Reagan, Bush subpoenaed in North trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and President-elect Bush were subpoenaed Friday as defense witnesses in the trial of retired Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North in the Iran-Contra affair.

"We did receive it," Justice Department spokesman Loye Miller said. "There's one for the president and one for the vice president. We received it at mid-afternoon." The subpoenas were received by Robert Ross, the executive assistant to Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, Miller said.

A statement released by the White House press office in Palm Springs, Calif., where Reagan is on vacation, said, "The Justice Department has received a subpoena seeking the president's testimony at the criminal trial of Oliver North. The subpoena also seeks the discovery of certain personal records of the president. The subpoena was not an unanticipated development.

"It raises significant legal and constitutional questions which are currently being reviewed by the Department of Justice and counsel to the president," the statement said. "It would be unprecedented for a president to appear as a witness at a criminal trial and it's premature to speculate on the final decision that will ultimately be taken, but historical precedent suggests any relevant information could be provided through written questions and answers."

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that unidentified White House and Justice Department officials said they will fight the subpoenas.

The newspaper also cited an unidentified White House official as saying Reagan viewed the subpoena effort as an attempt to pressure him into granting a pardon to North before he leaves office. The official said Reagan had not changed his view that the legal process should run its course.

Roman Popadiuk, a White House spokesman, said Reagan had known since Wednesday that it was likely he would be subpoenaed. White House chief of staff Kenneth Duberstein told Reagan on Friday morning that the subpoena would be delivered during the afternoon, Popadiuk said.

Bush aides confirmed that the president-elect had received a subpoena Friday.

Bush press secretary Sheila Tate said Bush legal counsel Boyden Gray informed the vice president Friday morning that the subpoena would be delivered that afternoon, but she did not know Bush's reaction.

She said he is spending the weekend at Camp David, Md., and didn't plan to discuss the trial matter. Gray, she said, did have conferences on the matter Friday, but she said she could give no further details.

Although New Year's Eve likely is accompanied by the most widespread use of alcohol of the year, law enforcement officials in Midland warn once again that drinking and driving definitely do not mix.

Dettman worries about drunk drivers

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Law enforcement officers are worried drunk drivers will be as thick as midnight confetti this weekend when New Year's Eve revelers begin spilling into the streets on the first morning of 1989.

"Don't," cautioned County Attorney Mark Dettman to partygoers who are thinking of driving drunk. "I worry about the potential harm that is caused by the people that are driving drunk. The scary thing is we are seeing more repeat offenders, and that is something to worry about."

The threat of drunk drivers is so insidious — and constant — that the county attorney avoids one of Midland's heavily traveled roadways after dark.

"I won't drive on Highway 80, especially now," he said of the four-lane road that connects Midland and Odessa. "It has been a real danger zone. And there are more DWI's out there during the holiday season."

"We are seeing more of them because the police department and DPS are putting special emphasis on finding them," he said.

Officers of the Midland police DWI Task Force have been patrolling problem streets since October 1 and have doubled the number of driving while intoxicated arrests compared to the same three-month period in 1987.

Police will be out again beginning 8 p.m. today, according to Sgt. Mike Roberts of the traffic division.

The Department of Public Safety's Operation Motorcide began 6 p.m. Friday and continues until midnight Monday.

Agency announces three more bailouts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators late Friday announced $3 billion dollar-plus bailouts of insolvent savings and loan institutions, part of the packages that will have rescued a post-Depression record 222 ailing S&Ls before the end of 1988.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board put the cost to the government of all 222 bailout packages at $38.6 billion.

One of the largest bailouts involved $1.6 billion in government aid which will go to First Nationwide Financial Corp., a subsidiary of the Ford Motor Co., to assist it in purchasing two failed S&Ls in Denver, and one each in Chicago and Cleveland.

The four insolvent institutions have assets of almost $8 billion and they will be merged eventually into Ford's huge savings and loan subsidiary, the First Nationwide Bank of San Francisco.

The completed deal will give the automaker the nation's second largest savings and loan business, with assets exceeding $34 billion.

Ford will put up $170 million and the government agreed to provide $1.6 billion in assistance over the next 10 years to complete the transaction.

Bomb reportedly placed in Frankfurt

LONDON (AP) — Investigators have told Scottish police that the bomb that destroyed Pan Am Flight 103 was put aboard in Frankfurt, West Germany, The Times of London reported Saturday.

The report said investigators are certain that luggage loaded on Flight 103 in Frankfurt and flown to London's Heathrow airport was transferred on arrival at Heathrow to the forward cargo hold of the doomed Boeing 747.

It said scientists have established that the bomb exploded in that hold, causing the jumbo jet to disintegrate.

Flight 103 originated in Frankfurt, changed planes at Heathrow and continued to New York.

The jet crashed in the Scottish village of Lockerbie on Dec. 21 less than an hour after taking off from Heathrow, killing all 259 people aboard and 11 on the ground.

The account said the hunt for those responsible is now centered in Frankfurt "where a Palestinian terrorist cell is known to have been operating for more than 18 months."

It said the cell is known to be part of Ahmed Jibril's hardline Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command and to have carried out two bombing attacks on U.S. military trains that serve Frankfurt.

The paper did not identify by name the source of its information.

It said Scottish police officers who flew to Frankfurt on Friday would be shown evidence of the terrorist unit's existence and are expected to meet with a Palestinian man, suspected of being a senior figure in Jibril's organization, arrested by West German security forces two months ago.

The paper noted that the Jibril group, in a statement in Damascus Friday, denied any connection with the crash.

An anonymous male caller claiming to represent a group called the Guardians of the Islamic Revolution telephoned American news agencies in London Friday to repeat a claim of responsibility and threaten further attacks.

The blue-and-white nose cone of Flight 103 was removed from the Scottish countryside Friday so investigators can examine the "symbol of this disaster" for clues to the bomb.

The search for wreckage expanded from Lockerbie and surrounding countryside into the waters of the Solway Firth, said Deputy Chief Constable Paul Newell of the regional police force.

He said the coast guard was acting on an eyewitness report that something fell into the inlet, about 20 miles from Lockerbie.

The airplane's nose cone and cockpit, with its name, "Clipper Maid of the Seas," still visible, had lain in a field beside a church for eight days, a silent reminder of the tragedy.

"The picture of this nose cone has been seen throughout the world," said police Chief Superintendent Angus Kennedy. "It has become a symbol of this disaster."

On Friday helicopters and trucks hauled the cut-up wreckage to the Royal Aerospace Establishment 300 miles south at Farnborough, southwest of London.

Investigators from the Department of Transport's Air Accidents Investigation Branch will examine it for clues about the bomb.

Reagan-style federalism makes states stronger, governor says

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ronald Reagan's accomplishments and failures during eight years in the White House — and the impact his policies and decisions will have on our nation's future — are examined by those members of the Hearst Washington Bureau's staff who covered the varying aspects of his presidency. This seventh and final part deals with the federal-state relationship.

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Cheers rose from the spectators' stands in which the nation's governors were seated on Inauguration Day, 1981, when Ronald Reagan promised to shift power from the federal government to the states.

Now, eight years later, analysts report that the president's policy of "decentralizing" power and responsibility has produced a fundamental change in the federal-state relationship.

But today the governors' cheers are muffled and many city officials are glum as they try to cope with increased demand for services and still-shrinking federal aid.

Some state and local officials claim that Reagan's policies have demanded that they adopt creative means of meeting their responsibilities; others contend that the president's approach has left them with more responsibilities but fewer resources.

Virginia Gov. Gerald L. Baliles, a Democrat and chairman of the National Governors' Association, explained that states have become stronger because Reagan's style of federalism and budget cuts have forced them "to survive through innovation and on the strength of their own economies."

Cities and states have lost 60 percent of their federal aid. General revenue sharing, the no-strings-attached program created by Richard Nixon, was killed. There have been no new federally aided starts for low-income housing, and environmental programs have taken a big cut as well.

At the same time, the Reagan administration has opted for large tax reductions and increased government spending in other areas. And federal deficits running in excess of $150 billion have left state and local elected officials with no illusions that they will receive more money from the federal government.

Phoenix Mayor Terry Goddard, who also is president of the National League of Cities, said the deficit is now the driving force in the federal government and the cities "have been cut loose" to fend for themselves.

At a recent convention of the league in Boston, Robert Barnstone, a city councilman from Austin, Texas, said: "Reagan was the epitome of the period of benign neglect. He did tremendous damage to programs...We have increased responsibilities, and have seen tremendous increases in property taxes. The Reagan legacy? 'You're on your own.'"

Still, some cities have demonstrated extraordinary creativity in filling the void left by federal funding cuts.

"They are becoming entrepreneurial, scrimping and saving and selling off public assets to finance programs," Goddard said.

Beaumont, Texas, for instance, won a National League of Cities award for "technology achievement" by encouraging civic-minded investors to buy low-interest certificates of deposit.

Some unusual events will ring in new year

Associated Press

Petting animals, singing for peace and a massive steak fry and rodeo have been added this year to the more traditional champagne toasts and party-horn tooting as ways of greeting the New Year.

There also will be fake snow for the unusually unwintry New Hampshire and blankets for the homeless in usually warm Phoenix.

In the Smoky Mountains of Tennessee, at least 100 couples are planning to start off the New Year by hitching up with a new spouse.

Energy futures prices close higher

From Staff and Wire Reports

Energy futures prices ended the year on a strong note Friday, with crude oil prices breaking the psychologically important $17-a-barrel level.

Two Permian Basin crude purchasers responded by raising their posted price by 50 cents per barrel to $16. Permian Corp. and Phillips Petroleum Co. made the move effective today.

Analysts attributed the buying spree to optimism that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will adhere to its new production quotas starting Jan. 1.

The cartel agreed last month to slash daily production to 18.5 million barrels to help prop up sagging worldwide oil prices.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange Friday, the February contract for West Texas Intermediate rose 47 cents to settle at $17.24 a barrel, after losing 20 cents on Thursday.

Among refined petroleum products traded on the exchange, the January contract for wholesale home heating oil rose 0.71 cent to 53.48 cents a gallon. The contract declined 0.72 cent on Thursday.

January wholesale unleaded gasoline, which lost 0.03 cent Thursday, closed at 47.88 cents a gallon, up 0.87 cent.

Bush still has two posts to fill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Bush headed for the White House retreat at Camp David, Md., on Friday for a long holiday weekend, leaving two Cabinet-level jobs unfilled as he enters the new year.

Bush and his wife, Barbara, planned to relax in seclusion until late Monday, aides said. No staff or advisers were slated to accompany them, and there were no plans for family members to join them, said spokeswoman Kristine Taylor.

She said President Reagan, who is in California for the holiday, offered Bush the use of the Catoctin Mountains retreat, and that the Bushes decided to take him up on it.

No announcements were expected before Tuesday on Bush's choices for energy secretary and the new Cabinet-rank post of drug czar, said David Prosperi, spokesman for the Bush transition team.

While speculation continued to swirl around former Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger as a potential pick for that post, the president-elect spent Friday meeting with his designee for United Nations ambassador, Thomas Pickering, and with CIA Director William Webster.

Pickering, currently the ambassador to Israel, briefed Bush on U.S.-Israeli relations and they discussed the current Middle East peace process, said Taylor.

Substance of his private meeting and luncheon with Webster was not disclosed.

While several names have been mentioned as possible choices for energy secretary, those of Schlesinger and former Rep. Henson Moore, R-La., were said by transition sources to be the leading contenders at week's end.

Air Force Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, head of the Pentagon's Strategic Defense Initiative program, who had been mentioned earlier as a contender for the energy job, has told friends he would not be selected.

For the Cabinet-level post of drug czar, created last year by congressional legislation, the name of Customs Commissioner William von Raab has been mentioned in several reports. However, von Raab's aide, Steve Dougherty, said Friday that the commissioner has received no query from nor had any official contact with the Bush transition team.

Meanwhile, the Bush transition office is expected to announce a flurry of White House staff positions, including Bush campaign operative Jim Wray as political director.

Many names have surfaced as candidates for energy secretary, and sources said the decision is being held up in part by strong lobbying within the transition office for one or another candidate.

Bush has said he wants someone with capabilities to deal with the pressing problem of nuclear waste disposal and other nuclear safety questions.

Transition sources said Schlesinger, who served as the first energy secretary when President Jimmy Carter appointed him, and earlier as secretary of defense under Presidents Ford and Nixon, was getting serious attention.

Schlesinger's Washington office said Friday he would have no comment on the matter.

Moore's office also refused comment, but a source in the office of one of his key boosters, Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., said Moore has remained one of the top two contenders for he post.

The independent-minded Schlesinger would be a controversial choice, given opposition to him by industry leaders and his affiliation with the trouble-plagued energy policies of the Carter presidency.

He was energy secretary when gasoline lines reappeared in the summer of 1979, and resigned thereafter.

He helped shape policy against which Ronald Reagan and Bush campaigned in 1980, and large parts of which they dismantled — a massive government effort to develop unconventional sources of energy, a so-called windfall profits tax on crude oil, help for the poor faced with higher fuel bills and continued price controls on natural gas. Bush in his campaign urged complete decontrol of natural gas.

Moore, who represented a chemicals- and refining-intensive district around Baton Rouge, is a lawyer who ran unsuccessfully for the Senate in 1986. He is backed my many in the oil industry, which lost 150,000 jobs in the price collapse of recent years.

Also frequently mentioned for the energy post is Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lee Thomas, who revived the nearly abortive "superfund" toxic waste cleanup program in 1983, and presided over a quintupling of the program.

Meanwhile, transition officials have told Dennis R. Patrick, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, that Bush is "fully satisfied with his performance and has no intention of replacing him," FCC spokesman John Kamp said Friday.

Patrick, 37, who is serving a term that ends in June 1992, was designated chairman of the agency by President Reagan in February 1987.

Iranian offers to open talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Iranian intermediary has approached the United States offering to reopen diplomatic talks between the two countries, but the State Department is holding out for "a substantive, up-front" proposal, a U.S. official said Friday.

"It must come from someone in a position to make decisions," said the official in explaining why the department was cool to the offer, which was channeled through an Iranian-American professor.

The U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the unidentified scholar, who teaches at a small college, was approached by an Iranian who has a low-level job in the foreign or justice ministry in Tehran.

Currently, there are nine American hostages in Lebanon, all held by a pro-Iranian group, according to the department's counter-terrorism office.

"Given our past experience in dealing with people who purport to represent the Iranian government, it's clear we need to speak to someone openly and up-front, someone in an authoritative position," the U.S. official said.

