Bud's warehouse opening in old Wal-Mart building

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Bud's Warehouse Outlet, a new division of Wal-Mart Stores Inc., will soon be moving into the old Wal-Mart building across from the current Supercenter.

According to Bud's manager Glen Mathis, the store will open April 3, and will be a seven-day-a-week operation. Store hours will be 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 12 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Mathis said, "We've got a lot to do between now and April 3, but I'm glad to see something going into this building. I hate to see a building just standing there."

Bud's will specialize in brand name closeouts, overruns, and deep discount purchases. Officials said despite its affiliation with Wal-Mart and Sam's Clubs, Bud's will offer some unique differences.

The store will be a working warehouse with sales primarily on a self-service cash and carry basis. But, Bud's will give customers the convenient option of using Mastercard, Visa, Discover credit cards and local checks as well.

According to Bud's officials, bulk displays will be a large part of the business because Bud's takes advantage of deep cuts given by manufacturers due to overstock situations, model or package changes, refurbished or factory serviced merchandise, and many other sources. This also includes slightly damaged goods from disasters such as fires and floods.

Each Bud's store does its own buying based on current market availability on a day-to-day basis and is not controlled by a central buying office, making each Bud's a little bit different.

Bud's stores are organized into about 36 departments and average approximately

Lady Hawks cut down the net as regional champs

By DAVE HARGRAVE

DENISON – Cutting down the nets in enemy territory.

Could their be a greater feeling for the Howard College Lady Hawks?

Howard's women's basketball team qualified for the national finals Thursday with a 73-70 overtime win over Grayson County College, and it did it under the most excruciating circumstances.

How they did it - 7A

Forget about trailing by nine with two minutes left – the biggest deficit Howard faced could have been the one-point edge Grayson held at halftime.

Howard took a 10-0 lead early, choking Grayson with its tight defense. Grayson missed its first 10 shots and didn't score until Rameeka Lowe's three-point six minutes into the game. Howard controlled the first half, maintaining its 10-point edge while making No. 5 Grayson look foolish on its home court.

At halftime, however, Grayson led 23-22. Despite outplaying Grayson for 16 minutes, Howard was trailing – the Lady Hawks missed their final 15 shots of the half, going the final 7:47 with just two points – two Kyna Cosby free throws.

After looking like sure bets for the national tournament Howard backers had to be staring at the scoreboard saying, "Can we possible be losing? It can't be!"

The Lady Hawks could have folded their tents there, or when Grayson took its largest lead at 10 points, but they didn't.

"When we had our run at the beginning, maybe some of us started thinking we were going to win it," said Howard freshman Joyce Howard. "Then, when they started to make their run, we just started playing harder."

Grayson scored the last 11 points of the first half, but

Despite the wet, celebrating Texas' independence lively

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Traditional Texas tunes, men in frontier costumes and readings from the Texas Declaration of Independence were part of a wet but spirited Texas Independence Day celebration at the Alamo.

"It was on these very grounds that men fought so that others might live free of tyranny," said retired Army Lt. Gen. Neal Jaco, the featured speaker at a ceremony Thursday organized by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

The DRT, whose members trace their ancestry to the time Texas was a republic, run the Alamo for the state.

School children, city officials and history buffs pledged allegiance to the American and Texas flags, listened to bands play the "Yellow Rose of Texas," "Eyes of Texas" and "Texas our Texas" and lined up for slices of a huge Texas-shaped cake displaying the phrase "Remember the Alamo."

The Alamo's newly refurbished facade took center stage at the noon ceremony before cold, damp weather forced the celebration indoors. Mayor Nelson Wolff and several school children cut a red ribbon in front of the building acknowledging the preservation work.

Long flight infects several with TB

ATLANTA (AP) — On the long flight from Baltimore to Honolulu, the hum of the airplane's engines was punctuated by coughing fits from a passenger.

People sitting nearby didn't know the woman was sick with tuberculosis, nor did they know that their risk of catching the lung disease grew with each passing hour. By the end of her trip in April 1994, the woman had infected at least three passengers and a crew member.

The case was one of six involving airline passengers and crews described in a report Thursday by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The report warns that people sick with tuberculosis should not use commercial transporta-

The college also reserves the right to cater all food consumed in their facilities.

Here is a list of the rates:

•Classroom (four hours - with no cleanup after) commercial rates are $50; commercial/non-profit $50; non-commercial/civic groups $25; church groups $25.

•Classroom (four hours - includes cleanup) commercial $75; commercial/non-profit $75; civic groups $50 and church groups $50.

He continued, "like so many hometown businesses around the country, giving way to expanding national chains, the San Angelo-based Connie's Women's Apparel Stores, also, are fading from the local landscape."

The local store has two-full time employees and three part-time employees. Every item in Connie's is currently on sale.

50,000 square-feet in size and carry a large food and tobacco line along with clothing, housewares, household chemicals, health and beauty aids, furniture, bedding, major appliances, electronics, sporting goods, automotive, hardware and more.

Bud's also services the apparel lines in Wal-Mart stores by helping balance their inventories between seasons and any Wal-Mart apparel purchased at Bud's will be at least 50 percent off the original price and will generally be "in season" merchandise.

Another feature of the store is Bud's Bargain Corner, which services the Wal-Mart return centers which consolidate the customers returns from Wal-Mart stores within a given trade territory after the return center processes the merchandise and pulls out the desirable goods from the undesirable or unsalvageable. Bud's buys the desirable goods at reduced prices and then sell them in Bud's Warehouse Outlets.

This merchandise is sold "As Is" meaning customers must test the merchandise prior to the sale and agree that the price of the merchandise makes up for the condition of the item. This merchandise will not have a warranty attached to it, but customers not pleased with the merchandise may return the item or items with a receipt within seven days for a full refund or exchange.

Customers will also notice "Us/Them" signing and tagged items throughout the store. The "Us" price is Bud's price on a particular item and the "Them" price is what other local competitors sell the same item for.

With the exception of "As Is" merchandise, anything purchased at Bud's can be returned, with a receipt, to the Bud's store it was purchased from within 30 days for a full refund or exchange.

Howard returned the favor by scoring the last nine of the second half. For the third time in the Region V tournament, Howard dominated the boards. the Lady Hawks out-rebounded Grayson 49-35 and their Region V opponents by a total of 142-94. Still, the underlying factor in the regional championship – Howard's third straight – was its ability to ply its best at the precise moment it needed perfection.

Instead of feeling shell-shocked at halftime, the Lady Hawks attacked, scoring the first bucket of the second half on a designed in-bounds play to Kyna Cosby.

"We still had 20 minutes to play," said Tiffany Johnson of the team's halftime attitude. "What's one point?"

KeeKee Black, a freshman who will be going to her hometown of Tyler for the national tournament, said: "We were down one, not 1,000. We just knew we had to come out on top."

When asked what thoughts traveled through her mind when trailing Grayson by nine points with two minutes left, Black brought a pained look to her face – just for a moment – then said: "I just kept saying to myself, 'Don't give up, don't give up, don't give up.' "

After overcoming two obstacles – the collapse before halftime and the late deficit – Howard still had to climb over a third. Howard missed three two-footers in the final three seconds of regulation, thus missing a chance to win the game without overtime.

"Anytime you have one shot under the basket to win the regional championship, and you miss it, it scares you," Howard coach Terry Gray said. "I know it was in the back of our heads, but we talked about it in the intermission between the end of regulation and in overtime, and just put that out of our minds."

Gray has become one of those rare coaches who reaches a national-championship chance in his first season. He's been measured against the record of his predecessor, Royce Chadwick, and so for he's delivered. Of course, according to him he never delivers.

The Lady Hawks do all the work for him.

"To go to nationals for the third time in a row, and the first time as a head coach, that makes me personally proud," Gray said, "but more than that, I'm just proud for these kids. They've stepped it up every time their backs have been against the wall."

Alamo

Fourth-graders Amber Rodriguez, 10, and Kelsey Morris, 9, of Alkek Elementary School in Bandera weren't sure what the ribbon thing was all about. But as they stood in the crowd they eagerly recounted the Alamo battle history they'd learned before their field trip to the Alamo.

"Many of the people died, and we watched a movie," Kelsey said.

"Of them trying to fight the war," Amber added.

On March 2, 1836, a group of Texans gathered at Washington-on-the-Brazos and declared independence from Mexico. Texas won its independence and was a nation for 10 years until joining the United States in 1845.

Carolyn Ellis Hilburn, president of the Alamo Mission Chapter of the DRT, said the 189 Texas fighters who died at the Alamo at the hands of the Mexican army helped write "one of history's greatest and most tragic chapters."

TB is spread when an infected person coughs or sneezes bacteria-laden water droplets into the air. But the risk of catching it is low to begin with, and the risk of it spreading on a plane, ship, train or bus is no greater than in any enclosed area, CDC officials said.

Civilian charged in kidnapping

■ McBride's body found north of San Angelo

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Authorities who found the body of a missing soldier were awaiting autopsy results to learn how she died.

Louis Jones, a civilian employee at Goodfellow Air Force Base, remained jailed on charges he kidnapped Army Pvt. Tracie McBride two days after sexually assaulting another female soldier.

