Girl Of 19 Listens To Special Radio Concert As Surgeons Operate

By MARJORIE MATHIS
The Record News Staff

The ear-phones of a radio receiving set pressed closely against her ears, Mrs. C. H. Hale, 19-year-old patient at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital, Tuesday morning listened in full consciousness to a program of varied music while surgeons successfully completed a major abdominal operation. Mrs. Hale was rushed here for treatment three days ago from her home in Randlett, Okla.

The value of the radio in the operating room, one of the most recent developments in modern surgical methods, was demonstrated for the first time in Wichita Falls and among the first times anywhere when the young patient, relieved of nervous strain, concentrated on the soothing tones of the music and forgot what the doctors were doing behind the cloth which kept her from watching them at their work.

Nervous Strain Eliminated

Mrs. Hale, seriously weakened from internal hemorrhages, and with a heart action too unstable to stand a general anesthetic, was forced to submit to the operation with only a spinal anesthetic and local injection. Physicians explained that although such patients do not suffer actual pain, the nervous ordeal is so severe as to be sometimes dangerous. The ominous sound of surgical instruments at their work, the instructions which a doctor must give to his nurses and assistants, and the constant dread of pain when there are no distractions constitute a real menace to the patient's morale, it was pointed out.

In many instances the work of the surgeon is interrupted by hysterics from a patient unnerved by his own fears and the sights and sounds around him. Physicians added that it had often been necessary to administer a hypodermic to the patient to quiet her.

ROGERS TRIAL ARGUMENTS UP

Testimony Closes in Bank Robbery Case

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas, Sept. 17. (AP)—Testimony in Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers trial for robbery with firearms was completed here tonight and court recessed, until tomorrow when final arguments will be heard.

After the prosecution had thundered its accusations, and the defense had pleaded that Mrs. Rogers was insane when she held up the Buda, Texas Farmers' National bank in December, 1926, the court's charge was read to the jury.

Dittert's Baptism

Tomorrow J. Lee Dittert, the youthful assistant prosecutor will appear before a jury for the first time in his life to begin the state's assault on the insanity theory. Young Leo Brewster, classmate of Otis Rogers, Rebecca's husband and chief attorney, will answer him in beginning the summation of the defense story that the young woman, through an unhappy heritage and disease, was mentally unbalanced on the day she flourished a pistol and took about $1,000 of the bank's money.

Frank Voigt, the county attorney, will follow Brewster and J. H. Schleyer, another of the University of Texas classmates of Rogers and his wife will speak for the defense.

The principals among counsel—District Attorney Fred Blundell and Rogers himself—will come to grips last.

BEN P. ALLRED WILL SUCCEED JOHN HOLMES

Former Wichita Official Named District Attorney For Borger Court

BORGER, Texas, Sept. 17. (AP)—Texas rangers and Hutchinson county officers today continued their investigation into the slaying of John A. Holmes, district attorney fo. this county, but as far as was publicly known no promising clues had been uncovered.

A temporary successor to Holmes was named today in Ben P. Allred, former district attorney at Wichita Falls and a former assistant federal district attorney at Fort Worth. He was named to act as this district's prosecutor by Judge E. J. Pickens until Gov. Dan Moody has had time to make an appointment.

Confession Available

One point was partially cleared up today by an announcement by Capt. Frank Hamer that the death bed confession of an alleged bank robber, reported missing from the files of the prosecutor, was available when wanted. He would not discuss the document further than to make this assertion.

Attorneys aiding officers in seeking a solution for the crime, however, suggested that the confession might not have been missing.

The document was first mentioned in the case after it was reported Holmes recently was seen with it and after it was learned that it connected a man under arrest with complicity in the slaying of two deputy sheriffs here in 1927. The attorney was to have prosecuted the man named in the confession.

Reward Grows

While officers kept at work on the case, contributions by Borger citizens continued to swell the reward for the arrest and conviction of the guilty party. The local donation was around $2,500. Augmenting this was a reward of $500 by Gov. Dan Moody, a similar one by Hutchinson county and a $250 reward by the county and district attorneys association of Texas.

Ranger Captain Tom Hickman, a guest of the Borger Rotary club at its noon luncheon today, was promised that organization's support in ridding this oil town of its criminal elements.

It had been suggested that Holmes' efforts to drive undesirable characters from Borger might have been a motive for the killing.

S. B. Scroggins, Accused In Clarendon Slaying, Drops Dead in Oklahoma

Special to The Record News.

OLUSTEE, Okla., Sept. 17.—S. B. Scroggins, 62, of this city who recently was arrested on a charge of murder in connection with the death of a Clarendon, Texas nightwatchman, dropped dead of a heart ailment in Creta, Okla., near here, late today.

Scroggins had gone to Creta with his son, Albert, to buy some cattle. He stumbled and started to fall, calling, "catch me," but before his son could reach him he had fallen to the ground. When a physician arrived he was pronounced dead of a heart attack.

Scroggins was arrested in Altus, Okla., a few months ago after a negro, Walter Scott, arrested in Wichita Falls by Clarendon officers allegdly implicated Scroggins in the slaying of John Slaughter, a night watchman at Clarendon in the fall of 1927. Scroggins vehemently denied implication in the slaying, made bond after his arrest and waived extradition to come with Clarendon officers to Texas in order to be further questioned in the case.

The negro Scott had made a statement to Wichita Falls officers in which he related that he and another man on the night of the shooting, carried Slaughter's body from the vicinity of a cafe Scroggins operated, and left it on a street in the rear of the restaurant. Officers have established no motive for the slaying. The negro is still in jail at Clarendon, where he is being held as a witness.

COUNCILMAN AT LAWTON OUSTED

Intoxication Charges Voted, Successor Named

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Sept. 17.—C. R. Simpson, veteran Lawton politician and two times candidate for the office of mayor, was removed from the city council tonight by action of that body which followed recommendations by Mayor Fred C. Larrance.

Mayor Larrance entered official charges of "entering the council chamber while under the influence of intoxicating liquors," against Mr. Simpson. As prescribed by the Oklahoma law, the council took the charges under consideration and voted upon them. The vote was 9 to 0 in favor of Mr. Simpson's dismissal. There are 10 members on the council.

New Member Named

After the vote had been announced, Mayor Larrance appointed T. R. Parsons, well known Lawton business man, to fill Mr. Simpson's unexpired term.

Mr. Simpson did not vote on the charges preferred against him, and made no statement to the assembled council, after he had been informed that charges had been written into the minutes of the council. That body was in its regular weekly session at the time.

Mayor Larrance said he preferred the charges soon after Mr. Simpson appeared in the council hall. Two policemen were called, the mayor said, to accompany Mr. Simpson to his home.

Serving Second Term

Mr. Simpson was serving his second term on the council. he was elected to the office for one term; and was later appointed councilman to fill the unexpired term of Councilman John Schoot, who resigned his office last spring to conduct an unsuccessful race for mayor. On two occasions Mr. Simpson sought the office of mayor.

EFFORTS TO REACH MR. SIMPSON FUTILE

The Record News Tuesday night made an effort to get in touch with C. R. Simpson, ousted Lawton, Okla., councilman, to obtain from him a statement relative to his dismissal from the city council. It was found, however, that Mr. Simpson has no telephone.

Mayor Larrance, in a long distance telephone conversation with this newspaper, declared that under the Oklahoma law, city councils are given the power to remove from that body, by regular and legal balloting, any member who shall be charged with offenses deemed to warrant that action.

DROWNED BOY'S BODY FOUND IN WICHITA RIVER

Dynamite Blasts Bring to Surface Corpse of Charlie Youth

Special to The Record News.

CHARLIE, Texas, Sept. 17.—The three-day search for the body of Homer Ferguson, 14, who drowned Sunday while swimming in the Wichita river near here, ended with success about 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening when one of the searchers standing on the bank saw the boy's body rise slowly to the surface of the water at a point three miles below the spot where he disappeared.

An ambulance from Wichita Falls was called and the body was taken there to be prepared for burial. Funeral arrangements have not been announced but it was thought that services would be held here Wednesday.

Prior to the finding of the body, the scores of searchers had used dynamite in the bed of the river from the bridge to the spot where the body was found throughout the afternoon. It was thought that the jar of the explosions may have loosened the body from whatever obstruction was holding it and allowed it to rise to the surface. Parties from Wichita Falls, Byers, Henrietta, Charlie, Petrolia and other communities aided in the search all day Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ferguson, parents of the boy, remained under the treatment of a physician until late Tuesday at their home here.

J. O. Clayton, of Byers, seining on the north bank of the river about three miles down from the Charlie-Petrolia bridge caught the first glance of the body, floating in the middle of the river. When the current brought it closer to shore, Mr. Clayton stopped its down stream course by grasping the overall straps. His shouts to the searchers in the boat nearby brought immediate help. With the assistance of Lowell Hogan and Sam McNews, divers from Wichita Falls, the body was put into the boat and brought into shore. The boat was manned by Berry Hill, George Anderson and Joe Baker, all of Petrolia. Carl Wilson, of Charlie also assisted in the work.

A crowd of about 350 people gathered on the banks of the river within a few minutes after the news of the recovery spread. They waited about the body until the arrival of a Hines Undertaking company ambulance from Wichita Falls.

FUNERAL SERVICES AT CHARLIE TODAY

The body of Homer Ferguson, 14, who drowned while wading in the Wichita river Sunday near Charlie, was brought to Wichita Falls shortly after 9 o'clock Tuesday night by an ambulance from the Hines mortuary which was sent to the spot where the body was found after a search lasting almost three days.

The body will be prepared for interment and will be forwarded to Charlie Wednesday morning. Funeral services will be held in Charlie at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Burial will also take place in that city.

Besides the parents, the boy is survived by eight sisters and two brothers.

Superb Pitching And Heavy Hitting Looms For Playoff Series

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

A pair of powerful ball clubs will start battle today for the championship of the Texas league.

The Dallas Steers and the Wichita Falls Spudders, winners of the first and second halves, are ready for the bell that sends them into the opening game at Athletic park in the playoff series of five contests, with the league pennant and the right to play Birmingham, Southern association titleholder, for the championship of the South.

Presenting mighty attacks and superb pitching, the rival clubs, with all players in excellent condition, are ready to throw their full resources into action. It will be a duel of the bludgeons of the siege guns and the rapiers of the hurlers, and as such the series promises to develop into the most bitterly-fought and thrilling in the ancient and honorable history of the Texas league.

Frasier Is Dallas Hope

Pinning his hope on getting away to a winning start in the vastly-important opening game, Manager Milton Stock of Dallas has indicated he will nominate Victor Frasier, 20-year-old phenom, as his pitcher today. While there is the possibility that George Connally or Whitey Glazner, veterans, may get the call, the Bovine skipper yesterday reiterated that Frasier will be his starting chucker.

In contrast to Stock's early and definite stand on his pitcher, Skipper Jim Galloway remains noncommittal over his choice for today. Galloway has five pitchers who have worked with great success. Two may be eliminated as possibilities for today. They are Harold Wiltse and Lester White.

Wiltse is the only lefthander of the quintet and it is unlikely that he will be named to start, although it is possible he will work the second or third game. This particularly if the first righthand pitcher or two fails to deliver as expected.

White is the juvenile member of the staff and only rejoined the Spudders a couple of months ago from Abilene of the West Texas league, where he underwent an amazing transformation from a

PARDON TRIAL NEARS CLOSE

Convict at Mangum Tells Of $10,000 Payment

MANGUM, Okla., Sept. 17. (UP)—Prosecution leaders tonight said they virtually had concluded their case against Dr. J. F. Campbell, charged with grand larceny and embezzlement in connection with an alleged deal he made with W. J. Radney, a state convict, to obtain the prisoner a pardon.

Convict Under Guard

Radney was sentenced to 20 years for manslaughter and, according to testimony he offered here tonight, Dr. Campbell said he could procure him a pardon from then Governor Johnston. Radney said he gave Dr. Campbell $10,000 and a mortgage to deliver the pardon. The convict was brought here under guard from the penitentiary at McAlester.

It was revealed during cross-examination of witnesses that Campbell had engaged Kirby Patrick and Pat Murphy to work in behalf of Radney. During the course of testimony numerous charges were brought forward accusing the using of paid "influential agents" to bring about a pardon for the convict.

Wife Released

Radney said Campbell approached him with the plan on the day he learned of the death of his wife and that he signed the agreement April 23, 1927 in the presence of his five children and Jim Beck, who was sought by the state's attorney tonight. Two of the convict's children bore out the testimony of their father.

Former Governor Johnston, who had been subpoenaed as a witness did not arrive at the trial.

Dr. Campbell's wife who also had been charged under the alleged offense was released when it was established her only connection with the case was that Radney's note and mortgage had been made payable to her.

Duty-Free Joss Sticks "Save" Farmer, Says McKellar

Tariff Bill Almost Laughed Out of Senate by Tennesseean

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (US)—In a fine vein of satire, Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, all but laughed the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill out of court today by pointing out how the measure "helped" the American farmer by laying heavier duties on everything he uses and placing useless articles on the free list.

After listing scores of articles, used daily on the farm, on which the rates have been increased and dozens of items, such as diamonds, platinum, pearls and joss sticks, included in the free list, McKeller closed with the serious charge that:

"If the Republican party can get by in passing this tariff bill, it cannot only get by with stealing from the government but can get by with murder."

McKellar, who looks like Bobby Burns, unleashed a line of irony hitherto unsuspected of him, which made even Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, chief defender of the bill, laugh and set the small attendance in the senate chuckling.

Before opening his broadside of ridicule, McKeller declared that the bill was drawn "in the interest of industry rather than the farmer" and would injure the farmer far more than it would help him.

The Tennesseean described the "unconfined joy" in the farms when it was learned that uncut diamonds are on the free list and dilated on the absolute necessity of farmers to wear diamonds while harvesting crops. While some of the farmer's joy might be mitigated by the thought of paying more for shoes, clothing, drugs, paints, metals, cement brick and furniture, McKellar cited the "delightful prospect" of the farmer in having platinum and pearls on the free list, both of which he said were "absolutely necessary to the success and happiness of the farmer."

"Even tombstones to mark the graves of his dead will cost the farmer more," said McKellar.

sary to resort to the administration of a general anesthetic even when its use is considered extremely dangerous.

It was in search of relief from these conditions that the local surgeon, faced with the emergency needs of the weakened patient, turned to the possibilities of the radio, following in the path of leading physicians in California and the East who have been conducting experiments.

