Laxalt foresees Reagan making re-election bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Paul Laxalt, selected by President Reagan to head the Republican National Committee, said Saturday he is convinced that Reagan will seek re-election in 1984.

"I got a clear enough signal to satisfy me," Laxalt told an administration official. That "signal," the senator said, followed his declaration to the president that he would refuse the post if Reagan would not run again.

"My political instincts told me he would be a candidate," the senator later told reporters, while acknowledging that uncertainty over the nation's unemployment rate, now at a 42-year record of 10.4 percent, could stay the president's decision.

Paul Laxalt

The choice of Laxalt was seen by one administration official as evidence the president was assembling a re-election team, and the senator's comments sent the strongest signal yet that Reagan would run again.

As he entered the White House grounds for a lunch with the president, Laxalt said the president had not told him what political course would be chosen.

"I'll be frank to tell you that if I personally didn't think that he was going to be a candidate, I wouldn't be accepting this position."

Other Republican officials said they, too, interpreted the choice of Laxalt, one of the president's oldest political allies and chairman of his 1980 election campaign, as a sign that the president would seek a second term.

The two-term Nevada senator would replace Richard Richards as party chairman.

While Reagan has never stated that he intends to seek re-election in two years, the 71-year-old president has been sending out signals that he might decide to seek a second term.

However, Reagan is following a cautious path.

An early declaration of a re-election bid would risk tainting every step he takes with allegations of political motives and force many activities into categories regulated by campaign finance laws and equal time requirements for political broadcasts.

By contrast, should Reagan announce too soon that he is stepping aside after one term, or even send out signals that he is not interested in re-election, he would lose much of the leverage of an incumbent president.

The president's top advisers seem about equally divided in their expectations about what course the president will choose, and deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Saturday morning "he honestly has not made up his mind."

One administration official, discussing Reagan's decision to place Laxalt in the chairmanship, said the move "gears the president up to run in '84, putting his old chairman in charge."

"He will have the people and options in place," said this official, asking that he not be further identified. "It sends a clear signal that the right people are in place for the president to seek re-election in 1984."

Emerging from the White House with Richards on Saturday, Laxalt said he told the luncheon guests that while Reagan had given him no formal commitment, "my political instincts told me he would be a candidate."

The president's response? "He smiled," Laxalt said.

"I would think he should make his intentions known next year, I would hope as early as possible," he said of Reagan.

The senator acknowledged that the chairman is expected to remain neutral until the party's presidential candidate is chosen. "I'm not very good at neutrality," he confessed. "I'm a Reagan man."

Laxalt said the president was delaying an announcement because he did not know what political situation would be in two years. Unemployment is "one of the problems," he acknowledged.

GOP hopes dashed by recent balloting

BY EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican dreams of becoming the nation's majority party suffered a serious setback last week with the loss of 26 seats in the House of Representatives and devastating defeats in gubernatorial and legislative elections.

The Democratic coalition, more dependent on women and minorities than before, emerged to increase the party's chances of retaking the White House and the Senate in 1984. Union members, long a central component of Democratic strength, also returned to the fold in large numbers.

The Republicans lost leadership last Tuesday of at least 11 state legislative houses, breeding ground for future national leaders. The GOP had held control of 25 of the 99 state legislative bodies.

And the GOP lost seven of its 23 governorships, losing its dominance of the Midwest. In 24 states now, Democrats control the governorship and both legislative houses.

"A newly elected Democratic governor will be the best person in the best place to make a difference in the 1984 election of a president," says Democratic National Committee chairman Charles Manatt. "I think the chances of taking back the White House in 1984 are vastly improved by the election results of 1982."

The Associated Press-NBC News polls of voters on Tuesday said that Democrats owed many of their victories to women, blacks and union workers.

In the Michigan governor's race, for example, the poll said Democrat James Blanchard won on the strength of leading Republican Richard Headlee by a 56-41 edge among women and a 90-10 margin among black voters. Headlee had narrow margins among whites and men.

In the Texas governor's race, Mark White's unexpected victory can be traced to his winning the women's vote by a six-point margin and the black and Hispanic votes by big margins. Republican Gov. William Clements won the majority of white and male votes.

Women's political clout wasn't substantial enough to carry the premier races involving women candidates. Democrats Harriett Woods narrowly lost to Missouri's Sen. John Danforth, while Roxanne Conlin and Madeleine Kunin failed to win governor's chairs in Iowa and Vermont. And Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., the top GOP female contender, was upset in her Senate race.

New study indicates OPEC's problems aren't permanent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any forecast predicting the demise of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is premature and the oil cartel could plunge the world into a third energy crisis as early 1986, a new study said Saturday.

The study by Cambridge Energy Research Associates said the current situation — where OPEC is struggling to maintain a $34-a-barrel price for its oil in the face of a worldwide glut — is not permanent.

"With only a modest economic recovery, the world will once again become vulnerable to that volatile mixture of oil and politics that leads to disruptions and higher prices," the study said.

The 22-year-old cartel has experienced strains since the oil glut developed and despite the $34-a-barrel benchmark price and production limits set six months ago, some members have been engaged in price cutting and overproduction.

The study by the private consulting firm said any swing in world energy demand is magnified in demand for OPEC oil.

The current 1 percent decrease in world energy consumption since 1979 has translated into a 40 percent drop in demand for OPEC oil, the study said.

The reason for the wide variation is that all of the decline in world energy consumption has been borne by oil and specifically by OPEC production,

Smoother sailing ahead?

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.
Editor-in-Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

NEW YORK — The American voters stumped the experts and the pollsters by sending out a mixed message with the results of their choices.

There was no change in the composition of the Senate. It remained the same as before election day, 54 Republicans and 46 Democrats. In the House of Representatives, the Democrats picked up around 26 seats, pretty normal for a midterm poll. We should remember that President Truman lost 55 House seats in 1946 and 12 Democratic senators. Then, he went on to rack up his astounding upset victory over Tom Dewey in the presidential elections of 1948.

Despite partisan claims to the contrary, President Reagan isn't impaired in the strenuous business of governing our vast and most complex nation. He may have to trim some economic legislation, I think, but the president certainly doesn't intend to slacken his determination to keep cutting back on government spending and making the federal bureaucracy leaner and sharper. We must be doing something right because major West European stock markets zoomed like ours which hit its highest mark — ever. Our friends and allies liked the Senate staying in Republican hands.

Woman's nursing career 'nurses' her

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Rona Crabtree may think she started her nursing career a "little late," but she certainly hasn't thought about leaving it early.

The 70-year-old woman is still going strong after 40 years in the "caring" profession.

Observing this petite, prim lady, you'd swear she couldn't be a day over 50. What's her secret? That's it! A secret.

While examining her creamy complexion — highlighted with a hint of pink on her lips — you might think she's one of those girls who use the soap that floats. But, after some probing, she'll slip a clue that a good scrubbing daily with a popular cleansing cream, soap and water does the trick.

"And good genes!" Miss Crabtree exclaimed.

And speaking of "jeans," Miss Crabtree is never seen in anything but the traditional white dress topped with a starched winged cap.

"I wear pants off duty all the time — they're comfortable — but I've never worn pants on duty. I don't feel I'm in uniform unless I have my dress and cap on," the dusky gray-haired woman said.

A BRISK, FIVE-BLOCK march each way to work for the last 15½ years has contributed to her girlish figure, but she claims her eating habits that include "a good breakfast, no lunch and anything I want for dinner — in moderation," keep her in shape.

"I weigh the same today that I did in 1942," she boasted.

She's never owned a car. In fact, she never learned to drive. A big family and a stint in the Army have kept her afoot.

"I had too many brothers who took me everywhere," she said. "I walk every place. People have been known to set their clocks by my walk to and from work."

Miss Crabtree was left motherless at an early age, taking the responsibility for her seven younger brothers and a sister.

At 25 she entered nursing school, graduating by the age of 30 from Scott and White Hospital in Temple. She entered the Army in 1942.

She recalled her travels to Australia, the Philippines and New Guinea as a second lieutenant in the Army Nurses Corp.

SHE REMEMBERS those long, tiring — sometimes "crazy" — days in tent hospitals, not unlike the popular comedy series M*A*S*H.

"M*A*S*H is a comedy, and although it wasn't quite like that, I can remember some similar amusing things back in those days when I was in the field hospital," she said, adding that it's easier to recall the funny incidents and block out the unpleasant experiences.

"That's one time I did wear pants — khakis," she chuckled. "We were in tents close to the front. We had 18 nurses and 21 doctors in the New Guinea field hospital."

As she relived those past years, her eyes twinkled and the corners of her mouth turned up.

"It was muddy out there (tent hospitals)," she explained. "Inside the tents we had floors, but between the tents it was muddy.

Dressed in her khakis, leggings and boots, she traipsed through the New Soviet capital prepares to celebrate revolution

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow was ablaze with red flags and patriotic banners Saturday and shoppers stocked up on food and vodka in anticipation of the military parade marking the 65th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

President Leonid I. Brezhnev's portrait disappeared from a key boulevard for several hours, prompting speculation of a major political upheaval. But a new poster of Brezhnev was put up and the rumors quickly subsided.

Brezhnev and other Kremlin officials were expected to review troops, artillery and missiles Sunday from atop the red marble tomb of Vladimir I. Lenin, mastermind of the world's first Communist state.

More than 3,000 troops and several hundred weapons were to be shown in the 45-minute military review, which traditionally includes a short speech by Defense Minister Dmitri Ustinov.

Western sources said an armored infantry vehicle that is the workhorse of Soviet troops in Afghanistan will be displayed in the parade for the first time.

Armed with two machine guns and an anti-tank missile, the amphibious vehicle is rated one of the world's best troop carriers.

AMBASSADORS OF AT least seven Western countries — the United States, Britain, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — were planning to boycott the parade to underline their governments' continued disapproval of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

According to Western estimates, more than 100,000 Soviet troops have been sent to the neighboring country to battle Moslem insurgents opposed to the Marxist government of Kabul. The intervention began in December 1979.

Tens of thousands of Muscovites will also march across Red Square carrying placards and banners hailing Soviet Communism and the Kremlin leadership and condemning "Western imperialism."

The weather forecast called for snow and gusty winds.

High winds swept Moscow early Saturday, and there was some speculation this is what knocked Brezhnev's 5-by-10-foot portrait off a billboard on Kutusovsky Prospekt, the route he normally he takes to and from the Kremlin.

Portraits of Lenin, Brezhnev and other Communist luminaries were put up earlier in the week along main thoroughfares around Moscow, but Brezhnev's long-time heir apparent, Andrei P. Kirilenko, was absent.

Soviet sources said this was a confirmation that Kirilenko, 76 and reportedly in failing health, had retired from the ruling Politburo.

BREZHNEV, WHO TURNS 76 on Dec. 19 and is also said to be in frail health, has been described by some Soviet informants as contemplating retirement.

However, any speculation about an immediate change in Brezhnev's status was silenced when Soviet workmen put up a new portrait on Kutusovsky Prospekt at 1 p.m., two hours after a Western reporter noticed the first one was gone.

There was no official explanation of what happened to the first Brezhnev portrait, but some Muscovites suggested the cloth picture may have been damaged when strong winds swept the city overnight and had to be replaced.

Polish Politburo says strike 'serious threat' to peace

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Communist Party's ruling Politburo said Saturday that a planned strike and protests called for Nov. 10 by the outlawed Solidarity union pose a "serious threat" to national peace.

A statement distributed by the Polish news agency PAP and read over national television said, "The Politburo asked the government to firmly counteract every irresponsible, adventurous action violating social order and the security of the state and its citizens."

It claimed that "anti-socialist" opponents inspired by "subversive forces" in the West sought to incite "strikes and riots with consequences that would halt the tendency...for getting out of the economic crisis."

Underground leaders of Solidarity, which was suspended when martial law was imposed Dec. 13 and then outlawed by Parliament last month, have called for an eight-hour national strike on Nov. 10 to be followed by street marches.

Warsaw Solidarity leader Zbigniew Bujak and two lieutenants, in a statement circulated here last week and dated Oct. 26, urged union members to join in a protest march starting at the courthouse where Solidarity was legally registered on Nov. 10, 1980.

It said the marchers should scatter and regroup if attacked by police and continue on to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Warsaw's Victory Square, and then disperse "peacefully."

The Politburo, meeting under party and government chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, said party members "should take every necessary step aimed at securing calm and undisturbed work."

Spanish communist resigns

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Santiago Carrillo, leader of Spain's Communists for 22 years and a harsh critic of the Kremlin, resigned Saturday because of the disastrous party showing in the parliamentary elections.

"If the election results had not been so poor and personalities did not play such an important part in putting the party back together again, I would still be secretary general," he told reporters Saturday night.

"I'm going to work to help the party out of this crisis," he said, but added that he refused to be part of the party secretariat.

The Communists held on to just five of 23 Parliament seats they had won in 1979 elections, a showing poorer than even some regional parties. The Socialist Workers Party, headed by Felipe Gonzalez, emerged from the elections with its first absolute majority, winning 201 of 350 seats in the lower House of Parliament.

A party spokesman said Gerardo Iglesias, 37, was under consideration by the central committee to succeed the 67-year-old Carrillo. Iglesias heads the the Communist Party in the heavily communist mining region of Asturias in northern Spain, Carrillo's home turf. Little is known about him on a nationwide scale, however.

Carrillo went into exile in 1939 at the close of the Spanish civil war, traveled to the Soviet Union, the United States and Argentina, settling finally in France in 1944.

Germans protest new chancellor

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — About 50,000 union demonstrators turned out in this North Sea port city Saturday to protest what the German trade union federation DGB called the anti-employee policies of Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

Georg Benz, a spokesman for the leftwing West German metal workers union, demanded a complete reform of the national economic system. It was the third consecutive week for protests against the Kohl's new conservative-liberal government coalition.

About 150,000 demonstrators turned out in Stuttgart last week and about 200,000 people demonstrated at three separate rallies across West Germany on Oct. 23 to protest unemployment and what the unions said were economic and finance polices favoring the wealthy.

Gunman sentenced for ambush

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — One of four gunmen who ambushed a car carrying Turkish Consul-General Kemalil Demirer this summer was sentenced Saturday to six years imprisonment.

Convicted of attempted murder in the June 20 attack was Penyemin Evingulu, a Turkish national of Armenian descent. The court said it was satified he fired several machine rounds at the car carrying Demirer and his driver. Both men escaped unharmed.

At his trial last month, Evingulu claimed he only gave "covering fire" to the other three gunmen, who escaped after the shootout, and had no orders to kill the consul-general. He said he was acting on orders from the Armenian Red Army, based in Beirut, Lebanon. Since 1974 Armenian militant groups have claimed responsibility for the assassination of 22 Turkish diplomats worldwide.

Two escape from Iron Curtain

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — An East German woman escaped into West Germany Friday night and a Czechoslovakian refugee reached Bavarian territory Saturday morning, border guards reported.

They said the 31-year-old woman crossed the border at an unmined section of the border and the man, also 31, got around the obstacles along the Czechoslovak-West German border.

The border guards declined further details about the two seperate escapes for security reasons. The names of the two people were not released.

Thirteen people die in bus explosion

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — At least 13 passengers died Saturday when a bus carrying firecrackers exploded on an expressway outside Manila, the official Phillipine News Agency reported.

Police in the Manila suburb of Paranaque said only one passenger managed to escape by jumping from a window of the burning bus, which crashed through a fence along the expressway.

PNA said police theorized a short circuit in the engine ignited an undetermined amount of firecrackers apparently being transported to the nearby town of Muntinlupa for the Christmas season.

Khadafy ends visit to Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy ended his official visit to Yugoslavia and headed home Saturday, the official news agency Tanjug said.

Khadafy had arrived here Tuesday and was originally due to leave Thursday. It was not clear why he extended his stay after talks with Petar Stambolic, current chairman of the collective State Presidency.

Agreements were signed for long-term economic and scientific-technical cooperation, Tanjug said, adding both countries agreed to establish a joint investment company.

Prime's spy trial starts this week

LONDON (AP) — Geoffrey Arthur Prime, a former translator of Russian accused in Britain's latest spy scandal, will be tried this week on espionage charges, Scotland Yard said Saturday.

A spokesman who did not want to be identified said the case will be heard in London's Old Bailey criminal court sometime during the week, but the exact day has not been determined.

Prime, 44, an employee of Britain's Government Communications Headquarters at Cheltenham from 1968 to 1981, was charged July 7 with passing information to a foreign power. He is imprisoned without bail.

Industry at standstill in Mexico, awaits advent of new president

By PETER EISNER

MEXICO CITY (AP) — While a financial time bomb ticks away, Mexican industry has ground to an economic standstill, awaiting the inauguration Dec. 1 of President-elect Miguel de la Madrid.

Industry is complaining of scattered warehouse shortages because of what it says are strict and confusing import regulations, while business leaders warn that one in seven companies could go bankrupt in a continuing recession.

Even before de la Madrid succeeds his one-time political mentor, President Jose Lopez Portillo, the nation faces a Nov. 23 deadline on resuming interest payments on the nation's $81 billion foreign debt.

An Analysis

It also faces a threat of nationwide strikes unless big business agrees to negotiate emergency wage hikes workers claim are necessary to counteract a 100 percent inflation rate.

Little has been made public about de la Madrid's plans for solving the worst recession to hit Mexico in more than half a century. But he is widely believed to be distancing himself from Lopez Portillo, who nationalized the nation's private banking system and imposed strict currency controls on Sept. 1 to halt the flight abroad of badly needed dollars.

The currency controls were accompanied by a complex series of government import and money conversion regulations that critics claim have stalled Mexican commerce.

Some companies say they will be forced to lay off workers because they can no longer import spare parts and tools. The drug industry, among other importers, has warned of spot shortages because they cannot obtain the dollars necessary to make foreign purchases.

Before de la Madrid takes office, the nation must arrange to resume foreign debt payments, suspended for 90 days following a meeting between Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog and key international bankers. The 90-day period ends on Nov. 23.

The government is negotiating with the United Nations-affiliated International Monetary Fund in Washington to obtain a $4.5 billion bail-out loan to meet the debt payments.

Treasury officials say the IMF negotiations are continuing and an accord could be reached before the deadline for resumption of debt payment.

Mexico's financial crisis developed after years of big spending for development. Lower oil prices on the international market created a multibillion shortfall in revenues and the nation faced problems in meeting current principal and interest payments on its foreign debt, largest in the Third World.

Building projects ground to a halt, a development plan for Mexican oil was curtailed and the reverberations left hundreds of thousands out of work in a nation facing chronic unemployment. Unofficial estimates are that more than 40 percent of the Mexican work force is either unemployed or underemployed.

Lopez Portillo has been blamed increasingly for imprudent spending policies and for failing to halt the flight of dollars in a period of uncertainty and lack of confidence in the nation's economy.

Business leaders reacted angrily to the bank nationalization order, which Lopez Portillo said would halt the flight of dollars and prevent the banking sector from what he called "sacking the country." Financial observers charged the bank nationalization was no more than a cosmetic measure to rally support in Lopez Portillo's waning months in office.

Cameroon gets second president

YAOUNDE, Cameroon (AP) — Prime Minister Paul Biya on Saturday became this prosperous African nation's second president, promising to continue his ailing predecessor's efforts toward unity of the nearly 100 tribes speaking 24 languages.

The 49-year-old life-long public servant and prime minister since 1975 replaced Ahmadou Ahidjo, 58, who announced his resignation Thursday.

WEATHER SUMMARY

AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service predicts showers for parts of the Pacific Northwest for Sunday. Canadian cold air will affect temperatures in most northern climates of the country, while a warm air mass will continue moving northeast in the lower Mississippi River Valley states.

It's perfect weather for washing dog

If you've put off washing the dog for fear he or she might catch cold, you won't have to worry about that today.

Assuming the accuracy of the forecast from the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the temperature today should be in the 80s. Tonight's low is scheduled to be in mid-40s.

Skies will be fair through Monday, with Monday's mercury nudging the upper 70s. The winds today will be balmy and southerly at 10 to 15 mph.

The record high for this date was 84, set in 1977. The low was 22 and frosted what pumpkins may have been left rotting in November fields back in 1938.

Reagan says jobs 'most urgent priority'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, sounding a more conciliatory note as he faces a greater Democratic majority in the House of Representatives, said Saturday that "jobs must be our most urgent priority."

Outlining his priorities for the "workable combination of Republicans and Democrats" elected to the 98th Congress last Tuesday, the president said "cooperation will be the key to continue leading America to recovery."

The Republicans lost a net of 26 seats in the election, and White House officials have conceded that this will increase the pressure on Reagan to compromise.

Reagan's emphasis on fighting joblessness, rather than inflation, reflects the success of his efforts to lower inflation, now at 4.8 percent. But it also demonstrates his inability to control unemployment, which has reached a 42-year record of 10.4 percent. And it represents the failure of a campaign promise to battle price hikes without putting people out of work.

BUT, SAID REAGAN, "the groundwork is being laid for the rejuvenation of our economy and the return of millions of Americans to our country's work force."

The president used his weekly radio address to the nation to urge Congress "in these times of deep unemployment" to follow his path to reduced government spending.

Giving the Deomcratic response to Reagan's radio speech was Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., who urged Reagan to join with the Democrats in an effort to reduce unemployment.

"For 11.6 million Americans, this is not a season of hope, with our nation facing its worst employment situation in 42 years," Coelho said.

He noted that "while there are some positive economic signs on Wall Street, the people on Main Street need some positive signs that their government — including their president — is listening. As we approach this holiday season, there is no better time for you, Mr. President, to join in finding ways to put America back to work."

In a message directed at both the new Congress that will take over in January, and the lame duck group that will meet in a special session at the end of this month, Reagan said "campaign rhetoric and partisan politics must be set aside."

As for the special session, he said, "our needs are too urgent to wait until next year. We must not fritter away the time while millions of our people are barely hanging on. The economic health of America is at stake."

WHEN CONGRESS RETURNS in January, he said, it faces five Reagan priorities:

—Approval of 11 appropriations bills to govern spending in the current fiscal year. "I will use the veto, if necessary, to keep them within the budget," the president said in the speech from the Oval Office.

—Passage of a proposal to amend the Constitution to prohibit deficit spending except in wartime. The current Reagan budget is expected to set deficit records, and administration officials have acknowledged that fighting the deficit will not be their top budget priority. White House officials have said that the greater Democratic majority in the House will make passage of such a constitutional amendment measure "very, very tough."

—Work on revision of government regulations to improve the efficiency of both government and industry.

—Passage of the Reagan plan to create "enterprise zones" that would grant tax and other advantages intended to stimulate designated depressed areas by encouraging industries to expand in certain inner city neighborhoods.

—Approval of a new clean air bill "to protect the environment and make it possible for industry to rebuild and create more jobs."

"Campaign cliches must give way to action," Reagan said.

THE PRESIDENT SAID that the 10.4 percent unemployment rate, announced by the Labor Department on Friday, was "only a cold government statistic."

"But behind it are real people who are hurting," he said. "I'm not going to sugar-coat this news because I cannot hide my own personal ache."

He continued:

"In our efforts to revive our economy, jobs must be our most urgent priority and lasting solutions must be our constant and consistent principle."

EDITOR'S REPORT

House aides, declared that President Reagan will "stay the course" on his economic program even if there's tougher going because of GOP losses in the House. He conceded that the president will have to accommodate more with congressional critics, as noted here well before voters went to the polls.

A working coalition is essential to bringing our country out of the economic swamp. This is the prevailing view of many diverse personalities, including those who have frequently assailed "Reaganomics." The major objective must be to get America sound and on the right track.

As has been the historical case with our midterm elections, there were some startling upsets across the country in senatorial, congressional and governors' races. There also were contests that went right down to the wire, which even TV in their network haste to be first said were much too close to call. I think that television must have spent nearly as much on these elections as some candidates, spotlighted for pouring in money as if it went out of style. The big spenders used lavish funds to pay for TV ads.

In Western Europe, a fixed limit is placed on TV appeals. Even commercial TV strictly limits what a candidate can buy. In Britain, for instance, the BBC limits the two big parties to a few free spots. A small party usually gets one shot of a couple of minutes at no cost. I've always thought that American ingenuity could come up with an idea to limit electioneering on TV and also somehow impose a time for campaigning. There were instances when I really longed for the return of pro football.

Anyhow, to get back to some of the more noteworthy upsets in the elections a couple immediately spring to mind. Gov. Jerry Brown, trying to win a Democratic Senate seat in California, was upended by Pete Wilson, Mayor of San Diego, the Republican contestant.

