Return To Olton

'Good Ole Days'

Carnival time has arrived again with fun to begin Thursday. Sponsored annually by Olton Lions Club, the popular rides will be offering excitement for young and old July 10-12.

Adding to the festivity, a number of organizations are planning sidewalk shops in the downtown area offering a varied array of goodies and wares, from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday with a number of local shops staying open with extra special prices on for summer shopping bargains.

Olton High Cheerleaders will be satisfying summertime longings for homemade ice cream. JV Cheerleaders will sell Mexican foods.

Alpha Rho Delta sorority members will operate a booth selling balloons while other clubs and groups will offer something different for shoppers.

Two young misses, Carolyn Smith and Cynthia Sorley, will be selling sweet corn fresh from the garden, if it's ready at that time.

A number of local artists have been contacted for sidewalk exhibits. Any interested artist is invited to participate.

Proud of its heritage, Mrs. Bohner holds a photograph of her husband, George, who served his country in World War I. CLIVE SARTIN

Chief Has 'Record'

Fourth of July brings no holiday for local law enforcement officers who find duty as usual awaiting. Chief of Police Clive Sartin is no exception. This salute is in recognition of his service.

Chief Clive Sartin is the son of Johnny and Ella Sartin, pioneer ranchers at Seagraves. He and his sister, Claudia, were both born on the family ranch. He is a veteran of World War II.

He was hesitant to say anything about war service, because, "that was so long ago," but offered the Gaines County History Book for reference.

The Chief's friendliness seems to be a family trait. His father was awarded three plaques by Seagraves Chamber of Commerce (1) Most Typical Representative of Western Hospitality (2) Best Loved Old-Timer and (3) Most Courageous for fortitude in meeting illness. His mother was honored at Seagrave 50th anniversary, 1967, as First Pioneer Woman.

Chief Sartin may have gotten his love for western hats when he was growing up on the Gaines County Ranch, or breaking horses prior to Uncle Sam's call to service...but his stately military bearing he retains from 20 months and 20 days in the armed forces during WWII under General George C. Patton.

A clipping in Sartin's souvenirs described "Blood and Guts Patton" as loyal to his men, his nation and his God. It says further, "There was a lot of criticism about Gen. Patton, but strangely enough it was from outside the Third Army. I never met a soldier in Patton's army who wasn't proud to be in it.

"...One could tell Patton's army a mile away. The equipment and men were neat and trim. The Third, under Patton, was probably the cleanest, neatest army that ever fought a war. Patton saw to that. And I have always believed that was one of the reasons it was such a fine outfit. We hated the rules. But we never lost a battle."

Sartin was a member of the Twentieth Corps, which Patton used as a lead for the Third Army. He has in his possession a well-prepared volume titled "The XX Corps, Its History and Service in World War II."

A short resume of Sartin's part in the war reads as follows:

"We joined the Third Army April 19, 1944. Gen. Patton once made the statement that the Third Army was the Pride of his armies.

"With the Fourth Armored we made a record run to Verdun in 30 days, over 600 miles. We assaulted Metz, and captured it for the first time in 1500 years. This well-fortified city was part of Alsace-Lorraine where battles have been fought since the time of Julius Caesar, Napoleon, the Huns and others.

"Trier was also taken, where Julius Caesar had built the Roman Bridge; also the Stone Bridge over the River Saar...we fought two times in the Saar-Moselle Triangle, and the Siegfried line area where the 'Bulge' was started by the Germans, Christmas, 1944.

"We located the concentration camps of Ohrdruf and Buchenwold where so many Jews and Polish Jews were starved and put to death."

Sartin explains that the concentration camps were so well hidden they could only be found by locating a questionable railroad and following it in to the gruesome sights.

But the feat that Sartin remembers with greatest pride was his part in recovering the famous Lippizan horses, used in Vienna, Austria, by the Spanish Riding Club for more than 100 years.

He tells it this way, "Gen. Patton had received a plea to save these horses. We took nine German trucks and nine German prisoners as drivers, and one barrel of diesel oil. We went in to a sector where there were no Americans. At an old airport we found the horses and loaded up the nine trucks. After returning them we went back for the rest. It was important that we rescue these Lippizanners, they were the last of the breed."

