Panel passes tax reform bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee today approved the most sweeping tax changes in a generation, adopting a hard-fought plan that repeals deductions for most Individual Retirement Accounts and reduces many popular write-offs while slashing the top individual tax rate almost in half.

The bill would tax about 80 percent of workers at a 15 percent rate and remove an estimated 6 million low-income families from the income-tax rolls altogether. The individual tax cut would average 6.2 percent; those making between $30,000 and $40,000 would get 5 percent; at incomes above $200,000 the reduction would be 4.7 percent.

Capital gains and most IRAs would lose their tax benefits. Corporate taxes would rise by about $100 billion over five years and well-to-do investors and profitable companies would lose some of the shelters that have allowed them to reduce their tax burdens to little or nothing.

Three hours before the committee passed the bill unanimously, President Reagan said from Tokyo that he found the emerging product far superior to the plan passed by the House last December.

"Very likely I can find myself supporting the Senate version," he said.

Board to consider kindergarten plan

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

The Big Spring school board will consider taking action on a proposed kindergarten center when it meets at 5:15 p.m. Thursday in the high school board room.

Plans for the center call for consolidating kindergarten districts into one campus at the Airport School, which is now closed.

The plan, however, has opposition from members of at least one local PTA.

School Superintendent Lynn Hise indicated in an April memo to teachers that a single kindergarten campus would give teachers there "the advantage of sharing ideas, materials, etc." and allow for a better distribution of students among teachers.

But Hise said Tuesday it's really the avoidance of disadvantages that makes the proposal attractive.

With a campus focused on the needs of kindergarteners, educators will have no trouble providing children the three solid hours of instruction mandated by the state, Hise said. The school system had to ask the state for a waiver of that rule this year because kindergarteners receive just two hours and 40 minutes of instruction. Hise said to program the children for three hours this year would have caused a disruption of the entire school day in schools with a kindergarten.

But president of the Kentwood PTA, Douglas Morris, said he and many other Kentwood parents oppose the campus because it would segregate the youngsters from other students, thus eliminating interaction with older children. Furthermore, Morris said many of the kindergarteners look forward to attending school with older siblings who can make the transition of going to school easier for the child.

Morris also said the transition of entering first grade from kindergarten would be smoother if a child could continue school in a building he's already familiar with.

Opening up another campus will free classrooms at Marcy and Kentwood Elementary Schools and remove a campus sharing situation at Lakeview School, according to

Ruling allows legal threat to Comanche

DALLAS (AP) — A federal licensing board has ruled that Comanche Peak opponents have the right to legally challenge renewal of the plant's construction permit.

The U.S. Atomic Safety and Licensing Board released an order Monday allowing plant opponents to submit arguments that there is no adequate reason for construction delays.

Lawyers for Texas Utilities, which is building the plant near Glen Rose southwest of Fort Worth, said one of the reasons for the delay is that NRC officials found serious problems at the plant in 1984, meaning more time is needed to make corrections.

But Anthony Roisman, a Washington lawyer and Comanche Peak opponent, said the delays were not justified, claiming the utility had been notified of construction problems in reports dating as far back as 1975, more than 10 years before the permit expired.

The construction permit for the first unit of the twin-reactor plant which expired Aug. 1, 1985, was extended until 1988 by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission on Feb. 10.

The NRC must grant an extension if there is good cause for the delay.

Roisman, an attorney for Dallas-based Citizens Association for Sound Energy, said the utility should have corrected problems earlier and does not have a valid purpose for the delay.

4 area school seniors feted for excellence

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

"If you think education is expensive, try ignorance," said radio personality and humorist Bob (Tumbleweed Smith) Lewis Tuesday night at the Big Spring Country Club.

And it was in the spirit of educational excellence that four area high school seniors were awarded for outstanding academic and community achievements at the 20th Annual Youth Achievement Awards Dinner, sponsored by the Big Spring Herald, Zale's Jewelers and the Big Spring Rotary Club.

Sam Gladden of Big Spring High School, Leslie Kirkpatrick of Coahoma High School, Kristi Evans of Forsan High School and Sheri Perry of Sands High School were selected from a final field of 16 high achievers, four from each school.

Herald publisher Tom Watson said the ceremony is "the highlight of our year because we really enjoy honoring these students."

"There are no losers here tonight," Watson said. "Every one of these young people were recognizing here tonight are winners; if they weren't, they wouldn't be here. We're proud of them."

Lewis, who produces the widely syndicated radio program, "Sound of Texas," spoke to a gathering of school board officials, educators and parents. He told the 16 honorees that they will be "the leaders ... in

Rivers to make debut on new network

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joan Rivers is taking on former boss Johnny Carson next fall in the opening assault of Fox Broadcasting Co.'s new fourth network. NBC immediately canceled her remaining scheduled appearances as his substitute.

The caustic comedian, whose show, "Late Night Starring Joan Rivers," will make its debut in the fall, had been permanent substitute host for Carson's "The Tonight Show" on NBC for the past three years.

She was to be host two more weeks before her NBC contract expires July 19.

But she will be replaced the week of June 2 by comedian Gary Shandling and the week of July 14 by another host who has yet to be selected, said Gene Walsh, vice president of publicity for NBC's West Coast operations.

"We wish her well," said Walsh, who added that Carson learned of plans for the late-night competition from the news media.

Barry Diller, chairman of Fox Inc., said Tuesday that prime-time programming on the new service will start in March 1987. The new network springs from the purchase and consolidation by Rupert Murdoch of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Studios and six former Metromedia television stations.

Miss Rivers appeared at a news conference Tuesday with Diller and other Fox executives. "I want to thank NBC a thousand times. I am grateful to NBC for the three years I had on 'The Tonight Show,' but they should thank me, too. My ratings were good. And they were better than the regular host," she said.

Miss Rivers said she talked by telephone to Grant Tinker, chairman of NBC, and to Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC entertainment.

"I called Johnny Carson twice, but he would not take my call," she said.

Carson's last major talk-show competition came from the syndicated "Thicke of the Night" in 1983. The program, which starred Canadian singer-comedian Alan Thicke and was produced by former NBC president Fred Silverman, failed in the ratings and lasted less than a year.

Thicke, asked in a telephone interview what he thought of Rivers opposing Carson in the late-night talk show competition, said, "You're asking the wrong guy because my show was not successful. If I had anything brilliant to say I would have said it on my show. Anyway, I don't stay up that late any more."

Another late-night opponent will be David Brenner, whose new show "Nightlife" will begin this September on more than 100 non-network stations. Brenner had been a frequent host of "The Tonight Show" until Miss Rivers was named permanent substitute host.

Since Carson became host in 1962, he has met and overcome such late-night opponents as Joey Bishop, Dick Cavett, David Frost and "ABC's Wide World of Entertainment."

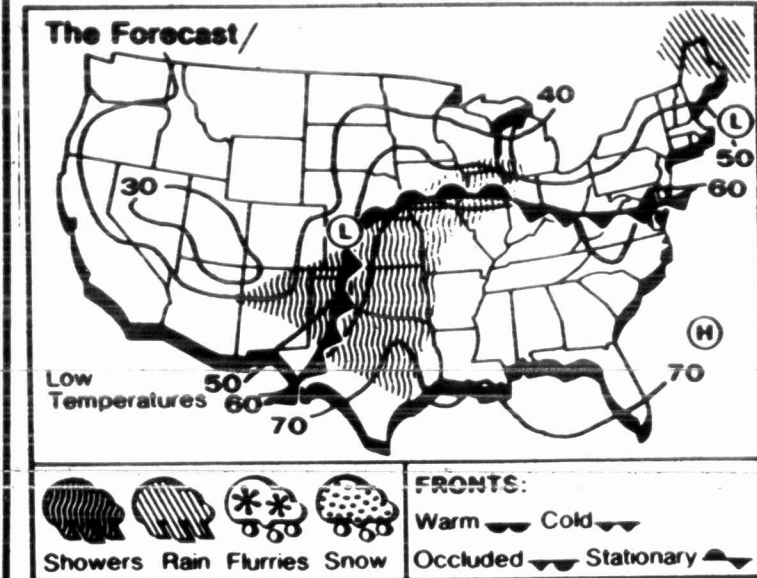

Diller said Fox was just beginning to line up affiliates to compete with NBC, ABC and CBS.

"Our stations cover 22 percent of the country, and we're going to start broadcasting with that, even if no one else joins us," he said. "As far as we're concerned, we're not waiting for affiliate stations or advertisers."

Miss Rivers' new talk show will begin at 11 p.m. Eastern time, which will give it a half-hour jump on "The Tonight Show," the late-night ratings leader.

Miss Rivers, who has made her comic reputation lampooning such well-known figures as Elizabeth Taylor and Britain's Queen Elizabeth, caused a stir last June by saying she wasn't on an NBC list of 10 candidates to replace Carson when he retires.

Tax reform

Richard Darman praised Chairman Bob Packwood, R-Ore., "for your bold tax-reform proposal" and said that while the administration has some reservations, the bill is "a major step toward achieving meaningful tax reform."

Packwood, who revived the bill after it had been picked to pieces by the committee, was given a standing ovation after the final vote shortly after midnight. "A historic effort," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

But the 20-0 vote masks deep concerns among committee members about major parts of the bill. After a wearying 22-day battle, some members indicated they were happy to put off further attempts to amend the measure until it reaches the Senate floor, probably sometime in June.

