Midland Police Department officer Tyler Thompson returns a dog named Leo to his owner, Austen Lawler, after the animal was rescued by Midland firefighters from an apartment fire at The Annex apartments Friday.

First responders save dog from apartment fire

From staff reports

First responders rescued a dog from an apartment in which a fire had broken out Friday afternoon. No one was injured in the fire at The Annex apartments at 5101 N. "A" St., according to firefighters on the scene.

Austen Lawler, who lives in the ground-floor apartment where the fire started, said he heard a call about the fire come over the police scanner at Midland Memorial Hospital emergency department, where he works.

Lawler rushed home because his dog, Leo, was in the apartment. Midland firefighters and police already had arrived on scene. Firefighters had placed the dog on the patio, and Midland Police Department Sgt. Ben Chavez and Officer Tyler Thompson pulled the dog over the patio fence and placed him in Thompson's car until his owner came home.

"(Leo) was sitting there cowering in the back of the car when I opened the door, then he jumped out and started licking me like crazy" Lawler said.

The fire is believed to have started in the bathroom, but the Midland Fire Marshal's Office doesn't yet know the exact cause, said investigator John Buck. Though smoke extended to the upstairs apartments, the flames were contained in the bottom unit's bathroom, Buck

Midland's labor market remained stable even as it inched higher in September, according to data released Friday by the Texas Workforce Commission.

The commission said its Midland metropolitan statistical area had an unemployment rate of 3.3 percent, up from 3.2 percent in August and below the 2.8 percent rate recorded last September.

Midland remained tied with Austin-Round Rock-San Marcos for the second-lowest unemployment rate in Texas; both trail Amarillo's 3.1 percent rate. Odessa saw its unemployment rate rise to 4.5 percent from 4.3 percent in August.

The start of the school year prompted a 600-job gain in the government sector, which more than offset the loss of 100 jobs each in the mining, logging and construction and the leisure and hospitality sectors.

Midland added 400 jobs, or 0.4 percent, from August to September for a job count of 99,700.

Joan Kreidler Pitchford

On April 15, 2015, at the age of 98, Jean Kreidler Pitchford left this world, creating three orphans, Carol, Robert and Mack. Jean was born in Pharr, Texas on May, 27, 1916 to Maynard L. Kreidler and Mary Jones Kreidler.

She is survived by her younger brother, Maynard Kreidler of McAllen, Texas; six grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren; and by many nieces, nephews and great nieces and nephews.

She is also survived by her 20 yr. old cat, Xena, who for the past year, willingly slept wrapped in Mother's arms under the covers. Xena continues to mourn.

Jean attended The University of Texas and worked for Dr. Merton Minter in San Antonio until she married William Pitchford on April 24, 1941. She was Church Secretary for various Presbyterian Churches as they moved through Texas and New Mexico. After her husband's death, she took up short term residence with Carol and her husband, John Savage, in Midland, Texas that lasted until her death a mere 32 years later. They were best friends and in the end caregivers for Mom.

Her time, from 65 into her 80s, was spent on the road visiting and caring for sick family members and friends. She had the heart of a servant and acted accordingly. She loved attending the Santa Fe Opera each year. She was a member of P.E.O. for 70 years. We thank Carol and John for the years they spent with Mom. We especially thank Hospice of Midland for their incredible devotion and service to Mother. Carol specifically thanks Nurse Brenda Orona, Aide Ellie Carrasco (the best ever!), Nurse Practitioner Donna Paul, Nurse Astin Whisman, Social Worker Mary Helen Metts and Volunteer Coordinator Sandy Leiker. Volunteers Mary Lou Hall, Larry Benson, George Fuhrmann, Anne Hobbs, Eileen Legget, Melva Mahanay and Ann Porterfield. Also Dr. Bartha, Chaplain Robert Kirk, Nurse Practitioner Cheryl Vallie, longtime friends Woody and Midge Erskine and Senior Care Midland who provided Hospice Respite Care. Texas Longhorn steer mascot Bevo XIV dies at 13

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The longhorn steer mascot of the University of Texas died in his sleep Friday after recently being diagnosed with cancer. Bevo XIV was 13.

The steer died at the ranch where he lived. He had been retired on Tuesday after his diagnosis and had not made the trip to the Cotton Bowl the previous weekend for the annual Texas-Oklahoma football game, which Texas won 24-17.

"He was so big and strong, but he had such a sweet personality and a gentle soul," said Ricky Brennes, executive director of the Silver Spurs, the mascot's handlers and caretakers. The Silver Spurs had announced Oct. 7 that the steer had been stricken with a life-threatening condition.

Bevo XIV, whose given name was Sunrise Studly, had served as the school mascot since the age of 2, in 2004. He was on the football sideline for two Rose Bowl victories, including the January 2006 national championship game.

He also attended the second inauguration of President George W. Bush in January 2005. Owners John and Betty Baker also owned his predecessor, Bevo XIII.

Bevo XIV "loved the attention" given to the mascot, Brennes said.

"Like a dog, he would come when called by name, show up to the house looking for treats and even roll over on his side so Mrs. Baker could rub his belly," Brennes said.

The school said a search for Bevo XV will begin immediately and should be in place for the 2016 football season, which would be the 100th anniversary of the mascot being on the football sideline.

Officials believe farming accident sparked Texas wildfire

By Paul J. Weber
Associated Press

SMITHVILLE — A preliminary investigation indicates a farming accident sparked a wildfire that's consumed more than 7 square miles and destroyed 40 structures in Central Texas, authorities said Friday.

Meanwhile, about 300 firefighters assigned to battle the fire in Bastrop County awaited the arrival of a DC-10 jet tanker that can drop close to 12,000 gallons of retardant at a time over a swath three-fourths of a mile long and 500 feet wide. It is also able to divide its load into five separate drops.

The Very Large Air Tanker will travel from Tennessee to help fight what has come to be called the Hidden Pines Fire. A smaller single engine air tanker dropped retardant on the area Thursday. The same area was scorched four years ago by a devastating blaze that wiped out 1,600 homes and killed two people.

The fire has been fueled partly by hot, dry weather, but a cool front moved into Central Texas on Friday. That front was forecast to bring wind gusts above 20 mph, prompting concerns the fire could expand further. Smoke from the blaze on Thursday drifted as far as downtown Austin, some 40 miles away.

"This is a day of transition for Bastrop County," Bastrop County Judge Paul Pape said at a news conference Friday morning, referring to the aircraft assistance and the troublesome winds. "It could either get better or it could get a whole lot worse."

Pape said a preliminary investigation found that an accident during a "farming operation" may have caused the fire. He later told the Austin American-Statesman that a rancher was pulling a shredder through grass when an overheated bearing ignited grass clippings. A line of fire was created before the rancher discovered what had happened.

More than 4,500 acres have burned, officials said, and the wildfire was about 25 percent contained Friday, a day after the blaze quadrupled in size. About 400 homes have been evacuated since the fire began Tuesday. No deaths or injuries have been reported.

Some of the worst damage was near the rural ranching community of Smithville, where a sign proudly announces the town as the home of the 1998 Sandra Bullock film "Hope Floats." But the damage so far has paled in comparison to the 2011 wildfire that destroyed nearly 10 times as much ground.

On a list of burned houses that county officials posted inside a gymnasium in Smithville, Dennis Moninger's address was near the top of the page. He said the fire also destroyed his brother's house nearby.

"He saw the fire jump across the street and onto his property," Moninger said. "It jumped from treetop to treetop."

Unemployment

From 1A

2015, Midland added 2,700 jobs for a growth rate of 2.8 percent. While Midland's dominant mining, logging and construction sector lost 100 jobs during those 12 months, the trade, transportation and utilities sector added 1,400 new jobs for a growth rate of 7.5 percent.

"Looking at what's going on in our centers, everything is stable," said Willie Taylor, chief executive officer of the commission's Workforce Solutions Permian Basin.

He said the number of laid-off workers filing unemployment claims is stable, as are wages earned by those who still have jobs.

Acknowledging there have been layoffs amid the sharp decline in oil prices, he said there hasn't been a mass exodus of laid-off workers as in the 1980s. He speculated that those who have left the area were those who worked here for a short time — for example 14 days — and returned home for a 14-day period before coming back.

The goal is to maintain the workforce during the downturn, he said.

The workforce commission reported a gain of almost 200 in the Midland civilian workforce from August to September, along with a gain of just more than 100 in the number of employed Midlanders.

"Although this is now an employer's market, there are still jobs available. Those with skills can find jobs; for those with limited skills, it will take a little longer," Taylor said.

Oil and gas industry researcher and advisor Colin Fenton told the Permian Basin Petroleum Association at its annual meeting Thursday that the industry has already begun the healing process from low oil prices. The final step is the most painful, and that is layoffs, he said.

Unfortunately, "there will be a lot of good people whose jobs won't be here a year from now," he said.

Statewide, the unemployment rate rose to 4.2 percent from 4.1 percent in August. The workforce commission said 224,800 jobs have been added over the last 12 months.

While Amarillo had the state's lowest unemployment rate, the highest was in McAllen-Edinburg-Mission at 7.4 percent.

said. Most of the damage is from smoke, he said.

Lawler had a chance to glance into his apartment from outside.

"It's pretty destroyed," he said. "There's a lot of drywall, and they had to knock right through it ..."

The fire may have been started by a fan in the bathroom, but the cause had not been confirmed as of Friday afternoon, said Midland Fire Department Battalion Chief Ken Whiting.

The American Red Cross was notified to provide assistance to those whose apartments were impacted.

Foul play is not suspected, Buck said.

Odessa man arrested for allegedly assaulting woman

From staff reports

An Odessa man was arrested Thursday on a family violence charge after allegedly grabbing a woman by the throat, according to court documents.

Solansky

John Matthew Solansky, 30, was charged with a third-degree felony for continuous violence against the family. He was being held Friday without bond.

Solansky grabbed the woman by the throat and shoved her against a freezer on Sept. 22, according to his arrest affidavit. He also allegedly slapped a phone from the woman's mother's hand before leaving the residence in the 3200 block of West Kansas Avenue.

Solansky choked the woman on July 4, and was arrested on a family violence charge for that incident, according to the affidavit.

If found guilty of a third-degree felony, Solansky could face up to 10 years in prison.

SAN ANTONIO

Injunction to get birth certificates for US-born kids denied

A federal judge in Austin has chosen not to intervene on the behalf of immigrant families who were denied birth certificates for their U.S.-born children because Texas health officials wouldn't recognize certain forms of identification as valid.

U.S. District Judge Robert Pitman denied an emergency injunction Friday sought by the families who say immediate harm is being done to them and their children. The judge said the lawyers for the families have raised "grave" concerns but additional evidence is needed.

The case will continue.

Dozens of families and children sued the Texas Department of State Health Services after local authorities refused various foreign identifications. The parents, from Mexico and Central America, are not U.S. citizens. The Constitution guarantees the right of citizenship to their children because they were U.S.-born.

Disguised customer at Texas store gets 75 years for robbery

A North Texas man must serve 75 years in prison for robbing a cellphone store where a clerk recognized him as a frequent customer.

David Fife of Plano was convicted of aggravated robbery in the 2014 holdup of a Metro PCS store. Prosecutors on Friday announced the penalty for the 56-year-old Fife, who had four prior aggravated robbery convictions.

Investigators say Fife last November wore a disguise as he flashed a gun, stole $317 and took five memory cards from the store in Plano. He wore a towel on his face and head, a hat and sunglasses.

A clerk called 911 to report the robbery and say she recognized the robber's voice. Further evidence led to Fife, whose home was searched and one of the distinctive memory cards was recovered.

Texas A&M-Corpus Christi drones in oil industry project

Texas A&M-Corpus Christi has received a nearly $540,000 grant to develop drones that can detect emissions from oil and gas pipelines and plants.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times reported Thursday that the three-year grant is from the National Science Foundation Major Research Instrumentation Program.

Researchers plan to build and program drones, with special sensors, to fly over areas such as oil wells. The drones could be used to measure the atmosphere's chemical components and optical and infrared imagery.

Big 3 airlines flexing their political muscle in Washington

By Joan Lowy
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — U.S. airlines have ramped up an aggressive lobbying campaign that seeks nothing less than converting the government from industry regulator to business ally.

The big three legacy carriers — Delta, American and United — want the Obama administration to protect them from competition from foreign airlines, arguing those rivals can undercut ticket prices thanks to government subsidies or cheaper labor.

At the same time, the U.S. airlines want Congress to roll back or forestall rules aimed at protecting consumers. One is a requirement that airlines show ticket buyers the full cost of fares, including taxes and fees, instead of burying the information in fine print.

The lobbying has already been effective.

At the urging of the big three and the Air Line Pilots Association, 262 House members and 22 senators wrote the administration asking for a freeze in the number of flights to the U.S. now allowed for three Persian Gulf airlines — Emirates, Etihad and Qatar — and discussions with the United Arab Emirates and Qatar about whether those airlines are violating aviation treaties with the U.S.

Such "open skies" agreements, a hallmark of U.S. policy for two decades, permit U.S. airlines broad access to aviation markets in more than 100 countries in exchange for similar access to the U.S. for those countries' airlines.

The U.S. airlines and their unions say the Gulf carriers have received $40 billion in subsidies from their governments since 2004, in violation of the treaties, and those subsidies have allowed them to charge lower fares and gain market share.

Consumer advocates say the U.S. carriers have carved up about 80 percent of the lucrative trans-Atlantic market through joint ventures and alliances with overseas airlines, and now are trying to ward off competitors offering a cheaper alternative.

In January, the top executives of American, Delta and United pressed their case in private meetings with the secretaries of Transportation and Commerce, as well as White House and State Department officials. The heads of American and Delta followed up with a meeting with Secretary of State John Kerry on Sept. 17.

Airlines for America (A4A) President and CEO Nick Calio moderates a panel during the group's Commercial Aviation Industry Summit in Washington on Sept. 28. U.S. airlines have ramped up an aggressive lobbying campaign that seeks nothing less than converting the government from a regulator of their industry into a business ally. With an army of lobbyists and carefully cultivated connections, they're already having an impact on curbing foreign competition, limiting consumer-friendly ticketing rules and increasing their control of airports.

On another front, Delta Air Lines, which carried more passengers last year than any airline in the world, has been campaigning to block the U.S. Export-Import Bank from helping foreign competitors such as Air India and the Gulf carriers finance the purchase of planes from Boeing. Delta says the planes are used to compete on routes Delta also flies. Boeing is the nation's largest exporter in dollar terms.

Tea party conservatives in the House have branded the bank an example of "corporate welfare" and have prevented Congress from renewing the bank's lending authority, which lapsed on July 1.