Personally, I wanted Brown to win. Why? So he'd go to Washington, D.C., for six years and be just one of 100 Senators and a junior on the totem pole. He has served two terms as governor of our biggest state, so, having lost I have an awful hunch he might be elected next time around.

In a startling upset, George Deukmejian went to the last 5 percent of the vote for the governorship vacated by Brown and squeaked past Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, the fine Democratic candidate who sought to become the first elected black governor. Polls had placed Bradley comfortably ahead. So I was somewhat surprised myself considering all the predictions.

Then, right across America, in New York State, we had a lulu of a contest nobody forecast. Lewis Lehrman, a businessman who came from nowhere politically to win the GOP nomination for governor of New York State and also the endorsement of the Conservative party, had to prove with his own talent that he meant what he said. His stand baffled the regular pros but he smeared them in primaries. Lew is an old friend and neighbor. In past conversations, I often warned him that he couldn't manage politics as successfully as he did business enterprises. Simply stated, Lew is incapable of doubletalk or saying what he doesn't mean.

All the polls and pundits had him way behind the Democratic candidate, Lt. Gov. Mario Cuomo, a veteran politician. But the predictions went awry and Lehrman came awfully close to winning. It would be, I believe, a good thing for this state and the nation at large if Lew's ideas were taken to heart.

After the elections President Reagan appeared before the media with Vice President Bush beside him. He was in good humor, observing that he was pleased with the results. The president added emphatically an offer to work "in bipartisan fashion" with Democrats in the House. That's the way it should be for the good of us all. A number of key Democratic leaders also expressed a willingness to cooperate and work with the administration.

Even with a high rate of unemployment, the Democrats were unable to translate discontent into votes because they failed to come up with a sound alternative economic solution. That is the essential meaning of the results.

As I understand it, "stay the course" is a nautical term. Being a landlubber my unsolicited advice to the president would be to allow for a little leeway, left or right, in steering the Ship of State. A few degrees one way or another without changing the main direction may be needed with this crew.

Nursing career keeps Midland woman young

Guinea slush from one tent to another.

"I HAD BEEN noticing the patients passing money between the tents," she said. "Then one day I slipped right in that mud and I knew the money passing was a bet. I was all muddy."

While in the Philippines, Miss Crabtree and other medical personnel would improvise for equipment not available, coming up with ideas that are fashionable today.

"Having babies in the same room with mothers nowadays is popular," she said. "Well, back in those days when I was in Manila, we had already done this. We'd take orange crates and make them into cribs. The babies were placed next to their mothers."

In 1949, a few years after her Army experiences, Miss Crabtree decided to travel to West Texas.

"I loved traveling in those days," she said. "After working in Panama, I came to visit one of my brothers in Odessa — just a visit — and I've been here ever since."

During December of that year, Miss Crabtree cared for the first patients admitted to Medical Center Hospital in Odessa. After working at MCH for three years she picked up to follow her "first love in nursing — orthopedics."

"I LIKE A variety of nursing, so I changed jobs every so often, but orthopedic nursing was a type of nursing I always liked, she said, adding that in November 1952 she went to work for a Midland orthopedist as an office nurse.

"Then I worked for a general practioner for a while," she said. "And on June 16, 1967, I began working at Midland Memorial Hospital and have been here ever since."

And this week, along with other nurses throughout the state, Miss Crabtree will observe Texas Nurses' Week.

Although she retired from MMH in 1979, she has been working two or three days a month as relief shift supervisor. During off days, she has been enjoying a new-found hobby, oil painting.

"I've been oil painting landscapes for the past three years and I also read a lot," she said, adding that her dog and three cats keep her busy.

Miss Crabtree never did marry. That's not unusual today, but it was during her younger years. Although she admitted she came close to marriage, "that's one of those secrets I'm not telling."

"I WAS LIBERATED a long time ago," she said. "I didn't need women's lib. I've always been very independent. I used to boss all my brothers and they say I still try to boss them."

Miss Crabtree explained that nursing care over the years hasn't really changed, but it's been modernized.

"A lot more technology has come along, but it doesn't take the place of nursing," she said. "And more men have become nurses. I learned to appreciate men as nurses when I was in the army, observing the corpsmen."

She's noticed less formality between doctors and nurses today. Although she agreed the nursing profession has been upgraded, "every place I've worked, I've always had good relationships with the doctors.

"I like people," she said. "Nursing is a very satisfying feeling of accomplishment, not only monetarily, but also personally.

"Like the saying goes, 'ol' soldiers never die; they just fade away' — that's going to happen to me — ol' nurses never die; they just fade away," she said.

Three Midlanders arrested for sale of stolen property

Three Midlanders were arrested after selling property stolen over two years ago to an undercover officer with the Midland County Sheriff's Department in a Midland motel parking lot Friday afternoon.

According to Midland Police Department reports, a 29-year-old male and a 31-year-old female admitted that a model core barrel with a diamond bit and a carrying case were stolen before they agreed to sell them to David Garcia of the Sheriff's Department for $12,000.

Also arrested in the incident was a 49-year-old man.

Police reports indicate the items, valued at $8,150, had been stolen from Christensen Diamond Products, 2103 Market St., Jan. 15 or Jan. 16, 1980.

Formal charges are expected to be filed Monday morning.

In other action Friday, theft of items valued over $200, criminal mischief causing about $750 worth of damage and the burglary of a residence in which almost $3,000 worth of items were taken were reported to police officers.

Charles Mason, of 107 E. Dormard, reported that a gold and diamond ring, valued at $2,300, a $600 camera, a $10 purse, a $5 wallet and about $40 worth of currency were taken from his residence sometime between 8:15 a.m. and 10:45 p.m. Friday. Entry was apparently gained by throwing a paint can through a back window, reports indicated.

Police are investigating a criminal mischief incident which occurred at 3216 W. Illinois. According to Mrs. W.C. Lawrence, a cinder-block wall located on the west side of her home was struck down sometime between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday. Damage was estimated at $750.

Chamber holds computer seminar

In this age of high technology and rapidly increasing advances in office systems, computers seem to be the answer for the small and mid-sized businessman. But are they really?

On Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., the Midland Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a seminar aimed at answering most of the questions businessmen might have about use of computers in the office.

"Computers Pros and Cons" will attempt to answer such questions as:

—Do you need one?

—Do you know the benefits? The risks?

—Do you understand the terminology?

The seminar will be held in Midland Center, 105 N. Main St. and is open to chamber members and also non-members.

To register, or for more information, contact Nanci Mann at the Midland Chamber, 683-3381. There is a fee for the seminar.

Police look for pickup

Police late Saturday were looking for a small blue or green pickup with a white camper shell that may have been involved in the reported armed robbery of Suds Unlimited, 2511 W. Wall Ave., about 8 p.m. No details were available at press time.

Pope travels to heart of Basque country

LOYOLA, Spain (AP) — Pope John Paul II traveled to the heart of the bullet-scarred Basque country Saturday and urged young people to renounce violence, saying he had personal knowledge of terror from two assassination attempts. He also reminded Jesuits to stay out of politics.

Basque separatists assassinated a top Spanish general in Madrid Thursday, and security was especially tight around the pontiff. Shortly before he arrived, police had a bulldozer turn over a mound of earth near the altar, fearing bombs were buried there. Nothing was found.

The pope celebrated Mass before tens of thousands of Basques outside the monastery of St. Ignatius Loyola, founder of the Jesuits, the Roman Catholic Church's most influential order.

The pontiff told the Basques he understood and recognized "the noble and just struggle for justice at all levels." But terrorism, he said, "offends God, the person who suffers from it and the person who carries it out."

"There are, unfortunately, young people who let themselves be tempted by materialist ideologies and violence. Christianity...prohibits solutions that follow the path of hatred and death," the pope said.

"Violence is not a means to build anything," the pontiff declared. And in a reference to the two assassination attempts he has survived, he said, "my voice is that of someone who has personally suffered from violence."

The pontiff also made pointed reference to his differences with the Jesuits — the self-proclaimed "soldiers of God" — and other priests who he has accused of meddling in politics, particularly in the Third World.

"Those who are consecrated know that their activity is not centered in the temporal reality," John Paul said. "Neither is it in the field of the laymen, which must be left to them."

In 1981, the pope named his own head of the order, the Rev. Paolo Dezza, effectively supplanting the Jesuits' elected general, the Rev. Pedro Arupe. Last March, Jesuit leaders were summoned to Rome for an unprecedented week-long secret conclave to hear complaints about their political activism.

Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca shot and critically wounded the pope in St. Peter's Square on May 13, 1981. A year later, Juan Maria Fernandez Krohn, a renegade Spanish priest, lunged at him with a bayonet in Fatima, Portugal, but John Paul was unhurt.

On Saturday afternoon, 100,000 people crowded a hillside in Navarre, near Loyola, to hear the pope speak from the ramparts of a medieval castle that was home to St. Francis Xavier, the 16th-century missionary.

The pontiff praised the work of missionaries who like Xavier established the church in new lands. Xavier sailed with the Portugese to Goa and traveled through Japan and Indonesia before dying in 1552 at the gates of Canton, China.

Noting that today three-quarters of the world is non-Christian and that the ranks of non-Christians are growing, the pope declared, "the church is called by this rising clamor."

Later Saturday, John Paul was to travel to the ancient Roman city of Zaragoza and visit the shrine of the Virgin of the Pillar, who tradition has it appeared to Spain's patron saint, St. James, in A.D.40 and left behind her a pillar of Jaspar.

John Paul was making a worldwide radio broadcast of the rosary from Zaragoza in the evening and remaining in the city overnight.

Brezhnev's successor won't rule for long

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cloak of leadership now worn by ailing and aging Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev is likely to drop soon on the shoulders of a Soviet bureaucrat named Andropov or Chernenko or Grishin, says one of the U.S. government's top Kremlin watchers.

But the chances are that Brezhnev's successor, likely to be chosen from the elderly band of men at the top of the Soviet leadership, will not rule longer than the end of the decade, said State Department Soviet expert Paul Cook.

Appearing to imply that the 75-year-old Soviet leader will be president until his death, Cook said, "The odds are that when Brezhnev will depart the scene he will do so with his boots on," not by stepping into voluntary retirement, Cook said.

In a report prepared for publication by the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, Cook said the odds also are that Brezhnev's successor will be chosen from the ranks of the 12 men — averaging 69 years of age — who serve as full members of the Soviet Politburo.

Of those 12, Cook listed three men as prime candidates: Yuriy V. Andropov, 68, who resigned as head of the KGB in May to return to the Party Secretariat; Konstantin U. Chernenko, 70, a four-year Politburo member; and Viktor V. Grishin, 67, head of the Communist Party Organization in Moscow and an 11-year Politburo member.

Cook gave these impressions of the three:

—Andropov: "The conventional-wisdom favorite to succeed Brezhnev...Allegedly the most intelligent and sophisticated of the candidates. Some commentators even allege he may be a Soviet-style 'closet liberal.' Reformer is more correct. Most specialists opine that should he succeed he could be a progressive in foreign policy but would pursue tightened internal discipline."

—Chernenko: "Apparently early favored by Brezhnev, his patron for many years, as successor...May have generated opposition by moving too quickly to assume power...Perhaps Chernenko's greatest asset is that he does not appear to threaten his fellow elders. While he may be a moderate by Soviet standards he is not by ours.

—Grishin: "A dark horse. He has been around a long time and knows the Moscow ropes. Reportedly a bright man, he seems cast in the faceless-bureacrat mold publicly, much in the manner of former Moscow Party Secretary (Nikita) Khrushchev...'Unlike the others, he is not in the Secretariat and thus lacks national-level responsibilities."

Chrysler's Canadian workers go out on strike in frigid weather

TORONTO (AP) — Chrysler says it can't afford higher pay for its striking Canadian workers, who are walking picket lines in frigid weather and saying they can't afford to work for the wages they're getting.

With no hint that either side will back down, the strike that started Friday by 10,000 workers seems likely to last for months, with rippling effects on the economies of Canada and the United States.

Within hours after the Canadians walked out, Chrysler officials in Detroit announced layoffs affecting 2,500 workers in 16 U.S. plants from Sandusky, Ohio, to Huntsville, Ala.

Company officials say if the strike continues into next year, up to 40,000 U.S. workers could be laid off at a time when unemployment already has reached the 10 percent mark. Things are even worse in Canada, where the latest jobless rate is 12.7 percent.

"We'll strike for two months, for a year," Chrysler worker Joe Sajko told the Toronto Star on a picket line outside the piston plant in Etobicoke. "I just can't afford another two years at the same money."

Keith Spratt, union steward at a Windsor, Ontario, assembly plant said, lashed out at Chrysler Chairman Lee Iaccoca. "It's a game Lee is playing; we do not want to destroy the company, but we no longer believe he can't afford to give us a pay raise."

Because of concessions made to save the automaker from bankruptcy, Chrysler workers are still on the 1979 wage scale. The union says some Canadian employees lost their homes, unable to afford mortgage payments when their loans came up for renewal at higher rates in the past year.

Chrysler has proposed a two-year contract with cost-of-living increases but no general wage hike. Workers both in Canada and the United States rejected the offer, but while the Americans voted to renew negotiations in January the more militant Canadian workers took to the picket lines with the daytime temperatures in the 30s.

AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service predicts showers for parts of the Pacific Northwest for Sunday. Canadian cold air will affect temperatures in most northern climates of the country, while a warm air mass will continue moving northeast in the lower Mississippi River Valley states.

It's perfect weather for washing dog

If you've put off washing the dog for fear he or she might catch cold, you won't have to worry about that today.

Assuming the accuracy of the forecast from the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the temperature today should be in the 80s. Tonight's low is scheduled to be in mid-40s.

Skies will be fair through Monday, with Monday's mercury nudging the upper 70s. The winds today will be balmy and southerly at 10 to 15 mph.

The record high for this date was 84, set in 1977. The low was 22 and frosted what pumpkins may have been left rotting in November fields back in 1938.

Reagan says jobs 'most urgent priority'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, sounding a more conciliatory note as he faces a greater Democratic majority in the House of Representatives, said Saturday that "jobs must be our most urgent priority."

Outlining his priorities for the "workable combination of Republicans and Democrats" elected to the 98th Congress last Tuesday, the president said "cooperation will be the key to continue leading America to recovery."

The Republicans lost a net of 26 seats in the election, and White House officials have conceded that this will increase the pressure on Reagan to compromise.

Reagan's emphasis on fighting joblessness, rather than inflation, reflects the success of his efforts to lower inflation, now at 4.8 percent. But it also demonstrates his inability to control unemployment, which has reached a 42-year record of 10.4 percent. And it represents the failure of a campaign promise to battle price hikes without putting people out of work.

BUT, SAID REAGAN, "the groundwork is being laid for the rejuvenation of our economy and the return of millions of Americans to our country's work force."

The president used his weekly radio address to the nation to urge Congress "in these times of deep unemployment" to follow his path to reduced government spending.

Giving the Deomcratic response to Reagan's radio speech was Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., who urged Reagan to join with the Democrats in an effort to reduce unemployment.

"For 11.6 million Americans, this is not a season of hope, with our nation facing its worst employment situation in 42 years," Coelho said.

He noted that "while there are some positive economic signs on Wall Street, the people on Main Street need some positive signs that their government — including their president — is listening. As we approach this holiday season, there is no better time for you, Mr. President, to join in finding ways to put America back to work."

In a message directed at both the new Congress that will take over in January, and the lame duck group that will meet in a special session at the end of this month, Reagan said "campaign rhetoric and partisan politics must be set aside."

As for the special session, he said, "our needs are too urgent to wait until next year. We must not fritter away the time while millions of our people are barely hanging on. The economic health of America is at stake."

WHEN CONGRESS RETURNS in January, he said, it faces five Reagan priorities:

—Approval of 11 appropriations bills to govern spending in the current fiscal year. "I will use the veto, if necessary, to keep them within the budget," the president said in the speech from the Oval Office.

—Passage of a proposal to amend the Constitution to prohibit deficit spending except in wartime. The current Reagan budget is expected to set deficit records, and administration officials have acknowledged that fighting the deficit will not be their top budget priority. White House officials have said that the greater Democratic majority in the House will make passage of such a constitutional amendment measure "very, very tough."

—Work on revision of government regulations to improve the efficiency of both government and industry.

—Passage of the Reagan plan to create "enterprise zones" that would grant tax and other advantages intended to stimulate designated depressed areas by encouraging industries to expand in certain inner city neighborhoods.

—Approval of a new clean air bill "to protect the environment and make it possible for industry to rebuild and create more jobs."

"Campaign cliches must give way to action," Reagan said.

THE PRESIDENT SAID that the 10.4 percent unemployment rate, announced by the Labor Department on Friday, was "only a cold government statistic."

"But behind it are real people who are hurting," he said. "I'm not going to sugar-coat this news because I cannot hide my own personal ache."

He continued:

"In our efforts to revive our economy, jobs must be our most urgent priority and lasting solutions must be our constant and consistent principle."

EDITOR'S REPORT

House aides, declared that President Reagan will "stay the course" on his economic program even if there's tougher going because of GOP losses in the House. He conceded that the president will have to accommodate more with congressional critics, as noted here well before voters went to the polls.

A working coalition is essential to bringing our country out of the economic swamp. This is the prevailing view of many diverse personalities, including those who have frequently assailed "Reaganomics." The major objective must be to get America sound and on the right track.

As has been the historical case with our midterm elections, there were some startling upsets across the country in senatorial, congressional and governors' races. There also were contests that went right down to the wire, which even TV in their network haste to be first said were much too close to call. I think that television must have spent nearly as much on these elections as some candidates, spotlighted for pouring in money as if it went out of style. The big spenders used lavish funds to pay for TV ads.

In Western Europe, a fixed limit is placed on TV appeals. Even commercial TV strictly limits what a candidate can buy. In Britain, for instance, the BBC limits the two big parties to a few free spots. A small party usually gets one shot of a couple of minutes at no cost. I've always thought that American ingenuity could come up with an idea to limit electioneering on TV and also somehow impose a time for campaigning. There were instances when I really longed for the return of pro football.

Anyhow, to get back to some of the more noteworthy upsets in the elections a couple immediately spring to mind. Gov. Jerry Brown, trying to win a Democratic Senate seat in California, was upended by Pete Wilson, Mayor of San Diego, the Republican contestant.

Personally, I wanted Brown to win. Why? So he'd go to Washington, D.C., for six years and be just one of 100 Senators and a junior on the totem pole. He has served two terms as governor of our biggest state, so, having lost I have an awful hunch he might be elected next time around.

In a startling upset, George Deukmejian went to the last 5 percent of the vote for the governorship vacated by Brown and squeaked past Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, the fine Democratic candidate who sought to become the first elected black governor. Polls had placed Bradley comfortably ahead. So I was somewhat surprised myself considering all the predictions.

Then, right across America, in New York State, we had a lulu of a contest nobody forecast. Lewis Lehrman, a businessman who came from nowhere politically to win the GOP nomination for governor of New York State and also the endorsement of the Conservative party, had to prove with his own talent that he meant what he said. His stand baffled the regular pros but he smeared them in primaries. Lew is an old friend and neighbor. In past conversations, I often warned him that he couldn't manage politics as successfully as he did business enterprises. Simply stated, Lew is incapable of doubletalk or saying what he doesn't mean.

All the polls and pundits had him way behind the Democratic candidate, Lt. Gov. Mario Cuomo, a veteran politician. But the predictions went awry and Lehrman came awfully close to winning. It would be, I believe, a good thing for this state and the nation at large if Lew's ideas were taken to heart.

After the elections President Reagan appeared before the media with Vice President Bush beside him. He was in good humor, observing that he was pleased with the results. The president added emphatically an offer to work "in bipartisan fashion" with Democrats in the House. That's the way it should be for the good of us all. A number of key Democratic leaders also expressed a willingness to cooperate and work with the administration.

Even with a high rate of unemployment, the Democrats were unable to translate discontent into votes because they failed to come up with a sound alternative economic solution. That is the essential meaning of the results.

As I understand it, "stay the course" is a nautical term. Being a landlubber my unsolicited advice to the president would be to allow for a little leeway, left or right, in steering the Ship of State. A few degrees one way or another without changing the main direction may be needed with this crew.

Nursing career keeps Midland woman young

Guinea slush from one tent to another.

"I HAD BEEN noticing the patients passing money between the tents," she said. "Then one day I slipped right in that mud and I knew the money passing was a bet. I was all muddy."

While in the Philippines, Miss Crabtree and other medical personnel would improvise for equipment not available, coming up with ideas that are fashionable today.

"Having babies in the same room with mothers nowadays is popular," she said. "Well, back in those days when I was in Manila, we had already done this. We'd take orange crates and make them into cribs. The babies were placed next to their mothers."

In 1949, a few years after her Army experiences, Miss Crabtree decided to travel to West Texas.

"I loved traveling in those days," she said. "After working in Panama, I came to visit one of my brothers in Odessa — just a visit — and I've been here ever since."

During December of that year, Miss Crabtree cared for the first patients admitted to Medical Center Hospital in Odessa. After working at MCH for three years she picked up to follow her "first love in nursing — orthopedics."

"I LIKE A variety of nursing, so I changed jobs every so often, but orthopedic nursing was a type of nursing I always liked, she said, adding that in November 1952 she went to work for a Midland orthopedist as an office nurse.

"Then I worked for a general practioner for a while," she said. "And on June 16, 1967, I began working at Midland Memorial Hospital and have been here ever since."

And this week, along with other nurses throughout the state, Miss Crabtree will observe Texas Nurses' Week.

Although she retired from MMH in 1979, she has been working two or three days a month as relief shift supervisor. During off days, she has been enjoying a new-found hobby, oil painting.

"I've been oil painting landscapes for the past three years and I also read a lot," she said, adding that her dog and three cats keep her busy.

Miss Crabtree never did marry. That's not unusual today, but it was during her younger years. Although she admitted she came close to marriage, "that's one of those secrets I'm not telling."

"I WAS LIBERATED a long time ago," she said. "I didn't need women's lib. I've always been very independent. I used to boss all my brothers and they say I still try to boss them."

Miss Crabtree explained that nursing care over the years hasn't really changed, but it's been modernized.

"A lot more technology has come along, but it doesn't take the place of nursing," she said. "And more men have become nurses. I learned to appreciate men as nurses when I was in the army, observing the corpsmen."

She's noticed less formality between doctors and nurses today. Although she agreed the nursing profession has been upgraded, "every place I've worked, I've always had good relationships with the doctors.

"I like people," she said. "Nursing is a very satisfying feeling of accomplishment, not only monetarily, but also personally.

"Like the saying goes, 'ol' soldiers never die; they just fade away' — that's going to happen to me — ol' nurses never die; they just fade away," she said.

Three Midlanders arrested for sale of stolen property

Three Midlanders were arrested after selling property stolen over two years ago to an undercover officer with the Midland County Sheriff's Department in a Midland motel parking lot Friday afternoon.

According to Midland Police Department reports, a 29-year-old male and a 31-year-old female admitted that a model core barrel with a diamond bit and a carrying case were stolen before they agreed to sell them to David Garcia of the Sheriff's Department for $12,000.

Also arrested in the incident was a 49-year-old man.

Police reports indicate the items, valued at $8,150, had been stolen from Christensen Diamond Products, 2103 Market St., Jan. 15 or Jan. 16, 1980.

Formal charges are expected to be filed Monday morning.

In other action Friday, theft of items valued over $200, criminal mischief causing about $750 worth of damage and the burglary of a residence in which almost $3,000 worth of items were taken were reported to police officers.

Charles Mason, of 107 E. Dormard, reported that a gold and diamond ring, valued at $2,300, a $600 camera, a $10 purse, a $5 wallet and about $40 worth of currency were taken from his residence sometime between 8:15 a.m. and 10:45 p.m. Friday. Entry was apparently gained by throwing a paint can through a back window, reports indicated.

Police are investigating a criminal mischief incident which occurred at 3216 W. Illinois. According to Mrs. W.C. Lawrence, a cinder-block wall located on the west side of her home was struck down sometime between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday. Damage was estimated at $750.

Chamber holds computer seminar

In this age of high technology and rapidly increasing advances in office systems, computers seem to be the answer for the small and mid-sized businessman. But are they really?

On Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., the Midland Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a seminar aimed at answering most of the questions businessmen might have about use of computers in the office.

"Computers Pros and Cons" will attempt to answer such questions as:

—Do you need one?