During the interim, interests that would feel the bite of the bill are likely to make their feelings known to senators. These range from middle-income families who would lose their deductions for IRAs, to Wall Street, unhappy about losing preferential tax treatment of capital gains, to the real estate lobby, which would be hit hard by the anti-shelter crackdown.

The bill is modeled after Reagan's plan, which he said is the top legislative priority of his second term. It basically would slash tax rates for individuals and corporations — to some of the lowest levels in half a century — and pay for the changes by reducing or eliminating a variety of deductions, credits and exemptions.

A net result of the change would be to reduce significantly the tax rate applied to most people's income. A typical family of four could earn up to about $42,000 before the top rate of 27 percent took effect; income below that level would be taxed at the only other rate, 15 percent. The present top rate is 50 percent.

Up to 200 reported hurt in Boston train collision

BOSTON (AP) — A packed commuter train slammed into the rear of a freight train during rush hour today, and as many as 200 people were reported injured, police said. Officials said most of the injuries appeared to be minor.

Police spokeswoman Jane Sheehan said the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority train hit the freight train in Boston's Brighton section shortly before 9 a.m. as the four-car commuter train was traveling from Framingham to Boston.

"Just all of a sudden it was like we hit a brick wall," one passenger told radio station WEEI. "Glass, shoes and bodies were going every which way."

Carolyn Walden, a spokeswoman for city health services, said emergency medical teams reported 136 people, four with serious injuries, were taken to hospitals. Police officer Jack Kervin and Deputy Fire Chief Kevin Mochen said about 200 people were treated at the scene or were taken to hospitals.

Transit spokesman Bernard Cohen said the commuter train, being pushed by its engine, had over 500 passengers. It ran into a 50-car Conrail train near a rail yard, he said.

Officials at the scene said the freight train was not moving, but Conrail spokeswoman Kathleen Byrne at the railroad's Philadelphia headquarters said that could not be determined immediately.

Boxes of pineapples and computer television screens spilled out of several of the many truck trailers on the freight train.

"From preliminary indications, the freight train which was being switched by Conrail didn't completely clear the running track and that's what caused the collision," said authority spokesman Vincent Carbona.

Kindergarten

Hise's memo.

The move to free additional classrooms will make it easier for the school system to conform to a provision in House Bill 72 that mandates a ratio of no more than 22 students to 1 teacher per classroom, he said.

Morris said by 1988, when the rule is to take effect, no additional classrooms may be needed because of the city's declining population. He also suggested an entire redistricting be considered so all children can attend neighborhood schools.

Hise said with or without the kindergarten center, the school system will have to spend money to comply with state law. Opening a campus at Airport School would not cost significantly more than alternate plans, he said. Hise estimated the Airport plan would cost $30,000 to $40,000 more than alternate plans, but the cost would be one time only.

Other items the board will consider are:

- A Kentwood PTA project.
- Bids for copiers.
- Designation of a delegate and alternate for the 1986 TASB Delegate Assembly.
- Recommendations for personnel delayed for reelection and recommendations for principal vacancies. These items will be discussed in closed session.
- The selection of a delinquent tax collection attorney.

business, industry, science or the arts. You will be one making the decisions, setting goals, reaching them and solving problems.

"I wish I had a formula that would lead you to fame and fortune," Lewis told the students. "But chances are if there was such a formula to lead you to fame and fortune, you wouldn't appreciate them because you didn't work too hard for them."

"You're going to have to devise your own formula," he said. "And it differs for each individual because each individual is unique and has special talents."

The discovery and application of those talents will lead to successful life, he said.

The four students chosen as award winners have already met with a degree of success.

Leslie Ann Kirkpatrick has been on the school honor roll four years and was listed in "Who's Who in American High Schools 1986." The Coahoma senior has served as student council vice president and a teacher's aide. She's also had an active athletic career throughout high school, was active in her church and was named Optimist Club Youth of the Year in 1985.

Forsan's Kristi Evans attained a four-year grade average of 96.5 and served as vice president of the National Honor Society her junior and senior years. Evans has served on the student council for four years, won the John Phillip Sousa Award as a member of the school band, was homecoming queen, football sweetheart, and member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes along with other school and community activities.

Sam Gladden serves as president of the National Honor Society, was a first place winner in the Permian Basin Regional Science Fair for four years and will graduate from Big Spring High School with honors. He is also the president of the French Club, active in student council and editor of the high school yearbook.

Sheri Kay Perry from Sands was named to "Who's Who in American High Schools," was an Optimist Club Youth Award winner and an early admission student at Howard College. She was voted as the senior most likely to succeed and was active throughout high school in basketball, track and tennis. A member of the student council, Perry also dabbled in journalism, poetry and drama.

NBC interview assailed

WASHINGTON — The government has criticized NBC for broadcasting an interview with the suspected planner of the Achille Lauro passenger ship hijacking, with one official calling the segment "reprehensible."

"Obviously terrorism thrives on this kind of publicity," State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said Tuesday of the interview with Mohammed Abul Abbas. "This is the kind of interview that gives terrorists the platform they seek."

The interview was aired Monday on the "NBC Nightly News."

Senate votes gun bill

WASHINGTON — The Senate approved a bill that will ease federal firearms controls and allow millions of gun owners to buy rifles and shotguns anywhere in the country, and the chief Senate sponsor said President Reagan would sign the measure.

The vote masked a furious lobbying effort that pitted the gun lobby against police and handgun control organizations. Smooth passage came only after a three-hour meeting in the office of Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., during which an agreement was hammered out to modify the bill to satisfy gun control advocates.

He returns to the job he held from 1971 to 1977 with an 89-9 vote of confidence from the Senate, but also with carping from one senator that "he is a NASA retread who ... is not the man for this job."

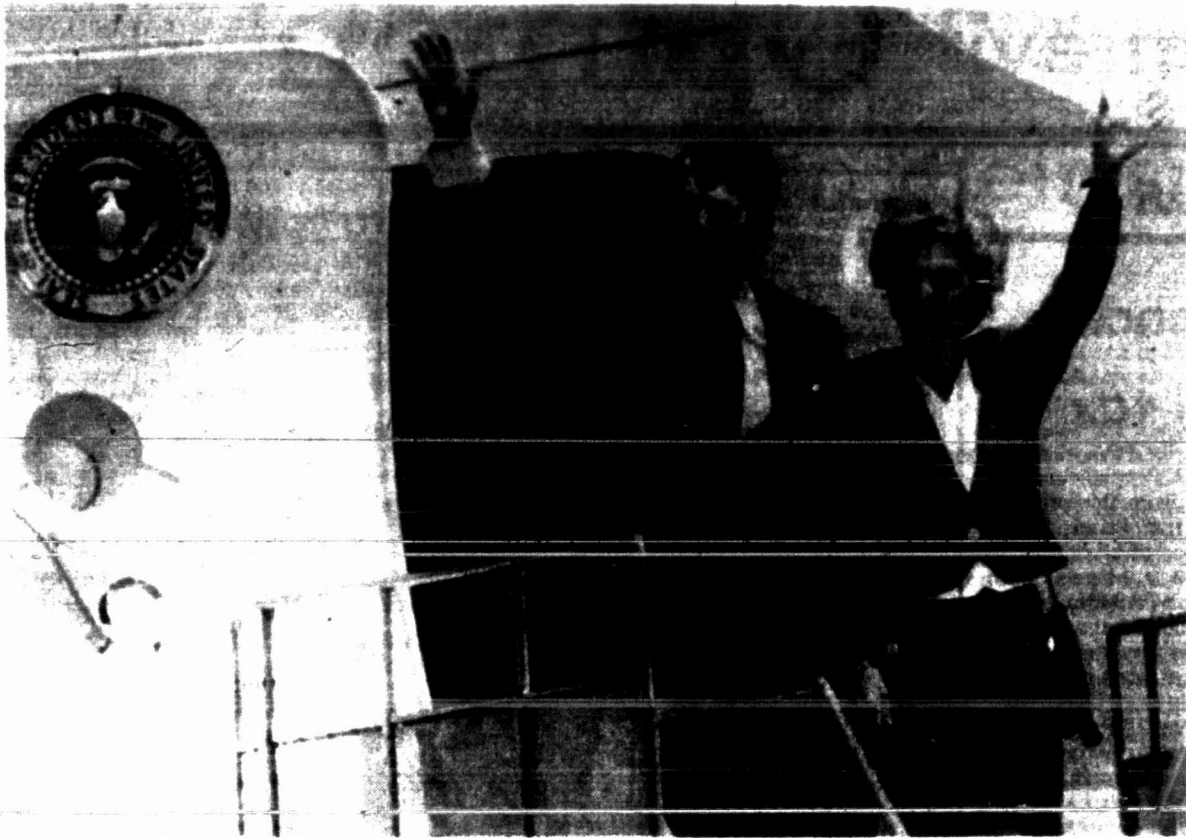

Fletcher, who was confirmed Tuesday but has no swearing-in date yet, takes over from William Graham, acting administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Texans near mishap site

DALLAS — Two Texans were just 80 miles away from Chernobyl when the nuclear plant there spewed a radioactive cloud skyward last week, but they say they didn't find out about the disaster days later.

When J. Dalton Havard and Jamie Jackson of Sugar Land got to Paris, they realized the severity of the accident when Western reporters greeted them with questions about a possible meltdown at the nuclear plant, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

Flying to New York and then on to Houston, Havard and Jackson — by then a little more informed — wondered which way the wind had been blowing on April 26, when they were in Kiev for two days of meetings with Baptist groups from the Soviet Union.