It's part of a struggle by airlines to maintain control of international markets for their joint ventures and alliances "in the fastest-growing regions of the world" such as the Middle East and southern Asia, said Charlie Leocha, president of the consumer group Travelers United.

Delta says it isn't trying to gain "government protection from competition, but to ensure our national policies foster fair competition."

U.S. airlines are not united on these issues. Delta is alone in its opposition to the bank. JetBlue and others oppose the big three's position on the Gulf carriers. JetBlue transports passengers arriving in the U.S. on those carriers to other cities.

What does unite the airlines and their trade association, Airlines for America, is opposition to consumer protection rules issued or proposed by the Transportation Department. Several airlines took their case to the Supreme Court to block a regulation that requires airlines to display ticket prices that include taxes and fees. After they lost, they persuaded the House to twice pass a bill to roll back the rule.

The Senate has shown no interest in taking up the legislation, but Nick Calio, president of the trade association, said the issue is not dead and the airline industry will prevail, eventually.

"Some of the members of Congress are fond of telling me, 'You can't get everything you want,'" he said in an interview. "I just don't take that attitude. We can, and we know that, so we're making progress."

Airlines also oppose a proposed requirement that ticket sellers inform consumers of the cost of a first and second checked bag, an advance seat assignment and a carry-on bag on the first computer search screen where airfares are displayed, rather than waiting until a buyer has selected a fare and is checking out. That way, the department reasons, consumers will know the full cost of the trip from the beginning and won't be surprised later by fees, which can vary widely.

In general, airlines say it's in their interest to keep their passengers happy, so these sorts of consumer protections are unnecessary.

The state of government regulation of airlines is "dismal," Calio, the top White House lobbyist under Presidents George H. W. Bush and George W. Bush, said in a speech to the International Aviation Club last year. "We are still operating in an environment where the DOT thinks it needs to protect customers from airlines," referring to the federal Transportation Department.

The airlines are the political muscle behind a movement in Congress to take responsibility for air traffic control away from government and give it to a nonprofit corporation. The hope is that shift would avoid congressional budget fights hampering modernization of the air traffic system. Private aircraft owners, however, worry the change would shift costs to them and force them from busy airports to make more room for airlines.

At the same time, airlines are under pressure from the Obama administration. The Justice Department is investigating whether Delta, United, American and Southwest have colluded to limit available seats and keep fares high. United's chairman and CEO, Jeff Smisek, stepped down on Sept. 8 amid an investigation into the airline's dealings with the agency that operates New York-area airports. The Transportation Department is investigating whether airlines engaged in price gouging in the Northeast after a deadly Amtrak crash in Philadelphia in May left passengers scrambling for travel alternatives.

Delta tops 3Q profit forecasts

Cheaper fuel helped Delta Air Lines Inc. shrug off a slight decline in revenue and post sharply higher third-quarter net income of $1.32 billion.

The profit announced Wednesday was slightly better than Wall Street expected. Delta's shares rose more than 2 percent in afternoon trading.

The third quarter includes much of the busy summer-vacation season when airlines are most profitable. Delta predicted that it would continue to rack up healthy margins into the winter on the combination of cheaper fuel and solid demand for travel.

"We expect that strong performance to continue in the December quarter," said CEO Richard Anderson.

On a conference call with analysts, Anderson compared Delta's financial performance to industrial companies such as 3M — by notable omission, not against other airlines.

AVIATIONBRIEFS

FROM WIRE REPORTS

Airlines are among the biggest beneficiaries of the slump in oil prices that began in mid-2014. Delta burned more than 1 billion gallons in the third quarter and saved more than $1 per gallon over last year's price.

Delta's fuel spending plunged 38 percent, a savings of more than $1.1 billion.

IRAN

Plane lands safely after part of engine falls off

TEHRAN — An Iranian passenger plane safely landed Thursday after part of an engine fell off during a flight with 426 passengers and crew members aboard, state TV reported.

Faramarz Sarvi, deputy head of the private airline Mahan Air, told state TV that the pilots of the Boeing 747 decided to return to Tehran's Mehrabad Airport two minutes after takeoff when, "A piece of engine number three came off and hit the body of the plane."

Sarvi said the incident took place at 7:15 a.m. and that all regular inspections and checks on the plane had been conducted prior to departure.

He said all passengers left for their destination, the southern city of Bandar Abbas, on another aircraft.

Sarvi also was quoted by the semi-official Tasnim news agency as saying that, "a piece of turbine," fell off and that the incident is under investigation.

Iran has a history of air crashes in recent years, leading to hundreds of casualties.

In The latest one in 2014, a passenger plane crashed in a residential area near Tehran and burst into flames, killing dozens after the plane's tail struck some electrical cables.

The crashes were blamed on aging aircraft and poor maintenance. Many of the aircraft used in Iran date back to before the country's 1979 Islamic Revolution, which disrupted ties with the U.S. and Europe.

International and specifically U.S. sanctions have prohibited the sale of Western planes and some spare parts to Iran, making it impossible for the country to buy new planes and difficult to keep its aging Boeing and Airbus fleet safely flying.

After a landmark nuclear deal reached Iran and world powers in July, Iran's President Hassan Rouhani said his country may soon be able to buy badly needed new planes to replace its aging fleet.

Iranian officials said the country was prepared to spend about $20 billion to purchase about 400 new planes over the next decade.

In Texas, GOP lawmaker hears calls for 'fighter' for speaker

By Juan A. Lozano and Erica Werner
Associated Press

WHARTON — As he travels his southeast Texas district this week, Republican Rep. Blake Farenthold has a message for his constituents: Despite appearances, the House GOP is not in disarray.

His voters, in turn, have a message for him: Good riddance to the current slate of GOP leaders, and find a new speaker who will stand up for conservative values.

Such exchanges in more than a dozen town hall meetings Farenthold has held this week, including Thursday at a coffee house in Wharton and a VFW hall in Bay City, underscore the pressures — and opportunities — surrounding the House Republican leadership crisis for rank-and-file conservatives like Farenthold.

Elected in 2010 along with dozens of other tea party-backed Republicans, Farenthold shares his constituents' deep frustration with what many voters see as the half-measures and conditional victories of divided government. He agrees when voters accuse outgoing House Speaker John Boehner and his No. 2, Majority Leader Kevin McCarthy, of failing to stand up to President Barack Obama and the Democrats.

But as Farenthold and his colleagues warily confront a leadership void now that Boehner has announced his resignation and McCarthy has bowed out of the speaker's race, the Texan also is reckoning with demands from voters that may be difficult, even impossible, to satisfy.

Voters see a chance to restore conservative leadership to the House and finally take the fight to Obama. Yet, even though it's not yet clear who will replace Boehner, the budgetary deadlines looming in coming weeks raise the possibility that the next speaker could be forced into the same compromises and retreats as the current one in showdowns over must-pass legislation to keep highway projects going or to fund the government. Such an outcome could bitterly disappoint voters and cause yet more uproar in the unsettled House.

"You turn on the TV and you hear all these guys — 'Republican Party in disarray. Turmoil in Washington.' — I don't think that's the case," Farenthold told around 50 voters who turned out early Thursday at a quirky coffee house and used bookstore in Wharton, southwest of Houston. "I think Kevin (McCarthy) did the country and the Republican conference in Congress a huge favor. He stepped back and gave us time to have a discussion."

People in attendance asked Farenthold why Republicans didn't shut down the government to get what they want. Boehner "came out and said, 'I'm not going to shut the government no matter what.' That makes him a really crappy negotiator," Farenthold replied. "We need somebody who is a better negotiator."

In fact, House Republicans did force a 16-day partial government shutdown two years ago in an attempt to upend Obama's health care law. It didn't work, but that hasn't dampened the appetite for confrontation among some in the GOP, including the hardline House Freedom Caucus that pushed Boehner out.

Farenthold is not a Freedom Caucus member but shares its perspective on some issues. Voters want a speaker "who doesn't cave. They saw Boehner as giving into the Democrats and not fighting for conservative principles. They want a fighter," Farenthold said in an interview after his session at Milam Street Coffee Shop.

One man in attendance, 63-year-old Mike Harbaugh of Wharton, a Navy veteran, urged working together without retreating from GOP values.

"There's a way that Reagan did it. You compromise without compromising your principles," Harbaugh said, referring to former President Ronald Reagan. "Don't ask me how he did, but he did it, and it can be done."

Voters' comments also revealed a disconnect with the focus in Washington on Rep. Paul Ryan, the Republicans' 2012 vice presidential nominee who's widely seen as the best candidate for speaker. Ryan has repeatedly declined to try for the job, but he is reluctantly reconsidering under pressure from GOP leaders. Ryan currently is home in Janesville, Wisconsin, during this week's congressional recess.

The Freedom Caucus is backing another candidate, Florida Rep. Daniel Webster, and a half-dozen or more other lawmakers are weighing the job, including three Texans, Reps. Bill Flores, Michael McCaul and Michael Conaway.

Farenthold, who said he could support any of the Texans who may run for the post, said his voters are divided on Ryan, and a number have even suggested bringing in someone who is not in Congress to serve in the speaker's chair, second in line to the presidency. Such an approach is allowed by the Constitution but not widely viewed as feasible.

"I don't think anybody outside of the House politically stands a good chance, but I'm not writing anybody off," Farenthold told one Wharton voter who asked about that possibility.

"There has not been one name that has stood out," he said later. Bur Farenthood said his constituents are largely glad for a chance at new blood.

"Everybody is happy Kevin McCarthy dropped out. Nobody has said, 'Oh, doggone it. Too bad Kevin isn't in.'"

FROM WIRE REPORTS

SAN FRANCISCO

Oakland A's Billy Beane is among water district's top users

Oakland Athletics executive Billy Beane and a retired Chevron Oil executive are among the top excessive water users in a district east of San Francisco, utility records show.

A September report from the East Bay Municipal Utility District says Beane, who was the subject of the Oscar-nominated film "Moneyball," used about 6,000 gallons of water daily.

The district released the names and consumption in response to a public records request by the San Jose Mercury News and other media outlets covering the drought.

Beane released a statement through the Oakland A's.

"Three irrigation leaks were recently discovered and corrected. We were more than displeased and embarrassed by the usage," Beane said.

Retired Chevron Oil executive George Kirkland tops the list by using more than 12,000 gallons of water a day — 48 times the district average. He also pointed to previously undetected seepage.

"I didn't realize I had a leak until I got the water bill," Kirkland, who irrigates his vineyard with drip irrigation, told the newspaper. "Drip irrigation doesn't help if you have a leak you didn't know about."

Kirkland served as Chevron's vice chairman and executive vice president. He started with the company in 1974 and retired in June.

Second on the list at 8,091 gallons of water per day was Mark Pine, a longtime venture capitalist living in Alamo.

All face fines for using more than 1,000 gallons of water per day.

The majority of the excess users were in warmer, more affluent Contra Costa County communities with large yards, including Alamo, Danville, Orinda and Lafayette, the newspaper reported.

District board members said they adopted the excess water-use penalties to give high users a message to conserve, although some critics argued wealthy customers would not be deterred by the penalties.

District spokeswoman Abby Figueroa said the district mailed notices before summer to warn customers with high use that they would be penalized if they failed to stay within the 1,000-gallon daily limit.

In its first three weeks of reviewing consumption, officials found about 1,100 customers had excessive water use. The number is expected to rise as the utility completes its review over the next several weeks.

EPA: Tests show water sent to Navajo Nation met standards

New tests on water sent to Navajo Nation farmers after millions of gallons of waste spilled from a Colorado mine indicate that the emergency supply met federal and tribal standards for livestock and irrigation, federal officials say.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency released the results Tuesday, two months after farmers and Navajo officials said the water delivered by a contractor contained oil and was not suitable for use. The new results were consistent with earlier tests, the agency said.

The water was delivered in tanks after mustard-yellow wastewater laced with heavy metals spewed from the inactive Gold King Mine in southwestern Colorado on Aug. 5, polluting the Animas and San Juan rivers in Colorado, New Mexico and Utah, including on the Southern Ute Reservation and the Navajo Reservation.

It was sent for Navajo farmers who use water from the San Juan for irrigation. An EPA-led crew inadvertently triggered the 3 million-gallon spill while doing cleanup work at the mine.

Navajo Nation President Russell Begaye said Thursday that he was glad the EPA released the test results, but he again said a number of the tanks contained petroleum residue, rust and other contaminants.

"Navajo farmers and ranchers could not use the water without further assurances," he said in an email to The Associated Press. "All told, Navajo farmers were left without water for over two weeks while the (Navajo) Nation awaited preliminary test results from the tanks."

Separately, the EPA said a temporary treatment plant is ready to start cleansing metals from wastewater still draining from the mine.

The $1.8 million plant is expected to begin operating Friday, EPA spokesman Christie St. Clair said. It will run for up to 42 weeks and cost $20,000 a week to operate, the agency said.

Before the spill, wastewater was flowing from the mine at 12 to 250 gallons per minute. Afterward, the rate was about 560 gallons per minute, the EPA said. For comparison, the federal standard for residential showerheads is a maximum of 2.5 gallons per minute.

The EPA said it has been discussing possible long-term cleanup plans with Colorado and local officials. The mountains around the mine are riddled with inactive mines, many of them spilling polluted water for decades, so finding a solution is complicated, the EPA said.

Colorado Sens. Michael Bennet and Cory Gardner asked the agency three weeks ago to put a high priority on a permanent treatment plant. Bennet has not received a response, a spokesman said.