—Do you know the benefits? The risks?

—Do you understand the terminology?

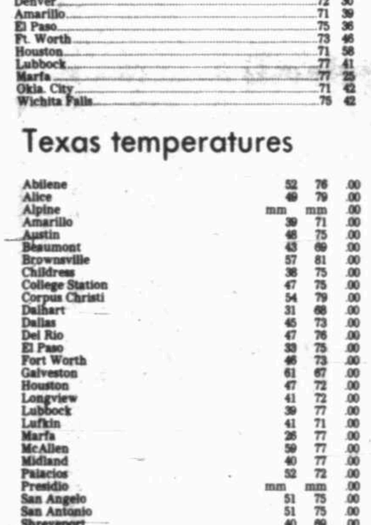
The seminar will be held in Midland Center, 105 N. Main St. and is open to chamber members and also non-members.

To register, or for more information, contact Nanci Mann at the Midland Chamber, 683-3381. There is a fee for the seminar.

Police look for pickup

Police late Saturday were looking for a small blue or green pickup with a white camper shell that may have been involved in the reported armed robbery of Suds Unlimited, 2511 W. Wall Ave., about 8 p.m. No details were available at press time.

DEATHS



W. D. Hargrove

Services for William Doss Hargrove, 75, of 4561 Shady Oak Drive, are set for 2 p.m. Monday at Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park. Officiating will be the Rev. J.B. Stewart at the First United Methodist Church.

Hargrove died Saturday morning in a Midland hospital.

He was born June 7, 1907, in Paragould, Ark. He moved to Midland in 1942 and started the Hargrove Auto Supply Co. a year later. He married Mable Stickler in December 1943 and the couple moved to Kingsland in 1973. He sold the business to his son and retired in 1967.

He was a member of the Downtown Lions Club, the Automotive Wholesalers of Texas and the First United Methodist Church of Midland. He was a member of the Kingsland Community Church.

Survivors include his wife of Buchanan Dam; a son, Don Hargrove of Midland; a daughter, Catherine Yatt of Richardson; and five grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be made to the G.C. Morris Educational Trust Fund, Box 788, Austin 78767.

Wandle Dyches

Services for Wandle Dyches, 56, of 2600 Emerson, will be at 9 a.m. Monday in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park. Officiating will be the Rev. Steve Edwards of the First Christian Church.

Dyches died at a Midland hospital after a brief illness.

He was born March 25, 1926, in Albany and was raised in Breckenridge. He was a Navy veteran of World War II and married Wanda Standiford June 21, 1947, in Breckenridge. They moved to Odessa in 1955 and to Midland 15 years later. He worked for B.J. Hughes, Inc., at the time of his death. He was a member of the Association of Petroleum Engineers and the First Christian Church of McCamey.

Pope travels to heart of Basque country

LOYOLA, Spain (AP) — Pope John Paul II traveled to the heart of the bullet-scarred Basque country Saturday and urged young people to renounce violence, saying he had personal knowledge of terror from two assassination attempts. He also reminded Jesuits to stay out of politics.

Basque separatists assassinated a top Spanish general in Madrid Thursday, and security was especially tight around the pontiff. Shortly before he arrived, police had a bulldozer turn over a mound of earth near the altar, fearing bombs were buried there. Nothing was found.

The pope celebrated Mass before tens of thousands of Basques outside the monastery of St. Ignatius Loyola, founder of the Jesuits, the Roman Catholic Church's most influential order.

The pontiff told the Basques he understood and recognized "the noble and just struggle for justice at all levels." But terrorism, he said, "offends God, the person who suffers from it and the person who carries it out."

"There are, unfortunately, young people who let themselves be tempted by materialist ideologies and violence. Christianity...prohibits solutions that follow the path of hatred and death," the pope said.

"Violence is not a means to build anything," the pontiff declared. And in a reference to the two assassination attempts he has survived, he said, "my voice is that of someone who has personally suffered from violence."

The pontiff also made pointed reference to his differences with the Jesuits — the self-proclaimed "soldiers of God" — and other priests who he has accused of meddling in politics, particularly in the Third World.

"Those who are consecrated know that their activity is not centered in the temporal reality," John Paul said. "Neither is it in the field of the laymen, which must be left to them."

In 1981, the pope named his own head of the order, the Rev. Paolo Dezza, effectively supplanting the Jesuits' elected general, the Rev. Pedro Arupe. Last March, Jesuit leaders were summoned to Rome for an unprecedented week-long secret conclave to hear complaints about their political activism.

Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca shot and critically wounded the pope in St. Peter's Square on May 13, 1981. A year later, Juan Maria Fernandez Krohn, a renegade Spanish priest, lunged at him with a bayonet in Fatima, Portugal, but John Paul was unhurt.

On Saturday afternoon, 100,000 people crowded a hillside in Navarre, near Loyola, to hear the pope speak from the ramparts of a medieval castle that was home to St. Francis Xavier, the 16th-century missionary.

The pontiff praised the work of missionaries who like Xavier established the church in new lands. Xavier sailed with the Portugese to Goa and traveled through Japan and Indonesia before dying in 1552 at the gates of Canton, China.

Noting that today three-quarters of the world is non-Christian and that the ranks of non-Christians are growing, the pope declared, "the church is called by this rising clamor."

Later Saturday, John Paul was to travel to the ancient Roman city of Zaragoza and visit the shrine of the Virgin of the Pillar, who tradition has it appeared to Spain's patron saint, St. James, in A.D.40 and left behind her a pillar of Jaspar.

John Paul was making a worldwide radio broadcast of the rosary from Zaragoza in the evening and remaining in the city overnight.

Brezhnev's successor won't rule for long

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cloak of leadership now worn by ailing and aging Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev is likely to drop soon on the shoulders of a Soviet bureaucrat named Andropov or Chernenko or Grishin, says one of the U.S. government's top Kremlin watchers.

But the chances are that Brezhnev's successor, likely to be chosen from the elderly band of men at the top of the Soviet leadership, will not rule longer than the end of the decade, said State Department Soviet expert Paul Cook.

Appearing to imply that the 75-year-old Soviet leader will be president until his death, Cook said, "The odds are that when Brezhnev will depart the scene he will do so with his boots on," not by stepping into voluntary retirement, Cook said.

In a report prepared for publication by the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, Cook said the odds also are that Brezhnev's succcessor will be chosen from the ranks of the 12 men — averaging 69 years of age — who serve as full members of the Soviet Politburo.

Of those 12, Cook listed three men as prime candidates: Yuriy V. Andropov, 68, who resigned as head of the KGB in May to return to the Party Secretariat; Konstantin U. Chernenko, 70, a four-year Politburo member; and Viktor V. Grishin, 67, head of the Communist Party Organization in Moscow and an 11-year Politburo member.

Cook gave these impressions of the three:

—Andropov: "The conventional-wisdom favorite to succeed Brezhnev...Allegedly the most intelligent and sophisticated of the candidates. Some commentators even allege he may be a Soviet-style 'closet liberal.' Reformer is more correct. Most specialists opine that should he succeed he could be a progressive in foreign policy but would pursue tightened internal discipline."

—Chernenko: "Apparently early favored by Brezhnev, his patron for many years, as successor...May have generated opposition by moving too quickly to assume power...Perhaps Chernenko's greatest asset is that he does not appear to threaten his fellow elders. While he may be a moderate by Soviet standards he is not by ours.

—Grishin: "A dark horse. He has been around a long time and knows the Moscow ropes. Reportedly a bright man, he seems cast in the faceless-bureacrat mold publicly, much in the manner of former Moscow Party Secretary (Nikita) Khrushchev..."Unlike the others, he is not in the Secretariat and thus lacks national-level responsibilities."

Chrysler's Canadian workers go out on strike in frigid weather

TORONTO (AP) — Chrysler says it can't afford higher pay for its striking Canadian workers, who are walking picket lines in frigid weather and saying they can't afford to work for the wages they're getting.

With no hint that either side will back down, the strike that started Friday by 10,000 workers seems likely to last for months, with rippling effects on the economies of Canada and the United States.

Within hours after the Canadians walked out, Chrysler officials in Detroit announced layoffs affecting 2,500 workers in 16 U.S. plants from Sandusky, Ohio, to Huntsville, Ala.

Company officials say if the strike continues into next year, up to 40,000 U.S. workers could be laid off at a time when unemployment already has reached the 10 percent mark. Things are even worse in Canada, where the latest jobless rate is 12.7 percent.

"We'll strike for two months, for a year," Chrysler worker Joe Sajko told the Toronto Star on a picket line outside the piston plant in Etobicoke. "I just can't afford another two years at the same money."

Keith Spratt, union steward at a Windsor, Ontario, assembly plant said, lashed out at Chrysler Chairman Lee Iaccoca. "It's a game Lee is playing; we do not want to destroy the company, but we no longer believe he can't afford to give us a pay raise."

Because of concessions made to save the automaker from bankruptcy, Chrysler workers are still on the 1979 wage scale. The union says some Canadian employees lost their homes, unable to afford mortgage payments when their loans came up for renewal at higher rates in the past year.

Chrysler has proposed a two-year contract with cost-of-living increases but no general wage hike. Workers both in Canada and the United States rejected the offer, but while the Americans voted to renew negotiations in January the more militant Canadian workers took to the picket lines with the daytime temperatures in the 30s.

Britain's victory in Falklands close call

By MARK S. SMITH

LONDON (AP) — Britain's victory in the Falklands war was a very close call in which brave soldiering and good luck salvaged an operation plagued by blunders, according to new uncensored accounts.

Max Hastings, who covered the war for the London Standard and Observer newspapers, called the British campaign "a very, very close run thing."

Hastings' account appeared in the weekly Observer. Other accounts were given in the book "The Falklands War" by The Sunday Times, "The Winter War" by The Observer's Patrick Bishop and John Witherow of The Times, and a Sunday Telegraph series called "The War We Could Have Lost."

The histories begin with events leading up to Argentina's April 2 invasion of the British-ruled South Atlantic chain.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has said she didn't know the invasion was coming until March 30, when it was already too late for Britain — 8,000 miles away — to stop it.

But The Sunday Times reports that Argentine troops actually invaded March 25. It said 100 heavily armed and camouflaged marines waded ashore on South Georgia in full view of a French filmmaker and two British marines, who radioed word of the landing to London. South Georgia is a Falkland Islands dependency about 800 miles southeast of the main Falkland Islands.

THE BRITISH EFFORT to retake South Georgia was plagued from the start by mischance, according to the new reports, which gave these details:

Special Air Service army commandos and their marine counterparts from the Special Boat Squadron tried numerous times to land on the glacial outcrop just north of the Antarctic Circle.

The first time the SAS went in, its helicopters were impeded by a snowstorm. The second time, choppers landed but the commandos withdrew after one bitter-cold night. On the third try, the party's Wessex helicopter crashed and so did a rescue craft. Finally, a third chopper managed to cram in the entire party and fly back to the cruiser Antrim. Its pilot was later decorated.

The SBS, meanwhile, was attempting to land by inflatable boat. Their first bid was scuttled by gale-force winds and the second failed when ice floes punctured the boats. The third succeeded, but not before four of five outboard motors broke down and vital equipment was washed out to sea.

The landing that finally resulted in the recapture of South Georgia April 25 was forced on British commanders when the Argentine submarine Santa Fe was spotted and disabled by rockets from British helicopters — some of the rockets failing to explode.

ABOUT 75 BRITISH commandos scrambled into helicopters, landed near the main harbor of Grytviken, attacked the 100-man Argentine garrison, and obtained its surrender within two hours.

But the joy of early victory was erased May 4, when an Argentine Super Etendard fighter fired an Exocet missile at the destroyer Sheffield, gutting the ship and claiming 20 lives. It was devastating news for Britain, which according to The Sunday Times, did not know the Argentines possessed air-launched Exocets.

The loss of the Sheffield was followed by the sinking of two British frigates, Ardent and Antelope, and the destroyer Coventry by Argentine bombs. Several other ships were pierced by bombs that failed to explode because they were improperly fused. One was the frigate Glamorgan, whose hull was patched with spare mattresses, the accounts said.

As part of its air defense, Britain depended on missiles which proved "tragically inadequate," says Hastings.

The land-based Rapier system took a day to set up and proved unreliable in bad weather; the hand-held Blowpipe proved too slow for its targets; and of the shipborne Sea Dart, Seacat and Sea Wolf missiles, none was more than 40 percent effective, he said.

THE SUCCESS OF THE Argentine air force pointed up Britain's lack of airborne early warning radar. "We have moved too quickly and too completely into the missile age," one senior officer told Hastings.

As Argentine air attacks intensified, British troops landed virtually unopposed at San Carlos, 50 miles west of Stanley, the capital, on East Falkland Island.

It was a lucky thing, though, as according to The Sunday Times, the last SAS scouts inexplicably were withdrawn several days before the landing.

During the buildup to San Carlos, the Argentine air force gutted the container ship Atlantic Conveyor with two Exocets, destroying helicopters and other vital equipment, the accounts said. The hull remained afloat.

The Times, which interviewed Argentine pilots, reported that four days after the Conveyor was hit, an Argentine Super Etendard pilot saw in his radar scope the outline of what he thought was the British carrier Invincible, and he fired an Exocet from more than a dozen miles away.

The missile hit, and as he flew over the vessel, the pilot saw it sinking in flames. Later that day in London, the Defense Ministry announced that the hull of Conveyor had sunk. Argentina had wasted its last air-launched Exocet.

BUT THE LOSS OF Conveyor's helicopters led to Britain's worst single loss of men in the war, the accounts said, when 50 men were killed in an Argentine air attack on landing craft at Bluff Cove, not far from Stanley.

For lack of choppers, Welsh Guardsmen had to be moved forward from San Carlos by ship, the reports said. But the landing ship Sir Galahad put in on the wrong side of the bay and while troops were kept waiting for landing craft, Argentine planes struck, the accounts said. The Times said protective Harriers had returned to the carriers, unaware of the landing delay.

Bluff Cove followed the assault on Goose Green in which some 450 paratroopers captured 1,400 Argentines. But Maj. Chris Keeble, who led the attack when Col. Herbert "H" Jones was killed, questioned whether the battle was even necessary.

"Let's be objective," he told The Sunday Times. "To succeed in the Falklands, there was little point in attacking Goose Green because the center, the capital, is Stanley."

House member says U.S. Marines should leave 'as soon as possible'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The 1,200 U.S. Marines in Beirut's multi-national peacekeeping force ought to be removed from this war-ravaged capital "as soon as possible," a member of the U.S. House Appropriations Committee said Saturday.

"Congress is very concerned about the possibility of slowly escalating violence," Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa. told reporters. "I'd like to get them (the Marines) out of here as soon as possible."

Murtha and four other congressmen visited the Marines, whose duties include guarding the international airport in Moselm west Beirut and patroling the Christian eastern sector along with French and Italian troops making up the 4,000-man force.

The legislators arrived Friday on a five-day Middle East tour and were briefed by Marine commanders and visited units of the U.S. 6th Fleet anchored off the Lebanese coast.

Murtha, Livingston and Rahall spent Friday night at the Marine encampment near the airport, sleeping on cots under mosquito netting like the troopers who arrived in Beirut in September.

The French and Italians have been patrolling Beirut streets for the past month to help the Lebanese army assert its authority in the city. Last Thursday, the Marines for the first time sent out a patrol — a four-jeep convey whose mission was seen as symbolic support.

In a related development, the state radio said Saturday that Lebanon has demanded an apology from Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy for saying that President Amin Gemayel was "elected against the will of the people under Israeli occupation."

Gemayel was elected by Parliament after his brother, President-elect Bashir Gemayel, was assassinated before he could take office.

Columbia to embark on first real mission

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Its test flights over, the space shuttle Columbia and a four-man crew embark this Thursday on the ship's first real mission, transporting two communications satellites to open a new commercial era in space.

The countdown was to begin today.

"We're about to start the business for which the shuttle was designed — carrying cargo into space," says Columbia's fifth commander, astronaut Vance Brand. "The four earlier trips tested the vehicle and proved it works; our job is to make it start paying for itself."

Brand, 51, who flew on the joint U.S.-Soviet space flight in 1975, will captain the largest crew ever to be launched into space in a single spaceship. Never have more than three persons rocketed away from Earth in one craft.

Riding with him will be Marine Col. Robert Overmyer, 46, and two members of a new breed of non-pilot astronauts called mission specialists: William Lenoir, 43, and Joseph Allen, 45. None of the three has ever been in space.

Lenoir and Allen are responsible for ejecting the satellites from Columbia's cargo bay. Next Sunday they are to take a joint space walk, the first by American astronauts in nearly nine years.

Today's countdown for the five-day flight is aiming for a fiery liftoff at 7:19 a.m. EST Thursday. The ship is to return to Earth on Tuesday Nov. 16, landing on a runway at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The shuttle's first pay-for-hire customers are Satellite Business Systems Inc. of McLean, Va., and Telesat of Canada. Each is paying the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $10 million to place its communications satellite in orbit — the first in a long line of commercial firms waiting to have their payloads hauled up by this revolutionary space truck.

Said James M. Beggs, NASA's chief: "This flight marks the beginning of a whole new ball game in space. It will start transforming the shuttle from a test vehicle into an operational carrier for transporting routinely people, satellites, scientific instruments and scientific laboratories into space."

The satellites in Columbia's bay are almost identical. They cost $30 million each and at 7,200 pounds apiece are the heaviest communications payloads ever built.

The SBS satellite is to be remotely kicked out of the cargo bay just eight hours after the shuttle liftoff, with the Telesat payload to be ejected on Friday. Forty-five minutes after each has been deployed, a timer is to ignite an onboard motor to propel the satellite to a stationary outpost 22,300 miles above the Earth.

Lenoir and Allen will conduct a 90-minute launch countdown for each. At zero, clamps will release and spring devices will fling the payloads away.

Early today, Lenoir and Allen will move into an airlock to don their bulky spacesuits and then will open a hatch and float into the open cargo bay for a 3½-hour exercise. They call it EVA, for extra-vehicular activity.

"The EVA is basically a very simple one," Allen explained. "We want to test the new space suits and the airlocks and other shuttle systems that support EVA. We'll test our ability to move about and we'll test tools and techniques for future crews who will have construction, assembly or repair missions to perform."

San Mateo firefighters sue for invasion of privacy

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — Rookie firefighters in San Mateo now risk dismissal if they light up a cigarette, cigar or pipe — on or off the job — and they have sued the city for invasion of privacy.

The no-smoking edict is part of a pledge newly hired firefighters must take. They are also required to pass an annual physical fitness test and pay the cost of getting in shape or risk firing.

New firefighters have to sign the agreement before being assigned to work.

Although the employment oath focuses on personal health and habits, it was designed to save money, said deputy city manager Jim Linenberger.

Recount of votes expected in Illinois governor's race

CHICAGO (AP) — Hundreds of miles and less than one percentage point separated Gov. James R. Thompson and Democrat Adlai Stevenson on Saturday, with the Republican basking in the Florida sun and a 9,900-vote plurality while the challenger stayed on his farm.

"Obviously, he hasn't been able to see a whole lot of his family in the last six months, and they're just relaxing," said Thompson press aide Dave Fields. "He'll probably be down there (West Palm Beach) for a couple of days and then start preparing to get back to work."

Thompson declared himself the winner in his bid for an unprecedented third consecutive term Friday, just hours after complete but unofficial returns showed him defeating Stevenson by a margin of about one quarter of one percent.

With unofficial returns in from all 11,642 precincts, a county-by-county Associated Press survey showed Thompson had 1,814,173 votes to Stevenson's 1,804,251 — a margin of 9,922 votes.

STEVENSON remained on the family farm Saturday in Hanover and continued to meet with members of his transition team. He called the slim plurality "impossible to accept," and labeled Thompson's victory claim "premature."

"That's not a large victory, and at this point, it's no victory at all," said Stevenson. He said he would spend the coming days hunting ducks, chopping wood and clearing pastures around the family's sprawling nine-room home. He planned to return Monday to Chicago.

Stevenson said he expects to pick up another 10,000 votes in the Chicago canvass and that those votes, coupled with revised totals in precincts "favorable to us" will swing the final tabulation his way.

"I'm not an expert on figures, but I'm told the canvass proceeded most rapidly in areas most favorable to the governor," Stevenson said in a telephone interview. "Now, the areas favorable to us will start getting canvassed.

"What the total increase will be, I can't say," he added. "But I'm confident the people will get their choice and that's what should be of concern to both the governor and me."

ANTICIPATING a recount of the 3.6 million votes cast Tuesday, state elections officials have told county clerks in all 102 counties to secure ballots.

About 400 absentee ballots which could decide the outcome of a local legislative race already have been impounded in Hamilton County, and officials were looking Saturday at some 4,000 left unsealed for as long as 72 hours in nearby Saline County, according to Phil Gilbert, chairman of the state Board of Elections.

Stevenson said Saturday he already had begun preparations to raise funds for a possible recount, which he estimated would cost between $300,000 and $1.5 million.

Officials are expected to investigate all questionable returns during the canvass before the state certifies the results Nov. 22. In Chicago, officials from the state and city election boards and attorneys for both campaigns met Saturday to discuss ground rules for an official canvass.

Of the votes cast, more than one-fourth were in Chicago, where the Democratic Party's vote-producing power is legendary and where Stevenson rolled up a 464,525-vote advantage.

UNOFFICIAL Chicago results at first were delayed by 15 missing or empty ballot boxes from the South Side, but all had been accounted for by Friday.

Bioethics professor goes all the way in role as devil's advocate

MILWAUKEE (AP) — When Professor Newtol Press dons his plastic horns, he may suggest that all people in the world should look alike or that some poor people should be sterilized.

He plays devil's advocate in an attempt to goad his students into thought, and officials at the University of Milwaukee say his bioethics course is popular.

"I'll suggest sterilizing welfare mothers, killing the elderly to save money," Press said. "Many of the students were a little perplexed, a little disoriented to find out they would actually have to solve problems like this. But they say they enjoy thinking and this is one of the few courses that enables them to do that."

Press, 51, decided to play the role of devil's advocate about five years ago when he and another teacher were looking for a way to get their students to do more than just repeat information.

The other teacher, who has since left the university, played the part of an angel. Press took the opposite role.

The horns came later.

"The horns add a little drama, give a little force," Press said. "They are particularly forceful to those students who believe in the devil. Some of our arguments get pretty nasty and some of the students would see the horns there whether I wore them or not, if you know what I mean."

Press said he does not believe in Satan.

"Of course not," he said. "I believe evil exists, but I believe we do it. We invent evil by doing destructive things."

He said one popular discussion in the class centered around eugenics and he suggested that all people be bred to look like him.

"That was a pretty funny notion to start with, because most students don't think my looks are very desirable," he said. "But they had to argue around it. They decided diversity is desirable because you can't anticipate when the traits you choose will no longer be desirable."

He said a particularly difficult ethical problem the class wrestled with was whether the elderly should be killed "because they are unproductive and not reproductive."

He said the class decided that, "If you substitute the word 'black' or 'woman' for elderly, you would realize that killing the elderly is prejudice, not practical."

Very often, Press learns from the students.

"Many students have had a lot more trouble in their lives that I had thought — and they know how to deal with it," he said. "It gives them a perspective on ethical problems."

He said he was not trying to recruit people to do evil, but to think.

Dr. Charles Weise, the Zoology Department chairman, said Press' class was popular.

"The students enjoy it and talk a lot about it," Weise said. "It's been praised as a stimulating, interesting course."

Student Sheldon Wasserman, 21, said Press "is one of the most unique individuals I've ever met. He's an individual all the way down. He'll come up with some of the craziest things and you know he's kidding, but he gets you thinking. The class loves him."

Press said that rarely do people agree with his arguments as devil's advocate, but when they do, the class becomes even more lively.

"It's delightful to present the unpopular view while wearing horns," Press said. "If it's fun for me, it's fun for the students, too."

Professor Newtol Press takes his role of devil's advocate seriously in the bioethics class he teaches at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. In the class he dons horns and goads his students to think about ethical problems.

Mack, Zack to be reward in Pulitzer battle

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Mack and Zack saw "E.T." seven times, cruised the Bahamas on their father's 75-foot yacht and romped with the offspring of other tycoons on this sunny island of wealth.

The 5-year-old twins — and a share of their father's fortune — are at stake in a bitter divorce battle between the grandson of a famous publisher and the daughter of a drugstore owner.

For four weeks, $300-an-hour legal teams representing Herbert Peter Pulitzer, 52, and his 31-year-old wife, Roxanne, have done their utmost to blacken the other spouse's name.

