Close treaty vote foreseen

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Senate one day away from its last vote on the Panama Canal treaties, its leaders were still searching for a resolution to the controversy over U.S. rights to intervene in Panama.

Both sides say Tuesday's vote will be extremely close.

Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said Sunday he thinks the second treaty will pass "with a vote or two on the plus side."

Other supporters say privately they are optimistic they can gather the 67 votes necessary for approval of the agreement to gradually turn the canal over to Panama by the year 2000.

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill, the House Ways and Means Committee was beginning work today on President Carter's proposed $25 billion tax cut. The committee expected to spend at least a month drafting legislation to put before the full House, is starting with itemized deductions.

The first treaty, guaranteeing the waterway's perpetual neutrality, was approved with one vote to spare, 68-32, on March 16.

Since then, a provision attached to that treaty permitting the United States to use military forces to keep the canal open has triggered hints that Panama might reject such wording.

On Sunday, Panamanian ambassador Gabriel Lewis met with Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., the treaties' floor managers, and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

Church said they met to "explain clearly to Lewis the situation in the Senate" and to hear his description of "the political problems the Panamanian government faces" over the treaties.

The controversy over the provision, which would allow U.S. intervention if the canal were threatened by internal labor troubles, has thrown the Senate into an uproar and jeopardized approval of the second agreement.

For several days, the provision's author, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., met with Carter administration officials in an effort to soften its impact in Panama and in the Senate itself.

Last week, Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd intervened. By Friday he and DeConcini were near agreement on a second treaty reservation declaring that the United States has no intention of intervening in Panama's affairs, a reservation that will probably be voted on shortly before the final treaty vote Tuesday.

In other congressional action:

—The Senate is scheduled to vote later in the week on a proposal to ease government regulation of air transportation. The bill would allow airlines to raise fares by 5 per cent or lower them by as much as 50 percent without first obtaining approval from the Civil Aeronautics Board.

—Leaders of a House-Senate conference committee considering President Carter's energy bill said they are hopeful of reaching agreement on a compromise natural gas pricing plan.

The natural gas issue has prevented passage of an energy bill for months, but agreement could be reached by Thursday, a year to the day after Carter sent his energy program to Congress.

CHECKING IN at race headquarters in Boston this morning were 4,700 official runners for the noted Boston marathon. The next step was boarding a bus for the Hopkinton, Mass., starting point followed by hours of running for the Boston finish line.

High again marks 90

For the second consecutive day, the high temperature Sunday climbed to the 90-degree mark in Midland, but the weatherman said temperatures should be cooler through Tuesday.

Fair skies are predicted through Tuesday with the low temperature tonight falling to the middle 40s. Winds were to be gusty today at 15 to 25 mph, but they should diminish to 10 to 15 mph tonight. Tuesday's high temperature is expected to reach the upper 70s.

Last night's low temperature fell to 61 degrees, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

In all area towns, clear skies and mildly cool temperatures were reported this morning.

Salad possible botulism source

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — State health officials trying to determine the cause of a botulism outbreak here revised the number of cases downward to 30 today, saying two previously reported cases were not severe.

And an official of the Food and Drug Administration's district office in Dallas, Texas, said tests were being conducted on a commercially sold bean salad, a salad prepared at the restaurant where all the victims ate and some pickled peppers in an attempt to track down the source of the poison.

Theodore Rotto, director of investigations for the FDA's district office in Dallas, said three FDA investigators visited the Midwest packaging plant Saturday night where the commercial bean salad was prepared.

Rotto declined to name the plant or give its location, saying, "It's still too premature."

But he said if the cause turns out to be the commercial product, believed sold throughout the country, "It's a very serious matter. Then we've got to get it off the shelves."

Dr. Jonathan Mann, state public health officer, said two persons who showed symptoms of the poisoning Sunday have only light illnesses. He said officials are counting only strong cases.

He said no new cases had been reported in 48 hours, and he was hopeful the outbreak may be coming to an end.

"We're getting optimistic," he said.

However, health officers said they are prepared if more cases arise.

Those stricken were among 800 persons who ate at the fashionable Colonial Park Country Club Restaurant in Clovis between April 9 and last Thursday, but officials said the source of the disease is not yet known.

Mann said all the victims ate vegetables and a bean salad from the salad bar.

"What we fear is the source of the poisoning is possibly a commercially sold food product, which could mean others in the country will get hold of it also," he said.

Mann said no cases have been reported by people who ate at the restaurant Friday.

Sunday was a critical period because it would have been the first day persons infected Friday would have begun showing symptoms, said officials. Cases confirmed Sunday came from persons who had eaten at the Clovis restaurant prior to Friday.

That situation increased optimism that contaminated food was not served at the restaurant Friday and that cases already reported might be the only ones.

"We think we're about out of the woods," said Joh Thompson, an official at the Clovis Environmental Improvement Division office.

However, state and federal officials remained in Clovis with vials of botulism anti-toxin should new cases be reported.

Demonstrators greet meeting in Rhodesia

By BARRY SCHWEID

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Blacks and one white today demonstrated against Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and his British counterpart before and after a meeting where they sought to persuade Rhodesia's new biracial government to negotiate with black guerrilla leaders.

"Owen-Vance, go home," read a sign held by one of nearly 1,000 black demonstrators. British Foreign Secretary David Owen is here with Vance.

Before the meeting, a high U.S. official said the Executive Council of Prime Minister Ian Smith and three black moderates probably would consent to talks with black guerrilla leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo. Following the two-hour session, U.S. spokesman Hodding Carter III said there was to be another discussion later in the day.

As Vance and Owen arrived for the talks at a civil service training center in the Salisbury suburbs, their motorcade was met by a crowd of blacks displaying placards and shouting slogans supporting the government, the first ever in Rhodesia to include blacks.

In addition to the sign inviting the Western diplomats to leave, there was a placard reading "Reds — no way," a clear reference to the guerrillas, some of whom are Marxists. The Nkomo-Mugabe forces have declared their intention to dominate any future black majority government.

After the meeting, the envoys drove to lunch at Marimba House, former residence of British high commissioners before Smith's declaration of Rhodesian independence from Britain in 1965.

As Owen and Vance left the training center grounds, a white woman flung a number of silver coins at a station wagon in their caravan, not the car in which they were riding. Thumping the roof of the wagon with her fists, she shouted, "Judas, Judas." Rhodesian police took custody of the woman, who was not identified.

Absentee vote starts

Absentee voting for the May 6 Democratic and Republican primaries began today in the county clerk's office on the first floor of the Midland County Courthouse.

Voters will be casting ballots for governor, U.S. senator and representative, state senator and representative, and a number of county offices.

County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry said voting will continue from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, ending May 2.

Those who plan to be outside the county on election day are eligible to vote absentee, as are those over 65 years old.

All-day push aimed at aiding retarded

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

Grandmother was "hustling" grandson on down the road at a respectable clip.

"We'll be all day," said Novella Rowe, 68, the grandmother. "We won't be back until 4."

She should know.

This "big push" would mark the second time Mrs. Rowe had pushed her handicapped grandson along a 20-mile route in his wheelchair.

The occasion was the hike-bike-run "happening" to benefit the Midland Association of Retarded Citizens (MARC).

And Mrs. Rowe's 32-year-old grandson, Clarence Batie, was taking this bouncing ride in good spirit.

They were sort of bringing up the rear in the movement that had left the Opportunity Center at 8:15 a.m. Saturday, when MARC volunteer Wade Whiteley bellowed "Roll 'em."

And off went the "race" by foot, bicycle, horse and wheelchair. The approximately 200 in the staggered caravan included a goodly number of the retarded, such as Mrs. Rowe's grandson.

"Pretty well everybody knows Clarence," she said without a hint of being winded. "He was born and raised in Midland."

Walking alongside the Rowe-pushed chair was Clarence's mother, Troy Lewis, 51. She was holding on to the right arm brace of the wheelchair.

All three were wearing sky blue T-shirts bearing the lettering, "Join the hike-bike happening."

Grandmother Rowe was getting close to finishing the first mile of the 20-mile route, which she and Clarence would wrap up in good time. However, they got back to the the starting point at 5 p.m., an hour later than she had hoped.

"We'll maybe get a little more speed," Mrs. Rowe said. "We'll take our time doing it."

Riding her bicycle (and sometimes walking) alongside the wheelchair was Jonetta Jackson, Mrs. Rowe's 13-year-old great-granddaughter.

Clarence was doing his share of the talking — and listening. In his lap was a tuned-in portable radio.

And Clarence, without any coaxing at all, named a couple of the singers being aired: Eddy Arnold ("Cattle Call") and Fats Domino ("Blueberry Hill").

Clarence is a worker, his grandmother said. He has a job at the Midland Training Center.

"What he can do is limited, but he's doing what he can," Mrs. Rowe said. Her grandson has a visual handicap.

"I don't do much," Clarence said.

At home, he watches television and listens to the radio, Mrs. Rowe said. "That's about the extent of it," she said.

Though she was making no excuses, Mrs. Rowe said her grandson didn't have the benefit of special schooling and training for the retarded when he was younger.

"When he was coming along, they didn't have schools and training like they do today," she said.

"But he's a happy person, because a lot of people love him and want him," the grandmother said of her grandson.

Mrs. Rowe said they joined in the Mexican-Americans plan another march

ODESSA — Members of the Odessa Mexican-American community and Brown Berets are planning still another march to protest the ruling of accidental death by an Ector County inquest jury in the case of Larry Lozano.

"It will be a march like you've never seen in Odessa," said a member of the planning committee which met Sunday in St. Joseph's Catholic Church here.

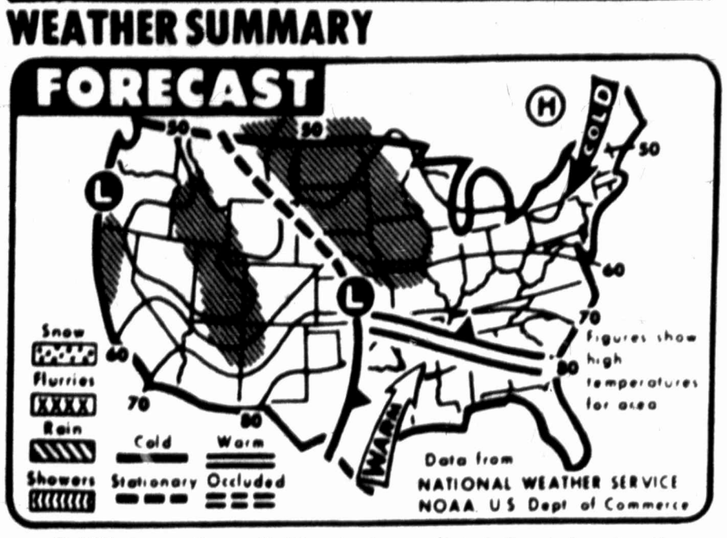

Adam Rodriguez, a spokesman for Odessa's Mexican-Americans since Lozano's death in Ector County jail on Jan. 22, said, "It's up to the Justice Department to order federal prosecution."

Midland attorney Jerry Lopez said the Justice Department already has written transcripts of last week's inquest into the death of Lozano. He said six agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation are working on the case.

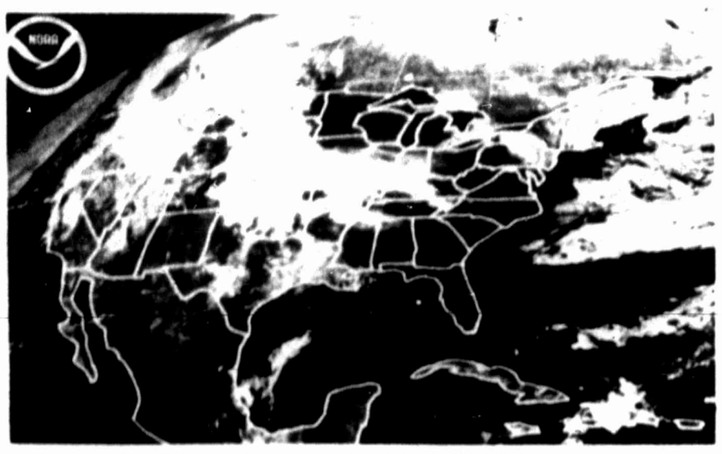

An argument arose during Sunday's meeting between a woman in the audience and one of the Brown Berets present as to whether the Beret uniform should be worn during the protest march. The Brown Beret is an activist Mexican-American organization.

The woman argued that the uniforms would detract from the effect of average citizens trying to make their feelings known.

Idea of dying doesn't bother her

By GENE WARNER
Jamestown Post-Journal

FREWSBURG, N.Y. (AP) — "It isn't the idea of dying that bothers me. It's what I'm going to miss when my children grow up, helping them through problems. The thought of Bob going through this alone tears me apart."

Sandy Spencer, a 36-year-old mother of three, is dying of cancer. Last October, she was given three-to-nine months to live.

"If the kids are talking about going on a picnic this summer, I think to myself, 'I probably won't be here,'" she said.

But she added, "I might outfox them all and still be here when they graduate."

The trouble began about 2½ years ago. Doctors discovered breast cancer and performed a modified radical mastectomy.

Then last year, after suffering a recurrence and undergoing chemotherapy treatments, Mrs. Spencer's heart failed. She was hospitalized for almost seven weeks, barely clinging to life at one point.

After doctors found cancerous fluid in her pericardial sac, part of the heart, Mrs. Spencer was told that statistics indicated she could expect to live less than a year.

She admits that her greatest concerns revolve around her immediate family — her husband Bob, 35, a seasonally employed bricklayer, and their three children, Robin, 13, Bobbie Jo, 6, and Kenny, 3.

"I'm worried that I'm hardly going to be a memory," she confided. "Life does go on and people have to make a new life for themselves."

She feels Robin is her link to the younger children, that Robin will pass on to her sister and brother memories of her closeness to her mother and the fun times they shared.

In a cruel irony, Mrs. Spencer has had to worry about medical problems of her two younger children — Bobbie Jo's epilepsy and Kenny's serious heart condition.

"In one respect it's been good that they've had these problems," she said. "If they had been completely healthy, there would have been more self-pity. It's given me something else to think about."

She and her family decided to make public her illness to aid other dying persons.

"I wish all people facing problems like this could be open about it," she said. "It's not as if you have leprosy or something to hide."

Gas prices may push solar plan off ground

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Deregulation could quadruple the cost of natural gas, but a Department of Energy physicist says that may be just what's needed to get a comprehensive solar energy program off the ground.

Dr. George Rhodes, director of the Solar Thermal Test Facility in Albuquerque, said the regulation of natural gas prices in the United States causes a false market.

"It makes fuels more affordable for the consumer and as a consumer I hate to see the price go up, too, but if we want to save our petrochemicals for other things, such as plastics, we have to quit burning them and look for alternatives."

Rhodes and other scientists attending the International Solar Energy Conference in El Paso last week had diverse opinions on priority areas for solar power development, but most agreed the U.S. won't implement solar power usage on a large consumer scale as long as fossil fuels are relatively cheap in the United States.

"Until it makes sense economically, people aren't going to look at alternative energy sources," Rhodes said. "Deregulation of natural gas is just one way to drive home the economic sense of avoiding an energy policy that relies heavily on a limited fuel source."

Rhodes said two major breakthroughs are expected in solar energy research within the next few years that could drive the cost of solar power down to a practical level. But, he said consumers may still need incentives to get them to change from traditional systems.

One of those breakthroughs involves the development of affordable photocells to convert solar energy into electricity.

"This will be a major milestone with a profound impact on the world's energy picture," he said. The main thrust of solar research throughout the world is to develop a feasible and economical way to turn solar energy into heat and heat into electricity, and Rhodes said scientists expect to reach that point with the photocell by the early 1980s.

The other near-range goal is the development of solar equipment manufacturing technology.

"When we develop 24-hour assembly lines and begin massproducing the equipment, the price will drop, but until the volume markets are there, we can't afford to do it," Rhodes said.

Police wrap-up

Car out of control hits objects

Police Sunday were called to the parking lot of the Golf Course Church of Christ, following a report that a car had struck several other cars and had caught on fire.

Officers said David Rutter White, 17, of the 1500 block of North Garfield Street was westbound on Golf Course Road. He reportedly passed a vehicle, lost control of his vehicle and jumped the north curb.

The curb reportedly broke the right wheel on White's vehicle, causing it to cross Tarleton Street, jump the northwest curb, strike a utility pole and mailbox, officers said.

Police said the vehicle, still out of control, went back across Golf Course Road, jumped the north curb, struck the second utility pole, jumped the curb into the Church of Christ parking lot, struck five cars, entered Golf Course Road again and came to rest facing east in the westbound lane of traffic.

Early reports said the vehicle had caught on fire while in the parking lot. However, firemen said there was no fire and that it was reported as a "mistaken alarm."

Gunshots reported in Hogan Park

Police are looking into the reported exchange of gunshots Sunday afternoon at Hogan Park.

Six units with the Midland Police Department were called to Hogan Park at 5:42 p.m. Sunday. Early reports from witnesses had police looking for two men who reportedly exchanged shots. One of the men allegedly had a shotgun and the other a rifle.