State Stock Growers challenges sage grouse plans

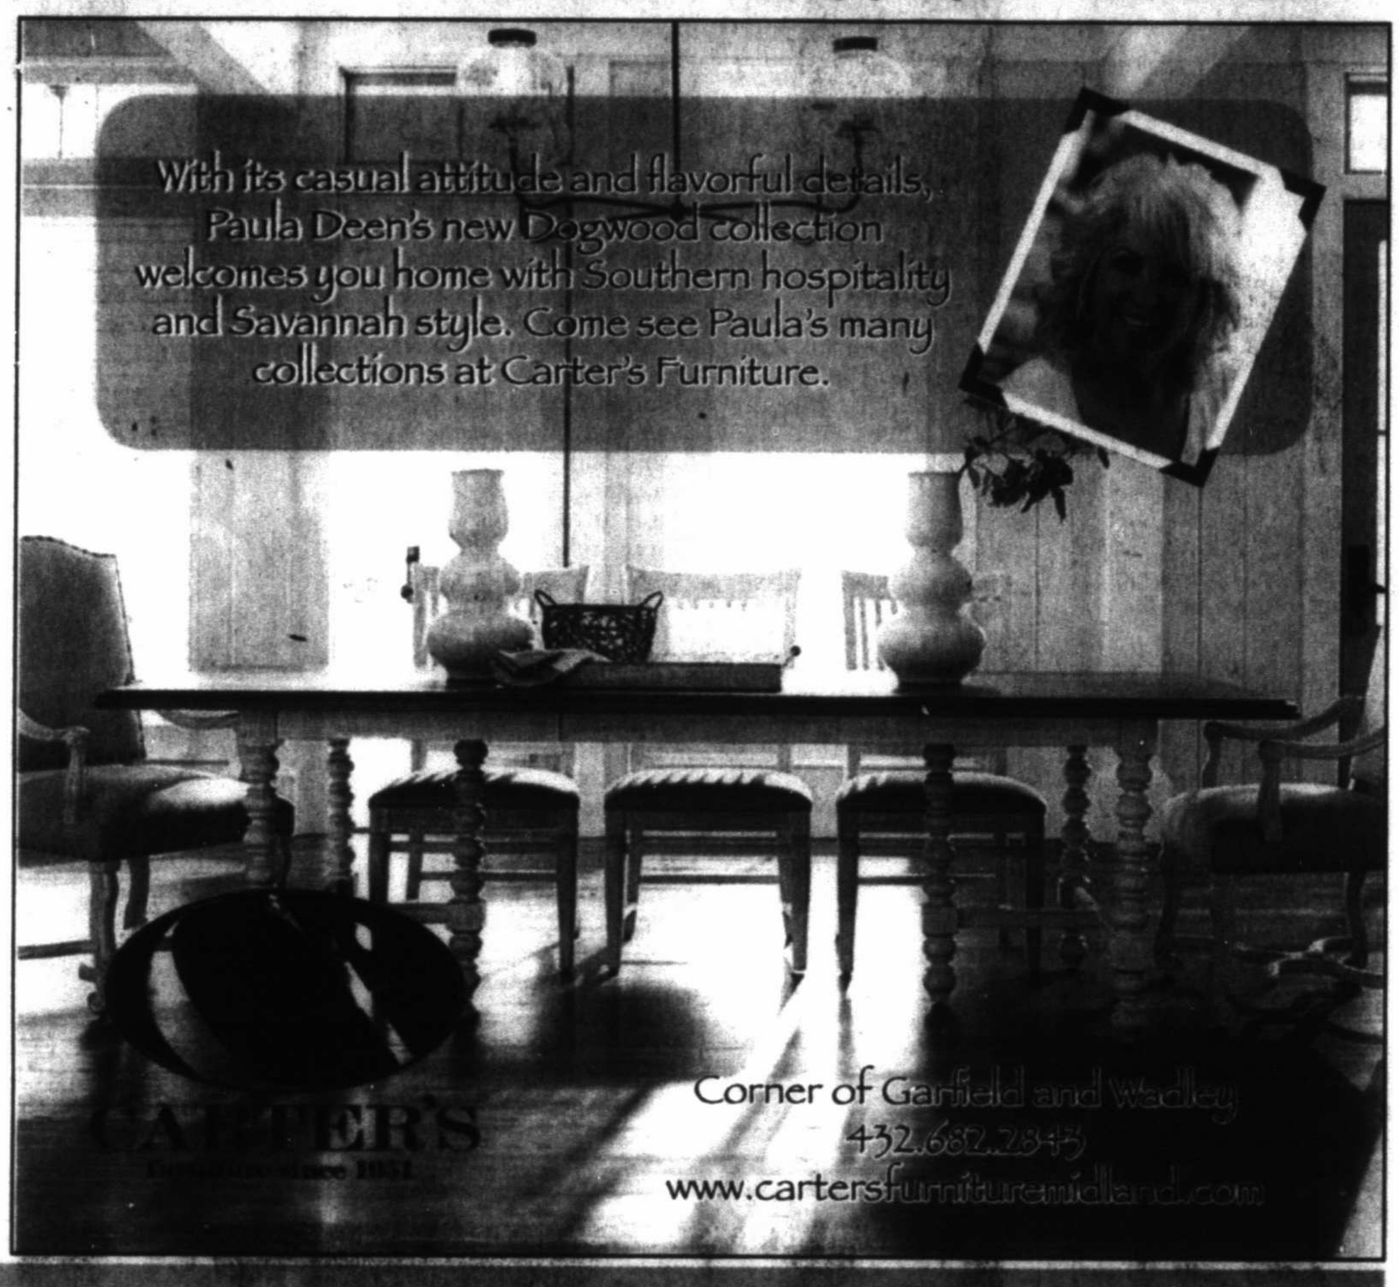

CASPER — The Wyoming Stock Growers Association has filed a legal challenge to a series of federal sage grouse plans, saying they overstep the government's authority.

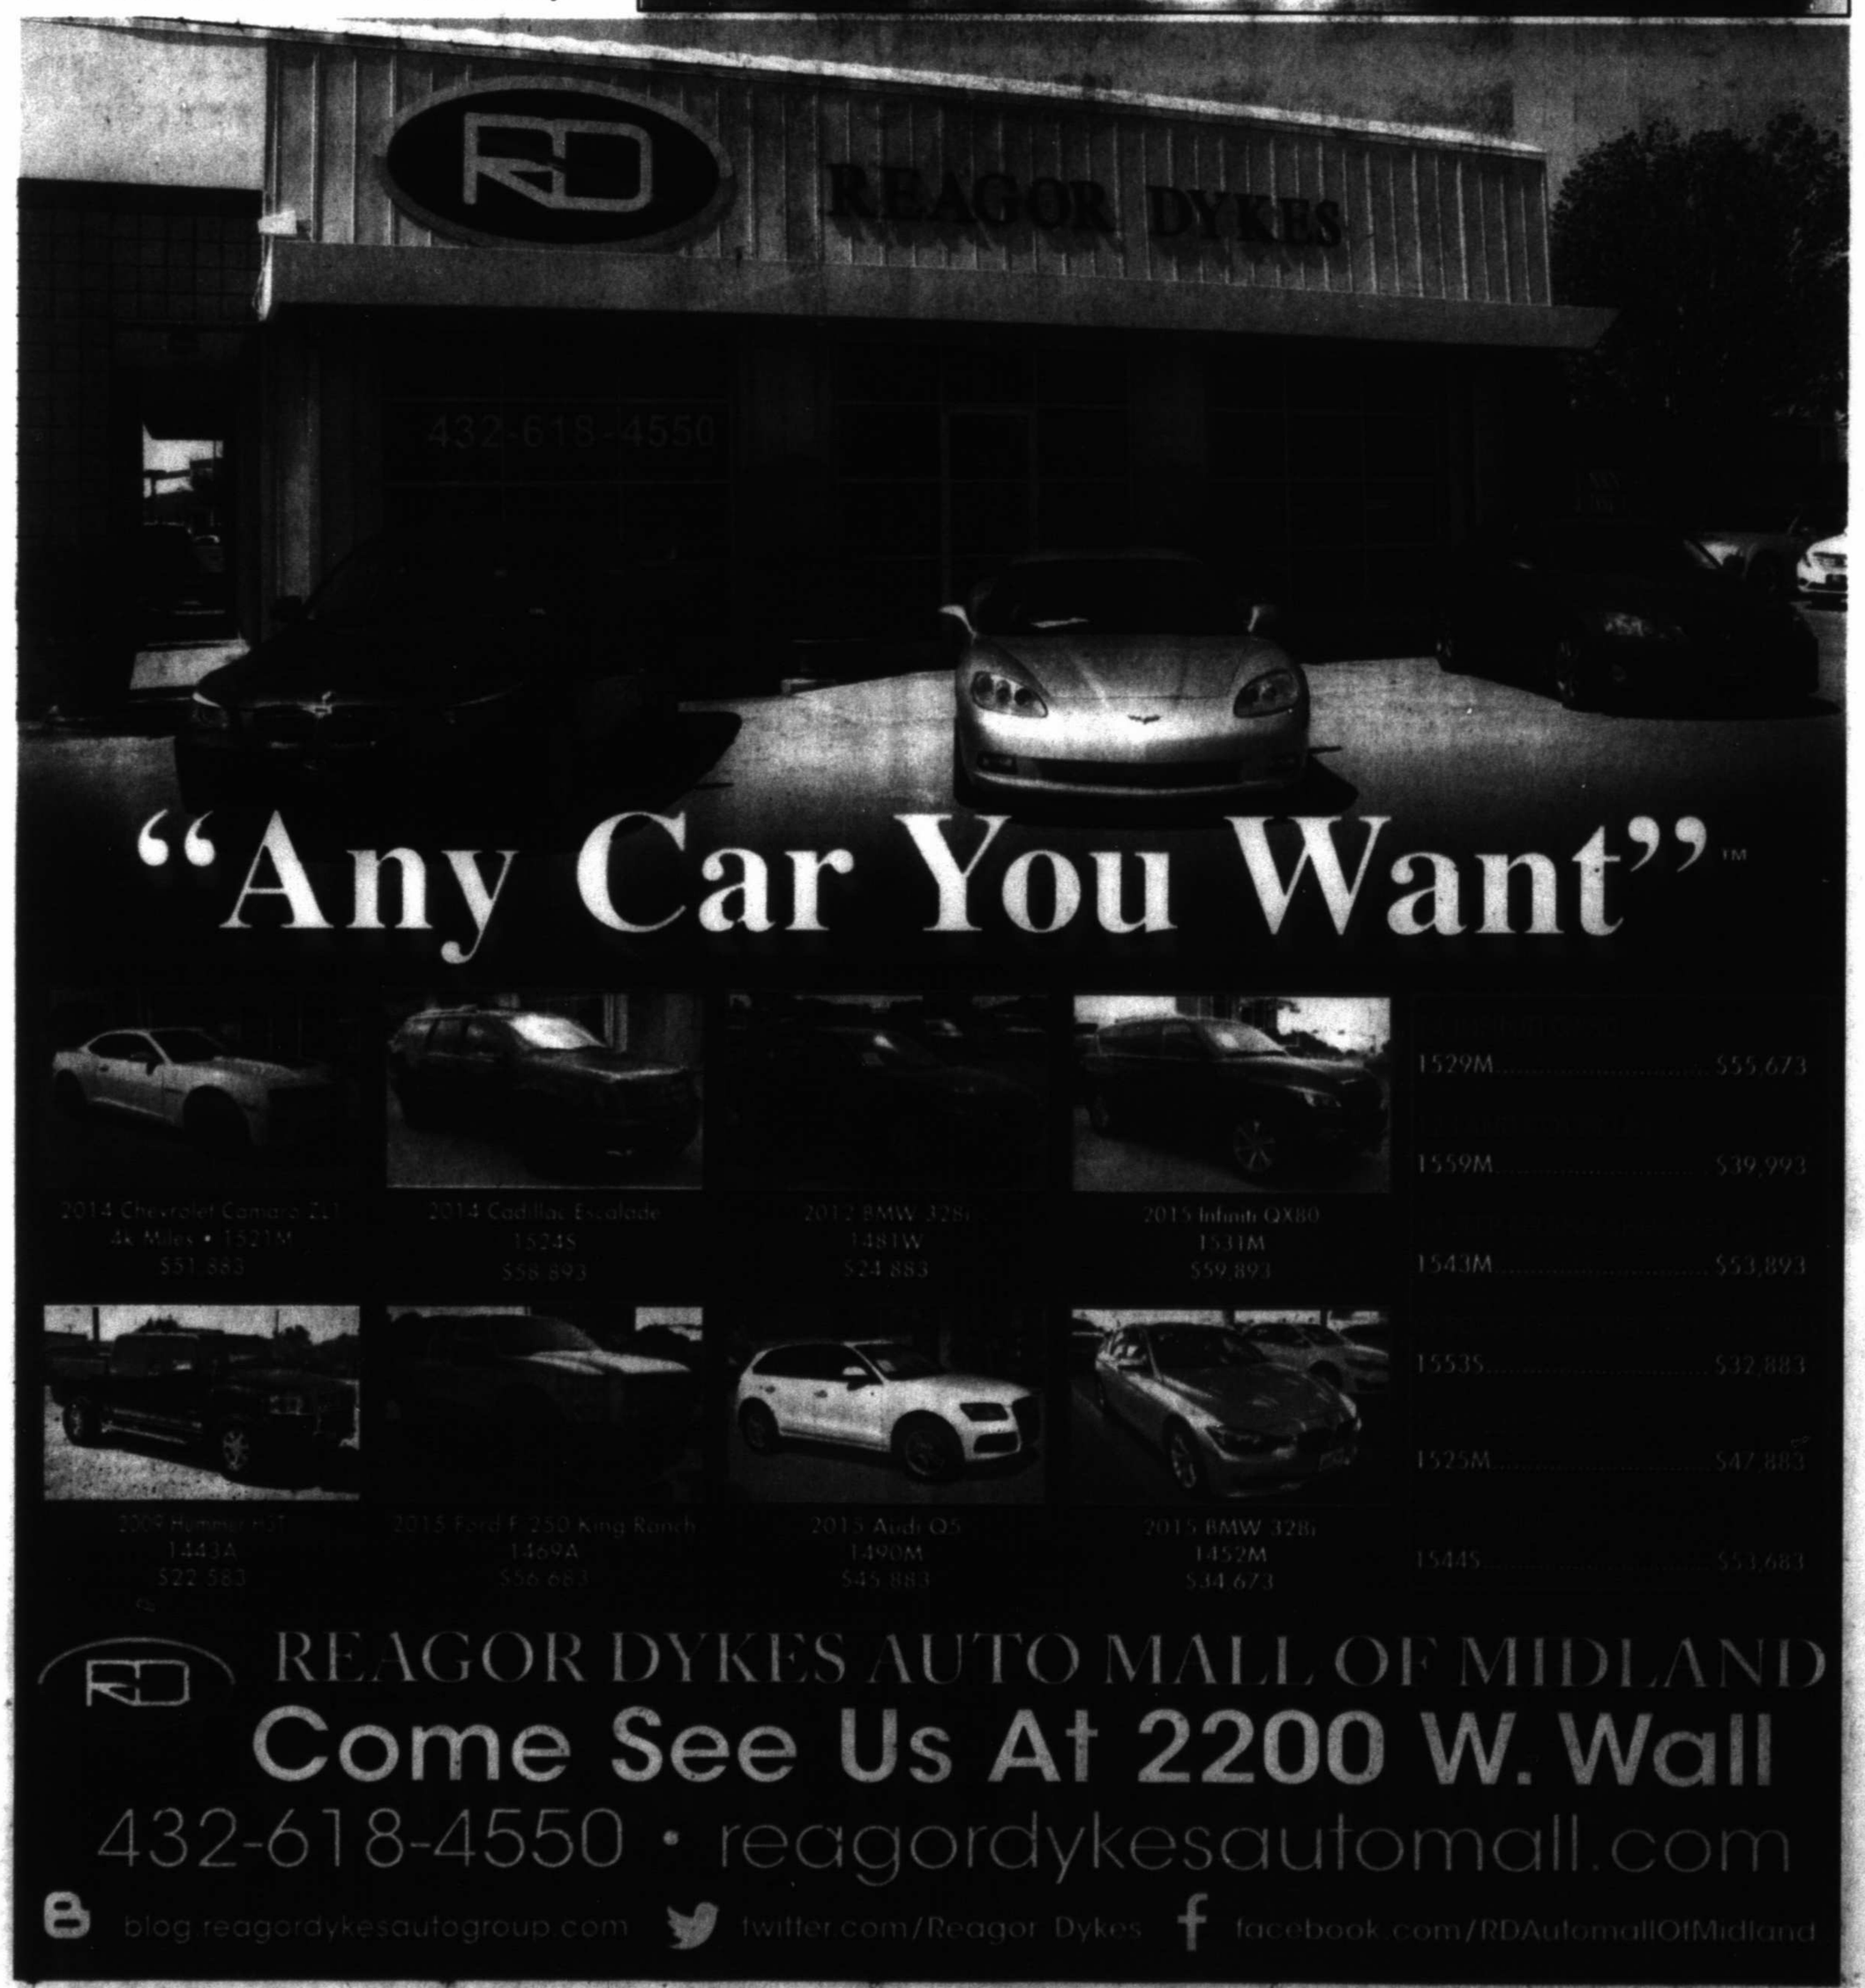

The stock growers filed a petition for review Wednesday in federal court. It is the first challenge to the federal government's strategy to conserve the bird in Wyoming.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management and U.S. Forest Service amended nine land management plans in the state to include new grouse conservation measures. The stock growers argue the new rules hamper ranchers' ability to effectively run their operations.