Summing up

Reagan denies another assault on Libya

TOKYO (AP) — President Reagan said today that he and his summit allies privately explored all "possible tools or weapons" for waging a joint battle against terrorism but decided it would not be helpful to publicly reveal what steps might be taken.

Reagan denied he was planning another military strike against Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafy, saying of a published report to that effect: "No one was more surprised to hear that I was planning that than I was, because I'm not planning that."

He insisted, however, despite less supportive statements from his summit colleagues, that the allies now have formed "a united front" and "will act together with regard to opposing terrorism, to isolate those states that provide support for terrorism, to isolate them and make them pariahs on the world scene and even, if possible, isolate them from their own people."

Reagan summed up the Tokyo summit at a news conference before heading home after a 13-day, 22,000 mile journey through the Far East, the longest of his presidency. The 13-hour time difference made it available for live broadcast in prime time on American television Tuesday night.

The president's last stop in Tokyo was at the American embassy, where he praised employees for their courage in light of recent anti-American attacks. "We know you stand in harm's way on our behalf," he told them.

Reagan landed in the United States at 2:05 a.m. local time (6:05 a.m. EDT) when Air Force One touched down at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska, for a brief refueling stop enroute to Washington. The president and his wife, Nancy, did not leave the plane.

At his Tokyo news conference, Reagan called the seven-nation summit of industrial democracies a "triumph in Tokyo" and predicted it will lead to concerted action against terrorism and closer coordination of international economic policy.

Asked about legislative setbacks in Washington to his tax overhaul package and planned sale of missiles to Saudi Arabia, Reagan replied, "Well, let them just wait 'til the old man gets home."

But he said the Senate Finance Committee's tax plan, despite some faults in it, is "far superior" to one passed by the House last year with his qualified endorsement. The Senate measure would repeal deductions allowed for state and local sales taxes and most individual Retirement Accounts but would preserve the writeoff for home mortgage interest and state and local income and property taxes.

White House spokesman Edward Djerejian said Reagan "is definitely going to veto" the Saudi arms sale rejection, predicting Congress could not muster the necessary votes to override a presidential veto.

Pressed repeatedly to explain what specific counterterrorism measures the summit leaders had agreed upon, Reagan said, "We discussed at great length specific actions and all."

Libyan TV shows corpse

LONDON — Libyan television showed the film of a corpse in a military uniform that it said had washed ashore, and suggested it was the body of a U.S. airman whose jet was lost in the April 15 bombing raid on Libya.

A commentator on the Tuesday night broadcast said the body washed ashore at Al-Zawiyah, 25 miles west of Tripoli, the Libyan capital, earlier in the day. He said the body could be that of a man called "Lorence, whose helmet you have already seen."

Bomb kills ten people

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — A bomb exploded in Sri Lanka's central telegraph office in downtown Colombo today, and officials said at least 10 people were killed.

Authorities initially blamed the blast on Tamil separatist guerrillas, but a caller saying he represented an outlawed Sinhalese group claimed responsibility in a telephone call to The Associated Press in London.

Sixty-two people were hospitalized, and police said dozens more had been injured but had not been sent to the hospital.

Hanoi needs West's aid

HANOI, Vietnam — After years of dashed hopes, Vietnam says it finally has found commercially exploitable oil in its territorial waters and needs the help of Western oil companies and their technology to get it to market.

Some foreign diplomats here are skeptical of the Vietnamese claims. They say they doubt the Vietnamese can exploit the oil at a profit and that the oil is of marketable quality.

U.S. oil companies stopped working off South Vietnam when the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong took over in 1975. Other Western companies came to the area in 1978 but gave up after drilling a dozen or so dry holes.

Frenchman kidnapped

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Two gunmen kidnapped an 84-year-old Frenchman today on a seaside boulevard in Moslem west Beirut, police and French Embassy sources said.

Camille Sontag was driving his car with his wife when the two armed men forced the vehicle to stop on the Ein Mreisseh corniche at about 11:15 a.m., police said.

The assailants dragged Sontag and his wife, Blanche, out of their automobile, then hauled him into another car and sped away, leaving Mrs. Sontag behind screaming, police reported.

Good riddance, oil windfall tax

Among all the bad ideas proposed to help American oil producers battered by a worldwide glut, one good idea stands out: repealing the windfall profits tax, a proposal endorsed last week by President Reagan. The oil industry doesn't warrant special help from Washington, but in a time of plunging prices, it no longer deserves a special burden either.

A monument to mass envy, the tax was imposed in 1980 following the oil shock caused by the Ayatollah Khomeini's revolution in Iran, which caused prices to soar to unprecedented heights. The brainchild of President Carter, it was supposed to capture part of the "windfall" oil producers would gain from his gradual decontrol of prices. Barring congressional action to repeal or extend it, the tax would expire on its own no later than 1983.

Despite the name, it is not a profits tax but an excise tax. Depending on which of several complicated categories of oil is involved, it takes from 22.5 percent to 70 percent of the increase in prices allowed by decontrol. Besides including resentment of Big Oil, the tax provided a nice windfall to the federal government — $23 billion in 1981 and a total of $76 billion over the last six years.

In economic terms, though, it never made sense. The whole point of oil price decontrol — whether gradual, as Carter proposed, or immediate, as Reagan decreed early in his first term — was to discourage wasteful consumption of oil and to encourage domestic production, by allowing prices to rise to reflect world supply and demand.

By taxing away a large share of the higher return to American producers, the government helped to defeat its own purpose. The tax made it unprofitable to produce some oil from old wells that would have been produced in its absence, and it discouraged some investment to find and develop new sources of oil. Ironically, it also postponed the current price crash, by cutting off some supplies that would have aggravated the glut.

But when high prices went south, so did revenues from the windfall profits tax. For it to generate any revenue, the price of oil has to be above about $18 a barrel. With prices down to about $13 a barrel and likely to stay there, the tax probably won't yield any money this year. So repeal, at least in the immediate future, is free.

Of course, a tax that gives the government nothing also costs the oil industry nothing. But that doesn't mean it doesn't have bad effects. Whether it captures any money or not, the tax is bound to reduce future supplies of domestic oil.

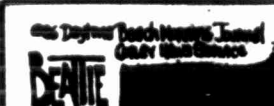

The best reason producers have to spend money on exploration and development is the hope that prices will rise enough to make new wells profitable. The windfall profits tax reduces the potential profits from these wells, thus reducing the incentive to find them. For owners of those existing wells that are too costly to operate at today's prices, the tax is one more argument to plug the wells for good, depriving future consumers of yet another source of oil.

At the time the windfall profits tax was passed, the oil industry looked like a sure bet to remain outrageously lucrative forever. Some experts predicted the price would reach $90 a barrel. But it's become clear that oil producers are just as vulnerable as anyone else to the unpredictable fluctuations of a market economy.

That's what makes the tax especially unfair. It tells producers that the government will share in the good times — even beyond its normal share captured by the corporate income tax — but won't help in the bad times. The government, unlike private companies, gets windfall profits, but no windfall losses.

In fact, the past impact of this tax gives the oil industry an arguable case that it does deserve special help to boost domestic prices. It isn't likely to get that kind of help, nor should it, but the least Washington can do is lighten its load by removing this noxious tax.

U.S. tries for grip on Iran by arms pipeline revival

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — Israel has denied any involvement with the illicit arms ring arrested last week in the attempted sale of $2 billion worth of arms to Iran, though a retired Israeli general was among those indicted.

But suspicion of Israel comes easily. For years the Israelis have been selling arms secretly to Iran, generally with the tacit approval of the CIA.

The timing of the indictments was significant, coming just as the Reagan administration has begun a secret "tilt" toward Iran after six years of mutual hostility. Proponents of a U.S.-Iranian detente wanted the United States to supply arms to Iran directly, if covertly, and take credit for the friendly overture. The main arguments for a rapprochement, as we reported earlier, were to assure a U.S. presence in post-Khomeini Iran and to save the billions of dollars now being spent to protect against Iranian-inspired terrorism against Americans.

Last year, according to high-level sources, the National Security Council asked the Israeli Defense Ministry and Mossad, the secret service, to cut off the flow of U.S. weapons to Iran. Israel reluctantly slowed down its lucrative arms trade with Iran.

When the United States and Iran broke off relations following the seizure of American hostages at the Tehran embassy in 1979, the Iranian military was faced with the serious problem of finding replacement parts for U.S. weapons supplied to the shah. The Iranians began shopping elsewhere — and Israel soon became their most reliable supplier.

Politically, Israel knew it had nothing to lose by helping Iran in the war against Iraq. That Arab country would never be a friend of Israel. Other reasons for dealing with the Ayatollah Khomeini were to make money, to get Iranian oil, to protect the 50,000 Jews living in Iran and to establish some links with Iranian military officers that might be useful in a post-Khomeini situation.

Through it all, the Israeli government has denied arms deals with Khomeini — and has kept the CIA informed of the deals. For example, the Mossad told the CIA that Israel's first sale to Iran at the inception of the Khomeini regime was for $300,000 worth of spare tires for American-made F-4 fighters.

Israel kept the transactions modest during the nearly 15 months the American hostages were being held. Then it went big time. In 1981, the sales amounted to $50 million at least, and our intelligence sources estimate that Israel has provided more than $250 million worth of arms and ammunition to Iran in the last five years.

Now the Reagan administration is considering restoring the old arms pipeline to Iran. As one White House official delicately put it, the administration's mood is to "regularize" the arms flow, instead of going through Israel.

For their part, the Iranians are likely to welcome a covert arms program from the United States directly, to avoid paying markups of as much as 2,000 percent for U.S.-made spare parts.