However, this morning, Capt. Billy Ray, detective division, said the persons reportedly involved in the shooting were gone by the time officers arrived and the only complaint filed involved criminal mischief. That complaint was registered by a man whose vehicle was hit by a stray bullet.

David Foster of Route 2 estimated damage to the cab of his pickup at $200.

Pedestrian hurt in parking lot

A 17-year-old pedestrian this morning was listed in serious condition in Midland Memorial Hospital following a traffic accident Sunday.

Police said two people in an "uninvolved" vehicle and Pat Harris of the 3400 block of Tanner Drive, the pedestrian, had been in an argument with the driver of another vehicle, Robin Charles Barnett of the 4000 block of Anetta Drive.

The two vehicles pulled into the Super Bowl parking lot in the 3900 block of West Wall Avenue. Harris and the two in the uninvolved vehicle began walking toward Barnett's vehicle, officers said. Police said Barnett tried to leave the parking lot and struck Harris.

Bedding, television said missing

Apparently, someone wants to watch television in bed.

Mrs. Joe Juroch told police Saturday that someone entered her residence in the 3500 block of Imperial Avenue and removed a portable television, king-size mattress, twin-size box springs, headboard and king-size frame.

Value of the items was estimated at $1,013, she told officers. Police were told that the items were in the bed of a pickup, parked in the Juroch's garage.

Parade to open rodeo

A parade, well stocked with horses, at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday will signal the opening of a four-day American Junior Rodeo Association rodeo at the Joe Thorp Rodeo Arena.

The rodeo, sponsored by Thorp and the Midland Jaycees, will be held at the Thorp Arena, just off Farm Road 868 and about a mile west of Holiday Hill Road, at 7 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday.

The parade will begin at Terrell Street and Front Avenue and will meander across town to Whitney Drive, where it intersects the Andrews Highway.

An estimated 400 youths are entered in the rodeo. Admission to the show is $2 for adults and $1 for children.

Midway in each of the four performances will be a calf scramble for boys and girls age 12 and under.

On Friday night, broadcast media personalities will try to put pants on a calf in a "calf-dressing" event.

Rodeo events will include tie-down calf roping, ribbon roping, barrel racing, pole bending, bull riding, bronc riding and steer wrestling, said Gerald Nobles Jr., the Jaycees' rodeo committee chairman.

The rodeo is open to non-AJRA members, too.

The rodeo announcer will be Midland Jaycee John Myers. And stock producer will be Bobby Kelly of Stanton. Rodeo clown will be Terry "Fire Horse" Kelly of Stanton.

New general takes post

The Los Angeles Times

JERUSALEM — A nonpolitical general took over Sunday as chief of staff of the Israeli Defense Forces, replacing one whose boss thought he talked too much.

Lt. Gen. Raphael Eitan, 48, a hard-eyed professional who has a reputation for taciturnity, was sworn in as chief of staff and responded with a speech which lasted 19 seconds. It ended: "I have to get to work." With that he saluted and marched away.

hike-bike happening because "we wanted to show some appreciation" for what the organization for retarded people has done for handicapped citizens. For his effort in the hike-bike drive, Clarence has brought in more than $1,500 and has about $500 more to collect. Altogether, the 200 riders, hikers and bikers brought in more than $30,000 in pledges to benefit the retarded.

"... It's fun," Mrs. Rowe said of the 20-mile push. "We enjoy it."

And she's proud of her grandson, who gets around on crutches.

"I love the very ground Clarence walks on," she said. "He can't help the way he is."

City receives tax rebates

AUSTIN — The city of Midland recently was sent a check totaling $177,456 for city sales tax rebates from tax collections made in March, according to the State Comptroller's office.

So far this year, Midland has received $1,022,6568 in sales tax rebates, a 22 percent increase over the same period last year. At this time last year, the city had taken in $832,674.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said that city sales tax rebates from March tax collections are up 24 percent over last year. He said his office has mailed rebate checks amounting to $20.2 million to 899 Texas cities as their March share of the local-option 1 percent city sales tax.

Party may modify refusal to deal for Moro's life

ROME (AP) — Italy's ruling Christian Democratic Party has indicated it might modify its refusal to negotiate for the life of former Premier Aldo Moro, kidnapped by terrorists a month ago, but the Communists urged the government to remain firm.

Christian Democratic leaders met for three hours Sunday to discuss the announcement from the Red Brigades terrorist organization that a "people's court" had sentenced Moro to death. A statement issued after the meeting said the party, while "aware of our duties before the nation" was "anguished about the life of (Moro) and therefore on the humanitarian level we feel that this life must be spared by all juridically possible and legitimate means."

The party, of which Moro is president, repeatedly rejected demands by the Red Brigades through letters written by Moro for the release of jailed terrorists. Fifteen of them are on trial in Turin on charges of sedition. However, the Christian Democrats never have ruled out the possibility of buying Moro's freedom with ransom money from his friends or family.

The Communists, the largest of the parties supporting the minority Christian Democratic government in Parliament, said in an editorial in the party newspaper L'Unita that "emotional feelings (must not) prevail on the coolness and calm necessary in this grave hour."

The front-page editorial said politicians "must continue to display their sense of responsibility before the republic."

President Giovanni Leone, in an open letter to Moro's wife, Eleonora, appealed to the kidnappers to spare the life of his longtime colleague.

Economists see three goals hard to attain

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Has President Carter promised too much, perhaps even been inconsistent, in saying he would work simultaneously for less inflation, continued growth and smaller oil imports?

Nothing mutually exclusive about such goals, economists agree. But perhaps, said some of those questioned about the triad, the improper execution might make all three goals unattainable.

Questions concerning the goals were put to several prominent economists. Here are their answers:

Q. Would not limiting oil imports slow domestic economic growth?

A. By itself, yes, but we must consider the total energy-antiinflation program rather than just one aspect of it. Some say, for example, that if inflation were restrained growth might be spurred, regardless of the higher oil cost resulting from import restrictions.

Jack Carlson doubts this. The chief economist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce claims passage of the House energy bill — preferred by the president — would cut the 1981 economy by 1.2 percent.

By then, he continues, it would also mean disposable income would be $778 less than it might have been, and that the economy would be producing 1 million fewer jobs than otherwise would be created.

Q. But what about those offsets?

A. We must consider them, we must consider the entire package. Walter Heller, former chief economic adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, believes industry might learn to be more energy-efficient.

Says Walter Hoadley, chief economist of the Bank of America: We must assume a program, not referred to by Carter in his inflation talk last week, to increase production of nuclear fuel, coal and domestic oil.

And Murray Weidenbaum, director of the Center For The Study of American Business in St. Louis, reminds us the nation still can have positive growth, although slower, while cutting energy usage.

Said Albert Cox, president of Merrill Lynch Economics, "The less inflation the more growth; the less government spending the more growth." But, he said, "that's not what he's doing."

Q. Wouldn't import fees or excise taxes on imported oil be inflationary?

A. Yes, by itself such action would be inflationary. Again, example, the promise to economists remind us of hold down deficits, and the potential offsets, for wage-price restraints.

Two men deny charges of possible cover-up

By LINDA HILL

ODESSA — An Odessa bail bondsman and a state assistant attorney general today denied charges they tried to get a witness in the Larry Lozano inquest to give testimony which contradicted his earlier statements.

Ector County District Attorney John Green claims to have recordings of two conversations which he said indicate that bondsman John Stringer and Assistant Attorney General Dan Maeso were involved in offering immunity to Deputy Jackie Perkins.

Perkins was one of the witnesses who testified at the inquest into the cause of death of Larry Lozano, who died while an inmate in the Ector County Jail. The inquest jury ruled Lozano's death accidental.

Green said a recording device was installed in Perkins' home after Perkins reported to Green that he had been "approached about immunity being given to him" by Stringer.

In the conversation, held the afternoon before last Tuesday's inquest, Stringer "tries to get him (Perkins) to testify somewhat different than he's given a statement to and offers immunity," Green said.

Green said Maeso and attorney Luis Segura, who represented the Lozano family, also were at that meeting.

Perkins told the three men that he would try to make up his mind, Green said, and Maeso, Stringer and another employee of the attorney general's office returned at 11:30 p.m. that night.

Green said the men made "allegations against certain people" and told Perkins "there was a big cover-up going on." Green charged that Stringer offered immunity to Perkins for his testimony, and Maeso did not "interrupt" to contradict Stringer.

"The attorney general (representative) had no business even being there, much less being involved in something like that. It's really scary," Green said.

Stringer this morning denied he had made an offer of immunity to Perkins. "I'm afraid Mr. Green has interpreted things a little differently than the way it was said," Stringer said.

He said he had attempted to make bond for Lozano, and had planned to make another attempt the Monday after Lozano's Jan. 22 death.

"Being a bail bondsman, I'm involved and interested in anything that goes on over at the courthouse," Stringer said.

Of Maeso, Stringer said, "We just met. I thought he needed to talk to some of the people who came into my office voluntarily and told me what they knew."

He said he had heard indirectly that Perkins wanted to talk to someone about his statements. Stringer said he called Perkins and was told Perkins did not want to change his statement.

Several days later, Stringer said, Perkins called him and asked if he could set up a meeting with someone.

Stringer said that during the conversation which Green claims to have recorded he told Perkins he would try to help Perkins get immunity "if he needed it."

"We just told him if he had anything different to tell that he could tell but Perkins was not offered anything. Nobody tried to bribe him," Stringer said.

"What I'm actually saying is that Green and them used a diversion tactic to make it look bad on the attorney general's part and my part because Perkins actually called me," Stringer said.

Maeso said in Austin this morning his only purpose in meeting with Perkins "was to hear the truth from Mr. Perkins. He told me he was going to tell the truth at the inquest and that was the end of my participation."

Maeso said he went back to the night meeting because "I was told again that he (Perkins) wanted to talk to me." The other employee of the Attorney General's Office was a law clerk assisting in the case, Maeso said.

Maeso said "under no circumstances" did he try to get Perkins to change his story or offer immunity. "I do not have the authority to offer immunity to anyone....I know that Mr. Stringer was talking about immunity, but I don't know whether he offered it or not," Maeso said.

Maeso said the decision on whether to continue the investigation into Lozano's death or recommend federal prosecution "will have to come from Mr. (Attorney General John) Hill and not from me."

Green said he has no plans for official action on his allegations because "we're trying to get this thing over with." But, he said, "if they perjure themselves, I'll turn it over to the grand jury."

Tax fraud probes may be dropped

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Several major tax fraud investigations involving millions of dollars may be dropped by the Justice Department this week.

Sources close to Project Haven — a decade-long probe by the Justice Department and the Internal Revenue Service into the use of offshore tax havens by wealthy Americans seeking to evade tax payments — say that in some of the cases the government is letting the statute of limitations expire.

As the tax-filing date passes Monday midnight, the government loses jurisdiction over tax fraud involving 1971 returns because of a six-year statute on prosecuting tax fraud.

That probe became controversial last year when a federal judge in Cleveland ruled that informants for the IRS acted improperly when they conspired to acquire documents from Bahamian bank official Michael Wolstencroft earlier in the investigation.

Board okays area grant

AUSTIN—The Criminal Justice Division Advisory Board of the Governor's office Friday recommended approval of a $52,878 grant to continue funding of probation services for an eight-county area in West Texas.

The grant, which is to go to Pecos County, would continue support of the Permian Basin Dual Probation Services serving Brewster, Crockett, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Sutton, Upton and Pecos counties.

Most of the money goes toward the salaries of a chief probation offier, three other probation officers and three secretaries.

The recommendation now goes to Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who is expected to routinely approve the grant applications.

Indictments criticized

Ronald Reagan has criticized the indictments of L. Patrick Gray, former acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and two aides on charges of civil rights violations in ordering the attempted capture of radical underground militants called the Weatherman. The charges, incidentally, have been denied.

The Reporter-Telegram is inclined to agree with the former California governor.

Reagan, addressing a question and answer session at the annual meeting of the National Association of Broadcasters held last week at Las Vegas, Nev., said, "I want constitutional protection. I think all of us do. But the Weathermen at the time were responsible for bombings."

The group was a radical organization spawned by the Vietnam war protest.

Reagan said he spoke from personal experience. He said that if it hadn't been for police intelligence work while he was governor and when campuses were aflame with riot, he wouldn't have learned of the plot to kidnap his wife, possibly kill her and then "send me her head" unless certain conditions were met.

This is but another reason why intelligence work at state and national levels is so very important.

And yet the FBI, the Central Intelligence Agency and other law enforcement agencies are under almost constant attack, mostly for doing the jobs they are supposed to do. As has been said many times before, a nation without good intelligence is severely handicapped. It is a matter of national survival. And certainly unwarranted regulations, restraints and attacks on law enforcement and intelligence agencies do not make for good intelligence or for good law enforcement.

Certainly all of us want constitutional protection, and we are for law and order, but let's not forget that the Weatherman was a group charged with bombings at various places across the nation, including Washington, D.C., and with actual overthrow of the government as an ultimate objective. It is somewhat difficult, under the then existing circumstances, to see where civil rights of such a gang of radicals enter the picture. It would seem that civil rights violations were on the other side.

Attorney General Griffin Bell is on the wrong track in seeking and getting the indictments against Gray and his then FBI aides.

Hopefully, they will be cleared of the charges.

Welcome, Cubs!

The order "Play Ball" will be sounded tonight at Cubs Stadium at Hogan Park, and Midland and area residents will get their first look at members of the Midland Cubs entry in the 1978 race for the Texas League pennant.

The Cubs opened the season last Tuesday night at San Antonio and arrived in the Tall City Sunday night after completing their San Antonio engagement that afternoon.

General Manager Bill Rigney Jr. and a group of Midland fans were on hand to greet Manager Jim Saul and his Cubs, a number of whom are in Midland for the first time.

All Midlanders, however, join in directing a big, cordial, typically West Texas WELCOME to the Cubs and in wishing them well in the 1978 season. The players will find a home here and it is hoped that they will enjoy their residence in the Tall City.

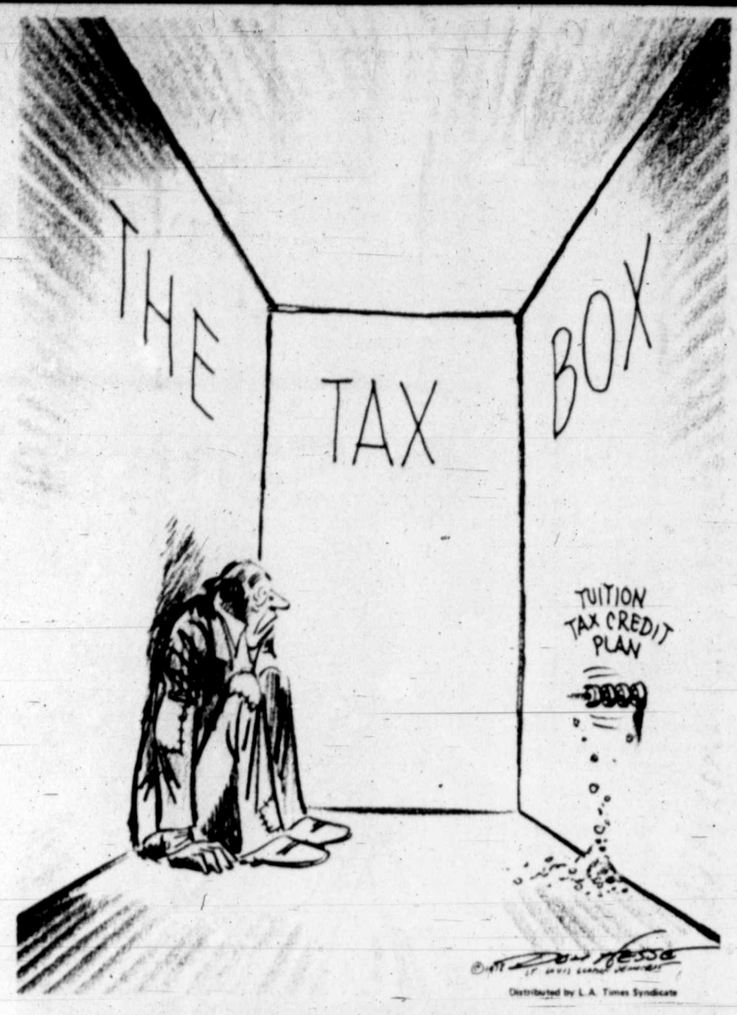

The best way for citizens to show their interest in and support of the Midland Cubs is to be on hand for the season opener tonight at Cubs Stadium.

Cubs Stadium, incidentally, has brand new seating in the box-seat area. The City of Midland also has painted the entire grandstand area and has made other improvements at the ball park, which last year was named the best in the league.

So, let's all be on hand tonight to get the Cubs off to a fast home-ground start.

CHARLEY REESE:

Nation cannot survive without adequate arms

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — L. Wayne Fralin, of Orlando, Fla., is a member of the Church of the Brethren's national policy making board. He sent me a copy recently of the denomination's magazine, "Messenger."