Officials said Gov. Matt Mead is reviewing the lawsuit. Mead has praised the federal approach to conserving the sage grouse.

A Bureau of Land Management spokeswoman declined to comment.

Facing a near must-win situation, the Lee football team rose to the occasion and bolted past District 3-6A rival Odessa High, 49-21, Friday at Grande Communications Stadium.

Senior running back Tony Jones racked up 200 total yards — 144 on the ground to go along with three touchdowns rushing. Jones led led an explosive Rebel offense, while the defensive line brought pressure all night long against the Bronchos. OHS quarterback Nick Adams was constantly under duress, as Lee tallied three sacks.

Lee head coach James Morton was impressed with the way his team bounced back on all fronts after a disastrous outing one week ago against Odessa Permian.

With the win, the Rebels improved to 3-4 overall and 1-1 in District 3-6A play. OHS dropped to 2-5 overall and 0-2 in district.

"I thought overall we executed better offensively," Morton said, "not still where we want to be, but we're making strides. I think the kids have a great taste in their mouths."

The Rebels opened the game with a bang, scoring 21 points on the backs of grinding offensive drives and a blocked punt by Dustin Hunt, which was recovered by Wynston Sutton for a score from 8 yards out.

COAHOMA — If Stanton was wondering how it was going to replace the production lost by the injury to Estevan Chavez, Alex Martinez gave the Buffaloes an answer on Friday night.

Martinez, who had filled in for Chavez last year when the star running back missed most of the 2014 season with a dislocated elbow, stepped up again as he rushed for 233 yards and four touchdowns and an also had an interception on defense to help Stanton defeat Coahoma, 46-22, in a key District 3-3A Division II game at Bulldog Stadium on Friday night.

"I've been waiting for this moment forever, actually," said Martinez, the junior running back. "Today, they needed me to step up and I stepped up to the challenge. I proved that challenges aren't hard for anybody."

SAN ANGELO — Midland High lit up the Concho Valley skies with some long passing plays on Friday night.

However, the Bulldogs offense couldn't keep up with TCU-bound quarterback Brennen Wooten and San Angelo Central's high-octane offense on the other sideline.

Yenzer

Wooten threw for 306 yards to propel the Bobcats to a 59-27 rout over Midland High in District 3-6A play at San Angelo Stadium.

The Bobcats (6-1, 1-1 in District 3-6A) totaled eight plays of 20 yards or more and amassed 510 total yards of offense. Central headed into intermission with a comfortable 38-13 lead.

"The quarterback is just what he is advertised to be, " Midland High head coach Craig Yenzer said. "He's a good player. Their offensive line got after us."

The Bulldogs (3-4, 1-1 in District 3-6A) scored the game's first touchdown when Jackson Anuszkiewicz tossed a 50-yard pass to Courtney McMaryion, lifting MHS to a 7-3 lead with 5:54 left in the first quarter. McMaryion raced past Central's cornerback and safety and Anuszkiewicz tossed a long bomb to his wide-open target on the first play of the possession just after Midland High's defense forced a punt.

The Bobcats responded with 21 unanswered points on three straight rushing touchdowns to strike back with a 24-7 advantage.

Anuszkiewicz connected again with McMaryion

Volquez sharp as Royals beat Blue Jays in ALCS opener

Royals lead series 1-0

By Dave Skretta
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Edinson Volquez gave the Blue Jays another reason to rue him Friday night.

The Royals right-hander combined with three relievers on a three-hitter, Salvador Perez hit a soaring home run off Toronto starter Marco Estrada, and Kansas City rolled to a 5-0 victory in Game 1 of their American League Championship Series.

Volquez (1-1) ramped up his fastball to 97 mph to slice through a potent Blue Jays offense, never allowing a runner past second base over six innings. His only trouble occurred when he walked the first two batters in the sixth, but he wiggled out of it without any damage.

The Royals' bullpen finished off the club's eighth consecutive ALCS victory.

Alcides Escobar and Lorenzo Cain drove in runs off Estrada (1-1), while Eric Hosmer and Kendrys Morales tacked on two more off LaTroy Hawkins to put the game away.

The Blue Jays' three hits were their fewest ever in a postseason game.

As if the outcome wasn't bad enough for them, designated hitter Edwin Encarnacion left in the eighth inning to get X-rays on the middle finger of his left hand. The initial report was a strain of the ligament and Encarnacion was listed as day-to-day.

The Royals will try to take a 2-0 series lead when they send Yordano Ventura to the mound on Saturday. Toronto will counter with former Cy Young Award winner David Price.

The teams entered the best-of-seven series with plenty of history.

To start with, the defending AL champs beat Toronto in the 1985 league championship series, then beat the St. Louis Cardinals for the Royals' only World Series triumph. But far more recently were the tense, benches-clearing game that the teams played at Rogers Centre in August.

Volquez was right in the thick of things.

The veteran starter kept pitching the Blue Jays inside, finally hitting Josh Donaldson with a fastball in the first inning. Tensions escalated as the game went on, with Toronto reliever Aaron Sanchez returning the favor by hitting Escobar to trigger a benches-clearing scuffle.

Afterward, Volquez said Donaldson was "crying like a baby" over his inside approach. And to nobody's surprise, Donaldson was booed lustily by the Kansas City crowd on Friday night.

That was the only reason for the packed house to boo, though.

After squandering a scoring chance in the first inning, the Royals jumped ahead in the third. Alex Gordon led off with a double, Escobar sent an RBI double down the right-field line, and Cain's two-out single helped Kansas City — so accustomed to playing from behind — to a 2-0 lead.

Perez added his third homer of the postseason on the first pitch he saw in the fourth, the cheering of the throaty, flag-waving crowd reaching a crescendo as it passed over the wall.

As shaky was Estrada was, Volquez was downright stoic as he circled the mound.

He did not allow a hit until his 56th pitch, when Chris Colabello chopped a single up the middle with two outs in the fourth. It snapped a postseason hitless streak of 10 2-3 innings for the Royals, one out shy of matching the record set by the New York Yankees in 1939.

The biggest of the Blue Jays' big bats made the quietest outs, too.

Jose Bautista went down looking in the fourth inning, while Encarnacion struck out looking in the sixth. Donaldson managed a walk off Volquez but little else, while Tulowitzki — one of the Blue Jays' big deadline acquisitions — went 0 for 4 with two strikeouts.

was forced into several poor throws — although he played turnover free — and the Bronchos' option read offense never really got going outside of running back Sebastian Galindo.

Galindo finished the game with 166 yards on 22 rushes, as well as five receptions for 32 yards and a touchdown.

Right before the half and immediately following a fumble recovery by Chris Pino on the Lee 1-yard line, Jones busted a memorable 99-yard touchdown right up the middle to give Lee a commanding 35-7 lead. That score proved to be a dagger in the heart of the OHS spirit.

"I think the tipping point in the game was when we had a turnover," Morton said, "and they (OHS) have a chance to score on the 1-yard line and then Tony (Jones) flips the field with the long run."

Overall, Lee ball carriers accumulated 337 yards on 40 carries for an impressive per-carry average of 8.4 yards.

Jones said he was proud of the way he and his teammates ran the ball against the Bronchos, especially in a game they really needed to win. He also believes that the Rebel running game gave itself a major spark going forward.

"It feels great man," Jones said. "I know we're about to get back on track. We're back up in this. I feel like we've been focusing more in practice and that carried onto the field today."

Jones' 9-yard touchdown run with 1:41 left to play in the game capped off the two teams' scoring for the night.

Meanwhile, Sema'J Davis put together a nice rebound game, as he passed 7-for-10 for 110 yards and no interceptions. He also picked up 73 yards and a pair of touchdowns on 11 carries.

Morton said he liked the way his signal caller showed a heightened level of maturity against the Bronchos.

"He was better mentally," Morton said. "Physically he's gifted, and I was proud of the way he was able to come back and stay a lot more with the focus. He didn't try to force as many plays. He's better about just going through his reads and believing in what we're doing."

Ashton Akbar, who had 71 yards rushing on 11 carries, also hauled in two balls for 29 yards.

on a 43-yard touchdown pass with 3:29 left in the second quarter, cutting Central's advantage to 24-13.

But, the Bobcats scored two more touchdowns in the remaining three minutes of the first half to essentially put the game away.

Midland High struggled to run the ball as it attempted 23 rushes for 45 yards.

"We had a hard time getting any running game established," Yezner said. "They teed off. They really put a lot of pressure on us anything we did offensively."

"It put too much pressure on our defense, too many three-and-outs," Yenzer added. "Our defense is out there way too long and they were able to take advantage of it."

Wooten threw three touchdown passes, all of them to 6-foot-5 target Adam West.

Wooten developed rapport too with his brother Aaron Wooten, who caught eight passes for 122 yards.

In the fourth quarter when the game was out of reach, Brady Bolger relieved Anuszkiewicz at quarterback and threw a pair of touchdown passes, including a 75-yarder to Jalen Childress.

The Bulldogs, who have had bad luck with injuries all season, lost both of their defensive tackles, Willie Echols and Devon Miller, to undisclosed injuries.

"We're a banged up football team right now," Yenzer said. "It's just a tough deal. I was proud of our kids."

STANTON

torn meniscus in his right knee and should be ready for basketball season. He added that he was proud of Martinez for stepping up and doing what the coaches asked him to do.

"He got behind his linemen, was patient, and I was super proud of him for doing that," Peterson said. "Our linemen did a good job up front for him and he was able to spring it from there."

It didn't take long for the Buffaloes (3-3, 1-1) to jump on the Bulldogs (3-4, 0-2) as Tristan Graves found Austin Luna for a 49-yard touchdown pass just two plays into the game.

Coahoma didn't get an opportunity to answer as it misplayed a short kick by the Buffaloes to give Stanton advantageous field position at the CHS 40. Two plays later, Stanton struck again as Martinez broke loose for a 40-yard touchdown run to give the Buffs a 14-0 lead.

The most electrifying play of the game happened on Stanton's next possession when Martinez evaded tackles at the line of scrimmage, evaded more tackles at midfield and then sidestepped one last attempt at a tackle for a 79-yard TD run to give Stanton a dominating 21-0 lead midway through the first quarter.

"I bounced it outside and I could see my entire line blocking, and then I just hit my holes," said Martinez about his big run.

Stanton took a 27-0 lead into the half.

Coahoma coach Fred Dietz said the slow start by his team was too much to overcome.

"We've done that lately," he said. "I don't know what the problem is but we've got to get that fixed. We didn't run to the football like we're capable of early in a game. To play good defense, it takes all 11 guys on every single snap running to the football and we didn't do that early.

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Coahoma's Kody Barber looks to pass to Paul Cortez Friday against Stanton at Bulldog Stadium in Coahoma.

"Offensively, we were fine but we killed ourselves with turnovers and penalties."

Dietz said he challenged his team at the half to fight, and the Bulldogs responded with all 22 points of their points coming in the second half.

"We're a very good football team that's shown glimpses, we just have to do it for four quarters," Dietz said.

Barber carried a big load for the Bulldogs with star running back Kyler Graves sitting out with an injury, as he had 219 yards passing, 62 yards rushing and three total touchdowns.

Adrian Rodriguez added 117 yards rushing and a TD for the Buffaloes.

Cowboys still seeking answers in backfield without Murray

By Schulyer Dixon
Associated Press

IRVING — With Dallas trying to survive until Tony Romo and Dez Bryant return from injuries, it's difficult to gauge how much the Cowboys miss DeMarco Murray with the NFL rushing champion now in Philadelphia.

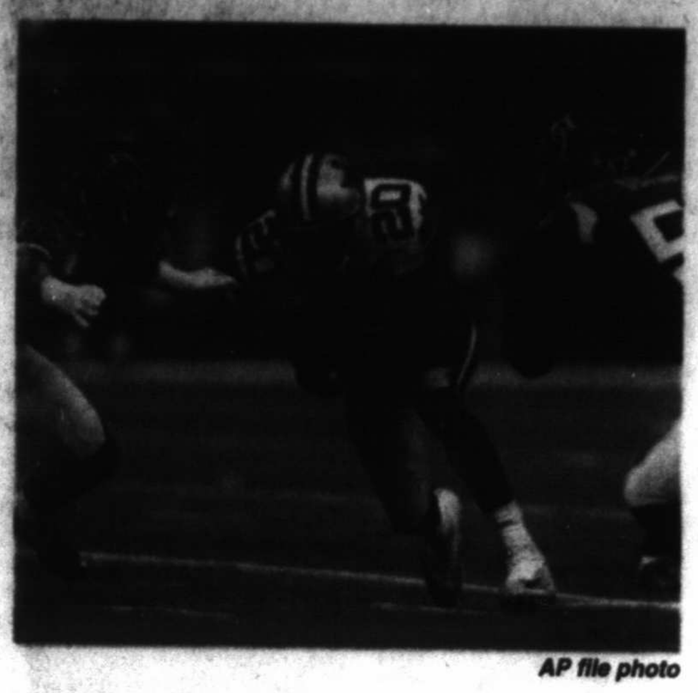

Then again, maybe they could have leaned on their workhorse running back from a year ago a little more to try to stay in contention. Not that they can concern themselves with a potentially painful "what if" should the season end without a repeat of an NFC East title or a trip to the playoffs.