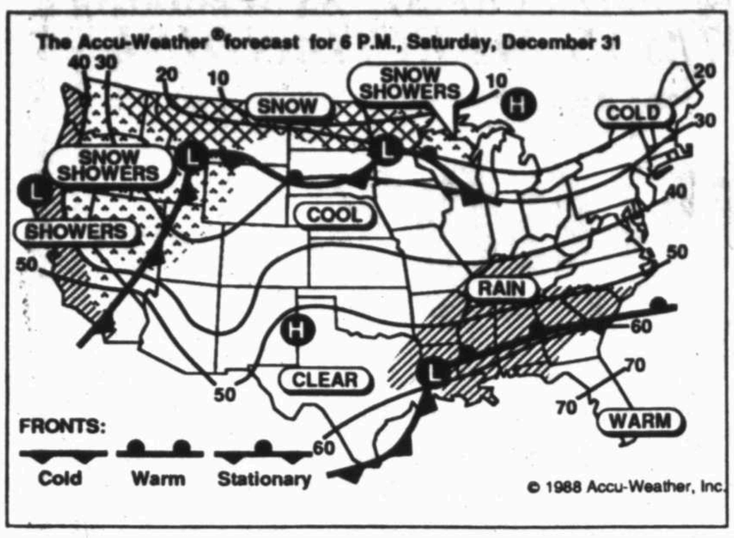
WEATHER SUMMARY



Sunny weather forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport are calling for sunny weather both today and Sunday with a high in the mid-50s today and in the upper 50s on Sunday. The high Monday is to be in the lower 60s.

Tonight's low should be in the lower 20s, with a low Sunday in the mid-30s.

Winds are to be westerly to southwesterly at 5 to 15 mph today.

Friday's high temperature was 60 degrees, while the overnight low was 20. The record high for a December 30 was 82 degrees, set in 1951, while the record low for a December 31 was 14 degrees, set in 1976.

STATE

Fog and heavy clouds prevailed throughout much of North and South Texas on Friday while clear skies prevailed across the western half of the state.

A few scattered showers were reported in Southeast Texas. The National Weather Service said moist Gulf air flowing over cooler air near the surface was responsible for the soggy weather across the eastern half of the state.

Sunny skies are likely on Saturday, the weather service said, although some early morning fog and drizzle could occur in North Texas, Southeast Texas and extreme South Texas.

NATION

A cold front crossing the Northwest brought rain and gales to the coastal areas and snow to higher elevations Friday, while showers ranged from east Texas through the lower Mississippi Valley to the Carolinas.

Snow has been falling across northern sections of the Sacramento Valley, and up to a foot of snow was possible through Friday night high in the Sierra Nevada range of Northern California and the Lake Tahoe area of Nevada.

Gale warnings were set for coastal Oregon and Northern California, and a snow advisory remained in effect Friday for the mountains of Idaho, the Cascades of Washington and Oregon, and the Siskiyou mountains of Oregon.

FEDERALISM

These certificates were then pooled by banks and loaned at low, fixed rates for economic development. More than $2 million in such funding already has been generated.

San Antonio also was cited for paving the way for local manufacturers to produce spare parts for the U.S. Air Force, a major employer, which sharply increased the number of federal contracts in the area as a result.

Reagan's brand of federalism will have a positive impact, according to Goddard. "There is a spirit and spunkiness in local government which is undeniable and good," he said.

At the same time, however, Goddard conceded that "no city alone can solve the housing crisis (and) we can't create a major initiative on trade or education."

Noting that Reagan claimed he wanted to give both "responsibility and authority" to local governments, Alan Beals, executive director of the National League of Cities, asserted that the "authority" side of the equation is woefully lacking.

For example, tax reform legislation in 1986 significantly reduced the authority of local governments to issue long-term tax-exempt bonds. "If you accept the philosophy that we cannot afford, at the national level, to maintain the nation's infrastructure — water, sewer, streets and roads — then logically you wouldn't cut the ability of the local governments to exercise that responsibility," Beals said.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Williamson, who was the White House aide in charge of the new federalism during Reagan's first term, agreed that tax-exempt municipal bonds should not have been wiped out by the new tax law. Still, he contended that state and local governments are better off than when Reagan came to Washington.

"They're stronger," said Williamson. "Talented people go where the action is."

Williamson denied the often-heard suggestion that Reagan deliberately "starved" the states and local governments in an attempt to force them to curtail or end social programs.

In analyzing the effects of Reagan's domestic policies, political scientists Richard P. Nathan and Fred C. Doolittle concluded that the deficit has inhibited new federal programs and local taxes have gone up while federal taxes have gone down.

Studying 14 representative states, the researchers also found that Reagan's federalism stimulated state governments to greater efforts in areas where the federal government either was cutting or threatening to cut grants.

Nathan and Doolittle said Florida, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York and Oklahoma responded to federal cuts with the "most pronounced" reaction, increasing state funding and playing a stronger policy-making and administrative role.

States with an "intermediate" response to federal cuts included Mississippi, Ohio, Texas, Washington, Arizona, Illinois, Missouri and South Dakota.

Among the states the researchers said responded only minimally to the changes wrought by Reagan was California, where laws capping tax rates has been enacted.

Some experts in federal-state relations have predicted that president-elect George Bush will find it difficult to fulfill his campaign pledges to improve education and the environment unless he also breaks his promise of no tax increases.

Former Oklahoma Rep. Jim Jones, who was chairman of the House Budget Committee, said the new president "has to lead on the question of investment in human capital...and investment in infrastructure, like dams, highways and sewer systems...to ensure the economic development we all want to see."

And Rep. Bill Gradison, R-Ohio, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he believes Congress has reached "the irreducible minimum in scaling back state and local grants."

YEAR

The Rev. Ed Taylor, dubbed the "marry-thon" minister of the Smokies, said "This takes the cake. This weekend has turned into the second busiest time of the year," Taylor said Friday. He performed 113 marriages last Valentine's Day.

"We've got four ministers and three chapels going," Taylor said of his interdenominational Gatlinburg Ministries Inc.

West Virginia football fans in Arizona for Monday's Fiesta Bowl game between the No. 3 ranked Mountaineers and No. 1 ranked Notre Dame are planning the "Superbowl of alumni parties," said Steve Douglas, executive director of the West Virginia Alumni Association.

A steak fry and private rodeo are planned for about 7,500 people Sunday at Rawhide, a Western theme park in Scottsdale, complete with fireworks, dancing and the Mountaineer mascot parading on the back of a bull.

The ball which is to be dropped at the stroke of midnight in New York City's Times Square will be different this New Year's. The wrought-iron ball replaces the red apple used in recent years "because it's a more universal symbol," said Tama Starr, president of Artkraft Strauss Sign Corp., which created the new ball.

New Yorkers who party at a downtown nightclub called B2 will be treated to a shower of dollar bills — $5,000 worth — that will rain onto the dance floor at midnight. A quick-handed partygoer might be able to recoup the $65 price of admission.

At Manhattan's Cathedral of St. John the Divine, a free "Concert For Peace" includes a prayer for peace being read by actor Jason Robards.

Rhode Islanders will have a choice of First Night and Last Night celebrations. The fourth annual First Night in Providence is expected to draw about 40,000 people for a variety of alcohol-free festivities. The Last Night is a farewell party at the 100-year-old Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet ballroom, which is closing for at least two years.

At Patriots Square, a new downtown park in Phoenix, there will be space heaters and tents to keep some 1,000 partygoers warm as they watch fireworks and bands New Year's Eve. Low temperatures in recent days have been running in the 20s and 30s, unusually cold for this time of year. Those who attend are being asked to bring blankets for seating during the event, which will then be distributed to the homeless.

In New Hampshire, where snow is routine for New Year's, the city of Concord is manufacturing the powdery stuff on the Statehouse lawn for the ice sculptures to be featured in its First Night celebration tonight.

Included in the First Night celebration in Portsmouth, N.H., will be a petting farm featuring farm animals.

And to remind partygoers to keep it a happy new year, Mothers Against Drunk Driving in Ohio is sponsoring a statewide "Tie One On" program to tie red ribbons on antennas and rearview mirrors.

Maid of Cotton crowned for 1989

DALLAS (AP) — Gay Daughdrill, 21, of Memphis, Tenn., was crowned Friday night as the 1989 Maid of Cotton.

Miss Daughdrill, a senior English major at Rhodes College, wins a $10,000 scholarship. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Daughdrill Jr. of Memphis.

Midlander Tina Sanders, 21, South Plains Maid of Cotton, a junior at Texas Tech University, was one of 18 finalists.

Miss Daughdrill will make her first official appearance Monday at the Cotton Bowl Parade in downtown Dallas before the Cotton Bowl game in Dallas between Arkansas and UCLA before beginning a tour of the United States and Far East.

As the official goodwill ambassador for the cotton industry, she will participate in both fashion and speaking engagements. The National Cotton Council sponsors the Maid of Cotton program.

DRUNKS

The DPS has estimated that 34 persons will lose their lives on Texas roads during the 78 hours of the grim count, according to Trooper Awilda Cartagena of the Midland DPS office.

"During this holiday period, as we did over the Christmas holiday period, we will concentrate on drunk driving, speeding and use of the safety belt," Ms. Cartagena said. "We will have extra troopers out. As a matter of fact, everyone will be out," she said.

Twelve highway patrol officers work from the Midland office and will be supplemented during the holiday period by officers from other DPS divisions.

During Operation Motorcide last year, 43 persons were killed on Texas roads over the New Year's holiday, she said.

The DPS predicted 32 people would die over the Christmas weekend, but that figure was exceeded and 36 lives were lost, many in one-vehicle accidents, Ms. Cartagena noted.

"Many of them were rollovers, and in many of those cases the fatalities would not have occurred if safety belts had been worn," she said. "Use of the belts is something we would really like to stress."

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter said no special patrols are planned by his officers, but if an officer suspects a drunk driver, he will be pulled over.

"And there's room for 'em at the jailhouse," he said.

While groups such as Mothers Against Drunk Driving have heightened awareness of the problem, persons still drink and drive, and every year DPS has a need to count holiday traffic fatalities, many of them alcohol-related.

"In Midland the number (of drunk driving cases) has dropped considerably from where it was several years ago," Dettman said. "We were having 100 to 125 cases a month."

Ideas such as the designated driver program — in which only passengers but not the driver are allowed to drink to excess — are catching on in Midland, the prosecutor noted.

Trooper Cartagena agreed.

"Back in the past it was no big deal to go drinking and driving," she said. "But now it is not a cool thing to do."

As long as parties are held, and alcohol is sold, holiday drunk driving will be with us, Dettman said.

"It will always be a problem. I can easily see picking up 25 drunk drivers this weekend," said the county attorney. "If we were to put a concentrated effort out there, if you had every officer looking for DWIs, you could find them.

"There are that many out there."

Happy New Year.

REAGAN

"The receipt of this is not an unanticipated development, but it is unprecedented," said Bush press aide Kristin Taylor.

North, a former White House aide, is facing conspiracy and theft charges in the Iran-Contra affair.

He is charged with conspiring with former national security adviser John Poindexter and arms dealers Albert Hakim and retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord to illegally divert more than $12 million in U.S.-Iran arms-sales profits to the Nicaraguan rebels.

National security concerns have placed in jeopardy North's trial — which is scheduled to begin Jan. 31 — on the major conspiracy and theft charges, which involve extensive use of classified material.

North's attorney, Brendan Sullivan, appearing on ABC News, did not go into detail why Reagan and Bush were subpoenaed.

"What I do say is this: As you know, a defense lawyer has an obligation to issue a subpoena for every person who has relevant information about a matter in court," Sullivan said. "The president himself has indicated he has relevant information."

Attorneys for the vice president, the White House and the Justice Department were looking into the "constitutional legal issues" raised by the subpoenas, Taylor said.

In 1973, President Nixon received a subpoena to turn over White House tape recordings of conversations with top aides in connection with the Watergate scandal. Although Nixon was not required to testify, the Supreme Court ruled that Nixon had to release the tapes.

Tate said she could not say whether Bush's attorneys would fight the subpoena.

"What they're saying is that it's unprecedented to do that," she said in reference to potential Bush testimony.

The issue of how much he knew about North's activities with the Contras and the diversion of funds from Iran was the subject of contradictory testimony during congressional hearings into the Iran-Contra matter.

The subpoena could force Bush to disclose information that he previously has refused to divulge.

Bush repeatedly has refused to say what he discussed with Reagan regarding matters involved in the Iran-Contra affair, other than that he had reservations about U.S. sales of arms to Iran.

The congressional Iran-Contra investigating committees concluded last year that there was no evidence Bush knew of the diversion plan.

Bush also said he did not know of North's secret operation to supply the Contras during the congressional ban on aid.

THRIFTS

In another large bailout, the bank board said it was providing $1.37 billion to assist in the purchase of United Savings Association of Texas, one of the state's largest S&Ls with $4.4 billion in assets and operations in 15 branches in the Houston area.

The Texas S&L was being sold to Hyperion Partners, an affiliate of the New York investment firm of Ranieri Wilson and Co. Inc., which agreed to put up $200 million to make the purchase.

In the third largest package announced Friday, the bank board said it was providing $1 billion in assistance for Golden West Financial Corp. of Oakland, Calif., to manage two insolvent Florida S&Ls.

Under the agreement, Golden West will manage the institutions and will have the option to buy one of them, Beach Federal Savings and Loan of Boynton Beach, at a later date. The other S&L which will be managed by Golden West is New Metropolitan Federal Savings and Loan, headquartered in Hialeah.

Bank board officials defended the agency against charges by critics that the year-end rush to close deals would result in costing taxpayers billions of dollars unnecessarily.

Bank board officials said details had been completed and released on 210 of the institutions and agreements involving another 12 institutions would be finished before a midnight Saturday deadline when tax breaks to investors will be cut in half.

Among the institutions closed on Friday were S&Ls in Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Oklahoma, Montana and Texas.

CRASH

Police roped off an area near the wreckage where relatives of crash victims can place flowers.

The Times reported Friday that investigators believe the bomb's first trigger was a barometric device set to go off under a change of altitude. This would activate the second trigger, an electronic timer, to make the bomb explode at a later time, it said.

Terrorists developed the double detonator technique after some airports started putting cargo through pressure chambers which can detonate pressure-activated bombs, The Times said.

"The investigators have yet to establish whether a suitcase containing the bomb passed through Frankfurt's pressure chamber, setting off the timing device, or whether the timer was activated in flight," the newspaper said.

The caller claiming to speak for the Guardians of the Islamic Revolution said Friday that unless the United States deports Reza Pahlavi, son of the late Shah of Iran, "there will be another present in the New Year for America."

The day after the crash, an anonymous caller claimed it was retaliation by the Guardians of the Islamic Revolution for downing of an Iran Air airliner by the U.S. Navy cruiser Vincennes in the Persian Gulf in July.

The group previously claimed responsibility for a July 1987 bombing in London that wounded Amir Hussein Amir-Parviz, chairman of the National Movement for Iranian Resistance and a Cabinet minister under the shah.

Team 'ages' photos of missing children

Hearst News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — The young faces they draw are strangers, but somehow Lewis Sadler and Scott Barrows can't help feeling like they've watched the youngsters grow up.