The Brethren are pacifists and in an accompanying letter, Fralin said:

"I am well aware that you deplore everything we stand for and you have made that abundantly clear by calling us idiots, cowards, ignorant, naive, stupid and so many other names that I can't remember them all. But, because of the importance of this issue, I am more than willing to risk further ridicule for myself and my fellow Brethren in order to share it with you."

I appreciate that and will not disappoint him. One of the most important issues of our times is about to be decided. The Carter administration will soon complete its Surrender II Treaty. That treaty must never be ratified by the Senate.

We can perhaps recover from the folly of handing over the Panama Canal to the Communist bloc, but if we legalize America's military inferiority as the SALT II Treaty would do, then you may as well prepare a funeral oration for the U.S.

Oddly enough, Fralin and I disagree for the same reason. We both hate war. He thinks the way to avoid war is by disarming. I think the way to avoid war is by arming to the degree that the Soviet Union will neither attack nor attempt nuclear blackmail.

What do you think?

What do you think would happen if we unilaterally disarmed? We have already unilaterally disarmed to the point of military inferiority to the Soviets. Has that made them less hostile?

Of course not. During the period of detente, which was nothing more than a psychological warfare coup for the Soviets, they increased their armaments tremendously, violating both the letter and the spirit of SALT I.

At this moment they are busy as bees inflicting death and disfigurement on thousands of Africans and providing arms and training to any maniac who volunteers to murder a child. What Fralin and the other Brethren do not understand is that the Soviets are no damned good. They are modern Mongol savages who intend to turn the world into one giant slave labor camp by force.

That is the only kind of new world order they are interested in and I passionately disagree with the Brethren and other pacifists because I think they are working against my safety and freedom as, no doubt, they think I am working against theirs.

Well, it can't be helped. One of us is dead wrong. Reality will settle the argument and probably by 1982.

I suppose one difference between us, judging from the magazine, is that many of the Brethren are absolutely horrified at the thought of nuclear war while I am not.

So far as the individual human being is concerned a nuclear bomb cannot do anything to you that can't be done with a kitchen knife, a brick, a pistol, or bare hands. A nuclear weapon is only a labor-saving device.

Between the Red Chinese and the Soviets they have killed 50 or 60 million human beings over a period of years using the primitive technology of machine guns, rifles, pistols, clubs, and forced famine. With nuclear weapons, they can execute that many people in a matter of hours but the new victims will be no deader than the old ones.

The problem is not the technology but the human brains so twisted that they want to kill even one innocent human being. Disarmament will not, and never has, changed such minds. It has only made them more inclined to indulge their murderous fancies.

Fralin and the Brethren, if they are really interested in peace, should all apply for visas to the Soviet Union and conduct their demonstrations and lobbying and pleading in Red Square. The U.S. is no threat to peace. On those two occasions in which we used nuclear weapons, we used them to save a larger number of lives.

Pacifists tend to forget that conventional bombing killed more people in Tokyo than the nuclear bombs did in Hiroshima and Nagasaki combined.

No, Brethren, the issue is not nuclear war, but war; not weapons, but minds; and not peace, but survival as a free people. And without arms, we won't survive.

New Zealand: Flowers, clean water

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
Copley News Service

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand — This city undoubtedly is the most English in the world outside of England.

Of course there are a large number of Scots here, along with people from Wales and Ireland and some from continental Europe. But most of the residents have ancestors who lived in England.

The city, the largest on the south island, must have the same atmosphere as existed in Britain in 1890.

Nowhere on earth are there as many flowers and as many parks in a city this size with a population of nearly 350,000. By law one acre out of each eight must be parkland or botanical gardens.

Flowers are grown everywhere in great profusion and there is an annual competition for the most beautiful street in Christchurch. For a number of years Royds Street has won first place. The rules provide that all of the work must be done by the residents of the street and that no gardener or assistant can be employed.

In the event someone becomes ill, the neighbors join in and do his or her work.

It is required by law that every factory must have a portion of its land put aside as a beautifying area. The Sanatorium Health Food Co. has a public park area, where a husband and wife each year plant more than 20,000 annuals and 10,000 dahlias and care for the entire garden.

Christchurch, which was named for the college at Oxford, obtains its water from artesian wells which are only 30 to 40 feet deep, requiring only little lift to bring it to the surface. The water is extremely pure and there never are any water restrictions.

The River Avon flows through the city and its banks are lined with weeping willows, with boughs which bend to the water's edge. There are also many trees, shrubs and plants which one would see in the home counties around London, England.

Christchurch is the location for the St. Andrews College for boys, who wear uniforms or outfits and straw hats or boaters in the same style as English schoolboys. There is an exceptionally large play area, where rugby matches and cricket contests are in progress much of the time.

The Methodists maintain one of the finest homes for retired or elderly people I have ever seen anywhere, and rental charges are extremely low. In the rear there is a wing for children and there are also hospital facilities on the grounds.

In Christchurch, as elsewhere in New Zealand, everyone takes pride in his home. The people consider themselves and others as equals. There is no poverty and no exceptional wealth. Everyone speaks to everyone and there is no class distinction. New Zealanders today are inspired, as were the first settlers, to find a new way of life and to form their own type of goverment. There are only 26 persons to a square mile in this nation, which has a size somewhat similar to that of the state of Colorado.

In Christchurch even the power station has parklike lawns in front and is surrounded by flowers and fountains.

It is required that homes here be set well back from parkways or streets. Right in the heart of tbe city, Hagley Park, of some 500 acres, has 75 acres in gardens and flowers with the remainder given over to sports fields and trees.

As one drives through the streets of the city it is noted that many roofs are galvanized iron dipped in tar and covered with crushed pebbles, with a shape suggestive of tiles. The lifetime of such roofs is about 50 years.

Christchurch is ringed by the Southern Alps. It is situated on the green, gentle Canterbury Plains, where some of the finest sheep and wool in the world are grown. It is only six miles from the center of Christchurch to the ocean, with many fine beaches of white sand.

The gothic Anglican cathedral, sending its spire up 210 feet, dominates the center of the city.

The heavy, elaborate greenstone and silver cross used by Bishop Harper is displayed today in the cathedral. The story of its creation is an interesting tale of the ingenuity, unselfishness and determination of the British pioneers. Greenstone was plentiful but there was no silver in the new country, and so the bishop's daughter-in-law donated her silver tea service to be melted down for the cross.

INSIDE REPORT:

Carter's global human rights campaign: Year Two

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — The state of Jimmy Carter's global human rights campaign in its second year was reflected on his recent visit to Nigeria when a vague, super-cautious intimation that even African nations sometimes abuse their citizens was barely kept in his speech.

The original version of President Carter's April 1 speech in Lagos contained a more candid statement opposing human rights violations in Africa. But Richard Moose, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, fought like a tiger to get it out.

Presidential speech writer James Fallows fought back, and the result was a watered-down compromise.

No such caution was shown at the President's previous stop in Brazil, which like Nigeria is under military rule. Mr. Carter did not hesitate to mention human rights differences with the Brazilians and conferred with Roman Catholic Cardinal Paul Arns, a liberal dissenter against the regime.

The contrast is no accident. After early anti-Soviet emphasis, the Carter human rights crusade has taken this peculiar course: while pulling no punches in assailing anti-Communist dictatorships for their human rights transgressions, Washington often looks the other way at abuses by neutralist dictatorships — particularly in black Africa.

That fits the global strategy chartered by ideological young policymakers at the State Department but offends other liberals in the administration. "It gets hypocritical when we're attacking Brazil and Chile but close our eyes to human rights violations in Africa," one presidential aide told us.

He and others did not believe Mr. Carter should ignore such violations on a continent where there is mass murder in Uganda, slave labor in Equatorial Guinea, political repression in a dozen other countries and freedom almost nowhere. So the draft of his Lagos speech contained a statement that, without mentioning Uganda or any other country by name, condemned what goes on there.

But that violated the policy, sculpted by UN Ambassador Andrew Young and Assistant Secretary Moose, of courting black Africa at any price (including rejection of moderate biracial solutions in southern Africa). Moose contended that single statement would doom the President in Africa.

That's when speechwriter Fallows, a liberal young journalist from Texas, stepped in. There were reports he threatened to resign, though well-informed presidential aides tell us it never got that far. He finally managed to get these two watery sentences through Moose's censorship: "Our concern for human rights extends throughout this continent and throughout the world. Whatever ideology or the power of the race of a government that abuses the rights of its people, we oppose those abuses." No names mentioned, of course.

The Moose-Fallows clash was fought without appeal to Mr. Carter, but the President himself is not immune. On April 2, he admitted to a press conference he had not mentioned Uganda's egregious Gen. Idi Amin or his anti-human rights outrages to Lt. Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo, Nigeria's chief of state.

The President next declared "gratitude" that "the organization of African states" has condemned "black leaders" who "deprive persons of human rights." In fact, last year's meeting of the Organization of African Unity (OAU), which we attended, lionized Idi Amin and issued not one word of criticism against atrocities in Uganda or anywhere on the continent.

Mr. Carter wound up equating the United States and Nigeria in making "every effort to enhance human rights." Actually, nonideological Freedom House calls Nigeria "partly free" and gives it a "5" rating in political rights out of a worst possible "7" (worse than Brazil's "4"). The President was comparing the U.S. to a country where public executions are held, where American newsmen are excluded and where military rule still prevails.

Why this extraordinary treatment for Nigeria? One cynical, high-ranking U.S. official says there is a "three-letter answer": oil. But far more important than dependence on Nigeria as the second-largest oil supplier of the U.S. is its supposed leadership role in black Africa. If Nigeria wants no talk about the Cuban expeditionary force or black African repression, that is not viewed by Young, Moose & Co. as too large a price for friendship.

That actually supports the traditionalist view that foreign policy cannot be based strictly on human rights performance. But why a double standard for leftish black Africa and rightish Latin America? Since it is hard to argue enlightened self-interest, the suspicion arises that ideological preferences at certain levels of the State Department now shape foreign policy, just as they did the speech at Lagos.

"Some folks have faults they don't even know about — they're not married."

Mark Russell says

What to do if you are audited:

1—Don't panic. The examiner wants to be helpful. Usually they'll try to locate a prison near your family.

2—Bring all your receipts with you. If you don't have them all, borrow some from a neighbor.

3—Answer questions truthfully. Before going to the audit, practice your answers in front of a mirror without giggling.

4—Wearing apparel is important. Fashion magazines now have helpful features such as "Looking Snappy at the Audit," or "What the Well-Dressed Evader Will be Wearing this Season."

5—Remember the professional who prepared your crooked return will go to the audit with you. Not as a legal representative, but to supply the Kleenex.

6—You really have two choices—either pay the money you owe or enjoy your new life as a Norwegian citizen.

Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran up another sharp gain today in a powerful wave of buying that far surpassed last Friday's record pace of activity.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 18.11 to 813.24 by noontime today, after taking a 19.75-point jump Friday.

Gainers outdistanced losers by close to a 5-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Volume on the Big Board reached 29.26 million shares in the first two hours—a total that would be considered heavy for a full day under normal circumstances. The record for a full day, set on Friday, is 52.28 million.

As it shot upward at the opening the Dow broke cleanly through the 800 level, erasing all of its losses since early January.

Analysts said the rally that began last week was feeding on itself, attracting additional buyers anxious not to miss out on any further market gains.

The upsurge since late last week has been attributed in large measure to a rush of buying by investing institutions who had built up large reserves of cash.

But foreign investors also were said to be playing a significant role—especially today, with the dollar adding to its recnt gains against leading foreign currencies.

The rally continued to extend into almost every sector of the market except for the gold stocks, which showed some losses as bullion prices fell in Europe.

Students to compete

More than 2,500 students from West Texas schools will be participating in the Region VI University Interscholastic League contest for class 3A and 4A bands and orchestras Tuesday and Wednesday at Lee High School.

Competition for class 3A and 4A second bands and class 4A orchestras is scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. the first day of the contest. Class 3A and 4A first bands will be judged the second day, beginning at 8 a.m.

Each group will be judged in concert and sight-reading, receiving a division rating from I to V.

Bands from class 3A schools include Ector High School of Odessa, Fort Stockton High School, Monahans High School, Pecos High School, Andrews High School, Lake View High School of San Angelo, Edison Freshman School and Austin Freshman School.

Class 4A bands from Lee High, Midland High School, Permian High School of Odessa, Odessa High School, Big Spring High School and Central High School of San Angelo will compete in the event with orchestras from Permian High, Odessa High and Central High.

Sight-reading judges are Gary Laramore of Stratford, Orland Butler of Lubbock and Pat Henry of Carlsbad, N.M., while concert judges are Tony Anderson of Mesquite and Ben Gollehon of Grapevine. Lee High band director Van Ragsdale is serving as contest chairman.

YMCA opening new classes

The Central YMCA of Midland has announced that registration for spring classes is now under way.

Julie McCurdy will instruct classes in ballet, tap and jazz. Belly dancing, instructed by Karen Sharma, and aerobics, directed by Lana Booth, will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Women's slimnastics are on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 9:30 a.m. until 10:30 in the gym. Evening classes are in the Dora Roberts room Mondays and Wednesdays, from 7:30 p.m. until 8:30.

Pre-natal classes designed for mothers-to-be run for three months every Monday and Wednesday, from 10 a.m. until 11.

Slim-Living, a new evening class, is held each Tuesday from 7 p.m. until 8 p.m. This ten-week course gives information on nutrition, diets, recipes, behavior modification and exercise.

More information may be obtained by calling Anna Garcia at 682-2551.

Changes in status for area military personnel reported

Airman George A. Betterton, son of Arthur J. Betterton of Stanton and Eleanor E. Betterton of Midland, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland AFB, San Antonio.

Betterton is remaining at Lackland for specialized training in security police work. He is a graduate of Stanton High School.

Marine Pvt. Ford W. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Rose of Midland, recently completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at San Diego, Calif.

During the nine-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival and was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during enlistment. He also studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

S-Sgt. Danny R. Moore, a 1965 graduate of Coahoma High School and a former student at Howard College, Big Spring, has graduated from the Air Force Security Service's Non-commissioned Officer Leadership School at Goodfellow AFB. He was trained in military management and supervision.

Moore, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Moore of Big Spring, is a Morse systems operator at San Vito Dei Normanni Air Station in Italy.

The U. S. Air Force Commendation Medal has been presented to Capt. David B. Dringman, for meritorious service at Webb Air Force Base.

Dringman now serves at Bergstrom AFB with a unit of the Tactical Air Command. He is a 1968 graduate of East High School in Gulfport, Miss., and received a B.S. degree in 1973 from Angelo State University. His wife, Jeanie, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Wade of Crane.

Marine S-Sgt. Freddie R. Pugh, whose wife Marilyn is the daughter of Eldon March of Midland, has reported for duty with Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, in Norfolk, Va. He has been a Marine since October 1968.

Dan A. Lewis, son of James H. Lewis of Big Spring, recently was promoted to Army sergeant while serving as a field wire technician with the 3rd Support Command in Hanau, Germany.

Navy Aviation Electronics Technician third class Bobby F. Williams, whose wife, Lisa, is the daughter of Charles E. Goss of Midland, has completed the advanced first term avionics (aviation electronics) course at the Naval Air Technical Training Center in Millington, Tenn.

During the 26-week course, Williams and other trainees studied airborne communications, fire control systems and antisubmarine warfare systems. In addition, they studied mathematics, physics, electronic theory and the operating principles of digital and analog computers.

Air Force Sgt. Billy R. Millwee recently reported for duty at Lackland AFB.

Millwee, son of Sgt. and Mrs. W. J. Millwee of Big Spring, is an aeromedical specialist with a unit of the Air Force Systems Command and previously served at Reese AFB, near Lubbock. He is a graduate of Big Spring High School. His wife, Beverly, is the daughter of Mrs. Belvedere Anderson of Big Spring.

National Guard Pvt. Jose R. Munoz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maraino Munoz of Big Spring, has completed training as a cannoneer in a special program at Fort Sill, Okla.

The special 13-week training program combined basic combat training with advanced individual instruction.

Marine Pfc. Mark V. Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Evans of Crane, has completed the Marines' sea duty indoctrination course.

The four-week course was conducted at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at San Diego. The course is designed to prepare junior enlisted Marines for duty with Marine detachments aboard U.S. Navy vessels.

Air Force Sgt. Ruben Alvarez of Big Spring has graduated at Chanute AFB, Ill., from the U. S. Air Force's technical training course for missile systems analyst specialists.

Alvarez, who is now qualified to inspect and repair missile systems, is being assigned to Whiteman AFB, Mo., for duty with a unit of the Strategic Air Command. The sergeant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roberto A. Alvarez of Big Spring and a 1973 graduate of Big Spring High School.

Marine S⅔Sgt. George J. Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Morris of Crane, has reported for duty at the Marine Corps Base at Camp Lejeune, N. C. He joined the Marines in December 1969.

Sgt. Charles A. Rivers, whose wife, Frances, is residing in Midland, has been assigned as a tank gunner with the Army's First Infantry Division in Boblingen, Germany.

Sgt. Rivers, a graduate of C. A. Johnson High School in Columbia, S. C., entered the Army in April 1976.