"I really don't go down that road," offensive coordinator Scott Linehan said. "We're on a quest to find what our next answer's going to be from a consistent standpoint in the running game or as a football team. We've had some temporary setbacks with some guys that we kind of rely on, our quarterback, our receiver. We've got some new running backs. We're a work in progress."

Joseph Randle fleetingly looked like the answer in a dominant first quarter against Atlanta in Week 3, but faded along with the rest of the Cowboys in a 39-28 loss in the first game after Romo broke his left collarbone.

A week later, Lance Dunbar had a strong first half against New Orleans before tearing the ACL in his left knee while returning the second-half kickoff in a 26-20 loss in overtime.

Darren McFadden, the free agent signed a day after Murray bolted for the Eagles in March, hasn't had a chance to show what he can do. Neither has Christine Michael, who came in a trade with Seattle the week the season started.

On Sept. 27, Dallas Cowboys running back Darren McFadden (20) protects the ball as he attempts to get past Atlanta Falcons' cornerback Desmond Trufant (21) and linebacker Justin Durant (52) in the first half of a game in Arlington. McFadden, the free agent signed a day after DeMarco Murray bolted for the Eagles in March, really hasn't had a chance to show what he can do.

There are indications both will get more chances when the Cowboys (2-3), winless in three straight without Romo and Bryant, return from their bye Oct. 25 at the Giants.

Those were the things Murray did well in breaking NFL career rushing leader Emmitt Smith's franchise record with 1,845 yards last season, when Dallas went 12-4 and won a playoff game for the first time since 2009. Murray set an NFL record by rushing for at least 100 yards in the first eight games. Now, the Cowboys are on their longest season-opening stretch without a 100-yard rusher since 2005.

Part of Dallas' reasoning for letting Murray go was that a young offensive line anchored by three first-round picks since 2011 could clear the way for anybody. But even the blocking doesn't look as good, with the Cowboys averaging 41 fewer yards rushing per game, and half a yard less per carry.

Dallas is 19th in the NFL in rushing after finishing second last season.

"By the end of last year, we were focusing on other things," center Travis Frederick said. "And now we're back and we're trying to re-hone everything back into where we were. It's kind of just been a shift. I don't know what to attribute it to. But I don't think it's any particular thing. I think it's just collective."

And now the Cowboys are dealing with a change at quarterback, too.

Matt Cassel will start against the Giants because the offense was ineffective for long stretches with Brandon Weeden, who didn't make many plays downfield with defenses crowding the line of scrimmage to stop the run.

Cassel's Dallas debut might include Bryant, out since the opener with a broken right foot. The star receiver did conditioning work in practice this week.

Even before Romo and Bryant were sidelined, the Cowboys' run game wasn't close to matching the production with Murray.

Randle and McFadden are both averaging about 3.5 yards per carry, not including Randle's 85 yards from the first three carries against the Falcons. He had 2 yards on 11 runs the rest of the game.

And without Dunbar's burst of production from the first half against the Saints, Dallas is well short of 4 yards per carry after averaging 4.6 with Murray a year ago.

Officials order fantasy sports sites to shut down in Nevada

By Kimberly Pierceall
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Daily fantasy sports sites have been dealt a setback with Nevada regulators ordering them out of the state unless they get a gambling license — a decision that's likely to be closely watched by other states that allow gambling.

DraftKings and FanDuel — sites that have insisted they aren't gambling and have promised to make millionaires out of sports fans — both pulled out of Nevada by Thursday evening.

That day's decision from the Nevada Gaming Control Board allows for daily fantasy sports in the state as long as the operator has or gets a gambling license. No one operating a daily fantasy site has one.

"If you're licensed in Nevada, you're good to go," said A.G. Burnett, chief of the state's Gaming Control Board. That includes traditional sports books where gamblers generally wager on the outcome of a given game.

The decision comes amid growing backlash by regulators and investigators, including New York's attorney general, after it was revealed employees often played on competing sites, raising questions about possible insider information being used to win.

Nevada regulators govern the country's main gambling hub in Las Vegas, and their actions could hold sway with regulators elsewhere.

In less than two weeks, the two high-profile companies in the ever-growing industry had gone from being a seemingly unstoppable, untouchable force to facing intense scrutiny of their business practices and legality from investigators, lawmakers, regulators and even their own players.

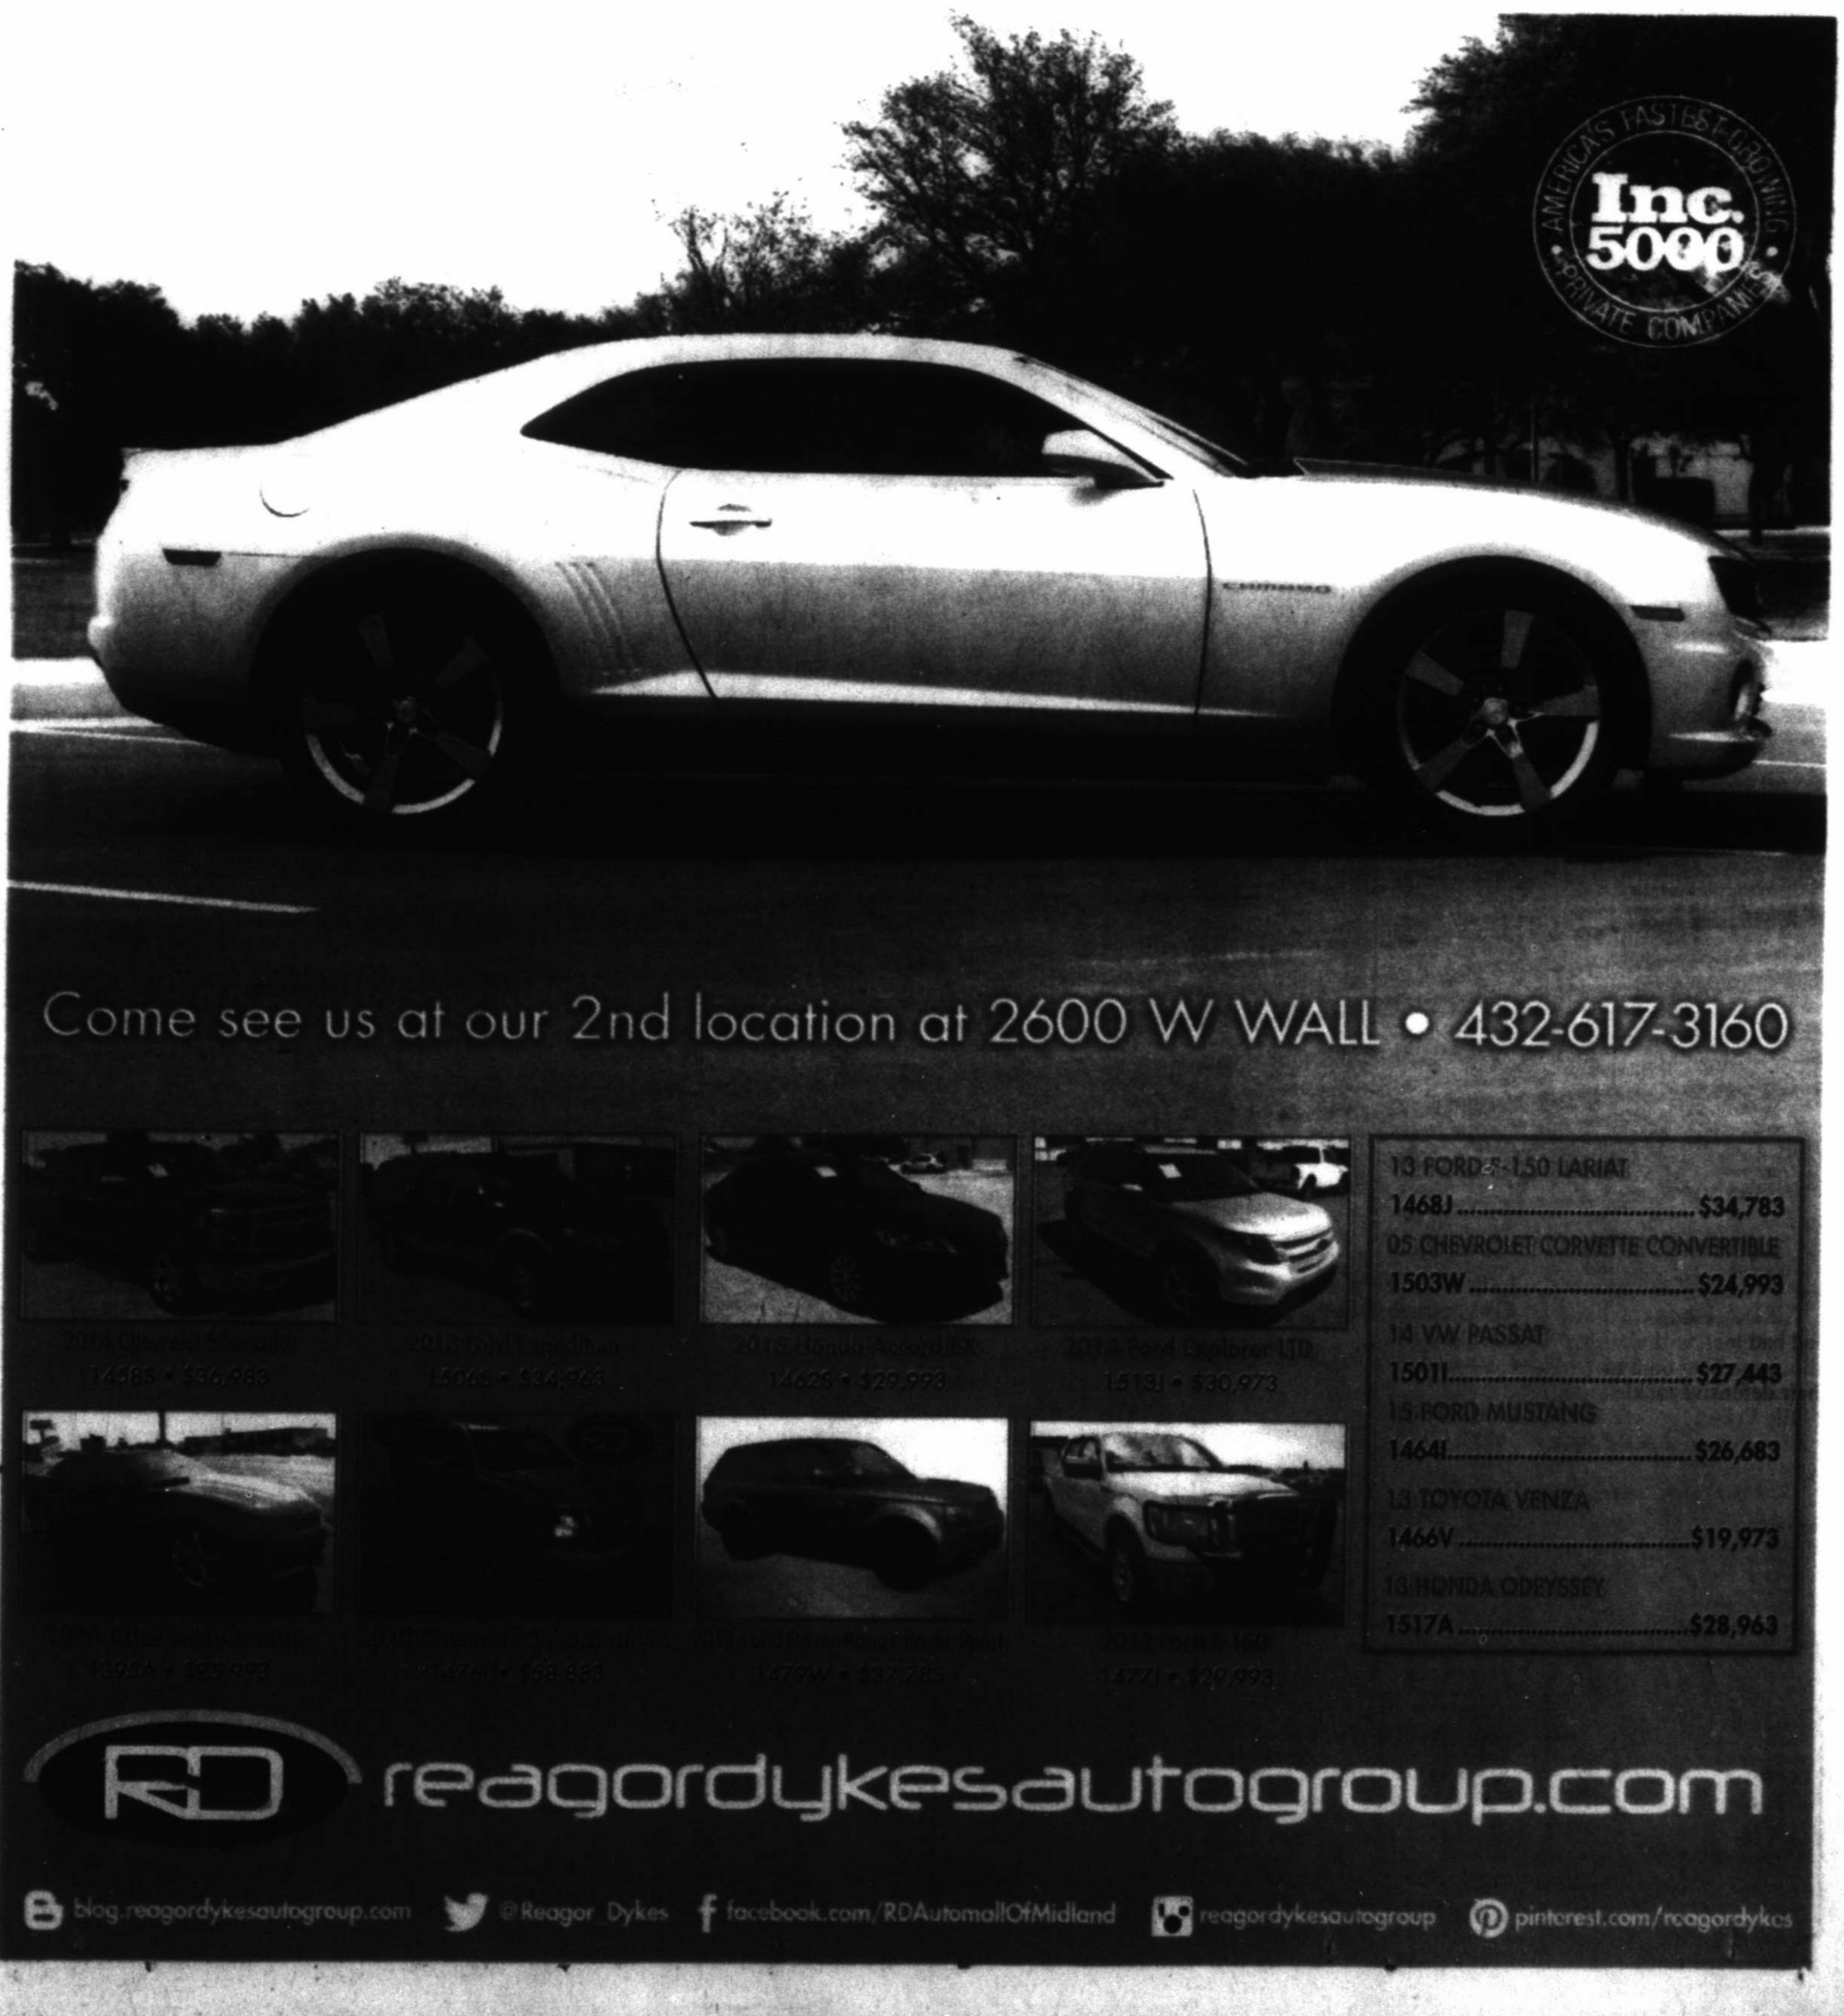

Thursday night, DraftKings spokeswoman Sabrina Macias emailed a company statement that implied Nevada regulators acted to protect the gambling industry in the state.