In a sense, they have. Working with the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, the two University of Illinois professors have "aged" scores of photographs of America's missing children, using sophisticated anatomical data and their skills as medical illustrators.

"You certainly feel like you know them," said Sadler. "Sometimes, it's difficult for me because you feel like you saw them grow up and later on, you realize that you didn't — three turned up as homicides."

Called "age progression," the process of updating nearly useless photos of children missing as long as 10 years is revolutionizing the recovery of missing children.

Since 1985, the two men have "age-progressed" 81 photos of children. Twenty-six of those have been found. The drawings were a factor in 17 cases. Of those, nine children were found solely due to the drawings.

"This whole thing is revolutionary," said John Rabun, deputy director of the Washington-based missing children's center. "We'll have a whole new tool to work with. And it's reliable and scientifically based."

"They are outstanding," said Susan Losee of Protect Your Children, a San Leandro-based group that helps find missing children. "They do miraculous work. I just wish it were more available."

"Age progression" is being done by only a few illustrators. The FBI has its own photo updating process using a computer.

But the national center, which works with the two professors, considers their work the most advanced and scientifically reliable. Barrows and Sadler use data from dentists, plastic surgeons, and anthropologists to predict growth on an average young human face.

They are currently testing a computerized program that will reduce the time required to do a drawing from 20 hours to 20 minutes. It's being financed by a $1.3 million grant from AT&T.

"You only have to meet one or two parents of missing children and you can't turn away," said Barrows.

The center seeks cases that are at least three years old, and most often, police and media interest is nonexistent.

Barrows' first case was that of two missing Chicago sisters, whose "aged" drawings were televised on a documentary on missing children.

The girls were 5 and 7 when abducted by their father; they were 13 and 15 when Barrows got involved. Within 20 minutes of the program, there were three positive sightings. The next day, the girls were back with their mother.

One of the most challenging cases Barrows worked on was that of 17-month-old Christopher Fulmer of Leeds, Ala., who had been kidnapped by his mother and was missing five years.

Barrows had only a photo of Christopher at 14 months. His updated image was televised on a documentary, and his mother gave up the child and turned herself in.

"She was scared to death that the picture looked just like Chris," said Scott Fulmer, who has had his son back for two years. "It was just remarkable."

Not all the drawings are dead ringers, the artists say.

Sadler cited the case of a North Carolina youngster, who was kidnapped when she was three and had been missing 10 years.

"The photo I had was of this chubby little girl," Sadler said. "When I saw her, I said, 'Oh my God, she doesn't look anything like my drawing. She turned out to be extremely thin for a 13-year-old, she had a mouthful of braces and a totally different hair style. Even though it wasn't right or even super close, there was enough."

Free funeral offered to accident victims

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Some may call it a publicity gimmick, but Bob Neel believes that revelers find his annual offer to pay funeral costs for anyone killed in a drunken driving accident on New Year's Eve a sobering thought.

For the past 10 years, Neel's funeral home and cemetery has offered a free casket, funeral service and burial to anyone killed in a drunken-driving accident during the end-of-year celebrations.

So far, no one has collected, and Neel thinks his offer has made a difference.

"I can't prove it with statistics, of course, but I get so many calls and letters you wouldn't believe," Neel said Friday. "They tell me it's made them more aware of drinking. I know it has me and my friends. The publicity, I'm sure, has done some good."

Neel, chairman of Woodlawn Memorial Park & Funeral Home, started the practice in 1979, and he believes he was the first to do so.

"I've been challenged on that by other funeral directors," he said. "But I know of no one who offers all of the services that we do — the family would not have to spend one cent."

Neel said the casket, grave, funeral service, minister, embalming, flowers and incidentals would cost about $3,500.

Originally, Woodlawn required that those who planned to drink and drive over the holiday had to sign up to take advantage of the offer. Later, Neel dropped that stipulation and just had people call in beforehand.

But for the past two years, all that a relative or friend of the deceased had to do was come in after the accident and request the funeral.

The victim does not have to be the person driving. He or she can be a passenger or an innocent bystander killed in a smash-up caused by a drunken driver.

To dramatize the project this year, Woodlawn dug a fresh grave Friday morning, provided a vault and chapel tent and had a minister on hand for television cameras and reporters.

"We pray that it won't be used," said Neel. "It's an unusual thing to do and publicize, but if we save even one life, it's worth it."

Planes search for missing seamen

BOSTON (AP) — Rescue planes searched 9,300 square miles of ocean Friday looking for seamen aboard a life raft launched from a ship that sank off the New Jersey coast in an Atlantic gale, killing at least two crew members.

"It's like we're searching for a Volkswagen in the state of New Hampshire," said Coast Guard Petty Officer Ken Arbogast.

Two life rafts were launched Wednesday night from the Lloyd Bermuda just minutes before the 254-foot container ship capsized and sank amid 25-foot waves and violent winds about 160 miles south of Nantucket.

Five crewmen were plucked from the sea but one was already dead and one died on the way to the hospital. Three survivors were recovering from hypothermia Friday. Six crew members were still missing.

Only one life raft was found, empty, and rescuers hoped survivors might be aboard the other.

In Port Newark, N.J., memorial services were held Friday for the two victims — who officials have not identified — at the Seamen's Church Institute Seafarers Center.

The service in the center's chapel — where a model ship lies under the altar — was attended by about 20 people.

Rescue workers on Friday dropped radio signal-emitting buoys to track water currents and flew in grid-like search patterns, but as of late afternoon they had spotted only some debris, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Ellen Harrington. Nine planes were involved in the mission.

Friday's search was aided by calmer weather, with waves down to 3 to 4 feet and winds at 12 to 15 knots, down from 50 knots when the Lloyd Bermuda went down, Harrington said. But the forecast was for deteriorating weather overnight.

"We still have hope that there will be survivors and we'll continue searching," Harrington said.

Coast Guard officials feared that the raft could have been pushed far away from the location where the ship sank by heavy wind, waves and Gulf Stream currents.

Two of the rescued crewmen were identifed as Asmi Amvar and Jorge Montoya, 31, according to Harold Halpin of Lamorte Burns, of Greenwich, Conn., a representative of the ship's owners.

Halpin would not disclose their nationalities. They were on board the Coast Guard cutter Tamaroa and were helping searchers with information on what happened to their ship.

The third survivor, Dario Macio-Lopez, 35, of Honduras, was recovering from hypothermia in the intensive care unit at Falmouth Hospital.

The ship's captain was American and the crew was a mix of nationalities, John W. Moore of the Meyer Agencies Inc., the ship's agent in Bermuda, said in an interview from Hamilton.

The Lloyd Bermuda, registered in Cyprus, left Port Elizabeth, N.J., Tuesday night bound for Bermuda with a general cargo that included food and domestic goods.

The captain radioed a distress signal at 7:10 p.m. Wednesday, saying the ship's load had shifted and the vessel would soon capsize. Survivors said they abandoned ship within minutes and watched it sink from their lifeboat.

Officer kills gunman who held hostages

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A gunman who took eight hostages after a botched holdup of a beauty salon and released all but one during a 24-hour siege was shot and killed by a police sniper Friday after threatening to detonate a bomb in a suitcase.

Michael Fane, 20, of Iowa City, Iowa, was shot by a SWAT team sniper about 2:45 p.m. Friday at the beauty salon and all of the hostages were safe, Police Chief Robert Wadman said. A bomb squad was called in to deal with the suitcase.

The camouflage-clad man armed with a handgun took his hostages when an apparent attempted robbery at the Possibilities beauty salon on Omaha's south side went sour about 3 p.m. Thursday, police said.

Police sealed off the neighborhood and the gunman released four people, including a young boy, police said. After negotiating through the night, he freed three women Friday. His final hostage, a woman, was freed apparently unharmed after he was shot.

Police would not release the names of the hostages, but neighbors and relatives identified two of the three women released Friday as Sharon Kuhlman, 18, a part-time receptionist, and Debbie McQueen, 28.

Police Capt. Michael London said Fane was shot while trying to pick up a package he had demanded from police that was placed by the door.

At a news conference, London said police decided to shoot Fane if it became possible because they believed he had a suitcase bomb with a "pressure point" that would detonate if he touched it.

"About 6 this morning, negotiations deteriorated seriously because they found out at that time there was a great likelihood there was a bomb or the makings of a bomb or a bomb apparatus in a suitcase," London said.

Police evacuated bystanders west of the former bank building and moved reporters and photographers a distance away because of fears they could be hurt if a bomb was detonated.

Fane, a 1985 graduate of Mason City, Iowa, High School, attended the University of Iowa in Iowa City for two years. His father, Dr. Larry Fane of El Compo, Texas, told the Mason City, Iowa, Globe-Gazette that his son recently received psychiatric treatment.

Dean Chandler, Fane's grandfather, said of Fane, "He's always been very passive and mild around us. This is the biggest surprise of my life and that's all I'm going to say."

Fane negotiated undisclosed demands with police, Capt. William Crawford said during a Friday news conference. He would not say what the demands were, but he did say the gunman had not asked for money.

Sgt. William Muldoon said police knew "quite a bit" about Fane, but would not elaborate. He had said the man had remained calm during negotiations.

FmHA to assist rural businesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration said Friday it will begin next week a $200 million loan guarantee program for rural businesses that suffered from the 1988 drought and other weather disasters.

Acting FmHA administrator La Verne Ausman said the program was authorized by Congress in the 1988 Disaster Assistance Act. New regulations carrying out the program will be put into effect Tuesday, although they will have a 60-day period for public comment.

Ausman said the agency "can make any changes that may be necessary after the 60-day comment period is over." Meanwhile, he said, many rural businesses are in need of assistance. The maximum loan amount is $500,000.

Under the program, FmHA can guarantee up to 90 percent of a loan "to help alleviate financial distress caused, directly or indirectly, by drought, hail, excessive moisture or related conditions" that occurred in 1988, he said.

French girls celebrate late Christmas

Father says 'nightmare over'

PARIS (AP) — Two French girls held hostage for 13 months celebrated a belated Christmas on Friday with a party thrown by their home town.

But public rejoicing was tempered with suggestions that Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi used the children to boost his image.

"This is the end of a nightmare," Pascal Betille, father of 7-year-old Marie-Laure and 6-year-old Virginie, told hundreds of people gathered in the public square of Ollioules in southern France. "This is happiness."

The girls, held by an extremist Palestinian group, were handed over to French officials Thursday in the Libyan capital of Tripoli, six days after Gadhafi called for their release.

The children's mother, Jacqueline Valente, five Belgians and a baby sister born in captivity remained in the hands of Abu Nidal's Fatah-Revolutionary Council, backed by Libya. The group, suspected in numerous cases of terrorism, accused them of spying for Israel.

Doctors at a Marseille hospital said Friday the girls were in good physical and psychological health.

The children and their father attended the town party in Ollioules, near the Mediterranean port of Toulon, before leaving for a vacation at an undisclosed location.

The French press welcomed the return of Marie-Laure and Virginie. But it gave equal space to what the conservative daily Le Figaro called "nausea" at the motive for the release.

"At the close of this ignoble drama ...there remains an after-taste of bitterness," Le Figaro wrote. Gadhafi "today wants to play the role of Father Christmas."

The girls' freedom is widely viewed here as Gadhafi's effort to boost his image at a time when the United States, alleging Libya has a chemical weapons plant, issued threats of a military strike.

"This gesture by the colonel is not gratuitous when, once again the object of American threats, he urgently needs to fine-tune his image as a 'reasonable' man of state..." commented the daily Le Monde.

The press also noted a renewed effort by Libya to improve relations with the European Economic Community, which reduced diplomatic activity with Libya following the U.S. raid on Tripoli in April 1986.

"This gesture by the colonel is not gratuitous when, once again the object of American threats, he urgently needs to fine-tune his image as a 'reasonable' man of state..."
— Newspaper Le Monde

French officials said no conditions were made for the the release of the girls.

The only exchange, Le Monde quoted officials as saying, was allowing Gadhafi to make a nice gesture.

Gadhafi called for the girls' release on Christmas Eve. Once freed, Fatah-Revolutionary Council, in a statement issued in Beirut, Lebanon, said the girls were a "gift to France" from the children of the year-old Palestinian uprising in the Israeli-occupied territories.

They were taken captive Nov. 8, 1987, when the Silco, a sardine trawler turned yacht, was seized off the Gaza Strip, according to the captors' announcement.

There have been reports the boat was actually seized off the coast of Libya, highlighting the mystery that has surrounded the hostages from the start.

Le Monde quotes French intelligence sources as suggesting the Belgian hostages may never have left Libya and that the girls may have arrived there long before the official announcement Thursday.

The hostages, who have received little public attention over the past year, have been referred to in the French press as the "forgotten hostages."

The case is considered unrelated to the 15 Westerners held hostage in Lebanon by pro-Iranian factions. They include nine Americans. The longest held is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press who was abducted March 16, 1985.

NFC: It's Ryan vs. Ditka

Icy relationship intensifies prior to game

CHICAGO (AP) — It may be overshadowed by more important matters — like moving to within a game of the Super Bowl. But there's no way the Chicago Bears and Philadelphia Eagles can avoid the pregame sideshow to their NFC playoff game today.

How can anyone ignore the icy relationship, punctuated by cutting one-liners, between Coach Mike Ditka of the Bears and his former defensive coordinator, Eagles Coach Buddy Ryan?

Those feelings intensified this week when Ryan said his 10-6 team, 27th in the league in defense, was as strong or stronger than the 12-4 Bears "at every position but middle linebacker." That happens to be the spot played by Ryan's favorite Bear, Mike Singletary, the league's defensive player of the year.

RYAN, HIRED as defensive coordinator by the late George Halas in 1978, stayed on when Ditka was hired in 1982.

But, though his "46" defense was a major element in Chicago's Super Bowl victory after the 1985 season, the two men never got on and toward the end barely spoke. When Ryan left to take over the Eagles in 1986, Ditka said he was "elated" — and not because his aide had landed a head coaching job.

But beyond the coaching feud is a football game, one of four NFL playoff games this weekend en route to the 23rd Super Bowl, which will be played in Miami Jan. 22. Chicago is a 5-point favorite, in part because it has the home-field advantage.

For Philadelphia, the NFC East winner, it will be the first playoff game since 1981. The Eagles lost a wild-card contest to the New York Giants in the season following Philadelphia's only Super Bowl appearance, a 27-10 loss to the then-Oakland Raiders.

It's a young team, led by quarterback Randall Cunningham, the NFL's most heralded one-man team since ... well, John Elway led Denver into the last two Super Bowls. But they see an advantage in the fact that most of them have never been in the playoffs before.

"We're very loose," says safety Wes Hopkins, a 27-year-old 5-year veteran who qualifies as one of the older Eagles. He emphasized the word very.

"We have a lot of cocky guys, confident guys. That's the way we are. If one person looks tight, we just rib him until he loosens up and that's the best way to be."

