Motel Fire Kills Nine In Ohio

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP) — Fire swept through a crowded two-story Holiday Inn in this eastern Ohio city today, killing at least nine persons, authorities said. Others escaped by smashing windows and leaping to the ground below.

Authorities at first thought 10 persons had died in the blaze. But Gayle Ogden, a spokeswoman at Guernsey Memorial Hospital, said a woman who suffered a heart attack and was believed dead was brought back to consciousness.

The bodies of four children and five adults were taken to three funeral homes in the area. Officials did not release identities on the victims and said some of the bodies were severely charred.

Guernsey Memorial Hospital officials said 61 persons were treated for injuries and 11 were hospitalized with cuts and broken bones.

A baby was found safe in the arms of her unconscious mother, lying in a pool of blood.

In Columbus, Gov. James A. Rhodes this morning called the fire "a tragedy for our state."

Trapped guests were seen banging on windows and screaming after the fire broke out about 3 a.m. at the motel, which is a quarter-mile north of the junction of Interstates 70 and 77 — the world's largest intersection in terms of area.

One youth picked up an iron bar and began smashing windows. Passersby found an old scaffold and rescued others.

Only four of the motel's 104 rooms were unoccupied, but the exact number of guests in the motels was not immediately known.

Most of the dead were found in hallways of the 10-year-old brick and wood structure. Fire officials said the blaze apparently started somewhere in the rear of the building.

The building was badly damaged but not destroyed.

Brown Clary, 18, and Rodman Blazvick, 18, were in the motel's lounge playing pinball when Blazvick smelled smoke.

"He told me the hotel was on fire," Clary said. "I thought he was joking."

But when Clary looked down a hallway, he saw smoke drifting along the lights and "an orange glow" in the ceiling.

The two young men sounded a fire alarm. They ran back into the lounge to tell a motel employee to call the fire department.

Then they began alerting the motel patrons.

"I picked up an iron bar about three feet long," Clary said. He used the bar to smash first-floor room windows.

"There was a lot of smoke in the rooms I broke into," he said. "A lot of them would be up against the window, beating on the window, screaming."

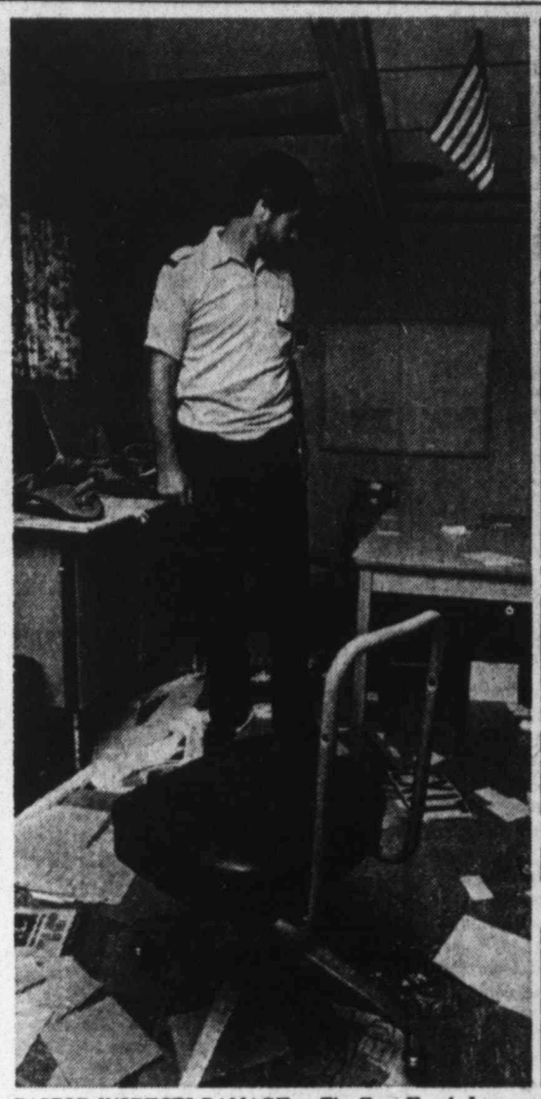
Outside, the two came upon a young woman sprawled in a pool of blood on the ground and clutching a baby. The woman had apparently jumped from her second-floor window.

"The baby was lying in his mother's arms," Clary said. "The baby was all right. Rodman kept direct pressure and kept her from bleeding to death."

"There was blood all around her," Blazvick said. He said he recalled his Boy Scout training and applied pressure to stop the bleeding.

"Somebody took the baby and we hollered for an ambulance," he said.

Firemen brought the unidentified woman's unconscious mother from the room. "Her face was all black and she wasn't breathing," Blazvick said.



PASTOR INSPECTS DAMAGE — The Rev. Frank Jones, pastor of Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church, looks ruefully at the expensive mess left by vandals who ransacked the church Monday night or early today. Almost every room in the church at 801 Slide Road was heavily damaged. At left, Jones surveys the havoc in a Sunday School room. Vandals Hit City Church; Loss Heavy

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Vandals who broke into the Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church at 801 Slide Road late Monday or early this morning inflicted massive damage, estimated to be at least $20,000, including ripping out the insides of an antique piano and scrawling on a church wall, "Hell ain't no bad place to be."

Police said this morning they had no suspects in connection with the incident, which the church's pastor, the Rev. Frank R. Jones, estimated would cost the church at least $20,000 in repairs and replacements.

Authorities and Jones were notified about 1 a.m. today after a church member, who lives across the street from the church, noticed lights on inside the building.

The pastor could not be reached this morning, but Jones' wife said, "We've been having a lot of vandalism the past few weeks." Speaking of the latest assault on church property, Mrs. Jones said, "It's immense."

Reports indicate the vandals, believed to be at least two, entered the church by breaking out a window in the janitor's room and climbing through.

From that room, the culprits took liquid floor paint, rug shampoo and numerous cans of paint of various colors and splashed walls, floors and ceilings.

And on the wall in a far west, second-floor room there was scrawled, "Hell ain't no bad place to be," in brown paint.

The inside of an antique piano had been ripped out. Potted plants had been dumped and the dirt spread throughout the rooms. Ceiling tile had been torn down in one classroom.

Two thermostats had been jerked off the wall and toilet paper, towels and other paper and cards had been strewn over the floors.

Investigating officers found that nails had been spilled on a stairway and baby beds in the nursery had been slashed.

Police said it was thought the intruders exited the building through a door in the church's Clawson annex, which was found to be unlocked.

Two sets of tennis shoe prints were found inside the church, one of which apparently was made after someone stepped in yellow paint.

Police Information Officer Bill Morgan said the prints were of different patterns.

Police said evidence was found that the intruders attempted to pry open the door to the pastor's study. However, it was not known whether the attempt succeeded.

Jones told police that the church had had trouble with a juvenile who several weeks ago was caught inside the building with another person. There also had been several complaints about the church's floodlights being on at night, according to reports.

However, there was no indication early today that police had any strong suspects in connection with the vandalism.

Reports indicate that despite the extensive damage, nothing had been stolen.

Several weeks ago, the church was burglarized and a tape player stolen, according to police.

Kissinger Says U.S. Faces Soviet Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, saying the "military balance is beginning to tilt ominously against the United States," today endorsed the SALT II treaty, but with three major conditions.

In long-awaited testimony to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Kissinger said the Senate should delay action on the treaty until it obtains an enforceable commitment from the Carter administration for a substantial upgrading of the nation's defense systems.

Pressed to elaborate on how he would vote on the treaty, Kissinger said: "If the issue were simply up or down, which I think should not happen, then I would recommend the Senate hold it over until it can find a condition that would encompass my concerns."

Without that, asked Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., "then you would vote no?"

"Then I would vote no," Kissinger replied.

Kissinger said he thought the administration could resolve the problem by submitting to Congress a supplemental budget request and a five-year defense program for examination and action before a final vote on the treaty.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., challenged the suggestion. "I don't believe it can be done in the time available," he said.

Kissinger acknowledged that linking SALT II to a military buildup would make the treaty "far from the turn in the arms race many of us hoped for when the negotiations were inaugurated.

"But," he testified, "too much time has been lost, too many weapons systems have been unilaterally abandoned, too many military adventures have been encouraged by the Soviet Union, the geopolitical balance has been too severely strained by Soviet pressures, for SALT to be much more than a base from which, one can hope, a new and serious effort at equitable arms reduction can be made."

Kissinger sharply criticized the Carter administration for its decision to cancel the B-1 bomber and its delay in moving ahead with several other strategic programs.

"We now face the challenge of the early '80s with forces designed in the '60s," he said.

He painted a grim picture of the future:

"If present trends continue, we face the chilling prospect of a world sliding gradually out of control, with our relative military power declining, with our economic lifeline vulnerable to blackmail, with hostile forces growing more rapidly than our ability to deal with them and with fewer and fewer friendly to us surviving."

He said that unless the Senate expresses a determination to reverse unfavorable trends "SALT will become a soporific, a form of escapism."

Kissinger said the Senate must obtained "binding" assurances from the administration that it will proceed with major steps to improve defense forces.

"The program must include accelerated development of a counterforce capability through the MX and Trident II, air defense against (the Soviet) Backfire (bomber), immediate steps to restore the theater nuclear balance and urgent measures to beef up our capacity for regional defense including accelerated modernization and expansion of our Navy," he said.

Meanwhile today, Gen. Louis H. Wilson, who stepped down July 1 as Marine Corps commandant and as a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, announced his opposition to the treaty, saying "my judgment is that SALT II is not in the military interests of the United States as now negotiated."

Index Shows June Slide

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government index designed to forecast future economic trends fell 0.1 percent in June, the third monthly decline this year, the Commerce Department said today.

The decline in June left the Composite Index of Leading Indicators down 1.7 percent for the second quarter of the year, following a 0.2 percent drop in the first quarter. The index had risen 1.1 percent in the final quarter of 1978.

"It sure looks flat to weak to me," said Commerce analyst Adren Cooper.

The economy fell into a slide in the second quarter this year, according to earlier reports on the nation's real output. Courtenay Slater, chief economist for the Commerce Department, predicted a continued decline from July through September.

Southwest Pounded By Storms

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Severe thunderstorms boomed across the South Plains Monday night and early today, claiming three lives near Plainview and dousing counties to the north and east of Lubbock.

The turbulent weather, triggered by a cool front, extended northward into Colorado and southeastern Wyoming, where tornadoes bounced around Cheyenne and huge hailstones injured 20 persons near Fort Collins, Colo., Monday night.

A line of thunderstorms produced at least six funnel clouds in the Kansas City metropolitan area as the storm system moved eastward through the Midwest.

Benito Cabello, 38, of La Feria, and his sons, Gilbert, 14, and Noel, 12, were pronounced dead at 8:30 p.m. Monday by Plainview Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone after they were struck by lightning while riding in the back of a pickup truck driven by Cabello's wife.

A third son, Joel, 12, was listed in critical condition this morning at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock after being transferred early today from Central Plains Regional Hospital in Plainview.

The family had been trying to escape the storm when lightning struck the father and sons, according to officials.

Heavy rainfall accompanied the lightning in the Plainview area, with the city measuring an official 1.55 inches during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

"Flooding was pretty heavy on the east side, but it's all receded now," a Plainview Police Department official said this morning. He said water had reportedly reached the doorways of some homes but caused no damage to their interiors.

The police spokesman also said lightning caused a temporary power loss to

Bakhtiar Ends Silence, Raps Khomeini's Rule

PARIS (AP) — Shahpour Bakhtiar, the last prime minister appointed by the Shah of Iran, emerged from almost six months in hiding today, denounced the "sad disintegration" of his homeland and said Iran's revolutionary clergymen should "go back to the mosques."

The exiled politician told a news conference, however, that he would not try to lead opposition to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime in Iran. A spokesman had said Monday that Bakhtiar would head an opposition movement.

Bakhtiar, a longtime foe of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, was named prime minister by the Iranian monarch last Dec. 29 as the Pahlavi dynasty was crumbling. He accepted the post on condition that the shah leave the country, but his government was unable to stem the Islamic revolutionary tide and was toppled last Feb. 11.

Bakhtiar disappeared that night and had not been seen publicly since. He refused to say today where he has spent the past 5½ months, though it is generally believed he has been in France or Switzerland.

Asked whether he had been given refugee status in France, Bakhtiar replied, "I have a three-month visa — just like Khomeini had."

The Moslem religious leader Khomeini directed the anti-shah uprising for four months from a cottage in Neauphle le Chateau, a small village outside Paris, before leaving for Tehran in February.

Khomeini has said Iran would seek the extradition of the "criminal Bakhtiar" to stand trial for alleged collaboration with the shah and crimes against the state.

Explaining his position to reporters, Bakhtiar said, "I am for popular sovereignty, with the people freely choosing their destiny. What we are fighting for is liberty, in the full sense of the word, and independence, in the true sense of the word...,

"What is sad, insupportable for all Iranians, is the disintegration of the country. Central authority is non-exis-

Panel Approves Mennonite Bill

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Efforts to aid a colony of Seminole Mennonites threatened with deportation passed a significant hurdle today when the Senate Judiciary Committee approved legislation that would allow them to stay in this country.

The committee unanimously approved the bill, sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, that would give the 653 members of the religious community permanent resident status.

The Mennonites, who according to Bentsen, fled Mexico upon the threat of land confiscation, entered this country with temporary visas in 1977. The group, which has since been plagued by financial woes, has escaped several deportation proceedings due to legislative efforts on their behalf.

In a statement released today, Bentsen said, "I am pleased the Judiciary Committee has approved my bill and hopefully it will soon receive favorable consideration by the full Senate."

Brent Budowsky, Bentsen's legislative assistant, said in a phone interview today that no objections to the bill were raised by committee members. He said that material concerning proposed legislation is circulated before committee members three days before consideration is due. If no objections are raised, the legislation is passed unanimously.

"I think it was given a fair reading," said Budowsky. He added, "I don't think personally it will have too much problem on the Senate floor."

However, the bill must still go to the House for consideration and then to President Carter to be signed into law. "There's still an uphill road on the

Texans Split On Refugee Issue

MINERAL WELLS (UPI) — Businessman L. Dale Ireland anticipates the day he will see trust in the eyes of 15 Cambodian refugee families rebuilding their lives in West Texas, but car dealer Russell Whatley Jr. wonders why the town should take on the "problems of the world."

The first group of about 70 Cambodians, who fled their country in 1975 and survived four years in a Thailand refugee camp, arrived in Mineral Wells Monday, despite some local concern they would cause health and education problems in the community of 17,000.

The refugees were to take up residence in Wolters Village, once the married officers' quarters at Fort Wolters where Americans and South Vietnamese were trained for combat in Vietnam and eventually Cambodia. Like many other military posts, Fort Wolters shut down in late 1973.

Mayor Robert J. Shiflet, who was out of town during Monday's arrival, had said many phone calls from residents indicated townspeople understood the refugees' problem, but did not understand why they were coming to Mineral Wells.

"I've had to explain to them that the city can't do anything to stop it," Shiflet said.

Whatley questioned why the refugees were receiving so much aid when some Americans needed help.

"I see no point in helping these people from the other side of the world, people who have never been our particular allies in two world wars and Vietnam, when we have enough people in America who need help," he said.

"I'm not trying to sound belligerent or inhumane, but by the same token I don't feel we should take on the problems of the world."

Had the refugees remained in Thailand — host to hundreds of thousands of refugees since 1975 — they would have been forced back into Cambodia, where many allegedly feared death.

Ireland, president of Airline Instruments Inc., agreed to house 72 refugees and hire those eligible for employment. He said the city's unemployment rate was only about 4 percent and that he was in need of workers.

"All I'm giving them is an opportunity," said Ireland, who expects the refugees to pay him back for rent through payroll deductions. "If everything works right, we'll try to bring more people in."

Abducted Girl Returns To Parents After Rescue

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — As tears streamed from her parents' eyes, little Caroline Thompson hugged a playmate and smiled at reporters after her rescue from a teen-ager who allegedly abducted her from a hotel parking lot.

The blue-eyed, blond 5-year-old clung to her father as she left the Myrtle Beach, S.C., police station where she had munched contentedly on a hot dog and asked for a chocolate milkshake following the ordeal that ended in that resort city Monday.

"She's fine," said Rachel Thompson, her voice cracking and her eyes red from crying, who along with her husband Russell was flown by chartered jet to Myrtle Beach where they were reunited with their daughter and met some neighbors who had been vacationing there. "She wanted to have her picture in the newspaper a while back but we didn't know it would be like this."

An 18-year-old High Point, N.C. man whom officials said was on parole for an earlier auto theft conviction was arrested Monday evening and charged with kidnapping and car theft. He was to be arraigned in Florence, S.C., today before a U.S. magistrate.

FBI Special Agent David Brumble of Jacksonville, Fla., said before the rescue that authorities believed the man only meant to steal the car, and did not plan to abduct the girl.

The Thompsons returned to Daytona Beach several hours after Caroline was found and were whisked by police to the Holiday Inn where the incident began Saturday — hoping finally to begin their vacation.

The parents had remained at the hotel in Daytona Beach until word came that their daughter was safe.

At a motel press conference on their return, Mrs. Thompson said she was thankful that the abductor took care of her child.

"He didn't hurt her in any way and tried to comfort her by telling her that he was taking her to her mother and daddy at home," she said.

Asked how Caroline reacted when she saw her parents again, she said: "She was just as normal as ever and is just beginning to understand that many people have been looking for her."

Caroline, cradled in her father's arms, appeared sleepy and said nothing.

The Dunwoody, Ga., family's two-day ordeal ended when Donald and Edith Howell of Goldsboro, N.C., told FBI agents they saw a man and Caroline as they checked into a Myrtle Beach motel Sunday.

But it wasn't until the couple saw pictures of a suspect and Caroline on television Monday that they realized she was the missing girl.

The Howells quickly notified police, who spotted a man driving the Thompsons' late model Oldsmobile station wagon near the motel.

The car zoomed away, officials said. One patrolman took two shots at the tires, police said, but failed to stop the car. The high-speed chase through Myrtle Beach ended seven miles later, when Patrolman David Smith used his cruiser to block the speeding station wagon.

The little girl and the family's two dogs were safe in the back of the car.

As they left Myrtle Beach late Monday for a flight back to Daytona Beach, Mrs. Thompson thanked reporters for issuing their pleas to the kidnapper.

"No words I can ever utter can express our appreciation for everything you did to let it be known how we were looking for her and how much we needed her back," she said.

Thompson said he did not know how long they might remain in Florida.

"Right now, this little girl is tired and she wants to go to the beach tomorrow and to the pool tomorrow and she's got to get to bed," he said.

The ordeal began Saturday at the Daytona Beach Holiday Inn, where the family planned to vacation and celebrate the father's 34th birthday. Caroline was in the back seat of the family station wagon as her father, Russell, checked into the motel.

As Mrs. Thompson sat in the car reading a magazine, a man jumped into the driver's seat. Mrs. Thompson scrambled from the car and tried to retrieve her daughter from the back seat.

Mayor Probes Jailing Of Woman

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — City officials want to know why destitute 91-year-old Mattie Schultz was forced to remain in jail overnight last week after being arrested for stealing $15 worth of food from a local supermarket.

Meanwhile, donations totaling nearly $2,000 have poured in from across the country after the case received national publicity.

Mrs. Schultz, a widow who had been swindled out of her $5,000 life savings in 1973 and was living on about $230 per month in pensions, said she took the ham, sausages and butter July 24 because she was desperate and hungry.

She had qualified for a personal recognizance bond, but Night Magistrate Mary Elizabeth Ladd — often criticized for being too lenient on criminals — refused to release her and set a $400 bond Mrs. Schultz was unable to pay.

Mrs. Schultz was released from jail the next morning after being confined for about 24 hours on theft charges. She is now "resting comfortably" in a local hospital, where she was admitted last Friday from the exhaustion brought on by her sudden celebrity status.

