WASHINGTON — President Clinton and Hillary Rodham Clinton teamed up Monday for the first time to make a public appeal for their proposed health care overhaul, pitching the plan to one of the most skeptical groups in America — the nation's doctors.

The president and the first lady asked for dialogue and cooperation in a White House meeting with more than 100 prominent physicians.

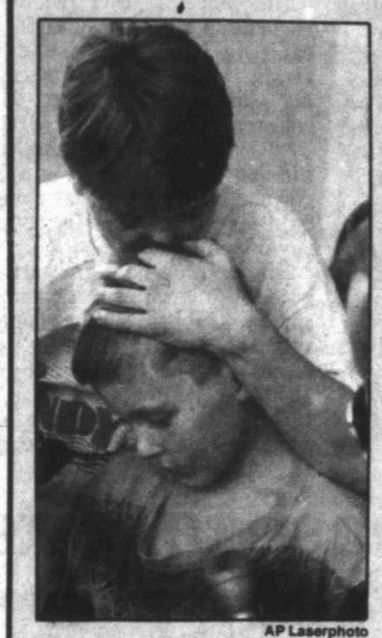

It was the Clintons' first joint appearance seeking public support for the plan that the president will present to Congress Wednesday night, a proposal expected to dominate American politics for months to come.

The president and Mrs. Clinton previously had held health-care forums separately. They did conduct one together at the White House last Thursday, but it was designed not to sell

Boxcar hitchhiker

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — A 9-year-old boy missing over the weekend was found unhurt Monday in a railroad grain car after a toddler told his grandmother the train was talking to him. Steven T. Marson, a fourth-grader, had climbed into the top-loaded grain car Friday while playing near his home in Indianapolis. Police suspected Steven had hopped a freight train because his friends had apparently done it before. But it wasn't until 2-year-old Joey Vandergraff convinced his grandmother that "Thomas the Tank Engine" was talking to him that Steven was found in Lafayette, 60 miles northwest of Indianapolis./7A

County votes 'minimal' tax rate increase

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

The Midland County Commissioners' Court on Monday "blessed" the county's $21.5 million budget for the 1994 fiscal year beginning on Oct. 1.

And the five-member court put a "minimal" increase on the tax rate — to 23.56 cents per $100 valuation from 22.75 cents — to help fuel the budget.

"Really, it is a minimal increase," said Commissioner Win Brown, senior member of the county's governing body.

The increase in actual tax dollars on a house valued at $100,000 would be about $8 a year. The tax increase would be half of that amount on a $50,000 house.

"We have tried to hold the line (on spending)," Brown said, "and I think we have done a very good job."

Commissioner Louisa Valencia said increase in county taxes reflects an increase in the county budget of $1.7 million — to $21.5 million from $19.8 million.

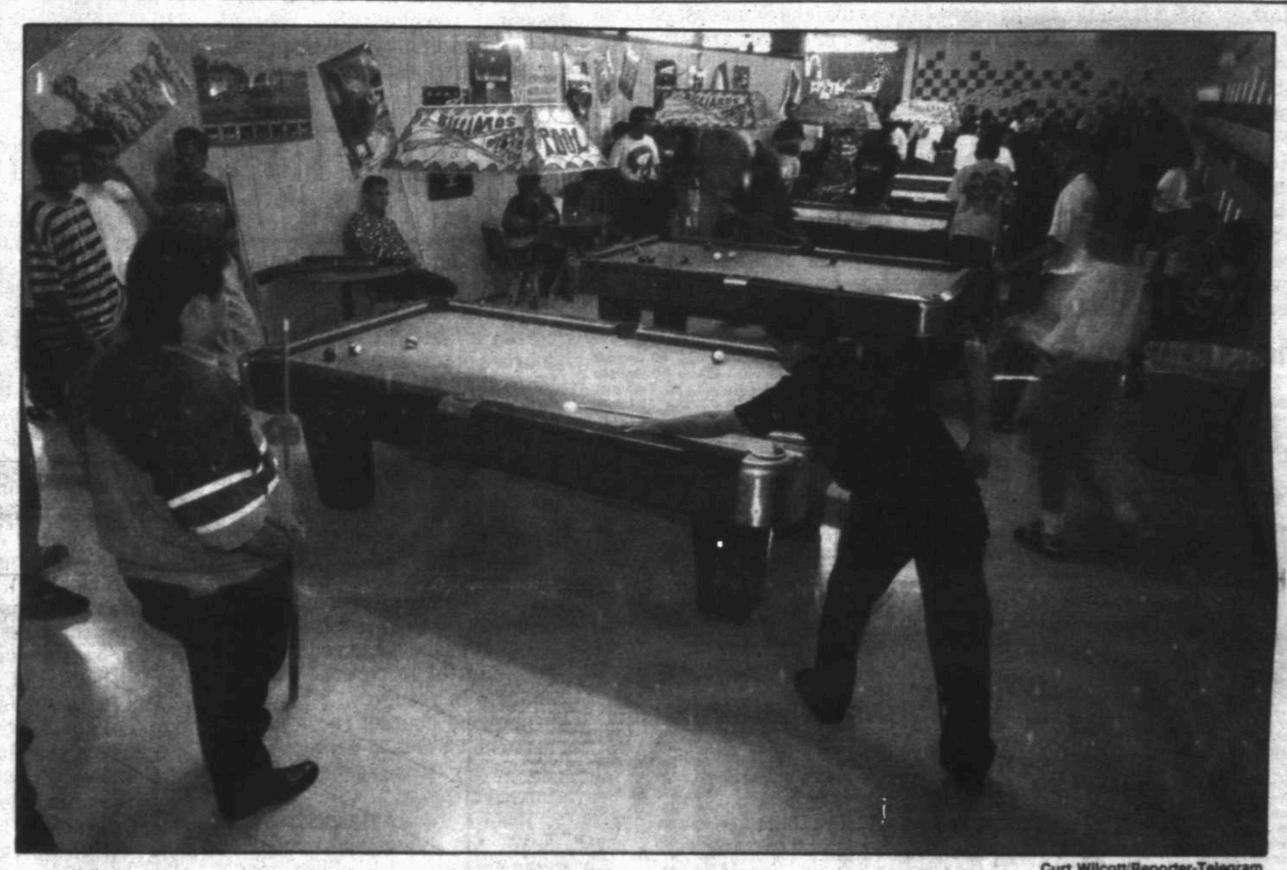

"We held it down as long as we could," Mrs. Valencia said. But the county had "quite a few things ... to allocate money for this year."

For example, Mrs. Valencia said, there are increased costs in operating the Midland County Sheriff's Department, which accounts for about 33 percent of the county's budget, and increased costs in running the expanded Midland County Public Library and funding court-appointed attorneys.

The sheriff's budget was increased by $260,000 to more than $6.2 million.

Despite the tax-rate increase, Midland County, when compared against the tax rates of other Texas counties, is "still in the bottom 10 percent of the 254 counties," Brown said. "We rank some-

Youth centers turn 50, expand services

By Myra Lee Salcedo

Midland youths were getting out of control; parents worried about the rising juvenile crime rate. It was time to take action to get youngsters involved in safe activities and off of the streets. It was time to offer them alternatives from the "drinking situation."

Juvenile crime, a current concern, was also on the minds of Midlanders shortly after WWII.

J. Edgar Hoover, the longtime FBI director, issued a plea to the American public to help stem the rising juvenile delinquency rate. He suggested that youth centers be established across America.

Midlanders took the plea to heart, raised funds, purchased USO (United Services Organizations) furniture and equipment and opened the Junior Canteen, the forerunner of the Midland Youth Center.

The youth center was the site of a student-operated radio station and "stag dances," which were well attended by youth from Midland, Odessa, Stanton and Big Spring.

On Nov. 18, 1963, the Lee Youth Center was open.

As the centers celebrate a 50-year presence in Midland, more changes are in store.

Since their inception, the Midland-Lee Youth Centers Inc. of Midland have served "tens of thousands of Midlanders over the years," said

Garth not averse to singing out for cause

Let's take a stroll, shall we, through the philanthropic portfolio of Garth Brooks, country icon.

He's against AIDS, supports the Future Farmers of America. He opposes the sale of used CDs and ticket-scalping. His songs promote gay rights and condemn spouse abuse.

He backs a hunger-relief agency favored by other country stars, but unlike other stars, he also donated a million bucks to a youth center in riot-torn inner-city Los Angeles.

In an industry not known for its controversial stands, Garth Brooks has managed to be the biggest star of all despite a healthy dose of contentious views.

Or maybe because of them.

"It's kind of an unspoken thing within the industry, (but) the right kind of controversy can aid an artist's career," says Jerry Bailey, director of press information for The Nashville Network.

Congress seals bases' fates, approves closures, cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress sealed the fate of scores of military bases nationwide, approving recommendations to close 130 facilities and scale back 45 others in a money-saving effort that will cost tens of thousands of jobs.

By a vote of 83-12 on Monday, the Senate rejected a motion to disapprove the work of the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission. By law, the entire package takes effect unless both the Senate and House overturn the panel's proposals in their entirety.

This marks the third round of base closures in five years, and another swipe at reducing military infrastructure is planned for 1995.

The bulk of the direct job losses will be concentrated in three states. Hardest hit are California, slated to lose more than 40,000

Midland and Odessa boast two of the best educators in a 19-county region, according to Region 18 Education Service Center.

The local center, and Texas Education Agency, named Lee High School English teacher Connie Howell Teacher of the Year (among secondary teachers). Patricia M. Basden of Odessa's Dowling Elementary School shared the honor, representing primary-school teachers.

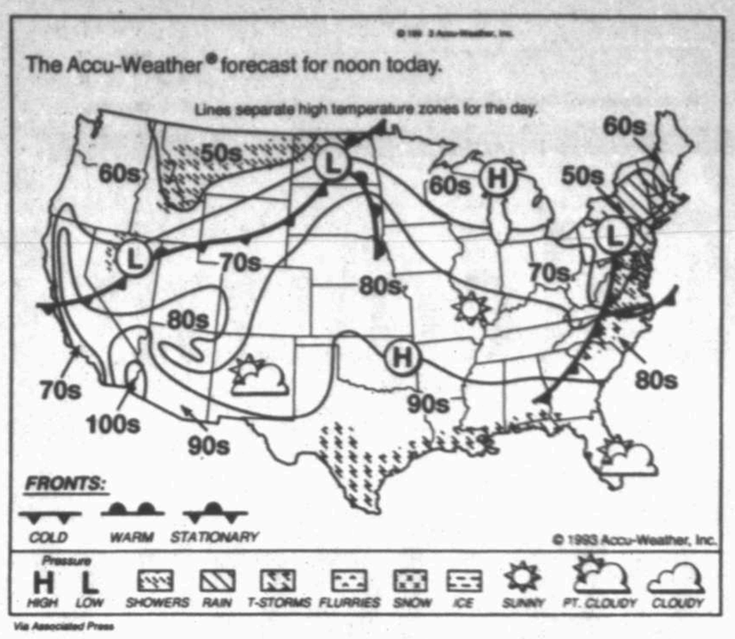

"It hasn't sunk in," said Ms. Howell, a teacher new to Midland Independent School District. She was nominated for the award while still a teacher in Greenwood ISD.

The announcement was made Monday afternoon at the center.

Vernon Stokes, executive director for Region 18, said his area includes 33 school districts.

Expect some clouds, 90 today

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high near 90 and south to southeast winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the upper 60s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Wednesday should be partly cloudy with a high near 90.

After an overnight low of 59, Monday's high reached 92, compared to the record high for that date of 107 set in 1953. The record low was 40 set in 1983.

STATE

Hurricane Gert was pounding northern Mexico Monday afternoon, but its effects were felt in South Texas, with heavy rains from Brownsville to Laredo.

Southern and eastern winds reached 20 mph in the region, and temperatures were mostly in the 80s and 90s. More showers and thunderstorms are expected in deep South Texas today. Today's highs should reach into the 90s.

NATION

Rain extended from the north-central states into the Southeast on Monday, and temperatures dropped to record lows in the 20s and 30s in the Northeast. Snow threatened Montana.

Showers and occasional thunderstorms extended over the upper Mississippi Valley, southern sections of the upper Great Lakes, the Tennessee Valley, northern Mississippi, and the southern Atlantic Coast states.

Heavier rainfall during the six hours up to 1 p.m. CDT included 1.20 inches at Columbia, S.C.; 1.17 inches at Columbus, Miss.; and 0.95 of an inch at Huntsville, Ala.

Falling temperatures are forecast in the Pacific Northwest and widespread frost is expected today and Wednesday mornings across sections of western Oregon. Frost already was scattered across the southwest interior of Oregon during the morning Monday.

EXPAND: Centers mark 50 years of service

(From 1A)

Raymond "Skeet" Doss, member of the centers' board of directors.

The youth centers have a "50-year-old face that has seen its share of smiles and heartaches," Doss said.

"If you grew up in Midland, have had any children that grew up in Midland, or are going to have any children, you will probably be touched by the youth centers," Doss said.

Doss said the primary function of the youth centers is to provide a drug- and alcohol-free environment.

Aside from dances with live disc jockeys and plenty of loud music, silly games and some messy events that result in some young volunteer being doused with whip cream and cherries, the youth centers encourage young people to become involved in planning the centers' events.

Recently the board did a survey that indicated changes were needed.

"The youth centers were being used as meeting places for too many parent meetings," said Janet Swallow, executive director of the centers.

"There were meetings nearly five nights a week," Doss said, "and this was severely limiting the use of the centers for the teen-agers, which is the main directive."

"And, the directors decided to expand the hours of the youth centers so that the teen-agers would always have somewhere to go at all times," he said.

Unfortunately, as the youth centers expand operations, they have elected to do so at a time they have departed from the United Way of Midland. "We broke away," Doss said. "We decided the United Way could allocate more funds to the agencies that they support."

This move means the centers will be entirely privately funded by donations and grants, and revenues raised from lunch sales and fund-raisers.

For the first time, the youth centers will have separate New Year's Eve dances for youth and adults.

The Lee Youth center will be the site of the seventh-, eighth-, and ninth-grade end-of-the-year bash, and adults will celebrate the organization's main fund-raiser of the year at the ClayDesta Atrium.

Halloween dances for students in grades seven, eight and nine are also in the offing.

Both youth centers, located near Midland's high school campuses, are not funded by the school district. The centers each offer lunch services, through local fast-food vendors, including Pizza Hut, Chick-Fil-A, McDonald's and Rosas.

"We are serving a bigger number of students than we have ever had in the past, about 250-300 every school day at each center," Ms. Swallow said.

"To expand services, to expand programs, to expand working hours costs a great deal of money," Doss said. "We are counting on the community contributions to keep the youth centers operating, which gives our children a fun and safe environment, and contributes to the welfare of the city."

Some hours of operation have been changed to better accommodate Midland youth. Weekend hours are extended to 11 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. The centers also are open from 2 to 4 p.m. on weekends.

The Lee Youth Center is now open until 8 p.m. each Monday and Wednesday. The Midland Youth Center is open until 8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The youth centers are managed by a board of directors.

AWARD: 2 share Teacher of Year honors

(From 1A)

"Teachers were nominated back in the spring by principals and superintendents across the state. We put together a screening and evaluation committee including members of teacher organizations," Stokes said, noting the local honorees will vie for the state award.

Each teacher received a plaque and $500 check from award sponsor Southwestern Bell.

"The quality of teachers competing in Region 18 was particularly challenging," Stokes said. "Teachers were judged in five areas: professional development, recognition, community involvement, philosophy of teaching and comprehension of major public education issues.

Ms. Howell came to MISD this fall from the small rural community of Greenwood, where she taught eighth-grade English and worked with gifted and talented students for three years. Before teaching in Greenwood, she taught in Big Spring, also at the junior-high level.

"Teaching at the high-school level now is challenging, as far as the content of work goes. But I love American Literature, which is what I teach," the educator said. "High school students are a bit more mature. But, basically, kids are kids."

She said her classroom is diverse, with several non-English students. "My classrooms are a big mixture of students. Some have been discouraged in school, others are quick learners. It is my job to find a way to reach all of them with the material so they can learn. It is also my job to make English more enjoyable."

As for her $500 cash award, Ms. Howell said it will be used to purchase something that will remind her of the award.

"When I got the local award in Greenwood, that was the most special thing that ever happened to me. I never dreamed I would receive the regional award," she said.

The educator, who received a bachelor of science degree in education at Lubbock Christian University, said she was always working toward a career as a classroom teacher.

"I'll be doing this until I retire," she said. "Ever since I was a little girl, I always knew I was going to be a teacher. I never considered anything else."

The local teachers are part of a group of 40 Texas primary and secondary teachers being honored with the awards program sponsored with a $25,000 grant from Southwestern Bell.

The state Teacher of the Year will receive a $2,500 cash award.

COUNTY: Commissioners increase tax rate

where about 18th or 19th from the bottom" in property taxes.

Most of the revenue to fuel the county's budget comes from sources other than property taxes. More than $8 million of the county's $21.5 million budget is coming from property taxes, and the balance is generated by the county's one-half percent sales tax and by revenue from fines and fees.

"It is really a bare-bones budget," Brown said, "because we only have about 4 percent in reserves" to cover emergency and other unforeseen expenses.

"Most businesses need to have a minimum of 10 percent" of their budgets in reserves, Brown said. "Our bond counsel recommended between 20 and 25 percent" in reserves for "contingencies and unforeseen things."

Brown predicted that the 4 percent, which would amount to $860,000 on a $21.5 million budget, would not last very long.

Part of the county's ongoing expenses, unforeseen only a few years ago, is the county's cost of boarding state prisoners, who rightfully belong in the Texas penitentiary system, which is overcrowded. The county's cost of maintaining those prisoners exceeds the $20 per inmate per day which the state pays the county to house its prisoners.

"We are going in the hole there."

Brown said he regretted that budgetary constraints precluded the granting of pay raises for the counties some 500 workers.

"The cost of everything is going up," Brown said.

But the county's employees have not had pay raises for three years because of the sluggish economy.

However, Brown said the county workers, like most gainfully employed people in today's economy, are "thankful and grateful that they do have job."

While county paychecks are not increasing this year, Brown said he is advocating at least a token pay raise in the form of increased longevity pay for the county's employees in 1994.

Currently, the county's longevity pay is $5 per month times the number of years an employee has served the county. A year's longevity pay would be $60.

Currently, the budget precludes pay raises, he said.

"We have been playing it so close to the chest for years that there is nothing left (in the budget)," Brown said.

To spend county dollars more efficiently, county government is hiring a purchasing agent, Brown said.

"By working that properly, we can negotiate for things instead of just going to the store," he said. He said the county does have "some conscientious people" who actually go around and "shop around and save" money for the county.