"I think playoff experience is overrated. It's still 45 men against 45 men," says running back Keith Byars, whose season is typical of the Cunningham-oriented Philadelphia offense — he had 517 rushing yards at just 3.4 yards per carry to Cunningham's team-leading 624 but he had 72 receptions, second to rookie tight end Keith Jackson.

In fact, Byars' statement reflects one of the NFL's more curious statistics. Since Washington won the Super Bowl after the 1982 season, the next five winners, including Chicago, have yet to win as much as a single playoff game.

Since they beat New England 46-10 nearly three years ago in New Orleans, the Bears have lost playoff games to Washington at Soldier field — 27-13 two years ago and 21-17 last season.

This season, they'll start their third playoff quarterback in three seasons — Mike Tomczak, who has never before started in postseason. Two seasons ago, he was passed over for the newly-signed Doug Flutie and last year he watched Jim McMahon, who this year will watch from the sidelines after recovering from knee injuries.

But the coaches are still a factor. Ditka admits he was distracted in the only other non-strike meeting between the two — a 13-10 overtime victory in 1986 over a Philadelphia team that finished 5-11 in Ryan's first season.

AND ASKED this week if the game would be decided by the coaches, Ryan replied: "I hope so."

But Ditka has nothing to apologize for.

He was voted coach of the year this season for molding an NFC Central winner from a team that lost Walter Payton and Gary Fencik to retirement; Wilber Marshall to free agency and a variety of players to injury, including McMahon, Tomczak, Richard Dent, Otis Wilson and William Perry.

He also had to overcome a mid-season heart attack that, typically for the NFL's "Mr. Tough Guy," sidelined him for just one game. In that, he and Ryan share misfortune — the Eagles' coach nearly choked to death on a pork chop, leading the Bears' coach to note that the chops at his own Chicago restaurant are too tender to choke on.

"It couldn't have been a Ditka's pork chop," he said.

The rivalry has also affected the Chicago players.

Singletary, the Bear closest to Ryan, says of his former coach: "Buddy Ryan made me into what I am. He's a champion in my book."

But outspoken wide receiver Dennis McKinnon, says: "Who cares about a guy who chokes on a pork chop? Don't let Buddy blow smoke. He's good at that. My objective today is to embarrass their team."

AFC: Battle of top QBs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Experience may be the big difference between the starting quarterbacks in today's AFC playoff game between the Seattle Seahawks and the Cincinnati Bengals.

Boomer Esiason and Dave Krieg were No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, in the NFL's quarterback rankings when the regular season ended. Esiason led the Bengals to the AFC Central crown with a 12-4 record, and Krieg overcame a shoulder injury to help the Seattle Seahawks win the AFC West for the first time with a 9-7 mark.

Although Esiason has bulkier passing statistics and an NFL Most Valuable Player award, Krieg has a big advantage in experience as they prepare for their AFC divisional playoff game at cold Riverfront Stadium.

Krieg, in his ninth NFL season, has four more years in the league and six playoff games under his belt. Esiason, a fifth-year pro, is in the playoffs for the first time, like many of his teammates.

Although Krieg doesn't have Esiason's arm strength or mobility, his longevity has become a strength.

"I'm in my ninth year. The one thing that is good about that is I do have the experience factor," he said. "I've seen pretty much all the defenses and all the things they can throw at you, and I'm able to adjust to that and react to different things during the course of a game. The experience factor, I think, is one thing that's really helped me."

He had a different type of experience this season, after separating his shoulder. For seven games he watched from the sideline, seeing things from a different perspective and picking up details he hadn't noticed before.

"You're able to stand back and look at it from a nonemotional standpoint," he said. "You get more or less a coach's standpoint of how the game goes back and forth. So when I did come back, I was able to step back a little bit in the huddle during a game and just realize, 'Hey, if they score, we've just got to come back down and score again.'"

Krieg was brilliant when he returned for the final six regular-season games. He completed 97 of 158 passes for 1,325 yards and 15 touchdowns with just five interceptions. Seattle, which had struggled offensively in Krieg's absence, scored an average of just under 30 points a game after he returned.

The Seahawks' 43-37 victory over the Los Angeles Raiders clinched their first-ever division title and put them in the playoffs for the fourth time in six seasons. Krieg thinks that postseason experience will help them at Riverfront Stadium, where the Bengals were 8-0 this season.

"We've been in these situations before. We realize the importance of it," he said. "I think that will definitely be a help to us."

Esiason is trying to take his first-ever postseason experience in stride by looking at it the same way as a regular season game.

"I haven't seen anything different," he said. "Maybe on the field it will be. I'm not doing anything differently."

Esiason suffered a sprained left ankle and sprained index finger on his passing hand in the regular-season finale against Washington, and didn't have a hard workout until Tuesday. But he threw the ball well in practice this week, putting the Bengals at ease.

"The only thing you worry about with him is getting it (the finger) banged early in the game," receiver Cris Collinsworth said. "Somehow, you get the feeling that Boomer's going to be all right come game time."

Sunday's Playoff Matchups

On Sunday, Minnesota is at San Francisco in the NFC and Houston is at Buffalo in the AFC.

Buffalo is the in the playoffs for the first time since 1981 and is playing its first home playoff game since 1967. The Bills started the season 11-1 but lost three of their final four.

"I've seen this team play way up on that ladder, maybe up on the top, and I've seen us on the other end of the ladder this year also," Buffalo center Kent Hull said. "But in a playoff game, playing at home in front of 80,000 people, I don't look for us to be down at the bottom. I look for us to be at the top."

Like Cincinnati, Buffalo was 8-0 at home this season. Bills safety Leonard Smith said playing at home was something special.

"When you do something and the whole crowd goes, 'Wooooo,' that means you've really done something, you've caught their attention," he said.

Houston beat Seattle 23-20 in last year's AFC wild-card game and then lost at Denver 34-10. It was the Oilers' first time in the playoffs since 1980.

Oilers linebacker Johnny Meads thinks Buffalo quarterback Jim Kelly wil be the key.

"He's still got that courage everybody talks about," Meads said. "He's got the mentality of a defensive player. Last year, J.D. (free safety Jeff Donaldson) hit Kelly so hard it knocked his helmet off, but he got right back up for more."

Minnesota defensive tackle Keith Millard isn't worried that the Vikings are on the road at Candlestick Park.

"It's almost like a second home for us," he said.

Minnesota beat the 49ers 36-24 in the first round of the 1987 playoffs, and have won three of their last four in San Francisco. The loss was on Oct. 30, when Steve Young ran 49 yards for a touchdown in the final minute to give San Francisco a 24-21 victory.

"A game like that, everybody wants to get back and give it our best shot and not let it come down to one play," Minnesota cornerback Carl Lee said. "We were in control and let it get away."

San Francisco has lost three consecutive playoff games and is coming off a 22-point loss to the Los Angeles Rams in the last game of the regular season.

"Backs against the walls. We're like scared dogs," cornerback Tim McKyer said.

The Chicago Bears know that linebacker Mike Singletary (50) is the heart and soul of the team. He was recently named the NFL Defensive Player of the Year by the Associated Press.

Mesa drops Chaps in Rotary semifinals

From Staff Reports

MESA, Ariz. — The Midland College basketball team dropped out of championship contention in the BCI Mesa Rotary Shootout Friday night with a 75-61 loss to Mesa Community College.

The Chaparrals, 9-6, face the loser of Friday's late semifinal between Yavapai (Ariz.) C.C. and Kankakee (Ill.) C.C in third-place action at 7:30 p.m. CST. The game can be heard on KCRS radio.

Mesa, 12-3, outshot the Chaps from the field 62 percent to 38. The Thunderbirds are holding opponents to 56 points a game.

Coach Reggie Franklin's Chaps were hampered by early fouls on Charles McCovery and Darryl King, which caused both players to miss much of the first half. McCovery scored 16 of his team-high 21 points in the second half, while King finished with only two points.

After Mesa went into the halftime break with a 13-point lead, Midland freshman Fred Campbell scored six quick points to pull the Chaps to within three points midway through the second half.

Sanders has a Cowboy 'Holiday'

By DENNIS GEORGATOS
AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO — Barry Sanders, showing the dazzling form that earned him the Heisman Trophy, scored five touchdowns and rushed for 222 yards Friday night as 12th-ranked Oklahoma State routed Wyoming 62-14 in the Holiday Bowl.

Sanders' fifth touchdown, a 10-yard run, capped a 28-point third quarter for Oklahoma State.

The Heisman winner and NCAA rushing leader, who did not play in the fourth quarter, set Holiday Bowl records for touchdowns (5), carries (29), and longest run from scrimmage (67 yards). His rushing total was 3 yards shy of Craig James' record of 225, set in the 1980 Holiday Bowl.

Oklahoma State set a new Holiday Bowl record for points, surpassing Ohio State's total in a 47-17 win over Brigham Young in 1982.

Oklahoma State finished at 10-2 while Wyoming fell to 11-2 and remained winless in five games against OSU.

The rout was a departure from past Holiday Bowls, nine of which have been decided by 7 points or less.

OSU quarterback Mike Gundy also played brillantly, throwing for 315 yards and two touchdowns, the second a 25-yarder to Hart Lee Dykes midway through the fourth quarter. A 5-yard touchdown run by reserve quarterback Chris Smith with 1:13 left closed the scoring.

Gundy completed 20 of 24 passes, including his first TD pass of 12 yards to Brent Parker as OSU marched 80 yards in eight plays to open the second half. Sanders carried four times for 50 yards on the drive, including a spectacular 30-yard run that ended with three Wyoming defenders on his back.

Wyoming pulled to within 24-14 midway through the third period when quarterback Randy Welniak scrambled 4 yards for his second rushing touchdown and 16th of the year, a new school record.

But Sanders ran 67 yards for a touchdown on the first play of the ensuing Oklahoma State possession. He shook off three tackles en route to his third rushing touchdown. It also was the longest run from scrimmage in the bowl's 11-year history, surpassing a 61-yarder by Ohio State's Tim Spencer in 1982.

Sanders he set up his fourth TD by throwing for the first time this season, completing a 17-yard pass to Gundy on an option play. Sanders scored on the next play, going in standing up from the Wyoming 1 to Oklahoma State a 38-14 lead.

Oklahoma State led 17-7 at halftime on touchdown runs of 33 and 2 yards by Sanders and Cary Blanchard's 33-yard field goal, which came with one second remaining in the half. Oklahoma State had had gotten the ball on its own 34-yard line with 47 seconds remaining before halftime.

Blanchard also kicked a 19-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

Gundy's passing complemented Sanders' running as the Oklahoma State quarterback completed 11 of 12 first-half passes for 137 yards, including six receptions by star wide receiver Hart Lee Dykes.

The normally porous Oklahoma State defense gave Wyoming problems, sacking Welniak four times in the first half. Wyoming managed only 24 yards rushing and 33 yards passing in the first two periods.

Dabby Dawson, Wyoming's top rusher, was sidelined when he suffered a sprained right ankle late in the first half.

Oklahoma State scored on its first possession for the ninth time this year. On third-and-4, Sanders raced through a hole on the right side, broke an arm tackle and outran another defender for the 33-yard touchdown 4:47 into the game.

Holtz loses guard Ryan, but finds defensive end

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Offensive guard Tim Ryan will miss the Fiesta Bowl with a severe groin pull and senior Darrell "Flash" Gordon has earned a start at defensive end, Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz said Friday.

Holtz also was surprised to learn that quarterback Tony Rice was suffering from a sinus problem.

Rice did not show up for a scheduled news conference and John Heisler, Notre Dame's sports information director, said the quarterback was "not feeling well. He said he was having a problem with his sinuses."

"I did not know that Tony Rice had a problem," Holtz said with a puzzled expression.

Ryan, who started nine of the 11 regular-season games, will be replaced by either senior Mike Brennan, who started two games at guard but played mostly at tackle, or sophomore Winston Sandri, who started the season opener before Ryan took over and also started once at the other guard position.

"Tim Ryan has not been able to practice, and after (Friday) most of our practices will be done," Holtz said.

"Tim Ryan's getting hurt really hurts us because not only have we had to rebuild the offensive line, we've had to rebuild that sucker about three times.

CHAPS

With six minutes left, the Chaps still trailed by only five, but Mesa began trooping to the free throw line, though the T-Birds shot only 64 percent from the line.

McCovery finished with 21 points before fouling out, while Campbell added 20 and Kethus Hanks 10. Juan Thomas led Mesa with 21 points, while Shawn Hamilton added 13 and Lance Keller 10.

Temple hires Rice's Berndt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry Berndt, whose Rice football team was winless this season, will return to Philadelphia as the head coach of Temple University to bring "better things" to the school's struggling program, Temple officials said Friday.

Berndt, in Houston, confirmed that he would return to Philadelphia, where he spent a successful five-year stint as head coach at Penn.

"After a lot of agonizing minutes, hours and days, I have decided to accept the position at Temple University," said Berndt, who was also Rice's athletic director. "Basically, it came down to an opportunity I could not refuse.

"I feel sadness because we worked so hard here and didn't get done what we started out to accomplish. But I also feel great excitement because it's like going home."

Temple athletic director Charles Theokas said Berndt will develop a program that stalled under Bruce Arians, who was dismissed in November after his second consecutive 4-7 season at Temple.

"We expect to win a bunch of games and have some fun," Theokas said after Temple president Peter Liacouras announced Berndt's hiring.

"The timing is very good for someone like Jerry to come into our program which was being developed by Arians but just didn't get going. We think better things will happen now."

Rice University president George Rupp said he regretted Berndt's departure.

"I would be delighted if the choice had turned out the other way, but I also wish him and his wife, Pat, all the best in their move back to Philadephia," Rupp said.

Rupp said a search committee was being formed to find a replacement for Berndt, whose had a 6-27 record in three seasons at Rice.

Berndt said he has invited members of his Rice staff to join him at Temple.

In leaving Rice, Berndt won't have to change mascots since Temple and the Houston school answer to the "Owls" nickname.

Liacouras orginally tried to hire Penn State's Jerry Sandusky. But he turned down the post to remain as Joe Paterno's assistant.

"Jerry Berndt is a highly respected football coach who has earned a national reputation for running good, clean programs that emphasize the education and citizenship of student-athletes," Liacouras said in a release.

Celtics rebound against Spurs

Associated Press

Robert Parish had 34 points and 19 rebounds as the Boston Celtics beat San Antonio 112-99 Friday night for their 19th consecutive victory over the Spurs.

The Celtics, 3-9 on the road this season, ended a three-game losing streak. San Antonio has lost four straight overall and 12 of its last 13.

Boston scored 12 straight points at the end of the third quarter and start of the fourth period to take an 86-75 lead. The Spurs never got within five points and remained winless against the Celtics since January 1980.

The Celtics made their first eight shots of the game, but trailed 20-19 midway through the first period. Boston was 14-for-19 in the quarter and led 33-29.