The supermarket has dropped the misdemeanor charges, which carried a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

The investigation, requested by Mayor Lila Cockrell, began Monday. The city is conducting it because Ladd, 28, who is often at odds with other magistrates, prosecutors and district judges, is a direct appointee of the city council.

Mrs. Schultz was arrested in the morning, but was held in jail all daybefore Ms Ladd arrived for work at 8 p.m.

The magistrate said she refused to release the woman at night because Mrs. Schultz would not give a correct address and jail matrons didn't know where to take her.

The magistrate said she was afraid to allow Mrs. Schultz to just walk away in the middle of the night and wanted her to remain in jail where she would be cared for.

The guests will pay $25 per person or $40 per couple to attend a one-hour reception before dinner, dine on steak and listen to a two-hour program that is likely to include a speech by Georgia's senior senator.

Talmadge has announced he is running for re-election no matter what the outcome of the Senate Ethics Committee investigation into his finances. The committee's recommendation is expected this week.

Unlike the dandelion festival, which features dandelion wine, Fiorilli said there will be no eggplant wine at his dinner simply because "We haven't gotten around to inventing an eggplant wine yet."

Ball Found In Boy's Ear

RICHMOND, Mich. (UPI) — Eight-year-old Adam Schneider, locally renowned for once having put 40 watermelons seeds in his nose, has been cured of a hearing impairment he's had for six years.

Doctors removed a ball bearing from his ear.

"We figure it's been in there about six years," his mother, Diane, said Monday. "The reason I say that is because when he was about 2, he and his twin brother went into my husband's shop and got into a big box of ball bearings.

"We thought he had a hearing problem," the mother of four said. "He definitely seemed not to be able to hear. He had to be real close to the TV. You could stand real close behind him and say 'Adam,' and he couldn't hear you.

"I have had him to eye, ear, nose and throat specialists," Mrs. Schneider said. "They didn't find anything — but of course I don't think they were really looking for a ball bearing."

Accused Drug 'Kingpin' Stands Trial Wednesday

AUSTIN (UPI) — James Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, a high-rolling Las Vegas, Nev., gambler the government claims has been a kingpin of narcotics smuggling operations in the Southeast and Northeast since 1974, goes on trial in federal court Wednesday on charges that could put him in prison for life.

U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions last week refused a defense request for a fourth delay and second change of venue in Chagra's trial on charges of continuing criminal enterprise in an alleged "Colombian Connection" cocaine smuggling conspiracy.

One federal narcotics officer said $500,000 was "a conservative estimate" on the amount of money the government has spent to bring Chagra to trial.

Chagra, 34, a native of El Paso, originally was indicted by a Midland federal grand jury on Feb. 26, at the end of a seven month investigation. The warrant was hand-carried by a Drug Enforcement Administration officer who caught the earliest flight to Las Vegas and arrested Chagra at his Nevada home.

Chagra originally was jailed in lieu of $1 million bond set by U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., who was assassinated in San Antonio on May 29. But after Chagra spent 12 days in jail at El Paso, Wood reduced the bond to $400,000 and Chagra's wife, Liz, placed more than $1 million in diamonds as collateral for the bond.

The two-count indictment charged Chagra conspired with three other men to import cocaine and marijuana into the United States for distribution, and that Chagra aided and abetted in the possession of cocaine in an alleged conspiracy from June 1, 1977, to June 1, 1978, involving locations at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Colombia and Texas.

Included in the indictment period is Chagra's arrest in Colombia during mid-June 1977 when he alleged chartered a private jet from Las Vegas to Colombia to bring back Bruce Allan, 31, of Anthony, who was severely burned in the crash of a DC-6 aircraft near Santa Marta, Colombia. DEA Agents said the crashed plane appeared to be the same aircraft that left Florida a few days earlier allegedly on a drug-buying trip to Bogata.

Allan died in a Colombian hospital after Chagra and several members of a rescue team were arrested and jailed by police in Bogota. The men never were charged by Colombian authorities and later were released.

A superceding indictment returned last May by the federal grand jury at El Paso charged Chagra with "continuing criminal enterprise," alleging he was an "organizer" of drug smuggling in the Southeast and Northeast, a charge similar to state habitual criminal statutes. The law carries a mandatory prison sentence of 10 years to life with no chance for parole.

Chagra has retained as defense attorneys his brother, Joe Chagra of El Paso, Las Vegas attorney Oscar B. Goodman and El Paso lawyer Victor Arditti.

Chagra's other lawyer brother, Lee Chagra, was shot and killed at his El Paso office last Dec. 23, and the Chagra family has charged that hundreds of Chagra's files were plundered by government investigators for use in narcotics investigations.

On the government side of the aisle, Assistant U.S. Attorney Carl Pearce, described by a close colleague as "bulldoggish," officially is scheduled to prosecute Chagra.

However, one source said that Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr, an exacting prosector who escaped a Nov. 21, 1978, assassination attempt near his San Antonio home, could walk on at the last minute to head the prosecution, or that U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd might choose to act as lead prosecutor.

In a March bond reduction hearing, Boyd called reputed New England Mafia figure Salvatore Michael Caruana and Massachusetts FBI crime strike force officer Charles Walsh to testify.

Over Goodman's strenuous objections, Walsh testified that Caruana answered only to reputed new England mob chieftan Raymond Patriarca.

After the death of Lee Chagra, who gained a reputation for defending many alleged narcotics underworld figures in court, law officers said that Caruana arrived in El Paso and conducted voice stress analysis tests for the Chagra family in an investigation of the attorney's death.

Three men have been charged in El Paso with killing Lee Chagra.

Clements Finishes Flood Disaster Tour

HOUSTON (UPI) — Gov. Bill Clements, who asked that federal disaster assistance include two more southeast Texas counties, says he did not find as much standing surface water as he expected during a helicopter tour of an area stricken with floods by tropical storm Claudette.

Seven persons died in the flood waters, and damage to homes and crops has been estimated unofficially at $750 million.

Clements Monday asked that Hardin and Matagorda counties be added to President Carter's designation Saturday of Harris, Jefferson, Orange, Galveston, Brazoria, Fort Bend and Chambers counties as federal disaster areas.

"We didn't find nearly as much surface water as we would have thought," Clements said after his air tour Monday. "There were a lot of houses and a lot of funishings in houses that had been set out to dry. The fields suffered significant damage, particularly the grain to the fields.

"All in all ... the water that still is on the surface is not as great as I would have anticipated," he said.

The National Weather Service, which last week recorded 24-hour rainfalls of up to 26 inches in the disintegration of tropical storm Claudette, Monday reported minor flooding of rivers across coastal southeast Texas.

The areas were inundated last week by record rainfalls and wind-inflated-tides that slowed already sluggish lowland runoff. Harris County officials said the flood damage exceeded that associated with Hurricane Carla in 1961.

A preliminary Red Cross survey showed 12,300 homes in southeast Texas were flood-damaged last week. The Red Cross opened 10 disaster assistance offices in the area.

A federal spokesman said one-stop Federal Emergency Management Centers would open next week offering Small Business Loan applications.

Scientists Testing Gulf Oil Slick

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Preliminary toxicity tests taken from the oil slick approaching Texas waters are expected today, and scientists plan to test the currents to determine where the slick is headed.

An overflight Monday revealed the northernmost patch of oil was 90 to 100 miles south of Brownsville. "That was two isolated ribbons and some sheen, but not what you would consider as a slick," said Coast Guard spokesman Richard Griggs.

Members of the federal-state tracking team will drop current probes, which release dye into the water, he said. By watching the dye, scientists can calculate speed and direction of the oil.

A team of scientists rode the Coast Guard cutter Point Baker into the Gulf Monday to take samples of some of the oil. The scientists, part of the Environmental Protection Agency response team, also dropped a buoy about 155 miles southeast of Brownsville. A satellite will monitor movement of the buoy, to show which way the currents are running, Griggs said.

Meanwhile, two truckloads of oil containment equipment are headed for Texas from North Carolina, he said, adding that scientists will use the equipment offshore when it nears Texas waters.

The Coast Guard, which has been flying over parts of the Gulf in a C-130 daily with special electronic surveillace equipment, spotted oil on a flight 180 to 240 miles south of Brownsville.

Griggs said from 110 to 180 miles south of Brownsville, the team observed "a lot of sheen, ribbons of oil, as well as some ribbons of oil a little bit farther north of that. But there was no significant amount of oil any farther north than we had expected."

The Coast Guard will make another overflight today, he said.

A Mexican official helping Americans monitor oil drifting from a runaway well off the Yucatan Penisula said the flow from the well has been reduced by a third and should be capped by Sept. 16.

"The spill has been reduced from 30,000 barrels a day to 20,000 to 21,000 barrels a day," said navy Capt. Jose H. Orozco of Mexico City. "That's by direct methods — pumping in special mud (trying to clog the well). We are still working on two relief wells."

He said relief wells will take the pressure off the well, which blew out June 3, "and eventually stop the flow. Sept. 16 is the target date."

Evangelist Seeks Change In Fairness Policy

FORT WORTH (AP) — Attorneys for evangelist James Robison, led by "Racehorse" Haynes, are attempting to effect a change in WFAA-TV's fairness doctrine policy.

Even though Channel 8 has reinstated Robison's Sunday program, Robison wants a definite ruling on on the fairness doctrine that would benefit both the evangelist and the station, a spokesman said. He said WFAA's policy severely limits controversial subjects on religious programs.

Robison's attorneys, led by Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, filed a 17-page complaint claiming WFAA engaged in "censorship of religious programming" by cancelling his program.

The brief challenges Channel 8's decision that Robison's Feb. 25 b roadcast, in which he criticized homosexuality, violated the FCC's fairness doctrine.

"In the event that the commission upholds the reasonableness of WFAA-TV's action, the fairness doctrine and personal attack rules have an unconstitutional chilling effect on religious broadcasting in this country, and the commission should so rule," Robison's attorneys said.

WFAA-TV manager David Lane could not be reached for comment. Channel 8 officials have claimed, however, that ministers are free to speak out on controversial issues in a Biblical context.

Challenge To Charisma

FOR A CLEAR indication of which candidate has surpassed all others in organizing for the 1980 presidential campaign, the observer need look no further than U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-N.H.

Approximately 20,000 influential Republicans, ranging from grass-roots activists and precinct chairmen to officers of county and state GOP committees throughout the nation, have been invited to join Rep. Crane's "National Advisory Council."

The 1,400-plus who have accepted have received a personalized color photograph inscribed, "I'm looking forward to working with you over the next two years. Warmest regards, Phil."

THE SIGNIFICANCE of that sophisticated mass mailing lies in the fact that it was well underway at a time when most other contenders hadn't even prepared the basic pieces of campaign literature invariably distributed by aides during a candidate's handshaking tours.

While other presidential hopefuls now have assembled paid staffs averaging from 6-12 people, Crane has a campaign payroll of about 30 full-time organizers.

The high-powered approach obviously is producing benefits. When he declared his intentions last August, most political experts rated him at best as a longshot. Today, he's commonly listed as one of the "serious" GOP presidential nomination contenders.

Wire services say the only other candidate whose organization in New Hampshire approaches Crane's is that of George Bush. Both clearly are relying on the formula developed by the man who was a virtual unknown when he began campaigning for the presidency five years ago—Jimmy Carter.

BUT POLITICIANS, like generals, are notorious for their penchant for fighting the last war—and the 1980 Republican race clearly is not the 1976 Democratic contest.

Carter faced a field of generally lackluster competitors.

Crane and Bush face two other contenders for the GOP nomination—John Connally and Ronald Reagan, probably the best stump speakers in American politics today.

There are, of course, other candidates in the Republican race. But the political odds are that it will develop into a fascinating contest between Crane and Bush organizations versus Connally and Reagan charisma.

Bullock's Blunder

Maybe the UN could work out a trade: Expel the shah back to Iran and exile his successor, the Ayatollah Khomeini, to Mexico!

IN STATES WHERE public employes are militant labor union members, it is not at all unusual to see garbage rotting in the streets, schools closed by striking teachers, dissident firemen watching while buildings burn and organized policemen calling in "sick" while crime runs rampant.

That's the kind of state Comptroller Bob Bullock would impose on Texans.

He urged the AFL-CIO last week to organize state employes, a move which also would prompt city and county employes to join the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees or a similar union.

Public school teachers, and college faculty members, also have vocal elements agitating for unionization.

They try to disarm the opposition by saying that state law prohibits public employe strikes, but anyone who would buy that line as real protection would buy a bikini to protect against freezing to death at the North Pole.

LABOR UNIONS in recent years have had few peers in their ability to wreck economies in areas where they have grown strong enough.

Great Britain, for example, has teetered on the brink of disaster while the unions exercised their power, the union rank-and-file all the while suffering through a standard of living far inferior to that enjoyed by workers in other industrialized nations.

In the U.S., lettuce has rotted in the fields because of labor union strikes called just as it is ready for harvest.

A nationwide strike by Teamsters could halt the delivery of life's necessities to millions of Americans.

BUT WHEN STATE or city policemen, firemen, teachers, garbage workers, etc., go on strike and deny essential public services they are in fact striking against democratic self-government in this country.

Unions bring collective bargaining which in turn brings strikes, laws to the contrary notwithstanding. Such strife, which will benefit neither the public employes nor the general public, is something Texas can do without.

And it can do without public officials who are apostles for public employe unionization.

Paul Scott:

Do We Lack The Will To Win?

WASHINGTON—In his carefully documented and timely book "Shall America Be Defended?" Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham, former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency, asks the question that goes to the heart of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT) debate.

Most readers and many of the senators that will take part in the debate will be shocked to learn that for years official U.S. government circles have answered that question with a clear, if not too loud, "No."

This "no defense" policy was symbolized with the falling of our 77.5 ton Skylab space station. When it came crashing down, we had no weapons to destroy its heavy pieces or civil defense shelters to protect those caught in its path.

But Skylab which had no nuclear warheads or was not targeted on a major U.S. city or defense installation isn't what Gen. Graham and other opponents of SALT II are worried about.

THEIR CONCERN IS the deliberate policy decisions of the Carter and past administrations not to defend the U.S. and the impact that this and the growing Soviet strategic nuclear power permitted under SALT II will have on this country's ability to deter a future Soviet attack or nuclear blackmail.

A long time government insider, who had access to our inner most defense planning and intelligence reports of Soviet capabilities, Gen. Graham warns that "going against the grain of common sense, they (U.S. officials) have judged that nothing would so endanger America as an attempt to defend it against Soviet nuclear weapons."

"One of the chief tenets of this approach," Gen. Graham notes, "is the belief that if either the U.S. or the Soviet Union builds any weapons or makes any plans meant to reduce damage to itself in case of war, those very weapons or plans will increase the level of international tension, make war more likely, and thus defeat their own purpose in a massive way."

BECAUSE OF THIS approach, the defense problem facing the nation today is that U.S. leaders since the 1960s "have not considered the possibility that either the U.S. or the Soviet Union could actually use (nuclear) weapons against the other to defend itself or any of its interests."

In official circles, the question "Shall America Be Defended?" seemed to be closed, according to Graham, but must be reopened in the SALT II debate so public pressure can be brought to change the policy to "Yes."

The ominous shifts of military power in favor of the USSR and the new Soviet strategy that nuclear wars can be fought and won, Graham argues, makes the adoption of a U.S. policy to defend America imperative if we are to survive as a free nation.

Gen. Graham presents a strong case that the Soviet Union is well along the road to creating a military reality in which nuclear war would do less damage to the Soviet Union than any conventional war.

Essentially, Gen. Graham argues that the defense of the U.S. in the nuclear age is both possible and desirable because technology has given our superior economy the wherewithal to do it—if we make the decision and follow through.

Gen. Graham asks those debating SALT to consider: If given the state of our armed forces, the Soviets would be better off by carrying out a surprise attack, why should they not do it, or at least threaten to do it?

If the U.S. cannot keep itself from mortal harm in war while the USSR can, how can the U.S. expect to keep even Europe and Japan as allies?

Sylvia Porter:

Don't Overlook Career In Medical Assisting

(First of four columns)

WASHINGTON—Are you looking for a job that can (1) require no more than a high school diploma; (2) provide you with an opportunity for on-the-job training; (3) give you a real chance for growth and advancement; (4) place you in pleasant, challenging surroundings?

While the overall employment outlook for the start of the 1980s is shaping up as uncertain at best, and grim at worst, in one major field the job pattern appears not only excellent right now but also holds great promise for the foreseeable future.

The field? Medical assisting.

Whether you are currently employed in another field or have just lost a job in an unrelated service or industry, whether you are a student preparing for your first job or after years away from the job market, are planning to re-enter the world of working-for-pay, before you make another move, investigate a career as a medical assistant.

IT WELL MIGHT offer you just the kind of rewarding work along with job security that you have been seeking.

The health service field as a whole has in recent years ballooned to among the largest in the nation, employing roughly 4 million individuals.

Within that field, nursing is the No. 1 profession and now in second place, is medical assisting.

Even today, between 300,000 and 400,000 medical assistants are employed, estimates the American Association of Medical Assistants.

They work under the direction of physicians in various medical facilities across the U.S., at salaries governed by the size of the practice, the area where the physician practices, the assistant's experience and education, the tasks assigned.

DESPITE THESE obvious variations, the average weekly salary of the medical assistant was $184 in 1977-78, with about 8 percent earning from $12,500 to $25,000 annually in large urban areas.

What is a medical assistant?

"Medical assisting is a broad-based occupation which includes duties carried on by receptionists, secretaries, clinical attendants and at times laboratory personnel," according to Webster's Medical Office Handbook, just published by G. & C. Merriam Co. ($10.95).

Most significant to you is the handbook's finding that the field is among the "most critically lacking in qualified personnel," particularly that segment that covers the administrative side.

IN THE MOST practical, down-to-pocketbook terms, what this translates into is that if you become educationally and professionally qualified, you should find the widest variety of positions open to you in whatever area of the nation you wish to settle.

And there are no indications whatsoever of any reversal in this brilliant job outlook in the near future.

With the upsurge in the number of doctors has come a logical expansion in the number of practicing physicians requiring office staffs.

At the same time, the volume of paperwork emanating from government regulatory agencies, health insurance companies and elsewhere has quadrupled and is overwhelming the U.S. physician.

NOT ONLY IS health insurance increasingly available to most Americans, but also each year, a new drug is discovered, or a new treatment is developed, a new piece of equipment comes on the market, a new health care concept (such as the health maintenance organization or HMO) grabs the public's imagination.

The consumer's rush to take advantage of all this has placed a bigger and bigger burden on providing the new treatment and in doing the paperwork.

Since our concern over health care and the prospect of new developments will grow, not diminish, the need for medical assistants will grow side by side.

Tomorrow: what does a medical assistant do?

James J. Kilpatrick:

Turn Around And You're Grown

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Kilpatrick's granddaughter reaches a ripe young age.)

SCRABBLE, VA.—

Heather, My Love—

Nine? You are really and truly 9? It is not to be believed. Next year you will be 10, and into double digits. Then high school, college, job, marriage!

It has been nice knowing you, Heather, and I thank you for pausing on the last plateau of little girlhood before ascending to the rarefied world of young ladies.

More than ever this summer, you remind me of the wild chicory that grows by our country roads. We call it a wildflower; most country people call it a weed. Anyhow, it grows tall and long and leggy, with blue-violet flowers at the top.

If chicory only had freckles and a missing tooth, we could call it Heather instead.

I ASKED YOUR father the other evening to tell me how you were coming along with growing up, and he said that was the big thing between 8 and 9: You were truly growing up.

You always have been willing to do the little chores around the farm, provided you were asked and directed. Now, he says, you see what has to be done—the table to be set, the dishes to be removed, the animals that have to be fed—and you do it.

You almost never whine anymore; you sulk now and then, but not for long. Altogether, signs of progress are perceived.