Jones, 44, was in custody at the Tom Green County Jail on bonds totalling $200,000.

Goodfellow officials said Jones led them to Miss McBride's body early Thursday about 27 miles north of San Angelo in Coke County.

Miss McBride disappeared Feb. 18 from the base laundromat, where she was on guard duty. Witnesses said the 19-year-old soldier was abducted as she talked on the telephone.

Officials said Jones told investigators he abducted Miss McBride, took her to his residence in San Angelo where he "put her in a closet" for several hours, then took her underneath a bridge on a farm-to-market road just south of Bronte, in eastern Coke County, where he killed her.

Officers declined to discuss how Miss McBride was killed.

Officials remove the body of Army Pvt. Tracie McBride from underneath a bridge over Juniper Creek along U.S. 277 north of Tennyson Thursday. Authorities have charged suspect Louis Jones, a civilian employee at Goodfellow Air Force Base, with her kidnapping.

"I can tell you she was not shot, but I can't tell you how" she was killed, said Tom Green County Justice of the Peace Eddie Howard. "It's too sensitive right now."

Jones was in jail Thursday, charged with kidnapping. Howard set bond at $100,000. Further charges were expected.

Kay Sparks, office administrator for the Tom Green County district attorney's office, said tests were under way to determine whether Miss McBride was sexually assaulted. Her body was taken to the Bexar County medical examiner's office in San Antonio for an autopsy.

Howard was arrested about 8 a.m. Thursday on an arrest warrant issued Wednesday on the unrelated Feb. 16 rape of another Goodfellow Air Force Base female soldier. While interrogating Jones, officers said similarities between the two cases aroused their suspicion.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Conflict of interest expected to surface

HOUSTON (AP) — The issue of possible conflict of interest was expected to surface today at a hearing concerning the trial of a lawsuit filed by two people who claimed their illnesses were caused by faulty silicone breast implants.

The hearing in state District Judge Michael Schneider's courtroom is expected to take up the case of a woman who served as a juror in the trial and her mother, who worked in a clerical job in the law firm of one of the attorneys involved in the trial.

Medi Ray, 45, worked for the law firm of Richard Sheehy, an attorney for Dow Corning. Her daughter, Monica Rey, 22, was a juror.

Restrictions on good behavior recommended

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas Board of Criminal Justice committee has recommended new restrictions that would make it harder for prisoners to accumulate time for good behavior, at the possible expense of increasing jail crowding.

The committee suggested on Thursday that prior good time credits not be restored for inmates returned to prison for parole violations. The committee also suggested doing away with the practice of back-dating good time credits.

Currently, different good time levels award different credit. When an inmate is promoted to a higher level, all good time credit is recalculated to reflect the new level.

Weather still treacherous as arctic air continues to blow

Warmer air overrode very shallow arctic air across Texas today, causing low clouds, freezing drizzle and areas of dense fog across the Panhandle and creating a second straight day of treacherous driving conditions.

The mixture of freezing drizzle along with some flurries overnight caused roads and highways to form a glaze of ice during the night.

Visibility dropped to one-half mile early today at Vega, 35 miles west of Amarillo.

The National Weather Service warned of freezing rain as far south as the Texas hill country and adjacent parts of South Central Texas.

Highway officials said ice was continuing to accumulate over bridges and overpasses and on exposed roadways in the hill country. Light freezing rain fell as temperatures fell to near freezing.

Arctic air over West Texas combined with an upper level disturbance early today to allow light snow, mixed with light freezing drizzle over much of the area east of the mountains of far West Texas. No significant accumulations were expected, however.

Police and state troopers worked dozens of accidents on icy roads across the region.

In the Panhandle, an elderly Higgins man died after an accident on icy area roads.

Alonzo Alva Hand, 88, was driving west on U.S. 60 when his 1986 Ford pickup truck hit a slick spot on the highway and spun out of control, a DPS spokesman said.

Two people died in separate traffic accidents during rush hour Thursday morning in Dallas.

About half of American Airlines' flights were canceled or delayed Thursday at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport due to the bad weather.

Similar cancellations were reported by other airlines.

A very cold dome of arctic air continued to hold in place across North Texas.

Wells targeted for cleanup by commission

HOUSTON (AP) — A new Texas Railroad Commission program has targeted 32 abandoned oil well sites, including 11 in Harris County, for cleanup at a cost of nearly $288,000.

"The Houston area was chosen as the first area to begin the cleanups because of its population density and the number of abandoned sites," Commissioner Charles R. Matthews said Thursday.

"By focusing our efforts on one region at a time, we've established a cost-effective, systematic method of cleaning up dozens of polluted sites in a short period of time," he said.

The project is being launched to carry out the Legislature's decision two years ago to expand operations under the state's Oil Field Cleanup Fund.

The fund is created from fees, fines, other payments from oil and gas industry.

Court stands by school finance ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — Senate Education Committee Chairman Bill Ratliff is applauding the Texas Supreme Court's refusal to reconsider its decision upholding the state's share-the-wealth school finance law.

"I don't want to fight that battle right now," Ratliff said after Thursday's ruling. He is working on an overhaul of education laws aimed at increasing local control of schools.

But the lawmaker said he is open to discussion about the need for long-term changes in the school funding system, which relies on local property taxes and state aid.

Because lawmakers have in recent years faced repeated court deadlines for school funding reform, Ratliff said, "We never had the luxury before of talking about long-range solutions. We were always faced with a very short fuse...

"So now that we've gotten that out of the way, I'll spend the next two years looking for possible solutions, if anybody wants to."

Al Kauffman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, who represented poor school districts that challenged the law, called the Supreme Court decision "a real disappointment."

Quote of the Day

"The growth of understanding follows an ascending spiral rather than a straight line."

Joanna Field, British psychologist, 1934

The struggle continues

It was a wet, cold day but for Texans across the state is was a day to remember heroes of old.

Thursday was Texas' Independence Day, the day when, in 1836, a group of Texans gathered at Washington-on-the-Brazos to declare their independence from Mexico. Texas stood on its own for 10 years before joining the United States.

Today, while Texans retain much of their independent attitude, we are still fighting the wars for independence on many battlefields: poverty, crime, education, jobs.

We are struggling to find the ways to end these wars, none of which have any easy answers.

However, as we struggle, we become stronger as people and as a state.

We have new leadership, both on the state and federal level. Leadership we hope will help us find the elusive answers.

But, again, it will be the people finding their own way, just as Texans have done for centuries.

Let'em show what they can do

Bob Greene
Columnist

SARASOTA, Fla. -- "I like these guys," said Stan Fuger, 44, an administrative law judge from Andover, Conn. "These are the guys who are never given a chance. I'd go to see them play in the major-league parks this summer. As a matter of fact, I think it would be great."

"Just because people don't know their names yet, that doesn't mean anything," said his wife, Debbie, 43. "Once people begin watching them play every day, fans will start picking out their favorites."

The Fugers were at spring training, watching the Chicago White Sox work out. Not the major leaguers who walked away from baseball last summer and have not returned. The Fugers were watching the minor-league players and the so-called replacement players -- the men who have been widely derided in much of the spring training news coverage. Like many of the fans who have been showing up every day at spring training camps, the Fugers -- ignoring the gloomy newspaper and broadcast reports of how dismal these players are, and instead choosing to judge for themselves -- seemed heartened by what they were seeing.

"I just really want there to be a baseball season," said their 11-year-old son David, a 5th-grader. "I want to go to see the games. If it's these players, that would be fine. They look good to me."

Stan Fuger's dad -- Stan Sr., 77 -- said, "I watched World War II baseball. It was fun. I bet you I went to 65 home games in Griffith Stadium in 1945, to see the Washington Senators. It was very pleasant, a very enjoyable summer. Eat some peanuts, drink some beer -- to tell you the truth, I'd like it a lot if these fellows here are given their opportunity."

"You know what the sad thing will be?" said the younger Stan. "If these players get to start the season, and then the strikers come back. You know what will happen. The teams will drop these guys like old girlfriends. And it will be a shame."

Surprisingly, you're hearing that more and more from the fans who are coming to take their own look at spring training. Not only do many of them hope that the minor leaguers are given their shot at the big time -- but they say that if the minor leaguers start the season, they should be allowed to finish it.

"I think this is grand," said Steve Bazan, 65, a farmer from Yorkville, Ill., watching the young players.

"These guys are trying their hearts out," said his wife, Marion, 59. "These are ballplayers who really want to play. Which is more than I can say for the others. This must be what the major leaguers were like before they got their millions."

"That's all that we can ask for -- people who are willing to work and try," Steve Bazan said. "I've been playing baseball all my life -- I still play second base for the Burks Drywall 12-inch softball team in Yorkville. I admire a man who gets out there and gives it his best."

"He still slides," his wife said. "He's 65 years old and he still slides."

"I do," he said. "I do slide."

Dr. Wayne Vander Leest, 40, an optometrist from Pella, Iowa, said, "These guys haven't proven themselves yet, but that doesn't mean they don't have the skills. Give them a chance. I'd like to see them this season. Look: There are a lot of great singers -- you don't have to go listen to Barbra Streisand. These guys would be fine in the majors this season -- it would be fun to go to the ballpark with friends on a summer evening, relax and watch them show what they can do."

