Odds And Ends

It's always nice to be appreciated so it's no wonder that the following letter made such an impression on us. It was received by the Sheriff's Department from a trio of boys involved in a traffic accident and they passed it along because it was addressed all the people of Sonora.

Co. D., 2nd Platoon
Army Language School
Presidio of Monterey
California
11 January 1958

To the citizens of Sonora:

Being from North East I have often heard of Southern hospitality and Texan friendliness. Never have I truly known the meaning of these two terms as I did on the fourth of January.

While travelling through the outskirts of Sonora, we experienced a nasty mishap. We no sooner became aware of our difficulty when aid appeared.

We wish to express our deepest appreciation to the two ladies who first arrived on the scene and then went out of their way to help us; the sheriff, who immediately took command of the situation, dispatching the state police and the wrecker service; to the garage men who gave mechanical attention and to the wonderful hospital staff which gave medical attention; and finally to those people of Sonora who showed their every consideration.

To those wonderful citizens of Sonora whose hearts are as big as their state.

Many thanks,

Robert L. Bloom, Richard Idoux, Paul Frost.

The award is made each year to an exhibitor of a grand championship fat animal whose feeding included the use of Ralston products. Herbert Fields, owner of Sonora Feed and Supply Co., made the award at 4-H Club meeting Thursday night, January 16.

Backbone Of Community Service Found In Support Merchants Give Residents

There is a debt we owe our home town but whatever the bill is, none of us will ever be presented with it for payment. If we do not realize the size of the debt, nobody will ever try to tell us. We know what the town has done for us, and we should know better than anyone else what we ought to do for the town.

Two questions may serve to bring the issue home to us.

When some member of our family was ill, was it the doctor from the city who tended them? We never even thought of the city doctor. We thought first of our home town doctor and it was he who saw them through their illness.

When we were out of a job, or low on funds, who gave us credit and tided us through a rough spot? It certainly wasn't the store in the city that offers "bargains" for he country shopper. The merchant of Sonora stood by us then, as he has for others, and as he will again some time when the emergency arises.

If these things haven't happened to us personally, they have happened to our neighbors, and we know about them. Mere money cannot pay for disinterested service such as the doctor and the merchant render under the circumstances. And these instances are not cited with the idea of wakening a feeling of obligation toward those individuals who render us signal service on extraordinary occasions, but they are brought up rather with the view of making every man, woman and child realize his partnership in the community and his responsibility in that partnership which means so much to him.

The doctor and the merchant are not the only men toward whom others in the community owe this obligation to maintain the community as a self-sustaining entity. They are simply given as examples of how the proposition works out.

Happiness and contentment bring about also a rich social life. We get together with our neighbors during moments of relaxation from the day's work and enjoy association with them. Clubs and organizations unite us in bonds that hold us together for one purpose or another.

A score of other things might be mentioned. There are the material things that minister to the comfort and well-being of the people. Among them are paved streets, concrete sidewalks and curbing, street lights, law enforcement, a fire department, electric lighting, water, sewer and similar improvements and conveniences.

The stronger the community spririt the more of these there are. The taxes we pay settle the bills for the things already acquired; the weight of our cooperation with our progressive leaders assures other improvements in the future. Be a home town man all along the line—patronize home town merchants exclusively.

Dear Friend and Customer:

Of recent months many of our good customers have suggested that we change our method of operation to a cash basis. We like the idea and know that there would be many advantages to our customers.

We fully realize that the most successful food stores today are those selling for cash. We also know that a cash store can sell for less because its cost of doing business is less.

Please remember that there will be NO change in our sincere attempt to give you good and courteous service. There will be NO cheapening in our high quality standards in the merchandise we sell. Neither will we ever give up the wonderful friendly relations we now enjoy with our customers. The only change will be lower prices, faster service, and a more convenient store in which to shop, in addition to selling for cash only.

Our New Policy will become effective on January 23, 1958. On this date you will find drastically reduced shelf prices throughout our store. These lower prices are possible because of the economies which will be made by both buying and selling for cash. Further, a cash business can operate on a smaller margin. So, these savings are being passed on to our customers in the form of lower prices.