One reason for the U.S. shift away from support of Iraq in the Persian Gulf war is that, like Israel, the United States hopes to solidify relations with "reasonable" military leaders in Tehran. Khomeini has tried his best to decrease the influence of the military, many of whom worked for the shah. The administration figures if it can shore up the Iranian military in its internal rivalry with the Revolutionary Guards, it will put the United States in a better position after Khomeini dies.

A BRIDGE TOO MUCH: Travelers on interstate highways in Kansas and Missouri can stop wondering about the huge concrete-and-steel bridges that lead nowhere or span non-existent roads. Government auditors have concluded that the bridges are the result of simple, old-fashioned bad planning. Five useless or overbuilt bridge projects in the two states cost the taxpayers $21.4 million, according to the Transportation Department's inspector general. The $1.01 million bridge over Interstate 435 in Clay County, Mo., for example, was finished two years ago, but still has no road connected to either end. The inspector general recommended more vigilance by highway planners.

It's time U.S. took a stand

By HANK MURPHY
It's time for the United States to rethink its involvement in the NATO alliance.

Western Europe has changed dramatically since the first years following World War II. Our European allies have built strong economies from the ashes of war, boasting a combined gross national product roughly equal to the United States.

Yet, it is American military might financed by American taxpayers that provides the backbone of their defense. And it's time they take on that burden themselves.

America's presence in NATO primarily benefits the Europeans while costing the United States an estimated $90 billion a year, according to a study conducted by Senator Sam Nunn.

Our troops are on their shores and our ships are in their ports and our rockets are on their soil to defend their people from the Soviets. It is not the French, the Germans, the British, the Greeks, Turks, or, heaven forbid, the Italians who will defend us.

Furthermore, for all the money and manpower we expend to preserve their freedom, only Britain has been a reliable friend in a pinch. The others are quick to criticize the American policy of striking at terrorists while timid and weak-kneed in dealing with the scourge themselves.

An American pull-out of Europe would serve several purposes: First, it would save this country tens of billions of dollars a year, savings that would sharply reduce the massive federal deficit. Second, it would dramatically cut down chances of a superpower confrontation if the Europeans were left to defend themselves. Third, disbanding NATO could lead to a dissolving of the Warsaw Pact, an idea Soviet leader Gorbachev endorsed in Berlin April 21. Presumably, that might lead to Soviet troops withdrawing from the likes of Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany, giving those countries a chance to liberalize repressive societies.

There is increasing neutrality sentiment sweeping Europe. Many there see the Soviets as a benign, peace-loving, misunderstood country. That despite the brutal six-year Russian occupation of Afghanistan. Perhaps it is time for the United States to let Europe go it alone.

Let God's prayer be your guide

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I would like to contribute to the work of my church and to people like you who seek to do God's work, but frankly I don't have much money and my little bit wouldn't make any difference. Do you think God would give me more money if I prayed for it, so I could give to others? — C.M.

DEAR C.M.: There is certainly nothing wrong with praying that God will bless us so we can in turn be a blessing to others — if that is our honest motive for wanting financial success. Therefore, examine your motives carefully because it is far too easy to pray a prayer like this that sounds good on the surface but actually comes from a selfish spirit. Let your prayer be that of the Psalmist: "Search me, O God, and know my heart... See if there is any offensive way in me" (Psalm 139:23-24). And if God chooses to answer your prayer with a "no," then be content with what He gives you.

But God wants you to be faithful with whatever He has given you — and, in fact, there is no reason to think He will entrust you with more if you are not faithful in using for His work what you already have. Do you remember the incident Jesus saw during his last days in Jerusalem? He observed a poor widow who put two small coins into the temple treasury — all the money she had. Jesus commended her because her gift came from a sincere love of God and, therefore, she "has put in more than all the others" (Luke 21:3).

Don't think God is unable to use your gifts for His work. Just as Jesus took the two loaves and five fish from a small boy's lunch and multiplied them to feed 5,000 people, so He is able to take our small gifts and use them for His glory. The real issue, however, is this: Are you committed to Jesus Christ? Christ does not want just your pocketbook — He wants you to commit your life to Him without reserve.

U.S. space program plagued by jinx?

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
WASHINGTON (AP) — After a quarter century of sending men, women and satellites into space and at a time when the administration is trying to create a space-based defense system, the United States finds itself with little capability to launch anything other than weapons of war.

Space shuttles Columbia, Discovery and Atlantis, which pioneered a new form of space travel, are locked in hangars at Kennedy Space Center awaiting modifications made necessary by Challenger's Jan. 28 destruction. Their next flight, by all estimates, is more than a year off.

On April 16, Gareth D. Flora, vice president of Martin Marietta, which makes the mighty Titan rocket, boasted to Congress that there had been 141 successful Titan launches in 20 years and that the rocket "is the most reliable expendable launch vehicle in existence with a 97 percent success rate."

Two days later, an Air Force Titan 34D exploded at Vandenberg Air Force Base, destroying a $500 million spy satellite. Last week, acting NASA administrator William C. Graham was explaining the importance of the launch of a $37.5 million weather satellite aboard a Delta rocket scheduled for late in the week.

"We need it to remind ourselves that we have a long record of success in space and we can come back to it and sustain that," Graham said. On Saturday, 72 seconds after launch, the Delta's engine inexplicably cut off and was destroyed with the satellite.

The only other NASA vehicle capable of lifting payloads into orbit, the Atlas-Centaur, was scheduled for launch from Florida on May 22, carrying a Navy communications satellite. But because its engines are manufactured by the same company as Delta's, the Atlas-Centaur may be put on hold.

NASA's other launch vehicle, the Scout, is a slender rocket used for very light payloads. The Titan is an Air Force rocket.

"There's clearly something in the air that's causing these failures," says Marcia Smith, president of the American Astronautical Society. "It's not just NASA, the Air Force is not so lucky either."

A space jinx? "This whole sequence of events — the launch failures, Chernobyl, Willie Shoemaker winning the Kentucky Derby — gives new meaning to the word unbelievable," she said.

When the space shuttles proved they could carry satellites to orbit, return to Earth and fly gain, the United States made a decision to phase out expensive expendable launch vehicles and use the shuttle instead.

As a result, there are only six of the Titan 34Ds left, three Deltas and three Atlas-Centaur.

The Titan 34D can place 4,200 pounds of satellite into a 22,300 mile high orbit where the satellite remains over a single spot on Earth. It can put up to 33,000 pounds in low earth orbit.

The jinx theory gets some support from puzzled NASA officials.

"It is an unbelievable situation from the NASA perspective," says Robert Nysmith, associate administrator for management. "I would say, very honestly, truthfully, that with Delta it's bad luck. It just happened to come up. You take any system and have a 98 percent success rate — but you are going to get one or two failures out of a hundred out of purely anomalous things that go wrong."

"We've had 43 successful launches... I'm afraid this failure just happened to come right now. It just happened to be the third space failure in a row."

Joseph B. Mahon, director of NASA space transportation support, sees all three failures having distinctly separate causes.

"However," he concedes, "we have been searching for a common thread to see if they are tied together. We haven't come up with one yet."

The Challenger failure is attributed to a leak in one solid rocket booster, a condition aggravated by cold weather. The Titan explosion also was triggered by a problem in a booster, although investigators do not believe it to be the same problem.

About the Delta, Mahon said, "we went into this launch taking as many and more precautions than we did on previous launches to try to ensure that everything would go well. Right now we are sitting back contemplating more than our navels trying to decide if it is a common threat."

"The Delta has been the workhorse of the fleet," he said. "We've had 178 launches with 95 percent reliability, far in excess for what is predicted for this system. Our last failure was in September 1977."

Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., chairman of the Senate subcommittee that oversees NASA, says the agency "has obviously suffered grievously from lack of leadership" since James Beggs, its administrator, left last December.

"We are obviously going to require some considerable reorganization in the way NASA makes decisions internally," Gorton said. "We've simply got to see to it that we get going with the program as quickly as possible."

Reagan summit scorecard shows many policy gains

TOKYO (AP) — President Reagan emerged from the seven-day summit with some gains in his trade and monetary policies and a declaration of unity against state-sponsored terrorism.

The satisfaction of Reagan's two principal aides here, Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, reflected their conclusions that Reagan achieved several things here.

"I can't tell you how pleased I am," Shultz said Monday after Reagan, with an assist from Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, persuaded the industrial allies to condemn Libya and approve a six-point program to contain and punish terrorists.

Among the measures the allies agreed to consider when they return home were banning the export of weapons to countries that support terrorism and improving extradition procedures to bring accused terrorists to trial.

Shultz claimed other countries would take the cue and isolate Khadafi.

On the other hand, Reagan did not get all he wanted.

There was no commitment from Italian Prime Minister Bettino Craxi or West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl to stop buying Libyan oil. And Reagan's summit partners steered clear of anything resembling an endorsement of military retaliation along the lines of the U.S. air bombardment of Libya on April 15.

France held firm on its resistance to any use of its airspace by U.S. warplanes en route to Libya, and Craxi maintained he'd received assurances that America's allies would be notified in advance of any such military reprisal in the future.

On nuclear safety policy, Reagan got the other leaders to agree to a joint statement urging the Soviet Union to release more information about the reactor accidents in the Ukraine. But the statement referred only vaguely to improving international safety standards, and its language was significantly more restrained than the words Reagan used to condemn the accident.

On the economic front, Baker was a bit more restrained, but just as pleased. "Overall," he said, "it is our view that this was a very successful economic summit."