The Third Army moved into Linz, Austria until the war was over, May 8, 1945. They watched the Sixth Panzer Division come into Austria, a beaten Division. Gen. Collier, chief of the 20th Corps, gave each of his men a German rifle and a map of Germany and the Corps' line of march through France, Germany and into Austria.

Chief Sartin also has a German flag and two swords.

In his Honorable Discharge, issued in 1945, his occupational specialty was listed "Military Police," his military qualification, "Marksman, rifle." His battle campaigns were listed Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland and Central Europe.

His decorations and citations include American Theatre Campaign, medal; EAME campaign, medal with four Bronze stars; Good Conduct medal, one service stripe, three overseas bars.

Since his release from service, Sartin has served as city patrolman for Seminole; Chief of Police, Seagraves; police department, Lubbock; sheriff's department in both Fort Stockton and Brownfield and presently as Chief in Olton and he concludes, "I'm proud of all of them. I like working here in the city."

After talking to this man and reading his record, this reporter came away with great respect.

He came to us a stranger the first of February - but he is no stranger to danger, nor to law and order. Perhaps upon meeting this friendly officer, Olton residents should offer a salute...or at least give a smile and a wave.

Hot Air Balloon Rides To Be Offered Oltonites

The balloons are coming!

Hot air ballooning is the newest attraction added to the super special event coming up for Oltonites of today and yesteryears.

Bill Anderson of Miller Flying Service in Plainview will bring his hot air balloon to town Saturday, Aug. 2. That day has been designated as the city's "Sandhills Celebration" - a reunion of residents from 1900 ~~to 1980.~~

As a preview reminder of the event, Anderson announced this week that a three balloon rally will occur here Sunday, July 13. Residents are to be on watch for the trio of balloons, largest of which is 65 feet high with 77,000 cubic feet. Smallest of the three is 50 feet tall.

Rides will be offered Aug. 2 for a fee of $5 for a five minute glide in the sky.

Other highlights of the event, which is expected to become an annual affair, are a parade of antique vehicles, fiddlers contest, liars contest, beard growing contest, horseshoe pitching meet, square dancing in the streets and other fun happenings.

Gifts will be presented to the person traveling the farthest distance, person living in Olton for the longest period and oldest resident.

Other exciting plans are being made. Announcements will be made in each week's Enterprise. Suggestions for making the event bigger and more special will be welcomed. Contact Lois Brimhall at Olton Chamber of Commerce.

MRS. JIM FERGUSON

Recipe Revue

By Mozelle Trotter

An avid collector of cookbooks, Mrs. Jim Ferguson is working on one which might easily become her favorite.

As a member of Olton Young Homemakers, Jeana is actively involved in the composition of that group's second cookbook. Because of the popularity of the book they released in 1976, Young Homemakers decided to compile an entirely new cookbook. Once again they've asked good cooks of Olton to share their favorite recipes for inclusion in the book they plan to have ready for Christmastime selling.

Jeana has been a member of Young Homemakers about five years. She is serving this year as secretary-treasurer-reporter.

Although she loves cookbooks, and likes to cook, Jeana confesses that she usually makes her own adaptation -- "adding a little bit or taking a little out."

Jeana also enjoys art crafts, decoupage and one that currently has her busy. Designed for textile paints, the very large wall hanging of Santa Claus which is her present project is turning into a glittering masterpiece as she substitutes sequins and beads for paints.

Swimming is another of her favorite pastimes but camping is the hobby she likes "best of all."

"Camping in the mountains, especially," she says. "If I could camp in the mountains, I wouldn't get homesick for at least three weeks. Roughing it doesn't bother me at all - I love it."

Jeana has lived in Olton since she was just a tot. She graduated from Olton High School in 1971. She and Jim were married in December, 1972. They are parents of a five-year-old daughter, Juliette Renee, wh goes by the shortened name, Julie.

Little Julie is her mother's working companion at her grandfather's business, Chester Electronics. Jeana did not want to leave her daughter to work and has found it works very well to have the little miss at the shop.

"She even tries to sell TV's," says Jeana. "She'll tell a customer, 'Look at this one'."

Jeana is quick to admit she'll be like many mothers before her and find it difficult to "cut the apron strings."

Members of First United Methodist Church, Jeana teaches a Sunday School class for junior high students. She has just returned from serving as counselor at junior high church camp at Ceta Canyon.