Pistons 95, Rockets 83

Joe Dumars scored 28 points and sparked a 15-4 burst that closed the first half to lead Detroit over Houston.

Dumars, who shot 12 for 19 from the field, scored eight points during the decisive spurt. Isiah Thomas added 25 for Detroit and Bill Laimbeer had 10, the first time he's reached double figures in five games.

Eric Floyd and Derrick Chievous scored 16 each and Akeem Olajuwon 14 for Houston.

The victory left Detroit coach Chuck Daly needing only one to reach 300 with Detroit. He has a 299-194 record with the Pistons.

Hornets 122, Knicks 111

Robert Reid scored 23 points and Kurt Rambis had 21 points and 16 rebounds as expansion Charlotte won its eighth game of the year. Kelly Tripucka also scored 21 for the Hornets, who sent New York to its fifth consecutive road loss. The Knicks, leading the NBA's Atlantic Division, have dropped three straight overall.

Cavaliers 127, Bullets 110

Ron Harper scored 22 points and Brad Dougherty added 20 to lead eight double-figure scorers as the Cleveland Cavaliers tied a team record with their eighth consecutive victory.

Cleveland, which shot 57 percent from the field, leads the NBA with a 21-5 record and an .808 winning percentage. The Cavaliers, who have won 14 of their last 16 games, are 32-7 since last March 29. Cleveland has had three previous eight-game winning streaks, the last one in March 1980.

Bulls 101, Pacers 85

Michael Jordan scored 13 of his 31 points in the fourth quarter, including six in a decisive Chicago spurt as Indiana suffered its eighth consecutive loss.

Indiana, which overcame a 17-point first half deficit to lead briefly in the third quarter, went cold in the final quarter when it had nine of its 21 turnovers, made just six of 16 shots and missed six of 10 free throws.

Football enters three-day dream

By RUBEN CASTANEDA
Hearst News Service

LOS ANGELES — For football aficionados, the New Year's holiday weekend offers the gridiron equivalent of a cosmic alignment of the stars.

And the primary objective for many of these fans will be simple: From the opening kickoff today until the final gun Monday night, watch as many hours of as many professional playoff and college bowl games as possible.

Four professional showdowns, featuring the eight teams remaining in the tournament to reach the Super Bowl, will be played today and Sunday. They will be followed by seven high-profile college bowl games on Monday, creating a three-day football fan's dream.

Most years, the pro contests are separated by several days from the traditional New Year's parade of bowl games. But scheduling quirks strung them together in one neat package this weekend.

The climax of the collegiate season Monday will include the venerable Rose Bowl, with USC vs. Michigan, and the Fiesta Bowl, with top-ranked and undefeated Notre Dame battling No.3 West Virginia in a national championship showdown.

In all, the football fest features 10 televised bowl games and four professional playoff contests.

At an average of 3½ hours per game, a resourceful viewer with a VCR and a remote control could take in some 49 hours of gridiron action.

Greg Kasparian, director of network research for CBS, said the core audience for individual college bowl games and professional playoff contests is 10 million to 20 million viewers. But this estimate is considered conservative because the Nielsen tracking system doesn't account for football parties, where 10 or more fans gather at someone's home to watch a game.

Not surprisingly, sports bars, convenience stores and beer and snack distributors are looking forward to scoring points.

"We ordered extra heavy this week on the food, liquor and beer," said Seth Ferber, assistant manager of Legend's, a sports bar in Long Beach, Calif.

Randy Moore, manager of the Frito-Lay facility in Los Angeles, said distribution of the company's snack products increased 17 percent this week.

Dan Cowan, spokesman for 7-Eleven stores, said the nationwide chain is stocking up on beer, soft drinks and chips in preparation for the weekend.

"We are trying to become the concession stand for people watching the games on TV," Cowan said.

Bluebonnet blues land on Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The Bluebonnet Bowl, once a thriving college football game that featured the likes of Earl Campbell and Bear Bryant, didn't have any stars this year.

It wasn't played.

The game was canceled after the bowl lost its NCAA certification and most of its television revenue. Officials hope to revive the game next year, but right now chances appear slim.

Jack Burger, executive director of the Houston Sports Federation, said the loss of the New Year's Eve game will cost the city about $5 million.

"That's figuring on an attendance of about 25,000," Burger said. "The city also loses the exposure, but that's tough to measure. It gets the two teams here for a week and the out of town fans and the media."

Ted Nance, former executive director of the Bluebonnet, said the game's demise was the result of bad timing.

"I think it's real simple what happened," he said. "At the same time the NCAA minimum guarantee to the teams increased, the Bluebonnet television contract expired."

The Bluebonnet, which began in 1959, had to increase its guarantee by $200,000 at the same time its television revenue was going down.

"The television revenue for the 1985 game between Texas and Air Force was about $450,000," Nance said. "It dropped to about $100,000 for the last one. That's devastating."

Because of the revenue nosedive, the Bluebonnet fell into debt. The bowl owes a total of $400,000 to the teams that played in the last two games — Texas, Pittsburgh, Baylor and Colorado.

Bluebonnet officials have been seeking a corporate sponsor to help solve their financial problems, but they've unable to find one.

"The biggest concern for a corporate sponsor is what will it get for its money," Burger said.

"With the Bluebonnet, they wouldn't be starting from scratch. They've got to write a check for the debt and they get nothing for that check. But there is a chance the debt could be retired locally."

The slumping Houston economy contributed to the Bluebonnet's woes. "The businesses are not buying the tickets anymore," said Nance, now assistant athletic director at the University of Houston.

But Burger places some of the blame on bowl officials.

"While things were changing, the thinking of the (Bluebonnet) committee didn't," he said.

Houston beats Yale, 66-64

HONOLULU (AP) — Richard Hollis scored 14 of his 19 points in the second half Friday, including the go-ahead basket with two minutes to play, as Houston held off Yale 66-64 in the seventh-place game of the Rainbow Classic.

Freshman Ed Petersen, who scored 21 points for Yale, 3-6, missed a 3-point shot in the final seconds of the game.

Houston, 7-5, trailed 60-58 with 6:15 to go, when Hollis fueled an 8-4 spurt down the stretch with five points, including a 15-foot jumper that gave the Cougars their 66-64 lead with 2:01 left.

Yale had three possessions in the final two minutes, but was unable to score. Dean Campbell missed from 3-point range, Houston blocked two shots and Petersen missed his 3-pointer in the final two minutes.

Craig Upchurch scored 18 for Houston and Chris Morris added 11 for Houston.

Rain forecast bummer for Hawkeyes' passing game

Peach Bowl

ATLANTA (AP) — Iowa coach Hayden Fry said Friday that rain forecast for today's Peach Bowl will hinder the Hawkeyes' touted passing game, giving North Carolina State an advantage. The Wolfpack's Dick Sheridan just shook his head and laughed.

Despite the forecast of an 80 percent chance of rain with temperatures in the 50s today, a crowd of 58,000 is expected for the 12:10 p.m. CST contest at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

Iowa had a 6-3-3 record and was third in the Big Ten. North Carolina State, 7-3-1, finished third in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"I am now concerned because of the weather," Fry said as rain fell outside Friday. "If the weather prediction holds up, it will hurt us more than North Carolina State since we throw the ball more than they do.

"Rain will be a detriment to our offense in terms of throwing and catching the ball."

A tarpaulin was placed on the field Friday and will be taken off just prior to kickoff.

Sheridan, when told of Fry's remarks, obviously didn't agree with the Iowa coach.

"Everybody's got their own opinion,' he said.

"The only thing I can say is that we both would prefer it dry. But we feel like Iowa's line is much bigger and stronger than ours and, if it's wet, it will negate some of our quickness," said Sheridan. "Those kind of field conditions will slow us down. I'd love to have a fast track."

Fry said wet weather or dry will not deter his Hawkeyes from throwing the ball with Chuck Hartlieb, the All-Big Ten quarterback who has thrown for more than 3,000 yards in two consecutive years, including 3,310 this season and 14 touchdowns.

"If we can throw the ball well enough, we can put pressure on them," he said. "Even if it rains cats and dogs, we're going to throw the ball."

North Carolina State — eighth in the nation in total defense, allowing only 264 yards a game, 160 passing — had problems against the pass in two games, a 30-26 loss to Maryland and a 43-43 tie with Duke.

"Hartlieb is a sidearm thrower, and those type are less bothered by the rain than the straight overhand passers," said Fry. "He's played a lot in games where it has rained and played very well. Obviously, North Carolina State will have to play in the rain also, but we do emphasize the pass, and I think it will hinder us more than them."

Sheridan, however, said he is also concerned about Iowa's running game.

"There's a lot of talk about Iowa's passing game, but they have a fine running game, too. We hope we can contain the passing game," he said.

"From an offensive standpoint, it's important that we keep the ball away from Iowa's offense and we've got to overcome their strength and size," said Sheridan. "I'm anxious to see how we can measure up."

Fry also pointed out that State will have the crowd on its side.

"They'll have the advantage because of the large crowd they're bringing down since they are a next-door neighbor, being in North Carolina," said Fry.

Sheridan estimates that between 22,000 and 25,000 Wolfpack backers will be in the stands. Fry said he believes between 15,000 and 20,000 fans from Iowa will be on hand.

Arkansas' Henley already knows first play

Cotton Bowl Classic

DALLAS (AP) — Darryl Henley already has Arkansas' first offensive play figured out in Monday's Cotton Bowl Classic.

"All those Wishbone teams like to talk about how they like to run the ball and never throw it," said the senior UCLA cornerback. "Then they come out trying to throw bombs on you.

"I predict the first play will be somebody going deep on me."

Henley's dislike for defending the triple option is evident.

At 5-foot-10 and 165 pounds Henley, who made the AP All-American second team, will be doing more tackling than pass defending.

"I hate Wishbone teams," he said. "I can't be overly aggressive, yet I've got to bust in there if it's a run. With the Wishbone, every play starts out the same. I've got to read slow and react fast. Man, you can look bad."

UCLA hasn't played a pure Wishbone team since Oklahoma routed the Bruins 38-3 in 1986. Arizona, a Pacific-10 opponent, runs a form of the Wishbone. Arkansas runs 78 per cent of the time.

"We'd like to forget that Oklahoma game," Henley said. "I think we'll be ready for Arkansas. But they are tough believe me. Miami found that out."

Miami gave Arkansas its only loss in an early December game, 18-16.

Henley hasn't had many bad games this season. He was one of the 10 semifinalists for the Jim Thorpe Award to the nation's top defensive back.

He also ranked fifth among the NCAA leaders in punt returns, averaging 13.3 yards per return. Henley scored twice this season on punt returns, including one for 89 yards against Ssn Diego State and another of 75 yards against Nebraska.

"I like trying to score touchdowns every now and then instead of trying to prevent them," said Henley. "I like all the flying around on the punt return teams. I don't like to get hit but I like all the other players sharing your happiness when you score a touchdown."

Henley, who was born in Waco, but grew up in Ontario, Calif., broke up 16 passes to lead the UCLA defense in that category.

Beano Cook: He's No. 1 among West Virginians

By JOHN FREEMAN
Copley News Service

By now, everyone knows that ESPN's Beano Cook went out on a very shaky limb before this college football season when he predicted that West Virginia would eventually win the mythical national championship.

With its Fiesta Bowl date with Notre Dame three days away, West Virginia is poised to complete its 12-game schedule without a loss and Beano's call looks pretty good. Of course, even if West Virginia wins, an Orange Bowl win by Miami over Nebraska puts the national title up for grabs among the AP and UPI voters.

However, if the Mountaineers do win the title, don't call Cook a soothsaying genius. Anything but that.

"Hey, I'm the same guy who picked Michigan to win it all last year," said Cook. "Never think you're a genius in this business. If I were a genius, I'd be on the Riviera with Stephanie Powers instead of freezing in Pittsburgh."

His brash — and often wrong — predictions aside, Carroll H. "Beano" Cook, 57, always is entertaining in his role on ESPN's college football show. He speaks his mind. He takes chances. He says bizarre things.

For example:

— On why West Virginia will beat Notre Dame:

"Notre Dame should win because they have much better material," said Cook. "But West Virginia will win 31-30. Notre Dame gives you all this malarkey that they don't have the better talent, that they win on their 'spirit.' If that spirit's so great, how come they've never won the NCAA Tournament in basketball?

"They win in football for one reason: Because they have the best players, period."

— On Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz:

"He's a helluva coach, believe me," said Beano. "But before we make him into some genius, remember that he's the same guy who went 3-10 with the Jets (in 1976 before he was fired) and he had no idea what was going on. Do you think Joe Paterno would go 3-10 if he coached in the NFL? No way.

"Like I say, Lou's a fine coach, but he's no genius. Now, Bear Bryant, HE was a genius."

— On what bothers him about college football today: "Nobody has any fun anymore," he said. "It's gotten way too big. Hey, it's still a game. TV pays big money and that puts too much pressure on the coaches to win every game.

Stull keeps five UTEP assistants

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Coach Bob Stull said Friday that five of his former assistants from the University of Texas-El Paso will be part of his coaching staff at Missouri.

Kevin Faulkner, Ken Flajole, Dirk Koetter, Steve Telander and Mike Ward were hired as assistants. Missouri Athletic Director Dick Tamburo said they will begin recruiting high school prospects immediately.

Stull, who was in Columbia this week, said he expects to complete his nine-man staff next week. He said he will consider members of former coach Woody Widenhofer's staff, more UTEP coaches and other applicants.

The new coaches probably will handle the same coaching assignments as they did at UTEP, Stull said, although he said he would not know for sure until all his assistants are hired.

Indira Gandhi killed by Sikhs bent on revenge

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, a dominant figure in Indian politics for nearly two decades, was assassinated near her residence Oct. 31, 1984, by two Sikh security guards.

The attack was in revenge for a June army assault ordered by Mrs. Gandhi on the Golden Temple, the Sikh shrine located in Punjab State.

Staff physician serves Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the little-known operations in the nation's capital is the Office of the Physician of Congress, which provides free emergency and primary medical care for members of Congress and their staffs, notes Internal Medicine News.

According to the medical journal, the office was established in 1928 in response to the collapse in a single month of three members of Congress, one of whom died in his office because no physician was available immediately.

From its beginnings as a makeshift setup in the Democratic cloakroom, the Office of the Physician has expanded to a staff of three physicians, 11 nurses, with one for each of the House and Senate office buildings, a small pharmacy and an administrative staff.

When the "old year" ends, it's time to say "thanks." Think kindly of the past year. It has probably given you more than you realize.

There is a "new year" ahead. Greet it with a cheerful "welcome." Look forward to it.

It is faith that has carried you this far. It will carry you further. Faith in union with love and kindness will meet all your requirements and you will accomplish all that's needed without effort.

A kind and loving God will not be outdone. His generosity is vast in amount. He will give you peace, health, happiness and take care of all your special needs as he has in the past and for years to come. Believe and trust. That is faith.