The father of MacLean and Zachary Pulitzer says their mother is a lover of cocaine, alcohol and sexual partners of both sexes, a woman who found life in the fast lane more exciting than motherhood.

The mother contends that their father is an international narcotics pusher, a playboy who preferred a poolside lunch to talking to his children and a man who slept with his teen-age daughter from his earlier marriage.

Palm Beach Circuit Judge Carl Harper, who will decide after Christmas which parent gets custody of the great-grandsons of Joseph Pulitzer, takes his job seriously and wants to hear all the evidence.

"I think adultery, drugs and 'abhorrent' religious beliefs are all relevant to fitness" as parents, he said. "Anything that would adversely affect the children is relevant. Anything.

"It's a gigantic issue, as I see it," Harper said.

"It's a fight over money," said Joseph Farish, Mrs. Pulitzer's lawyer, who claims the snowy-haired Pulitzer wants custody so he won't have to pay child support.

"The smokescreen is the children, and the children are going to suffer," he said.

Pulitzer's wife of 6½ years wants half his holdings in orange groves, hotels, gas and oil and stocks, which she appraises at $25 million. Pulitzer's lawyers put the value at $2.5 million.

Pulitzer says he is fighting to keep his children. "I love those little guys," said the man who also had three children by his first wife, designer Lilly Pulitzer.

In August 1981, Pulitzer accused his wife of a sex and drug romp with a handyman, packed his bags and moved aboard his converted shrimp trawler. Before, neighbor Pete Rybovich Jr. said, there had been the sound of Pulitzer splashing in the pool with the boys and their peals of delight. After, "the only thing you heard ... was someone screaming at the kids for doing something wrong."

Palm Beach police are worried about the children's safety during the trial. "We're concerned that an outsider might read about this case in the newspapers and go by to snatch up the kids," a police spokesman told The Miami Herald.

Mrs. Pulitzer's mother, Marilyn Ulrich, says Roxanne "has always been a wonderful mother and a very devoted mother. Peter knows that for a fact."

Mrs. Pulitzer's mental health therapist, Roberta Cusumano, says she has "put in an effort all along the year to be a better mother."

County domestic relations counselor Sheri Rifenberg, testifying for Pulitzer, who was raised by nannies, said Mrs. Pulitzer "seemed to have a really minimal contact with the children." She found Pulitzer the "preferable" parent.

Family yard man John Capers said Pulitzer frequently played with the boys, recent graduates of the Wee Wisdom Montessori School.

"She didn't hardly bother with them," Capers said. "She'd say: 'Get out. You make me sick. Leave me alone.' "

When contemplating what would follow the divorce, Mrs. Pulitzer broke down on the witness stand, but vowed to give her sons a good home.

Pulitzer said he hopes his sons will not be condemned to repeat his mistakes. "I never want my kiddies to do the same thing that happened to me," he said. "It has ruined my marriage, thrown my whole life into turmoil, and nearly ruined me mentally and socially."

Woman sues crematory

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — A widow who found a set of false teeth in an urn while pouring out the ashes of her husband has filed a $600,000 suit against the crematory.

Ursala Smith of Sun City said in her suit filed Friday that she discovered the dental bridgework in June when she was scattering the ashes of her husband, James, over the family plot of Morrisville, Md.

"I was pouring out the ashes and I encountered this foreign object," she said. "I knew what it was or at least I thought I knew what it was."

Fiskes wait, hope as Jamie adjusts to new liver

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — In July, after their baby daughter underwent a second unsuccessful operation, Charles and Marilyn Fiske were told Jamie would die without a liver transplant.

They never gave up hope as they worked against time to find a donor.

Mrs. Fiske quit her job as a teacher to withdraw the pension money for expenses. She lived in Minneapolis, near Jamie's hospital, as her husband stayed home in Massachusetts with their son.

They wrote letters and made telephone calls to medical organizations, legislators and the White House.

Finally, on Oct. 28, Fiske was granted an unprecedented chance to speak to 400 doctors at a convention of the American Academy of Pediatricians in New York. In a five-minute speech, Fiske pleaded with them to keep "your eyes and ears open" for a donor.

JAMIE "IS my sunshine," he said. "I love her."

The plea reached the ears of Lared Bellon, a father in Utah who had "no idea it would ever affect me." But on Friday, doctors at University of Minnesota Hospitals gave 11-month-old Jamie the liver of Bellon's baby son, who had been killed in a car accident.

Jamie was "doing fine" Saturday as her body adjusted to the new liver, a hospital spokesman said.

"How can we tell the world the joy we are feeling?" said Fiske. "Because of another family's tragedy in Utah, and the skills of a great hospital here, our child can have a future, an opportunity to live.

"We came so close to losing her...and now she might be home for Christmas. Isn't that beautiful?"

Dr. John Najarian, chief of surgery at University Hospitals and head of the transplant team that performed the surgery, said "the little girl had really slipped a lot in the last week" and probably would have died before Thanksgiving without the operation.

THE FISKES said they never dared let themselves become discouraged as they waited for a liver to become available for Jamie.

"We felt like we had to do what we could (to help find an organ). We had to keep believing it would turn out this way," Mrs. Fiske said.

Jamie was born Nov. 26, 1981, and was somewhat jaundiced at birth. Mrs. Fiske said doctors originally thought the problem would pass.

They determined two months later, as the jaundice turned her skin even more yellow, that Jamie had biliary atresia, a disease that causes bile to back up into the liver and the rest of the body because of malfunctioning ducts.

Jamie underwent surgery in February and again in July, but neither surgery was successful. She entered University Hospitals in September to wait for a transplant.

Once again, all the Fiskes can do now is wait and hope. Doctors say the first two weeks after the transplant are the most critical, and if she lives for three months without signs of organ rejection she probably will survive.

FISKE, AN administrator at Boston University School of Medicine, had been staying at home in Bridgeport, Mass., with their 2½-year-old son, Daren. He flew to the Minneapolis on Friday to see his daughter come out of surgery.

Bellon, 24, of Alpine, Utah, told the Minneapolis Star and Tribune Friday in a telephone interview that he had seen Fiske make his plea for help on television. "I had no idea it would ever affect me," he said.

Bellon's wife, Leann, and their 10-month-old son,

AP Laserphoto

Jamie Fiske, 11 months old, of Bridgewater, Mass., successfully underwent liver transplant surgery on Friday. Charles Fiske, Jamie's father, pleaded to the American Academy of Pediatricians that they keep on the look-out for a liver. His plea was answered when 10-month-old Jess Bellon, son of Lared and Leann Bellon of Alpine, Utah, died in a traffic accident.

Jess, were injured Tuesday in a car-train accident near Salt Lake City. When doctors told the Bellons that their son's brain was dead and there was no chance of recovery, Bellon said they decided to see if the baby's liver could be given to Jamie.

The liver was a good match and the surgery went "perfectly," Najarian said. He said Jamie should be eating later this week and should be able to go home in about a month if she doesn't develop any infections or signs of organ rejection.

"We hope we've turned the corner," Fiske said. "We love Jamie very, very much. There's nothing we wouldn't do for her. We hope this (Jamie's battle for life) affords an opportunity to other parents to know there are caring people across the country."

Surgical technique gives hope to patients

PITTSBURGH (AP) Dr. Thomas Starzl, an unassuming surgical dynamo, has spent more than two decades perfecting the transplanting of human livers, an art that is now saving once-hopeless patients.

"At first it looked impossible," Starzl said. "Then it looked slightly possible and then possible in a mediocre way. Now it just looks possible. It looks pretty exciting."

Starzl, 56, a surgeon at the University of Pittsburgh health center, has performed more than 300 transplants similar to the procedure used Friday on 11-month-old Jamie Fiske at the University of Minnesota.

The slender, dark-haired Starzl performed the first liver transplant, in 1963 at the University of Colorado Medical School. The patient died within a year and several subsequent operations failed.

But since Starzl arrived in Pittsburgh in 1981, hospitals affiliated with Pitt have performed 99 liver transplants. Eighty percent of the patients have survived for a year or longer, said Jackie Wilson, a spokeswoman for the health center.

"Every successful case makes me feel good," Starzl said, "but the corollary is that every failure just makes me feel awful. I can't maintain failures."

The turning point came in 1980 when Starzl started using cyclosporine, an experimental Swiss drug more effective than other drugs in combating rejection of the transplanted organ.

"It gives you a much higher rate of graft survival with a much lower risk," said Starzl, who began experimenting with the drug in Denver and brought it to Pittsburgh, where it has proven so effective.

"It's a very fortunate breakthrough," said David Winter, a research director for Sandoz, the company that developed cyclosporine.

"Not only will it sustain the rate of retention of the organ, but also the mortality in the surgical procedure appears to significantly decrease," Winter said.

When Starzl came to Pittsburgh, he was the only U.S. surgeon regularly performing liver grafts, the most technically difficult and time-consuming of the transplant procedures.

The operation has since been performed at hospitals at the University of Tennessee at Memphis and the University of Minnesota.

"I think it's going to be the era of the transplants," Starzl said. "The outlook is extremely good. I think it's going to change the face of medicine in quite important ways."

The liver is the largest of the body's internal organs and the most varied in function. It aids in digestion, removes chemicals and poisons from the blood, cleanses old red blood cells and manufactures proteins, bile and energy sources.

A liver suitable for transplanting must be removed from the donor's body and have its arteries, veins and bile ducts reattached in the recipient's body within eight to 12 hours.

Pitt now has the largest overall transplant program in the country, regularly grafting kidneys, hearts and livers. It also has an organ procurement program that keeps tabs on needy recipients and possible donors.

"This has emerged into a serious service," Starzl said.

INSURANCE FACTS

Betty Powell

In the unfortunate event that your household's breadwinner is laid off, it is a good idea to look into temporary health insurance coverage. Find out how long the former employer's group health plan will continue to cover the family after the job's termination, if at all. Usually, coverage will continue from one to four weeks after the lay-off. After coverage ends, look into converting to individual coverage. This will cost more but is a necessary alternative, especially if someone in the family is pregnant or ill. Ask your insurance professional about purchasing interim health insurance.

Medical catastrophes can have devastating financial effects. Such adversity and loss can range from hospital and doctors' bills themselves to loss of income while confined. Insurance offers a number of alternatives to protect minimize such financial hardship. Your needs will be determined by many factors including your current financial status, your earning capacity, family size, etc. Call POWELL INSURANCE AGENCY, 601 N. Job-creation, economic recovery get top priority in Congress' lame duck session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before the elections, Congress and President Reagan touted an ambitious agenda for the upcoming "lame duck" legislative session. But those plans seem to have evaporated with the end of the fall campaigning.

"Lame duck sessions are meant to serve pre-election needs rather than post-election needs," said a House Democratic source.

The source, who preferred not to be quoted by name, noted the publicity Reagan garnered in September when he wrote to congressional leaders asking the House and Senate to return to complete work on spending legislation before the 97th Congress fades away.

Less than a month before the election, Reagan also made a nationally broadcast economic progress report to the nation, which he described as non-partisan, saying that during the lame duck session he wanted to see action on:

—Unfinished appropriations bills.

—Reconsideration of a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution.

—Regulatory reform for the federal government.

—Enterprise zone legislation providing incentives for development of depressed urban areas.

—The Clean Air Act, to diminish air pollution.

Democrats, meanwhile, said they, too, had big plans for the session beginning Nov. 29.

In mid-October, House Democratic leaders sent a "Dear Colleague" letter to all House Democrats, and to reporters.

"When we return to work Nov. 29, we must give top legislative priority to job-creation and economic recovery," said the letter signed by Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.; Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, and Majority Whip Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash.

The Democrats said their agenda called for legislation to subsidize moderate-priced housing and a measure to create 200,000 temporary public service jobs.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, still holds out hope for enactment of economic measures when legislators come back to Capitol Hill this month. The public wants "action now, without waiting for the new Congress to get organized and into action sometime next spring," he says.

But Reuss, who is retiring at the end of the current Congress, has little support for his position now that the elections are over.

The 98th Congress that is sworn in next year will have an increased Democratic majority in the House and a more moderate tone in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Democrats, knowing they will hold a stronger position in the House next year, have little incentive for acting on major bills now.

Counterfeit video games confiscated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At least 40 allegedly counterfeit video game machines and accessories were confiscated by federal marshals who swept Southern California with lawyers for Atari Inc.

Officials of Atari, which is trying to fight video pirates, said they were not at liberty to discuss details of Friday's crackdown. But they said it may be larger than other recent confiscations in New York City, Las Vegas, Nev., and northern California.

The company has hired private investigators to check tips on counterfeit games and reports the findings to federal marshals. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that video games can be copyrighted.

Man killed in Michigan car rally

WAKEFIELD, Mich. (AP) — An off-road vehicle went out of control and hit a tree during a road rally Saturday, killing the driver and injuring his navigator, police said.

It was the first fatality in the 34-year history of the 560-mile Press On Regardless rally across back roads and trails of Michigan's Upper Peninsula, race spokesman Bob Skuggen said.

According to state police Sgt. Charles Ludwick, driver Larry Newland, 25, of Muskego, Wis., lost control of his specially built Jeep while crossing a bridge and was killed. His navigator, Edward White, 25, of Holland, Mich., was hospitalized in stable but guarded condition.

"The back roads here are glare ice," Ludwick said. "We've got about 14 inches of snow on the ground, so they're sliding all over."

Man to be without credit cards

SEATTLE (AP) — A man who admitted stealing $100,000 with bad checks and other phony transactions has been sentenced to 30 years without credit cards, loans or checking accounts.

King County Superior Court Judge Warren Chan imposed the unusual sentence Friday on Burte T. Owens, 38, of Federal Way, after ordering him to spend three years in jail and make restitution. Owens had pleaded guilty to three counts of theft.

The judge said he hoped the jail term could be served on work release, but ordered Owens to have his financial affairs monitored by a certified public accountant at his own expense. Owens cannot be self-employed, the judge said.

To obtain the $100,000, Owens used mortgages and liens on his home at a fraudulently inflated value, a phony real estate contract and a $13,000 car which was actually leased, the King County Prosecutors Office said.

Prosecutors said Owens passed bad checks to buy cars from several Seattle dealerships between March and June.

Owens at one point was passing bad checks among as many as five bank accounts in Seattle and Florida, prosecutors said. The Florida account was closed at the time.

Collins doesn't know reason for defeat

By MIKE COCHRAN

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Near midnight Tuesday, after the tears and trauma, Jim Collins waded into the red, white and blue debris of his "victory party" and said:

"We no more know what happened to us than nothin'."

The multimillionaire Republican had watched with poorly concealed despair and a wooden smile as his $3 million U.S. Senate campaign crumbled, crashed and burned.

"I really don't know what happened," he sighed. "We just got beat."

Bushwhacked would be more accurate. The final count showed Democrat Lloyd Bentsen, the two-term incumbent, winning by more than half-a-million votes.

The loss brought to a close a 14-year congressional career and ended a long, bitter, uphill battle on a wet and windy night filled with cheers and tears and all the delights and deceits and hoopla of American politics.

AT 66, THERE would be no political tomorrow for Jim Collins, which he readily accepted.

"I've served eight terms in Congress," he said. "I have no future political plans. I'm not running again."

So it all went down the drain on this Tuesday night in November, a night memorable only to those intimately involved with Collins and his Quixotic campaign.

They assembled at nightfall at a place called Wild Briar Farm to share with Collins either his finest hour or his last hurrah.

Campaign workers brought in mountains of food and drink and decorated the party room with balloons and posters and a nifty board upon which they could monitor the statewide election returns. They spared no expense and overlooked nothing.

Nothing, that is, except a maddening election day gimmick the television networks call exit polls.

The electronic cruelty ended the party before it really ever began.

AT 6:20 P.M., a pretty raven haired young lady named Lisette McSoud greeted an early arrival with a smile and a press kit and assurances that no previous campaign ever had such dedicated volunteers or a more charismatic candidate.

"He is the master grass roots campaigner," said Lisette, who is Jim Collins' press aide.

"He will be here at 7:30," she said.

Shortly after 7 p.m., a woman watching television recoiled from the set and cried, "ABC has Bentsen winning!"

"Impossible," said a co-worker. "The polls didn't close until a couple of minutes ago."

SOMEONE EXPLAINED that the networks had conducted "exit polls" as voters left selected voting areas.

Within minutes, NBC and CBS also had declared Bentsen the winner, causing much chagrin and no small amount of anger.

"We've got a long night ahead of us," shrugged State Sen. Dee Travis, Collins' campaign chairman.

At 7:40, the candidate arrived, only to be mobbed by television reporters demanding a response to the exit polls.

"I believe the voters of Texas, not the networks, will decide this election," he said.

"You're not conceding...?"

"Well, we certainly aren't."

From the next room, a cheer went up as the early Dallas County returns came in: Collins 19,058, Bentsen 15,133.

At about 8 p.m., with Gov. Bill Clements leading Democratic challenger Mark White, CBS declared White the victor.

"HOW THE HELL can they do that with Clements leading?" demanded an infuriated skeptic.

No one answered.

"The early boxes are not our strongest boxes," said Lisette of Republicans in general. "I think Clements' campaign will pull through."

She was wrong.

At 8:40, returns from Dallas, Fort Worth and Midland showed Colins ahead in those cities and a supporter said: "I did some phone calling for Jim and they say it's close."

To hell with the networks.

By 9 p.m., Bentsen had proclaimed victory and was quoted by newscaster David Brinkley as having called Collins an "amiable bumpkin."

The early arrival remembered a comment he'd read in a weekly West Texas newspaper, whose editor had been sorely unimpressed with Collins' knowledge of his region.

"SELDOM DO YOU have a second chance to make a first impression," he wrote of that first meeting.

With pressure mounting now for some kind of statement, Collins said: "I think when we get a million votes we'll have a better idea what's going on around the state."

Dee Travis said he expected a statement by 10 p.m.

"We're only carrying 55 percent of Dallas County and we need 60 percent," he said almost to himself.

A man nearby told his wife that "Channel 8 says Mark White will win by a big margin."

"They're prejudiced," she replied. "A survey of the media showed that 80 percent voted for McGovern."

At 9:25, Bentsen, with 58 percent of the vote in, led by roughly 120,000 votes.

TWENTY MINUTES later Collins and an aide ran to a radio to catch some special report, and the aide sid: "We're going to win this."

By 10 p.m., the margin was nearly 200,000 votes and the Collins party was cursing the nation's liberals and stuffing itself on lunchmeat, potato salad, popcorn, wine, beer and soft drinks.

Witness at Wood trial recounts finding rifle stock

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Two brothers foraging for soft drink cans last year found a piece of evidence considered crucial in the case against three people charged in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

The brothers, Tommy and Brad Hickson, found a weathered, muddied rifle stock in a ditch just one-eighth of a mile from where FBI agents had searched with metal detectors and used shovels and heavy equipment to rip up a creek bed.

The discovery was a major break in the $4.7 million investigation of the May 29, 1979, killing of the judge, the most extensive FBI investigation since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Tommy Hickson, 25, appeared last week as a witness at the trial of the three suspects.

The FBI had searched the same area, without results, after agents raiding the El Paso home of lawyer Joseph Chagra found a map that they say showed where the rifle used to kill Wood had been thrown.

Charles V. Harrelson, 44, a convicted hit man, is on trial for murder. Prosecutors contend he used the rifle and shot the 63-year-old Wood for a $250,000 fee.

His 41-year-old wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, already convicted of using a fictitious name to buy a rifle 12 days before the killing, is on trial for perjury and obstruction of justice.

The third defendant is Elizabeth Chagra, 28, the wife of Jimmy Chagra, a convicted narcotics dealer who allegedly hired Harrelson. She is charged with conspiracy to commit murder and obstruction of justice.

Jimmy Chagra, 39, the brother of the lawyer, is serving 30 years without parole for criminal enterprise. He will be tried separately for murder, accused of paying Harrelson to kill Wood to keep him from presiding at his 1979 narcotics trial.

Joseph Chagra finished five days of testimony last week as part of a plea bargain in which he pleaded guilty to murder conspiracy.

Joseph Chagra identified his older brother and Harrelson as the key conspirators in the alleged plot to kill Wood, known as "Maximum John" because of his stiff sentences for convicted offenders.

Tommy Hickson, testifying Friday, said he saw the rifle stock in a ditch in October or November 1979, five to six months after Wood was killed in San Antonio.

For certain, this Celebration will not soon be over.

Doors, table tops, and chair backs of white ash burl veneers are framed by the deep brown finish of maple and mahogany. Each accentuates the other's color and wood grain. Bevelled glass and flush-fitted drawer and door pulls add discreet highlights. Finely-fitted half-round or beaded mouldings trace the doors and outline the edges.

Speaker flunks bar exam

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House Speaker Billy Clayton has failed the state bar exam, but he says he plans to take it again in February.

"I really didn't too much anticipate passing," he said Friday when he learned the bad news. "It was kind of hard to know what to be prepared for."

Clayton took advantage of a 1965 law that allows certain legislators to take the bar exam without having graduated from law school. The law was repealed in 1973, but still applies to members of that and previous legislatures.

"Knowing what I do now, I think I could pass it in February," said Clayton, who is stepping down after serving three terms as speaker.

Clayton, who owns a farm in Springlake, said he did not take the test intending to open a law practice after his term expires in January.

"I'm doing it just for the heck of it. I thought it would be kind of challenging and maybe I'd learn a little bit," he said.

Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, who took the exam under the same provision as Clayton, also failed. Both lawmakers had taken a six-week cram course in anticipation of last July's exam.

Ballots uncounted in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Hundreds of ballots were either uncounted or lost in three predominantly black and Democratic precincts in Dallas on Election Day, officials from both parties have charged.

Election judges from the three southern Dallas precincts said 231 makeshift ballots used when they ran out of regular ballots were never counted. Allegations of misplaced ballots surfaced in other precincts scattered through Dallas County.

Problems with the punch-card voting system caused other ballots to be missed in counting, election judges said.

County elections administrator Conny Drake conceded that at least 24 precincts ran out of ballots, with inspections still incomplete on about 40 percent of the boxes.

The U.S. Justice Department, the Texas secretary of state's office and the county commissioners have pledged separate inquiries into the ballot shortages.

Meanwhile, two judges ordered recounts Friday in eight Dallas County races.

Execution of inmate scheduled

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — James David Autry has been sentenced to die by lethal injection Dec. 17 for a 1980 slaying.

Autry was convicted of capital murder in the slaying of convenience store clerk Shirley D. Drouet during a robbery April 20, 1980.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals affirmed the conviction and the U.S. Supreme Court denied a writ in the case.

The execution date was set Friday by District Court Judge Leonard Giblin.

Gunshot kills boy in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — No one apparently saw the triggerman or heard the gunshot that killed a 10-year-old boy as he strolled through his northeast Houston neighborhood with three friends, police said Saturday.

Bernard Froker complained Friday evening of a sharp pain in his chest, his friends told homicide detectives. The boy said his chest felt like it had been hit by a rock, said Detective Danny James.

Clements: 'Ticket-splitters took beating'

By GARTH JONES
AP Political Writer

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements woke up tired and disappointed the day after the general election and asked an aide what happened to his apparently sure-fire re-election campaign.

"Where did that truck go?" the assistant told the 65-year-old Republican who made political history in 1978 by becoming the Texas' first GOP governor this century.

"We ticket-splitters took a beating last night," was Clements' own explanation to reporters of his defeat by Democrat Mark White.

Clements said he had not had time to explore the causes of his downfall, but others quickly pointed out a record 3.1 million voter turnout resulting largely from a unified campaign drive by Democrats.

The straight-talking Dallas multimillionnaire, who had no experience as a political candidate before the 1978 governor's race, believes his party will come back, but not with him as a candidate.

"When you take a shellacking, which we did, you lick your wounds and you come back for another day, and certainly the Republican Party will rebound from this...they will come back," he said.

"REMEMBER 1980 (the year President Ronald Reagan carried Texas) when the Democrats had their tail between their legs and running for cover? They came back."

When Clements scored the surprise win over Attorney General John Hill in 1978, some called it a David and Goliath victory over a Democratic Party that had made Texas a one-party state for many years.

"I represent all of the people of the state," Clements said after that election. "I intend for us to have a legislative program that is responsive to this state."

He proudly declared himself "a businessman, not a politician" and carried that theme throughout his first term and his unsuccessful re-election campaign.