Despite what Brown considers to be an austere budget, he surmised that in the future, the five members on the Commissioners' Court are "going to have to increase the tax rate upwards of 10 percent to cover our normal operating expenses.

"We are keeping up with latest technology."

And though he viewed any 10 percent tax increase as "abominable," Brown said the Midland citizens "want us to operate county government in an efficient manner, and people working there have to be paid" living wages.

"We have got some great people working here for the county," Brown said, "and some great elected officials. It hurts when your budget is so tight that we cannot begin to recognize our employees like we would like to."

GARTH: Singer stars despite, or because of, views

(From 1A)

Bailey is speaking specifically about the incident that occurred a couple of years ago with Brooks' video "The Thunder Rolls," which graphically depicted spouse abuse.

The network wanted Brooks to record a public service announcement to air with that video, Bailey says. Brooks recorded one, but then changed his mind and asked them not to air it, so the network chose not to run the video, Bailey says.

Brooks' camp has a slightly different story. They say the network banned the video, which is the story that hit the headlines. No matter. The video and record became a big success, probably benefiting somewhat from the publicity.

"I don't know of anything he's tried to stay away from. He doesn't really shy away from controversial subjects," says Scott Stem, a spokesman for Brooks. "He's very passionate, and if there's something he believes in, he's willing to speak out on it."

Aside from his music (he spoke out for gay rights in "We Shall Be Free," for instance), Brooks also hasn't shied away from the business side of things. He's lobbied against ticket scalping, protesting in news conferences that the practice hurts fans. And he threatened to withhold his album "In Pieces" from record stores selling used CDs, saying that cost the artists. He later backed away from that threat.

Controversy or not, no one disputes that Brooks is willing to speak his mind — and, often, to put his money where his mouth is.

In January, Brooks headlined two concerts in Los Angeles and presented all the proceeds — including that from T-shirt sales — to a group in Los Angeles that wanted to build a youth education center. The $1 million from Brooks, paired with $500,000 each from the National Football League and the United Way, built the Youth Education Training Center in Compton, in an area where most of the buildings had burned during the riots in the aftermath of the Rodney King verdict.

"He's the only major celebrity that came along with the thing that speaks the loudest, and that's the money," says Mike Davis, executive director of the center.

Much of Brooks' charitable work, of course, is in traditional arenas. In Oklahoma, where Brooks grew up, he's done highway safety public service announcements, and shortly after his first hit, he did a benefit for the Future Farmers of America chapter at his old high school. He works with the Make-A-Wish foundation for terminally ill children and often visits children's hospitals, Stem says.

He's also been a supporter of Feed the Children, an Oklahoma City-based charity that gathers and distributes food here and abroad. The charity, which is also supported by country stars including Randy Travis, Trisha Yearwood, Vince Gill and Reba McEntire, collects food at concerts — including Brooks' three sold-out shows at Texas Stadium Sept. 23-25 — and distributes it to food pantries near the concert venue.

Larry Jones, who founded Feed the Children, says Brooks has helped open doors to the charity, including making it possible for them to collect 30,000 pounds of leftover food from the Super Bowl parties in January.

TEAM: Clintons pitch overhaul plan to critics

(From 1A)

their plan but instead to provide them a chance to listen as 21 Americans voiced frustration with the current system.

In their joint appearance Monday, the Clintons stressed that the completion of their blueprint marks the beginning of negotiation and compromise.

As White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers put it: "We've always believed that the exact composition of this package would be subject to great debate and probably a lot of changes. ... If somebody has a better idea, we're open to it."

The early willingness to rework a proposal eight months in the making underscored the Clintons' eagerness to deflect some of the political salvos that lie ahead.

Mrs. Clinton, leading the 50-minute White House presentation to the doctors, said the plan brings the nation to the "the brink of what we hope will be the kind of changes that will assure health security to every American." By offering their plan, "we have really sparked what will culminate in the final reform effort," she said.

The president echoed a readiness to compromise.

"We need a discussion, we need constructive criticism, we need constructive disagreement on some points," the president said, adding that he was "determined to pursue this in a completely bipartisan fashion."

Clinton likened his desire to change the health care system to President John F. Kennedy's challenge to put a man on the moon without knowing exactly how to do it.

"We know that this will not be done overnight," Clinton said. "But we know that we have to begin now. This is a magic moment."

Dr. C. Everett Koop, who served as surgeon general during the Reagan and Bush administrations, told the doctors invited to the White House that Clinton, by tackling the tough health care issue, had "accomplished more in the past four months than all of his living predecessors put together."

Koop urged the physicians to debate "in the spirit of reform and of give-and-take," adding: "This time doctors cannot allow themselves to be cast in the role of naysayers."

Symbolizing the president's effort at bipartisanship, Koop will coordinate a series of forums around the country that will solicit doctors' views on the health-care plan.

But bipartisanship seemed an elusive goal. Republican Party Chairman Haley Barbour exhorted state GOP leaders to take the offensive against the Clinton plan. He said in a memo that Republicans cannot afford to "sit on our hands while the Clintons try to pull the wool over the country's eyes."

Senior White House officials said the president and first lady would continue to emphasize broad goals for revamping the $940 billion health care system but leave details to White House lieutenants and lawmakers.

FATE: Congress approves closings

military and civilian defense-related jobs; Florida, facing the loss of 22,000 jobs, and South Carolina, which is expected to lose more than 14,700 jobs.

Among the major installations on the list are Alameda Naval Air Station in California, the Orlando Naval Training Center in Florida and the Charleston Naval Station and Naval Shipyard in South Carolina.

Slated for closure are 35 major bases and 95 minor facilities; 27 major and 18 minor installations will be realigned.

The commission estimated that closing the bases will save about $4 billion from fiscal 1994 to fiscal 1999 after one-time closure costs of $7 billion. Savings after the turn of the century will be about $2.3 billion annually.

Reflecting the general consensus that the closures were a done deal, no motion of disapproval surfaced in the House and only nine senators spoke on the issue during Monday's low-key debate.

Senate Armed Services Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., expressed his sympathy for the affected communities, but argued that if the bases aren't closed, the military will have to reduce the size of its force.

"One way or another people are going to lose jobs," Nunn said.

The senator warned that failure to shut down installations would return the military to the hollow armed services of the 1970s when the United States "kept the bases and eroded readiness of forces to fight."

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., a sponsor of the resolution to reject the closings, described her effort as "a last-ditch plea." She contended that the panel failed to acknowledge the economic impact of its decisions, especially in her state.

"It's almost like a doomsday machine. It goes on and on regardless of what happens," Feinstein said of the commission.

Sen. John Glenn, a member of the Armed Services Committee, reminded his colleagues that as the military reduces the number of troops and weapons, base closings are a necessary process.

"We just can't afford to keep everything open that we would like to keep open all over the country," the Ohio Democrat said. "The Cold War has passed us. We're in a time of slowdown. ... We don't need all these bases, and basically we can't continue to pay for them."

Earlier this year, the four military services made their recommendations to Defense Secretary Les Aspin.

Refugees put Mexico-Cuba relations in conflict over NAFTA

MEXICO CITY — A series of incidents involving Cuban refugees headed for the United States has brought Mexico's traditional friendliness with Cuba into new conflict with its effort to win approval for the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The largest group, 72 Cubans, crept under a garden wall at Mexico's embassy in the Dominican Republic on Thursday, refusing to leave unless Mexico helped them get to Miami.

Like two similar cases, the incident in Santo Domingo has been complicated by American politics. In those cases, the refugees ultimately were allowed to travel on, but this time Mexico has refused, saying it will not act as a consular intermediary.

Cuban-American leaders, who support the flight of refugees, have pressed Mexico to change its mind, threatening to muster what influence they can against the trade agreement.

Rep. Lincoln Diaz-Balart, a South Florida Republican, said at least a few legislators from predominantly Cuban-American districts plan to vote against the trade pact already, in part because they are critical of Mexico's relations with Cuba.

Mexican officials say that they fear that anger over the refugee problem could further imperil the accord.

"We do not need any explosive issue to come up which is going to interfere with what is already a very difficult process," a senior Mexican official said, explaining the efforts to placate Cuban-American groups. "It is a relatively small price to pay."

Last month, the Mexican navy picked up eight refugees off the Yucatan Peninsula. Seven others had died when their boat sank. Mexico deported the survivors, an act that led to protests by Cuban-Americans in Miami.

Within a week, the decision was reversed and the Cubans were returned to Mexico and given visas. The Mexican Consul in Miami, Bulmaro Pacheco, made the announcement in a news conference with the Cuban American National Foundation, a lobbying group Mexico has criticized in the past.

The Cuban ambassador to Mexico, Jose Fernandez de Cossio, said Cuba did not oppose the departures of the shipwreck victims or of 11 Cubans who walked into the Mexican Embassy in Havana on Sept. 9 and refused to leave when political asylum was denied.

He insisted that those incidents had not hurt relations with Mexico. But the Cuban government reacted sharply to the occupation of the Mexican Embassy in Santo Domingo.

"I think all of this is orchestrated," President Fidel Castro told La Jornada, a Mexico City newspaper. "It is the most provocative elements of the counterrevolution, the most recalcitrant enemies of Cuba."

Although Mexico said it is determined to stop the flow of refugees, the problem continues. On Monday, officials reported that eight more Cubans rescued from a sinking boat in the Gulf of Mexico had arrived in Veracruz, seeking safe passage to the United States.

Amicable relations toward the communist government in Cuba have long been viewed in Mexico as a measure of foreign-policy independence from the United States.

Bosnia's leaders fail to agree; peace plans scuttled

ZAGREB, Croatia (AP) — Bosnia's three warring factions failed anew to come to terms at a surprise meeting Monday aboard a British warship in the Adriatic Sea, wrecking plans for a peace signing in Sarajevo.

Croatian radio and the "Politika" TV news program in Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, said the Sarajevo meeting had been called off.

Croatia's HINA news agency quoted mediators' spokesman John Mills as saying there were "no steps forward in negotiations" Monday on the aircraft carrier HMS Invincible.

The biggest obstacle to the plan, which would divide Bosnia into Serb, Croat and Muslim mini-states, appeared to be a dispute over how to give the Muslim-led government access to the Adriatic.

The meeting included Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic, Bosnian Croat leader Mate Boban and Croatian President Franjo Tudjman. HINA said President Slobodan Milosevic of Serbia and Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic also were aboard, although some reports said Karadzic sent representatives.

The session was mediated by special envoys Lord Owen of the European Community and Thorvald Stoltenberg of the United Nations, who had said they hoped a plan could be ready for signing Tuesday in the besieged Bosnian capital.

HINA said Tudjman was returning to Zagreb. Stoltenberg and Owen were reported to have flown to Split, Croatia.

A Serb member of Bosnia's collective presidency, Mirko Pejanovic, said earlier he believed the Sarajevo meeting would be canceled and that talks might resume Tuesday in Split.

Peace talks collapsed Sept. 1 in Geneva when Serbs and Croats balked at giving Izetbegovic more territory for what would be a landlocked, Muslim-dominated state in central Bosnia.

Tudjman also refused to guarantee access to the sea through the port of Neum. Now, however, he appears ready to offer access to the nearby Croatian port of Ploce.

Izetbegovic apparently maintained that the Muslims were not being offered viable port arrangements.

War broke out 18 months ago when Serbs rebelled after Bosnia's Muslims and Croats voted for independence from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia. Up to 200,000 people are dead or missing, and more than 2 million homeless.

Apparently ignoring a cease-fire that was to have taken effect Saturday, Bosnian government forces kept pushing on the northern and southern ends of a front line running through central Bosnia, in an appaprent effort to secure supply routes this winter.

The Muslim-led Bosnian forces made "significant gains" of six or seven miles against Croats north of Mostar, U.N. spokesman Lt. Col. Bill Aikman said in Sarajevo. Bosnian Croats envison Mostar as their capital.

Fierce fighting was reported in Mostar in the southwest, where up to 50,000 Muslims have been under Croat siege for months in the city's eastern half.

Another U.N. spokesman, Idesbald van Biesenbroeck, said late Monday that heavy shelling was reported in eastern Mostar. Bosnian radio said Croat shelling was heavy, but that government forces were making gains.

The common form of a strip and endplay requires declarer to draw all the enemy trumps and clear one or two suits. On rare occasions, however, you can achieve the same result while some cards are still in the enemy hands.

North's negative double guaranteed four spades. After a cue-bidding sequence, North's four no trump was Roman Key-card Blackwood, in which the king of trumps counts as an ace. When South's response confirmed three key cards, North bid the small slam.

West led the king of hearts and, looking at all four hands, 12 tricks are easy to come by—four trumps, five clubs, thanks to the even division, two red aces and a heart ruff in the closed hand. Unfortunately, declarer was not playing with glass cards.

After winning the ace of hearts, South cashed two high trumps, ending in dummy. A heart was ruffed and declarer returned to dummy with a club to the king, fetching the jack from West.

Applying the Principle of Restricted Choice, declarer continued with a club to the ten, losing to the queen. It might seem the contract was now lost, but West was trapped in an endplay.

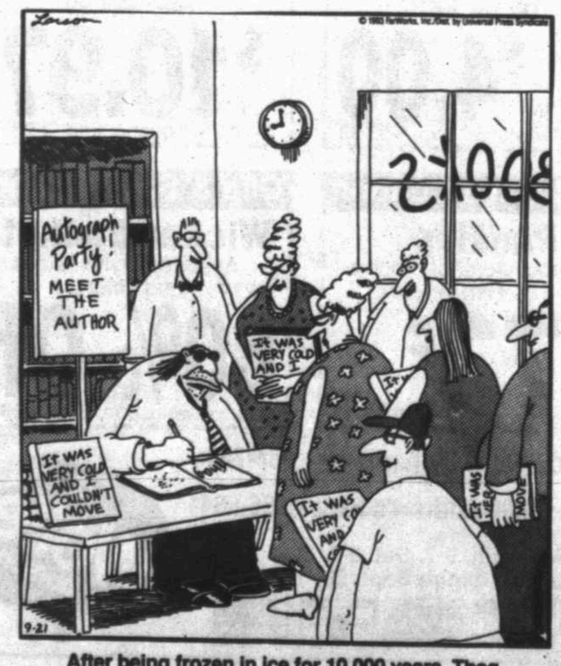

Down to nothing but red cards, West could not afford to lead a heart—declarer would ruff that in hand while discarding the losing diamond from the table. Instead, West led a diamond in the hope that East held the queen, but that was into the jaws of death. Six clubs bid and made.

Gunman robs Michelle Phillips in West Hollywood parking lot

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Actress Michelle Phillips was robbed at gunpoint while sitting in a parked car with a friend, authorities said today.

Phillips

Miss Phillips, 49, gave up her purse to the bandits, and neither she nor her friend were hurt during the Sunday night robbery, sheriff's Deputy Gabe Ramirez said.

The actress, who starred in television's "Knots Landing," was also a member of the popular 1960s singing group the Mamas and the Papas, known for hits such as "California Dreamin'" and "Monday, Monday." Her daughter, Chynna, is in the pop group Wilson Phillips.

Two gunmen approached the actress and Aloma Ichinose, 50, as they sat in a car in the parking lot of a restaurant about 10:45 p.m. The two had intended to eat there, but it was closed, Ramirez said.

One of the men placed the barrel of a handgun against Ms. Ichinose's head and demanded money, Ramirez said. Miss Phillips surrendered her purse and the men ran away, he said.

Miss Phillips lost an unidentified amount of cash, credit cards and identification, Ramirez said.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — When he's on tour, singer Robert Plant likes to visit the local stomping grounds of his musical heroes.

"I do it everywhere in the world. I just go," the former lead singer for Led Zeppelin said in The Commercial Appeal newspaper Sunday.

Plant, who is performing Wednesday in Memphis, said he's thinking of making his second visit to nearby Robinsonville, Miss., the former home of blues legend Robert Johnson and other musicians.

"There's a lot of spent emotion down there, a lot of oppression, a lot of sadness, a lot of muted expression down there and on into Helena, Ark.," Plant said. "It just feels quite sad."

Plant's current album is "Fate of Nations." With Led Zeppelin, he is known for such songs as "Stairway to Heaven," "Kashmir" and " Whole Lotta Love."

CINCINNATI — Deborah Norville had an extra reason for joining CBS television's "Street Stories" — to shed her all-glamour, no-substance image.

Given the furor created when she replaced popular co-host Jane Pauley on NBC's "Today" in January 1990, Ms. Norville, 35, said she was surprised by her acceptance at the news magazine show.

"They only knew what they had read," she said Monday in The Cincinnati Enquirer. "And look at the rap on me when I left NBC: 'gorgeous; couldn't report her way out of a paper bag, a real bad attitude, a prima donna.'"

She became a reporter for "Street Stories" almost a year ago, she said, "to get rid of the glamour-puss label I was stuck with."

She was to speak before the Junior League of Cincinnati today about how she has bounced back in her career.

RICHMOND, Va. — Navy Lt. Paula Coughlin has no regrets about coming forward with accusations she was sexually harassed by fellow officers at the 1991 Tailhook convention in Las Vegas.

"Life for Paula Coughlin after going public is not a picnic," she said Saturday as she was honored by the Virginia Press Women as Newsmaker of the Year. "I'm doing OK, it was worth it and I'd do it again in a minute."

Dozens of men who attended the convention for naval aviators face review by military prosecutors.

Coughlin said she would consider leaving the Navy if she found a job she thought was better for her.

"Until then, I'm in the Navy," she said. "And you know what? It makes a lot of men mad."

That's not a problem, she said.

"If it makes them angry, it's worth it."

INDIANAPOLIS — Charlton Heston says he never had any problem preparing for his biographical roles, such as Moses in "The Ten Commandments," because there was always plenty to read.

"With historical roles, obviously, you have their letters, their personal papers, in some instances their autobiographical writings," the 69-year-old actor said.

Moses, for example, "probably had more written about him than any other figure in history except Christ, ranging all the way from the Five Books of Moses to a monograph by Sigmund Freud," Heston said.

Heston will be in Indianapolis later this week to lecture on the great men he's portrayed. "The emphasis is on the man rather than their function as a role for me and my work," he said.

DENVER — James Earl Jones acts on stage, television and movies and supplied the menacing baritone voice of Darth Vader in "Star Wars," but between the ages of 6 and 14 he stuttered and was virtually mute.

Jones, 62, on a promotional tour for his book "Voices and Silences," says a high school teacher helped him overcome his stuttering by encouraging him to recite poetry, and that led him to acting.

Key West landing stresses danger

There was a day not all that long ago — October 1962, to be exact — that the unexpected approach of a Cuban military aircraft at Key West, Fla. would have resulted in the scrambling of U.S. fighter aircraft and a full scale military alert.