Jill Shannon, 43, who lives in the New Hampshire town of Rochester, was at spring training with her husband, Chris, 48, and their two sons, Dane, 13, and Brent, 12.

"Boy," Dane said, watching the pitchers throw from a few feet away.

"Cool," Brent said. "I've never been this close to real baseball players before."

In his hand he held his own ball glove. "It's unbelievable they can pitch like this," he said. "The speed and the accuracy."

His dad said, "These players are here because they want to play baseball. That's why I hope they get their chance. I want my sons to see ballplayers who really want to play."

Jill Shannon said, "I agree. I think it would be just fine for these players to play this summer." She put a hand on her son Dane's shoulder.

"You're only 13 once," she said. "You ought to be able to watch some baseball."

OUT FRONT

New breed of barnraisers

■ AmeriCorp's budget slashed

By CALVIN WOODWARD
Associated Press Writer

ABERDEEN, Md. (AP) — The new recruits at the military's Aberdeen Proving Ground carry no guns and don't salute. They are civilian foot soldiers of President Clinton's national service program, out to prove they can do some good.

Their enemy is a mucky stream, clogged with a junked love seat. Or a school with falling scores. Or fire in a national forest. They share little with the soldiers who test munitions here, other than morning exercise and mess-hall food.

"You hear the bombs go off all hours of the morning," Kia Orphanidys complains from her dormitory. But these recruits tend to be stoic. The AmeriCorps ethic, drummed into them from Day 1, is "getting things done."

AmeriCorps is about halfway through its first year, just getting its wings but already endangered.

A House subcommittee voted Thursday to cut $210 million from AmeriCorps' previously approved budget of $580 million for this year. Republicans would like to shut down the program, and a vote by the House may come next month.

AmeriCorps is a new federal program in budget-cutting times, a Clinton idea to give Americans an opportunity to do community service while getting something in return.

About 20,000 people are at work on its projects, devoting one or two years and getting money for education in return.

Most members work in the communities where they live. Aberdeen is one of four regional headquarters of a branch of AmeriCorps where members are drawn from scattered states and backgrounds and live away from home.

Sheryl Boone was cleaning houses, wondering how she'd ever get to nursing school. University graduate Chris Welch was back from the Peace Corps, questioning how his experience helping people abroad could be used at home.

Their goals differ. But they're on the same route now, trudging along a meandering stream and mapping it for future erosion control and cleanup.

"I figured this was one way that I could earn a scholarship towards school but nobody would be handing it to me," said Boone, 23. "It wouldn't be like Mom and Dad scraping up the money or just applying for federal aid."

These are the new barnraisers, some say, people pulling together to help others.

"We think we go right to that tradition," said Eli Segal, the national service chief.

Sheryl Boone stands in a storm drain runoff with a discarded picnic table behind her near Herring Run Creek in Baltimore. Boone's task is to survey the creek, then work with local school children to help clean-up and protect the stream for the future. She is a civilian foot soldier of President Bill Clinton's national service program, AmeriCorp. A House subcommittee voted recently to cut $210 million from AmeriCorp's previously approved budget of $580 million for this year.

"I see kids being immunized in Texas, crack houses being closed in Kansas City (Mo.), reading scores increasing in Simpson County, Kentucky, homes being built in Miami and weatherized in New Haven (Conn.)"

Critics would say neighborly barnraisers don't get paid. The reward is food, fellowship and the understanding the farmer who was helped will pitch in when someone else needs to raise the rafters.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich is "totally, unequivocally opposed to national service" that pays. Clinton calls it part of "our God-given responsibility to serve our fellow human beings" and rarely misses a chance to talk it up.

The program provides the rough equivalent of a minimum-wage job. Members get about $600 a month, and after one year's work, a $4,725 award for future tuition or past debts for college, trade or vocational school.

The nearly 200 Aberdeen recruits get their food and housing free, take night courses on everything from car care to negotiating, and roam where they're needed.

Howard Hogan, 22, was preparing for a Washington career using his degree in international relations when he was stirred by the call to service.

"I went and fought fires in Idaho," he said. "I've worked installing fire alarms in Queens (in New York City). We helped build a recreational center for children."

Welch taught school for the Peace Corps in Micronesia. His sponsor read about U.S. homelessness and AIDS and asked why his country had no Peace Corps for itself.

Protecting the Ogallala Aquifer

■ Conference working toward plan for limiting use of aquifer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Great Plains residents must reject government policy to exploit resources to the limit or risk depleting the huge underground sea that irrigates crops, a conference on the Ogallala Aquifer was warned.

"The history of agriculture on the Great Plains is a history of boom and bust, a history of government manipulation and subsidy," David Getches, head of the Natural Resources Law Center in Colorado, said in Thursday's keynote speech to the Great Plains Symposium 1995.

The two-day conference, which ends today, is the first of five planned over five years to create a "master plan" for the Ogallala Aquifer.

Getches cited the extinct passenger pigeon and the buffalo, which was pushed to the brink of extinction, as examples of the government's penchant for allowing overuse of resources. The Dust Bowl and the agriculture bust in the 1980s were the results of the government manipulation of agriculture, he said.

But people who live over the Ogallala can break the boom-bust cycle that has plagued the region's history if they start managing the aquifer, said Getches, a professor at the University of Colorado law school.

"The Ogallala can sustain people and farms indefinitely, but not under the pressure we're putting on it," Getches said.

"There is a history of pressing resources beyond a reasonable limit ... and leaving behind a swath of destruction," Getches said. "It's almost heretical to believe in limits, or to not believe in growth."

The Ogallala spreads over parts of eight states — South Dakota, Wyoming, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Colorado.

Its heavy use started about the same time the country was starting to believe Plains states didn't have enough water to support agriculture, Getches said. Now, 90 percent of water pumped from the aquifer irrigates government-subsidized crops.

The aquifer is being depleted at a rate of several feet per year, while it is being recharged at a rate of one-half to one inch, said Lori Triplett, the event's director and creator.

In an interview, Getches said he believed the eight states containing the aquifer should form a compact to "agree on a vision," and that the federal government should set overall standards affecting the aquifer.

"The decisions (however) need to be pushed down to the local communities," he said.

Academics and agrarians this week are debating the aquifer's future at the conference held at The University of Missouri-Kansas City Law School. Specialists in environment, geography and agriculture are discussing the aquifer with representatives from state, local and federal agencies.

Triplett said more than 2 million people live over the aquifer, and cultural, social an economic issues will be considered in creating a master plan.

Budget amendment narrowly fails in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deflated House Republicans say Senate defeat of their treasured balanced budget amendment may make it tougher, but they still will produce plans for eliminating the federal deficit.

"We're going to do our best," Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said after the Senate rejected the amendment by the narrowest margin Thursday. "We always thought we couldn't get it done without a balanced budget amendment and its full pressure. But we're going to try."

"It makes it harder," said his House counterpart, Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio. "You have to spend some energy making sure you don't have people relax. But it's a crusade. The crusade goes on."

That's just fine with President Clinton and his fellow Democrats, who know that the massive, unprecedented spending cuts necessary to balance the budget would enrage millions of voters. They quickly invited the GOP to proceed with its budget-cutting work, as House Republicans promised in their "Contract With America" campaign manifesto.

"They have still not presented their budget," Clinton told reporters at the White House. He added later that it was time for Republicans to show "how they are going to keep the promises of their contract on balancing the budget and paying for their tax cuts."

"Now is the time for the Republicans ... to roll up their sleeves and actually reduce the deficit," House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said.

The amendment, which was to be the flagship of the GOP effort to cut spending, zoomed through the House in January in just two days. But it was shot down by the Senate after nearly five weeks of debate. The vote was 65-35 in favor, just shy of the two-thirds majority constitutional amendments need.

That margin was deceptive because Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., an amendment supporter, voted "no" in a parliamentary maneuver that will enable him to force a second vote on the measure, probably during the [illegible] season.

But even as the amendment [illegible] they will push [illegible] tion measure [illegible]

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fort Riley suffers second double slaying

FORT RILEY, Kan. (AP) — In the second double slaying at Fort Riley in less than a year, two soldiers were killed and a third wounded at an Army barracks.

One of the dead soldiers was believed to be the gunman, said Sgt. Greg Binford, an Army spokesman.

A private weapon was used in Thursday's shooting, the Army said. Officials provided few other details and offered no motive.

The wounded soldier was in stable condition today at a base hospital.

Man kills wife, cousin over affair

BELMONT, Calif. (AP) — A man who killed his estranged wife and his cousin was apparently angry that they were having an affair.

Hector Rene Corzo also wounded his wife's brother before killing himself, police said Thursday. His 14-month old daughter, found cradled in her dead mother's arms, wasn't hurt.

After Corzo and his wife, Martha Julia, separated in December, she began a relationship with Victor Corzo.

Rene Corzo confronted his estranged wife and cousin in their house Wednesday, then started firing. He tried to shoot his wife as she ran to a bedroom to call 911, but ran out of ammunition.

