1967 Sees More Business Firms In Santa Anna

Santa Anna has 33 businesses listings in the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book for January, 1967, compared with 28 in January, 1966, a gain of 18 per cent in the number of firms.

The Dun & Bradstreet Reference book lists manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers who seek or grant commercial credit, but it does not include some of the service and professional businesses such as beauty and barber shops, security dealers and real estate brokers. Therefore the figures for total business would be higher than the book listings.

The credit reporting agency each January asks business concerns for copies of their financial statements. This year requests are being sent to nearly three million business concerns — to the corner grocery store, worth a few thousand dollars, as well as to businesses worth millions.

The Fort Worth District office of the 1967 Reference Book showed a physical count of 233 manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, compared with 223 in 1966 or an increase of 4 per cent.

During the past year, 21 changes were made in the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book, listings of Coleman County businesses, including 7 names added, 5 names deleted, and 9 changes in the ratings of continuing businesses. The changes occurring in Coleman County are slightly lower than with the rest of the country where a change of business significance is counted about every five seconds.

Using the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book listings as a guide, it is interesting to review what has happened in the principal Coleman County communities during the past year.

School Asks Public For Complete Census

The annual school census is getting under way in Santa Anna and it is very important that every child of school age or who will be of school age by Sept. 1, 1967, be enumerated. Cullen N. Perry, superintendent, said this week.

Census records are the basis for allocation of state money and every child must be enumerated in the month of January or the local school will lose state aid that will be vitally needed during the forthcoming year, Perry explained.

Census blanks are being given "all children enrolled in school. Parents and guardians are asked to list all children in school at the present time and those who will be SIX years of age on or before Sept. 1, 1967. If you have a beginner please contact school officials.

Following is a summary of instructions for filling out the census blanks which are

CAR INSPECTION DEADLINE NEAR

Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, reminded Texas motorists this week that most vehicles have not yet been inspected for their 1967 vehicle inspection sticker.

"The inspection period is two-thirds over and only about one-third of the vehicles have been inspected," said Garrison. "This means that during the 14 weeks remaining before the April 15 deadline for inspections, more than twice as many persons each week must have their car inspected to avoid long lines forming at the end of the period."

In urging motorists to have their vehicle inspected at an early date, Garrison pointed out that official inspection stations are easily identified by the standard sign displayed at or near the service entrance of the garage.

He advised that inspection stations are being urged to request permission to inspect any vehicle brought into the garage for repairs or regular service.

"In this way," Garrison pointed out, "time will be saved for the motorists as well as for the inspection station."

"And if you have not had your vehicle inspected, take it to one of the 5,500 authorized inspection stations for a 'check-up' and start the new year off right with a safe vehicle."

"Please complete the enclosed Census Form, sign it, and return it to the school as soon as possible.

"Please add any eligible school child not listed and fill in all blanks, and make any corrections necessary. These forms must be complete and correct before they can be sent to the Census Division. Birthdates shown are as were listed on the census roll for the 1966-67 school year.

"The census blank should show the child's age as of 9-1-67. Both parents names are necessary and the questions regarding residence are important and must be answered.

"No under-age children will be accepted in the 1967-68 school year and birth certificates are required on the child's initial enrollment.

"Ann to the list any child who will be 6 years of age on or before September 1, 1967, and leave off any child who will be 18 years of age on or before that date. Please note directions at the top of the form.

"We will appreciate your immediate attention to this task and request that the Census form be returned to the school as soon as possible. Census records are the basis for the allocation of some state money.

"We would appreciate information regarding any children not now enrolled in school but are of school age. We also request information regarding any child due to enroll in school in September 1, 1967."

Firemen Save City Thousands In Year

With no major fire loss in 1966 Santa Anna residents should receive a 20 per cent credit on insurance rates about June 1, resulting in the saving of several thousand dollars in premiums.

This information was divulged in a letter being prepared by Santa Anna Volunteer Fire Department, for mailing to associate members and prospective members during the annual membership sign-up.

Volunteer firemen answered 35 fires during 1966 including grass, automobile and house fires. And that was not all they did in public service by a whole lot, as evidence the following:

—Contributed about $40 per month to the equipment fund.

—Sent delegates to two Hill Country Firemen conventions.

—Sent two members to 5-day training school at A&M University.

—Sponsored half of cost of community Christmas baskets.

—Offered prizes to Santa Anna students for themes and posters during Fire Prevention Week.

—Bought 2 Air Paks costing $600 and $200 worth of bunker coats and helmets.

2 Santa Annans Attend HPC

Santa Anna is represented by two students at Howard Payne College in Brownwood.

