CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—To the accompaniment of all the tumult and shouting that goes with America's annual baseball carnival, the boys will go out on the firing line tomorrow to substitute fast balls and base-hits for oratory and argument in the battle for the 1929 championship of the world.

The Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago Cubs, rivals again for the richest of the game's prizes after a lapse of 19 years, come to grips in the opening game, with fair weather and a spectacular fight expected from the outset between two fast, hard-hitting and aggressive ball clubs.

1917 Fire Losses At Lawton Paid

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Oct. 7.—Echoes of a fire which occurred in 1917 and which threatened to destroy the entire business section of Lawton reverberated here today when property owners who suffered loss received checks from the federal government totaling $75,000.

This amount was appropriated at the last session of congress to compensate property owners who suffered by the conflagration. At the time there were approximately 50,000 soldiers being trained at Fort Sill and city water was being utilized at the camps to the extent that there was no water pressure with which to fight the flames. On this consideration the appropriation was made by congress.

Second Tariff Victory Registered in Amendment Vote

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—The senate today adopted a Democratic amendment to the tariff bill to restore the existing law as it defines United States value, thus turning down Republican amendments which would have permitted appraisers in certain cases to resort to estimated value in levying ad valorem rates.

The vote gave the Democrats their second victory in a week over the administration Republicans, the first coming on their substitute for the present flexible tariff plan.

The vote today was 44 to 37 for an amendment offered by Senator King, Democrat, Utah.

FALL'S TRIAL OPENS TODAY

Negro Diner Worker Picked On Bribe Jury

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—The fate of Albert B. Fall, facing charges of bribery growing out of his administration of naval oil lands while secretary of the interior, will be decided by four women and eight men jurors who were chosen today and locked up until their decision is reached. It was a comparatively young jury that watched Fall walk feebly out of court after it had been sworn. The former cabinet officer, whose physician urged against his attempt to go on trial today, overruled his medical advisory and was helped into court by members of his family.

Fall's condition was regarded by government prosecutors as one of their greatest obstacles. The picture presented to the jury showed the 68-year-old defendant as a feeble old man barely able to shuffle to his big, easy leather chair which was brought inside the witness railing for him. Once in the chair Fall slumped back and while watching every move seldom raised his head from its reclining position.

Members of the family said they were alarmed by the defendant's condition and some of his counsel feared he would be unable to finish the trial. Sitting beside him was his physician, Dr. H. T. Safford of El Paso, Texas, and a trained nurse.

The jury was selected after three hours questioning of the veniremen. Government counsel used their preemptory challenges to remove three negroes, who were on the original panel, and one woman. Another negro—George E. Parker, a dining car worker—remained.

The government expects opening arguments to be concluded tomorrow in time to permit it to call its first witness, probably a government employe who will be asked to tell of the leasing of the Elk Hills oil reserve to Edward L. Doheny.

MONTEITH DECLINES

Houston Mayor Wishes to Fulfill Pledges Made To Bayou City

AUSTIN, Oct. 7. (AP)—Gov. Dan Moody filled two vacancies on the supreme court commission of appeals today with the appointment of John H. Sharp of Ennis and Joseph Ryan of San Antonio to succeed Judge Luther Nickels of Dallas and Judge Ocie Speer of Fort Worth.

The terms of Judges Nickels and Speer expired last June, but Judge Speer continues to sit with the commission pending appointment of his successor.

Monteith Declines

In announcing the appointments, Governor Moody revealed he had offered one of the places to Mayor Walter E. Monteith of Houston who declined because he felt it his duty to continue in his present office since the people of Houston had placed him there only a few months ago.

Judge Sharp will serve on Section A with Judges J. D. Harvey and Richard Critz. Judge Ryan will have a place with Section B, the other members being Judges H. B Short and C. A. Leddy.

Terms of all the judges on the commission will cease June, 1931, when the law creating it will expire, unless some legislature renews it.

Cases Referred

The commission considers cases referred to it by the supreme court, of which Judge C. M. Cureton is chief justice and Judges Thomas B. Greenwood and William Pierson are associate justices.

Judge Sharp has resided in Ennis all his life, and has had a wide practice in both civil and criminal law, Governor Moody said. He had never held public office.

Judge Ryan had been city attorney of San Antonio since the late John W. Tobin was elected mayor about six years ago, and had served also under Mayor C. M. Chambers. Prior to his present tenure, he had been city attorney under previous administrations and at one time was a candidate for mayor of San Antonio.

The governor announced the appointment of Judge Fred Stevens of San Antonio to be judge of the

FOUR OIL MEN ARE SENTENCED

Fort Worth Operators Plead Guilty

FORT WORTH, Oct. 7. (AP)—Four penitentiary sentences ranging from a year and a day to 18 months, with suspended sentences of five years in each case, were imposed by Federal Judge William B. Sheppard after four defendants had pleaded guilty to mail fraud charges in United States court here today.

Virgil T. Bolin, charged with having fraudulently obtained more than $60,000 through use of the mails in promotion of an oil development scheme, was sentenced to 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary on one count. A five-year sentence, to run concurrently with the first prison term, was suspended during good behavior.

A sentence of a year and a day in Leavenworth penitentiary, with a suspended sentence of five years was imposed on Paul Edgell, who entered a plea of guilty to charges of mail fraud in connection with a scheme to sell royalties on oil lands in West Texas. The indictment charged that at the time the mails were used to perpetrate the scheme he had no royalties to sell.

A plea of guilty to a charge of fraudulent use of the mails to secure funds for developing of an oil lease in which he represented that the cost of the property was to be paid from the oil production brought a sentence of a year and a day to W. C. Holliday. A five-year sentence was suspended.

Withdrawing a plea of not guilty entered at the time of his arraignment on a charge of mail fraud, Paul A. Diggs entered a second plea of guilty and was given a suspended sentence of five years. He was paroled to the custody of the United States marshal. He was alleged to have represented through the mails that an oil lease he was developing would pay dividends he was later unable to pay.

A general demurrer of the allegations in an indictment charging Fred Strang with using the mails to defraud in connection with an oil development scheme in Carter county, Oklahoma, was overruled by Judge Sheppard.

DEFENSE FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO 'BREAK' GIRL

Eunice Pringle Calmly Answers Questions of Jerry Geisler

FRAME-UP DENIED

Alleged Conversation With Dancer's Director Is Brought Out

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7. (UP)—Eunice Pringle changed to the vivid red dress in which she went to Alexander Pantages' private office to seek booking as a Spanish dancer when she retold under searching cross examination today how the wealthy theater man assertedly attacked her.

The 17-year-old girl was passive under the defense inquisition, seldom varying from the softly spoken answers and only once was she near to tears. That was when Defense Attorney Jerry Geisler asked her in what fashion she tried to escape from Pantages after he assertedly forced her to the floor of his secluded consultation room.

Voice Chokes

She straightened in the witness chair and leaned forward appealingly, her voice suddenly choked.

"Oh, I can't say; I only know that I was doing the best I could," she answered.

Miss Pringle never wavered from her original story in four hours of cross examination that frequently was of the most delicate sort. The defense failed to shake her calm when it introduced questions indicating that the defense would renew its plea that Pantages was framed.

Conversation Denied

Geisler asked the girl if on the day of the asserted attack she was accompanied to the stairway of the theater by Nicholas Dunaev, director of her act, and if she had not told him there:

"If he doesn't place me he'll always be sorry."

And if Dunaev had not replied: "Well, don't get cold feet."

Miss Pringle denied that the conversation had taken place. It was reported that the defense would call Irene Lane to substantiate the questions.

When she changed to the red dress, she was required to stand before the jury to show just how Pantages assertedly hit her on the body during the alleged attack.

Miss Pringle Excused

Miss Pringle was excused a few minutes later, subject to recall, and was followed on the stand by William Leo Gordon, owner of a women's apparel shop in the Pantages theater building, who told his story.

"I heard a scream and ran down the mezzanine floor, where I saw a girl's hand extending through a partly opened door. I pushed on the door and saw Alexander Pantages on his hands and knees, holding Miss Pringle by the leg. She broke away and ran to the street.

Cross examination had started when court was adjourned until Tuesday morning.

Senator Sheppard Would Make Buyer Of Liquor Guilty With Bootlegger

Senior Texas Solon Finds Little Sympathy for Drastic Plan To "Complete" Prohibition

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (UP)—Senator Morris Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, author of the 18th amendment, opened a new move today to carry prohibition to what he terms its "completion" by introducing an amendment to the Volstead act making the buyer of liquor equally guilty with the bootlegger.

This advance step grew from a recent court of appeals decision holding that, under the law, a buyer can not be held liable. That decision prompted a demand by Bishop James Cannon Jr., prohibition leader and of the Hoover southern campaign directors, that congress legislate against the buyer.

Investigation in the senate today disclosed that Sheppard's latest move meets with little favor. Some few pronounced drys who expressed sympathy; privately, at the same time said frankly they saw little chance of such legislation.

Only a few would comment publicly. The bulk of comment, both public and private, was that there are enough laws now.

"I think we had better enforce the laws we have rather than enact additional legislation," said Senator Robison, Arkansas, Democratic floor leader, who is a dry.

"I'm not for it," Senator Watson, Indiana, Republican floor leader, also a dry, commented succinctly.

Sheppard said he would ask the judiciary committee, to which the proposed amendment was referred, to hold hearings on it when the regular December session opens, unless the committee seems disposed to give the proposal a favorable report without such hearings.

"It is the logical step to complete prohibition," he said, "it is in no way caused by any fear of the law breaking down, but rather to carry prohibition still further forward."

The Texas senator, a short stocky man of a retiring nature, said the anti-saloon league and other dry organizations are in sympathy with his amendment, which certainly would bring before the courts many citizens who never were hailed before courts before, if really enforced.

Bishop Cannon, he said, had not suggested the amendment to him, but he talked with Cannon after he had drawn his resolution.

An effort was made when the Volstead act was drafted to make the buyer equally guilty, but it failed.

WAR UNLIKELY, SAYS M'DONALD

Each Nation Must Preserve Peace Pact, He Says

By C. P. WILLIAMSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald interrupted his conferences with President Hoover today to tell the congress of the United States there could be no war between the two great English-speaking nations if each did its duty in making effective the Kellogg-Briand treaty renouncing war.

"There can be no war," the British statesman said, "Nay, more, it is absolutely impossible, if you and me do our duty in making the peace pact effective, so that any section of our arms, whether land, or sea, or air, can never again come into hostile conflict."

Senate Chamber Packed

The senate chamber was crowded with legislators, diplomats and citizen spectators who eagerly embraced his words.

Asserting amid applause that the problems of jealousy and of fear have disappeared, the prime minister declared the American and British governments have met together and have said: "What is all this bother about parity?"

"Parity?" he questioned sharply.

"Take it." He exclaimed—"without reserve, heaped up and flowing over. That is one of the results of this visit. Another result of the visit is that we have come to understand each other."

"Ah, senators," the prime minister continued, "as long as you conduct your negotiations by corre-

Detroit Kidnapers Given Prison Terms

DETROIT, Oct. 7. (AP)—Sentences of from 30 to 50 years each in a state penitentiary were given Frank Hohfer and Edward Wilds today after a recorder's court jury had pronounced them guilty of the kidnaping of Matthew Holdereith Jr., 24, Sept. 20.

Young Holdereith was found in an apartment chained to a bed. He had been held there six days without food or water, he told officers. Arrest of his captors prevented his release by them after a $5,000 ransom had been paid.

Rev. Clark's Affair Not 'Love Affair' Judge Rules in Dismissing Suit

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 7. (UP)—It merely was an affair and not a love affair, Judge J. T. Ronald ruled today in dismissing a suit for $50,000 instituted by the Rev. H. H. Clark against Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy, when she refused to marry him.

In dismissing the suit on motion of attorneys for Mrs. Kennedy, who became known throughout the land as the mother of Aimee McPherson, evangelist of kidnap fame, Judge Ronald quoted Kipling's yarn of men who "kiss and tell."

The Reverend Clark said the judge, made his mistake when he wrote a letter to Miss Kay Burbeck, Mrs. Kennedy's secretary, in which he told of his relations with Mrs. Kennedy.

"In view of this letter in which he told Miss Burbeck of his acquaintanceship with the defendant, a thing she specifically told him not to do, she was entirely justified in not marrying him," said Judge Ronald.

The Reverend Clark spent four days in court telling the judge how he had wooed and won Mrs. Kennedy and how her refusal to marry him had ruined his reputation as a minister and even had forced him to sell his Bible in order to eat.

BATTLE OVER DRUG POTION ENDS FATALLY

Fred Breeding, Wilbarger County, and J. D. Echols In Statement

BODY IS RECOVERED

Recaptured Prisoners Direct Guards to Grave of Frank Harwell

MADISONVILLE, Texas, Oct. 7. (UP)—A story of a fight over narcotics that led to the death of one convict and the escape of two others was unfolded here today as two trustees were charged with the murder of a fellow prisoner at the Ferguson state prison farm near here.

Frank Harwell, 28, serving two years for forgery from Haskell county was the slain man. He was thought to have escaped from the farm Sept. 29 along with Fred Breeding, serving two years for cattle theft from Wilbarger county, and J. D. Echols, serving two years for burglary from Comanche county.

Breeding and Echols confessed to guards today, a few days after they were captured, that they had killed Harwell in a fight over drugs, slugged him over the head and buried his body behind the main barn at the Ferguson farm.

At their direction the guards dug behind the barn and removed the body this afternoon.

The two men charged with murder said they became frightened after the killing and left the farm. They would give no details about the narcotic angle of the killing other than to say that a potion of drug was the cause of the fight.

Williams Explains Price Testimony

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—Carl Williams of Oklahoma, cotton representative on the federal farm board, said today he had no idea of conveying the impression in his testimony before the senate agriculture committee last week that a fair price for cotton would be a cent to a cent and a quarter more than at present.

Opposition to Williams' confirmation by a group of Southern senators has been indicated as a result of the cotton representative's statement.

Williams in a communication to Chairman McNary of the agriculture committee said he desired to clarify his testimony, as questions had served to obscure his actual meaning.

RANGERS JAIL FOUR OFFICERS

Liquor Charges Filed in Borger Arrests

BORGER, Texas, Oct. 7. (AP)—Seven present or former city and county officers had been arrested tonight as Borger swung into its second week of clean-up under martial law. The arrests, it was understood, were made as a part of the campaign to break up the "entrenched criminal ring," which investigators have charged existed here.

Officials arrested today, all for possession of liquor, were: Deputy Sheriff Cal Baird, Clint Millhollan, policeman, and former Policeman D. T. Blassingame and J. D. Lee. All were arrested on orders from the military court which is investigating the alleged ring and seeking, at Gov. Dan Moody's orders, to destroy it.

Mayor on Bond

Mayor Glenn A. Pace, Justice of the Peace Walter Broomhall and Deputy Constable Sam Jones were arrested during the first week of martial law. Pace is at liberty on a $3,000 bond charged with having forced a witness in a murder trial to leave town. Broomhall resigned after being in jail a few hours and Jones is accused of extortion and accepting a bribe.

Four other people were charged with possession of liquor: Mr. and Mrs. Fred English, Lonnie Anderson and Charles Hale. Hale already is under indictment for murder in connection with the death of Ray Martin at Rattlesnake Inn near here in 1923. Two other persons, arrested for violation of the Dean liquor law, were arrested without orders from the military court. Rangers Dott Smith and M. B. Gault arrested Mrs. Betty Ward and W. D. Ward, charging the man with "obstructing the enforcement of martial law" as well as with the Dean law violation.

Highway Arrests

The city jail which held its prisoners at noon today had been filled to capacity tonight because of arrests made by representatives of the state highway department for failure to purchase automobile licenses. So many arrests were made for this reason that it finally was necessary to open a temporary jail in a vacant building. These cases are to be tried tomorrow.

With word from Governor Moody today that winter uniforms had been ordered for the guardsmen on duty here Brigadier Gen. Jacob Wolters looked forward to a lengthy stay. One of the staff officers, hearing a discussion of a Hallowe'en celebration remarked: "Christmas is what I am interested in."

There was little indication today that city and county officers would resign, as requested by Governor Moody. General Wolters denied that city and county officials had offered to resign if martial law were lifted.

Three officers, besides those arrested today, have been arrested since the assassination Sept. 13 of District Attorney John A. Holmes. Mayor Glenn A. Pace is under bond of $3,000 on charges that he caused a witness in a murder case to leave town. Justice of the Peace Walter Broomhall resigned after spending several hours in jail and testifying before the military court, and Sam Janes, a deputy constable is in jail under charges of extortion and accepting a bribe.

GRAND JURY BEGINS WORK

Recent Crimes Here to Get Attention

Charged by Judge Allan Montgomery to study recently developed crime conditions in Wichita county with a view to an immediate remedy, the 30th district October grand jury Monday began the examinations of a score of witnesses in the first day of its investigative work.