Last Friday a Soviet MiG military jet apparently landed at Key West Naval Air Station and no jets were scrambled, no military sirens signaled the approach of the attack jet. In fact, there's been no indication that any U.S. agencies even tracked its flight.

While it would be easy to attribute the lack of concern to the breakup two years ago of the Soviet Union and the resulting improvement in relations between the United States and former Communist-led nations, that is false security where Cuba is concerned. Fidel Castro still holds a tight grip on the people of the island nation, and although rumors concerning the anticipated "fall" of Castro from his position of power have been circulating for months, the wily old revolutionary is still in control of his country and, thus, a potential threat to the security of the United States.

The improved relations with the nations of the former Soviet Union may lend an opportunity for better relations with Castro in the future, but so far he has not indicated a desire for a less hostile relationship. In the absence of movement toward a more open society for the Cuban people, it would be foolish for the United States to drop its guard to Castro.

Asked by the Associated Press about the unexpected MiG landing at Key West, a federal official reportedly responded, "We didn't see or chase it."

That's a dangerous posture to take until we know more certainly Castro's intentions.

Leadership move gets best wishes for future

With the hiring of Charlene Romero Wurtz as its executive director, the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce should be able to make great strides in the future.

After the chamber's formation in 1984, it enjoyed tremendous growth and success under the leadership of Elvia Hernandez. That same quality of leadership is possible with Ms. Wurtz as executive director of the chamber.

She has experience in business, having worked both as general manager of Nueva Vista and as manager of Webco Printing. Currently, she is on the board of Midland College.

Now that Ms. Wurtz is in the role of executive director, the chamber should again experience good growth. There are numerous areas in which the Hispanic Chamber can be beneficial to the residents of Midland and the community's business community.

We wish her and the chamber all the best.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 21, the 264th day of 1993. There are 101 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

One hundred years ago, on Sept. 21, 1893, a horseless carriage — believed to be the first gasoline-powered automobile built in the United States — was taken for a short test drive in Springfield, Mass., by Frank Duryea, who had designed the vehicle with his brother, Charles.

On this date:

In 1792, the French National Convention voted to abolish the monarchy.

In 1897, the New York Sun ran its "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus" editorial in response to a letter from 8-year-old Virginia O'Hanlon.

In 1931, Britain went off the gold standard.

In 1938, a hurricane struck parts of New York and New England, causing widespread damage and claiming more than 600 lives.

In 1949, the People's Republic of China was proclaimed by its Communist leaders.

In 1964, Malta gained independence from Britain.

In 1970, "NFL Monday Night Football" made its debut on ABC-TV as the Cleveland Browns defeated the visiting New York Jets, 31-21.

In 1973, the U.S. Senate confirmed Henry Kissinger to be Secretary of State.

In 1981, the Senate unanimously confirmed the nomination of Sandra Day O'Connor to become the first female justice on the Supreme Court.

In 1989, Hurricane Hugo crashed into Charleston, S.C.

Ten years ago: In a speech to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Interior Secretary James G. Watt jokingly described a special advisory panel as consisting of "a black ... a woman, two Jews and a cripple." Although Watt later apologized, he ended up resigning.

Five years ago: The Soviet women's gymnastics team won the gold medal at the Seoul Summer Olympics, with Romania placing second and East Germany third. The government reported that consumer prices had risen .4 percent in August 1988.

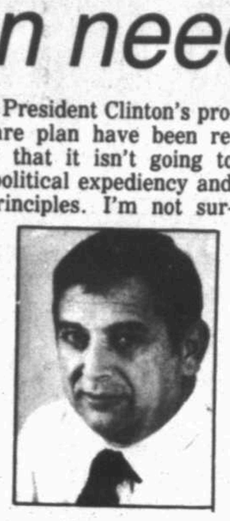

One year ago: President Bush addressed the U.N. General Assembly, offering U.S. support to strengthen international peacekeeping. Former defense secretaries Melvin Laird and James R. Schlesinger told a congressional committee that the Pentagon had known that American airmen were alive in Laos at the end of the Vietnam War and were not returned.

Today's Birthdays: Cartoon animator Chuck Jones is 81. Actor Larry Hagman is 62. Actor-comedian Henry Gibson is 58. CIA Director James Woolsey is 52. Author-comedian Fannie Flagg is 49. Former White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan is 49.

CHARLEY REESE

Clinton needs to study auto dealers

Enough details of President Clinton's proposed health care plan have been revealed to know that it isn't going to work. He has chosen political expediency and smoke rather than principles. I'm not surprised that he did.

Reese

Months ago, I wrote that the key would be whether Clinton faced squarely the issue of costs or simply tried to shift them to someone else's back. He's proposing to shift them. He sold out to the health care industry. That means health care costs, under Clinton, will be higher, not lower. It means the American economy will be pushed further into the mud.

The essence of his plan, as so far revealed, is to require employers to pay for health care and to pay additional taxes for those who aren't employed. So what's wrong with that?

A better question is, What's new about that? And the answer is, Only the additional taxes. The overwhelming majority of employers already provide health care for their employees. Those who don't generally don't because they can't afford it. They are already forced to pay half the cost of Social Security and all the costs of unemployment insurance, and workmen's compensation for each employee. Those costs are one factor in driving jobs out of America and also in trying to eliminate jobs by automation. The last thing the United States needs is an additional incentive to increase unemployment.

One thing wrong with professional politicians is that they don't know how to run a business. Businesses exist only so long as sales revenue exceeds the costs of doing business. When government adds to the cost of doing business, it doesn't increase the sales revenue by one penny. Thus adding to the costs of doing business can put small to medium businesses under.

Most businesses are not giant transnational corporations. They operate on modest to slim margins. They have no piles of gold hidden in their office safes. It doesn't take much either to put the business into bankruptcy or to convince the owner that the labor and risk just isn't worth the diminished income.

We have to face the truth about government. Government, because it is parasitical, cannot create prosperity, but it can destroy it. Government cannot spend a dime until it takes a dime out of the private sector. Thus, government only redistributes wealth, it never creates it. If it takes too much from the private sector and redistributes it in non-productive ways, the people will end up poorer.

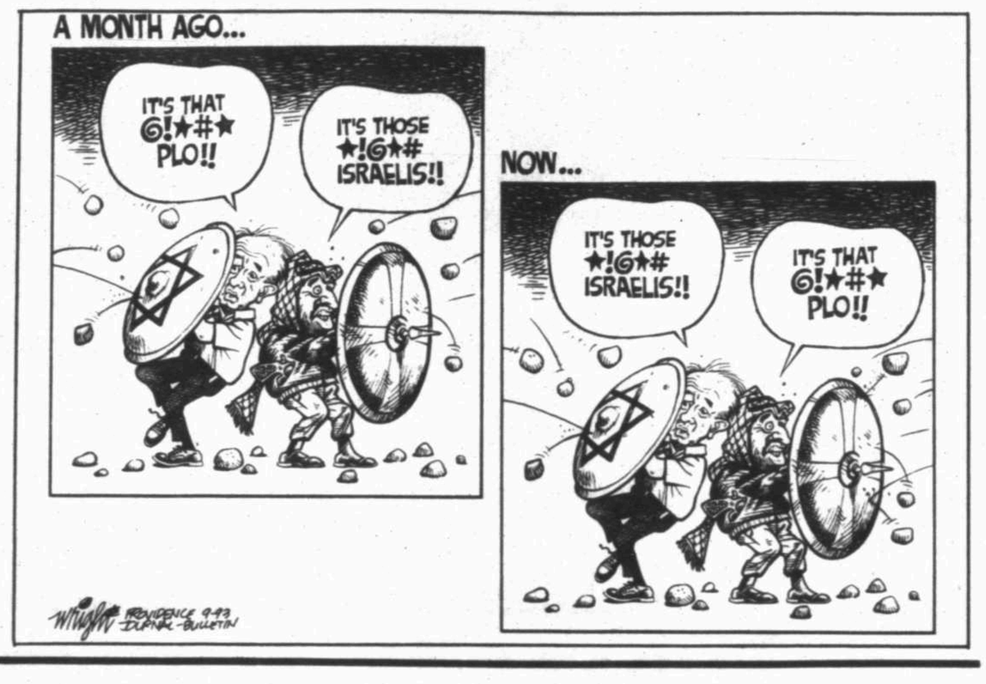

In wiser days, Americans agreed the main functions of government were to protect us from foreign invasion, maintain order, provide some infrastructure, and dispense knowledge. In our century, however, Americans were persuaded to see government the same way the socialist or the Marxist sees it — as a provider of all wants, a regulator of all activities. As our present circumstances clearly indicate, this was an error in thinking.

Clinton's plan is a classic politician's gambit. Instead of levying one broad-based tax to provide health care for everyone, he's going to propose taxing only those people who are already providing health care for themselves and for their employees.

We'd be better off with what we have than with what he's planning to propose. George Bush didn't want to do anything and Clinton wants to do the wrong thing. What a great choice the Republican and Democratic parties gave us.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

People should realize culture's broken

The latest German tourist to be murdered in Miami was doing everything right. This was according to a police official. His van was bumped from behind. He kept going. The bandits shot him anyway. The British tourist murdered at a Florida rest stop was merely trying to sleep.

Murchison

When you are doing everything right, and nothing works, it is clear that the main thing that doesn't work is the system. Not "the system," in that vague 1960s sense of the-mean-guys-in-authority. Our carefully nurtured system of inner and outer checks on wrong behavior no longer works. We have let it go to rack and ruin, notably over the past 30 years.

The idea many Americans receive from looking around them and listening to what goes on is that everything out there is theirs for the taking, no consequences attached. How could we have come to this?

Crime of course has increased throughout the 20th century, yet the number of homicides in 1960 was about the same as in 1925. In the late '60s, everything fell apart. The culture became seized with the notion that self-expression and personal license were the great human goods. "If it feels good, do it!" a popular slogan enjoined. If it feels good to whom? The individual. How about other individuals and the effects on them? Sorry, that wasn't in the plan.

But the virus spread. If it feels good to kill a tourist, why not do it? What ethical considerations could intercede? Wasn't "doing it" the essence of life?

Institutions were supposed to persuade us otherwise; but institutions, too, got the bug. Families, the great civilizing and nurturing institutions, were swept with waves of desertion and divorce.

The welfare programs of the Great Society, which were meant to strengthen black families, sundered them instead: leaving many black children to grow up in a vacuum. "Back in the '30s, '40s, and '50s," Walter Williams, the columnist, says in recollection of the black inner-city neighborhood where he grew up, "'parents' were everywhere. If you did something wrong, even in another neighborhood, your real parents were likely to learn about it, sometimes even before you got home. . . . Experts wring their hands debating this and studying that about what's wrong with the large and increasing black underclass in our cities. But the answer is simple. Relationships and behaviors among people in black neighborhoods, once natural, are now unnatural."

Travis DA plays partisan game

Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison is a victim of Democratic fears and machinations.

The laws in Texas and other states permit a person to hold one political office and at the same time to run for another office. As any businessman or businesswoman knows, to do both jobs simultaneously and efficiently, it is practically impossible to separate the two activities in a busy office.

Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle clearly has a double standard in investigating Democrats and Republicans. According to an editorial in the June 13th Houston Chronicle, Gary Mauro, campaign chairman for Texas in Gov. Clinton's campaign, permitted his staff to actively engage in organizing the state for Clinton during the primaries. Ronnie Earle permitted Mauro to do his own in-house investigation, bring the results to the DA's office at a much later date, and Mauro was let off with a mere slap on the wrist. In the case of Kay Bailey Hutchison, Earle conducted a heavy-handed raid on the senator's office records, issued numerous subpoenas to her staff, and is treating her case far differently than he treated Mauro.

Ronnie Earle's investigation of Sen. Hutchison should be recognized by all Texans, Republicans and Democrats, for what is is: purely partisan vindictiveness and harassment with the goal of regaining her all-important senatorial seat for a tax-and-spend Democrat.

Animal Control irks pet owner

Over the years there have been many things I have contemplated writing a letter about, but today is the day. Over the past few weeks we have had the misfortune to have to deal with the Midland Animal Control. First of all, my sister's little dog (weighs about nine pounds) was attacked by two Chow dogs that run loose in her neighborhood. (We don't think her dog will live.) Those dogs attack and kill other peaceful animals in the neighborhood. (Some day it will probably be a child.) My sister called several times to the Animal Control Center, but they never came out to even see what was going on.

Friday my two little dogs accidentally got out of our back yard. Only a couple of other times have these dogs gotten out and that was because some children in the neighborhood let them out. These dogs have tags with my phone number on them. I was never called. I finally got in touch with the Animal Control Saturday morning. I was told it would cost me $40 apiece to get them out, plus I would get a ticket for having "Dogs At Large." Also that I would have to go to court and pay another $60 or I can go to Pet Seminar and learn the proper way to take care of animals. Let me tell you, these dogs are better taken care of than most children in the world.

Now, what really got to me was my dogs were picked up one block (on the same street) from my house. The address is where one of our "officers of the law" lives. These people have seen me out walking my dogs many times. The dogs have always been on a leash. I really don't understand why my good neighbors could not have called me instead of the Animal Control and I would have gladly picked up my "Dogs at Large."

Gary Ott opens can of worms

Yeah, Gary Ott, it is nauseating to see people spit in public. But that is a birdie putt compared to people who blow their nose at the table. That is not only nauseating it is downright revolting, disgusting and barbaric.

So as long as we are on this subject, of a sort, there are the slobs who wear hats at the dinner table. Wives and girlfriends should tell their husbands and boyfriends, "If you are going to eat with me, take off your hat." Mothers should tell their sons the same.

Then there are women who leave a restaurant with a toothpick in the mouth. Ugh. Men do it also, but it seems worse to see women doing it. Now there are the annoying slobs who leave the shopping cart on the parking lot in front of or behind a car. Too lazy to take it back.

Aw gee whiz, Gary. You opened this can of worms but the list is too long.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification. Letters not including this information will not be considered.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.
- Letters will be edited for length, taste and legal reasons and are accepted only on that basis.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702.

Teen charged with ice cream theft gets probation

ATLANTA (AP) — A 17-year-old sentenced to three years in prison for stealing ice cream bars from a school was told Monday he won't have to go back to prison if he finishes high school.

Dehundra Caldwell had served 10 days of his sentence before being freed on bond Sept. 1 pending a review of his case. He was granted probation Monday.

"Our job is to be the conscience of the state, to decide when a sentence is fair," said Tommy Morris, chairman of the Georgia Board of Pardons and Paroles.

The stiff sentence for a youth with no previous criminal record provoked outrage among many in Thomaston, a small community about 50 miles south of Atlanta. Critics said it was an example of the harsher treatment blacks in rural Georgia are routinely subjected to.

"What happened to Dehundra Caldwell was commonplace," said Bruce Roberts of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Atlanta. "It's an overreaction to the idea that black males are violence-prone. So often, the discipline way outstrips the offense."

Under terms of his probation, Caldwell must finish high school and tutor one person in writing and reading. If he doesn't, the 11th-grader will be sent to a boot camp for young offenders.

Caldwell said he plans to work hard in high school and major in computer science in college.

"I know I can get it off my mind and get through this. I'm going to try my best to make it," he said.

He said he was happy not to have to return to prison, adding, "I feel that it shouldn't have gone this far."

Caldwell had said he, his 15-year-old brother and a 16-year-old friend were on their way to play basketball when they stopped by the Upson-Lee Middle School in Thomaston on July 11. They took ice cream bars from a cafeteria freezer.

He contended they entered through an unlocked door, although authorities said they found signs of forced entry.

Superior Court Judge Andrew Whalen sentenced Caldwell after the teen-ager pleaded guilty Aug. 23. Caldwell said he received little assistance from his public defender.

The other two teen-agers were sentenced under juvenile law, with Caldwell's brother ordered to perform community service and the other boy, who had a criminal record, sent to a juvenile home.

The case captured national attention and scorn. The Atlanta Constitution said in an editorial that the sentence represented "all that's wrong with this state's criminal justice system."

Whalen contended that the case was handled properly, saying Caldwell was advised of his rights and of the sentence in a plea bargain agreement, and adding that no one asked him for leniency.

At one point, the judge said he would reconsider the sentence. But he changed his mind last week and forwarded the matter to the Board of Pardons and Paroles. He also condemned the media for what he called inaccurate coverage of the sentence.

The board's chairman said Caldwell's sentence was unusually harsh, but he said the judge was "from the old school" and there was no reason to suspect he was racist.

"He has a very tough philosophy of sentencing," Morris said.

Toddler hears missing boy train

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — A 9-year-old boy missing over the weekend was found unhurt Monday in a railroad grain car after a toddler told his grandmother the train was talking to him.

Steven T. Marson, a fourth-grader, had climbed into the top-loaded grain car Friday while playing near his home in Indianapolis.

Police suspected Steven had hopped a freight train because his friends had apparently done it before. That led to searches as far away as Little Rock, Ark., of trains that had passed through Steven's neighborhood Friday.

But it wasn't until 2-year-old Joey Vandergraff convinced his grandmother that "Thomas the Tank Engine" was talking to him that Steven was found in Lafayette, 60 miles northwest of Indianapolis.

Joey, playing in his grandmother's back yard Monday morning, heard Steven's cries for help and thought it was the character from the "Shining Time Station" children's television series on PBS.

"He said, 'Grandma, Thomas is talking to me,'" said Linda Yost.

Strong winds damage track in Oklahoma

SALLISAW, Okla. (AP) — Strong winds ripped the roofs from three horse barns and twisted the tin roofs of most of the others at the Blue Ribbon Downs racetrack early Monday.

Ron Castka, marketing director, said damage was expected to be in the tens of thousands of dollars. Track officials were waiting on insurance estimates Monday afternoon.

Castka said safety hazards had been removed and roads were opened up. Once the track received word from its insurance company, cleanup was to begin.

The winds accompanied a line of strong thunderstorms that moved across the state Sunday night and early Monday.

All the barns at Blue Ribbon had water standing in them after the rains moved through.

None of the 70 to 80 horses in the damaged barns suffered more than bumps and bruises.

Here's another necessity for your apartment.

If you are living in an apartment or duplex, this may be the first opportunity you've had to experience the terrific benefits of having natural gas in your home. You will find that for heating your home during cold weather, for hot water, or for cooking, nothing beats natural gas for convenience, economy, and efficiency.

With cooler temperatures just around the corner, here are a few reminders from your friends at Energas Company on the safe and responsible use of natural gas where you live.

Your furnace needs an annual check-up.