Jeana says this recipe for biscuits is her favorite bread. Jim also approves.

Reminiscing

By Lily May Silcott

(Note: George Huggins, a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Ross Bryant during his last visit to Olton, granted this taped interview. It has been held for proper timing for presentation. We feel that the celebration of the Fourth of July, under world conditions anything but favorable, deserves a reminder of how precious OUR FREEDOM REALLY IS. This is a particularly appropriate time to tell the story of an "Olton Mustang" who served three years as a prisoner of war. He not only survived, but maintained a sweet spirit about the whole ordeal. A telephone call to Mr. Huggins reassured his permission to use the story.)

Born in Bangs, George Huggins was about five or six years old when he first came to Olton with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T.L. Huggins. His last appearance in the city brought him from Oakland, Calif., in response to an invitation to be presented at OHS Homecoming to be ushered into "The Mustang Hall of Fame"....a great deal transpired between those two events.

As a youth, George spent most of his time in Olton, although the family moved away at one time. His mother in 1934 brought the children back to Olton where she operated the "telephone exchange" (at the location presently occupied by Olton State Bank) until 1941. She then moved to California.

As a junior and as a senior, George worked after-school-hours for Jack Straw, owner of Western Drug (located in the building now occupied by The Enterprise). He recalls especially the late closing hours each Saturday night, ".....I remember I never could make it to the midnight show, I was always late."

Always interested in sports, Huggins played three seasons for Olton Mustangs. He remembers coaches Elmer Moore, a Mr. Everett, Lloyd Hunt and Earnest Jones. Some ofthe team members he recalls were Delmer Givens, the Hedges twins, Willard and Willis, Clovis Poteet, Doug Sanders, center and ends Dale Walthall and Robert Reinhardt. Also Alva J. Spain, S.J. (Buck) Jones and David Maxey.

In 1936, as an entering freshman on a junior varsity team, he remembers at least two games with a Plainview team. "Of course, it was disastrous on the scoreboard....but it was quite an experience for us. It was our first time to face a T-formation...and it was a long evening for sure."

Huggins, playing on the teams of '37, '38 and '39, was graduated at mid-term, 1940. He was quarterback of a team that played the "double wing" strictly. Questioned about equipment he responded, "Oh, it would certainly be obsolete by today's standards, but we really didn't have that many injuries...maybe it wasn't the same kind of football."

Highlight of those years with the pigskin was a bi-district game with Roscoe, played at Sweetwater. "As I remember this was the first year we'd ever had district and bi-district games in our class...really we were not even classified."

Olton fans attended the Roscoe game en masse. A special train was chartered to Sweetwater, and everybody went along for the ride. He continues, "We won the Roscoe game and advanced to regional play at Odessa with Pecos. I guess we shouldn't mention that score. They had an awfully good team. Some of their star players ended up in the pro ranks."

After graduation, Huggins went into military service as a member of Texas National Guard. He spent a year at Camp Bowie, then with a detachment from the 36th Division was being sent to the Philippines when Pearl Harbor was struck Dec. 7, 1941. He relates, "Actually, we were only two days out of Hawaii. We were then diverted to Australia. The Air Force that had been at Clark's Field, in the Philippines, was flown out to the Dutch East Indies and southern Java. They had only their crews and needed ground forces for service.

"Our Battalion was sent there, we were about 500 men. We became their ground crew and part of their bomber group. Shortly...on Jan. 10...we were under seige by the Japanese Navy (most of our protective navy had been destroyed) and I was taken prisoner April 28.

"Three of us Oltonites were serving with the 36th Division, Artillery unit, J.W. Bartee, S.J. (Buck) Jones and I...but I was the only one taken prisoner. Bartee and I were in the same area, in fact we were both members of the gun crew in southern Java. He was on duty the day the bombers flew out to Darwin, Australia...I was on ground duty. He flew out with them. I had the opportunity -- but I suppose I was just too dumb...I thought there'd always be another chance, you know. I helped service the last plane out. The crew tried to get the three of us to go with them, but that was not my assignment, I guess I felt an obligation to stay...now this sounds awfully 'patriotic'...I'm sure that given hindsight...I would have gone!"