I would add a genealogical observation of my own. (There is a hard word for you, but sound it out. Sound it out!). You have inherited the Kilpatrick talking gene.

Your Grandfather Walker Stone was a fair enough talker in his strong, silent way, but he was positively mute compared to the talkers on your paternal side.

We had so many non-stop, stem-winding talkers among my aunts and uncles that when they got together a parliamentary rule had to be established: Anyone who took a breath yielded the floor. Blood tells, Heather. Once you get started there's no stopping you.

YOU DO HAVE your quiet times, of course, when you complain pathetically that "there's nothing to do." The next time you inform me that such-and-such a thing is "BOR-ing," I swear I will pull your pigtails.

At 9 years old, you ought not to pass a boring hour. Most of your quiet time is spent reading. Your father advises me, with a nice note of satisfaction in his voice, that you've become an absolute bookworm.

You're also part tomboy and part pretty girl. More spice, I may add, than sugar.

A couple of months ago, when you came by our place after school, you left behind an English assignment in your third-grade classroom. Twenty declarative sentences.

As I said last year, looking at your line-a-day diary, I like some of your sentences better than some of mine. Your grandfather tends to ramble. You knock your sentences off.

"ON HOT DAYS we wade in the river." Years hence, that sentence may evoke all the beauty of the mountain land you live in—clear cold water spilling over the Rush River rapids, blue herons and goldfinches, eye of frog and mouth of fish, slippery rocks that are smooth to the touch.

"Flowers cover almost half our yard." They do, indeed, and your mother's vegetable gardens are equally extensive. You're absorbing the direct connection between the seed and the snap bean, the sowing and the reaping.

"A butterfly settled on my finger." The essence of a summer afternoon cannot be captured more softly. You are discovering all kinds of wonderful things you have never observed so intently before.

Toads held no terror for you. You treat spiders with respect. You do not scream in the presence of a snake.

It is an understanding butterfly that settles on your finger. Butterflies may know more than we think; this one knows a safe haven.

SOMEONE ASKED YOU the other day how old you would be this month, and you said "Nine" with a world-weary sigh.

I was reminded of the young lady in Memphis, just turned 25, who moaned pathetically that she was now "a quahtuh of a cintury old."

There will be time enough to be weary 50 or 60 years down the road. In the summer of being 9-going-on-10, a whole drowsy world awakens at your touch.

Love, Grandfather.

Jury Panel Urges Death For Theodore Bundy

MIAMI (AP) — Twice deadlocked between life and death, a jury has voted to send smiling former law student Theodore R. Bundy to Florida's electric chair for strangling two sorority sisters. Now a judge must decide whether to take the jury's advice.

Judge Edward D. Cowart said he would announce today whether Bundy is to live in prison or die in "Old Sparky," the oak chair in the state's death chamber.

Bundy seemed unconcerned. "See you next trial," he said with a grin on the way out Monday after the jury recommended his execution.

The jurors were out for just less than two hours. On the first ballot, six jurors voted for Bundy to live, said juror Mary Russo. Six voted for death. Another vote produced another 6-6 tie.

"Each time we voted secretly," she said. "The third time we came up with a majority." Jurors would not say what the final vote was.

Under Florida's two-stage trial system for capital cases, a unanimous jury vote is required for a conviction. But only a simple majority is required for the jury's non-binding recommendation about a penalty.

Cowart gave no hint whether he would accept the jury recommendation. He has sentenced three people to death, once overriding a jury decion which recommended life in prison.

Florida electrocuted convicted murder John A. Spenkelink May 25, the first time in 12 years an inmate in an American prison was executed against his will.

Bundy seemed without emotion when the jury's recommendation was read. Seeming the same as when he was convicted six days earlier, he remained serene, chewing idly on a mint and scribbling notes on a yellow pad.

Then he rose — but only to speak in calm tones. He wanted to ensure members of his family could visit him in jail. Cowart said they could.

Prosecutor Larry Simpson reminded jurors of Lisa Levy, 20, and Margaret Bowman, 21, who were battered, choked, and bitten in a Tallahassee Chi Omega sorority house. Three other young women were beaten the same morning near the Florida State University campus.

Bundy wouldn't let his lawyers introduce results of his last psychiatric test, but public defender Margaret Good tried to depict a client with a troubled mind.

"The crimes were the product of delusion, disorder and compulsion," she said.

Bundy faces other court dates.

He is due for trial in September for a charge of murdering 12-year-old Kimberly Leach of Lake City, Fla., Feb. 9, 1978. He is charged in Colorado with the 1975 slaying of Dearborn, Mich., nurse Caryn Campbell. He is currently serving a 15-year Utah prison sentence for the 1974 kidnapping of 17-year-old Carol DaRonch.

Black Panther Trial Delayed

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — For lack of space, the retrial of Black Panther leader Huey Newton for charges that he killed a 17-year-old Oakland streetwalker in 1974 has been put off until at least Thursday.

Newton's first trial, in which prosecutors sought a conviction for second-degree murder, ended in a mistrial in February. His retrial was to have begun Monday.

But Judge John S. Cooper told a brief Alameda County Superior Court hearing that no courtroom was available and for everyone to return Thursday.

Whether it begins then or later, both sides and the judge have agreed the trial should begin no later than the end of next week.

Monday's entire session took about five minutes in a half-filled courtroom conspicuous for its lack of security measures.

DR. LAMB

Sun Protection

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 42 years old and of medium complexion. I usually get a healthy tan by routine exposure to the sun — gardening and outdoor recreation, but not sun bathing.

This summer I have had rather extreme skin irritation — redness, severe itchy dryness — and it seemed to follow a period outdoors. I was told by a dermatologist that it was an allergic reaction to the sun and wasn't uncommon. He gave me an ointment to use but said that avoiding the sun is the only real treatment. This is very hard to do.

Would you please comment on this. It is likely to be a permanent condition? Is there a medication which would prevent or offset the effect of moderate exposure? I have noticed some itching even on mild spring days and hate to accept the idea that I cannot enjoy outdoor activities without a reaction.

DEAR READER — There is such a thing as solar urticaria which simply means hives or allergic-like skin reaction to sun exposure. I gather from your remarks that's what your dermatologist thinks you have.

This is truly an allergic-type reaction to sunshine, but have hope because there are things that can be done to protect you.

First, normal physical and chemical barriers to sunlight do help. For this reason, I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. It includes information about protecting the skin from the sun. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents by check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I would suggest that every day when you first get up that you use one of the sunscreens that contain PABA (paramino benzoic acid). Use them carefully, since some PABA preparations stain clothing.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My question is, how do you figure a woman's menstrual periods to find the 24th day? Do you count from the first day of her period or do you count from the day she stops her period?

DEAR READER — The first day of the menstrual period is considered the first day of the menstrual cycle. If the period lasts for four days, the fourth day of the period is the fourth day of the cycle.

I get quite a few letters asking for information about this and usually it's because someone thinks that she is going to use this method to avoid pregnancy. I'd like to caution you against thinking that's an effective measure. A woman who is absolutely regular may menstruate the 14th day after ovulation. This always means that you know after ovulation when it occured rather than before. There are quite a few variations involved and a woman who is regular all the time may not be regular the critical month.

Talking Puppet Easy To Make

By SHARI LEWIS

Here's an "egg-centric" puppet with a great moving mouth:

Ask an adult to cut a styrofoam egg carton in thirds (this requires a big knife). You can create three puppets, one out of each of the thirds.

Put cellophane tape on the back hinge to make the hinge stronger. The lumpy egg holders go on top and become the huge eyes.

On the back of those lumps, near the hinge, make two holes (with the point of a pair of scissors). That's where you'll stick your fingers to work the puppet. Do the same on the bottom, to create a thumb hole.

Cut teeth on the flaps of the front opening.

And now — make a face! You can stick toothpicks, cotton swab sticks, feathers and pipe cleaners into the mushy plastic. Glue, tape or pin on bits of this and that (buttons, paper, fabric) to make google eyes, bushy eyebrows or whatever "egg-citing" features you come up with!

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Some games are played with balls that are hollow (ping-pong), others are played with inflated balls (basketball). Can you name seven games that are played with balls that are usually neither hollow nor inflated?

ANSWER: Baseball, bowling, billiards, pool, golf, cricket, croquet, la crosse, polio, handball, field hockey (which is often played with a hard ball).

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: What kind of shoes would you make out of banana skins?

(Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Refugees Saved As Storm Nears

By United Press International

American and Italian mercy ships plucked more than 400 Vietnamese refugees from the South China Sea today in rescue operations lent new urgency by the approach of Typhoon Hope, packing winds of up to 118 mph.

The Italian warship Vittoria Veneto picked up 391 Vietnamese roughly 50 miles from the Malaysian coast after they were driven away by Malaysian authorities.

Italian officials in Singapore said the refugees were in terrible condition and were given food and medical attention. The rescue brought the number of refugees pulled from the sea by the Italians to 587.

Another 46 refugees, including a 5-day-old baby, were rescued by the Amercian mercy ship Sea Sweep, owned by a California religious group called World Vision. The rescue operation took place in the middle of a storm about 200 miles south of Vietnam.

Burt Singleton, the group's project director, said in Singapore the refugees' boat was in very bad condition.

The Norwegian-chartered freighter Lyesekil also left Singapore for the South China Sea today on a refugee search and rescue mission.

In Hong Kong, 700 Vietnamese still on their rickety boats in a government dockyard were moved ashore to escape torrential rains pummelling the British colony. About 66,000 other refugees were housed in abandoned warehouses and factories.

Officials said it was not known how many Vietnamese were still on the open seas but any of them caught in typhoon conditions wouldn't stand a chance.

"The typhoon will obviously complicate things teribly," a U.S. Navy spokesman in the Philippines said. "We are trying to find refugees and be of assistance to them."

Typhoon Gordon slammed into the China mainland early today, its center missing Hong Kong. But weather forecasters were watching Typhoon Hope, which was centered about 510 miles east-northeast of Manila and moving westerly at 11 1/2 Mph.

Between the two storms, most of the seas off Southeast Asia were rough.

On Monday, the USS White Plains used its cargo nets to pluck 29 Vietnamese from a sinking boat 230 miles west of the main Philippines island of Luzon.

The 29 refugees, a dozen of whom suffered from minor burns and infected sores, were brought to Subic Bay Naval Base in the Philipines today.

Capt. Robert S. Owens, commanding officer of the White Plains, told reporters the refugee boat was "at the end of the rope" when rescued Monday morning. It sank a few minutes after the Americans hauled its passengers aboard, said Owens, 44, of Tallahoma, Tenn.

The U.S. Embassy said the refugees — 12 children, 10 men and seven women including a pregnant mother — would be resettled in the United States in three to four months.

Legal emigration from Vietnam also was continuing. A chartered airliner was scheduled to carry more than 100 Vietnamese from Ho Chi Minh City to Bangkok Wednesday with the approval of Hanoi.

The group is expected to include at least 26 women and children bound for family reunions in Canada.

Malaysian Home Affairs Minister Ghazali Shafie said Monday his country has halted the expulsion of refugees in response to increased international efforts to care for and resettle them.

Until the U.N. refugee conference in Geneva two weeks ago, Malaysia had expelled 40,000 Vietnamese refuges. It continues to patrol offshore waters to intercept new arrivals.

Acceptance Delayed By Egyptians

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt delayed acceptance of the U.S. invitation for a Washington meeting with Israel to settle the makeup of a new Sinai peacekeeping force but was expected to agree eventually to a meeting in about two weeks.

"We are not sure of the utility of such a meeting," Deputy Foreign Minister Butros Ghali told reporters Monday. He said Egypt accepted the U.S.-Soviet proposal to replace the U.N. peacekeeping force in Sinai with unarmed U.N. truce observers and the "problem" lay with Israel.

However, another senior Egyptian official said Egypt "most probably" would send a representative to the talks if certain clarifications were made by the United States. These were not spelled out.

Ghali, who met with U.N. Undersecretrary-General Brian Urquhart to discuss details of the withdrawal of the peacekeeping force, suggested the decision on the U.S. invitation might be postponed until after the next round of Palestinian autonomy talks in Israel next week.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter also told reporters in Washington the Washington talks probably wouldn't begin until after the autonomy talks.

The Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty provides for the 4,000-man U.N Emergency Force stationed between Egyptian and Israeli troops since the 1973 war to continue to act as a buffer force and to monitor compliance with the treaty. But the force will begin withdrawing soon because its mandate from the Security Council expired July 24.

The United States and the Soviet Union then came up with a proposal to replace the U.N. Emergency Force with about 400 U.N. truce observers who would be responsible to the U.N. secretary general rather than the Security Council.

U.S. Opposes Nicaraguan Intervention

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The United States is opposed to any attempt to intervene militarily in Nicaragua or to undermine its new government, U.S. Ambassador Lawrence Pezzullo said.

"Any attempts to destabilize the situation or provoke violence would be looked on by the United States as contrary to the Organization of American States resolution on Nicaragua," Pezzullo told reporters Monday.

The ambassador was responding to a report from the United States that a former officer in the Nicaraguan national guard known as "Commandante Bravo" said he was raising a 7,000-man army to invade Nicaragua and restore dictator Anastasio Somoza to power.

"The United States is providing humanitarian assistance to help satisfy the emergency needs in Nicaragua and is prepared to assist the government in its economic recovery efforts," Pezzullo said.

He reported U.S. aid in food and medical supplies totalled $3.5 million and up to 120 tons a day is being brought in.

Another diplomat who refused to be identified said the U.S. government is ready to assist the provisional junta and its government get established. He said Washington hopes the government will become a reflection of the desires of the Nicaraguan people.

This source said although the United States helped to get Somoza to leave the country, no promises of immunity from extradition was made to him.

The United States and Nicaragua signed an extradition treaty in 1915. Among the extraditable crimes are fraudulent acquisition of funds, which the revolutionary junta has charged Somoza with during the final days of his regime. It alleges he nearly emptied the national treasury.

Expert Claims Tourism Booms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A travel expert says not energy shortages, nor government policy, nor weather conditions nor the economy shall stay American travelers from their vacation tours.

Suzanne D. Cook reports in the current issue of American Demographics magazine that America's $100 billion travel industry is alive and well — and likely to remain so despite the problems and expense involved in staying mobile.

Regardless of the government, economic and energy problems, she wrote, the demand for travel will increase because, "the population will become collectively older, the proportion of single adults will grow, and the number of married couples without children should grow faster than the overall population."

"These developments suggest that more people will have the time, inclination and income to travel," she said.

No.2 America's energy problem is a multi-faceted issue. This is the second in a series in which we will take each of the individual factors involved, one at a time, and discuss the effect of each.

Fuel inventories: Keeping our balance is part of the problem.

It takes a constant balancing act to meet America's energy needs, because the kind and amount of fuel most needed at a particular time and place change with the seasons. For instance, gasoline consumption usually goes up about 10% during the heavy summer driving months. Then, as winter closes in, many parts of the country need tremendous amounts of heating oil.

During the peak seasons for gasoline and heating fuels, the amounts needed are greater than can be met by day-to-day refinery capability, so it is necessary to refine and store a supply ahead of time.

At the same time, throughout the year we are obliged to turn out a steady amount of aircraft jet fuel as well as diesel fuel for farming vehicles and large trucks.

What does inventory balance have to do with the fuel shortage?

All fuels are vital to Americans, so no particular fuel including gasoline can be produced in a totally unrestrained manner at the expense of other fuels. Thus, when demand for gasoline unexpectedly surged to record levels early this year, it created problems in storing enough gasoline to supplement summer production for peak season driving. And now that the peak driving season is upon us, it's virtually impossible to make up for diminished gasoline inventories since inventories of heating oil must be built up for the coming winter.

Also, an inventory of crude oil must be maintained to avoid refinery disruptions if deliveries of new crude supplies are delayed. Nevertheless, we are holding our crude oil inventories down at minimum safe levels so as to maximize gasoline and heating oil availability.

Large inventories must be used just to make the systems work.

In addition to this constant balancing act, sizeable inventories of crude oil and other petroleum stocks are needed just to keep the facilities that make and transport fuels physically operating.

For example, 9 million barrels of oil (the daily total of all U.S. oil production) must actually be inside the Alaskan Pipeline for it to even function.

Putting inventory problems in perspective.

The necessity of adequate and balanced inventories to meet America's varying year-round fuel requirements is not the only factor involved in the shortage. Other factors like refining capacity, increased demand, government controls, environmental restrictions, and even differences in crude oil qualities all play a role and each will be discussed individually in the future.

Regaining our balance.

World and U.S. crude oil supplies are still short of demand. So in addition to continued careful management of inventories, America must do everything possible to speed development of our domestic sources of energy, while at the same time doing a better job of conserving the energy we have now.

Thank you for listening.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

It's a proven fact that many bridge players are treading shoeless through the streets of London because they didn't draw trumps. But an equal number are strolling unshod through New York because they drew trumps too soon.

South's two club rebid was a slight underbid. However, he was reluctant to jump to three clubs lest his partner play him for more in the way of high cards. North's bid of three clubs, while also conservative, left open three no trump as a possible game contract. South might have maneuvered toward that contract by cue-bidding his diamond stopper, but he decided five clubs would be better.

Declarer won the king of diamonds opening lead, drew a round of trumps and then ruffed a diamond. He returned to his hand with a trump and took the spade finesse. East won the king and returned a spade.

Declarer entered his hand with a spade ruff and tried a heart to the king. East took two heart tricks for down one. "Unlucky," remarked South. "Every card was wrong."

That was true. Nevertheless declarer's technique and not Lady Luck should have been blamed for the contract's failure. South lost the hand when he drew a round of trumps prematurely!

Correct technique is to ruff a diamond at trick two. Now declarer can get back to his hand with a trump, ruff his remaining diamond and return to his hand with another trump. That still leaves a trump in dummy.

With the groundwork done, declarer leads a heart. Whatever card West plays, the contract is guaranteed. If West plays an honor, declarer covers with the king. Even if East wins the ace, he is forced to lead another heart, which sets up dummy's ten for a spade discard, or a spade into the ace-queen.

As the cards lie, West will follow with a low heart and declarer inserts dummy's ten. East wins the jack, but again he has a choice of losing plays.

Observe that it is vital to ruff a diamond before touching trumps. If declarer draws a round of trumps first, he will exhaust dummy of trumps by the time he has eliminated the diamonds. Now East will be able to exit safely with a diamond.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Many Factors Affect Apartment Choice

LAS CRUCES (Special) — Let's face it — apartment hunting isn't fun! But making the right choice can be more important than you realize, says Suzi Holder, extension housing specialist at New Mexico State University.

You'll spend a lot of time in your apartment, the rent will take a big bite out of your monthly income. A lease imposes legal obligations that can be enforced in court. So don't be in a hurry to make up your mind, the specialist says.

First, establish your basic needs and wants. If the apartment is to be shared, pay particular attention to provisions for privacy and storage space.

Remember, housing costs include more than just rent. You must also plan on utilities, telephone, maintenance and other expenses. Establish a housing budget with an upper limit on rent, then stick to it, Holder says.

Compare the relative importance of your living quarters in contrast to other expenses and goals such as new car, travel or recreation.

When you actually start looking for an apartment, remember that location is important. Take into account the following:

— Is the area safe? Are streets well lighted? Is police and fire protection reliable? Can people come and go day and night without fear?

— Is the neighborhood well maintained, clean, attractive?

— What types of people live in the area? Wil it be a good place to meet people and make new friends?

— Will it be easy to get to work and other places you visit frequently?

— Is the area convenient to stores and services?

— Will neighborhood noise and activity be a problem?

Apartment rent is based on the services, facilities and equipment provided, such as air conditioning, kitchen appliances, laundry equipment, tennis courts, swimming pools, golf course. Don't pay for more of these than you'll use.

Since you'll probably have to sign a lease, study it carefully, including the fine print, Holder says. Don't sign until you agree with everything in it.

