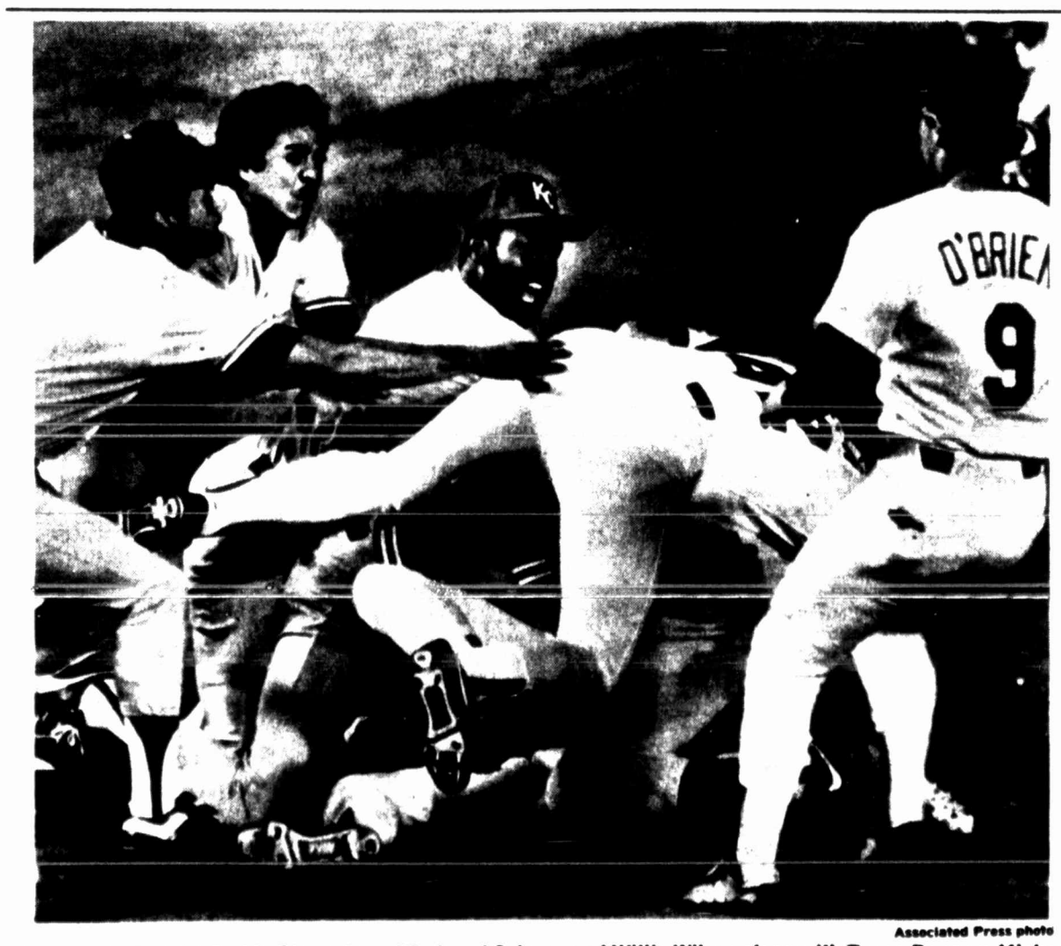

Becker, at No. 5, is the only West German man ranked among the top 20 in the world.

Graff is No. 3, and Kohde-Kilsch is No. 4 among the women, making West Germany the second most powerful nation after the United States in women's tennis, at least according to rankings.

Kansas City Royals' Buddy Biancalana (1), Angel Salazar and Willie Wilson along with Texas Rangers Mickey Mahler and Pete O'Brien (9) pile on top of the Royals' Rudy Law and Rangers' Steve Buechele after they scuffled in the eighth inning last night in Arlington.

Royals outbrawl Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Kansas City Royals came away with a 6-4 win over the Texas Rangers last night.

Mark Gubicza, 2-4, won his second straight game for Kansas City after losing his first four. Gubicza struck out eight and walked three in six innings of work.

The game was marred by a brief bench-clearing fight in the eighth inning between Rangers third baseman Steve Buechele and Rudy Law. Law slid into third and as the throw got away from Buechele, Law came up from his slide and bumped Buechele, who then shoved Law. Law grabbed Buechele and was wrestled to the ground in a headlock. Both benches emptied but order was restored quickly.