With greater determination and your faith intact, there is a better year ahead. And with it, we'll take a cup of kindness yet — for auld lang syne.

GOD'S 20th CENTURY GIANTS

Tillich labored 'on boundaries' of church, society

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a five-part series on great modern theologians, "God's 20th Century Giants." It is about Paul Tillich, a "boundary man" with an appeal to intellectuals.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

As a young, front-line army chaplain in World War I, Paul Tillich was so seared by the carnage and bursting shells around him that he was left in psychological turmoil for months afterward. But he found solace in visiting art museums and meditating on great religious paintings.

They have a "power to stabilize and power to transform," he wrote later.

Staring at Botticelli's Madonna or other masterworks, he sensed that divine reality could be revealed through particular cultural forms — "expressing the holy" through "form-transcendence."

That intuition animated the approach of this towering existential theologian and philosopher who, as he put it, labored "on the boundaries" between church and society, between faith and culture, insisting on their indispensable interaction.

Modern culture "has lost its ultimate reference, its center of meaning, its spiritual substance," he says, leaving a secularized void of emptiness, anxiety and pointlessness, torn from its sustaining foundations.

"We are threatened but we are not destroyed," he says. "If, however, doubt and meaninglessness prevail, one experiences an abyss in which the meaning of life and the truth of ultimate responsibility disappear."

A MAN OF NATURAL dignity and gentle warmth, Tillich's unconventional interpretations and mountainous, tightly packed thought often shocked the orthodox. But it radiated an unfettered candor and dominating commitment.

"I was thinking about infinity from the age of eight," he says.

He couched religious concepts in fresh, often startling terminology to prick contemporary minds. He calls faith "ultimate concern," saying it demands the "courage to be" in the face of threatened "non-being" — death.

Such phrases for a time became buzzwords.

He terms Christ the "New Being," whose incarnation expresses "the paradox that he who transcends the universe appears in it and under its conditions. It is the paradox of God accepting a world which rejects him.

"Jesus as the Christ confirms his character as the bearer of the New Being or as the one in whom the conflict between essential unity of God and man's existential estrangement is overcome.

"Every trait in the New Testament record becomes translucent for the New Being ... In every expression of his individuality appears his universal significance."

TILLICH CALLS BIBLICAL accounts of supernatural occurrences "manifestations" or "symbols" but says "something happens through" them "which has effects and consequences.

"A symbol is based on things and events and participates in the power of that which it symbolizes."

He says Christ is the "bearer of a new eon" who participates in human suffering and death, overcoming the "estrangement between man and God" through "acceptance of the unacceptable.

"The saving power of the New Being in Jesus as the Christ is dependent on man's participation in it," on it "laying hold on him who is still in bondage to the old being."

People thereby share in the "New Being," in the "ultimately new toward which history moves," Tillich says.

He says its renewing power comes by the "stroke of grace," often striking "when we are in great pain and restlessness" or in "our indifference, our weakness, our hostility and our lack of direction and composure.

"It strikes when we walk through the dark valley of a meaningless and empty life ... At that moment a wave of light breaks into or darkness, and it is as though a voice were saying: You are accepted, accepted by that which is greater than you."

RELIGION

"We are threatened but we are not destroyed,. If ... doubt and meaninglessness prevail, one experiences an abyss in which the meaning of life and the truth of ultimate responsibility disappear."
— theologian Paul Tillich

DON'T TRY TO ANALYZE or define it, he says, "Simply accept the fact that you are accepted! ... In that moment, grace conquers sin, and reconciliation bridges the gulf of estrangement. And nothing is demanded ... but acceptance," to "accept oneself as accepted in spite of being unacceptable."

Tillich, as a "boundary man," standing between a heritage imbued with the sacred and an age cut off from it, saw himself as a mediator working to close a rupture that he considered a threat to Western civilization.

"Religion is the substance of culture, and culture the form of religion," he said in a much-quoted epigram. "There is no life where there is no 'otherness'."

He died in 1965 at the age of 79, one of a procession of 20th century theological giants, scorned by traditionalists but enduringly esteemed by many others for his powerful reformulation of Christian concepts to show their reasonableness to modern skeptics.

He tackled the century's most "salient tension" between religion and secularization, wrote Mark Kline Taylor, a Princeton theologian, in a 1987 book, "Paul Tillich."

He exerted a formative influence, pointing theologians "toward renewed Christian hope along a journey" where risks of "the void attend each step they take," Taylor wrote.

USING HIS INVENTIVE, often arresting religious lexicon, Tillich says God is not "a being" or even the "highest being" alongside other beings, which implies conditioning "the Unconditional".

"When applied to God, superlatives become diminutives," he says. He terms God "Being-itself" or "Ground of Being," the dynamic "power of being in everything and above everything" that energizes and gives cohesion to all authentic endeavor.

However, he says people have become "estranged from the ultimate power of being," submerged in anxiety, loneliness and guilt, disillusioned by always collapsing "idolatries" of nationalism, technology, possessions, sex or success.

He describes sin as "separation" — separation from others, from one's self and from the "Ground" of one's being.

"We not only suffer ... because of the self-destructive consequences of our separation, but also know why we suffer," Tillich says. "We know that we are estranged from something to which we really belong....

"We hear the voice of that depth, but our ears are closed. We feel that something radical, total and unconditional is demanded of us, but we rebel against it, try to escape its urgency and will not accept its promise."

This awareness of "our separation from the rest of life is most acute when we are surrounded by it in noises and talk," he says, such as the intense loneliness that can descend in a crowded room.

"We realize then much more than in moments of solitude how strange we are to each other, how estranged life is from life," he says.

Yet, "we cannot escape ... the Ground of our being" but "are bound to it for all eternity, just as we are bound to ourselves and to all other life. We always remain in the power of that from which we are estranged.

"That fact brings us to the ultimate depth of sin: separated and yet bound, estranged and yet belonging, destroyed and yet preserved, that state which is called despair ... 'the sickness unto death.'"

TILLICH, REARED IN GERMANY, was the son of a Lutheran minister and an ordained Lutheran himself. He initially taught at universities in Germany, but his early criticisms of Hitlerism led to his expulsion in 1933 along with many Jewish professors, including the great Martin Buber.

Tillich once observed wryly that he became the first non-Jewish academician "to be so honored." Immigrating to the United States, he became a citizen and taught for 32 years at New York's Union Theological Seminary, Harvard and the University of Chicago.

In his gravelly accent, he engaged students in searching dialogues, relishing after-hours bull sessions with them.

His three-volume "Systematic Theology" and numerous other books interfuse disciplines of history, psychology, political science, art and philosophy. He gained a wide audience among leaders in government and universities, believers and unbelievers.

F. Forrester Church, a Unitarian Universalist minister, terms Tillich an "apostle to the intellectuals," adding in an anthology, "The Essential Tillich," published in 1987 by MacMillan:

"We need a Tillich to guide us through the perils of our age."

He apparently had a rocky domestic life, and some condemned him for it and also his work, but that hasn't stilled it for others.

Tillich says it is "blasphemous and ridiculous" to try to prove existence of an infinite God, utterly beyond finite human categories.

Yet, he says, humans oddly realize their limited finitude, and by the very fact that they do, transcend it in awareness of some further being of potential infinity.

He says the immediate experience of that peculiar, unsettling quality in people, yet beyond them, is an existential pointer to God. "God is the answer to the question implied in man's finitude," he says.

Yet, anxiety and doubt remain regarding "the infinite to which it is related," he says. "Doubt, and not certitude, is our human situation."

Divine reality would not be that at all if people could possess and verify it like another piece of the world, he says. "Without conquered doubt, there is no faith. Faith must overcome something; it must leap over the ordinary processes. ...

"Faith is the courage that conquers doubt not by removing it, but by taking it as an element into itself."

ALTHOUGH TILLICH REFERS both to the crucifixion and resurrection as symbols, he says that "in both cases something happened within existence," a "combination of event and symbol."

It involved a personal life, he says. "If there were no personal life in which existential estrangement had been overcome, the New Being ... would not be a reality in time and space.

"Only if the existence is conquered in one point — a personal life, representing existence as a whole — is it conquered in principle."

Disdaining what he considered distortions of ecclesiastical systems, he says:

"The message of Christianity is not Christianty, but a New Reality. A New state of things has appeared; it still appears; it is hidden and visible, it is there and it is here. Accept it, enter into it, let is grasp you."

Traditionalist movement seems to be undeterred by Vatican sanctions

RICKENBACH, Switzerland (AP) - Four months after Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre was excommunicated from the Roman Catholic church, his traditionalist supporters seem largely undeterred by papal warnings that they will face the same punishment if they do not break with him.

The titular head of Lefebvre's St. Pius X Fraternity of Priests says a total of 15 priests and 18 seminarians — less than 10 percent — have left the movement since the rebel prelate consecrated four traditionalist bishops June 30 in defiance of the Vatican.

Lefebvre and his followers say that the church has embarked on a course of "auto-destruction" since the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65. They reject many reforms introduced then, including the replacement of Latin with the vernacular in the liturgy and relations with Protestant churches.

The archbishop argues that he continues to recognize papal authority but that the consecrations were a legitimate "emergency" act to save the church and that therefore the excommunications were invalid.

The defections leave 210 priests in the fraternity and 255 students in the fraternity's six theological schools in Australia, the United States, France, Switzerland, and West Germany, according to the Rev. Franz Schmidberger.

"Percentage-wise, the number who left us is small but every defection hurts us, of course," Schmidberger, who succeded Lefebvre as superior general of the fraternity in 1984, said in an interview. "It hurts particularly at a time when we need more and more priests to help us in our work."

That need is growing, he said, because of a growing attendance at traditionalist services in the churches, chapels and other places of worship founded by the fraternity.

"We estimate that attendance at holy Mass celebrated in our 530 centers worldwide has increased between 5 to 10 percent since the consecration," Schmidberger said.

"In some places, like in St. Louis which I visited during a recent tour of the United States, the increase is even higher, the local priest told me."

Schmidberger said Lefebvre had expected that attendance would decline by 25 percent while the Vatican had figured that 80 percent would renounce links with the archbishop should he defy the pope.

There is no firm figure on the number of Lefebvre's active supporters, as they do not register. The Vatican estimates the number at between 60,000 to 80,000. But two years ago, a pro-Lefebvre petition addressed to the Vatican was backed by 135,000 signatures. Estimates have put sympathizers in the millions.

The consecration of the four bishops created the first major schism in the church in more than a century. It resulted in the automatic excommunication, or expulsion from the church, of Lefebvre and the four bishops, and of Monsignor Antonio de Castro Mayer, a Brazilian prelate who assisted Lefebvre in the ceremony at the Swiss seminary in Econe, birthplace of the fraternity.

Pope John Paul II, in an apostolic letter made public two days later, warned Lefebvre's followers that they, too, will be excommunicated if they stay with him. At the same time, he promised the church will permit their traditionalist practices if they remain loyal to Rome.

Reagans spending holiday with friends

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, settled in Friday for their 21st New Year's holiday at the desert estate of publisher Walter Annenberg.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Roman Popadiuk said Reagan was doing paperwork and possibly playing some golf.

As he arrived here in brisk 50-degree weather on Thursday, after a flight from Los Angeles, Reagan was greeted by Palm Springs mayor Sonny Bono. The entertainer, who owns a restaurant in Palm Springs, said the president urged him "to turn the heat up."

The Reagans were going out to a private dinner at a country club Friday night. They will remain at the Annenberg home for a New Year's party Saturday night.

As they have on two of the last three New Year's days, Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev are exchanging pre-taped greetings for broadcast on television in each other's country.

The Reagans are scheduled to return to Los Angeles on Monday and spend a few days at their new Bel Air home before flying back to Washington Jan. 5 for their last two weeks in the White House.

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Alec Smith, son of former Rhodesian prime minister Ian Smith, is hoping to raise more than $250,000 for starving children in a nation his father battled.

The younger Smith has organized a "Goal Against Hunger" soccer match between European champion PSV Eindhoven and Racing Club of Argentina, Latin America's current Super Cup winners. The Jan. 15 match will be the first of a series of fund-raising soccer matches the 39-year-old Smith is planning to battle hunger in Mozambique.

The money raised will buy food to be distributed through charities already working in Mozambique, including Save the Children, World Vision, Christian Care and the Zimbabwe Mozambique Friendship Association.

Ian Smith led white-ruled Rhodesia during a bloody seven-year bush war that led to the independence of black-ruled Zimbabwe in 1980. Zimbabwean guerrilla bases in Mozambique were freqently attacked by Rhodesian troops.

The younger Smith, who joined the Moral Rearmament Movement in Switzerland in 1979, returned to independent Zimbabwe to serve as a Presbyterian chaplain in a national army led by former guerrilla foes of his father.

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Russian-born cellist Mstislav Rostropovich has returned to play two charity concerts this week, 28 years after he first played for Indian audiences.

"He lived up to his reputation," said B.J. Mistry, who sat in the last row at Tata Theater during Thursday night's performance. "It's not just his technical virtuosity, but the passion he puts into his performance."

The sellout crowd of 1,000 people applauded for more than a minute following the performance, bringing the renowned musician back for an encore.

"I like India so much. I'm delighted to be here," Rostropovich said after the two-hour concert.

Rostropovich has been director of the National Symphony in Washington, D.C., since 1977.

NEW YORK (AP) — Isamu Noguchi, the renowned American sculptor whose work graces museums, gardens and parks around the world, died Friday after a brief illness. He was 84.

Noguchi was best known by New Yorkers for his monumental public works, including a 28-foot red cube that stands on its corner in front of a lower Manhattan bank and the Sunken Garden at Chase Manhattan Plaza.

At the time of his death, he had just returned from Italy and was working on several large marble sculptures. He also had a number of projects under way, including the Bayfront Park in Miami, and he had just been commissioned to do a major park for the city of Sapporo, Japan.

Allen Wardwell, director of the Isamu Noguchi Garden Museum in Long Island City, said Noguchi died at the New York University Medical Center at 2 a.m. of heart failure after a very short illness.

Noguchi was a New Yorker but spent a good deal of his time in Japan, including his early years. He employed numerous artisans at his large workshop in the town of Takamatsu on the Japanese island of Shikoku.

He was born in Los Angeles on Nov. 17, 1904, but two years later, his parents took him to Tokyo. He returned alone to the United States in 1918 and went to school in Indiana.

Noguchi entered Columbia University as a premed student in 1922, but dropped out in favor of sculpture studies at the Leonardo DaVinci Art School, now defunct.

Noguchi was married very briefly at the beginning of World War II but it ended in divorce. He had no children. He is survived by a sister, Ailes Spinden of Santa Fe, N.M.

There will be a memorial service at the museum Feb. 7, but the funeral and burial services will be private, Wardwell said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson and his estranged wife, actress Robin Givens, went to a movie together Christmas Eve, but that does not mean their on-again, off-again relationship is back on, a newspaper reported Friday.