The jurors turned their attention first to cases already prepared by members of the district attorney's office, working in conference with Sam Spence, district attorney; George W. Anderson and Mike Anglin, assistants.

Witnesses involved in criminal assault charges already filed against John J. Bartlett, former deputy United States marshal, were among the first to be summoned into the grand jury room.

Tuesday's session is expected to center on the series of robbery charges brought here against Otis Akers, now held in the county jail accused of the holdup of three Wichita county business houses more than a year ago. Almost 100 state witnesses have been subpoened for the week's work.

Judge Montgomery Monday morning called the attention of the investigators to the recent increase in burglaries and knob knockings here, asking them to analyze the situation and suggest a remedy. His special charge was delivered to the following members of the body: T. T. T. Reese, foreman, C. E. McDonald, H. C. Obenhaus, and H. Y. Newson, of Electra; J. E. Keller and D. O. Smith, of Iowa Park; H. S. Grace and Jud Exley, of Burkburnett; and Roscoe Station, C. H. Clark, Ed F. Riley and F. P. Timberlake, all of Wichita Falls.

MOODY FILLS TWO VACANCIES

Commissioner of Appeals Members Named

73rd district court of Bexar county, succeeding Judge Robert W. B. Terrell, resigned.

The place had been offered to Sylvan Lang of San Antonio, but he declined the appointment.

MONTEITH WANTS TO SERVE CITY

HOUSTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—A place on the auxiliary bench of the state's highest court was declined with thanks by Walter E. Monteith today because he wanted to remain mayor of Houston.

Mr. Minteith, swept into office on a "reform" platform, telephoned Governor Moody today that he could not accept appointment to the supreme court commission of appeals, tendered Saturday by the governor. The mayor had asked time to think it over and concluded to decline after a conference with Col. Frank Andrews, his campaign manager in the mayoralty race, Edgar Monteith, his brother, and others.

Reports that Mayor Monteith would be offered the post had been current for weeks. He previously had refused to discuss them, holding that it would be "presumptuous" for him to do so in the absence of a formal offer by the governor.

Explaining why he chose to stay here, Monteith said: "I was elected mayor of Houston by a vote of 24,000 to 14,000 for a work that has just started. I feel I would not be fair to my friends or to the voters and citizens of Houston generally if I surrendered this work at this time. They chose me to carry out a definite program of retrenchment and to accomplish certain reforms in the city administration that I had promised in my platform.

"There has already been much retrenchment. We have instituted a number of reforms, but have not yet been able to do many of the things that we have planned. It will take a year and perhaps two years to carry out all my campaign pledges."

Airport Notes

Both the Braniff and Safeway airlines reported almost full loads of passengers on the morning and afternoon schedules of the two lines Monday, according to C. P. Logan, manager of the Municipal airport.

Following the barnstorming flights of one of the huge Safeway tri-motored airliners Sunday afternoon, it was announced that the great ship would take passengers on short scenic trips over the city and surrounding country each Sunday afternoon. Almost 2,000 persons visited the Municipal airport Sunday during the short hops of the Ford plane. Fred Ridenour, pilot of the Lone Star Aviation company, acted as mate and co-pilot of the tri-motored ship on several of its flights.

Mrs. James E. McKanna and Miss Chrystella Waggoner made a short trip to Fort Worth Monday afternoon in the large Travelair J6-5 cabin monoplane piloted by Burton L. Walker.

G. S. Harding, licensed mechanic and pilot, formerly with the Texas Air Transport at Fort Worth, is now a member of the Lone Star Aviation company staff.

WICHITA'S NEED

Religion Would Give New Life to City, Says Evangelist Here

The Monday night audience at the First Baptist church revival, being conducted by the Taylor evangelistic party, more than filled the main auditorium of the church to hear Evangelist Charlie Taylor's sermon on "The Greatest Need of Wichita Falls." The remarkable spirit of the service was typical of the Sunday services, when the auditorium was taxed to its utmost capacity, not only for the morning and evening services, but for the afternoon mass meeting.

"The greatest need of Wichita Falls is not oil wells, not social reform, and not mere religion," said the evangelist.

"The greatest need is the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ—if all men, women and children in this beautiful and progressive city knew, personally, through faith, the Savior, then the greatest era of prosperity, peace and good will, happiness and real joy would reign in the minds and hearts of all."

Tuesday night at 7:45, Evangelist Taylor will bring one of his special sermons on "Bible characters," using as his subject, "The First Man to Ride in a Submarine."

AUSTIN, Oct. 7. (AP)—Completing the regular constitutional three-months' vacation, the supreme court and the court of criminal appeals started their new terms today. They merely formally came together, with Wednesday set as the first decision day.

The shpreme court referred 39 cases to each section of the commission of appeals. Irwin W. Coleman of Vernon was appointed stenographer and law clerk of the supreme court to succeed John H. Johnson, resigned.

Negro Child Scalded When Tub Overturns

Frances Forbus, 5-year-old daughter of Mary Bell Patterson, negress, who lives in the rear of 2605 Avenue C, suffered severe burns about 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon when a tub of boiling water near which she was playing overturned and drenched her.

The child was taken to the Wichita General hospital where physicians stated that she had been seriously scalded about the face and chest but that her condition was not regarded as critical.

COUNCIL VOTES TAX APPROVAL

Rolls Certified and Approved by Aldermen

The city tax rolls compiled in the office of W. Ralph Hyer, city and school tax assessor and collector, were approved by the aldermen at the meeting of the city council Monday night. The rolls were certified by Mr. Hyer and by the board of equalization.

The tax rate for the city was set at $1.40 on the $100 valuation, the same rate as last year, by the council two weeks ago. Taxes became due and payable on Oct. 1. The tax roll as approved sets the total value of property in Wichita Falls at $52,708,400.

The council authorized the appropriation of $2,700 for repairs and new installation of plumbing at the Wichita General hospital. The pipes and fixtures have become worn, rusted and colgged, partly because of the hard water from the city mains, it was stated. The repair work will begin immediately.

An appropriation of $111.01 for the purpose of paying rebates to plumbers on a pro rata basis who paid $50 for their licenses before the ordinance was altered to fix the fee at $25 about a year ago was also authorized by the aldermen.

Evidence supporting the claim of H. L. Robertson, who was alleged to have suffered total blindness due to the use of certain chemicals while in the employ of the city, was presented to the aldermen by Judge Ed W. Napier, representing the plaintiff. Statements from several Wichita Falls physicians, pointing out that the chemicals used by Robertson could produce total blindness were read by Judge Napier. Robertson's claim is for $10,000. The council referred the case to City Attorney Thelbert Martin for legal advice.

A proclamation by Mayor J. W. Akin setting aside Monday, Oct. 21, as the day for the celebration of Light's Golden Jubilee in honor of Thomas A. Edison's invention of the electric light, was approved by the aldermen.

The council authorized the appropriation of $138.62 for the purpose of sending Claude F. Fooshee, city electrical inspector, to the National Electrical Inspector's convention to be held in Atlanta, Ga., late in October.

Darrow Defends Morons as Being Good Laborers

LONDON, Oct. 7. (UP)—Declaring that morons are highly valuable to society and compose the class of any population that does the "mass of the world's most important work," Clarence Darrow, the noted American lawyer, in an exclusive interview with the United Press today, attacked and denounced the movement to sterilise mental and moral defectives.

It is the moron, he argued, who shoulders uncomplainingly the unpleasant tasks of life. If any steps are taken to prevent the reproductions of morons, "many lawyers, doctors, parliamentarians, preachers and congressmen would have to go to work," Darrow contended.

Describing the propaganda for sterilization of defectives as "impracticable, unscientific and cruel," Darrow said:

"This is a new fad which I hope will pass away. The idea that a burglar will breed a burglar is utterly absurd. So far as heridity is concerned, a preacher is just as apt to produce a burglar as a burglar is. The training that is given to the individual after birth doubtless has a good deal to do with it.

CADILLAC LASALLE

FLEETWOOD

EXCESS VALUES MAKE THESE NEW MODELS LOWEST PRICED OF ALL TRULY FINE CARS

WHEN, three weeks ago, the new Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods were introduced, the Cadillac Motor Car Company promised—in these new creations—the greatest chassis value, the greatest body value, and the greatest price value in the motor-car industry today.

That this promise is fulfilled is perfectly apparent to everyone who has become personally familiar with these new Cadillacs and La Salles and had an opportunity to contrast them with those cars which might even remotely be considered competitive.

The present newness of the new Cadillacs and La Salles affects every phase of motor car appearance, performance and appointment.

New designs; lower, longer, racier lines; greater seating capacity; larger, smoother, more flexible V-type, 8-cylinder engines; more speed and power; non-shatterable Security-Plate Glass in all windows, doors and windshields.

A new harmonized steering system, designed by Cadillac engineers, makes these cars amazingly easy to handle. So perfectly does this new harmonized steering system solve the problems arising from low-pressure balloon tires and higher speeds that it eliminates all steering effort and steering strain.

Two special Cadillac-La Salle features—the quick, quiet, clashless Synchro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission and the Safety-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes—have been raised to new heights of efficiency, ease of operation and protection.

The new Fisher and Fleetwood bodies are so rich and regal that the average automobile body appears disturbingly inadequate by comparison. Luxurious new special fittings and appointments are everywhere evident in these new Cadillacs and La Salles.

Nothing has been left undone in equipment, finish and appointment to achieve the very utmost in comfort, safety, dependability, driving facility and luxurious environment.

A summing-up of comparisons and contrasts can result in but one conclusion: that these new Cadillacs and La Salles are not only the most highly perfected and completely appointed motor-cars in the industry today, but—what is of even greater importance—that Cadillac, the world's quality-standard, has become also the world's price-value standard by which all other motor-car values must come to be judged. Cadillac Motor Car Company, Division of General Motors.

. . . Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values. Cadillac-La Salle delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

EASY.--The Love Story of a Modern Girl.-- By Beatrice Burton

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann-Marie Macy wanted to be an artist. She told John Lawler, handsome son of a banker and "catch of the town" that she would never marry. But when John came in his car to take her to her father's tiny book store, Ann-Marie's heart pounded violently. Later when she knew he wanted to embrace her, she resisted. All girls pet, John argued; even her sisters, Jeanne and Alice, but Ann-Marie is different. Still arguing, they arrive at Ann-Marie's home to find a gay, informal party. Alice boldly asks John to take her to the Christmas dance but he replies he has asked Ann-Marie. When Ann-Marie suggests that he take Alice, he agrees to but is angry. Lamenting Ann-Marie calls him back, but Alice makes Ann-Marie forego the dance. She even asks Ann-Marie to paint flowers on her dress. Mrs Leasure, who is housekeeper in the motherless home, sympathizes with Ann-Marie, who is the "goat" of the two more modern flapper sisters. Ann-Marie, however, is secretly saving to study art. Florence Lawler, John's sister, calls on her with "good news."

Unlike her bold and modern flapper sisters, Jeanne and Alice, Ann Marie Macy refuses to compromise her high ideals by petting. Ann Marie has more serious ideas. She saves the money she earns in her father's bookstore to study art. When John Lawler, catch-of-the-town, invites her to the Christmas dance, her happiness is short lived as Alice selfishly requests Ann Marie to stay home while she attends the party in her place. Alice and Jeanne further infuriate Ann Marie by pilfering her Christmas bottle of rare perfume.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER VI

The quarreling stopped like magic. But, like most people who are slow to anger, Ann Marie did not get over her anger in a hurry.

And her cheeks were still scarlet with fury and her eyes were like blue flame when she marched down the aisle to the front of the store.

"Hello, Floss!" she greeted Florence Lawler as calmly as she could. "You haven't come for the programs, have you? I told you not to stop in for them until you were on your way to the dance, don't you remember? And they're not ready."

Florence frowned. "I thought probably they'd be ready now if I stopped in," she answered. All her life people had jumped through hoops at her bidding—and when they didn't jump quickly enough to suit her she was upset.

She was upset now because Ann Marie didn't have the dance programs ready for her.

"Well, get them finished as soon as you can," she said irritably, "because you just have to go to that dance tonight, Ann Marie!—Here I am with two extra men on my hands—Oh, I forgot—You haven't met them."

She turned and laid one white-gloved hand on the coat sleeve of the taller of the two men who had come in with her.

"Miss Macy—Mr. Jim Goodwin," she said, and Ann Marie looked up into the kindest pair of brown eyes she ever had seen.

Jim Goodwin was one of those very tall, very large men who are very quiet and very gentle. You could tell, just by looking at him, that there was nothing crooked, nothing small and mean, about him. He met the world with a straight, honest pair of eyes, a warm, firm handclasp and a quick, friendly, boyish smile.

Ann Marie noticed all these things about him as she shook hands with him—and then forgot all about him instantly.

For Florence was introducing the other man to her, and he was anything but the kind of man that girls forget. He was the kind that a great many of them, no doubt, wished they could forget!

"My cousin, Neal Forsythe, Ann Marie," Florence was saying, and as Ann Marie turned to look at him, something happened to her heart that certainly never had happened to it before.

It seemed to stop for a moment, suffocating her, and then to hurry on faster than ever before . . . Long afterward she told Neal Forsythe, half joking, that she never had understood the phrase, "my heart stood still" until that moment.

He was enough to make any girl stop, look and take another look.

He looked like the paintings of Lord Byron—black hair, gray eyes with a hint of the devil in them, and the sensitive mouth of a poet.

"Of course, you're going to go with us tonight," he said to Ann Marie, shaking hands with her. "You wouldn't throw me and Jim down, would you?—Floss says that every other girl in town is dated up to go—"

Ann Marie interrupted him, shaking her head. "Oh, but she's joking! There always are girls who stay at home from the Country club parties! There never are enough men to go 'round in this town!" she declared. "Why, Floss knows dozens of girls she could ask instead of me."

"But not girls like you!" Neal Forsythe said in a tone that made Ann Marie think of John McCormack singing, "But there's never a rose like you."

"That's absolutely true!" Florence Lawler agreed loyally. "Ann Marie's the nicest kid in town—even if her two sisters do hear me say it and hold it against me!"

Alice and Jeanie came up from the back of the shop, bringing the fragrance of Ann Marie's perfume with them.

They came slowly, as if the thought of meeting two strange men frightened them a little. And Alice gazed up at Neal Forsythe with the shy look of a Puritan maiden. The sweetest little-girl sort of smile just lifted the corners of her lips . . . There was no doubt that Alice had a way of her own with the men!

She fluttered her eye-lashes at him and said "How do you do?" in a soft bell-like voice utterly unlike the voice that she used around the house.

But he paid no more attention to her than he did to Jeanie. He shook hands with both of them pleasantly, and then turned back to Ann Marie.

"Look here, you must go with us tonight," he told her. "It's going to spoil my whole evening if you don't. It is, really."

It was always hard for Ann Marie to refuse anybody anything. And this time she did not want to say "No." She found that she wanted to go to the dance more than she had wanted to do anything for a long time.

"All right," she answered. "But I can't finish the programs. I won't have time."

"We can get along without them," Florence Lawler decided, "and the boys and I will pick you up at your house at seven. We'll have dinner at the club—and tell Howdy to be ready then, too."

She started for the door with the two men, and Jeanie and Alice tagged along. "You can drop us at our house now," Ann Marie heard them say as they squeezed through the front door with Florence.

The whole face of the world had changed for Ann Marie in those few little minutes, it seemed to her.

She went back to her work-table and began to finish the snow scene she had been painting on one of the dance programs. But she worked blindly . . . All she could see—all she could think about—was Neal Forsythe. And the thought of seeing him again made her throb with excitement.

"Half past five," she thought, looking up at the Dutch clock above her father's roll-top desk. "In an hour and a half I'll see him again!"

She swept the programs together and put them into her handbag.

"Dad," she said. "I think I'll go home now."

He looked up at her, nodding—How small and meek and hard-working he was, she thought. Wasn't it a shame to leave him here all alone on Christmas Eve to take care of any customers who might come in during the evening? . . . Poor little dad.

"How late are you planning to keep the store open tonight, dad?" she asked him, her throat aching with pity. She was always sorry for him, somehow—

"Well, 'til half past 10 if that's all right with you, Ann Marie," he answered hesitantly.

"All right with me?"

"Yes—You know I'm going to your Uncle Hamby's for supper tonight. Don't you remember I told you?" he asked. "They're having the old Whist club tonight. The one your mother and I belonged to—"

"Oh, of course!" Ann Marie broke in, nodding her shining, brown-gold head. "Well, I'll skip home and have a bite to eat now, and I'll be back by half past six. Then you can get away early."

She knew that he had not told her about the card party at Uncle Hamby's house that night . . . He was always forgetting things that he should have remembered.

But she knew, too, how much he enjoyed an evening spent among his old friends — among the people who had been his friends back in the days when he had his wife with him.