"I didn't want to fight" Law said. "I was just trying to tell him not to push me. I just don't want him to embarrass me in front of the people."

Steve Farr came on to pitch the last three inings to pick up his third save. In his last six appearances, Farr has pitched 13.1 innings and not allowed a run on six hits.

Bobby Witt, 2-3, took the loss.

Kansas City added three runs in the fourth.

Pete Incaviglia scored the Rangers first run in the fourth on Texas' first hit with his eighth homer of the season.

The Rangers picked up two more runs in the sixth. Incaviglia doubled home Pete O'Brien from first with one out. Incaviglia moved to third on a wild pitch by Gubicza and scored on Larry Parrish's infield single.

Kansas City tacked on two insurance runs in the eighth on singles by Angel Salazar, Lonnie Smith, Law and Brett.

Indians 6, Blue Jays 4

Phil Niekro outdueled Dave Steib as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 6-4.

George Bell staked Stieb to a 2-0 lead with a two-run double in the first inning, but the Indians came back with a run in the second, three in the third, one in the fifth and one more in the ninth.

Damaso Garcia's run-scoring single in the fourth and Cliff Johnson's solo homer in the eighth had pulled Toronto to within a run before Joe Carter provided some insurance for Cleveland by driving in his third run of the game with a single in the ninth.

Mel Hall keyed Cleveland's 13-hit attack, going 4-for-4 with a double and triple. He scored three runs and drove in one, and Chris Bando drove in two runs.

Red Sox 8, Twins 7

Jim Rice drew a bases-loaded walk with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning, forcing home the tying run, and Mark Sullivan was then hit by a pitch, giving Boston its victory over Minnesota.

Twins reliever Ron Davis entered the game to start the ninth with Minnesota leading 7-6. But after retiring the first two Boston batters, Davis walked Marty Barrett and gave up a double to Wade Boggs that sent Barrett to third.

Bill Buckner, who hit a home run and an RBI single earlier in the game, was then intentionally walked, loading the bases. Rice fouled off five pitches before walking on a 3-2 delivery. Sullivan was hit in the thigh by an 0-1 pitch from Davis, 1-4.

Joe Sambito worked the ninth for Boston and won his first decision of the season. It was Sambito's first major-league victory since 1981.

Kent Hrbek hit a two-run homer and Tom Brunansky followed with a home run, keying a five-run fifth inning that gave visiting Minnesota a 7-4 lead. Hrbek also had an RBI double in the first.

To North Dallas

Texas Rangers making plans to move?

ARLINGTON (AP) — Mayor Harold Patterson says Texas Rangers owner Eddie Chiles has told him he is considering moving the American League baseball club to a location north of Dallas.

Patterson said the conversation with Chiles occurred Thursday morning while discussing concessions the Rangers are seeking in the Rangers' sale of 12 acres of land near Arlington Stadium.

But Chiles denied any conversation took place with Patterson on the matter.

"A statement like that may have been made by somebody from the Rangers," said Chiles, "but it didn't come from me. I don't remember even talking to Harold Patterson in person or on the phone in months."

But Patterson said he spoke directly with Chiles in a conference call.

"His statement to me was the fact that he had been looking, and had the opportunity to move the club to an area that was interested north of Dallas," said Patterson.

"He said that the organization had given that (move) consideration, and he would consider moving it irregardless of what happened" regarding the concessions.

Chiles said ¾had had "indirect contact" with a community interested in moving the American League team away from Arlington but said such a move is not under serious consideration.

"We have had overtures to move the team," said Chiles. "But I didn't make any threat (to the city of Arlington), and we have not answered any overtures or asked for them. Other than what people have said to us, we've made no reply."

Rangers officials want to transform Johnson Creek, which cuts through the southern part of Arlington Stadium, into a riverwalk shopping area that would include a hotel, sports medicine clinic and restaurants.

The Arlington City Council is considering the proposed creek development.

Chiles would not disclose what community had made a bid for the team site.

"It was an indirect contact, not with me," said Chiles. "I have not talked to anybody and don't intend to. But it has been suggested to some of our people."