He stressed the importance of selecting the right staff and making the right appointments to state boards and agencies. He brought in a rich South Texas rancher, Tobin Armstrong, to recommend appointees.

"You don't surround yourself with ribbon clerks," he said.

He rapidly became known as a workaholic governor. When he could not make a speech or appearance, he sent his "secret weapon" — his wife, Rita.

"I'M HAVING A wonderful time being governor," Clements told reporters frequently, grinning from ear to ear and chuckling.

Clements was not always successful in his dealings with the predominantly Democratic Legislature, but he never stopped pushing.

A reporter asked him about the defeat of several of his pet projects in the first legislative session.

Clements replied that according to his figures the Legislature passed 13 of his top 17 priorities.

"That's a batting average of .760 and that ain't bad for a rookie," he said.

In the closing days of his campaign, Clements stressed his legislative successes in public education. He took credit for returning public school curriculum to basic subjects, for curbing "social promotions," and requiring competency testing for new teachers.

He said teachers' salaries were increased 45 percent during his administration, although the powerful Texas State Teachers Association supported his Democratic opponent.

He claimed a long list of successes in anti-crime legislation, including heavier penalties for drug violations, wire taps in narcotics cases, and use of oral confessions in felony trials.

HE WAS NEVER successful in getting legislation that would allow Texans to propose law changes by petition and referendum.

And a lot of his plans for the 1983 Legislature were sidetracked by the election defeat.

Clements named 21 "task forces" made up of more than 600 volunteers, many of them prominent citizens and experts, to hold hearings and make recommendations for 1983 legislation. Clements intended to use the recommendations in his own demands on the 1983 Legislature.

Now, the task force reports will go to the incoming governor, Democrat Mark White, for use as he sees fit.

Another Clements' creation was "Texas 2000", a blue-ribbon commission to study and predict Texas' needs of the future so the state could make long-range plans.

However, Clements' influence will be felt on state boards and commissions for as long as four more years. When he completes his term in early January, he will have appointed about two-thirds of the membership of more than 200 state agencies, most of them for six-year terms.

WHITE WILL MAKE appointments only when vacancies begin to occur after he takes office in mid-January.

One thing Clements is sure about in the future — he will not be a political candidate again, for governor or anything else.

"I have no political ambitions whatsoever," he said. "I told you before that this was my last campaign and I would not run for any other office."

What about the immediate speculation that Reagan might pick him for the Cabinet or an ambassador?

"I have turned those things down in the past, and I will continue to do so," he replied.

But that does not mean Cleaments will disappear as a public figure and an influence in party affairs.

"Well, I don't intend to just ugly away," he said. "I'll be around."

'Heart-attack' sportscaster shakes up Austin television

AUSTIN (AP) — Before Vic Jacobs arrived three months ago, television sports reporting here was considered a very serious business.

Now, however, like it or not, Austinites have their first "heart-attack" sportscast, and some viewers are wondering whether Jacobs is putting them on.

Jacobs insists he takes his job, and sports, seriously, but he admits his untraditional style is, "screaming, basically."

The decibel-level rises several notches from the moment he opens his report in his New York accent, "Good evening spoahts fans!"

It does not get any quieter as Jacobs, 29, spits, throws things and wears funny hats. He is likely to hurl "Vic's brick" at the camera or don a straitjacket and dare National Football League strike negotiators to come and get him.

When his favorite team does not move up on the Associated Press poll, he calls the news service the "associated butchers."

"And that's it from the nation's capital," he signs off, in an apparently sympathetic reference to some Texans who feel their state should be an independent nation.

"It's just the way I feel. I'm just expressing myself, communicating," he explains. "Some people will accept me or they won't accept me. I don't take it to heart."

His style has not caught on in Austin, as the other two commercial stations have kept traditional sportscasts on their news programs.

"The question I'm asking," said soft-spoken sportscaster Ben Storey of rival station KVUE, "and the question I think Vic has to ask himself is, 'how long will this go over? How long will it last?' "

Fan reaction has been mixed.

"Dear Mr. Pennington," C.O. Price writes to KTVV's station manager. "Something happens, usually about 5:13 p.m. on TV 36, the assininity of which you may not fully be aware. Some person attempts to invade our living room, and before we can push the off button, he starts acting like a stark raving maniac who would like to blow his brains out right in our home."

But Thomas Hayes writes: "We love Vic Jacobs. I get more out of sports than I ever have. I am now a 36 news fan and sports is now an experience."

Jacobs insists he takes sports seriously. He says he got hooked on Texas sports as he sat in his parents' apartment in Queens and saw the University of Texas Longhorns football team on national television for the first time.

"I had never seen livestock before," he said, referring not to the Texas players, but to their mascot, a Longhorn steer.

"I thought, 'these people take it seriously. They take it like me, and I can't express myself here.'"

After a circuitous job-hunting route through the South Pacific, Jacobs landed his first sportscasting job at Guam Cable Television and became something of a celebrity, even doing a guest shot on Palau Island television.

Back in the United States, Jacobs found sports reporting jobs not so easy to come by and wound up as a "gofer" for ABC Sports. He became disenchanted and quit.

Officials try to trace illness

LANCASTER, Texas (AP) — Officials are trying to trace the origin of a mysterious illness that has sent more than 300 students home from school in this Dallas suburb.

Administrators said they believed a virus caused the headaches and vomiting among pupils at Lancaster Middle School, but a local medical authority says the symptoms don't fit a viral infection.

About 240 students were absent or sent home Wednesday, about 300 were out Thursday and about 140 missed school Friday, said principal Bob Sauders. The school's enrollment is 828.

The 1982 Colonial
Christmas Wreath Plate

"Massachusetts" is the 1982 issue in a limited edition series of thirteen Lenox fine china plates representing the original thirteen colonies. Plates will be produced in limited quantities only during the year of their issue, one per year, in the same sequence as the establishment of the colonies.

The wreath depicted on the 1982 plate is comprised of the natural materials that were available in colonial Massachusetts, the second colony. Its colors are rendered with naturalistic accuracy—pine greens, blueberries, bright yellow pears, red radishes, and subtle browns of pine cones, chestnuts, cinnamon sticks, Indian corn, wild fennel and juniper cones.

Each plate is trimmed in 24 karat gold and is handsomely gift-boxed.

We recommend your early reservation of this important limited edition.

His leadership strong, fair

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

"They just don't make any better men."

That is Lt. Col. Pat Warren in a nutshell. During the days that Midland was booming with the growth of the Army Air Force Base and coping with the constant sound of planes overhead, keeping of law and order became a major problem.

While many small towns succumbed to the more unsavory elements of life — gambling and prostitutes — Midland retained its status as a clean community due largely to the efforts of Warren, according to people who knew him.

Working closely with Warren were former Sheriff Ed Darnell and Police Chief Hollis Tyson. The three formed a triad of law enforcement that protected the citizens and soldiers alike.

Warren, 84, who returned a few months ago to make his home here, is remembered for keeping a tight rein over his men. Despite that hard outer core, he also is thought of by the men and his friends as a man of fairness.

Born in Coleman in 1898, Warren grew up in that community until World War I came along. Although he was only 17, Warren sneaked into the service, seeing action in France, England and Germany. Because of his young age, Warren wasn't allowed to try flying but he worked in the supply division.

Major Pat Warren didn't want the job, but when World War II broke out he was sent to Midland's Army Air Base as provost marshal. He is shown at left with the typical car of that era. Warren, who retired from the military after achieving the rank of lieutenant colonel, recalls some of the incidents at Midland when he had to discipline soldiers and businessmen.

AFTER THE WAR, Warren returned to Coleman where he found a job in the Post Office. While climbing up the ranks there, he also kept his hand in the military.

He was an officer in the Texas National Guard, attending all maneuvers and encampments. In 1931, he attended the Fort Benning, Ga., School of Fire. In 1941, he attended another school for line officers where he took high honors in the solution of war problems and in combat practice. He also qualified as an expert gunner and as a field artilleryman.

Then came World War II. By now an assistant postmaster at Coleman and cattle rancher, Warren was called back into active duty. This time, he was past the age of enlistment.

"I was 42 years old. I was with the Guard and they called the Guard back in," recalled Warren. The commanding general selected Warren — who had attended intelligence school — for the job.

"I didn't want that darn job and I told him that. But the guy said we needed someone who could handle it," Warren recalled.

THE MIDLAND AIR base was being constructed to serve as the largest bombardier school in the world. When it first opened, the military had few well-trained officers who could walk in and take over. Pat Warren was one of those few, and he wound up with 11 assignments under his wing before enough well-qualified men could be sent to assist.

As provost marshal, Warren was the law enforcement officer for military men not only at Midland but also Odessa, Big Spring, Monahans, McCamey and Pyote.

When the Warrens arrived in Midland, all the housing was already taken, and the family moved into an efficiency apartment at the Crawford Hotel, which was located across the street from where the Midland Hilton now stands.

Warren's wife, Mamie, recalled the scene. "We were part of the first people out here; we came just at mobilization time." The move meant uprooting the family which had its roots at Coleman. "I was young and didn't mind much when he went back into the military. It was his life and what he wanted to do." One daughter, Nonnie, was already married and the other, Patsy, finished high school here.

Eventually, a house on Holloway was available for rent, and they took it.

"Midland had 6,000 people here when they mobilized," said his daughter, Nonnie Buller. "Midlanders took in people, if they had an extra bedroom. Some even built small houses at the back of their house. They had barracks for the boys, but nothing for families."

The men were being shipped in by the thousands. "We used to laugh because so many of the young bombardiers got off the train here and said they wouldn't stay; they hated it here. Before it was over, half of them tried to stay," said Mrs. Warren.

WARREN CAME TO Midland as a major and although he wound up with the rank of lieutenant colonel before he retired, he is better known as "Major Pat." As soon as the major arrived, he organized his efforts with the sheriff and police chief.

"We had cadets running out our ears," Ed Darnell remembered. "There were bombing ranges all over the place. They were flying out of here like bees."

Warren joined up with Darnell's 75-member sheriff's posse. "Pat and I and the police chief...we were captains of the ship. We all worked as a team," Darnell added.

A story in The Midland Reporter-Telegram during that period noted of Warren: "Major Warren has accomplished some remarkable things since he came to Midland Army Flying School.... For his has been the aim to keep things from happening rather than to try to remedy things after they have happened. He came on duty here as provost marshall in January and his first move was to become acquainted with local law enforcement men and to assure them of his cooperation and to ask for theirs. He has gained a reputation as a remarkably alert, fully cooperating and understanding man."

Fully mobilized, the air base was home for 5,000 to 6,000 people on a rotating basis. Neither Warren nor Darnell knows the total number of soldiers who passed through Midland.

Keeping the area acceptable for the soldiers was Warren's priority, but it coincided with that of the sheriff and police chief who were trying to keep Midland clean. And the efforts resulted in hundreds of stories, many of which Warren won't tell. He recalls them with a chuckle and says, "No, I can't tell you," or "Don't write this down."

HE ACCOMPLISHED much of his assignment by posting "Off Limits" signs on the doors of undesirable places, and that also meant eating spots where the equipment wasn't kept clean. And if the camp's soldiers were caught in those places, they met with Warren's disciplined measures.

There was the New York gangster who moved into Midland and tried to open up a club. "He was fleecing the soldiers. I told him I'd close down his club and beat the socks off him," recalled Warren.

Darnell also remembered the man. "We just let him know he wasn't wanted here. We didn't allow gambling and prostitutes. A lot of these joints Pat would put 'Off Limits' for soldiers. They had a lot of gambling and prostitutes."

But it was a harder task to clean up Odessa, said Warren. "We kept crime and gambling out of Midland. They all moved to Odessa; they were getting payoffs over there," he said without elaborating further.

Although he disciplined with an iron hand, he did so with a sense of fairness to the soldiers. Darnell remembers Warren most for the way he treated soldiers who were absent without leave (AWOL).

THE SHERIFF and police chief had been asked by the provo marshal not to throw the AWOL men who were arrested in jail but to take them to Warren..

"Pat said, 'Big Ed, you bring them out here and I'll talk to them.' Pat was such a good guy. He'd get them and tell them to make themselves into a good soldier. Sometimes the parents would come and see them," said Darnell. Essentially, Warren saved many a soldier from court martial and serving prison time.

"We got jillions and jillions of letters from the kids and the parents, thanking us," the former sheriff added.

He recalled the instance of a man from Kermit who went AWOL when his wife's baby was due. The man had been told he could stay at the base until the baby was born, but the military changed its mind and ordered him shipped out. Instead, the man left and went home for the baby's birth and then disappeared.

The man's sister told Darnell her brother was hiding in Big Spring. Darnell went to Big Spring, parked his car at a prearranged spot and the AWOL man climbed into the back seat and returned to Midland where he faced Warren. "Pat teletyped headquarters and said the man had given himself up. It saved him from being court-martialed."

Warren did have his share of trouble-makers, but he didn't let them bother him too long. "When they'd send me a bad man, I'd send him overseas," he chuckled. There was the one soldier who lied to Warren about having women in an area they weren't allowed. "He was sent overseas the next day."

WARREN SPENT four years at the Midland base, leaving Sept. 23, 1945. He was assigned then to Randolph Air Base where he was provost marshal over a larger area.

For his service, Warren received a letter of commendation from Charles T. Myers, commanding brigadier general. It reads in part: "Your broad military background, your extensive training as an infantry officer and your long and honorable service in the Texas National Guard particularly qualified you for your duties in this command. The service which you have rendered...has been accomplished with distinction...."

When his active duty ended and he retired with the rank of lieutenant colonel, Warren returned to Coleman where he picked up his job with the Postal Service. He retired as postmaster Dec. 30, 1965, after serving a total of 46 years in the civil service. He raised cattle, bred polo horses and kept up his friendships made during his Midland duty.

"Pat, he's great," said Darnell. "They just don't make any better men."

'All I want for Christmas...'

Halloween has barely passed, but the Midland Postal Service already is asking customers to get Christmas packages in the mail early to avoid a Valentine Day delivery.

'Mail early' still a postal refrain

By VINCE GIORGI
Staff Writer

Ask a youngster to make his bed, take out the garbage or go peacefully off to bed and get procrastination as a reply.

But let a Christmas "wish book" arrive in the mail, or let slip with "Santa Claus" just once, and before Halloween's candy is even brushed from his teeth, the kid is sharpening mom's best ball-point and bugging dad for the North Pole zip code.

Midland's post office has already relayed seven "Dear Mr. Claus" letters — the earliest postmarked Oct. 6 — to the North Pole.

While post office officials aren't necessarily suggesting everyone get such a running start on the holidays, they are once again — as is their annual custom — encouraging Midlanders to mail their Christmas cards and packages early.

Stan Sartain, customer service manager for Midland's postal service, said postal workers are already beginning to see signs that the Christmas crush is coming. He said packages stuffed with fruit and other Christmas goodies are already in the mail.

Postal officials are quick to note that mailing early not only spares customers the disappointment of having that "perfect" gift arrive imperfectly late, but also helps lessen the tremendous load borne by postal workers as the holidays near.

In the 28 days prior to Christmas 1981, Midland postal workers handled 17,850,000 pieces of mail, according to Sartain. Customers who mail early help spread the work of moving millions of cards and packages over more days, allowing for a steady flow of holiday mail.

The recommended mailing date for "care packages" destined for servicemen and women in Australia, the Far East and Southeast Asia is, unfortunately, already past. Postal officials recommended that such parcels be mailed by Oct. 25 to ensure delivery by Christmas.

By Monday, "surface" letters and packages heading for Europe and Central and South America should be in the mail. Air mail letters and parcels bound for Australia and the Orient should be on their way by Nov. 29.

Dec. 10, the recommended deadline for air mail to Europe, is also the day "surface" cards, letters and parcels intended for friends and relatives in distant states should be mailed. Mail destined for points nearer the Lone Star state should be on its way by Dec. 15.

Sartain said gift-givers are advised to package fruit cakes, cookies and other holiday treats carefully to avoid breakage en route. He said the post office provides packaging tip pamphlets on request.

Lest people resent the Postal Service for continually nagging about the importance of early holiday mailing, Midland Postmaster David Holster stressed that mailing early, and using correct address and zip code, helps ensure that a card hailing "Merry Christmas" won't reach its destination on Valentine's Day.

Principal works toward 'unified' school

Larry Wilkinson viewed Crockett Elementary as two separate schools and has worked to change that since he became principal this year. The results show that he has been successful with students working to make it into one school.

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

There is a new elementary school principal in town with some strong principles.

His ideas have turned the campus, which he saw as two separate schools, into one strong entity which creates enthusiasm and pride and an experience to look forward to and fondly remember.

Located in a predominantly Mexican-American community, Crockett Elementary School has a kindergarten through third grade student population of about 85 percent Mexican-American, 10 percent black and 5 percent Anglo. The sixth grade, which consists of students from cluster schools Lamar and Rusk, has a population of about 65 percent Anglo, 25 percent Mexican-American and 10 percent black.

"MY CONCERN WAS to make Crockett a school they'd all be proud of," Larry Wilkinson said. "I decided I was going to make Crockett successful. I want the other kids to look forward to spending sixth grade here, and I want the seventh graders to look back on sixth grade as a really good year."

It's already begun. Students from other schools, who waited for their buses in the cafeteria which only a few weeks ago was decorated with posters announcing candidacies for the student council, are talking about Crockett in a different way, he said.

The concept of having a student council in an elementary school was based on a need to combine the "two schools" to make one which the students could be proud of, he said.

While two student council representatives from each of the three first, second and third grade classes were chosen by their teachers, the sixth graders campaigned for their positions as representatives and officers with posters, two-minute speeches in front of the student body and high hopes. The sixth graders placed their own vote in the ballot box, and run-off elections were held for every officer position.

ELECTED AS PRESIDENT was a black student, vice president was an Anglo and the secretary and treasurer were both Mexican-Americans. The officers were installed by Mayor G. Thane Akins Friday morning.

"That's pretty much evidence that they didn't pull for just one race, but that there is unity here," Wilkinson said.

All representatives, from the first grade up, will attend the meetings and are expected to take notes to report information about the council's activities back to their homerooms. A workshop will be held on how to take notes and write up the news for the school paper. All officers will participate in a workshop on Robert's Rules of Order and will help write the schools' constitution.

Wilkinson, who had prior experience with student councils while an assistant principal in Austin last year, said, "I've worked with student councils quite a bit and I see it as an opportunity to learn about responsibility and about membership."

The officers already have an appointment with MISD superintendent Dr. Joseph P. Baressi, "for a Coke and a chat." The student council will sponsor a career day in the spring for sixth graders. The president and treasurer, along with Wilkinson and student council sponsor Ronda LaFon, will establish a bank account. The PTA has already approved selling T-shirts by students. A bake sale and a Kid's Closet Sale also are expected to bring in funds for the account.

The student council plans to buy books and material for the school library and, most importantly, raincoats and galoshes for the safety patrol, Wilkinson said.

THE SAFETY PATROL, established this year, also has improved the school spirit, he said. Previously, "there was a lot of chaos. Parents would just drop their kids out anywhere and kids were crossing the streets anywhere."

Sixth graders selected to the safety patrol attended a training program given by the Midland Police Department, who also installed the officers. Students will work in shifts which rotate every six weeks. A safety patrol captain makes sure his fellow students are doing their jobs and fills vacancies if any are unable to work because of an illness. The students, armed with badges from the police department, work from 8:10 to 8:40 a.m. and from 2:55 to 3:30 p.m.

Midland police also gave a seminar on safety to the primary students, which helped improve respect for the safety patrol, he added. Parents now are cooperating by dropping students off in designated zones, Wilkinson said.

Other programs implemented at Crockett this year include a Positive Action Plan, which rewards good behavior as much as it punishes inappropriate behavior.

SUPER KIDS ARE designated every two weeks for their behavior and are treated to special 30-minute programs every other Friday. Those who have chosen to misbehave, and therefore are not allowed to attend Super Kid programs, spend their time in detention hall, studying vocabulary words which change every six weeks. Friday, students were studying social study vocabulary words; last six weeks they learned language arts vocabulary words.

And visits to the principal's office result in as many certificates of good behavior and hugs as they do in paddling, he said.

Team-teaching is being followed by teachers at the primary level, Wilkinson said. With three classes per grade, teachers choose the course they would most like to teach and the one in which they have the most expertise. The teachers then rotate through all three classrooms.

"The teachers like it because they get to teach the subject they want to teach," Wilkinson said, adding that it also helped cut down class preparation time for the teachers, and the teachers enjoyed being involved with other students besides their own.

At the sixth grade level, team-teaching is done in social studies. The classes join together on special units and are taught in the cafeteria. Plans are being made for a "Texas Day," to coincide with Public School Week in March when they will be studying the Texas unit. According to Wilkinson, students will dress up in pioneer outfits, eat hot dogs and potato salad which they will prepare, drink lemonade and play old math games like those students played in schools during the pioneer days.

Wilkinson, who has been involved in education since 1971, had not been a principal before this year.

"I've been wanting to be a principal for several years," he said. "Basically, I've just prayed for this type of a situation."

Although he hesitated about leaving Austin when he first heard of a chance to be a principal in Midland, Wilkinson said he is glad he made the decision to move to West Texas.

"I feel like this is the place where I need to be," he said. "I want to make Crockett a school they can be proud of. I want to build school spirit and communication between students and teachers. I want to teach students something about responsibility.

"I've learned a lot about myself, too," he added. "And its been through the eyes of little children."

Loeffler looks ahead to new year, new session

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

On the eve of Tuesday's elections, Tom Loeffler was looking ahead to January and what the outcome of the voters' choices would mean for legislation in the new session of Congress.

Loeffler, a Republican representing the 21st District that includes Midland, easily outdistanced his Democratic opponent Charles Stough to be sent back to Washington, D.C., for a third term.

Targeting energy, Social Security and the economic program, Loeffler said the ease with which legislation would be passed depends upon how many conservatives — not specifically Democrats or Republicans — would be elected to Congress. The outcome was not what he or other Republicans wanted as Democrats gained about 20 seats in the House.

The bipartisan coalition of Republicans and Democrats during the last session put together an economic recovery package aimed at reducing federal spending, lowering taxes, curbing regulatory intrusion and continuing support of a moderate and steady supply in the growth of money. Those efforts coupled with a continued reduction in the cost of money have resulted in the drop of the discount rate, he said.

"NOW, THE QUESTION becomes what will be the new Congress' ability to move ahead on this program. Will it be with the same momentum that we have experienced in the past two years or will it slow down some," said Loeffler in an interview at The Midland Reporter-Telegram.

"From the standpoint of the Boll Weevils, we will remain virtually intact, the Boll Weevils being an integral part of the bipartisan coalition," he said. The Boll Weevils, who were formed about two years ago, consist of Democrats and Republicans who supported President Reagan's economic recovery program.

That evening, he had hoped on a loss of only 10 to 15 Republicans in the House. Voters didn't agree. But he was correct that the Senate would retain its Republican majority.

A key issues, he said, will be natural gas deregulation. "Once we review makeup of the new Congress we can narrow considerations of how we address our natural gas decontrol agenda."

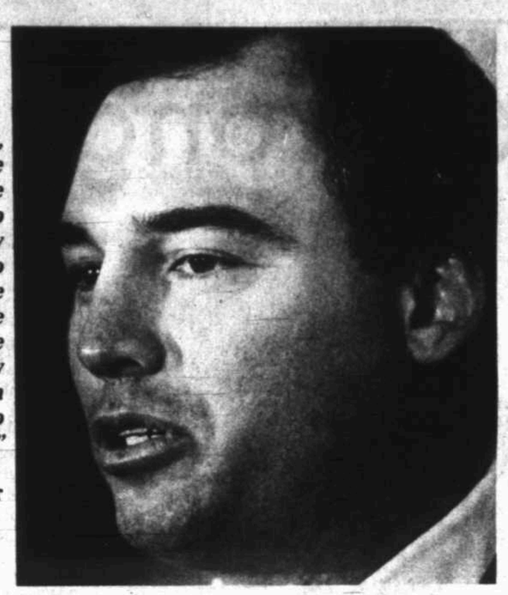
The options, he said, are immediate decontrol across the board, a phased-in decontrol between now and 1985 with the possible addition of a windfall profits tax or recontrol.

That evening before the election, Loeffler was hoping that with a loss of no less than 10 Republicans in the House there would be a good chance to look at immediate decontrol.

But with about 25 losses, "we would have to consider again if we want to risk a windfall profits tax."