We find that we must pay cash for most all of our purchases now-a-days if we are to own our goods at competitive prices. In order to pay cash we must sell for cash.

Since you have always been one of our best customers we sincerely want to keep your good patronage. Also we wish to remind you that Roueche Grocery is home owned and home operated.

Coupon books are available in $5, $10 and $25 denominations for our customers who desire this service.

Again we say THANKS for your past patronage and we are looking forward to serving you in a more modern, convenient and economical way.

Yours very truly,

Edwards Plateau Soil Conservation District News

By E. B. Keng
Soil Conservation Service

R. A. Halbert became the first cooperator to use the district's new brush chopper. Mesquite brush from 5 to 10 feet high covering several acres around pens and water was causing difficulty in penning sheep.

The brush mower worked very successfully in mowing the mesquite brush up to three inches in diameter. The brush is chopped in very small pieces, leaving stumps approximately five inches high. The mower will also handle algerita, persimmon and other common shrubs.

Though it is expected that the mesquites and other brush will come back, the area will be clear for several years. Thick suckering or sprouting may also tend to stunt the growth of the plants.

The mower is available to local ranchmen at a rental rate of 50 cents per acre, plus $1.00 per day. It may also be used to mow heavy weeds in fields or on rangeland. Any tractor having a power takeoff and approximately 20 H.P. rating will pull the machine.

Interested ranchmen may see Halbert's mowing results at his windmill immediately adjacent to the old Fort McKavett road.

Field survey work on Dry Devil's River progressed rapidly this week as favorable weather continued to hold. Sites for flood prevention structures were being surveyed on ranches owned by Mrs. Pearl Martin, Ben Mittel and Homer Byrd. Field work should be almost completed in another week.

Two engineering parties are engaged in collecting the field information. Paul Kenner, SCS engineer, is heading the party. James Green, hydrologist, and Jim Voss, economist, are also working on the survey.

A tight time squeeze is anticipated in getting the plan developed and approved by various agencies in Washington before submitting to Congress. The plan requires approval only by House and Senate committees, and not by entire Congress.

The completed plan will first be reviewed by local people for their approval. If the plan receives local approval, every effort will be made to get approval at this session of Congress.

It Pays To Know First Aid Facts Of Safety Education

Every three seconds someone in the United States needs prompt first aid for an accident or illness. Often the right kind of aid makes the difference between life and death.

Everyone should learn how to follow through on these ten aids to give first aid:

1. Act promptly. Examine the victim carefully from head to toe, looking for breathing obstructions, bleeding, and broken bones.

2. Send for help. First aid "holds the line" until a physician takes over. Call him at once.

3. Stop bleeding. A snug bandage or pressure dressing usually checks bleeding. If not, press firmly at the point which cuts off blood flow to the injured area. Use a tourniquet only when other methods fail.

4. Look for shock—face drained of color, cold moist skin, rapid weak pulse, fainting. Wrap victim in blankets, make him lie down unless doing so will make other injuries worse, and try to calm him. If he can swallow, has no abdominal injury, and is not vomiting, have him drink as much of the following solution as possible: one teaspoon table salt and one-half teaspoon baking soda dissolved in quart of water.

5. In poisoning, follow antidote instructions on poison container label if it is at hand. Otherwise, give egg whites beaten in water, or plain water, to dilute poison. If poison was not corrosive or kerosene, induce vomiting.

6. Give artificial respiration in drownings or electrical shock.

7. Handle with care. Don't move an injured person unless necessary; then use a stretcher, or one made of blankets, a board, or ladder padded with clothing.

8. Splint broken bones. Make splints from any firm object, and long enough to reach well beyond joints above and below suspected break.

9. Apply sterile gauze dressing to burns and cover with bandages. Don't pull off clothing stuck to burned tissue. In case of chemical burns, rinse immediately with plenty of water.

10. After covering wounds with sterile dressings, bandage to guard against infection, reduce bleeding, and lessen pain.

Devil's River Philosopher Says Moving To Town Not The Answer Most Cities Over-Stocked Now

Editor's Note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on Devil's River has some advice for cities this week worth as much as any of his advice.