Special Radio Provides

Don McCauley, of the Wichita Falls Radio Supply shop, was called into service and rushed to completion Tuesday morning the installation of a special radio system just outside the operating room at Clinic hospital. In order to insure the most effective musical numbers and to make the reception perfect, Mr. McCauley arranged an electrical reproduction set which sent the music from Victrola records through a standard receiving set and along wires to the ear-phones inside. The radio expert himself operated the set while the music was needed.

The surgeon in charge of the case explained that the phones served a double purpose in shutting out the sounds within the room and giving the patient the necessary distraction. In the case Tuesday morning the young woman, courageous and calm, looked eagerly to the radio program as a means of escape from her own unavoidable nervousness. She listened first to the quiet tones of two organ records made by Jesse Crawford. They were "Little Pal" and "Why Can't You," played softly and reassuringly right into her ears while the doctors went about their work.

Presently the music changed and Mrs. Hale heard Nat Skilkret sing "You Can't Take Away the Things That Were Meant for Love," and "I Get the Blues When It Rains." Two selections from the light opera "The Desert Song," were also included on the special program arranged for the occasion.

Operation Success

Not once during the 30-minute operation did the young woman stir or make complaint, showing less disturbance than any other patient under similar circumstances, attendants declared. She left the table calm and in a very satisfactory nervous state, the surgeon said, having been entirely spared the more trying aspects of the ordeal. Once while the doctors worked an attendant moved the ear phones from the patient's head long enough to ask a question, but she urgently called for them to be replaced. For a while she closed her eyes and apparently slept while the gentle music played on.

Attendants at the hospital reported late Tuesday that the patient was making good progress and that the operation had been a complete success.

Although hospital officials admitted that the operation had been performed there, they refused to reveal the name of the operating surgeon, explaining that it was at variance with their conception of medical ethics.

HEDLEY DEATH STORY RELATED

Witnesses Tell Memphis Jury of Fight

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Sept. 17.—The state tonight continued to present evidence to a jury in district court here which all day Tuesday listened to witnesses tell of circumstances designed to show that Bert Hall killed J. H. Richey, Hedley nightwatchman, during a store robbery in that city Dec. 31, 1928. State testimony began at the opening of court Tuesday morning. The jury was selected Monday.

The court session Tuesday afternoon was marked by the testimony of Jimmy Brown and Crockett Taylor, main witnesses for the prosecution. Brown, who was arrested in a Borger hospital several days after the murder, told the jury that he and his three companions had planned the robbery in Borger, had gone to the store at Hedley and had broken into the cash register and were attempting to open the safe when they were surprised by Richey.

Shot in Arm

In the gun battle which followed, Brown said, he was shot in the arm by Richey. A moment later the watchman was shot and fell to the floor. He was fatally wounded.

Crockett Taylor, another of the state's star witnesses and a hardware merchant in Clarendon, testified that Hall had bought a quantity of 12-gauge shotgun shells from his store on Saturday before Richey was killed on Sunday night. Medical examination following the shooting of the night watchman established the fact that he was killed by pellets from a 12-gauge shotgun, the shot removed from the body having been No. 4 size. No other wounds were found in the body.

The defense will begin its case Wednesday morning and the fate of Hall will probably be placed in the hands of the jury late Wednesday afternoon.

Joe Dunwoody, one of the four connected with the case, was given 99 years when he was tried in Clarendon several months ago. Jack Webb, the fourth, is still at large. The case against Hall was opened before Judge A. J. Fires Monday following a transfer here from Clarendon on a change of venue.

Prosecuting attorneys are James Mayhan, district attorney, Judge Cole and W. T. Links, both of Clarendon. E. T. Miller of Amarillo and Hamilton, Fitzgerald & Grundy of Memphis are representing the defendant.

Smith to Run For Congress

Sartin's Presence in Race Won't Stop Him, He Says

Special to The Record News

THROCKMORTON, Texas, Sept. 17.—When asked if he proposed to continue as a candidate for congress after the announcement of B. D. Sartin, Wichita Falls attorney, appeared in the Sunday papers, Judge John Lee Smith of this place stated emphatically that he would make the race.

"Of course," he said, "I regret that Judge Sartin has announced since I would prefer that only one anti-Tammany candidate be in the race, but I cannot be blamed for such a complication, as my announcement appeared two months in advance of that of the Wichita Falls man. I regard Judge Sartin very highly, but I know of no reason why his decision to enter the lists should bar my candidacy. We live in a free country where every citizen may vote as he pleases, and run for office if he wants to, provided the Tammany sachems do not bar his name from the ticket. I shall continue in the race with the avowed purpose of securing the nomination for congress, and in addition to render assistance to all who are striving to liberate the Democratic party from the clutches of the liquor interests and Tammanyism. I have received gratifying encouragement in all parts of the district and I will wage an intensive campaign."

on kitchen utensils, McKellar referred to the Aluminum company of America.

"It is true that this trust is making all the money in the world now but under this bill the farmer is charged 9 cents a pound on the aluminum he uses," said McKellar.

In compensation for this, McKellar said the Republican party had exceeded "all the generosity of its history by making joss sticks and joss lights absolutely free to the farmer," and added:

"Everybody knows that if a man has a joss on his farm as provided by the Republican party, he does not need anything else."

Turning to the duties of knives, leather, tobacco, razors, surgical instruments, shotguns and rifles, McKellar said they were "taxed higher than a cat's back." He also cited the higher rates on sewing machines, brooms and many other articles as a tax against the farmer's wife.

Referring to chestnuts being placed on the free list, the senator said this was necessary, for "otherwise the farmer would forget how to pull chestnuts out of the fire as he has done for the Republican party since the civil war." He also made a play on the fact that seaweed ashes had been put on the free list, declaring:

"As a giver of ashes to the farmer, the Republican party is without an equal."

"And skeletons are on the free list," he continued. "The Republican party being very wise, knows that the farmer has to have a skeleton in his closet. Thus we see that this tariff bill is not entirely bad."

Among the articles on the free list, which McKeller ironically declared would greatly benefit the farmer were fish skin, bones, Brazilian pichuria beans, pebbles, fossils, horse hair, hoofs and horns, muzzle loading muskets, shrimps, spunk, truffles, worm gut and zaffer.

"Now," he said, "with all of these articles coming in free under this Republican tariff measure, how can anybody criticize the farmer least of all, because these things are so absolutely necessary to the farmer."

FIRST AMENDMENT ADOPTED, 40 TO 32

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—After reconsideration the senate today adopted by 40 to 32 the first committee amendment to the tariff bill, requiring all imported articles to be marked with the country of origin except in specific cases.

WINDY CITY IS BROKE AGAIN

Empty Purse Awaits Huge Payroll Demands

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (INS)—Chicago is "broke" again.

First it was the school teachers that didn't get paid and now it's 4,000 employes of the county building who, instead of receiving their semi-monthly checks, were given "I. O. U.'s."

"Our payroll of approximately $400,000 fell due on Sept. 15," County Comptroller William J. Graham explained today. "But instead of mailing the checks, we are locking the roll up in the vaults. Of course the employes will have to be paid sometime but when that will be nobody knows. I doubt it if will be for two or three months."

Graham blamed the shortage of funds on the 1928 reassessment which not only has delayed the collection of taxes but has resulted in valuations far under those estimated.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 17. (UP)—Application of the attorney general's office for the state supreme court to take jurisdiction in liquidation of the state bank guaranty fund, scheduled to have been presented to the court today was delayed for a week.

If the court takes jurisdiction in liquidation of the fund, a friendly mandamus action will be brought by the attorney general's office to force final winding up of the fund, J. Berry King, assistant attorney general, said.

The bank guaranty fund was created at statehood, but the act was repealed by the ninth legislature after the fund was more than $1,500,000 "in the red" as a result of bank failures following the war.

When Ordinary Coffee Tastes "Thin" or "Flat"

Map of New World's Coffee Eden—showing where Central American coffees grow with flavor unlike any known before

Try the keen tang and extra richness of mountain coffees from Central America

IN the rich volcanic soil of high mountain districts on the West Coast of Central America there grows a coffee utterly unlike any that has ever come into your home before. How good it is we do not try to tell you, but experts agree that it has the rarest tang and the richest mellow flavor of probably any coffee in the world today.

Seventy-nine years ago Folger & Co. imported their first cargo of these mountain coffees and roasted it in the pioneer coffee plant on the Pacific coast.

Travelers who tasted this coffee in the famous Bohemian restaurants of San Francisco wrote back for shipments. Army officers also carried its fame to distant parts of the world. In an incredibly short time it became one of the world's most sought coffees. Today two great modern roasting plants are required to supply the demand here and abroad

Nature's Secret

Ordinarily when you change from one brand of coffee to another, you note little difference in taste. That is because 70% of all coffee sold in the United States today (regardless of brand names) is of one common type grown in the same general region. Hence Nature has given it the same common flavor. So-called "blending" and special roasting processes (in spite of advertising talk) can not change it. For roasting coffee merely brings out whatever flavor Nature has already put in.

It is a different type of coffee that makes Folger Flavor different—the rare mountain coffees of Central America.

You will notice the difference in Folger's by the rush of rich, fragrant aroma, when you break the seal of your first vacuum tin. In making the coffee you will find you don't have to "coax" the flavor out. It makes a clear amber cup that is never thin or flat. Never bitter or insipid, but always tangy, mellow and rich.

Try This Test

Get a pound of Folger's Coffee from your grocer today. Drink it tomorrow morning. The next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning drink Folger's again. Then decide which you like best. If, for any reason, you do not choose Folger's, your grocer will gladly refund the full purchase price. We will pay him. That's fair, isn't it? You risk nothing—so why not order Folger's now for the test?

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

We do not like bugs. We have a creepy feeling whenever bugs touch us. And since a member of our family has begun the study of biology, we find bugs all about our house.

Dead grasshoppers turn their toes to the ceiling in our bathroom. We stepped on a tiny tin cylinder in the kitchen and almost broke our neck because silver fish moths must be preserved. When we were ready to return our five-gallon water bottle, we found live grasshoppers and crickets and June bugs living therein, fed on the tender inner leaves of green corn.

A wail went up from our backyard. "Who took my oatmeal box?" cried a distressed voice. "It had my cockroach in it!"

Somehow, biology is not our favorite study.

Dogs now, we like. We have a sympathy for even the poorest curs. And the little pups, that lie down and roll in ecstacy when one gives them a gentle poke, warm the cockles of our heart.

Only this day, we saw a dog that gave us a thrill of pity. Just at the top of Burnett, he had found an enormous bone. A car coming up the hill to Eighth, was making all warning noises possible to get the dog out of danger's way. And he barely missed being run over, and came around the back wheels of the car to reach that bone again. There was nothing on the bone. But he was so big and skinny and hungry looking that we hoped it would be full of marrow.

People sometimes hug ideas just as dogs cling to bare bones. You must know someone who harps on one theme eternally; that is his or her bone. Maybe you have argued with that person and the bone is a bare thing, unpleasant to bring to light.

Dogs will bury and then dig up a bone long buried and growl over it. And people will dig up unhappy themes long buried and quarrel over them. And they are as bare as a dog's buried bone.

Animals interest us. Insects do not except as we read of them in Maeterlink or Fabre.

Yet our first realization of immortality came from watching the dirt dauber. He works to build his cells of mud—a certain kind of mud that will withstand heavy rains. In his house of many cells, he deposits spiders and on these spiders' bodies, the egg is laid. The cells are hermetically sealed and then the dirt dauber goes his way and before this time of the year, he is dead.

In the spring, the young dirt dauber bores or eats his way through the wall of mud and comes into the world where no member of his specie lives to give him direction. In an unknown world, he goes about the same work the dirt dauber of centuries ago performed. What is it that makes them pursue—untold, untaught—the only immortality they can have?

The gist of the new book to be studied this fall was given in six parts by Mesdames N. O. Coleman, Paul Powell, Austin F. Leach and L. H. Gilbreath.

Mrs. C. W. Thomas, accompanied by Mrs. H. A. Hollister, gave a beautiful vocal number.

Wholesome Neglect Would Aid Modern Child, Says Dorothy

Is the Only Child Handicapped in Life? Sage Advice to a Spendthrift Wife—Why It Is a Great-Hearted Woman Who Would Help Her Husband Atone for a Past Mistake.

Dear Miss Dix—Please give me your honest opinion about whether it is right to limit one's family to one child. Does a mother do an injury to her child by not giving it a brother or sister? Isn't it true that brothers and sisters often quarrel and are jealous of each other and frequently become bitter enemies of each other? I have a darling daughter 3 years old and had made up my mind not to have any more children, but lately have begun to wonder how my little daughter will feel about it after she is grown up. What do you think?—MRS. A. F.

Answer—When the woman has the strength to bear healthy children and the man makes enough money to support them adequately, it is certainly a mistake to have only one child.

There are many reasons why large families are desirable. One is for the protection of the parents in case they should lose a child. If they have only one child—if, as Mrs. Browning beautifully said, they "have all their wealth in one coin," then, indeed are they bankrupt in heart and soul if that one is taken from them and they have nothing left. But if there are other children they can twine their heart strings about them. Other little arms around their necks will solace them. Baby hands will heal the wounds a cruel fate has dealt them.

People who have never had a child can be happy without one, but a baby's grave is big enough to fill the world with desolation for those who have lost one, and their house becomes an empty mockery of a home when Little Boy Blue has gone from it and the patter of little feet is stilled. So from the standpoint of the father and mother it is almost better to have no children at all than to have one.

And certainly it is a curse on a child to be the only one, and so the object of the undivided attentions of its parents, who concentrate upon it all of their theories of child-rearing and try out upon it all of their experiments in child-development. What the modern child needs more than anything else on earth, anyway, is a little wholesome neglect, and this is only possible when there are so many children in a family that mother and father have to divide their attentions and cannot center them upon any one poor little unfortunate morsel of humanity.

Look about you at the neurotic children who talk about their nerves and their digestions and who have developed complexes and you will find that they are always only children whose mothers have had time to note and comment on everything they did. The wholesome normal children are those who have come out of big families where mother was so busy getting her brood washed and fed and clothed she didn't have time to note little Johnny's peculiarities, or how little Carrie reacted to a certain stimulus. An amazing great proportion of the famous men and women of the world have come out of large families.

Nor is there any other experience so good for the soul of an individual as being reared with brothers and sisters. It is practically impossible to bring up an only child without its being selfish and self-centered and thinking more highly of itself than it should, but selfishness and egotism have no chance to flourish in the family circle where every apple has to be divided and every plaything shared, and where other children, with cruel and ruthless candor, keep each child's weaknesses and faults ever before it.