All agreements between you and the landlord should be written into the lease. It's a mistake to rely on verbal promises regarding decorating, repairs, equipment, subletting, security deposit, or liability.

A lease is a legal document, the housing specialist says. It obligates you for a long time and a sizeable amount of money. It should contain:

— Name of tenant.

— Name and address of landlord.

— Beginning and expiration dates of the lease.

— Address and description of rented property.

— Amount of rent, when and how it is to be paid.

— Requirements for a security deposit: the amount, when it is to be paid, conditions for refund or forfeit, and whether interest will be paid.

— Conditions for renewal, termination and subletting.

— Items covered by the rent, such as utilities, decorating, cleaning, building services, parking space, appliances or furniture.

— Responsibility for repairs and maintenance.

— Rules applying to use of the property. Can tenants decorate, keep pets, install carpeting or equipment? What rules apply to use of storage areas, laundry room, guest parking?

Finally, size up all the available apartments in the area. Visit each one armed with a checklist of your requirements and preferences.

Expert Offers Suggestions For Mobile Home Choice

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (Special) — Over 54,000 families in New Mexico are choosing mobile homes as an economical housing alternate. This could be a wise choice for New Mexico residents, says Suzi Holder, Extension housing specialist at New Mexico State University.

Although mobile homes may be the solution to many housing problems, the consumer should be careful making the purchase.

Before buying, remember its what's underneath that counts, Miss Holder says. Attractive interiors and flashy design often hide the root of concern — construction.

Reputable mobile home manufacturers furnish specification information with the home. If this "spec sheet" is really specific, it can help you evaluate some of the hidden qualities, the specialist says.

Before you buy a new mobile home try checking the floor inside a used model by the same manufacturer. Can you trace the seams of the subfloor showing through the kitchen tile? Is the tile buckling? Are there squeaks when you walk from end to end?

If so, then this is perhaps what you will encounter if you choose a home with a shoddily built botton. A sound floor is usually built with six to eight inch joists crisscrossed with shiplap or tongue and groove subflooring ⅝-to ⅜-inch thick.

Don't be afraid of looking underneath the mobile home. Check lag bolts, I-beams and axles.

With your hand or elbow push aganist the walls and ceilings. The amount of "give" denotes the difference between sturdy and poor constructioin.

However, a slight degree of springness does not always mean the wall is flimsy. A mobile home is built for mobility and needs some resiliency or it would break up when moved, Miss Holder says. Better mobile homes have wall studs every 16 inches, using regular two by four inch studs at least in the outside walls.

In quality ceilings there are no molding strips, no rosettes, no obvious nails and no visible means of support. Press at random places to see how solid the ceiling feels. Make sure the truss rafters are placed 16 inches apart, not just over the living areas but throughout the house.

To check trussing, ask to climb on the roof. If the dealer says "no", chances are the roof is not well trussed.

Whether your heaviest energy costs are for heating or air conditioning, insulation can help cut them, the specialist says. A chart of insulation values can be found in most homes.

Check the finishing touches for quality construction. Place a yardstick along the bottom or top row of cabinet doors to check if they are hung evenly. Make sure doors are of solid wood with reinforcement against warping. Check that the countertop and its edge will not wear.

Drawers should move on roller glides. Run a finger along the edges of drawers, checking for splinters or roughness.

Closets should be at least 22 inches deep and fitted with sturdy rods and shelves.

All doors should be at least 1⅜ inches thick with a hollow core. Exterior doors may have attractive wood finishes but should be made of metal unless sheltered.

Look under the kitchen sink, bath lavatories and other places where water pipes protrude through the floor. There should be a plate sealed to the floor around each pipe to cover spaces that let in not only drafts but insects and rodents.

Better-built mobile home are well caulked and weatherstripped around windows and doors, and sealed against roof leaks. It will also have adequate guttering.

"Be choosey," Miss Holder says. "Remember, it's your money so get your dollar's worth in housing."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago I lent my brother $1,000 because he was in a tight spot. (I was married at the time and so was he.) I didn't ask him to sign an IOU. Neither did I ask for interest on my money.

He promised to pay me back within a year, but never did. I would have been satisfied if he had paid me a few hundred dollars at a time just to show good faith, but he ignored the debt as if he never owed it. In the meantime he bought his wife a new car. Now they are buying a boat!

I called him up and reminded him that he should pay his honest debts before buying luxuries. He replied by saying if he had known I was that hard up he would have managed to repay me before this. I am not hard up and he knows it. I lost my cool and said, "It's not the money — in fact, you can skip it; it was worth $1,000 to me to find out how lacking in character you are!"

Now my brother claims he doesn't owe me anything because I let him off the hook by a remark I made in anger. Does he owe me or doesn't he?

Big-Hearted Sister

Dear Sister: When you told him he could "skip it," you let him off the hook, verbally. But, morally, he still owes you.

DEAR ABBY: How about a repeat on undressing in the closet? My wife undresses in the closet and always has. When we make love, it's lights out and under a sheet.

Must I go to a peep show so I won't forget what a woman looks like?

Poor Me In Easterville

Dear Poor: No. Try the beach.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a New York man on vacation. He told me he had lost his wife three months before. (I've been a widow for four years.)

We had a lot in common and hit it off immediately. It was wonderful! For the next two weeks we spent all our time together. He asked me to marry him in about a year. I accepted.

After I arrived home (Chicago), he came to meet my married children. They adored him.

My problem: He also has married children, but doesn't want to tell them about me yet. He says it's "too soon." I don't mind waiting a year to be married, but I think the longer he waits to tell his children about me, the harder it will be.

I love him very much, Abby, and am willing to wait a full year, but his stalling about telling his children bothers me. What do you think?

Second Time Around

Dear Second: Don't be hurt. He knows his children better than you do. But suggest that if he holds off too long in telling them, they'll assume he's marrying a woman he knows only slightly.

AUTUMNAL CHIC — The ease of a sweater and the elegance of a dress make an ideal combination when the look is right. The idea gets a new lift this fall with this two-tone novelty stitch garment with a modified cowl neck. In a wool and mohair blend, it's a go-everywhere, do-everything outfit for almost any fall occasion.

REFINED — The stitch is ratine and the look is "raffinee." This ultimate refinement of the all-purpose sweater dress can take the wearer from an afternoon luncheon right through to the theater. Perfect fall colors, this dress made of a luxurious fabric of wool and rayon will be available in tea rose and subtle doeskin.

Fall Designs Reflect New Fashion Trends

By JOHN MOODY
UPI Men's Fashion Editor

SPRING LAKE, N.J. (UPI) — The clothes you will wear in the 1980s are here.

Shoulders are big and pants are scanter in this year's men's fall fashions. So even if you're not built like Bruce Jenner, you can look like it.

The big-shouldered, slim-hipped silhouette is the predominant shape seen at the Men's Fashion Association Fall preview and most American men will come away looking better for the refinements.

Gil Truedsson, one of the young designers in the forefront of the "80s look," defines the mood as sophisticated, relaxed, with great attention to detailing — the pleats, stitching and buttons that make the difference between an outfit that looks fantastic and frumpy.

"The real thrust behind my collection is to be more elegant looking," says Truedsson, who's already distinguished himself with his footware and furs. "We're thinking of how a man wants to look when he's out with a woman and we determined that he wants to look more elegant. I've given him a flattering, more athletic shape with the broader shoulder and tapered the pants to 19 inches around the knee."

The jewel of Truedsson's Fall '79 collection for Tiger of Sweden is a dressy gray light Italian wool suit with white and blue pinstripe. At $330, it's a suit that you have to really love to invest in.

The shoulder is padded — not in the severe style of a few years ago, but certainly more than the "no-shape" unconstructed models of 1978 that left skinny men looking looking skinny and overweight men looking like blimps stuffed into a matchbox.

The difference: rather than unconstructed, this year's model can be described as "gently constructed" — giving a healthy V-shape appearance without overdoing it.

Following the trend is Ron Chereskin, who after several years as a tie designer has finally made a mark in the fashion world. His "Chereskin Man" collection of sports jackets and pants — he makes no suits — features the same gently built-up shoulders and narrower pants with pleats proliferating. Jackets range between $110 for flannel to $175 for mohair.

"Men want to look healthy and I've accented the clothes with the saddle shoulder and tapered waist to give them a little edge in the race to look their best," says Chereskin, who spent years as a magazine illustrator before turning to fashion.

Chereskin's subtle use of color is his strongpoint. His mohairs, fleeces, and tweeds are featured in earthy colors from charcoal to port.

Dress shirt makers, aware of the shift to more structured jackets, are trying to complement the outerwear without overwhelming it. Contrasting collars are finding a place for themselves and appear here to stay, as are the smaller collar that look much neater than the dramatic pointed versions of the early 70s.

Completing the outfit, necktie widths have stabilized at 2½ to 3 inches, a comfortable compromse that fits in well with the other garments you'll see this fall.

Sportwear continues to follow the relaxed philosophy, with the totally unconstructed look settling into a category between dressed-up and dropped-out.

Heavy wool shirts and "outershirts," offer another alternative to the traditional sports jacket, and cost about as much. Chereskin's "big shirt" sells for $110, but the attempt in the past season to replace the old reliable jacket have not panned out.

Leather is making its strongest showing in several fall seasons, with innovative jackets that reverse to material like cotton poplin. Beautiful deep colors are the rule.

So even if you're not in the best of shape underneath those clothes, take heart. The world need never know.

SO SOPHISTICATED — A sweater dress can be as sophisticated as it is easy to wear. Solid proof is this smart two-piece belted sweater dress with a crochet yoked top combined with a pull-on sweater skirt to be presented this fall.

COMFORTABLE ELEGANCE — The sweater dress takes on a new easy elegance with the chenille striped two-piece wool blend ensemble. A V-neck top in a most interesting pattern makes an ideal knitmate for a pull-on sweater skirt.

Home Purchased From Estate Of Rockefeller

WASHINGTON (WNS) — One-time Democratic presidential candidate R. Sargent Shriver and his wife Eunice Kennedy Shriver this fall will move into the former home of the late former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller on Foxhall Road in the capital.

Developers Rozansky and Kay purchased the entire 27-acre Rockefeller estate for $5.25 million and a spokesman for the firm confirmed that the Shrivers had bought the Rockefeller house, with tennis court and swimming pool, for between $650,000 and $750,000. The original low-ceilinged wooden farmhouse, given an elegant high-ceilinged Georgian addition by the Rockefellers, contains eight bedrooms. The rest of the Rockefeller acreage, with large pond and gazebo, is being developed with a home in the $400,000-up range and will be called Foxhall Crescent, after the Royal Crescent in Bath, England.

House Censures Representative

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today publicly censured Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., making the Michigan Democrat the first member of the House to be so chastized in more than 50 years.

The vote to censure was 414-0 with four members voting "present", meaning they were on the floor but declined to take a stand on the matter. Diggs was among those who voted present.

Diggs then was ordered to the front of the House where House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill pronounced censure.

"Resolved that Rep. Charles C. Diggs is censured ... with the public reading of this resolution," said O'Neill as Diggs stood before him.

O'Neill ordered Diggs to deliver immediately a promissory note of $40,031.66 payable to the U.S. Treasury. That amount is what Diggs earlier agreed to repay for misusing his congressional payroll to pay his personal debts.

And the speaker ordered all Diggs' employees be required to state to the House Ethics Committee that their pay was earned in accordance with House rules, a condition to which Diggs also had agreed.

"The matter is closed," said O'Neill. Diggs then returned to his seat and the House resumed normal business.

The vote came after members of the committee said Diggs had brought discredit to the House by using his clerk-hire allowance to enrich himself.

But committee members argued that Diggs should not be expelled for his actions and urged the House to approve the censure.

Diggs presented no defense. Instead, he yielded his time to Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, who commended the ethics committee for performing a difficult job.

There was little fire in the oratory preceding the vote. Most committee members defended their decision to censure rather than expel Diggs.

Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., told the House "Diggs has dishonored himself and more importantly, he has dishonored the House."

But while Cheney said he thought Diggs should resign his seat "as the only honorable course of action," he argued that the House should not override the votes of Diggs' constitutents by expelling the veteran legislator.

Diggs was re-elected to Congress last year. His re-election came months after he was convicted in federal court of mail fraud and making false statements. He currently is appealing that decision.

Censure is the strongest punishment the House can impose short of expulsion. Two Republican-led efforts to expel the former chairman of the House Black Caucus have failed.

Eighteen members of the House have been censured in the history of the republic. The last was Rep. Thomas L. Blanton, D-Texas, who was censured in 1921 for inserting "obscene language" in the Congressional Directory. Blanton actually abbreviated all the allegedly obscene words.

The vote for censure was the result of an agreement last month between Diggs and the House Ethics Committee. In that agreement, Diggs admitted he violated a House rule by inflating the salaries of some of his congressional employees and of accepting kickbacks from them to pay his personal debts.

He agreed to accept censure, to repay $40,031.66 to the U.S. Treasury and to apologize for his actions.

That agreement came after the committee rejected repeated efforts by Diggs to halt or at least postpone any investigation of his activities until he completed his ferderal conviction appeals.

Diggs was convicted last year of mail fraud and making false statements in connection with the operation of his House staff payroll. He was sentenced to three years in jail but remains free while pursuing his appeals.

Mechanic Testifies On DC-10 Disaster

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — American Airlines mechanics routinely sidestepped company maintenance procedures because they could not be followed to the letter, according to one mechanic testifying at a hearing on the nation's worst air disaster.

Tulsa-based mechanic William R. Robinson appeared Monday on the first day of hearings before a National Transportation Safety Board panel investigating the May 25 crash of a DC-10 airliner at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

The hearings were to resume today with three other American Airlines mechanics and an inspector to testify further on how American's wide-bodied DC-10s were maintained. The bulk of the testimony on Monday addressed that issue.

Robinson, who worked on the doomed DC-10 during its last maintenance check at a Tulsa, Okla., facility in March, said he and other mechanics did not follow the exact sequence of steps in a work order issued by American. That order outlined the procedure for removing the engine from the pylon, which is attached to the wing.

He said the company's directive for removing the engine and the pylon could not be followed step by step. He said he performed the tasks out of order without telling his supervisor.

Michael Marx, an NTSB metals expert, said the method of removing the engine and pylon described by Robinson caused a crack in the support structure. Such a crack caused the port engine of the DC-10 that crashed at Chicago to fall away on takeoff.

Marx also told the panel that American saved about 50 man hours of time on each engine it serviced in that way.

Marx, in often complicated and technical remarks, said American maintenance crews removed both the engine and its supporting pylon as a unit, rather than separately as instructed.

Then, in order to reattach the engine to the wing, the maintenance men had to force the bolting mechanism to fit, thus causing a bend in the engine mounting structure and eventually a crack, he said.

"It's just common sense that they (mechanics) could very well have caused the crack then (when reattaching the engine)," Marx said. "That deformation had to be made while this thing (the engine pylon) was detached."

The engine should be removed from the wing separately from the pylon to reduce stress on the metal, according to McDonnell Douglas specifications.

Also testifying Monday was Richard Shaftic, supervisor at the O'Hare traffic control tower the day of the crash. He said he watched the DC-10 take off and thought it was under control and was returning to land.

"We were not aware that he had lost the whole engine," Shaftic said. "As we observed the pullout, it appeared he had control of the vehicle.

"We have several times the last four or five months seen DC-10s with engine problems," he said. "A United DC-10 taking off for LA (Los Angeles) shut down one engine and returned for landing. There was no problem."

President Names New Economic Advisor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today nominated R. Robert Russell as new director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, the president's anti-inflation agency.

Russell, an economics professor from California, will take over as acting director of the council Aug. 4, the day after the present director, Barry Bosworth, leaves after two years as director.

The nomination of Russell, who has been deputy council director for the past year, must be approved by the Senate.

Alfred E. Kahn, chairman of the council and the president's chief anti-inflation adviser, praised Russell as "a superb economist" with "good common sense."

Kahn said Russell "has lived with the inflation program day and night this past year, and his appointment is a tribute to the success of that program ... in restraining our basic rate of inflation."

Carter administration sources familiar with the council hailed the selection. "Russell has been Bosworth's alter ego," said one official who asked to remain anonymous. "The selection insures continuity."

That continuity will be needed as the wage-price program enters its second year Oct. 1. Bosworth, with Russell's help, put the initial guidelines in place and wrote the many modifications in the first few months.

Second-year changes in the guidelines are expected to be refinements of the first-year guideline goals. But pressures on the council could increase as businesses and unions push for higher prices and higher wages as inflation continues at rates in excess of 10 percent.

Besides developing the guidelines, the council is responsible for checking periodic reports from 1,400 corporations, reviewing new union contracts and approving exceptions to the pay and price standards.

Russell, 41, became deputy director of the council a year ago. That required a leave of absence from the University of California at San Diego, where he was a professor of economics.

Russell had previously announced that he would leave the council this fall to take a one-year teaching position at a Canadian university before returning to California. Council sources said he changed his mind when the council directorship was offered to him.

Bosworth wants to leave the council after a two-year stint in part "because of the time it has taken from his family," sources said.

If his nomination is approved, Russell will oversee both policy-making and monitoring at the anti-inflation council.

The Carter administration has sought a $8.5 million budget for the council in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Administration sources have indicated that for the second year of the guidelines program, Russell and Bosworth are considering a cumulative, two-year standard. This would "reward" businesses and workers who complied with the first year of the program.

Congress Faces Showdown On Canal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a deadlne fast approaching, the House and Senate may be headed for a standoff about legislation needed to operate the Panama Canal for the next 20 years.

The House voted 308-98 Monday to insist its version be implemented when House and Senate conferees meet to work out a final version of the implementing legislation.

The Senate, when passing its version last week, said the Hoase bill violates terms of the Panama Canal treaties by which the canal will be turned over to Panamanian control by 2000.

The treaties are effective Oct. 1, and a number of steps must be taken before then to establish the administrative structure by which the canal is to operate for the next 20 years.

But Congress is scheduled to recess at the end of the week and will not return until Sept. 5.

Opponents of the move to insist the House restrictions warned that if the implementing bill is not enacted by Oct. 1, Panama will have the right according to the treaties to take over the canal immediately.

"This bill will at least keep it out of General (Omar) Torrijos' hands until the year 2000," said Rep. David Bowen, D-Miss., referring to the former Panamanian president.

Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., warned the House and Senate could be heading for "some kind of standoff."

The treaties provide for Panama to take control of the canal in the year 2000. The implementing legislation is intended to guide the transition during the next 20 years.

The implementing bill establishes a commission to operate the canal during the transition period. It also deals with the transfer of property to Panama, employment protection for U.S. workers in the canal zone and payments from toll revenues.

The House vote Monday was to instruct its conferees not to yield concerning several provisions the House considers vital.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., who offered the instruction motion, said the most important provision is that the canal commission be an agency of the federal government and that it be required to obtain annual congressional approval for its operating budget.

Tax Cut Support Called Historic

WASHINGTON (UPI) -Minority leader Howard Baker calls it "little short of historic" that all 41 Senate Republicans joined in support of a tax-cut package.

But Monday's introduction of an bill to give tax relief to small savers and big businesses stands little chance of passage, at least in its present form, and probably not at all this year, staff aides say.

"The Democrats are not too inclined to let Republican tax proposals become law"' one GOP aide said. "But that doesn't mean we can't tack it on" as a rider to essential legislation.

The tax proposal, developed by Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., was another example of Republicans taking aim at President Carter and the current recession.

Today 25 conservative Republicans asked the Budget Committee to make room in its forthcoming revised budget resolution for a general tax cut.

"We are not proposing tax cuts to pump up consumer demand," they said. "We are proposing tax cuts to increase the savings and investments necessary to reduce inflation, increase productivity and expand real economic growth."

Last week the Senate Republicans proposed a broad policy of cutting inflation and taxes and increasing productivity and Monday's legislation was a specific remedy they proposed.

