Bribery Attempts Charged In East Texas Flogging Trials

Local Firm Wins—
An Obdurate Jury—
Bailey 'Agin' Again—
A Pennant Fund—

OFFICIALS of the Wichita Falls Motor company, manufacturers of Wichita trucks, rejoice at the placing of 10 trucks in the service of the state highway department.

Leaders of this company hope to be able to increase the number of local trucks used by the state in the future, after a dozen or so different makes have been thoroughly tested in highway work.

Prices and performance being equal over a course of time, the writer sees no reason why highway officials should not show favor to this Texas-made product.

A JURY in Judge E. G. Thornton's court refuses the plea of W. W. Wells, accused of auto theft for a suspended sentence. The prisoner said he was a college graduate and a member of a prominent California family, but the jury could not find sufficient reason for him not serving two years in the penitentiary.

College graduates must answer to the law just as their less fortunate fellows. It is the exception to the rule, however, when the man or woman who has been able to secure a college or university degree must serve time behind the bars.

FORMER SENATOR JOSEPH WELDON BAILEY has let it be known that he will vote against all four amendments to the constitution. This former senator runs true to form. He never did have any use for amendments of the constitutional brand. He opposed all the amendments to the federal constitution.

Former Senator Bailey has scant respect for amendments to the state constitution, although the constitution was made fifty years ago. All the wisdom of all the ages was exhausted in its making. This is the theory of the good and true men who are opposed to any change or innovation.

THIS is a free country and it is the privilege of the qualified voter to vote according to the dictates of his conscience on election day. When the constitution was made Texas was an infant. Now Texas is a giant of heroic mould, a giant swathed in baby clothes in the sight of thinking men and women.

MEMBERS of the pennant fund committee, soliciting their first subscriptions Wednesday afternoon, were given $425 by a half dozen loyal business men. Others should be quick to follow.

Wichita Falls baseball fans and Wichita Falls business men should contribute alike to the pennant fund. This city has a team headed for its first Texas League pennant, barring accidents or injury before the end of the season, and it has one of the greatest teams in the history of the Texas league.

LOOKING at the matter of a pennant fund from a purely commercial viewpoint, the thinking man or woman will know that a pennant and a Dixie series championship will be of inestimable value to Wichita Falls. Money can not buy the publicity that this city will receive from participating in the Dixie Series, nor would a dozen good-will tours the Wichita Falls more closely to its friendly neighboring towns.

But Wichita Falls is not looking at the pennant fund as a commercial proposition. The spirit of the city is, and has always been, to bestow proper recognition and reward for services well performed.

Greet Pennant Fund committee workers with a grin and open your purse because you are loyal to Wichita Falls in anything from pennants to peanuts, not because you want to match dollars for a championship.

FARMER JAILED BY OFFICERS IN BRIBE QUIZ

Automobiles and Cash To Witnesses Is Offer, Probe Bares

RANGERS ACTIVE

Concerted Effort To Balk Prosecution Alleged By Police

By Universal Service.

MARSHALL, Texas, July 20.—C. H. Hughes, tenant farmer on the Jewel Anderson farm, six miles west of here, was arrested today by Ranger C. M. Ezell on a warrant charging him with attempting to bribe witnesses in the Richardson-Strapps flogging case. Hughes was lodged in jail here to await a hearing.

Hughes, according to County Attorney John E. Taylor, proposed to give certain important state witnesses a small automobile, a hundred dollars, and to buy their wagon and team for $80 if they would leave the county and not appear against Cain Anderson and Dewitt Osborne, who were recently indicted on eight counts by a special grand jury that investigated the flogging.

Several Offers Charged.

Several offers were made on different occasions, it is alleged, each of which was rejected.

Cain Anderson and Dewitt Osborne are now at liberty under bond to await trial on charges of violating the anti-mask law in connection with the flogging of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Richardson and Mrs. W. A. Strapps on the night of June 8.

In discussing Hughes arrest, County Attorney Taylor said:

"The concerted attempts by certain individuals to bribe the witnesses in certain criminal cases scheduled for trial in the district court next Monday, strikes at the very foundation of the courts of the county. If such conduct is tolerated in the slightest degree, the rights of society in duly constituted courts of the country will be seriously jeopardized and the trial of criminal cases will become a farce.

"No individual, or set of individuals, have the power to hinder enforcement of the law in these, or any other cases, by using such methods even though they may think that such is possible. It is just another case where the law prevailed instead of the efforts of the criminal.'

68 Witnesses Called.

District Clerk Charles Martin has issued 68 subpoenas in connection with the trial. Sixty-four witnesses have been summoned by the defense and only four by the state.

Taylor will be assisted in the prosecution by Joe Brown and Galloway Calhoun, assistant state attorney generals, and Davidson, Blalock and Blalock.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., July 20. (AP)—Two unidentified "tramps" were killed and two more seriously injured on a Katy freight train which was wrecked near Eufaula this morning, according to word received here. None of the train crew was injured. Twenty cars were derailed after a wheel of a box car midway of the train climbed a rail causing all following cars to leave the track.

WHO WILL IT BE? J. DEMPSEY OR J. SHARKEY?

Wichita Falls Folk Pick Winner of Tonight's Battle—Dempsey Is The Favorite

Walter Robbins, insurance: "Oh, I dunno. If Dempsey's still got the eyes he used to have it's just too bad for Sharkey."

Lyman Lamb: "I'd like to bet $10 on Dempsey."

A. B. Ross, theatrical producer: "It looks like they're trying to 'build' Dempsey up as a 'sure' winner. They'll make more money if they can make everybody think Dempsey is going to win." From which one would infer it is all wrong, Mabel, and Mr. Sharkey already has the cat in the bag.

M. Mitcham, market and groveryman: "Dempsey will win in a walk. He has been a very good boy lately and I certainly hope he wins."

H. E. Cabiness, the power behind the throne at the Panhandle refinery: "Dempsey will win in the seventh round."

W. D. Brookover, manufacturer of Brookfield sausages: "It doesn't matter who wins."

J. W. Pond, laundry owner: "Why I really believe, that Dempsey's going to 'whup'."

W. R. Duke, oil, ooth mineral and oratorical: "Mr. Dempsey, thanks."

P. L. Myers, chiropractor: "I feel Dempsey's the man."

J. A. Gardner, oil man: "I THINK Dempsey will win and I HOPE the Spudders will."

Gene Lucas, Western Union ticktick expert: "I believe it will be Dempsey. How do I qualify that statement? Oh, with about a hundred."

Guy Raley, county tax collector: "I can't see anybody but Dempsey in six rounds. The former champion should make Sharkey hear the birdies sing in the sixth. Tunney caught Dempsey when he wasn't 'right.' It will be a different Dempsey Thursday night than in October, 1926."

JACK DEMPSEY

E. F. Fruechte, assistant district attorney: "Dempsey will be back in his old time form Thursday night and should end up his fight with Sharkey in the early rounds. If Jack doesn't put the k. o. on Sharkey in the early rounds Dempsey will be outpointed."

Miss Bonnye Davis, deputy sheriffess in the office of Sheriff W. G. Bralley: "Sharkey's going to win. Dempsey is too old. That's about all I know about it."

John Dunford, Texan hotel staff: "Unless Jack Dempsey shoves through his 'man-sinker' within the first three rounds, Sharkey will hang up another 'win.' My money is on Sharkey."

Roy A. Jones, first deputy county tax collector: "It'll be all over now in the sixth stanza when Dempsey starts his pile driver for the k. o. punch on Sharkey's map. Sharkey in the first place is too sure of winning, according to newspaper reports, and this is one of the reasons I look for him to be sleeping for 10 seconds in the sixth round."

W. J. Howard: "Dempsey will win in three rounds."

Miss Jim Covey: "I hope Dempsey gets whipped all over the country. He's been getting too smart here lately."

Joe Dickey, legal light: "I'm picking Sharkey to win. He'll knock Dempsey out in the sixth."

Paul Colvert, that big ice cream man: "Sharkey's my man."

C. P. Wilson, deputy constable: "The fight Thursday night looks like Dempsey. The ex-champion is a hard man to beat and he is reported in much finer shape than when the Dempsey-Tunney fight was staged. I figure Dempsey's condition as a potent factor."

Frank Burns, police chief: "I am slightly in favor of Dempsey. The ex-champ is in tip-top shape, and still packs a k.o. wallop."

Dempsey and Sharkey Meet Tonight For Big Chance At Heavy Crown

Winner Of Ring Battle, Logical Contender For World's Belt Test With Tunney

BY DAMON RUNYON
Universal Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1927, By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, July 20.—Again we have before us one of those mighty pagan spectacles that they call a prize fight, which have strangely defied the march of civilization for centuries and come at intervals as a reminder that human beings are still only a hop ahead of their club-swinging forebears of the raw-meat-eating age.

Out of the pugilistic past there stalks tomorrow night at the Yankee stadium the scowling, hairy-legged fellow known as the Manassa man mauler, who once inflamed the popular imagination by the fury of his fists, and who comes tonight seeking his lost youth.

90,000 Buy Tickets

And nearly 90,000 ordinarily sane and law-abiding citizens will be present, most of them with cheers in their throats for Jack Dempsey, for most of them are on the same trail with him.

He is the gladitorial ghost of their own departed youthful hopes, and if he should live again the pride and power of those other days, the ordinarily sane and law-abiding citizens will feel that they, too, are young again.

But many of the 90,000 citizens, younger and fresher, will be cheering for the rubbery looking youth in the other corner—the one called Jack Sharkey, who is the representative of the new generation, with its future before it.

Million-Dollar Gate

And somewhere in the background, a bald man with a cigar between his teeth, and a cane swung over his arm, will be quietly counting the gate receipts.

FIGHT PARTY OPENS AT 7 P. M.

Returns To Record News From Ringside

Arrangements for what is expected to be one of the largest "fight parties" in Wichita Falls history were completed Wednesday by The Record News, with all in readiness for the Dempsey-Sharkey battle tonight.

Everybody is invited.

The Associated Press announced Wednesday night the first preliminaries will start at 6 o'clock Wichita Falls time, and the main event at 8 o'clock. First returns will be given at The Record News office at 7 o'clock.

Two powerful microphones, arranged and installed by Roy Coffee of the Phonograph Shop, will give the returns at The Record News office, with Blondy Cross broadcasting. Two direct leased wires by Associated Press and Universal Service, will bring the blow-by-blow fight returns to Wichita Falls fans from the ringside. Operators estimate that reports on blows in Wichita Falls will be less than one-half a second later than the actual event in New York.

Through the co-operation of Police Commissioner Roy Carter, The Record News is able this morning to assure fight fans of the maximum of comfort and safety in receiving the reports. Mr. Carter will station several officers in the block to direct traffic, and if the crowd is too large, will temporarily direct traffic into other channels, leaving fight fans in possession of the block.

Wife Of Wealthy Man Would Cancel Divorce

TOWANDA, Pa., July 20. (AP)—The contention of Mrs. Elizabeth Willetts is that in 1914 when a bank loaned her husband, then a bricklayer, $27,000 which he soon turned into millions, earning $278,000 in one year alone as a New York contractor. She is seeking to have her divorce set aside on the ground that she obtained it fraudulently at his instigation.

STATE TAX CUT SAVES $42,000

Wichita County Owners Benefit Greatly

Due to the six-cent reduction in the state ad valorem tax made Wednesday by the state tax board, citizens of Wichita county will save approximately $42,000 in the payment of 1927 taxes, Guy Raley, county tax collector said Wednesday night.

Mr. Raley computed his figures on an estimation that the total assessment value in Wichita county for 1927 will be $71,000,000, an increase over the 1926 total which was $69,000,000.

As the state ad valorem tax in 1927 will be 26 cents per $100 valuation, citizens of Wichita county, based on an assessment total of $71,000,000, will pay the state $184,600. In 1926 with a state ad valorem tax of 32 cents on a $69,000,000 valuation the citizens paid approximately $220,800.

Although the total assessment value in the county will be increased by approximately $2,000,000 in 1927 over 1926, nevertheless due to the six-cent state tax reduction the citizens of the county will remit $36,200 less to the state for taxes in 1927 than in 1926.

MOODY ANNOUNCES CUT IN STATE TAX RATE.

AUSTIN, July 20. (AP)—Prospects for a reduction of the state tax rate for the biennium were seen today in statements of Gov. Dan Moody and State Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher, members of the automatic tax board, meeting of which, twice delayed, now is scheduled for Thursday morning here.

Gov. Moody at Dallas advocated an ad valorem rate for this year of 26 cents or lower, exclusive of the supreme court and pension tax, and Treasurer Hatcher declared that present 23 cent rate can be maintained without putting the state on deficiency. Hatcher quoted figures to show a rate of 25 cents general, 35 cents school, and 7 cents pension, or 65 cents total state tax, would produce enough money to take care of appropriations and leave a balance, counting what will be left in the treasury anyway.

The combined ad valorem rate for the last two years has been 58 cents, 35 for the first year and 23 cents for the second. Gov. Moody advocated a cut for the coming biennium that will reduce the combined rate to 52 cents.

SPANKS HIS WIFE

So Court Gives Hubby Penalty For Acting Too Rudely

WASHINGTON, July 20. (AP)—A husband has been sentenced to six months in jail for spanking his wife because she bobbed her hair. Judge Robert E. Mattingly in police court held the case constituted "an unwarranted assault."

Mrs. Clyde L. Carr told the court her husband flew into a rage when she returned from the barber, grabbed her by her remaining tresses and violently paddled her with the palm of his hand.

The judge said his own wife had bobbed her hair without his knowledge, but he "did not get into police court over it."

TWO IN BOOM FOR ENVOY TO MEXICO CITY

Creager Of Texas Said To Hold Inside Track For Post

By Universal Service.