No martinet can discipline a child as its brothers and sisters do. No child psychologist can socialize it as do the other children who lay down the rules of the playground and bar it to those who won't play fair, or who are greedy, or who are cry-babies and squealers.

Of course, not all brothers and sisters agree like birds in their little nest. Sometimes children born of the same parents are just naturally antagonistic toward each other, but these cases are comparatively rare. Most brothers and sisters love each other, and get great joy and comfort out of their companionship, not only in childhood, but throughout life.

The Bible makes the love of brothers the symbol of the most unchanging love of which the human heart is capable, and when this affection does exist between the members of a family it makes one of the most beautiful and sustaining and comforting relationships of the earth. For it is a love without passion and all the searing emotions that go with that. A love that is founded on the blood tie, and that is bound up in childish memories and associations that are a part of one's very being. It is a love that is like a hand in the dark that you can always reach out and take and that will help you over the hard places in life.

A wonderful thing is this love of brothers and sisters. Don't deny it to your little girl, Mrs. A. F.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a very extravagant wife. My husband makes a good salary, but we cannot save. I spend it all. I have tried several times to keep the bills down, but have failed. Please advise me what to do.

—A VERY YOUNG EXTRAVAGANT WIFE.

Answer—There is hope for you, my dear, if you recognize your fault and admit that you are extravagant. Most women who are wasters take refuge behind an alibi and refuse to admit that they are to blame when they run their husbands in debt.

And you are wise to set about conquering your weakness before it ruins your whole life and wrecks your marriage. For there is no other one thing that a wife can do that will kill her husband's love for her quicker than for her to be one of those reckless women who just let money slip through their hands without getting anything for it, or even knowing where it goes.

It simply takes the heart of a man to work and work, and at the end of a year to have nothing to show for his labor except a pile of receipted bills. It kills his ambition never to get a step farther along the road, never to have anything saved up. You can't blame such a man for turning slacker and thinking there is no use in his making any special effort, for no matter what he makes his wife will throw it away.

I used to know a very wise and successful old man who was fond of saying that at the end of the first year of their marriage he could tell you with absolute certainty what the future of any young couple would be. If they had saved up even so much as $100, by the time they were middle-aged they would be sitting pretty on the sunny side of Easy street; but if they had saved nothing and had unpaid bills, they would be poor as long as they lived.

So now is the time to correct your fault before you drive your husband from you and ruin his prospects. And the way to correct a fault is to correct it. The way to cure extravagance is to stop spending.

Budget your income and make a cast-iron resolve and stick to it, not to go one penny above what you have allowed for each item. If you know that you have not the grit to resist the temptation of things in the store that have been marked down from $1.00 to 98c, keep out of the stores. Avoid them just as a drunkard would avoid going into a speakeasy if he were trying to keep sober.

Spending and thrift are both habits and it is just as easy to acquire one as the other. Try saving and you will be astonished to find that an interesting game it becomes and how profitable.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am engaged to a young man that I love better than life itself, and I believe he feels the same way toward me. Before he knew me he had an indiscreet love affair and as the result he has a little baby girl whom he says he loves and intends to see is reared in the right way. Now here is my question: Shall I forgive him or break the engagement? He doesn't love this child's mother, but he wants to atone for his sin by taking care of the child. Should I marry him and take this little girl of my own, regardless of what people say, or should I break the engagement and have a broken heart? For my part I can forgive him and love him just the same, but I know that my friends would lose their respect for me. I shall follow your advice.—W. C.

Answer—Marry your man, who, for all his misstep, must be a fine fellow and have a high sense of honor and duty, and who will without doubt make you a good husband. And if you follow the magnanimous course of taking this little child and giving it a mother's love and care you needn't be afraid that anybody whose opinion is worth having would lose respect for you.

On the contrary, everybody will think you little less than an angel, for it takes a woman who loves greatly, and who is of singular breadth of mind and nobility of soul, to take her husband's love child to her breast, and help him make reparation for the wrong he has done.—DOROTHY DIX.

WHAT KISSES TELL MOTHER

Keeping children well is easy when mother can read the early symptoms of childhood's ills.

If little ones are fretful, pale, languid, won't eat and want to be mothered; when they often get colds and sore throat and seem feverish, depend upon it the bowels are sluggish. You notice unpleasant breath when you kiss them—sure sign of constipation and a sour stomach.

Give a little California Fig Syrup to purify the system and see how quickly it restores strength, appetite and joyous spirits. It acts without pain and gently cleanses the bowels of constipated waste which causes feverishness, sours the digestion and keeps the little one sickly and backward.

If you suspect measles or some other children's disease, give a dose of California Fig Syrup without delay. The doctor will praise your forethought. California Fig Syrup is the finest laxative in the world for children. It suits them perfectly and they love its delicious taste. For a child who is habitually constipated there is no other remedy to equal California Fig Syrup for coaxing the bowels back to healthy regularity. If you have a child who is troublesome in this way try California Fig Syrup. Get a bottle today. All drug stores have it.

California Fig Syrup has been trusted by the World's mothers for over 30 years. That is why the word "California" should be emphasized when buying.—Adv.

Herbert Kaufman's

THE SILVER ANTIDOTE

Daily Editorial

FOR TEN YEARS, the best official minds of the world have concentrated their ingenuity on designing a straight-jacket for Mars.

One pattern after another has been tried and found wanting.

And even reconsideration of the fourteen points develops the advisability of re-vamping that millennial plan in various and sundry respects.

Statesmanship does not yet consider civilization competent to abolish war.

And since peace dare not confide its cause to the Golden Rule, Premier MacDonald suggests that silver should have a trial, and proposes financial boycotts for any government that starts a fracas.

Under the MacDonald plan there will be no important neutrals.

Grudge servers and boundary smashers are to be isolated from outside assistance, compelled to carry on with their own resources, fight with locally manufactured munitions and subsist, during outlawry, on home larders.

But aggrieved powers may borrow out of a common league pot in gobs of a quarter billion at eight per cent interest, and purchase requirements and transportation to the full limit of their private credits.

They can buy airships, guns, ammunition, grain, tanks, gasoil, rubber and quartermaster supplies in any market they choose.

All seas will be free and ports open to the covenant-keepers, and closed to non-conformists.

Bankers everywhere may underwrite their bonds and industries, execute their requisitions.

But factory doors and security vaults earth over will be slammed in the faces of china shop bulls.

WAR CANNOT last long under such repressions.

The successful play of high hands is over. Conflict demands so many expensive weapons and extravagant services that even Britain or America cannot indefinitely defy universal opinion or withstand universal opposition.

A belligerent, privileged to draw upon the collective devices of foreign inventors, engineers and chemists, must soon control the odds, despite the initial superiority and enterprise of opposite numbers.

Recent experience shows that the longest purse packs a stiffer wallop than the strongest arm. The money-shod fist eventually scores a knockout.

Germany's goose would have been cooked before 1916 without Austria-Hungarian assistance and access to Dutch and Scandinavian food reserves.

France couldn't have stood alone an entire year.

And with present extensive development of air forces, future scales of operation will demand the full enlistment of military effectives, drain treasuries to equip them, crowd lands with anti-aircraft artillery and absorb total non-combatant populations into war-working personnels.

No nation can independently take such bites and chew them.

The best of gamblers is bound to go broke with onlookers constantly furnishing marked decks and fresh stacks of chips to the other side of the table.

The MacDonald scheme appeals to layman intelligence as a sure winner. But if there are readers who consider the subject too solemn for vernacular allegory, the gist of his proposition may be as effectually epitomized by the biblical quotation, "Thrice armed is he who has his quarrel just."

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

Wealth without the necessary wisdom to govern it, becomes a curse rather than a blessing. In all your getting be sure to get understanding.

If you think talk is cheap just look at any of the recent financial reports of the telephone company.

Then there's the lady next door who thinks a settlement worker is just some new-fangled kind of bill collector.

Sometimes it's pretty hard for people to recover from the effects of their vacation daze.

When the Brute Reigns

THE KIDNAPING of the textile strike leaders in North Carolina makes dismal reading. It isn't pleasant to think of that scene by the dark roadside; a man, stripped and bound, flogged with sticks and straps by his angry captors, his two campanions watching, the three menaced with hangings when they were sufficiently beaten.

The question of the textile strike itself does not enter into this episode. The kidnaping and flogging are things that can arouse only the disgust of decent people.

Yet it will not do to dismiss the affair as the work of plug-uglies and back-alley toughs. There were such people in the mob, of course; there are in all mobs. The really discouraging thing is the thing that is discouraging about every outbreak of mob violence—the fact that it was, in the main, the work of men who are ordinarily law-abiding and kind hearted; men who are, in other words, good, average citizens.

Every violent mob is nothing but a collection of such men who have temporarily, under the lash of fear or deep anger, given up all control of their passions and stopped using their reasoning powers.

That is what makes an affair of this kind so disheartening to read about and think about.

Not the display of brutality and senseless rage—but the fact that that brutality and that rage lie so close to the surface in all of us, and can be given free rein on such slight provocation.

You and I can sit gack and wring our hands over the action of that North Carolina mob—but are we quite sure that we, ourselves, would not join in a similar mob if the circumstances were right?

Mob violence isn't peculiar to any one state or section. People are much alike everywhere. Every state and every town has its own sorry record. Rouse the fear, the anger, the suspicion or the hatred of men past a certain point, and they will become capable of almost any cruelty, any violence.

Each of us has a devil on the inside—a devil, a wild beast, a volcano—call it what you please. It lurks there along with the nobler elements in human nature. Side by side with the spirit that can create beauty, make sacrifices and toss life away for an intangible cause there exists the brute that can commit horrible excesses.

The barbaric caves of the race's infancy aren't so very far behind us, after all.

That's what every outbreak of mob violence proves. And that's why every outbreak is so profoundly depressing.

"One-Crop Thinking"

THE CURRENT exodus of young people to institutions of "higher education" should serve thinking adults as a forceful reminder of the avenues to erudition which remain invitingly open throughout life, but which so many overlook in the feverish stampede down the main street called "Business."

Sacrifices will be made throughout the coming nine months in thousands of homes in order that son and daughter may be kept in college or university. They have been charged with the profound importance of an education. Following matriculation, they will be told by presidents and deans that the major function of education is to make the individual a citizen of the universe, with the comprehension and liberties which the term "citizen" implies.

Through textbooks, lectures and laboratory experimentation the student will be made familiar with those elements in the universe which lie outside the realm of his physical reach and his life era. If at the end of four or seven years he emerges with a capacity for serving mankind, and his own satisfaction with life, we are apt to consider his education a completed unit, instead of recognizing that he then has only learned to begin his education.

The measure of the average man's enjoyment of community life is the extent and nature of his association with other men in that community. In like manner, the average man's enjoyment of the few years allotted him in what we call the universe must be measured by his close acquaintance with its elements. Intimate and widening friendship with history, science, geology, philosophy, theology and literature may constantly be nurtured through the medium of reading. Yet how many of us proudly pocket the key we gain in classrooms, only to hurry blindly past the doors which it was intended to open for us.

We urge upon our bodies the virtue of a varied diet, upon the farmer the indispensability of crop diversification and rotation, yet allow our minds gradually to become sterile and monotonous through uncultivated one-crop thinking.

Consider the Source

IT IS a little bit hard to subscribe to Prof. Robert E. Rogers' theory that America is becoming an effeminate nation because it has women teaching school.

Most of the schoolma'ams of our acquaintance are capable and intelligent young women, as well equipped to impart primary and secondary education to a group of youngsters as anybody you could find. It's hard to believe that their presence in our schoolrooms is menacing our nation.

However, we must consider the source of the criticism. Professor Rogers, as you may recall, is the same gifted educator who urged college graduates last spring to pursue success by becoming snobs and seeking to marry the daughters of their respective bosses.

Freedom

No more heart burnings—I am sane again,
And life goes swiftly with unhurried feet.
I can bear, undisturbed, the silver rain
Beating on budding flowers to make them sweet.

I can bear even moonlight and white stars
Dancing like fireflies—fallen is love's load
From off my shoulders, and there are no bars
Love built to keep me from the open road.

It may be that my heart has turned to stone.
I only know I do not feel the pain,
And I am well content to walk alone
Unless—unless you call me back again. —JEAN FOY.

Haw!

The best of the current gags, we think, is the one concerning the two Jewish competitors, who resorted to everything but murder to outdo each other. They had shops directly across the way and slashed prices ruthlessly or did this and that until both went without sleep plotting what to do next.

Then one night a Jewish fairy came to Mr. Goldfarb's bedside and said: "Mine frand, I'm a ferry vot kin geev you anyting you heart desires. Mit my wand I gat you your wish, but I'm wunning you, wot ever you wish fer your compatitor gets double!"

"Dot's okay by be," was the sly retort, "I wish dot I go blind in one eye!"

Imagine

The girl in the office next door says she always wondered what became of that chubby baby in the Mennen's Talcum Powder ad, but now she knows.

It grew up and became Hoover.

In Fewer Words

They were belittling some of the cartoonists, and other newspaper "comedians," who desperately took a gag, joke, nifty or pun where they found it. "You'd think," ventured one grumbler, "that they would be ashamed of themselves!"

"That isn't it at all," responded another, "they simply have not yet learned to blush at picking a contemporary's pocket."

Oop!

To which a third furnished the big chuckle by Gold-Dusting that famous observation in this manner: "Ah, gentlemen. Actors and cartoonists—two of the grandest professions in the world—ruined by amateurs!"

Portrait

Among other pets of the Broadway, Fifth and Park avenue crowd is Mary Coward, who cretainly was misnamed. Mary vocalizes delightfully and accompanies herself at the Steinway for most of the radio stations throughout the country and, after hours, when in Manhattan, she is persuaded to enliven this or that party.

Mary is always gay and has the most contagious smile you ever did see, but she has no idea how pretty she is, for she is blind.

When she was five Mary was felled by a playmate, who was toying with a shotgun which he "didn't know what loaded."

Add Merciless Truths

And many a Broadway "celebrity" who has a $1.50 sandwich named after him cannot buy one.

Presence of Mind

You've probably heard the one about the gun which failed to go off at Simon Legree. After two trigger clicks, Legree, with great presence of mind, pressed a hand to a breast, cast his eyes upward and cried out weakly: "Curses, that old heart trouble come back again!" Then he fell dead.

Aleck Woollcott, however, knows a funnier icident. It was several seasons ago in "Bulldog Drummond." The villain was supposed to gain gratified possession of a revolver and fire at A. E. Matthews (playing Drummond). There was to be no report. Matthews was to smile and say contemptuously: "My good man, I would scarcely have let you amuse yourself with that toy had I not known it was unloaded."