Earla J. Buse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Buse, is majoring in physical education, a department headed by Prof. Bill Purser.

Freddie Cullins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cullins, is the other Santa Anna student. Freddie, a 1964 graduate of Santa Anna High School, is a junior.

Howard Payne College, founded in 1889, is headed by Dr. Guy D. Newman, one of the top educators in the Southwest. It has an enrollment of 1200.

Mrs. Hines Baker of Houston is visiting relatives here this week.

Faneuil Hall in Boston was erected with lottery money.

NONE INJURED CAR ACCIDENTS

Two minor traffic accidents occurred in Santa Anna last week with no serious injuries reported. The first one happened on U. S. Highway 84 near the rest home about 3:30 p.m., Jan. 4th, when a 1964 Pontiac station wagon belonging to Mrs. Mary Neff Jones of Santa Anna collided with the rear of a 1966 Plymouth which was attempting to make a left turn.

Mrs. Reba Broyles of Coleman, driver of the Plymouth, was admitted to a Coleman hospital for observation. Rickie Jones was a passenger in the station wagon. There was extensive damage.

The second mishap occurred on Fae Street near Santa Anna Hospital at 5:25 a.m., January 6. A 1963 Chevrolet belonging to E. K. Wooster was parked on Fae Street when Linda Massey of Fife, driving a 1953 Buick, attempted to park next to the Chevrolet. The Buick did not clear the parked car.

Elizabeth Wooster had been driving the Chevrolet but it was unoccupied at the time. C. A. Dotson of Fife owned the Buick which Linda Massey was driving.

D. H. Williams Is Co. School Supt.

D. H. Williams who took the oath of office as new Coleman County School Superintendent last week, brings a background of 25 years in the teaching field to that office.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams lived in Santa Anna back in the 1940's when he left teaching to buy a filling station and she became a teacher in the Santa Anna schools. After operating the station for six months he purchased heavy equipment and engaged in soil and water conservation contracting in January, 1946.

He is still in that business; however since 1946 he has taught one year terms at Cross Roads, Centennial and Talpa-Centennial, the latter term being 1959-60.

There is an interesting parallel between the retiring superintendent D. E. Loveless and the new one. Both started teaching in Erath County in small country schools, with D. H. Williams starting his teaching in 1927, which was the last year that Loveless was to teach in Erath County before coming to Coleman.

Born in Hico, Texas on February 10, 1905, Williams attended school in Oplin, then attended prep school at Tarleton and continued there through the junior college. He obtained the bachelor degree from Howard Payne College.

After his first year in college, D. H. Williams started teaching, attending college in the summers until he got his degree. He explains that was pretty much the custom in those days . . . teaching and going to school in the summer.

Family Assists Award Winning 4-H Pair

Linda Lilley

Miss Lillian Wheeler

Before every 4-Her you will find a father and mother's love and their big hands," said a Texas 4-Her who won 1966 state champion.

Donna Wheeler, 18, of Donna and Linda Lilley, 16, of Lamesa, exhibited their 4-H lambs during the state round-up.

Wheeler, who received a $100 scholarship from the Fort Lupton Company Fund as one of the state winners of the achievement program, says she and Lilley brought him and his father closer together.

"Before I joined 4-H my father and I were merely two relatives," Wheeler said, but by working together on 4-H projects, "we now have a father and son relationship."

Wheeler's first project was a hog. She knew nothing about raising his pig but her father was experienced and they learned it work together.

At eight years of 4-H work, Wheeler had raised outstanding 4-H poultry, vegetables and horses. In 1966 he gave the first prize cow defense demonstration at state round-up.

In addition to being officer in the local 4-H Club, Wheeler has been president of the Hidalgo County 4-H Drill team and secretary of the county 4-H council.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wheeler is now attending Pan American College.

"A family that loves to eat and a farm named 'Hungry Acres' are two reasons why 4-H Food Preservation has been an excellent project for me," Miss Lilley explained.

An exciting week in Chicago, as a guest of the Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corporation has provided another reason. As state champion in the food preservation program, Miss Lilley was one of the 1000 4-H delegates at the National 4-H Club Congress.

Wheeler had raised millions in possible penalties were levied by the state against 30 defendants in the Longview-Tyler-Kingston area for $31.25.

Continent May Be 2.5 Billion Years Of Age

Geologists may have been underestimating the age of most of the North American continent, a University of Texas earth scientist believes.

Dr. William R. Muehlenberger says his studies for the past six years indicate at least half—and probably 75 per cent of the North American land mass existed 2.5 billion years ago.