Marine Cpl. Clayton S. Cormack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cormack of Midland, recently participated in jungle warfare training in the Panama Canal Zone. Conducted at the U.S. Army's Jungle Warfare Training Center, the three-week course provided units with intensified jungle training, including patrolling, combat and reconnaissance patrols in heavy tropical foliage and "living off the land."

Cormack, who joined the Marine Corps in June 1975, recently reported for duty with the First Battalion, First Marine Regiment, based at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Navy Ensign Kendall L. Card, whose wife, Becky, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Broyles of Lamesa, has graduated from the Navy's Aviation Indoctrination Course. During the four-week course at the Naval Air Station in Pensacola, Fla., he and other trainees studied basic aerodynamics, aviation physiology and engineering, and also were taught land and sea survival techniques and participated in a physical fitness curriculum.

Card is a 1977 graduate of Vanderbilt University in Nashville.

Air Force Capt. Kent Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hamilton of Lamesa, has graduated from the U. S. Air Force medical service officers orientation course at Sheppard AFB, Wichita Falls. The course is designed to acquaint newly-commissioned Medical Corps officers with the professional and administrative procedures of the Air Force.

Capt. Hamilton now goes to Misawa AFB, Japan, where he will will serve as a dental staff officer with a unit of the Pacific Air Forces. A graduate of Lamesa High School, he received a B. S. degree from Texas A & M University in 1974 and his degree in dentistry this year from The University of Texas Dental Branch at Houston.

Marine Sgt. George J. Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Morris of Crane, has reported for duty with Force Troops at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N. C. He joined the Marines in 1969.

Marine Pfc. Victor F. Mosley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mosley of Andrews, has completed the aviation machinist's mate basic jet engine course.

The five-week course was conducted at the Naval Air Technical Training Center at Millington, Tenn. Mosley joined the Marine Corps in September 1977.

Animals of Biblical days preserved in Israeli zoo

EILAT, Israel (AP) — Lupus Arabicus — the Arabian wolf — and the Negev gazelle are living in Israel's new wildlife reserve, an 8,000-acre drivethrough zoo dedicated to preserving the animals of biblical times.

Opened last September after many years of preparation, the Biblical Wildlife Reserve still shows only a few animals compared to the flourishing herds of exotic beasts that can be seen by motorists in the "safari park" type of zoo in the United States.

But the ostrich, the Somali wild ass, the Asiatic wild ass, the scimitar-horned oryx, the corkscrew-horned addax and the ibex, a species of mountain goat, can be seen with the wolf and the timid gazelle. All are mentioned in the Bible or suggested by biblical descriptions.

Isaiah's prophecy — "the wolf and the lamb shall feed together" — hasn't been realized so the two sand-colored wolves run in a large wire-fenced enclosure separate from the other animals.

The ferociousness of the Arabian wolf, noticeably smaller than North American or European wolves, was shown last fall when some "outsider" wolves broke into the fenced reserve and killed 17 prized animals.

The wildlife reserve has several hyenas

Arizona senator joins snail darter in public spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP) — In one of those wonderful coincidences that sums up much of the sound and fury on Capitol Hill, Dennis DeConcini and the snail darter made news the same day last week.

Until a few days ago, the snail darter probably was better known than the freshman Democratic senator from Arizona.

Both are identified with giant water projects. Both have frustrated and angered powerful forces.

And both the obscure senator and the recently discovered minnow may have received more credit than they deserved.

For months, Sens. James Allen, D-Ala.; Robert Griffin, RMich.; Orrin Hatch, R-Utah; Bob Dole, R-Kan.; and their allies have argued and maneuvered with all the parliamentary wiles they could muster to defeat the Panama Canal treaties.

Suddenly, they are forgotten. The villain in the eyes of treaty supporters has become a once obscure senator who voted in favor of the first treaty and seems likely to do the same on the second.

But the Carter administration and the Senate leadership paid a price for DeConcini's support: their willingness to go along with a provision giving the United States the right to use force, if necessary, "to reopen the canal or restore the operations of the canal."

No one knew of the existence of the snail darters when the Tennessee Valley Authority came up with plans in 1936 to build a dam at the mouth of the Little Tennessee River. There was plenty of opposition to the project which became known as Tellico Dam but construction finally began in 1967.

Six years later, an ichthyologist discovered the snail darters, a three-inch fish whose only known habitat was near the site of the dam.

The snail darter was declared an endangered species and a federal appeals court halted contruction of the dam.

Without a base of support among environmentalists and local residents opposed to the dam, the snail darter would have vanished from earth before any knew it existed.

Which brings matters back to DeConcini.

If the administration had not felt desparately in need of his votes in favor of the two treaties, the DeConcini amendment never would have been attached to the neutrality pact.

His amendment really is not much different from the leadership amendments to the neutrality treaty which also give the United States the right to intervene to keep the waterway open.

The difference is that DeConcini was more concerned with what internal problems, such as a strike, could do to the operation of the canal.

Rebels win film awards

Lee High School English students were recent winners in state and national film contests.

Krystal Koch and Shelly Porsch won a second place in the comedy division with their film, "Twice the Spice," at the Texas Film Festival, sponsored by the School of Communications at The University of Texas at Austin. Curt Boothman and Jon Blacklock were given honorable mention for their film, "Flying High With Jon."

Six other students were awarded cash prizes at the Baylor School annual film contest for high school students across the nation in Chattanooga, Tenn.

General into fifth career at 75

EDITOR'S NOTE — He's into his fifth career — and his fifth life. After surviving three cancers and open-heart surgery, the man some call the father of the U.S. space program has found his calling as a priest.

By IKE FLORES

MAITLAND, Fla. (AP) — As a mere stripling of 57, Maj. Gen. John Bruce Medaris ramrodded the team which developed the rocket carrying America's first satellite into space.

At age 75 and in the 20th anniversary year of the nation's space program, Medaris is a bit stockier and sports a sparse, snow-white goatee and moustache. This crusty general turned priest has overcome cancer three times — at least once, he contends, by "divine intervention" — has undergone open-heart surgery and wears a pacemaker.

But this man some call the father of the U.S. space program goes about his duties as an Episcopal priest with the same fervor he had as a Marine, Army general, businessman, civic official and friend and boss of Wernher von Braun.

And he still is as outspoken as he was in the days when he argued with his Army bosses and President Eisenhower's policymakers for authorization giving his Redstone Arsenal command primary responsibility for launching this country's first satellite.

"Von Braun and I went to Washington and made it clear that we weren't going to be anybody's backup support," Father Medaris says, referring to the inter-service rivalry over the development of a powerful rocket needed to play catch-up to the Russian Sputnik. "We threatened to resign."

But they didn't, and eventually they resolved what Medaris calls the key problem in space travel — returning an object from space without destroying it on re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

Medaris, in an interview in his sun-dappled study next to the Church of the Good Shepherd in Maitland, explains his role in what he calls "certainly the most exciting period of my busy life."

"Von Braun and I were the cutting edge of getting into space," Medaris says.

The Air Force doesn't like the fact that he's called the father of the space program, Medaris says, and neither does the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

It was Redstone Arsenal and the von Braun-Medaris team which on Jan. 31, 1958, provided the modified Redstone rocket called Juno which blasted into orbit an 18-pound, basketball-size missile, saving some face for the United States in the space sweepstakes.

The Soviet Union had shocked the world with its Sputnik almost three months earlier.

He retired in 1960 after 37 years in the military.

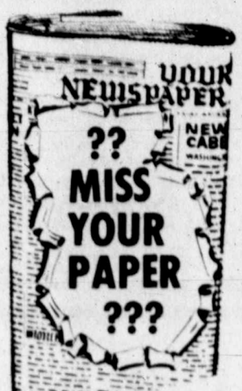

Then came some rough times mixed in with his civilian life as president of Lionel Corp., the electric train company, and later as an industrial consultant with his own firm in Florida.

He had prostate cancer successfully removed during his tenure at Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala. But in 1964, bone cancer was diagnosed. "I was full of it," he says. "In those days, it was inoperable. The verdict was I would be dead by Christmas 1965."

However, Medaris says he was cured by the "laying on of hands" and the spiritual powers of a faith healer who ministered to him through the auspices of the Church of the Good Shepherd. Instead of death, his doctor informed him around Christmas 1965 that after slow remission over many months his cancer had vanished.

Shortly after 10th anniversary ceremonies of the first space flight, he was again stricken with cancer — of the lower part of his mouth. Chemotherapy treatments, along with "my strong faith that God had other plans for me," got him through.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Use ointments with caution

Dear Dr. Solomon: How good are those ointments with antibiotics that you always see on drugstore counters—the kind you buy without a prescription. Would they be any good for scraped knees and such?—Millicent G.

Dear Millicent: The ointments you mention may be useful up to a point—at least, they seem to be effective in keeping germs from getting into a cut or scrape. But it is not clear if they are any good for slowing or stopping the growth of the infection once it has started. That's the conclusion a Food and Drug Administration committee has arrived at.

The panel of experts that looked into the matter said minor skin wounds should, in any case, be gently washed before application of an ointment. And they cautioned that these products should not be applied longer than a week—or for any long-standing skin condition.

Any but the most superficial wound should be seen by a doctor as soon as possible because of the danger of a tetanus infection. The same goes for a superficial abrasion that gets infected and for cases where unusual symptoms like itching, redness or swelling develop.

Dear Dr. Solomon: You hear so much about how bad it is to smoke, and now my husband tells me it is even bad for my two small children when I smoke. Does my smoking honestly have an effect on my children's health?—Frances P.

Dear Frances: Yes, it really does. There have been several studies showing that "second-hand" smoke is harmful to infants and small children. One of the latest is a survey of close to 4,000 children in the Paris area. Operations to remove tonsils and adenoids were almost twice as frequent among the children of smokers as among those of nonsmokers. These operation, the French note, are often necessitated by upper respiratory disease during early childhood. And this finding fits in with other reports of a link between respiratory disease in children and parental smoking.

Other studies relate to what is known as the Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, or SIDS—the unexplained death of an apparently healthy baby. According to one authority in this field, Dr. William J. Rhead of North Carolina Memorial Hospital, they definitely show that maternal cigarette smoking contributes to an infant's risk of dying from SIDS. About 4 out of 10 deaths occurring in the first year of life are due to SIDS, Dr. Rhead says, so you can see this is a real problem.

There is one other reason why it is a wise precaution not to smoke when you have children: if you do not smoke, they will be less likely to as they get older.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Try these Chinese recipes when time not so pressing

By MARIAN BURROS
The Washington Post

Many recipes served in Chinese restaurants are too difficult to make at home. The simpler ones are recommended as part of a family meal.

But when you are looking for something out of the ordinary and have the time to devote to its preparation, two recipes picked up traveling out West are worth any extra effort.

A third lends itself to advance preparation and is simple by any standards. If you do not keep Chinese staples on hand, you will have to make a trip to a Chinese grocery store.

It seems fitting that Aspen, Colo., should boast a first-class Chinese restaurant. As the owner of Arthur's notes in the introduction to her menu: "During the frontier days of Aspen, Chinese laborers were brought to the mountains for the rigorous task of constructing some of the most hazardous roads and railroads in the world. They have long been forgotten. We hope, in bringing this exciting restaurant to Aspen, we can remember and appreciate the hard work the Chinese did to open the mountains for us to live in and enojoy."

The owner, Nikki Mass, is Korean. She and her husband, David, have brought 6 Chinese chefs from Hong Kong and California to cook for Arthur's, which is located in a house built in 1888. Incongruous as the Victorian gingerbread decorations seem with the Chinese food, it has not deterred either the locals or the vacationers from crowding into the restaurant each evening. This desite the fact that Arthur's does not have a liquor license because it is located too close to a school.

One of Arthur's most impressive specialties is Mandarin chicken salad.

MANDARIN CHICKEN SALAD
(4 servings as an appetizer)

2 cups peanut oil
2 ounces rice sticks or rice noodles
2 tablespoons peanut butter softened in 2 tablespoons water
1 1-4 teaspoons sugar
1 1-2 tablespoons white vinegar
1 tablespoon sesame oil
2 tablespoons imported soy sauce
1 tablespoon dry white wine
2 whole green onions, thinly sliced
2 slices red ginger, julienned (see note)
1 boneless breast of chicken, poached in water until cooked, about 10 or 15 minutes. Shredded lettuce. Black sesame seeds (see note) and chopped green onion for garnish. (NOTE: Black sesame seeds and red ginger are available in Chinese grocery stores.)

Heat peanut oil in deep pot. Add small amounts of rice noodles to hot fat and cook only until they puff up, which is a matter of a few seconds. Remove noodles and drain, repeating process until all noodles are cooked. Drain thoroughly on paper towels. To drain properly, noodles should be cooked in a frying basket.

Leave noodles at room temperature. Combine the peanut butter mixture, sugar, vinegar, sesame oil, soy sauce and wine and mix to smooth paste. Add the green onions and ginger and mix well. Shred the chicken and add to the sauce. Set aside.

When ready to serve, cover four small plates with shredded lettuce. Mix the chicken and sauce quickly but gently with rice noodles and spoon on shredded lettuce. Sprinkle with a few black sesame seeds and a little green onion. Serve immediately. Do not mix sauce and noodles until just before serving, but noodles can be fried ahead, the sauce prepared ahead.

The Mandarin, one of the most elegant Chinese restaurants in the United States, fits very comfortably into the collection of expensive shops along Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills, Calif. Home cooks will find the central ingredient of The Mandarins minced squab recipe hard to come by and expensive to boot. But chicken is an excellent and acceptable substitute, according to several reliable Chinese cookbooks.

MINCED "SQUAB" WITH LETTUCE
(4 servings as main course)

8 large crisp iceberg lettuce leaves.
2 chicken breasts, boned and skinned.
4 ounces lean pork, diced. Salt to taste.
1 egg white.
2 tablespoons cornstarch.
2 tablespoons peanut oil.
1 tablespoon fresh ginger, finely chopped.
1 green onion, finely chopped.
1 tablespoon dry sherry.
2 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon dark soy sauce.
1 1-4 teaspoons sugar.
4 dried black mushrooms, soaked in boiling water 20 minutes, stems removed, diced.
1 ounce well-seasoned country ham, diced.
10 water chestnuts, diced.
1 tablespoon bamboo shoots, diced.

Wash lettuce, drain well and dry. Refrigerate, wrapped in cloth. Dice chicken meat and combine with pork. Mix together salt, egg white and cornstarch and then mix with meats. Place oil in heated wok or large skillet. Stir-fry the ginger and green onion for 30 seconds. Add chicken and pork mixture. Stir-fry on high heat 1 minute. Add sherry, soy sauce and sugar. Cook 1 minute. Add mushrooms, ham, water chestnuts and bamboo shoots. Stir-fry on high heat 1 minute. Place mixture in middle of platter and surround with leaves. Fill leaves with mixture, roll up like cabbage roll and eat with fingers.

Rats with diabetes?

TORONTO (AP) — A biochemist says diabetic rats bred in Canada may help scientists discover the cause of diabetes.

Dr. Azima Nakhooda of the University of Toronto says Canadian scientists are working with researchers in Massachusetts and Maryland on the project. He says some rats being bred at a laboratory in Ottawa develop a type of diabetes similar to the human disease.

Illiterates learning

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Since the Communist takeover three years ago, more than 94 percent of more than 3 million known illiterates in southern Vietnam have been taught to read and write, the official Vietnam New Agency reported.

DEAR ABBY

Husband needs sense talked into head

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Recently you said in your column that you don't recommend withholding sex from a mate, so of course, my husband waved the paper in my face.

Abby, we have six children. We would have had 10, but two were stillborn, and I had two miscarriages. Each pregnancy was very hard on me, yet my husband refuses to use any kind of birth control, and he won't let me use anything. But that doesn't stop him from wanting sex.

After my last pregnancy, I wanted so much to have my tubes tied, but my husband wouldn't let me "do that" to myself.

I'm only 31 and he's 33. Can you imagine how many more kids I could have? I'm so worn out with these six kids, and I honestly don't want any more, so I finally told my husband that from now on he can just stay away from me. Now he's mean and surly, but I don't care. What else can I do?—TIRED

DEAR TIRED: Ask your doctor or clergyman to try to talk some sense into your husband's head. In view of your medical history, some kind of birth control (or sterilization for you—or him) should be considered. You are both too young to deny yourselves sex until menopause makes reproduction impossible.

DEAR ABBY: Re the woman whose husband gave her the silent treatment: Here's what I did when my husband pulled that on me.

I stood it for one week, then I decided that if he wouldn't talk to me, I would get on the phone and talk to someone who would. I didn't bother with local calls; instead, I telephoned friends and relatives in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Indiana. And I didn't watch the clock either; some of my conversations lasted an hour. I caught up with all the news and had a ball. I never once hinted that my husband wasn't speaking to me.

Needless to say, as soon as my husband got the telephone bill, the silence was broken. No way could he refuse to pay it or have the phone disconnected, because the telephone was in the name of his company.

I told him why I had made all those calls, and that was the last time he gave me the silent treatment.—FOUND A CURE IN ALBANY, ORE.

DEAR FOUND: I wouldn't recommend that "cure" for everyone. More than silence could be broken in some homes.

DEAR ABBY: A guy at school likes me, but I don't like him. There's nothing wrong with him—he's just not my type. He calls me for dates months ahead, knowing I couldn't possibly have a date for that night. What should I tell him?