Your natural gas furnace has been sitting quietly all summer, waiting for the time it's really needed. And like anything that's been idle a while, your furnace needs a checkup before it starts back to work. You may want to check with your landlord or apartment manager about arranging for an annual inspection by a qualified professional heating contractor. Once it's been inspected, your furnace should require very little attention the rest of the winter.

A closet isn't always a closet.

Your water heater or furnace is probably in a closet all by itself. And that's the way it should stay. As tempting as it may be, don't use the space around a water heater or furnace for storage. Even if these major appliances sit in the open, the space around them should be kept clear to insure adequate air circulation.

If you smell gas.

We hope that you will never have to deal with a gas leak. If you do smell gas, day or night, exit the building then call your local Energas office immediately. Do not flip light switches or use any other electrical equipment. Do not light a match or a candle. Do not try to find the leak yourself.

For more information.

Get a free folder from your landlord or apartment manager. Or call your local Energas office.

DEAR ABBY

Limits on safety boxes protect innkeepers more than guests

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please let your readers know that they are not necessarily protected if they leave their valuables in a hotel safety deposit box. Most states have acts that protect innkeepers, not guests. The Illinois Innkeeper Protection Act, which is typical of the acts in most states, limits the liability to $500 even if the hotel is at fault.

Van Buren

For protection over $500, a guest must get the hotel to consent in writing to assume greater liability.

The law can be found on those little cards that establishments have posted on the door (inside) of the hotel room. — DAVID N. SCHAFFER, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW, CHICAGO

DEAR MR. SCHAFFER: I appreciate information that will be helpful to my readers. People who travel are familiar with the notice you describe; however, it's printed in type so small, one needs a magnifying glass to read it.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought that at 50-plus years old I would feel the fear, shame and stupidity I felt sitting in my gynecologist's office being tested for sexually transmitted diseases.

The lecture that my kind, caring physician gave me was severe — and I deserved it. He said, "Women who grew up in the 'Father Knows Best' age, and have unprotected sex in the '90s, are operating under a false reality."

A man (and so-called friend) I dated for years never used any kind of protection. Now I have learned that for at least two years, he has had multiple partners — plus some very seedy affairs. He says he will not "kiss and tell" — worse yet, he refuses to say whether he used protection with the others.

Well, today it is possible to "kiss and kill" — and now, I have had multiple partners because of this man's promiscuity.

Would you believe I have three grown sons who are smarter than me on this subject? Can you believe a person with a bachelor of science degree and a master's in education could have been this stupid?

My basic tests were clear, thank God, and I pray that the HIV test will be, too. A dear friend of mine died of AIDS, so I know firsthand how painful and tragic this disease is because I held his hand until the bitter end.

His elderly mother had the courage to sign his papers so that he could end treatment — and die. It was very hard for her. I pray that no one will have to sign them for me.

Abby, please print this letter as a warning to women everywhere: If you're getting in or out of a relationship, make sure that you are clean. Buy your own protection, and demand its use. I carry my test results with me as well as condoms. Don't leave home without them. This is the age where the doctor knows best. — WISER, AND PRAYING I'LL GROW OLDER

DEAR WISER AND PRAYING: Add my prayers to yours. It is to your credit that you took the time and effort to warn others in the strongest terms that unprotected sex can be a death sentence — whether it's with a stranger, or someone you have known and trusted for a very long time.

DEAR ABBY: After yet another letter concerning names (this one about Wiwat Yinghiattaveesuk Parsons), I wanted you to know that my husband enjoys meeting people with long, complicated names, especially when they acknowledge that their name is hard to pronounce or remember.

It gives him a chance to say, "Well, your name may be difficult, but mine is Harder." — ARLENE F. HARDER, ALTADENA, CALIF.

Even rich and famous need a word to the wise

By Erma Bombeck

Everyone in the office knows Doris. She suffers from terminal optimism. If you tell Doris your kids left a note saying they are running away from home, she smiles and says, "At least they still communicate."

Bombeck

If you tell her someone stole your car, she sighs, "Thank goodness it still runs." We used to say that if we had been on the Titanic just before we were loaded into the lifeboats, Doris would have chirped, "Now aren't you glad you didn't pay $2 to rent a deck chair?"

No matter how grim life gets, Doris looks beyond that and finds a ray of sunshine. The bluebird of happiness never relieves itself on Doris' Rolodex.

She also has another quality. Any superstar who makes the headlines instantly becomes a part of her family. She devours every line about them in the supermarket tabloids and regards it as gospel. She genuinely cares about these people and defends them to the hilt.

She sent Jane Pauley booties for her twins. She wrote a note to Connie Chung telling her to sleep with her feet elevated so she can conceive. When Mia sent Woody a valentine that had been slashed, she dropped a note to Woody saying her son did that one year and it didn't mean anything.

When Nixon was chastised for a photo-op of walking the beach in a suit and tie and dress shoes, Doris said, "He may be allergic to the sun. A lot of people are."

"Did you catch Barbara talking to Jean?" she asked one morning.

"That would be Barbara Walters and Jean . . ."

"Harris. You know, the one who served time for killing the diet doctor."

"It was inspiring," she continued. "Just think, if Jean hadn't had all that time in prison, she would never have said hello again to her sewing machine. We just don't take the time to sew anymore."

"Doris," I said, "that's like Mike Tyson vowing to lose a few pounds while he's incarcerated. What's wrong with Slim Fast?"

When someone in the office said Michael Jackson was weird for grabbing his crotch when he performed, Doris said stubbornly, "I know all about that. He told Oprah he does it because he's a 'slave to rhythm.'"

"What's that mean?" asked her co-worker. "He can't click his fingers like the rest of us?"

Doris was unusually quiet last week. When asked why, she said, "Loni and Burt fighting over that baby like it was a pair of Lakers tickets! It's disgusting."

Brace yourself, Loni and Burt. You're about to hear from Doris.

CD, video celebrates Dylan's 30th anniversary of 1st release

FORT WORTH — Bob Dylan came out of Nowheresville more than three decades ago, erupting with a fury that his idol, vagabond balladeer Woody Guthrie, could never have hoped to match.

Guthrie was never sufficiently ambitious to hang onto this or that career opportunity long enough to exploit it to the fullest.

But Dylan . . . his very name was a marketing ploy — an evocation of rowdy, doomed poet Dylan Thomas, and vastly more romantic-sounding than his given name: Robert Allen Zimmerman.

Dylan meant to forge a lasting security out of his Guthrie-styled drifter's image.

The abiding success of that campaign is underscored in the recent release of "Bob Dylan: The 30th Anniversary Concert Celebration" on CD and video.

On Oct. 16, 1992, an all-star lineup gathered at New York City's Madison Square Garden to mark the three decades since the release of Dylan's debut album. From Willie Nelson to Pearl Jam, The Clancy Bros. to The O'Jays, the gatherees supplied largely pleasing interpretations of 30-odd Dylan compositions.

The honoree himself showed up for a satisfying finale. A palpable camaraderie united the seemingly bizarre match of talents.

When Dylan broke ranks with the acoustic-only folkies in the mid-'60s, debuting an electrified set at the Newport Folk Festival, he weathered enough hissing and booing to drive a lesser artist into retreat.

But his commitment to the music saved the day, and his authenticity won over enough of the hostile audience that, since then, no one has exhibited the gall to try to categorize Bob Dylan.

Dylan proved authentic even when he doubted his own ability to claim authenticity: He would apologize for his earliest attempts to sing the blues, saying his youth and his Minnesota-born cultural isolation prevented him from carrying himself like the Southern bluesmen who inspired him.

Suspects arrested

ODESSA — Permian Basin Drug Task Force officials took three Odessa men into custody during three separate arrests Sunday.

According to a report, the first arrest occurred at approximately 2:15 a.m. about a half mile south of Interstate 20 on FM 1953 in Ector County. Officials stopped a vehicle, driven by 17-year-old Alphonso Silvas Dominguez, and found marijuana, with an estimated street value of $100.

Dominguez was out on bond Monday.

The second arrest occurred at about 10:20 p.m., according to the report. Terry Bennett, 32, was served with an arrest warrant for delivery of a controlled substance. Ms. Bennett was still in jail Monday with bond set at $104,000.

The third arrest occurred at about 11:55 p.m. at 519 W. 57th Street, Unit #A, in Odessa. Officials executed a search warrant at the residence and seized approximately one gram of prophlhexadrine hydrochloride, with an estimated street value of $30.

Judith Gail Weston, 32, was arrested and charged with possession of prophlhexadrine. Bond had not been set Monday afternoon.

U.S. educators 'work harder'

■ American teachers have more students, less time to prepare for classes than their international peers, study shows.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

American teachers spend more time in the classroom and less time in preparation than their European and Japanese counterparts, according to a recent comparative study of 19 economically advanced countries.

"American teachers have more students to teach, less time during the school day to prepare for teaching, and lower pay than most of their international peers," reported the American Federation of Teachers about their findings.

As a result of the lack of preparation time afforded American teachers, students may suffer, commented Steve Buck, president of the Midland Federation of Teachers and a Lee High School teacher.

"Preparation time is the number one factor in education — is what I think that study is trying to say," Buck said.

And in the country with the shortest preparation time, Texas ranks the worse among the states, he said.

Teachers generally have about an hour a day for planning, preparation and grading, Buck said. State law insures teachers 45 minutes per day, he added.

The study revealed that American teachers must do most of their preparations after school and on weekends. Buck said he estimates about 90 percent of teachers work at home, which may be detrimental due to fatigue and other factors.

As a result, Buck advocates a shorter class day and longer preparation time: quality over quantity.

U.S. secondary teachers spend an average five classes a day, five days a week teaching, and primary teachers spend more than 30 hours per week with students, according to the study.

In comparison, primary teachers in Japan spend about 17-20 hours in class, and in Germany about 20 hours per week, the study indicated.

"As in any job the more time you have to prepare the better job you can do," he said.

Buck said he still recognizes the importance of class size to provide work on the individual level.

But "if you make a good presentation, students are going to learn," he said. And more time to prepare means a better presentation, he added.

Local woman campaigns for national office

By Ed Todd

Lou Brown is probably more politically astute than most politicians.

Certainly, she knows how to get things done in the political realm better and with more finesse than most folk who have traipsed the cornfields of Minnesota, crossed the plains of West Texas, or stormed the nation's capital.

And while a person can easily "get lost in a (tall) cornfield," such as those in her native Minnesota, Mrs. Brown apparently has found her way quite clearly in politics.

Mrs. Brown, who is keen on shoring up America's morality and heightening its educational level, is a family-oriented leader who is convinced that the Republican Party's way of conducting America's political business is best for the country.

"The Republican philosophy about how government ought to work (is through) less government and more control in the hands of the people themselves," said Mrs. Brown, whose political aspirations for now are to get more Republicans, especially women, in public office at the community, regional, state, and national levels.

And she is on a quest to get elected as the 1994-95 president of the 115,000-

Lee High School draws hundreds of perfomers

By Myra Lee Salcedo

A cast of hundreds will join voices to amass the largest Lee High School choir in the 32-year history of the school.

Already more than 120 local LHS students and alumni are hitting the choir books to rehearse pieces that will be performed at the Oct. 29-31 "Celebrate the Tradition" event.

At least 300 people are expected to participate in the performance that will bring back fellow students who have gone on to make their marks as professional singers and composers.

"The response is just unbelievable," said LHS choir teacher Carol Hall. She said that in the past few weeks, the school choir room is averaging three calls a day from graduates who want another chance to sing with the chorus that has a long history of winning awards.

"The first concert I sang at was with the alumni choir, orchestra and Lone Star Brass last December," said LHS senior Jana Broughton. "I was really impressed, especially with Randy Bass' music."

The choir sang "Gloria," an original piece composed by Randol "Randy" Alan Bass, a 1971 LHS graduate. Bass has composed another piece for the October performance, which will feature a reunion and concert.

"We may learn about 11 pieces by the time all the solos have been added," Miss Broughton said. She said students have learned six pieces already.

"We had 61 show up at a recent eve-

People say hurtful things when relationship ends

Rambling thoughts . . .

— Do little boys still gawk at lingerie ads in department store catalogs?

— Don't laugh, it wasn't an altogether bad way to be introduced to the facts of life.

— And like with most things, there is something to be said for "leaving certain things to the imagination."

Ott

— Overheard: "To label a child 'illegitimate' is to commit child abuse. There are no illegitimate children, only illegitimate parents."

— I like shopping at a grocery store where I know the employees by name and, in return, they accept my checks without proof of ID.

— Regardless of your politics, it is hard not to be impressed with Hillary Clinton's ability to speak without the use of notes. She's one of those people who just sounds smart.

— It's funny how a breakup in a relationship encourages the people in question to say ugly things about their former mate they never would have said had they stayed together. Here's an example: Mia Farrow now claims to never have liked Woody Allen's movies.

— Come on, Mia, admit it, you're letting your bitterness get the best of you. It is not an attractive trait.

— I like a good late night talk show as much as the next person, but it would seem that we're getting dangerously close to overkill.

— Did you read the story in Saturday's paper in which Southern Baptists estimate 46.1 percent of people in Alabama are in danger of going to hell? I don't know about you, but I'd feel a whole lot more comfortable leaving that decision to God.

— Besides that, why are they picking on Alabama? What about the people in Louisiana or Nevada or, Lord help them, New York?

— You know you are getting old when you no longer want to attend Texas-OU weekend in Dallas.

— Today's quote comes from Edgar Allan Poe: "All that we see or seem is but a dream within a dream."

— Do you sometimes get the feeling that life was more enjoyable when there were fewer political activists forcing their views on the rest of us?

— It strikes me as a bit odd that people get all upset when they read about an athlete making millions of dollars for playing a game, but don't seem to mind it when a Michael Jackson or a Frank Sinatra earns a similar amount of money for singing and dancing. They are all entertainers who are paid based on the amount of revenue they can generate.

— You want proof that money is no object for most sports fans? A recent study showed that the average family of four spends $195 to see the Dallas Cowboys play a home game. That includes the cost of four tickets, two small beers, four small sodas, four hot dogs, parking for one car, two game programs and two souvenir caps. It only follows that the athletes responsible for luring those fans into the stadium — where they spend all that money — are going to earn huge salaries.

Neil E. Salsich

Services for Neil E. Salsich Jr. will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church with the Rev. Domingo Estrada officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Salsich

Prayer services will be at 7 p.m. today at the funeral home chapel.

Salsich died Saturday at his residence.

He was born May 25, 1926, in Bethlehem, Pa., and later moved to Columbus, Ohio, where he graduated from Columbus Academy. He attended Notre Dame University before entering the U.S. Navy during World War II. After his discharge, he attended Ohio State University where he earned degrees in business and geology. He married Donna Brenholts in 1950 and moved to Midland in 1951. He worked as an independent oil operator and then moved to Boulder, Colo., where he worked as a real estate developer. He returned to Midland in 1978 as president of Bengal Oil and Gas Company. He married Juanita Woodruff on Feb. 14, 1982.

He was preceded in death by two brothers, Peter Salsich and Jimmy Salsich, and two sisters, Gretchen Johnson and Ann Salsich.

Survivors include his wife, Juanita Irene Salsich of Midland; three sons, Neil E. Salsich III of Austin, Kevin Salsich of Sacramento, Calif., and Roy Salsich of Denver, Colo.; two stepsons, Steve Moreland of Midland and Curtis Moreland of Big Spring; two daughters, Sarah Salsich and Mary Hopkins, both of Denver, Colo.; a stepdaughter, Cindy Fields of Midland; two sister, Josie Case of Columbus, Ohio, and Jane Williams of Beaufort, N.C.; 11 grandchildren; a great-grandchild; and several nieces and nephews.

Memorials may be made to Problem Pregnancy of Midland, 805-A W. Missouri, Midland, 79701, or St. Vincent De Paul Society, 1223 Cherry Lane, Midland, 79701.

BROWN: Woman campaigns for NFRW office

(From 1B)

member National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW).

" Indeed, Mrs. Brown is in Las Vegas, Nev., this week to round out her campaign for the NFRW presidency.

Mrs. Brown, who by gubernatorial decrees is a "Yellow Rose of Texas" and a "Kentucky Colonel," was president of the Texas Federation of Republican Women in 1981-83.

NFRW, as the "educational arm" of the Republican Party, teaches party loyalists "how to run a campaign, how to work at the polls," how to maintain the grass-roots organization, how to get the information out to the people, and "what the campaigns are doing."

The group's aim is to put more Republicans in public office.

Mrs. Brown has been steeped in community, county, regional, state and national politics since the 1960s. She moved to Midland in 1959 to get into the oil business as a secretary and to get away from the tall cornfields and Minnesota's declining iron-ore economy.

Minnesota had depleted its rich iron ore for the nation's war effort during World War II, and "all that was left" was low-grade ore.

By comparison, "things down here seemed to be going and growing so well," she recalled.

The year 1959 was the "beginning of one of the first (oil) slumps" in West Texas, Mrs. Brown said. "And we thought it was wonderful, because the economy had been so depressed in Minnesota. There was a slump in the oil business, but the business was so much more energetic and fast-paced than what we had come from" in Minnesota.

Her interests in politics heightening in 1960 when Richard Nixon, then U.S. vice president under Republican President Dwight Eisenhower, was campaigning for the presidency against Democrat John F. Kennedy.

"I was so taken with the way that Eisenhower had run the country (1953-61) with Nixon as his vice president that I then thought that Richard Nixon should be president of the United States," Mrs. Brown said. "That piqued my interest" in politics.

She had cast her first vote in a presidential election in 1956.

"I voted Republican," she said. "I didn't think I had a party affiliation" when she voted for Eisenhower.

Her penchant for Republican Party politics, including its conservatism, "has to do with the way we grow up and mature."

Mrs. Brown became steeped in politics in the 1960s. Since then, she has been "involved in at least one campaign every election cycle."

She has campaigned for Republican candidates at the precinct, county, district, state, and national levels — from commissioners to presidents.

In the late 1960s, she was married to Winfree "Win" Brown, a Midland rancher, landman, and independent oil operator who in 1971 entered politics as a Midland County commissioner, a position which he still holds today.

"She has always enjoyed it (politics)," Brown said of his wife of 26 years. One of her strong traits is "her organizational skills in politics.

"She can see what needs to be done in a political race" and sets out to accomplish what needs to be done. "She was not only involved in my races," Brown said, "but numerous other races. One of her unique abilities is to remember details not only of various races, (but) who supported whom, and who is helping whom. As a result, she knows where all the skeletons and bodies are buried. That's a plus. And she has the unique ability to remember people — where she met them and even what they said. She does not have to work at it."

Due to her organizational abilities and "outgoing" nature, "she has always fallen into a leadership role," Brown said.

U.S. senators whom she has supported cited her diligence, integrity and party loyalty.

"I can personally attest to her commitment, intelligence, energy and dedication," said Phil Gramm.