Dear editar:

It's pretty hard to get the farm problem discussed in Washington these days what with the satellite problem crowding out everything else, although man may discover after he gets out into space there's nothing out there that'll grow anything, in fact, you talk about dry places, I bet it hasn't rained out there in millions of years and I can't see where there'd be a place to drill an irrigation well. As a matter of fact, from a crop standpoint I wouldn't be surprised if outer space is a complete flop.

But I did run across another article on the farm problem in a newspaper the wind blew in yesterday afternoon. According to it, the entire farm program ought to be thrown out and every rancher who can't make a living entirely on his own ought to move to town and get a job.

Well, this sounds all right, but it seems to me crossing the city limits won't necessarily equip a man to earn a living. At least, I know lots of people already in town who aren't making a living, and personally I can't see much difference in not quite making ends meet in town or in the country, except in the country fewer people know about it.

Also, while I know most towns and cities are chomping at the bit to grow bigger and might welcome an influx of ranchers, it seems to me that most cities already have more people than they can provide paved streets for, or furnish police protection for, or build schools for, or hire enough teachers for. You talk about ranchers being undercapitalized, they're well off compared with the struggle most big cities are having to find enough revenue to keep going. The hunt for new markets for farmers and ranchers' products is nothing compared with the search in cities for a new source of revenue.

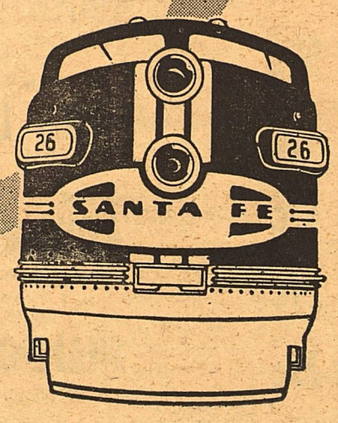

If I lived in a city, I believe I'd go a little slow on recommending more busted ranchers, in the hope they'll move to town. Most cities remind me of a pasture in a drouth. They're pretty badly over-stocked already.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Fisher Wants FHA Extended 2 Years

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

More new post office buildings are cropping up in our district, adding to the convenience of patrons and to the working surroundings of the postal employees. The most recent addition is San Saba where a new building will be erected, equipped with evaporative air conditioning and with 2,600 feet of floor space. It will be ready by May 1, on a ten-year lease.

A new building at Junction has been contracted, and Llano is another on the list. Menard got one last year—one of the best. When existing contracts expire on old buildings the Department is inviting bids by those who will construct new buildings, according to specifications, then rent them to the Government for 10 years. Bids have just been requested on a new site at Robert Lee.

Farmers Home Administration, which has handled the emergency drouth loan program, has kept a lot of hard-stricken farmers and ranchmen in business during recent years. Beginning in August 1953, 796 emergency livestock loans (chiefly in our district) have been made, totalling $28½ million. Of these, already 283 have been paid in full, and only $9 million remains to be paid. Collections will be almost 100 percent, according to Walter McKay, state director.

What is needed is a rather general loan extension and renewal policy to enable borrowers to pay off as income permits. The present law expires a little more than a year from now. I am introducing a bill to extend this livestock loan law for two years, thereby keeping the program going until necessary renewals and extensions are concluded.

OLD Turkish towels or terry robes yield enough material to make draw-string envelope covers for a broom. These are wonderful for wiping down walls or cleaning wallpaper. Make several so you can change as you move from room to room.

Hang on to those old flannels! They make wonderfully soft polishing cloths for silverware.

Powdered pepsin sold at the drug store can be used to remove those difficult stains like chocolate ice cream on your clothing.

Use a hot blade for slicing fresh bread more easily. A knife with a jagged edge is perfect for cutting angel food cake.

Baking soda can be used for cleaning all sorts of things: remove onion odors with the paste of soda and water, tea and coffee stains on plastic cups and saucers and brighten enameled ware with it, too.

Spread out waxed or paper toweling when you're ready to pare vegetables, unshell hard-cooked eggs or measure out ingredients. When finished, fold the paper, discard and you have a clean surface without wiping.

Use a pan with straight sides when cooking on top of the range to utilize fuel more effectively.