Welfare cuts made by freezing deductions

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans want to cut food stamp costs by $16.5 billion over five years by freezing income deductions, capping overall spending and possibly curbing the annual adjustment for inflation.

The proposal would also disqualify many legal immigrants, according to an outline obtained by The Associated Press.

The House Agriculture Committee plans to vote on its proposal Tuesday as part of a larger House effort to overhaul all federal welfare programs and encourage recipients to work.

The degree to which individual benefits may be reduced will depend on how the Congressional Budget Office counts other efforts within the measure to cut costs from 1996 to the year 2000.

Scientist put together top quark puzzle

BATAVIA, Ill. (AP) — Two groups of physicists have completed a decades-old scientific jigsaw puzzle by isolating the long-theorized top quark, one of the subatomic building blocks of matter.

"There was this one piece of the puzzle missing," said Stanford University physicist Michael Peskin. "You know what shape it is and you know where it goes, but you're not satisfied until you can put it in the right place."

Physicists across the nation eagerly watched the announcement Thursday.

Man kills mail-order bride

SEATTLE (AP) — She was a mail-order bride from the Philippines trying to escape a marriage gone sour, seven months pregnant and hiding from a husband who she claimed beat her and refused to let her return home.

On Thursday, Susana Remerata Blackwell sat on a courthouse bench with two friends who were waiting to testify at her annulment hearing.

Police say her husband approached with a semiautomatic handgun and opened fire, killing all three women with shots to the head and chest. Mrs. Blackwell's fetus did not survive.

Timothy C. Blackwell was subdued by three prison guards who heard the shots from a nearby courtroom.

He "was standing in front of the people and he fired probably five or six shots," said Lois Edwards, an attorney. "We just turned and ran."

Blackwell, a 47-year-old computer technician, was arrested and booked for investigation of homicide.

There are metal detectors outside some courtrooms , but not at the two public entrances. Judges asked for a better security system three years ago, said the county's presiding Superior Court judge, Anne Ellington.

Officials planned to have metal detectors at the entrances when the courthouse reopened today.

Blackwell's lawyer, Adrian Pimentel, said he couldn't "in a million years" have anticipated the shooting. But Mrs. Blackwell's lawyer, Mimi Castillo, said Blackwell had acted strangely in court the day before — particularly after his wife testified he was impotent.

"He basically said a lot of things that were totally untrue and he ranted and raved in front of the judge and, you know, nobody wanted to agitate him anymore," Castillo told KIRO-TV.

The Blackwells were married in the Philippines two years ago. They separated early last year, two weeks after Mrs. Blackwell, 25, came to the United States.

Blackwell filed for an annulment. His wife filed for divorce, seeking $350 a month in alimony for only six months.

Memory fails witness except for alibi

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I don't remember."

Over and over, Rosa Lopez's interpreter repeated the answer the witness gave in Spanish: "No me recuerdo."

The Salvadoran maid couldn't remember the day, month or even season when she gave her alibi story to investigators for O.J. Simpson. She couldn't remember conversations with her employers, a police detective, two of her friends.

But Lopez could remember what she was doing at 30 seconds after 10 p.m. on June 12 — boiling water in a microwave oven. A few minutes later, she says, she took her employer's golden retriever for a walk and saw Simpson's white Ford Bronco parked in front of his mansion.

Under a grueling cross-examination, Lopez remained calm and confident as she stuck to her story — although she admitted that she didn't know the exact time she saw the Bronco and never told police what she had seen.

She is the only witness to place the Bronco at Simpson's estate about the time prosecutors say he was driving the vehicle to Nicole Brown Simpson's house and murdering his ex-wife and her friend.

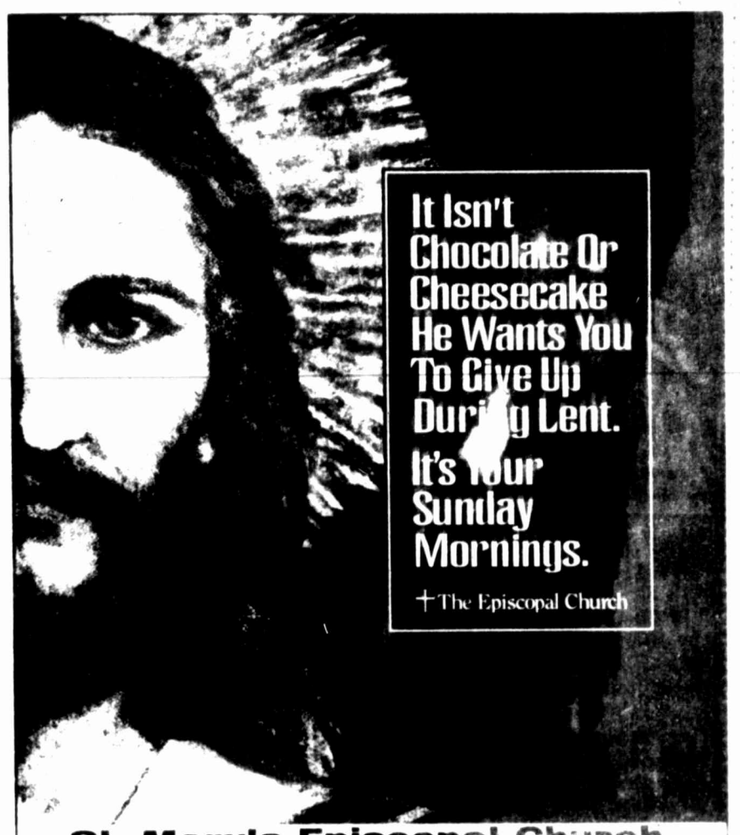

Shuttle crew prepares for some stargazing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Endeavour's crew and astronomers back on Earth focused and adjusted a $200 million set of telescopes today that will probe distant celestial targets during a marathon shuttle flight.

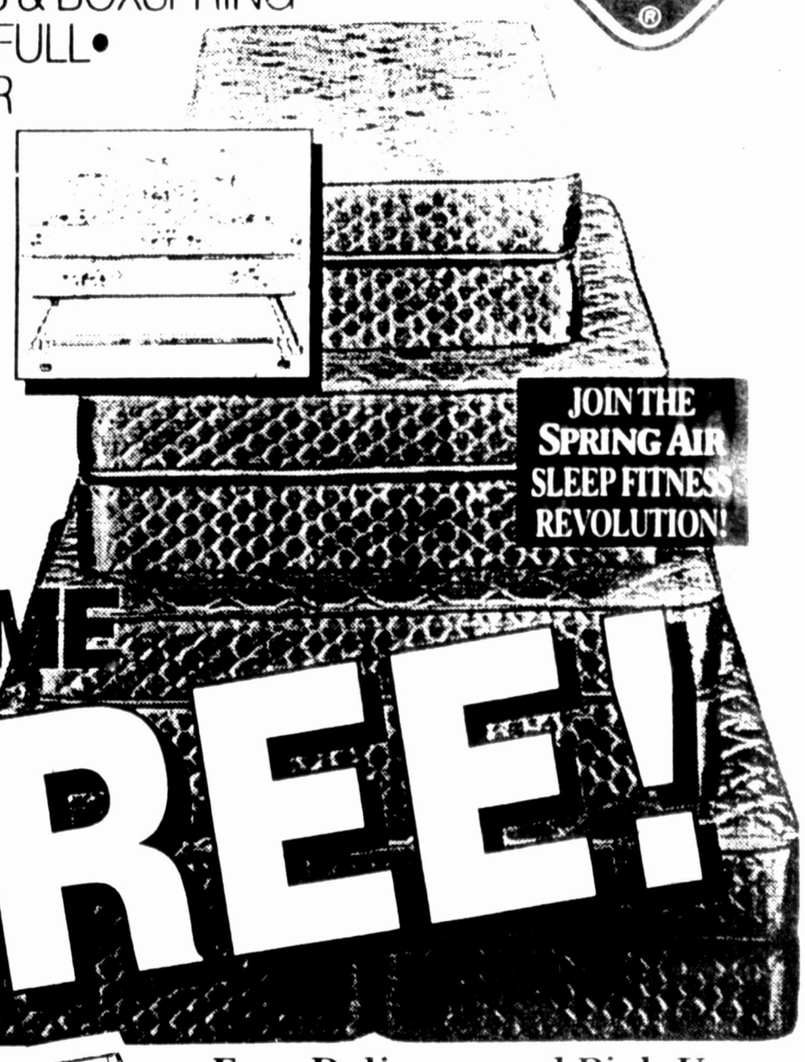

Four astrophysicists on the shuttle calibrated the three ultraviolet telescopes by pointing them at various stars chosen by ground controllers. Astronomical observations were to begin today.

Chechens search mass graves for loved ones

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — An arm rests across her head, an image associated with slumber. But the young woman is not asleep.

She lies in a pit among corpses charred beyond recognition, another victim of a three-month war whose resolution she will never see. Unsmiling people stand above her, scanning the inanimate faces to determine which of Chechnya's missing have become Chechnya's dead.

This was a snapsnot of the Chechen capital on Thursday — a place where a dead man's tattoo declared "God is with us." A place where Alexei Krapivin, who volunteered to help with the unpleasant work, had to wear a mask to prevent infection.