Kay Bailey Hutchison views Mrs. Brown as "a true hero" of the Republican Party. "With her tireless energy, organizational skill and commitment to our principles, Lou helped lead the transformation of Texas from a Democratic stronghold to a trending Republican state."

Ernest Angelo, a former Midland mayor and a Republican National Committeeman, said Mrs. Brown "brings ability, integrity, and enthusiasm to whatever task she undertakes."

Politicking even as a campaigner "is something that is very contagious," Mrs. Brown said. "You have to go through several election cycles."

The drama of political campaigning, including the "anticipation, the challenge of the campaign, and, of course, the big decision on election day," keeps her interest heightened in politics.

"It can almost become a way of life," she said, "and I think Winfree and I have let it become a way of life."

Outside of campaigning to get more Republicans into public office, Mrs. Brown is interested in improving the lot of the nation in these troubled times when issues from the economy to morality are at the forefront.

"Things can be better," she said. "The pendulum does continue to swing. We've gone so far to the bad side."

Changes for the better start at the grass-roots level — in the family and in the community — since "our young people are our greatest resource.

"We are coming to grips with the lack of discipline," Mrs. Brown said. "We need to teach them (the young people) different things that make for a good world and good morality."

Until there are Republican administrations in Washington, D.C., and in Austin, Mrs. Brown said that her goal is simply "to serve this federation (NFRW) as well as I can as its leader."

If elected NFRW president, she plans to "set up forums and panel discussions at the national, state and local levels" to discuss the "pros and cons" of controversial issues "so people can hit these issues head-on and not tap-dance around them."

Issues would include how to balance the (national) budget, how best to educate the nation's people, how to effect a workable health policy, including day care and elder care, how to maintain a strong defense, and how to handle rights, including gay rights in the military and how to approach abortion.

"Everybody wants good education," Mrs. Brown said of a particularly crucial issue. "But nobody agrees on how to achieve that."

Of the abortion issue, Mrs. Brown said it seems that it has been "argued forever and ever. I'm not sure what the answer is to that one."

But now that abortion has become a political issue, "I don't know how you are going to get it out of politics," she said. "I firmly believe that you cannot legislate someone's morals, but you can educate them. And that's what we have to do."

Coast Guard officials search for man who fell overboard

GALVESTON (AP) — The Coast Guard dispatched air and surface units Monday to search for a 22-year-old man who reportedly fell overboard early in the day from a 67-foot shrimp board.

The Coast Guard said it received a distress call about 1:15 a.m. Monday from a Spanish-speaking person on the fishing vessel. The caller said a crewman fell overboard while helping bring in the ship's nets in the Gulf of Mexico about 45 miles southeast of Galveston.

The man was not wearing a life jacket and may have hit his head on the outrigger doors when he fell, officials were told.

The missing man's identity was not disclosed.

The Coast Guard said a helicopter arrived at the scene at 2:25 a.m. and was joined by the 82-foot USCG cutter Point Spencer at 6:30 a.m.

Officials said the search continued until sunset and that a decision would be made later whether to resume the search on Tuesday.

Let Our Obsession become your obsession

Tucked back in San Miguel Square, at Midkiff and Wadley is a neat Ladies Consignment Store called Our Obsession. It was started 4 1/2 years ago by Shirley Holder and Daisy Hobson-two gals that know the business of clothes.

Shirley worked at one of Midland's finest dress shops for several years. Daisy also has experience in consignment stores, making a good combination. They go to market in Dallas and Los Angeles several times a year to stay abreast of the latest in fashion.

They are selective about the clothes that they accept, going for better quality through designer labels, such as Liz Claiborne, Helga, J.H. Collectibles, Ellen Tracy, Dian Frez and many more.

With prices the way they are these days, one has to to economize every way one can. Consignment is a great answer, not only does the customer get a great deal on better quality clothing, shoes, furs and accessories, but the consigner has a chance to recoup part of the price she paid when it was new.

It is like a treasure hunt, you never know what you might find. Since consignments are brought in daily, it's a good idea to come by real often.

Come in for a cup of coffee, a look around and a friendly visit with Shirley and Daisy or call 694-8973 for more information.

Our Obsession accepts consignments in season, selling items and sharing 50-50 the price they receive.

Consignment stores have been around for many, many years, but few are as near to new as Our Obsession.

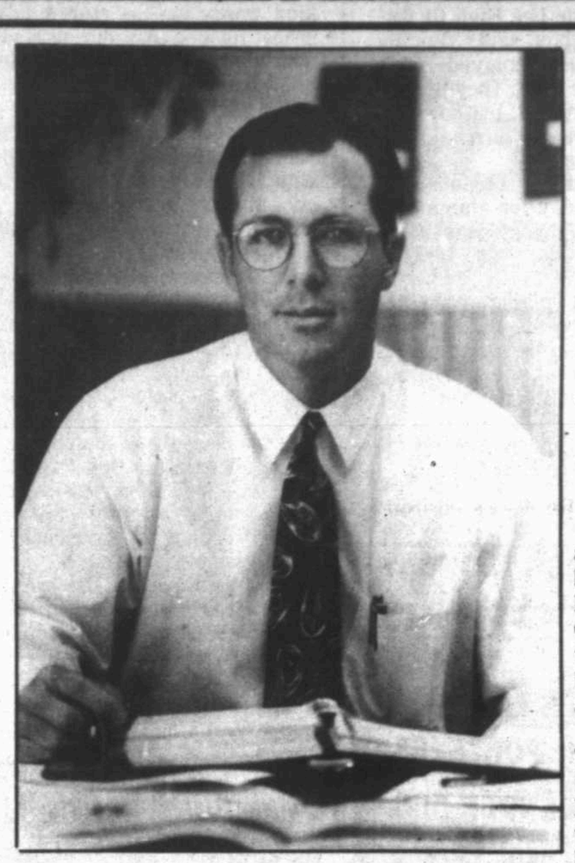

Shopping this way really gets in your blood, it is an obsession:- Let Our Obsession become your obsession.

They are open 10-6 Monday through Friday and 10-5 on Saturday.

With merchandise in great condition, neatly arranged and attractively displayed, many shoppers have been surprised to learn that the merchandise has been worn at all.

Since the 90's the stigma has gone out of shopping used. Everyone does it, you might be surprised who you might see in Our Obsession!

If it is inconvenient for you to bring your things in, the girls will be glad to come to your home to pick things up and help you to clear out your closet.

The Deficit Reduction Tax has caused West Texans to investigate other investment alternatives. Van Pearcy (left) suggests tax-free bonds, growth stocks, annuities and retirement plans to help beat the tax crunch.

New tax legislation affects individual investors

After much congressional; debate and fanfare, the Deficit Reduction Tax Act has been passed into law.

The legislation is expected to save an estimated $496 billion over the next 5-years, partly through tax increases.

Van Pearcy, the local investment representative with Edward D. Jones & Co., explained that in general, middle income earners will only see about a 1% increase in taxes, primarily as a result in the gas tax. Most drivers will pay about $32 more per year at the pumps.

On the other hand, Pearcy says that people who earn more than $200,000 will see as much as a 17% increase in taxes. The marginal tax rates have increased to 36% and 39.6%. The higher rates will take effect retroactively to Jan 1, 1993.

"Hardest hit by the legislation will be retired Americans," Pearcy said. "Individuals whose taxable income before exemptions and deductions exceeds $34,000 and couples with taxable income before exemptions and deductions exceeding $44,000 will have as much as 85% of their Social Security benefits taxed, up from 50%. According to most estimates, this will affect nearly 13% of all Social Security recipients." (Effective Jan 1, 1994)

Van Pearcy established the first successful Edward D. Jones & Co. investment office 6-years ago. He was raised in Andrews and received his BA & MBA from the University of Notre Dame. Pearcy's office is located at 2020 West Cuthbert, across the street from the high school football stadium. Van was recently asked to become a limited partner of Edward D. Jones & Co.

"As a result of the new tax laws, many West Texans are eager to move their savings dollars into tax advantaged investments," stated Pearcy. "Although this might be the right move for many people, financial changes should not be made without careful thought and consideration. I recommend that each individual's situation be reviewed with a tax professional to determine the best strategy".

If tax-advantaged investments make sense, municipal bonds may be an attractive choice. Individual municipal bonds provide a fixed rate of return that is usually paid twice a year. The interest if free from federal taxes. Municipal bonds are also available in the form of unit trusts and mutual funds.

In addition, investing in stocks for capital gains may become more popular because the maximum capital gains tax remains at 28%. Therefore, stocks that have the potential to offer long-term capital-gains versus a high short-term dividend yield may be suitable for some investors hit with increased taxes.

Annuities that let policy holders invest in tax-deferred accounts are also likely to increase in popularity. An annuity, for example, offers tax-deferral under the shelter of an insurance policy. However there can be substantial penalties for early withdrawal. It is important to be careful in selecting the right type of annuity for your situation.

"The changing tax laws call for careful evaluation and planning, not just this year, but over a lifetime," said Pearcy. "With the help of a seasoned tax professional and investment counselor, the new tax laws needn't put a dent in your bottom line."

If you are interested in selecting the best type of investment for your situation, call Van Pearcy's office at 683-1516 for a no obligation appointment. You'll find Van's services knowledgeable and very conservative.

with Water Softening and Purification Systems from Supreme Water

The quality and taste of Midland's water has been the topic of discussion for a long time. Although the quality of our water passes the water safety guidelines, there are still a number of problems associated with using it.

The water here in Midland is approximately 4-times as hard as "very" hard water. These high levels are caused by large quantities of calcium, sodium, magnesium and other ionic compounds that are dissolved in the water.

While this does not pose any significant health risk, the effects of very hard water are plain to see: just look at the soap scum in your bathroom.

Getting rid of hard water has a number of benefits which can not only make life easier, but can also save you a great deal of money.

Supreme Water can install a water softening system which can take out these hard minerals and give you higher quality water. Doing this wil enable you to reap the benefits of soft water which include:

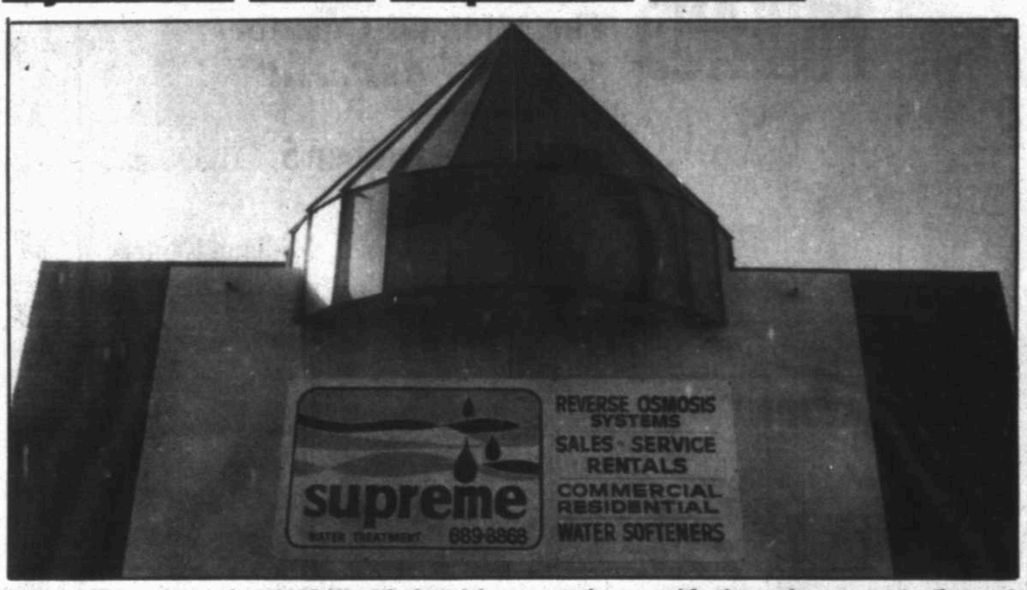

- The cost of all types of cleaning will be reduced because you need to use less soap when washing with soft water.
- Machine washed clothes will last longer and come out fresher, cleaner and softer.
- Machines such as dishwashers and water heaters will last longer and there will be fewer maintenance bills because there isn't as much limescale build up with soft water
- Conditioned water is better for glass ware and crockery, no more spots, streaks and blemishes.
- Bathrooms look and feel cleaner without a film of soap scum and limescale all over them
- Softening your water can save energy as well; water based systems are more efficient when they are not clogged up with limescale and this can save a significant amount of money.

Supreme Water can also provide Reverse Osmosis equipment which gives great tasting water and clear, pure ice, all from the convenience of your own home.

Supreme Water is currently offering some special prices on these systems.

Bring this ad by Supreme Water's display booth at Midland Park Mall anytime this Thursday, Friday, Saturday or Sunday, and in addition to the already low sales price, you will get an additional $50 off.

ning rehearsal," Ms. Hall said. "Everyone is really enjoying this."

The former and current choir members are also rehearsing for an upcoming Texas Music Educator's Association convention Feb. 12 in San Antonio. The combined student and alumni choir is the first one ever invited to perform at the convention.

"This is the highest honor that can come to a Texas choir," said Becky Billingsley, alumni choir president.

But for the short-term, all voices are tuning up for the October two-hour concert.

"It's nice to know that you can come back any time and sing with the Lee High Choir," Miss Broughton said. "For the alumni, they enjoyed something at one time. They thought that it would end, but now they have a chance to turn back and take part again."

A salad supper is planned at 7 p.m. Thursday for alumni and spouses. "Bring your high school annuals," Ms. Billingsley said.

"We'll be planning for the Chorale Reunion, making lists of former members and watching a video of the Christmas (1992) concert," she said.

Craddick criticizes finance plan at local meeting

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

State Rep. Tom Craddick had no kind words for the state's latest school finance plan during a visit with the League of Women Voters of Midland Monday.

"The Robin Hood Bill was declared unconstitutional and the people of Texas were dissatisfied with it," Craddick told the audience of about 80 people. "Now, we have what I call Robin Hood Jr., which supposedly gives the district several options. Well, I think there is a sixth option and that's for the districts just to blow their brains out and be on the same level as the worst districts in the country, because that's where we're headed."

Craddick spoke at the League of Women Voters meeting on the recent state legislative session, outlining some of the bills that were passed, including the school finance plan.

"You know, when the original Robin Hood bill was killed, Gov. Richards went out to the people of Texas and told them to give her their ideas and she would support whatever the people wanted," he said. "That's not leadership. She needed to come out with a good, solid plan to put education back on its feet and she didn't."

Craddick said the solution to the state's education woes was not more money.

"In 1978, we spent $5 billion in our public school systems," he said. "In 1992, we spent $17 billion. And, in that time, our test scores have gone down. Forty-eight percent of our ninth graders failed the TAAS test. And, do you know what the TEA, that supposed savior of the Texas school system, said about that? They said not to worry because they would have three more chances to pass it. That's a cop-out. Our SAT verbal scores are the lowest they have ever been. We don't need more money and we don't need to continue to give chance after chance to these kids."

Craddick said the state should look at what programs are working in other states, including San Diego, Calif.

"San Diego was having such a disciplinary problem with their kids, the district decided that when any child was a problem, their parents would have to come and sit with the child all week in school," he said. "Then, the district went to the area businesses and asked them to let the parents out for a week, but without pay. In the past 30 days, San Diego has practically done away with its disciplinary problems."

He said another solution is to get the courts out of the district and get the parents back in.

"The principals in these schools have their hands tied," he said. "They can't discipline the students properly, they can't fire teachers, they can't do anything. And, the teachers don't get enough pay while we keep adding administrators and giving them salary increases. We need to keep the courts out, cut the administrative jobs and get our parents involved in their child's education."

Craddick also gave an overview of changes made in the parole system. The state enacted legislation that will force dangerous or violent criminals to spend a minimum of half their sentence or 30 years in jail. Capital offenders who did not receive the death penalty must spend a minimum of 40 years in jail and non-violent criminals must spend at least three years in jail.

"We have to keep criminals in jail, but the only way to do that is to fund more prison beds," he said. "It's amazing how I will get letters that ask me not to raise any taxes, but to keep criminals in jail."

Teaff on TV

DALLAS — Former Baylor University head football coach and athletic director Grant Teaff makes his debut Saturday as a color analyst on the Raycom Sports Southwest Conference game of the week telecast.

Teaff will join play-by-play sportscaster Dave Barnett in the Raycom booth for the Texas Tech-Baylor game in Waco.

Teaff stepped down as head coach at the end of last season to assume fulltime duties as athletic director, then relinquished the AD's job several weeks ago to accept the job as executive director of the American Football Coaches Association.

Teaff was head coach at Baylor from 1972-92 and served as an assistant coach at Texas Tech from 1966-68.

Black cloud to Cloud Nine

■ Valley Ranch becomes Happy Valley after Emmitt returns and Cowboys win first game.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys showed what they can do without distractions.

The Cowboys played like defending NFL champions Sunday night in a 17-10 victory at Phoenix to break a two-game losing streak.

"It's nice to have that winning feeling again," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson. "It's been a long time coming. There's a good feeling around Valley Ranch these days."

With Emmitt Smith holding out, the Cowboys were turnover and temper tantrum prone. Players called the holdout a cloud over the team that wouldn't go away in an 0-2 start.

With Smith back on the team, the Cowboys played an almost flawless game against the Cardinals.

"Once we found Emmitt, everything was fine," said Johnson. "It makes me want to crack jokes and have a good time. We're just about back to where we were last year at this time. Maybe we're a point better. We won 16-10 at Phoenix last year. Maybe we're a point better."

Smith, who only had two days of practice, had eight carries for 45 yards and admitted, "I had big old butterflies in my stomach. I was a little nervous."

Added Smith, "I'm a little sore but it was great to get back in action and help my teammates again."

Quarterback Troy Aikman said, "I thought Emmitt was great. He showed once again he doesn't need training camp."

The Cowboys are off this week and will use the opportunity to work Smith back into the game plan. Smith will start Oct. 3 against Green Bay.

"Emmitt is just barely in decent shape," Johnson said. "He kind of got gassed in the second half. He played a lot of golf. I don't know a lot of golfers who are in tremendous condition."