Up to now the university had geologists believed only about 15 per cent of the continent was that old.

Muehlenberger believes his findings support the theory that the earth's continents once were one large mass that somehow broke apart and separated.

The geologist and his research associates have analyzed samples from more than 3,000 wells drilled to the level of "basement rocks" underlying the continent.

30 Fatal Gun Accidents In Texas In '66

The negative side of the 1966 hunting season also made history reports the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in an official report. The 30th fatal gun accident. This was nine more than 1965.

And the fall pattern was grim to the very end in that youngsters were victims as well as the more experienced hunters.

Two of the latest casualties involved were 14-years of age. Two were in the 17-18 age bracket. The other two were adults.

Meanwhile, the outdoor recreational toll was increased by the death of the more liberal. Four were occupants of small boats. The fifth fell down a bank and drowned.

This increased the 1966 water sports toll to 235 compared with 209 last year.

Here's how the latest gun deaths occurred:

A 16-year-old Wood County boy hunting alone, was struck in the head when his double barreled shot gun was accidentally discharged. He was slumped down from a tree stand when a hammer struck a hard object.

A 12-year-old Port Arthur youth was fatally wounded in the head when his 12-year-old hunting companion's shotgun was discharged while the toddler was trying to place the hair trigger on safety.

A 10-year-old Austin hunter fatally shot himself when his gun fell and discharged.

A 62-year-old Brady man died in death when shot with his own deer rifle.

A 27-year-old Farmers Branch duck hunter was killed by his shotgun when he fell in his boat.

The worst water accident occurred when three Dallas men drowned when their boat capsized during a squall on Cedar Creek Reservoir.

Women were not allowed to appear on the stage in Muskogee's time.

Harrowing Experiences Of Great Flood Are Recalled

EDITOR'S NOTE: Only a few Coleman countians can remember a Monday in July, 67 years ago, when the great Coleman flood occurred, drowning several people and chasing most of the town to the railroad tracks, one of the few places of shelter. A recent feature story appearing in The San Antonio Light recalls many harrowing experiences of that July Day.)

COLEMAN — Not too many people alive today remember the great Coleman flood, when several people were drowned and the most of the town spent the day on the railroad track, as one of the few places where they would not be swept away.

Yet on a July Monday 67 years ago, Hord's Creek, now bridled by a dam, overflowed its banks and brought death and destruction with it.

All day Sunday was overcast, with the clouds sometimes settling almost to the tops of the low hills. It did not rain, but the tree leaves dripped moisture all day long and at nightfall the rain set in, slowly and steadily, with terrific thunder in the west, while the streets ran full of turgid water.

FRESHLY BLUE

Monday morning the water had drained from the streets, and the clouds had moved to the east, leaving the western skies clean-washed and freshly blue, as only a sky can look after a storm.

Hord's Creek, a half-mile north of town was brimming full and fed by the cloudburst during the night was spreading out over its bottoms. But the town had no warning, and the rising waters were first discovered by a couple of boys as it crept over a pasture a mile north of town, and they fled to give the alarm. William Averitt, who was an early riser, saw it too and he beheld the rushing waters on which large wheat stacks floated, like steamboats on the Mississippi River.

Several houses were already surrounded, and a family by the name of Pate, that had been camped near the creek, was trapped between the stream and a slough, with men running up and down the Santa Fe tracks, shouting to the father, his wife and two little girls to climb to the nearest tree.

WALL OF WATER

The first wall of water 10 feet high, came down like dust before a sandstorm and backed up in the Head's wagon yard, while a woman came running out of a house on the hillside, pleading with the men on the track to save a one-legged man and his paralytic wife who were in one of the camp houses already surrounded by water.

A dozen men went to their rescue but the flood took the whole house downstream where, a 100 yards below two young men, Harry Hubert and Perry Roscoe made another effort at rescue, but they themselves had to be rescued and came out of the water with arms and legs cut and bleeding from floating fence posts, festooned with barbed wire. A boy straddling a covered wagon, yelling at every breath, came floating downstream and, just as he came opposite the town, caught an overhanging limb, just before the wagon disintegrated.

Crawford Jackson, Ode Spath, John Enlestine, after taking a look at the creek below the town had headed back to get breakfast, only to run into disaster. The Schoolcraft family occupied a two-story house on a rather high bank of the creek, and hailed the trio, with the parents begging them to take the children out.

Spath took a little girl before him and a boy behind his saddle. Enlestine took a girl behind him. Then, just as they were entering the slough some distance away from the creek bank, that first wall of water reached there, and swept horse, men and children beneath the rolling current.