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 20.—Thomas E. Campbell, former governor of Arizona, tonight loomed as a possible successor to James R. Sheffield as ambassador to Mexico. Telegrams and letters citing Campbell's fitness for the ambassadorial post are being received by President Coolidge from organizations and prominent citizens in all sections of the country. Campbell served two terms as governor, is a past president of the league of the southwest and was chairman of the governor's committee on development of the Colorado river.

TEXAN REPORTED AS POSSIBLE AMBASSADOR

HOUSTON, July 20. (AP)—R. B. Creager of Brownsville, Republican national committeeman for Texas, who is in Houston on business matters declined to comment on rumors that he had been offered the post of ambassador to Mexico by President Coolidge.

"Three years ago before Mr. Sheffield was appointed I was offered the post," Mr. Creager said.

"At that time I made my reasons clear why I could not accept the post.

"In the first place, the financial outlay required to maintain the position of an ambassador is too great in comparison with the salary paid. And, too, it would mean the giving up of my business connections."

Mr. Creager, however, declined to state whether or not his views on accepting the diplomatic post had changed during the past three years.

He declined to state whether or not he had again been offered the appointment since the resignation of Ambassador Sheffield.

Creager for Obregon

"Conditions in Mexico are too chaotic at the present time to expect great things to be accomplished," he declared. "If Obregon is elected to succeed Calles, as he probably will be I expect conditions to continue to improve in Mexico. However, it is going to take years, possibly generations for Mexico to establish a secure political and economic status."

Mr. Creager was optimistic concerning Republican chances in the elections a year hence.

"The Republicans will put a complete ticket in the field in Texas," he said, "and if Al Smith is nominated by the Democrats I believe we will be able to put up a good fight in the 'solid south' hoodoo notwithstanding.

"The Republican delegation from Texas will go to the national convention instructed to vote solid for Calvin Coolidge," Mr. Creager predicted.

PEASE RIVER SURVEY DATA PUT ON FILE

State Water Permit To Be Asked, Backers Decide

WATER FOR CITIES

Burk Affected
Electra, Vernon, Crowell, Iowa Park, Quanah,

By MILBURN LEMONS.
(Record News Special Correspondent.)

VERNON, July 20.—Boundaries of the proposed Pease river irrigation district were agreed upon by the board of directors of the Pease and Red River Valleys Irrigation association at a meeting held here Wednesday afternoon and the final report of the preliminary surveys of Floyd and Locheridge, consulting engineers, was accepted and approved by the board.

The proposed area will be called the Pease Water Improvement District No. 2, and it will include approximately 300,000 acres of land. It will also provide an unlimited water supply for the cities of Vernon, Electra, Iowa Park, Burkburnett, Quanah and Crowell. The final district to be irrigated will include approximately 150,000 acres to be selected from the preliminary district of 300,000 acres, according to O. N. Floyd, one of the consulting engineers.

Prepare Petition.

The board of directors voted to prepare petitions as required by law and that these petitions be circulated in the several communities included in the district proposed. Although the law requires only fifty signatures of property taxpaying voters, it is planned to secure several thousand signers before the petition is presented to the state board of water engineers.

The report of the preliminary survey of the project prepared by Floyd and Locheridge met the approval of the board of directors. Assuming that the cities and towns included in the preliminary district vote to stay in the permanent district, it is estimated by Mr. Floyd that the cost per acre will not exceed a total of $37, which was the approximate cost of the Wichita county irrigation project.

Signatures Needed.

When a sufficient number of signatures have been obtained, the petitions, together with the report of the preliminary survey, will be presented to the state water board of engineers requesting authority to organize the district, vote on the issuance of notes to finance the detailed survey and to vote on the election of five directors of the district. The petitions will probably be ready by the latter part of next week and it is assumed that several months will be required in circulating the petitions and explaining the project to the property owners.

It is proposed to locate the dam three miles west of Quanah on the Quanah-Crowell highway and to impound water from the Pease river to furnish an unlimited supply for the cities in the district and for the 150,000 acres proposed to be irrigated.

The directors of the association were entertained as luncheon guests of the Vernon Chamber of Commerce at the meeting Wednesday. W. W. Anderson, president of the chamber, opened the meeting with a short address of welcome, assuring the directors of the support of local people. Those attending the meeting were as follows:

CLUB TOLD OF PLAGUE FIGHT

Anti-Tuberculosis Society Urged Here

Request that the Optimist club join in the movement for the establishment of a Wichita County Anti-Tuberculosis association was voted at the luncheon of that organization Wednesday noon by Ancil A. Spencer, chairman of a group of citizens endeavoring to combat the disease here.

Mr. Spencer, who was principal speaker at the luncheon, asked that a committee be named to assist in the formation of the association. He indicated that all luncheon clubs and organizations of Wichita Falls will be asked to lend their support to the movement.

Two years ago, declared the speaker, it was his impression that tuberculosis did not exist here. He had cause to investigate and discovered that one out of every 17 deaths in Wichita Falls in 1926 was due to this disease.

The financing of the new organization can be largely affected through the diversion of 60 per cent of funds now sent out of the county for Christmas seals all of which now goes to the Texas Public Health association, the speaker declared.

Miss Jean M. Campbell, who is conducting a survey of tuberculosis cases here as representative of the Texas Public Health association, spoke on the necessity of work to combat disease.

Eyes Of Nation On Big Battle

ly watching the count-up of a gate of over $1,000,000.

This man is George Tex Rickard, who urbanely trades between the generations and on the astonishing human lust for blood and battle that is a spiritual throw-back to the apes.

In all the long history of the manly art of scrambling ears no pugilistic presentation that did not involve a championship title has attracted as much interest as this.

The interest is largely due to the man Dempsey, for eight years holder of the heavyweight title, and the subject of about as much publicity as any individual in the United States has ever received.

He lost the title to Gene Tunney, ex-marine, in a dull, dreary, rain-washed struggle of ten rounds in the Sesqui-Centennial stadium in Philadelphia last September, offering the least spirited resistance of any champion in losing his title in many years.

He is meeting tomorrow night a young fellow who was in the United States navy when Dempsey was in his hey-day, and who is either one of the greatest fighters or one of the most amazing bluffs that pugilism has ever known.

Josef Cukoschay, who was called Battling Siki in the navy, is the man. Oddly enough, one of the names he now uses for the convenience of the ring was adopted from the man he is fighting tonight.

Cukoschay is of Lithuanian parentage. He was born in Binghampton, N. Y., but claims Boston as his home.

Dempsey Was His Idol.

When he laced on his first pair of boxing gloves, Jack Dempsey was his idol, and he took the name of Jack from Dempsey, and the name of Sharkey from old Tom Sharkey, the Irish-born heavyweight pride of the navy in other days, who will be at the ringside tonight.

After Dempsey lost his title to Tunney strange rumors traveled in the wake of the battle, as is nearly always in the case in these affairs.

It was said that he was mentally harassed by this troubles with Jack Kearns, his former manager; that he was suffering from an organic ailment, and even that he was given a jolt of some disturbing element in his milk.

Many False Rumors.

Also there were rumors that he was under a "Yank" to Tunney, that he deliberately permitted the ex-marine to win his title, for the purpose of a betting coup, a rumor that could never quite be reconciled with the betting odds of 2 to 1 on Dempsey at the opening bell.

Nor does it square with the fact that, whereas Dempsey got $715,000 for the fight with Tunney, he is now getting $250,000 for the meeting with Sharkey.

But the public is always reluctant to accept the passing of an old champion until he is flat on his back, and thus it is that Dempsey remains the magnet that is drawing the million dollar gate tonight. The man who wins this battle will undoubtedly meet Gene Tunney for the title in Chicago in September.

Sharkey Favorite.

Sharkey may enter the ring the favorite at 2 to 1 in the betting, though Dempsey will be the sentimental favorite. The gentlemen who fix the betting odds have no sentiment about these matters. They simply do not think it is in the cards for Dempsey to defeat the immutable law of the game, which is, "they don't come back."

At 32, and after years of easy living, Dempsey is meeting a man eight years younger, who is just as big as Dempsey, just as strong, much faster, and a far better boxer, lacking only the punch to give him 100 per cent advantage over the ex-champion.

Dempsey's admirers are relying on Dempsey's punch to offset the Sharkey youth, and speed, and all the rest, but they are thinking of the Dempsey punch of some years ago. No one can rightly say what the Dempsey punch is today.

Tale of Injury.

Then there is the tale that Dempsey injured his left arm in training at Saratoga, and it is a surething no one-armed man can beat the nimble Lithuanian from Boston.

When you consider all the circumstances, you can see that there is some basis for the favoritism of Sharkey. He opened at 7 to 5 in the betting, and has gone as high as 2 to 1 in spots, and has held steady at an average of 8 to 5.

Little money has been wagered on the fight, however, because there is little Dempsey money in the field. It is all for Sharkey. This is the first time since he won the title that Dempsey has been on the short end of the betting. Usually he has gone to the post 2 to 1, and sometimes as high as 4 to 1, as in the case of the fight with Georges Carpentier.

Reports Confusing.

The reports on Dempsey's training at Saratoga have been of the usual varying nature when the experts get to reporting on these things.

I watched him a couple of days and thought he looked well physically, but lacking in his old speed and punching. He engaged as manager for this fight, Mr. Leo "Pizen" Flynn, the old carpet-bagger of fistiana, a man who ought to know how to condition a man, if experience counts for anything.

I am inclined to think that he will bring Dempsey into the ring in as good condition as it is possible to get a fighter of Dempsey's age and manner of living.

Dempsey Is Temperate

While Dempsey does not dissipate, in the sense of drinking hard liquor, no man ever fell more gracefully into the slothfulness of sudden wealth and luxury than this same Jack Dempsey.

He has fought but little since he won the title from old Jess Willard in 1919. He beat Billy Miske in three rounds, Georges Carpentier in four, Bill Brennan in 12, Tom Gibbons in 15, Luis Angel Firpo in two, and lost to Tunney in ten.

Outside of these ring engagements he has engaged in a lot of exhibitions and stage sparring, but this does not serve to keep a man in fighting condition.

On the other hand, Sharkey has been fighting with great regularity the last two years. He is a bragging fellow, given to the most bombastic utterances, but he has the faculty of making good what he says.

Obscured in Boston

He was obscured in Boston while his fellow citizen, Edward James Maloney, was cutting a pugilistic swath on the big time, and he had to take on fighters that the average pugilist dodges.

He fought Harry Wills at a time when many thought Wills was invincible, outboxing the old brown panther for 13 rounds, when the referee disqualified Harry for holding.

Then Sharkey beat old Mike McTigue in 11 rounds at a time when Mike was bowling over the heavies right and left.

Finally Sharkey wound up knocking out his fellow citizen, Edward James Maloney, in five rounds, a feat which got him the match with Dempsey.

Sharkey Shows Punch

But the Maloney fight was the first in which Sharkey demonstrated any kind of punch calculated to bother the iron-jawed Dempsey. Few of Sharkey's opponents have been on the floor. I think he is a good fighter, but whether it takes a good fighter to beat Dempsey remains to be seen.

It may be that the once terrible Manassa Man Mauler will just naturally stumble over after the manner of most of these old-timers when they are thoroughly washed up.

But if Dempsey's left arm is all right, and his condition is as good inside as it is outside, Sharkey will have to be a great fighter to beat him. I note that the experts seem to have benerally disregarded the possibility of the fight going 15 rounds. I would not be surprised to see that happen, and to see Dempsey get the decision.

Saw Him Twice

I have twice seen him go a distance when he was in punk condition, once against Brennan for 12 rounds, and again against Gibbons for 15. In both these battles he gradually rounded to fighting form.

I shall always believe that Dempsey's greatest mistake was when he quarreled with Jack Kearns, who jockeyed him from a hobo to the heavyweight championship of the world and a million dollars. Kearns knew Dempsey beyond any other man, knew his capabilities and his limits.

Bride Who Longs for First Thrill Is Called "Silly Goose" By Dix

The 18-Year-Old Bride Who Worries Because She No Longer Thrills Over Her Husband—Discussing What Makes a Man Tired of His Wife—The Nonmarrying Young Man About to Be Roped Into an Engagement.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 18 years old and have been married five months to one ofthe finest men in the world. When I married I was very romantically in love, but it seems that my love is not the same as it used to be. When I used to see him coming home it would thrill me to the very depths of my being. Now I am glad to see my husband, but it doesn't thrill me and I am always dreaming of my courtship days and yearning for them. I thought when I married that my feelings toward my husband would never change and that I would continue to be madly and romantically in love with him. Do you think that I married the wrong man and that I was mistaken in thinking that I loved my husband? WORRIED WIFE.

Answer: No, you poor little silly goose. All that is the matter with you is that you are coming down from the peaks of romance to the plains of everyday living and you have not adjusted yourself to it yet.

The reason that you have quit thrilling at the sound of your husband's footsteps is because it has ceased to be novelty and has become something that you expect. And besides, there is a strict time limit on thrills. Nobody can go on thrilling indefinitely over anything. As soon as we become familiar with any phenomenon we quit having palpitation of the heart over it.

So don't attach any significance to the fact that you have ceased to thrill over your husband. If you had married every romantic hero that ever figured in a novel or on the screen, you would feel the same way about him after you had been married to him five months. Married people don't go hot and cold and have fits of ague over each other. But if they love each other there is something a lot better that takes the place of thrills, and that is a feeling of peace and contentment—a feeling that, somehow, everything is all right with the world. This floods their consciousness whenever they see each other.

But for goodness sake quit dreaming about your courtship days and bemoaning that you can't keep them up. Nobody could endure a lifetime of love-making any more than he or she could stand to subsist upon a diet of chocolate creams.

All of that goery, flubdub, soft talk would bore you to tears if you had to listen to it year after year. After marriage, you don't want a man to spend his time asking you: "Oo'se darling sweetums is oo?" or "Is oo' perfectly, certainly sure oo' loves oo' itty bitty boy?" You want a man to talk like an intelligent human being and to take you into his confidence and tell you of his hopes and plans and aspirations. Nor do you want your husband to sit up and hold your hand by the hour. You want him to be employing his time at some useful occupation and leave yours free to do their own work.