"Bring me a clean collar and handkerchief when you come back!" he called to Ann Marie as she was opening the front door, "I'll get dressed here . . . Sure you don't mind spending Christmas Eve here alone?"

"Positive!" Ann Marie called back and her voice sounded cheerful and light.

But her 20-year-old heart was heavy with disappointment as she went out into Front street.

Across the road the yellow stockings were still on display in the show window of the Boston store . . . Well, she wouldn't wear them tonight, would she? . . . She wouldn't dance with Neal Forsythe.

The house was in an uproar when Ann Marie got home.

Howdy was taking a leisurely bath and Alice and Jeanie wanted the bathroom. They were pounding on the door and demanding that he hurry.

"We haven't had our baths, you idiot!" Alice was shouting. And it's almost 6 o'clock!"

"He was her man.

"But he done her wrong'," Howdy sang at the top of his voice, paying no attention to her.

"He's singing that vile 'Frankie and Johnny'," Alice said indignantly as Ann Marie came up the stairs, "And pretending he doesn't hear us! —I don't know when you're going to get your bath, Ann Marie, because Jeanie and I come first . . . Heavens, why don't we have two bathrooms like other decent people? —This horrible house!"

Ann Marie shook her head.

"You don't have to worry about me and my bath," she said, "I'm not going to the dance I'm going back to the store for the evening. I promised Dad I would."

She went into her own room and scribbled a note of explanation to Florence Lawler and slipped it into an envelope with the dance programs.

"Will you give this to Floss when she comes tonight?" she asked Alice, and handed her the envelope.

"Yes, I'll give it to her," Alice answered, slipping it under the lace of her combing jacket. "But I do wish you wouldn't go down to the store and work — just like a common clerk, Ann Marie! Jeanie and I both feel that it hurts our — our social position in this town. And it makes people feel that dad can't support us."

"He can't," said Ann Marie, facing the truth in her honest straightforward way. "He has a million debts—and everything we have is mortgaged. This house — and the store building—"

Alice cut her off, short. "Well, stop talking about it!" She gave a shiver. "It's bad enough to be poor without everlastingly reminding ourselves of it!—Thanks for painting my dress for me. I know all the girls will just burst into tears when they see how grand I'm going to look tonight!"

The store was very quiet that night.

Ann Marie sat in a corner by the airtight stove reading "Tono-Bungay," and listening to the songs of some Christmas carrollers somewhere in the distance.

"O, little town of Bethlehem,
"How shall we see thee lie—"

She shut her eyes and wondered how Alice and Neal Forsythe were getting along at the country club . . . It was 10 o'clock. They were probably very chummy by this time, for Alice was a fast worker.

The door at the front of the store opened and closed.

She looked up.

A very tall broad man stood there in a black overcoat. A wilted white gardenia was in his buttonhole and his gloves and a soft black hat were in one hand. He laid them on the table of new travel books.

"Mr. Goodwin!" Ann Marie said, jumping up from the chair where she was curled. "Why—I thought you were at the party!"

"I was," he said quietly, "But—I got to thinking about you. Your brother told me you were looking after this place, and I wondered—I wondered how you were going to get home at this time of night."

WATER SURVEY MEETS OCT. 21

Distribution Border Streams To Be Studied

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (US)—Exhaustive study of how the waters of the Colorado, Rio Grande, and the Tia Juana rivers shall be divided by the United States and Mexico will be undertaken here Oct. 21 when the International Water commission reconvenes after a two months' recess for additional survey.

The rivers, once regarded as useful only for boundary lines and watering places for cattle, have become, in the last 15 years, the key of existence of hundreds of thousands of farmers who settled in the lands near the banks on both sides, and have diverted the water for irrigation purposes.

To Determine Rights

The conferences are to decide to just what extent the United States and Mexico are entitled to undertake scientific and systematic development of these water resources.

The Tia Juana river, it was explained at the interior department today, winds back and forth across the American-Mexican border, having its origin in Mexico and emptying into the Pacific about two miles north of the line. Originally it was used as a watering place for cattle herds, but in recent years farms of fabulous value have drawn from its water until its flow now has one of the greatest acre-foot values in the world.

Furthermore the city of San Diego now looks to the Tia Juana as a means of reinforcing its present water supply.

Or even greater importance are the waters of the Rio Grande, where, already, $20,000,000 worth of private waterworks are in operation, supplying irrigation water for farms.

The Mexican government has already built several costly dams and reservoirs on the south side of the river and in the Mexican tributaries, and the question now arises as to building two or more huge dams in the river channel proper. The purpose of these would be to store up the water of flood times, which now endangers hundreds of thousands of farms, and hold it for distribution during drought periods.

The international angle of the Colorado river question centers mainly around the Boulder dam enterprise, which has as one of its main purposes the prevention of inundation of farm lands both in Mexico and Imperial valley of California by the overflows of the river.

Illinois coal brought $112,085,000 in 1928 and was produced by 64,268 workers who found employment an average of 156 days out of the year.

Only 30 men survive of the 1,000 who marched to war in the 79th Illinois volunteer infantry 67 years ago.

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

For Lovely Women Greater Beauty

Beauty's first requisite—skin perfection. Thus, the fairest and wisest use MELLO-GLO Face Powder that spreads more smoothly and produces a youthful bloom. Its new French process makes MELLO-GLO stay on longer and bans the shiny nose. Pure! Prevents pastiness, flakiness, irritation and large pores. Use MELLO-GLO. Girls felt sorry for Dave

. . but "B.O." is so unpardonable

(Body Odor)

THE GIRLS were cordial, very polite. But something was wrong again. "They seem cool," thought Dave, "as if I weren't really welcome. Wish I knew why people always lose interest in me."

That was several months ago. Today Dave is a social favorite. Read how he finally discovered and overcame his fault—"B.O." Body Odor!

"I always doubted it—that anybody could be troubled by 'B.O.' and not know it.

"And I was mistaken like thousands of others. I did offend. As my doctor explained, we become accustomed to ever-present odors. But pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste daily, he told me.

"Now, I use Lifebuoy—and 'B.O.' hasn't a chance. After a Lifebuoy bath, you feel like a million. That clean-smelling antiseptic lather purifies so thoroughly, you stay fresh.

"Lifebuoy is great for the skin, too. And it gets rid of germs. You can tell Lifebuoy purifies from its pleasant extra-clean scent that vanishes as you rinse."

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Wise legislation has halted the ancient prejudice that dictated the exploitation of child labor for selfish gain. Guided by AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE it has routed greed. No longer are little children forced into slavery.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

First Methodist W.M.S. Has Interesting Meet

Several interesting features made the all day meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the First Methodist church outstanding in pleasure and inspiration. Among them was the appeal of the "Missionary Voice" agent, Mrs. T. R. Boone, from Floral Heights M. E. church, who appeared in a dress made from the covers of the "Voice," and showed copies dating back 36 years. To a march played by Mrs. C. Y. Tully, 10 ladies came in, each with a "Missionary Voice," pinned to her and making her own appeal for the official missionary paper.

The meeting, in the old church, began at 11 o'clock and was opened by two hymns, led by Mrs. Stanley Raub, with Mrs. J. E. O'Brian at the piano. The opening prayer was led by Mrs. J. E. Stokes.

Inspirational Talk

Mrs. Wayne Somerville gave an inspirational talk on "Christian Stewardship," claiming that real Christianity is based on stewardship.

Mrs. W. W. Cook, president of the society, displayed the loving cup which the junior and primary departments of the Missionary society of Wichita Falls and Bellevue tied for, each keeping it half the time. An appeal was made to the mothers to see that their children came to the meetings for the good they would derive and to keep the cup in the Wichita Falls departments.

Mrs. Miller asked that the children have their scrap-books ready by the latter part of October so they might be sent to the Japanese children for Christmas presents.

Luncheon Served

After the "Voice" appeal, lunch was served in the basement to about 145 ladies.

Announcements were made and guests and new members introduced. Guests included Mrs. Patterson of Fort Worth, Mrs. Lillian Kerr, Mrs. Hay, Mrs. T. R. Boone, Mrs. T. D. Moore's mother and Rev. C. W. Thomas of Archer City.

A song led by Mrs. Stanley Raub started the afternoon session with Mrs. W. P. Williams at the piano. In the absence of Mrs. Q. B. Lee, the secretary, Mrs. W. W. Silk gave the reports and read the minutes, and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Bert Bean. Mrs. J. J. Jenkins, superintendent, gave the social service report.

A very interesting report was given by Mrs. W. H. Downing, superintendent of supplies. Mrs. R. E. Miller, district superintendent of supplies was introduced and made a short talk concerning the work.

Mrs. E. B. Gorsline dismissed the society with prayer.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS L. N. CASON

Every week some bride-to-be is given a shower. We wonder why none has had such a shower as Mrs. John Coolidge enjoyed, a grocery shower, sponsored by her sister. ——A reporter reading over our shoulder, just remarked that he wondered why they never showered the bridegroom.

We consider it bootlegging prices when we sit on a stool at a counter and are charged ten cents for a cup of coffee. And whether it's legal or not, we know three women who are going to boycott the shop that treated them so. They've regretted ever since they didn't sit at a table and use napkins.

When the Honorable Bertrand Arthur William Russell said he did not understand the last five pages of Einstein's "Coherent Field Theory," (six pages long), we were reminded of the man who said anyone could write the first line of a poem.

We hear conversation about the "new youth," and "new code of morals," on every side. While we are always interested in our own dear ones, we feel somehow that people can mind their own business much better for themselves than we can for them. "Am I my brother's keeper?" was an Old Testament question. The New Testament motto is "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

The circus has come to town. It is a great democracy. If one can get under the big tent before the circus begins, there is so much to see. On a line, stockings of all sizes, from wee baby socks to those long ballet stockings.

◇ ◇ ◇

The man who tends the horses has a genuine love for them. He was shaving, the morning before the circus, but he walked about with a lathered face, waving his shaving brush to point out the animals of interest. Tall, with iron gray hair, he has for years lived with the horses.

He was quite proud of an educated mule, one of the newest possessions. We have known so many educated mules they rouse no thrill whatever in us.

◇ ◇ ◇

A boy of about 17 was carrying the ponies, zebras, etc., and as he carried, he cussed them in a most affectionate tone. Just the tone we have heard men use in the last few years when they talked to their cars.

◇ ◇ ◇

Cotton pickers going through the town, stopped to go to the circus. We saw one Ford touring car of early vintage with seven colored men of assorted ages, about seven to sixty, and everyone of them had a balloon.

Ideal Husband Exists Only In Fairy Stories

"A Woman's Ideal Husband Would Be a Composite of Rudolph Valentino, Henry Ford, Job and Ananias. Is It Any Wonder That She Never Finds Him?" Inquires Dorothy Dix.

No woman ever gets her ideal husband for the very excellent reason that Prince Charmings exist only in fairy tales. In a real world real husbands are mere male creatures with tempers and nerves and narrowness and prejudices and littlenesses and meannesses and a large and assorted variety of human weaknesses mixed up with good qualities in even the best of them.

God made 'em that way, all faulty and twisty-like, to match the women. Otherwise divorce would be even more common than it is, for no wife could stand living with a perfect husband day in and day out. Nevertheless, every woman cherishes in her secret soul the vision of the ideal husband that she feels she should have got if Cupid hadn't double-crossed her.

To begin with, he would be a sheik. Tall, dark, with a classical profile and brooding, passionate eyes, but he would never know that he was handsome, nor go peacocking around, as masculine beauties generally do, expecting every woman to burn incense at their feet. Nor would he be so good-looking as to present an invidious comparison to herself. Heaven knows it is soothing to no woman's vanity to hear people say wherever they go: "Isn't Mr. Blank just perfectly stunning looking? And how do you suppose he ever came to marry that homely little frump?"

Then he would have a way with women. He would be gallant. He would be a parlor knight who would always be picking up handkerchiefs and pulling out chairs and kissing hands. And he would have a keen line and know how to jolly a woman along and make them pretty speeches. He would be an adept at near-flirtations, but he would never philander and he would never, never, never know that there was any other skirt but his Maria's.

He would be a masterful man. A man who dominated all about him. A man whom other men feared and of whom they stood in awe. A cold, hard, inexorable man who forced his will and opinions on others, but he would be clay in her hands, and she could do with him as she would.

Other men would defer to his opinions and respect his judgment, but he would obey her like a little child and never think of such a thing as interfering in her management of the house or the rearing of the children.

If she wanted to have the drawing room done over in Empire style, Empire it would be without any foolish argument on the subject. If she desired to go to Europe for the summer, he would immediately perceive that she needed a sea voyage and foreign travel. If she wanted to put the children in private schools, he would say: "Yes, my dear," not because he was weak, but just because he recognized that she was always right about such things.

He would be understanding. He wouldn't be cross and grumpy and say mean, hateful things because there wasn't any dinner ready when he came home from work of an evening. He would know you simply can't break up a bridge game just to rush home and cook something for your husband to eat, and that you were not to blame if the tea held on past 5 o'clock.

Nor would he raise a ruction every time you got a new hat that cost more than you should have paid and remind you that he was wearing his last year's lid. He would see that you couldn't let that uppity Mary Jones make you look like something out of the ragbag and that you just had to have a new blue hat to match your blue dress. And he would know that nobody ever notices a man's hat and he might just as well wear an old one as a new one.

He would be easy to live with. He wouldn't be fussy about his food and expect you to spend your time over the stove cooking him up hot meals when you could open up a can of something and get something else in from the delicatessen. Nor would he expect to be considered around the house or to have any rights in it.

He would be perfectly satisfied to be ousted out of the living room by Mary and her boy friend, and out of the dining room by Johnny and his gang, and out of his bedroom by his wife's relatives and to have to spend his evenings sitting in the kitchen or on the back stoop, and he wouldn't expect to have even one hanger in the closet for his individual possessions.

And he would simply be glad and consider it a privilege to stay at home and work while wife went away for a couple of months in the summer when it was hot and a couple of more month in the winter when it was cold, and he would never dream of such a wicked thing as stepping out in the long, lonely, dreary evenings.

A woman's ideal husband would be a composite of Rudolph Valentino, Henry Ford, Job and Ananias. Is it any wonder that she never finds him?—DOROTHY DIX.

Why nearly everybody's bowels need Milk of Magnesia

Reduce acids of system—Instantly

MAGNESIA is marvelous for the system that's too acid. And Phillips Milk of Magnesia is magnesia in its best form. It's easily the foremost anti-acid.

It soon has a sour stomach all serene again, free from that unpleasant gas and thoroughly alkalinized.

But this perfect anti-acid does as important a service for the bowels as for the stomach. Phillips Milk of Magnesia has ideal laxative properties.

Perhaps you did not know that. Possibly you are taking something needlessly strong to assist elimination. Most of us live today in a manner that makes the system lazy. It needs occasional help. This gentler aid is just as effective as the things one hesitates to take for the purpose.

An acid condition is at the bottom of lots of systemic disorders. So before you resort to dieting, try this simple means of restoring the alkaline balance. One spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. It is a delightful—and an effective—way of relieving the discomfort that follows overeating; heartburn; biliousness. It is ideal, too, in the upsets that come to children. No persuasion is needed for them to take this milk-white, creamy emulsion and nothing could be better than its mild corrective action in the stomach and in the bowels.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia has many uses in almost any household and it is one product that should be in every family medicine cabinet. Be sure you get Phillips Milk of Magnesia as this is the genuine prescriptional product.

To Make Inexpensive Glassware Sparkle Like Costly Kind

Simple New Way Does Wonders and Is Kind to Pretty Hands—Use Any Kind of Soap

Even the most inexpensive table china and glassware can be made to look far better than its price in a simple way. It can be given the brilliancy and sparkle of the most costly kinds; and glassware particularly is judged by its sparkle.

Simply add one teaspoonful of the cleansing preparation called CLEMALENE to your water. Use the same soap you ordinarily do, but use only ONE-FOURTH the usual quantity. Wash as usual.

This preparation is a grease dissolvent, while soap is, strictly speaking, a grease. Thus it gives shine and sparkle while soap often leaves a greasy film that's hard to get rid of even with the most careful drying.

Most hotels use this method to make glass and china gleam. Housewives like it not only for this reason, but because it acts to soften and whiten skin fabric of the hands.

Results are surprising. Try it. Get at any grocery store in 10c or 25c package. Just ask your grocer for CLEMALENE.

Again?

Men don't understand; and some women are so helpless. Each month they suffer untold pain, though those times could be entirely painless. Midol makes the natural process of menstruation an incident; yes, even for those who have always experienced acute and prolonged suffering! Try Midol; anticipate your time and avoid all misery or even discomfort. Or take it when the pain is at its height, and feel at ease in five to seven minutes. Midol is not a narcotic; acts directly on organs affected. Fifty cents, aluminum case.*

*Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

VALLEY FIGHTS FREIGHT RATES

Shippers at San Antonio for Hearing

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 7. (AP)—Attacking as high freight rates charged by railroads serving the lower Rio Grande valley, Texas shippers opened their fight today to abolish differential rates before W. A. Discue, rate examiner for the Interstate Commerce commission, and Clarence E. Gilmore of the Texas Railroad commission.