The New York Post said that the couple who have spent the last few months trading insults and lawsuits sat next to each other Saturday night in a Studio City, Calif., theater watching "Hellbound Hellraiser II," a horror movie.

"Mike was with her but there won't be a reconciliation," the Post quoted a source it said was familiar with the boxer's daily activities. "The events are bizarre, but this wasn't a wonderful experience for Mike."

The Post also said the couple's divorce settlement is almost worked out.

The newspaper said the deal would allow each to keep what they have, with Tyson getting the Bernardsville, N.J., mansion, Ms. Givens keeping the California house she owned before the marriage, and Ms. Givens also keeping about $1.5 million she took from one of Tyson's bank accounts.

• • •

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxer Mitch Green, who has fought heavyweight champion Mike Tyson in the ring and on the street, was arrested early Friday in Harlem on charges of driving while intoxicated and drug possession, police said.

The 31-year-old Green, whose driver's license already has been suspended 54 times, was accused of possessing angel dust, or PCP, said police Sgt. Maurice Howard.

Green lost a bout with Mike Tyson for the United States Boxing Association heavyweight title in 1986. On Aug. 23, Green and Tyson scuffled outside a 24-hour clothing boutique in Harlem, but Green eventually dropped assault charges he had filed against Tyson.

GENEVA (AP) — Count Prince Charles out this year, but Sweden's king and Britain's Sting are among the rich and famous who have gathered at Swiss alpine resorts for the New Year's holiday.

King Carl XVI Gustaf, Queen Silvia and their three children were among the early arrivals at Klosters, in the Grisons. Britain's Prince Charles has sent word, however, that he will not take his skiing holiday in Klosters until March.

St. Moritz will again be able to boast the longest list of celebrities. Those already sighted by local residents include pop singer Sting.

LIFESCOPE

Like To Criticize Others' Failures? Lifescope Says, "Help Them To Change!"

We who have strong faith ought to shoulder the burden of the doubts and qualms of the weak and not just go our own sweet way. We should consider the good of our neighbor and help to build up his character.

Christ didn't please Himself. As the Psalmist said, "He came for the very purpose of suffering under the insults of those who were against the Lord." For all those words which were written long ago are meant to teach us today; so that we may be encouraged to endure and to go on hoping in our own time. So open your hearts to one another as Christ has opened His heart to you, and God will be glorified.

Dear brothers, if a Christian is overcome by some sin, you who are godly should gently and humbly help him back onto the right path, remembering that next time it might be one of you who is in the wrong. Share each other's troubles and problems, and so obey our Lord's command.

Don't ever attempt, my brothers, to combine snobbery with faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ! If you really keep the royal law, found in Scripture, "Love your neighbor as yourself," you are doing right. But if you show favoritism, you sin and are convicted by the law as lawbreakers. Speak and act as those who are going to be judged by the law that gives freedom, because judgment without mercy will be shown to anyone who has not been merciful. Mercy triumphs over judgment!

My brothers! If one of you wanders away from the Truth, and another one brings him back again, remember this: whoever turns a sinner back from his wrong way will save that sinner's soul from death, and bring about the forgiveness of many sins. Above everything else be sure that you have real deep love for one another, remembering how love can "cover a multitude of sins."

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Year-long study to begin Sunday

Forty-two percent of respondents to a recent Gallup Poll did not know that the Sermon on the Mount was spoken by Jesus.

According to another survey, only 12 percent of those claiming to believe in the Bible actually read some portion of it every day.

Colquitt Nash, minister of the Church of Christ at North A and Tennesse streets, adds: "So many people buy Bibles each year, but so few ever read them. Often our TV guides get more use in a week than our Bibles do in a year."

Nash and colleague David Fultz hope to change that for some people. At the North A Church of Christ, a non-denominational fellowship is planning to study through the entire Bible in one year.

In a study called "Look at the Book," which is designed as a chronological survey of the Bible, couples daily Bible reading with careful studies on Sunday.

Sermons and adult Bible classes during 1989 will coincide with the segment of the Bible being read during the week, and outlines and study guides will be distributed to each participant.

The program will begin the first week in January and conclude on Dec. 17, 1989.

Anyone interested in the program is asked to write "Look at the Book," North A and Tennessee Church of Christ, 505 San Angelo, Midland, Texas 79701. Persons can also call the church office at 682-8653.

Bible conference slated

Noted Bible scholar and teacher Dr. Fred Lintelman of Galveston will be featured speaker of the Winter Bible Conference at Calvary Baptist Church, 1001 S. Main in Midland, said Jim Ray Brown, senior minister.

For those in the community who are interested in a quality short-term Bible emphasis, Calvary Baptist is offering an area wide welcome to this study in the Gospel of John. The study begins Sunday morning at the 11 a.m. worship service and continues Monday through Wednesday with morning sessions from 10:30-11:30 a.m. and evening sessions from 7-9 p.m.

There is no charge for the sessions and a person may purchase a study syllabus from the church office.

For additional information, call 682-8392.

Fashion show, lunch set

Midland/Odessa Youth Spiritual Enlightenment is sponsoring an event billed as a Pastors and Ministers Fashion Show and Luncheon 11:30 a.m. January 7 at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Ticket information in Midland can be obtained from Wanda McGrew, 699-1607, or Linda Bailey, 684-4659. YSE is a non-profit organization that was established to help point teens toward Jesus as a solution to today's problems, according to a YSE press release.

'Aglow' set at T-Dome

Beverly Wall will speak to the Midland Outreach Aglow 7:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Holiday Inn T-Dome.

Ms. Wall is a native of Ralls and attended Floydada and Crosbyton schools. She married Hack Wall in 1980 and now is a mother and a housewife.

The couple are members of New Covenant Church in Plainview. She is president of Christian Women of Light, an interdenominational group of Plainview women.

Bicentennial observed

Trinity Presbyterian Church members plan to participate in the bicentennial year of the Presbyterian Chruch in a special way during their regular Wednesday program.

The Rev. Flynn Long will present "the Great Speckled Bird," a program that traces the origins of the Presbyterian Church from its beginnings in the U.S. through present age.

New religions are increasing

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — New religions that have proliferated in America in the last two decades aren't fading away as they had been widely expected to do, but instead are growing and multiplying.

This is the finding of research by The Rev. J. Gordon Melton of Santa Barbara, Calif., director of the Institute for the Study of American Religions.

"Non-conventional religion in the United States has flourished for a generation, continues to grow and is transforming America, religiously, into a radically pluralistic culture," he says.

"The anti-cult movement...has had no measureable affect on the development of the unconventional religions" which in the last decade "have continued to grow, consolidate gains and expand."

An authority on the country's increasingly wide religious spectrum and editor of the Encyclopedia of American Religions, Melton says scholarly assumptions had been that new religions soon would die out.

But that simply has proved not to be the case, he says, either nowadays when they've cropped up profusely, or in the past.

He says fresh data collected on 835 new religions formed since 1940, most of them in the last 20 years, only 125 now are defunct, while most have shown a decade-by-decade growth.

In a paper presented at a meeting of the American Academy of Religion in Chicago last weekend, he said:

"While some groups have experienced ups and downs, most...have shown a pattern of continued high-level recruitment of new members, net growth and geographical spread."

Melton, a United Methodist, over the last year surveyed U.S. religion groups for a new edition of the religion encyclopedia to be published in December. It describes 1,586 U.S. faiths, old and new.

He said there have been numerous false assumptions about new religions that have "attained the status of truisms," including these:

— That new religions, often called cults, mainly emerge in periods of social turmoil.

— That they are transitory, depending on some charismatic leader, and usually break up and gradually die out after the leader dies.

— That they are "deviant, weird and largely irrelevant religions on the margins of culture."

Actually, he said, most of them are offshoots of older religions, such as Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam, Theosophy, Spiritualism, Adventism, Christian Science, Mormons or others.

"Most of those groups we refer to as cults are simply representative ... of these older religious traditions which are rapidly diffusing through the Western nations ...," he said.

Is it the flu... or Carbon Monoxide Poisoning?
BDC Electronics, Inc. of Midland, Tx. introduces the ULTRALERT System, a new standard of safety for the home & office.
Many people die needlessly each year as victims of CARBON MONOXIDE poisoning. Accumulation of the deadly gas can be caused by faulty heating equipment, clogged or improperly vented flues. CARBON MONOXIDE is a colorless and odorless gas that cannot be detected except by specialized instrumentation as provided by ULTRALERT. Since victims are unaware of the presence of CARBON MONOXIDE, symptoms are frequently attributed to other causes such as flu, food poisoning or even mental illness, until serious complications or death results.
Gas leaks from equipment failure can cause the build up of potentially dangerous concentrations of explosive mixtures of air and NATURAL GAS.
The ULTRALERT System Can Give You An Early Warning For Hazardous Build Up Of CARBON MONOXIDE, NATURAL GAS & SMOKE.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Police say they're close to solving ecologist's murder

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Federal police said Friday they are close to solving the slaying of an ecologist who angered ranchers by fighting to protect the vast Amazon jungle.

Francisco Mendes, 44, was shot to death Dec. 22 outside his home in the jungle town of Xapuri, 2,660 miles northwest of Rio, near the Bolivian border.

Police spokesman Paulo Marra said the body was to be exhumed "so there will be no doubts when we reach our conclusions."

Mendes, honored by the United Nations for his defense of the environment and his belief that the Amazon jungle could be developed without being destroyed, had said before his death that big landowners had made threats against his life.

Federal agents sent to far-off Acre state to work on the Mendes case detained five ranchers Thursday for questioning but did not formally arrest them, Marra said.

Remaining in custody in Acre were Darcy Pereira da Silva, 21, Oioci Alves da Silva, 22, and Aleci Alves da Silva, 23, all sons of ranch owner Darly Alves da Silva.

Mendes told a Rio newspaper Dec. 9 that Darly da Silva was one of those who most wanted him killed because of his efforts as an ecologist and as head of the local Rubber Tree Tappers Union.

Actor hurt during filming

TOKYO (AP) — An actor filming a samurai drama was seriously injured in a battle scene when a real sword was substituted accidentally for a fake one, police said Friday.

Yukio Kato was slashed in the neck during the filming of the traditional Japanese movie on Monday, said Hiroshima Prefectural Police.

Kato, 34, was unconscious and in serious condition at Okayama University Hospital, the police said.

The real sword was to be used later in the film during a close-up scene, according to a report by Kyodo News Service.

A fake sword that was to have been used in the battle scene was in poor condition, and the director of the movie, Shintaro Katsu, ordered the crew to replace it with another, Kyodo said.

It said the real sword was used for an extended period of time in the filming before the injury occurred.

Police said they seized the sword and the rolls of film containing the battle scene and were questioning the movie crew.

Firecracker kills Italian

CASERTA, Italy (AP) — A New Year's firecracker killed a man Friday when the rocket he had made exploded, police said.

Police have seized large amounts of fireworks throughout Italy in an effort to prevent deaths and injuries.

Two towns in northern Italy, near Bergamo, have issued decrees banning traditional year-end celebrations involving the explosives.

Police said most of the seized fireworks were from Japan and South Korea.

Rome police seized 440 pounds of imported firecrackers early Friday.

Authorities identified the man who was killed as Giovanni De Rosa, 28, of Casagiove, near Caserta in southern Italy. The explosion, outside his home damaged two parked cars and shattered windows.

Sinking victims found

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — Authorities recovered 44 more bodies from a sunken ferry on Friday, raising the death toll from the accident to at least 73, police said.

The ferry capsized Tuesday about six miles south of Dhaka. At least 30 passengers on the vessel still were missing.

Canada OKs pact that erases trade barriers

TORONTO (AP) — Canada's Senate on Friday approved a sweeping agreement that virtually erases trade barriers between Canada and the United States. The Free Trade Agreement now goes into effect on New Year's Day.

Furious debate over the pact forced Prime Minister Brian Mulroney to call new elections on Nov. 21. But the contest gave Mulroney's Progressive Conservative Party its second straight majority government and a clear mandate to push for passage of the legislation.

The vote in Ottawa was by voice and not tabulated. Senators from the opposition Liberal Party, which fought the agreement fiercely during the fall campaign, abstained.

The pact was approved by the House of Commons during a volatile session on Dec. 24. The Conservatives used their majority to muscle the bill through 141-111 while irate opposition lawmakers sang the national anthem in protest.

The Liberals control the non-elected Senate and had tied up the legislation there last fall, forcing Mulroney to call the election. They promised, however, not to repeat their action if he won a majority government.

Even so, they pledged to monitor the trade agreement closely as its effects begin to be felt in coming years.

"Even though we intend to acquiesce and the bill will become law, our concerns have not disappeared," Allan MacEachen, the Liberals' leader in the Senate, said during the debate. "The government has chosen the hard discipline of the market. We will have to monitor whether the market does its job."

The Liberals hold 59 of the 98 Senate seats, allowing them to set up a monitoring committee as trade negotiations under the agreement with the United States get under way.

The pact was signed Jan. 2, 1988, by President Reagan and Mulroney, sparking a year of soul-searching by Canadians.

Many believed the trade pact represented a final subjugation of the Canadian identity by its rich southern neighbor. But supporters, especially big business, heralded the agreement as a potential economic boon that would open up U.S. markets and eliminate $2 billion annually in U.S. tariffs.

The two nations, with $150 billion in annual trade, already form the world's biggest two-nation trading partnership. But the trade agreement now phases out all remaining tariffs, quotas and duties between them.

It also dismantles many investment barriers, frees up trade in energy and services and creates U.S.-Canadian panels to settle disputes.

The actual start of the agreement will be low key, with an exchange of diplomatic notes.

Special interests on both sides of the border, mainly union and farm groups, criticized various elements of the legislation because it would eliminate protectionist rules for specific industries.

Ontario grape growers, for example, were upset because the pact would eliminate an automatic 65 percent markup on U.S.-made wine.

Czechs offer to send experts to crash site

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Czechoslovakia on Friday offered to send experts to help identify explosives that blew up Pan Am Flight 103 following reports a Czech-manufactured explosive may have been used.

A Foreign Ministry statement categorically denied that Czechoslovakia ever provided explosives to terrorists.

British authorities said Wednesday that the residue of explosives recovered from the debris of the Boeing 747 that crashed in Lockerbie, Scotland, on Dec. 21, was "consistent with the use of a high-performance plastic explosive."

That led to speculation the bomb may have been made of Semtex, an orange-colored plastic explosive manufactured in Czechoslovakia.

Terrorism experts and U.S. State Department officials have said that Syria and Libya obtained Semtex from Czechoslovakia and passed it on to surrogate terrorist groups.

So far, no group or individual has been identified as a prime suspect in the bombing.

"Czechoslovakia again emphasizes that it condemns categorically all acts, forms and methods of terrorism and that it complies consistently with the appropriate international commitments," said the Foreign Ministry statement, carried by the state news agency CTK.

"It has never supplied and does not supply explosions to terrorist organizations," the statement said.