"Very difficult, statesmanlike decisions will be necessary to keep Social Security solvent for those who have paid into it....We should return to the original intent of the Social Security system to make it a supplement to retirement."

— Tom Loeffler



DECONTROL WOULD serve more as a boost for intrastate gas producers rather than interstate producers who have been taking gas out of Texas and selling it to other states, he explained.

Loeffler's interest in the energy field started in 1972 when he worked for U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, on energy legislation. "That 10 years puts me in an advantageous situation to move whenever we decide how to move," he said.

President Reagan was ready to move in the last session of Congress toward deregulation, but it would have meant for certain the addition of a windfall profits tax. For that reason, said Loeffler, Reagan backed off from deregulating that industry.

However, he noted that decontrol would help every consumer throughout the country. Consumers receiving interstate gas are paying for LNG from Algeria that is shipped "at a highly accelerated price. Why shouldn't America be able to produce American energy for American consumers at an American price that would be lower than an Algerian price?"

Looking at the downturn in West Texas where the economy comes primarily from the petroleum industry, Loeffler said there is no reason that American companies shouldn't be exploring and producing more at home instead of importing what they do.

Without knowing what the makeup of Congress would be, Loeffler acknowledged there is no time he and other pro-energy legislators can sit back and breathe easy. "You just have to watch with a very fine eye the entire spectrum of legislative activity."

THE PRO-OIL GROUP of legislators includes Republicans and Democrats. "And there are Republicans who are anti-oil. It's not party line at all," said Loeffler.

When the new Congress begins work in January, Social Security will be one of the key items that has to be tackled and no longer ignored, according to the Republican. And he predicted a difficult time ahead for all involved.

"Very difficult, statesmanlike decisions will be necessary to keep Social Security solvent for those who have paid into it," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, we should return to the original intent of the Social Security system to make it a supplement to retirement; it was not designed to be full retirement or to be welfare. I'll promote a program that won't raise Social Security taxes again."

The Social Security trust fund once was actuarially sound, he added. But in 1969, money started draining out of it faster than was going into it.

The problem with Social Security started when Congress began using the money for persons who should have gone to welfare, according to Loeffler. "People not able to meet their needs should be on the welfare program. That is funded through the general revenues as well as being supported by the state governments. It should not come out of the Social Security trust fund."

SECONDARY ISSUES, such as wealthy persons who don't need the Social Security payment, will have to be weighed. However, Loeffler noted that these people paid into the fund "and they aren't getting something for nothing."

Someone who reaches retirement age now will have paid an average of $14,000 into the system, Loeffler explained. Within 14 months, they will receive more than what they paid into the system. And their life expectancy is another 13 years.

A young person entering the job market today would have to pay $350,000 into the system between now and the day they retire, he said to illustrate the problem and the fact it can't be solved with a Band-Aid.

"For working people, we simply can't bear the burden of added taxes for every political wish that would come before Congress," he added.

Looking at the drop in inflation rate, he said it should help Congress on the cost of living adjustments that are automatically figured into the budget.

"I think we're very close to popping out of this recessionary cycle," he said, citing the drop in inflation to 5½ percent and reduction in interest rates.

Another major issue to face Congress will be President Reagan's proposed New Federalism. "It will continue to be debated on ways to return money to the states and to the people."

THE PAST SESSION of Congress was described by the Republican as a "transition Congress" in that an attempt was started to cut spending and taxes. The New Federalism that was proposed during that session will be picked up and taken forward, he said.

Loeffler already serves on the House Appropriations Committee, but he's mulling over the proposal to sit in one of two reserved seats on the Budget Committee.

His administrative assistant, Alan Kranowitz, explained two seats on the committee are reserved for people from the Budget Committee and two for people from the Ways and Means Committee. One seat from the Budget Committee will be vacant this year, and Loeffler has been asked to take it. "Tom has it under advisement at the moment. It would be a heck of a lot of additional work on top of his Appropriations Committee assignment."

Also working as deputy minority whip, Loeffler noted his quick rise in the leadership of the House has come partly because of his 10 years in various other government posts. After working under Sen. Tower, Loeffler went to Gerald Ford's administration to work as a liaison between the White House and Congress.

Loeffler offered a glimpse to his long-range goal and it does not include moving over to the Senate or a higher position in the White House.

"I want to grow in leadership in the House and someday be speaker of the House."

Despite setbacks, waning interest, group still hopes to build area zoo

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Hopes for a zoo to be constructed between here and Midland have not been dashed yet, though setbacks have loomed at every corner.

As proposed by the Permian Basin Zoological Society, the zoo would be regional in nature, displaying fauna of West Texas in lieu of exotic species.

But though Annual Wilderness Awareness Week was observed in the sister cities this past week, interest in such a facility is waning.

A site which reportedly was to have been donated for the zoo no longer is available. Funds are low. Community support is weak.

And the entire project is threatened.

"It will become a reality if certain things happen," said Society president Jay Burns of Odessa. "The first is, we have to have more community involvement and some degree of dedication. It's a society, and societies by nature must have a certain number of people willing to donate time and a certain amount of energy.... Also, we're very low on funds."

The Society has received a tax exempt status from the Internal Revenue Service, allowing contributions and major portions of membership fees to be tax deductible. Burns hopes this will pave the way for additional funds for the proposed zoo.

The Society president opined that losing the suggested site — within Odessa city limits — for the facility may have been a blessing in disguise, as he now hopes to arouse community interest in Midland for a zoo to be situated between the cities.

"Midland, I think, is extremely interested in it as a whole, mainly as a result of Cole Park and what happened out there," he said. "Many people just miss that type of facility. We would like to try to get land located somewhere out around the airport."

The Society's annual elections will take place in a Nov. 30 meeting at a site not yet determined. Burns said he hopes to hold the meeting at Air Terminal to attract persons from the Tall City.

"We want more participation; we want to do more in Midland, get more input from folks over there," he noted.

The Zoological Society has opened an office at 520 E. 8th St. in Odessa, and also is in the progress of organizing two Explorer Posts.

Additionally, said Burns, Wayne Kohout of Midland Parks and Recreation Department has solicited the Society's help in thinning out the prairie dog population at Cole Park next spring. Several months ago the Society captured several dozen of the elusive animals at Sherwood Park in Odessa and shipped them to locations such as Palo Duro Canyon.

Persons willing to donate time, finances or land to help bring the proposed zoo to fruition should contact Burns at the Zoological Office, 335-0025.

Tony Dorsett visits Casa de Amigos

Tony Dorsett took time to visit Casa de Amigos, a United Way agency, while in Midland Friday for the second noon report rally. The pro football player came to Casa to offer advice and encouragement to students who participate in Casa's after-school tutoring program.

He told the students that although "sports is the great American pastime, parents shouldn't put a whole lot of emphasis on football and other sports. You have to have other means of making a living. Football is a short-lived career. A good example right now is the football strike. The players don't have a job. They are in bad shape without an education. When you come to the after-school tutoring program and get help with your studies, you are improving yourself."

Helping people to help themselves is the Casa de Amigos motto and Casa strives to do just that. The agency is an ecumenical Christian social service agency. Committed to improving the quality of life throughout the community, Casa assesses the human services needs of Midland and addresses these needs in a variety of ways.

Just one of the ways Casa helps people help themselves is the after-school tutoring program for elementary age children. Each September, volunteer tutors gather for orientation and training. Volunteer tutors are sought from throughout the community. This past September, 23 individuals volunteered to work in the after-school program. The volunteers work on a one-to-one basis with the students for one hour twice a week at Casa de Amigos on North Lamesa Road and Garden Lane.

Helen Cronenberg, volunteer coordinator, provides the orientation and matches tutors with their students. She assists the tutors in finding materials they need for the students.

Margaret Hernandez, assistant director of Casa, works with the teachers at Crockett and De Zavala schools in identifying those students who can benefit most from the tutoring.

Paul Reyes, a second grade teacher at Crockett, says the after-school tutoring program can perfect what he starts in the classroom. The one-to-one tutoring gives the students a chance to concentrate on a specific skill. Reyes has three students in the Casa program and he is satisfied with their progress since September.

One of the students, Monica Villa, was reserved and timid at the beginning of the year. As her English has improved, she has become more confident and outgoing. "I want an autograph, I want an autograph," she said excitedly during Dorsett's visit.

Reyes, her teacher, says that through the tutoring program at Casa he is able to balance his class so that students who need the extra help the most can get it. "The tutor picks up where I leave off," he said.

Casa is here to serve the needs of the entire community without regard to race or religion, providing services where other organizations do not. These services are in the form of self-help practical education for those who wish to better themselves and their way of life.

OC to host women's luncheon

ODESSA — Women's Opportunity at Odessa College (WOOC) will host a luncheon featuring seven women who have excelled in their chosen vocation or education at noon Thursday in the North Community Room at OC. Cost of the luncheon is $4.25.

Georgenia Sherrod, counselor for women's support services, said Dr. Lee Buice will be keynote speaker at the salad luncheon. Buice is the assistant to the president of OC.

Sherod said some of the topics to be discussed at the luncheon include "Dealing in a Man's World," "How to Make Decisions," "Can I Go Back to School," and others.

For more information or to make reservations for the WOOC luncheon, contact Sherrod at OC.

Medieval lore to be on display

The Society for Creative Anachronism, an international, non-profit educational organization dedicated to researching and recreating the customs, combat and courtesy of the Middle Ages, will hold a "populance meeting" in Wadley-Barron Park, at Cuthbert Avenue and A Street, today from 2 to 6 p.m.

Local SCA members, in full Medieval costume and armor, will participate in fighter and dance practice during the meeting.

Anyone interested in joining the Permian Basin SCA organization, the incipient Shire of Tir nam Dubh Loch (Land of the Black Lake), is encouraged to attend. The public is invited to witness the fighting and dance demonstrations.

MISD to consider clusters, boundaries

The Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees will hold a second reading on proposed changes in elementary clusters and boundaries during a regular meeting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the administration building, 702 N. N St.

Trustees also will take action on the first hearing of a proposed revision of the board policy pertaining to outside employment, are expected to approve plans and call for bids on the reconstruction of Carver Occupational Development Lab and Travis Elementary School addition and accept bids on audio-visual equipment, furniture and pianos for three new schools, equipment for general agricultural mechanics, material for health occupations and equipment for vocational education agriculture.

Reports are expected to be given on the status of the Volunteers in Public Schools program, a proposed survey of selected secondary students as to drug and alcohol abuse and an update on the process for selecting a name for the "Bluebird" school.

The board also is expected to accept a microcomputer from Texas American Bank and Computer Technology Associates and to meet in an executive session to discuss personnel and real estate matters.

County Commissioners' Court

Midland County commissioners will examine a schematic design for the planned county courthouse addition, consider bingo enabling petitions and a possible bingo election date at their regularly scheduled meeting Monday at 9 a.m. in the commissioners' courtroom.

The commissoners also will discuss with Sheriff Dallas Smith the possibility of hiring a nurse and obtaining additional lights for the county jail.

Also on the agenda are requests for use of the County Exhibit Building, and discussion of election facilities and the Nov. 2 election.

The next regularly scheduled meeting is Nov. 22 in the commissioner's courtroom. Person wishing to present business before the commissioners should contact County Judge William Ahders by the Wednesday preceding the scheduled meeting.

Regional Planning Commission

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission will hold its regular monthly meeting at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the PBRBC conference room at Midland Regional Airport.

The agenda includes consideration for review and comment for the City of Midland's pre-application to the Federal Aviation Administration for improvements to the airport.

The city is requesting $2,096,024 from the FAA to be matched with $232,891 in local funds for a total project cost of about $2.3 million.

Improvements at the airport include the general aviation parking apron and the installation of a security fence.

Millionaire acquitted in conspiracy

DALLAS (AP) — A Sulphur Springs millionaire has been acquitted in a drug-smuggling conspiracy, but his son has been found guilty of the same charge.

William Tate, 50, was accused of financing an operation to smuggle marijuana into the United States from Mexico. He and a third defendant, 32-year-old James P. Noone of Fort Worth, were acquitted Friday after two days of jury deliberation.

CRMWD delivery may exceed 18 millions gallons for 1982

BIG SPRING — If the Colorado River Municipal Water District deliveries in the last two months of this year as much as match those of 1981, the district will surpass 18 billion gallons this year.

Another substantial increase in deliveries occurred in October, boosting the total to 15.8 billion gallons during the initial 10 months. Of this, 13.7 billion gallons went to municipalities, up 5.35 percent.

The total of 1.4 billion gallons delivered in October was up 3.94 percent over the same month last year. The bulk of this was in municipal deliveries of 1.2 bilion gallons, up 5.42 percent for the month, thanks to a 35.64 percent gain for Odessa.

The 200.8 million gallons pumped to oil companies was 4.37 percent less than for October 1981. The 10-month total of 2.02 billion gallons was down 1.98 percent.

The October record, by cities, included: Midland, 326,330,000 gallons, down 6.75 percent; Big Spring, 208,129,000 gallons, down 1.96 percent; Odessa, 590,633,000 gallons, up 35.64 percent; Stanton, 10,060,500 gallons, up 37.75 percent; and Snyder, 86,170,000 gallons, up 11.18 percent. San Angelo, which took 83.9 million gallons in October 1981, used only 5.7 million gallons in the same month this year. Robert Lee, which used none last year, received 2.8 million gallons from the district this October.

INTRODUCING

FIRST RATE CHECKING

"Works like a regular checking account & pays interest just like a money market fund."

Now you can get the same high yielding rates that money market funds offer, combined with the conveniences of a local checking account right here at home from First Savings. It's called FIRST RATE CHECKING and it's the ultimate for those looking for flexibility, liquidity and high interest rates.

When you open a FIRST RATE CHECKING account you'll find that it allows you to do exactly what you want to do with your money. There are no restrictions on check writing. There is no red tape. No penalties. FIRST RATE CHECKING pays interest like current money market funds on your deposits over $2,500.

Here's how it works:

1. A FIRST RATE CHECKING ACCOUNT can be opened at any one of our four First Savings offices with a minimum deposit of $2,500. (If you already have an account with us, you only need tell us you want FIRST RATE CHECKING and bring your balance to $2,500 or more.)

2. When your balance rises above $2,600, all funds over $2,500 are automatically transferred into a special repurchase agreement which earns interest equal to the most recent 13-week Treasury Bill Rate. While the first $2,500 in the account still earns interest at our regular 5¼% rate.

3. Write checks as usual . . . any number for any amount. There are no restrictions here. It's one of our attractive features. Pay all your bills out of this account if you like. As you write checks and make deposits, your funds are automatically transferred back and forth between your interest bearing checking account and the higher yielding repurchase agreement.

4. There are no penalties, no fuss, no red tape. You deal with local people that you know. And your funds earn you high interest while staying in our own area, helping your community.

5. You'll receive a complete monthly statement that itemizes all checks, deposits, transfers, balances and interest earned.

6. Call now 683-5681 for more information or stop by any one of our branch offices: San Miguel Square—Stanton—Claydesta Towers West or our main office at 500 West Wall Avenue in Midland.

IMPORTANT:
Your checking balance is insured by FSLIC. However, the repurchase agreement is not a savings account or a deposit and is not insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

"Make your own financial history."

FIRST RATE CHECKING is just another way that First Savings is helping you carve out a better financial future. Whatever your financial position — remember our commitment is to help you reach your financial goals as an individual or as a business — offering you alternatives that will help you make financial history today. Come in or call — we'll give you more detailed information that will show you exactly how to carve out your own future with the new FIRST RATE CHECKING.

Almost finished with her mini Christmas tree is Metta Preas, as she pins the last few squares onto the shell. The Parks and Recreation Department and Museum of the Southwest are sponsoring a mini Christmas tree contest. Deadline is Dec. 2 and the top three winners will be announced at the tree lighting festival the evening of Dec. 3.

Museum, parks department holding mini-tree contest

Turkey Day is still a few weeks away, but some residents can't wait for Christmas. And for those whose creative juices start flowing early with imaginative ideas on holiday decorating, there's one way to release those ideas.

The Parks and Recreation Department and Museum of the Southwest are sponsoring a mini-Christmas tree contest with prizes to be awarded to first, second and third places. Trophies will be awarded along with gift certificates from the Museum.

The rules call for trees to be no smaller than one foot or larger than two feet tall. Each tree must come with its own stand or base.

The tree may be constructed of any material desired and be of any design and color and be decorated with any type of material.

There is no age limit for contestants. Individuals or groups may enter a tree. And a contestant may enter as many trees as he or she can put together.

Trees should be delivered to the Museum on Dec. 2 between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. and picked up on Jan. 9.

All trees should have a card with the name, address and telephone number of the contestant tied to the tree.

Trees will be judged Dec. 3 and will remain for viewing at the Museum, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., through the holiday season. Viewing hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The three winners will be announced at the Christmas tree lighting festival at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 3 in the Downtown Plaza Park. Winning trees will be on display that evening in the lobby of Midland Center, next to the park.

Further information about the contest can be obtained by telephoning the Parks and Recreation Department, 683-4281 or Museum of the Southwest, 683-2882.

The city of Midland is noted for tearing up the streets and forever fixing them. Please advise as to when all the barrels will be moved and the section completed at Andrews Highway and Loop 250. If ever there was a traffic hazard, certainly that is one. — F.L. Magee

ANSWER: To begin with, the intersection at Andrews Highway and Loop 250 is not one of the city's projects, it is being developed by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Lynn Passmore, engineer with the highway department, says that the barrels are not considered a traffic hazard during the development of the intersection. The barrels are placed at different points to regulate traffic flow during the construction period. Passmore also says that, depending on many factors, the work at the intersection could be completed in three or four months.

I receive about $200 a year altogether in dividends on my life insurance policies, and I have never declared them as income and paid taxes on them.

Now my father-in-law, who says he knows everything, tells me I'm going to be in big trouble with the Internal Revenue Sevice when they find out. Is he right? — J.L.

ANSWER: Rest easy, says The American Council of Life Insurance, he's wrong. Policy dividends on life insurance aren't like the dividends paid on an investment and thus taxable income. Rather, they are a return of premiums paid by you but not needed by the company and therefore returned to you — and they are tax-free.

I thought there was a cable television company, other than Times Mirror, which is supposed to serve residents in Midland County outside the city limits. Could you tell me if there is one? I received some literature from Times Mirror, but when I checked with them I was told that there was cable service available across the road from me, but not available yet for me. — Sheila Elliott

ANSWER: Tom Mixon, manager of Times Mirror Cable Television, says that availability of cable service in rural areas is "hit or miss," meaning that his company has some lines and another company has lines. The other company you could contact is Brett Communications, Inc., 2 Ridge Drive, 684-9199.

Is there a widower and widows' club in the area? If so, where and how do I get in contact? If not, just what would one have to do to get something started for a communication line for those who have experienced the loss of their spouse.? I feel a need for this for many of us. — V.M. Swicegood

ANSWER: Answer Line has not been able to locate such an organization, but suggests you contact Alma B. Tiner, Chester Powers, Bertha Toon or Maureen Hickman. They are associated with the Midland Association of Retired Persons and might be able to be of some assistance.

Could you tell me how many times and what years Norman Thomas was a presidential candidate? — J.S.

ANSWER: Thomas was a candidate in 1928, 1932, 1936, 1940, 1944 and 1948, a total of six times.

Course in doll making to begin soon at OC

ODESSA — Persons interested in making dolls for their collection will have an opportunity to learn doll making in a class being offered through the continuing education department at Odessa College beginning Nov. 18.

The doll making class, taught by Carol Turnbo, will offer complete instruction on making dolls with either a hand-embroidered face or a face painted on with acrylics.

The class will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays through Nov. 23, in Travis Hall, room 1. Fee for the class is $10.

For more information or to register, contact the continuing education department at Odessa College.

"Portable Garage" Car & Boat Tarp Only $7.98

If You Act Within Next 30 Days

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov.,1982 —International Mail Marketing will send any consumer who sees this notice a giant "Portable Garage" Car & Boat Tarpaulin for just $7.98 if your response is received within 30 days. This is a huge, 24' x 12' tarp constructed of heavy-gauge polyvinyl and polyethelene with eight reinforced tybek grommets to insure tie-down protection from rain, sleet, snow, dust, dirt, or salt spray. "Portable Garage" is large enough to cover any car, even the biggest limousine or station wagon. It is also useful to protect boats and small trucks, barbecues, garden tractors, lawn and patio furniture or a woodpile from rough winter weather.

Each tarp comes backed by an unconditional, iron-clad guarantee of satisfaction—it must meet or exceed your every expectation or return it at any time within 30 days for prompt refund of purchase price. You may order two tarps for only $15; three for only $22; four at just $28; and five for only $33! These are commercial-grade industrial-strength tarpaulins suitable for even the most rugged use. However, because of the special low price, we must restrict requests to private consumers only; no industrial user or dealer requests will be accepted. There is a further limit of five (5) tarps per request at this low price.

To request your tarp, please send your name and address, plus appropriate payment for each tarp requested and $2.00 per order for postage and handling,no matter how many tarps you are ordering to: International Mail Marketing, Dept. GX-1776, 390 Pike Road, Huntingdon Valley, PA 19006 within the next thirty days. Credit card orders will also be accepted; simply note name of card, account number, and expiration date of card on the same paper as your name and address when ordering.

TOT to perform 'Daughter of the Regiment'

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

Texas Opera Theatre has been performing throughout the United States since 1974. On Nov. 14 the troupe is coming to Midland for a one night stand.

The opera being presented at Midland High School Auditorium is Gaetano Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment." The local TOT performance is sponsored by the Midland Opera Theatre, with tickets, priced at $10 for reserved seating and $7 for general admission, available at Theatre Midland's box office.

"Daughter of the Regiment" is a comic opera that takes place in France. The TOT production will be sung in English.

Briefly, "Daughter of the Regiment" is the story of Marie, the adopted daughter of the 21st Regiment of Napoleon's army; her Tyrolean peasant lover; her helpful antagonist, Sergeant Sulpizio; and the Marquis of Berkenfeld, a missing relative.

"Daughter of the Regiment" is a well known opera partly due to Beverly Sills.

"THE THEME OF this opera and its popularity originally started when Beverly Sills began to tour it. She really made a claim to fame nationally for her role of Marie in 'Daughter of the Regiment,'" said TOT's managing director, Jane Weaver, in a telephone interview.

The TOT production is different than most staged productions of this opera.

"The production is usually done with about a 40-man chorus of soldiers and then the principal characters," Miss Weaver said.

"And the way we choose to do it, because we're a touring company and because we want to keep the cost affordable to the communities that we tour to, we've kind of changed it in that it's not a 40 man chorus but it's a band of eight characters. And each one of them has their own identity."

Pausing, she added, "To me when I watch part of the show, there's a section where they all say goodbye to Marie and it's almost like Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs saying goodbye to each other — there's a real enchantment there."

"IT'S A BRAND NEW production; it's a fabulous design," Miss Weaver said. "The set and design look like a children's story book where you open the book and everything kind of pops out. It's very three dimensional, but it's like a piece of art; it's like a painting."

The TOT cast which will perform in Midland includes Patricia Earnest and William Watson.

"Patricia has been making a lot of headway in her career in the last couple of years. She starred in 'The Merry Widow' here in Houston with the Houston Grand Opera. She's also done Santa Fe Opera; she was an apprentice there. She's worked at Washington Opera and Virginia Opera," Miss Weaver said of Miss Earnest's credits.

The Texas Opera Theatre presents Donizetti's comedy opera "Daughter of the Regiment," sung in English, at MHS Auditorium Nov. 14 at 8 p.m.

Of her command of this role, Miss Weaver said, "She has tremendous energy and a spirit about her and boyish charm — she's (playing the role of) a girl who grows up in an environment of men so she's real spunky and has a lot of tomboyish qualities about her which she carries off beautifully.

"William Watson who plays Tonio, the leading man, is a young tenor that we discovered in Chicago," Miss Weaver said.

He was discovered through a review.

"In fact, I was reading Opera News this past summer and I saw a review for Bill Watson, that he had done 'Daughter' in Chicago, and I called the Chicago Opera Theatre and they said, 'Yes, he's wonderful.' So we auditioned him and hired him," Miss Weaver said, adding, "He's also done some work with the Chicago Symphony."

When asked about TOT, which is a subsidiary of the Houston Grand Opera, Miss Weaver said, "I'd love to tell you about Texas Opera Theatre.

"OUR MISSION is to tour to communities who want high quality cultural events in their community. Another of our missions is to introduce new audiences to opera and to nurture the careers of young singers."

The competition is stiff.