Chiles said earlier of complaints concerning accessibility to Arlington Stadium and dealings with the 12-acre creek site by officials in the city that is located between Dallas and Fort Worth.

Vet leading Flames on road to S.C. title

MONTREAL (AP) — The Calgary Flames would do well to follow John Tonelli in their search for the Stanley Cup. He knows the way.

"He's put the team all together with his enthusiasm," Flames veteran Lanny McDonald said of Tonelli. "He's got four Stanley Cup rings, and he's shown all of us what it takes to get there."

Tonelli, who helped the New York Islanders win four Stanley Cup titles, is within three victories of winning a fifth championship ring. But boosting Calgary toward the title was the last thing on Tonelli's mind when the National Hockey League season began last October.

"I had a dream of finishing my career in New York," Tonelli said.

That dream ended in March when the Islanders traded Tonelli to the Flames for a couple of young players, Steve Konroyd and Richard Kromm.

Konroyd, Kromm and the rest of the Islanders fell out of the playoffs in the opening round, while Tonelli and his new teammates advanced to the Stanley Cup finals against the Montreal Canadiens.

After splitting two games at Calgary, the series moves to Montreal for Game 3 tonight.

Tonelli was considered one of the hardest workers on a hard-working Islanders team that won four straight Stanley Cups from 1980-83.

But Tonelli's relationship with Islander management deteriorated when he held out for more money last summer on the option year of his contract. Tonelli, coming off the only 100-point season of his career, missed training camp and eventually came back to the Islanders after signing in an atmosphere of bitterness.

Things were never the same for Tonelli after that in New York. After being benched during a game at Minnesota, he didn't talk to Islanders Coach Al Arbour or general manager Bill Torrey for six weeks. He even stopped talking to the media, believing they had betrayed him during the bitter contract negotiations.

"Arbour promised me that he'd never trade me away from New York," Tonelli said at one point.

Arbour's response?

"He didn't talk to me for six weeks. What did he expect?"

A native of Milton, Ontario, Tonelli wasn't completely unhappy with the trade. He played well when the Canada Cup was held at Calgary in 1984 and had fond memories of the area.

Tonelli came into his own during the playoffs. He has seven goals, including scores in each of the two games in the finals.

"He's the epitome of the second effort," teammate Doug Risebrough said. "He's just one of those guys who isn't going to give up. He's his own type of player out there and he's certainly a model for a lot of young people out there, especially for the young guys who are just coming into this game."

Tonelli's work ethic goes back to his childhood.

"I learned to appreciate hard work through my dad, Alec," Tonelli said. "When I was growing up back in Milton, Ontario, I can remember my dad holding two jobs.

"I remember him coming home from the steel mill, then going out to the farm to take out another job. He'd plow the fields, pick up bales of hay ... all-around jobs, just whatever he had to do to earn his paycheck."

Tonelli is many things to many Flames. Riseborough likens Tonelli to a "buzz saw with skates on it." McDonald calls him a "bearded rotar tiller."

"I'll admit John's skating style certainly is a bit unorthodox," Riseborough says. "But I learned a long time ago that in this game, it's not so much what you look like as it is how well you get the job done."

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Inland Port 213 has gifts for grads and dads

It's time for graduation and Father's Day gift planning. Inland Port 213 has a multitude of gift ideas for honoring your favorite graduate or father.

Anything personal is perfect for graduates, such as men's and women's manicure sets, jewelry, musical jewelry boxes, money clips and key rings.

Especially for girls, Inland Port carries Majorica pearls from Spain in necklaces and earrings. Collectibles such as clowns, Austrian crystal and Sabino opalescent crystal, also are nice gifts.

Many Father's Day gifts also make perfect graduation gifts for young men. Inland Port suggests chess sets from Italy, Russia, Germany, China and Spain, miniature cars to scale, book ends, wooden men's valets, men's jewelry in 14k gold and diamonds, dominoes and pocket watches by Colibri. Father may also enjoy a musical bar set or a nice cigarette lighter.

Inland Port's staff can help you find something special for your gift giving needs. The store brings to Big Spring the finest and most unusual items from throughout the world. Its treasures are from Germany, Italy, India, Portugal, Switzerland, Romania, Japan, China, Austria, France and the United States.

Visit Inland Port 213 before you decide on that important gift. The store is located at 213 S. Main.