So, my dear child, wake up from your trance. Shake yourself out of your sentimental dope dreams and face the fact that you are done with thrills and hectic love-making and romance, and that, while they were all well enough in their way and a pretty prelude to matrimony, that they are not the real thing. They are not life. They are not marriage. If you are to find happiness you must put all these idle dreams and repinings away and settle down to the business of being a good wife and making your marriage a success.

There is nothing that women borrow so much trouble about and waste so many idle tears upon as not being able to thrill perpetually and to keep their husbands at concent pitch at love-making.

It makes them blind to how much better the love is that proves itself in faithfulness and tenderness and sacrifices than were the vaporings of courtship.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—The main cause of a man getting tired of his wife is that she dresses to catch him before marriage and after marriage she gets careless, and her husband often sees her sloppy and untidy. Also the old women dress as young persons. We men are not deceived. They move around stiffly, not with the frace of a girl. There is a modesty inherent in man, far superior to woman, which has been proved scientifically. There is an old business proverb that says that any fool can make a business, but it takes a business man to keep one. So with husbands. It is easy to get a husband, but it is the real woman who is able to keep one.

A 60-YEAR OLD BACHELOR.

Answer: Right you are, Mr. Bachelor. Any flapper can catch a husband, but it takes a superwoman who keeps her fingers crossed for luck to hold one in these days when most men seem to be born with the wandering foot.

Of course, its disillusioning to a man to see his wife transformed from the babydoll he courted into a frowsy female in need of a hair cut and a manicure and a trip to the laundry.

But I don't believe that a great many women lose their husbands through their untidiness. Most women nowadays keep themselves quite as spick-and-span as their husbands do. The introduction of the bathtub and the bungalow apron into even the humblest homes have about eliminated that excuse for a man wandering away from his own fireside.

As for wives growing old and middle-aged and stiff, and not being able to camouflag etheir age even by short dresses and bobs, that, alas, is something else yet again, Mawruss. That is no fault of the poor ladies nor is it anything they can help, for they would gladly always remain nimble Sheebas and so retain favor in their husband's eyes. But, unfortunitely, this cannot be done, and undoubtedly many men do tire of their faithful old wives for no other reason than that they are not so gay and pretty and supple as young girls are.

Nor have I observed that the wives' skirts have anything to do with these defections. Rather has it been a matter of how little sense and how easily flattered the poor simp of a husband was by some gold-digger who evtracted diamond blacelets and silk lingerie from him while she told him what a boy he was and how much too young for his wife. Nor do I seem to recall that these men were particularly attracted to these maidens by the modesty that they displayed in dress.

My own idea is that the chief thing that makes a man tired of his wife is her temper and disposition, and that most women who lose their husbands do so through nagging and being peevish and fretful and hard to get along with.

It's very seldom that a woman who is jolly and good-natured and cheerful has any trouble about keeping her husband.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I'm a young man and I have been going with a girl for some time. I like her very much, indeed, but I am not in love with her and have never pretended to be and have no intention whatever of marrying her. But the trouble is that the girl and her family give every one the impression that we are engaged and that it is only a matter of time before we will be married. What shall I do? GEORGE R.

Answer: Flee, George, flee. Hie away to the tall timebr. For it you don't, the first thing you know you will find yourself bound hand and foot and shanghaied to the altar.

It's an old, old trick. The girl will weep on your breast anad tell you how she was sure you loved her or you wouldn't have come to see her so much, and the family will tell you that you have compromised her and kept other suitors away, and it will be all over with you. DOROTHY DIX.

MODISH MITZI — Dad Settles The Matter — By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi is wearing one of the smart three-piece costumes that are just right for camping. The skirt and sleeveless jacket are of grey, the slip-on sweater with the horizontal stripes is grey and blue. Polly wears a navy jersey skirt and a canary yellow and navy blue sweater. With costumes so effective it's natural that their plans for the day should be seriously discussed—they don't exactly want to waste these fashions on the desert air. Poor Dad is pondering dark schemes and stratagems to get in some fishing.

They finally decided to forsake the rough life of the wilds, put on some frilly clothes and be rowed across the lake to that very smart hotel for the tea dance. Dad heard them in time. That's why you see Mitzi, in a white linen frock with a printed linen jacket, and Polly n a pale yellow crepe de chine frock trimmed with tucks in a fishbone design, forsaken on the shore. They have called and called, but a sudden deafness has overtaken Dad—or perhaps it is just that the fish are biting so remarkably well.

Tomorrow: Modish cotton frocks for hot weather.

New York and Texas Are Leaders

FEDERAL commerce department figures demonstrate New York and Texas were prominent among the 48 states of the Union in furnishing commodities for exports during the first quarter of 1927. New York furnished $193,190,065 and Texas $172,035,780. California won third place, accounting for $81,244,751 while Michigan ranked fourth and shipped goods abroad worth $80,696,172. Pennsylvania was fifth with $77,973,725 and New Jersey sixth with $62,492,286.

During the quarter half of the 48 states increased their exports as compared with last year.

Texas made a far greater gain than New York. In 1926 New York exported $195,510,071 in goods. In 1927 New York exported $193,190,065. Texas in 1925 exported goods of a value of $128,875,617 while in 1927 the exports from Texas had a value of $172,035,780. This is a magnificent showing for the Lone Star state.

Texas is growing by leaps and bounds. Texas is increasing in population at a rapid rate. This despite the holdbacks or the pullbacks who believe in the antiquated systems or laws of 50 years ago and who are against everything under the sun.

So This Is Texas

IT is well for the Texan to know his Texas. A farm weekly carries the news that in 1926 there were 465,642 Texas farmers who produced 315 items with profit and sold them for $828,887,000. Between January 1 and May 24, this year, truck farmers of Texas shipped 1758 cars of potatoes, 3744 cars of onions, 4520 cars of spinach and 8686 cars of mixed vegetables, making a total of 19,708 cars of winter vegetables with a net return to the growers of $15,635,276.

Here is another bit of information. Texas leads the world in mohair production. Out of a total of 1,682,912 Angora goats in the United States there are 1,077,463 of them in Texas, with an average production of mohair about double of any other state because Texas goats are shorn twice a year.

Contracts for more than $300,000 worth of new school buildings and additions to existing structures have been let recently in Texas outside of the larger cities and towns and plans are under way for school construction to cost approximately $2,000,000. Gone are the good old days.

They Made the Journey

HATS off to Earnest L. Smith and Emory B. Bronte, pilot and navigator of the monoplane City of Oakland. They jumped from San Francisco on a non-stop flight to Hawaii. They made a dramatic landing on the island of Molokai. Their plane was smashed, but the flyers escaped injury.

It was a marvelous flight. It was a victory for the flyers.

The crossey the Pasific all right, just as Commander Byrd crossed the Atlantic. Lindbergh is the eagle of the air. He crossed the Atlantic alone. He lit at Paris alone. He made the non-stop flight of history.

Now Capt. Billy Erwin of Dallas is prapering for his jump to Hongkong. Where will be land? On a desert island, in the ocean or on Chinese territory?

It is all a gamble. It takes nerve to be a flyer. It takes poise to be a flyer. It takes brains to be a flyer. Lindbergh is supremely endowed with all three. If Ace Erwin is successful, then he will be a front page celebrity.

Away With the Fossil

FEDERAL Judge William E. Baker of West Virginia halted court proceedings to order a woman, held by the judge to be improperly dressed, removed from the courtroom. After the woman had adjusted her rolled stockings, she was permitted to return to the court. Federal Judge William E. Baker of West Virginia is a survivor of the ox-cart period of civilization. He belongs to the civilization of high top cowhide boots, long chin whiskers, pegtop trousers, tobacco-stained teeth and sich.

This is a free country. If a woman wishes to roll her socks it should be her American privilege. Most men have ugly ankles covered with hair. Most women have lovely ankles. If they wish to show them why should a judge, federal or state, make a holy show of himself on or off the bench?

This is not a criticism of the judiciary. Justice is sacred but not the dispenser of justice.

Why He Resigned

BECAUSE he does not enjoy seeing men electrocuted, Chaplin C. B. Garrett of the state penitentiary resigned. His vacant shoes was filled by another, "almost in the twinkling of an eye." A job is a job.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, July 20. (EFS)—Free amusement is to be found in New York, as in any other town, by standing on a street corner and watching people. At Times Square the other night I stood leaning against the Times building. Alongside of me was a row of middle-aged, respectable looking women, all some-what dowdy in appearance.

They were sitting on boxes and camp chairs. Two men were there also. Snatches of conversation came to my ears concerning movie studios and movie work. I gathered that they were habitual extras in the few films that are still being made in New York. And I wondered what they were all doing there at almost midnight.

I was soon answered. Two rubber-neck busses, labeled "Coney Island and Return" drove up and disgorged a score or more of passengers. As soon as the bus emptied, the women and the two men entered it. Half an hour later the busses were filled with customers, and then the women and two men trailed out, one and two at a time. They wandered off and their places were filled by newcomers. When the busses were full off they went.

A little while later the "dummy customers," the women and the two men, showed up again. Meanwhile three intoxicated marines had wandered up and seated themselves on the boxes and camp stools. A barker for the bus company came over and ordered them to beat it. "Beat it, hell," said one of the marines, and took a swipe at the barker. The barker changed his mind and resumed his ballyhoo on the street corner, "Coney Island and return! Coney Island and return!"

Shortly afterwards a new group of performers provided sidewalk amusement. A very fat boy of college age dressed in a short blue frock, oxfords, sox, regulation male garters, and an infant's bonnet came upon the scene. Around his neck was a milk bottle with a nipple and he carried a toy balloon on a stick. With him was another youth wearing a swallow-tail coat, a pair of skin-tight checked pants, a straw hat with the crown out, monstrous shoes and a necktie that hung to his knees. They were attended by a group of college youths who were initiating them into some college society.

These constantly gave their neophytes directions for new feats of courage such as dancing around the traffic cop in the middle of the street, or performing acrobatic stunts on the sidewalk or following pretty young girls and singing sweet songs to them. Times Square seems to be a favorite for these cut-ups.

Up to the present time the Western Union station at Forty-first street and Broadway has had three typewriters on its writing tables for the convenience of its patrons. It used to be the work-room for several dramatic critis and music critics. After an opening night in the theater or an opera or concert performance, some of the critics would rush to the Western Union office, write their reviews and send them to their newspaper offices by Western Union messengers.

The typewriters are no longer in evidence at the station. I asked one of the clerks why they were no longer there. He explained that they were hidden behind the counters and given out on request. The reason they are hidden is because so many ribbons had been stolen from the typewriters.

Walking down Forty-fourth street between Sixth avenue and Seventh, I see one of those rare specimens nowadays—the horse cab, parked at the curb. I pause to see if he will get a customer. I notice that the cabby is an old Irishman. He is wearing a top hat along with the regular coachman's outfit of other days. His sox are dragging and he is smoking a cigar. Soon an inebriated pair of middle-aged men stagger up and enter the cab.

I note that they are both wearing panama hats with turned down brims and colored bands. So I walk on—past sixth to Fifth avenue, up Fifth to Fifty-ninth and there west to Broadway again. I walk down till I come to the As-tor. And here I pause and wonder. For here is my same cabby, parked in front of the hotel, dozing off. But where is his topper? For upon his head is a panama hat with brim turned down and bound with a colored band!

A friend who has just returned from Detroit tells me that he kept hearing and overhearing the phrase, "He is going to open up next week." He could not imagine what "he" was meant, until it dawned upon him that the "he" was Henry Ford. "There is no other town in the world," he reflected, "where there is only one 'he' or at least where 'he' means one man, and one man only."

Sally's Shoulders

© by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

"I'd just be there with a hard-cyed stare if he asked ME to do a thing like that!" Millie declared.

READ THE FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, 20 and clever and pretty, is the prop and mainstay of her family. Her father has deserted his wife, and his children. Besides Sally there are the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, aged 21, a gay and irresponsible pair. Millie, the family beauty, is always losing jobs when her employers "get gay" with her.

Sally works at home in the mornings for her mother is a semi-invalid. In the afternoons she works for MR. PEEVEY, an elderly eccentric who does a small mail-order business in the Nye-Naylor building downtown. Sally, in addition to her stenographic work, gets lunch for her employer every day. She buys a bottle of milk and heats it on a little electric plate in his office.

One hot August Monday when Sally leaves the house at noon she bumps into young MR. TED SLOAN, who lives with his mother in the flat below the Jerome flat. Ted is a "dancing fool" and Sally who loves to dance, has become very friendly with him. But when he tries to make love to her she pulls him up short, realizing that she doesn't care very much about him.

He leaves her at the entrance of the Nye-Naylor building, and she starts into the lobby.

(NOW GO WITH THE STORY)

* * *

CHAPTER II

The elevators in the Nye-Naylor building were large and luxurious. Their floors were cork and the doors of ornamental bronze.

Sally always felt as if she were on a flying carpet or in an airship when she got into one of them and started upward to Mr. Peevey's office on the top floor.

She was one of those rare people who never quite get used to the wonder of everyday things. She would stop in the street to stare at an airplane with the same interest that she would marvel at the first dandelion in spring.

But today she barely noticed where she was, from the very second when she stepped into the elevator that was waiting for her. For all of her attention was instantly fixed upon the only other passenger.

"Never did I see such a good-looking human being!" she told herself with conviction. And without knowing just how rude she was, she never took her eyes from him for an instant. She stared at him openly and frankly, with the innocence of an unspoiled child. Her behavior was shocking, of course, but she did not even realize it at the time.

The man was worth looking at, for that matter. He was tall and lean and dark. His eyes were brown and so was his hair, and he had a fine arched nose and the kind of mouth that speaks of character and will. An extraordinarily handsome young man.