The hearing was a resumption of testimony started last week in El Paso and moved to San Antonio to accommodate witnesses for this section.

The shippers have made their fight through the Texas Industrial league, an organization of traffic bureaus and rate experts employed by civic organizations. The railroads have consolidated their interests in opposing abolition of the differential territory.

The differential territory comprises much of South and West Texas and was granted as a concession more than 20 years ago by the Texas railroad commission as an inducement to get railroads to build into sparsely settled sections of South and West Texas. Shipments originating over any railroad in the United States with destination in this territory has cost the shipper from 15 to as high as 22 per cent more, A. S. Cole of Amarillo, president of the Texas Industrial league, said.

In this particular territory, all points south of Mathis, Odem, Devine and west of San Antonio to El Paso, all the territory west of San Angelo and Amarillo, have been roughly classed as the high rate regions.

J. E. Bell, secretary of the San Benito Chamber of Commerce, testified all lower valley shipping points had paid freight rates approximately 20 per cent higher than sections out of the differential territory in spite of the fact that more tonnage had originated and been received in the valley than any other section of the Southwest during the last 10 years.

SEVERE SPELLS OF INDIGESTION

"Black-Draught Helped Me a Great Deal," Says Tennessee Lady.

Elizabethton, Tenn.—Writing of her experience in the use of Thedford's Black-Draught, Mrs. W. S. Manning of 148 Watauga avenue, this city, recently said:

"For some time, I suffered from indigestion and sick headache. I would get almost blind, and stars would dance in front of my eyes.

"I had bad gas pains, and heartburn would come with these spells.

"I read about Black-Draught and decided to try it. I found it helped me a great deal. I got relief from these spells.

"I find Black-Draught a fine medicine for constipation. I have used it in my home for about 20 years. I don't think anything can take its place, for general family use. It is the best medicine of its kind I have ever tried."

Thedford's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable cathartic or laxative medicine, composed of selected medicinal herbs and roots. Black-Draught is finely powdered, which enables the juices of the stomach to extract its medicinal properties in an easy, natural way.

Newly Organized Group Starts Work

Special to The Record News

HOLLIS, Okla., Oct. 7.—E. A. Berry was recently elected president of the newly organized Harmon county Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Berry is general manager of the Hall & Berry Motor Co., and has been closely associated with every activity promoting the growth of Hollis and Harmon county and has worked unselfishly to make his community a better place in which to live. His acquaintance extends throughout southwestern Oklahoma and northwestern Texas, and he has many influential friends in the business and professional world.

At present, the attention of every officer and member of the chamber is being directed toward a constructive program of dairying, poultry raising and general diversification throughout the county. A general survey will be made in the near future of agricultural conditions in this section, and a united effort made to bring to Hollis industries which will turn raw materials produced on the farms into finished products. Harmon county offers ideal conditions for dairying on account of climatic conditions and adaptability of the soil to the growing of feed crops.

J. W. Ratekin, secretary of the chamber, is working overtime perfecting the work of organizing the various committees.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithiawater drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. —Adv.

Today in Texas History

OCT. 8

1813—Born, in Sevier county, Tenn., John M. Reagan, "The Great Commoner" of Texas.

1928—Tenth national convention of American Legion opened in San Antonio.

A British motorist skidded the other day, hit a lamp post and then crashed into the front of a store. That's probably the American movie influence.

Some people are pessimistic over the fact that they don't seem to get all out of life that's coming to them; others are optimists for the same reason.

It's hard to settle down after the vacation, but sometimes harder to settle up.

Courage and Honesty

ORDINARY courage and honesty—which, unfortunately, aren't quite as "ordinary" as we like to suppose—have a far greater effect on the life of a community than we generally realize.

Once they are exhibited they seem to have the power to start a sort of ferment which keeps on working, endlessly.

In the middle of the Texas Panhandle there is a boom oil town by the name of Borger.

Borger, born only three years ago, became known as the wickedest place in the United States. It was a bit of the lawless old wild west brought back to life. Its streets were lined with saloons, gambling halls, vice dens, all running quite openly. Men stalked about wearing six-shooters, as in the old days. Murders took place in broad daylight and went unavenged. Hijackers shot it out on the main street for truck loads of liquor and nobody dreamed of arresting them.

In short, Borger was the toughest town in the country. It had some law enforcement officials, but some of them seem to have been scared and some of them seem to have been crooked. The decent citizens were unable to remedy matters.

Then, somehow, Borger got as district attorney a man named John A. Holmes. Holmes happened to have both honesty and courage, in large quantities. He swore that he would clean up the mess that made Borger a disgrace to Texas.

It was a tough job. The local grand jury, for one reason and another, seemed loath to indict. So Holmes, undaunted by the threats that he kept receiving, announced that he would take his evidence to the federal grand jury at Amarillo and get his indictments there, out of the reach of Borger's terrorists and fixers.

He made his plans, but he never carried them out. A few nights before he was to go to Amarillo he was shot to death in his own back yard.

That looked like the end of it. It looked as if his honesty and fine courage had all been wasted.

But it wasn't the end. It was only the beginning. The murder aroused all of Texas. Soon a few tough looking, competent Texas rangers were strolling Borger's streets, revolvers openly displayed. A little later a company of state troops arrived, with fixed bayonets.

And now Borger is launched upon a real housecleaning. Its dives are closed, its bad men are either on their way out of town or languishing in jail. Respectability and decency are in the saddle and they will stay there.

Honesty and courage such as District Attorney Holmes showed are never wasted, never ineffective. You can kill the man who displays them, as Borger did, as Canton did with Don Mellett—but they keep on working, just the same. They provide the lump that ultimately leavens the whole loaf.

Honesty and courage. They aren't any too common, unluckily; but when a man who has plenty of each does appear he can make over a whole city—even if it costs him his life.

Have We a Ruling Class?

A GOOD MANY THINGS connected with the Shearer hearing have given us an acute pain; but nothing is much more painful than a little incident related by Rodney Dutcher, well known Washington correspondent.

Dutcher tells how one of a large group of people who could not get in the crowded committee room to attend the hearings protested when a guard let two women in ahead of a long line that has been waiting for hours.

"Those women," explained the guard, "are members of the D. A. R. and therefore they have precedence."

Just why this should be so, unless we are developing a "ruling class" based on birth and ancestry, with all the manifestations of snobbery that go with such an institution, is a little hard to understand. A D. A. R. has no more right to precedence in a hearing of that kind than a son of an immigrant.

Be Careful, Mexico!

MEXICO is taking up American football. President Portes Gil watches two teams at the University of Mexico indulge in a scrimmage, and expresses the hope that the game will spread throughout the country.

Very likely President Gil doesn't know just what he is wishing on his people.

Football is an excellent game; but did the Mexican president ever pause to consider whether Mexico is ready to cope with such perplexing questions as "over-emphasis," alumni proselyting activities, huge stadiums, scouting agreements, eligibility rules and all the rest?

These are matters that only an advanced and complex civilization can cope with; indeed, they seem almost too tough to solve even then. Is the Mexican president sure he wants them to spread south of the Rio Grande?

Consolation

I wish that I could shake you from my mind
And sleep of nights the way I used to do;
But you come creeping back—a vagrant wind
To stir my poignant memories of you.

You walk around as proudly as a queen,
And greet me level-eyed and debonair;
But I can't carry out your pretty scene.
My heart is on my sleeve, I'm well aware.

Well, pose away—but I recall a night
When you were not so insolent and cool;
You whispered, faltered. Think now—am I right?
Please give a little solace to a fool.

Remember how the moon rode in the sky—
And people turned and stared as we went by?

Of all Cracks!

George Peck entertained a group at the Newspaper club with this one the other night. Bill Shakespeare, then of the engraving department at the New York American, was accosted by one of the big shots of the outfit on a tour of inspection.

"Let me see," let-me-see'd the executive, "What is your name again?"

"William Shakespeare, sir," replied Bill.

"Um, quite a well-known name, eh?"

"Oughta be," was the devastating report, "I've been around here for 25 years!"

Heheheh

In Detroit last week one of the female principals in a new show was asked by the manager of the company how she liked the hotel at which she was stopping. She gave her okay, and the manager then asked: "Don't the drummers in the lobby annoy you?"

"I should say not. I never heard any music all night!"

Love Is a Terrible Thing

Not too many nights ago a chorus lass in a hit who had never touched giggle water before was persuaded to have a drink by her undressing-roommates. After the third swallow she cornered her sweetheart in the same troupe and let go with a mess of verbiage that startled the entire company. It so infuriated the chap that he mislaid his temper for the moment and socked her a terrific wallop on the nose (ritz for snoot) and she laid there like a herring who has been trapped by a Delancey streeter.

Not content with knocking her down the enraged chap proceeded to murder her with his fists, but others stepped in and she was rescued.

The next day all New York newspapers reported their sudden marriage.

Add Merciless Truths

Flip crack observed on a newspaperman's desk: "The newspaper business is the only business in which sometimes you wish you sold shoestrings on a corner for a living."

Yes, Indeedy

Credit Marc Lachman with this grand tale. One of our most beautiful show girls, who has been keeping company with a Broadway gorilla, recently opened in Atlantic City with a new musical show prior to its New York premiere. As is often the case these beauties have romantic love spells with various members of the cast which last only for the try-out period. On this occasion the girl fell for one of the chorus men in the show.

It was a grand week for both. Midnight parties, boardwalk walks in the moonlight, etc., etc. The boy realized that it would soon be over. So did the girl.

At the end of the week, just before the company boarded the train back to Broadway, the couple met in the vestibule of the Pullman. The girl realized she would soon be back with her gunman. As they kissed probably for the last time, she sighed and said: "Gosh, I am going to miss you in New York."

"New York, hell," shouted the chorus man, "you are going to miss me at Manhattan transfer!"

Imagine

Even George M. Cohan will tell you that once an actor always something or other.

Cohan, you might have heard before, has a payroll for numerous actors and others who now are hasbeens, but he seldom fills them. Recently, however, a former star who appeared in Cohan shows was in great need, even if he managed to promote coin for likker. The one-time star called Cohan on the phone. "See here George," he growled, "I've got to have $500 at once. I'm sending my valet for it!" Then he hung up.

Cohan gave the valet a check for $250. When the actor received it he sent Cohan another note: "Dear George," it read, "thanks for the $250 check. But you didn't inclose your I. O. U. for the other $250!"

You've Met Her

It happened at the N. Y. U.-Vermont football game the other Saturday. Izzy Elison took his "heart" to witness it, a sweet young thing who had never seen a football game before. During the proceedings she was bored, her gloomy silence being occasionally interrupted with some silly query about why that big brute had to jump so violently on that cute little fellow.

She certainly was having a dull time of it. When Izzy was about to suggest that they leave he saw her face light up in happy anticipation. She was watching something with keen interest and Izzy followed her gaze. A tall, handsome, curly headed blond chap was making his way toward the stand. He was evidently the cheer leader, for he held a megaphone in his hand. As he came nearer he put the megaphone to his lips. Then the girl friend tugged violently at Izzy's good arm.

"Oooooh!" she cried passionately, "I do hope it's 'Deep Night!'"

"All Quiet on the Western Front"

By ERICH MARIA REMARQUE

CHAPTER XXI

It is the last evening at home. Everyone is silent. I go to bed early. I seize the pillow, press it against myself and bury my head in it. Who knows if I will ever lie in a feather bed again?

Late in the night my mother comes into my room. She thinks I am asleep, and I pretend to be so. To talk, to stay awake with one another—it is too hard.

She sits long into the night, although she is in pain and often writhes. At last I can bear it no longer, and pretend I have just wakened up.

"Go to sleep, mother, you will catch cold here."

"I can sleep enough later," she says.

I sit up. "I don't go straight back to the front, mother. I have to do four weeks at the training camp. I may come over from there one Sunday, perhaps."

She is silent. Then she asks gently: "Are you very much afraid?"

"No, mother."

"I would like to tell you to be on your guard against the women out in France. They are no good!"

Ah! Mother! Mother! You still think I am a child—why can I not put my head in your lap and weep? Why have I always to be strong and self-controlled? I would like to weep and be comforted, too; indeed, I am little more than a child; in the wardrobe still hang my short, boy's trousers—it is such a little time ago, why is it over?

"Where we are there aren't any women, mother," I say as calmly as I can.

"And be very careful at the front, Paul."

Ah, mother, mother! Why do I not take you in my arms and die with you? What poor wretches we are!

"Yes, mother, I will."

"I will pray for you every day, Paul."

Ah! Mother, mother! Let us rise up and go out, back through the years, where the burden of all this misery lies in us no more, back to you and me alone, mother!

"Perhaps you can get a job that is not so dangerous."

"Yes, mother; perhaps I can get into the cook-house, that can easily be done."

"You do it then and if the others say anything—"

"That won't worry me, mother—"

She sighs. Her face is a white gleam in the darkness.

"Now you must go to sleep, mother."

She does not reply. I get up and wrap my cover round her shoulders.

She supports herself on my arm, she is in pain. And so I take her to her room. I stay with her a little while.

"And you must get well again, mother, before I come back."

"Yes, yes, my child."

"You ought not to send your things to me, mother. We have plenty to eat out there. You can make much better use of them here."

How destitute she lies there in her bed, she that loves me more than all the world. As I am about to leave, she says hastily: "I have two pairs of underpants for you. They are all wool. They will keep you warm. You must not forget to put them in your pack."

Ah! Mother! I know what these underpants have cost you in waiting, and walking, and begging! Ah! Mother, mother! how can it be that I must part from you? Who else is there that has any claim on me but you? Here I sit and there you are lying, and we have so much to say, that we could never say it.

"Good night, mother."

"Good night, my child."

The room is dark. I hear my mother's breathing and the ticking of the clock. Outside the window the wind blows and the chestnut trees rustle.

On the landing I stumble over my pack which lies there already made up, because I have to leave early in the morning.

I bite into my pillow. I grasp the iron rods of my bed with my fists. I ought never to have come here. Out there I was indifferent and often hopeless; I will never be able to be so again. I was a soldier, and now I am nothing but an agony for myself, for my mother, for everything that is so comfortless and without end.

I ought never to have come on leave.

I already know the camp on the Moors. It was here that Himmelstoss gave Tjaden his education. But now I know hardly anyone here; as ever, all is altered. There are only a few people that I have occasionally met before.

The camp is surrounded with high barbed-wire fences. If we come back late from the Soldiers' Home we have to show passes. But those who are on good terms with the guard can get through, of course.

Between the junipers and the birch trees on the moor we practice company drill each day. It is bearable if one expects nothing better. We advance at a run, fling ourselves down and our panting breath moves the stalks of the grasses and the flowers of the heather to and fro. Looked at so closely one sees the fine sand is composed of millions of the tiniest gobbles as clear as if they had been made in a laboratory. It is strangely inviting to dig one's hands into it.

But most beautiful are the woods with their line of birch trees. Their color changes with every minute. Now the stems gleam purest white, and between them, airy and silken, hangs the pastel-green of the leaves; the next moment all changes to an opalescent blue, as the shivering breezes pass down from the heights and touch the green lightly away; and again in one place it deepens almost to black as a cloud passes over the sun. And this shadow moves like a ghost through the dim trunks and passes far out over the moor to the sky—then the birches stand out again like gay banners on white poles, with their red and gold patches of autumn-tinted leaves.

I often become so lost in the play of soft light and transparent shadow that I almost fail to hear the commands. It is when one is alone that one begins to observe nature and to love her. And here I have not much companionship, and do not even desire it. We are too little acquainted with one another to do more than joke a bit and play poker or nap in the evenings.

Alongside our camp is the big Russian prison camp. It is separated from us by a wire fence, but in spite of this the prisoners come across to us. They seem nervous and fearful, though most of them are big fellows with beards—they look like meek, scolded, St. Bernard dogs.

They slink about our camp and pick over the garbage tins. One can imagine what they find there. With us food is pretty scarce and none too good at that—turnips cut into six pieces and boiled in water, and unwashed carrot tops—mouldy potatoes and tit-bits, and the chief luxury is a thin rice soup in which float little bits of beef-sinew, but these are cut up so small that they take a lot of finding.

Everything gets eaten, notwithstanding, and if ever anyone is so well off as not to want all his share, there are dozen others standing by ready to relieve him of it. Only the dregs that the ladle cannot reach are tipped out and thrown in the garbage tins. Along with that sometimes go a few turnip peelings, mouldy bread crusts and all kinds of muck.

This thin, miserable dirty garbage is the objective of the prisoners. They pick it out of the stinking tins greedily and go off with it under their blouses.

It is strange to see these enemies of ours close up. They have faces that make one think—honest peasant faces, broad foreheads, broad noses, broad mouths, broad hands and thick hair.