GIRL SAVED

Jackson, who had Ethel Brown, Schoolcraft's 16-year-old stepdaughter on his horse, was more fortunate. He seized her and swam to the nearest mesquite, where he shoved her up on a limb. Then doubtful that the mesquite would hold both of them against the undermining current he swam a couple of hundred yards to an old barn, on which he climbed, and from this point he saw Enlestine, Spath and the children go under.

Ironically enough, all of them would have been perfectly safe if they had stayed in the Schoolcraft house, for the house did not wash away.

Heck Rogers, in a nearby saloon, became terrified when the flood waters floated it from its foundation and it started downstream. Working his way out of the building, Rogers was washed against the mesquite where Ethel Brown was hanging, and there they both remained until after the flood subsided.

In the meantime, the Pates had taken refuge in a wagon, which went whirling off downstream, throwing the occupants out into the flood. The mother and the two little girls were drowned before the eyes of the men on the railway embankment, while the father swam for some distance before he gradually succumbed to the rolling current and the entangling barbed wires.

PEOPLE IN TREES

The flood by this time had reached its height, and nearly everyone in town was on the railroad embankment. By the aid of field glasses many other people could be seen in trees.

The river carried masses of golden sheaves, for the harvest had been abundant and much of it was cut before the flood struck.

The entire valley bottom was a floating and tangled web of barbed wire in which swimming livestock tangled and were drowned. Other animals were borne far down stream and eventually waded ashore.

The water subsided almost as rapidly as it had struck, and as soon as it was low enough to wade a search was begun for the bodies of the drowned. The old couple were found first; then Mrs. Pate and her two daughters. Enlestine and the little girl he had tried to save were found among drifts lodged in some bushes; under some tall pecans near a high cutbank were piled wrecked houses, furniture, wagons, fences and grain. Spath's body, with those of the two children he tried to save, were found near together, but that of Pate was washed far down stream and was the last to be found.

FIND PROPERTY

Many found property that had been carried away, so damaged it was almost useless, and one man found a box containing $4,000, which was returned to its owner. And benevolent people helped those made destitute by the disaster.

Today, Coleman has a population estimated at some 7,000 people. It is the seat of Coleman County, just as it was then, and a banking and commercial center. In addition, it has a brick plant, a ceramic tile plant, bootmakers, is a center for livestock processing, and there is a grill manufacturer.

It even has, as tourist attractions, new Lake Coleman, north of town on Jim Ned Creek; Lake Scarborough, some eight or ten miles west of town; a replica of old Camp Colorado, in the city park; and a January stock show and generally a rodeo in July.

Its economy is founded on

Read Matthew 6:13-21

A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none. (Luke 13:6)

One winter day I trudged through the woods in central Florida. I was tired and thirsty. Then, suddenly, like a desert oasis, a citrus tree loaded with oranges appeared in a small clearing. It was not a grove. It was simply one tree standing alone.

The fruit, however, was a disappointment. Every orange I cut was pithy, tasteless, and without juice. That tree had not been cared for. No one had pruned its branches. Fertilizers had not been added to the soil. All alone, the tree had done what it could, but that was not enough.

So it is with life. Without God's guidance, without such spiritual helps as prayer, bible reading, and church attendance, our lives cannot bear the kind of fruit God created us to produce.

Our hearts must be pruned of sin, nurtured in God's love, and trained in doing His will. Otherwise we may appear beautiful on the outside but within be like the citrus tree — producing fruit that is tasteless and unhelpful to our fellowman.

PRAYER: Father, teach us how to use our lives for Thee. Help us to prune away all selfishness in order that we may produce fruit to help others along life's journey. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Badger Frightens Hawk Out of Meal

A red-tailed hawk was anticipating a tasty meal of a freshly caught cottontail rabbit when a swaggering badger arrived on the scene near Big Spring.

District Chief Bill Sprott of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department described the clash of personalities:

The badger, closely kin to the wolverine in habits, boldly charged from the underbrush. This frightened the red-tailed hawk half out of his wits, and also out of his hard-earned rations.

Dragging the rabbit back to the underbrush amid the angry cries of the hawk, the badger seemed completely unreturbed.

Law of the jungle box score: One satisfied badger and one red-faced red-tail.

Half Million Vets Want To Go To College

Over one-half million veterans have applied for certificates to attend college or take another form of training under the new GI Bill, Jack Coker, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Waco said today.