Only, on this night, the villain picked up the wrong pistol and fired two shots which sprayed the heroic waistcoat with powder. Of course, that did not hurt Matthews himself any, but it did considerably impair the line just ahead. So Matthews looked at the fellow and taunted: "You're a damn bad shot, my good man," and then sauntered off.

Pardon His Glove

Far be it from us to belittle the craft, but it remained for a columnist to reach the height of conceit at a grand Broadway banquet the other yawning. Abel Green, of Variety's staff, (now Yurrup bound), was being toasted by an army of Broadway pals, wags, wits and clowns, who made it a hilariously funny night. But when a Broadway paragrapher was called on to say something, he chirped, "I just want to say that I am having a fine time. In fact, I never laughed so much since I read my last column."

In Case You Didn't Know

Those kind of books, plays and people are no longer called "subtle" but "smuttle."

Add Broadway Dramas

"Dear Walter Winchell: You won't find any gags or dirt in this letter—just my little story. And, Walter, I am so lonely and hurt inside that I can't keep things to myself any longer. Only an hour ago, I saw you and the rest of the crowd, people I once knew so well, and to whom my name meant much.

"I am referring to the 'Sweet Adeline' opening last night. It was at intermission and you all were on the walk, laughing, shaking hands and all dressed up. And I, I was in a dark doorway watching it all across the way.

"Gee! The whole devil-may-care mob! And when Tex Guinan came flaming out, why, it was all I could do to restrain myself from rushing over and shouting: 'Hey! Gang! But the second act bell rang, I guess, for you all went in laughing and so merry. At any rate, something is going to happen soon, and I'll let you have the scoop!!!—From One of Your Pals, believe me."

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, through Mrs. Van Nuys, a wealthy customer and old friend of the family, gets Chatty a position as switchboard operator at the Van Nuys offices. Chatty meets Billie Langenau, a file clerk, and Agnes Herford, private secretary to Mr. Van Nuys. Chatty falls in love with a young bond salesman, David Jordan, but when she gossips and causes Agnes to resign her position David drops Chatty. Chatty has dates with Bryant Dunning, a new salesman, who is married but says he has left his wife. Chatty has many parties at Winnie Talcott's house. Willie is Mr. Van's new secretary.

One day Chatty overhears David talking on the phone about taking a new position at the Midas bank. Later she sees him copying names. Wishing to get even with him, and believing him stealing the bond buyers lists, Chatty tattles to Mr. Van. Mr. Van is very angry, as he has given David permission to copy the lists. Chatty has to apologize to David or leave. She leaves, and is unsuccessful in getting another position. She continues to have dates with Bryant Dunning, although her mother urges her not to do so.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER LV

"But how can you, Agnes?" Chatty asked. "I have no reference! Mr. Van Nuys wouldn't give me one, now!"

"I'll give you a reference!" smiled Agnes. "Mr. Ellerby is a very influential man. What he says, goes. And what I say goes with him, if you know what I mean!"

"Good heavens! Are you going to marry the president of the Midas bank?" gasped Chatty.

Agnes blushed. "Yes!" she admitted. "I'm a very lucky girl, in more ways than one."

"I thought—I thought of applying for work under only part of my name—Charlotte Corday. The Chatterton is so notorious now." She blushed.

"No!" decided Agnes. "You must be honest, Chatty. A false name, even if it is your own, is deceptive. Then your employer will find it out—and blooie! You leave it to me!"

Agnes nodded her well-poised head, confidently.

The wizardry of love worked its miracle. Mr. Ellerby, it appeared, had only to wave his magician's wand and jobs appeared by magic. A. P. B. X. operator was needed at Tolson and Partridge's, another bond house. Following instructions, Chatty applied to Mr. Tolson in person.

Mr. Tolson was little and fat and round, and looked like a stout cherub. But he had keen eyes and a firm mouth. Chatty liked him at sight.

"Oh, yes, Miss Chatterton. Know all about you. Ellerby says you had a job with Van Nuys, made a mess of yourself, got into trouble, straightened up and want to try again. That all true?"

"Yes, sir!" answered Chatty. "It's all true. I—I—it was in the newspapers. Must I tell—you all about it?"

"Certainly not! If it's bygone, let it stay bygone! Ellerby says you are vouched for to him and he vouches for you to me. You going to live up to the vouching?"

"Oh, Mr. Tolson, I am—I will! If you only knew how sorry and ashamed I am—and how hard I'll try!"

"Don't want to know! Not your father confessor! Twenty a week to start and five more a week in six months if you make good at the job! Satisfied?"

"Just watch the way I'll work—and oh, thank you, thank you!"

Twenty a week to start! Five more a week in six months. And not only no reference to give, but they knew about her—and took her anyway!

The text came back to her—"to cleanse from all unrighteousness."

She had confessed, and the immediate result was not only a lighter heart, but a job—miracle of miracles, a good job!

The coals of fire burned on Chatty's head. The job came from Agnes, whom she had so wronged. Chatty's heart bowed down in humility. Surely she could go little lower in her own mind.

But there were yet things to do.

The first Saturday afternoon she had off, she marched to Mr. Van Nuy's office. As once before, she knocked on his door, went in and sat down.

"I have something to tell you, Mr. Van Nuys," she began. "I did you a cruel wrong. I did not mean it as such at the time. I was just a heedless, heartless girl, jealous of a man, and hating your secretary—Agnes. It was I who made all that trouble for you—I told Mrs. Van Nuys, by sending her the pages from Agnes' diary."

Mr. Van Nuys stared; his face grew dark with anger.

"Let me finish, please," went on Chatty, bravely, but quailing at what she saw in his face. "There are no names you can call me as hard as those I have called myself. No reproach you can fling in my face will burn as those I have given myself. I know now, what a common, low, evil, dirty thing I did! And I know—and this is something you don't know, Mr. Van Nuys, because you never made a mistake, and felt remorse, and knew that you couldn't make it right—I know that I cannot undo the harm I did. All I can do is to confess. There—that's all."

Mr. Van Nuys didn't say anything for a moment. But perhaps the words sunk in him. Few men can look back at a lifetime and agree with the statement that they never made a mistake or felt remorse! Perhaps Mr. Van Nuys thought of some of his early mistakes.

When he spoke, it was of something quite different.

"Where are you employed?" he asked.

Chatty told him. "And they know all about me!" she said, quietly. "I am not there on false pretenses; only I am being given another chance. I got it through Agnes—the girl I wronged. I have told her, too."

Mr. Van Nuys looked puzzled. "Well, I don't know what else there is to say," he began. "Why did you come here to tell me this?"

"Just trying to get square with myself, sir!" she answered. "I mustn't make any protestations to you, of how different I am, or how well I've learned my lesson. You wouldn't believe me, and I wouldn't blame you. But I can't go ahead and try to live right and be decent—with a secret of wrong doing in my mind. So I have told you. And—with your permission, sir—I am going from here to Mrs. Van Nuys' and tell her the truth, too!"

Mr. Van Nuys started. Then he smiled a little. "That may be a very wise thing to do!" he answered. "But—tell me. Why did you come to me first?"

"Because, sir, I thought it was your right to say whether I should bring this old sore up with Mrs. Van Nuys. After all, all I can do is set myself straight in my own mind—humble myself. But if that does more harm than good, then I have no right to do it. So I came to you first."

"Well, upon my word! And you are the girl who never had a thought except some one's else business, talk, scandal, drink, wild parties! Something has exhausted you mightily!"

"Yes, sir," agreed Chatty. "I have had my lesson."

Mr. Van Nuys rose. "I think I better not advise you either to or not to go to Mrs. Van Nuys," he stated. "It is wholly your business—and her business. I neither forbid nor encourage. I wish you good luck. Good afternoon."

So that was that. Curiously, not as hard as she had expected. Not nearly so hard as telling Agnes. Was she getting inured to making confessions, or was it because she had found out that good came of confession, not pain and evil?

Chatty didn't know. She did know that she hadn't the strength to go to Mrs. Van Nuys' that afternoon; she would go some other day. He had neither encouraged nor forbidden. Probably that meant he hoped she would go. Well, she would try to sell Mrs. Van Nuys the idea that her husband was entirely sinned against, not at all sinning. Of course there was the visit to the Lollypop with the girl in red and gold slippers—"His daughter!" he had said. Chatty smiled. But it was not for her to judge. What she had to do was to get rid of the terrible load on her heart.

Besides, Billie would be back on Sunday—tomorrow! She wanted to face Billy with a clean slate—a new start—a job and no wrong doing unrighted. Yes, she would go to Mrs. Van Nuys, very soon—

With her first week's pay on her Chatty went into a store.

"I want a pair of soft, easy slippers," she said. "They must be one size larger than my feet. They are for my mother.

Then to a haberdasher.

"I want two ties—not more than two dollars each, please. They must be very 'collegiate' indeed! They are for my brother! He's just 16—"

In a third store. "I want the prettiest steak set one can buy with ten dollars!" she demanded. "It's for a wedding present—and I'll take it with me!"

A week's pay—and almost all gone! But in place of the money was happiness; the joy of doing something for those who loved her.

Chatty went home with a lighter heart than she had carried for weeks and weeks.

Even the aching pain that was for David did not trouble quite so much. Somehow, when she thought of him now, his face always wore a little half smile—as it had in her dream of him in a pulpit.

"Never for me in life, of course!" Chatty sighed. "But—well, it's good to know that if he knew, he might not hate me quite so much—oh, Dave, Dave, if you only knew how I love you—love you—"

Chatty shook her head to keep the tears back. The street is no place to cry for the lover who is forever lost!

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PET PEEVES OF MANKIND

Psychologists are always busy. If it isn't one thing its another. Now Prof. Hulsey Cason of the University of Rochester announces the results of extensive researches into the "pet peeves" of mankind. He has compiled a list of 21,000 "things that annoy people most."

Some of the chief annoyances, with the number of victims so voting, follow:

To see or hear an animal cruelly treated, 28.
A dirty bed, 28.

Persons looking over shoulder at book or paper, 14.
Musicians making unnecessary motions while performing, 17.
Poor singing, 17.

Idea for a Mystery Story

"EDDIE—Were you on the Northland June 29? Looked too young; am so near-sighted; beg you communicate; see Brooklyn telephone book; care deeply. Sister Julia."—New oYrk Times.

September, 1929

A haze on the far horizon,
The infinite tender sky,
The ripe rich tint of the golf course
And the fairways hard and dry;
And all over upland and lowland
The moanings of golfers all
Who find every green so hardened
There's nothing to hold the ball!

A Golf Mystery

Well, Jimmy Johnston, the new amateur golf champion, hasn't yet revealed whether he owes it all to underwear, motor oil or cigarets.

At least nine big advertising agencies were upset by the defeat of Dr. Willing. They were all set to have him indorse a tooth paste.

Cartoons Picture Rhine Evacuation

BERLIN, Sept. 17. (UB)—Anticipating the end of the "watch on the Rhine," the German newspapers are featuring pictures and cartoons of long and lingering farewells of pretty German frauleins and their British "Tommy" sweethearts.

Coupled with this typographical bandinage, however, is the perturbation manifested in many parts of Germany that the French troops may re-occupy the territory evacuated by the British soldiers in the third zone.

"To rent" signs adorn many of the villas in the British area occupied by officers of the army of occupation.

DOLLARS FLOCK TO PLAINVIEW

Wheat Brought Fortune; Cotton Looks Good

Special to The Record News.

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Sept. 17.—Prosperity reigns at Plainview!

With a wheat crop harvested in the early summer that exceeded in yield the wildest forecasts, and with excellent prospects for a big cotton crop, and the usual big feed crop this fall, everything looks good in the section surrounding this rapidly growing city.

The general prosperity of the section and city is reflected in many ways. Bank deposits are the highest in history. A big building program goes on unabated. Business conditions are good. Few farmers are borrowing money. Expansions in farming operations, and in all lines of business are taking place. New institutions, and new people are coming into the section. More are expected to come during the next 12 months.

The wheat crop this year of the Plainview country, and the Panhandle Plains of which it is a part broke all records for this country. Hale county made 3,000,000 bushels. It was harvested in a record breaking time. With the combine harvester it is only a few days task to harvest the biggest of crops. Because of the general practice of dairy farming, and living at home that is found at Plainview, the wheat money ran bank deposits to a new high mark when the three banks at Plainview, a city of 12,000 people, showed total deposits in August of $6,250,000. Loans were unusually low. Banks have not borrowed any money for many years. The dairy industry bringing an income of $1,000,000 a year to the county alone has made it possible for farmers to operate without making excessive demands of the banks for money.

Cotton prospects are good. The crop will exceed that of last year, according to well informed observers. Cotton is late in this section compared to other sections of Texas. Cotton picking will not begin in earnest before the first of October.

Robert has taken first prize in oratory in Comanche county for the past three years and when only 12 competed against Senior High schol students. For the past two years he has placed fourth in oratory in state high school oratorical contests. He will represent the academy in school contests as official orator.

Bandits Pass Up Chance at Houston

HOUSTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—Daring bandits passed up an opportunity here recently when the National Bank of Commerce moved across the street to its new home on the first floor of the mammoth Gulf building.

Three hundred and sixteen thousand dollars in gold, silver and greenbacks went across the street in little hand-pushed trucks. One truck carrying $100,000 in cash, was carted across with few if any of the spectators suspecting there was a thin dime in it. Bonds and securities aggregating $7,200,000 were moved.

Would-be bandits, if any were in town, evidently were wise to lay off, however, as 10 heavily armed police officers headed by Capt. J. J. Kuykendall supervised operations and the move across Main street was made with the usual Saturday crowd on the principal thoroughfare.

TEXAS MEDICS MEET SEPT. 18

Inventor of Bone Fluid to Be Speaker

DALLAS, Sept. 17. (AP)—The physician who invented a mixture to replace the fluid in joints, thus lessening the danger of stiff legs and arms, is to be among lecturers at the fall conference of the Dallas Southern Clinical society here Sept. 18-20.

Dr. Felix Miller, El Paso, past president of the Texas Medical association, is the inventor of the fluid. He will discuss chest surgery at the Dallas sessions.

One of the addresses most interesting to laymen as well as physicians is to be a lecture by Dr. L. R. DeBuys, professor of pediatrics at Tulane, on interesting observations of newly born. Dr. DeBuys' lecture will be one of 25 on diseases of children scheduled the first day.