"The young singers are auditioned nationally and out of some 400 we hire 20," Miss Weaver said, adding, with a laugh, "They're fabulous; they're wonderfully talented, however I'm very prejudiced."

TOT is divided into two companies.

"The company by a way of introducing audiences to opera is divided into two companies — the residency company and the main company," Miss Weaver said.

Of the residency company, Miss Weaver said, "The residency troupe breaks opera apart into all its elements and they do only one hour programs. They do a Broadway show, a Gershwin show, a puppet show, a one act opera, they talk about makeup, they talk about voice to music students, they talk about careers in the arts, so they break away all the elements."

The Midland performance will be presented by TOT's main company.

With a budget of $1.5 million, TOT is one of the major opera companies in America now, Miss Weaver said.

"Our support comes from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Texas Commission on the Arts, from corporations, from foundations and from generous individuals. If it weren't for those contributions, the fees that we would ask for from our sponsors, like Midland, would be double. I'm always very thrilled to thank all those wonderful contributors who enable us to go to the places that are away from the urban centers."

Of Midland, Miss Weaver said, "We're excited to be back in Midland. Midland is one of our very supportive sponsors. The audiences there are always very enthusiatic and we hope we will be there year after year."

Whiting charms audience with songs, anecdotes about celebrities

"I hate Margaret,
She'd make a good target.
She sings, she thinks,
But I think she stinks.
I hate Margaret."

— Barbara Whiting

Barbara was wrong.

Not only did Margaret Whiting prove without a doubt Thursday at the first concert in the Renwood Inc. Select Series that much of her voice is as young as ever, she also clearly demonstrated that she's a virtuoso entertainer as well.

The audience loved her.

From "Bewitched" to "Send in the Clowns," Miss Whiting held the audience's attention as she sang and talked her way through decades of American music.

As the child of songwriter Richard Whiting, Margaret grew up in Hollywood surrounded by most, if not all, the greats who were busy creating the music we so enjoy remembering today — Jerome Kern, Johnny Mercer, Richard Rogers, Lorenz Hart, Harry Warren, George Gershwin, Oscar Hammerstein, and, well, the list goes on.

The audience enjoyed the personal recollections of her life and the show business personalities she has known. Most of her stories were quite humorous, especially the one about the Broadway agent on a talent search.

"I've talked about growing up in Hollywood, but I did not do it single," Miss Whiting said. Pausing, she added, "I had a younger sister Barbara." Then laughing, she commented that for some time her family thought Barbara was going to be a poet.

Her most vivid memory of Barbara's poetic abilities concerned Barbara's recitation for an agent; a Broadway agent who was in Hollywood looking for talent. He had come to the Whiting home for an audition. However, the audition was not with Barbara, but with Margaret (who was about 15 years old at the time).

"Just as I was ready to begin," Margaret said, "Barbara came down the stairs and into the room and stood right in front of me and said, 'I hate Margaret. She'd make a good target. She sings, she thinks, but I think she stinks. I hate Margaret.' "

Barbara then exited back up the stairs.

Laughing, Miss Whiting said that not too long after that Barbara got a role in "Junior Miss" and she got to be her chauffeur. But it was an excellent experience for her, Margaret that is, because it opened the door to her recording of "It Might as Well be Spring," which was on all the charts for over nine months (Miss Whiting gave the countdown in months, days, hours and seconds).

Sibling rivalry aside, the sisters are good friends and it was obvious that although Margaret might have wanted to kill Barbara those many years ago; today she's glad she didn't.

Margaret Whiting's career spans over 40 years and includes countless radio, television, stage and personal performances. Most people know and remember her radio spots with, among others, Bob Hope, Jack Smith and Bob Crosby; her records, especially "Moonlight in Vermont;" and her stage credentials which include (her recently completed 29th production of) "Gypsy," in which she played the role of Mama Rose.

Her credits also include over 2,000 military camp appearances in the United States, Japan, Thailand, the Phillipines and Europe. During war years, Miss Whiting would visit every military hospital she could where she would tape her chats with the wounded, encouraging them to do all the talking. When she returned to the States she would make sure the tapes got to the respective families.

When asked about these tapes in an interview, Miss Whiting said, "It was called Bedside Network, and they had started that long before I came up with the idea because they had people come in and tape. But then I said, 'I think it would be wonderful for celebrities.'

"I've done over 2,000 appearances all over the world and when I'd go, if it was possible, I'd take a tape recorder with me and I'd say, 'Hello, John, How are you? How are you feeling?'

"And I'd come from the States and they knew who I was and I'd say, 'I'll go home and if I get near Denver where you come from I'll find your parents. But if not I'll call them on the phone if you'll give me the number and I'll send it to them.' And they would have a live tape of their son."

To the comment that it was certainly a considerate act, Miss Whiting immediately responded, "Well, they did so much for us, that's the least we can do."

And that's Margaret Whiting. Her personable stage presence captures the audience's attention, then she woos the crowd in an unassuming manner while at the same time amazing the audience with her energy.

Thank you Renwood for bringing Margaret Whiting to Midland.

— GEORGIA TEMPLE

Margaret Whiting rehearses for her Thursday Midland performance at Theatre Midland. Miss Whiting's show — Maggie and Friends — was the first concert in the newly formed Renwood Inc.'s Select Series. Her singing as well as the anecdotes she told about many of the famous American songwriters she has known during her 40-plus years as an entertainer captivated the house.

'Barefoot in the Park' to be staged by MCT

Midland Community Theatre's current season draws to a close with the production of Neil Simon's "Barefoot in the Park."

Opening Nov. 19, "Barefoot in the Park" is scheduled for 11 performances closing Dec. 11.

The play deals with the trials and tribulations of a newlywed couple. MCT's cast includes Robin Stanton and James Salners as the newlywed couple, Mary Lou Breggren as the bride's mother, Pat Baskin as Victor Velasco, the aging but still-on-the-prowl upstairs neighbor, Gregg Elsner as the telephone man and John Phillips as the delivery man.

Costumes for "Barefoot in the Park" are being assembled by Mae Dawson and her volunteer staff. Props are being gathered by Linda Hicks, Linda Salt, Barbara Bohanon and Nancy Hustledge. Set construction is under the supervision of Doug Page, with sound by Jim Brazell. Lights will be run by Laurie Brown.

The production is directed and designed by MCT's executive director Don Bachmann, with John Michael Warburton serving as technical director and Mykel Mengert working as stage manager. Mengert is assisted by Randy Hicks and Phillip Coffield.

MCT's production of "Barefoot in the Park" is funded in part by a grant from the HBF Corporation.

Reservations may be made by calling MCT's box office beginning Saturday.

Dunaway liked being 'Wicked'

LONDON (AP) — Academy Award-winning actress Faye Dunaway says her current role in Michael Winner's "The Wicked Lady" is the only film she's ever enjoyed making.

"Everything I've done in the past has been so full of anguish, though that's partly my fault, I'm sure," she says.

The movie is based on the true story of a woman who was a respectable society figure during the day and a highwaywoman by night. It's a remake of the original British film, which starred Margaret Lockwood and James Mason.

Miss Dunaway won an Oscar for "Network" in 1976 and was most recently seen as Joan Crawford in "Mommie Dearest."

Jerry Lee Lewis film to be made

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie rights to "Great Balls of Fire," the uncensored story of rock singer Jerry Lee Lewis by his former wife, Myra Lewis, has been optioned by PolyGram Pictures.

The marriage of 13-year-old Myra Brown to Lewis in 1957 touched off a worldwide scandal. He was forced to cancel a European tour and his career went into a decline as a result.

Mrs. Lewis, 37, now divorced, tells her story with co-author Murray Silver in the recently published book.

Lone Star Brass Quintet to perform

The Lone Star Brass Quintet will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday at First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave.

The free performance marks the second in the Friends of Music Concert season. The Lone Star Brass Quintet includes principal players from the Midland-Odessa Symphony: Thomas Fairlie and Dale Sterling, trumpets; Greg Phillips, horn; Brad Cornell, trombone; and Robert Simmons, tuba.

The group will perform selections from Renaissance to contemporary music, including "Quintet for Brass" by Robert Washburn, the Malcolm Arnold Brass Quintet, a suite of music from the Renaissance and a rendition of Debussy's "Golliwog's Cakewalk."

This year marks the Lone Star Brass Quintet's third year of concertizing in the Permian Basin. In addition to its concert schedule, the quintet performs regularly for local church services and civic events.

The Lone Star Brass Quintet is sponsored by grants from the Atlantic-Richfield Corporation, the Texas Commission of the Arts and the Odessa Symphony Association.

The quintet will also perform in Odessa Nov. 14 at 2:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of the Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord. The program will be the same.

Both performances are open to the public.

'Guys and Dolls' auditions to be held

Auditions for Midland Community Theatre's opening show of the 1983 season, "Guys and Dolls," will be held Dec. 12, 13 and 14 at 7:30 p.m. in Theatre I at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Roles are available for seven principal men (one is a non-singing role), and three principal women (one is a non-singing role), plus a singing chorus of about 20 to 24 voices and a dancing chorus of about 16 (eight women and eight men). Copies of the script and score are available for perusal in the MCT business office beginning Monday.

"Guys and Dolls," based on the stories and characters by Damon Runyon and scored by Frank Loesser, is substitled "A Musical Fable of Broadway." Some of the most memorable songs from the show are "Fugue for Tinhorns," "I'll Know When My Love Comes Along," "Luck be a Lady Tonight," "Adelaide's Lament," "I Love You a Bushel and a Peck" and "Sit Down You're Rocking the Boat."

Rehearsals for the show will begin Dec. 16 with a hiatus between Dec. 23 and Jan. 3. The show is scheduled for a 17 performance run Feb. 4 through March 5.

MCT's production will be directed by Ted Strickland with musical direction by Tom Roberts and choreography by Cherry Jones.

For more information call Strickland at 682-2544.

Annual fall concert to be held at OC

ODESSA — Odessa College's Choral Music Department will present its annual fall concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Jack Rogers Fine Arts Center Recital Hall.

The program will consist of performances by the OC community choir, the OC choir and the OC vocal ensemble.

The program will begin with the community choir's performance of four numbers, including "Jabberwocky," by San Pottle. Brenda Tucker, a freshman music major from Kermit, will accompany the choir on this number.

Miss Tucker also will accompany the OC choir on its performance of Gabriel Faure's "Madrigal" and William Hall's arrangements of "I Know Where I'm Going" and "Amazing Grace."

The OC vocal ensemble will sing a variety of music ranging from English madrigals to popular and country music. The ensemble will be joined by four members of the OC jazz ensemble, directed by Bernard Rose.

The community choir will close the program with "Gloria," a contemporary work by the English composer, John Rutter. Piano accompaniment for "Gloria" will be provided by Kristi Jasek.

Admission is $1.

Auditions to be held for 'Tomran'

Tryouts for the premiere performance of the musical "Tomran" will be held Nov. 20 at 1:30 p.m. and Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in Theatre II at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

The musical will be given a concert reading in Theatre II Dec. 11.

Action of this musical comedy takes place in South America during World War II. Basically a love story, "Tomran" offers many comic opportunities. Roles are available for 15 men and 15 women of varying ages and abilities. There will be a three-week rehearsal process with none of the parts having to be memorized.

"Tomran" will be directed by Midland Community Theatre's executive director Don Bachmann, with Tom Roberts serving as musical director and Cherry Jones as choreographer. Perusal copies of the script may be checked out from MCT's business office. For more information call Bachmann at 682-2544.

Gallery to be open on weekends

McCormick Gallery at Midland College will be open from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays beginning this weekend.

In the past, the gallery has been open, with the exception of special occasions, only during the week.

Currently showing at the McCormick Gallery are 40 black and white photographs by Russell Lee. These photographs represent four decades of photojournalism and include works taken during the Great Depression. The photos were printed by Lee, who is retired after many years of teaching photography at The University of Texas at Austin.

Also on display are a number of lithographs from the Elaine Horwitch Gallery of Santa Fe and Scottsdale.

The exhibits will remain on display through Nov. 24. Gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, and 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

There is no charge for viewing the exhibits.

Youth orchestra to hold concert

ODESSA — The West Texas Youth Orchestra will hold its first concert of the 1982-83 season on Nov. 21 at Odessa's Globe Theater at 7 p.m.

The youth orchestra is directed by Charles Nail with members of the Thouvenel String Quartet of Midland working with the youth as orchestra coaches. The Nov. 21 program will include the first movement of the "Unfinished Symphony" by Franz Schubert and waltzes by Johann Strauss.

The performance is free and open to the public.

Duo pianists (Peter) Rostal & (Paul) Schaefer of England will perform at Midland High School Auditorium Wednesday at 8 p.m. for the second concert in the Midland Community Concerts subscription season. Rostal & Schaefer have performed together for 12 years. The Midland performance is part of their sixth United States concert tour.

English pianists to give local concert

Peter Rostel and Paul Schaefer have established themselves as the most popular duo-piano team in their native England and are enjoying an impressive reputation on the international concert scene for their renditions of both classical and popular music.

Their sixth U.S. tour brings them to Midland for an 8 p.m. Wednesday performance. The concert is the second in the Midland Community Concerts' season.

The artists completed their last tour of the United Kingdom with their annual London recital at the Royal Festival Hall this summer, followed by a sixth consecutive season in their own summer show, "Sunday Serenade," at the Royal Hippodrome Theatre in Eastbourne. Other recent engagements have included their third season at the Urania Theatre in Berlin and their sixth world cruise on the QE2.

The two artists met as scholarship students at Juilliard School in New York City where they were both pursuing careers as concert pianists.

Upon their return to England, they were encouraged by a former teacher at the Royal Academy to perform, as they had on occasion, as duo pianists. One of England's most popular show business personalities, Max Bygraves, suggested serious pursuit of a career as duo-pianists and they have since been featured repeatedly by him on radio and in live variety shows.

Within a year of their newly launched career, they presented a command performance for the royal family to immediate acclaim throughout Great Britain.

That was over 10 years ago.

Since then, the two have been featured on their own BBC television show, "The Two Pianos of Rostal and Schaefer," as well as guest starring on over 15 major variety series in England. They have traveled to the Hague in Holland to record two television shows with Dutch singer Marco Bakker and have been featured on "Piano Festival" for Paris television. Their own radio series, "Kings of the Keyboard," followed appearances on many radio shows in England and Germany.

In 1980, the two artists celebrated the 10th anniversary of their professional partnership with a concert at London's Royal Festival Hall.

That same year, they recorded a television performance on the "Monte Carlo Show," which was syndicated worldwide and marked their first appearance on American television. That season was also highlighted by a "Beatles Concerto" tour with the Royal Liverpool Philharmonic, designed to launch their "Beatles Concerto" album.

That album reached the number one position on the United Kindgom Classical Album charts, and has been on the top 10 list in Japan and New Zealand. The disc, produced by EMI-Parlophone, was released in the United States by Moss Music Group.

The artists' discography reflects the variety in their repertoire. Aside from the Beatles album, they have recorded much of the traditional two piano music, original or transcribed, by such classical composers as Brahmns, Bach, Schubert, Handel as well as their own arrangements by other masters.

They've also recorded such international hits as "Send in the Clowns," "The Way We Were," "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," and themes from such films as "Dr. Zhivago" and "Gone With the Wind." One of their most popular releases has been "007 James Bond Medley." And on one Hong Kong visit, they recorded an album of Chinese music — "Far Out East."

Midland-Odessa Symphony to perform

The Midland-Odessa Symphony will present "A Command Performance," the second in the season's subscription concert series, Monday at Permian High School in Odessa and Tuesday at Lee High School in Midland.

Featured on the evening's program will be four works ranging from the "William Tell Overture" to "The Great American Cowboy Suite." The concert will culminate with the orchestra's performance of Beethoven's Symphony No. 3 in E-Flat Major, "The Eroica."

Directed by Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, the Midland-Odessa Symphony's performance will include "And God Created Great Whales."

When Roger Paynes of the New York Zoological Society brought Andre Kostelanetz recordings of Humpback Whales singing near Bermuda, Kostelanetz saw musical possibilities. He suggested a composition based on the recordings to American composer Alan Hovhaness.

When the piece was performed in New York, the New York Times called it an "immensely colorful and oddly moving work...Undersea mountains rise and fall in horns, trombone and tuba. The whale's songs emerges like a mythical sea bird. Man does not exist, has not yet been born in the solemn oneness of nature."

The symphony's performances of "The Great American Cowboy Suite" represents the Texas debut of this piece. The music for it was extracted from the music written for the film, "The Great American Cowboy," which won an Academy Award in 1973.

Both performances will begin at 8 p.m. Season tickets, as well as single admission tickets, are available at the door.

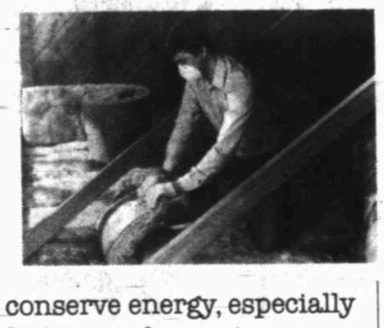
Even if you're unhandy, you can do something to help hold down electric bills.



Save energy and money at home by learning how to insulate, caulk and weatherstrip — it's easy when you know how. Just call us, or ask for our "Unhandy Person's Guides" on the comments portion of your bill.

It's important to learn ways to conserve energy, especially since we're having to pay more for fuels to make your electricity — partly because another of our contracts for low-cost natural gas has expired, but mainly because the price of all fuel continues to rise.

You can conserve and help hold down your bill by using the "Unhandy Person's Guides" from Texas Electric.

Tax class offered

ODESSA — A tax practitioner workshop for businesses or individuals will be conducted from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

The event, co-sponsored by UTPB and the Internal Revenue Service, is open to all persons who prepare taxes, whether as practitioners or individuals preparing their own taxes. Dr. Patricia Williams, workshop coordinator and UTPB instructor of accountancy and information systems, said participants may receive eight hours of continuing professional education credit.

"The workshop will be especially helpful for the participant who wants to be certain he is taking advantage of the tax savings he may have as a result of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981. It is also crucial to become aware of the ways the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 has repealed some of these tax benefits beginning in 1983. Therefore, the taxpayer may wish to do some year-end planning to take advantage of the tax savings allowed in 1982, which will be less favorable in 1983," she said.

Among the topics to be included in the day-long workshop are tax law changes in the individual income tax as well as business tax.

"We will explore the accelerated cost recovery system, safe-harbor/leasing transactions, sub-Chapter S changes and NOL carryover period, as well as estate and gift tax provisions and new penalties," Williams added.

She noted tax credit changes, including investment tax credit, targeted jobs and WIN credit, research and experimental credit, and child and dependent credit will be discussed. Also included will be income earned abroad and foreign tax credit, individual retirement arrangements, lump-sum distributions and 10-year averaging, casualty losses and net operating losses.

Instructors for the workshop include IRS tax seminar instructors Jackie Rollins and Doug McHam. With eight years experience with the IRS, McHam serves as lead instructor for tax seminars at military bases and colleges, and as instructor for IRS classes on tax law. He is a frequent speaker for various clubs and organizations and radio and television broadcasts.

Rollins has 14 years experience with the IRS and is currently serving as a revenue officer in the Dallas district. She is also an instructor in the Dallas County Community District where she conducts small business employment tax workshops. She was lead instructor for basic tax practitioner institutes in 1981.

Cost of the workshop is $65 at the door or $50 for those who register before Tuesday. Persons desiring further information may contact Williams at 367-2381.

UTPB senior earns honor

ODESSA — Anna Payne, Odessa computer science senior at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, is the recipient of a $250 scholarship from the Permian Basin chapter of the Data Processing Management Association.

The scholarship is available each semester to a computer science or data processing student at UTPB, Odessa College and Midland College. Awards are made on the basis of academic performance, financial need and career goals.

Applicants must be Permian Basin residents working toward a degree in computer science or data processing, must be full-time students who have completed at least 30 credit hours of college work, must maintain a 2.5 grade point average and must not qualify for other federal or state grants or scholarships.

Murray Fasken

Center renamed

A brief ceremony renaming the Midland College Learning Resource Center will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, according to college president Dr. Jess H. Parrish.

The building will be named the Murray Fasken Learning Resource Center in honor of a longtime member of the Midland College Board of Trustees.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony, which will be held outside the building. In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be moved immediately inside the LRC.

"We felt that naming the Learning Resource Center in honor of Murray Fasken was an appropriate gesture to recognize his many contributions to Midland College both as a board member and board president and as a strong financial supporter for the college," board president Fred Wright Jr. said.

When Midland College was created in 1969 as part of the Permian Junior College System, Fasken was appointed as one of four Midlanders to serve on the System's Board of Regents. In 1972, when Midland College formed a separate district, Fasken became one of the nine members of the board of trustees. He served as president of the board from 1977-79 and resigned in 1980.

"During those early years, Murray Fasken never wavered in his belief that the fledging school would succeed. That belief, along with his strong leadership in the community and his financial expertise, helped Midland College grow into a dynamic institution in an extremely short period of time," Wright pointed out. "Much of this is known. But what most residents do not realize is the time Fasken devoted to building strong financial support for Midland College through the establishment of the Midland College Foundation, plus his own financial commitment through the many Fasken Foundation Scholarships that were made available for deserving students."

Fasken was born in Toronto, Canada, but grew up in Midland. He is a graduate of Midland High School and received his bachelor of arts degree from Texas A&M in 1938. He also attended the University of Texas Law School before returning to Midland to ranch. During World War II, he served in the U.S. Army from 1941-46, achieving the rank of major and receiving several decorations.

He returned to the family ranching business until 1950, when he joined Midland National Bank as a teller. Fasken became president of Midland National Bank in 1958 and served in that position until 1964, when he was named chairman of the board. He now holds the title of senior chairman of the board.

Fasken has served as president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce and the Midland Country Club. He has served the community and the area as director of Trinity Towers, Midland Chamber of Commerce, West Texas Boys Ranch and Midland Memorial Hospital. He has been a member of the Texas A&M Century Council, a director of Midland Savings Association, a director of the Schreiner Institute and an elder and deacon of the First Presbyterian Church.

He and his wife, Celeste, have three children.

Midland Jazz Assocation announces formation of music scholarship to MC

The Midland Jazz Association has announced that a $1,000 music scholarship will be awarded to Midland College. The annual donation is to be given to Dr. Jess H. Parrish, MC president, and will be applied to the music department, according to Bobby Crues, vice president of the association.

Art Linkletter to speak at MCS dinner

Art Linkletter will be the featured speaker at Midland Christian School's First Annual Tree of Life Dinner Friday at Green Tree Country Club.

Funds received through the Tree of Life program, an annual campaign, will make up the difference between income from tuition and fees and the actual cost of operating the school.

A large bronze tree, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Fuller, will be mounted in the school office. Brass leaves will be inscribed with the names of those donating $1,000 and "foundation stones" will be placed at the base of the tree for those who donate $10,000 or more.

Evelyn Lineberry, trustee of the W.F. Scarborough Educational Trust, has provided a $75,000 matching fund for donations.

Linkletter will arrive by charter jet at 3 p.m. Friday. Following a news conference at 4 p.m. at Channel 2, a private reception will be held at Green Tree Country Club. Dinner for Midland Christian School Tree of Life members will be at 7 p.m.

Midlanders given ROTC scholarships

SAN ANGELO — Two Angelo State University freshmen from Midland are the recipients of Carr Air Force ROTC Scholarships.

Olen Smith Jr., a freshman marketing major from Lee High School, and Robert Scott, a freshman computer science major also from LHS, received the scholarship awards.

About 225 Carr Air Force ROTC Scholarships ranging from $200 to $1,000 are awarded annually from the $1 million endowment fund established by the late Robert G. Carr and his wife, Nona K. Carr. The awards, totaling about $100,000 annually, are made on the basis of leadership abilities, scholarship and, for those currently enrolled, contributions to the Air Force ROTC program.

MC students attend DECA conference

Two Midland College management students recently attended the Annual Junior Collegiate DECA State Leadership Conference in Austin.

Mary Gutierrez, president of the Midland College Mu Alpha Management Club chapter, and Rosalie Carter, vice president, were among representatives from 14 community colleges at the meeting. They were accompanied by Jack Scarbrough, club sponsor and management instructor.

Those attending received leadership training in management problems, decision-making, communication and motivation.

The Midland College students also attended sessions devoted to the 27 management contests to be held in March.