The main reasons: A commitment to use interest rates and trade balances to help the major currency powers to adjust exchange rates and a decision to hold a multinational meeting in September to pave the way for a new round of international trade talks.

But the administration officials had gone to Tokyo hoping that September would mark the actual start-up of trade talks, rather than preliminary planning sessions for them.

Winning a point long urged by U.S. manufacturers, however, the administration did coax the other leaders that the talks should include finding ways to protect trademarks, copyrights and patents, all areas of American strength.

But Reagan and his aides evidently did not nudge France and other protectionist countries to lower their barriers to American agricultural products. Reagan made a personal pitch to President Francois Mitterrand and Premier Jacques Chirac. They agreed to discuss the problem, but did not say when or where.

Still, the overall gains were obvious.

Last year at Bonn, for instance, France vetoed U.S. efforts to begin planning for a new round of trade talks, under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the basic set of rules that govern trade throughout most of the non-communist world.

And five years ago, Baker noted, Reagan's free market, growth-oriented policies represented a minority view. By contrast, he said, they "are for the most part now embraced by the summit countries."

Nearly five million wives outdo their spouses in pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — In families where both spouses work, nearly one in five earns more than her husband, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday.

That situation involves almost 5 million women and occurs most often in the 25-34 age group, where about one-third of working wives bring home more than their spouses, the report found. The share gradually declines with age.

Delayed childbearing by women pursuing education and careers is likely at least partly responsible for this age difference, said Robert W. Cleveland of the Census Bureau.

Women aged 25-34 are more likely than their mothers and grandmothers to have attended college, and their careers have not been interrupted by child-rearing, as is more common among older wives, studies have found.

"Wives earning more than their husbands were more likely to be working year-round, full-time, to have no minor children at home, have completed college and work in professional specialty occupations or executive, administrative or managerial occupations," said the report by Cleveland and Mary F. Henson of the Census Bureau's Population Division.

Two primary reasons have been suggested for situations in which wives earn more than husbands, according to a 1984 Census analysis of these cases.

"One is the 'female superstar' image, which stresses the wife's occupational accomplishments. The other view, which might be characterized as the 'underachieving husband syndrome,' focuses on how the husband's characteristics — retirement, illness, disability, temporary layoff or simple lack of initiative — might account for superior earnings of the wife," said the report by Suzanne M. Bianchi and Daphne Spain.

While the two views are stereotypes, they point out possible explanations and are not necessarily opposing outlooks, the analysts wrote.

For example, they said, "a superachieving wife may have demoralizing effects on a husband, and an underachieving husband may quite possibly provide the incentive for a wife to enter the labor force and discover talents she otherwise would not have discovered."

Cleveland noted that the new report concentrated on income levels in 1983 for married couples in which both work — about 26 million couples. It did not compare them in detail with families with only one wage earner, or no one working.

Between 1963 and 1983 the number of women in the labor force grew from 24.7 million to 48.6 million, with the number of working wives nearly doubling, from 13.4 million to 26.2 million.

Although the study found many wives out-earning their husbands, and wives' income growing faster than their spouses', the husbands still had higher incomes in most cases.

Average earnings by husbands were $22,960 in 1983, up 0.5 percent from two years earlier.

Radiation fallout called too low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first radioactive rain from the Soviet nuclear accident at Chernobyl has fallen in the Pacific Northwest in tiny concentrations far too small to require special precautions, federal officials said Tuesday.

The special interagency task force following Chernobyl developments said a government contractor, Pacific Northwest Laboratories, in Richland, Wash., had found 500 picocuries per liter of radioactive iodine-131 in rain water Monday afternoon.

An Environmental Protection Agency lab in Portland, Ore., reported a concentration of 630 picocuries at about the same time, officials said.

Lee M. Thomas, EPA administrator and task force head, told reporters, "We are way, way below anything that would trigger any kind of action."

"This level poses no danger to residents in the area," the task force statement said. "The radiation dose to an individual drinking one liter of rainwater (about a quart) at this level would be less than 1 percent of the average annual background radiation dose and is comparable to less than half the radiation dose received from a single chest X-ray."

Lester Machta, head of the Air Resources Laboratory of NOAA said he would not be surprised to see the initial radioactivity readings rise somewhat in rainfall across the northern United States in the next week or so.

Iodine-131 has a half-life of 8.1 days — which means that every 8.1 days the radioactivity it gives off has been reduced by 50 percent.

A single picocurie is about two radioactive disintegrations per minute. For iodine-131, EPA's drinking water standard permits only three picocuries per liter on grounds this would translate to an annual dosage of four millirems per year for anyone drinking two liters of water a day.

Short-term, however, much higher concentrations are permitted. Food and Drug Administration guidelines permit 15,000 picocuries per liter of milk in fallout episodes that occur no more frequently than once a year.

Rainfall radioactivity, if widespread over forage lands, is diluted by a factor of about 10 by the time it reaches milk. Thus, the 500 picocuries measured in Richland would result in about 50 picocuries in a liter of milk — only one-third of one percent of the FDA allowable level for a once-a-year consumption.

Ian McDonald, director of the Public Health Service, was asked if he would drink the water.

"It would really depend on how thirsty you are," he said. "I would drink it. I would prefer not to drink it."

The Richland radioactivity was concentrated in the first millimeter of rainfall; subsequent rainfall yields readings of zero radioactivity.

Aircraft sampling has revealed airborne radioactivity over the Pacific still headed for North America on slower winds than the jetstream currents that brought the initial radioactive pulse.

Machta said a low-level air mass carrying radioactivity was headed for southwester Alaska and another patch between 20,000 and 30,000 feet "isn't making much headway and is still in the central Pacific."

NOTICE OF PUBLICATION
RULES OF THE GLASSCOCK COUNTY UNDERGROUND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

Both the enabling legislation creating the Glasscock County Underground Water Conservation District and the Texas Water Code provide that the District "may make and enforce rules to provide for conserving, preserving, protecting, recharging, controlling subsidence, and preventing waste of the underground water reservoir or its subdivisions and to carry out the powers and duties" provided by the Water Code and the enabling legislation.

CERTAIN DISPOSITION OF RULES
A. Rule 1 — Rule 1 contains definitions that apply throughout the rules of the District. The following explanations may help clarify those rules:

1) A well or water well is one which produces more than 25,000 gallons of water per day.

2) The definition of waste which is contained in the rules is that which is contained in the Texas Water Code passed by the Texas Legislature.

B. Rule 2 — Rule 2 concerns waste of water. This rule represents the heart of the purpose of the District in that it provides for controlling the waste of one of our most precious resources.

C. Rule 3 — Rule 3 requires that a permit be obtained for any well that could reasonably be expected to produce or a pump designed to produce in excess of 25,000 gallons of water per day.

D. Rule 4 — Deposits — The first step in the permitting process is for the applicant to file an application for permit with the District accompanied by a $50.00 deposit. Rule 4 sets out the terms under which these permits will be returned to the applicant.

E. Rule 5 — Issuance of permits — Rule 5 sets forth the method for applying for permits as well as the information required on those permits. The District will provide forms for completion of the permits and will assist the applicant in filling out the permits.

F. Rule 6 — Requirement of Driller's Log, Casing and Pump Data — This rule requires that the Driller's Log, an electric log, and all additional data concerning the well be turned over to the District.

G. Rule 7 — Minimum Spacing of Wells. This rule provides for wells to be placed no closer than 800 feet from a property line and no more than 16 wells per section or 2 gallons per minute per acre whichever is greater. This is to be adjusted for acreage (i.e. 8 wells 1/4 sec. — 4 wells 1/2 sec. etc.).

H. Rule 8 — Exception to Spacing Rule — Rule 8 provides discretion in the Board in granting exceptions to the spacing rule in order to "protect vested property rights, prevent waste, prevent confiscation of property, or protect correlative rights to water."

Also, if the owner or operator does not cap the wells, then the District may do so and have a lien against the owners property for the cost of capping up to $100.00.

M. Rules 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19 — Rules 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19 provide general procedural rules for the District including the method of appeal or hearings allowed to person affected by the rules.

O. Rule 21 — Transportation of Water from the District — This rule gives the District authority to obtain records for any water that is being transported from the District. Anyone wishing to transfer water either by pipeline, channel, ditch, water course, or other natural or artificial facilities from wells located within the District to areas outside the District must receive a permit from the District.

CARING is helping control costs.

We do more than say, "We care." We show it. One way is by making sure the funeral service is meaningful and dignified. Another important consideration is cost. Certainly we understand the family's need to control cost. In caring concern, we offer every available option to do so. (The cost does not affect the dignified quality of our service.)

Dr. Donohue

Shy-Drager lies behind fainting

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is Shy-Drager syndrome? How does it affect someone? Is there any treatment for it? — H.M.

People who have Shy-Drager syndrome (named for the doctors who first recognized the problem) have a faulty blood pressure adjustment mechanism and they faint easily.

Normally, when a person stands up the brain signals the blood vessels that this is happening and that an adjustment in blood pressure is required. The blood vessels respond by clamping down throughout the body. This momentarily alters pressure so that blood doesn't all settle downward from gravity at the expense of flow to the brain.

You've heard that described as orthostatic hypotension. Sometimes you can track down the cause to certain medications, like those that lower blood pressure. In some people no such cause can be found. They have Shy-Drager syndrome. For some unknown reason, the adjustment mechanism just doesn't work. The fainting tendency becomes chronic.