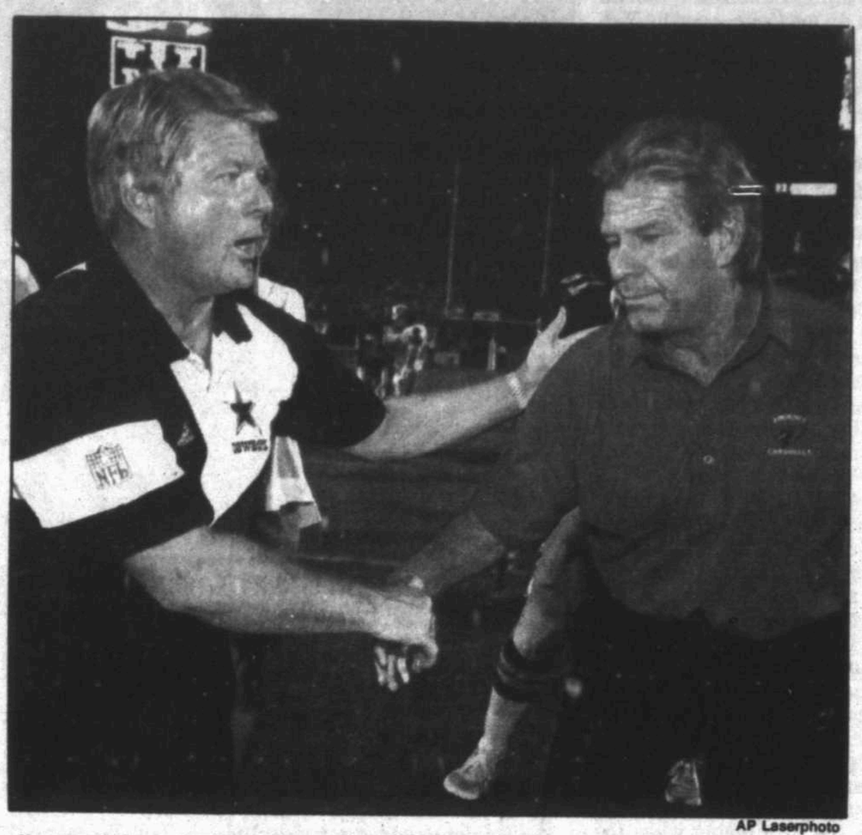

Johnson said the Cowboys would work Wednesday through Friday, then take off over the weekend if practice goes well.

He said he'll also possibly make some personnel shuffles and scheme changes in the offense before the Cowboys play the Packers.

"We'll take a long look at what we're doing," he said. "There might be some personnel changes."

There was only one slammed helmet into a wall after the game. That was courtesy of owner Jerry Jones to signal that the 'boys are back.

"I just wanted to let off a little steam," Jones said. "It would have been disastrous if we had started 0-3. Now, we're back on track."

Ticket prices raised

Associated Press

DALLAS — Dallas Cowboys fans are learning the meaning of the cost of victory.

Following their Super Bowl triumph, America's Team hiked ticket price an NFL-high 23 percent, raising the overall average cost of seeing a game at Texas Stadium to $195.42.

That's the fourth most expensive Sunday in the league, according to the Chicago-based Team Marketing Report's NFL Fan Cost Index.

"A winning team has the leverage to raise prices," said Noah Liberman, associate editor of the group that recently released the annual survey of pro football prices.

The report has calculated that the league average is $173.33. Figures are based on the cost of four single-game tickets, two small beers, four small sodas, four hot dogs, parking for one car, two game programs and two baseball-style caps.

Cowboys fans paid 10.2 percent less for all that last year — before the Cowboys won the Super Bowl and owner Jerry Jones had to open his wallet to big-dollar contracts for players such as Emmitt Smith.

But it won't deter Cowboys fans, who bought every available ticket for all eight home games at Texas Stadium before the season even began, a franchise first.

With the season a sellout, there's a good chance fans may have to pay even more than $200 to see a game because the only way to buy tickets now is through scalpers.

When the team goes on the road, the most expensive places for fans to follow it to are San Francisco ($207), Philadelphia ($203.50) and Washington ($196.79).

DALLAS — Ten years after Boyd won its first Class 2A title, the Yellowjackets are back. In several ways.

The 1983 state champs are returning Friday for the homecoming game and a 10-year reunion. Also on display that night will be the 1993 Yellowjackets — the newly crowned No. 1 team in 2A.

■ High School Poll

Boyd (3-0) moved up from No. 2 to capture the top spot in The Associated Press high school football poll Monday after a 41-6 victory over Aledo and former No. 1 Omaha Paul Pewitt's 16-0 loss to Hooks.

The biggest other movement in the new poll has Odessa Permian breaking a deadlock with Dallas Carter, giving the Panthers sole possession of the No. 1 spot in Class 5A. Midland Lee moved from seventh to sixth as the Rebels await the start of District 4-5A play Friday.

The Yellowjackets received 16 of 28 first-place votes from a panel of sportswriters and broadcasters across Texas.

Chiefs avoid Elway heroics

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Joe Montana's home debut as a Kansas City Chief was upstaged Monday night by a couple of other golden oldies — Nick Lowery and Marcus Allen.

And something else golden — yellow penalty flags. Lots of them.

Lowery, a 37-year-old, kicked five field goals and a Kansas City defense led by Derrick Thomas and Darren Mickell shut down John Elway and Denver as the Chiefs beat the Broncos 15-7, a score typical of a Kansas City game in the pre-Montana days.

That was enough to avoid the last-minute heroics Elway has pulled off four years in a row against the Chiefs — he managed a 2-yard TD pass to

Magic Johnson and Michael Cohl speak at a news conference about NBA expansion to Canada. Johnson is an investor in one of three Toronto groups along with one from Vancouver which are bidding for a team.

NBA heads north

By Bill Barnard
AP Basketball Writer

NEW YORK — The NBA is heading across the Canadian border in November, when it is all but certain an expansion franchise will be awarded to Toronto, and possibly Vancouver.

Jerry Colangelo, chairman of the NBA expansion committee and president of the Phoenix Suns, was among those to hear pitches Monday from three investor groups from Toronto and one from Vancouver.

He said that while he could not speak for all 27 NBA owners, he fully expects the league to award at least one new franchise at its Board of Governors meeting Nov. 3-4.

Other cities have expressed interest in joining the NBA, but only Toronto and Vancouver were invited to make final presentations.

"Regardless of which group is selected, Toronto will be represented well, and Vancouver is a viable contender for a second franchise," he said.

Colangelo said the 1995-96 season is the targeted year for a new team to begin play. But if Vancouver is chosen, he added, it would not necessarily begin then.

"These were four first-class presentations," Colangelo said. "We came into this thinking one team. Now two is a possibility."

Colangelo declined to discuss a franchise fee, although it is speculated the cost will be $100 million or more per team.

The NBA's last expansion came with the addition of Miami, Charlotte, Orlando and Minnesota over two years in the late 1980s. The expansion fee then was $32.5 million.

"We aren't being forced to expand and we don't need the dollars from franchise fees," Colangelo said. "We'll make a sound business judgment. We feel it's time to make an international

Houston fails to slow San Francisco

Associated Press

HOUSTON — San Francisco moved 2½ games behind Atlanta in the NL West on Monday night as Darren Lewis delivered a three-run double in the sixth inning to help the Giants beat Houston 7-2.

Atlanta was idle and starts a three-game series at Montreal on Tuesday night. The Giants have won four straight.

■ NL Roundup

Barry Bonds, who finally had a big game in September, doubled to start the sixth against Greg Swindell (10-13), who lost his fourth straight decision. Swindell's intentional walk to Kirt Manwaring and third baseman Ken Caminiti's throwing error loaded the bases.

Lewis then hit a liner past Caminiti into the left-field corner and all three runners scored.

Bonds had three hits, scored two runs and drove in two runs. He added to the Giants' lead with a two-run double in the seventh.

Jim Deshaies (2-2) pitched five innings for the Giants and beat his former team. Deshaies, who pitched for the Astros from 1985-1991, struck out one, walked one and allowed six hits.

Bonds singled and Willie McGee doubled to start the fourth inning against Swindell. The Giants got two runs when Royce Clayton's single scored Bonds and McGee scored on Manwaring's grounder.

Caminiti reached on a fielder's choice in the fourth, went to third base on shortstop Clayton's fielding error and scored on Kevin Bass' double to right field.

Cubs 6, Cardinals 5

CHICAGO — Todd Zeile reached the 100-RBI mark for St. Louis with a three-run homer, but it wasn't enough as Mark Grace and Steve Buechele each had three hits to lead Chicago over the Cardinals.

Mike Morgan (10-13) pitched six innings, allowing four runs on five hits for the victory. Randy Myers worked the ninth inning for his major league-leading 48th save, allowing a run.

With the scored tied 4-all in the sixth inning, Rick Wilkins and Buechele led off with consecutive singles off Rob Murphy (3-7). On a sacrifice, Eric Yelding was safe at first base when third baseman Zeile's throw pulled Gregg Jefferies off the first-base bag for an error to load the bases.

Omar Olivares relieved and Eddie Zambrano delivered his first major league hit when his high bouncer to the right of the mound eluded a diving Zeile, scoring Wilkins for a 5-4 St. Louis lead.

Grace opened the seventh by hitting an 0-2 pitch into the right-field bleachers for his 13th homer and a 6-4 lead off Paul Kilgus.

Tim Jones singled to get the first Cardinals hit leading off the fourth inning. After Jefferies singled, Zeile hit his 16th homer into the left-center field bleachers to make it 4-3. He now has 102 RBIs.

The Cardinals tied the score in the fifth inning when Bernard Gilkey got a two-out triple and scored on a wild pitch.

St. Louis added a run in the ninth on an RBI single by Tom Pagnozzi off Myers.

Phillies 7, Marlins 1

PHILADELPHIA — Curt Schilling pitched a seven-hitter and struck out a career-high 11 as Philadelphia beat Florida to move 4½ games ahead of Montreal in the NL East.

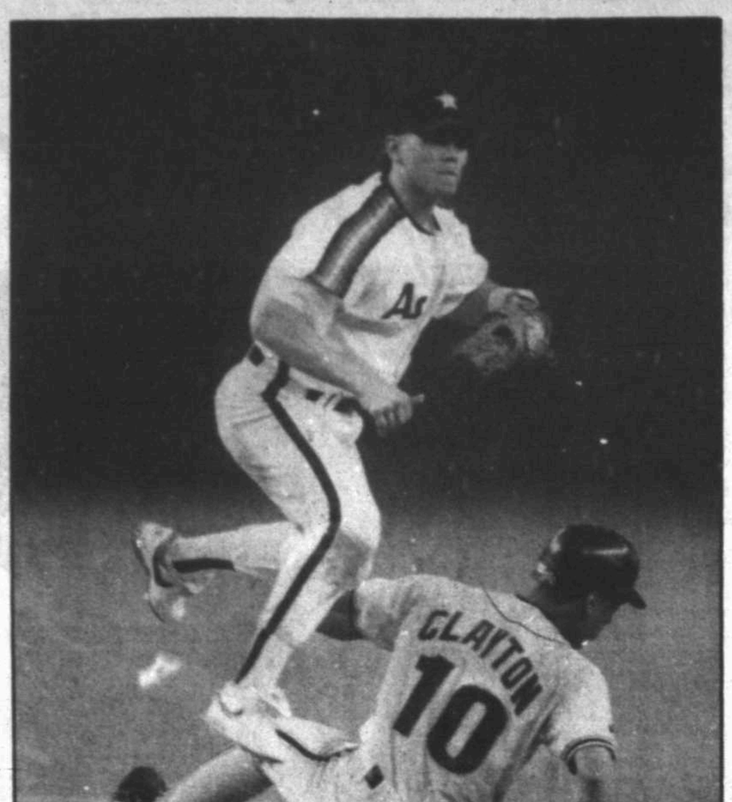

John Kruk homered and drove in three runs for the Phillies.

Schilling (15-6), walked two in winning his seventh straight decision. He also has six no-decisions since his last loss, July 11 against San Francisco.

The only run Schilling allowed came in the fifth inning when the Marlins loaded the bases with one out and Brett Barberie grounded into an RBI fielder's choice. It was Schilling's seventh complete game.

The Phillies jumped on Florida starter Charlie Hough (9-16) for two runs in the first inning on Jim Eisenreich's bases-loaded single, then chased Hough in the second inning, his earliest exit of the year. A single by Kevin Stocker, a walk to Lenny Dykstra and a single by Mickey Morandini loaded the bases with one out.

Kruk then singled home two runs and Dave Hollins followed with a two-run double to cap the four-run inning.

Philadelphia added a run in the seventh when Kruk led off with his 14th home run of the season.

Pirates 6, Mets 2

PITTSBURGH — The New York Mets reached 100 losses for the first time since 1967 as Jeff King and Lloyd McClendon each drove in two runs in Pittsburgh's victory.

In their first six seasons, the Mets lost 100 games five times. They were a record-worst 40-120 in 1962 as an expansion team and 51-111 the next year.

But the 1993 Mets were supposed to be contenders for the division title, instead they're 50-100 with the loss to Pittsburgh. New York was 61-101 in 1967.

Paul Wagner (7-7) was coming off a 1-0 win over the Marlins in Florida last week, a game shortened to six innings by rain. He allowed nine hits, walked one and struck out a career-high seven in 8⅓ innings as he beat the Mets for the second time this season. Joel Johnston got the final out for his first career save.

Eric Hillman (1-8) allowed just one earned run in seven innings in a loss that represented the Mets' season well.

The Pirates scored in the second on King's double, a single by McClendon and Al Martin's sacrifice fly.

Hillman's fielding error on a bunt helped set up another run in the third. Wagner and Jay Bell singled ahead of McClendon's RBI single.

The Pirates scored four more runs in the eighth against reliever John Franco to pull away.

King hit a two-run single, McClendon followed with an RBI double and Rich Aude added a run-scoring single.

The Mets' two runs came in the ninth on Butch Huskey's RBI double and Todd Hundley' run-scoring single.

The Pirates are 24-5 against the Mets at Three Rivers Stadium with 11 consecutive wins. Overall, Pittsburgh is 9-2 against the Mets this year.

Dodgers 5, Reds 2

CINCINNATI — Dave Hansen drove in three runs with three hits, including a pinch RBI single in the first inning that set a club record, as Los Angeles beat Cincinnati to send the Reds to their 10th straight loss.

The Reds managed just four hits off Ramon Martinez (10-10) in seven innings en route to their longest losing skid in two years. Martinez struck out seven and walked two for just his second victory since July 15.

Todd Worrell got the last six outs, pitching out of an eighth-inning scoring threat, for his fourth save.

The Dodgers became the first team since the All-Star break to score more than two runs off Jose Rijo (13-8), who is 7-3 in his last 14 starts despite some of the best pitching in the National League. Los Angeles had 11 hits — the most off Rijo this season — and five runs in his eight innings.

Rijo wasn't sharp this time, and it showed in the first inning, when he gave up three hits and a walk. Hansen drove in the run with his 18th pinch hit of the season, a Dodger club record. Hansen is 18-for-52 (.346) with 18 RBIs off the bench.

Technically, it was a pinch hit because manager Tommy Lasorda put Pedro Martinez's name on the lineup card to give Hansen a shot at the record. Lasorda used the same tactic last Wednesday in San Diego, listing Orel Hershiser as the third baseman so Hansen's first at-bat would be a pinch hit.

He flew out to left in that game.

The Dodgers made it 3-1 with Lenny Harris' solo homer in the second and Mike Piazza's RBI groundout in the fifth, and Hansen blew the game open with a two-run double off Rijo in the seventh.

The hardest hit off Martinez was the first — Thomas Howard's leadoff triple in the first. He scored on Hal Morris' ground out. Cincinnati's only other run was unearned, set up by shortstop Jose Offerman's 35th error of the season.

Padres 11, Rockies 7

DENVER — Phil Plantier drove in five runs and had three hits as San Diego outlasted Colorado.

Plantier, acquired from Boston before the start of the season, has 32 homers and 94 RBIs.

Frank Seminara (3-2) pitched 3⅓ innings for the victory in relief, allowing one run and three hits. Padres starter Doug Brocail lasted only into the fourth inning, allowing four runs and three hits, including a pinch-hit grand slam to Jay Gainer in the Rockies' fourth.

Trevor Hoffman finished for his fifth save.

Former Padre Greg Harris (11-15) pitched two-plus innings, allowing six hits and nine runs, four earned. He also hit three batters.

Harris opened the first inning by loading the bases with two hit batsmen and a walk before Plantier hit a two-run single. Derek Bell scored on Archi Cianfrocco's grounder to make it 3-0.

The Padres took a 9-0 lead with a five-run fourth, including Plantier's three-run double. Pinch-hitter Billy Bean hit a two-run homer in San Diego's eighth.

The Rockies added a single runs in the eighth and ninth innings on home runs by Roberto Mejia, his fourth, and Daryl Boston, his 12th.

The two teams are fighting for sixth place in the NL West, with the Padres currently last.

Rookie Van Poppel holds on for Oakland win

OAKLAND — Rookie Todd Van Poppel pitched a seven-hitter over eight-plus innings as Oakland made first-inning RBI singles by Troy Neel and Mike Aldrete hold up for a 2-1 victory over Kansas City Royals on Monday night.

Van Poppel (6-5) won his second straight start and remained unbeaten in four September starts, with two no-decisions. He walked one batter and struck out six. He left the game after George Brett led off the ninth with an infield single.

Roger Smithberg got the final three outs for his second save after giving up an RBI groundout by Kevin McReynolds.

The A's scored two runs in the first off David Cone (11-12), who gave up just one hit over the next five innings. But it was enough to hand Cone his first loss since Aug. 14, a span of seven starts. Cone walked one and struck out eight in pitching his fifth complete game.

■ AL Roundup

Mike Bordick led off the Oakland first with a double. Two groundouts later he stood at third, and he scored on Neel's single for a 1-0 A's lead. After Brent Gates kept the inning alive with a single, Mike Aldrete singled to put Oakland ahead 2-0.

The Royals managed to place just three runners in scoring position off Van Poppel. Bob Hamelin walked with one out in the second and went to third on Gary Gaetti's two-out single, but Van Poppel struck out Greg Gagne on a 3-2 pitch to end the threat.

Oakland moved within a half-game of sixth-place Minnesota in the AL West. The A's have had at least a share of the division's worst record since July 21. Indians 6, Orioles 4

CLEVELAND — Randy Milligan's grounder took a bad hop past shortstop Cal Ripken for a two-run single that sent Cleveland past struggling Baltimore.

The Orioles fell 5½ games behind idle Toronto in the AL East. Baltimore dropped to 2-5 on a road trip that has two games left in Cleveland. The Orioles play their last 10 at home, including the final four against the Blue Jays.

Last week in Boston, Baltimore blew a four-run lead and a three-run lead, losing both games to the Red Sox. This was another bumpy night for the Orioles, who could not hold a 3-0 edge with Fernando Valenzuela.

Milligan's two-hopper skipped over Ripken's right shoulder and capped a four-run fifth inning that made it 4-3. In the sixth, a throwing error by second baseman Harold Reynolds on an infield single by Wayne Kirby and another bad-hop single, by Carlos Baerga, gave the Indians a 6-3 lead.