Sally was so wrapped up in him that she gave a start of amazement when the elevator stopped at the top floor. The door opened and the excellent-looking young man stood aside, waiting for her to pass out ahead of him.

But instead of passing him, Sally stopped dead and clapped one hand to her mouth. "Oh, my eye!" she said, and she said it aloud and very clearly. "I've forgotten Mr. Peevey's milk!"

She had.

And outside all the whistles were shrieking it was noon and high time that Mr. Peevey's milk was warming on the electric stove in the office.

Sally could picture Mr. Peevey with one eye on the door and the other one of his old-fashioned silver watch, wondering why on earth that fool girl didn't arrive with the milk. . . . . Like most dyspeptics, Mr. Peevey had a bad temper.

"Could I be of any service," the dark young man asked solemnly, and then without any warning he began to laugh.

After all it was funny for a strange young woman to cry out in distress that she had forgotten Mr. Peevey's milk, and Sally began to laugh with him. The elevator boy joined in.

"Take me downstairs again," Sally said to him after a minute, but her eyes were on the other man.

She spoke to him. "Thanks, but I won't need you. I can go right downstairs and get what I want," she said vaguely.

The elevator door closed slowly after him as he stepped out, shutting him away from her. But her vision of him stayed in her mind's eye all the way to the delicatessen shop two blocks away where she bought Mr. Peevey's milk.

"You're late!" Mr. Peevey snapped out at her 10 minutes later when she came rushing into his office, flushed with the heat

"I am, and I'm just as sorry as I can be," Sally answered him breathlessly. But she didn't look the least bit sorry, and she hummed softly to herself as she took the electric stove from the top of the filing case and opened the tin biscuit box.

"Don't do that. I don't want to eat now. Got a date with the dentist for twelve-thirty." Mr. Peevey said crossly, pulling the big turnip of a watch from his pocket. "Be back here at two sharp. Have my lunch ready for me then!"

He clapped an antique Panama hat upon his head and hurried out, bouncing along on his rubber heels.

The office was hot and stuffy, and as soon as he was gone Sally flung open the door that led into the outer hall.

"Whew!" she said, dropping down behind her desk and patting her face with her damp handkerchief.

It was then that she first noticed that the office across the hall had been rented at last. It had been empty for a year. But now the door stood open, and upon the ground glass pane was some gold-and-black lettering.

Sally got up and walked out into the hall to take a look at it.

"JOHN NYE, REAL ESTATE," it read briefly and simply.

Beyond the door the office was simply furnished with a plain brown mahogany and a fawn-colored rug. There was no one in it.

But as she stood there gazing into the room, an inner door swung open and the dark young man of the elevator appeared upon the threshold.

Sally wasn't sure whether he saw her standing there or not. If he did he gave no sign of it, and in a second she was back in Mr. Peevey's little room with its old files, its worn ledgers and its general air of fussiness and confusion.

Somehow or other, no matter how hard she worked, Sally never could make Mr. Peevey's office look the way it should. For none of the furniture matched, the rug was a fanciful blue-and-green-and-red affair, and Mr. Peevey's own chair was glorified by a large and puffy seat-cushion covered with Turkey-red calico.

Like most girls who work in offices, Sally would have liked a room in which she could take some sort of pride—a room like the one across the hall.

The door of it still stood open, and Sally could see her friend of the elevator standing at the window, gazing down at the busy street below. His feet were wide apart, and his hands thrust into his pockets.

He was whistling softly, and Sally cocked an ear to listen.

"High—high—high

"Up on the hill—"

She smiled to herself as she recognized the little tune . . . . She wondered if he was thinking of a green and sunny hill-top with the wind ruffling the long grass, making it shimmer like silver . . . . She wondered if there was some girl in his life who went driving with him into the open country sometimes . . . . who sat on hill-tops with him . . . .

The sound of tapping heels came from the hall, and suddenly a figure all in pale summery green flashed into the little room. Millie.

"Hell!" she cried and came and sat on one corner of her sister's desk, swinging her long silk-sheathed legs gracefully. The air in the office slowly became sweet and heavy with the strong scent of the perfume she used.

"What a dump this is," she went on, taking in the little room with scornful eyes. "I didn't know they had offices like this any more—And what on earth is this for?" She gave the electric stove a push with a highly-manicured finger.

"That's where I heat Mr. Peevey's milk for him," Sally answered blandly. "He has a weak stomach and I always fix a little lunch for him at noon."

Millie giggled. A soft giggle that had a sharp edge to it somehow or other.

"Well, you ARE a simp!" she said. "If anybody asked ME to do a thing like that, I'd be right there with a hard-eyed stare and a cold turn-down. What does your Mr. Peevish think he's getting for $26 a week—a cook and waitress, as well as a stenographer?"

Without waiting for a reply she went on in her soft lazy drawl:

"I quit my own job 15 minutes ago. Just put on my hat and walked out of that place."

She took a cigarette from a paper package and looked down at it thoughtfully.

"How did that happen?" asked Sally. As she spoke she remembered what Mabel Wilmot had said that morning about Millie and her jobs—that Millie never would stay long in a place where there wasn't someone to give her the thrill that she demanded from life.

"Same old story. Bursall got gay with me. They all do, sooner or later," Millie was saying. "I told you Bursall was getting too fresh to suit me, didn't I? And I was right . . . . I just wish I knew why men try to make love to me. I am sure I behave myself."

Sally looked over her critically. It seemed to her that everything about Millie was an open invitation for men to "get gay" with her. The thin silk stockings that she wore. The perfume that hung about her like a cloud. The pale green clothes that clung to the soft swells and curves of her young figure. The pencled brows and the darkened lashes. The reddened lips that were always slightly parted. The flirtious blue eyes that moved slowly but constantly as if they were forever in search of excitement.

They were now turned upon the office across the hall where the tall dark young man was standing with his back to the room, still gazing down into the street below him.

And as Millie looked at him, he turned suddenly, facing her for a moment. Then he vanished into the inner office. The heavy door of it swung, too, behind his tall figure.

"Who's the sleek-haired sheik?" asked Millie, getting up from the desk and swaying on her three-inch heels.

"I never saw him until today," her sister answered with perfect truth. "I think he's just moved in—"

Her voice trailed off into silence and her blue eyes widened with a look that had something close to fear in it. It came to her in a flash that Millie was going to cross the hall to that office and ask for a job.

"She can't do it!" she said to herself. "I won't let her do it!"

SUGGESTIONS FOR A CAMPING TRIP

The good which might be received from most camping trips is generally spoiled by the careless use of unwholesome foods. Even those who are careful about their diet at home will poison their bodies during an outing by living on fried foods, flapjacks, strong coffee, etc., and thus lose the benefit they might have received from the time spent in the open.

If the trip is made in an automobile, it is a simple matter to carry along enough good provisions to last for several weeks. The machine should be liberally stocked with such canned green vegetables as string beans, asparagus and spinach. One or two of these canned greens should be used each day. The average camper will not get enough "greens" unless he does take along canned goods, which are ready cooked and which require so little preparation before being served. It is well also to secure fresh vegetables as often as possible, but as these require more or less time and work in preparing the camping party, no matter how good its intentions, will seldom use them. If enough canned greens are taken along the tendency will be to use them up before returning home.

Fresh fruits and melons can be purchased every few miles on almost any kind of a camping trip. Fresh eggs can be secured from almost any farm house, and steaks for broiling can be purchased in any small town or camp. The greatest problem is to get enough of the green vegetables, and this question is settled satisfactorily if my suggestions are followed and enough of these foods are taken along to last for the entire trip. All of the other necessary foods can be purchased on the way.

Even though the trip is to last only a few days, it is a good plan to take along a first-aid kit containing bandages, adhesive plaster, Carrol oil, mercurochrome, permanganate of potash, etc. The Carron oil may be used for any kind of burns, including sunburn. Two per cent solution of mercurochrome makes an excellent antiseptic, and can be liberally used on cuts and abrasions. A permanganate of potash solution should be in every emergency kit, with an extra bottle of the crystals, out of which you can make your own solution by simply mixing the crystals with water. At the first sign of the itch of poison ivy or poison oak, paint the affected parts with a potassium permanganate solution which will immediately counteract the irritation and keep the poison from spreading. The best treatment for snake bites is to put some of the permanganate of potash crystals directly into the wound after sucking out as much of the snake senom as possible.

Save these suggestions and read them over again before starting on your next camping trip.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Jerry B. Writes: "I know a lot of people look on pork as poison, especially in the summertime. I like it very much, and it hardly agreed with me. In your estimation, what about it as a good meat?"

ANSWER: There is nothing poisonous about pork, but some people have difficulty in digesting it because of the large amount of fat which it contains. Be sure to cook pork thoroughly by roasting, and do not use gravy or any starchy foods at the same meal.

QUESTION: Parent writes: "I wrote you several weeks ago, asking if I should have my two-year-old child's tonsils removed. I have not seen an answer in the paper."

ANSWER: Only a limited space can be given each day to answering questions through this column, so it is sometimes several weeks before an answer can appear. Correspondents who wish answers within a few days send a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. If such address is not given I cannot answer your question direct. Now for your answer: It is never necessary to remove a child's tonsils, providing you keep him on a perfect diet. Send for my special article called "Save the Tonsils." It contains about five hundred words, and is too lengthy to publish in this column.

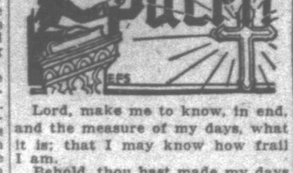

QUESTION: A. B. D. writes: "Will you please tell me what to do to take off the fat from around my hips? I do not seem fat any other place."

ANSWER: Walk four or five miles each day. This will soon bring your hips down to normal. No other exercise will prove so effective in reducing the thighs, hips and buttocks.

QUESTION: Mrs. Hal K. writes: "Will you suggest the proper diet for a child of two and a half years? He does not seem to be ill, but has rough red spots on his cheeks at times, and is unusually cross and irritable after waking from his afternoon nap."

ANSWER: Try giving him four feedings of milk a day, using eight or 10 ounces of milk at each feeding. At the second, third and fourth feedings give him a good size dish of minced spinach, carrots, string beans, summer squash, or celery. It is a good plan to use also one of the vegetables raw, along with the cooked one.

The ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

Lord, make me to know, in end, and the measure of my days, what it is; that I may know how frail I am.

Behold, thou hast made my days as an handbreadth; and my age is as nothing before thee; verily every man at his best state is altogether vanity. Selah.

Surely every man walketh in a vain shew: surely they are disquieted in vain: he heapeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them.

And now, Lord, what wait I for? my hope is in thee.—Psalm 39:4-8.

Side And Back Gave Her Trouble

Texas Lady Tells How She Also Suffered Almost Constantly With Backache Until She Took Cardui.

Terrell, Texas. — Mrs. Minnie Shumpert, who resides near here, has the following to say about the results of her use of Cardui:

"I was very much run-down in health. I suffered almost constantly with backache. My side gave me a lot of trouble, too. I dragged around the house, but did not have enough strength to do my work. Often I would have to lie down. It just seemed as if I could not get my strength back.

"I read about a woman who had been suffering just like I was, so I decided to see what Cardui would do for me. Other remedies had failed.

"My husband got me a bottle of Cardui and I began to take it, according to directions. It was a pleasant surprise to me to see how fast I picked up.

"In a few weeks I was ever so much better. My strength came back, and the dull aching of my back quit altogether. In a short time I felt like my old self, and I have told many of my friends about it, because I wanted them to know of this reliable tonic. It was a great help to me, and I appreciate what it did for my health."

Every woman should keep a bottle of Cardui on hand, to take when needed. It is a medicine of long-proved merit; mild, harmless. Ask your druggist.

KING FERDINAND SUCCUMBS TO LONG ILLNESS DUE TO CANCER

Michael, Son of Carol, Disinherited Crown Prince, Proclaimed Ruler Under Regency

BUCHAREST, July 20. (AP)—The regency council was sworn in at 4:50 o'clock this afternoon before the national assembly. The assembly cheered little King Michael, who was accompanied by his mother, the Princess Helen.

By Universal Service.

BUCHAREST, July 20.—Michael, the child-prince, this afternoon became the "baby king" of Rumania, following the death of his grandfather, King Ferdinand. Michael is not yet six years old. He is the son of former Crown Prince Carol and Princess Helen and the grandson of Queen Marie of Rumania.

The death of the Rumanian ruler Ferdinand, which occurred at 2:15 o'clock this morning at the royal palace at Sinaia, was not unexpected. Ferdinand long had been suffering from cancer and his condition in the past few months grew steadily worse.

Pathetic Death Scene

The scenes in the death chamber were extremely pathetic. Late last night, as the end was drawing near, the dying monarch wept in his conscious moments. He tried to speak, but was too weak to do more than move his lips slightly.

Queen Marie was constantly at the king's bedside. Several times she leaned over in an effort to hear what the dying man was trying to say but the throaty murmurs were unintelligible. Some believe that the king asked for his son Carol, the exile.

Ferdinand weighed less than 90 pounds at his death. He has wasted away to little more than a skeleton.

The queen took Ferdinand's death calmly, having long expected it. The children, however, were inconsolable.

Dies Free of Pain

The Rumanian monarch died in his sleep, free from the pain which had racked him during his last few weeks on earth.

During the minority of Prince Michael, the "baby king," the regency council will rule. It is believed that Carol will be excluded from any share or voice in the administration of state affairs.

The ceremonies linked with the proclaiming of Prince Michael as ruler of Rumania will be brief. Michael will be driven in state to parliament, where he will be proclaimed king and the regency council will be confirmed. Officers and their troops will parade before the "baby king" and take the oath of allegiance to him. Later, the tiny monarch will be installed in the royal palace.

The regency council will consist of Patriarch Miron, Chief Justice Dusdugan of the supreme court and Prince Nicholas. Premier Bratianu and the minister of war may have places on the council later.

Carol Is Excluded

Drastic measures have been taken to keep Prince Carol away from Rumania.