They ought to be put to threshing, reaping, and apple picking. They look just as kindly as our own peasants in Friesland.

It is distressing to watch their movements, to see them begging for something to eat. They are all rather feeble for they only get enough nourishment to keep them from starving. Ourselves we have not had sufficient to eat for long enough. They have dysentery. Their backs, their necks are bent, their knees sag, their heads droop as they stretch out their hands, and beg in the few words of German that they know—beg with those soft, deep, musical voices, that are like warm stoves and cosy rooms at home.

Some men there are who give them a kick, so that they fall over; but those are not many. The majority do nothing to them, just ignore them. Occasionally when they are too grovelling, it makes a man mad and then he kicks them. If only they would not look at one so—What great misery can be in two such small spots, no bigger than a man's thumb—in their eyes!

They come over to the camp in the evenings and trade. They exchange whatever they possess for bread. Often they have fair success, because they have very good boots and ours are bad. The leather of their knee boots is wonderfully soft, like suede. The peasants among us who get tit-bits sent from home can afford to trade. The price of a pair of boots is about two or three loaves of army bread, or a loaf of bread and a small, tough ham sausage.

But most of the Russians have long since parted with whatever things they had. Now they wear only the most pitiful clothing and try to exchange little carvings and objects that they have made out of shell fragments and copper driving bands. Of course, they don't get much for such things, though they may have taken immense pains with them—they go for a slice or two of bread. Our peasants are hard and cunning when they bargain. They hold the pieces of bread or sausage right under the nose of the Russian till he grows pale with greed and his eyes bulge and then he will give anything for it. The peasants wrap up their booty with utmost solemnity, and then get out their big pocket knives, and slowly and deliberately cut off a slice of bread for themselves from their supply and with every mouthful take a piece of the good, tough sausage and so reward themselves with a good feed. It is distressing to watch them take their afternoon meal thus; one would like to crack them over their thick pates. They rarely give anything away. How little we understand one another!

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The Bridge Murder

(In a western city recently a woman slew her husband following his poor playing of the hand after he had raised her one-spade bid to four).

Q.—Now madam, let us get down to the events leading up to the tragedy. What happened first?

A.—I bid one spade and he kept raising.

Q.—How high did he get before he stopped?

A.—Four spades.

Q.—Was it then that you shot him?

A.—No; not then.

Judge (interrupting in amazement)—Why not?

Q.—Now then, when he got the bid did you put down a good supporting hand?

PHILLIPS

A.—I certainly did.

Q.—But your husband didn't make the bid. Now, why not?

A.—Well, for one thing, he forgot to draw out the opposition trumps?

Judge (interrupting again): Did he really?

A.—Yes, yerroner.

(The judge weeps softly).

Q.—What else did he do immediately before the murder?

A.—Once he took a card from the dummy to trump his own ace.

Judge (much perturbed)—He trumped his own ace? No fooling?

A.—No fooling, judge.

(At this point the court sobs and several bridge bugs among the spectators break down and are comforted by attendants).

Q.—Now did he do anything else before you shot him?

A.—Oh yes, sir.

Q.—Will you go on in your own way and tell the judge and jury everything?

A.—Must I tell all? It's so terrible.

(The judge and prosecutor confer and decide to allow the terrible truth to come out openly. The court room is first cleared of all spectators).

Q.—Now you must reveal everything quite frankly. What did your husband do next?

A. (tearfully)——I can't. Oh, I can't.

Judge (kindly)—Now be brave, little woman, and tell us what he did?

A. (with a great effort)—Well, he . . . he . . . had a wonderful run of hearts in the dummy and he didn't allow for re-entry.

Judge (burying his head in his arms and groaning deeply)—Oohh-h-h-h-h-h!

The Entire Jury (12 bridge addicts)—We find this woman innocent.

Judge (still overcome)—So do I. Discharged! Next case!

Shearer, the Versatile

Mr. Shearer, it develops, has been a sailor, a miner, an engineer, an inventor, a hotel owner, a theater proprietor, a lecturer, an actor and a prize fight promoter. The shipbuilders are probably now contending that they should have known it was a mistake to hire a man without first finding out whether he could also do card tricks, imitate birds, do scroll lettering and play the musical saw.

You'll have to say this for the Shearer-Geneva affair as aired at Washington: It's a wow of a plot for a musical comedy.

Omaha Aviator Wins Ford Derby

PORTLAND, Maine, Oct. 7.(INS)—With their motors zooming better than 100 miles an hour, Reuben L. Wagner of Omaha, Neb., and Steve Lacey of Wichita, Kan., engaged in a thrilling duel of the air at the conclusion of their hop from Montreal today in the fifth annual Ford reliability air tour. Wagner's plane rushed over the finish tape a full six feet ahead of the monoplane of the Kansan.

All of the two score and more planes in the tour came through safely from the Canadian city without a mishap this afternoon. After a banquet the airmen hopped to Springfield, Mass., to stay for the night.

The twentieth plane in was guided by Mrs. Keith Miller of New York.

HERO'S SONS TURN BAD MEN

Love of Adventurous Life Leads to Trouble

By W. F. BICKFORD
International News Service Special Correspondent

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 7.—Psychologists found an intriguing problem today in the varying predicament involving the three sons of the late Bill Tilghman, who for 30 years was known throughout the Southwest as a straight shooting peace officer.

From 1875 to 1893, Tilghman did perhaps more than any other man to tame Dodge City, Kan., which at that time was one of the toughest and deadliest cow towns in the West. As a deputy U. S. marshal and sheriff after the opening of northern Oklahoma to white settlement, he battled courageously against the outlaw gangs that infested the new country. He eliminated with leaden pellets those he could not bring to a milder justice.

Finds Senate Tame

On the strength of his record as a law enforcer, the people gave Bill an opportunity to write the statutes but he found a berth in the state senate of Oklahoma too tame. After two years service he resigned in 1912 to become chief of police of Oklahoma City. This proved only a trifle more interesting to the old plainsman and he quite in 1914 to go prospecting for something that would better remind him of the past.

It was 10 years before he found pay dirt, but at 71, just five years ago, he saw visions of old Dodge City when Gov. M. E. Trapp sent him singlehanded to the mushroom oil boom town of Cromwell, Okla., to restore some semblance of order out of the vice ruled community.

This assignment was Tilghman's last. He died with his boots on in front of a '49 dance hall, at the hands of Wiley Lynn from whom he had carelessly neglected to remove a third gun.

Lynn won an acquittal from a jury on the ground of self defense. Until a few months ago Lynn came and went in the apparent belief that the fatal encounter at Cromwell was a closed chapter. However, as he rode a motor bus from Oklahoma City into Davenport, Iowa, one summer morning, he found a street corner crowd excitedly chattering of an incident that had just occurred.

Sons Become Desperate

The Davenport police chief had accosted an inoffensive looking middle aged man, removed two .45 caliber pistols from him and led him away to jail. At the jail the prisoner mildly confessed that he was Bill Tilghman Jr., under 25-year sentence for bank robbery and at the moment A. W. O. L. for the avowed purpose of avenging the death of his father.

The son was returned to Tennessee.

Today, Richard Tilghman, 21, popular athlete of the 1928 graduating class of Classen High school here, was dying of a bullet wound. His younger brother, Woodrow Wilson Tilghman, 16, was in jail. Authorities charged both with aiding in a bandit raid on a dice game and the murder of an aged farmer.

Mrs. Tilghman, widow of the frontier hero, mother of the two boys and a prominent figure in the Oklahoma world of literature, was prostrated at her home. But with characteristic mother love, she insists Bill Tilghman's sons are guilty of nothing more culpable than an inherited love of strenuous life.

Junior C.-C. Speakers Stress Fire Prevention Methods Over Radio

Fire prevention week, which is being observed over the entire nation from Oct. 6 to 12, was officially opened in Wichita Falls Monday night when members of the Junior chamber of commerce spoke over station KGKO to citizens urging precautions in the handling of fire and greater care i nthe disposition of waste material which creates fire hazards.

The radio program was given during the Junior chamber of commerce half-hour, 7:30 until 8 p. m. Speakers met with luncheon clubs at noon Monday and programs for the various city schools were begun. Fire Chief J. L. McClure began preparations for conducting fire drills at the schools.

In connection with the activities of the week, it was pointed out by Chief McClure that a study of fire deaths and injuries made by the National Fire Waste council showed that smoking in bed, playing with matches, using kerosene to kindle or quicken a fire and ignition of clothes from bonfires or brush fires were the predominant hazards causing loss of life from fire.

The hazards of smoking in bed were pointed out as warnings to both men and women. While cigarets are usually blamed for such fires, deaths have been known to result from pipe smoking in bed, the chief said. Another hazard is the placing of matches within the reach of small children and where they may be reached by mice and rats. The chief urged that matches be kept in metal containers and away from children.

The attraction of a bonfire to a child has resulted in numerous fatalities. They forget the danger of the fire in their excitement over the flames and invariably run when their clothing becomes ignited. Running fans the flames and often causes death where proper handling of the situation could save the child. Children should be taught, the chief said, to lie down on the ground and roll over slowly to extinguish the blaze.

LIQUOR LADEN VESSEL CAUGHT

$30,000 Cargo of Booze On Jersey Coast

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (AP)—A 35-foot dory with a cargo of liquor valued at $30,000 was captured and another believed to be similarly loaded was sunk in the Raritan river off the lower bay today by customs guards after a machine gun battle. The crews of both boats escaped.

The raid was the result of a tip that large cargoes of liquor were to be landed near Perth Amboy, N. J.

In darkness the customs boat crew heard the engine of a boat. They hailed it. Instead of stopping, the dory attempted to ram the customs boat, but was itself run down. Another dory then appeared, took aboard the crew of the sinking craft and sped away up the river, the customs boat in pursuit.

Coming alongside a barge, the dory made fast and its crew joined by men apparently waiting to unload the liquor opened fire on the customs men with submachine guns. When the customs boat responded the men fled.

Negro Clings to Life Despite Stab Wounds

Meanwhile, Pastell Young, another negro, had been transferred to the county jail following his arrest in connection with the stabbing.

A family doctor's laxative is the sensible choice!

YOUR health is too important! You can't afford experiments with your delicate bowels when a coated tongue, bad breath, gas, headaches, nausea, feverishness, biliousness, lack of appetite, and no energy, warn of constipation. This applies not only to grown people; it is particularly the case where young children are concerned.

That's why a family doctor's laxative is always the safe choice! Only a doctor knows just what will cleanse the system of men, women or children without harm.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is prepared today under strict supervision from freshest herbs and other pure ingredients, and exactly according to Dr. Caldwell's original prescription.

He was a family doctor for more than forty-seven years. He specialized in the disorders of the digestive tract. He tested this prescription in thousands of cases. Men liked its quick and thorough action; the children liked its pleasant taste; old people praised it because it never gripes.

Today, millions of families rely on Dr. Caldwell's judgment in the selection of their laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is now sold in all drug stores. It is the world's largest selling laxative.

'DOPE' AGAINST TUNNEY SOUGHT

Investigators at Ponca City Seeking Evidence

PONCA CITY, Okla., Oct. 7. (UP)—Walter Cornin and J. Foster, New Haven, Conn., investigators, were here today gathering evidence in the alienation of affections suit for $500,000 filed by John Fogarty, of Fort Worth, against Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion. The suit was filed at Bridgeport, Conn.

Tunney and Mrs. Katherine Fogarty were guests at the 101 Ranch here in 1925. The investigators have not disclosed their findings. Since Tunney's visit here, Joe and George Miller of the 101 ranch have died.

Mrs. Fogarty also filed a suit against Tunney for a half million dollars charging breach of promise. Tunney has filed counter suit for $100,000, alleging blackmail.

Two Escaped Convicts Recaptured by Sheriff

Jack Jones, who accomplished his sixth escape from the state prison farm a few months ago, was re-arrested by members of the sheriff's department Monday morning just as he walked from the police station where he had been held overnight for investigation. The prisoner was taken into custody when he was recognized by Warren Belcher and Charlie Gant, deputies, who with Sheriff W. G. Bralley and Sam Spence, district attorney, were preparing to look over the group of suspects held at the city hall. Jack Crebbs, another escaped prisoner, was arrested by the deputies in a local rooming house a few hours later. The two will be returned to the state farm at once.

County Formally Accepts New Bridge On Scott Avenue at Monday Meeting

Wichita county formally took possession of its new bridge over Wichita river at Scott avenue Monday morning when the county commissioners made the final payment to the Luten Bridge company, contractors, and made known their acceptance of the structure as it stands.

The great triple-arched span of the bridge, ready for use, must wait until the city completes the approaches on either side, it was explained. The work will probably be completed and the bridge thrown open to traffic within the next fortnight, according to estimates of J. M. Isbell, county engineer, Monday.

During the regular session of the commissioners court Monday morning, the county was offered an opportunity to buy the $7,500 school bonds recently voted by the County Line school district for the construction of a new building. The commissioners told Burt Bryant, county superintendent who offered the securities, that the purchase would be contingent upon the recommendation of the Wichita Falls school board, the purchase of the bonds coming necessarily out of the general school funds. Definite action is expected on Monday of next week.

Circus Attracts Mammoth Crowd; Fair Riders Hurt

The greatest crowd that ever turned out for a circus in Wichita Falls packed the big top of the Hagenbeck-Wallace shows Monday night more than 13,000 strong.

Every one of the 11,000 seats of the circus had been sold at 7:45 p. m. and more than 2,000 persons sat six and seven deep all the way around the track.

Two women riders were hurt during the afternoon performance when one horse stumbled and fell and a second mount tripped over the first and sent its rider, Helen Lowe, catapaulting through the air. She suffered a wrenched back. Billy Manning, rider of the first horse, escaped with a broken finger. Both were treated at the emergency hospital of the circus.

One of the leading features of the show was Captain Claud Beatty and his troupe of performing lions and tigers. Other leading acts were Miss Erma Ward, acrobat; the Brier tumblers from Europe, a herd of 15 trained elephants, mother and baby hippopotamus, mixed group of trained wild animals, equine stunts and the Ward flyers, aerial experts.

General Motors Dealers have adopted this Standard Price Tag

THERE is a difference between the list (f.o.b.) price of a new automobile and its delivered price—the price you actually pay. This difference consists of certain additions made by the dealer.

In line with General Motors' policy of giving the public all the facts, its dealers show you exactly what their additions are. They are using the standard price tag illustrated here. It is attached to the steering wheels of new cars displayed in their showrooms.

Everything is set forth frankly. Every charge is fair and reasonable. Nothing is hidden. There is no extra charge to permit a seemingly better trade-in offer. No extra charge to cover advertising, etc. You are entitled to buy a General Motors car with full knowledge of just what makes up the difference between the list price and the delivered price.

Study this tag. Use it as your guide in comparing automobile values. Look beyond the list price. Find out just exactly what goes into the delivered price of a new car—for that is the price you pay.

THIS is the standard price tag used by General Motors dealers to show what makes up the delivered prices of their new cars.

List Price. The f. o. b. price advertised by the factory.

Freight and Delivery. An authorized amount to cover the freight charges paid by the dealer and the cost of unloading, inspecting, supplying fuel and oil—preparing the car for delivery to you.

50,000 to See Game

The full-throated roar of 50,000 fans is expected to resound in Wrigley field for the opening game of the series that furnishes the climax to the greatest baseball season Chicago has ever known.

So keen was the enthusiasm that hundreds of fans were in line tonight outside the park, prepared for the all-night vigil before the bleacher seats go on sale around 8 a. m. tomorrow. Scores had begun to hold their posts more than 24 hours before Umpire Bill Klem, dean of the National league staff, cries "let's go," at 1:30 p. m.

A Chicagoan occupied the first place in the bleacher line, with Pittsburgh and Montreal next represented and the first woman customer identified as a tourist from Rensselaer, N. Y.

All reserved seats have been sold, with speculators having difficulty doing any substantial business, even at such fancy prices as $50 for a single game ticket.

$200,000 Gate

The "gate" for the first day, as well as for the second game here, is expected to exceed $200,000, with a million dollar series assured if the issue goes only to five games. The best guess is that it will go six.

Pre-game developments today, aside from the inpouring of fans, officials and notables, centered chiefly about the late arrival of the Athletics, the definite selection of Root to pitch for the Cubs and a tendency to shorten the odds which have favored the American league champions from the start.

Wagers, hitherto largely based on quotations of 7 to 5 on the A's, dropped to around 6 to 5 with a rally in Cub stock. Because of the uncertainty over the A's initial pitching choice, the opening game betting was mostly "even money and take your pick."

Root Ready to Work

Root is declared to be in prime condition for the getaway. The 30-year-old right-hander, who came in the baseball ranks 10 years ago from the rolling mills of Middleton, Ohio, has a world of stuff, speed and a "wrinkle ball" that he made famous in winning 26 games for the Cubs in 1927.