"After our seizure we were first moved up to Singapore, then to Burma where we spent about three years building a railroad from the coastal area to Bangkok. In this length of time, we lost quite a few of our personnel...I think the record shows about one out of three succombed to the hardships of jungle life. This involved the elements, cholera, dysentery....but one of the most feared diseases we called 'jungle rot.' It was really a type of ulcer that was developed when men had malaria. Even a small scratch could develop overnight into a tremendous sore. So many men had to have limbs amputated. This was just a part of the jungle life, really.

"We learned to live on very basic foods, very small amounts as compared to our usual diet. Rice was our staple food...mainly a watery soup, along with tea. We did get some fruits by trading with natives in the villages, a kind of black market, but we could supplement our diet a little in this way."

Huggins was not submitted to brainwashing. His group was used as a work crew, building a railroad through the jungle area, "It was strictly manual labor. Everything was done with a pick and shovel, carrying the dirt out in baskets. This was the native's way of doing things, and this was our method.

"It was difficult for anyone to comprehend the grade of life we lived. I guess the first year was the most difficult in adjusting to this bare existence. As Prisoners of War (POWs) we were in another world entirely. We learned that first year how to relate to our Japanese and Korean guards.

"During the first period, we were in an area of what is now Laos. We worked at building bunkers...the Japanese fought from bunkers in the hill area. Our camp was some five miles from the hills, in the plains area, and each day we were marched to the hills to work.

"In the building of the railroad, our work sometimes consisted of moving mountains. Their engineers would lay out the route, which meant a slice of the mountain would have to be cut away. It looked impossible. But with so many people working...well, from a distance it looked like an ant bed, with people going in and out - it was surprising, really, how we moved the mountains.

"We were given a quota, each man in a party of 20, was to move one metric yard. Twenty men meant 20 yards moved. It was easy to make the quota the first few days, when we were just moving dirt on the top of the mountain. But as we dug deeper into the shale and rock formations, it became much more difficult..but the quota remained the same.

"As we became more efficient in our work, they raised the quota! We learned not to try to get back to camp too early - not to try to finish our work scheduled, or we'd have a larger quota to meet the next day. This 'slow-down method' was the only way in which we could combat their requirements.

"Bits of information from the natives would tell us how the war was going. If we were gaining victories, they'd hold the 'V for Victory sign' to us - but if things were going well for the Japanese, they always shunned us; they showed their distaste, really, for Americans, Australians and Dutch people at that time.

"In our last camp area, we had a method of slipping out of camp - which, of course, was against every rule of the Japanese. We would climb over the wall and slip into the moat surrounding us, float past the guards to an exit point and go down to the village to trade with the natives. It was surprising what would turn up in camp. They would trade for gold of any type. Those who had smuggled rings or gold watches in found them good barter for foods.

"I was in the village on the night of Aug. 14, 1945. There was quite a celebration among the natives and excitement....of course we knew something was going to happen. We had heard so many rumors in the past we couldn't believe anything...but we knew that something had really happened. We went back to camp, woke everybody up and had a celebration of our own.

"We could tell immediately a change in the attitude of the guards. The next day they lined us up and counted us off as usual to go to work. But it was a very easy time, the guards were joking...and we didn't do any work that day. We knew for sure that the War was about over.

"Shortly thereafter they moved us all via truck to Bangkok, then flew us to Calcutta, India, then back to Washington. I arrived in the State Sept. 2, 1945."

At this time Huggins was still in the hospital for out-service. He was transferred to Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco where he'd be nearer his family. His mother and sisters, Vida, Lala and Ona and brother, Reagan, were living in that western state.

By this time he had gained some weight, and was up to about 135 pounds. He states that he got his health back pretty quickly. He feels very grateful in that he had only one seige of illness while a prisoner, and came out without any major disability.

Sometime later he, his mother and sister, Vida, made a trip back to Texas, to see the fourth sister, Rita, who lived in Stamford. While they made a stop in Olton, his mother suffered a heart attack and died about one week later at the home of the sister in Stamford.

George and his sister returned to California, but shortly afterward both returned, in 1946, to attend Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene.

There he met and married Miss Ruby Faye Nelson of Palestine. The young couple lived a while in Lubbock, then in Dallas where he worked for the Department of Agriculture. Moving to Oakland, Calif., he worked for Safeway Stores, Inc., for some 18 years before going into business for himself in 1972. Now, eight years later, he still operates a Commodity Brokerage, with rice as his basic commodity.