Two Bucharest newspapers issued extras announcing the death of Ferdinand and calling on the nation to loyally support the new king and regency.

Central Europe is keenly interested in the disposition of the Rumanian throne. Little Michael was created heir-apparent on December 31, 1925, when his father, Prince Carol, renounced his rights. It is common knowledge that a love affair influenced Carol's action. He became infatuated with a beautiful Rumanian woman, and left his family to live with his paramour in Paris.

In Bucharest political circles, it is believed that Queen Marie will be the real ruler of Rumania, the regency council being appointed merely as a formality. The queen's dominating personality has long been in evidence, and she has virtually been the ruler of the nation for several years.

Marie Is Ambitious

Those who know the queen, however, know that the title of queen-mother would never satisfy her. Too long has she been the reigning force in Rumania to court obscurity in this way.

As regards Carol, he is not likely to get much sympathy from his regal mother. She believes that he needs punishing, and evidently has made up her mind not to relent until Carol is really penitent. On all sides it is whispered that the former crown prince's moral transgression means little compared with his pronounced political views which are at odds with the politicians now in power in Rumania.

Peace Is Certain

Tonight, the political horizon was comparatively clear. With the appointment of Little Prince Michael as king, the regency council as administrators of state, the Queen Marie as the guiding force, there is little immediate prospect of any internal troubles.

CAROL STILL HOPES TO WIN THRONE

By Universal Service.

PARIS, July 20.—Prince Carol, exiled heir to the throne of Rumania, has secret hopes of being permitted to return to Rumania, but his immediate family have other ideas, it was learned tonight.

Carol received official word of the death of his royal father, King Ferdinand, in a telegram from his mother, Queen Marie and other members of the Rumanian royal family.

The telegram did not suggest Carol's return to Bucharest, nor did it mention the subject at all.

Prince Carol first received the news from newspaper correspondents.

Carol Is Agitated

Shortly before noon today, a Universal Service representative was ushered into Carol's salon at his villa near Neuilly.

"My God, what is the news?" asked the prince, obviously very agitated. "There has been a swarm of journalists outside the house all morning. I tried to get in touch with the Rumanian legation, but they did not answer the telephone."

Carol was then informed that his father was dead.

The prince displayed great nervousness. He walked to and fro, lit innumerable cigarets and threw them away without smoking them, and wiped beads of perspiration from his forehead.

"Will you go back?" he was asked.

"I shall await word from the family," he replied.

Carol said that he had seen his sister Elizabeth, wife of the ex-king of Greece, last Saturday.

"She told me that father's condition was critical," said Carol, "but Elizabeth thought he would recover. I am glad that she was at my father's bedside when he expired."

The prince was grief-stricken. He always had loved his father, despite their differences, and the late king was particularly fond of his son Carol.

Sorrows for Father

The fact that he would not mount the throne did not seem to worry the prince at all. His sorrow was entirely because of the loss of his father.

The titian-haired beauty, Lupescu, who caused Carol to renounce the throne, his family and his wife, Princess Helen, first received the newspaper correspondents. She appeared in negligee and took it all as a matter of course, saying that Carol would be down as soon as he had completed his toilette.

"But I donôt think it can be true," she said, referring to the death of King Ferdinand, "for we have received no news at all."

This afternoon, the prince lapsed into a fit of weeping, and gave strict orders that he was not to be disturbed in the privacy of his own salon.

"Ferdinand, the loyal," was what the allies called the late Rumanian king during the trying days of the World war, and "Ferdinand the loyal" was what he remained to his own people who undisturbed by the dynastic politics that troubled the upper strata of Rumanian society, looked to the aging king to lead them through the unhappy post-war years to contentment and plenty.

It was Ferdinand's strong will, say those who knew him, that put death off for so long a time.

Last year, just after Queen Marie's hurried return from her visit to the United States his physicians gave him up for lost. But the king was firm in the hope that he might help to place his country on a stable political basis despite factional disputes and conflicts among powerful interests and clung to life. Then, too, say friends, he hoped to see once before death came his wayward son, Carol, "the mad cap of the Balkans," whom his parental discipline had sent into exile.

Ignores Physicians

His physicians urged him to go abroad to a warmer climate to give nature a chance to assist their own healing efforts, but dynastic and political elements played their part and Ferdinand decided to remain in Bucharest sacrificing himself rather than, as he thought, sacrificing his country.

From time to time there were indications that the physicians' battle was having some effect and the cancerous condition seemed alleviated in a measure by applications of radium and other treatments. Then the weakening nature of his illness would be demonstrated and the royal patient would again be forced to bed, once with a slight cold that threatened pneumonia and again with stomach ailments.

For months King Ferdinand's body, assailed by many maladies, has been withering away and his weight reduced to less than 100 pounds. Since early spring he has not been weighed.

"It would kill him to realize how his body has shrunk," those close to him declared.

Trusts His Aides

One of the last acts of Ferdinand's reign was to bring about the creation of a government under the Bratianos, whom he trusted and who with him were influential in swinging Rumania into the World war on the side of the allies—an act in which Ferdinand flung himself against his own kin, for he was a Hohenzollern.

Only a few weeks ago Premier Averescu, to whom dictatorial dreams were credited in some circles, was removed from the head of the government and a more inclusive government was formed under Prince Stirbey, one of the richest Rumanians and long a favorite at court, to hold the reins until the Bratianos were ready to step into power again.

Those who know Rumania are quite unanimous in the conviction that the regency for young Prince Michael, Carol's son, will rule as provided by law and that there is almost no possibility of Carol ascending the throne.

Carol's Friends Few

His friends in Rumania are few, it is said, and certainly are not strong enough to impose him upon the country. Nor has there been any indication that Carol cares to come back home. That he is not wealthy and that he does not work, everyone knows, but that he has sufficient sources of income to live a leisurely life near Paris is obvious to all who have observed his comings and goings at the French capital. To all appearances he is quite content with things as they are.

The Bratianos and their party candidates won an overwhelming victory in the recent elections to parliament and the Bratianos, now strongly entrenched in power, are solidly opposed to Carol as is Prince Stirbey, who with them form a little group of the richest and most powerful men in Rumania politically and economically.

THREE DIE IN FIRE.

CHICAGO, July 20. (AP)—Three persons were burned to death and four others, one of whim is not expected to live, were seriously injured in a fire which swept through the Svea hotel here early today.

Prince Michael, aged 4 years, named as Rumania's king, succeeds Ferdinand by the fact that Prince Carol, left, his father, renounced throne in 1926.

Princess Helene, wife of Carol, is mother of King Michael, new ruler.

This picture shows Mme. Zizi Lambrino, former morganatic wife of Carol, and their son, Mircea, for whose love Carol first incurred King Ferdinand's ire. In 1926, Carol, who is now in Paris, renounced his right to the throne.

Hidden Glandular System Directs All We Do.

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

CHARLES A.L. REED, M.D.

ARE you aware that you have hidden away in your body four little structures, called glands, weighing altogether less than a domino of sugar, without which it would be impossible for you to live more than a few hours? Two of these glands are located in your neck, near the thyroids, and the other two are located in your back near your kidneys.

These two sets of glands with some other glands comprise what is called the endocrine system, all of them being essential to your life.

The endocrine glands are tiny organs that produce substances called hormones, which enter the blood and exercise a profound effect upon our physical and mental lives by their chemical action upon the nervous system.

The most important and the most familiar of these is the thyroid, which is situated in the lower part of the throat and the enlargement of which by disease is called goitre. In the process of evolution the thyroid was the gland that had to develop in order to allow primitive creatures to leave the water and live on land, and the more entirely an animal or bird lives on land the more important to it is the thyroid. It is a curious thing that persons with an inadequate thyroid gland tend to be good swimmers and are at home in the water, and that nearly all good swimmers tend to be sub-thyroidic. The thyroid also controls our metabolism, the process by which food is used in the body, but, most important at all, it controls our creative function. A sub-thyroidic mother cannot produce a really adequate child. The vast amount of mental deficiency—sub-normal infants of every class and character—are the result of sub-thyroidic mothers, and if these mothers could have been fed during their pregnancy with a little thyroid they might have produced entirely different children.

Since the thyroid controls creation, all art, which is the product of the creative function, depends on an active thyroid. If an artist's thyroid efficiency falls below a certain level he cannot produce real creative work. There never has been a real sub-thyroid artist.

The thyroid is also an important factor in that chain of causes which controls the rate of the heart-beat, and consequently the speed at which the body is functioning. A person with an over-active thyroid suffers from a general speeding-up of the whole rate of combustion. His body is being treated like a gasoline motor that the owner habitually allows to "race." When a person is badly frightened, his heart beats fast because the thyroid has been accelerated into over-function.

Fright, however, does not stimulate the thyroid gland directly, but acts on the adrenalin glands, causing them to flood the blood with adrenalin. This is a powerful stimulant to the thyroid, as it is to the whole body.

The adrenal glands, situated on top of the kidneys, are the automatic accelerators of the body. A situation that causes fear or anger or any other strong emotion makes these glands secrete large quantities of adrenalin, a very powerful irritant hormone which has the property of awakening all the involuntary muscles of the body, tautening them up and making them ready for instant fight or flight. Heart, lungs and intestines all spring into active function. When the situation is over the pendulum swings to the other side and a reaction occurs. The adrenals, exhausted by their recent effort, reduce their output, and all the sympathetic system of the body relaxes. Therefore, the result of a severe shock or fright is a fearful weakness. The knees shake together, there is sometimes a pain in the calves as though a great effort had been made, and the whole body feels weary. One wants to sit down and rest, to get over it.

This is the mechanism by which the sight or news of danger clears the body for action; this is what happens when we "get excited."

SEEING AMERICA -:- Each in His Own Way -:- Drawn by Dorothy Flack

THERE are many ways of seeing this great country of ours. You may sit out on the observation platform of a very special, very luxurious train and rush swiftly through miles and miles and miles of plains, and then, just as swiftly, pass through more miles and miles of mountain roads. You'll catch glimpses of unbelievable beauty.

Or you may fly across the country at a hundred miles an hour and see just a vast and splendid panorama.

Or—and this is the way for those who would really know the country—you may go out into the heart of its great woods and and mountains. Stay there, breathe the air of it, let the beauty and grandeur of it seep slowly into your soul until it is part of you, until it is a feeling, an emotion, rather than just a sight. That is really "Seeing America."

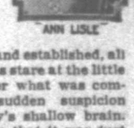

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

Bonnie Asks About Jill.

IF Folly Duane had been watching Roy Scarlett, she would have seen him freeze into silent attention when Bonnie asked her: "What became of the long-legged, copper haired kid you used to drag around with you once in a while?"

ANN LISLE

But when Bonnie fired the haughty grenade with which she shattered the truce Folly thought accepted and established, all Folly could do was stare at the little gypsy and wonder what was coming next. A sudden suspicion flashed into Folly's shallow brain. She was sure now that it was just for this Bonnie had invited her and Sam Kerby to join her and her "boy-friend." And Folly jerked herself together mentally, rallied her forces and began figuring how she could evade and trick the clever and dangerous foe she suddenly knew "her old pal" might become.

"You mean my ward?" Folly asked, fighting for time.

"That's what you used to call her," Bonnie said sweetly, much too sweetly.

Still Folly met the blazing amber eyes with her wide blue ones . . . She was trying so hard to decide what Bonnie wanted from her and how to avoid giving it that she didn't do a simple bit of deduction that might have saved her from all that came after.

If in the beginning Folly had connected the name Roy Scarlett with the "Meestaire Scarlatti" of whom Beppo had spoken, she might have acted very differently. But Folly wasn't clever enough to figure three or four moves ahead in any game, nor yet to remember back to what had gone before.

And Roy, pricking up his ears and wondering if there could be any connection between the long-legged, copper-haired kid of whom Bonnie spoke and the long-legged copper-haired girl Bonnie had been so much interested in the night at Beppo's, was clever enough to mask his interest.

"She was my ward," Folly sighed, taking refuge in the air of naive simplicity. She opened her shallow blue eyes very wide and seemed to invite the world into her confidence as she added: "My —sacred obligation."

Bonnie was on the verge of relating the story of that evening at Beppo's, of dragging in the resemblance between Folly's "ward" and Roy's wife. But one glance at his pale and elaborately indifferent face, one moment of realising how tense his hands were even while he smiled with elaborately careless lips, and Miss Bonnie reminded herself that if you picked an apple blossom you did not get an apple.

"I always knew you were a darling little easy-mark," Bonnie said, sorting the sentence deliberately out of the many that came to her mind.

"You wouldn't think that if you knew about the girl who was Jill's mother," Folly sighed. "She had to trust someone. She had to confide in someone. I was young, sympathetic, I liked her. I stood by her in a world where everyone else seemed to—have their hand against her. . . It isn't surprising that when she had to—go out of a world where there was apparently no place for her, she trusted her child to me, is it?"

That was a good speech. Effective. Folly had tried it on Jill at various times when the girl seemed on the verge of asking a question so leading that it would almost bring its reply with it. It worked now. The men beamed on Folly. And Bonnie was too clever to pursue an advantage that was likely to turn into a disadvantage. So she smiled and said:

"You're a darling, Folly. We four must see a lot of each other."

Folly breathed easy. She got the idea that Bonnie was not so clever after all. She lighted a cigarette and ventured an airy:

"My little ward is growing up. She is beginning to be hard to manage. I feel old—sometimes. Too much responsibility. It will do me a world of good to have a little more free time."

"How would a foursome down to Atlantic strike everyone?" said Sam who was as kind as he was obvious.

"I'd love it," Folly said enraptured.

"I'd love it myself—only—only I haven't a man to count on." Bonnie sighed.

"Who says you can't count on me?" asked Roy.

He had never meant to go as far as this.

"If I thought I could," Bonnie sighed.