In a report to President Johnson, William J. Driver, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, said that as of December 1, a total of 288,000 were actually in training, mostly at the college level. Over 49,000 of these also attended summer school under the new law and enrolled for the fall semester. The educational benefits of the new GI Bill became effective last June.

As a comparison, Driver reported to the President that under the Korean GI Bill, only 65,000 veterans took advantage of educational benefits within five months of the effective date of that law.

"Recalling the gratifying results of the World War II good early response to the new GI Bill promises vast benefits for the entire nation as the educational and economic status of our veteran citizens increases," Driver said.

One-fourth of the remaining two million eligible veterans have already applied for educational benefits. By the spring of 1967, the agency expects one-half million veterans to be enrolled in colleges and other training.

Veterans are also taking advantage of the home loan guaranty provisions of the new GI Bill in large numbers. Over 220,000 veterans have requested eligibility certificates for such guarantees, with 77,500 applications already received.

Computers to Combat Birth Defects Seen by March of Dimes Physician

By DANIEL BERGSMAN, M.D., M.P.H.
Director, Medical Department
The National Foundation—
March of Dimes

Great strides toward the solution of birth defects problems can be expected when computers are applied to study this medical area.

That time is perhaps only three or four years away.

The National Foundation-March of Dimes is participating actively today in vital steps necessary before the enormous potential of a computerized "Registry of Birth Defects Data" can be utilized. When all steps are taken, we will witness a great change in our understanding of birth defects and hence, the treatment and prevention of birth defects.

Thus far a central computerized pool of birth defects data is only in the planning stage. But it is certainly well on the way to realization with "break-through" implications.

More than one-quarter of a million babies are born every year in the United States with birth defects. A successful new approach to the problem might greatly reduce not only the total of defective births but also lessen the associated heartache and hardship by pointing the way toward prevention or improved methods of treatment.

Computers In Demand

In medicine, as in industry, data processing by computers is increasing in demand. The results of medical research and clinical experience could be made more immediately available to physicians who encounter patients with special problems. Current statistics about disease-symptom relationships and correlations between various birth defects could be made more quickly and on a greater sample of data.

Computers provide the fabulous advantages of phenomenal memories and prodigious speed in analyzing data. However, accurately defined and recorded data must be provided and correct questions must be asked.

We need to remember that a computer cannot do more than it is "programmed" to do—it has no intellect of its own. When the computer has been "fed" all of the known facts derived from hundreds of carefully documented instances, its electronic memory can almost instantly retrieve the pertinent data and organize it as answers to the questions written in its own symbolic language.

PRESENT-DAY medical treatment of birth defects may change substantially when, in three or four years, computers are applied to problems of research and diagnosis, says Dr. Daniel Bergsma, director of the medical department of The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

Fast Answers Seen

When we reach the "break-through" point, pediatricians, for example, should obtain fast answers to many puzzling questions posed by various birth defects. Today, to obtain useful answers to even one question by manpower alone might require months, if not years, of tedious effort.

This, of course, is an oversimplification. The steps necessary before we can make use of the computer's fantastic memory and speed are complicated:

1. We must have a clinically useful classification of birth defects, of which there are hundreds. A simple listing of names is not enough.
2. We must develop clear definitions of each birth defect, acceptable to participating physicians (a formidable task because much is unknown about birth defects and not all authorities are in agreement about causes of particular defects).

3. We must then select the factual data and code the selected information for computer input and retrieval.

This development of a computerized registry of birth defects data is an enormous undertaking, but the rewards may be breathtaking in providing more accurate diagnosis of birth defects, in more effective and comprehensive treatment, in more sharply defined research and, of course, in lessening the impact of these tragedies on babies with special needs and on their families.

The National Foundation-March of Dimes is proud to be playing a major role in this historic enterprise.

433 Deer Bagged In Kerrville Area

Seven hundred participating permit holders harvested 433 deer, a record number during the 30-day hunt on the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department experimental Kerr Wildlife Management Area.

There were 235 males and 198 females killed. Of the buck deer harvested, 152 had at least pronged antlers.

The high deer population, near 1100, on the 6,493 acres permitted the large number of hunting permits.

Even with impressive hunter success, above 60 per cent, the herd was not reduced as much as expected yet enough to provide definite deer management information and possibly avert a severe die off this winter.

4-H Alumni Honored For Community Service

Four former 4-H'ers have been named 1966 state 4-H Alumni award winners by the Cooperative Extension Service. Each has received a handsome inscribed plaque from the alumni program sponsor, Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation.

Mrs. LaVerna McMenamy, a housewife and substitute teacher in Shallowater, was a four-year 4-H member in Oklahoma. She has retained her interest in 4-H, serving as a club leader for four years and as 4-H committee chairman of the home demonstration council. She is also co-superintendent of the Southern Plains Fair.