The Huggins have two children, a daughter, Cynthia Jean, and a son, Larry Douglass. All live in California.

His wife comments, "One thing I have always appreciated about George, he has never held any bitterness about his POW experience, nor toward the Japanese. Today he has some very good Japanese customers, and even some personal friends...also it is quite ironic, where rice was one his sustenance of life - it has now become his means of making a living."

Huggins, who is very humble, (and is no way dramatic about telling his story) has great love for his country, and much confidence in today's youth - who may be the next defenders. He confidently states, "When you look at the overall picture today, you see a very stable people. The youth of today are so much smarter than I was at that age; they are so well educated through the use of so many media; they are strong and very fine. I think in time of crisis we'll all pull together. We come from a good strong Christian background, and we will continue to uphold the principles that have made America the greatest nation in the world.

Russians will be buying U-S corn and other grains next year. At least they'll have the opportunity to buy the 8 million metric tons agreed to under the trade agreement between the two countries signed in 1975. U-S ag observers say they have no reason to believe Russia won't complete the purchases even though they have managed to get around most effects of this year's embargo on additional sales (over the 8 million tons agreed on). Recent estimates by the Foreign Agricultural Service predict total Russian importation of grain for this year to be just under 31 million tons which is only three million less than the originally planned purchases from the U-S. Experts say the primary supplier making up the difference from the embargo is the country of Argentina.

INSUR-MATION

Is there a basic formula for determining the property insurance needed on a home and what is the best way to adequately insure the contents against storm damage, fire, theft or vandalism?

Yes, there is a sound formula for determining needed property insurance. You take the square footage of your home and multiply this by the present cost to replace the materials used in constructing the structure. Eighty to ninety percent of this figure needs to be insured. This being done, your home will be insured for its value. To insure the contents of your home you need to get an appraisal from an accredited appraiser based on current replacement costs. This amount should be covered by a household goods policy.

It's Time We All Did A Little Flag-Waving!

During this time of observance of Independence Day, let us not forget all those who have made great sacrifice in order for us to enjoy the freedoms we have. May we all take this time to stop and give thanks for our precious freedoms and renew our pledge to our country to uphold the ideals for which so many have given ALL. And offer a prayer for those hostages held in Iran.

THE PRICE THEY PAID

On July 4, 1776, Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence.

This coming Saturday July 4, 1970, most citizens are aware of the meaning of the day.

But have you ever wondered what happened to those men who signed the Declaration of Independence?

Five signers were captured by the British as traitors and tortured before they died. Twelve had their homes ransacked and burned. Two lost their sons in the Revolutionary Army, another had two sons captured. Nine of the 56 fought and died from wounds or hardships of the Revolutionary War.

What kind of men were the?

Twenty-four were lawyers and jurists. Eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and large plantation owners, men of means, well educated.

But they signed the Declaration of Independence knowing full well that the penalty would be death if they were captured.

They signed and they pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor.

Carter Braxton of Virginia, a wealthy planter and trader, saw his ships swept from the seas by the British navy. He sold his home and properties to pay his debts and died in rags.

Thomas McKeam was so hounded by the British that he was forced to move his family almost constantly. He served in the Congress without pay and his family was kept in hiding. His possessions were taken from him and poverty was his reward.

Vandals or soldiers or both looted the properties of Ellery, Clymer, Hall, Walton, Gwinnett, Heyward, Ruttledge and Middleton.

At the Battle of Yorktown, Thomas Nelson Jr. noted that the British General Cornwallis has taken over the Nelson home for his headquarters. The owner quietly urged General George Washington to open fire, which was done. The home was destroyed and Nelson died bankrupt.

Francis Lewis had his home and properties destroyed. The enemy jailed his wife and she died within a few months.

John Hart was driven from his wife's bedside as she was dying. Their 13 children fled for their lives. His fields and his grist mill were laid waste. For more than a year he lived in forests and caves, returning home after the war to find his wife dead, his children vanished. A few weeks later he died from exhaustion and a broken heart.

Norris and Livingston suffered similar fates.

Such were the stories and sacrifices of the American Revolution.

These were not wild-eyed, rabble-rousing ruffians. They were soft-spoken men of means and education. They had security, but they valued liberty more. Standing tall, straight and unwavering, they pledged:

"For the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of the Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

They gave us an independent America.

Can we keep it?