If I say I'm busy on Friday night, he asks me for the next Friday night, and the next, and the next, and so on.

I hate to hurt his feelings, but I hate going out with him even more. Please help me.—SOFTHEARTED

DEAR SOFT: Do him a favor and tell him that you like him as a friend, so if he's looking for a "girlfriend," you don't qualify. It,s not as unkind as it sounds. At least you're turning him loose to ask someone who might be more his type.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell Lance R. in Belvedere, S.C., whose father bet him that there were no professional basketball players under 6 feet tall that his father owes him $20.

According to the National Basketball Association, there are five active professionals under 6 feet tall. They are: Charles Criss (Atlanta Hawks), Foots Walker (Cleveland Cavaliers), Calvin Murphy (Houston Rockets), Robert Smith (Denver Nuggets) and Kevin Porter (New Jersey Nets).—JIM FOLEY (HOUSTON ROCKETS)

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Tues. April 18)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Get into the detail of plans you have decided to put in motion. Gain the goodwill of associates by showing that you are exact, particular and meticulous.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You accomplish a great deal using treatments you need during spare time. Show you are an active, happy person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take time out for necessary grooming and improve appearance. Then handle business affairs and get good results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have many domestic chores to do so take care of them early. Consider new appliances to make home more functional, charming.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study data you need in order to carry through with work you have committed yourself to. Get the cooperation of a good friend for a plan you have in mind. Be successful with it.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy making collections and paying bills and forget those big plans for the time being. Study property and make necessary repairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan time to get current interests improved so that you feel happy with them. Be with trusted friends and have a good time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have some personal chores to handle that will give you free time later for pursuing greater happiness. Be with loved ones more.

SCROPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to a better understanding with a good friend so that the relationship continues for a long time to come. Have a good time with special friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Tackle small tasks that seem trivial but together are most important. Contact a bigwig and gain the favor you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make proper arrangements, correspond with those you want to see before you make that trip. Study a new plan you have in mind also.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy with your own affairs and forget problems of others. Try to be more cooperative with loved one later.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meeting with associates and exchanging views can bring fine results now. An irksome civic matter can bring good results. Handle it with intelligence.

You can do it!
Weatherstripping and caulking around doors and windows stop energy leaks.

In time, even tiny air cracks can add up to large heating and cooling losses. But sealing those energy-robbing cracks isn't all that hard. You can do it yourself with Texas Electric's free booklets on caulking and weatherstripping. They're part of a series we're offering to energy-conscious homeowners who want to make their homes energy efficient. Using basic tools and readily available materials, even unhandy people can caulk and weatherstrip their own homes to keep energy costs down.

Other booklets in the series cover insulation, storm windows, ductwork, and general maintenance. Just call us, or ask for the booklets on the comments section of your electric bill. See how easy it is to make your home energy efficient.

Dateline junket gives us today's

By Hugh A. Mulligan
AP Special Correspondent

RAROTONGA, COOK ISLANDS (AP) — Always wanted to cross the International Dateline on my birthday so I could skip the day and wipe out a year.

Now I've done it, on my birthday, but apparently in the wrong direction.

The captain just came on the horn, interrupting the in-flight movie, to inform us that 570 miles due east of Fiji, we had just passed over the Dateline and will be having Thursday all over again.

Which means I will be having two birthdays this year, instead of none, as would have been the case if the passage had happened in the westbound leg.

Mulligan's Stew

Not only that but tonight we'll be eating yesterday's dinner — not that you could tell the difference on many airlines these days. The steak I had for lunch should have had a "Cabin Baggage" tag on it, and if the potatoes had a date on them it would have been some time last month they left the cooking pot for the big freeze locker in the sky.

Or Maybe they had been over the International Dateline too often.

Anyhow, as you can see, I never really have understood the International Dateline, but I've always turned in expense for it, in either direction, leaving it up to the treasurer's office to figure out how I could eat meals on a day in which there was no night to spend in a hotel.

Apparently the auditors don't understand it either, because I never have been called on it, in all my trips out to Vietnam, the way I once was called on the carpet for putting in for a gallon of suntan lotion when sent to cover, so to speak, the International Nudists Convention on the Riviera a few years back.

I had to explain to the chaps up there on the seventh floor that there was a lot of area to be covered, epidermis-wise since we were only allowed to wear our press credentials during the four-day flesh fest and a gallon didn't go very far under that hot Mediterranean sun.

Getting back to the International Dateline, the stewardess, who apparently is versed in such things even if the secrets of a dry martini have eluded her, tells me it is an imaginary line running down the middle of the Pacific Ocean along the 180th meridian.

The line, however, doesn't exactly stay in line all the way around the globe. It jogs a couple hundred miles to the right (eastwards) in Fiji so as not to split the islands in that group in half so that people aren't receiving tomorrow's mail yesterday or speaking on the phone Wednesday to someone on another island who is listening on Tuesday.

NOWELL, A PET RABBIT owned by Jim Garner of Greensboro, N.C., checks out a device invented by Garner called "Phone Your Pets." The device enables dogs, cats and other pets to answer the telephone — and to hang it up, too. Garner, who is director of admissions at Greensboro College, says he will apply for a patent on his invention. (AP Laserphoto)

As Sun Day approaches, backers explain hopes

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

First there was Earth Day. Then came Food Day. Now, there's Sun Day.

And it falls on a Wednesday.

It's less confusing than it sounds.

A diverse coalition of activists — some of whom worked on the environmental and nutritional "days" of the past — is sponsoring programs across the nation on May 3 to call attention to and draw backing for solar energy. Supporters include consumer groups, union officials and businessmen.

"It's hoped Sun Day will both create a political constituency and a network of people who are interested in solar energy and will educate the general potential market," said Allison Freeman, media coordinator for Sun Day.

The official sponsor of the event is Solar Action Inc., a nonprofit, tax-exempt public interest institution set up in Washington, D.C. Ms. Freeman said the group is spending about $150,000 on the project, with most of the money coming from individual contributors.

Supporters of solar power got some encouragement recently from a report by the Council on Environmental Quality which said prospects for increasing use of systems based on the sun's energy "are brighter than most imagine." The council said: "For the period beyond the turm of the century,it is now possible to speak realistically of the United States becoming a solar society."

Unlike the now-discontinued Earth and Food Days, which were annual events, Sun Day is planned as a one-time occurrence only, Ms. Freeman said. She said organizers hope the activities will encourage federal officials and agencies to boost support for research and development of solar alternatives to traditional energy sources.

Kathleen O'Reilly, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America and a member of the board of directors of the Sun Day group, said the program "presents an opportunity for dynamic consumer education in an area where technological advancements have outpaced consumer awareness."

Philadelphia Sun Day backers plan a week-long program to highlight different aspects of solar energy. On Sun-Agriculture Day, for example, the focus will be on a large farmers' market; Sun-Economics Day will feature a forum on jobs; and Sun-Transportation Day will include a bicycle tour of renewable energy sites.

Among the programs planned elsewhere, according to organizers, are: a sunrise celebration on Cadillac Mountain in Maine where the sun's rays first hit the United States each day; dedication of a greenhouse to serve as a vegetable garden for inner-city residents of Chicago; and the opening of a permanent solar exhibit at the Los Angeles Museum of Science and Technology.

Sun Day organizers have prepared a special kit for use in schools. It is available, for $2.95, from Sun Day, 1028 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Room 1100, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Explosive French professor sees similarity in stage, classroom

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — The air in Professor John Rassias' classroom is filled with more than French adjectives and Greek adverbs. Very often there are flying desks or eggs or raw meat.

Or blood. Or cannon fire and flashing lights and the eerie whistle of falling bombs. His students are likely to be embraced and kissed one moment and chased about the room and physically assaulted the next. Or have a leprous emperor sprawl in their laps and die.

All of this has confounded more than one building custodian, ruffled a few faculty feathers and turned language instruction at Dartmouth College on its ear. While foreign language departments at many universities have been slowly suffocating for lack of interest, the number of foreign language majors here has tripled in the past decade.

And word of this 51-year-old professor with curly black hair and coal eyes and a plump nose and strange ways of teaching language and literature has spread far beyond the pastoral hills of Hanover.

"If I'm animated as a teacher then my students will be animated," he says in a resonant bass voice. "If I get up there and sleep then they will sleep."

All eyes were wide one recent morning as the classroom door opened and a hunched figure, robed in black, bearing a wooden cross, mumbling in French, entered and shuffled, his back to the class, to stage center.

The 20 students of French had come in a near-blizzard to see this and they looked on intently, with the half-belief of tots watching a department store Santa. With a sudden wail he whirled around, displaying a sweaty face contorted in agony and splotched with white.

"Ah, mes freres," he cried. "J'ai decouvert la verite!" My brothers, I have discovered the truth!

John Rassias is writing his autobiography and a French grammar book, collaborating on Greek and Spanish grammars, designing a video tape language lab, demonstrating his teaching methods across the country, and setting up language instruction programs for the Peace Corps in Togo and Zaire.

But for now all his energy is poured into this portrayal of the Chinese emperor who, in Paul Claudel's play "Le Repos du Septieme Jour," has just journeyed to hell and back. Symbolic of man's sin and suffering, his face is ravaged by leprosy. Hence the dabs of cold cream. But his lips are whole — from them comes the truth.

The emperor — one of many characters Rassias becomes in one-man shows that last up to two hours and take days to script — is to him the ultimate image of the teacher.

Teaching should be like the fire of hell, burning away inhibition that blocks communication and prejudice that prevents sensitivity, Rassias says.

So he yells and cries and gesticulates and rips his clothes and laughs and kisses and collapses on the floor to wear down inhibition. For sensitivity's sake he tears down gaily colored travel posters (a language classroom tradition) and hangs pictures of starving children — these are the people whose language we should learn, he says.

He wanted one class to understand the fear and horror of war as expressed in a play they were studying, so he turned off the lights, turned on some simulated air raid spots and the sounds of bombs and machine gun fire, then lunged at one student.

"He flew over three rows of desks, but I got his brother. I pounded him on the shoulders, bruised him up a bit."

Rassias dons a long blond wig, white blouse and blue pantaloons — snitched with the black robe from the drama department — and becomes Denis Diderot, the 18th century French philosopher exhibiting the range of human emotions, laughing, crying, cowering, fainting. And raging. Rassias grabs a chair, and with a moment's hesitation to check the range, hurls it 20 feet against the wall where it smashes to the floor.

"That's what sensitivity is all about," he says later as he studies a note from the custodian imploring him not to break eggs on the furniture. He's lost count of how many chairs he's busted. They cost about $80 each.

He draws parallels between teaching and acting.

"The mission of both is to reach the audience. If you don't make that relationship, the lesson is just mental acrobatics. The actor and the teacher both give themselves totally to the audience and then to the subject matter."

Not surprisingly, Rassias once toyed with the idea of becoming an actor and studied drama in Paris for a year, but the urge to teach languages was stronger.

The costumes and theatrics are used in his advanced literature courses such as Greek mythology as seen in French literature.

But he also has his own method for teaching vocabulary and conversation in lower level courses, and it is no less flamboyant. It grew out of his experiments with a crash language program for Peace Corps volunteers in the early '60s. The Exxon Education Foundation has provided money to publicize the method, and several other universities are now trying it.

First-term students undergo an hour a day of rapid-fire drilling by a master teacher, then another hour of more drilling by an apprentice, then an hour of lab work. This lasts 10 weeks. At the end, students write and perform a play in the language.

For the second 10-week term, the student can choose to study abroad, living with a family and studying language five hours a day. At the end, each student is sent alone to a French village, without money, and told to return in three days with a report on the town and its people.

Dartmouth says its students achieve oral fluency after only 20 to 30 weeks of instruction. At many other schools, Dartmouth says, only one in 10 graduating language majors have even minimal fluency.

Across the country, enrollment in French courses declined 35 percent from 1968 to 1975, the Modern Language Association says. At the same time, enrollment in advanced courses at Dartmouth doubled.

And competition among advanced undergraduates for the 50 or so apprentice teaching positions is fierce. To qualify a candidate must show not only a proficiency in the language but also a flair for the dramatic and the same energy exerted by Rassias.

"People come into teaching seeking a mild life," he says. "I think it ought to be violent."

East took the ace of diamonds and returned a diamond to the king. South led an innocent five of clubs. West played low, and declarer climbed right up with dummy's king.

Now South could afford to lose a spade and a heart, scoring game and rubber.

"What's the matter?" East asked sympathetically. "Too tired to take your ace of clubs when you had the chance?"

WRONG CULPRIT

East should have bitten his tongue before complaining. East could see that he was going to win a diamond, a spade and a heart. The contract would be beaten automatically if West had a spade or heart trick. It would be beaten if West had the ace of clubs, but only if West took the ace.

East should make sure of the ace of clubs by returning a low club at the second trick. This forces West to take the ace.

When East failed to return a club, West couldn't tell that one club trick would defeat the contract. West had to lay a low club in the hope that South would lose two club tricks by misguessing the play from dummy with two low clubs in his hand.

Camaraderie aided those dangling in tram

By JUDITH MICHAELSON
The Los Angeles Times

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. — Inside the red tramway car, dangling 100 feet over Squaw Valley, someone started singing religious songs. And soon other trapped passengers joined in.

Moments after the tram jumped its cable in the searing wind Saturday, killing four passengers and injuring 30, a woman took off an injured stranger's shoes and rubbed his feet with her hands to prevent his toes from becoming frostbite.

Injured and uninjured alike whispered the Lord's Prayer together. Those who were unhurt called out words of encouragement to those who were. Against the numbing cold they also urged, "Keep moving, keep moving...."

The accident occurred Saturday in this ski resort when a cable snapped at an elevation of about 8,000 feet, sliced through the car's roof and pinned passengers to the side and floor. The car slid on the remaining cables and then came to rest about 100 feet in the air.

A second car was left dangling about 500 feet in the air. There were no injuries in the second car.

About 150 ski patrol and rescue personnel worked nine hours, ending at 1 a.m. Sunday, to rescue victims from the cars by means of ropes. Rescue workers climbed along the remaining cables to reach the swinging cars.

Hours earlier when some were still trapped in the car hit by the breaking cable and the ski patrol was on the scene, a teenage boy got a blanket for an injured young mother and massaged her back muscles and her arms to keep the circulation going.

From her hospital bed in Reno, Nev., Sunday, Carol Mulrooney, 31, of Modesto, Calif., remembered the camaraderie — and that the young man with the blanket was named Mike. She had gone skiing with her husband Patrick, a radiologist, and their two daughters, 7 and 5.

"We had just gotten on the tram going down the hill. It was very windy, very blizzardy, it was snowing, and the next thing we knew the cable had snapped and we were hurtling down the hill.

"Finally, what seemed like an eternity, we came to a stop, and the windows were blowing out, and the roof to one side was caving in, and we were pinned, quite a few of us, I don't know how many together.

"There were people on top of me and on the side and underneath, plus skis and boots. Legs all over each other. The two men next to me were dead. I could see very little, but it looked to me like they were crushed. The majority of the mass of metal and cable was on top of their heads and necks."

As a nurse, Mrs. Mulrooney knew she had to keep moving as best she could so she hit her arms and rubbed her legs. "With no blood in the extremeties for a period of time, you could easily lose them."

Her daughters on the other side of the tram were "all right but very frightened and very cold. They knew my husband and I were hurt.

"We were both conscious and facing each other, his legs were entwined in mine. We were giving each other encouragement and saying 'hang in there.' We said that we loved each other, and the kids were okay, and we had that to be thankful for."

The ski patrol, Mrs. Mulrooney recalled, came about 45 minutes after the accident. "We were in a very high cliff area, in a very bad position, and they just couldn't drive up in a truck. They did a super job."

Because her injuries were less serious than some others, she was the last of the injured out of the car. Mulrooney suffered nerve damage in his right arm. Mrs. Mulrooney sustained a bruised and swollen right arm, and a chipped hip bone. Both were listed in fair condition at the Washoe Center in Reno.

Also in fair condition there were Gregory Anderson, 26, of San Jose, Calif., Larry Crawford, 42 of San Francisco, and Vivian Shon, 39 of Tiburon, Calif. All the other injured at Washoe and at Tahoe Forest Hospital in Truckee had been released by Sunday night.

Anderson, an electrician, thought he was going to die. "I thought that was it, that the thing was going straight to the ground. When it stopped I was surprised I wasn't dead."

Anderson said little. One of the dead was a close friend of his. He didn't even want to say his friend's name. "I don't think his wife would want me to...."

"I was more in shock then anything else. It was something you just don't believe will happen. So many of us trapped and the car hanging from the safety wire." Anderson's leg was broken, and his hands were swollen from the cold. It was his second time skiing, and he was not sure he'll ever go again.

Larry Crawford, a limousine driver, was at Squaw Valley not to ski, but as part of his job. He drove some people up from San Francisco. So when the accident happened he was wearing street clothes. "It was the coldest I've ever been — and probably the scardest.

"It happened so fast. At first we were swinging and everybody started laughing, and then all of a sudden the glass and the top of the ski rail all caved in on us. I was almost thrown out of the car."