Mrs. McMenamy

Mowery

Chairman of her church's commission on education and president and a district officer of the church women's organization, Mrs. McMenamy still finds time to serve as a Brownie troop leader.

Fay Mowery, Houston farmer and rancher, was a trip to National 4-H Club Congress as a five-year 4-H member. In 1958 his family received the master farm family award from "Progressive Farmer" magazine.

He is director and vice president of the Gulf Coast Cattle Improvement association and has been chairman of the Harris County program building committee, and state farm bureau director.

He serves on the board of directors of the Ozark Boys Camp, American Bank and Trust and Buffalo Savings and Loan Association.

Mrs. Dortha Maxine Ayres of San Antonio has been a 4-H leader for 10 years. She organized a club and solicited a record number of active leaders. The club received the coveted purple seal for four years and has produced three gold star winners. Mrs. Ayres was herself a three-year 4-H member. She has served as chairman of the first county adult leaders camp and as senior vice-president of the district Veterans of Foreign Wars.

As a 10-year 4-H'er Carlos Barton Griffin of Kilgore was the Thomas E. Wilson livestock champion. He attributes his choice of a career as an agronomist to his early 4-H experiences. At Texas A & M University, Griffin was a member of the crop judging team that placed first in national competition. He was high individual in international seed judging competition.

Now foreman and assistant for Texas Eastman Chemical Company Griffin maintains his interest in 4-H by serving as a club leader, president of the Gregg County 4-H adult leaders organization and chairman of the county building committee.

1967 Farm Outlook Brighter As More Production Needed

The 1967 economic outlook for agriculture is good.

The production faucet is being opened up to take care of both domestic and foreign demand increases and total cash receipts from farm marketing will be larger than in 1966, says John G. McHaney, Extension-economist at Texas A&M University.

Feed grain acreage is expected to increase by 12 to 15 million acres and wheat allotments have been increased by almost one-third, he adds.

These additional acres are needed to bring production in line with expanding markets and to rebuild carryover stocks of grain, explains the economist. Government payments to producers will be smaller, perhaps by a half billion dollars, as more acreage is returned to production. McHaney says production expenses will continue to climb, however, he looks for the increase to be less than that of last year. Realized net farm income in 1967 may not reach the near-record level of 1966, but it is expected to be well above the 1965 figure, he says.

Farmers added $18 billion to their assets during 1966 to bring total value of their assets to $237 billion. The $35 billion increase during the past two years exceeds that of any previous consecutive 2-year period since balance sheet estimates began in 1910, McHaney said. While total increased by $14 billion, about the same rate as in 1965.

The domestic demand for farm products is expected to increase in 1967 but at a slower rate than in 1966. General economic activity is expected to keep consumer buying power on the upward move and thus increase the demand for farm products.

Exports are taking an increasing share of farm product marketings and prospects for the 1966-67 marketing year point to another sizeable rise in foreign dollar sales. McHaney sees an increase about equal to last year's which could push total dollar sales close to the $8 billion mark.

The economist calls attention to three factors which he lists as uncertainties for the year ahead. They are possible changes in the Vietnam conflict and their impact on the general economy and agriculture; the new grain program with added acreages and their influence on 1967 crop output and foreign crop prospects and their effect on export markets.

EVANGELISM IS BAPTIST THEME

Evangelism will be the keynote and Dallas the location for two major assemblies of Texas Baptists this month.

Some 15,000 church leaders and members from the more than 4,000 churches and missions which make up the 1.7 million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas are expected to attend sessions of the Jan. 16-18 BGCT Evangelism conference in Dallas at Memorial Auditorium and First Baptist Church.

Prior to the annual conference, a unique Evangelism Research Institute will be conducted for five days, Jan. 9-13, at Mt. Lebanon, Encampment, south of Dallas.

This first annual institute is designed primarily for Texas evangelism chairmen. Select pastors, laymen and musicians also will be invited from an area of 200 miles around Dallas. The new innovation in leadership training will include intensive study in both the theory and practice of evangelism.

The 1967 annual conference is expected to be "the greatest convocation we have ever experienced," according to C. Wade Freeman, director of the convention's Evangelism Division.

C. E. Autry of Atlanta, director of evangelism with the Home Mission Board of the Southern Mission Board of will join with a score of Texas evangelism leaders as speakers for the massive conference. Theme for the annual event is "Redemption."

The Nose Knows Best At Humble Oil Refineries

The human proboscis will never be replaced by a machine.