A tax cut for individuals, which does not have unanimous support among Republicans, may be proposed as an amendment to President Carter's windfall profits tax on oil companies when the Senate returns from its August recess.

Opponents of such a move argue that individual tax cuts would promote even more inflation than now exists. The Danforth proposal would provide tax deductions on savings account interest, accelerated depreciation for recovering capital costs and a 10 percent tax credit for business research and development.

"We are committed to the concepts, but are flexible on the details," Danforth said, adding that the GOP sponsors "are open to suggestions and willing to modify our proposals."

Baker said the rare GOP unanimity "is a statement of the Republican Party's sense of responsibility ... It's a statement of confidence in ourselves and our country. It's little short of historic."

Power Blackout Hits Northeast

BOSTON (AP) — A power failure that left some 400,000 residents of Massachusetts and Rhode Island without electricity was caused by a tree falling on a power line and a mechanical failure at a generating plant, utility officials say.

The outage Monday, which lasted for up to two hours in dozens of cities and towns — including Boston, Worcester, Mass., and Providence, R.I., — was the most widespread outage to hit the region in years, officials said.

John Stevens, a vice president of Boston Edison, said the blackout was triggered when a tree fell across a 345,000-volt power line that linked Massachusetts and Rhode Island with Connecticut.

About a half hour later, a malfunctioning trouble alarm shut down a large generator in Everett, Mass., causing an overload at another generator.

Stevens said the breakdowns of the transmission line and power plant were coincidental.

Station Owners Protest Gas Price Regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department is scrambling to revise recent gasoline price rules as angry service station owners plan a Wednesday protest march on the White House.

At issue is a new Energy Department rule requiring dealers to post profit margins for public inspection.

"It's degrading and unnecessary. Other businessmen don't have to do that," said Risque Harper, spokesman for the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, which represents 60,000 independent service stations nationwide.

Energy Department sources, who asked anonymity, said the department plans revisions, probably by Wednesday, allowing station operators simply to certify they are not exceeding legal profit ceilings.

But dealers can expect no revision in the department's main ruling which set a uniform 15.4 cent-per-gallon profit margin. Moreover, department sources say the ceiling also will apply to about 25,000 gasoline wholesalers and refinery-owned service stations not included by the price rules announced earlier this month.

In related developments:

— Congressional leaders worked today to win House approval of a standby gasoline rationing plan for Senate action which eliminates a previously approved provision for congressional veto of any rationing plan in advance. A vote was expected this afternoon.

—The House Monday approved and sent to the Senate a $3.4 billion appropriation for energy development, including a symbolic $1.5 billion for future federal purchase of synthetic fuels. The measure also provides money for conservation, development of shale oil reserves and conversion of coal to oil.

—New York analysts say world oil supplies are just about meeting demand again, a reason for the virtual disappearance of long gasoline lines. But the analysts said the stable condition might not last because militant foreign oil producers are cutting supplies to support higher export price levels.

Meanwhile, patrons of Sohio, Boron and BP gas stations in 12 states and the District of Columbia have been hit with another price increase, Sohio announced Monday.

Prices for all grades of gasoline at company-operated stations were raised three cents a gallon in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Kentucky, and four cents a gallon in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Delare, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, said officials of the Cleveland-based firm.

Wholesale prices to independent dealers were raised similarly in both sales regions, Sohio officials said.

And in Congress, Republican members of the Senate Judiciary Committe blasted a proposal from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to restrict major oil company mergers in a bid to encourage more oil and gas exploration. By Kennedy's proposal, the 16 largest U.S. oil firms would be prohibited from acquiring other firms worth more than $100 million.

"We are hoodwinking ourselves if we think legislation like this is going to create energy supplies," said Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss.

In another gasoline-related matter, the Federal Trade Commission said Monday its investigation into alleged antitrust violations by Shell Oil Co. has been closed. The commisson was investigating whether Shell allowed dealers to buy unleaded gasoline, which was in short supply, only if they bought a minimum amount of leaded fuel.

The commission sent a letter to Shell's Houston headquarters saying that during its bureau of competition's investigation of the matter during December 1978, "Shell discontinued the alleged practice. ... Further investigation now is not warranted."

Hospital District's Committees To Question Management Firm

Health Sciences Center Hospital's new management firm gets down to business Wednesday as their representatives meet with both the Administrative and Joint Conference Committees for the Lubbock County Hospital District.

Administrative Committee members, who meet at 2 p.m., have scheduled an executive session early in the meeting to interview Brookwood's recommended choice for executive director during their 90-day trial period. Committee chairman Don McInturff said the Brookwood administrator will lay out his philosophy for the group.

Brookwood's director of hospital development, Robert Berryman, will attend the meeting as well as four other key administrative personnel from the Alabama management firm.

The committee is also expected to make a decision on whether or not to repair two aging Emergency Medical Services (EMS) units. It is estimated that repair work for the vehicles would cost between $1,500 and $2,000, while replacing the units would run close to $35,000.

McInturff has said that if the county hospital district waits too long to authorize the repairs, emergency health care could suffer.

Members of the Joint Conference Committee — LCHD board members as well as Texas Tech medical school representatives — will meet at 3 p.m. and are also scheduled to have a discussion with the management firm.

Medical school officials have a high interest in the hiring of the management firm, which has announced it will probably initiate large staff cutbacks at the hospital to reduce the staff-to-patient ratio. Dr. Richard Lockwood, vice president for Health Sciences Centers and chairman of the Joint Conference Committee, has expressed on several occasions his concern for maintaining those services necessary for the hospital's role as a primary teaching facility.

Though already approved by the Board of Managers for the LCHD, Brookwood Medical Services must also pass a vote of the Lubbock County Commissioners. The commissioners have tentatively planned to vote on the firm at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Local Operators Angry, Confused

Local reaction to the U.S. Department of Energy's new guideline requiring retail gasoline dealers to post their profit margins for public inspection range from anger to confusion.

Ken Sescil, owner of Ken's Exxon at 4865 Ave. H, said he doesn't think it is right to make dealers display their per-gallon profits on pumps.

"I don't feel it's anybody's business to know what we're making," he said, adding that he believes the guideline will hurt the effectiveness of marketing his gas in the Lubbock area.

"It may hurt us if motorists see us making 15 cents while the station across the street is making only 10 cents," he said.

"And there'll be some problems if there's a big spread in the profit margins of the big oil companies and the independents."

C.W. Hill, owner of Clarence's Texaco at 5002 Slide Road, said he thinks the guideline is a waste of taxpayers' money.

"Everybody wants to know what everybody else is making," he said. "Besides, I don't think it will help anybody."

Wesley Cox, owner of the Mobil station at 50th Street and Quaker Avenue, wasn't aware of the new requirement.

"There would be a lot of questions asked," he said. "I don't believe it is right, but I guess we'll have to live with it."

"I haven't heard anything about it," said Willie Anderson, owner of the Villa 66 station at 5705 Ave. Q. "But I wouldn't object to it because everybody will have to do it."

Andrews Mishap Claims Life Of Hobbs Woman

ANDREWS (Special) — A Hobbs woman was killed and a Miami Springs, Fla., man critically injured about 5:55 p.m. Monday on Farm Road 1788, 14 1/2 miles northeast of Andrews.

Candice Hoofnagle, 29, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Justice of the Peace G.A. Ragsdale.

William McLeash, 52, another passenger in the car, remained in critical condition today at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa with head and chest injuries suffered in the mishap.

Frank Martin Hoofnagle of Hobbs, driver of the 1974 Volkswagen station wagon, was not injured in the accident.

Hoofnagle was traveling north on FM 1788 when the left rear tire of the vehicle blew out, according to Department of Public Safety reports. Hoofnagle lost control of the car, ran off the roadway and overturned 1 1/2 times.

The woman was thrown from the vehicle and pinned under the car, reports show.

She was taken to Singleton Funeral Home in Andrews.

Man Pleads Guilty To Burglaries

A 34-year-old Lubbock man today pleaded guilty to two charges of burglary of a habitation and was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary.

Antonio Chapa Chavez of 2419 E. Broadway Ave., No. 18, pleaded guilty to a March 11 burglary in Idalou in which a watch, digital clock and some clothing were taken and to a March 10 burglary on Route 3 in which a sewing machine, a stereo and some firearms were stolen.

District Judge Denzil Bevers of the 72nd District Court pronounced sentence after Chavez pleaded guilty.

Rape Prevention Seminar Will Study Precautions

A Sept. 30 rape prevention seminar to be called The Rape Crisis will emphasize personal responsibility to reduce a woman's chances of becoming a rape victim.

At a second planning meeting for the seminar, which will be in the Civic Center Theater, chairman Becky Mahan said women will be urged to take the responsibility for their own safety.

Although information will be presented at the seminar about securing a home or apartment, Miss Mahan said the locks and hardware are no good if they are unused.

There is a good chance a paroled rapist will participate in the seminar, she said, since the Texas Department of Corrections refused to allow an imprisoned rapist to appear.

There is a possibility a rape victim will discuss her experience, Miss Mahan said.

Preble Davis, a Lubbock apartment owner, showed seminar organizers a list of features prospective renters should notice before deciding to move into a house or apartment.

Renters should be educated to look for a good deadbolt lock, well-fitted doors, windows with locks and adequate lighting outside the house or apartment, she said.

That security check list will be made available to seminar participants, as will information about effective locks.

The carpenters union local has expressed an interest to offer lock installations at a discount to those who attend the seminar, Mayor Dirk West said, and he is hopeful locks also can be made available at a discount price.

Police Sgt. Butch Hargrave said although the seminar is aimed at prevention of rape, the suggested security measures also are effective for burglary and other crime preventions.

Ultimately, apartment owners, real estage agents, builders and the person on the street are going to benefit from the seminar, Hargrave said.

Feds To Preside In Carlsbad Case

CARLSBAD, N.M. (UPI) — Apparently ending three weeks of indecision, federal officials have again assumed jurisdiction in a case arising from the armed takeover by four Texas men of a subterranean room at Carlsbad Caverns National Park.

Eugene Hiram Meroney, 31, William Charles Lovejoy, 28, and David W. Kuczynski, 28, all of Odessa, and Dennis James Mark, 39, of Riesel, were arrested on federal misdemeanor charges when they surrended following a 5½ hour armed takeover of the underground cafeteria at the national park July 10.

The suspects were to appear today before U.S. Magistrate E. Ray Phelps in Roswell, N.M.

State District Judge John Walker Monday granted a writ of habeus corpus, which Eddy County District Attorney Michael McCormick said "meant that the prisoners were released from state charges."

U.S. Attorney R.E. Thompson said in Albuquerque his office had issued federal warrants earlier Monday charging the suspects with damage to federal property and aiding and abetting in the damage to federal property. The charges are misdemeanors, carrying maximum penalties of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

McCormick said the suspects were arrested on the federal warrants immediately after the state charges were dropped.

The judge's action apparently ended three weeks of indecision about jurisdiction in the case, which had been bounced back and forth between federal and state officials.

During the takeover, four men held a park employee as a hostage. About 100 tourists were trapped in an adjacent room.

The purpose of the takeover was not fully clear, although the gunmen presented a rambling list of grievances and at one time demanded $1 million in cash and an airliner to Brazil.

To secure release of the hostage, FBI agents who negotiated the surrender of the four men promised they would be charged only with misdemeanors.

After they surrendered, federal officials later determined there was a jurisdictional problem and decided that the suspects should be arraigned on state misdemeanor charges.

But at their arraignment, District Judge Harvey W. Fort of Carlsbad refused to accept the misdemeanor charges and the Eddy County District Attorney's office filed state felony charges of kidnapping and aggravated assault against the suspects.

Attorneys for the suspects challenged the state action, filing the motion for a writ of habeus corpus so the men could again face federal misdemeanor charges as they had originally been promised.

'Politics' Given Blame For Center's Problems

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas, blamed "politics" today for much of his troubles at a child care home in Malakoff operated by him and his family.

"There's no doubt about it," Smothers told a Capitol news conference, "there is a clear implication that my appearing with (evangelist Lester) Roloff in Corpus Christi had something to do with it."

Smothers said he was a supporter of an unsuccessful bill in the recent legislative session that would have let Roloff's chld care homes operate without a license.

However, he said this would not have affected St. Paul Industrial Training School which is operated by Smothers and other members of his family as a state-licensed institution. The so-called Roloff bill applied only to church-operated homes.

"There's dozens and dozens of lily-white child care homes out there that have not been attacked. Mine is the only black child care home. Doesn't that tell you something?" Smothers said emotionally.

Smothers said he does not blame the state Department of Human Resources for his troubles and thinks they are trying to help him.

Department investigators found more than 40 alleged violations of state standards in a June 21 visit. Smothers said all violations had not been cleared up in a recheck last Friday and Monday.

"The DHR will be back in late August to look again. As long as you are trying they are not going to close you up. I should meet the standards by the last part of August," he said.

Wording To Be Altered In NRC Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The author of a blistering House subcommittee report charging the Nuclear Regulatory Commission with misleading and lulling the public into complacency about atomic reactor accidents agreed today to tone down the language.

The House Government Operations Committee, divided along pro-and anti-nuclear lines, approved changes in the still unpublished report of its energy subcommittee, altering more than 50 instances of sharp wording, modifying 17 of 24 recommendations and entirely dropping the most provocative language in the summary of the 68-page report.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., head of the subcommitee and principal author of the report, agreed to the changes, conceding, "It might have been a mistake to summarize in one or two pages the whole report."

The full committee adjourned until Thursday when it will consider further amendments to the report language.

The report does not have the force of law.

The summary of the draft, obtained by UPI, said as a result of a study conducted after the Three Mile Island nuclear accident last March, performance of the NRC, Utilities and state and local governments was "found inadequate at all levels."

The report said:

"The committee concluded that a principal cause of the inadequacy was the lack of strong, constructive leadership of the NRC. Rather than leading, the NRC has mislead the American people as to the need for planning for nuclear accidents and lulled utilities and state and local government officials into complacency. The NRC, in short, has created an illusion of protection."

An NRC spokesman said the agency had not seen the report and would have no immediate comment.

Forty-one of the nation's 70 commercial nuclear reactors are in the 16 states that do not have NRC-approved emergency evacuation plans. The subcommittee recommended that the NRC refuse to allow new plants to be built in those states.

Since the March 28 Pennsylvania accident, these states have asked the NRC for assistance in developing emergency plans, and the Senate has passed legislation requiring the plans to be enforced by next June 1, the target the NRC said could be met.

Housing Costs Outpace Inflation

RENO, Nev. (AP) — American home buyers will get less and less for their money because housing prices will continue to rise even faster than the general inflation rate, according to the head of a national appraisers organization.

Charles L. Osenbaugh, president of the 19,000-member Society of Real Estate Appraisers, also said Monday that the energy crisis is making energy-efficient homes more valuable and that homes in general will continue to be a good investment.

Osenbaugh said soaring labor costs, combined with a fixed amount of land, will keep home prices jumping.

The current high inflation rate will also fuel housing inflation, Osenbaugh said, because builders are cutting back, leading to a future shortage of homes.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Mart Makes Strong Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market put together a strong advance today as the dollar strengthened and the price of gold fell.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.20 to 843.94 by noontime

Gainers led losers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The dollar gained ground in foreign exchange activity today, and the price of gold, which recently reached record levels above $300 an ounce, fell more than $5 in London.

Those developments followed statements Monday by Paul Volcker, President Carter's nominee as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, that fighting inflation would be his No. 1 priority, even if it meant higher interest rates.

Stock prices and the dollar rallied last week when Carter chose Volcker.

Pan American World Airways led the active list, unchanged at 8. Blocks of 140,000 and 100,000 shares traded at that price.

Chrysler, which posted a $207.1 million loss for the second quarter, dropped ¼ to 8¼.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index climbed .26 to 59.05. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .33 at 198.97.

Huge Losses Hit Chrysler For Quarter

DETROIT (AP) — Struggling Chrysler Corp. said today it lost $207 million in the second three months of the year, more than it lost in all of last year. That was about what Wall Street analysts had expected.

The company's top executives, citing government regulations, said for the first time there was a possibility of "reduced competition in the industry" because of government regulations — a hint that the company might go out of business or sharply curtail operations.

Other analyses have reached a similar conclusion, but Chrysler executives have not personally agreed with it publicly before.

As they have before, Chrysler Chairman John Riccardo and President Lee A. Iacocca said in their announcement that gasoline shortages, higher prices and uncertainty of future gasoline supplies were to blame for their slower sales.

That brought Chrysler's deficit to $261 million for the first six months of this year, or $4.26 per share. Combined with a 1978 loss of $205 million, the company has lost $466 million in 18 months.

The loss amounted to $3.31 per share of common stock compared with a profit of $30.5 million or 51 cents a share in the second quarter of 1978.

Worldwide sales for the second quarter amounted to $3.15 billion from 485,564 vehicles, down 16 percent in dollars and 25 percent in vehicles from the $3.75 billion and 648,916 vehicles recorded in the second quarter of last year.

For the six months, sales totaled $6.46 billion on 986,649 vehicles, down 4.1 percent in dollars and 15 percent in vehicles from the comparable 1978 figures of $6.73 billion and 1,162,302 vehicles.

Riccardo and Iacocca repeated their belief that pollution and mileage regulations were unfair to Chrysler because it had to spread the costs over a smaller number of cars than Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp.

Saying Chrysler faced "an extremely difficult situation," the two executives said they had pressed "the urgent need for corrective action in order to avoid further concentration and reduction of competition in the industry" on Washington officials. The Chrysler officials said they had discerned "indications from Washington that some remedial actions are being considered."

The United Auto Workers union already has called for massive government help to Chrysler and ruled the company out of consideration as a strike target in the current labor negotiations.

UAW President Douglas Fraser called for the federal government to take a $1 billion ownership interest.

Pastor Angry Over Refusal

CLYDE (UPI) — The pastor of a Baptist church is upset because the U.S. Air Force, which airlifted bodies of the Peoples Temple massacre to the United States, refused to aid five missionaries injured in a plane crash in St. Croix.

The Rev. Bill Keck tried for three days to convince the government to help return the injured crash victims to Texas where they could receive better medical care.

Finally, a private air ambulance service from Austin returned the victims at no charge.

"It seems very ironic to me that our government can spend millions of dollars to fly dead people back from Guyana, some who even renounced their government, and couldn't spend anything to fly five wounded people home," he said.

The five were injured July 24 when a Virgin Islands commuter plane carrying 12 Baptist missionairies crashed on takeoff at St. Croix. Five were killed, and seven injured.

Drilling Payroll Checks Stolen

BIG SPRING (UPI) — Although a canceled $250 check has been recovered, police say they still have no suspects for the theft of about $97,000 in payroll checks written by a Wichita Falls drilling firm.

Police believe the 184 checks probably were stolen last Wednesday from the Greyhound Bus Terminal.

The checks, written on FWA Drilling Co. accounts at the First Wichita National Bank, were in a payroll bag inside a suitcase which disappeared from the terminal.

A $250 check recently was cashed at a Safeway grocery store, police said.

Det. Dave Spilman, a member of the police department's major crimes task force which is receiving assistance in the case from the Texas Rangers, said there are no suspects.

The FWA Drilling Co. is a subsidiary of the Texas Oil and Gas Co. headquartered in Dallas.

Construction Closes City Intersections

The intersections at Texas Avenue and Fifth Street, and Texas Avenue and Sixth Street will be closed to traffic beginning Wednesday, the highway department has announced.

The closures are necessary because of underpass and approaches construction near Fifth Street, officials said. Traffic will be routed onadjacent streets.

Officials suggested motorists avoid the affected intersections if possible.

20 Transport Planes Delivered To Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence sources say the Soviet Union has completed delivery of 20 new turboprop transport planes to Cuba.

The sources said the new planes will give Cuba a somewhat improved troop-carrying capability.

Delivery of the AN-26 Curl transport planes began last fall and was completed last week under a complex arms deal made between Cuba and the Russians in early 1977.