In fact, Crawford recollected he hung partially outside the car with the tram operator for what seemed to him like 10 or 15 minutes.

"I think I got my hand cut from holding on. A lady helped both of us get back in and then another lady pulled my shoes off to massage my feet.

"When we were outside, the driver (the tram operator) looked up and said we were only hanging by one cable. There were six cables. And he said not to tell anyone because they might panic."

Crawford kept the information to himself. He's convinced, from the sound of the wind, that it caused the cable to snap.

Vivian Shon, on a floor above Crawford at Washoe, said she didn't like the sound of the wind all afternoon. So she urged her husband to get their three sons off the slopes but they stayed and she took the red tram down alone.

"It was a horrible experience," said Mrs. Shon. "I was pinned for 5 ½ hours. I'm so grateful to be alive.

"The wind was so hard, and the gusts really hit the tram....I stayed conscious. I felt many times I was going but I grabbed some snow, put it in my mouth and rubbed it into my face. For the sake of my boys I tried so hard to stay alive."

Egypt content to wait for Mideast settlement

By THOMAS W. LIPPMAN
The Washington Post

CAIRO — President Anwar Sadat and his top foreign-policy officers, in speeches, policy statements and private talks over the past few days, have shown that Egypt's current approach to Middle East peace negotiations can be summed up in one word: wait.

They again ruled out war or the threat of war as a way of breaking the impasse with Israel. Some officials have gone so far as to say that Egypt would not even take part in an Arab-Israeli war if one started on another front, such as in south Lebanon or Syria.

At the same time the Egyptians have made clear that they are not going to offer their own detailed peace plan for the region, as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has suggested they do in reply to his own proposals.

The Egyptians have said that they cannot negotiate specific territorial or political issues for any country or people other than their own. What they want, as they have been saying for months, is an agreement in principle from the Israelis on withdrawal from Arab territory and the rights of the Palestinians, with the details to be negotiated by those concerned.

That statement of principles has eluded negotiators, but the Egyptians are showing surprisingly little impatience. They feel that it is the Israelis, and specifically Begin, who are under domestic and international pressure to change their stance, so the Egyptians are content to wait a while longer for Israel to make a move.

Egypt has not responded specifically to indications that Begin may be retreating from his position that United Nations Security Council Resolution 242 does not apply to the occupied West Bank of the Jordan.

Observers here say it is likely that this as a confirmation that there is pressure for concessions inside the Israeli government, but not as sufficient basis for resuming direct negotiations.

Foreign Minister Mohammed Kamel and Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Boutros Boutros-Ghali both said last week that there has been no progress on the substantive issues dividing Egypt and Israel since the unsuccessful visit here of Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman in late March.

Jews recall horror of Holocaust at small town's worship rally

By MYRA MACPHERSON
The Washington Post

SKOKIE, Ill. — Abe Fraiman and Mark Weinberg shivered in the brilliant but chilling 39-degree sunlight as they haltingly sang the unfamiliar words of a Christian psalm. Then Jeannie Gump, a Catholic mother of 12, listened while the Jews around her sang in Hebrew as the Cantor's voice wafted over the high-school football field in this middle American village-suburb of Chicago.

They and 2,700 other Christians and Jews huddled together, all wearing yellow Star-of-David armbands — the sign of persecution that the Nazis forced Jews to wear in World War II — Sunday at the first of one hundred solidarity worship rallies that will be held across the country. These services are dedicated to the memory of the Holocaust, when 6 million Jews were exterminated by the Nazis in World War II. The rallies all began in Skokie by concerned citizens as a response to a threatened march here by a Chicago Nazi group that planned to wear swastikas and storm trooper uniforms.

For Fraiman and Weinberg, just the mention of the Nazi party brings angry tears. They pull up the sleeves of their jackets, unbutton their shirt cuffs, roll up the sleeves and point to the numbers tatooed on their arms — indelible reminders of their years at Auschwitz, the worst death camp of all, where 1 million to 2 million Jews were exterminated.

Sunday night, after the rally, Fraiman and Weinberg — like most of the estimated 7,000 concentration-camp survivors who have clustered together to live in Skokie — watched the first of the four-part series, "Holocaust."

"It is painful — but it has to be watched," said Fraiman. "This is to remind the Americans. The new generation doesn't know anything about it. When we survivors are gone our children shouldn't be living in fear that this can happen again."

From a distance, huddled with blankets in the stadium, the crowd could have been enjoying the innocent pleasure of a football rally. But then the words came and the tears coursed down many cheeks as they heard a rabbi quote from the concentration camp memories, "A Selection From Night," by Elie Wiesel. "The three necks were placed at the same moment within nooses. 'Long live liberty,' cried the two adults...but the child was silent. Three chairs toppled over. Total silence throughout the camp...the two adults were no longer alive, but the third rope was still moving. The body was so light, the child was still alive. For nearly half an hour he struggled between life and death."

Fraiman, now 57, said, "I was 29 when they took me to Auschwitz. I lost two children. They took away from me a daughter 8 years and a son 11 years old. They make the sign with the thumb — this group goes left, this group goes right. My son and daughter went to one side. I never saw them again. It is too hard to talk,": he said, and could not finish.

Solar water heaters old hat to Israelis

By DEBORAH WOOD
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Solar water heaters were introduced in Israel 30 years ago, and now one in every five families there uses power from the sun to heat its water.

Dr. Harry Tabor, director of Scientific Research Foundation in Jerusalem, says the 3 million Israelis are probably the largest per capita users of solar energy in the world, for two reasons.

"We have a mild climate, and plenty of sunshine," he explained Thursday. "And foreign petroleum products are expensive."

Tabor said a solar water heater, which can produce 100 percent of a family's needs, pays for itself in three years in Israel.

But solar power research is continuing on a fairly large scale, Tabor said, because "a small country with a fairly sophisticated population must develop a high technological industry in order to survive."

Tabor began his solar research programs in the 1950s, when fuel was still cheap and seemed unlimited in supply.

In the mid-60s, solar energy research had almost reached a level of diminishing returns. No one seemed very interested in funding solar research, so Tabor set about to improve the concept of the electric vehicle. He has developed a laboratory prototype that could increase the efficiency and practicality of present electric cars by four times within three years.

By the mid-70s, solar energy research was booming again, and Tabor re-entered the field.

Israel has not joined the nuclear power plant race, "because it's a harder club to get into than solar." But Tabor says he thinks the country ought to have one nuclear power plant. "They can't accuse you of proliferation with one plant." He said Israel needs an alternative until it has another feasible breakthrough that can relieve it of dependence on foreign oil.

Tabor says solar energy is most feasible for water heaters now but many heavy energy users who could benefit from it aren't utilizing it at all.

"In the food industry, for example, a large amount of energy is expended in washing bottles, cooking and heating food. Solar water heaters are more than adequate to serve that industry."

Other programs, still in the experimental stage, are being researched at Tabor's foundation.

Large ponds that store sunheated water in salt are being studied for large-scale water heating systems, and solar desalination of water is being researched.

Terry gets two wildcats

A pair of rank wildcat operations have been staked in Terry County.

Houston Oil & Minerals Corp. of Houston No. 1 Neiman and others will be drilled three miles southeast of Meadow to 12,500 feet.

The project is 1,320 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 19, block 4-X, EL&RR survey.

MOBIL TEST

Mobil Oil Corp. No. 1 Lewis Havran and others will be drilled as a 5,600-foot wildcat six miles northwest of Brownfield in Terry County.

The explorer is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 81, block 4-X, EL&RR survey.

Morrow wells final; hole to be re-entered

A pair of 1¼-mile outposts to Morrow production in Eddy County, N. M., have been completed.

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-GL Eddy State Communitized, 1¼ miles northwest of the Angel Ranch (Morrow) field finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1.02 million cubic feet of gas per day.

Completion was through perforations from 11,024 to 11,041 feet. The pool extender flowed an unreported amount of distillate during the four-point tests.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 25-19s-27e, 14 miles north of Carlsbad.

Total depth is 11,150 feet and 5½-inch casing is set on bottom.

AMINOIL WELL

Aminoil USA, Inc., No. 3 Willow Lake Unit, 1¼ miles southwest of the Malaga (Morrow) field, finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 9.808 million cubic feet of gas per day.

The flow was through perforations opposite the Morrow from 12,274 to 12,487 feet.

Total depth is 12,807 feet and 4½-inch casing is cemented on bottom.

Wellsite is 1,940 feet from south and west lines of section 15-24s-28e and one mile northeast of Malaga.

WILDCAT TEST

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., will re-enter No. 1-131 Iowa Realty Trust in Pecos County and plug back to 1,600 feet for tests as a wildcat.

The project, a well in the Marlaw (Clear Fork) field, is 1,667 feet from southeast and 1,667 feet from southwest lines of section 131, block 10, H&GN survey and 14 miles west of Girvin.

REPLACEMENT

Herndon Drilling Co. No. 1-A Jack Allison and others will be drilled as a replacement for the operator's No. 1 Jack Allison and others which was junked and abandoned at 2,700 feet.

The Pecos County wildcat is 28 miles south of Fort Stockton and 1,598 feet from north and 2,173 feet from west lines of section 10, block 2, TCRR survey.

It is scheduled for an 8,000-foot bottom.

HNG Oil Co. No. 2-19 Haley Unit, ½-mile east stepout to Ellenburger production in the Evetts multipay field of Winkler County, has been completed from the Ellenburger.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1.8 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 20,720 to 20,812 feet after 20,000 gallons of acid and 22,500 gallons of fracture solution.

No fluid was made with the gas.

Total depth is 20,870 feet and five-inch liner is set at 20,870 feet. Plugged back depth is 20,819 feet.

The well originally was spudded by Exxon Corp. and junked and abandoned at an unreported depth.

Location is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 19, block 27, psl survey and 13 miles west of Kermit. It is adjacent to Pennsylvanian production.

LITTLE WOLF

Gifford, Mitchell & Wisenbaker of Midland No. 6 Little Wolf is a new well in the Cheyenne (Capitan) field of Winkler County, 13 miles northwest of Kermit.

Operator reported a daily flowing potential of 85 barrels of oil and 22 barrels of water, through a ¼-inch choke and perforations from 3,132 to 3,205 feet.

The pay was acidized with 1,700 gallons and fractured

Location is 1,573 feet from north and 1,600 feet from east lines of section 16, block C-23, psl survey.

STERLING WELL

Wagner & Brown of Midland No. 1-14 Margaret is a new well in the Conger (Pennsylvanian) area of Sterling County, nine miles west of Sterling City.

The well, drilled as a wildcat 3¼ miles northeast of the pool, finaled for a daily flow of 34 barrels of 39-gravity oil and eight barrels of water, through a ¼-inch choke and perforations from 7,144 to 7,864 feet.

The pay zone was fractured with 80,000 gallons.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 14, block 22, H&TC survey and nine miles west of Sterling City.

Total depth is 8,100 feet and 4½-inch casing is set at 8,014 feet. The plugged back depth is 7,996 feet.

Amoco stakes long outpost

A southeast outpost to the four-well Wheeler (Devonian) field of Winkler County has been staked by Amoco Production Co.

It is Amoco Production Co. No. 4 Blue Estate, 1⅛ miles southeast of the Devonian area and one location east of Silurian production.

Doyle Little

Doyle Little joins OPI

Doyle Little of Midland has been appointed president of OPI INC. of Odessa.

Prior to joining the concern, he was a vice president and stimulation division general manager of The Western Co. of North America in Fort Worth.

In his new position, Little will be responsible for overall direction of a long-range program to expand and improve the OPI product line.

He also will serve on the OPI board of directors.

In addition to a major expansion of the Odessa manufacturing facilities, OPI's sales and engineering staff has increased 300 percent over last year.

Little is a graduate of Rice University and MIT. He has 20 years experience in petrochemical and oil-related industries.

Benjamin L. Anderson

Retirement announced

Getty Oil Co. has announced the retirement of Benjamin L. Anderson, senior geologists in the company's Exploration Department in Midland.

Anderson retired after almost 39 years with Getty and Skelly Oil Co. He started with with Skelly in May 1929 as an instrument man at Cameron, Mo.

He later served as a paleontologist at Wichita, Kan., and Tulsa, Okla., and as a geologist at Pampa and in Hobbs, N. M.

He transferred to Midland in 1962 where he was production geological coordinator from 1972 until the merger of Skelly and Getty in January 1977.

Anderson is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, the West Texas Geological Society and the First Baptist Church.

More private meetings on energy scheduled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top congressional energy negotiators say they'll keep working behind closed doors to draft a compromise bill, despite a House vote against secret sessions and one senator's threat to withold his support for the Panama Canal treaties.

Leaders of the House-Senate conference committee on energy legislation said they will continue to meet privately with Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger in hopes of ending the 4½-month deadlock on natural gas pricing.

Key conferees have been negotiating with Schlesinger at the White House since President Carter intervened earlier this week in an attempt to break the impasse.

Protesting these closed meetings, Sen. James Abourezk, DS.D., said Thursday that he may vote against the second Panama Canal treaty next week unless the bargaining sessions are opened.

He said the sessions violate congressional rules requiring open meetings.

Abourezk also said he wants Carter to renounce any proposed compromise that includes natural gas deregulation, since the president's energy program called for continued price controls.

Carter has said he'll accept deregulation by the mid-1980s as a compromise. The conferees have tentatively agreed to set Jan. 1, 1985, as the date when price ceilings would be lifted.

In a related move, the House voted 371 to 6 on Thursday against the holding of secret congressional negotiations on energy.

Although the move was intended to force conferees into the open, House leaders say the vote was mostly symbolic and probably would not stop private sessions on the energy bill.

Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, a top House energy negotiator, said sessions like those being held at the White House are "informal meetings" and not subject to the open-meeting rules.

Navajos, major crude firms settle problem

The Los Angeles Times

MONTEZUMA CREEK, Utah — Negotiators for Navajo Indians and four major oil companies have reached an agreement ending the Indians' two-week takeover of a Southeastern Utah oil field, their represenatives said Sunday.

scores of Navajos seized a complex of oil company offices and equipment near here on March 31 to dramatize a long list of social, economic and environmental grievances which have built up over the years. This led to a shutdown of 800 wells producing 22,000 barrels of oil daily, and caused Navajo tribal officials to seal off a 100-square-mile section of the tribe's vast reservation.

Under terms of the agreement reached in marathon bargaining sessions, the oil companies — Texaco, Phillips, Continental and Superior — will employ substantilaly more Navajos, increase education aid to local Indians, place greater emphasis on environmental safeguards and enforce a strict standard of conduct for their employees and contractors' employees on the Navajo reservation.

The oil companies also agreed to show the "greatest amount of respect and courtesy" to the Navajos in future dealings — language intended to address Indian complaints that they had been treated with ridicule and scorn by company employees in the past.

in turn, the Indians dropped their demand that leases for the oil field be renegotiated. The leases, signed in the 1950s by government officials acting as trustees for the Navajos, grant the tribe a 12 1-2 percent royalty on the roughly $100 million in annual production.

One oil company executive said that Interior Department officials who joined in the negotiations promised the Indians that the lease issue would be reviewed by the government. These federal officials were en route back to Washington on Sunday and could not be reached for comment.

Brian Donnelly, spokesman for the Navajo Tribal Council in Window Rock, Ariz., said the oil companies "agreed to all our demands with the exception of renegotiating the leases."

Referring to the Navajos' complaint of mistreatment in the past, Donnelly said the oil companies formally apologized in the agreement for "what had happened in the past and gave assurances that it would not happen again."

Rig outlay predicted

TULSA, Okla. — Drilling contractors around the world plan to spend almost $1 billion this year to build at least 254 rotary rigs and replace parts on existing rotaries.

They are also considering ordering an additional 197 new rigs during 1978 and 1979, which would involve still higher spending, an Oil & Gas Journal survey shows.

Ninety percent of the total spending will be by U.S. contractors, the weekly business magazine said. And, more than half the new rigs have been ordered by Texas and Oklahoma contractors.

The heavy spending is needed to keep pace with the current North American drilling surge, contractors say. They feel land-rig supply will catch up with demand next year and that a rig surplus is possible by 1980. Offshore rig supply is expected to about match demand for the next three years.

Most contractors believe U.S. Drilling activity will increase about 10 percent during 1978. They think the U.S. active rig count will average 2,196 this year, 2,371 in 1979 and 2,462 in 1980.

Biggest problems cited by contractors in the Journal survey are equipment delivery waiting times, which average 15 months, shortages of trained drilling crews and confusion over government policy.

Even so, spending plans revealed in the survey refute a Carter administration claim that higher oil and gas prices are not justified because a lack of drilling rigs would prevent any big surge in drilling.

Biggest spending plans are among contractors in these states: Texas, $264.8 million; Oklahoma, $263.9 million; California, $133.4 million; Louisiana, $69.7 million; Colorado, $66.9 million, and Kansas, $7.4 million.

The California total includes plans for four offshore rigs.

Canadian contractors reported plans to spend $75.6 million for rig construction during 1978.

Meeting scheduled

The Permian Basin Subsection of the West Texas Society of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will meet at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday in the Branding Iron Restaurant in Odessa.