Employees at Humble Oil & Refining Company's Baton Rouge, Baytown, and Bayway refineries are proving every day that the nose does know best.

They are members of odor panels which test the aroma . . . and thus the purity . . . of a host of petroleum products ranging all the way from naphthas used in dry cleaning fluid to solvents used in making cooking oils, margarine, and peanut butter.

By simply smelling a product sample, panelists can detect minute impurities . . . down to two parts in a million. Thus a sniff in time may save an entire shipment of product.

Humble sniffers—usually lab employees who volunteer for this extra-curricular duty—are chosen with care. They must take preliminary tests designed to locate those noses with a sense for scents. Once selected, the sniffers go into training, memorizing some 25 odors and their relative strengths from an odor library set up in each refinery.

The test center is a quiet, comfortable room equipped with special air conditioners, a conference table, and easy chairs. The moderator passes samples of the test product to each member of the panel—usually made up of three to five persons.

Each panelist then picks up the brandy sniffer or sample bottle, sniffs, reflects, sniffs again, and in due time, writes down what he thinks he smells and its relative impact. His report is based on standards from the odor library. A good panel usually has no trouble agreeing on a verdict, even though a sample may contain five different odors.

Special precautions are taken by the sniffers when they serve on the panel. They avoid such things as after shave lotion and chewing gum and usually wait an hour after eating before rating a sample. Sniffers with colds or allergies disqualify themselves. Sessions are always short, lest panelists suffer odor fatigue.

What are the odors? They vary widely, although the two most critical are sulfurous and medicinal. The layman would recognize some of the odors as those found in calamine lotion (phenol), airplane cement (methyl ethyl ketone), mothballs (camphor), and kitchen table oil cloth (oleic acid).

Many industries use odor panels to maintain quality control on their products, and sniffers command considerable respect today in the business world.

As a Humble chemist pointed out: "Odor analysis is a science—a definite method of analysis."

Sniffers are a valuable adjunct to the complexities of modern manufacturing for it is often true that what smells best, sells best.

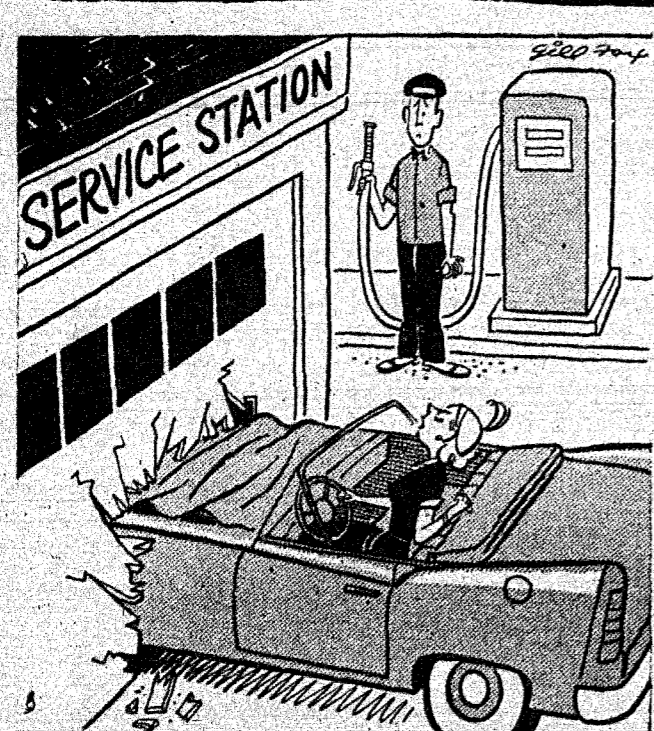

And the noble nose still heads the best sniffer list.

Report of Aliens Due In January

District Director J. W. Holland of the San Antonio Immigration and Naturalization Service has again reminded all aliens to report their addresses during January. Cards with which to make the reports are available at Post Offices and offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service throughout the country. The reports must be submitted to one of those offices. Parents or guardians submit reports for alien children under 14 years of age.

Holland urges all aliens to report before the end of January, as willful failure to do so may lead to serious penalties.

TEA OUTLINES NEW PROGRAM

A look at both the past and the future work of the Governor's Committee on Public School Education and a report on the threefold purpose and operation of regional education service centers, a new concept for Texas education, highlighted last week's sessions of the School Administrators Advisory Conference in Austin.

Glenn Ivy, Director of the Governor's Committee on Public School Education, outlined how it is "making a pervasive study of every facet of public school education" to come up with a long-range plan that will let Texas assume a position of leadership throughout the nation.