When this occurs there are several approaches to correct it. A high-salt diet is one approach. The sodium in the salt tends to retain fluid and that expands the volume of fluid in circulation. This helps maintain blood pressure even when the vessels aren't getting the "adjust" signal from the brain. Others have been helped with specially-made tight-fitted leotards. In the way of drugs, fluorohydrocortisone is used.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My previous doctor, who isn't with us anymore, once told me my digestive pain was from a nervous colon, and I used medicine to calm it down. It did help a lot. When I went to the doctor who had joined his practice just before the old one passed on, he asked me about my former problem and I said that I had pain on the left side of my stomach. He noted that there was reference to diverticulosis on my sheet and he wanted to look into it.

I am 67. What is diverticulosis and what can cause it? How is it checked for? — Mrs. R.T.R.

Diverticulosis is outpouching of the digestive tract lining, little sacs most often appearing at weak points in the large bowel (colon). These are quite common, are found in a high percentage of people past 60, and normally do not cause trouble in most. They can begin at any age, however, and they can become troublesome.

If the doctor suspects these are causing your pain, he can visualize the lining with regular X-rays or with special barium enema X-rays. The diverticula (the pouches) can produce pain if they become infected, and the pain would occur in the lower abdomen on the left side. With inflammation, there would probably be some fever and perhaps some constipation.

If there is inflammation, then the treatment would be to put the colon at rest (with special diet). In severe cases, hospitalization and liquid diet might be required. Antibiotics are often given to fight infecting organisms.

I don't know whether all this is happening to you. If what you have is just the pouching (no infection), then you might help yourself with very simple measures, like increasing dietary fiber. As I noted, if what you have is diverticulitis, which is infection of the pouches, then diet rules change and you do not emphasize fiber. I can't say if your nervous colon contributed to your problem. It well might have.

FOR MRS. W.A. — It might help to delay your grandmother's nap a bit later after her big meal (at noon). Very often, lying down too soon after eating can exaggerate symptoms of a problem, like esophageal reflux (heartburn).

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My family eats a lot of peanut butter. How much salt is there in it? — S.P.M.

Most preparations contain about 700 milligrams of sodium (salt) in two tablespoons. For comparison, a cup of plain yogurt has 125 mgs. of sodium.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To learn more about it, write to Dr. Donohue for his booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1330, Big Spring, TX 79601. Enclosed is a stamped, addressed envelope and $1.00. Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Dad's tales of hard times are hard for teen to take

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl. I don't want to be disrespectful to parents, but I am tired of hearing how easy the kids of today have it.

Every summer my father tells me how lucky I am to have air conditioning. He says when he was my age, he didn't even have a fan in the house. Every winter he reminds me that he walked 10 miles to school in below-zero weather in three feet of snow.

Abby, why can't parents accept the fact that life has become easier with every generation because of the progress we've made? New things are being invented all the time to improve the quality of life, so why should parents try to make us feel guilty because we have it better than they did?

Sometimes I think they don't want us to have it so good. If each generation didn't improve on the one before, we'd still be living in caves, running around in loincloths, and our vocabularies would consist of two words, "Ooga, ooga."

TIERED TEEN

DEAR TIERED: It may comfort you to know that every generation of teens has had to listen to their parents tell them how rough they had it. And with the passing of time, the walk to school grew longer, the winters got colder and the snow got deeper.

***

DEAR ABBY: I've heard of this happening in other families, but I never thought it would happen to me. Maybe if you print this advice, it will help others. Don't tell anyone where you keep your jewelry — not even family members.

A piece of jewelry was stolen from me. The missing piece was of both sentimental and monetary value. Several suspicious acts led me to suspect a family member, so I hired a private investigator. Two sets of fingerprints were found on the container where my jewelry was kept — mine and someone else's. It was relatively easy to get the fingerprints of the suspect. My suspicions were confirmed when they matched the prints on the container.

The record of the theft — and it was a theft — is complete with all the information: name, dates, fingerprints, etc. It is in safekeeping and only a designated person will have access to it.

I would never break up a family over a piece of jewelry, no matter how valuable. I have mixed feelings now that I have the evidence, but if you print this, perhaps the guilty party will return it to the container from which it was stolen. If mine is not returned, it may bring back other pieces of jewelry to their rightful owners.

If you print this and my jewelry is returned, you'll be the first to know. And that's a promise.

NO NAME, NO CITY,
NO STATE

DEAR NO: I wish you luck. Now, let's see what happens.

***

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter signed "Annoyed Canadian" in the Nassau Daily Tribune. The Canadian was annoyed because Americans know so little about his country.

Here in the Bahamas we are only 50 miles off the south Florida coast; we are a prime vacation spot and cater to over a million visitors each year — mostly from the United States.

You would be surprised at some of the comments we hear: "How come you speak English so well? We expected you speak a kind of broken Spanish." "When did you stop wearing grass skirts and living in tree houses?" "Why, you're actually driving cars and you dress the way we dress!"

Here in the Bahamas we realize that no harm is meant — these people simply don't know any better — so we simply grin and bear it.

Regional week in the Spring City

Well Big Spring, you did it again. You hosted another Region I-AA sporting event, and just like last year, it was a smashing success.

I must say that director Linda Woodley did a fantastic job of organizing the events. I don't know where she got the energy and the patience, but I'm sure she's glad it just happens once a year.

Others who helped make this sporting event a quality one were Jerry Dudley, Al Patterson, Roy Green and Gay Russey. Rounding out the list was Charlene Sparling, Gloria Peterson, Ron Logback, Everett Blackburn, and a host of others, who if I were to name would take the most part of this column. So I'll just say "A job well done" to all of you.

Athletes from the western tip of Texas to the Panhandle congregated to give the Spring City another fine display of athletic talents in the region golf, tennis and track competitions.

It's hard to beat the competition at a regional meet because it the one meet in which everyone gives that last ounce of energy to reach the coveted state competition. Like one coach said at the track meet last Saturday, "It's fine and dandy once you get to Austin, but getting there, that's the hard part."

And I saw a lot of athletes "getting there" this past weekend. One could tell what toil and pain they went through by looking at the look of relief on their young faces after their elusive goals were finally reached.

Take the case of the Stanton High School doubles team of Julie Todd and Kim McReynolds. After four years of trying, they finally earned themselves a trip to state tennis tournament. Although they didn't win the regional championship, it was no doubt the most gratifying second place they ever had.

Then there are the athletes like the ones on the Stanton boys golf team, a team that knows how it feels to get to the "Big House", but one that didn't want to finish second best. Last year the Buffaloes led after the first round but faltered in the second round to finish second at regional. This year they led after the first round and held their composure to play a strong second round and win the tourney.

No doubt last year's experience will continue to pay off in Austin next weekend.

There's more to my pride and joy, track and field. It's probably the most exciting event of the three sports because it's the last to be concluded. By the time Saturday afternoon rolls around, spectators and athletes are gathered together urging their favorites on.

A vocal contingent from Stanton urged SHS sophomore Kody Newman to victory in the 100 meters, which was especially sweet since Newman finished sixth in the 200 last year.

The race tested Newman's character as well. She hurt her foot in the race and was in obvious pain for the 200 finals. She had the alternative of skipping the race, but being the competitor she is, she ran and almost qualified for state in the event by finishing third. It could have been very easy for her to not run the race, especially since she had already qualified for state in the 100.

Another touching moment was watching Junior Alafa of Paduach and Jesse Castro of Lockney have a congratulatory embrace after finishing one-two in the 3200. Last year Castro set a new region record while defeating Alafa in the race. This time the tables were turned as Alafa won the gold medal while breaking Castro's record. What makes it even better is that both compete in District 4-AA.

Then there was Bovina's Marie Pesch and Hamlin's Brooks Eoff in the weight events.

Pesch finished fourth in the discus last year. This year she threw 21 feet farther to establish a new meet record while winning the region crown. Eoff was a fourth place finisher in the shot put last year. Last week he threw five feet further to win with a new meet record.

But with the thrill of victory also comes the agony of defeat.

Like the Memphis boys 400 relay team who was back to defend the crown it won last year. Memphis finished second to Greenwood in the race, thus earning another trip to state. But no, the red flag was up on the final exchange. A Memphis runner and a runner from Stamford had been flagged for running out of their lanes, thus disqualifying Memphis from the state meet.

Then there was the boys 200 race in which Roy Henderson of Memphis won. The race for second between Haskell's Stephen Brockington and Morton's Keith Hawkins was very close. In fact it was so close that after the meet, officials had to look at the photo finish tapes to make their decision.

At the conclusion of the meet spectators and athletes cleared out quickly, leaving all but two school buses. They were from Haskell and Morton. Ironically, all but one athlete from each bus was inside. The lone ones waiting outside were Brockington and Hawkins, who were waiting on their coaches to bring them the final decision. A trip to the state meet was on the line.

Finally the two coaches came from viewing the tape with the officials. Both ambled to their waiting sprinter. The Haskell coach gave his runner the news and his athlete jumped for joy. The Morton coach relayed the decision to his sprinter, put his arms around him and they quietly got on the bus.

Just a typical day at a regional sporting event.

Athletes honored at Howard

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Raymond Garcia, Terri Powell, Lorri French, Walt Reynolds and Frank Medina were the big winners last night at the Howard College Athletic Banquet in HC's Cactus Room.

The five garnered the top awards in their respective sports before a crowd of 150 people, one of the largest turnouts in recent years, said master of ceremonies Bill Griffin, HC baseball coach.