The infield at Cleveland Stadium often gets chewed up once football season starts. The Browns played at the park last Monday night, but both balls that hopped over Baltimore's fielders skipped off the dirt, not the grass.

Ripken doubled home a run with two outs in the eighth off Derek Lilliquist. But Eric Plunk struck out pinch-hitter Paul Carey, and Jerry DiPoto pitched the ninth for his 10th save.

Bob Milacki (1-1), formerly with the Orioles, pitched one inning for the win.

Valenzuela (7-10) left after four straight singles started the sixth. He is 1-3 in his last 11 starts.

Mike Pagliarulo put the Orioles ahead with a two-run homer in the fourth off rookie Dave Mlicki. Reynolds tripled and scored on Brady Anderson's single for a 3-0 lead in the fifth.

Sandy Alomar and Kirby started the Indians fifth with singles, and Mark Lewis and Baerga followed with RBI singles that brought on Todd Frohwirth from the bullpen.

Frohwirth fanned Albert Belle, with Lewis and Baerga pulling off a double steal. Milligan hit a grounder past Ripken, giving the Indians the lead for good.

Baerga and Belle each had RBI singles in the sixth.

Tigers 6, Brewers 3

DETROIT — Tony Phillips had three hits and a walk to lead Detroit to a victory over the Milwaukee Brewers on Monday night.

Winner Mike Moore (13-9) held Milwaukee to three runs on six hits and three walks in six innings. Ricky Bones (10-11) struggled for the second straight start, allowing six runs on 10 hits in 5 1-3 innings. In his last two starts, he is 0-2 with a 12.10 ERA.

Detroit took a 5-1 lead with three runs in the first and two more in the second.

Charges not filed against Strawberry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No criminal charges will be filed against Los Angeles Dodgers outfielder Darryl Strawberry, who was arrested Sept. 4 for allegedly striking the 26-year-old woman he lived with, prosecutors said today.

"A determination has been made that the filing of criminal charges is not warranted," said Lydia Bodin, a deputy in charge of the District Attorney's Domestic Violence Unit.

Bodin said that after her review of the case, she concluded there was a "strong likelihood" that the case would not result in a conviction of cohabitant battery.

The woman, Charisse Simons, told police five days after the incident that she did not want to press charges against Strawberry, who has missed most of the season because of lower back stiffness. He underwent surgery on his back last September.

Bodin said that the investigation revealed that Simons had engaged in "verbal and physical assaultive behavior" toward Strawberry during the day and evening of Sept. 3.

Just prior to the incident in which Simons was struck at about 5:45 a.m. Sept. 4, Strawberry was lying down when Simons repeatedly poked him with a baseball bat in an area of his back where he had previously had his surgery, Bodin said.

Strawberry jumped up, grabbed the bat, and struck her with his hand one time, Bodin said, adding that she concluded there was a reasonable doubt that a fact-finder would convict Strawberry of cohabitant battery based on this evidence.

There was no immediate comment from the Dodgers regarding today's announcement. The Dodgers had strongly hinted they would sever ties with Strawberry if he was convicted.

After this season, Strawberry has two years remaining on his five-year, $20.25 million contract.

Strawberry, 31, reported to the Arizona Instructional League in Phoenix on a voluntary basis Saturday and will remain there for an indefinite period, a Dodgers spokesman said.

Strawberry has been free on $20,000 bond since the incident and was scheduled for arraignment in Glendale Municipal Court on Sept. 30 had charges been filed.

"I'm pleased the district attorney conducted a thorough investigation and concluded, as we did, that Darryl Strawberry did not engage in any wrongful activity toward his girlfriend," said the player's lawyer, Robert Shapiro.

Strawberry had been accused of causing a one-inch laceration above the right eye of Simons, according to Glendale Police Sgt. Lief Nicolaisen.

After being arrested, Strawberry was booked at the Glendale City Jail on one count of unlawful infliction of corporal injury on a spouse-cohabitant, a felony.

After spending about 90 minutes in jail, Strawberry was released on bond. Nicolaisen said the woman was accompanied back to the residence where she and Strawberry were living so she could remove personal belongings.

It isn't known whether the woman has moved back into Strawberry's residence.

Strawberry has had only 100 at-bats this season. He is hitting .140 with five home runs and 12 RBIs.

Strawberry has not worked out with the team or been at Dodger Stadium since he was arrested Sept. 4. He continued to rehabilitate his back at the Kerlan-Jobe Orthopaedic Clinic in nearby Inglewood before traveling to Arizona.

Prices climb

NEW YORK — Energy futures prices surged higher Monday in active trading as dealers position for the upcoming OPEC meeting.

West Texas Intermediate for October delivery, which gained 24 cents on Friday, jumped 63 cents to settle at $17.70 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $15.75 a barrel. Navajo Refining raised its posted price 50 cents to $16 a barrel.

Oil prices inched higher in overseas trading, but it was U.S. dealers who pushed prices sharply higher. Analysts attributed the buying to traders positioning ahead of Saturday's meeting of the 12-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Geneva.

"The market is anticipating that the normal, favorable comments about the prognosis of the meeting will come," said James Steel, an analyst at Refco Inc. He was referring the usual practice of the oil ministers commenting about the likelihood of an agreement over production ceilings ahead of the meeting.

"Even if the OPEC meeting is a failure, it won't become apparent for several weeks" until oil output figures are available, Steel said.

The oil market had suffered a long, sharp selloff in recent weeks, with crude prices tumbling to three-year lows. Some analysts said the recent uptick in prices was a natural correction.

Natural gas contracts for delivery in October settled at $2.193 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 2.8 cents.

Lease deadline

Wednesday at 5 p.m. is the deadline to nominate tracts for inclusion in the sale list for the upcoming December University Lands Oil and Gas Lease Sale.

All nominationsmust be received at either University Lands, Oil, Gas and Minerals Interests, P.O. Box 553 Midland Texas 79702 or hand-delivered to the University Lands office at 808 W. Wall.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar rose against the Japanese yen Monday as Japanese media reported an imminent cut in interest rates. The dollar was mixed against other currencies.

In New York, the dollar finished at 104.67 yen, up from 104.47.

In New York, the British pound finished at $1.5320, more expensive than $1.5310.

Other dollar rates in New York, compared to late Friday: 1.6115 German marks, down from 1.6154; 1.4015 Swiss francs, down from 1.4050; 5.6190 French francs, down from 5.6280; 1,559.00 Italian lire, down from 1,565.00; and 1.3224 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3134.

Japan cuts key rate to record low

■ Size of reduction reflects bank's concern over recent string of bad news of country's economy.

Associated Press

TOKYO — Japan's central bank cut its key interest rate Tuesday by 0.75 percentage points to a record low of 1.75 percent, hoping to stimulate consumer spending and corporate investment in the troubled economy.

The size of the cut in the Bank of Japan's official discount rate was larger than expected, reflecting the bank's concern over a recent string of bad news for Japan's economy.

The central bank decided on the cut in the discount rate, charged on its loans to commercial banks, at a special policy board meeting Tuesday morning.

The bank has lowered its key rate seven times since July 1991.

But Japan's economy still suffers from the after-effects of the booming late 1980s, when real estate prices soared on speculation and companies invested too heavily in new plants and equipment. Real estate later collapsed and companies were left with excess capacity.

The government reported last week that the economy shrank 0.5 percent in the April-June quarter of this year, or an annual rate of 2.0 percent, after an upturn in the January-March period.

A cool and rainy summer also hurt the economy by reducing sales of seasonal items such as air conditioners and beer.

Last Thursday, the Japanese government announced a $57 billion emergency stimulus package, its third such effort in 13 months to shore up the economy.

But many economists and politicians say an income tax cut is also needed to get cautious Japanese consumers spending again.

Area architect wins state post

Staff report

David Messersmith, a Midland architect, has been elected president of the Texas Society of Architects and will serve in that office in 1994.

Messersmith

He is a principal in MWM Architects, which has offices in Midland and Lubbock. A graduate of Texas Tech University, he spent four years practicing in Portland, Ore., before establishing a practice in Midland in 1977.

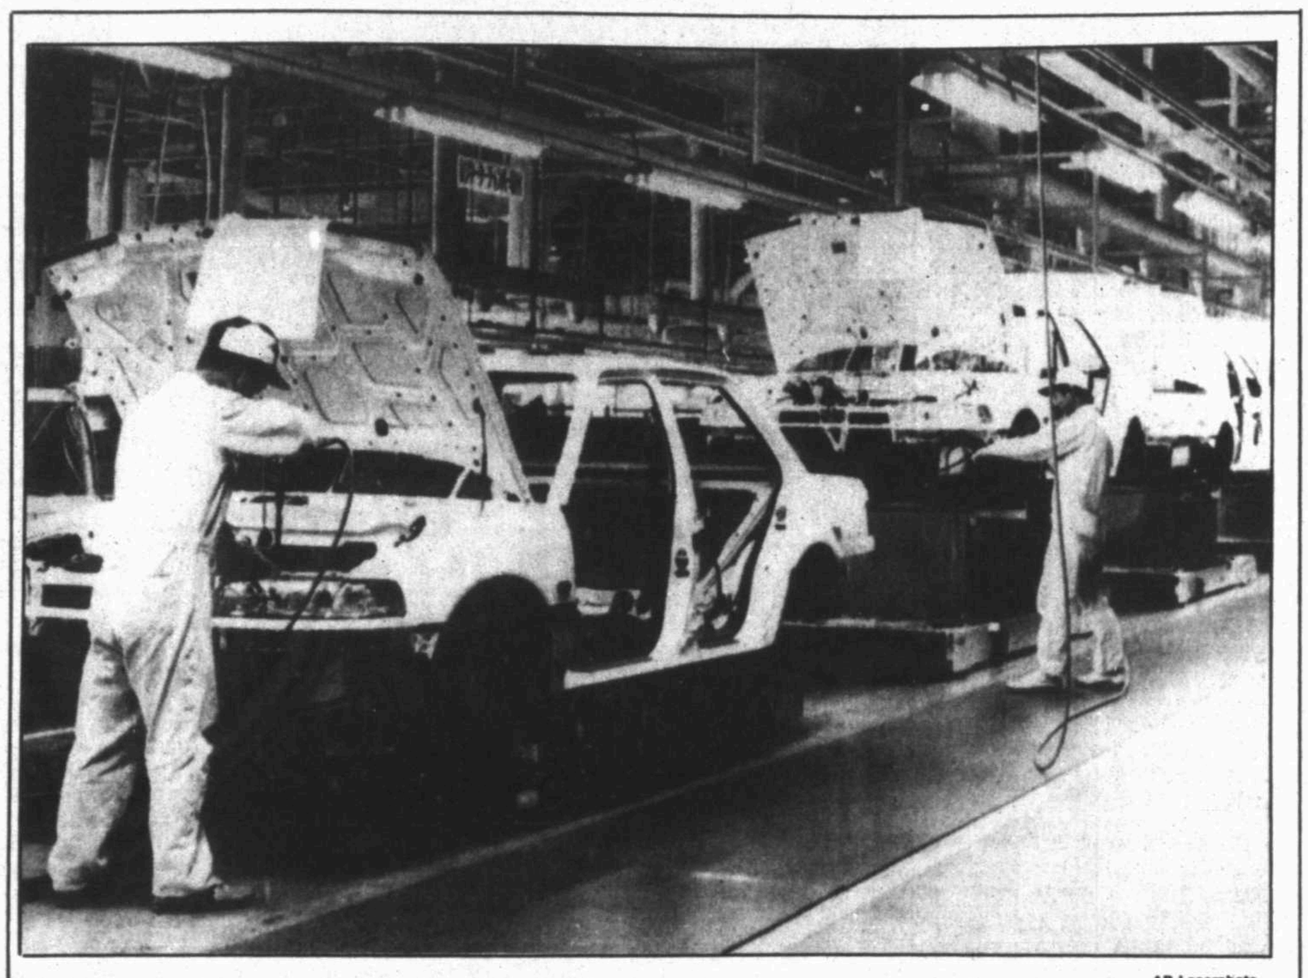

Some of the projects completed by his firm are One Marienfeld Place office building; United Bank Tower; Permian Basin Petroleum Museum; U.S. Postal Service General Mail Facility; a Master Plan for High Sky Children's Ranch; Ward County Community Center and the Million Barrel Museum in Monahans; and First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall and design of the Crockett County Historical Museum in Ozona.

In joint venture with the Midland firm of Pace and Associates, MWM has completed additions to and renovations to the Midland College Student Center, additions to Lee High School and the recently opened Greathouse Elementary School in northwest Midland.

His theme for the society during his term as president is "Leadership — By Design." The society's programs and activities will focus on strengthening and widening architects' leadership role in the building industry as well as in society in general.

"Leadership By Design means not only exercising our design leadership in the built environment, but also making a conscious effort to utilize our natural talents as planners and organizers to lead in many areas of daily life," Messersmith said. "From the neighborhood association to the state legislature; from the non-profit volunteer board to the board rooms of corporate giants; from the rural small town to the city planning departments of the state's largest urban areas; and from our local AIA chapters to the national board of our American Institute of Architects. It means leading professionally and purposefully, as well as artistically."

The Texas Society of Architects is a 4,000 member regional component of the American Institute of Architects. The local component of TSA is the AIA/West Texas chapter, which encompasses the cities of Midland, Odessa, Big Spring and San Angelo.

Some economists see slowing after current quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the nation's top economists are projecting the economy will gradually slow after the current quarter.

"While our panelists do expect a rebound in real growth to 3 percent in the third quarter, that's as good as it gets," according to a summary of a survey of 41 top forecasters by the National Association of Business Economists. The report was released Monday.

Still, there was no indication that the economy would drift back into recession soon, the survey found. It was conducted in late August and presented to the association's annual meeting in Chicago. A copy was made available here.

The survey projects growth in the gross domestic product slowing to a 2.9 percent annual rate from October through December, 2.4 percent in the first three months of 1994 and 2.1 percent during the following three months.

The GDP is the total amount of goods and services produced in the United States.

If so, the economy would expand 2.3 percent this year. While that is down from the 2.8 percent forecast in an April survey and 3.1 percent last February, the business economists' projection remains slightly more optimistic than the Clinton administration's 2 percent projection for 1993.

But the economists' forecast calls for just 2.7 percent growth in 1994, short of the administration's 3 percent forecast. The economy expanded by 2 percent in 1992 as it was emerging from the recession.

Both the business economists' and the administration's projections for this year were held back by anemic growth during the first six months.

Government statistics show the economy expanded at a 0.8 percent annual rate from January through March and 1.8 percent during the three months ended last June. That was down sharply from the 5.7 percent pace of the final quarter of 1993.

Weak economies overseas, which are curbing foreign demand for U.S.-made goods, were cited as one reason for the slow growth forecast. Exports had been one of the few strengths in the U.S. economy in recent years.

The economists' outlook projects the merchandise trade deficit to jump from $84.50 billion in 1992 to $96 billion this year and to $110 billion in 1994. The deficit is the difference between imports and exports.

Still, this year's budget agreement that included tax increases and spending restraints is expected to push down the federal budget deficit from $289 billion in 1992 to $275 billion this year and $251 billion in 1994.

The economists also believe the economy's slack pace will keep inflation in check.

"There will be sufficient slack in labor and product markets to head off any meaningful acceleration of prices," the survey said. It projected the Consumer Price Index to rise 3.2 percent in 1993 and 3.3 percent in 1994.

After reaching 6.1 percent in 1990, the CPI dipped to 3.1 percent the following year and to 2.9 percent last year.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Trust fund held by bank is safe from failure

By Bill Doyle

Q: Is money in the trust department of a bank insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.? If so, to what maximum? For FDIC purposes, is money in the trust fund added to the checking account, certificates of deposit and the individual retirement account I have at the same bank?

Doyle

My bank's officers assure me the money is not mixed and that the trust fund is safe, no matter what happens to the bank. I'm sorry to be such a doubting Thomas but, with all that has gone on, I'm not sure whom to believe. Can you put my mind at ease?

I do know that, when a bank fails and is bought by another bank, the accounts at the failed bank are transferred to the new bank. But what happens if no one wants to buy the failed bank?

A: Rest easy. Your trust fund is safe.

There's no reason for you to doubt the bank officers The money in your trust fund is not mingled with other accounts you have at that bank — for FDIC coverage or any other purpose. It is held separately and does not have FDIC coverage.

If the bank goes belly up, the bank's creditors will not be able grab the money, securities or anything else in your trust account.

You outline the most likely scenario, in the event of that bank's failure. Some other bank would buy the busted bank and take charge of your trust fund.

If there is no buyer, government regulators would arrange to have accounts at the failed bank transferred to a different bank. Your trust fund would remain intact.

Q: I have an IRA and a Keogh self-employed retirement plan at the same savings and loan association. There is less than $100,000 in each account and, under present regulations, each account has separate DIC coverage up to $100,000.

However, the two accounts added together exceed $100,000 and evidently will not have full FDIC coverage under the new regulations becoming effective Dec. 19, which lump IRAs and Keogh plans together for the $100,000 FDIC coverage.

Each of these retirement accounts consists of several CDs, which were purchased at various times. Will each CD be insured until its maturity date, even though the total of the accounts exceeds the $100,000 insurance limit?

A: All the CDs you now have in those accounts will retain FDIC coverage until they mature. So will any CDs you put into your IRA or Keogh plan before Dec. 19.

The new rules specifically state, "Time deposits made prior to Dec. 19, 1993, do not become subject to the new aggregation rules until the deposits mature, roll over or are renewed."

Q: What is a "time deposit"?

A: It's a CD or other savings deposit that must be left on deposit for a certain period of time before you can withdraw it without paying an early-withdrawal penalty.

Time deposits are also known as "term deposits." Some banks and S&Ls give them various other names.

Years ago, time deposits of less than $100,000 were generally called "savings certificates"; the name "certificates of deposit" was applied to larger time deposits.

However, as Miss Ethel Littlefield, one of the world's great philologists, hammered into our heads at Fairleigh Dickinson College — before it became a university — "language is a living thing" and word usage changes.

Nowadays, time deposits of all sizes usually are called certificates of deposits — CDs, for short.

Game needs Conners' spark

By Mike Lee
San Angelo Standard-Times

SAN ANGELO — If Jimmy Connors represents what's wrong with men's tennis today, it is mainly because Jimmy Connors also has represented what's good about the game for the past 20 years.

■ AP Analysis

Connors, who defeated John Lloyd 6-3, 6-2 Sunday in the GTE Senior Shootout final at San Angelo Country Club, is an emotional player.

In his early days as a pro, his emotional energy was directed at linesmen and chair umpires. Thus, Connors became one of tennis' original bad boys. Fans either loved him or hated him.