"Then it's all set for Saturday night after the show?" asked Sam. "And we don't have to get back till late Monday night. If there is any short sport here who won't drive all Saturday night to get Sunday at Atlantic, speak up."

Roy moistened his lips.

"No short sports here," Bonnie said gaily. "Let's drink to all good fellows."

Roy drank.

To Be Continued.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Keep Your Friends.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Lon and I have been keeping company for eight months. We met at my place of business and really liked each other from the start.

Until a month ago we got along splendidly. Then those "all-over nothing" arguments began. Now there's no end to them.

A week ago he gave me a beautiful little friendship ring. I try my best not to let him spend too much on me.

The truth is, I do not love him. Last night I broke this news and returned his ring. But, to my surprise, he refused to accept it, saying it is a gift for me to keep. He says he will always love me. But I cannot continue going about with him. How can I avoid him without hurting his feelings? ELAINE.

YOU need not be in love with every friend, Elaine. If you like "Lon" and he is a suitable friend, is not that reason enough for continuing the friendship?

Of course when you become engaged you will not care to divide your attentions. But until that time, if you are wise, you will go about occasionally with all your worth-while friends and encourage their companionship. Explain to your friend that, while you do not love him, you value his friendship and will be glad to have him come to see you occasionally if he wishes to do so. But it is better not to accept valuable jewelry from any man to whom you are not engaged.

Forget About Him.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am very much in love with a certain young man. He is the man of my dreams. But I haven't the courage to talk to him. He smiles at me whenever we meet, but never says a word.

None of my friends know him, so they can't introduce us. Please tell me how I can make his acquaintance. NELLIE.

I AM sorry I can't help you, Nellie. But I certainly cannot advise you to pick up an acquaintance with any young man without an introduction.

After all, you can't be really in love with him, can you, since you do not know him. He may have a dreadful disposition and be utterly unsuited as a friend for you. Do you realize that he may be engaged or married?

Under all the circumstances, since you do not know anyone who can introduce you to him, don't you think it would be sensible to forget all about him and turn your attention to friends you know, and who take an active interest in you?

Do You Know?

This year marks the jubilee of the publication of "Daniel Deronda," one of George Eliot's most famous novels. The great Victorian writer, it is said, took more pains over this work than over any other.

People of forty-five and fifty years of age are regarded by some expert as being at the age most valuable to the community.

Make Your New Hat Symbol of New Spirit.

By Lucy Lowell

BUY yourself a new Summer hat!

Buy yourself a new suit if you will, and new pumps and gloves and all the other pretty things as bright and hopeful as the flowers that are spreading color over the parks and up through the country.

LUCY LOWELL

But whatever you do or don't get, buy the hat!

No matter how good your last year's chapeau looks, put it aside. Take it down from the shelf and try it on; wear it later in the Summer if you feel like it.

But start out the brand new season with a brand new hat.

There is something about a gay and novel bit of head covering that means far more to a woman than just something different to wear. Not only is it a sort of poetic expression, out it is a charming symbol of fresh beginnings; of old, outworn things put aside and a general refurbishing of ideas and purposes.

No article of clothing so thoroughly expresses personality—or should so thoroughly express it—as a woman's hat. Therefore it is essential that the hat be becoming and that it be individual and that it be of a character to blend with the appearance instead of dominating it.

Do not buy a hat which folks will see before they see you. Do not buy a hat which is indifferently becoming merely because it's the style. To adhere too closely to style is like marking yourself with a rubber stamp; it destroys individuality.

To be well-dressed a woman should look as if her clothes and herself were one. She may achieve this by dressing her personality instead of just hanging clothes on her body, by expressing her spirit in line and color and fabric.

When you see a woman who has done this you say, "What a charming person!" She may be as plain as possible and not expensively turned out, and yet you pay her the compliment of sincere admiration.

So buy a new hat to greet the summertime and buy such a hat as will form a link between your inner self and your external appearance.

By doing this you will bring sunshine into your heart.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Calling Cards.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In having personal cards printed, is it proper to use the full name, or just the first and last names? I do not like my middle name, which is Christine, and seldom if ever use it.

(2) What do you think of this stationery?

(3) In writing a letter of some length, is it proper to come down on this side as I am doing, or use these sides vertically, the same as the first page? A. W.

IF you do not like your middle name, by all means leave it out. It is so unpleasant to have to see a name that one dislikes and that is not necessary anyway. Just ignore it, if you wish to, for the rest of your life. Unless, of course, there is some definite reason why you shouldn't. Life is too short for us to be bothered with a middle name that we don't like! Don't use the initial, either, for abbreviations are not in good taste or in good form on visiting cards and, by the way, your visiting cards should be engraved, not printed. It is better not to have any cards than to have them printed. And it is not a bit expensive to have them engraved, for you can use the plate many times afterward.

And do have the "Miss" engraved before your name.

(2) Pretty good. I am not fond of lavender papers, but yours is fairly good looking. Your letter form and your delightful and writing are better than your letter paper, I think, and so you should give them a better "home." How about white paper or light gray?

(3) It is proper to write it as you did. But if the letter is to be longer, full length that is, write on the first, last and then on the two middle pages, turned around and used as one.

Seating Wedding Guests

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

(1) I am going to be a bride. Is it proper to wear a train with a veil, or are they out of date now?

(2) On what side do the bride's people and groom's people sit?

(3) What is the formation of the bridal party? I am having a maid of honor, two bridesmaids, best man, two ushers and a flower girl. PERPLEXED.

USUALLY there is a train, which is the background for the veil.

(2) The left side of the church is the bride's side, because the parents of the bride are the hosts of the occasion. The parents of the groom, his relatives and friends are given the right side of the church, for the right side is the guest of honor's side, and the parents of the groom are the guests of honor of a wedding.

(3) First, the two ushers, walking together. Then, the two bridesmaids, walking together. Next, the maid of honor, walking alone. Then the flower girl, walking alone. Last, you, the bride, and your father. The groom and best man wait at the front of the church.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Fashion Fads and Fancies

By Mildred Ash.

Reigning Rain Fashions offer something distinctly new—an umbrella and raincoat to match of rubberized fabric that simulates alligator skin. Thus is the craze for reptilian markings satisfied even in rainy weather toggery.

The Cold, Gray, Dawn of the "morning after" may not inspire very promising thoughts, but dawning fashions all promise very excessive popularity for all shades of gray, from taupe to dove, steel, greenish and pinkish tones.

A Vogue for Violet is daily becoming more pronounced. The conventional violet shades are sponsored for daytime apparel and a blue-violet for evening wear. In chiffon, or in crepe satin the latter gowns are developed, while the daytime dresses are of the sports variety and are of novelty, rayon-striped, jersey or flat crepe.

Checking up on youthful fashions one can find nothing sportier for the young girl than a sports frock of brightly checked taffeta. A 'kerchief to match adds an undeniably Parisian touch.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

OH, it's well to be versed in the world's subtle ways, to own much of its knowledge and lore, and it lends peace and joy to the flight of the days to be blessed with bright gold's shining store. But why sigh for the goods which the fates have withheld if a bounty more rare they have sent? For all lack and all loss can be fleetly dispelled by the man who is dowered with content. Oh, the best that can come to a soul here on earth, where for all souls at times ways are hard, is the power to touch life with the magic of mirth, is the gift of all gifts—to be glad! Sons of lark, tint of rose, mist of fountain's bright spray, these make earth's hoary wisdom seem chaff; just to joy in the round of things simple and gay, this is best—just to love and to laugh.

Household Hints

SUICIDE ENDS SLAYER'S LIFE

Man Held in Wife's Death Hangs Himself

DOYLESTON, Pa., July 20.(AP) Ernest E. Rieker, who was awaiting trial for the murder of his wife and Sheriff Abram L. Kul of Doyleston, committed suicide in the Bucks county jail today by hanging. It was his third attempt to end his life.

Rieker shot and killed his wife, Helen, at their home in South Langhorne, Feb. 23, when sheriff Kul appeared at the house to serve divorce papers upon him. After shooting the wife he fired and killed the sheriff. He also attempted to shoot his father-in-law.

After the shooting Reiker escaped to Asbury Park, N. J., where next day in a hotel room he shot himself after sending for a newspaper reporter. He was removed to a hospital where he remained several months until his recovery. On the day he was removed to Doylestown he swallowed three poison tables, but prompt discovery of the second attempt at suicide saved him.

Farmer Tries Suicide As Police Corner Him

HOLLAND, July 20.(AP) — While officers levelled their guns on him, John Knapek, farmer residing six miles north of here, slashed his throat twice in an attempt to end his own life.

He drove his family from their home and burned the house, officers say. He was captured 13 miles south of his home.

SOME SIGHTS!!

Lamped about this modern burg: Boy scout on a pony meandering along the main drag. He's a tenderfoot. Probably the reason he rides.

Large Senegambian in dead-heat argument with Cy Morpheus, lolled back astride wicker chair, tilted on two legs (the chair), perfect balance, murky dome serving as brace against CORNER of bepebbled gas filling station wall.

Flossy female buzzing through a red traffic light in big vehicle, brushing fender of diminutive Ford driven by just an ordinary male who, although ordinary, had the right of way, the f. f. jamming on brakes with a screech and jolt, alighting and in militant mezzo soprana denouncing "rude and uncouth men who risk everybody's life but theirs by hogging the street and driving so recklessly" Heh, heh.

Starting at the bottom, yaller low quarters, gray flash suit of the latest sports model, bristling black something-or-other hedged along upper lip, kindly sideburns almost to the point of the chin, purple cap or some siminiar tint, with a long jockey bill—a cullud male (?) flapper. He stood at the intersection of Ohio and Eighth, peering with a far-away expression up through the City National bank-Kemp hotel chasm. A Lion of Lake street wandered afar from his usual haunts.

HASSEN READY FOR MATSUDA

Jap Should Have His Mitts Full Friday

With arrival Wednesday of Ali Hassen, the Turk, arrangement for the staging of the weekly Ross stadium athletic show was practically completed.

The "Terrible, Turk" clashes with Matty Matsuda, Jap welter and world's championship claimant, in finish wrestling match at the stadium Friday night.

Turk Tough.

Hassen will outweigh Matsuda several pounds and it is doubtful he will quite make the welter limit of 145. If the Turk can come in at the weight and remain strong, he stands in a fair way of eliminating the veteran Nipponese from the titular running. Hassen has defeated most of the world's leading welterweights, but as a rule came in a bit overweight. He beat Jack Reynolds twice, in Columbus and Detroit. He defeated Matsuda in El Paso two years ago. He split with Basanta Singh, the Hindu, winning one match and losing another to the brown man. Hassen, also, is credited with a victory over the sturdy Charles Grip. He beat Grip once but lost a later match to the lunging Lith, Romonoff fell before the Turk in a match at Jackson, Miss., and Yaqui Joe lost a one-fall affair in Dallas, the Turk winning in 16 minutes or so. In other words, it is reasonable to believe Matsuda will have his brown mitts full to the over-flowing point.

Both Jack Matlock and Roy Edwards, principals in an eight-round boxing bout which divides interest on the card with the Matsuda-Hassen tilt, were in the city yesterday ready for the gong.

Moore Ambitious.

Dempsey Moore, ambitious Wichita Falls amateur light heavy has been training studiously for his six-rounder with Bobby Brown of Houston, state amateur light heavy boxing champion. Matchmaker Ross plans awarding a gold medal to the winner, signifying him as the undisputed amateur champion of Texas.

Moore aspires to the Olympics and is pointing himself toward a trial for the light heavy division in the 1928 Olympiad. The youngster, if tutored along correctly, it is generally believed stands a good show of making the grade and representing the United States against the rest of the world at Amsterdam next year in the amateur struggles.

CATS 8-10, SHIPPERS 4-0.

FORT WORTH, July 20. (AP)—Fort Worth made a clean sweep of the series with Beaumont and also left the cellar by defeating the Exporters in both games of a double-header Wednesday afternoon at Panther Park. Fort Worth won the first game, 8 to 4, and the second, 10 to 0. Jimmy Walkup was the victor in the first game, while Charlie Sullivan pitched the shutout. The score:

The Texas Electric Service company kept its standing well above sea level Wednesday afternoon when it defeated the Jackson Tire team at Katy park by the score of 5 to 3. Lewis, former Decatur Baptist star, hurled a great game for the Electrics and let the Tiremen down with only three base hits.

Lewis, Cox and Miller led the attack on the Tiremen with two hits each. Lewis hit one of his bingles for three bases. Francis also hit one for three sacks while Christian hit a two bagger.

Miller's great playing in the field was the feature of the game. Wee Willie cavorted about the hot corner in grand style and turned in a lot of plays that were close to sensational.

Christian opened the scoring in the second inning with a double. Lewis then drove home the first run with a single to right field.

Three Electric tallies were rung up in the third inning. Jordon was safe at first on an error by Roper. Francis tripled to right and Jordon scored. Waller walked. Francis and Waller scored on Blue's long single. Blue was thrown out trying to stretch it into a double. Cox and Christian both were easy outs.

A single by Thorn and errors by Waller and Jordon gave the Tiremen two runs in the third inning.

Lewis started the scoring in the fourth with a triple and came on home on Miller's single.

The Tiremen scored a run in the sixth when Layfield walked. Lawson popped out and Prince drew a walk. Hogue flied out to Waller. Ray Walker singled to left and Layfield scored. Roper grounded out for the final out.

Extra! Spudders Win Dixie Opener

Wichita Falls sports writers had better look out. At least, so it loomed for a moment Wednesday when "The Gusher," a very lively sports extra hit the streets. But the publishers quieted all fears by explaining the edition was put out just for the fun of the thing and that they, the publishers, don't intend to run under local sports scriveners.

"The Gusher," a pink-sheeted extra was published by Stone Printing company with L. E. Stone serving as editor. The paper dealt with a mythical Dixie series game played between the Spudders and the New Orleans Pelicans. Of course, the Spudders won* with Fussell and Fitzgerald included among the stars.