Before the awards presentations HC President Bill Riley told Howard College athletes "Keep the competitive edges you have now, all through your life." He told them, "Athletes are people that do the special things that set them apart from others. You know how to get up when you've been knocked down. You place your values on the good things in life."

HC rodeo coach Dusty Johnston started off the presentations by presenting the High Academic award to a pair of freshmen from Channing. Shannon Garrison and Ace Thompson got the honors. Garrison carries a perfect 4.0 grade point average while Thompson has a 3.86.

The coveted Hawk Cowboy Award, for the athlete showing the most excellence inside and outside the arena, was then awarded to Raymond Garcia, a sophomore calf roping from Refugio.

The awards for the High Point cowboy and girl could not be presented because the season isn't over.

Hawk-Queens coach Don Stevens started off his presentations by giving Sonora sophomore Lorri French the Scholastic Award for her 3.89 GPA. Next he awarded Carolyn Willand with the Coaches Award and Pam Franklin with the Defensive Award.

Howard College Hawk-Queens basketball coach Don Stevens offers congratulations to Most Valuable Player recipients Lorri French (left) and Terri Powell last night at the Howard College Athletic Banquet.

Stevens presented the Most Valuable Player Awards to French and Channing freshman Terri Powell.

French, a two-year starter at guard who's headed to North Texas State on a basketball scholarship, averaged 13.6 points, 4 assists and 4 rebounds per game. Powell, also a guard, led the team in scoring with a 14.3 average. She also led the team in free throw shooting, with a 72.3 percentage.

In men's basketball, the Academic Award went to Kiondike freshman Tim Cope. Freshman Mitchell Porter won the Mr. Hustle Award and Reynolds was presented the MVP plaque.

The sophomore post player from Norfolk, Va. led the team in scoring (11.8) rebounds (7.5) and blocked shots (2.0). He was a two-year starter for the Hawks.

Griffin presented the awards to his baseball team.

San Antonio sophomore second baseman Bruce Smith won the Highest Batting Award with his .372 average. He also led the team with 10 home runs. Another San Antonio native won the Most Runs Batted In Award. Outfielder Medina knocked in 50 runs.

The Defensive Award went to sophomore center fielder Richard Messer. Midland sophomore Bryan Willis, with his 9-3 record, got the pitcher's award for the most wins and Steve Keller received the Academic Award. Keller carried a 3.41 GPA throughout the year.

Medina received his second awarded when Griffin presented him the MVP Award. The freshman batted .340 and hit six homers to go along with his 50 RBI's. He is the first freshman to win the award in the last four years.

HC trainer Dave Lammers then presented the Trainer's Award to Big Spring High School trainer Everett Blackburn for his help with the college. Griffin then presented Jack Barber, who Howard's diamond is named after, a ball signed by all of the baseball team.

The festivities were concluded with Skipper Driver receiving the Hall of Fame Award, for his staunch support of the rodeo team over the years.

Award winners

This group of athletes were honored with special awards at the Garden City High School University Interscholastic League Awards Banquet last night in the Garden City High School cafeteria. Texas Tech assistant coach Spike Dykes was guest speaker at the banquet.

Hoelscher, Willey take Bearkat awards

By EDDIE CURRAN
Sports Writer

GARDEN CITY — Trey Willey and Carol Hoelscher won the boys and girls Kat's Paw awards at Garden City High School's annual Spring UIL Awards Banquet held Tuesday night at Garden City High.

The Kat's Paw Awards, the last awards of the night, are not necessarily presented to the best athletes, but to the athletes who best exemplify a good attitude, effort, and school spirit, said Tony Striklin, master of ceremonies.

Before the presentation of awards, Garden City students, parents and teachers were treated to the humor and inspiration of guest speaker Spike Dykes, defensive coach at Texas Tech, and former head coach at Big Spring and Midland Lee. Coach Dykes told the students they were at the most important time in their life, and he stressed the importance of winning in life.

"Everybody talks about being successful, and I agree with that. But success is personal; you should do what you want to do, and do it successfully," said Coach Dykes.

"I don't think winning is overemphasized. Losing is like 24-hour diarrhea. It's as bad as my wife's meat loaf. But you can't be afraid to lose. You're not ever going to be worth a damn if you don't try," he said.

After Coach Dykes' talk, Athletic Director and Head Football Coach Striklin began the presentations with the awards for varsity football. Those who made All-District were halfback Abby Madrid, who gained over 1000 yards and scored 12 touchdowns; Junior Medrano, first team guard; William Sanchez, first team tackle; and David Montgomery, honorable mention linebacker.

Coach Striklin presented the Outstanding Player Awards to halfback Madrid and linebacker Montgomery. Montgomery quarterbacked the last five games in addition to making 79 tackles from his linebacker spot.

Coach Jimmy Fine was next up at the podium with awards for the girls basketball team, which was champs in the district, bi-district and area. He recognized Jana Hunter and Danette Holdampf for being selected to the all-district team, and he presented the Miss Bearkat Basketball award to Jana Hunter, praising her hustle and continuous improvement.

The awards for boys basketball were presented by Coach Doug Thompson, who told the crowd that it had been a tough season for the varsity, but he said he was encouraged by their youth, and by the 10-6 record of the JV squad. The Mr. Thump-Thump Award for player of the year went to junior guard Doyle Schaefer.

The Ace Awards for the top boys and girls netters were presented by tennis coach Thom Vines. According to Vines, choosing the girl Ace was easy, as Danette Holdampf won the district for the third time, and is, said Vines, probably the best girl ever to swing a racquet for Garden City. The boys choice, a more difficult one he said, went to district champ Corky Turner. He praised Turner's ability to outshine more talented opponents.

Coach Fine returned to the podium, this time as girls track coach, a job he is not finished with this year. Some of the girls are going to state. The girls won four of eight meets, and were led by Carol Hoelscher, Gena Schaefer, Jaquie Jost, Michele Pechacek, and Diana Garcia, all of whom will be going to state in the 800 and 1600 meter relay. Gena Schaefer took the Fleet Foot award as the outstanding girl trackster.

When Coach David Penn came up to present the boys track honors, he first thanked Richard Cyfert for managing boys track and football and basketball as well. He then presented Jesse Lopez with the Outstanding Track Award, and commended Lopez for always running his hardest.

Coach Striklin presented Booster Club president Andy Schaefer with a plaque, and thanked him and his wife for their support of Garden City athletics. The ceremony closed with a presentation from the football team to the cheerleaders.

Celtics demolish Hawks to win series

By The Associated Press
Celtics 122, Hawks 99

Boston scored the last 24 points of the third quarter while holding Atlanta to an NBA postseason record low of six in the period.

With Kevin McHale scoring 10 of his 16 third-quarter points during the 24-0 run, the Celtics outscored the Hawks by 30 in the decisive third quarter and captured the series 4-1.

The previous record for fewest points scored in one quarter of a playoff game was eight by the Los Angeles Lakers on April 9, 1972 in a game with Milwaukee. That also occurred in the third period.

Boston notched its 36th consecutive home victory, extending its single-season league record, and won for the 24th time in its last 27 games.

Larry Bird scored 24 of his game-high 36 points to lift Boston to an 11-point halftime lead. McHale finished the game with 25, and Robert Parish had 15. Atlanta was led by Spud Webb with 15 points and Dominique Wilkins with 13.

Rockets 131, Nuggets 103
Houston could advance to the Western Conference finals with a victory in Game 6 of the best-of-seven series at Denver Thursday night.

The Rockets' victory extended Denver's Summit losing streak to nine. The Nuggets haven't won a game in Houston since April 12, 1984.

Alex English led Denver with 27 points and Lafayette Lever added 20, including 16 in the third period. Rodney McCray scored 21 points for the Rockets.

Lakers 116, Mavericks 113
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 34 points, including a critical hook shot with nine seconds remaining, as defending NBA champion Los Angeles edged Dallas.

NEW YORK (AP) — San Antonio Spurs guard Alvin Robertson, who set records with 301 steals this season and averaging 3.67 steals a game, was named Tuesday as the National Basketball Association's Defensive Player of the Year.

Robertson received 27 votes out of a possible 78 from a nationwide panel of media members. Washington Bullets' rookie center Manute Bol, who finished with a league-leading 397 blocked shots, was second in the voting with 22 votes. Bol's blocked shots total set an NBA rookie record, but was second behind Mark Eaton's seasonal mark of 450 in the 1984-85 season.

Milwaukee Bucks guard Sidney Moncrief, the winner of the award in 1983 and 1984, was third with eight votes. Eaton, last year's winner, was not named on any of the 78 ballots.

Robertson's records for steals eclipsed the marks of 281 and 3.47 set by the Indiana Pacers Don Buse in the 1976-77 season.

Paul Pressey of the Milwaukee Bucks was fourth in the voting, sponsored by Master Lock, and was followed by the Los Angeles Lakers' Michael Cooper, Bill Hanzlik of the Denver Nuggets, Boston's Dennis Johnson, Philadelphia's Maurice Cheeks and T.R. Dunn, also from Denver.

Body weight not a factor with bike

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My wife and I use a stationary bike for our exercise. I am considerably heavier than she is. My contention is that I spend more calories for an equal amount of pedaling than she does because I weigh more. I think I read this in your column. I'd like you to confirm it. — V.H.

I didn't say it. You won't find a dime's worth of difference in calorie expenditure.

You probably read that about exercises like jogging or walking, but not about stationary bike-pedaling. heavier people burn more calories when they are doing exercises that force them to bear their weight. In jogging, with each step the legs take they are lifting more weight than are those of a thin person. But that calorie bonus is eliminated when you are not performing weight-bearing chores. In stationary bike use, the bike bears the weight, not you.