Dear Friends and Customers,

Here at the News Office we have often discussed the possibility of having a representative call at your store or office to take your order for office supplies. We regret that this just can't be done with our small staff. Time won't permit it.

One of our resolutions for '58 was to provide for you and maintain a broader and more complete line of office and bookkeeping supplies. Your response to our increased stock has been gratifying to the point that we have ordered still more. Come by and and inspect or call 21241 for your office needs. If we don't have the item you need, tell us about it—we will be glad to stock it for you.

We wish we had sufficient space to display office furniture. This being impossible, we have done the next best thing by becoming dealers for such outstanding lines as "Invincible", "Shaw Walker", "Cole Steel" and many others. Your selections from our catalogues will receive our prompt attention.

We have added Smith-Corona to our portable typewrite lines. The Smith-Corona portable electric and Smith-Corona portables will arrive within a very few days.

In addition to the items mentioned, we invite you to compare our prices on register tickets and all commercial printing with your present source.

We appreciate your business and hope to serve you more effeciently during 1958.

Sincerely,
The Devil's River News

New Investments In Time And Effort

By Judge Sarah T. Hughes

Important in the development of children is companionship with their parents. Youngsters need to feel that they have significance in the daily lives of their mothers and fathers.

Among the happiest memories of my childhood are the times I spent with my parents. There were the bonfires my father and I had from the leaves we raked together, and the Sunday picnics, and walks in the spring. They are among my moundest recollections.

A young girl recently answered her newspaper's inquiry as to what young people wanted from their parents with the statement that her father gave her material things—whatever she wanted—money for shows, clothes, travel, even a car. But what she really wanted from him was attention, she wrote.

Happiness does not depend, as many people believe, on material things— a TV, the latest model car, or a mink stole. It doesn't depend on keeping up with the Joneses, but rather on being loved and understood, of feeling secure, of being important in work and play with our parents.

It used to be easy for parents and children to do things together—there were many tasks around the house or the farm and they called for joint effort.

But today, with the chores limited and so many outside distractions, it is easy to drift apart —each to have his or her own interests outside the home. The job of being a parent in today's world requires increasing effort and time.

There are many things to do together—singing in the living room, fishing, picnicking, taking pictures, raising vegetables or flowers, saving stamps. It may require work on the part of parents to think of a project to include the family, but the results will be rewarding.

A young boy who finally came before me in the juvenile court became deliquent largely because his father, with whom he lived, thought material things were sufficient. The mother and father were divorced, and the father, busy making money, hoped to retain his boy's love by giving him a car.

But he failed to give him time and understanding. The boy, having no attention at home, fell in with the wrong crowd. What finally brought him into court was stealing tires and gadgets for the car his father had given him.

On the other hand, a recent article in a national magazine showed photographs of the Danish royal family—king, queen, and three daughters—at afternoon tea, an occasion that the king never allows anything to interfere with. It is also well known that despite Queen Elizabeth II's multitudinous duties she sets aside time daily to be with Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

So do the wisest and most successful parents everywhere make sure that the house is a home for being together in, not just a place to keep their clothes.

In cases of delinquency the mother and father are usually missing—wholly or partially—from the life of the child.

Good relationships—love, understanding, guidance, and companionship—are basic in the child's development into a worthwhile citizen.

April 15 Deadline For Vehicle Inspection Tags

With the 1958 motor vehicle inspection deadline more than three months away, approximately one million vehicle owners have obtained their 1958 inspection stickers, setting a trend for early inspections. But an additional three million vehicles are yet to be inspected before the April 15 deadline.

Regarding the early inspections John H. Grant, manager of Motor Vehicle Inspection Records, Texas Department of Public Safety, said, "In addition to the ever increasing awareness of automobile and truck owners of safety inspections as an essential safety measure, the increase this year is due in part to the realization that periodic inspections help maintain automobiles at higher value by lessening depreciation."

Texas Leads U. S. In Wool Production

Wool production in Texas fell sharply during the recent drouth, but the return of favorable moisture conditions is permitting ranchers to rebuild flocks rapidly, and production will soon begin an upward trend, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research says.