Pat Malone, the iron man who turned in 22 victories for the Cubs and originally was slated for the opening game assignment, now is booked for the white elephant-taming job in the second game. Guy Bush probably will pitch the third game for the Cubs, scheduled in Philadelphia Friday.

The Cubs place lots of reliance in these right handers but it is no secret they depend chiefly for victory on the war clubs of Hornsby, Wilson, Cuyler and Stephenson, the "big four" who battered about everything in sight during the National league race. The power in the Chicago attack, plus the club's fighting spirit and ability to come from behind to win, is its chief asset.

Mack Has Sluggers, Too

The A's have plenty of sharpshooters to offset the big Cub offensive, regardless of how the veteran Mack rotates his staff, and a sparkplug to back them up in Cochrane, baseball's outstanding catcher. If Earnshaw starts the first game, Grove is likely to go out in the second to settle the much-discussed matter of his effectiveness against the formidable right-handed club lineup.

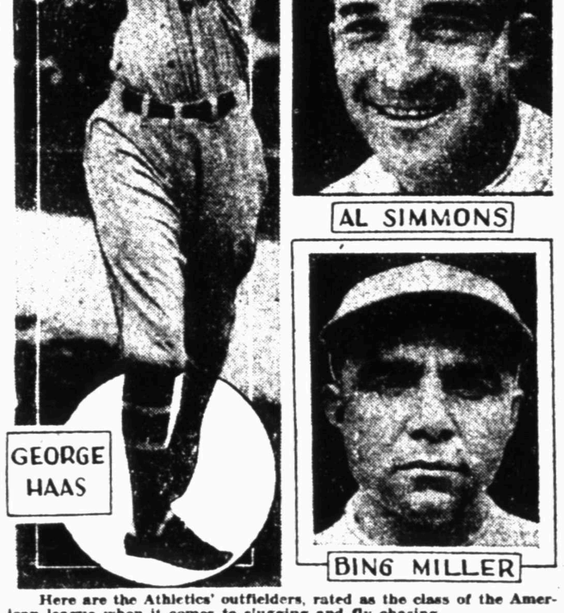

Both teams enter the series in good condition. Such recent Cub casualties as shortstop English, Catcher Taylor and First Baseman Grimm all are in shape to start. Bing Miller, veteran right fielder of the A's, was suffering from a heavy cold, on arrival today, and had some temperature but a good night's rest was expected to put him in condition for the opener.

The Cubs went through an hour's batting and fielding drill at Wrigley field this noon, sharpening their hitting eyes against both right and left-handed twirling. The A's arrived on a special train at 2:25 p. m., in plenty of time for a workout, but Manager Mack adhered to his original plan of staying away from the park and giving his players a rest.

Injured Burk Grid Star Will Return to Game Sat.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Oct. 7—Hammet Vance, who sustained a badly wounded shoulder in a scrimmage contest with Fairview about two weeks ago, is much improved and will be in the lineup Friday in the first conference game with Chillicothe. Vance is a three-year letter man at center, and was captain of his team last year. Truman Garland, also a letter man, will participate in Friday's contest, after recovering from a sprained ankle. Grear Harrison, one of the team's most promising players, is also suffering from a wounded shoulder and it is not certain whether he will be in the lineup or not.

Mack's Slugging Outfielders

Here are the Athletics' outfielders, rated as the class of the American league when it comes to slugging and fly chasing.

COYOTE PACK DRILL MONDAY

Coach Lectures Boys on Fine Points

The Coyote pack was out in full strength Monday afternoon and were sent through a lengthy drill session, featuring signal play, passing, punting, dummy tackling, and general limbering exercises. The entire squad came through the game Saturday without a single serious mishap and with but few bruises.

Coach Barry Holton seemed well pleased with the squad when the practice session was over. He took occasion during the afternoon to lecture the team on Saturday's performance, pointing out weak spots here and faults there, and suggesting their respective remedies. In this way the coach believes that he can instill into the boys the habit of correcting their mistakes in the game and make of them more efficient gridiron machine.

In view of the coming hard struggle with the strong Sherman High school eleven on Saturday the coming week's training will probably be the most strenuous of the season. The Sherman gridders have always had a powerful team and this year, it is said, will be no exception to the rule. Some fans are naming them as state championship contenders.

Mustangs Back At Training Routine

DALLAS, Oct. 7. (AP)—Still stiff and sore from the pounding received in their scoreless battle with Nebraska but without a serious injury in camp, the Southern Methodist Mustangs were put through a stiff offensive drill by Coach Ray Morrison today. The Pony mentor informed his charges there would be no letup in the daily grind this week, despite the fact that Austin college is expected to prove a fairly easy victim here Friday.

Captain Choc Sanders received a badly bruised leg in the Nebraska struggle and Bill Skeeters, another lineman, suffered an ankle injury, but neither will miss more than a day or two of practice. The entire squad was jubilant over its great showing at Lincoln.

Morrison was expected to devote the next two weeks to perfecting his famous passing attack in preparation for the conference campaign.

Borger Pro Captures Panhandle Open Golf Tourney

PAMPA, Texas, Oct. 7. (AP)—Boney Bonebrake, Borger pro, won the Panhandle open golf championship here today, defeating Pat O'Brien of Amarillo 3 and 2. Both players were strong from the tees, but the Borger pro was more consistent in his short game, and avoided many of the hazards which caught O'Brien's ball.

Bonebrake made the only eagle of the tournament and O'Brien took the prize for the greatest number of birdies, scoring three.

SPORT TALK

By G. CHAMBLESS

Now that the smoke of the first week's gridiron battles has cleared away we are able to get a glimpse at the standing that a good many football teams will present for inspection during the coming title races. Facing most formidable opponents, four of the seven Southwest conference elevens were put to the test Saturday and more than broke even in the fray.

Conceded only the remotest outside chance against Coach Dana X. Bible's Nebraska Cornhuskers, the fiery steeds of S. M. U. would not submit to the powerful corn belt eleven and held them off to a scoreless tie.

Hitherto the history of the Ponies reveals them to be the champion in-and-out team of the Southwest conference but Saturday's surprising showing against Nebraska eliminated the "out" factor of the doubtful equasion in which they started off and definitely places them "in" on the conference race.

In Tulane, led by Capt. Billie Banker, Texas A. & M. met one of the strongest contenders in the Southern conference. Their 13 to 10 reverse at the hands of the mighty Green Wave was not at all unworth showing, but on the contrary proved that the team has real mettle and will have to be watched in their own conference. They are still in the chase.

The Texas university Longhorns decisive 20 to 0 victory over the Centenary Gentlemen is conclusive evidence that they will be in the reckoning when the dust settles down and the "logical contender" is sought. Centenary has been regarded almost as a conference rival every since the day when Bo McMillan first built up a powerful eleven at the Louisiana college, and holds the distinction of having beaten some of the strongest teams in the country in the last few years.

The Horned Frogs of T. C. U. continued their impressive early showing by downing the Simmons Cowboys to the tune of 20 to 0. Though it was a hard struggle, the victory left no doubt as to the strength of the Frogs.

As a result of these games it steadily becomes more apparent that the Baylor Bears, conference favorites at the start of the season, has four powerful opponents to contend with in the race for the coveted title of the Southwest conference football championship.

It is with a sigh of relief that most fans hail the recent announcement by major league baseball chiefs of the decision to shorten the playing season in 1930. The present season has goon too long, much too long, and to the detriment of the game. As reflected in attendance at games, interest has lagged since the winning of the pennants by the Cubs and the Athletics some three weeks ago. Only the most perfunctory and casual interest is manifested in the "also ran" teams of the two leagues.

People feel that it is a usurpation of the sports limelight, this unnecessary prolongation of the baseball season. The fall of the year has come to be the season for the great American college and high school games of football. The national pastime should step aside and let the pigskin have its day on the sports page.

The major league heads have learned their lesson this year and say no wthat they will not repeat the mistake of this year in 1930. It is the best thing for the game and will help to preserve the high place it so richly deserves in the public esteem.

Longhorn All-Conference Tackle on Injured List

AUSTIN, Oct. 7. (AP)—Captain Gordy Brown, all-conference tackle, was on the injured list as the Longhorns began earnest preparation today for the tilt with the Arkansas Razorbacks at Fayetteville Saturday.

Brown received a finger injury in the Centenary tussle here Saturday but Coach Clyde Littlefield is hopeful that he will be able to play against the Porkers.

Nick Gatoura, center, who was unable to go in against the Louisiana Gents because of injuries, will be back in shape by Saturday.

WORLD SERIES SIDE LIGHTS

Mack Has 5 World Series Under Belt

By BRIAN BELL

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 7. (AP)—Connie Mack, with five world's series behind him and no telling how many in front, was as excited as a rookie over the arrival of the sixth, after 15 years eating at the second table of baseball. Rushed to his hotel with a flare of trumpets from the motorcycles of a police escort, he smiled broadly as hotel attaches assured him he was welcome in Chicago even as an enemy. Courteous as always, the manager of the A's turned aside along enough to assure a friend of Bevo LeBourveau that most assuredly his pal was with the club. A few handshakes and he was gone, still smiling and quite evidently very happy to be back in a world's series.

Capt. Eddie Collins of the A's, one of the two former White Sox managers on the American league champions, remained "clam" as the ball players say, as the zero hour approached. To suggestions that the visitors might well have worked out at Wrigley field before the day of the series, he said "Well, we didn't work out in 1910, and we did very well in that series."

Picture of a golfer at a world's series, George von Elm, inquiring as to the weather forecast for tomorrow, and saying that he had not touched a golf club in a month. "I'm a baseball fan now," he said, "I expect to see these two games here, go back to Detroit and come back for the others. Sure they'll come back here."

Dan Howley, Art Fletcher and Bob Connery all walking through the lobby of a hotel within five minutes. The three have been mentioned as possible managers of the Yanks. Dan proudly displaying a wrist watch presented by players of the St. Louis Browns on his retirement as manager.

Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Braves, talking to Bill McKechnie, manager of the Cardinals, and resultant rumors that Bill will move from St. Louis to Boston.

Babe Ruth was prepared to do a bit of experting, playing the role of world series reporter, instead of home run hitter. The big fellow was equipped with a lot of words to take the place of his bats.

Jr. College Indians Work Hard Monday

Monday afternoon found the Junior college Indians out on the practice field and being herded along at a lively pace by Coach Baggett who is grooming his warrors for their first home game of the season. Like an old army "top kick" he is a severe taskmaster on the drill field and is a warm advocate of thorough preparation.

He had the entire squad doing dummy tackling, passing, signal practice, rehearsing deceptive plays and every other item in the curriculum of football training. The aerial phase of the game is probably the Indian's strongest threat and they are paying particular attention to the perfection of their passing.

Just what strategy the coach has in mind for the game against the North Texas Teachers' college eleven is not certain, but he is sure to put into the field a team which is wide awake to every possible opening and ready to counter attack with the appropriate thrust.

Against the Cameron Aggies the Indians proved a pretty smart ball club and they intend to give the pedagogues from Denton a few lessons in the art of pigskin battle.

Where Are They?

(Referring to the old guard of the Cub-Athletics series of 1910.)

Bender and Coombs and Plank,
Reulbach and Pfeister and Brown?
Stars of the ultimate rank,
Bringing the enemy down;
Tinker and Evers and Chance,
Stuffy and Home-run and Ed,
Where is the ancient romance?
Where are the dreams that have fled?

Now they are meeting again,
Hornsby and Simmons and Foxx,
Wilson and Cuyler, and then
Wahlberg and Grove in the box;
But where are the shield and the lance
That flashed when the going was tough?
Tinker to Evers to Chance?
Barry to Collins to Stuff?

A Missing Cub Rooter

Back in the somewhat distant days of 1910, a Chicago baseball writer by the name of Ring W. Lardner, one of the most loyal of all the Cub rooters, came east to see Chance, Evers, Tinker, Brown and others fall before the young and coming Athletics of Connie Mack.

For a matter of 19 years Mr. Lardner has been waiting to see this series avenged. But now with the big chance ahead, at least an even chance, he and George Kaufman have a show opening in New York under the name of "June Moon." The New York opening ceremonies take place Wednesday night and after the success the show has known at Atlantic City, Asbury Park, Washington and Newark it is only natural that Mr. Lardner feels that he must forego his chance to watch the Athletics suffer while he gets New York's reaction to a show and a performance that are certain to register the big town's approval. Joe McCarthy and his Cubs will miss his vocal cheering and the songs he would have written to inspire the team. It was the same Mr. Lardner who sat at the piano and played "Casey Jones" to inspire the old Cubs, but even that stirring melody could not offset the thunder that came from the war clubs of McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker, nor could it curb the pitching arms of Bender, Coombs and Plank.

It might be suggested that while New York will miss its annual world series it will at least get a good break in being able to sit in on "June Moon."

They're Off at Last

A championship series that should have been started nearly two weeks ago finally swings under way. It so happens that the strength and tradition of both clubs is something more than enough to keep public interest alive, where under ordinary conditions at this time nobody would care a rap what happened to a baseball club. If this isn't a star series there is nothing in the dope. An observation of this sort usually heads straight into a flop, but perhaps this will cut away from the old rule. This is one series where your guess is as good as any one's, young or old, male or female.

Our Western Observer Reports

Dear Sir: Last year Dr. Clarence Spears, coach of the Minnesota football team, declared Bronko Nagurski was the greatest tackle he ever coached. But emergencies made it necessary to shift Bronk from tackle to fullback several times and the big Ukranian did not win the esteem he deserved. This season it will be different. Spears has a sophomore fullback, named Clarence Munn—brother of the big Munns of Nebraska—and he is being groomed for fullback. So Bronko can remain up on the line and win himself a lot of All-America honors as tackle. Munn weighs 200; is as fast as Nagurski and showing plenty of power in the scrimmages. Maybe he will also be an All-America. We thank you.

GOPHER GUSTAVE.

Dear Sir: Ohio State may not win many football games this season but Don Miller, Sam Willaman and George Hauser are going to show the Big Ten a few new wrinkles in the matter of offense that will gain several yards. Willaman is taking hold nicely at Ohio and Don Miller reminds one very much of Knute Rockne when he is laboring with the backs. Ohio should be back on the top within a couple of years. Willaman and his assistants are striving to develop an alert, fast and deceptive style of play and to do that they need men well schooled in their ideas and it will take another year to get them.

PEYTON RANDOLPH.

Dear Sir: Along late in November when Notre Dame is playing the Army, remember you were told the Indiana eleven would be tough. And also remember a halfback named Brill in case he goes galloping around the Yankee stadium.

SAM SMITH.

A few days ago Paavo Nurmi won another 5,000-meter race from a crack field. He will keep on winning until the day arrives when his long, gray beard begins to get all tangled up with his legs and feet. Then some kid may have a chance.

MACKMEN HIT CUB HOME TOWN

Rollicking Athletics Intend To Win

By BERT DEMBY

CHICAGO, Oct. 7. (UP)—A rollicking group of Philadelphia baseball players come to town this afternoon, good naturedly pushed their ways through a crowd which met them at the station, and made no secret of the fact that they intend to defeat the Chicago Cubs in the 1929 world series.

There was a smile on the face of every Philadelphia player who left the train and all immediately were stopped by a barrage of flashlights set off by newspaper cameramen.

Connie Mack was the last off the train and although it was evident that he was extremely pleased, his was the most serious face exhibited by the Philadelphia group.

The old baseball strategist was as uncommunicative as his face was expressionless. He declined to name any starting pitcher and quietly let it be known that no Athletic hurler's name would be announced in any contest until a few minutes before game time.

The players pushed their way through the crowd amidst a light chorus of mingled boos and cheers and entered taxicabs which took them to the Edgewater Beach hotel where they will rest until time to go to the park tomorrow.

Mack declined to comment on his team's chances. Eddie Collins, a member of the Mack board of strategy, was a bit more loquacious. Eddie made no secret of the fact that he believes he is on a world's championship team. Incidentally he squelched the rumor that he had been approached to accept the management of the New York Yankees.

"Yes, I've read all about it in the papers but then I don't know a thing officially," he said. "Would I take the job if it were offered me? Well, I don't mind telling you that it would make a mighty fine inducement for me to consider it."

Legion Stages Big Terrapin Derby Wed.

A new sport entertainment will be inaugurated in Wichita Falls when the first terrapin derby ever held in the city is run Wednesday night at the American Legion hall. Twenty-one entries have been listed to date and more expected before "they are off" Wednesday night.

The race course consists of circle 25 feet with a starting point in the center of the enclosure. At the given signal the terrapins get off and race toward the outer rim of the circle.

In a recent big round up on one of the 101 ranches in Oklahoma $6,700 wager was placed on a terrapin.

The entry list has not closed and the officials in charge at the legion request that all interested get in their favorites as early as possible.