There were witticisms carried about several local celebrities, including Mayor R. E. Shepherd, Rev. "Gus" Barnes, "Slick" Ansley, Homer McGregor, Rev. Leslie Miller, Prexy J. A. Gardner and Dr. Nat Grafton.

SPUDS GET SHOT

Leon Trice, staff photographer of the New Orleans States, blew into Wichita Falls Wednesday to visit B. W. Wren, his brother-in-law, and family. Trice snapped pictures of the Spudders yesterday for the States, New Orleans daily.

Shippers Blow In For Series

Everybody's in a good humor today. The good-natured Jeems Galloway and his Beaumont team are on hand for a set. Joe Kiefer is probably Carl Williams' pitching choice. However, Carl admitted last night it's hard for him to do any worrying about much of anything for the next day or so, and for all he knows the batboy may take a run out there and do the chunking. You see, Carl's so tickled pink with that huge automobile the bugs gave him yesterday as a present for this, that and the other that he's not holding himself accountable for what he does the next 24 hours or so.

Galloway comes with an ambitious team that has been finding the road rough but which is being weeded out and built up for next year's race. The club as it stands can give the leaders lots of trouble, so you can expect a first-class battle this afternoon.

Swenson Doubles In Tenth for Spud Victory

Did You Know That—

By BLONDY CROSS

HE'S A WONDER

You can talk of spectacular fielding features all you wish, but you'll never talk about many more flossier plays than the double killing the Texas league's premier first sacker engineered in the third frame yesterday. Pratt, the hitter, and West, runner on first were, the victims. The Waco pilot tried to lay one down, but popped a near liner up the first base path. LaFayette sprinted in at the tap of the hickory, pulled a regular acquatic sort of a jack-knife dive, clutched the orange with one hand just as it seemed destined to hit the dirt, skidded on a shoulder and while still sliding, slung an under-hander to Turgeon who covered the bag, doubling West off. Now you try to name a maneuver more out of order than that. Your friend "Froggy," as some of the ball players kiddingly call him, was about there quite spryly yesterday, picking 'em up out of the dirt and pulling 'em down from above, thus saving several infielders errors on near wild throws.

AND RABBIT

Benton scared everybody and gave them a bit of a thrill, too, in the fourth. Looks like our athletes have gone in for heavy tumbling. Wolgamot, if you can imagine that guy trying to steal a base, set out for second. Lapan pegged true to the bag. Rabbit hop-skipped over and left the ground for a flying tackle of the ball and Wolgamot in the same movement. The runner was out on another play you seldom see. Rabbit incurred inconvenience of a skinned leg and a torn pair of breeches. LaFayette made a run on the first aid kit and came up with a bottle of merocurochrome (think that's the way it's spelled), you know, this red "monkey blood" stuff. Painted Rabbit above the knee cap until at a distance he looked like he was slowly bleeding to death.

That Waco outfield appears tired. When Pratt was changing pitchers in the fourth, the three gardeners caught a nap or something, each stretching out in the grass as if to overtake lost slumber.

GUESSES FIRST

The average ball player enthusiastically second guesses the umpire, but Caldwell, Waco pitcher, didn't do anything like that when at bat in the seventh. There were two strikes on Caldwell. Payne served up the next offering. Caldwell looked it over, turned and headed for the dugout, thinking he was out on a called third strike. But the pitch was a ball and the umpire herded him back to the pan and made him take that last cut.

SPRIGHTLY FIELDERS

Swenson staged a nifty catch of Windle's foul around the left wing of the grandstand in the tenth. Benton came up like a million dollars in the same round on West's slow hopper over second and threw him out by a hair when it appeared Max was going to beat the play.

AIN'T IT SO

Just about all you have to do is put somebody on base and then let the great Lamb bat next. Lucy clouts them home in a pinch. That was testified yesterday as well as right along the current scramble. His homer put the two runs over in the first. He batted across in the third and tried his best to win the game for us in the tenth, leading off with a single. Come to think about it, if he hadn't have got on in the tenth Swenson never would have got to bat and drive in the winning run. There would have been three out before Wally's turn.

JUST TOO LUCKY

The Spudders dissipated that superstition. "Take a ball club's picture before a game and it will lose that game." Staff photographer from a New Orleans newspaper "shot" every one of the boys just before the game and then local photographer came along and "tuck 'em" again.

TOO BAD

Benton scored the winning run for Wichita Falls in the tenth but there was one break that went against him. His Texas leaguer back of second would have gone for an easy single had there not been a runner on first base. But Jenkins, the runner, for safety's sake was forced to play back toward the initial sack lest Pratt catch the ball and double him off the bag. Result was, West recovered and forced Tom at second thereby robbing Benton of a hit. The blow goes into the official score as a time at bat for Benton and a fielder's choice.

Walloping Wally Bats In Benton For 5 to 4 Win

Lamb Leads Early Attack On Shores, While Payne Hurls Great Brand Of Ball Against Waco

BY BLONDY CROSS

The Swedish Mr. Swenson made himself quite evident Wednesday at the Gardner pasture with result another Swedish gentleman departed these environs last night in high and somewhat frothy umbrage.

You already have it doped out. Our side won another, Mr. Swenson was the cause. And Mr. Pratt went away mad. There, it's all in a nut shell.

For Walloping Wally swaggered to the platter in the tenth inning and broke up a perfectly good ball game for everybody concerned, mostly one Mr. D. Pratt, the Waco ball team and an assiduously toiling slabster, G. Washington Payne of Wichita Falls.

The score was deadlocked at a 4-4 standoff, there were two out and Rabbit Benton was on second base. It had begun to look like we just naturally weren't going to get that runner around, when upped your swishing Mr. Swenson and slammed the righthanded Earl Caldwell for a rosy two bases to left center that scored the nimble Benton in a jog trot. That was the good-night close-up. You didn't want any more. Wichita Falls had won another one of these "excrooshiating" extra-stanza affairs by a 5-4 score and sent the Waco team away lugging the short end of the series.

The victory was the fifteenth of the season for the noble George Payne, who pairs off with the eminent portside Mr. F. Fussell as one of the most persevering flingers in the circuit. Had fortune favored, Payne would have won earlier, but he WON, that's all he, you and I care about. A tough run in the opening canto put George in a bad way and so he had to pitch his head off the rest of the route. He gave up a paltry seven safeties and a matter of three technically earned runs.

Get To Shores

The Spudders got William Shores, another righthander, out of there in three and two-thirds couplets, or maybe Mr. Shores got himself out, but, anyhow, he got out, and then Earl took hold and gave us gobs of trouble up to and including the tenth when whim-whamming Wally whopped the daylight out of him and the agate, too, giving us the deciding game of the series.

The mighty Lamb, who bumped a home run with a runner on in the first and who whacked in another score during the third, opened that tenth chukker with one of those bell-like, ringing kind of singles to the mid-sector. The blow caused gobs of heart throbs and gave us our only chance in five innings to come out from under. But Lamble wasn't scheduled to ride in on victory's crest. Jenkins tried to bunt. What they ought to have let that guy do was haul off and endeavor to knock the ball over the fence. The bunt went awry and Lamb was forced at second, Tut arriving safely at first. Benton raised a near safety into short right center, but it looked like an infielder was going to snag it so Tut played mid-way between sacks. The pill flopped clean and West recovered to force Jenkins at the keystone, giving Rabbit a life at the initial bag. Rabbit then took the bull by the horns, as it were, and ran under Pratt at second, stealing the base. Swenson followed with the money clout and it was all over except the ride Carl Williams took to town in his new automobile.

Cubs Start Rough.

Almost everybody gets rough with us in the first frame. Our pitchers as a rule spot the opposition a few runs right at the start and then clamp down the rest of the way while Spudder bats whip a mighty tattoo from behind and give the cash consumers a thrill, you know, by beating the odds. However, but two of Waco's three runs were earned in that initial round. Windle started with a base on balls. Moore lined out to Jenkins who made a sweet catch although he didn't have to move much. West clubbed a home run over the left field fence. Pratt cracked a single off Turgeon's glove and Rabbit got all croqueted up on Blackerby's bounder to short, Pratt hoofing it to third and George drawing a life at first. Shires bingled to center, scoring the great Pratt. Vigare forced Shires, Benton to Turge and Wilgamot aviated to Lamb in right.

The home guard got back two of those tallies in our half of the opening chapter. Turgeon outrunning a bobble at the box and tabulating ahead of the famous Lamb who a few moments later spanked one for the circuit. There was one out when Turgeon got on. And there were two out when Larruping Lucy strode to the platter, so he didn't have much recourse as to what to do. He just up and sloughed one of William's offerings and let it go at that. It went all right, all right, a long ways over the left field fence. By the time the busy midget got as far as third his chest had swelled up so big he began to look like a balloon and grave fears were expressed that he might start an ascension before he made it in to the plate. The alarm was false. He managed to make it all to the okeh, stay in the game and come back again in a pinch later.

Tied in Third.

We balanced accounts in the third and squeezed ahead in the fourth. The boys built that tying run after two were out. Turgeon plunked a single to cented. Griffin coaxed a base on balls. You can guess the rest. This Lamb comes next in the batting order. He didn't hit any homer, but he banged a one-baser to the midfield on which Turgeon rode to the scoring counter. Griffin went to third on the blow and a few seconds later was cut down at the plate on an attempted double steal.

Mr. Shores developed a donatory mood in the fourth and just out-and-out gave us a run. Jenkins opened with a single by short. Benton sacrificed, advancing Tut to second. Swenson flied to center with no advance. Then Shores walked us in a run and walked himself out of the box. He served up free transportation to Lapan, Payne and LaFayette in succession, the LaFayette walk forcing Jenkins home. Caldwell came to the relief with one ball on Turgeon and Pete flied out to left, retiring the side.

Caldwell rocked right on, Payne did, also, until the eighth. After there was one out, Moore copped a base on balls. West grounded out to Payne, Moore taking second. Pratt singled through the short field and Moore scored, tying the count again. Pratt absconded with the keystone and Blackerby, but Shires soared out to Griffin.

NORTH TEXAS REFINERS ADVANCING SPOT WHOLESALE PRICES

PLENTY OF PAN MOTOR FUEL

Good Weather Should Increase Business

AMARILLO, July 20.—Some North Texas refiners are advancing their spot wholesale refinery quotations for U. S. motor gasoline to 7 cents flat, which would make the price 9 cents at Panhandle refineries. The general run, however, still offer freely plenty of motor fuel at 6 3-4 to 7 cents, or 8 3-4 to 9 cents in the Panhandle.

Group (Oklahoma) 3 prices are firm at 7 cents, minimum, but demand has slowed up a little. The continuance of good weather should give all refiners plenty of business, as the tourists are out and moving to and fro.

Oil Stocks Are Not Suffering From Over Production

"Oil shares are not on the bargain counter," says Forbes Magazine for the current issue.

In other comments in this digest on business, it intimates that while major companies are now suffering from over-production, that the stocks of the major companies are not suffering as in some other industries.

The commodity price of crude oil for the Mid-Continent it places at 97 cents a barrel, a new low level. This is just two cents above the posted market price for Carson and Hutchinson county crudes. A year ago the commodity price for the province was $2.05.

Gas Lift Helping Well In Moore County

AMARILLO, July 20.—The gas lift is helping the Morton and company's No. 1 Reeder, in section 191, block 3T, of T. & U. O. survey, and near Dumas, in northeastern Moore county, the first of a series of future wells to be drilled in the northwestern part of the Texas Panhandle.

For the full 24 hours ended Monday it made 200 barrels and three per cent water, under 130 pounds of pressure. The pressure was later increased to 160 pounds and the well flowed 20 barrels per hour for a two-hour period.

Officials and workers of the Morton company are now experimenting with pressures to determine which is best for the No. 1 Reder, producing from a pay from 3375 to 3408 feet.

Thornton Gets Credit For Extinguishing Fire

Although badly scalded and incapacitated Tex Thornton, well shooter, is given credit for putting out the fire at the Prairie Oil and Gas company No. 2 Sanford, in section 85, block 46, of H. & T. C. survey, in the Sanford-Paramount pool of southwestern Hutchinson county, though the actual shooting was done by his friend and protege, William Brooks.

Thornton had cleared away most of the debris about the burning gasser when he was hurt early Monday, and Brooks finished the job. Brooks is also employed by the U. S. Torpedo company.

The Prairie gasser burned for four days before it was extinguished.

NATURAL GAS FOR ANGELO

Charter Granted For City's Supply

SAN ANGELO, July 20.—The charter given the Western Gas Service company in Austin last week is a step toward San Angelo's getting natural gas, according to Louis Roberts, one of the incorporators. He said the company was organized to buy the San Angelo Gas company, an artificial gas manufacturing plant, and the Barney Carter franchise, which the city recently gave Certer of Ranger.

Other incorporators of the company include Mr. Carter and A. T. Knies of Austin. Mr. Roberts is from New York.

Gas will be furnished San Angelo by the local company until the Western Gas Service company completes its pipeline and gets natural gas here. Headquarters of the new company are to be in San Angelo, as well as homes of all the officials.

The city commission has been asked to give a hearing to officials of the Lone Star Gas company, who are also seeking a franchise in San Angelo. The hearing will be given some time this week, when the Lone Star organization will ask formally for the franchise. They have been unsuccessful in other attempts to get a franchise here, because of the Carter franchise having already been given.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, July 20. (AP)—A further advance at the opening of the cotton market today attracted heavy realizing and was followed by reactions. October contracts, which had sold up to 18.72 on the early demand, broke to 18.46 in late trading, or 8 points net lower, and closed at 18.49, the general market closing steady at net declines of 1 to 5 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 13 to 16 points. Active months sold 17 to 20 points net higher in early trading on a renewal of yesterday's buying movement, evidently stimulated by higher Liverpool cables and a very sharp advance in the futures market for Egyptian cotton at Alexandria.