Among other outstanding speakers will be Dr. Russell Haden, for whom a special chair in experimental medicine was created at the University of Kansas. Dr. Haden discovered strong solutions of salt water injected into the blood stream would prolong the life of dogs with locked intestines. He recently has been experimenting with rheumatism and its cures.

Drs. G. Van Amber Brown of Detroit, president of the American Association of Obstetricians, Gynecologists, and Abdominal Surgeons; Porter P. Vinson, associate professor of medicine at the Mayo Clinic foundation and Eugene Rosamond of Memphis also are to give lectures.

Stephen F. Austin Thought Austin Place for Prison

AUSTIN, Sept. 17. (AP)—Stephen F. Austin, who came to Texas with its first colony, intended that the penitentiary should be located in Austin, the state capital.

A musty map of Austin, as Stephen F. Austin figured it should be laid out, was found in the capitol recently. It was drawn in 1830. It provided for a penitentiary. He set aside—on paper—two city blocks for the penal institution. He decided that area would take care of the penal needs for years to come, and reserved a place for it on the north bank of the Colorado river, a few blocks from the capitol.

The plat showed the capitol and grounds as they now are. At that time, however, he was merely dreaming of the capital some day being here. Texas had not yet won its independence from Mexico.

For several years while the new state was being formed the capitol was alternately at Harrisburg, Houston and in Washington county. It was moved to Austin two years before statehood.

Vegetable Flour

After the water has been dried out, dehydrated vegetables can be milled into a flour. A proportion of this dried vegetable flour may be added to food such as crackers, macaroni, or ice cream, and serves the double purpose of overcoming the acid-forming tendencies of the richer foods and disguises the flavors of the vegetables.

The foods usually selected for making the vegetable flour are spinach, carrots, lettuce, tomatoes and celery. These vegetables are especially rich in all the mineral elements—calcium, sodium, magnesium, phosphorus, potassium, iodine and iron.

Let us take a short survey of all these foods: Celery is a member of the parsley family, with an agreeable flavor. It never creates digestive disturbances and can be used by anyone who is able to use any kind of solid food. It is very rich in organic salts, especially the alkaline-forming organic minerals, containing large amounts of the bone-forming calcium, and quantities of chlorine for the manufacture of hydrochrolic acid for the stomach's digestive juices.

Carrots have been cultivated for human food for more than 2,000 years. They have a very agreeable flavor when dried and contain a large amount of mineral matter, predominately alkaline. Through the fine grinding of the dehydrated product, the cellulose structure is broken down so that the carrots are readily digested.

Tomatoes are a valuable fruit which have a distinctly beneficial effect in increasing the liver's functions. There is not the slightest bit of evidence to show that the use of tomatoes is harmful in any way and on the other hand, abundant evidence to prove that tomatoes stand at the very top of the list of healthful foods, containing, as they do, so many vitamins, together with organic minerals and valuable fruit acids. An analysis of tomatoes shows that they are very alkaline-forming and rich in potassium, calcium, magnesium, iron, chlorine and vitamins A, B and C.

Spinach is one of the most protective of green vegetables. It was used freely even in the days of Medes or Persia. Long before the organic chemists discovered that Spinach contained large amounts of iron, this vegetable was used for its health-giving properties. The French call spinach a "belly broom" because of its value as a roughage. Even the most primitive people realize that it is advisable to use large quantities of the bulky vegetables to fill up the alimentary canal and assist in the peristaltic action of the stomach and intestines. Spinach is rich in sodium and calcium, as well as iron, and is therefore an excellent blood-builder—one of the finest if not the finest blood tonic.

Lettuce, also frequently used in making vegetable flour, compares favorably with spinach in its alkaline-forming properties. It is especially rich in vitamin C and, in fact, contains large quantities of other vitamins. One can readily see that all of the vitamins and mineral elements are abundantly supplied in such a combination of vegetables.

By keeping the blood stream thoroughly alkaline, one has probably the finest protective measure against disease. An alkaline blood stream means an abundance of energy, enthusiasm, a clear complexion, lustrous hair and shining eyes. One must not eat too many of the heavy foods or the body will be fat, the skin blotchy, the eyes heavy. If you want the marks of abounding health, plenty of the mineral and vitamin-containing, energy-giving foods.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Floating Kidney

Question—I. G. asks: "What shape of belt would be the best for one to wear with a floating kidney, and should it be worn through the night as well as through the day? Is taking half a wineglassful of brandy a day any harm to one with a floating kidney?"

Answer—I have attempted to raise floating kidneys through the pressure of belts, but I have never been able to do so with any success. The X-ray examination will show that these belts do not actually raise the kidney or any other prolapsed organs, although sometimes the paient feels more comfortable when the belt is worn. Most people do not have any symptoms from a floating kidney, and the majority of patients examined are found to have at least one kidney lower than what is considered normal.

A floating kidney would not be harmed by brandy any more than one in a normal position. Whether or not the stimulation of brandy is good in your particular case depends upon many other things besides the position of your kidneys.

"False" Angina

Question—A. N. asks: "Is there any cure for "false" angina? And what exactly is it, and what causes it? It does not affect my breathing, and occurs between the shoulders and across and down the left arm."

Answer—Any true or false angina is a sign of some interference with the normal flow of blood from the heart, or due to some nerve derangement produced by inflammation of the nerves or pressure upon those going to the left arm. The so-called "false" angina can often be cured by one or two ostebpathic or chiropractice treatments.

Bridge Worker Injured in Fall From Span on New Structure

Hal Miller of Hot Springs, Ark., who suffered a broken nose, severe shock, bruises and possible internal injuries when he fell 23 feet from the top of the new Scott avenue bridge into heavy driftwood in the Wichita river about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, was reported resting well at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital Tuesday night.

Physicians stated that his condition was unchanged. His recovery is expected unless complications from internal injuries set in. No bones other than the nose were fractured in the fall, X-ray examination revealed Tuesday morning. Mr. Miller was bleeding from the nose and mouth when other workmen rushed to his aid to prevent the driftwood from floating down the river or from sinking with him, they said.

The accident occurred when Miller, who was seated on false work on the outer edge of the completed first span of the bridge, became overbalanced and grasped a loose board which caused him to fall, workmen said. It was thought that he would have been unhurt if he had landed in the water instead of on the heavy timbers of the drift.

Miller was an employe of the Luten Bridge company and was sent here from their offices in Little Rock, Ark., as a "finish man" to work on the final smoothing of the bridge surface. He was living at 406 Scott avenue. None of his relatives are in Wichita Falls at present. He was taken to the hospital in an Albert's company ambulance.

COUNTY LINE BONDS PASSED

State Approves Issue For New Building

Announcement of the approval of the $7,500 bond issue voted several months ago in the County Line school district for the construction of a new school building was received late Tuesday afternoon by Burl Bryant, county school superintendent, in a telegram from the state comptroller's office.

Work on the new building, delayed because of a series of alterations and additions necessary before the official approval of the issue, will be started immediately, Mr. Bryant announced. The district is already in possession of $6,000 insurance collected after the fire which destroyed the old structure, the superintendent explained, and will go on with its building plans even before the bonds are sold.

The opening of the regular fall term of school in the district has been delayed by the lack of building facilities. Mr. Bryant expects the new structure to be ready for occupancy within the next few weeks.

doleful Tragedy of a young Lady of Seventeen

MARY JANE was in tears.

". . . and Grandma didn't hear the telephone," she sobbed.

"Not even when Jimmy called the second time! So Jimmy asked Helen Parks instead, and . . . and . . . now she's going to the dance with him.

"And no—nobody else has asked me!"

The tragedies of seventeen are dark and bitter. Disconsolate, Mary Jane buried her face in a pillow.

Mr. Mason looked down at the forlorn little figure on the couch sympathetically.

"You know," he said to his wife, "Grandma really doesn't hear as well as she used to. She needs an extension telephone in her room. I think I'll order one tomorrow."

Telephones where you need them can often prevent youthful woes—and be a source of pleasure to old folks, besides. They save time, patience, steps.

Few know that one or two additional instruments cost considerably less than the single telephone they now have!

By a wisely-placed "extension" or two, and perhaps a rearrangement of the equipment you already have, an expert telephone man can often double the convenience of your telephone service.

"ALL QUIET on the WESTERN FRONT"

BY Erich Maria Remarque

(Paul Baumer and his three comrades—Kropp, Muller and Leer—hardened for the front by the abuse and persecution of their training camp corporal, Himmelstoss, are now at rest five miles behind the lines. Kemmerich, their friend, dies in the dressing station, dying of wounds. One leg is gone and Muller seeks his high Russian boots.

Paul tries to raise the hopes of the dying man. He shakes his head. "You can take my lace-up boots for Muller." Kemmerich dies and his bed is quickly taken by another. Paul carries the boots to Muller.)

CHAPTER IV

Reinforcements have arrived. The vacancies have been filled and the sacks of straw are already laid out in the huts. Some of them are old hands but there are 25 men of a later draft from the base. They are about two years younger than us. Kropp nudges me: "Seen the infants?"

I nod. We stick out our chests, shave in the open, shove our hands in our pockets, inspect the recruits and feel ourselves to be stone-age veterans.

Katczinsky joins us. We stroll past the horse-boxes and go over to the reinforcements, who have already been issued with gas masks and coffee.

"Long time since you've had anything decent to eat, eh?" Kat asks one of the youngsters.

He grimaces. "For breakfast, turnip-bread—lunch, turnip stew—supper, turnip-cutlets and turnip salad." Kat gives a knowing whistle.

"Bread made of turnips? You've been in luck, it's nothing new for it to be made of sawdust. But what do you say to haricot beans? Have some?"

The youngster turns red: "You can't kid me."

Katczinsky merely says: "Fetch your mess-tin."

We follow curiously. He takes us to a tub beside his straw sack. It is nearly half full of a stew of beef and beans. Katczinsky plants himself in front of it like a general and says:

"Sharp eyes and light fingers! That's what the Prussians say."

We are surprised. "Great guts, Kat, how did you come by that?" I ask him.

"Ginger was glad I took it. I gave him three pieces of parachute silk for it. Cold beans taste fine, too."

Grudgingly he gives the youngster a portion and says:

"Next time you come with your mess-tin have a cigar or a chew of tobacco in your other hand. Get me?" Then he turns to us. "You get off scot free, of course."

Katczinsky never goes short; he has a sixth sense. There are such people everywhere but one does not appreciate it at first. Every company has one or two. Katczinsky is the smartest I know. By trade he is a cobbler, I believe, but that hasn't anything to do with it; he understands all trades. It's a good thing to be friends with him, as Kropp and I are, and Haie Westhus, too, more or less. But Haie is rather the executive arm operating under Kat's orders when things come to blows. For that he has his qualifications.

For example, we land at night in some entirely unknown spot, a sorry hole, that has been eaten out to the very walls. We are quartered in a small dark factory adapted to the purpose. There are beds in it, or rather bunks—a couple of wooden beams over which wire netting is stretched.

Wire netting is hard. And there's nothing to put on it. Our waterproof sheets are too thin. We use our blankets to cover ourselves.

Kat looks at the place and then says to Haie Westhus: "Come with me." They go off to explore. Half an hour later they are back again with arms full of straw. Kat has found a horse-box with straw in it. Now we might sleep if we weren't so terribly hungry.

Kropp asks an artilleryman who has been some time in this neighborhood: "Is there a canteen anywhere abouts?"

"Is there a what?" he laughs. "There's nothing to be had here. You won't find so much as a crust of bread here."

"Aren't there any inhabitants here at all then?"

He spits. "Yes, a couple. But they mostly loaf around the cookhouse and beg."

"That's bad business'—Then we'll have to pull in our belts and wait till the rations come up in the morning."

But I see Kat has put on his cap. "Where to, Kat?" I ask.

"Just to explore the place a bit." He strolls off. The artilleryman grins scornfully. "Let him explore! But don't be too hopeful about it."

Disappointed we lie down and consider whether we couldn't have a go at the iron rations. But it's too risky; so we try to get a wink of sleep.

Kropp divides a cigaret and hands me half. Tjaden gives an account of his national dish—broadbeans and bacon. He despises it when not flavored with bogmyrtle and, "for God's sake, let it all be cooked together, not the potatoes, the beans, and the bacon separately." Someone growls that he will pound Tjaden into bogmyrtle if he doesn't shut up. Then all becomes quiet in the big room—only the candles flickering from the necks of a couple of bottles and the artilleryman spitting every now and then.

We stir a bit as the door opens and Kat appears. I think I must be dreaming; he has two loaves of bread under his arm and a blood-stained sandbag full of horseflesh in his hand.

The artilleryman's pipe drops from his mouth. He feels the bread. "Real bread, by God! and still hot, too!"

Kat gives no explanation. He has the bread, the rest doesn't matter. I'm sure that if he were planted down in the middle of the desert, in half an hour he would have gathered together a supper of roast meat, dates, and wine.

"Cut some wood," he says curtly to Haie.

Then he hauls out a frying pan from under his coat, and a handful of salt as well as a lump of fat from his pocket. He has thought of everything. Haie makes a fire on the floor. It lights up the empty room of the factory. We climb out of bed.

The artilleryman hesitates. He wonders whether to praise Kat and so perhaps gain a little for him-

NERVOUS SHOCK LEFT HER WEAK

Missouri Lady Took Cardui And Soon Felt Much Stronger and Better

Springfield, Mo.—"A few years ago, I was in an auto wreck and suffered a nervous shock that caused me to get very weak and run-down," writes Mrs. Henry Johnson, 1201 State stret, this city. "I was down in bed, getting weaker all the time. Nothing seemed to be doing me any good, or giving me any strength. I couldn't raise up in bed."

Mrs. Johnson says that on the advice of a friend, she decided to try Cardui.

"After I began taking Cardui, I began to get stronger, so of course I kept it up. In a short while I was out of bed, feeling much stronger and better and not so miserable and nervous. Since that time, I have always been glad to say a good word for Cardui."

This well-known medicine is an extract of valuable medicinal herbs, and contains nothing harmful or injurious. It has been in use so long, its merit has been proved by the experience of thousands of women.

Try Cardui in your case.

DUAL TAXATION TREND STUDIED

Amendments to U. S. Laws To Be Recommended

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (US)—A number of amendments to American revenue laws will be required in the plan of this government to cooperate with foreign nations to eliminate double-taxation of international trade and investments, it was learned at the treasury department today.

Officials indicated that the United States "would go all the way" with other countries to wipe out a tax condition that for years has hampered the smooth flow of commerce. The United States was represented by Thomas S. Adams, internationally known tax expert, Mitchell B. Carroll, of the commerce department, and others, at the recent meeting of the World Chamber of Commerce at Amsterdam when a resolution aimed at the elimination of double-taxation was passed.