Intelligence officials said the replacement of the older-model, Soviet-built transport planes in Cuba's air force represents no significant threat to nations in Central and South America and certainly not to the United States.

Exercises Can Help Relieve Pressures

NEW YORK (AP) — About 20 minutes a day of mind and body exercises can help executives relieve pressures that attack their productivity and creative abilities, an American Management Association conference was told recently by Dr. William T. Kennedy.

Kennedy, a research fellow at Harvard Medical School's Division of Behavorial Medicine, cited typical stress factors that were listed by executives in his stress reduction workshop at AMA's 50th Annual Human Resources Conference here.

He says they are: time management, travel, work-personal relationships, training new employees, lack of adequate staffing, and the time to be one's self.

"Stress is one of the greatest roadblocks to the creative process," says Kennedy.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Generally favorable growing conditions in the corn and soybean belt pushed grain and soybean futures lower for the second straight trading session, today, on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Needed rains throughout corn-and soybean-growing areas continued to depress futures prices. An absence of new export business also contributed to bearish sentiment on the trading floor.

Sharply lower silver prices encouraged some selling. Traders said a stronger dollar, one stimulus for the decline in metals bids, could reduce the bullish effects of inflation on farm commodity prices and could diminish export demand for U.S. produce as well.

Committees Uphold Carter's Nominees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee today unanimously approved President Carter's choice of Benjamin R. Civiletti to be attorney general.

The action came as the Senate moved rapidly to confirm appointments to Carter's revamped Cabinet, including a planned vote today on the nomination of Charles W. Duncan to succeed James R. Schlesinger as energy secretary.

Civiletti, now deputy attorney general, was opposed at confirmation hearings last week by Hispanic leaders who said he had neglected police brutality cases.

He met with the Hispanics afterward and agreed to appoint a committee to advise him on such cases and on other matters of concern to Hispanics.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Judiciary Comittee, said, "There were important issues raised with regard to his sensitivity to Hispanic concerns" but "I think he showed a responsiveness and interest and sensitivity that are extremely important and very encouraging."

Civiletti's nomination to succeed Attorney General Griffin B. Bell is expected to reach the Senate floor later this week.

The Judiciary Committee also confirmed the nomination of Alan Parker, counsel to the House Judiciary Committee, to succeed Patricia M. Wald as assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's relations with Congress.

Duncan won unanimous approval Monday from the Senate Energy Committee after the 52-year-old former Coca-Cola president, now deputy defense secretary, assured senators he had been promised direct access to the president.

"I have a clear understanding that I will report directly to the president," said Duncan in an effort to assure senators that he, not the White House staff, "will deal with policy."

Duncan also promised to cooperate with Congress to create "the broadest possible national consensus" on energy matters.

Carter's choice to head the Federal Reserve Board, Paul A. Volcker, appeared Monday before the Senate Banking Committee. Volcker's widely acclaimed appointment differs from the six Cabinet nominations in that the board is answerable only to Congress.

"I want to be clear that the monetary policies ultimately are those of the federal reserve and they might clash at some point . .. with what the administration (believes) are appropriate in particular circumstances," Volcker told the panel.

Only two nominees, both announced Friday, have yet to go before Senate committees. Still to appear are former New Orleans Mayor Moon Landrieu, named secretary of housing and urban development, and Portland, Ore., Mayor Neil Goldschmidt, appointed secretary of transportation.

The appointment of Patricia Roberts Harris, former HUD secretary, to be secretary of health, education and welfare already has won Senate confirmation.

The one nomination likely to reach the floor this week, besides Duncan and Civiletti, was that of Tresury Secretary-designate G. William Miller.

The Senate Finance Committee has been holding hearings on Miller, former Federal Reserve chairman. Volcker's nomination as Miller's successor also could go to the floor this week after a Banking Committee vote, expected Wednesday.

When confirmed, the six new Cabinet members will join the six who remained after the shake-up — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps and Labor Secretary F. Ray Marshall. All were appointed in January 1977, when Carter first took office.

EMERGES FROM HIDING — Shahpour Bakhtiar, the last prime minister appointed by the Shah of Iran before the monarch's ouster, speaks to newsmen in Paris today. Bakhtiar denounced the new Moslem regime. (AP Laserphoto) tent ... No religious personality can put the country back on its feet. We have neither independence nor liberty."

Expressing his view on mixing religion and politics, he said, "Mullahs, back to the mosques." Mullahs are Moslem priests.

On Monday night, a spokesman for Bakhtiar said the former prime minister soon would announce his return to "active political life" for the Aug. 3 elections in Iran for a 73-member assembly, which is to adopt a constitution making Iran an Islamic republic based on Khomeini's fundamentalist principles.

The spokesman said "almost all the non-religious opposition parties" in Iran had asked Bakhtiar to head an opposition movement.

But Bakhtiar said today he had no plans to return to Iran to lead a list of non-religious candidates in the elections, or to set up a government in exile, or to form an opposition political party outside the country.

"I don't believe in the Islamic republic, so why should I present candidates," he said.

The revolutionary government in Iran has decreed that candidates for the assembly must "believe in the Islamic republican order of Iran."

Secular political groups in Iran have complained increasingly of Khomeini's transformation of the country along strict Moslem lines, and of the free rein that local revolutionary committees and militias maintain in defiance of government efforts to impose central authority over the nation.

In Iran today, an Islamic revolutionary court firing squad in the central city of Isfahan executed a man accused of killing a revolutionary guardsman in April, state radio reported.

Schlesinger Backs Tax On Huge Oil Profits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring that the United States is running out of time, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger today urged the Senate Finance Committee to approve the windfall oil profits tax.

Schlesinger said the revenues from the tax are needed to help finance development of alternate sources of energy.

"The problems we face today are very serious," Schlesinger said. "We are running out of time."

Schlesinger said it would be difficult to achieve President Carter's target of keeping imports under 8.5 million barrels a day, but it was not impossible.

He said the nation spent $42 billion for imported oil in 1978, and predicted Americans would spend $60 billion this year and $70 billion in 1980 — and even more if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries raises prices again.

He also conceded under questioning the administration has no comprehensive energy plan, but added, "A comprehensive energy plan is difficult to achieve simply because it touches everyone."

The committee was not expected to act on the oil profits bill before Congress leaves later this week for its traditional August vacation.

Carter appealed to the public last week to put pressure on the committee and the Senate not to weaken the 60 percent windfall oil profits tax already passed by the House.

The windfall is occuring because of Carter's decision to start a phased deregulation of domestic oil production, effective last June 1, letting the price of U.S. oil production rise slowly to world price levels.

Some members favor eliminating the tax on certain hard-to-reach oil and granting tax credits on profits invested in energy production.

But the administration claims such amendments would cost some $54 billion of the anticipated $145 billion revenue from the windfall profts tax over the next five years.

Carter wants those revenues to be funneled through an energy trust fund to aid poor people hit hardest by higher energy bills, to expand urban rapid mass transportation systems, and to develop alterate energy sources.

But there is considerable bipartisan opposition to using the special tax revenues for social purposes. That opposition was so strong, in fact, the House agreed only to establish the fund, postponing a decision on how it would be used.

Panel Approves Mennonite Bill

House side," said Budowsky. "All these private bills are uphill."

But, he said the merits of the bill were recognized by the committee members and he hopes the full Senate and House will consider the same merits.

The current legislation was preceded by a bill introduced by Bentsen and Sen. James Eastland of Mississippi in 1978 to aid the Mennonites, but that legislation died in committee.

Budowsky said he thought the current bill came through the committee proceedings due to several factors.

"Senator Bentsen was very active in trying to get the committee to face the bill," he said. "There were consistently a lot of things up before the committee before that were very controversial, and they never really focused on this bill."

Budowsky said that the bill also survived due to the support of Sen. Edward Kennedy, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and because of "a lot of national press attention."

Said Budowsky, "I think the strongest thing going for it (the bill) is that it gives people who really deserve it this consideration."

The legislative aide said the bill will probably technically be on the Senate calendar on Wednesday, which means "it is within the discretion of the majority leader to call it up at any time."

But he said bill likely will not be considered until after the congressional recess which begins Saturday and lasts for about five weeks.

Though the Mennonites purchased a 10-section ranch near Seminole when they arrived in this country, the members of the quiet agricultural community were told by Immigration and Naturalizztion Service this spring to to find other jobs certified as skilled labor in order to remain in this country.

They have since found such jobs, but in the interim, they lost their property through defaulting on a land payment.

In his statement, Bentsen said the colony came to the United States "after they were misled into believing that they would be allowed to live here if they purchased land."

"Unfortunately, the group has been misinformed and they found themselves subject to the possibility of deportation, despite their numerous good faith efforts to comply with American law."

House Gets Ration Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite heavy lobbying from the White House and Democratic leaders, the fate of a standby gas-rationing bill remained clouded today as the House approached another showdown vote on the measure.

Congressional leaders, trying to finish work on the measure this week, sought to remove from the bill an amendment adoped last week giving Congress two chances to block any rationing plan drafted by the president.

Sponsors claimed such a provision is unacceptable and would tie the president's hands.

But getting it removed from the bill was turning out to be more of a problem than the Democratic leadership had hoped.

The amendment had overwhelming Republican support and appeared to still have considerable Democratic backing — despite earlier leadership contentions that many of the 79 Democrats who voted for the amendment last week did so in confusion.

As the House convened today to renew its delberations on the bill, Democratic vote-counters said the vote on a motion to ditch the controversial amendment was too close to call.

That motion was to be made by Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas, but shortly before the vote was to be taken neither Wright nor other Democratic leaders could say how it would turn out, sources said.

White House aides put up a heavy last-minute lobbying campaign in hopes of breaking the logjam.

A source close to the leadership said it was not clear whether the House would continue action on the standby rationing bill if the amendment cannot be defeated.

But, the source said, its retention would make it nearly impossible to send a rationing bill to Carter by the start of the month-long congressional recess that begins Thursday night.

The standby rationing bill is the first piece of Carter's new energy plan to emerge for congressional floor debate.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said the vote would be close but predicted that enough votes could be summoned to reject the GOP-supported amendment.

Area Raked By Storms

homes in the northwest part of Plainview Monday night.

The thunderstorm activity, which was sparked by the movement of a weak cold front across Northwest Texas, was widespread in the South Plains early today, with almost every community reporting precipitation.

A string of communities forming a crescent around Lubbock reported the most rainfall, led by Plainview's 1.55. Spur had 1.33 inches; Crosbyton, 1.06 inches; Matador, 1.01 inches; and Paducah and Post, both .83 of an inch.

According to an unofficial report, Slaton received 1.10 inches of rain, but in Lubbock — despite blustery, dusty winds preceding the storms and spectacular lightning — precipitation was light.

The National Weather Service at the Lubbock Airport measured .21 of an inch of rain at midnight, with the total increasing to .25 of an inch at 7 a.m. today. Downtown Lubbock received .20 of an inch of rain through 9 a.m. today, according to Radio Station KFYO spokesman, while at the station's 82nd Street and Quaker Avenue installation, .21 of an inch was reported.

Early today, scattered thunderstorms were reported continuing over southern portions of the South Plains, moving to the south at 15 mph. The activity was reported stretching from east of Tatum, N.M., to near Abilene and south to Fort Davis, with the strongest thunderstorms centered just south of Lamesa near Seminole.

At 8:30 a.m. today, light showers also were reported in the southwestern Panhandle, spreading into the South Plains as they moved to the east at 10 mph.

With the cold front still moving through the South Plains, Lubbock forecasts show the prospects of cooler, wet weather today and Wednesday. The probability of rain in the Hub City is listed at 60 percent today, 50 percent tonight and 20 percent Wednesday. Temperatures are expected to peak in the mid-80s this afternoon and Wednesday.

The extended South Plains forecast shows a chance of showers and thunderstorms continuing through Friday and ending on Saturday as temperatures again rise to highs in the 90s.

China Prohibits Public Smoking

PEKING (UPI) — Alarmed by the rising rate of cancer deaths, China has banned cigarette smoking by students and taken steps to prohibit Chinese from smoking in public.

Health Minister Zhien Sinzhong issued strict directives to school personnel to keep schoolchildren from smoking, the New China News Agency said Monday.

The ban, issued jointly with the finance, agriculture and light industry ministries, also asked health units across the nation to keep people from smoking in public.

The ministry's directives have been posted on all public halls, the news agency said.

Zhien said lung cancer deaths have increased in Shanghai, Nanking and Peking. In Shanghai, China's largest city with a population of more than 11 million, cancer has increased by five times over the last 15 years, the news agency quoted Zhien as saying.

A study by Peking's Lung Cancer Research Institute has shown that one third of the patients began smoking before they were 20.

HRC Appointee's Race Causes Problems

By RHONA SCHWARTZ
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The appointment of Carolyn Lanier as the city's first female human relations director drew mixed responses Monday from members of the minority communities.

Those opposing the selection of Mrs. Lanier did so on the grounds that she is not bilingual and that she is white, not because she is a woman.

Although her qualifications are very good, HRC member Homero Rodriguez said, her appointment means the Human Relations Commission "has taken a step backwards."

"I don't really feel that the (black and Mexican-American) people can relate to her," he said Monday. "I don't feel the people will feel free to come down and talk with her."

As Human Relations Commission director, Mrs. Lanier will "provide complaint and referral counseling and assist the (city) personnel department and the public information office in recruiting minority applicants for the police and fire departments," said Vaughn Hendrie, the city's community relations director.

She also will help investigate complaints brought to the HRC.

HRC ad hoc committee member Oscar Jones, also a member of the United Political Action League, said of Mrs. Lanier's appointment, "If she is as concerned as I think she is, she might be a very good choice."

He added, however, "there will probably be some initial repercussions" from East Lubbock residents.

"East Lubbock was responsible for getting the HRC formulated in the first place, and there has never been a black director," he said. "Some people were hoping this time one would be chosen."

Rodriguez and fellow HRC member Elton Conger both think choosing Mrs. Lanier was a mistake. They said they wonder how she would react to a riot brewing on the east side and how she could really understand the feelings and problems suffered by blacks and Mexican-Americans.

"I just wonder how she will really do to get the pulse of the communities, not living there and not knowing how they (the minority residents) feel," Rodriguez said.

Most of the people with the problems "hail from (East Lubbock) or from the Hispanic neighborhood," Conger said. "You'd have to live there to be able to empathize and understand."

"We (the HRC) have been arguing with city hall and the city personnel office to hire more Mexican-Americans and blacks and place them in high capacities," Rodriguez said. "Then we turn around and do exactly the opposite."

Although unhappy with the choice, HRC members Rodriguez and Conger both stressed they will work with Mrs. Lanier and give her their full support.

Mrs. Lanier deserves "everyone's cooperation for the betterment of the community," Rodriguez said.

Mrs. Lanier was selected from about 34 applicants of all races primarily because of her "widespread involvement in local issues, her sensitivity to the needs and desires of all segments of the community and her demonstrated ability to get things done," Hendrie said.

"We were fortunate to have received applications from many qualified persons," he added in a prepared statement. "The selection wasn't easy."

HRC chairman Theron Cole and HRC member Ida Alfaro interviewed and evaluated the top five applicants for the directorship.

After interviewing the candidates, Cole said he talked with members of the minority communities who he thought were influential and willing to give a candid opinion of the top candidates.

"I thought it was unfair to base a decision on one interview," he said. "Most were positive to her appointment because of some of the things she has done and her obvious interests in the area.

"She is someone who could get things done," he said, adding, "Mrs. Lanier has our support and we look forward to working with her."

The main arguments against her, according to Cole, were that she is white and not bilingual. But he does not consider those very good criticisms.

"She's got a record of getting things done," he said. "I don't see how we could pass that in an applicant."

Miss Alfaro said she was impressed with Mrs. Lanier's enthusiasm, adding, "I feel she'll be able to accomplish many things (and) I'm confident the commission will be able to work with her very well."

HRC member Bill Crouch said he personally is "quite pleased with the decision." The main thing, he said, is to have "somebody who can work effectively."

Mrs. Lanier, former president of the Lubbock League of Women Voters, said she would comment on the problems she faces "a week after I've started working."

She replaces Luciano Perez, who resigned as HRC director in May to attend law school.

Board Likely To Approve HSCH Contract

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Judging from a survey of several county commissioners, Brookwood Medical Services probably will be approved this week to run Health Sciences Center Hospital — and the vote may be unanimous.

The Lubbock County Hospital District's Board of Managers voted last week to grant Brookwood a 90-day contract to manage the hospital. The Alabama firm was chosen after the board dismissed former executive director Gerald Bosworth and then decided there wasn't enough time to find a new director.

But the actual hiring of the firm depends on a vote of approval from the county commissioners.

Commissioners Coy Boggs and Jim Lancaster indicated they probably will vote to approve the contract. And should commissioners Alton Brazell and Edgar Chance vote against it (they were not available for comment), County Judge Rod Shaw has said he supports the board's decision to hire the firm.

Shaw would cast the deciding vote in case of a tie.

Lancaster predicted the vote will be unanimous in favor of the firm. He sat in on a meeting with Brookwood personnel and representatives from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare last week and came out of it with a good impression of the firm, he said.

Brookwood workers have experience in both community and teaching hospitals, he said, which will benefit Health Sciencs.

"I think we've got to prove ourselves now," Lancaster said, adding that area residents would be more likely to support the hospital if it can be shown that the hospital provides a needed service and is working toward more efficient management.

Biggs said he too probably will vote to hire the management firm, saying that the cost of the firm's service and the relatively short contract make the offer a reasonable one.

"Anybody who would step into a situation like that...must have a lot of confidence in themselves," Biggs said. The board members are a hard-working group he said, and are probably wise in "not jumping from the pan into the fire" by hiring a new administrator right off the bat.

"A lot of people toot their own horns and sell themselves but can't sell their service," Biggs said. "At least in 90 days we'll know."

Shaw also sat in on the HEW meeting and agreed the firm seems to know what it's doing. The board of managers spends more time on management for the hospital than do the commissioners, he said, and should be trusted to make the right decision.

"If the board of managers wants to recommend a management firm to us, I would be inclined to go with the recommendation," Shaw said.

The commissioners are tentatively scheduled to vote on the management firm Thursday at 9 a.m., when they sit as the board of equilization for the county.

Motley County Ag Agent To Retire

MATADOR (Special) — W. C. "Bill" Palmeyer of Matador, Motley County agent since 1953, has announced his retirement from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, effective Aug. 31.

Prior to his work in Motley County, Pallmeyer received Extension Service training in Hall County in 1948 and was county agent two years in Wichita County and two years in Knox County.

As Motley County agent, Pallmeyer is credited with having provided outstanding leadership in field crops and 4-H activities. He has been cited many times for his leadership in youth counseling and has received a Distinguished Service Award from Texas A&M, as well as the Superior Service Award.

Pallmeyer has been active in the development of a peanut production program in Motley County which resulted in increases in income in the Flomot community. As a result of efforts in conducting educational work, peanuts produced in this area are sold almost exclusively for seed due to their high quality.

More recently, Pallmeyer has been active in the organization of the Pest Management Program to carry out early season boll weevil control. As a result of his efforts, a county extension entomologist has been secured to serve Motley, Floyd, Briscoe and Hall counties within the High Plains Diapause Boll Weevil Control Program zone along the Caprock.

Pallmeyer will move with his family following his retirement to Meridian, where he will be in private business.

City Radio Personality Accepts Television Job

Longtime Lubbock radio personality Bob Nash said Monday he is leaving KFYO, where he worked for 27 years, for a Lubbock television station.

Nash, 55, will join KAMC-TV Aug. 13, the station's general manager said Monday. The veteran radio personality will work in advertising and news for the station.

Nash is one of several KFYO veterans to leave the station in recent weeks. Personalities Ed Wilkes, Don Opheim and Jack Dale also have left KFYO since the station changed ownership earlier this year. Dale joined KLRB radio, where Wilkes is part owner.