"We understand that the gaming industry is important to Nevada and, for that reason, they are taking this exclusionary approach against the increasingly popular fantasy sports industry," the statement said. It mentions the company had thousands of customers in Nevada but didn't provide an exact amount.

FanDuel said it was disappointed regulators decided that only existing casinos in Nevada could offer fantasy sports.

"This decision stymies innovation and ignores the fact that fantasy sports is a skill-based entertainment product loved and played by millions of sports fans," the statement said. "We are examining all options and will exhaust all efforts to bring the fun, challenge and excitement of fantasy sports back to our Nevada fans."

Participants on the unregulated sites can compete in games involving professional or college sports, paying an entry fee that goes into a larger pool. They try to assemble teams that earn the most points based on real-life stats in a given period with a certain percentage of top finishers earning a payout.

Edwards heads to Kansas hoping for Chase win at home track

KANSAS CITY — Carl Edwards threw out the first pitch for the Kansas City Royals last season, and remembers walking back to the dugout afterward when one of the players pulled him aside.

"It was so nerve-racking," Edwards recalled. "One of the pitchers looked at me and said, 'It's awfully lonely up there, isn't it?' And I said, 'Yes, sir!'"

Probably as nerve-racking as the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship.

Edwards was part of a four-car stable from Joe Gibbs Racing that qualified for NASCAR's version of the postseason. But after lousy runs last weekend at Charlotte put Matt Kenseth and Kyle Busch in trouble, the pressure is on Edwards and Denny Hamlin to carry the flag.

Edwards still believes in the power of the Gibbs cars, which collectively won 13 times this season, more than any other team. But with only Sunday's race at Kansas Speedway and next week's race at Talladega before the Chase trims four more drivers for the three-race "eliminator" round, the tension in the garage area Friday morning was palpable.

Associated Press

NASCAR Sprint Cup Series auto racing driver Matt Kenseth takes a practice lap on Friday at Kansas Speedway in Kansas City, Kan.

"So much can happen at this race and obviously the next race, this whole thing can get turned around," Edwards said. "This format, by design, it's almost impossible to predict."

One thing that is clear: Winning means an automatic ticket to the next round.

Joey Logano took care of that at Charlotte, dominating at a track similar to Kansas to take the pressure off him this week and next. And make no mistake, there is no other track where Edwards would love to follow suit than Kansas Speedway.

The native of Columbia, Missouri, considers the tri-oval his home speedway, and it has been kind to him in the past, with six top-five finishes and a second-place run in 2008.

But he's also never won at the track. The year he finished second, he tried an audacious dive move to try to get around Jimmie Johnson at the end. He wound up slapping the wall while Johnson drove to victory, and said later the move had worked for him in video games.

"I can't think of any possession I wouldn't trade" for a win at Kansas, Edwards said, before pointing out that "I have a really nice airplane."

Even his Citation jet, which carries a price tag well into the millions.

"For a win here, right now, I can't think of anything I wouldn't trade," Edwards said without a hint of sarcasm. "There's no amount of money that we wouldn't give."

Edwards has proven he can reach victory lane in his first season with Gibbs, winning two of NASCAR's premier races in the Coca-Cola 600 at Charlotte and the Southern 500 at Darlington. But those wins merely ensured he would be around for the playoffs.

Now, he needs a win — or enough points — to advance. He's currently sixth in the standings, a fairly safe spot. But the elimination of perennial favorite Johnson in the last round once more proved that relying on points is a risky proposition.

"It's a very different format," Kenseth said. "You look at Jimmie, the problem he had, and he's out. If it's a 10-race deal, maybe he's not out. ... Two races, I mean, if it happened to us in one race, it can happen to anybody in this race or the next race."

Kenseth is referring to his poor run at Charlotte, when he slapped the wall a couple times and finished so far off the lead that he is last in points among Chase contenders.

So far, Edwards has been able to avoid any such problems. He was second in the Chase opener at Chicago, fifth at New Hampshire, 15th at Dover and sixth at Charlotte, showing off the kind of consistency that can be so elusive in a volatile playoff format.

Keselowski wins pole for Sprint Cup race

KANSAS CITY — Brad Keselowski has won the pole for Sunday's Sprint Cup race at Kansas Speedway, turning a lap at 195.503 mph to beat out 10 other Chase drivers in the final round of qualifying.

Carl Edwards was second-fastest at 195.454 mph, followed by Kyle Busch, Kevin Harvick, Denny Hamlin, Jeff Gordon and Martin Truex Jr.

All are still in the championship race.

Ryan Blaney qualified eighth, followed by Chase drivers Kurt Busch, Ryan Newman and Matt Kenseth.

Greg Biffle rounded out the top 12, while Chase drivers Joey Logano — who won a week ago — and Dale Earnhardt Jr. failed to advance to the final round of qualifying.

No. 9 A&M hosts No. 10 Alabama looking to open season 6-0 for first time since 1994

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M quarterback Kyle Allen remembers exactly how he felt after year's 59-0 drubbing by Alabama.

"It was a feeling of embarrassment to be on a national TV stage and be beaten like that," he said. "It felt like we were a high school team playing a college team, honestly, and it's not a feeling we ever want to feel again."

No. 9 Texas A&M gets a chance to avenge that blowout today when it hosts No. 10 Alabama. The Aggies will be trying to open a season 6-0 for the first time since 1994 and keep pace with LSU in the SEC West. A loss by Alabama would badly damage its Southeastern Conference title and playoff hopes since they lost to Mississippi on Sept. 19.

While the Aggies (5-0, 2-0 SEC) are thinking about last year's game to help insure that something like that doesn't happen again, the Crimson Tide (5-1, 2-1) is trying to ignore all the talk about it as the team gets ready for another meeting with Texas A&M.

"It's just like last week's game against Georgia, we have to block that out to focus for Arkansas," running back Kenyan Drake said. "Every game is a season within itself. Obviously we're not going to focus on last year. That was a whole different year, a whole different team for both sides, so we're just going to focus on this year."

A 19-year-old sophomore, Allen already has a lot of experience and is 8-2 in 10 career starts. He's been extremely accurate this season and has thrown 79 straight passes without an interception.

"They've really worked hard to try to create balance on their offense this year, in terms of being able to run the ball a little bit better," Alabama coach Nick Saban said. "But they're still one of the most prolific passing teams in the country. Kyle Allen has done a really good job at quarterback for them. His passing

Turnovers could compensate for Texas Tech's defensive flaws

oleroy@mrt.com

Texas Tech defensive coordinator David Gibbs is not one to be easily satisfied.

He knows that his defense has sometimes more leaks than a wicker basket trying to hold water.

All one has to do is look at the NCAA statistics among FBS programs and the Red Raiders are around the bottom in total defense and scoring defense.

Just last week in a 66-31 victory over Iowa State, the Cyclones gained 495 yards and freshman running back Mike Warren broke his own single-game freshman rushing record with 245 yards, mostly by running up the gut of the Tech defense.

"You figure after the first play you might get an interception and you figure you'll play good, but for whatever reason we have no consistency," Gibbs said. "We misalign, we miss tackles, we do all the things bad defenses do. Until we learn to line up right and do the little things right, we'll continue to struggle."

While the Red Raiders (4-2, 1-2 in Big 12) continue to get gashed on defense, they're giving the potent offense opportunities by coming up with turnovers, which was something Gibbs' defense at the University of Houston was known for last year.

Texas Tech is tied for 20th among FBS schools with a plus-5 turnover margin, and the Red Raiders will look to improve on that even more when they head to face struggling Kansas (0-5, 0-2) at 11 a.m. today. The game will be broadcast on Fox Sports 1.

Last Saturday, the Red Raiders came up with three interceptions, which turned a fairly close game at the half (38-21) into a rout.

"I thought we made good adjustments at halftime, then to create those turnovers that we were able to score off of kind of jumpstarted us," Tech coach Kliff Kingsbury said.

Senior defensive end Branden Jackson said turnovers are always a spark for his defense and the entire team.

"That's just reassurance that what we're doing in practice is paying off in the game," he said. "I'm not surprised whenever turnovers come because we harp on it so much during practice. These guys make those plays all the time. I'm just happy to see it showing up on the field. Any time we get the ball back to our offense, it's a good day."

Let's face it, in the Big 12 good defenses are hard to find, and even TCU and Baylor — two top-5 teams — have given up plenty of points and yards as well.

But if the Red Raiders continue to come up with turnovers and continue to give quarterback Patrick Mahomes and the offense the ball, they'll have a chance to beat several teams in the Big 12.

For Gibbs, he'll just have to take what he can get at this point.

"I probably won't ever be happy," he said. "I realize that you're playing defense with the spread offense and they might score in 25 seconds. I understand that. But if they outexecute us or their running back is better than our linebacker or safety and we can't tackle him, I'm OK with that. Some of that

No. 2 Baylor hosts WVU, team that kept Bears out of playoffs

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

WACO — Baylor coach Art Briles quickly tried to dispel any idea that the second-ranked Bears have revenge on their mind.

At least concerning West Virginia, the only team to beat them in the regular season a year ago.

"If there's any revenge, it needs to be on us," Briles said. "Are we going to blame them for beating us? The way we look at it is that it's our fault, my fault. We didn't take care of business."

And they wound up the first team left out of the initial College Football Playoff because of it.

Just like last October, Baylor (5-0, 2-0 Big 12) is undefeated going into its game against the Mountaineers.

The Bears, now with their highest AP ranking ever, were coming off their epic 61-58 comeback victory over TCU last season when they went to West Virginia and lost 41-27.

WVU (3-2, 0-2), which lost in overtime at home last week to 15th-ranked Oklahoma State, doesn't believe Baylor has happened against TCU and Baylor. But certain things aren't acceptable. So I think execution would make me happy."

Kansas is certainly no TCU or Baylor. My pick: Texas Tech 55, Kansas 14.

Here are my latest Big 12 power rankings with some shakeups thanks to last week's results.

1. Baylor (5-0, 2-0): The Bears trounced on Kansas, 66-7, and now face a West Virginia team that lacks the firepower to match up with them.

2. TCU (6-0, 3-0): The Horned Frogs survived a scare at Kansas State (52-45) as Trevone Boykin and the rest of the offense showed why they're among the nation's best. They travel to Iowa State today.

3. Oklahoma State (6-0, 3-0): The Cowboys are another team that survived in overtime with a win at West Virginia (33-26) last week. They haven't looked all that impressive at times but they're finding ways to win.

4. Texas Tech (4-2, 1-2): Hey, as long as the offense is producing 66 points and a school-record 776 yards of total offense, that will be enough to win many games this season.

5. Oklahoma (4-1, 1-1): It seems like every year the Sooners have their Ohhh-klahoma moment and last week's 24-17 loss to Texas was it. It won't be any easier this week as OU heads to Kansas State.

6. Kansas State (3-2, 0-2): The Wildcats almost knocked off TCU last week and they've got a good chance to knock off the Sooners this week as Manhattan is always among the toughest places to play.

7. Texas (2-4, 1-2): It's uncertain if last week's upset of OU was a sign of things to come for the Longhorns or a temporary mask for their problems, but we'll give them the benefit of a doubt this week.

8. West Virginia (3-2, 0-2): The Mountaineers lack the scoring punch but at least they're coming up with turnovers as their 13 interceptions on defense is the most since 2011.

9. Iowa State (2-3, 1-1): The Cyclones have hope thanks to some of the talent on offense but they still lack the overall talent to makes waves in the Big 12.

10. Kansas (0-5, 0-2): The Jayhawks were picked to win the Big 12 men's basketball title so they'll get their revenge then.

efficiency rating is one of the tops in the country."

Some things to know about the top-10 matchup between Alabama and Texas A&M:

TWO-PRONGED RUSHING ATTACK: Alabama's offense features two solid running backs in Derrick Henry and Drake. Henry leads the team with 665 yards rushing and 10 touchdowns and Drake has 244 yards rushing with a score. Texas A&M coach Kevin Sumlin and his staff are focused on trying to slow the pair down on Saturday.

"One is a bigger bruiser, the other is more a shake-and-bake guy. Certainly complement each other well," Sumlin said. "Bring different styles. See times where they're putting both on the field and able to utilize them ... we have to play good, sound, fundamental football. Gap responsibility. Got to gang tackle. Got to get a lot of people to the ball."