"It's difficult work," said Krapivin, 20, part of a team scouring Grozny's rubble for bodies. He recovered 200 from one district, then took them to the makeshift cemetery. "I have nightmares. I want to leave the city as soon as I can."

Moscow sent troops into Chechnya on Dec. 11 to end the republic's 3-year-old independence drive. They expected a quick resolution, but war has dragged on.

No one really knows how many lives have been lost. Both sides' estimates are in the tens of thousands.

On Thursday, fighting to the south of Grozny threatened to trap refugees fleeing into the Caucasus mountains, the international Red Cross said.

"The war is moving south," said Jean-Paul Corboz, the Red Cross field coordinator in Chechnya. He said fighting had almost reached Shali, 16 miles southeast of Grozny. But gunfire still echoed in the capital as well.

In a copse next to a more conventional cemetery in northern Grozny, roughly 400 bodies lay heaped in three large open pits, awaiting mass burial if no one identifies them. A statue of a Soviet soldier stood nearby, a memorial to the dead of another war.

Zura Matsayeva, 38, dressed in black, came to see if her husband, Zayendi, lay among the unclaimed dead. He disappeared more than two weeks ago.

"I've been looking for my husband for four days now," she said, tears in her eyes. "I don't know whether he is dead or alive."

Her 17-year-old son, Ramzan, accompanied her from rebel-held southern Chechnya. He held a scarf to his face to mask decay's odor.

Peacekeepers leave Somali to warlords

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — The peacekeepers are gone, and two years after the U.N. mission began, warlords once again are in charge in Somalia.

U.S. Marines on Thursday escorted the last U.N. peacekeepers from Mogadishu's shores to waiting warships, quietly ending the two-year, $2 billion intervention. The move of 1,500 American and 350 Italian marines from a small beach cove back to their ships ended ahead of schedule at 12:59 a.m. today.

The Pentagon said no American ships or aircraft would remain in the area.

The multinational mission failed in establishing a functioning government for Somalia, but it did end the massive starvation that, along with war and disease, killed 350,000 Somalis in 1992.

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said international efforts to bring peace and humanitarian aid to Somalia will continue.

He added, though, that the feasibility of aid deliveries would depend on cooperation of Somali leaders.

Most relief groups have withdrawn international staff from Mogadishu to reassess security, though the Red Cross is still providing emergency aid.

Emergency stocks of food and medicine have been stored in Somalia, and U.N. officials say Somalia had strong harvests the past two years, precluding an immediate return to widespread hunger.

Nine U.N. agencies and 38 private aid groups are still planning to run operations in health care, education and agriculture, but not in Mogadishu.

The Horn of Africa nation has lacked a government since former dictator Mohamed Siad Barre was ousted in 1991. Since then, Somali warlords have been unable to unite under one government.

Leeson almost home when captured

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — The British trader whose gambles led to the collapse of Britain's oldest investment bank was several steps ahead of a Singapore arrest warrant and almost home when police caught up with him Thursday.

Nick Leeson was escorted off a flight from Malaysia and detained by German police while authorities waited for an extradition request and arrest warrant accusing him of mishandling money and other charges.

Leeson repeatedly told police he wanted to return to Britain, where his employer, Baring Brothers & Co., was trying to figure out how one man could lose an estimated $1 billion and bring down the 232-year-old bank in a matter of weeks.

In its first comment on the case, Singapore's fraud squad said Thursday it was investigating a complaint by Baring Futures that the 28-year-old Leeson "committed offenses of forgery."

It said the Baring complaint was made to police Monday, four days after Leeson and his wife, Lisa Simms, had already fled their luxury condominium in Singapore, leaving newspapers at the door and laundry drying on the balcony.

The couple drove across the border into Malaysia, where they spent the night, then went on to a ritzy resort in Kota Kinabula.

Malaysia's Daily Express newspaper said Leeson went to Royal Brunei Airlines office in Kota Kinabalu on Tuesday, asked for the next available flight to Europe and paid $1,500 cash for the tickets.

Zakri Abdul Rashid, director-general of Malaysia's Immigration Department, said Leeson's flight left Wednesday night before immigration authorities could act on a police request.

Upswing in violence closes aid routes

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — An upsurge in fighting around Sarajevo and other areas of Bosnia and the closure of aid routes heralded another bloody Balkan spring.

By all indications, the Muslim-led government and rebel Bosnian Serbs were giving more credence to military force than a peace process that is going nowhere.

Serb snipers killed one person in Sarajevo on Thursday and wounded five others, including four Bosnian soldiers, the United Nations reported. One Serb civilian was killed in a Sarajevo suburb by Bosnian army fire, said Maj. Herve Gourmelon, a U.N. spokesman.

Elsewhere, fighting around Mala Kladusa in northwestern Bosnia ebbed this morning.

Lady Hawks pull off Region V three-peat

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sport Editor

DENISON – Boom, boom, boom.

Three straight wins.

A third straight trip to the national tournament.

That is the Reader's Digest Condensed version of the the story of the Howard College women's basketball team. To live through and understand the full story, you need A) the belief in the seemingly impossible, B) a confident, efficient arrogance that puts losing out of the question and C) tons of intestinal fortitude.

JOHNSON

The Howard Lady Hawks, ranked seventh in the nation, displayed all three traits Thursday in defeating No. 5 Grayson County College 73-70 in overtime for the Region V championship. The win puts Howard (38-4) in the national junior college finals for the third straight season – a feat that seemed nearly impossible with two minutes left in the game.

Grayson (31-3) had not lost on its home floor in Denison since 1991, and with two minutes remaining the Lady Vikings led 62-53. They had overcome a 10-0 deficit to take a 23-22 lead at the half, and they had answered every charge Howard made at them.

That was before Tiffany Johnson caught fire.

Johnson, Howard's 5-foot-9 sophomore wing from Wharton, nailed a three-pointer with 1:56 left in regulation to cut Grayson's lead to six. Howard had been 0-for-10 from three-point range before Johnson's trey.

After a Grayson miss, Howard freshman Kyna Cosby was fouled while sinking a putback of a Johnson three-point miss. Cosby missed the free throw, but a Grayson land violation gave her a second chance she used to make the score 62-59.

Within 10 seconds, Howard had the ball again after Grayson's Rameeka Lowe lost control of her dribble, and Johnson quickly sank another trey to tie the game with a minute remaining.

"We just had to dig down deep," Johnson said. "This is for all those people who doubted us. This regional title is for them."

Despite its amazing comeback, Howard entered the overtime period on a down note. After Lowe missed a three-pointer with 28 seconds in regulation, Howard held the ball for the last shot. After Howard kept possession on a jump ball because of the alternate-possession rule, Johnson took the last shot from directly under the basket with three seconds left. Johnson missed, Amber Lacey rebounded and missed, and a buzzer-beating attempt from Summer Swoboda fell short.

Three two-footers. Three misses. Overtime.

"We got fouled on one of those shots, but when you're the road team in the regional final, the referees aren't going to make that call," said Howard coach Terry Gray. "And that's fine. They don't want to decide the game. They gave us five minutes to play it out."

Grayson scored first in overtime, taking a 66-64 edge on Nater Dunn's driving layup. With 2:54 left, Swoboda was fouled on a shot and made the first of two free throws. her second shot trickled off to the Members of the Howard College Lady Hawks celebrate their 73-70 overtime win over Grayson County College in the Region V championship game Thursday in Denison. Howard now advances to the national junior college women's basketball tournament in Tyler.

Day three: Tyler, here we come

Thursday – the big day – and once again the weather was bad.

We got to sleep in since we were back so late the night before, and we had a make-shift shoot-around in the hotel ballroom at 12:30. The coaches had a lane taped out on the floor and we just walked through plays and things that Grayson runs.

After that we went to eat our pregame meal at T.G.I.F. Fridays. Following our meal we came back to the hotel to get our things for the game. We received flowers from (College President) Dr. Sparks and once again it was off to Grayson County College. We had quite a game ahead of us.

Summer Swoboda
HC Lady Hawks

When we came out to warm-up we seemed a little slow. But when the game began we started to put on the fire. We played great for 15 minutes and then we started slacking up a bit. We came out of the first half down by a point, so that made it extremely important that we pull together and get out on top again.

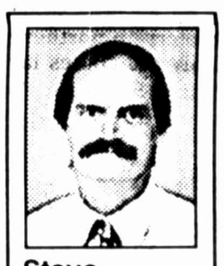

Our whole season had come down to 20 minutes - we were either going to do it or not. Well, we decided that we had worked too hard to let it slip through our fingers. We went out in the second half and played hard.

We got down a few and had plenty of chances to give in, but instead we pulled together and tied 64-64 at the end of regulation.

Overtime was a fight. We had to play super defense to come out the victors – and that was exactly what we did. Everyone was so happy and excited when the final horn sounded. What we had worked so hard for all year finally was in our hand.

Howard's triple crown worth gloating about

Steve Reagan
Sports Writer

I know I hate the word, but today I feel like granting a special dispensation: For the next 24 hours, it will be totally acceptable – within the boundaries of Howard County – to use "three-peat" when referring to the Howard College Lady Hawks.