But by age 29 — perhaps even earlier — Connors had matured. Perhaps even mellowed a little. He began directing his emotional energy toward his game. John McEnroe became tennis' top bad boy.

Fans suddenly loved Connors. As he became older and continued to beat players much younger, Connors' popularity soared to new heights. It's easily safe to call him the most beloved and popular player in tennis today.

He loved being a bad boy in the 1970s, but he enjoys being popular, too. "I began to notice through the years that most of the people in the stands were my age. A lot of them sort of grew up with me over the years," Connors said Sunday during a break in the GTE Senior Shootout at San Angelo Country Club.

Connors is working to start an over-35 "Champions Tour," but his appearances on the regular ATP Tour will be down to about five per year starting in 1994.

And that's bad for the ATP Tour. It desperately needs a player like Connors. Someone who's his own man. Someone who's not afraid to show his emotions on the court. Someone who's loved for what he's accomplished on the court, not because he endorses a certain brand of shoe or racket or because he throws his T-shirt to the crowd after a match.

Most of the top men's players today are products of tennis academies. They're wonderfully skilled athletes, but they're little more than trained robots when it comes to anything else. They play without expression, and when they've won or lost, they leave the court the same way.

It's little wonder the amazing and emotionally charged run to the U.S. Open semifinals by a 39-year-old Connors in 1991 captured the tennis public's imagination like nothing since those great Connors-McEnroe-Bjorn Borg matches of the late 1970s and early '80s.

"That's just my own personality. I don't expect everybody to do what I do," Connors says of his emotional style of play.

"But I don't care if you're a housewife or a lawyer, you have ups and downs during the day just like we (pro tennis players) do. People want to see that. They want to see the smiles, the frowns, the grimaces and the laughter."

That's a key reason for Connors' popularity. He's someone everybody can identify with. Watch one of his matches and you can feel the highs and lows right along with him.

Connors draws not only the admiration of the sophisticated tennis audience, but also the blue-collar audience. That's because the Belleville, Ill., native is a blue-collar player — from the wrong side of the Mississippi River in St. Louis. And he was trained to play tennis by his mother and grandmother — something a lot of people found offensive in the late 1960s.

"It was unorthodox and very different," Connors admitted of his training. "When you think of boys playing baseball or basketball, it's always with their dads.

"Some people couldn't stomach the fact that I was trained by two women. When I was younger, it affected where I played and who I played."

Connors' personality also allows him to entertain the crowd — something else missing from today's tennis robots.

"People want to feel like they're a part of the match — that they're playing this guy or they're serving to this guy," Connors said. "People have come to expect more than watching, and they're not getting it on the regular tour."

Because of the money now available, what people are getting today are players who are happy just to finish second, third or fourth. Making money has become priority No. 1, and if a player happens to win the tournament while in the process, so be it.

That must seem so backwards to a battler like Connors.

Today, people are getting players who are making millions off endorsements before ever winning a major tournament. When Connors was in his prime, players had to win the U.S. Open or Wimbledon to land big endorsement deals.

This influx of money has changed tennis — changed the camaraderie between players.

"We used to try and kill each other during the match," Connors said. "But afterward, we had great rapport in the locker room. We'd go eat together or drink a beer.

"Now, one player goes to one side of the locker room and one goes to the other, and they don't say anything to each other. That's really tough on me because all my buddies have left the regular tour. I'm left with some kid who's 15 years younger than me and has nothing to say.

"He's listening to ZZ Top, and I'm listening to the Four Tops."

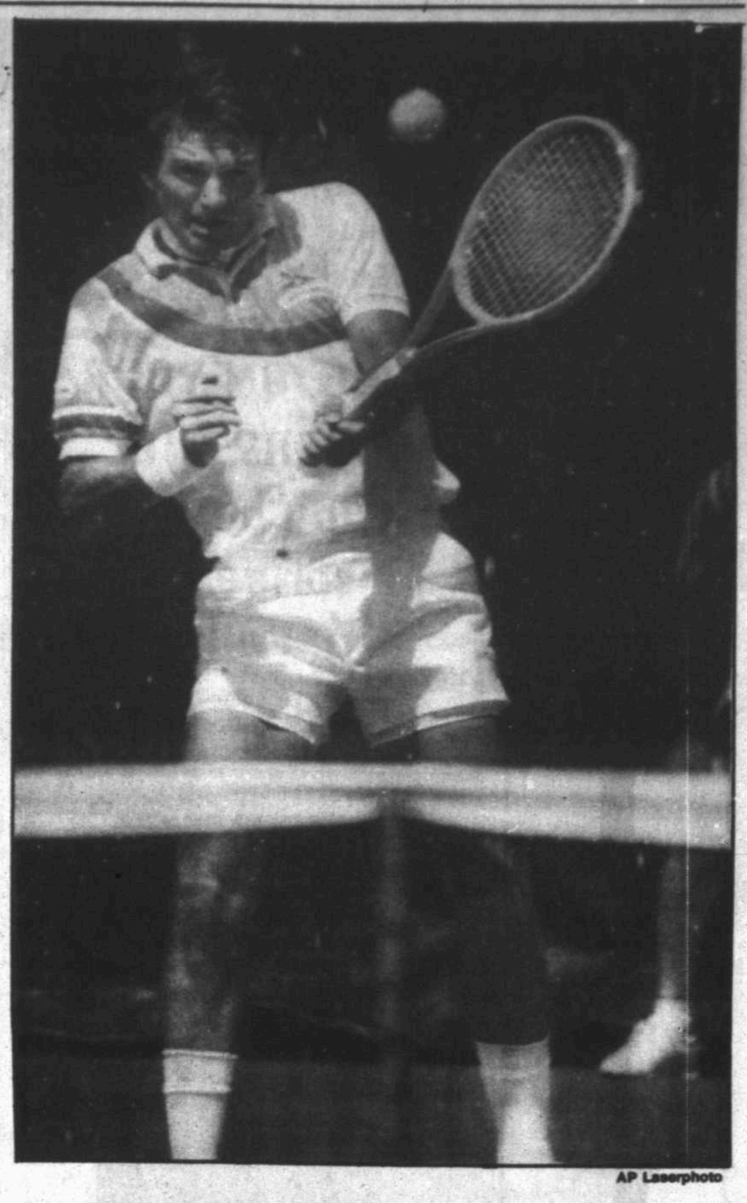

Ironically, successful players like Connors from his era may be responsible for changes in tennis because of the influx of money.

"Guys like Cliff Richey and myself fought ... to make tennis exciting — to make it where 20,000 people would show up for a match and the sponsors would come in," Connors said.

"If that's my fault, then I'll take all the blame for it."

Longhorns gain confidence in tie with Syracuse

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Longhorns, fresh from a confidence-building 21-21 tie with Syracuse, face their third Top 25 opponent in three games this week when they travel to No. 24 Louisville.

For the second week in a row, the Longhorns' opponent is looking for respect, Texas coach John Mackovic said Monday.

"They (Louisville) weren't in the Top 25 last week and they were a little bit upset," Mackovic said. "Now they are in, and this is the part of the schedule where they are intending to make their move, not to the Top 20, but to the Top 10."

Syracuse quarterback Marvin Graves had said before Saturday's game that the Orangemen wanted to blow out Texas to show the pollsters that his team deserved to be higher in the rankings.

But the Longhorns (0-1-1) battled to a draw with great special teams play and the help of a couple missed Syracuse field goals late in the game.

Mackovic hopes the confidence his team gained will carry over.

"A win would be big for us. We will be the underdogs," he said.

Mackovic praised Louisville's senior quarterback Jeff Brohm, saying, "I think he will be one of the real quarterbacks of note for the NFL draft next spring."

He compared this year's Louisville team to their 1990 team that finished 10-1-1 and defeated Alabama 34-7 in the Fiesta Bowl.

"Outsiders are not saying it now, but by the end of the year this team will be compared to the 1990 team," Mackovic said.

The second-year Texas coach said his offense, which was sluggish in gaining only 201 yards against the Orangemen, will have to improve dramatically against the Cardinals, who knocked off Arizona State, 35-17, Saturday.

Mackovic noted that Louisville (3-0) has turned the ball over just three times, compared to 13 turnovers by their opponents. The defense has 10 interceptions in victories against San Jose State (31-24), Memphis State (54-28) and Arizona State.

"I think their defense is better than Syracuse or Colorado," said Mackovic, whose team lost its opener, 36-14, to the 13th-ranked Buffaloes.

"I think they play the pass better than either of the two teams we have played and that is with a lot of respect to Syracuse, who held us to nothing. Louisville has better athletes. They try to make big plays. They go for the interceptions, and they get them."

That is bad news for the Longhorns' redshirt freshman-led, pass offense which has scored only three touchdowns in two games, after averaging 26 points a game last year.

"When you have a young quarterback and young receivers, you are going to have some inconsistency. You are going to have some ups and downs," Mackovic said.

Against Syracuse, Texas special teams star Mike Adams rescued the offense. Adams scored on a 54-yard punt return and set up another score with an 80-yard kick return.

Amazingly, there were only nine men on the field for the Longhorns when Adams scored on the punt.

Mackovic jokingly said he wasn't going to convert to a nine-man return, but added that "sometimes all those people just get in the way, anyway. A great returner does not want people getting in his way."

Injuries and inexperience caused two players to forget their special teams assignment, Mackovic said.

Mackovic said middle linebacker Winfred Tubbs, who is wearing a cast on his right arm due to torn tendons, injured his left hand against Syracuse.

Tech tries to turn it around

LUBBOCK (AP) — The Texas Tech Red Raiders, who've skidded on a two-game losing streak, must stop letting the big plays get by, coach Spike Dykes said Monday.

Texas Tech (1-2) opens its Southwest Conference season Saturday afternoon against Baylor (2-1) in Waco.

Dykes credited the Bears with pulling out scrappy victories this season, including last week's game at Utah State, won 28-24 in the final 11 seconds. Baylor opened its season to beat Fresno State 42-39 with 1:59 remaining.

"Success breeds success. I think that really, really does help their confidence level," Dykes said. "They've come from behind and come from behind, and they've got a lot of character."

Texas Tech's own come-from-behind rallies have started too late to salvage losses to Nebraska and Georgia.

In Athens, Ga., last week, the Red Raiders languished behind 28-7 at halftime but edged within eight points in the fourth quarter. The Bulldogs prevailed, 52-37, for their first win of 1993.

The loss featured the big plays Dykes lamented Monday: Georgia's Eric Zeier threw an 80-yard touchdown pass on the game's second play, Chris McCranie returned Tech's second punt 45 yards for a score, and Jerry Jerman took a Tech kickoff 73 yards.

"We shot ourselves in the foot," Dykes said. "We'd get a fumble right off the bat, and pick it up, return it back to the 35-40 yard line and we're offsides.

"Every time we did something pretty good, we seemed to fall back and not be able to get it done."

The Texas Tech-Baylor matchup features the SWC's leading offenses. The Red Raiders are averaging 480.3 yards per game, while the Bears have amassed a game-average 440.3 yards.

Tech defenders picked off two J.J. Joe passes last year to beat Baylor 36-17 in Lubbock.

"You know certainly their offense is one to be reckoned with," Dykes said. "They're big and strong, they've got outstanding running backs, they've got a great quarterback. They've thrown the ball and thrown the ball well this year — better than they ever have before."

NBA: Probable northern exposure

(From 1C)

move."

One of the three Toronto bidders is the Cohl-Ballard group, with Magic Johnson among the 12 partners.

"This has been a dream of mine to own an NBA team," Johnson, who won five championships as a player for the Los Angeles Lakers, said at a news conference after the presentation. "A little rain, snow or sleet won't bother me because basketball is played indoors."

Asked if he could sell basketball in a country that craves hockey and a city that has adopted baseball, Johnson said, "We've got to do a big selling job in Toronto and in Buffalo, too, for a couple of years."

Johnson said he did not feel strange appearing before the expansion committee as a businessman after years as a player.

"There's no way to look at me any different when you operate a $60 million business," Johnson said, referring to his numerous business interests. "I'm a partner. I'm invested in this group, with money and time. I'm here for real, and they've taken me for real."

Michael Cohl and Bill Ballard are major concert promoters in North America, and they plan to build an arena in Toronto even if the group does not win an NBA franchise.

The first presentation was by the Palestra Group, which plans to build an arena in downtown Toronto and share the facility with the NHL's Maple Leafs.

One-third of the Palestra financing would come from the chairman of the group, Lawrence Tanenbaum, with the other two-thirds by Labatt's Ltd. and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. Labatt's owns 90 percent of the Toronto Blue Jays and the CIBC 10 percent.

"We believe we sold the NBA on coming to Canada and we're pleased to be part of the effort for Toronto," said Joel Rose, president of Palestra. "Our presentation told the NBA we have the partnership, and we're prepared to deliver."

The Vancouver group is headed by the owner of the NHL's Vancouver Canucks, Arthur Griffiths.

"I don't believe we're a longshot," Griffiths said. "We're the fastest-growing city in the country and our economy is about as strong as any city in the United States. I don't think the NBA would have asked us to enter their process if they weren't serious in their intentions."

Griffiths and Michael Horsey, president of the corporation that is building an arena for the Canucks and the NBA team if it is chosen, said the name of the NBA team would be the "Mounties," and they wore hats with the new nickname and logo.

Horsey said Vancouver's hopes rest on the NBA expanding from 27 to 29 teams.

"If it came down to a fight between Vancouver and Toronto, we'd probably lose," he said. "Realistically, our chances ride with the NBA adding two teams."

The final Toronto group was led by John Bitove. His group also is planning a downtown arena, but does not plan a partnership with the Maple Leafs.

"At the end of the day, you're asking the NBA to trust you," Bitove said. "I hope they believe we are the best group with the best arena."

CHIEFS: No Denver rally for Elway

(From 1C)

Vance Johnson with 1:24 remaining for the only touchdown of the game.

Meanwhile, the old guys were performing for the Chiefs and penalty flags were flying — 25 in all for the two teams.

Allen, 33, gained 91 yards in 17 carries, his best regular-season game since 1988.

Montana avoided enough mistakes to win his second game without a loss as a Chief — he sat out last week's 30-0 loss in Houston with a sore wrist. He missed open receivers several times, but finished 21 of 36 for 273 yards, six to Willie Davis for 139 yards.

But Lowery got the points — field goals of 34, 41, 52 and 44 yards in the first half and 20 yards in the fourth quarter. Typically, a Denver penalty for too many men on the field gave the Chiefs three points — it moved Lowery into position for the 52-yarder after Kansas City had already punted.

It was the first loss for the Broncos after two victories and a game totally unworthy of such stars as Montana, Allen and Elway.

The first AFC West meeting of the two premier quarterbacks was a dreadful contest, marred by 25 penalties for 180 yards between the two teams. Gary Zimmerman, the Broncos' new left tackle, was called for three false starts and the Chiefs were called three times for roughing Elway.

Elway, under pressure all night, was 28 of 45 for 300 yards.

The game marked the first regular-season victory for Montana over Elway, against whom he had been 0-3. Montana did lead San Francisco to a 55-10 triumph over Denver and Elway in the 1990 Super Bowl.

It was only the third victory in 12 games against Denver for Kansas City coach Marty Schottenheimer, who has been bedeviled over the years with the Chiefs and Browns by Elway's last-minute comebacks.

Montana didn't start brilliantly, but with the help of Ron Dickerson's 44-yard return of the opening kickoff, the Chiefs got off to a 3-0 lead.

Dickerson's return put the Chiefs at the Denver 48, and after a holding penalty on Ricky Siglar, Montana found Willie Davis for 35 yards to the Broncos 23. But he threw wide to Tim Barnett, open on the goal line, and the Chiefs settled for Lowery's 34-yard field goal.

Lowery hit a 41-yarder with 2:37 remaining in the quarter to make it 6-0 after a 74-yard drive from the Chiefs' 2-yard line. Montana was 5 of 7 for 59 yards in the drive.

Lowery's 52-yarder made it 9-0 with 8:56 to play in the half and was a gift from the Broncos — the Chiefs had already punted from the 39, but Denver was called for 12 men on the field and the ball was moved into field-goal range.

Just under five minutes later, Lowery hit from 44 and it was 12-0.

The penalties were fewer in the third quarter, but so was the offense — neither team threatened.

Montana's final field goal game at the end of an 84-yard drive highlighted by a 29-yard pass from Montana to J.J. Birden. It marked the fourth time in Lowery's career that he kicked five field goals in a game.

Denver's TD came at the end of a 92-yard drive with the Chiefs in a prevent defense. Two onside kicks went out of bounds and Kansas City ran out the clock.

POLL: Billy Joe Tolliver returns

(From 1C)

"It's a pride thing, but we know that it also gives our opponents a little extra incentive," said Boyd coach J.G. Cartwright.

If anyone gets a motivation boost, it'll likely be the Yellowjackets as they see their stars of yesteryear return to the site of their glory days. All but three players are expected to be back.

One of the stars planning to attend is Billy Joe Tolliver, now a backup with the Atlanta Falcons.

In his day, Tolliver was Boyd's superstar. That role now belongs to Robby Cartwright, the coach's son who was a 7-year-old waterboy in awe of Tolliver and his teammates.

Cartwright was a top running back last year, but this season has moved to quarterback. On defense, he's a four-year starter, one of the few his dad can remember in his 17 years at Boyd.

"He's been a good player ever since he started playing in the third grade," the proud pop said.

This season has been extra special for J.G. not only because of Robby, but also because he's coaching a squad full of players he's known for more than a decade.

"Some kids I don't get to know until they get into the seventh grade. Sometimes, I never even meet these parents. But I've known these guys a long time and most of their parents I've known for years," Cartwright said.

The Yellowjackets play their fourth straight 3A team this weekend in Bowie, then drop into their own class next weekend with Holliday before kicking off district play.

"We began the year inexperienced at some of our key spots, including the skill positions. But every week we've been executing a little better," Cartwright said.

Following the Yellowjackets are Honey Grove, Pilot Point, Goldthwaite and Wall.

Omaha Paul Pewitt fell to sixth, ahead of Groveton, Freer, Mart and Boling.

With only four ranked teams losing and two tying, there was little movement in other classes.

Only three new teams joined the poll, with Hamshire-Fannett and Reagan County replaced Commerce and Bellville in 3A and Collinsville supplanting Runge in 1A.

The 5A race is still a tight battle on top, with former No. 1 Converse Judson remaining third.

A loss by Aldine Eisenhower dropped it from fourth to tenth and allowed several other teams to move up slots.

The 4A ranking was unchanged, except for La Marque and Austin Westlake swapping second and third. La Marque jumped ahead by one poll point.