Taxation of Interest

The general plan would mean the taxation of interest and dividends from foreign investments only at the residence of the owner. It would apportion the profits of international business in accordance with the amounts attributable to permanent establishments in the interest states. The chamber of commerce urged national committees to take the necessary steps to make the proposals effective.

Adams and treasury experts now have the necessary amendments to American laws under consideration and if possible they will be presented at the December congress. To a considerable extent double-taxation has been eliminated from the American laws, but officials explained that some changes would be required to meet the objective of the International Chamber of Commerce resolution.

"As compared with present provisions against double taxation in United States, the plan of relief of the international chamber widens the application of the principles of reciprocal and unconditional exemption and narrows the taking of credits for foreign taxes against the residence taxes," Carroll said.

Principles Explained

"The principle of reciprocal exemption in the revenue act applies only to shipping profits; that of unconditional exemption to interest on bank deposits paid to persons not engaged in business within the United States and not having an office or place of business in this country, and income derived by a foreign central bank of issue from bankers' acceptances."

Carroll explained that the international chamber recommended that states adopt, either on condition of reciprocity or unconditionally the principle of exemption at source and taxation only at the taxpayers residence in respect of air navigation as well as shipping profits, and with regard to interest and dividends from foreign investments, private pensions, annuities, income from arbitrage transactions, discounting acceptance and all other kinds of income not allotted to the country of origin for prior taxation.

Weed Cutting No Help in War on Hay Fever Causes

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (US)—Snuffling victims of hay fever are doomed to further misery.

Seeking a way out of their suffering, Health Commissioner Kegel spent three hours in an airplane yesterday making pollen tests at different altitudes. He was up 4,000 feet, but found weed pollen even as high as that. He concluded after a seres of tests that there will be little relief for hay fever sufferers until after frost has put in its work.

Tests were made with microscopic instruments.

"Finding pollen up to 4,000 feet leads me to believe that the cutting of weeds in the city and suburbs to end hay fever suffering will have slight effect," Doctor Kegel said when he came down. "We found weed pollen up to 4,000 feet, making tests of three to five-minutes duration. At 4,000 feet and above we found no pollen. It has been advocated by physicians that if the weeds in Chicago were cut hay fever would disappear. This test was made to settle down in my mind the density of pollen in the air as it affects persons subject to hay fever. There is no use holding out false hopes to sufferers."

Are You Well and Strong?

"Before my third baby was born my husband advised me to take your medicine and he bought me three bottles of it. When I had taken the first one I began to feel better so I kept on during the whole period. We have a healthy baby boy and we are so proud of him and praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the help it gave me. I feel lots stronger since I started to use it and would not be without it."—Mrs. Frank Lukes, R. No. 1, Box 58, Lankin, N. Dakota.

self. But Katczinsky doesn't even see him, he might as well be thin air. He goes off cursing.

Kat knows the way to roast horse-flesh so that it's tender. It shouldn't be put straight into the pan; that makes it tough. It should be boiled first in a little water. With our knives we squat around in a circle and fill our bellies.

That is Kat. If for but one hour in a year something eatable were to be had in some one place only, within that hour, as if moved by a vision, he would put on his cap, go out and walk directly there, as though following a compass, and find it.

He finds everything—if it is cold, a small stove and wood, hay and straw, a table and chairs—but above all food. It is uncanny; one would think he conjured it out of the air. His masterpiece was four boxes of lobsters. Admittedly we would rather have had a good beef steak.

We have settled ourselves on the sunny side of the hut. There is a smell of tar, of summer, and of sweaty feet. Kat sits beside me. He wants to talk. Today we have been practicing saluting because Tjaden failed to salute a major. Kat can't get it out of his head.

"You see we are losing the war because we can salute too well," he says.

Kropp stalks up, with his breeches rolled up and his feet bare. He lays out his washed socks to dry on the grass.

The two begin to argue. At the same time they lay a bottle of beer on the result of an air fight that's going on above us. Katczinsky won't budge from the opinion, which as an old front-hog, he rhymes:

Give 'em all the same grub and all the same pay
And the war would be over and done in a day.

Kropp on the other hand is a thinker. He proposes that a declaration of war should be a kind of popular festival with entrance tickets and bands, like a bull fight. Then in the arena the ministers and generals of the two countries, dressed in bathing drawers and armed with clubs, can have it out among themselves. Whoever survives, his country wins. That would be much simpler and more just than this arrangement, where the wrong people do the fighting.

The subject is dropped. Then the conversation turns to drill.

A picture comes before me. Burning midday in the barrack yard. The heat hangs over the square. The barracks are deserted. Everything sleeps. All one hears is the drummers practicing; they have installed themselves anywhere, and practice brokenly, dully, monotonously. What a concord; midday heat, barrack square, and drummers beating!

The windows of the barracks are empty and dark. From some of them trousers are hanging to dry. The rooms are cool and one looks toward them longingly.

O dark, musty platoon huts, with the iron bedsteads, the chequered bedding, the lockers and the stools! Even you can become the object of desire; out here you have a faint resemblance to home; your rooms, full of the smell of stale food, sleep, smoke and clothes!

Katczinsky paints it all in lively colors. What would we not give to be able to go back to it! But we must not pursue that line of thought any further.

Those early morning hours of instruction—"What are the parts of the 98 rifle?"—the midday hours of physical training—"Pianist, forward! By the right, quick march. Report to the cook house for potato peeling."

We indulge in reminiscences. Kropp laughs suddenly and says, "Change at Lohne!"

That was our corporal's favorite game. Lohne is a railway junction. In order that our fellows going on leave shouldn't get lost there, Himmelstoss used to practice the change in the barrack room. We had to learn that at Lohne, to reach the branch line, we must pass through a subway. The beds represented the subway and each man stood at attention on the left side of his bed. Then came the command: "Change at Lohne!" and light lightning everyone scrambled under the bed to the opposite side. We practiced this for a whole hour.

BANKER SPURNS INSANITY PLEA

Waggoner's Attorney Denies Defense Plan

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 17. (INS)—Denial that Charles Delos Waggoner, 54, president of the Bank of Telluride, Colo., intends to use insanity as a defense was made here today by Samuel D. Crump, Denver attorney, representing Waggoner, who is charged with the New York bank swindle.

Waggoner is held in the Laramie county jail pending his removal to New York on a charge of using the mails to defraud in connection with his alleged $500,000 swindle against six New York banks through faked telegrams sent from Denver.

Mrs. Mary Waggoner, the banker's wife, and his son Delos left late yesterday for New York. They, together with the other Colorado citizens, have been subpoenaed to appear before the New York grand jury now in session.

$1,500 Pocketbook Comes Back to George K. Arthur

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (US)—He had 12 minutes to catch the train from Chicago to New York. He grabbed his suitcases, crammed some bills in his pocketbook, hailed a cab, and caught the train a minute before it pulled out.

Settling back in his seat with a sign of relief, he handed the conductor his tickets from a side pocket. A moment later he felt for his pocketbook. It was gone!

And there was almost $1,500 in that pocketbook! George K. Arthur—partner of Karl Dane, the "big guy" in all those funny movies—groaned. True, his salary as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star is nothing to be sneezed at, but $1,500! That's money.

Arthur sighed. He was still sighing when the train stopped at Erie, Pa., and a telegram was handed him:

"Found your pocketbook in cab. Yellow Cab company. What will we do with it?"

Arthur got his money back.

Bandits Rob Tourist And Wife of Jewelry

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Sept. 17. (INS)—Two armed men robbed a tourist and his wife of $90 in cash and jewelry valued at $8,000 today on a highway about seven miles southeast of here.

E. K. Beck, an office furniture manufacturer of Union City, Tenn., and his wife were the victims. Beck said that the robbers escaped in a car in the direction of St. Louis.

very mediocre chucker to one of the greatest possibilities. While Lester doubtless will not pitch today, his fine work since coming back to the Wichita Falls team indicates he will see service during the playoff.

Payne or Messenger

This leaves George Payne, Andy Messenger and Milt Steengrafe for consideration, and the choice today probably lies between the first two named.

Because of his wonderful record for the season, in which he won 28 games, one of the outstanding pitching feats of fast baseball in recent years, it is probable that Payne, cagy master of the "screw ball," will be Galloway's selection. But Messenger, with his blinding fast ball and baffling change of paces may get the call and Steengrafe, who closed the season brilliantly and in the form of 1928 when he ranked as one of the league's leading hurlers, also must be reckoned with.

Foremost batters of the Texas league will match brawn of arm and keenness of eye in the series. Red Bennett and Pete Lapan of Wichita Falls and Randy Moore and Jim Moore of Dallas finished the season as the league's leading clouters with not more than five points separating them.

Added to that quartet of direful sluggers is a fifth, and he wears the uniform of the Spudders. He is Ted Gullic, a recent addition to the Wichita Falls array. Playing the last month or so of the pennant race in the Texas league, Gullic in 63 times at bat compiled the amazing average of .508, which was marked by many home runs and other extra-base clouts.

The battle of the sluggers will be almost as interesting as the clash of the teams.

Series Is Tossup

There is little or nothing to choose between the clubs in preseries calculations. The Spudders apparently have the edge on the attack and the Steers seem to have a slight defensive margin, exclusive of pitching.

Lapan is a far more dangerous hitter than George Bischoff, but the Dallas catcher is a more dependable receiver than the Spudder maskman.

The Spudder keystone pair of Pete Turgeon and Rabbit Benton is rated as the best in the league and of more value on both offense and defense than a combination of Ray Flaskamper and Stock or Hap Morse.

Country Davis is a better hitter than Bettencourt, and there is little to choose between either at fielding around first base. Jeffries, the Dallas kid third baseman, is in my opinion the greatest all-around hot corner guardian in the Texas league while Duke Hermann, the Wichita Falls custodian of the far corner, is an indifferent fielder, though a dangerous hitter.

Both outfields have baseball "it." In batting and fielding the Wichita Falls trio of Bennett, Howard Fitzgerald and Gullic and the Dallas three of Jim and Randy Moore and Si Rosenthal are a tossup, with all of them walloping clouters and steady and even brilliant fielders.

Strong in Reserves

As is the case with all championship teams, the Steers and Spudders are well fortified with capable reserves. Jack Crouch, Spudder alternate catcher, is one of the finest young receivers that has come into the Texas league for a long time and like Lapan is a far better hitter than the average maskman. Art Scharein, recently acquired from Springfield and Buddy Lewis, 1927 Spudder utilityman, are reserve infielders. Dick Sullivan, who played right field until supplanted by Gullic, batted over .300 in more than 100 games and is a fast and dependable gardener.

Rusty Cromer, Jimmy Parker and Chick Galeria, the latter a southpaw, are other Spudder pitchers but it is unlikely they will see service in the series save to toss in batting practice.

Mealey, an entirely capable catcher, is available for the Steers if needed. Radcliff, a fine young first baseman may relieve Davis during the series and Johnson and Harvel are satisfactory understudies in the outfield. Other hurlers on the Dallas roster are Walter Tauscher, Gene Moore and Joe Martina.

Both clubs took short but spirited batting and fielding drills yesterday afternoon at Athletic park and the hurlers warmed up for final tapering-off before today's game. Players of both teams snapped into their work with a vim and if indications from that practice and appearances of confidence emanating from both camps are a criterion this is indeed to be a classic of the Texas league.

9,000 to See Openers

The sale of tickets again moved briskly yesterday. With the Wichita Falls crowd to be augmented by more than 1,000 from Dallas and non-partisan points, it is probable that the seating capacity of 9,000 at Athletic park will be taxed at games there today and tomorrow.

Friday is an off-day for the clubs and the series will be resumed Saturday at Dallas and will be concluded there.

The umpiring of the playoff has been entrusted to the capable hands of George Barr and Harry Kane, who have worked in Dixie and playoff series in recent years, and Charlie Donnelly.

Both games here will be started at 3:30 o'clock and the gates at Athletic park will be opened at 11 o'clock.

HOLTON DRILLS PUNTING TOES

Consistent Kicker Needed By Coyote Coach

By JACK ALLEN

A consistent punter is sadly lacking on the Coyote squad and practice sessions have been devoted largely to punting practice by several of the promising kickers. Chick Holden and Thomas Beaty are giving promise of developing as punters, but neither has been consistent. Others trying out as kickers are Paul Dickey, Loyce Watson, and Captain Mank Hodgkiss.

Signal drill and reviewing the rules of football also come in for their share of the practice session. Coach Barry Holton is still stressing fundamentals and refuses to scrimmage his squad. The first scrimmage for the pack will be with Lawton on the 27th in the form of a full length game," according to the coach.

Two Saturday practices were observed last week with the entire squad reporting Saturday morning and afternoon for two hard workouts in an effort to get the plays permanently fixed in the minds of each candidate by the end of the week. The squad is shaping up nicely and will be in fair condition by the time of the first game.

INDIANS STUDY FUNDAMENTALS

Coach Baggett's Junior college Indian tribe continued to get in condition and learn to hold the ball in Monday's and Tuesday's practice. The mentor planned to give his squad several plays during the latter part of this week. Several youngsters dropped from the squad last week and the squad is composed of approximately 25 consistent aspirants.

The daily practice sessions are composed of calisthenics, passing, kicking and work for the backs and linemen. Several passers are giving promise of helping Baggett to develop a dangerous passing attack, his chief offense.

BOSTON TRIMS CHISOX

BOSTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—The Red Sox drove young Ed Walsh from the box in the first inning and took today's game from the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 4. The win was the Bostonians third out of four games in the series and the last of the season with the Westerners.

Adkins finished the game for Chicago while Ed Carroll pitched well for Boston until the eighth when he was relieved by M. Gaston. Score:

Victoro Campolo Fit as a Fiddle

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—Two New York state athletic commission physicians today pronounced Victoro Campolo, the tall Argentine heavyweight, fit and healthy enough to battle Phil Scott next Monday night in a twice postponed bout at Ebbets field.

The physicians accepted the word of Campolo's personal medical corps that the big fighter suffered a sprain two weeks ago but found no evidence of the injury today.

Two postponements of the match, originally scheduled for last Wednesday night, will bring two important heavyweight matches into the same week as the final burst of the outdoor season here. Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, is scheduled to box Jack Sharkey at the Yankee stadium Thursday night, September 26.

Washington hit Sorrell for the victory in the first game. Page, who was called to the mound for the Tigers in the seventh, did not allow a hit but passed five men. Score:

MICK WALKER LOSES TITLE

N. B. A. Takes Action on Long Idleness

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (AP)—Mickey Walker, world middleweight champion since 1926, lost his title today without throwing a punch.