Region champs. Again. And again.

Boy, what a rut.

Boy, what a team.

Do you think we can get the mayor to declare a city-wide day of gloating?

The Lady Hawks won their third straight Region V title Thursday night in Denison with their 73-70 win over Grayson College – and this title might be the most impressive of all.

Two years ago, regional crown number one was won on a neutral court in Waco. Last year, Howard took all the marbles in front of the home folks at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

But this year, with a new coach, a bunch of new players and playing before a hostile crowd in Grayson's own gym, the Lady Hawks proved again that they are the class of the region.

You don't think that's tough?

Imagine this: You're a 19-year-old kid, 400 miles away from your temporary home, playing a game that means everything in front of a group of folks who don't care for you one whit.

Then, imagine that the team you're playing has a better record, a better ranking, the love and support of that large crowd and the added benefit of sleeping in their own beds at night.

To sweeten the scenario, spot them a 10-point lead in the last half.

Then take the game into overtime.

Now, win.

Simple, huh?

Yeah, and driving nails with your forehead is a piece of cake.

Winning anything three years in a row is tough, but doing under the Lady Hawks' circumstances this year had to be doubly so.

The team had a new coach, Terry Gray, and only one starter, point guard Cathy Grice, back from last year's national tournament team.

The Lady Hawks had plenty of other sophomores back from that team, but during the season, two of them – Susan Orsak and Joy Bass – had to leave the team for various reasons.

Surprise! Baseball talks take turn for worse

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Baseball talks resume today with less hope and fewer people.

After the sides started talking in detail about taxes and revenue sharing, acting commissioner Bud Selig bolted from the talks, which moved to the verge of another breakoff.

"I'm going home because I'm tired, for the moment, of going nowhere," Selig said Thursday night.

Looking angry and frustrated, Selig and McMorris accused the union of refusing to state its position on luxury taxes unless owners rewrite their revenue-sharing plan.

"Clearly people can and have become frustrated from time to time," union head Donald Fehr said, adding he hoped the day's events were a "blip." He said he might make a new proposal today.

Facing the prospect of starting the regular season with replacement players on April 2, Selig said striking major leaguers should "quit nitpicking everything we do" and admit some teams have financial problems.

> You can blame the owners — nobody puts a gun to their heads. I have a 9-year-old granddaughter who understands how silly that idea is. I can assure you I'd be very disappointed if she didn't.
>
> Bud Selig

"You can blame the owners — nobody puts a gun to their heads," Selig said. "I have a 9-year-old granddaughter who understands how silly that idea is. I can assure you I'd be very disappointed if she didn't."

Mediator Bill Usery, who hasn't appeared at a news conference this week, appeared to have little authority left with the parties. Selig said assessing fault was pointless.

"It's easy to blame the other guy," he said. "You can blame Bill Usery. You can blame the weather in Montana. You can blame almost anything."

Remaining at the table for the owners will be McMorris, Chicago Cubs president Andy MacPhail, Philadelphia Phillies co-general partner Dave Montgomery and Milwaukee Brewers vice president Wendy Selig-Prieb.

McMorris, one of the more moderate owners, isn't sure anything has been accomplished since he joined the talks in August.

"We're probably at a point where the baton should pass to different owners and different attorneys," he said.

Chicago White Sox chairman Jerry Reinsdorf, whom the union views as the leader of the hard-line owners, could take over negotiations if there's no progress in the short term, McMorris said. While not participating in the small-group discussions, Reinsdorf has been at the talks all week.

McMorris said Robert Ballow could come in as the owners' new lawyer. Ballow, based in Nashville, Tenn., led management through strikes at the Chicago Tribune and the New York Daily News, and Fehr referred to him Thursday as "the Tribune union-buster." Some in management say he has been advising owners in recent months.

Washington leaves Cowboys

ASHBURN, Va. (AP) — Saying the way to build a solid defense is "down the middle," Washington Redskins coach Norv Turner praised the signing of unrestricted free agent safety James Washington as another step towards a return to respectability.

"James is a big, physical guy who likes to come up and hit people,' Turner said at a press conference Thursday announcing the signing of the seven-year NFL veteran.

"Receivers will be more conscious of him on the intermediate routes, and he also defends very well against the run," he said.

Washington joins former Buffalo Bills linebacker Marvcus Patton as the second free agent signed by the team since the end of the season.

Expansion voted slated

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Baseball's expansion committee will ask owners next week to vote on which two cities to add in 1998 and what price to charge for the franchises.

Phoenix and St. Petersburg, Fla., are overwhelming favorites to get the franchises, which are expected to cost from $125 million to $150 million. Two Virginia groups and one from Orlando, Fla., also have applied.

Cleburne, Silsbee advance to 4A finals at UIL girls state tournament

Class 4A Semifinals
Cleburne 50, Dallas Lincoln 49
Silsbee 59, Fredericksburg 32

Kim Lummus scored 19 points and hit two free throws with 38 seconds left to help Cleburne defeat Dallas Lincoln.

Cleburne (35-2) will play in its first state championship game on Saturday against Silsbee (35-1).

Dallas Lincoln (31-3), the 4A runner-up last year, had two chances to win in the final seconds and return to the championship game. But Shalecia Stewart missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw attempt with 4.5 seconds left and Tamicha Jackson, who led the Lady Tigers with 22 points, missed a short put-back as time expired.

In a seesaw second half, Cleburne took the lead for good, 48-47, on two free throws by Amy Lavender with 1:17 to play. But Lummus sealed the victory, hitting both ends of a one-and-one with 38 ticks left that put Cleburne up 50-47.

Robin Pruitt scored on a put-back with 20.4 seconds left to pull Lincoln within 50-49, but the Lady Tigers were unable to pull it out down the stretch.

In the other semifinal, LaQuan Stallworth scored 30 points as Silsbee broke open a close game in the third quarter and rolled over Fredericksburg.

Fredericksburg, which was led by Brett Henke with 16 points and nine rebounds, finished the year 31-4 after making its third state tournament appearance.

Silsbee, which has won 32 straight games, led 29-28 in the third quarter before Stallworth took over. She scored seven straight points, including a steal and coast-to-coast drive at the buzzer, as Silsbee took a 39-30 lead at the end of the period.

The Lady Tigers' quickness and full-court pressure didn't let up in the fourth quarter as Silsbee turned steals into easy baskets and outscored Fredericksburg 20-2 over the final eight minutes.

Silsbee turned 31 Fredericksburg turnovers into 36 points.

Class 3A Semifinals
Dripping Springs 61, Whitesboro 56
Bowie 52, Waco La Vega 46

Sarah Strait scored 20 points and hit two free throws with 21 seconds left to help defending state champion Dripping Springs knock off Whitesboro.

Dripping Springs (27-11), which will face Bowie (34-2) in Saturday's state championship game, overcame a 39-point, 13-rebound effort by Kera Alexander of Whitesboro (26-9).

With Dripping Springs leading 58-55 and 21 seconds left, Strait calmly stepped to the free throw line and put the game out of reach by hitting both ends of a one-and-one.

Whitesboro could muster only a free throw by Lindsay Greear after that as Dripping Springs earned its third straight trip to the 3A finals.

Twice in the third quarter Alexander hit 3-pointers to give Whitesboro a six-point lead, but each time Dripping Springs battled back.

In the other semifinal, Rene Hanebutt scored 25 points and dominated down the stretch as Bowie held off Waco La Vega.

Bowie (34-2) is making its first tournament appearance since 1960.

La Vega, last year's runner-up in 3A, finished the season 27-11 and was led by Stacey Bowers, who finished with 18 and scored 10 of the Lady Pirates' 12 points in the fourth quarter.

La Vega pulled within 48-46 with 1:21 to play on a put-back by Shameka Hall, but Paula Pickett and Hanebutt each hit a free throw for Bowie and Jennifer Stidham scored on a key put-back with 31 seconds left. La Vega missed three shots in the final minute.

Class A Semifinals
Sudan 88, Port Aransas 45
Alvord 70, Lipan 63

Danielle Martin scored 19 and Shaun Weaver added 17 as defending state champion Sudan defeated Port Aransas.

Sudan (38-0) is one of only two unbeaten teams in the tournament.

Port Aransas, led by Jackie Graham with 15 points, finished the season 34-5 after making its second appearance in the state tournament.

Sudan ran and pressed from the start and put the game away early, taking a 22-12 lead after the first quarter. The Hornettes forced 19 first-half turnovers by Port Aransas and turned them into 15 points.

Sudan built a 46-24 lead at halftime despite an early cold spell by Martin, a 3-point specialist, and poor free-throw shooting.

Muffin Davis had 12 points and 10 rebounds, Breanne Baker finished with 11 points and eight rebounds, while Lashell Weaver added 10 points and seven rebounds for the Hornettes.

Sudan is seeking its fourth state title. The Hornettes have won Class A championships 1983, 1987 and last year.

In the other semifinal, Kirstie Ledet led a dominant inside attack with 17 points and Alvord held off a late rally in defeating Lipan.

Alvord (33-3) will play in its first-ever title game on Saturday.

Lipan, led by Rene Stewart with 22 points, finished the year 34-4 after making its first appearance in the state tournament.