W. J. Adderton, with Snook & Adderton, Inc., of Lubbock, will be the speaker. His topic will be "Municipal Inceneration Systems with Energy Recovery.

Any person interested in municipal solid waste disposal and energy conservation are invited to the meeting.

Reservations can be made by telephoning John Merritt, 337-3571, extension 117, in Odessa.

Cubs to lift lid on home season

The Midland Cubs will open their Texas League home season with all of the traditional pomp and ceremony accompanying such occasions with Congressional candidate George Bush, Jr., throwing out the first ball for the Cubs game with the El Paso Diablos.

Pregame festivities get underway at 7:15 p.m. with the introductions of the Cubs and Diablos followed by the introduction of the colors with the color guard from the United States Marine Corps Reserve Training Center at Air Terminal.

Suzy Graham, accompanied Jack Tweelings at the organ, will sing the Star Spangled Banner. Suzy is a member of the Midland Lee High choir.

Once candidate Bush unlimbers one of his arm, the game will begin in refurbished Cubs Stadium, which has never looked better. Since last season, permanent red box-seat chairs have been added and the stands repainted.

Tonight will also be Elementary School Night with everyone in attendance receiving a free Cubs bumper sticker.

The six game series runs through Saturday with "Play Ball' at 7:30 p.m. each night.

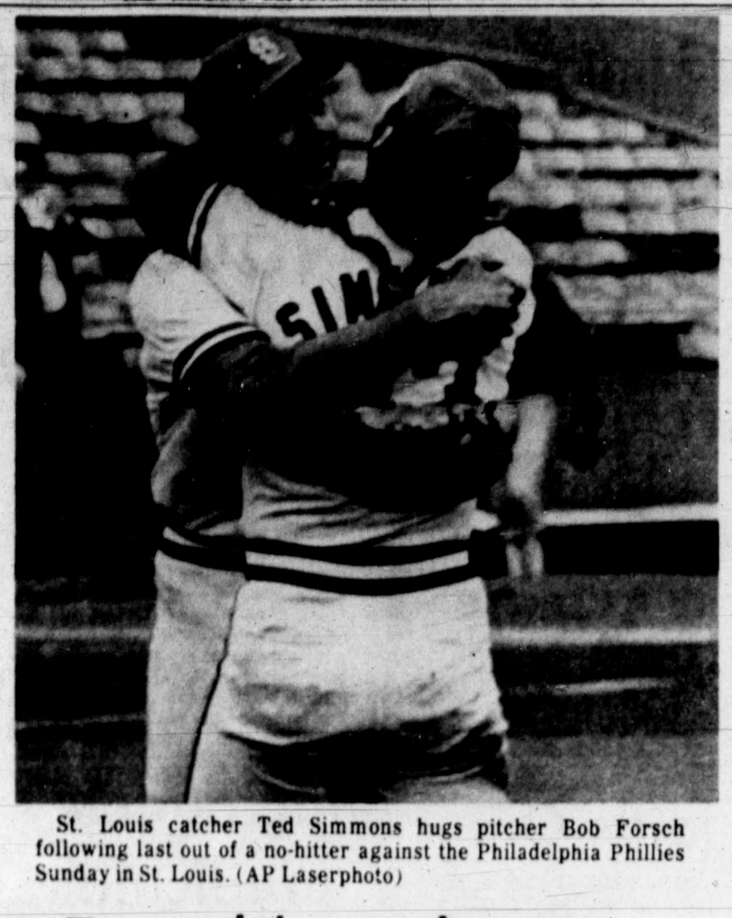

Special nights include Chamber of Commerce Pack-the-Park night and Ladies Night Thursday, Two Bit Beer night Friday and Pepsi Cola Little League night Saturday.

Wilson Ranch wins Armstrong crown

SAN ANTONIO — Midland's Wilson Ranch won the Tommy Armstrong Memorial Polo Tournament here Sunday with a 13-8 decision over Tulsa in the finals.

Fortunato Gomez led Wilson Ranch with six goals while Tommy Weyman had four and Willie B. Wilson added two. There was also one pony goal. Dickie Cernades also played for Wilson Ranch.

Dodgers slap Midland again

SAN ANTONIO —San Antonio completed a six-game sweep of the Midland Cubs with a 4-1 victory here Sunday afternoon in a Texas League baseball game and the Cubs couldn't wait to bid a not so-fond farewell to the Alamo City.

Mike Tennant, notching his second win of the series, and Will Williams teamed up to pitch a five-hitter against the Cubs. Midland's lone run came in the fourth inning when Tony Pepper and Duane Gustavson walked and Eric Grandy singled home the run.

The Cubs missed another golden run scoring opportunity in the first when they loaded the bases with one out, but failed to cash in.

A walk, a single by Jack Perconte and Bobby Mitchell's sacrifice fly gave the Dodgers a run in the third off Midland starter and loser Jack Ledbetter and then they got the run that was enough to win in the sixth when Mitchell walked, stole second and scored on Mike White's single.

Marvin Garrison beat out an infield hit in the seventh, stole second, moved to third on a sacrifice and scored on an infield hit. Garrison then drove in the final run in the eighth with a hit after White reached on an infield hit.

The Cubs returned to Midland after the game where they will open their home season against El Paso tonight.

Scorer's judgment saves Forsch's no-hitter

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "He called it an error, and it's an error," right-hander Bob Forsch observed. "I'm sure if you asked the third baseman whether it was an error, he'd be honest. He seemed to think he should have had the ball."

Thus, through an official scorer's judgment, Forsch emerged Sunday as the seventh pitcher in the history of the St. Louis Cardinals to author a no-hitter.

Forsch's victims were the Philadelphia Phillies, whose only real bid in a 5-0 defeat came on Garry Maddox' grounder to the left side of the infield to start the eighth inning.

Cards third baseman Ken Reitz reached to his left to scoop the smash but only tipped the ball with his glove as it bounced into the outfield. The official scorer, Neal Russo of the St. Louis Post-Disptch, immediately signaled error.

"I went down for the ball and kind of double-pumped, trying to pick up the bounce," said Reitz, who concurred with Russo's call.

"It just went off the webbing of my glove. Sure, the Phillies thought it was a hit, but I was in a position to field the ball. I should have had it. It should have been an easy play."

The Phillies, who had been mesmerized by Forsch's fastballs over seven previous innings, never got another chance.

Bob Boone quickly bounced into a double play, erasing Maddox from the basepaths. And after Ted Sizemore lined out to close the eighth, pinch hitter Jay Johnstone, Bake McBride and Larry Bowa each grounded out in the ninth.

"After about the sixth inning, I realized I had a shot at it," said Forsch of his masterpiece, the first in the major leagues this year. "The momentum was behind me. The most difficult part was that it was 1-0.

"I was trying to be careful for a couple of innings," the 28-year-old hurler recalled of nearing the finish. "And then in the ninth, I said, 'Well, if I get it, fine. I'm not going to worry about it.'"

A preponderance of live fastballs mixed with occasional curves and changeups carried the blond Forsch to his place in the record book and third triumph of the season.

"When I was warming up I didn't think I had real good stuff, so just tried to keep the ball down in the first three innings and mixed up my pitches," he related.

"It was a matter of having everything on the shelf and picking from it," said Cards catcher Ted Simmons. "He had full command of everything he threw. It was like asking, 'What do you want to throw?'"

Forsch totaled 94 pitches and was hit hard only by Mike Schmidt, who belted a 3-1 fastball 390 feet to the warning track in left-center during the first inning and afterward drove center fielder Jerry Morales deep to retrieve two drives.

Evert streak continues

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Nearly seven years after she reached the semifinals of the U.S. Open as a 16-year-old, Chris Evert says winning is still paramount but that her incentive has changed.

In the early years when she was first amazing tennis crowds with her two-fisted dackhand and precision play, "It was a thrill to play a Billie Jean, Rosie or Kerry," she said.

Since 1971 Evert has played and often beaten Billie Jean King, Rosie Casals and Kerry Reid — the women who were making the headlines when she entered the world of professional tennis.

Her latest contest with Reid came Sunday in the championship of the premier women's tournament on clay — Evert's 118th consecutive triumph on that surface. She has won the event five years in a row, this time defeating 30-year-old Reid 6-2, 6-0.

Now, Evert says, who she plays is not as important as how she plays.

"I still don't want to lose," she said Sunday. But it is now a sense of "personal pride" that motivates her.

"I still am very much affected when I lose. I'm very disappointed in myself," the 23-year-old world champion said. "In the matches that I've lost, not only did my opponents play well but I beat myself."

Losses have been rare, though. She has not lost on a clay court since Evonne Goolagong defeated her in 1973. Only a dozen women have beaten her in her career.

Despit her dominance on clay, Evert said she would rather play World Team Tennis — played on fast courts — than enter the French and Australianoopens, which are clay-court classics.

Jaeckel wins first

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Barry Jaeckel, a winner on the pro golf tour for the first time, says he couldn't have taken the 10th annual Tallahassee Open without his caddy, Rich Harris. A couple of fortunate shots helped, too.

Jaeckel defeated Bruce Lietzke Sunday in the first hole of a sudden death playoff after making up 6 strokes on the final nine holes.

"On the eighth green, I looked at the scoreboard and saw how far behind the leaders I was," said Jaeckel, whose best finish this year was a fourth in Los Angeles. "I figured I was looking at a third place check, at best."

The 29-year-old Jaeckel picked up 5 strokes on the first five holes of the back nine with 4 birdies and an eagle and then tied Lietzke on the 18th hole with a birdie after Lietzke suffered a bogey.

In the streak, he holed out a 45-yard chip shot on No. 10 for a birdie, sank a 15-foot putt on No. 11 for another birdie and then parred No. 12 after burying the ball in a bunker and having to blast out to eight feet.

On the 566-yard par-5 13th hole, Jaeckel sank a sand wedge from 92 yards away to a green he couldn't see for an eagle. "I hit a good shot in the air and saw the ball disappear."

Then he says, he holed out a perfect 9-iron chip from 18 feet on No. 14.

It wasn't until No. 18, however, that he really relied on his caddy, who normally totes the bag of Don January.

"I hit the ball into the first bunker and Bruce was in the bunker ahead of me," he said. "I wanted to hit a 6 iron but Rich talked me into using a 5 iron. I hit it to within three feet."

Sixers, Spurs run wild

By The Associated Press

"Personnel-wise, Philadelphia is the best team in the league."

That was the way New York Knicks Coach Willis Reed sized up the Philadelphia 76ers before the start of their National Basketball Association playoff quarter-finals, and Sunday's series opener did nothing to change his mind.

The Sixers took command early in the second quarter at 41-20 and were never in trouble, routing the Knicks 130-90 as eight Philadelphia players scored in double figures.

"We were strong at the start and tried to fight 'em, but the 76ers have the personnel," said Reed. "They're the best team in the league. They scouted us and did their homework. And the week's rest was an advantage for them."

The Sixers had earned a week off by winning the Atlantic Division title, and were able to rest while the Knicks were defeating Cleveland in a firstround series.

The Knicks, the worst defensive team in the NBA, played well for the first 10 minutes and trailed only 20-18 with two minutes left in the opening quarter. But the 76ers outscored New York 8-2 to lead 28-20 at the end of the first period, then ran off the first 13 points of the second quarter to break the game wide open. New York got no closer than 12 points the rest of the game.

Reserve forward Steve Mix led the Sixers with 19 points, followed by Doug Collins, 18; Julius Erving and Henry Bibby, 16 each; George McGinnis, 15; Lloyd Free, 14; Caldwell Jones, 12, and Darryl Dawkins, 10.

"We had quite a few great efforts out there," said Sixers Coach Billy Cunningham, who had been wary as to how sharp his club would be after the week's layoff. "The key was that we ran quite a few fast breaks because of two factors — our intensity defensively and our defensive rebounding."

Reed said, "We had a tough series with Cleveland and we had to come here and play with only one night's rest. We had to make a change from two different styles of play, and it takes awhile to make necessary offensive and defensive adjustments."

Earl Monroe, New York's team captain, put it more succinctly:

"It was a bad day for the Knicks," he said.

Spurs 114, Bullets 103

San Antonio trailed 49-48 at halftime before Gervin took charge, scoring 16 points as the Spurs took an 82-76 lead at the end of three quarters. The Spurs led by as many as 16 in the final period. The Bullets trimmed it to 105-101, but Gervin added two free throws, a basket and another free throw to put it out of reach and give the Spurs their first playoff win ever in the NBA.

"The only way to beat them is to play super defense all the time," said Washington Coach Dick Motta. "We let them get away in the third period. Gervin got them going and we just couldn't stop him."

Elvin Hayes led Washington with 26 points. The Spurs connected on 50 percent of their shots from the field to 40 percent for the Bullets.

"I thought our team was a little tight at the start," said Spurs Coach Doug Moe. "I was a player and I know. You get nervous and anxious. Playoff games are special."

Sonics 111, Lakers 102

Seattle rookie forward Jack Sikma scored 24 points, including 12 in the third period as the Sonics built a 19-point lead and then held on as center Marvin Webster, who had 20 points and a game-high 18 rebounds, scored 6 of Seattle's last 12 points.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar played the entire game for Los Angeles and led all scorers with 31 points.

Seattle's Dennis Johnson and Los Angeles' Charlie Scott got into a shoving match in the third period, but the two were separated.

Can the Sonics dethrone Portland, the defending NBA champion which has been crippled by injuries in recent weeks?

Lakers Coach Jerry West gives them a shot.

"Seattle has a lot of players who are very talented but as yet don't have any exposure," said West. "I think Seattle's chances against Portland right now are very good."

Rice's Rice joins pro ranks

CINCINNATI (AP) — Homer Rice, head coach and athletic director at Rice University the past two years, will join the Cincinnati Bengals May 1 as quarterback coach of the National Football League team.

Bengals' General Manager Paul Brown confirmed the hiring of Rice in today's edition of The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Brown said Rice's "history is that of being an outstanding technician in the quarterback phase of the game. His teams have always been high scoring and high in the rankings as far as passing is concerned."

It's just another Player rally

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — There was a brief conversation between Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus as they walked up the 10th fairway during the final round of golf's Tournament of Champions.

"Well, Gary," said Jack, "you've made up the seven shots in just nine holes."

"Yes, Jack," replied Gary, "but now I have to be concerned that someone doesn't make up seven on me on the next nine. There's aways that possibility, you know."

But it didn't happen. Didn't even come close. Player simply pulled further ahead of golf's strongest field. And, for the second week in a row, the little South African secured a victory from seven strokes off the pace.

In many respects his triumph Sunday closely resembled his victory a week earlier in the Masters. He started the final round seven shots back. He played about a half-hour in front of the other contenders. He put his final round — this time a 5-under-par 67 — on the board and had to wait and watch while a collection of the world's best players took a shot at it.

In the Masters, three men had a chance to tie or better his score. This time no one got within two shots. It completed one of the game's great comebacks. There are no records to indicate consecutive come-from-behind superlatives. Last year, however, the best come-from-behind on the PGA Tour was six shots. Player now has done better than that in consecutive weeks.

And the self-styled "eternal optimist" was completely unsurprised.

"After 25 years as a pro, there is nothing in golf that surprises me," he said after collecting $45,000 from the total purse of $225,000 on his winning total of 281, 7 shots below par on the 6,889-yard La Costa Country Club course.

It pushed his earnings for two weeks to $90,000, marked the 20th victory of his American career, 113 around the world and made him the first man in more than a year to win consecutive American titles.

Lee Trevino and Andy North tied for second at 283, North after a 69 in the cool, windy, sunny weather, and Trevino shot a 71. At 284 were Bill Kratzert, 72; Leonard Thompson, 71; and Mac McLendon, 73.

Nicklaus, the defending champion and Player's partner over the final 18 holes, never really got into it. He shot a 77, including 42 over the back nine, and finished at 291. U.S. Open champion Hubert Green was 76-293. British Open king Tom Watson shot 76-288 and PGA champ Lanny Wadkins 78-293.

TO THE REAL AND TRUE OWNERS OF PROPERTY ABUTTING UPON THE HEREINAFTER DESCRIBED AND DEFINED PORTIONS OF STREETS, AVENUES, AND/OR ALLEYS IN THE CITY OF MIDLAND, TEXAS, AND TO ALL OWNING OR CLAIMING ANY SUCH ABUTTING PROPERTY, OR ANY INTEREST THEREIN, AND TO ALL INTEREST IN ANY OF THE PROCEEDINGS, CONTRACT OR OTHER MATTERS HEREINAFTER MENTIONED

Notice is hereby given to the real and true owners of property abutting upon the hereinafternamed streets, avenues and/or alleys within the limits defined, in the City of Midland, Texas, and to all persons owning or claiming any interest therein, and to all railroads and all others claiming, or interested in, any of said property, or in any of the proceedings, contracts and matters herein mentioned, that:

The City of Midland, Texas, acting through its City Council by duly enacted Ordinance No. 5315 has determined the necessity for, and has ordered the permanent improvement of portions of various streets, avenues, and/or alleys in the City of Midland described and defined in the City Engineer's schedule of cost estimates hereinafter set out in this notice, by raising, grading, filling, widening, permanently paving, or repaving same by the construction, reconstruction, repairing, or realigning concrete curbs and gutters in the manner and where the City Engineer determines that adequate curbs and gutters are not now installed on proper grade and lines, and by construction of such drains and incidentals and appurtenances as deemed necessary by said Engineer, said permanent paving to consist of an adequate asphaltic wearing surface upon a substantial caliche base, both of such type, construction, materials and thickness as is deemed adequate and proper by said City Engineer all of such improvements to be constructed according to such specifications and standards as the City Engineer deems adequate and suitable, and to be constructed in the manner and as provided for in plans and specifications and the contract agreements covering the construction of said improvements, now on file in the office of City Secretary.