The national boxing association, governing the sport in 31 states, declared Walker's title vacated because of his failure to defend it in compliance with the N. B. A.'s ruling requiring a champion to defend his crown at least once every six months.

Sammy Mandell, world lightweight champion, and Andre Routis, king of the featherweights, were relieved of anxiety regarding having their titles removed. Both were approved by the championship committee.

With Walker voted out of his championship, a free-for-all competition will be opened, with the competitors scrambling for championship acclaim. The committee listed a number of challengers, naming Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska wildcat, as the leading member of the division with Rene Devos, and Harry Ebbetts of Brooklyn ranking second and third respectively.

Walker's last defense of the middleweight championship was made in Chicago in June, 1928, when he won a decision from Hudkins.

PIRATE RALLY WINS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 17. (AP)—The Pirates came from behind in the seventh inning here today to score eight runs on four singles, defeating the Phillies 11 to 7 in the final game of the season between the two teams. The 22 engagements were evenly divided.

The big Pirate seventh, in addition to the four singles, was made up of four passes, a fielder's choice and a wild pitch. Score:

Fans Interested In World Series

New Teams Provide Thrills For Game's Enthusiasts

By FRANK GETTY

NEW YORK, Sept. 16. (UP)—From coast to coast, baseball fans find a new thrill in the prospect of a world series between the clubs of Philadelphia and Chicago.

There is even greatest interest in the forthcoming series as a battle between the ball clubs of rival cities than there has been since the Washington Senators finally won a pennant.

Fans in little, out of the way places in the far West are worked up over the impending post-season engagement which starts Oct. 8. The natural rivalry between Philadelphia and Chicago lends a filip to the proceedings.

No longer is the world series a four-day hippodrome in which to see how many home runs Babe Ruth can hit. The big fellow will be a spectator at this show, and there will be some hard-fought baseball and some new heroes for a change.

Fans Welcome Change

For the past two years the New York Yankees have so thoroughly dominated the post-season scene that the series had little more significance than those exhibition games played by Babe and Lou Gehrig.

The general public, to whom baseball means the Babe, just as it thinks golf is spelled J-o-n-e-s probably would prefer to have Ruth in there for a homer a day or so, but your real baseball fans are warming to the idea of the world series as an inter-city fight once more.

There will be nothing new for Cornelius McGillicuddy in the idea of the world series as a real battle instead of a sort of side show.

In the days when Connie's Athletics were burning up the American league, with Chief Bender, Jack Coombs and Eddie Plank pitching, and the famous $100,000 infield functioning on all four corners, each successive world series was a desperate fight for supremacy. "Home Run" Baker did clout his way to a certain fame, but in those days a homer was the occasion for something more than a bored yawn.

Braves Halt Macks

The Boston Braves finally put an end to the supremacy of that great Mack machine by startling the baseball world by winning the world series of 1914 in four straight games. Connie hasn't put a pennant winner together since that time until his 1929 combination.

The fact that the Cubs and Athletics apparently are evenly matched, each club having heavy hitters and effective pitchers, lends additional interest to the forthcoming affair. But it is to be a battle of ball clubs rather than individuals, despite the fame and popularity of Hornsby, Simmons, Foxx and Wilson.

Four-Round Boys

It's him or me and me is her,
Ten bucks for a win tonight,
Ten bucks for plastering a face,
Slash a cheek with a dangling lace,
But they pay no dough to second place,
And I got to think o' her!

It's him or me . . . and it'se me tonight,
Even a "frail" must chow,
The crimson leaps to his battered hip,
Cut and smash and sock and clip.
Cherchez la femme as they say.

It's him or me and he smacks the floor,
He crawls, he creeps, he's up.
I must wade in and hand him more.
Punish the lad as the galleries roar.
But tonight it keeps the wolf from the door,
Which means quite a lot to her.

It's him or me and my left goes home.
He's out . . . as cold as a cod.
O Lord, if I had some decent trade,
Hammer or nails or pick and spade,
But the pack is cut, the cards are played,
And the lady eats tonight.

The Champ Who Might Have Been

Or a still better baption would be "The Man Who Might Have Been the Champ." This man happens to be Jack Sharkey. When he fought Harry Wills and later on when he tackled Jim Maloney he looked to be a certain spot. After the first round against Jack Dempsey he stood out as the best fighter in the pack—not even barring Tunney the champion of that date. Any number of reasons have been offered for his slump since—the finish of the Dempsey battle—too much prosperity, moodiness, lack of interest—but the fact remains that all this time Sharkey has had it in him to be the best of the lot—but nothing has happened to bring it out. I still recall one or two rounds against Johnny Risko. Here he had his big chance to face Tunney for the title.

But he wouldn't fight—except in one or two rounds, when he suddenly made Risko look like a raw amateur. After that he subsided again—even with a million dollars to shoot at.

There has always been the chance that Jack Sharkey would come back and become the fighter he should have been and could have been. But there have been so many disappointing fights that even his closest supporters have about lost faith. Now he happens to come to his last stand. If he loses to Tommy Loughran he passes from the picture as the man who might have been champion, but wouldn't. Sharkey will never beat Loughran with the exhibitions he put up against Heeney, Risko, De Kuh, Stribling and others. He will need more stuff on the leather than he has shown since his first round against Dempsey. There is no reason why he should have it if he can make up his mind to shoot the works. When any one asked Dempsey in the old days about his chance to win he usually had one line—"I don't know, but I'll do my stuff." Maybe Sharkey has waited too long to do the stuff he was once capable of doing. But he doesn't show any such slowing up or softening in a physical way. He still looks to have all the physical turns needed. Whether he will flash or fade depends on the mental side, which only the night of the Loughran fight can show.

What They Can Show

More than one somewhat disgruntled fight fan has written in to suggest the foolishness of comparing Sharkey or Loughran with Corbett, Jeffries, Johnson, Dempsey or Tunney. This part of the picture is still up to Sharkey or Loughran. There have been no supermen in the boxing game. Either of these should have enough qualifications to lift up the present level. Whether they will or not is another yarn. Possibly not, if they go out with the idea of edging through, or getting the shade. The crowd doesn't pay money for the shade—but the shade is usually what it gets just the same. And most of the present crop of fighters seem to think as long as the crowd is willing to pay for the shade—why not slip it along? What happens in the Sharkey-Loughran fight may be rather important, as far as gate receipts are concerned in other contests. But even this is no prediction—for no one can predict how much the populace at large will stand for.

Daily Dope

By LARRY DAILEY

PITCHING will decide the Texas league championship. A trite bromide, to be sure, but none the less, always applicable in a short series. It has been said that pitching is 75 per cent of a ball club. That was some years ago, before the era of the rabbit ball and resultant home run orgy. Perhaps over a long span of a season pitching is not 75 per cent of a ball club. But it is close to that in a short series.

Breaks of the game, managerial skill, the ability of highly-rated stars to deliver and the possibility of little-considered players to arise to great heights; also must be taken into serious consideration.

AS WITH PITCHING, the fortunes of the game may determine the 1929 Texas league championship. Luck is a highly important matter in a few games.

Managerial skill will consist mainly of choosing starting pitchers and in making changes should a chucker be ineffective. Aside from working their pitchers, Jim Galloway and Milton Stock will have little occasion to indulge in the battle of wits that you read so often about but really see so little on the diamond nowadays. And with so much at stake in the playoff the clubs doubtless will play conservative baseball, playing for the run in a close game or swinging freely in a slugfest.

STARS SOMETIMES do not arise to the occasion in the important series. Ty Cobb, then in his heyday, was a disappointment in the 1909 Tiger-Pirate world series.

Will Pete Lapan, Pete Turgeon, Rabbitt Benton, Red Bennett, Ted Gullic, Howard Fitzgerald, Jeffries, Flashkamper, Randy and Jim Moore and Rosenthal be heroes or dubs in the playoff?

Players of mediocre ability sometimes shine with the greatest brilliance in a short series. George Rohe, a substitute infielder, was the hero of the 1906 world series, playing third base for the White Sox against the Cubs. Will there be one of the mediocre Spudders or Steers to outstar the stars in the playoff?

AND SHORT SERIES frequently produce a goat. Outstanding in baseball history as the greatest goat of them all was Fred Snodgrass, whose muff of a fly ball cost the Giants the world series with the Boston Red Sox.

Will the 1929 Texas league playoff produce some unfortunate who contributes in a great measure to the defeat of his team?

THE STEERS engaged in a "skull" session Monday at Dallas before coming over here to work out yesterday.

Some of Milt Stock's skullduggery, eh?

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—Early buying on relatively steady Liverpool cables and bullish features in the weather and crop news were supplied on an advance of 11 to 13 points in the cotton market today. Prices later reacted under realizing combined with some local and southern selling and closing prices were within a point or two of yesterday's final quotations on the active month. December sold off from 18.95 to 18.83, closing at that figure with the general market closing steady net 4 points lower to 1 point higher.

The opening was steady at an advance of 7 to 12 points in response to higher Liverpool cables. There was some buying on reports of rains in the South and private report claiming that the condition of the crop had declined about 4 points during the first 11 days of September, or about as much as it usually does during the entire month. The demand was supplied by Southern and local selling on the upturn, however, and after selling at 18.61 for the new October and 19.25 for March contracts, or 11 to 13 points net higher, the market turned easier under realizing which seemed to be coupled with some Southern hedging.

The lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading and October sold to 18.48 and March to 19.12. Part of the early buying was supposed to be on a belief that the wet weather in the South would interfere with picking and slow up the movement to market.

Detailed weather reports showed hardly as much rain as expected by some of the early buyers, and the failure of bullish features in the weather and crop news stimulate a more general or aggressive demand probably accounted for some of the later selling.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17. (AP)—An early advance stimulated by unfavorable weather and crop reports met liquidation in the cotton market today which carried prices slightly below yesterday's close. Some covering however, in final trading caused December to rally from 18.69 to 18.73 and close at the latter figure net unchanged for the day. The general market closed steady net unchanged to 4 points up.

Liverpool cables were better than due and the market here opened steady at advances of 12 to 15 points with October at 18.53, December 18.84 and January 18.90. This proved to be the high point of the day.

During the greater part of the session prices gave ground slowly under desultory realizing and hedge selling. The lows of the day were reached in late trading when October sold at 18.37, December 18.69 and January 18.76, or 14 to 16 points down from the early highs and 1 to 3 points below yesterday's close.

October closed at 18.40 and January 18.80, unchanged on the former and 3 points net up on the latter.

DRYGOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—Cotton goods were firm today, prices showing no change. Cotton yarns showed an easier tendency on low cotton and woolen and worsted demand was slackening. Burlaps were unchanged. Spot raw silks here and in Japan were firm at high levels and quiet.

Utilities Feature as Tight Money Influences Irregular Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (US)—Utilities featured an irregular market today, in which many recent leaders sold off under the influence of tightening money conditions. The call rate was pushed up from renewal of 7½ to 10 per cent.

Quiet but steady realizing caused 3½ point decline in Steel common while Westinghouse lost 6¾, Standard of New Jersey 3¾, Allied Chemical 3, Carbide 1⅞, Anaconda 2 and Montgomery Ward 2⅞.

Public Service of New Jersey held 5 points of its gain to the close, American Telephone 2, United Gas 1⅛, and Standard Gas 1⅝.

Rails turned reactionary with others and closed about 2 points low on the average. Independent oils followed the Standard shares lower and the Coppers remained under pressure throughout. Turnover dropped to near the 4,000,000 share level.

On Aug. 6 there was published a list of "good stocks" selected by Matt Bush of American International. At the close today all but three showed advances with the gains running from 2 to 55 points. One share of each would have shown a net profit of $275 in the little more than a month that has passed. Electric Investors, Stone & Webster and other utilities have been the stellar performers. Together with Public Service, American & Foreign Power and others they moved even higher today. Buying was experienced coincident with the return of Sidney Mitchell and other utility leaders from Canada.

The demand represents realization of the huge increase in holdings of such companies as Electric investors, Foreign Power and others. As a result of such gain in asset value, splitups and other special developments are to be expected.

American International, incidentally, is attracting more attention as some idea of the enormous profits it has piled up in recent months is realized. In addition to Utilities and Industrials that have soared, it holds bank stocks that must show a tremendous profit. It was one of the organizers of the International Acceptance Bank and is understood to have held its stock. As a result it must have received a substantial block of bank of Manhattan stock through the one for two exchange and that stock has advanced 150 points or so in recent weeks. Another holding company arousing interest is Commercial credit. It sells at only 10 times earnings which is lower than other companies of this type, while at the same time its earnings have gradually increased until now they are running at the rate of over 6 per cent annually and soon should be on a 7 per cent basis.

Commercial Solvents Controlling Interest, it is learned, have agreed on a ten for one split up of the stock. The new shares would be put on a $1 regular cash basis with a 4 per cent stock dividend. American Can was influenced by wire of a leading Broadway firm telling of the strengthened technical position that gave a foundation for a "quick play." Oils were held back somewhat by rumor that another cut in crude production would be announced before long. Recent buying of Standard shares, however, has been based entirely on knowledge of benefits to be derived from new refining methods and plans for expansion of retail sales facilities.

The 10 per cent money rate was regarded as marking the peak of the current tightness resulting from the mid-month turnover of funds. Washington advices indicated the treasury was putting the income tax checks through quicker this quarter than heretofore, so that the effect of the money market should be ended in a day or two. While the renewal rate tomorrow morning may be 1 per cent or so under the close, it is thought likely that the 10 per cent charge will be experienced again tomorrow and lower rates be enjoyed later in the week. Bankers told clients they "hoped" to keep the rate from going above 10 per cent.

MIDWEST REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 17. (AP)—(USDA)—Packers hammered prices of better grade beef steers today but bought cheap Southwestern grass steers readily. Aggregate receipts around the 11-market circuit were about 57,000, an increase of 12,000 over last Tuesday but 10,500 short of the corresponding day a year ago. Chicago reported a 25@50c decline on the rank and file of beef steers and long yearlings. But declines at other points were smaller. Strictly choice 1,200 pound Nebraska steers in Chicago scored $17.00. Fairly liberal supplies this week have failed to slow up the stocker and feeder trade to any appreciable extent.

Hogs found a moderately active outlet at steady to 15 cents higher rates. The day's top of $10.85 was paid at Chicago. Total offerings were around 66,400 as compared with 76,550 a week ago and 78,405 the same day last year.