However, Nash, said his departure was not caused by the change.

"(KAMC) is a better opportunity and when one's 55, you look for better opportunities," Nash said.

Nash's new responsibilities will include spot advertising announcing and anchoring KAMC's noon news broadcast, according to KAMC station manager Bill McAlister.

Also to be determined is Nash's affiliation with Dale and KFYO's broadcasting of Texas Tech University basketball games.

Nash said he will continue working Southwest Conference football games for the Mutual Broadcasting Network, but that it has not been decided whether he will stay with the KFYO basketball broadcasts. Dale had earlier announced he is staying with the broadcasts.

Probation Revoked For Lubbock Man

Probation was revoked and an eight-year penitentiary sentence ordered Monday against a 19-year-old Lubbock man accused in the January abduction of a Lubbock girl.

James Earl Johnson of 1508 E. 10th St. was ordered to prison by 72nd District Judge Denzil Bevers after the 12-year-old girl testified he kidnapped her Jan. 3 as she was walking in the 3300-block of Clovis Road and then sexually abused her.

He was given an eight-year probated sentence for a burglary conviction in November.

Gas Experiment Stalled By Technical Setbacks

SAN BENITO (AP) — An experimental attempt to use gas derived from oil and coal to replace natural gas at a South Texas power plant has been stalled by technical problems.

A Central Power and Light project engineer said Monday the gasification process was shut down in June a few days after it began operation. Mike Shropshire said the $10 million project may be delayed until September while repairs are being made.

CP&L is testing the feasibility of making gas from low quality oil and coal. The resulting gas will be tried as a substitute for increasingly expensive and scarce natural gas at the La Palma power station here. The station's boiler has used natural gas since its opening in 1946.

Shropshire said the major problem was in the "cyclone," a mechanical process used to purify the gas derived from the thick oil and East Texas lignite.

The utility company paid $5 million for the construction of the experimental facility. Foster Wheeler Energy Corp., of New Jersey was granted a $5.7 million federal contract to handle the engineering.

Fred Urich, Foster Wheeler's senior engineer here, said the Environmental Protection Agency is interested in the project as a cleaner gasification process.

Urich said the system being tried here is the only one of its type in the nation.

The system uses a limestone bed to clean the oil or coal.

Urich said the high temperature in the process — up to 1,600 degrees — may have contributed to the cyclone's failure.

Shropshire said there were also minor problems with vibration and insulation. He estimated it will cost up to $12,000 to make the necessary changes before the experiment is resumed.

Brown Becomes Official Presidential Candidate

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., describing himself as a fiscal conservative and an environmental liberal, has issued another challenge to Jimmy Carter.

Brown filed papers Monday with the Federal Elections Commission for a "Brown for President" committee, making him an official candidate — in the commission's eyes, if not his own — for the Democratic nomination for president.

He said Monday at Los Angeles airport before a trip to Mexico City, "My own feeling is that people are ready for an alternative; they're ready for a blend of fiscal responsibility and yet a bold vision for the future.

"Most of the surveys indicate President Carter and I are running very close, even though I've barely even left the state," said Brown before he left for talks with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

Brown said that by beginning now, "We'll have a lot of time to let people get to know me and for me to articulate ideas in such a way that if people like them, fine, and if they don't, I can accept that."

Union Leaders Announce Carter Support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Faced with increasing labor sentiment for Sen. Edward Kennedy, President Carter is beginning to receive union support for a re-election bid.

Leaders of six unions representing 3.2 million workers announced Monday formation of a Labor for Carter-Mondale Committee to begin work immediately to help Carter win the Democratic nomination.

One of the six — Paul Hall, long-time president of the Seafarers International Union — clarified that the group is serious.

"We don't fool around with these things," he told a news conference. "We don't play for fun. We play for keeps as to these elections. ... We're here to fight. We're here to help a guy who is in bad need of help because too many segments of society that should come out front at this moment are ot coming out."

New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne, meanwhile, said Monday he fully expects Kennedy to be elected president someday, but not next year.

Byrne said he supports Carter's re-election.

"... I fully exlect Senator Kennedy at some time to be president of the United States," Bryne said. "(But) I think there has to be something very wrong with Jimmy Carter before Senator Kennedy would become a candidate, and I don't see that happening."

Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., accused those Democrats who are accusing Carter of being faint-hearted. He urged them to stop writing the president's political obituary.

"...I would say to my Democratic colleagues that continual statements of doom and gloom can have a way of becoming self-fulfilling," Huddleston said in a Senate speech.

Today is Tuesday, July 31, the 212th day of 1979 with 153 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo.

American writer John Kent was born July 31, 1763.

On this day in history:

In 1792, Director David Rittenhouse laid the cornerstone in Philadelphia for the United States Mint, the first building of the federal government.

In 1972, Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton withdrew as Democratic vice-presidential nominee, six days after disclosing previous hospitalization and psychiatric treatment.

In 1973, 88 people died in the crash of a Delta Airlines plane in Boston. There was one survivor but he died four months later, making the final death toll 89.

In 1974, John Ehrlichman was sentenced to 20 months in prison for his role in the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

A thought for the day:

American writer Henry Thoreau said, "It takes two to speak the truth; one to speak, the other to hear."

Rangers Obtain Rivers; Oliver Blasts Shakeup

CHICAGO (AP) — Mickey Rivers' moodiness and propensity for lateness and missing team flights apparently led the New York Yankees to trade him to the Texas Rangers for three minor leaguers and another player to be named later, a team official says.

The official said Rivers was AWOL at least 10 times in the last 3½ years and that the team always covered for him. Even when the fleet centerfielder showed up, the Yankees never knew if he was ready to play, the official added.

Rivers, often called the man who "makes things happen," for the two-time defending world champions, was traded to the Rangers on Monday for outfielder-first baseman Gary Gray, outfielder Mike Hart and infielder Domingo Ramos and the player to be named later.

General manager Cedric Tallis said the move was made to "make it easier for (manager) Billy Martin, although I'm not laying the trade on Billy Martin."

"It's no secret that Mickey missed the plane from Oakland to Seattle and there have been other incidents, not major ones, but incidents that were an indication of lack of discipline. . ."

"The trade is in the interest of trying to create an atmosphere of discipline," said Tallis. "The trade is a forward and constructive step."

Yankees owner George Steinbrenner said, "Rivers was a great player for the Yankees but I think it's time for him to go some place else. He might help the Rangers win the pennant. I hope so. I wish him luck.

"We're not writing off this season," Steinbrenner added. "We're not out of it yet — we'll make a run at them. But now the future looks bright for the Yankees."

The team reportedly hopes that minor leaguer Bobby Brown, now with the Yankees' Columbus farm club, will be able to fill the centerfield job adequately when he is eligible for recall Friday.

"We are definitely hurting in the speed department since Bump Wills went out on the 15-day disabled list with an ankle injury," said Corrales, who said he will shift Al Oliver from center to left field to make room for Rivers.

Oliver, meanwhile, said he thinks the trade will prove disruptive to the Rangers who trail first-place California by 4½ games in the American League West.

"I'm tired of being moved around. I have a better arm than Rivers. This team had all winter to trade for a centerfielder. . ," he said. "You're supposed to find revolving doors in department stores, not in a major league clubhouse."

Oliver said if he is made the team's designated hitter, "I'm going to be that player to be named later. I'm not going to designate-hit for any team at the age of 32.

"This trade is totally uncalled for. Contending teams just don't do this kind of thing in July.

Oliver, his eyes flashing, held court in the Rangers' clubhouse Monday night at Arlington. "There are a few people (in the Rangers' front office) that I would like to jack around physically, but the fact is that that would get me put out of baseball."

Oliver asked, "Who's next?" then stormed into Corrales' office.

Rivers, 30, helped New York to world championships last year and in 1977 and to the AL pennant in 1976. He was batting .289 with three homers with three homers and 25 runs batted in in 73 games in 1979.

He said he has mixed emotions about leaving New York.

"I've been playing for years and you take whatever comes," Rivers said. "I'm going to be myslf, I won't be different.

"I'm a little happy about going but I'm going to miss the guys here. I just want to do my job and help Texas win."

Asked about his alleged disciplinary troubles with the Yankees, Rivers said, "People are just jealous. . .somebody always is having something bad to say. I asked to be traded at the first part of the season."

Martin said, "Yes, I was consulted. He's a good kid, I liked him. He came up to me and hugged me before he left. It goes a lot deeper than it shows. I'm sorry to to see him go."

Don Henry

Spade Work

IT'S ONLY NATURAL: Before you can build a football team from the ground, you gotta build a dressing room. Soooo, it's not difficult to figure where Jerry Don Sanders has spent much of his time the past few weeks.

There are X's and O's, sure. But, also there are T-squares and 2x4's. . .plumb-lines and offensive lines. . . quarterbacks and three-quarter-inch sheet rock.

But, it's just part of the job which Sanders, a former Texas Tech kicker, inherited when he hired on last spring to become Lubbock Christian College's initial football coach. Now, heading into the final days before that season begins, Sanders is finding — having to find — more time to spend in his office on the planning and actual coaching phase of the job and leaving the dressing-room work to the carpenters.

Since the Chaparrals' first game is only a month away, drills will begin next Monday for LCC. The school's first football crop arrives Saturday, for the physical-uniform-first meeting bit. Then, it's multiple workouts for the school's football ground-breakers. If the days weren't so long, start of actual workouts would make it a bit easier for the new head coach.

IT'S NOT TO say that Sanders didn't know what he faced when he hired on. But, just as on every level, he faced some special challenges. For one thing, he went to the recruiting wars armed with only a willow limb.

LCC has opted for the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association, which is four-word method of saying "no scholarships." The league, which includes McMurry, Tarleton State and Sul Ross, is having to look closely at the bottom line and decided to go the purely amateur route.

Thus, Sanders has had to convince young high schoolers to come to LCC, pay their own way and spend hours of work on the football field strictly for a letter jacket and the satisfaction of playing.

It was and is a challenge, Sanders admits.

But, he didn't go in blind; the rules were on the wall when he accepted the position.

Sanders, after winding up at Tech, coached four years at Burnet, then edged out of coaching to serve two years as principal at Waco Christian High School.The past 2½ years, he worked as a youth director at a church at Altus, Okla.

Now, however, he feels he's combining all those jobs.

"ATHLETICS HAS BEEN a part of my life since I was five or six years old," Sanders observed Msnday, leaving it unsaid the difficulty of walking away from such a life. "I enjoy working with young people, and now, here, I'm able to incorporate both athletics and the work with young people into one job. . .

"Plus, there's the challenge of building a program at Lubbock Christian College."

He faced that challenge as he tried to recruit young men with athletic ability to play without a scholarship. And while he couldn't march forth with scholarship letters clutched in his hand, Sanders did go with a three-pronged approach:

"We went to the kids, first, with the idea that they are going to college to get an education. I tried to instill in them that the education is the most important thing.

"Then, second, Life has lots of problems. We have to take what comes, and I feel that football — athletics — can make him a better individual and better able to cope with these problems.

"And last, naturally, we emphasize the football program and tell him of the opportunities to be where he can get both an education and play football.

"We (at LCC) went into football as student recruitment and retention. It's cost us right at $225 per athlete for equipment. We'll have about 90 to 95 report Saturday, and I hope to keep between 80 and 85.

"Right now," he added, "we're not setting goals on number of games we'll win. Our objective is to be competitive — immediately. We're not competing for the (TIAA) title this year, but probably will in 1980.

"I know it's a hard road," he acknowledged. "It's a challenge."

The challenge doesn't wait for Sept. 1 and the first game against McMurry; it's getting those dressing rooms completed — and the literal ground work done in preparing for the invasion of 95 footballers this weekend.

Vikings Ship Eller

By The Associated Press

Carl Eller didn't bother reporting to the Minnesota Vikings' preseason training camp this summer. Now he doesn't have to.

The 37-year-old Eller, once the premier defensive end in the National Football League, was traded to Seattle Monday for defensive tackle Steve Niehaus. The Seahawks also get a draft choice in the deal.

"I think he'll set a tremendous example for our young defensive lineman," said Seahawks coach Jack Petera of Eller, a 16-year veteran and a starter every season until last year. "We don't have anyone who can rush the passer as well as Carl."

Eller was being fined $500 a day for his absence from the Vikings' camp. He said business interests were keeping him away.

Niehaus, 24, was the Seahawks' first draft pick. The former Notre Dame standout was selected second in the opening round of the 1976 draft.

In his first season, Niehaus was the NFC defensive rookie of the year. He hurt his shoulder the following year and started just 11 games the last two seasons.

While Eller and Niehaus were exchanging training camp addresses, two veteran linemen — defensive end Jack Gregory of the New York Giants and offensive tackle Shelby Jordan of the New England Patriots — walked out of their team's camps Monday. The Giants also learned that fleet running back Bobby Hammond will be lost for three weeks with a bruised left shoulder.

And Miami Dolphins star wide receiver Nat Moore has a lower back injury that will sideline him for three weeks.

Jordan is involved in a contract dispute with the Patriots. The fourth-year pro, who sat out the 1976 season while serving a federal prison term on drug charges, has started the last two seasons

Astros' Bobbles Lead To 8-0 Giants Win

By The Associated Press

San Francisco shortstop Roger Metzger watched the Houston Astros make seven errors and realized he had seen it before. The memory forced its way back into his mind, then became focused and painfully clear: Last year, when Metzger was still with the Astros, they had done the same thing — set a team record for errors in a contest.

"(Giants reliever) Randy Moffitt came by and asked me if I had ever seen a major league team make seven errors and I realized I had, in my last game in an Astros uniform," said Metzger, who was purchased by San Francisco on June 15, 1978. "The only difference was, we came back to win that game."

There was no coming back for the Astros Monday night. Left-hander Bob Knepper held them to five hits and drove in four runs with a bases-loaded double and a bunt, helping the Giants to an 8-0 triumph.

"It was good to see them kick the ball around so we could score more runs," said Knepper, 8-5. "But a pitcher can't be concerned with that."

A manager certainly can be, which is why the Astros' Bill Virdon could only shake his head, as if to sweep the game from his mind.

"I can't forget it tonight, but I'll have to tomorrow," he said after Houston's first-place lead over the Cincinnati Reds was shaved to 2½ games in the National League's West Division. "We haven't played bad defensive baseball all year. Sometimes it just seems to be contagious. I think the ball must have been hot tonight."

The Astros played as if it were. When the smoke cleared, Cesar Cedeno and Julio Gonzalez had two errors apiece while Rafael Landestoy, Art Howe and Bruce Bochy had the others.

On a night when nothing would go right for the Astros, even the most standard strategy went haywire. In the seventh, after Darrell Evans walked and Terry Whitfield doubled, Dennis Littlejohn was walked intentionally to bring Knepper to the plate.

Knepper promptly cracked a double which delivered three runs.

Perhaps the memories of the seven errors last year were too vivid for Metzger. In the eighth inning, he misplayed Art Howe's grounder and was charged with the Giants' only error of the contest.

Reds 9, Dodgers 4

Ray Knight, who drove in five runs Sunday, knocked in three more with a pair of homers as Cincinnati beat Los Angeles for its seventh victory in eight games. Knight has driven in 22 over the last 16 games.

Harry Spilman added a two-run double in a five-run Cincinnati eighth inning.

Cardinals 7-1, Expos 2-5

Ellis Valentine celebrated his birthday with two home runs and Larry Parrish and Chris Speier added one each as Montreal salvaged a split of the doubleheader and remained first in the East by .002.

"I talked to my mother and my agent earlier today and they both told me to go out and hit a home run in each game," mused Valentine, who got the total right, if not the timing, and now has 17 homers.

Keith Hernandez carried the Cardinals to victory in the opener, clouting the fourth grand slam homer of his career and adding a sacrifice fly to back the five-hit pitching of John Denny, 5-8.

Pirates 8, Mets 5

Ed Ott's tie-breaking RBI single sparked the three-run eighth inning that carried Pittsburgh past New York and kept the Pirates close to the Expos. Former Met Tim Foli, who had four hits, added a run-scoring single and Omar Moreno had a sacrifice fly in the eighth-inning burst that sent the Pirates to their fourth victory in five games.

Phillies 5, Cubs 4

Manny Trillo's bases-loaded single in the 10th inning delivered Mike Schmidt with the run that gave Philadelphia its victory over Chicago and relief ace Bruce Sutter.

Indians Capture Eighth Straight

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland baseball team has been playing like a bunch of wild Indians since Dave Garcia took over as manager last week.

He can't explain it — he can only enjoy it.

"I can't answer why we're so hot," said Garcia after winning his eighth straight game Monday night, a 6-5 decision over the Boston Red Sox. "I just know that when this club plays to its utmost, it can win a lot of games."

Nor have the Indians been playing over their heads, points out Garcia, who took over for the beleagured Jeff Torborg last Monday.

"When you take a look at the nine guys we put out on the field, we probably have the best defensive infield in the league, and I think Rick Manning is the best defensive outfielder in baseball," said Garcia.

"Then you throw in our good pitching, our excellent relief pitching and our timely hitting, and you see what can happen. Right now, we don't have Toby Harrah, but when you face (Andre) Thornton, (Bobby) Bonds and Cliff Johnson in the middle of the lineup, you're going to see some real power. And tonight we could bring a guy like Gary off the bench."

That would be Gary Alexander, who slammed a pinch-hit homer leading off the eighth for the winning run.

"You know he can hit a home run, you know he's capable of it," said Garcia. "There aren't many right-handed hitters who have more power."

Alexander led off the Indian eighth with his 13th home run, off Boston reliever Tom Burgmeier, 2-1. Bonds gave Cleveland its eventual winning run later in the inning with a sacrifice fly.

Orioles 2, Brewers 1

Steve Stone allowed only one hit — a third-inning homer by Charlie Moore — before needing last-out relief help from Tippy Martinez, and Al Bumbry hit a two-run homer in the Baltimore sixth to lead the Orioles over Milwaukee.

Aside from Moore's homer, the only other Brewer to reach base against Stone, 9-7, was Don Money, who walked two times — with one out in the fifth and two out in the ninth.

Yankees 7, White Sox 2

Willie Randolph keyed a five-run sixth inning with a bases-loaded triple and Lou Piniella crashed a solo homer to power New York past Chicago. Jerry Narron's suicide squeeze scored Graig Nettles from third after Nettles and Roy White had singled. A walk to Fred Stanley filled the bases before Randolph tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Juan Beniquez.

Piniella's ninth homer came in the fourth, and New York added a run in the fifth on a single by Randolph, an infield out and a single by Thurman Munson off loser Richard Wortham, 11-10, helping to make a winner of Tommy John, 14-6.

Royals 9, Blue Jays 0

Left-hander Larry Gura pitched a three-hitter and Darrell Porter drove in three runs to lead Kansas City's rout of Toronto. Gura, 7-7, surrendered a leadoff single to Alfredo Griffin in the first inning and another single to Rick Bosetti in the second before setting down 19 of the next 20 men he faced.

The veteran southpaw, winning his fourth game in five decisions, struck out two and walked one, Roy Howell, who was erased by a fourth-inning double play.

Mariners 8, Angels 0

Mike Parrott pitched a four-hitter and Willie Horton knocked in six runs with two homers and a single to lead Seattle over California. Parrott, 9-7, struck out a career-high nine batters and gave up one walk in pitching his sixth complete game of the season and handing the Angels their eighth loss since the All-Star game.

Horton's 18th homer of the season, only his second hit in 25 at-bats, came in the sixth inning after Angels starter Jim Barr, 7-7, walked Ruppert Jones with one out and gave up a single to Danny Meyer.

Twins 3, A's 0

Right-hander Dave Goltz pitched a six-hitter for Minnesota's first complete-game shutout of the season, and Ken Landreaux hit a two-run double, as the Twins beat Oakland. Goltz, 10-7, struck out five and walked none while insuring that he would win at least 10 games for a sixth consecutive season.