Trucker arrested after ramming rig into other vehicles

HONDO (AP) — A truck driver was in police custody Friday after ramming his tractor-trailer into more than 20 vehicles and injuring at least two people during an 80-mile hit-and-run spree through four counties and morning rush-hour traffic in San Antonio, officials said.

The driver, Stephen Odell Dillard, 41, of Coolidge, Ga., was charged with possession of cocaine and was in the Medina County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bond while authorities in other counties prepared other charges against him, officials said.

Under Texas law, possession of a controlled substance is a felony punishable by two to 20 years in prison.

"This guy was running people off the road," said Texas Department of Public Safety trooper Alvin Schacht in Boerne.

"I was doing about 85 after him and I was about five car lengths behind him," said Rene Davila, one of 10 citizens who followed the trucker and ran out and surrounded him when he pulled into a rest stop.

"They just made sure he didn't run away," trooper Marshall Milikien said of the group, many of whom sped to follow Dillard.

Law officers who were chasing him then made the arrest at the rest stop near Natalia, southwest of San Antonio.

The trucker was involved in at least three hit-and-run incidents on Interstate 10 before reaching San Antonio and in 18 more — some involving more than one vehicle — inside the traffic-congested city, authorities said.

STATE

An exact number of accidents in Kendall, Bexar, Atascosa and Medina counties, and the number of injuries related to the episode was being determined early Friday afternoon. At least two people were treated at hospitals, investigators said.

Mary Herrera, 53, and Mercedes Loera, 62, injured when vehicles were struck, were in serious condition at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center at Lackland Air Force Base, said hospital spokeswoman Lt. Col. Karen Wetzel, declining to release the extent of their injuries.

Lytle Police Chief Leo Thormann was the first official to reach the rest stop and talk to the suspect.

"He didn't say anything," Thormann said. "To me he didn't appear that he knew that anything had happened. He was very calm, very cooperative."

DPS troopers who surrounded the rig, which was transporting vegetables from California to Florida, later found about 4 to 5 grams of cocaine, officials said.

The Peterbilt tractor-trailer rig, with its damaged bumper barely hanging on to the rim, was seized by DPS narcotics officers who were going to search its cargo.

Troopers began their chase after the first hit-and-run incident was reported shortly after 8 a.m. on Interstate 10 near Comfort in Kendall County, about 40 miles northwest of San Antonio, said DPS trooper Alvin Schacht. He said trailer sideswiped a vehicle driven by Robert Etlinger of Boerne, who was run off the road. When the trucker didn't stop, Etlinger gave chase but couldn't catch him, Schacht said.

The trucker "was running between 85 and 90 and he (Etlinger) couldn't catch him," Schacht said.

As he drove toward San Antonio, the trucker hit a car driven by Donald Kite of Hunt, the trooper said.

"He took the whole back end of my station wagon," said Kite, who was driving to work in San Antonio when he saw the truck come up behind him. "All of sudden, there was a KA-WHAM, and I almost started going back under his trailer," he said.

Kite believed he spun around two or three times before stopping in the center median.

"You see it all in front of your eyes real quick," Kite said.

Hotel's gift allows family to get together

AUSTIN (AP) — When Shirley Nelson discovered this year that her cancer had worsened, she and out-of-town family members felt a special motivation to get together over the holidays.

But faced with the prospect of fitting a dozen people in her one-bedroom apartment over Thanksgiving, Ms. Nelson found another alternative. Like other people in similar circumstances, she was able to obtain rooms free-of-charge through a special program at the Doubletree Hotel.

Ms. Nelson's brother and sister-in-law from St. Paul, Minn., stayed at the hotel courtesy of its "Room at the Inn" program. So did her sister and six other family members from the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Her parents, from Brackettville, stayed with her, at her apartment.

"This was the first time in better than 10 years we had all been together in the same place at the same time," said Ms. Nelson, 41.

Ms. Nelson, who had a double mastectomy because of breast cancer in 1986, found later the cancer had spread to her lungs. In November, she discovered she had developed tumors in her brain.

Although her family probably would have made the trip without the hospitality provided by the hotel, Ms. Nelson said, "It would have been much harder.

"It would have been much less enjoyable," she said. "It would have been much more crowded and cramped."

Thanks to a donation made to the American Cancer Society in Ms. Nelson's name, the family also was treated to Thanksgiving dinner at the hotel's buffet.

"It was thoroughly, thoroughly enjoyable," said Ms. Nelson, [illegible] secretary to the president of an Austin slide duplication company, although her mobility has been impaired by the disease.

Ms. Nelson said her family felt at ease throughout their stay.

"They felt that they were treated royally by all of the staff and people at the hotel," she said.

The Austin hotel offered 10 free rooms a night between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day, and it had provided 160 as of Thursday, said Susan Rogers, marketing director. It is among 31 Doubletree Hotels in the country participating in the holiday program.

The rooms were provided as a "home away from home" for relatives visiting ill family members, getaways for several Austin cancer patients who wanted a change of environment, and retreats for parents and other care providers of Austin residents who are long-term patients at area hospitals.

In Austin, rooms were made available for people recommended to the hotel by groups including the Allan Shivers Radiation Therapy Center, the Austin chapter of the American Cancer Society, hospitals and the Ronald McDonald House.

"It's our holiday gift to the community," said Ms. Rogers.

White retrieves rifle that had been stolen in '84

SAN MARCOS (AP) — Former Gov. Mark White may no longer be top gun in Texas government, but he has been re-armed.

White, governor of Texas from 1982 to 1986, traveled to San Marcos to retrieve a rifle that had been stolen from his cabin in Hays County in 1984.

"It still aims straight. I haven't shot it yet," said White after Hays County Sheriff Alfard Hohman gave him back the rifle.

The rifle, a replica of the muzzle-loaded, flintlock rifles used during the Texas Revolution in 1836, was found recently by workers who were putting up a fence, said Hohman. The firearm originally was given to White by the Texas Army, a group that re-enacts battles.

The fence workers turned over the rifle to their boss who turned it over to the sheriff's department, Hohman said.

The rifle was stolen in August, 1984, along with a television, stereo and chainsaw from White's cabin near Dripping Springs in Hays County. It was found about 10 to 12 miles from the cabin, Hohman said.

White, who now practices law in Houston, said he was surprised to get the rifle back after all these years. "It had sentimental value. I imagine it had been a pretty hot item with my name on the side of it," he said.

The engraved plate with White's name had been pulled off the rifle.

Arthritis pain?

Do something about it.

Arthritis is a degenerative condition which is influenced by lifestyle, diet, and exercise, as well as hereditary factors. Our goal is to halt the progress of arthritic conditions by strengthening the body's immune system and restoring general health.

Immediate measures include adopting a healthy outlook, proper diet, exercise, and avoiding harmful substances. Specific treatments may include oxygenators, minerals, analgesics and acupuncture to control pain, steroids, and antioxidants. Osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis are also treated specifically.

Other areas we treat:

ALLERGIES by applying new systems of allergy testing and desensitization, and by restoring the immune system to good health through proper diet, vitamin and mineral therapies, lifestyle changes, and positive mental outlook.

CARDIOVASCULAR DISEASES by non-surgical methods, treating constriction or partial blockage of blood vessels, thereby improving delivery of oxygen to all parts of the body.

HEALTH ENHANCEMENT is our primary goal for our patient by strengthening the body's immune system. We test for toxins and other problems in the gastrointestinal tract with a comprehensive digestive stool analysis, and prescribe effective measures. These include proper diet, the avoidance of certain foods and drugs, exercise, and mineral and vitamin supplements.
Dr. McCullough works closely with each patient, explaining in detail the program for recovery. If you want to feel better, you are invited to consult with Dr. McCullough.

Financial Focus

BY VAN M. PEARCY

Don't Miss the Good Times Ahead

Legendary head football coaches at the University of Notre Dame, like Knute Rockne, Frank Leahy, Ara Parseghian and Dan Devine, had quality players. Their successes came from consistent, repetitive play. In the game of Financial Security, the money manager is the coach and the client becomes the team.

A question money managers are frequently asked by the "team" is, "What have you done for me lately?" Although it may appear callous, it makes a lot of sense in this day and time.

Most serious investing is done for the future. Erratic spurts of genius generally are not as important as long-term results, yet investors are still tempted to look at the hot performers - the No. 1 mutual fund of the year.

Jim Weddle, a mutual fund specialist with a major New York Stock Exchange member firm, recently gathered some eye-opening information in investing in the best performing fund of the previous year. What would happen if you carefully followed more than 2,000 mutual funds each year invested in the top-performing fund of the previous year? After all, since no one can predict the future, going with the best fund now seems to make sense.

On January 1, 1975, Weddle hypothetically invested $10,000 in the best performing fund of 1974. On January 1 of each of the next 12 years, he moved the investment to the top performing fund of the previous year. All dividends and capital gains were reinvested, and all purchases were made without a sales charge. Having followed the previous year's best fund, by December 31, 1987, $10,000 had grown into $52,680 - not a bad return on your investment.

Since results are more meaningful when compared with other results, Weddle selected three conservative mutual funds with long-term performance records as running mates.

What if you had made a one-time $10,000 investment on January 1, 1975 and let it compound, undisturbed, for the same period of time, 12 years? Fund A grew to $76,757, Fund B to $70,519 and Fund C to $68,602. All outperformed the investor who chose to follow last year's hottest number.

An important fact about this illustration is that none of the funds Weddle selected was ever recognized as the year's top-performing fund. These three conservative, long-performing funds seldom, if ever, made the best performance lists of financial publications that annually rate mutual funds. The secret of their success was to aim for reasonable investment results, total return or a combination of growth and income, and to do it consistently.

What does this prove? Consistent results, with no devastating surprises, puts you well ahead over the long haul; up to 46 percent ahead in the case of Fund A.

Investing offers few guarantees, but experience shows that good money managers, like famous Notre Dame coaches, who aim for consistent, reasonable results by investing in "quality" generally outperforms both the overall market and the speculator chasing the hottest fund around.

New Year's Eve has long been a wild night of partying, noise and excess. The tradition began when people would beat drums, shout and create an all-out din to scare demons away from the new year; indulge in sexual and alcoholic excesses; and held rites of "purgations, purifications, and confessing of sins," which evolved into our New Year's resolutions.

Early European farmers blew horns and beat drums to scare off spirits that had ruined their crops in the previous year.

In China, "Yang," the forces of light, banished "Yin," the forces of darkness, and people celebrated with cymbals and firecrackers.

In New York City in 1773, festivities got so out of hand that the legislature outlawed all firing of shotguns, firecrackers or homemade bombs to welcome in the New Year.

Anthropologist Sir James Frazer said the North American Iroquois would go from wigwam to wigwam smashing anything in sight, and burning the stuff from the old year in a bonfire. "It was a time of general license; the people were supposed to be out of their senses, and therefore not responsible for what they did." Sound familiar?

Wal-Mart must pay $11.55 million fine

FORT WORTH (AP) — Wal-Mart Stores Inc. must pay $11.55 million for failing to produce its founder and chairman, Sam Walton, for a deposition in a negligence case in Fort Worth, a state district judge has ordered.

In a judgment issued Thursday night, Judge John Street charged that the Arkansas-based chain "elected to gamble" when it failed to produce Walton for testimony in the case of a man who fell in a Sulphur Springs Wal-Mart on Sept. 23, 1986.

"Wal-Mart Stores is only now being assessed the sanctions it could have avoided by producing Sam Walton for his deposition on Nov. 28," wrote Street, whose term as 352nd District judge ends today.

Daily fines for the 17 days Walton didn't appear began at $10,000 on Nov. 28 and reached $1.28 million before dropping back to $1 million a day.

Wal-Mart attorney Vic Anderson, who hadn't heard about Street's order until a reporter questioned him about it Friday, said he isn't sure what his next move will be.

"I will have to review it with my client before we decide anything," Anderson said. "We have the option of paying the fine, filing for a motion to get a rehearing in a new court or filing for an appeal."

But Wallace Craig, the attorney for Andrew Carrizales, a Houston mechanic who sued the store over a back injury he fell in the store, said Street had no choice but to assess $11.55 million to cover the full amount of the sanctions he had threatened.

"I feel that the court has done the only thing they could do. The court has to enforce its powers and has to maintain the dignity of the court," Craig said. "Otherwise national corporations are going to thumb their noses at the Texas courts."

Although Walton was not a defendant in the suit, Street this summer ordered him to travel from Bentonville, Ark., to give a deposition in Fort Worth.

Wal-Mart appealed and the Texas Supreme Court ruled that Street's order was a "clear abuse of discretion."

Subsequently, Street requested that Wal-Mart produce Walton for a video deposition Aug. 8 at the company's Arkansas office.

Walton again didn't appear, instead petitioning a district judge in Arkansas to prevent the deposition. So Street ordered Wal-Mart to bring Walton to Fort Worth or pay the daily fines.

Walton appeared for the deposition Dec. 15. A day later, a Tarrant County jury heard Walton's deposition and a week later awarded Carrizales almost $36,000 in actual and punitive damages for his injuries.

Attorneys for Wal-Mart argue that the fines shouldn't have accumulated while they were appealing Street's order.

The 2nd Court of Appeals ruled during the trial that Street had the authority to impose such fines, but the question of whether the fines should have continued during the appeals process may be argued further.

Wal-Mart had contended that it had no power to produce Walton, considered one of the richest men in the United States, because he is no longer an officer of the company.

Under the order, the discount chain and not its chairman will be held liable for the penalties. The chain must pay the money or post a bond to ensure the payment if it appeals Street's decision.

Proposal reaction to officer's death

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — People who put a police officer at risk when trying to flee should be charged with a felony, says a Texas legislator who wants to introduce such a law.

Officer Patricia Calderon, 26, drowned early Tuesday after plunging into Salado Creek in pursuit of a theft suspect. Police later arrested the suspect but have been unable to charge him in connection with Ms. Calderon's death because he did not directly cause it.

"Are the laws doing their job? I believe they fail us in this instance," said Sen. Frank Tejeda during a news conference Thursday with Police Chief William O. Gibson, police union President Harold Flammia and state Reps. Orlando Garcia and Jerry Beauchamp.

Authorities filed misdemeanor charges of theft and evading arrest against the man Calderon was trying to arrest. He was a convicted felon who was being held without bond on a motion to revoke his parole.

The "Calderon Law" that Tejeda plans to introduce in the Legislature provides that anyone who knowingly flees from a police officer — even if he had not committed a crime — could be convicted of a third-degree felony, which carries a penalty range of two to 10 years in prison.

"For once, they're going to do something for us and not the damn criminals," said Flammia to applause from about 20 uniformed officers attending the news conference.

Gerald Reamey, a St. Mary's University criminal-law professor, said later that Tejeda's proposal was an overreaction to Calderon's death that would not deter people from running from police.

"That's not good lawmaking," said Reamey. "The person who flees would hardly anticipate causing any injury."