Former Pirate Manager Signs to Pilot Boston

CHICAGO, Oct. 7. (UP)—Bill McKechnie, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and for a time this season manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, has signed a four-year contract to manage the Boston Braves, President Emil Fuchs, of the Braves, announced tonight.

McKechnie was understood to have been offered a contract to manage the Cardinals next year, but desired a longer term. When that failed to materialize, he signed with Fuchs.

Salary was not announced.

Health and Diet Advice

The Thymus

The thymus gland is located behind the upper part of the sternum and in front of the trachea. It becomes partly atrophied after puberty. Its functions are not thoroughly understood, but it undoubtedly produces one or more hormones having some influence upon the sexual glands and upon the formation of the blood, especially the lymphotcytes.

Children with enlarged tonsils, adenoids and nasal catarrh most frequently show an enlarged thymus. They are often fat and regarded as healthy, but the skin is pale and the flesh flabby. They have little resistance to infectious diseases, and may die suddenly during a period of slight excitement.

If the enlargement of the thymus exists after puberty, the male resembles the female type and the female is under-developed. The distribution of fat about the body is abnormal. The bones may be either longer or shorter than the average. The enlarged thymus can usually be determined by the X-ray or percussion. It may become so large as to cause suffocation.

Pituitary Glands

The pituitary glands, although a very small two-lobed body located in the skull cavity just underneath the brain, exerts a profound influence upon growth and metabolism. It is divided into two distinct lobes, an anterior and a posterior, each of which has a definite function. The removal of this gland causes death. An under-functioning of this gland produces a very obese individual resembling a fat boy, while an excessive secretion produces an enlargement of the hands, feet and lower jaw, and an increase in height. Circus giants are usually affected with an excess of pituitary secretion. It is generally admitted that the front lobe exercises most influence on the bodily growth, and the back lobe upon the metabolism.

The Pineal Gland

Before adolescence the pituitary gland, a small reddish body located in the brain, is an important organ of internal secretion. It was formerly believed to be an evolutionary remnant, analogus with the third dorsal eye found in certain reptile types.

The pineal gland retards the too-early onset of puberty. An increased secretion causes adiposity and delayed puberty. A lack of secretion causes precocious development and an unusually early onset of secondary sexual characteristics.

The Spleen

Although the largest of the ductless glands, the exact purpose of the spleen is unknown. It is somehow connected with the manufacturing of white blood cells and the reorganization of worn out red corpuscles. The spleen is not actually essential to life, and in many cases this organ has been removed and yet the patient lives for many years, but since it is of lymphatic origin, its removal causes an extensive enlargement of all other lymphatic glands of the body. It seems to produce an internal secretion which stimulates the intestines to greater activity. I have a special article on spleenic trouble which I will be glad to send to anyone who is interested.

(Tomorrow's article on parthyroids, adrenals and other glands.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mouth Ulcers

Question—G. F. writes: "Please tell me what to do for ulcers in the mouth. The tonics from doctors only seem to give temporary relief, and the ulcers return in only a few weeks after getting rid of them."

Answer—Chronic mouth ulcers come from a similar condition which occurs in your stomach, and is due to wrong habits of eating which produce an over-acidity of the gastric juice. The ulcers may be expected to return periodically until you learn to correct the hyperacidity of your stomach.

Gas-Producing Foods

Question—D. G. asks: "Are onions and dried beans healthful foods, and what do you thing of cabbage?"

Answer—Raw cabbage can be used in small quantities by most people in good health, but when cabbage is cooked for very long the sulphur compounds are liberated so that it is a gas-producer. Cabbage shredded fine and steamed for five minutes only may be used by some people without harmful effects. I never recommend onions or dried beans to my patients because of the fact that they always produce flatulence.

Sciatica

Question—D. W. A. asks: "What would you think best to do for sciatic rheumatism? The party in question has been in bed close to four years with it. He is now on a milk diet."

Answer—What is called "sciatic rheumatism" may be due to an inflammation of the sciatic nerve, and caused by rheumatic toxins; or, the nerve may be pinched someplace between where its branches emerge from the lower spine. An osteopath or chiropractor could quickly correct the trouble if it is caused by pinched nerves, and a diet to cure rheumatism would bring about a cure of the trouble if it is caused by the rheumatic toxemia.

Old Trail Fiddlers To Play at Reunion

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 7. (AP)—Old time music by trail drivar fiddlers will be a feature of the ball to be given Oct. 18 during the course of the three-day reunion of the old trail drivers of Texas to be held in San Antonio, Oct. 17, 18 and 19.

According to President George W. Saunders, those old cattlemen who drove millions of head of Texas cattle across the plains in the '70's and '80's, love to dance just as much as they did 40 or 50 years ago.

While the old timers enjoy themselves the descendants of the trail drivers will have their "dude dance" and will be supplied with modern jazz.

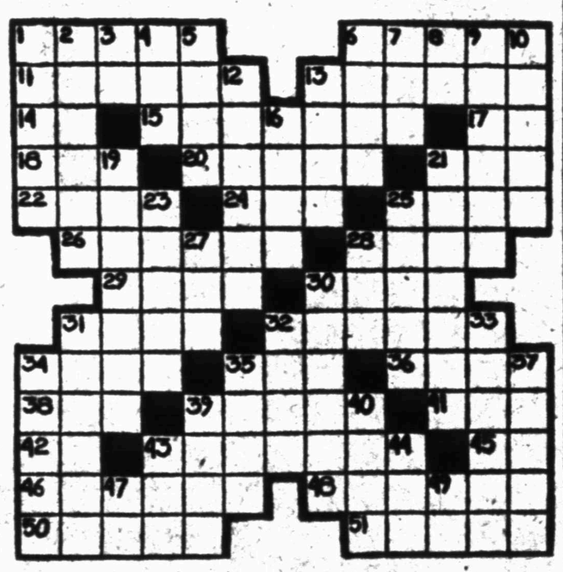

Famous Philosophers Discuss Education

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (INS)—The views of two internationally famous philosophers on the subject of modern education were before the public today. The subject of the debate was: "Is Education a Failure?"

Jeanne Eagels Wore $300,000 Jewels at Death

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (INS)—Jeanne Eagels, famous stage and screen actress, wore $300,000 worth of jewels at the time she died in a hospital following a nervous collapse, it was revealed here today. They will be turned over to the public administrator.

DRYGOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (AP)—Cotton goods prices opened steady with several narrow sheetings higher. Fair inquiry and a tendency to cover before tomorrow's crop estimate developed in carded yarns and in coarse yarn gray goods. Fine goods in light demand. Burlap cables were two or three pence higher with both this market and Calcutta quiet. Wool goods quiet.

Prof. T. Wayland Vaughan, director of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, has been elected a foreign member of the Geological society of London.

ABILENE WELL OPENS POOL

Taylor County Gets First Oil Production

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, Texas, Oct. 7.—Although its full value is yet unknown, Dunnigan Brothers' No. 1 Hunter, located 14 miles southwest of Abilene in north central Taylor county is conceded to be a commercial oil well—and the first test in the county to be completed for paying production.

Conservative operators say the well will make over 100 barrels per day as it now stands. Some estimates place the production much higher than that. The oil tests 39.5 degrees gravity corrected. The hole is free of water. The last water stratum was cased off around 2100 feet. This operation, 2811 feet south and west of the northeast corner of the south half of the Wm. R. Willis survey No. 122, topped an oil bearing lime at 11 p. m. Sunday night at 2387 feet and before the drillers could put on a control head the well made a natural flow lasting several minutes.

The producing formation was penetrated about 18 inches before drilling was suspended. There was about 19 feet of open hole above the pay and the crew starter reaming pipe down shortly after the strike was made. At regular intervals during Monday morning the well flowed by heads, sometimes making as much as 20 barrels in 10 minutes.

As soon as the pipe is landed on top of the pay the hole will be cleaned out and the well given a test. Three 200-barrel tanks were being put on the lease Monday afternoon to care for the oil coming from the well. The owners expect to complete the well about Wednesday.

The Hunter well is about 15 miles southeast of the Noodle Creek pool in southwest Jones county, the nearest commercial production. It is in the center of an 80 acre drilling block owned by Dunnigan Brothers of Breckenridge. Shell Petroleum corporation controls considerable acreage in the immediate vicinity and Snowden & McSweeny have four 80 acre tracts close in.

Fire Prevention Talk Heard at Kiwanis Club

Fire prevention furnished the theme for the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon when Temple Shell, representing the Junior chamber of commerce, delivered the principal address pleading for greater care as a means of decreasing fire losses in this country.

Mr. Shell declared that property owners in the United States are paying in fire insurance premiums for losses equal in amount to the cost of building a Panama canal, operating the federal government, or maintaining the national defense.

W. E. Young conducted a singsong, using new books which were presented to the club by Walter H. Caldwell. Mike Ellis was at the piano. Dr. C. W. Castner presided.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (AP)—With the monthly government report on the cotton crop due at 11 o'clock on Tuesday, the local market failed to develop any strong tendency either way today, prices moving within a range of 2 to 10 points throughout the session. The undertone was steady and at no time were values as low as those at the close on Saturday, December selling early at 18.84, and late in the day at 18.90 while the general market closed steady with net advances of 5 to 11 points.

The opening was steady at 1 to 5 points advance, in response to steady cables from Liverpool and quite active buying by houses with foreign connections as well as more or less local buying. The day's volume was quite large.

Three private crop estimates ranged from 14,494,000 bales to 15,025,000, two of the reports being slightly larger than the estimates by the same authorities last month, while one was smaller. The average of 12 private estimates pointed to an indicated crop of 14,725,000 bales which compares with last month's government estimate of 14,825,000.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7. (AP)—Only moderate trading developed in cotton market due to the reluctance of operators to enter upon new commitments in the face of tomorrow's official crop report. Prices, tending downward, fluctuated narrowly. December contracts traded up to 18.73 and closed one point below that figure for a net gain of 7 points. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 7 to 12 points.

Although Liverpool cables were comparatively firm the local market opened rather disappointing with December contracts off 2 points as New York opened higher. Later positions here showed advances of 1 to 2 points on the call.

Prices improved after the start. December trading to 18.70, January 18.80 and March 18.90, or 5 to 6 points above Saturday's close. The market then ruled steady and fluctuated near the highs.

Shorts covered in final trading and most active positions made new highs for the day with January at 18.82, or 7 to 8 points above Saturday's close. Final prices were at about the best with March finishing at 19.07.

The condition average of three private estimates ranged from 51.4 to 54.5 per cent of normal and the indicated yield from 14,494,000 bales to 15,025,000 bales.

Continued Recovery in Stocks Brings Big Gains to Many Issues

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (US)—Further sweeping advances were witnessed in the stock market today as the recovery which developed Saturday gained momentum. Led by Columbian Carbon, which soared 34 points, practically the entire list enjoyed a day of rapid gains, with most stocks closing at the very top. Short covering stimulated by the rapid comeback, combined with genuine new buying which appeared in various recently depressed favorites, to give the market an appearance of great strength. The advance was so rapid as to cause misgivings in certain quarters as to its lasting qualities. Call money easiness, with plenty of funds available at 6 per cent after renewing at 6½ per cent added ammunition to the bullish contingent.

Some of the gains were as sensational as during the mad uprush earlier in the year. Westinghouse Electric soared 14¾ points and individual gains of 10 points or more were scored by almost a dozen issues. United States Steel disported itself rather conservatively, although attaining a price of $220 and closing up more than a point. The greatest activity and the fireworks were in the specialites. Eastman Kodak gained a new peak with an advance of almost 10 points as expectation was voiced of an early capital readjustment. Cleveland and Buffalo interests have been the largest buyers of Eastman.

Encouragement was given the bullish forces by the outstanding strength, as groups, of the railroad and oil shares. The rails responded to the steady accumulation which had been proceeding under cover of the general market weakness. Atchison jumped 12 points and virtually the entire railroad list was from a fraction to several points higher. It is understood that several important groups are planning to become more actively identified with leading railroad stocks. The oils, by their performance, convinced even skeptics that they had been liquidated to the limit and that powerful support was ever-present to absorb offerings of the better grade issues in this group.

United States Freight, sponsored by a very powerful interest, recorded a further recovery and its sponsors expressed confidence in the ability of the stock to attain a new peak. Each month, it was stated, shows increased business and profits for the company, with September having recorded a new high for earnings. Interests identified with Union Carbide during its most spectacular market action have again become large-scale buyers, it is understood. This company is constantly developing new sources of revenue and the current year's profits are expected to reach a new peak.

National Biscuit advanced sharply and seemingly confirmed the belief that another capital readjustment is near. This was one of the outstanding strong spots during the recent market weakness. Paramount-Famous Lasky was firm. It is understood its earnings statement shortly to be released will disclose a very substantial increase. In the near future another important announcement will be made by Paramount.

MID-WESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 7. (AP)—(USDA)—Curtaled receipts of cattle around the 11 market circuit failed to stimulate demand to any appreciable extent. CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 7. (AP)—Staggered by a new stiff increase of the United States wheat visible supply, wheat values underwent a sudden drop in the late dealings today. The price downturns came after advances that accompanied big export buying of North American wheat, as well as after a fresh jump in wheat quotations at Liverpool. Mainly, however, the European wheat purchases today were of wheat grown in Canada.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were unsettled, ⅛@⅝c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1¼@1½c down, oats ⅝@1¼c off, and provisions varying from 10c setback to a rise of 20c.

Today's enlargement of the domestic stock of wheat in sight amounted to 986,000 bushels, and brought the total up to the huge aggregate of 191,592,000 bushels, compared with only 116,577,000 bushels a year ago. Traders friendly to higher prices for wheat were much disappointed also because of failure of the market to show more than a moderate response here to estimate that new export business in North American wheat today aggregated 1,600,000 bushels.

Considerable notice also was taken of advices that 1929 wheat production in 30 countries amounts to but 2,865,246,000 bushels compared with 3,245,881,000 bushels for the same countries in 1928.

Widespread fine weather likely to help dry out the new corn crop did much today to bring about lower prices on corn. Besides, the first car of new corn this season in Chicago arrived today and proved to be of excellent quality. Oats paralleled the action of corn.

Packers' selling eased the provision market, despite early advances based on upturns in the value of hogs.

Gin Reports Were in Error

Clerical Mistake Caused False Estimate

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (UP)—A clerical error in transcribing figures caused the census bureau to over estimate by 300,000 bales the cotton ginned up to Sept. 16, Secretary of Commerce Lamont reported to the senate today.

Lamont said additional precautions will be taken in the future to prevent a repetition of the mistake.

The explanation was submitted in response to a resolution adopted by the senate.

RECEIPTS OF PRODUCE DROP

Circus Day Blamed for Light Trading

Poultry and produce dealers joined with cotton ginners Monday in reporting a slack day chiefly as a result of circus day following on the heels of Sunday. Cotton harvest abated noticeably over Sunday and Monday, while receipts of chickens and other produce were unusually light.

Evidence of still further development in the community's dairying activities during the current year is furnished by the fact that two modern dairy plants are now under construction near the city. Feeding and milking barns which are being built will represent the most up-to-date construction of such units. Large herds of registered dairy cows will be assembled during the next few months, adding materially to the section's daily output of Grade A milk.

Several new producers were added to the list of those making cream deliveries to the Armour creameries plant here, it was announced Monday. The price remained Monday at 43 cents per pound butterfat.

The agricultural and horticultural resources of Wichita county are being combed in great detail during the current week by G. C. McGown, county farm demonstrator, and O. K. Barnes, agricultural agent of the chamber of commerce, in preparation of an exhibit for the state fair at Dallas. A great variety of small grain, feed crops, fruit and garden stuff from all parts of the county will be included in the display.

Twelve Wichita county gins turned steadily during Saturday and Monday to add 873 bales to the total already placed on the market from the 1929 crop. The county's total, as reported, now stands at 7701.

Rocking Chair Champ Invents New Rockometer-Swayscope for Contests

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (UP)—Prof. Alexander Meyer, rocking chair champion of the world, originator of the Meyer adjustable jiffy bow tie and envisioner of the first all-aluminum ukulele, has given humanity another invention.

It is nothing less, the champion announced at his manorial apartment in the Bronx today, than a cunning mechanical device designed to obviate all future scandals in the rocking chair contest game, which has threatened recently to sink to the level of the wrestling match game. Professor Meyer calls it simply the Meyer rockometer-swayscope.

Counts the Rocks

"What it does," he said, "it counts the rocks."

Although he is known from Boston to Chicago as "the Grand Rapids mauler," the champion is really a native of Latvia. He emigrated to America shortly after winning the Russian rocking chair championship and almost simultaneously with the unfortunate trouble at Sarajevo and the mobilization of Russian troops. This, however, was a coincidence.

Professor Meyer attached his original model of the Meyer rockometer-swayscope to a straight-backed chair and demonstrated it while he explained it.