As a consequence, in a year or two the Texas wool industry will reach its normal level of production and remain an important factor in the state's economy, the report says.

Texas again led the nation in 1957 wool production with an estimated clip of 37.4 million pounds. Although that figure is considerably below 1956 production, due primarily to drouth conditions that continued until last spring, it represents approximately 16.5 percent of the 226-million pound estimated U. S. total.

Wyoming is Texas' closest competitor for national leadership in wool production, but its estimated production of 18.8 million pounds is only about half that estimated for Texas. States with a predicted 10,000 pounds or more for 1957 include South Dakota, Montana, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and California.

Wool research is significantly expending the area in which wool can be used, and the probability that great advances will still be made in this direction is one of the brighter elements in the wool industry, the report points out.

More wool textile plants in Texas are also predicted. Plants already are located at Houston, Eldorado, Brownwood and San Antonio.

Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Department of Public Safety, reported that vehicle inspections have reduced traffic fatilities. He said that "mechanical defects were causative factors in 19 percent of the rural fatal accidents in 1951 prior to the inauguration of the inspection program.

In 1956 mechanical defects were causative factors in only five percent of the fatal rural accidents. It can well be said that this is due to the motoring public's acceptance of the vehicle inspection program by keeping their automobiles in good repair."

Vehicle owners are urged to obtain their inspection stickers early to avoid long waits in lines that normally occur during the first two weeks of April.

By Vern Sanford

All of a sudden science has taken on a new look. Or perhaps we should say—a new look has been taken at science.

Few outdoorsmen realize just how important science is to their outdoor pleasures. Sure, they appreciate the fact that guns are guilt to perfection, spinning reels are most carefully designed, fishing rods are constructed for just the right sensitivity and reflexability, and even the smallest lure is planned with the greatest care. These facts they realize, as well as the scientific detail that goes into boats and motors.

But I am thinking of the fish and wildlife biologists, the scientists who study the living habits of game and fish.

Were it not for the work of these men, we would find ourselves so far behind in the production of fish and game that all would be about as scarce as the whooping crane (of which there are only 31 left).

When I was a boy, our lakes and streams were rapidly being "fished out". Many a time we would fish all day and come in only with a few bream. You and I and our children and grandchildren should be thankful that somewhere along the line some far-thinking people came to the realization that in time we might not have plenty of fish and game.

Biologists Do Great Job

These men went to our colleges and universities and came away with degrees in wildlife management. These biologists began to do some research. They put two and two together for a period of years and came up with an answer that some lovers of the outdoors still will not believe.

Now the biologists tell us that with proper land management, careful control of our lakes and streams, and reasonable hunting and fishing procedures we not only can increase, but eventually improve our game and fish.

Through the efforts of sportsmen's clubs and a few determined individuals, the Texas Game and Fish Commission now has regulatory authority in some 80 counties in the state. This means that in at least 80 counties, season and bag limits are based upon facts and not upon guess work or the whims of certain individuals.

A visit to some of the wildlife management areas of the state, as well as to some of the ranches that follow conservation practices, is most convincing. The same is true of our lakes and streams, that are constantly being watched over by biologists.

Biologists have learned that you can stock an impoundment with too many fish. Result: poor, small fish. They have learned that the carrying capacity of the land must be respected. As a result of their work we have more and better fish.

Thanks to these scientists Texas is far ahead of many other [illegible] fish and wildlife management program.

Thousands of folks . . . including YOU . . . have a big stake in this community.

Lives . . . savings . . . hearts are represented by the homes, businesses, farms, schools, churches . . . and jobs . . . that make up our particular segment of American life.

Faith and hard work created the TRADE VOLUME that made all of this possible . . . as every community is built . . . and grows . . . and LIVES on trade.

Trading at home . . . whenever possible . . . and making it attractive for more of our neighbors to trade here . . . to create greater trade volume . . . is the way to protect our present investments . . . so they will return more dividends of prosperity, contentment, and happiness.

Trade that LEAVES a community, makes empty buildings, empty streets, empty schools, empty churches . . . lost conveniences . . . and depreciated property values. But your dollar . . . spent here . . . where you have your investment . . . will return to you . . . many times.