Tigers' Speed Ruins Rangers, Rivers' Debut

ARLINGTON (AP) — Amid all the Mickey Rivers hoopla at Arlington Stadium Monday night the Detroit Tigers ran the Texas Rangers ragged. Manager Sparky Anderson orchestrated all the right plays, including a steal of home in the 6-4 victory over the Rangers.

"I like to play a moving game," said Anderson, who ordered up two critical hit-and-runs and a double steal against the sagging Rangers who have lost 11 out of their last 13 games.

Rivers, traded earlier in the day from the New York Yankees to the Rangers, arrived in the seventh inning, just in time to spark a two-run rally that tied the game 4-4. However, Al Greene's sacrifice fly in the eight inning and Jerry Morales' run-scoring single in the ninth inning proved more than the Rangers could handle.

The loser was Danny Darwin (2-2) who relieved Ranger started John Henry Johnson.

Rivers led off the seventh inning in a pinch-hit role and singled to center. He later scored as the Rangers tied the game 4-4.

"I needed a change," said Rivers. "I'm glad I was traded to Texas. I like the guys over here."

Rivers received a standing ovation from the fans when he was announced as the pinch-hitter. "I loves peoples. The trade will be good for me and I will try to do my best."

Asked why he had the reputation of not giving 100 percent, Rivers said "Somebody is always having something bad to say about somebody. I didn't have any problems with (Yankee manager) Billy Martin because he took care of me.

"I will lead this team to a championship," added Rivers.

ESPN Set To Televise Sports Around Clock

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sports gluttons, hearken:

Beginning in September, an all-sports cable network will begin televising sporting contests for up to 19 hours a day. By December, the network hopes to go 24 hours.

On a typical Sunday this autumn, by switching from the sports network to commercial TV and back, fanatics will be able to watch football from 5 a.m. Sunday to 1 a.m on Monday.

I see trouble here.

The instigator: The Entertainment and Sports Programming Network, Inc., out of Bristol, Conn, or ESPN, as it will come to be lovingly known (hated, perhaps).

Oh, it won't be just football. There will be other, say, lesser sports on ESPN. Darts, for example. The Pony League World Series. Gaelic hurling. Volleyball.

If all goes as planned, ESPN will provide 8,760 hours of nonstop sports.

My wife won't like this.

The pusher here is one William F. Rasmussen, who at first only wanted to supply Connecticut sports junkies with University of Connecticut events. Then he discovered he could buy a spot on RCA's Satcom satellite, and send sports around the country for the same price.

AP Sports Analysis

"Our transmissions go by satellite, so it can't be received by cable stations that don't have earth (receiving) stations," says Dennis Randall, ESPN promotion director.

No matter. Already, ESPN has signed deals with about 600 cable systems, which service more than four million homes.

The cost to the cable system makes the sports network hard to refuse. Cable systems pay ESPN only $2.40 per subscriber to get the service for five years.

ESPN will make its money on advertising. The firm has already signed the biggest commercial contract in the history of cable TV, a $1 million deal with Anheuser-Busch, giving the beer company a one-eighth sponsorship of all of ESPN's NCAA events.

NCAA sports will comprise the bulk (about 65 percent) of ESPN's program,including many NCAA football games this fall. ESPN will tape-delay some of the games, to avoid conflicting with ABC's TV contract with the NCAA.

But ESPN will also deliver tennis, women's golf, water polo, and, as mentioned above, darts, hurling and volleyball.

Can't you imagine it? Sunday night. You're bleary-eyed from 36 hours of TV football. You should be in bed, but there's that last, important throw of the dart coming up...

Sounds crazy, but there are signs that ESPN will work. For one thing, Getty Oil liked the idea enough to sink $10 million into ESPN for controlling interest in the company. And a couple of weeks ago, Chet Simmons quit his job as chief of NBC Sports to assume the ESPN presidency.

"There are people out there," says Randall, "who watch sport after sport after sport."

I know, Randall. I know.

NATIONAL SPORTS FESTIVAL

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Veteran John Powell completed a long distance double, adding the National Sports Festival discus title to the one he won at Spartacade in Moscow last week, and beating four-time Olympic champion Al Oerter. The most outstanding performance of the day, however, was turned by the 400-meter relay time of Mike Roberson of Florida State University, Harvey Glance of Auburn University, Bill Collins of Houston and Mel Lattany of University of Georiga. The foursome won in 38.30 seconds, fastest time in the world this year. Meanwhile, Tom Duits of Western Michigan University scored a front-running victory in the 1,500-meter race in 3:45.44. James Sanford of the University of Southern California, the National AAU 100-meter champion, was an easy winner of the 200 in 20.64.

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — Cale Yarborough used a lightning-quick 3.3 second pit stop with 10 laps remaining to win the NASCAR Grand National 500 stock car race at Pocono Raceway. Yarborough, a three-time defending NASCAR Grand National points champion, added six gallons of fuel in his last stop, enough to hold off second-place Richard Petty and third-place Buddy Baker.

Reiger Guides Dixie Victory

AUSTIN (Special) — Brent Reiger cracked a 2-run double in the bottom of the fifth inning Monday to lead the Lubbock Dixie All-Stars to a 6-5 come-from-behind victory over Westbury National of Houston in the first round of the 13-year-old Senior Little League State Tournament.

Dixie trailed National 5-0 entering the bottom of the fifth. Reiger's run-scoring double and key singles by Billy Lance and Kevin Short helped Dixiepush across 6 runs in bottom of the inning to take the lead.

Chad Boykin picked up the victory in relief of David Haygood. Boykin came in with two runners on and no outs in the top of the fifth inning. He pitched out of the jam and went the final two innings, striking out four and allowing no hits.

Reiger was Dixie's leading hitter, picking up his double and a first-inning single in three trips to the plate.

Dixie faced San Antonio-Harlingen this morning in the second round. The winner of that contest will advance to the championship round of the four team, double-elimination tournament.

Yarborough Wins Pocono

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — None of that gas line nonsense for Cale Yarborough. The three-time NASCAR Grand National points champion, with 10 laps to go in the Pocono 500, picked up enough gas to finish the race in a 3.3 second pit stop.

Then Yarborough roared off to win NASCAR's Grand National Pocono 500 stock car race Monday, holding off second-place Richard Petty and third-place Buddy Baker.

Yarborough won the race, held a day late because of day-long rains Sunday, with an average speed of 114.9 mph, slow for the stocks. The race lasted just over four hours and 21 minutes.

A five-car crash interrupted the race on the second lap, without injuring any one. But on the 98th lap, rookie driver Dale Earnhardt's car spun out and hit the second turn wall, leaving him with two broken collarbones.

Bryan Trips Hubbers

KERRVILLE (Special) — Jeff Harp blasted a grand slam home run in the tenth inning Monday night to give the Lubbock Hubbers a 9-3 victory over Houston Lone Star and vault the Lubbock team into the championship game of the state NBC baseball tournament.

However, they could not pull off two in a row and bowed to the Bryan Bombers 4-1 in the late contest. Both teams qualified for the trip to Wichita, Kan., next month and the national NBC tourney.

Don Lawson went the distance on the mound for the Hubbers, scattering eight hits and allowing 3 runs to get the win. Tim Leslie hit a 2-run homer in the third to put Lubbock ahead 3-0, but the Houston team tied it up in the sixth and the game went into extra innings.

But the Hubbers exploded in the top of the tenth to gain a shot at the championship. That game was still being contested at press time.

The Hubbers won the western regional title last weekend by whipping the Lubbock Town Draw Brewers. The Brewers also competed here but were eliminated over the weekend.

City Champion Eyes Lubbock Par-Buster

Mark Jarrett, who captured the Men's City Championship over the weekend, wil have little time to rest on his laurels. Because on Friday, he'll be just another golfer entered in the Lubbock Country Club Par-Buster Partnership.

That's right, the golf schedule in Lubbock continues without letup, and the Par-Buster is the next big tournament on the calendar.

A total of 132 teams will compete in seven different flights in the invitational affair that runs Friday through Sunday at Lubbock CC.

Defending champions Gordon Butler and Randy Hines will be back and looking to make it two in a row. But, by virtue of their earlier performances this year, the duo of Jarrett and David Jennings also ranks among the pre-tourney favorites.

Practice rounds will be held on Thursday and then the tournament begins at 7:30 a.m. Friday. Teams will be flighted prior to the start of the tourney according to handicap.

Eller Traded

for the Pats. He wants a contract extension.

Giants coach Ray Perkins said of Gregory, a 13-year veteran and the club's defensive captain: "I don't know where he is or why he's not here. In my mind, he was still the starting right defensive end. He was having a good camp."

Moore hurt his back in the Dolphins' scrimmage with New Orleans Saturday. He's expected back for Miami's final preseason game, Aug. 24 against Philadelphia. Rookie running back Tony Nathan of Alabama will sit out Friday's game against New Orleans with a sprained ankle.

The Los Angeles Rams may be without guard Dennis Harrah, who hurt his back and will miss drills prior to the team's game with Oakland Saturday. Los Angeles already has problems on the offensive line, with guard Tom Mack and tackle Doug France having retired.

Among veterans cut Monday were three-year pro center Lee Gross, by Denver and second-year defensive back Ted Burgmeier, by Kansas City.

Lubbockite Shot At Apartments

A 47-year-old Lubbock man, reportedly shot in both legs while allegedly attempting to break into an apartment late Wednesday in the 1600-block of Avenue D, was treated and released at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

However, the man, who Ramiro Gonzalez said tried to beat down his door about 11:30 p.m., was not in the county jail this morning, according to the jail desk.

Gonzalez, 40, told police he, his wife and two children awoke to the sound of someone banging at the front door of his 1605 Ave. D, Apt. 8, residence. He said he got his .25-caliber pistol and yelled that he would shoot if the person didn't leave.

Reports indicate, however, that the voice on the other side replied, "Open the ——door and let me in." Gonzalez said he fired one shot about waist high through the door after the knocking continued.

There was silence several minutes after the shooting, police were told, and then the disturbance-maker resumed hitting the door and allegedly broke out a window.

Gonzalez said that after the noise resumed, he fired a second shot through the entrance, then opened the door, grabbed the man and threw him on a bed. Gonzalez' family ran to the manager's apartment where police and an ambulance were called.

Reports show the suspect had been shot twice — once above each knee. However, records did not indicate the man was taken to jail after he was released from the hospital.

In a late Wednesday assault, Timmy McKnight, 25, of 3018 49th St. suffered multiple injuries, including cuts to the face and head and two swollen eyes, after he was jumped in front of a club in the 2300-block of Fourth Street.

Police reports stated that a passerby, who saw McKnight staggering in front of the club, took the victim to a Lubbock hospital. However, the reports did not indicate what hospital and the man could not be located this morning.

McKnight told police he did not see the person who assaulted him. He added that he had not had any trouble at the club.

A 30-year-old Lubbock woman said she was assaulted about 2 a.m. today outside a club in the 5000-block of Avenue Q.

Carolyn Clark, 30, of 2620 42nd St. told police she and a male companion were followed out of the nightspot by the suspect, described as a short, heavy Mexican-American man in his late 20s.

The companion said the man jerked the woman out of a car and hit her twice in the head. The witness said he intervened and the suspect fled.

The woman reportedly refused medical treatment for an injured left eye and swelling on the right side of the head.

A 22-year-old Lubbock man, wanted by the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, was arrested by city police about 2 p.m. Monday in the 2000-block of East 35th Street.

Police had followed the suspect since 11 a.m. that day before federal agents gave them the okay to place the man in custody. The suspect was jailed on traffic warrants and suspicion of possession of a controlled substance.

Kathryn J. Beatty, manager of The Junction at the South Plains Mall, 6002 Slide Road, told police someone stole her wallet from behind a counter between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Monday while she was at work. The wallet reportedly contained credit cards and two payroll checks, totaling nearly $1,000.

William R. Harrison, 15, of 2712 Second St. said three Mexican-American boys stole his red handkerchief about 7:30 p.m. Monday and that one of the young suspects threatened him with a knife.

Harrison said the teen-agers confronted him in an alley in the 2800-block of First Street. One of the suspects reportedly displayed a knife and told Harrison if he was going to wear the handkerchief around his head he should be ready to fight for it.

Reports indicate the boys took the handkerchief and fled north across Amherst Avenue.

In one of several recent burglaries, Matt Allan Henderson and Gerald Wayne Hope, both living at 4702 Fourth St., Apt. 29, said someone broke into their residence between 2:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Monday and made off with $3,000 in stereo equipment.

Rings, two watches, a camera and a diamond-studded tie rack, totaling about $1,244, was the apparent loot for whoever broke into Merle Caudle's apartment at 1800 Fourth St. between 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday.

Jo Ann Trombly of 4802 14th St. Monday reported that someone had stolen her blind, blue point Siamese cat, valued at $1,500, on Thursday. A neighbor told the victim that he had seen two white males, about 18 to 25, looking around her house and then getting into a 1979 silver Camaro sometime between 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Jim Brown told police that someone had removed a trailer and carpentry equipment, valued together at $3,400, from in front of his storage space at 23rd Street and Avenue K sometime between 6:30 p.m. Sunday and 2 p.m. Monday.

Drew Jackson, principal of Overton Elementary School, said that thieves took $30 in cash and a camera and damaged a cafeteria window, vending machines and an office area at the school sometime between 7 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Monday.

James Graves of Dalhart complained that someone had stolen his $550 homemade utility trailer from the Motel 6 parking lot sometime between 10 p.m. Sunday and 8:55 a.m. Monday.

George Guerrero, owner of Rocita's Cafe, 3501 Ave. A, told police that someone took $130 in change from the restaurant sometime between 11 p.m. Sunday and 3:30 a.m. Honday. Guerrero described the suspect as a Mexican-American male, 18 to 25, very short and thin.

Jury Selection Resumes In Davis Trial

FORT WORTH (AP) — Overcoming what some thought were long odds, attorneys resume jury selection today in the murder-for-hire trial of industrialist Cullen Davis.

"We said all along we could get 12 fair and impartial jurors in Cullen's hometown," said Steve Sumner, a Dallas defense lawyer.

"So, no," he told a reporter, "I'm not totally surprised about what we've seen so far."

Sumner referred to the fact that only 30 of 80 prospective jurors said Monday they have formed an opinion as to the millionaire defendant's guilt or innocence.

"I thought we'd lose 50 percent at least," admitted State District Judge Gordon Gray, alluding to the enormous publicity surrounding the Davis legal drama.

Prosecutors said publicly and members of the five-man defense team said privately they doubted a jury could be found in Fort Worth to hear the case.

Those fears, it seemed now, were unfounded.

Davis, 45, the darkly handsome czar of a billion-dollar family business empire, is accused of masterminding a plot to kill his one-time divorce judge.

The judge, Joe Eidson, 61, learned of the purported scheme from the FBI and participated in a super-secret scenerio that led to Davis' arrest last August.

The defense contends Davis was framed by his ex-wife, Priscilla, a missing defense witness, Pat Burleson, and FBI informant David McCrory.

The defense requested a new delay Monday, maintaining attempts to locate Burleson, a karate instructor, had been fruitless. His last known whereabouts was Los Angeles.

A district attorney's investigator, Rod Henson, told the court Burleson had contacted him and indicated he was not avoiding a subpoena. Gray overruled the motion for continuance and in short order summoned two prospective juror panels of 40 members each.

All said they had read or heard of the case, but surprisingly so, 50 maintained they had not formed an opinion that would influence their verdict.

Bid For Murder Trial Delay Fails

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Roger Dale Stafford's long-awaited preliminary hearing for charges of murdering six steakhouse employees is due to open Wednesday after the failure of a late bid for a delay.

The state Court of Criminal Appeals Monday refused unanimously to block the hearing, and Stafford's attorneys promptly subpoenaed 52 witnesses for Wednesday, including Stafford's estranged wife, Verna.

Information supplied by Mrs. Stafford was instrumental in the development of the prosecution's case against Stafford.

Other persons subpoenaed include several law enforcement officers who were involved in the steakhouse slaying investigation.

Rejecting the request for a delay in Stafford's preliminary hearing, the three-judge court said it was the trial judge has to decide whether a continuance was justified. The trial judge already has declined to grant any additional delays.

J. Malone Brewer, who became Stafford's fourth attorney last week, had told the court he needed more time to prepare Stafford's defense.

But Oklahoma County District Attorney Andrew Coats said Stafford was told by the district court judges when he changed attorneys again last week that he could not expect to win another delay of his prelinary hearing.

"He has had three continuances," Coats said. "Mr. Brewer was told when he entered the case ... there would be no more continuances."

Coats also told the court Brewer would have plenty of time to prepare for Stafford's trial because it would not be scheduled until "at least the fourth week in September, or possibly early October."

But Brewer said he needed the 30-day delay to prepare for the preliminary hearing.

Discrimination Hearing Begins For Firefighter

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Male firefighters viewed Linda Eaton "as sort of a novelty" when she joined their ranks in 1977, says former city human rights director Candy Morgan.

But Miss Morgan, who left the human rights job last fall, said Fire Chief Robert Keating was "very positive" about having Miss Eaton as the city's first female firefighter.

She testified Monday in the first session of a sex discrimination hearing for Miss Eaton, 26, who drew nationwide attention in January when she defied her superiors to nurse her son, Ian, during "personal time" on her 24-hour shift at the Iowa City fire station.

She was twice suspended and threatened with dismissal before filing a sex discrimination complaint with the Iowa Civil Rights Commission.

An expert on breastfeeding was to testify today.

"There were a lot of questions, a lot of unknowns," Miss Morgan said of Miss Eaton's hiring. "There was a great deal of fear (among the firefighters) that standards would be lowered" to accommodate her. "There was a sense of skepticism."

But Keating "was very anxious to do what was required by law," said Miss Morgan. "We asked how it was going and he was always very positive."

Miss Morgan spent most of the day on the stand. Much of her testimony concerned the history of the city's affirmative action efforts, including a voluntary conciliation agreement with the federal Equal Opportunity Employment Commission to boost the city's female employment from about 18 percent to 33 percent.

The city's workforce is about 28 percent female, said Miss Morgan, who currently works for the Iowa Department of Social Services.

Miss Eaton worked as a firefighter from August 1977, until May 1978, when she was transferred to a city custodial job because of her pregnancy.

When she returned to the fire department in January, Keating told her she would not be allowed to nurse Ian, now 9½ months old, because it would be disruptive and could slow her response time in an emergency.

Daniel Minchew Takes Plea Bargain Agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A plea bargaining agreement with Daniel Minchew, once Sen. Herman Talmadge's top aide and now his chief accuser, has raised speculation the Justice Department may be considering action against the Georgia Democrat.

Minchew, 39, pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court to a single felony charge relating to the filing of a false expense claim with the Senate. He was freed on his own recognizance pending sentencing, which was expected within 30 to 45 days.

The charge of making a false statement carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison, a $10,000 fine or both.

That is significantly lighter than the sentence Minchew could have faced on various other charges — including embezzlement, conversion of campaign funds and fraud — considered by the Justice Department but abandoned under the plea bargaining agreement.

As his pregnant wife, Shirley, looked on, Minchew solemnly entered his plea before U.S. District Judge William Bryant. He refused comment to reporters but was smiling as he left the courthouse.

Minchew admitted he "knowingly and willfully" made a false statement to the Senate when he filed an expense claim for $2,289 on Talmadge's behalf in March 1974.

That check was one of two false Senate reimbursements totaling $13,000 that went into a secret Washington bank account opened by Minchew in Talmadge's name. An aditional $21,000 in campaign contributions also passed through the secret account.

Talmadge has accused Minchew of embezzling the entire $34,000, but Minchew maintains Talmadge knew of the scheme and benefitted from the money. Minchew says he took $18,000 of the money, while the remaining $16,000 went to the senator and his late son, Bobby.

Medgar Evars, a civil rights worker, was murdered in Jackson, Miss., in 1963.