Although the sheep supply, approximating 101,600 was 10,500 heavier than a week ago and 11,000 more than a year ago, fat lambs were steady to slightly higher. Closely sorted native lambs in Chicago made $13.65 and best rangers turned at $13.50. Kansas City and St. Joseph reported Western lambs up to $13.25. Aged stock was unchanged.

TEXAS LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Sept. 17. (AP)—Livestock trading here today opened with better demand, some classes showing a little strength—particularly cows and calves.

Less than a dozen loads of slaughter steers were offered and they sold about steady at $8.25 and $11.00.

Bulls were unchanged. Common light bulls selling at $5.50 and $6.00.

Slaughter calves and yearlings steady to strong; two loads sold at $13.50.

The demand for cows was active. Half a load sold at $8.60; butcher cows sold at $6.25 and up. Canners and cutters $4.00@6.00.

Calves were active at 25c or more higher prices. Carlots sold up to $11.25; light calves at $11.00 and fairly good heavy calves at $10.00.

Stocker calves steady. Some stocker steers sold at $8.00 and $9.65.

Steady to strong prices prevailed on hogs with $10.45 paid in the rail section and a few in the truck section up to $10.35. Bulk of the 175-250 pound butchers sold at $10.00 and $10.45; packing sows at $7.50 and $8.50; feeder pigs around $7.50.

Of the sheep receipts listed for the day, half of the receipts were on through bill and some others were on country contract sales. No sales completed.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (AP)—Sudden reverse action turned wheat price losses into gains today after a tumble to nearly 10c a bushel below last week's top figures.

Upturns in wheat values were helped by U. S. department of agriculture advices that the world's 1929 wheat yield is about 500,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Closing prices for wheat were firm, ¼@1c above yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅝@⅞c up, oats unchanged to ¼c higher, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 5c.

Counting materially to hoist the wheat market today after early severe setbacks was evidence disclosed that a big share of heavy selling of wheat here yesterday was on the part of speculators working for a decline, and did not come from large holders.

Throughout the day unusually active trading was witnessed in the wheat pit, with attention centering largely at times on advices that Argentine rains were becoming general.

Likelihood of frost tonight in numerous sections of the corn belt, especially North Iowa, Illinois and Indiana, gave independent strength to the corn market. The oats trade showed a good close of commissionhouse buying.

Provisions went higher.

ARMOUR OPENS CREAM DEPOT

Local Plant Also Boosts Price on Hens

Alterations recently completed at the Armour Creameries' plant have equipped that place for buying and shipping sour cream, in which a considerable volume of business already has developed, according to Victor Pringle, manager here.

With the addition of a cream station, the Armour plant now offers a market for poultry, eggs, hides and cream, all at the same platform, it was shown.

Extensive changes in the offices of the plant have also been made during the past three weeks.

Cotton ginning resumed on a much heavier scale Tuesday, with 185 bales reported from the 10 gins now operating. The Kemp City gin, with 43 bales, represented the heaviest day's yield.

In the poultry market, heavy hens were given a one-cent boost in price, going to 20 cents per pound. Eggs moved up to 35 cents for No. 1 quality, and all spring chickens over three pounds in weight were bringing 21 cents.

RAIN AT RULE

Special to The Record News

RULE, Texas, Sept. 17.—A light rain fell in Rule and this community Monday morning. It was not needed after a rainfall of five inches last week. The feed crop has been helped to a great extent, and some say that cotton that is not burnt and is still growing will have time to make a better crop. There will be a great deal of small grain planted in this community. Some are planting early millet and say it will have time to mature before frost.

Anderson of the ill-fated steamship Andaste, which was wrecked a week ago with its crew of 25, was found here this afternoon, written upon a piece of wood, floating near where coast guards sought for bodies.

The message, crudely written in the gale, read:

"This is the worst storm I have been in in years. We can't stay up long. Hope to God we are rescued. "A. A."

Lawton Man in Jail After Raid

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, Texas, Sept. 17.—W. T. (Curly) Myers of Lawton, Okla., is in the Hardeman county jail at Quanah charged with operating a still following his arrest in a vacant residence at Vernon Saturday afternoon by Que Miller, Foard county sheriff; Jack Roden, deputy, and Jim Keys and Dee Lewis, Vernon policemen.

The arrest marked the end of a search that started three weeks ago after the raid of a large still in an obscure part of Foard county, northeast of Crowell. At the time of the raid, Myers' wife was captured and Verna Johnson surrendered to officers. A few days later, Myers was the last man wanted in connection with the raid.

Myers had a shot gun in his possession at the time of the arrest, but offered no resistance. Myers and Johnson are out of the Foard county jail on bond awaiting their trial which is to take place in district court the latter part of this month.

The still that was captured was one of the largest known to have ever operated in this section of the state.

Europe Considers Ford As Greatest Industrialist

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (INS)—"Everywhere in Europe, Henry Ford is regarded as the greatest figure in industry."

Paul Hyde Bonner, vice president of the Stehli Silk corporation, made that statement when he returned home on the Caledonia after having held a series of conferences with business and political leaders in England and on the continent.

"The Ford idea of putting the working man on the map commercially is now generally accepted as ideal," Bonner said. "Production for the working man will bring an increase in the output of every known commodity. This will mean many times the consumption Europe has formerly had, of luxuries as well as of necessities."

M'GREGOR OUTLINES U.S. COTTON AID PROGRAM IN TEXAS

FUND PROVIDED FOR MARKETING

Four Per Cent Money to Aid Orderly Program

Completion of a provisional organization purposed to obtain for Texas farmers maximum advantage of the $500,000,000 provided under the federal agricultural marketing act at the earliest possible date will be effected within a short time, according to W. M. McGregor, president of the First National bank, who returned from Houston Tuesday afternoon following his appointment by Governor Moody as one of seven committeemen charged with the formation of the Texas cotton council.

John E. Owens of Dallas, chairman of the committee, will call a meeting within the next few days, Mr. McGregor said, at which time seven men will be selected to serve as chairmen of the seven natural cotton growing subdivisions of the state. Following the organization of the board of district chairmen, who will select one of their own number as president of the Texas cotton council, steps will be taken immediately to the election of chairmen by the cotton growers in each individual ginning community.

Ginning Centers

The report adopted Monday by the 40 or more Texas bankers assembled at Houston with Governor Moody pointed out, according to Mr. McGregor, that the cotton cooperatives, to be created for handling of cotton loans under the new act, should be decentralized, flexible and locally controlled. Such a plan of organization, it was said, was considered to give the greatest assurance of an evolution of methods on a firm foundation. The natural grouping of cotton farmers about various ginning centers offers the best opportunity for putting into effect a simple and profitable form of cooperative effort, which is the uniform seed project, the discussion brought out.

Each of the district chairmen to be selected by the committee of which Mr. McGregor is a member, will in turn appoint a representative of each county in his district, thus forming the district cotton council. The county's representative on that council will head the county council, which will consist of the chairmen elected by various ginning communities, it was said.

To assist the president of the state cotton council in the direction of various phases of the organization's work, it was decided that the president should appoint an executive committee to consist of seven men, of which he will act as chairman. The report adopted also recommended that a technical executive staff be employed to work out the details of a statewide organization and to carry on its operations.

According to Mr. McGregor, the organization to be perfected during the coming weeks is a temporary one, the officers of which will retire when permanent organization of their units has been completed. The origin of control, under the plan for a permanent state council, will be with the individual gin communities.

Orderly Marketing

The bankers who met with Governor Moody at Houston were committed actively to a program designed to secure for the greatest possible number of Texas farmers such assistance as may be rendered by the farm board at the earliest practicable date, according to Mr. McGregor. The organization of gin cooperatives will be assigned to chambers of commerce or other commercial bodies in various communities, it was said.

"Orderly marketing of farm products is recognised as the most important factor in farm relief," said Mr. McGregor, "and the purpose of the organization being effected will be to afford such improved marketing facilities for the cotton growers of this state."

Under the plan adopted, the cotton grower will be entitled to advances from two sources upon furnishing bonded warehouse receipt showing weight and classification of his cotton. The first basis for advance money will be the ordinary loan value of cotton, and the second, the preferential credit provided by the farm board in accordance with the terms of the agricultural marketing act, according to the information given by Mr. McGregor. Loans from the newly created farm relief funds are to draw 4 per cent interest, it was said.

Aid to Farmer

The availability of 4 per cent money for legitimate and conservative farm operations, Mr. McGregor said, was considered by the bankers who met at Houston as offering a material aid to Texas cotton growers. Leaders in the movement, it was said, recommended that local banks act as fiscal agents in transactions between the farm board and the farmer, through the cooperative association.

Business interests of the state, Mr. McGregor stated, will be asked to subscribe sufficient funds to initiate the program adopted at Houston Monday, it being understood that after completion of the permanent organization, additional funds should be made available either from the organization itself or from the federal farm board.

On Cotton Board

W. M. McGregor, president of the First National bank, was appointed Monday by Gov. Dan Moody as one of seven men who will effect a statewide organization to enable Texas farmers to obtain aid from the $500,000,000 recently appropriated for farm relief.

REPAIRS RAISE CITY EXPENSES

Streets Given More Attention by Officials

Total expenditures of the city during the month of August amounted to $79,413.73 compared with $73,153.28 for the same month in 1928, according to the financial report of W. E. McBroom, city clerk, issued Monday.

The larger expenditure in August this year, amounting to $6,260.45 more than for August last year, is accounted for by costs of patching and repairing city streets, repairing the disposal plant and purchasing new equipment for the police and fire departments, Mr. McBroom said.

The total operation and improvement expenditures for the five months of the fiscal year beginning April 1 amounted to $385,237.74 compared with $376,789.89 for the same period in 1928, the report indicated. General expenses for administration, police, fire, etc., in August were $29,424.57 compared with $30,434.11 for August, 1928, showing a large decrease. Other expenses were as follows: Street maintenance for August, $6,764.07 and for August, 1928, $4,843.80, a large increase; library, 1929, $1,254.97 and 1928, $977.16; park department 1929, $6,554.07 and 1928, $4,717.18; sewer expenses, $4,314.06 and $1,282.84; water department, $10,071.99 and $9,675.69; bond interest paid, sinking, $21,030, and $21,222.50.

College and School News

Two speeches of welcome by Bill Habern and Jane Adams featured the first general assembly of the year which was held Tuesday morning during the half hour period.

A violin solo by William Donnell, accompanied by Frances Wise, and vocal selections by a quartet, composed of John Flynn, Ed Reader, Bob Murrell and Orville Medford constituted the musical entertainment on the program. The quartet was assisted at the piano by Mrs. Hermoine Vaughn, instructor of glee club and orchestra.

Announcement was made of the first meeting for all prospective members of the high school band, scheduled to be held Friday afternoon at the close of school. C. C. Frazee, instructor of boys gymnasium, announced that medals won by students in an advanced gymnasium contest last year had arrived and could be secured at the office at any time.

Jane Adams, president of the Girls Reserves organization, announced that the first meeting of the club would be held Friday morning in the main auditorium. Dean Stephen S. Rider announced that Orville Bullington, president of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce would address the assembly on Thursday morning. It was also announced that a special meeting of all boys in the institution would be held Wednesday morning during the 30-minute period in the main auditorium.

The naturally spooky habiliments of a murder mystery play are to be further intensified for local Philo Vance devotees when "The Greene Murder Case," with the inimitable William Powell, opens its local showing Thursday night at 11:30 o'clock. This timing of the play will bring the climatic finish at about 1 o'clock in the morning as it occurred in the S. S. Van Dine novel on which the play is based.

The Van Dine touch in mystery plots, which has become widely known on its merit and because the author so long concealed his identity, enjoys no greater popularity than the actor chosen to impersonate the omnipotent Philo Vance. Any one who saw "Beau Geste" is apt to remember William Powell's amazing role in characterization long after the background of that film story fades from memory. His more recent appearances have definitely established his place among the talkie-stars, the best remembered here being "The Canary Murder Case."

The public was not loathe to point figuratively at S. S. Van Dine some weeks ago with amused smiles when he was openly challenged to solve a crime reported to have been enacted in his own neighborhood, and failed—so far as following dispatches indicated—to produce an immediate solution. Transposed by sudden circumstance from the role of entertainer to every-day performer, he beheld his erstwhile admirers pausing in taunting skepticism. Those same admirers hold up their feet to be tied, however, when the next baffling mystery play from his pen comes along. They'll be there to help solve "The Greene Murder Case."

Jack Oakie has been running up his popularity batting average steadily since "Fast Company" opened at the Majestic last Friday. This bushy-haired, broad-shouldered Oklahoman as Elmer affects the average customer pretty much as the story makes him affect the calloused Betty—an unbearable egotism is slowly but surely lost sight of in the light of rugged honesty and sincerity. The characterization is given through the medium of a commonplace subject—a small town sand-lotter—but is accomplished with unquestioned artistry.

Concrete evidence pointing to the fact that at least one other person still has an olfactory nerve to serve his taste in screen drama was seen before one of the local theaters this week. A father whose face unmistakably registered mingled disgust and despair emerged from the theater with his two children—not babies—to promenade in the lobby until the parade of night-club, resort and gangland scenes which comprised the feature picture might have run its course. He deferred departure in order that the two juveniles might go back in for the comedy and news review. Which points the fact that while disposal plants may be necessary adjuncts to municipal life, they possess characteristics which don't harmonize with a picnic.

Adolphe Menjou, reported to be in European exile because of his high self-appraisement, will be seen at the Strand beginning Saturday in his talking film "Fashions in Love," They will be rashions. Adolphe dotes on fashions, and makes them. The coming attraction promises numerous subtle implications on the subject of single and double standards, which Greta Garbo left open for future solution.

GRASS FIRE

Firemen were called to the 1600 block on Dayton street about 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when grass caught fire. The flames had been extinguished before the fire trucks arrived.

BUTLER CASE SET SEPT. 23

Eight Trials Scheduled on Court Docket

Trials of eight criminal cases, including the burglary charge brought against Hugh Butler in connection with the loss of $700 from the Silver store here last June, have been set down for the week beginning Sept. 23 in the 89th district court, according to a docket announcement made Tuesday afternoon by George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney. Butler was acquitted of the charges brought in a robbery indictment growing out of the same loss about 10 days ago.

Other cases to be called during the week are those of Art Hobbs, charged with criminal assault; Hub Stanley, indicted with Butler on similar charges; Douglas Harvell, accused of theft over $50; Jesse Bird, charged with transporting whisky; Alfred Jennings, charged with driving while intoxicated; and E. E. Mosley, indicted on false entry charges.