PILING UP SACKS: Texas A&M defensive end Myles Garrett is tied for third in the country with 7 1/2 sacks. He has piled up 19 sacks in his career after breaking Jadeveon Clowney's SEC freshman record by taking down the quarterback 11 1/2 times last season. But he's not the only Aggie getting to the quarterback often as teammate Daeshon Hall has five sacks this year.

"I think their defense is playing a lot better," Saban said. "They've got a really good scheme. They've got two really tough pass rushers to single block on the edges, which always can cause issues in the passing game."

RIDLEY'S RECEIVING: Though Alabama relies more on its running game, Calvin Ridley has proven to be a threat in the passing game. He had nine catches for 140 yards — both career-highs — against Arkansas and leads the team with 385 yards receiving and three scores.

RACING TO 1,000: Texas A&M freshman WR/KR/PR Christian Kirk needs 42 yards to reach 1,000 all-purpose yards. Kirk leads the team with 519 yards receiving with four touchdowns and he's returned a punt for another score.

forgotten that four-hour game in Morgantown last season.

"Definitely. Anytime you lose to a team, you're looking forward to beating them the following year," junior cornerback Daryl Worley said. "We look at it as though every team that we play against is trying to beat us. ... They're all out to get blood."

Baylor counters with the nation's most productive offense, at 64 points and 725 yards a game. Seth Russell leads the nation with 22 touchdown passes, and Corey Coleman is the national leader with 13 TD catches.

"It's important for us to defend our home turf. When anyone steps foot in Waco, it's our job to run them out of here. They outdid us last year, so we have a little bit of an edge going into this game," Coleman said. "We're ready to get that bad taste out of our mouth."

A few other things to know when the Bears look to stretch their FBS-best 18-game home winning streak, including all eight games since moving into their new campus stadium last year:

LEADING RUSHERS: Baylor junior Shock Linwood and West Virginia junior Wendell Smallwood rank 1-2 in the Big 12 in rushing yards per game. Linwood is running for 143.8 yards per game, including four consecutive 100-yard games. Smallwood has surpassed 100 yards his last three games and is averaging 114.8 yards per game.

BIG-TIME SCORING: The highest-scoring game in Big 12 history came in 2012 when West Virginia, in its first conference game after moving into the league, beat Baylor 70-63 at home. When the Mountaineers went to the Waco for the first time two years ago, Baylor scored on nine of its first 10 possessions and won 73-42.

WINNING PENALIZED: West Virginia pulled off the upset last season even while committing 14 penalties for 138 yards and having three turnovers — while the Bears didn't turn over the ball. "I don't know how to explain that one," Mountaineers coach Dana Holgorsen said. Maybe some of it had to do with Baylor's 18 penalties for 215 yards.

NEVER THIS HIGH BEFORE: Asked about the No. 2 national ranking, Briles said the Bears are proud that people have noticed what they are doing and respect them as a quality team. But he doesn't feel any different. "I probably don't look the same, but mentally I feel the same as I did in 2012 when we were unranked," he said.

X-FACTOR: Bears junior cornerback Xavien Howard, a former high school quarterback, had his third interception of the season and returned a fumble 30 yards for a touchdown last week against Kansas.

FACTS & FIGURES
Baylor's 321 points through five games are the most by any school since major classification began in 1937. ... When WVU visited Waco two years ago, Baylor scored on nine of its first 10 possessions on way to a 73-42 victory, after the Mountaineers won 70-63 at home in 2012. ... Mountaineers QB Skyler Howard, who is from Fort Worth, Texas, has thrown for only 361 yards with two TDs and four interceptions in WVU's two Big 12 games.

NO. 3 TCU (6-0, 3-0 BIG 12) AT IOWA STATE (2-3, 1-1) 6 P.M. (ESPN2)
Line: TCU by 21.
Series Record: TCU leads 5-1.
WHAT'S AT STAKE
TCU's playoff hopes would take a huge hit with a loss at Iowa State, which yet again appears to be one of the Big 12's weaker teams. An upset by the Cyclones would do wonders for coach Paul Rhoads' job security — especially with a trip to No. 2 Baylor looming.
KEY MATCHUP
Iowa State's defensive line vs. TCU's offensive line: The Cyclones won't have a chance to stop TCU QB Trevone Boykin if they can't get any pressure on him. Iowa State does have some talent on its line, led by NG Demond Tucker and DE Dale Pierson, also known as the "Sack Mamba." But no one has slowed Boykin much this season. He's second nationally with 412 yards of offense per game.
PLAYERS TO WATCH
TCU: RB Aaron Green. Teams focus so much on Boykin that they can forget about Green. But he's rushed for 625 yards and eight TDs in TCU's last five games — including an 86-yard score on the first snap of last week's 52-45 win at Kansas State.
Iowa State: QB Sam Richardson. He threw three interception in Iowa State's ugly 66-31 loss at Texas Tech last week. If Richardson does that again he'll likely be benched, as sophomore Joel Lanning continues to push for the starting job.
FACTS & FIGURES
TCU and Iowa State met in a bowl game 10 years ago. The Horned Frogs beat the Cyclones 27-24 in what used to be called the Houston Bowl...TCU will be making just its second visit to Ames as a Big 12 team. The Horned Frogs escaped with a 21-17 win in 2013...Iowa State RB Mike Warren already owns the school's freshman rushing mark with 574 yards, and he still has seven games to play this season...TCU has used 29 freshmen in 2015, tops nationally.

ARIZONA STATE (4-2, 2-1 PAC-12) AT NO. 4 UTAH (5-0, 2-0), 9 P.M. (ESPN)
Line: Utah by 6 1/2
Series Record: Arizona State leads 20-6
WHAT'S AT STAKE
Utah is the last undefeated team in the conference and controls its own destiny in the quest for its Pac-12 title and a berth in the College Football Playoffs. Arizona State represents another hurdle the Utes have yet to clear since joining the league. Arizona State has won 11 straight against Utah dating back to 1976. The Sun Devils are trying to move past a disappointing 2-2 start to get back in the rankings. A win against Utah would move the two into a tie atop the South Division.

BOSTON COLLEGE (3-3, 0-3 ACC) AT NO. 5 CLEMSON (5-0, 2-0), 6 P.M. (ESPNU)
Line: Clemson by 15.
Series Record: Clemson leads 13-9-2.
WHAT'S AT STAKE
Clemson has steadily risen in the rankings this season and looks to keep that momentum going. The Tigers are trying to open 6-0 for the third time in five seasons. Boston College has lost its last two ACC games by a combined five points.
KEY MATCHUP
Clemson QB Deshaun Watson vs. Boston College defense. Watson threw for his most yards this season, passing for 265 yards and two long touchdowns in a win over Georgia Tech. Boston College comes in with the nation's No. 1 overall defense. The Eagles have not allowed an opponent to score more than 14 points this season.

NO. 8 FLORIDA (6-0, 4-0 SEC) AT NO.6 LSU (5-0, 3-0), 2:30 P.M. (CBS)
Line: LSU by 9 1/2.
Series Record: Florida leads 31-27-3.
WHAT'S AT STAKE
LSU is in the mix with Texas A&M, Alabama and Mississippi in a tight race for the SEC West. Florida will remain in control of the East race with a loss, but a win in Tiger Stadium would do wonders for the Gators College Football Playoff hopes.
KEY MATCHUP
LSU's SEC-best running game, which features Heisman Trophy candidate Leonard Fournette and averages a whopping 348.4 yards vs. the Gators' defense, which ranks second in the SEC against the run, giving up an average of 99.2 yards.

NO. 7 MICHIGAN STATE (6-0, 2-0 BIG TEN) AT NO. 12 MICHIGAN (5-1, 2-0), 2:30 P.M. (ESPN)
Line: Michigan by 8 1/2
Series Record: Michigan leads 68-34-5
WHAT'S AT STAKE
The winner becomes the top threat to Ohio State in the Big Ten's East Division and a serious contender for college football's playoff — and yet all that feels secondary. What's at stake this weekend is Michigan State's seven-year dominance of the rivalry it cares about the most, a run of success that is now in serious jeopardy with Jim Harbaugh coaching at Michigan.
KEY MATCHUP
Michigan State QB Connor Cook vs. Michigan's secondary. The Wolverines have shut out their last three opponents, and defensive backs Jabrill Peppers and Jourdan Lewis will pose quite a challenge for Cook. The Michigan State senior has thrown for 12 touchdowns and two interceptions this season.

NO. 10 ALABAMA (5-1, 2-1 SEC) AT NO. 9 TEXAS A&M (6-0, 3-0), 3:30 P.M. (CBS)
Line: Alabama by 4.
Series Record: Alabama leads 5-2.
WHAT'S AT STAKE
Texas A&M looks open a season 6-0 for the first time since 1994 and erase the memory of last year's 59-0 loss to Alabama. A win would also help the Aggies keep pace with LSU in the SEC West. A loss by Alabama would crush its SEC title and playoff hopes.
KEY MATCHUP
Texas A&M QB Kyle Allen vs. Alabama's defensive line. Allen will face a line that has batted down 15 passes, which leads the nation. DE Dalvin Tomlinson leads all defensive linemen in the nation with six pass breakups and Jonathan Allen has three. The line not only bats down passes, but also gets to the quarterback often and has 16 sacks this season.
PLAYERS TO WATCH
ALABAMA: RB Derrick Henry. He had 95 yards rushing last week to give him 680 yards rushing with 10 touchdowns this season. Henry has scored in a school-record 11 straight games. The last time he didn't score was on Nov. 8 against LSU.
TEXAS A&M: DE Myles Garrett. He is tied for fourth in the country with 7 1/2 sacks and ranks 12th with 9 1/2 tackles for losses.
FACTS & FIGURES
The Aggies have never won a game against Alabama in College Station, with their two victories coming in Dallas and Tuscaloosa, Alabama. ... These teams first met in 1942 at the Cotton Bowl. ... Alabama is 18-7 against top-10 teams since 2007. ... Texas A&M freshman WR/KR/PR Christian Kirk needs 42 yards to reach 1,000 all-purpose yards. ... Allen is 8-2 in his 10 career starts. ... Alabama WR Calvin Ridley had nine catches for 140 yards — both career-highs — against Arkansas. ... Allen has thrown 79 straight passes without an interception. ... Alabama has six players on the roster from Texas, led by DL A'Shawn Robinson, who has 19 tackles.

LOUISVILLE (2-3, 1-1 ACC) AT NO. 11 FLORIDA STATE (5-0, 3-0 ACC), 11 A.M. (ESPN)
Line: Florida State by 7
Series Record: Florida State 13-2
WHAT'S AT STAKE
After a comeback win at home against Miami last week, Florida State looks to extend its conference win streak to 28 games. The Seminoles remain the only team in FBS without a turnover. Louisville has won two straight but was off last week. This is the Cardinals third game against a team in the top 11 as they lost to No. 6 Auburn and No. 9 Clemson.
KEY MATCHUP
Florida State senior QB Everett Golson against Louisville's secondary. Dating back to last season at Notre Dame, Golson has not thrown an interception in his last 151 pass attempts and is coming off his best game with the Seminoles, completing 25 of 33 passes for 291 yards and a touchdown.

NO. 13 MISSISSIPPI (5-1) AT MEMPHIS (5-0), 11 A.M. (ABC)
Line: Ole Miss by 10 1/2.
Series Record: Ole Miss leads 48-10-2
WHAT'S AT STAKE
Memphis has earned some national attention thanks to a 12-game winning streak. A win over Ole Miss — which is also a regional rival — would help the Tigers make the case that they're the best program from the group of five conferences. The Rebels could use a win to gain momentum for a five-game stretch against Southeastern Conference opponents to end the regular season.
KEY MATCHUP
Memphis QB Paxton Lynch vs. Mississippi's defense. Ole Miss DB Mike Hilton called Lynch one of the nation's best-kept secrets after watching film this week. Lynch has been superb this year, throwing for 1,535 yards, 10 touchdowns and no interceptions. His 70.5 percent completion percentage ranks third nationally.

USC (3-2) AT NO. 14 NOTRE DAME (5-1), 6:30 P.M. (NBC)
Line: Notre Dame by 6 1/2.
Series Record: Notre Dame leads 45-36-5 (USC lists it at 45-35-5 because it doesn't count the 2005 Bush-Push game because that victory was vacated after the NCAA found Reggie Bush received improper benefits).
WHAT'S AT STAKE
The Fighting Irish have to keep winning to keep their College Football Playoff hopes alive. USC already has lost two home conference games and is looking to end a tumultuous week after the firing of coach Steve Sarkisian.

NO. 17 IOWA (6-0, 2-0 BIG TEN) AT NO. 20 NORTHWESTERN (1-1, 1-1), 11 A.M. (ABC/ESPN2)
Line: Iowa by 2.
Series Record: Iowa leads 49-24-3.
WHAT'S AT STAKE
One of the nation's biggest surprises, the Hawkeyes are looking to extend their best start since they won their first nine during the 2009 Orange Bowl season. But while the wins keep piling up, so do the injuries. Iowa is down five opening day starters after star DE Drew Ott left last week's 29-20 win over Illinois because of a torn ACL in his right knee. Northwestern simply needs to regroup after getting blown out 38-0 at Michigan.
KEY MATCHUP
Northwestern's run game against Iowa's run defense. Northwestern comes in ranked second in the Big Ten in rushing at 213 yards per game. But the Wildcats managed just 38 against Michigan. And they're going up against one of the league's stingiest run defenses in Iowa (78 yards per game).

NO. 19 OKLAHOMA (4-1, 1-1 BIG 12) AT KANSAS STATE (3-2, 0-2), 2:30 P.M. (ABC)
Line: Oklahoma by 5.
Series Record: Oklahoma leads 72-19-4.
WHAT'S AT STAKE
Oklahoma's Big 12 and national championship aspirations. After losing to Texas a week ago, the Sooners almost certainly need to win out to have a chance at either. The Wildcats hope to hold onto a second-half lead after blowing them in consecutive weeks to Oklahoma State and TCU.
KEY MATCHUP
Oklahoma QB Baker Mayfield against the Kansas State secondary. Mayfield must be salivating after watching the Horned Frogs' Trevone Boykin shred the Wildcats on the ground and through the air in the second half last Saturday.

EASTERN MICHIGAN (1-5, 0-2 MAC) AT NO. 22 TOLEDO (5-0, 2-0), 11 A.M. (ESPN3)
Line: Toledo by 28 1-2.
Series Record: Toledo leads 31-11.
WHAT'S AT STAKE
Toledo is looking to stay atop the Mid-American Conference West Division standings and start 6-0 for the first time since 1997. Eastern Michigan is looking for its second victory, which would match its season total for each of the past three years.
KEY MATCHUP
Eastern Michigan QB Brogan Roback vs. Toledo's secondary. With the strong Rockets' rushing defense, ranked No. 7 in the nation, focused on stopping the MAC's second-leading rusher in EMU's Darius Jackson, the Toledo St. John's Jesuit product may need to move the ball through the air to keep the Eagles in the game.