30 YEARS AGO

Friday, March 30, 1928

A public service to the people of Sonora which has extended over a period of 15 years comes to a close on April 1st when the local supply system passes from it's present owners into the hands of the West Texas Utilities Company.

J. D. Eaton, owner of the plant, and his son John, point with pride to the fact that during those many years Sonora has never once been without water. This is an accomplishment and an achievement in which they are justified in taking pride.

In speaking of the passing of the industry from his hands into those of the West Texas Utilities Company, Mr. Eaton said that he was glad to be able to say to the people of this section that the new company is one in which they may have complete confidence. He bespoke for the new company the curtisies, business and good feeling which joyed.

During the years Mr. Eaton has won for himself the respect, admiration and good will of the people of Sonora, and has established a reputation for honesty and fair play which is a rich heritage to himself and to his children.

Parents Teachers

No matter how much safety education parents give their children, it cannot be completely effective unless both mother and father obey the rules of safety themselves.

In safety, as in everything else, children absorb the attitudes of their parents and mimic their behavior. Telling Johnny not to cross streets except with a green light is not going to seem important to him if he sees dad jaywalking or squeezing through an intersection on a caution light.

By the same token, if Susie sees mother standing on a makeshift ladder of a chair and boxes, to get something from a high shelf, she's not likely to use a sturdy ladder when she wants something from a similarly high place.

Good examples and repetition are two of the most effective weapons of accident prevention. By each parent making certain that his own actions are reasonably safe and correct, he creates a climate of safety which fosters good safety-attitudes in children.

Curiosity is a natural part of the growing-up processes. Many times a child's investigative actions lead to dangerous situations, especially if they are left unsupervised. Yet, an opportunity to learn must not be denied them.

Among safety experts, the best and safest plan is to answer children's questions, show them how things work and teach them to do things the safe way for themselves. Of course, this plan is not always the easiest or most convenient, but it is the most effective.

National figures reval that about 14,000 children, up to 14 years of age, are killed in accidents, of varying types, each year.

Marion Stokes, who was released from the hospital Monday, left for Lampasas Wednesday to rest in the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Jack Johnson, who has returned from Korea, will spend this month at home with his father, Clift Johnson.

YOUR MINISTER SAYS

By Rev. Alarson Brown

According to the traditional church year we are now in the season of Epiphany. Epiphany is an obscure word to most people and I am sure many aren't concerned much one way or another about the season of the church year.

The word means "to show forth" or to manifest. The title of the season in the Book of Common Prayer is, "The Epiphany, or the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles." This title gives us the clue to the meaning of Epiphany and what it means to us as Christian people.

It is the season of the church year that emphasizes the fact that our Lord was born for all men. Nobody is excluded from the effect of this gracious act of God in becoming as one of us. This meaning is symbolized by the coming of the three "Wise Men", "The Magi", or the three "Kings". Usually the three kings are portrayed as a negro, an asian, and a greek. The point again being made that Christ came for the salvation of all men.

This season reminds us of our responsibility as Christians to share our Faith with all men. Usually we think of this sort of thing as "missionary work" and this thought always brings to mind boxes of cast off clothes and helmeted missionaries being boiled in a cannibal stew. Yet you and I cannot appreciate the need of our brother who we have not seen until we have appreciated the need of our brother who we have seen and stumble over every day!

Right here is Sonora are people in as great need as any people anywhere in the world. There are living conditions right here in Sonora that are as deplorable as any in the world. You name the place and the filth and we've got it! We have made only a token response to the need of God's People right here in this town. How dare we presume to appreciate the needs of His People in other lands.

The question for you and for me this Epiphony Season is, "How can I make the Love of God in Christ known to those in need right here in Sonora? ? ?

Texas Hunting Season Ends; Results Good

Another hunting season has gone into history. A final tabulation is not in as yet, but indications are generally it has been a good one.

Duck and goose shooting was erratic. Some hunters reported fine kills, while others didn't have such good luck. The occasional hunter seemed to fare better than the constant hunter. Men who hunt every day in many instances reported too much water and unsatisfactory shooting.