"What it does," he said, "it—umph!—counts the rocks. Can you—umph!—hear it click? Watch the—umph!—hand. It will prevent any—umph!—contestant from stal—umph—!—ling. What it—umph!—does, it counts the rocks—umph!"

Professor Meyer kept on rocking and the Meyer rockometer-swayscope kept on ticking. A circular diel, graduated in 3,600 tocks, kept accurate tally.

Timing Possible

"I can—umph!—attach a clock to it and —umph!—time every rock the same way," continued Professor Meyer. "It was the—umph!—stalling of some of the contest—umph!—ants in Madison Square garden that—umph!—took so long to rock them down—umph!

"Do you mind if I keep on—umph!—rocking? I can think better—umph!—rocking. I cured myself of—umph!—gallstones by rocking and also thought up my—umph!—jiffy bow tie and the Meyer all—umph!—uminum, ukulele, which is louder and clearer than the—umph!—old-fashioned kind."

Best Rocking Form

The best form for rocking, said Professor Meyer, requires rocking at the rate of one rock per second, or 3,600 rocks an hour. Prof. Meyer can rock for days on end at that speed, but it is too gruelling for most challengers. They try to slow down without attracting the judges' attention, thus the necessity for the rockometer-swayscope.

"What do you think about while you are rocking?" the champion was asked.

"Oh — umph! — everything," replied the human metronome, as the piano professor in the apartment below playfully called him. "Rocking—umph!—clears the brain. I invent—umph!—and I compose poetry. Here is the beginning of my poem 'Despair':

"Be not disheartened—umph!—so drear and dark—umph!
"Give not way to despair—umph!—but like many others—umph!
"Rekindle trust in hope—umph!—the living spark—umph!"

Professor Meyer has received many plaudits on this particular poem, which has several more verses.

Car Pershing Used In Mexico Still Runs

AUSTIN, Oct. 7. (AP)—The automobile used by Gen. John J. Pershing for his personal needs while in Mexico persuing Pancho Villa 15 years ago is stored at Camp Mabry, home of the Texas National guard, near here.

The automobile is in good running condition and is used annually during the guard encampments for use of officers.

Byron Utecht, capitol correspondent for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, rode many miles in Pershing's automobile. At that time he was covering the punitive expedition for the New York Times.

The automobile was in service at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, until four years ago, when it was given to the Texas National guard.

CLINTON, Okla., Oct. 7. (UP)—Mack Elliott, 27, Sayre, died in a Clinton hospital today of a fractured skull received in an auto accident here Sunday night. H. W. Curtis, Clinton, was being held, pending investigation into an alleged drinking party believed to have caused the accident.

Roy Walker, of Foss, Curtis and Elliott were riding Sunday night and, according to Elliott, drank several bottles of beer and then a pint of whisky. He gave a vague account of activities after that but officers believe the car was parked and someone sideswiped them.

MANY SUGGEST BABOON NAMES

Wichita Falls Woman Says Call Him 'Clarence Darrow'

"Call him Clarence Darrow because after having seen the baby baboon, I cannot think of anyone else who would claim to kinship." This suggestion for naming the baby baboon recently born at the Municipal zoo was received at the office of the park department from Mrs. T. C. Tyson, 1512 Tenth street.

Stacks of letters with interesting suggestions for names have been received since the opening of the contest, according to C. C. Brunenberg, city park superintendent. The response to the announcement that silver loving cups with appropriate inscriptions would be given for the best suggestions for naming the baby baboon has resulted in the addition of another week in which names may be mailed to the park department office in the Memorial auditorium. The judges will be W. E. McBroom, city clerk, Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief sanitary inspector, and W. Ralph Hyer, city and school tax assessor and collector.

Several letters have been received from out-of-town, indicating widespread interest in the rare animal. The judges will find difficulty in handling the suggestion of R. C. Roberts of Oklaunion, Texas, who wrote, "I suggest the following as a name for your rare younster at the zoo, Hector; Caesar; Titan; Napoleon; Epeus; Troilus; Dardanus; Orestes; Icarus; Ajax." Mrs. W. C. Hughes of Byers, Texas, suggested "Gellert, Astus or Capparus." Reasons for the romantic suggestions were not given.

Mrs. R. D. Lewis, 1501 North Eighth street, suggested "Rameses," since "Rameses was the first of the kings and the little baby baboon is the first of his line. Why not give him a regal name?" Dorothy McElroy, 1528 Speedway, sent in "Nisky" as a suggestion "for no other reason than just because it is catchy and cute." Dorothy's brother, Frank Jr., suggested "Zacharius" Billy Ross James, 1210 North Eighth street, suggested "Sapajou, for it is considered to be the most intelligent species in the world."

Othere suggestions, too numerous to mention included such names as "Rex Alpha Chacma de Hamadryas," "Bab" Darwin," "Aribirica," because the father is from Arabia and the mother from Africa," "Link," "King Tut," "Amos," "Tarzan of the Apes," and many others. The first suggestion to be received was "Ulyssees."

Wichita Falls Youth Takes Normal Exam

James Renfro, 19, son of Mrs. Hall, left Monday for Dallas where he will receive the final examinations for service in the United States navy. The young Wichitan was accepted for service here by C. R. Valverde, local recruiting officer. If the Dallas finals are successfully passed, young Renfro will go immediately to San Diego for the first training period.

"It Has Been a Great Help to Me and I Am Glad to Recommend It," She Says

Waco Woman Relieved After Six Years of Suffering

"I was just a nervous wreck until I found out about Orgatone," said Mrs. Millie Voznica, 1625 South 21st street, Waco, Texas, while talking to an Orgatone representative recently. "But since taking Orgatone I feel fine now."

"I had stomach trouble in the worst way," continued Mrs. Voznica, "and it seemed that I could never eat a thing that did not make me sick. I suffered so terribly with indigestion pains, and was bothered with gas all the time. I had a bad case of constipation, and was continually taking something to relieve this. I had frequent bilious spells, and was very nervous. I was so restless that I could never sleep good at night at all. Of course without rest at night I could never feel good in the daytime at all. My health was breaking so fast that I knew something had to be done, and done quick.

"Well after suffering six years, I was glad to listen to the good recommendation I received on Orgatone from a friend. I felt that if it had helped others out of the same troubles, it would surely do me some good, so I bought a bottle and started the treatment. Well I began to get better right from the start. I have taken two bottles already and I now feel like a new woman. My appetite is good now, and I can eat anything I want without suffering from indigestion or gas afterwards. I do not have those bilious spells at all, and my constipation is entirely corrected. I am not nervous now and can enjoy a good night's rest, and get up mornings feeling fine. Orgatone has certainly been a great help to me and I'm glad to recommend it to others so that they might get the relief from its use that I have." Genuine Orgatone is sold exclusively in Wichita Falls at Allison's Drug Store, 618 Indiana Ave.—Adv.

STRAND: "Divorce Made Easy," with Douglas MacLean. Mack Sennett talking comedy. Two Vitaphone vaudeville acts. Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: Lillian Murry company, burlesque. Lon Chaney in "Where East is East." Comedy. Sportlight.

GEM: William Powell and Evelyn Brent in "Interference." Comedy.

Talking of the talkies, this modern problem is accused of having gained a hearing thus far principally through the public's "laxity of imagination" and a lazy willingness to try any innovation once. In his paly, "The Miracle of St. Anthony," Maeterlinck reflects in the opening scene the same unimaginative conversation which, according to his implication, features our every day social exchanges.

◇ ◇ ◇

As an example of a "talkie" which may reflect the scintillation and gripping interest to be found in everyday table talk, the following soliloquy is submitted. This was jotted down in a local cafeteria last week as a big, brusque business man planted his tray and himself at a table with an elderly couple who had recognized him, paid a cordial greeting and briefly remarked the ample supply of food which he faced. His reply, delivered without interruption, but with inviting pauses between sentences:

◇ ◇ ◇

"Yes, this is a big lunch—I didn't eat any breakfast.—I can always eat.—That's my biggest trouble." (hopeful smile)—I can always eat—My wife's the same way,—she can always eat—big eater.—I never eat any breakfast—But I always eat a big lunch."

◇ ◇ ◇

Therein may be seen a ray of hope for the talkies, theatrically speaking. A man who has that much confidence in the interest-snatching power of his words could certainly overcome even the handicap of a microphone and poor acoustics.

◇ ◇ ◇

Greta Garbo finally has risked her mixed Scandinavian-English lingo in a talking film. She is now engaged in making "Anna Christie," a Eugene O'Neill play which had the good fortune to precede "Strange Interlude" and which certainly could be understood. In her first talkie, Greta can put on old clothes, swing beer mugs and hold her own among the waterfront sailor element. And how she will emote as the Swedish daughter! Like the original, it will be a play with highly centralized action carried on through emotional dramatics, rather than a moving picture.

Other factory operations now underway in Hollywood indicate that the public cry for suppression of back-stage drama has not been heard. Hal Skelly must be given something to do during the period of his contract, so we are to be regaled with another of those stirring, red-blooded he-man dramas of throbbing life under the title of "Behind the Makeup." The countless millions who have not attended a talkie during the current year will be allowed to gaze with open eyes upon the sensational world of chorus rehearsals, grease paint, dressing rooms and aching hearts through which life stalks with cruel stride. Bedtime stories will gain a following yet.

Mary Eaton's "Glorifying the American Girl," and Marilyn Miller's "Sally" will perhaps be easier to take, even though the same shop worn background be used. But we are mean enough to hope that they have to compete with "The Virginian" or George Arliss' "Disraeli" or Griffith's "Lincoln," or better yet, with Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights."

◇ ◇ ◇

Dramatic critics in New York and the intellectuals of colored Harlem, up the river, were given the first look-see at the resourceful King Vidor's recently completed epic of the negro race, "Hallelujah." Their commendation of the production excelled that received by any American film in the last decade. It is a talking film, but has utilized extensively the art of photographed emotion.

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost overnight.—Adv.

COPPER WIRE THEFT SOLVED

Five Arrested, 2,000 Pounds Of Wire Recovered

Five arrests had been made and 2,000 pounds of stolen copper wire had been recovered late Monday afternoon at the close of widespread investigations conducted by Frank Morgan, constable, and E. S. Richardson, chief deputy. The constable's department was assisted by Pat Allen and Luke Hart, city detectives, who worked with Mr. Morgan in making the arrests and uncovering the whereabouts of the stolen wire.

One man was in the county jail, three youths were held at the city hall, and the fifth man was a fugitive late Monday afternoon when the last load of wire, rolled in 500 pound coils was brought in off the Charlie road. The missing man, arrested Monday afternoon, seized an opportunity to make for the outside basement door of the courthouse while he was being questioned a few minutes after the arrest. His recapture is expected within the next few days. No charges had baan filed against him at the time of his flight.

Mr. Morgan made the first arrest Monday afternoon when he found one of the suspects engaged in burning the outer wrappings off a 500 pound coil. A few minutes later E. S. Richardson pushed open the door of a Wichita street house where the second suspect, the man who later escaped, was hiding. The three youths were arrested by the city detectives and accused of trying to dispose of an additional 1,000 pound supply of wire after the officers began their raids. The coils were found dumped off the Charlie highway and brought back to town late Monday afternoon by Mr. Morgan and Mr. Richardson. Material similar to the wire recovered was recently stolen from the Texas Electric Service company. The coils are valued at 18 cents a pound.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. James F. Campbell, of 1012 W. Fifth St., Little Rock, Ark., says: "I had bloating after eating. My rheumatism was so bad I could hardly raise my arms. Now I can eat anything and do a good day's work."

It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

New Hampshire Has 'George Who Does It' in Senator G. H. Moses

By FRASER EDWARDS
(Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—"Let George do it," was transformed from a slangy phrase of the side-stepper to a serious, well considered decision of the Republican leadership with the advent in the senate of George Higgins Moses, senior senator from New Hampshire. For George Moses is one George who really does it.

Whenever there is a difficult job on hand, this doer of deeds is called in and given the assignment. He has a mind that bubbles like champagne in a head chock-full of practical Yankee common-sense. He's a live one with the know-how and a go-getter of the first order. He produces with finesse and aplomb.

Not Entirely Happy

Yet for all his enviable reputation for steady production, George is not altogether happy now that he is becoming one of the patriarchs of the senate. Of course, it does nothing toward reducing his self-esteem, but like Eddie Foy, who craved to play "Hamlet," George yearns to inscribe his name on the tablets of time for nobler things.

George takes pardonable pride in his scholarly attainments, his familiarity with the ancient classics and dead languages. He is the logical successor to the late Henry Cabot Lodge as "the scholar in politics" and is never aggrieved at such a suggestion.

But George has only himself to blame. His reputation for doing things preceded him to the senate. Hence, when Woodrow Wilson sent up the League of Nations covenant for ratification, Lodge gave a scholarly sniff and remarked in classical style:

"Let George do it."

George Turned Trick

Without seeking to detract from Lodge and others one iota of the credit or discredit, according to the viewpoint, for defeating the League of Nations, the fact is that George is the boy who did most of the dirty work at the cross roads, which undid it.

When rumors were rife that Wilson was incapable of functioning as president, once more the cry was, "Let George do it." So George went down to the White House and qualified as an M. D. No wthe Republicans are worried over electing the next senate. George has been once more made chairman of the senatorial campaign committee to do the job.

Like Daniel Webster, George was given to the world by Franklin, N. H. Like Dan he went to Phillips Exeter and then to Dartmouth college. "Sub intervallo longo," which George would translate, "after a long interval," George came to the senate.

Edited Newspaper

Meanwhile, he labored to lay aside a competence for the evening of his life by editing a newspaper and then impoverished himself as minister to Greece and Montenegro. But this qualified him as the only member of the senate who can go out in the same evening and make speeches in English (the king's best), French and Greek—to say nothing of the scratchy dialogue he exchanges in the coffee houses in the cosmopolitan cities of his state.

George was a preacher's son but naturally mischievous. He was brought up in politics by the late Senator William Chandler, who in his day was stigmatized by various biological collations as "The Wasp" and "The Fox," of the senate. George is by turns both of these.

When George arrived in the senate, he was waited upon by a committee from the press gallery, whose spokesman said: "Thank God, at last there is someone in the senate who has a sense of news.

It is that sense of news which made George so valuable in the league fight and others. As an educated man, he believes in education and George can plant more propaganda for his side of the story in a minute than most men can in a month.

At any rate, Herbert Hoover seems to appreciate the Moses talents and whenever he wants the real "inside low down" he sends for George.

GOTHAM FACES FOOD SHORTAGE

Produce Handlers' Strike Becomes Serious

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (INS)—The federal government today took a hand in the strike of food handlers which has paralyzed the movement of perishable foodstuffs into New York city. A conference was arranged between merchants and representatives of the strikers in an attempt to settle the controversy.

Two thousand truck drivers have struck. The city's entire supply of fruit and vegetables, valued at approximately $5,000,000 has been stopped. Deliveries have ceased except to hospitals, orphanages and similar institutions.

Several thousand men, including railroad employes, have been forced into idleness as a result of the strike.

Railway shipment and waterfront terminals here and in New Jersey were clogged with perishable fruit this morning. Valuable produce from the South, New England and as far west as California, lay piled in cars in the railway yards in New York, Jersey City, Hoboken and Weehawken. Grapes from California predominated over all other fruits tied up, it was said.

The strikers began picketing the terminals last night but there was no disorder.

An immediate rise in the price of all perishable food stuffs was anticipated. Housewives found a marked scarcity of vegetables today.

BLAST'S VICTIM IS IMPROVING

Dr. E. P. Bass Injured in Garage Explosion

The condition of Dr. E. P. Bass, local oil operator who suffered fractures of the small bone of the leg when an explosion wrecked the office of the Leslie Bros. garage, Eighth and Travis streets, at 8:54 o'clock Monday morning, was reported good at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital Monday night.

The large bone was unhurt, physicians stated. He was resting well Monday and will be confined only a short time in the hospital, attendants said.

Investigation into the cause of the blast, which was the third to occur in the same spot during the summer, failed to determine the exact cause, according to Fire Chief J. L. McClure who conducted the investigation. He stated that similar explosions had been known to result from the accumulation of gas or fumes from gasoline in porus concrete, and that the explosion at Leslie Bros. was in all probability due to such accumulation which was set off by a spark or match tossed to the floor.

Whether the gas was from a natural gas main below the building or from the tanks in which gasoline for the station is stored had not been determined. The tanks will be emptied and filled with air under pressure to determine whether there is leakage of gasoline fumes, attendants at the station said.

The blast wrecked the room in which Dr. Bass was standing, throwing glass and pieces of wood far out into the street and hurling a piece of metal completely through the baseboard of a door. He was partially protected by a counter behind which he was standing. A clock above the showcase in which the explosion centered was stopped at exactly 8:54 a. m. On each of the other two occasions the clock was stopped and the blast centered in the showcase. Alterations were made each time which were thought sufficient to prevent a recurrence of the explosion and a ventilation system was put in following the second occurrence.