After playing to a 17-17 tie in the first quarter, Alvord broke the game open in the second quarter with a 13-4 run that gave the Lady Bulldogs a 32-21 lead.

With most of Lipan's team collapsed on the 6-foot-2 Ledet, Alvord's senior twin sisters Jammie and Jimmie Hachtel and Allison McKinney were free to roam the baseline for easy baskets and rebounds. Alvord, which is located north of Fort Worth, outrebounded Lipan 48-25. Lipan is southwest of Fort Worth.

Jammie Hachtel had 16 points, McKinney finished with 15 and Jimmie Hachtel added 14 points.

right, but Cosby rebounded and scored to give Howard a 67-66 lead. With 2:06 left, Cosby made the first and missed the second in another free-throw situation, and this time Lacey rebounded the miss and scored. The Lady Hawks had a 70-66 lead.

Howard had a chance to kill the clock and increase the lead, but Grayson's Deshunda Babb stole the ball from Joyce Howard and scored to cut the lead to 70-68 with 1:20 left. Cosby, however, returned Howard's lead to four with a pair of free throws, and Grayson's last gasp – Babb's three-point try with 25 seconds left – bounced away. Howard had defeated Grayson in the Region V championship game for the second straight season.

Johnson led Howard with 19 points. Lori Brown scored 24 for Grayson, 20 after halftime. Johnson and Cosby, who scored 18, were named to the all-Region V Tournament team, but the Most Valuable Player was Lacey, a 6-1 sophomore from Berkely, Calif., who scored 14 points and pulled down 19 rebounds. In the three Howard wins at the tournament, Lacey averaged 16 points and 12 rebounds.

"We could have fallen apart against this crowd here, being down by nine late in the game, and they hadn't lost here in four years, but we really pulled together," Lacey said.

"It's going to take awhile for this to sink in. They were 100-1 in home games before this, and now they're 100-2. It's just amazing, with all the turmoil this team has had, we still pulled together."

When asked what she meant by turmoil, Lacey said: "There were a lot of differences on this team at the beginning of the year, plus we were adjusting to a new coach. But it's not often that a first-year coach gets to go to nationals. We've just been through too much to turn back now."

Thanks to a fantastic come-from-behind win, Howard won't be turning back. The national tournament starts March 14 in Tyler – Howard's first-round game, time and opponent hasn't yet been determined.

Summer

After the celebration, interviews, and cutting down of the nets, we once again boarded the people-mover for the trip back to the hotel.

We stopped at Bennigan's for dinner before we turned in for the evening. That is if we can sleep because of the excitement.

We did it! Nationals here we come!

I want to say thanks to everyone who has supported us throughout and especially those who drove up to Denison through bad weather and all. It was really nice to see familiar faces cheering us to victory! Thanks again - see ya at nationals.

Oh, and they had everybody and their sister gunning for them. Three straight conference titles had made the Lady Hawks about as popular as a skunk at a garden party.

Though all that, and the grind of a 30-game season, the Lady Hawks survived – and then some.

And now they're going to nationals.

Again.

And again.

Yeah, I think a city-wide day of gloating is definitely called for.

Everybody, take a deep breath, puff your chest out, put a goofy grin on your face, and yell, "How 'bout them Lady Hawks?"

Three times the ladies.

Three times the champs.

You have until tomorrow to put "three-peat" somewhere in all that.

Howard College Lady Hawks – Region V champs.

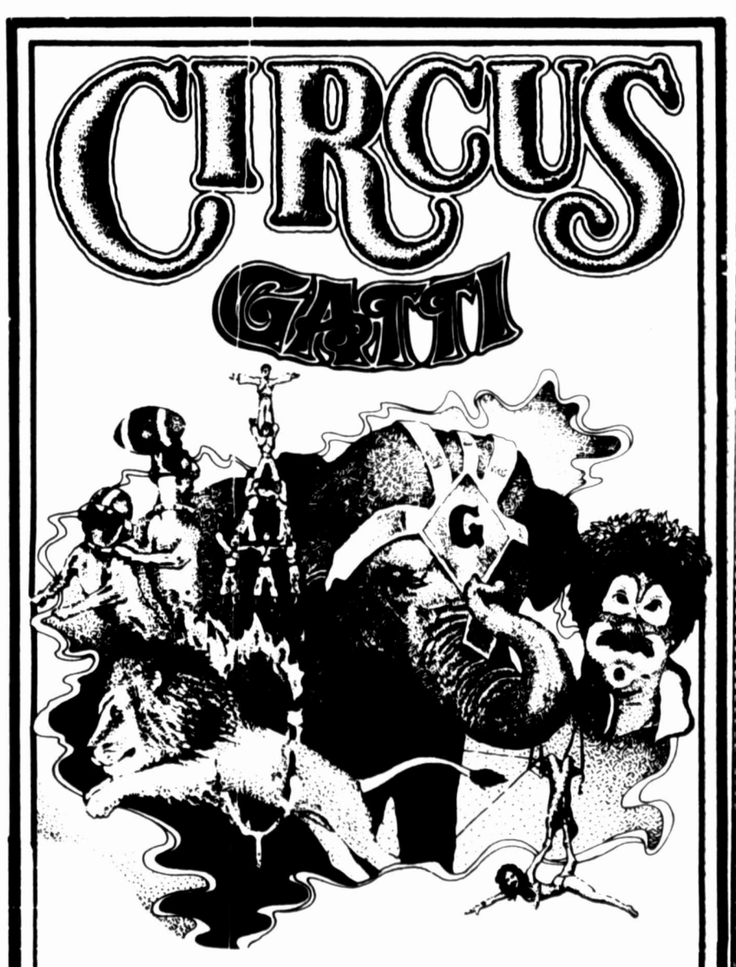

Roll that around on your tongue and see how it feels.

Support group to present seminar

By JANET AUSBURY
Features Editor

West Texas Living With CFIDS/FMS, also known as WTLC, will present a seminar 1-3 p.m. March 11 at the Golf Course Road Church of Christ in Midland, 3500 Golf Course Road. CFIDS/FMS stands for chronic fatigue immune dysfunction syndrome/fibromyalgia syndrome. These disorders share symptoms such as extreme muscle pain, extreme fatigue, headaches, poor memory and other afflictions that can't be attributed to other illnesses.

SAMUELS

Dr. Michael Samuels, a Dallas osteopath, will present information on human growth hormone (hGH), which has drawn attention because of its anti-aging capabilities. However, research has also linked lack of the hormone to fibromyalgia.

Samuels has appeared on several newscasts across the country, most recently on the Feb. 16 showing of "48 Hours" on CBS, to discuss hGH. WTLC is bringing him to Midland as part of National CFIDS Awareness Month.

"The hGH research applies to everyone regardless of age or any health problems they may or may not have," said WTLC President Linda Hagler. "This is why we want to let other communities know about this seminar."

The seminar is free of charge and open to the public. For more information about the seminar or WTLC, call Sarah Neisig, (915) 683-9114; Betty Cerf, (915) 682-2945 or Marsha Brunet, (915) 337-4829.

Professor's book offers brief history of sin

By JUDY TARJANYI
The Toledo Blade

It doesn't take much more than a quick read of the daily newspaper to see that sin is alive and well on planet Earth.

But stop in a typical church on Sunday morning and you're not likely to hear much about it.

Cornelius Plantinga wishes it weren't so.

He also knows that preaching hellfire and brimstone to congregations whose ears have been soothed by sweet sermonizing on love and grace isn't going to bring sin back as a popular pulpit topic anytime soon.

For now, he is offering Christians and anyone else who will listen a much-needed refresher course on the subject. In "Not the Way It's Supposed to Be: a Breviary of Sin" (Eerdmans Publishing), the professor of systematic theology at Calvin Theological Seminary, Grand Rapids, Mich., asks and answers the same question Karl Menninger posed in his 1974 book, "Whatever Became of Sin?"

Although Plantinga's project was hatched five years ago at a time when a book on sin seemed like a novel idea, its publication comes amid a flurry of activity on the subject.

Newsweek's Feb. 6 issue heralded "The Return of Shame" in a cover story that also asked "What Ever Happened to Sin?"

Media as diverse as MTV and Theology Today have devoted time and space to the subject recently, a film version of "The Scarlet Letter" starring Demi Moore is due out soon, and just before issuing Plantinga's book Eermans published "Ted Peters's Sin: Radical Evil in Soul and Society."

"It's fair to say that, as a topic, sin is back," Plantinga said.

He credits, in part, a heightened awareness of personal accountability at the national and political levels.

"A lot of people are scared to death about what is happening in the country and what they regard as signs of social pathology ... among young criminals who kill each other and others with seemingly no emotion, let alone a sene of remorse or guilt."

People also are concerned about the boom in unwed pregnancies, in violent crime, divorce, single-parent homes, and trouble in schools, Plantinga said.

> Frank acknowledgement of our sin is painful. It scuffs our pride. We all shrink from it.
>
> Cornelius Plantinga

That doesn't mean, of course, that Plantinga thinks the church or the secular culture are prepared to put on sackcloth and ashes.