That said City Council, by said ordinance, has further determined the necessity of levying assessments for a portion of the costs of the construction of said improvements against the properties abutting upon said streets, avenues, and/or alleys within the limits of said improvement units hereinafter defined, and against the real and true owners thereof, and has adopted the proposed apportionment of costs hereinafter set out between the City and said abutting properties and their owners; that the portion of said costs proposed to be so assessed will be in accordance with the Front Foot Rule or Plan, and said City Council has further adopted the following proposed rates, and estimates of said costs in reference to each of said streets, avenues, and/or alleys within the limits defined, and as set out in the following schedule to wit:

CITY OF MIDLAND

Each portion of said streets, avenues, and/or alleys as designated by unit number constitutes a separate and independent unit of said improvements and shall be improved, and the improvements constructed therein, separately and independent from each and every other improvement unit, and assessments to be levied for said improvements in each unit shall be altogether separate, distinct and independent of and from the assessments to be levied in every other improvement unit; and in making and levying assessments against property abutting upon one of said units, no matter or circumstance, in connection with any other of said units shall be considered, or have any effect upon the other, all as fully, and to same extent, as if separate proceedings and contracts had been had and executed with reference to the improvements to be made in each of said units.

A hearing will be given and held by and before the City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, in the Council Chamber of the City Hall in the City of Midland, Texas, on the 9th day of May, 1978, at 3:00 o'clock, P.M., to the real and true owners, whether named or correctly named in the assessment proceedings or not, of all property abutting upon said streets, avenues, and/or alleys within the limits to be improved, and to all lien holders or other persons owning or claiming any such abutting property, or any interest therein, and to all railways occupying any portion of said streets, avenues, and/or alleys within any improvement unit as above defined, and to all others interested in any of the proceedings, contracts, or matters and things herein mentioned, or incident or relating thereto or the contract for the construction of improvements herein referred to.

At said time and place, all such persons, firms corporations railways and estates, and their agents and attorneys, shall have the right to appear and to be heard and offer testimony as to the said assessments, and as to the amount thereof proposed to be assessed against abutting property and the real and true owner or owners thereof, and as to the lien and charge of personal liability to secure payment of said assessment, the special benefits to accrue to each abutting property and the owner or owners there by virtue of said improvements, if any, or concerning any error, invalidity irregularity or deficiency in any proceedings or contract in reference to said improvements and said proposed amendments, and concerning any other matters or thing as to which a hearing is a constitutional prerequisite to the validity of said assessment, proceedings and improvements and on which the owner or owners are entitled to a hearing under the constitution and laws of the State of Texas and the proceedings of said City Council.

Following such hearing, such assessments will be levied against each and every parcel of property abutting upon said streets, avenues, and/or alleys within the limits above defined, and the real and true owners thereof, for that portion of the cost of said improvements determined by said City Council to be assessed against such abutting properties, and the real and true owners thereof, and against railways occupying any portion of said units, and said assessments shall be and constitute first and prior liens upon said abutting properties, from the date said improvements were ordered by said City Council and a personal liability and charge against the real and true owners thereof as of said date, whether such property be described or correctly described, or such real and true owners be named, or correctly named, in such proceedings, or not and no error or mistake or discrepancy in the names of such owner or owners, or in describing said property in any of said proceedings with reference to said improvements shall invalidate any assessment or certificate issued in evidence thereof; but, nevertheless, each parcel of property abutting upon said streets, avenues, and/or alleys and the real and true owner or owners thereof and each railroad, shall be charged with and be liable for said assessment, which shall be valid whether or not such owner or owners be named or correctly named, or such property be described or correctly described, and as provided for under Article 1105-b of the revised Civil Statutes of Texas, as amended, heretofore adopted by said City Council as the law under which such improvements, proceedings and assessments are being constructed, performed and levied.

DONE by order of the City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, this 28 day of March, 1978.

J. W. McCullough, City Secretary
City of Midland, Texas
(April 17, 24, May 1, 1978)

A certified check or bank money order, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City, in the full amount of the total bid submitted, payable without recourse to the City of Midland, must accompany the bidder's proposal, as a guaranty that the bidder will accept a conveyance of said land from the City if he is successful. Bids without the required check or money order will not be considered.

The City of Midland will issue a Special Warranty Deed and the bidder must satisfy himself as to title and acquire all desired abstract and other title information or insurance solely at his own expense, and all other costs of sale, if any, must be borne solely by the successful bidder. The City does not guarantee the title by general warranty or otherwise.

The City reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids, to waive technicalities, to negotiate with any of bidders, and to make any investigation deemed necessary as to bidder's financial status.

DEATHS

Jerry Foust

BIG SPRING — Graveside services for Jerry Foust, 37, of Big Spring were to be at 11 a.m. today in Westbrook Cemetery in Westbrook with the Rev. Weldon Butler, pastor of the First United Methodist Church here, officiating.

Arrangements were to be handled by Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home here.

A Littlefield native, he attended schools there and went to Hardin-Simmons University. He married Maria Reed Sept. 3, 1965, in Snyder. Moving to Big Spring in 1965, Foust went to work for the First National Bank here in 1968. He was vice president of the bank at the time of his death.

Foust was a past president of the Big Spring Civitan Club, a member of the Ambassador Club of the Chamber of Commerce, a member of the American Business Club and a member of the board of directors of the Salvation Army here.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Jason Foust of the home; his mother, Evelyn Artel of Capistrano Beach, Calif.; a brother, Rex Foust of Littlefield; a sister, Debbie Warren of Big Spring, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Yarbrough of Mission Viejo, Calif.

Jo Ann Jones

LAMESA — Services for Jo Ann Jones, 34, of Lamesa were to be at 2 p.m. today in the First Christian Church here with the Rev. Paul Land, pastor, officiating. Burial was to be in Hancock Cemetery directed by Branon Funeral Home.

Miss Jones was found dead Sunday at her home.

Survivors include five sisters, Wilma Adams of Amarillo, Faye Jones of Tulsa, Okla., Shirley Wapp of Alamogordo, N.M., Veryl McDonald of El Paso and Deta Callahan of Delano, Calif., and three brothers, Wallace Jones of Riverside, Calif., Bill Jones of Midland and Fred Jones of Oklahoma City.

Lois Boyd

SNYDER — Services for Lois Boyd, 64, of Snyder were to be at 3 p.m. today in Bell-Seale Funeral Home here with the Rev. Dayton McCarter officiating and the Rev. Virgil Mott assisting. Burial was to be in Snyder Cemetery.

She was the sister of Vada Holman of Andrews.

Mrs. Boyd died Friday night in a Lubbock hospital after a short illness.

She was a native of Scurry County. She married Murray Boyd Jan. 17, 1972, in Lovington, N.M. She was a member of Bethel Baptist Church.

Other survivors include her husband, two sisters and four brothers.

Lovidy Walker

LORAINE — Services for Lovidy E. Walker, 87, of Odessa were Friday in the First United Methodist Church here with the Rev. Tommy Nelson of St. Paul United Methodist Church in Midland officiating. Burial was in Sweetwater Cemetery.

Mrs. Walker died Wednesday in an Odessa hospital after a long illness.

She was born April 20, 1891, in Red River County. She married Joseph Franklin Walker July 21, 1907, in Gorman. She came to Odessa in 1963 from Loraine. She was a Baptist.

Other survivors include four sons, Norvan Walker, E. O. Walker, Kenneth Walker and Truman Walker, all of Odessa; a daughter, Mrs. Merrill Martin of Midland; a sister, Norma Pilgrim of Dumas; a brother, L. F. Melton of Ranger, nine grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren and a great-great-grandchild.

Harold Bennett

SNYDER — Services were held Saturday afternoon for Harold Bennett, 63, former mayor and school board president, in First United Methodist Church. The Rev. David Robertson, pastor, officiated. Burial was in Hillside Memorial Gardens, directed by Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Bennett died early Friday at his home of an apparent heart attack.

Born July 17, 1914, in Loraine, he was a graduate of Loraine High School and of John Tarleton College in Stephenville. He married Lois Burdine Oct. 4, 1936, in Colorado City.

He moved to Snyder from Colorado City in 1950 to accept the post of manager of the Scurry County Chamber of Commerce.

Bennett was twice elected mayor of Snyder, in 1956 and 1958. He was also a former school board president here.

He was widely known in West Texas Jaycee circles, and served as vice president of the statewide Jaycees in 1950.

Survivors include his wife, a son and two grandchildren.

Big Spring girl contest winner

LUBBOCK — After 53 rounds, Julianne Raines, an eighth grader from Big Spring, was the winner of the 26th annual regional spelling bee held here Saturday.

The Howard County entrant outspelled Lubbock County's Kathleen Simek to take home the regional title.

The winning word was pictorialization, which Julianne correctly spelled after she had correctly polished off Kathleen's missed word, dilapidate.

Julianne will go to Washington June 5-9 to participate in the national spelling bee.

Berlin airlift hero Clay dies at 80 after illness

CHATHAM, Mass. (AP) — Gen. Lucius DuBignon Clay, hailed as "the hero of Berlin" for engineering the post-war airlift of supplies to the blockaded city, is dead at age 80 after a long period of failing health.

With Clay at his death shortly before midnight Sunday at his Cape Cod home were his wife, the former Marjorie McKeown, and two sons, Gen. Lucius D. Clay Jr., of the Air Force, and Army Maj. Gen. Frank B. Clay.

Clay, a great-grand nephew of Kentucky's renowned Henry Clay and son of another U.S. senator, Alexander Clay of Georgia, also supervised development of the interstate highway system, served as chairman of the board for Radio Free Europe and director of such firms as General Motors, Allied Chemical and the Chase Manhattan Bank. He was almost a Republican presidential nominee.

Despite his illness, until recently Clay was an active consultant to The Continental Group, formerly the Continental Can Co., which he served as chairman of the board from 1950 until his retirement in 1962.

But it was with the military that Clay carved his reputation. The 1918 West Point graduate served first with the Corps of Engineers and later rose from the rank of captain to general in just seven years.

In World War II, when a supply bottleneck at Cherbourg threatened to stall the Normandy invasion, the wiry, bushybrowed Clay was rushed in. He doubled the flow in a day and quadrupled it in less than three weeks.

"He looks like a Roman proconsul and acts like one," a British official once said of the quick-tongued Clay.

During his 31-year Army career, Clay served presidents from Franklin D. Roosevelt to John F. Kennedy.

Roosevelt sent him to assist Eisenhower, the Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, and Clay directed occupation policies from the start.

Harry Truman named him deputy military governor of Germany in 1946, then promoted him the following year to commander-in-chief of U.S. forces in Europe.

He held that post until his retirement from the Army in 1949. In 1948, he set up the round-the-clock airlift of supplies to West Berlin that cracked the Soviet blockade aimed at forcing England, France and the United States out of the former German capital.

Eisenhower, as president, made him chairman of a committee that developed the $50 billion national highway system. It was Clay who had helped persuade Eisenhower to seek the Republican presidential nomination. In 1963, there was a movement to draft Clay for the Republian presidential nomination.

Kennedy sent Clay and Vice President Lyndon Johnson to visit Berlin in August 1961 to assure West Germany that the United States would stand by them and prevent West Berlin's isolation.

On Aug. 19, the vice president and the retired general rode to Berlin's City Hall in a motorcade, with thousands of Berliners lining the route. The cries from the sidewalks and upper-story windows were for "Clay, Clay" in an astonishing demonstration of warmth.

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt presented Clay as the man who saved Berlin "as an island of freedom" and asked the audience to give a "besondere gruess" — a special greeting.

The crowd roared. Clay seemed to be trying desperately to hold back tears.

After Johnson spoke, the crowd stood silently as the "Freedom Bell" in the city hall tower tolled for a full minute. It was Clay who brought the bell to Berlin in 1950 for the people whose courage he admired so much.

A few days later, Kennedy appointed him his personal troubleshooter in Berlin, with the rank of ambassador, when the Soviets were cutting communication with East Berlin and stringing the barbed wire that preceded the Berlin Wall.

In December 1962 Attorney General Robert Kennedy asked Clay's help in obtaining $2.9 million ransom for the release by Cuba of those men captured in the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion.

Clay telephoned a bank, explained the need for haste and obtained a $1.9 million loan with his own signature — and nothing else — as collateral.

Then on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, he worked for 18 hours at a spare desk in the Justice Department personally manning the telephones. When he was through the pledges were in.

Clay, born in Marietta, Ga., a year before the Spanish-American War began, started his career as an engineer, working in Brazil, Panama and the Philippines, where he served on the staff of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in 1937. He was in charge of building the Red River Dam at Denison, Texas, and ran a huge defense airport program just before the war.

General Lucius Clay, center, addresses a crowd outside West Berlin's City Hall in August, 1961, after he arrived with Vice-President Lyndon Johnson, right, in a gesture of support by then-President John Kennedy. At left is then-West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt. Clay, hailed as "the hero of Berlin", died shortly before midnight Sunday after a long period of failing health. (AP Laserphoto)

Most black buyers mistreated

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A new government investigation shows that, despite the Fair Housing Act enacted 10 years ago, only a fraction of the nation's blacks receive equal treatment when looking for a new home.

The confidential, $1 million probe, in which hundreds of government investigators posed as housing customers in 40 cities, was unveiled today by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Although the findings have yet to be fully analyzed, they are almost certain to fuel demands for accelerated enforcement of the law.

Assistant Secretary Donna E. Shalala, head of the investigation, said it is the largest ever conducted by a public or private agency into housing discrimination and, at that, "is probably 20 years late.

"Even I am surprised at the figures" reflecting discriminatory practices, she said. "We made every effort to be on the conservative side. I had assumed the pattern of discrimination had gotten more subtle. We're talking about turning people away, the most overt form...."

Among the findings:

—A middle-class black who limits his search to just four prospective houses or apartments for rent has a 75 percent probability, nationwide, of encountering discrimination at least once. Put another way, only one black in four has the same choice as whites.

—In the sales market, blacks have a 62 percent likelihood of becoming the subject of discrimination in the course of visiting four agents.

—Discrimination most often occurs in the sales market in the North Central region, where whites and blacks were treated equally only 5.9 percent of the time.

Department officials refrained from making any immediate recommendations, saying their analysis of the survey will continue for several more months. However, the Carter administration has already called for changes in the Fair Housing Act to streamline its enforcement and the findings doubtlessly will be cited as those proposals are advanced to the Congress.

Closed doors OK'd for child welfare boards

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — County child welfare boards may meet in closed session to discuss individual case files, Attorney General John Hill ruled today.

Hill's opinion went to Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, chairman of the House Committee on Health and Welfare.

The attorney general said the board is covered by the open meetings act.

But, he said, it has the right to closed door meetings when reviewing information that is made confidential by law, such as applications for welfare or case files of persons receiving public assistance.

Lee students to compete

Nearly 50 Lee High School history students will join approximately 600 other West Texas students Tuesday for the 13th annual History and Government Contest, sponsored by Sul Ross University at Alpine.

Students will be given objective tests over their knowledge of American history from 1865 to the present, world history from ancient times up through 1919 and government.

Lee High students will be accompanied by their history teachers, Trudy Lewis and Linda Calverley.

Midlander new TPW secretary

AMARILLO — Tricia Shelton of Midland has been elected secretary of Texas Press Women.

The election was held at the statewide organization's 58th annual convention in Amarillo Saturday.

'Why I choose to smoke.'

"Why kid anyone? I smoke because I enjoy it. I'm the kind of guy who gets pleasure out of a cigarette. But I'm not deaf to what's being said about tar.

"So I searched out a cigarette that would give me taste with low tar. And two years ago I found it in Vantage. Vantage has all the taste I enjoy yet, surprisingly, much less tar than my old brand.

"Why did I choose Vantage? Because I like it."

STAN'S AUNT SALLY'S FRESH STRAWBERRY PIE

Juicy, sunripened strawberries. Just hours from the fields into your Piggly Wiggly shopping cart. They're absolutely delicious. Just wash them, hull them and turn them into one of the best tastin' pies you can imagine...in a matter of minutes. This is another of my Aunt Sally's blue ribbon winners.

- 2 pints fresh strawberries, stemmed
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 T corn starch
- 1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese mixed with 1 T cream
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1 10 inch pie crust, cooked

Mash 1½ pints strawberries, reserving ½ pint to garnish the top of the pie. Combine with sugar and cornstarch and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened, about 10 minutes. Let cool. Spread softened cream cheese over bottom of cooked pie shell. Top with cooled strawberry mixture. Top with whipped cream and whole strawberries.