So, for you to lose the amount of calories your wife is losing you have to pedal as long as she does.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Who should get a stress exercise test before going into an exercise program? — P.T.

The American College of Sports Medicine is my guide in this. It recommends that anyone over 35 get such a test, as well as anyone at any age who has any of the cardiac risk factors, like cigarette smoking or a background of heart irregularity.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

'Food and Fitness' letter series begins

Want to learn more about Nutrition and Weight Control, enroll in the Food and Fitness letter series. The 4-part series will include information on:

- Where to get accurate nutrition information

- What makes a balanced diet, how important is it

- Fad diets: how to evaluate them

- Exercise — food balance for lifetime weight control.

You will receive 1 letter each week beginning May 10th.

This series is sponsored by the: West Texas Dietetic Association and Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

As a follow up educational program of the health fair. Each year local dietitians and the Extension Service conduct the weight screening at the health fair. Screening results show that 1 in 5 persons are obese. Obesity is determined if the person's weight is greater than 20% above their ideal body weight.

To enroll, contact the County Extension Office 267-8469, located in the basement of the Courthouse.

HOW MUCH FAT?

Fat's not all bad — or all good. Some fat is needed for good health.

Besides being an important source of energy, fats aid in the absorption and transport of fat soluble vitamins A, D, E and K in the body. Also, fat makes food taste better and can keep hunger pangs away.

Nutrition experts say that about 30 to 35 percent of our calories can come from fat. Fifteen to 20 percent of calories should come from protein and 45 to 55 percent from carbohydrates.

So if you're the average woman who consumes 1800 calories a day, 540 to 630 calories should come from fat. That's the equivalent of 5 to 6 tablespoons of concentrated fat such as oils, butter, margarine, lard, shortening or bacon.

If you busten your toast, fry your eggs, season your vegetables, baste your meats and add salad dressing to your salad, you can easily get 5 or 6 tablespoons of fat. And that's not even counting the "hidden" fats in baked goods and processed foods.

As a result, most of us could cut back some on our fat intake and still be getting enough of its positive effects for good health.

Runoffs will decide commissioner races

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Runoff elections will be required June 7 for Democratic county commissioner positions in Precincts 2 and 4.

Incumbent David Barr will face challenger Al Valdes for the Howard County Precinct 4 position.

Incumbent Paul Allen will face challenger John Stanley for the Precinct 2 position. The winner of the Democratic primary will face Republican Leo Williams in the November general election.

Barr collected 325 votes Saturday in Precincts 401-405, which amounted to 31.99 percent, while Valdes finished with 317 votes for a 31.20 percent.

In absentee returns, Barr collected 53 votes for a 29.44 percent return, while Valdes received 63 votes for a 35 percent return.

Two other challengers were dropped from the race after Saturday's balloting.

H.M. "Mack" Underwood finished third with 194 votes, or 19.09 percent, in Precincts 401-405. He received 39 absentee votes, or 21.67 percent of the total absentee return.

Joe Neff finished fourth with 120 votes for 17.72 percent of the precinct returns, and 25 absentee votes for 13.89 percent on the absentee ballot returns.

In the County Commissioner

Precinct 2 race, Stanley and Allen tied with 560 votes apiece on Precincts 201-208 returns, or 39.44 percent of the votes.

William E. "Jack" Shaffer finished third with 300 precinct votes, or 21.13 percent.

Stanley outdistanced Allen in the precinct returns with 131 votes for 43.81 percent, while Allen collected 98 votes for 32.78 percent.

Shaffer had 70 absentee votes for 23.41 percent.

Kirby over Wise for county judge

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Incumbent Milton Kirby defeated challenger Warren Wise in Saturday night's Democratic primary election for Howard County Judge, 2,581 votes to 2,113 in the county's 25 voting precincts.

"My thanks are to the people who turned out and did support me," Kirby said shortly after learning he had won.

Since there is no Republican Party candidate, Kirby should have a clear shot in the November general balloting at re-election to a second four-year.

Kirby said he and county commissioners need to work on the county's economy and employment areas during the next four years of office.

He did not single out any particular campaign issue, but said the fact the county had lowered taxes the last two years may have been a contributing factor in his victory.

"We've lowered county taxes twice while I've been county judge," Kirby said, "and I think that's kind of been an issue here."

He said anytime a public official can help lower the taxes, it helps the public.

"We can go another three years without any kind of tax raise," Kirby said.

The judge said the county's paving program could possibly receive a cut in future funding.

Plans for building a new juvenile detention center during his next term of office, Kirby said, would probably not materialize because of current plans to detain juveniles in temporary holding cells in the county annex building.

Kirby said of his opponent Warren Wise that "he was a fine opponent."

"He didn't say a bad thing about me and I will not in the future say anything about him," Kirby said.

Votes for Heflin force JP runoff

Ex-lawmen Bogard, Shankles to face each other June 7

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

The 237 votes cast Saturday for former Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin, who died April 3 during his reelection bid, was all it took to force a runoff between the two remaining candidates.

Justice of the Peace Precinct 1 candidates Stanley Bogard and William H. Shankles will square off June 7 in a primary runoff election as neither man garnered 50 percent of the vote.

Bogard trailed in 1,697 votes to Shankle's 1,519.

Bogard, who was chief of police in Big Spring for five years, came within an eyelash of winning the race outright, gathering 49 percent of the vote. However, the vote for Heflin was just enough to keep either man from tilting beyond the 50 percent mark.

Heflin was left on the ballot because he died after the deadline for withdrawing his name.

The man who wins the Democratic nomination will have an almost sure shot at the job as Precinct 1 Place 2 justice of the peace because Republican challenger William Price dropped out of the race in early April. Price called off his election bid for what he said were personal reasons.

6-AA teams take region track titles

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

District 6-AA teams Hamlin and Anson flexed their muscles while zooming to team championships in the Region 1-AA Track Meet at Blankenship Field yesterday. But it was a junior sprinter from Hamlin whose performance towered above all the rest.

Cynthia Titus of Hamlin put on a remarkable show while leading the Hamlin Lady Pied Pipers to another regional crown in Big Spring. Last year the Lady Pied Pipers won the meet, the first year it was held in Big Spring.

In the boy's competition the Anson Tigers got a come-from-behind win in the 1,600 relay to nip Greenwood for the team championship. The Tigers outdistanced the Rangers by 2½ points to claim the title.

But the story of the meet was the performance of Titus, who almost single handedly led her team to its sixth Region 1 title in the last seven years. The Lady Pied Pipers easily outdistanced second place Spearman 83-60.

Titus was nothing short of spectacular as she claimed a total of five gold medals. She set meet records in her individual events, the long jump, triple jump and 200 meters. She also anchored the winning 400 and 800 relay teams. She won the long jump by a foot; triple jump by two feet and the 200 by 30 meters.

Ironically, it was the first meet Hamlin had won all year, which should come as no surprise since Coach Phil Swenson had only 10 members on the entire track team. "This winning tradition at Hamlin started many years ago," said Swenson. "It helps to have some God-given talent and a runner with the potential of Cynthia Titus. But these girls have done a lot more than I've asked them."

"Although we hadn't won a meet all year I figured we would do well because we could score some quality points. Last year I had Cynthia running on all three relays and we won the state meet. This year I told her I'd let her compete in an individual event. I don't know about our chances of winning state this year. It's too early to tell."

Crossroads Country runner Kody Newman of Stanton also turned in a shining performance for the home crowd. The speedy sophomore won the 100 and got third in the 200. She overcame a slow start in the 100 to nip Hamlin's Charlotte Bolden of Hamlin at the tape. Her time of 12.60 was a tad slower than her season-best of 12.45.

The main question in the 200 was who would finish behind Titus, who cruised to a 24.36. Again Newman came on strong at the end but failed to overtake Morton's Reena Lynch. Lynch ran a 26.84 while Newman clocked a 26.99, four-tenths over her season's best.

Other top performances were turned in by Bovina weightwoman Marie Pesch, regarded by many as the top basketball player in Texas this season. The University of Texas-bound hoop star, set records in the shot put and discus and placed fourth in the 100 hurdles.

Hart's Tammy Menchaca was another double winner. She set a record in the 3,200 Friday and did the same thing in the 1,600 on Saturday.

Leslie Gooch of Reagan County also turned in one of the meet's top performances. Gooch, who won the medalist championship in golf on Wednesday, won the 800 meters, placed fourth in the long jump and anchored her team to a third-place finish in the 1,600 relay. She passed two runners while leading her team to the bronze medal.

The Anson boys trailed Greenwood the entire meet. But they stayed within striking distance until the last event, the 1,600 relay.

They made their move with five events left in the meet. Michael Tollerson started them on their way as he won the 400. Lou Mays followed suit by winning the 300 hurdles, setting the stage for the 1,600 relay. Going into the race Greenwood seemed to be in good shape, with the fastest qualifying time of 3:24.50. The team held a slim 39-38 point lead over Anson.

But the Tigers got a strong second leg from Billy Thompson and a strong anchor from Mays to win the event in 3:23.72. Greenwood finished second in 3:24.88, thus giving Anson the team championship.

Greenwood did win the 400 relay, a race that was run twice. Greenwood won the first race, and Memphis finished second. But Memphis and Stamford was disqualified for running out of their lanes. The race was run a second time, and Greenwood again won with a time of 43.61. Haskell finished second in 43.65.

Memphis had a double winner in Roy Henderson.