July sold up to 18.30 and January to 19.02, all new crop months making new high records for the season, but these prices attracted a good deal of realizing, while there may have been some selling for a reaction. Trade interests were buyers on declines of about 8 to 10 points from the best, and the market stiffened up several points after publication from of the weekly report of the weather bureau which was regarded as emphasizing the danger of boll weevil damage to the crop this summer.

Realizing continued, however, and the market eased again in late trading, reaching the lowest prices of the day shortly before the close. July sold off to 18.08 and January to 18.77 or about 25 points form the high level of the morning in the cast of January and from 2 to 8 points below yesterday's closing quotations. There was a slight spurt of covering at the close, but last prices were only a few points up from the lowest.

Two more private mid-month reports were issued, one making the condition 75.6 and the indicated crop 14,833,000 bales, while the other placed the condition at 75.1 and the indicated crop at 14,766,000 bales. These condition figures were about in line with the two published previously, and appeared to be without any particular effect on the day's market, so far as could be learned.

Private cables from Liverpool said there had been covering and re-buying by recent sellers combined with some trade calling in the market there.

Exports 4329, making 11,076,156 so far this season. Port receipts 3688; U. S. port stocks 1,034,380.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, July 20. (AP)—Prices in the cotton market were rather two-sided today with the undertone still bullish, and although trading was not brisk, the market was fairly active. There were gains of 10 to 13 points on first trades as Liverpool came in better than due and the market advanced further in the early trading with October at 18.60 and December 18.85, or 20 to 21 points above yesterday's close. The market declined on the dry weather map and a favorable weekly weather and crop report, October dropping to 18.40 and December to 18.65, or 20 points below the highs. After rallying 12 to 14 points around mid-session prices declined in the late trading making new lows for October at 18.35 and 18.60 for December, or 25 points down from the highs. The market closed steady with net losses for the day of 2 to 5 points.

Two private crop reports were issued during the day, one making the condition 75.6 and the indicated yield 14,833,000 bales and the other making the condition 75.1 and the crop yield 14,766,000 bales. Exports for the day 4329 bales.

Standard Stocks Advance To Higher Ground In Day's Trading On Wall Street Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 20.—Standard stocks, particularly those sponsored by the Morgan-Baker group, rose into new high ground on a wave of heavy buying today. Reduction in the money rate from 4 to 3 3-4 per cent indicated the favorable credit situation and the abundance of funds for speculative and investment purposes.

Cotton rose approximately $1 a bale but eased off. In 1923, the big boof-weevil year, the damage to the crop did not become serious until late in July, although the weevil was reported to be numerous, just as it is now. Beginning in August of 1923 cotton advanced from 23 1-2 cents a pound to 37 1-2 cents in November of that year, an increase of 14 cents a pound, or $70 a bale within a few months.

Upon a demand and supply basis big cotton speculators assert the situation is more bullish now than four years ago. "Watch the boll weevil and buy cotton," is their slogan. Heat was stronger. Weakness developed in the Rumanian lei following news of the death of King Ferdinand.

General Motors and DuPont made sharp advances. General Motors sold at the high of all time, considering the split-up, on investment buying by the Morgans, Duponts and Baker interests. The buying was influenced by the belief that directors would vote another split-up in August. The so-called wise ones of Wall street have been advising the sale of this stock from 190, and today there is the biggest shortage interest ever known in the stock.

Bearing out the rumors of a General Motors split-up DuPont rose approximately a dozen points from the opening to a record high. This would indicate that the DuPont company will pass on to its stockholders the dividends received from General Motors. Allied Chemical changed hands at a new top price on heavy transactions. Allied is understood to be slated for higher prices. American Can entered the elite class by selling at the best price in months on its increasing volume of new orders.

Eastman Kodak spurted seven points on excellent buying. Big developments are pending in this issue which should send it across the $200-mark. The company does an international business and has plenty of cash. The stock sold at a new high on a buying movement engineered by insiders. A big block of stock held by Frenchmen was taken over recently by interests connected with the company who are very optimistic over special distributions in store for shareholders.

Eastman Kodak is getting ready to change its capital structure and give valuable rights to stockholders. The change is based on a consolidation of its English, French, German Westinghouse Electric continued strong and a demand prevailed for Timken. People bullish on the market are also fixing their attention on American steel foundries.

Gabriel Snubbers reached a new high level at 55 on the revival of the old Ford rumors. These reports were current recently and were to the effect that Ford had bid $1,000,000 annually for the right to manufacture Gabriel snubbers for his new car. Selling developed in Manhattan Electrical. A drop of three points followed reports that the stock exchange had sent out a questionnaire to members asking their long and short position in the stock.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, July 20. (AP)—Reduction in the call money rate from 4 to 3¾ per cent, the lowest rate in four months, started a fresh outburst of bullish enthusiasm in today's stock market, with the result that more than a score issues jumped 2 to 11 points to new high records for the year. The violence of the advance in some issues, however, led to heavy profit taking in other quarters, giving the general list a rather irregular appearance at the close.

So great is the surplus of loanable funds in this center that some of the large banks and other financial institutions are reported to have been heavy buyers of high grade stocks which accounts, in part, for the reduction in the floating supply.

General Motors was the individual feature, jumping more than five points to a new high record of 213¾ for the present stock, presumably in anticipation of special dividend action this month. Chrysler moved up a point to 48 but several of the other motors were inclined to heaviness. Hupp improved fractionally despite publication of a half yearly report showing net income only slightly more than half of that in the corresponding period last year. The further rise of 3 points in Gabriel Snubbers to a new peak at 55 was accompanied by unconfirmed rumors of an important contract with one of the large automobile manufacturers.

"Shorts" who have been selling stocks freely on the theory that the market was entitled to at least a technical reaction, were badly punished in some of the specialties, particularly National Tea which soared 11 points to a new high at 273½. Houston Oil and Bayuk Cigars were among the few issues which showed acute weakness the former breaking nearly 8 points to 160⅝ and the latter showing an extreme decline of 7 points at 88.

Speculative interest in the rail shares was chilled somewhat by the bad break in Lehigh Valley yesterday, although Atchison touched another new peak and a brisk demand was apparent for Western Maryland common and Baltimore & Ohio.

Foreign exchanges moved within extremely narrow and irregular limits, demand sterling being quoted around $4.85⅛ and French francs just under 3.91⅛ cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, July 20. (AP)—Good export buying of United States red winter wheat together with smallness of domestic threshing returns brought about a decided advance in wheat values today. Unseasonably cool weather gave a lift to the corn market. Closing quotationson wheat were firm, 1⅛ to 2c tations on wheat were firm, 1⅜ to 2¼ oats at ⅝ to ⅝c gain, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 2c.

Corn prices derived strength not only from widespread prevailing low temperatures adverse to corn growth, but also from comprehensive unofficial reports indicating serious backwardness of corn crop conditions over Illinois, Iowa and Missouri. Oats, like wheat, were affected by threshing returns showing smaller yields than expected.

Provisions were a little easier, despite higher quotations on hogs.

City Asks Itemized Bill On County's $5000 Claim; Conference Suggested

A conference between the members of the county commissioners court and the city council relative to the county's claim that the city owes it $5,032.62 for the care of indigent patients at the hospital and county poor farm will be proposed by the city council, Mayor R. E. Shepherd said Wednesday.

Mayor Shepherd's statement was made after he received a copy of an order passed Monday by the court in which it was set out that unless the amount was paid by the city to the county within 30 days that a suit would be filed in district court.

"The city is willing to pay all it owes," said Mayor Shepherd, "however, we do not care to pay out the city's money for something about which we know nothing. The county has failed to render us an itemized statement of the account and we do not know whether we owe it or not."

That the city would refuse to pay the county, or anybody else, money without first being presented with an itemized statement, was the assertion made by Mayor Shepherd.

"In fact," he said, "the law requires us to have an itemized statement before authorizing the payment of any account."

At the proposed conference the county will be requested to detail the account which it claims the city owes for the care of patients from Jan. 1, 1923 to Dec. 31, 1926.

150 Attend Annual Picnic Of Electric Company Employes

With 150 in attendance, the annual picnic of employes of the Texas Electric Service company and their families held on the lawn of the power plant at Mill and Chester streets Wednesday evening set a record in size and enthusiasm. The group attending represented, principally the Wichita Falls employes with a number from Burkburnett.

The picnic officially began at 6 o'clock with a baseball game. In addition to the regular game there was also a contest by girls' teams. After the baseball game the old established women's race, fat men's race, and other picnic events were featured. At 7 o'clock a chicken dinner was served that included everything down to and including ice cream and cake.

The picnic disbanded at 8:30 with some participants returning home and others going to Westmoreland Park to complete the day with a swim. Members of the committee in charge of arrangements included Mrs. Frank Ramsey, Miss Esther Lea Heath, and J. W. Thorne. A. E. Kelly, manager, was on hand for the occasion as official host.

McMurray College Head Gives Chief Address To Lions Club

An address by Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of McMurray College of Abilene, and two readings by Mrs. E. F. Bohmfalk featured the weekly luncheon of the Lions club Wednesday.

Mrs. Bohmfalk gave two numbers in Italian dialect, which received generous applause from the club.

Dr. Hunt told of his experiences at the Lions international convention in Miami, declaring the fellowship and friendship sponsored by such organizations is building slowly and surely for world peace and the end of all war.

The speaker paid tribute to the type of men attending the international convention, but declared they were a disappointment to the "brotherhood of bootleggers" of Miami.

Unselfish service to humanity is the only thing by which men are remembered, Dr. Hunt declared in closing his address.

"The world never remembers the unselfish man. It forgets how much he accumulated, and how much he was worth an hour after his death. But the world never forgets the man who has performed unselfish service."

A committee composed of Bill Davenport, Jim King, Joe D. Harris and C. V. Millican was named to arrange a ball game with the Optimist club, with the purpose of "convincing the Optimists they haven't any club."

HOLLIS ADDS MORE PAVING

Work Starts This Week On New Stretch

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, July 20.—Paving will start this week on the half mile strip from the end of the pavement to the city limits on Oklahoma state highway No. 7, which will make six miles of pavement for Hollis.

The first block of paving was laid in May, 1926, and at that time plans had been made to pave only 24 blocks, but the citizens of the town began to realize what it would mean to have the main thoroughfares paved, and they now have five and one-half miles paved, contracts let for another half mile, and plans under way for still more.

RAID SUSPECT KILLS HIMSELF

Man Under Surveillance Dies By Drowning

BOGALUSA, La., July 20.(AP)—Lonnie Moak, local taxi driver who has been under police surveillance several days in connection with the Great Southern Lumber company pay roll robbery on July 2, was found dead in the bottom of Bogalusa creek late yesterday with a 25-pound piece of iron fastened to his neck.

A note found in his car and which the police believed to be in his handwriting read:

"It's the pay roll robbery that made me do it."

He had not been questioned by police or taken into custody.

Three masked bandits obtained $3250 when they drove up to the company's offices and snatched a satchel containing the money from the hands of the paymaster.

Three Sentenced After Trials In Court Here

Arraigned on a statutory charge in connection with an alleged attack on his sister-in-law, Frank Cooper pleaded guilty Wednesday before Judge E. G. Thornton, in the 30th district court, and was sentenced by a jury to serve five years in the penitentiary.

Jess Bird and Douglas Harwell, accused of possessing and transporting liquor, pleaded not guilty before Judge Thornton. A jury pronounced them guilty and assessed their punishment at one year each in the penitentiary.

The three cases were prosecuted by E. P. Fruechete and Sam Spence, assistant district attorneys.

Ysaye's pupil. The ceremony is said to have been held at Lezoute, a Belgian seaside resort where the music master has a summer residence.

Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

Marion's forte has been comedy, but Tillie gives her a shot at real farce and Marion has taken advantage of every opportunity it offers. The screen play was written by A. P. Younger and based on Russ Westover's comic strip of the same name.

Firemen Desert Parade To Battle Flames In City Hall

CHURCHILL, Md., July 20.(AP)—A firemen's carnival at Centreville, a few miles away, last night probably saved this town from being destroyed by fire. The loss was estimated at $200,000.

The firemen were parading when word of the blaze was reported and they hastened here to find the town hall, the Churchill Bank of Maryland and several stores and dwellings in the block ablaze. Pumping water from a mill stream some distance away the fighters confined the fire to one side of the block.

Orchid Shop Employes Hold Annual Picnic

Its always fair weather when good fellows get together, say the 35 employes of the Orchid Shop who held their annual picnic at Westmoreland park Wednesday evening. Business talk was cast aside and pleasure was the order of the evening as food and drink in good old picnic style was spread.

Fried chicken was the most popular food, and reaching the ruling form of etiquette as hungry young ladies exterted a noble effort to satisfy the keen appetite that a fresh water swim always develops.

The picnic was given by the combined ready-to-wear, shoe, millinery and beauty parlor departments in co-operation with the store manager, Jerome Bernstein.

"Hardness" of City Water Increases Almost 50 Per Cent In 5 Months

Increased hardening of water received in Wichita Falls was reported Wednesday by Dr. A. H. Douglass, superintendent of the water department.

The hardness has increased three and one quarter grains since February, which is a large increase, according to Dr. Douglass.

In February the content of the water was 8 3-4 grains, and a test made Wednesday revealed that the content was now 12 grains.

The increased hardness is due to the overflow salt water from oil wells entering Holliday creek and thence into Lake Wichita, also the waste water used for irrigation purposes which flows off of a watershed into Holliday creek and into the lake, Dr. Douglass said.

The only remedy for the increasing hardness, Dr. Douglass said, was to construct a shallow canal from Holliday creek, around Lake Wichita, carrying the overflow hard water from the oil wells and irrigated lands away from the water used in Wichita Falls.

It will be necessary to dam Holliday creek at the base at the Lake Wichita inlet, in order that the hard water from the oil wells and irrigated lands, will enter the canal, according to Dr. Douglass.

The construction of the canal is contained in the water improvement project recently suggested by the city council.