Dr. J. W. Edgar, Texas Commissioner of Education will consider a plan to establish 20 education service centers in regions across the State.

Mr. Ivy reviewed 1966 (the Governor's Committee celebrated its first anniversary January 6), and the Committee's three project leaders previewed 1967-68. The project leaders are Dr. Jim Tunnell, Carl Anderson, and Rodman Porter.

"The adoption of a study design was another important feature of the Committee's first year of work," Mr. Ivy said. "The design divides the study into five major projects."

Mr. Ivy said these projects are aimed at (1) identifying the principal long-term goals of public education (2) evaluating the programs of education by which these goals may be realized (3) analyzing the provisions for staffing the public school systems (4) evaluating the existing programs for financing public education and (5) analyzing the structure for organization and administration of public school education.

Dr. Tunnell, Program Evaluation Project leader, said the results of this study should provide future direction for educators. This project, he said, includes an examination of curriculum offerings; instructional media and materials (including textbooks); number and research and development; and facilities and equipment that facilitate the offering of an adequate program.

Mr. Porter, Staffing Project leader, told the capacity crowd how various school groups feel about teaching and teacher-related activities.

In examining areas of school staffing, Mr. Porter said eight topics would be analyzed. They are (1) supply and demand of professional personnel (2) preparation of professional personnel (3) certification and assignment of professional personnel (4) in-service training (5) effects of prospective educational changes on staffing (6) professional negotiation and grievance procedures (7) compensation and (8) professional environment and working conditions.

"What are the effects if teachers feel they are not being involved in the teaching program?"

Mr. Anderson, project leader of the research study in public school financing, described this work. The research study, he said, will cover five major areas. They are:

(1) a general overview of public school financing in Texas (2) an analysis of the components of the Minimum Foundation Program (3) an analysis of local efforts in financing public schools (4) an analysis of State-supported school programs other than those financed by the Minimum Foundation Program and (5) an analysis of Federal support of various programs in Texas schools.

In outlining the education service centers program, Dr. Edgar said their threefold purpose was to (1) provide for the establishment of regional media centers as required by state law (2) coordinate and encourage development of supplemental educational services and centers under Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 in accordance with State law and policies of the United States Office of Education and (3) provide a locally-oriented base for statewide educational planning.

Dr. Edgar said that under provisions of Senate Bill 408, which was passed by the 59th Texas Legislature and which provided for the establishment of regional media centers, the State should be ready to implement such plans by September 1, 1967.

PARCEL POST TO CHANGE SYSTEM

Use of Zip Code will make it easier to mail packages after January 15, acting Postmaster John C. Gregg of Santa Anna said this week.

New rates and a new system for identifying parcel post zones will go into effect on that date as provided in legislation signed into law by President Johnson on September 20, 1966, the Postmaster pointed out.

The rate increases will average about 10 cents a parcel, Gregg said.

Use of ZIP Code in the recipient's address will enable the sender or a mail clerk to quickly determine the proper zone, and thus the rate, for the package. The zones will be based on the distance a parcel travels between the 552 sectional centers in the country, Gregg said.

By consulting a simple chart, which is available at all post offices, the zone can be readily identified because the first three numbers of the ZIP Code represent the sectional center. This replaces a method in which a directory often had to be consulted to locate the proper zone for each of the nation's 33,000 post offices.

The new rates will range from 40 cents for a three-pound parcel destined for local delivery to 60 cents for the same parcel to zone 3 (150 to 300 miles) to $1.05 to zone 8 (over 1,399 miles). The new zoning method will also apply to air parcel post, catalogs and to publishers who pay zone rates on the advertising portion of their periodicals.

Gregg noted that all parcels mailed between post offices within the Brownwood sectional center will be charged at the first zone rate. There are 72 post offices within the Brownwood sectional center.

The new rates are expected to provide an additional $74 million a year for the Post Office Department. The later size and weight increases will add another $32 million a year. The additional revenue is to help keep the Department within 4 per cent of costs on parcel post as the law requires.

FIVE HINTS ON RESPONSIBILITY

1. Give them the facts they need to handle new responsibility.
2. Share your knowledge . . . you've been there . . . and your experience will help.
3. Add responsibility gradually so that the assistant gets a feel of the new responsibilities a little at a time.
4. Hold a loose rein . . . do not keep fingers on every move the person makes . . . keep informed, but in a way that does not give appearance of looking over shoulders.
5. Give necessary authority to handle responsibility . . . and encourage person to do job and bring problems to you only if something seems out of line.