NO. 24 HOUSTON (5-0, 2-0 AAC) AT TULANE (2-3, 1-1), 8 P.M. (ESPNU)
Line: Houston by 19.
Series Record: Houston leads 14-5.
WHAT'S AT STAKE
After entering the AP Top 25 poll this week for the first time this season, Houston aims to continue its climb in the rankings while remaining a front-runner in the American Athletic Conference. Despite some ugly early season losses, Tulane could still establish itself as a factor in the AAC with an upset.
KEY MATCHUP
Tulane's aggressive four-man defensive line, which has helped the Green Wave record 39 tackles for losses, against Houston dual-threat QB, Greg Ward Jr. Ward is the only player nationally to average over 200 yards passing per game (260.4) and over 100 yards rushing per game (110.8).
PLAYERS TO WATCH
HOUSTON: Ward leads the American and is sixth nationally with an average of 371.2 yards of total offense.
TULANE: Linebacker Nico Marley has been in on a team-leading leads Tulane in tackles with 36, 29 solo.

LOS ANGELES

Mud covers highways, strands drivers in Southern California

Rescuers threw ladders and tarps across mud up to 6 feet deep to help hundreds of trapped people from cars that got caught in a roiling river of mud along a major Southern California trucking route, a California Highway Patrol official said Friday in what he and other witnesses described as a chaotic scene.

Amazingly, officials said, no deaths or injuries were reported.

Lovebird's short curfew keeps her close to the nest

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating "Colton" for six months. He's a year and a half older than I am and just started college. I'm still in high school.

Recently, my parents have begun putting restrictions on us, limiting us to one date a week, under four hours long and in a group situation. They like Colton, but they're worried I'll miss out on my friends and high school events.

We have obeyed their restrictions, but the time limit they have set is too short for many date activities, and getting a group together is nearly impossible. I agree I should balance my time, but I think their rules are too rigid because there are no exceptions.

I know my parents care about me, but I'm looking for a little more freedom and the ability to make my own choices. My parents agreed that if I could find other people who thought this situation was in some way unreasonable, they would reconsider some of the rules. So I'm wondering what your opinion is, Abby. — RESTRICTED IN SALT LAKE CITY

DEAR RESTRICTED: In my opinion, it is very important that your primary concern — and Colton's, too — should be earning good grades and completing your education. Both of your futures depend upon it. That said, if there are special events coming up that you and Colton would like to share, the curfew should be adjusted on a case-by-case basis.

DEAR ABBY: I am a newer aunt who feels like I have lost my siblings in this life transition. When I call, I hear screaming boys in the background, and it gives me shudders, so I don't do it often. When I visit, every single adult's attention is on the boys, and no real conversation ensues.

When I grew up, kids were not a part of adult time. How can I let them know their kids are so unruly I can hardly communicate with them anymore? Or should I just leave my siblings to their own families now? — UNIMPRESSED AUNT IN TEXAS

DEAR UNIMPRESSED: Because you are not yet a parent, you might not have noticed that when parents of small children get on the phone, their children, in a bid for their attention, become either very noisy or very quiet. The noisiness is preferable, because when the kids become very quiet, they are usually doing something they're not supposed to.

Because the noise your nieces and nephews make unnerves you, schedule phone calls with your siblings after their little ones have been put to bed. And if you would like adult/alone time with them, ask if you can schedule a lunch away from their home for an occasional visit.

DEAR ABBY: Is it more appropriate to eat ice cream cake with a spoon or a fork? I'm always unsure which is preferable. — ELLEN IN WOODLAND HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR ELLEN: Eat your ice cream cake with a spoon or a "spork" (a utensil that's a combination spoon and fork) so there will be fewer drips when the ice cream starts to melt.

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Oct. 17, 2015:

This year you might be testing your limits more than you realize. You will be unusually prone to taking risks. Be careful, as you might regret this behavior at a later point. If you are single, you meet people with ease and enjoy many different personality types. Your love of socializing might be a reason not to commit this year, but you likely will meet Mr. or Ms. Right soon afterward. If you are attached, the two of you notice a new intensity and a need to share even more. You appreciate having a strong friendship within a loving relationship. SAGITTARIUS often challenges you to join him or her.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ Keep reaching out to someone whom you would like to get to know better. You could surprise others with your willingness to take off on an adventure. You have a lot of energy, so use it well. You might have a secret admirer. Look around. Tonight: Opt for different.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Reach out to a dear friend whom you care a lot about. You have been gaining insights when relating to this person, and today will be no different. One-on-one relating proves to be unusually fulfilling. You have energy and intent when relating to this person. Tonight: Dinner for two.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20). ★★★★ If you rein in your need to be the alpha dog, friends will make plans that include you. Although you like to have more control, you'll delight in the roller coaster ride that they have unintentionally provided. You could have a ball. Tonight: Keep on going.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ You could be in a situation where you feel the need to change direction. Know that an unexpected offer or situation might force you in a new direction anyway. You likely will be surprised by an older relative who seems to have forgotten his or her age. Tonight: As you like it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ You could be off having a great time, enjoying a special person in your life. You can't seem to give this person enough time. Use today to devote your attention to this person. As a result, you will see the tension that has existed between you dissolve. Tonight: Very playful.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ You put your best foot forward, no matter what you do or whom you are with. You have a great deal of sensitivity and energy. A conversation reveals a different perspective about a major purchase. You could be surprised by what happens if you negotiate. Tonight: Invite friends over.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ Pick up the phone and catch up on news with a friend. You might opt to meet someone for a late lunch and/or a movie. Listen to your sixth sense regarding a loved one. Perhaps you have been making judgments that are not valid. Tonight: Hang out with a favorite person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Understand that extremes won't help you with your finances or with an emotional situation. You have been replaying a scenario over and over in your mind, but you haven't come up with a viable way to proceed. Test out a few ideas on a friend. Tonight: Make it your treat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ You could feel tense, as you know you must make an important appearance with a parent or boss. You will do what is needed, and gracefully at that. Catch up on friends' news. You could be delighted by what you hear. Make plans that keep you close to home. Tonight: Be gracious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Be willing to reach out to someone at a distance. The conversation you have could be unusually meaningful to both of you. Make plans to get together in the near future. Buy tickets to a concert or a special event. Tonight: Relax in a very different environment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ You'll have a choice to make between hanging out with friends and getting together with a special person in your life. Don't overthink this decision. Allow a little more closeness into your life. Someone might have exciting news to share. Tonight: Choose a favorite stressbuster.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ You might confuse a friend or partner without intending to. You could be overtired and be delighted to have someone else take the lead. However, you still might not be able to just hang at home and veg, as a project demands your attention. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
Ever since my wife and I bought a house a few years ago, my "honey-do" list has grown out of sight. There's always something that my wife thinks needs to be painted, replaced or upgraded. So let me just say…I LOVE the services section of the classifieds. I've been able to find someone for every job from cleaning the gutters to fixing the siding, replacing our windows and sealing the driveway. I even found someone to put up and take down my Christmas lights last year. Now that's the spirit! However, when I hire a contractor and mention that I shop at one of the national home improvement stores for all the things I need, some of them tend to groan or roll their eyes. To be honest, I like those places. They always have what I need, so I'm not sure why contractors feel that way. Is there something these contractors know that I don't?

Cash: The "honey-do" list is an amazing thing. As any husband will tell you, when you hang it on the refrigerator, it can grow automatically!

Carry: Fortunately, you may have stumbled upon the best solution, which is hire someone else to do the list. Although, hopefully you at least decorate your own Christmas tree!

Cash: When it comes to home improvement shopping, you're bound to get a lot of differing opinions. Everyone has their take on the best places to shop. However, it's difficult to beat the variety of products offered at a large home improvement store. Where else can you buy grass seed, light bulbs and a toilet all in one place?

Carry: For some contractors who specialize in areas like siding, windows or plumbing, you may find that they have distributors they prefer to use that can offer them either a wider variety or special discounted prices. Since they may have special accounts or deal in large volumes with the distributors, those types of outlets work out best for them.

Cash: Often times, large home improvement centers stock only one or two manufactures of a specific item. That can be limiting for people in business. By working with distributors, contractors can offer their customers a larger variety of options depending on the budget and preferences. However, it's likely the contractors still use the home improvement centers to round out what they need.

Carry: So whether you choose to do the job yourself or hire it out, it sounds like you already have a good solution. Although there is one job you should always personally do…shop for your wife's present!

Fast Facts

Handyman Special

Maintaining a home is a constant task for some people, and the costs can add up quickly. This past year, homeowners collectively spent over $56 billion on maintenance and repairs to their dwellings. Additionally, they spent more than $180 million on home improvements. The industry is so large that there are more than 30,000 home improvement, hardware or home-related retail centers around the US.

Future Shopping

When it comes to retail shopping these days, things are changing. Not long ago it was a battle between the brick and mortar stores and online only retail sites. But that too is changing. These two formats are continuing to merge. Amazon.com, for example, has expanded with showrooms or pop-up shops and other ways of meeting consumers face to face. Major brick and mortar stores like Home Depot, Walmart and Sears have maintained their dominance in the market by adapting with a more online presence and digital interaction. Who knows where the future will take us next.

Walking the Aisle

Working at a home improvement store allows me to meet all sorts of people. Some are regulars, some are weekend warriors and others are just browsing for ideas. But last week, I met a new kind of customer.

A woman came in the store, looking rather well dressed, and walked through the lumber department. Then she circled down through plumbing, paint, hardware and finally back to lumber. As she passed me, I asked if she needed assistance finding anything.

"I do," she said happily. "Do you happen to know a good handyman?"

"I know quite a few," I replied. "What qualifications are you looking for?"

Leaning in to me she whispered, "I'm trying to find one that's single!"

OPEN HOUSE SATURDAY 1:00-3:00

1306 West County Road 130

Directions: Go south on Midkiff, over I-20 to West County Road 130 and turn left and it will be on your left. Or, go south on Rankin Hwy. (349) under I-20 to West County Road 130 and turn right and it will be on your right.

Just minutes from town, 1306 WCR 130 has all the advantages of country living---12.43 acres, a barn, wood workshop, metal shop, arena, fruit trees, plenty of areas for gardening and it is perfect for animal lovers. The one owner home has been lovingly maintained and it shows. Constructed in 1981, this custom home has 1,948 square feet with three bedrooms, two baths, one dining area, one living area, a two car garage and three car carport. The storage available to this home is incredible and the potential usage of this acreage is up to your imagination. Schools for children here are Scharbauer Elementary, Abell Jr. High and Lee High.

Constructed of brick and featuring a brown trim there is a breezeway between the house and garage providing a view of backyard and fountain. Inside, the open floor plan and tall ceilings create large living spaces. Ahead of the entry is a spacious den and bricked corner with a freestanding wood fireplace. Gather here with friends and family as you enjoy an evening together.

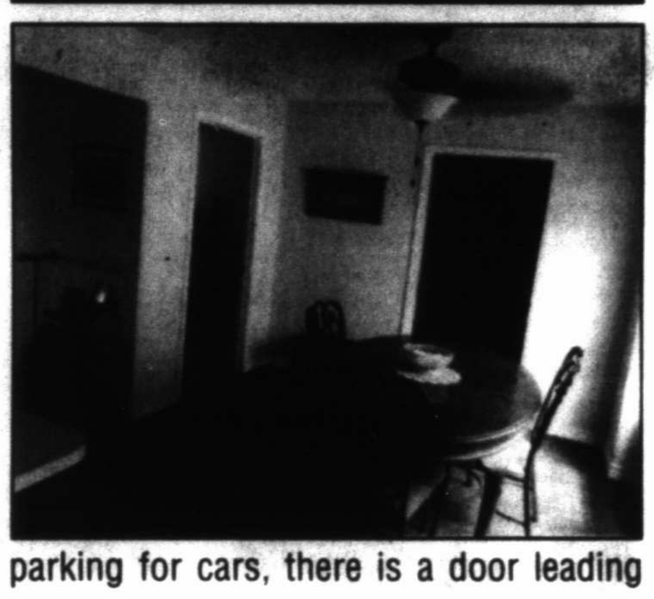

To the right of the entry is a hallway leading to the kitchen. Walls of dark wood cabinetry are just right for hiding away small appliances and dishes. White counters provide a workspace for prepping meals which can be cooked on the Kenmore Elite stainless appliances including a gas stovetop. Serve your creations in the nearby dining area and enjoy the view of the front yard or at the bar countertop. Access to the breezeway is here as well as the laundry room where there are more cabinets for storage and a large pantry. Enjoy your sequestered master bedroom complete with dual sinks and walk in closet with numerous built-ins.

To the left of the entry are two more bedrooms. One faces the front yard and has a large closet and ceiling fan. The other bedroom faces the back yard and has two large closets. A full bathroom is on the hall as well as a built-in storage cabinet.

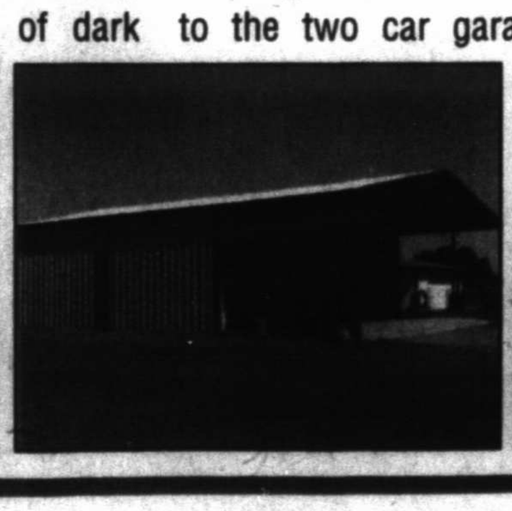

Outside, you will be amazed at the buildings! Pass through the breezeway to the two car garage. In addition to parking for cars, there is a door leading to a very spacious office. Next, there is a insulated metal shop (1,600 square feet) with two garage doors on each end and an overhang in the back as well as a 15'x40' overhang in the front. Move on to the barn which measures 24'by 65' and has 6 stalls, a tack room and an arena. There is also a 28' by 34' wood workshop.

Additional amenities include: sequestered master, reverse osmosis, automatic garage door opener, covered patio, workshops and barn. Listed $498,000, this is the perfect home for a home/business or a family involved in 4-H! It is a must see if you love to spread out and have projects for business or pleasure.