"Probably the most important reason for the lapse in willingness to talk straightforwardly about sin is one that ... is as old as sin itself," he said. "That is that frank acknowledgement of sin is painful. It scuffs our pride. We all shrink from it.

"Therefore, if there is anything going on in the culture that tells us we're actually OK and there's nothing wrong at the core, we leap to that form of rationalization and let it deceive us. Our capacity for self-deception along these lines is fathomless."

Many mainline churches, Plantinga said, have backed so far away from sin that they consider it almost gauche to talk about personal accountability. But conservative and evangelical churches immersed in the church growth movement also have been guilty of ignoring or downplaying sin.

"If you're trying to build a booming church and entrepreneurial enterprise, you don't talk to seekers about sin. You talk about how you're going to make them flourish."

Plantinga said that when it comes to sin, churches likely have lacked courage in resisting cultural trends away from self-reproach and toward self-esteem. "In this area, the church is in Babylonian captivity to the culture."

Plantinga said clergy who want to renew a sense of sin in their congregations will find it is difficult to preach about sin to people who are not used to hearing about it.

"If you go back two or three centuries — even back to the '50s — people expected candor from the pulpit in this area. To make the transition, we need border concepts."

For example, he said, people will listen to a sermon about folly or foolishness. From there, a preacher can easily move to sin, which he defines as "not the way it's supposed to be," a breaking of the "shalom," the peace and harmony that God intended for creation.

In encouraging a return to a sense of sin, however, Plantinga emphasized that not all guilt and shame are good. False shame and guilt, he said, are unhealthy and can be used wrongly to manipulate people.

Good guilt, he said, "is an early-warning system telling us to come clean."

Big Spring Woman's Club to present style show

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Spring will be here before you know it, and it's time to start thinking about what will be in style this year. The Big Spring Woman's Club is sponsoring "Images of Spring," a style show and tea on March 9.

The event will be at St. Paul Lutheran Church, 810 Scurry, starting at 7 p.m. This event is the club's spring fund raiser and the money is donated to various projects in the city.

In years past, they have donated to Rape Crisis/Victim Services, Big Spring Police Department, Department of Public Safety, Spring City Tabernacle, West Texas Center for the Arts, Heritage Museum and Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

The event will feature 32 models showing styles for adults, teens and children from Beall's, Miss Royale, Beth Ann's, The Tom Boy, Anthony's, The Kid Shop, Piccadilly's, A Little Extra Boutique, The Cottage and LaLani Fashions.

There will be door prizes and gift baskets given away from area merchants. The tea will feature some recipes from two cookbooks club members have put together.

"Favorite Recipes from the Big Spring Woman's Club" and "More Favorite Recipes from the Big Spring Woman's Club" will be on sale for $11 each.

Tickets are $7 each. Contact Donna Palmer at 267-9681 or 267-3977 for more information.

The club is also hosting a seminar March 22 with Dr. Raymond Abrams, an obstetrics/gynecology surgeon associated with the Baylor Medical Center in Dallas. The event will be at the Dora Roberts Community Center at 7:30 p.m.

He will present a program about the onset, diagnosis and routes of treatment for breast cancer. A question and answer period will follow. This program is free and open to the public.

Commuters get religion with coffee

LOGANVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Need a little bit of religion with your morning coffee? The Rev. William Tenny-Brittian may be the answer.

Every Monday morning, Tenny-Brittian heads to the parking lot of his small Loganville church, where he dispenses hot coffee and the Holy Word to commuters on U.S. 78 east of Atlanta.

For two hours starting at 5:30 a.m., the black-robed preacher waves at passing motorists, most of whom never stop. Those who do stop can get a cup of coffee and a blessing, then head off again.

Tenny-Brittian, 37, started greeting commuters last September. His roadside ministry is successful, he said, because people want their religion to apply to their everyday lives.

"People are more concerned about the here and now and not the hereafter," he said. "They want to hear something inspirational to help get them through the work week."

Some motorists simply flash their high beams or honk.

Tenny-Brittian, who graduated from Emory University divinity school in 1992, said his congregation at Loganville Christian Church first thought he was nuts when he brought up the idea of greeting commuters. But the church agreed to buy the coffee and cups.

"I used to make 10 cups of coffee. Now, it's 20 to 30 cups," he said. "People are coming by and calling me their pastor."

Does church the unchurched sound wrong to you? Does save the unsaved sound better?

Maybe some other thing about church organizations rubs you the wrong way so you don't go to a church building but you are a part of the church that Jesus Christ started.

The scriptures that mention that we should not forsake the gathering of the saints lingers in your mind but what do you do about it?

Perhaps you have not joined the church that Jesus Christ started, you want to but church people just turn you off.

Well I don't have the answers and I don't want to start another church, but I do share some of the concerns I've mentioned and possibly some of the same concerns you have.

Why don't we get in touch and talk about meeting on Saturday or Sunday at some restaurant in town? 267-9412

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

AHITHOPHEL, LONG A MEMBER OF KING DAVID'S PRIVY COUNCIL, A WILY POLITICIAN, WHOSE ADVICE WAS VALUED AS WISDOM FROM A SACRED ORACLE, LEFT DAVID AND JOINED ABSOLOM WHEN THAT YOUNG PRINCE REVOLTED AGAINST HIS FATHER IN AN ATTEMPT TO SEIZE THE THRONE. BUT KING DAVID SENT ANOTHER MAN OF WISDOM, HUSAI, IN A PRETENSE OF JOINING ABSOLOM'S REBEL ARMY, TO COUNTERACT ANY OF AHITHOPHEL'S SAGE COUNSEL. WHEN ABSOLOM DID TAKE HUSAI'S ADVICE OVER HIS OWN, AHITHOPHEL KNEW THAT DAVID WOULD NEVER BE DEFEATED — SO HE LEFT THE ARMY, RETURNING HOME, WHERE HE PUT ALL HIS AFFAIRS IN ORDER — FOR HE KNEW WHAT TO EXPECT ONCE KING DAVID GOT HOLD OF HIM — AND HANGED HIMSELF!

HOROSCOPE

FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1995

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your temper could be short, and you might say things that you later regret. Review, get another point of view and detach. Your another point of view and detach. Your answers may not be the only ones. Tonight: Relax in you favorite way.*

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You need to stay centered. Conflict and change surround you. Others say things in hurtful ways, though unintentionally. Be open to a change in how you approach a loved one. Tonight: Vanish.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stay focused on your goals and you'll zoom through the day. A moment of sarcasm or abruptness may cause you to change plans and ignore your phone. Tonight: You are the party.**

CANCER (June 21-July 22): New techniques are important in dealing with those in authority. New technology in your office or at home is not working up to snuff. Tonight: Work late if you must, Otherwise head out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can detach yourself from events. Your sarcasm can make partners difficult, and you could be on the warpath when you hadn't really intended to. Tonight: Split, vanish, goodbye!*

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are going through profound changes. Your anger may burst through as you deal with a routine situation. Gain perspective about what's going on. Tonight: Be with your best friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Defer to others today because you will not get agreement. In any case, maintain a sense of humor and a certain level of detachment. Tonight: Go to your favorite hangout.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Use caution when dealing with finances. The unexpected occurs. There is a change coming up. Be especially aware of your long-term security and you will come out on top. Tonight: Curb spending.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A change in perspective is necessary. Your creativity soars. When you realize the ramifications of your initiatives, you might need to regroup. Tonight: You are where the fun is.*

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stay centered. Changes occur quickly. Be careful when dealing with finances. Another does not look at life and spend money in the same way you do. Tonight: Vanish while you are ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Express yourself, even if you get rebuffed. A sense of humor helps. When others realize what's going on, you will be able to make the inroads you sought.Tonight: Out and about.*

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Curb any tendency toward extravagance; it will not bring happiness and could bring problems. Communications are abrupt. Your energy is high, but misplaced. Tonight: Treat yourself to a nice dinner.

IF MARCH 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Change occurs this year in many different ways. How you approach your career and your desires is critical.

Be more willing to say no and you will gain in the long run.

Caring less couldn't be more confusing

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

DEAR ABBY: Which is correct: "I couldn't care less" or "I could care less"?

I have always said "I couldn't care less," meaning, "I could not care any less about it than I do now."

However, I have heard many people say "I could care less," which means, "I could care a lot less about it than I do now."

Thanks for clearing this up. -- CARING IN ARIZONA

DEAR CARING: Oddly enough, "I could care less" and "I couldn't care less," while literally opposite in meaning, have come to suggest the same lack of interest. Most copy editors and grammarians, however, prefer "I couldn't care less."

If there is any question, there is nothing wrong with the time-honored expression, "I don't give a hoot."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 43-year-old male, an only child -- the only one in my family able to carry on the family name.

My mother has been bugging me to get married since I was in my early 20s.

I have repeatedly asked her not to bring this subject up again, but she does anyway.

Her latest reason to nag me about my bachelor status is that her friends keep asking, "What is wrong with your son?" suggesting that maybe I don't like women.

Any ideas? -- BUGGED IN L.A.

DEAR BUGGED: Yes. Tell your mother to tell her friends that you like women so much you haven't decided which one you want to spend the rest of your life with.