"Throughout the remainder of the year we must concentrate on developing management practices that will produce more game for next season's harvest," says the Secretary of the Texas Game and Fish Commission.

"Our entire harvest depends upon proper management and land uses. We can't expect to improve the quality of our deer or increase their quantity without proper practices. It seems now that we will have the best range conditions we have had in years. A few more rains later in the year will have much to do with next season's harvest."

Broncs Top Eagles 35-33 In First Conference Game

By Frank Joe Potmesil

The Sonora Broncos started the District 8-A race off right by defeating the Junction Eagles here Friday night, January 17, 35 to 33. The game changed leaders eight times during the first half and three time in the last half.

Sonora took an early lead when John Ed Nevill sunk two points. Junction then came back to tie it two to two. The first quarter ended in a tie also, 10 to 10.

Junction scored first in the second quarter but lost the two point lead, and never regained it during the rest of the game. The second quarter was the deciding quarter as each team scored seven in the third and fourth periods.

In the fourth quarter Sonora pulled away four points to lead and Junction never could make up the margin.

With Nevill, Galindo, Brodhead, and, late in the remaining three seconds, Fields, all fouling out, the last quarter was played with only Fields and Potmesil as the starters remaining on the playing squad.

Freddy Fields was high for Sonora with 15 points and Moose Brown was high for Junction with 13.

"B" Team Loses

The Junction "B" squad (six-footers plus) pulled away in the fourth quarter to win over the Sonora "B" five-footers 41 to 23.

After a 20 to 15 half time score, the Broncos pulled up within one point, 23 to 24, at the end of the third quarter.

The Broncos, due to bad passing and lack of ball control, failed to score in the fourth period and lost 41 to 23.

Gene West was high for Sonora with 10 points and William McKessick was high for Junction with 13.

GOC Changed To Ready Reserve Status This Week

Word has been received from the San Antonio Filter Center that the Sonora Ground Observer Corps will change from an operational to a ready reserve status, effective immediately.

The ground observer corps organization will be retained, but it will operate only on an emergency basis, or for a practice alert.

Calls will be made to the Filter Center when an aircraft is observed in distress, when flying objects or unusual aerial activity is noted, or when severe windstorms occur.

"Approximately 100 Sonora citizens have participated in the local Ground Observer Corps," said E. B. Keng, Chief Observer. The Air Corps rated the Sonora unit as one of the best in the 54 counties using the San Antonio Filter Center. The Air Corps expressed appreciation to all volunteer workers who have assisted in plane spotting.

Especial credit is due to Mrs. R. M. McCarver, who has called in weather reports twice daily for the past two years, Keng said. Calling the weather to San Antonio at 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. each day can get to be quite a chore, and Mrs. McCarver has missed very few calls.

If emergencies arise, present observers will be notified. Local officers of the Ground Observer Corps include F. L. McKinney, Post Supervisor; E. B. Keng, Chief Observer; and Reggie Trainer, Assistant Observer.

Jerrel R. Hardesty of Sonora will receive his Bachelor of Business Administration degree from the University of Texas January 30. Hardesty is one of more than 200 seniors who are listed as candidates for the degree.

Hardesty is married to the former Miss Darlene Barrow of Sonora.

Rev. Allan Guthrie, Ralph Finklea, Cleve Jones and Harold Scherz attended the regular monthly men's meeting and dinner held in the Presbyterian Church in Eldorado Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Drennan of Goodland, Kansas, are in Sonora this week the guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Drennan.

Wool Growers Association there.

Kincaid remarked that because of heavy rains late last spring some of the 1957 fall mohair carried a considerable amount of defect and due to that defect some of it has been selling under 70 cents per pound.

"Mohair has been included in the incentive payment program the same as wool," he said, "but no incentive payment has been made because overseas markets in 1955, 1956 and the spring of 1957 kept the average price above the incentive level of 70 cents."

Sale of 2 or 3 million pounds of defective mohair at less than the support level might contribute to an incentive payment being made in 1958. The 1958 wool and mohair marketing year begins on April 1.

"I feel that most of our growers would not want to deliver mohair sold for less than the support price before April 1 if there was a chance of an incentive payment being made in 1958", Kincaid added.