Crockett Elementary to host Fall Fiesta

Crockett Elementary School will have a Fall Fiesta focusing on Mexican-American culture from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at 401 E. Parker St.

Mexican food will be served and there will be a large variety of Mexican and American activites. Many people will be dressed in Mexican costumes and a drawing will be held for a side of beef.

Rusk second-graders plan program

Second graders at Rusk Elementary School will present a Thanksgiving program during the Rusk PTA meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the cafeteria.

All parents and interested persons are invited to attend.

Optimist Youth Appreciation begins

Optimist Youth Appreciation Week begins today to honor 12 students from both Midland High Schools who will be selected by school counselors and principals as having shown leadership and a concern for home, school, church and community improvements.

The students, to be named Friday, will be honored along with their parents by the Downtown Optimist Club of Midland at a banquet at 7 p.m. Nov. 18, at the Girl Scout Building, 901 W. Dengar.

Objectives of Youth Appreciation Week, proclaimed by Mayor G. Thane Akins, are to recognize accomplishments of youth in the school, home, church and community; encourage organizations and other groups to publicly show their respect for youth; encourage the news media to recognize the accomplishments and contributions of youth; and to let the youth know that adults do care about them and appreciate their positive contributions to our community and society.

LOOK! THE FIFTH $2000.00 WINNER FROM COCA-COLA PLAYING PEEL-A- FORTUNE IN MIDLAND

Ever since your local Coca-Cola bottler began the Peel-A-Fortune game early this year, many of your friends and neighbors have been collecting letters of the alphabet from bottle caps and can tabs of Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb, Sprite and Tab. They have been trying to spell the lucky words, HOMERUN, TOUCHDOWN, POINT OR COKE in hopes of winning a prize or instant cash up to $2,000.00 from their local Coca - Cola bottler. Now, Mrs. Joyce Allen of Midland, Texas has successfully spelled the word HOMERUN in accordance with the Peel-A-Fortune rules and has become the fifth Midland $2,000.00 Coca-Cola instant cash winner in 1982.

You can win too. Just like Patti McDermott, Joe Sanchez, Mrs. Danny Kellum, Virginia Busbee and Joyce Allen. When you stock up your holiday supply of soft drinks look for the bottlecaps or can tabs of Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb, Sprite or Tab with $$$ on the top. Under each specially marked cap or tab is a letter of the alphabet. All you have to do is spell one of the lucky words on the game card and you can win a prize or instant cash up to $2,000.00 just like Mrs. Allen, even if you don't spell any of the words you are a winner because you have provided yourself and your family delicious, refreshing, Coca-Cola or its allied brands of Mr. Pibb, Sprite or Tab.

Coca -Cola ...the No. 1 selling soft drink in Midland and the Permian Basin. Coca-Cola...the one the others try to challenge /or compare themselves to whether they are number 2 or 27. Coca-Cola...the one the others want to be when they grow up... the Real Thing. Just ask any of the winners in this year's Coca -Cola instant cash contest: Joyce Allen, Joe Sanchez, Mrs, Danny Kellum of Midland and Martha Carlie and 'Renee Gamble of Clyde; Hope Lopez and James Rogers of Big Spring; Blas De Anada and Williard Farror of Lamesa; Dan Stone of Gayle and David Menzel of Desdemona.

No purchase necessary. Just look for game cards and details where you shop for Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb,Sprite and Tab. So play Peel-A-Fortune with Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb, Sprite or Tab who knows you could be a $2,000.00 instant cash winner...just like Mrs. Allen.

Southern Methodist fullback Mark Crites (36) is knocked off his feet by Rice's Everett Todd (41). These plays were to far and few between for Rice and the Mustangs start hoping for a No. 1 ranking after the fall of Pittsburgh Saturday.

Notre Dame slays Pitt

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Joe Howard caught a 54-yard touchdown pass from Blair Kiel on a trick play and Allen Pinkett shocked top-ranked Pitt with a dazzling 76-yard touchdown run as unranked Notre Dame rallied to upset the previously unbeaten Panthers 31-16 Saturday.

Pinkett's touchdown with 8:09 left to play broke open the game for the Irish. He also ran 7 yards for Notre Dame touchdown with 4:02 remaining.

The Fighting Irish, 6-1-1, atoned for an earlier upset loss to Arizona and a tie to Oregon as they cooled the Panthers' hopes for the national college football championship.

With Pitt leading 13-10, Kiel handed off on first down to running back Phil Carter, who shoveled back to the quarterback. Kiel found Howard for a touchdown that gave Notre Dame a 17-13 lead with 14:36 left in the game.

Pitt quickly closed to 17-16 on a 47-yard field goal by Eric Schubert. Later, with Pitt driving, Julius Dawkins hauled in a 10-yard pass from Dan Marino at the Irish 33-yard line, but defender Mike Larkin stripped the ball from his hands and John Mosley recovered for Notre Dame.

Pinkett, a freshman, took a handoff from Kiel, slipped a pair of defenders and shrugged off four tackles on the way to a touchdown with with 8:09 left that gave the Irish a 24-16 lead.

After Pitt was forced to punt, Notre Dame quickly drove for its third touchdown of the quarter, a 7-yard burst by Pinkett.

The loss was the first for Pitt, 7-1, since a 48-14 defeat to Penn State in the final regular season game of 1981.

Pitt entered the game a 10-point favorite.

After Schubert field goals of 48 and 22 yards gave the Panthers a 6-0 lead, a short 23-yard punt by Greg Ganzer and a 15-yard personal foul penalty gave Notre Dame a first down at the Panthers' 21-yard line.

Three plays netted the Irish no yards, but Mike Johnston kicked a 38-yard field goal with 8:53 left in the first half to cut Pitt's lead to 6-3.

Pitt held Notre Dame on its next possession, but backup Panther kick returner John Casper fumbled the catch and Rick Naylor recovered for Notre Dame.

Fullback Larry Moriarty, on a first down play from Pitt's 45-yard line, caught a Kiel pass over the middle for 30 yards to a first down at Pitt's 15. Pinkett ran 11 yards for a first down, and Moriarty went the final 4 yards for a touchdown that gave Notre Dame a 10-6 halftime held.

Pitt regained the lead on a 98-yard scoring drive, capped by Thomas' 1-yard touchdown run. Thomas had runs of 14 and 13 yards and Dan Marino threw completions of 15 yards and 14 yards to sustain the drive.

But then came Kiel's 54-yard scoring pass play to Howard.

Until meeting the Irish, Pitt had not yielded more than two touchdowns to any opponent this season, and Notre Dame's 31 points were the most it has scored this season.

Texas bombards helpless Houston

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Robert Brewer threw two touchdown passes and scored on a 1-yard sneak, which he set up with a key third-down pass, as Texas whipped Houston 50-0 in Southwest Conference football Saturday.

Texas' attacking defense forced seven Houston turnovers and stopped a Cougar offense that had averaged 20 points a game.

The victory margin was the greatest ever in a Texas-Houston game.

A wind gusting to 20 mph dictated much of the offense, blowing aside a 25-yard Houston field goal and causing a short Houston kickoff and punt that led to Texas touchdowns.

The wind also helped carry a long pass from Brewer to Herkie Walls, who raced into the end zone to complete a 67-yard scoring play late in the first quarter.

The score could have been worse except for a 10-yard holding penalty that wiped out a first down at the Houston 14 and an official's ruling that Brent Duhon was out of the end zone when he caught a 13-yard pass from Brewer. A television replay indicated Duhon was in bounds.

Tailback Darryl Clark, who was among the nation's leading rushers but had not scored, opened the scoring for Texas by racing 36 yards with a screen pass from Brewer on the Longhorns' first possession.

Texas led 30-0 at halftime and got field goals of 30 and 42 yards from Raul Allegre in the third quarter.

Offensive subs played the final 20 minutes for Texas, which hiked its season record to 5-2, 3-1 in the SWC. Houston fell to 3-5-1 and 2-3-1.

The shutout was the second in a row for Texas, which beat Texas Tech 27-0 at Lubbock a week ago.

In contrast to Houston, Texas neither fumbled the ball away nor had a pass intercepted. Brewer had only five completions in 13 throws, but they were good for 163 yards.

Danny Akers, the coach's son and a fourth-stringer, finished the game at quarterback for Texas.

Is SMU now on top of heap?

HOUSTON (AP) — Second-ranked Southern Methodist ignited behind versatile tailback Craig James who ran for one touchdown and passed 62 yards for another as the Mustangs beat Rice 41-14 in a Southwest Conference game to extend their winning streak to 13 games, the longest in the nation.

SMU fans cheered as the Mustangs built a 27-0 lead early in the third quarter and then roared when it was announced No. 1-ranked Pittsburgh had been upset by Notre Dame 31-16.

James, overshadowed by teammate Eric Dickerson most of the season, rushed 101 yards in the first half and scored on a one-yard run as the Mustangs built a 20-0 lead.

SMU's first half surge also included a 28-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Lance McIlhenny to Gary Smith and field goals of 33 and 22 yards by Jeff Harrell.

The Mustangs went ahead 27-0 early in the third quarter when defensive tack Tom Linebarger blocked a Rice punt into the end zone and defensive end Mike Kovar recovered it for a touchdown.

The Owls rallied briefly behind quarterback Doug Johnson, who threw touchdown passes of 15 and 11 yards to Rickey Askew in the third quarter before SMU pulled away on Dickerson's 19-yard touchdown run and James' 62-yard halfback pass to Smith.

The Owls dropped to an 0-9 record and 0-6 in SWC games. SMU extended its record to 9-0 for the season and 6-0 in the conference.

Southern Methodist completed the 1935 season with an unbeated 12-0 record and was crowned the unofficial national champion. The Ponies were ranked No. 1 in the nation for two weeks during the 1950 season before losing to Texas and finishing the season with a 6-4 record.

After a scoreless first quarter, Rice drove to the SMU four yard line before a 42-yard interception return by SMU's Wes Hopkins started the Mustang stampede.

Hopkins' theft set up Smith's 28-yard touchdown reception from McIlhenny. Moments later linebacker Clarence McDade picked off another pass by Johnson and returned it five yards to the Rice 34 to set up James' one-yard plunge.

Rice defenders Everett Todd and Brian Mica picked off first half passes by McIlhenny but the Owls were unable to ignite a scoring drive.

Dickerson boosted his season rushing total to 1,421 yards and gained over 100 yards for the 26th time in his career.

Bears feast on No. 5 Hogs

WACO, Texas (AP) — Baylor tailback Alfred Anderson soared four yards for a touchdown with 2:38 to play Saturday and the Bears shocked the previously unbeaten and No. 5-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks 24-17 in a wild Southwest Conference homecoming victory.

Arkansas, which led 14-0 in the first half, dropped to an 7-1 record and 4-1 in the SWC. Baylor is now 3-5-1 and 2-3-1.

It was a tricky flea flicker double reverse pass that backfired which positioned the Bears for the kill with the game tied 17-all.

Wide receiver Mark Mistler's pass was intercepted by Baylor defensive back Preston Davis at the Arkansas 47.

Baylor worked the ball to the Razorback four on nine straight running plays before the acrobatic Anderson took a handoff and dove into the end zone like a diver off a springboard.

Arkansas took an early lead on Brad Taylor's 24-yard touchdown pass to Gary Anderson and Jessie Clark's one-yard touchdown run but the Bears refused to quit.

Alfred Anderson's two-yard touchdown run cut the deficit to 14-7 just before halftime.

Quarterback Mike Brannan hit Allen Rice with a 12-yard soring pass to tie it 14-14 early in the fourth quarter.

Rice's fumble, which was recoverd by Arkansas safety Danny Walters, gave the Razorbacks possession at the Bear 34. Baylor held and Martin Smith kicked a 33-yard field goal for a 17-14 lead.

Brannan hit Anderson for a 60-yard completion which setup Ben Perry's 32-yard field goal to set the stage for the Baylor theatrics in the final three minutes.

Arkansas went into the game as the nation's leader against scoring, allowing only 5.9 points per contest.

In fact, Arkansas hadn't allowed a touchdown in 17 consecutive quarters until Baylor tallied in the second period.

But the Razorback secondary broke down and Brannan, known more as an option quarterback than a passer, began to find receivers running wide open.

Brannan had 239 yards passing as Baylor piled up 403 yards in offense against Arkansas.

Arkansas built a 4-0 lead in the first half and appeared on the edge of blowing the Bears away early.

After Taylor's 24-yard touchdown pass to Anderson, Arkansas drove 93 yards to score again, a 45-yard Taylor to Derek Holloway pass setup Clark's 1-yard scoring run.

Baylor, which had just one first down to that point, caught fire behind Brannan. The senior signal caller ran 22 yards and passed 23 yards to tiny 5-7, 142-pound McNeil to the Arkansas 12. Anderson scored two plays later from the 4.

Although Arkansas led 14-7 at halftime, the Razorbacks couldn't rest easy.

Three coin flips leave Midland teams out of the playoffs

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland Athletic Director Gil Bartosh had a huge gathering in his office during the final hours of Friday night and early moments of Saturday morning, all waiting for the results of three coin flips to determine who would represent District 4-5A as the runner-up team in bi-district play.

Eventually, coaches from the four schools involved, media personnel from local radio stations, television stations and newspapers and others just interested in the outcome of the decisive flips, were packed into the two small rooms off the northeast corner of the football field. Few, if any were able to pull themselves away.

Midland High's Pat Culpepper and Midland Lee's Spike Dykes, obviously, were the first to arrive. Culpepper never left the Memorial Stadium grounds and Dykes returned from Lee High School about an hour after the Bulldogs had defeated his Rebels, 14-7. They joined the waiting process.

The two coaches they were waiting for were San Angelo's Jimmie Keeling, whose Bobcats had pulled off a 15-14 squeaker in Big Spring, and Odessa High's Jerry Millsaps, whose Bronchos had lost a close one to Odessa Permian, 14-10.

What had been, more or less, decided before the principals of the flip arrived, was the format that would be used, barring objections. There were none.

Four numbers were placed into a cup, one through four, and Odessa Athletic Director Jack Brewer drew one for each coach and tossed it to whomever it was to go to. No one gave away their number until all were distributed.

Once the numbers were passed out, the two coaches with one and two would flip a coin and the winner would then wait for the coaches with three and four to call their's. The losers of the first two flips were eliminated, setting up the final showdown.

Brewer was also in charge of flipping the coin. He told the four coaches he would flip it in the air and bounce it off the ceiling and let it hit the floor. If it wasn't a clean lie, the coin would be flipped again. All agreed.

Culpepper and Milsapps were the first two to move into the center of attention. Brewer said, "who's going to call it." A few seconds passed before Culpepper replied, "I'll call it." Brewer flipped the coin and after it hit the ceiling, Culpepper called "heads." He was right and the Bulldogs were one step away from the playoffs.

Dykes and Keeling were next. Again Brewer asked "who will call it" and this time Keeling went with "tails" and Midland Lee was eliminated.

With Culpepper and Keeling in the finals, Brewer asked for the third time "who will call it" and again, after a short pause, Culpepper said "I will." His call of "heads" was good the first time, but failed the second and San Angelo was in the playoffs via the only route left open to them.

Winning the coin toss was the only hope the Bobcats had. Any combination of wins other than what happened Friday night around the district, and San Angelo would stay home.

It would almost be a safe bet that Coach Keeling is keeping his lucky coin.

Georgia wins, but LSU stuns Alabama

Georgia's herschel Walker goes high over the Florida defensive wall for a score Saturday. The game played in Jacksonville drew a record crowd of 80,749.

By The Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — All-American Herschel Walker rambled for three touchdowns and 219 yards, smashing the NCAA record for yardage in three seasons as third-ranked Georgia crushed No. 20 Florida 44-0 in a Southeastern Conference football game Saturday.

Walker, who scored his third touchdown with 4:48 left in the third quarter and sat out the remainder of the game, lifted his career total to 4,920 yards, passing former Cornell star Ed Marinaro to move into fifth place on the all-time rushing list, just 38 yards behind the No. 4 man, George Rogers of South Carolina.

Walker's career total broke the previous NCAA mark for yards gained in three seasons, previously held at 4,854 yards by Charles White of Southern California from 1977-79.

Walker's touchdowns came on runs of 30, 1 and 1 yards as the Bulldogs reeled off their ninth victory this season and lifted their SEC record to 5-0 in quest of their third consecutive league championship.

Georgia, favored by less than a touchdown, turned three fumble recoveries into 17 points, staged one goal-line stand at its one and also got two pass interceptions from Jeff Sanchez, one in the end zone.

It was Georgia's fifth victory in a row in one of the SEC's most intense rivalries, and its eighth in the last nine meetings.

Florida fell to 5-3 for the year and 2-3 in the conference.

THE SOUTH

LSU 20, Alabama 10

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — LSU's lightning-quick defense stonewalled Alabama without a first down in the first half and freshman Dalton Hilliard's 16-yard touchdown run triggered a 17-point second period as the 11th-ranked Tigers turned back a third-quarter rally to defeat No. 8 Alabama 20-10 Saturday.

The victory ended 11 years of LSU frustration against Alabama, gave the Tigers a 7-0-1 record and convinced those skeptics who noted that their previous victims included three winless teams.

The triumph also boosted the Tigers' Southeastern Conference mark to 4-0-1 and kept their Sugar Bowl hopes very much alive.

Alabama is 7-2 overall and 4-2 in SEC play, only the second time since 1970 that Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide has dropped more than one conference game in a season and the third time in that stretch they have lost more than one regular-season contest.

Vanderbilt 23, Kentucky 10

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Vanderbilt quarterback Whit Tayloor had the publicity but safety Manuel Young got the game ball after the Commodores spoiled Kentucky's homecoming with a 23-10 victory Saturday in a Southeastern Conference football game.

Taylor threw a pair of touchdown passes and Ricky Anderson kicked three field goals, and Young had two pass interceptions and a fumble recovery. His interceptions set up a field goal and a touchdown.

Georgia Tech 38, Virginia 32

ATLANTA — Georgia Tech sophomore tailback Robert Lavette reached one of his two season goals Saturday, scoring four touchdowns while churning out 136 yards as the Yellow Jackets whipped the Virginia Cavaliers 38-32 in a meeting of Atlantic Coast Conference schools.

Lavette, who scored on runs of 12, 1 and 8 yards in the first half as Tech ran up a 24-10 lead, added a 1-yard TD in the third. The four touchdowns set a single-season school record for TDs with 15, snapping the previous mark of 12 set in 1966 by Lenny Snow.

Florida St. 56, S.Carolina 26

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Quarterback Kelly Lowery and tailback Greg Allen led 12th-ranked Florida State to an overpowering 56-26 victory Saturday over South Carolina.

Allen scored four touchdowns and rushed for 94 yards. Lowery completed 14 passes on 24 attempts for 269 yards in the Seminoles' seventh win in eight outings. The Gamecocks dropped to 3-6.

South Carolina tied the score at 7-7 with 1:39 left in the first quarter on a 7-yard carry by running back Thomas Dendy and a kick by Mark Fleetwood.

But the Seminoles left the Gamecocks behind for good less than a minute later. Lowery passed to wide receiver Jessie Hester for 21 yards, then hit him again with a bomb for 57 yards. Allen ran the ball in from the 4 with 40 seconds remaining in the quarter.

Auburn 30, Rutgers 7

AUBURN, Ala. — Freshman Bo Jackson ran four yards for one touchdown and raced 53 yards to set up another Saturday as Auburn took aim at its first bowl bid in eight years with a 30-7 victory over Rutgers.

Auburn quarterback Randy Campbell passed for two touchdowns and Lionel James, the nation's No. 3 punt returner, also set up two Auburn field goals with punt runbacks of 39 and 40 yards as the Tigers raised their record to 7-2.

The Scarlet Knights of Rutgers, playing without injured quarterback Jacque LaPrarier, dropped to 5-4 in the intersectional matchup.

Clemson 16, North Carolina 13

CLEMSON, S.C. — Bob Paulling kicked three field goals and the Clemson defense played stingy when it had to as the No. 13 Tigers held off No. 18 North Carolina 16-13 in college football Saturday.

While the visiting Tar Heels piled up 123 more yards in total offense than Clemson, the game was decided by the Tiger defense in the closing minute as North Carolina was driving for a touchdown.

After moving the ball 65 yards, North Carolina had a first and 10 at the Clemson 21. But the Clemson defense held and the drive died four plays later as a pass from backup quarterback Scott Stankavage fell incomplete to tailback Tyrone Anthony.

Citadel 24, W. Carolina 20

CULLOWHEE, N.C. — Hank Rhame's 42-yard field goal in the fourth quarter blunted a Western Carolina rally Saturday and gave The Citadel a 24-20 Southern Conference football victory over Western Carolina.

Ricky Gann's toe lifts Tech past TCU

In a race with the clock, and using Anthony Hutchison like a sledgehammer, Tech quarterback Jim Hart guided the Red Raiders 58 yards in 13 plays to set up Gann's game-winning kick.

Gann, a sophomore, earlier drilled field goals of 39 and 25 yards and Hutchinson, who carried 43 times for a SWC record, banged in from the one for the Raiders' lone touchdown.

Hutchison wound up with 175 yards on the ground.

Down by 10 points, backup TCU quarterback Eddie Clark engineered two second-half scoring drives and gave the Horned Frogs a 14-13 lead with 6:58 remaining on a four-yard pass to Chris Schirmer.

Marcus Gilbert, who rushed for 16 yards on 28 carries, took a pitchout eight yards for the first TCU touchdown.

Clark propelled the Horned Frogs 72 yards in six plays to tie the count at 13-13 and Ken Ozee cooly drilled what loomed as the winning extra point.

Tech defensive end Jeff McCowan recovered a Gilbert fumble at the Tech 35 with 4:05 remaining, and Hart took the Raiders in from that point for Gann's winning kick.

Hutchison carried eight times in that final drive, but the big gainer was a 13-yard pass from Hart to end Buzz Tatom.

The triumph hiked the Raiders' season record to 4-5 and their SWC mark to 3-3. TCU, losing for the first time at home this year, is 3-6 and 2-4.

With 30 seconds remaining, TCU gave a homecoming crowd of 22,104 one final thrill as Clark hit ace receiver Stanley Washington with a 27-yard pass at midfield.

But three straight passes were off target, and Ozee's last-ditch 70-yard field goal attempt was far short.

Mojo, Bobcats, Buffaloes, Owls settle grid sites

Odessa Permian will begin its quest for the State High School Football Championship in Lubbock's Jones Stadium against District 3-5A runner-up Lubbock Monterrey Saturday at 7:30 p.m. following the Texas Tech-SMU game.

PERMIAN, the No. 1 ranked Class 5A football team, finished the season with a perfect 10-0 mark after a 14-10 come-from-behind victory over crosstown rival Odessa High in the season finale. Earlier this year, the Harris football pollsters called Permian the best high school football team the state of Texas has ever seen.

Monterrey had a 9-1 season record and finished in a tie with the Plainview Bulldogs at 8-1 in their district. Monterrey's only loss came at hands of Plainview, 28-0, which gave the Bulldogs the district championship, and the right to face San Angelo in post season play.

San Angelo won the right as District 4-5A's second representaive when Bobcat head coach Jimmie Keeling won a four-way coin flip that was used to decide the deadlock for second place. San Angelo tied with Midland High, Midland Lee and Odessa High for the runner-up spot in the district with 4-3 records.

San Angelo, which was ranked as high as fifth in the AP prep poll this year, finished the season 7-3. The Bobcats will have a home-field advantage as they face Plainview in San Angelo 8:00 p.m. Friday.

THE STANTON Buffaloes won their first district football title in 32 years and the right to represent District 8-AA after defeating the McCamey Badgers 25-6 in McCamey.

The district championship was the first district football title for the Buffaloes since 1950.

Stanton will play District 7-2A representative Marfa in Fort Stockton Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The Buffaloes ended district play with a perfect 5-0 mark. Both teams enter the playoffs with identical 7-3 records.

Marfa lost its last district game to Van Horn, which created a three-way tie in the district race between Marfa, Van Horn and Clint, all 2-1.

Van Horn was odd team out in the coin toss and Clint won the tie-breaker for the top spot in the district.

Saturday Clint will play Reagan County, District 8-2A runner-up at 4-1, in Pecos at 2 p.m. Clint was 4-5 on the season while the Owls finished 4-5-1.

The only way that burning wood for home heat becomes an extremely attractive alternative to conventional home-heating fuels is when you cut the wood yourself. Even if the trees are on your lot, however, the price of a chain saw can boost the cost of your wood fuel. Why not rent a chain saw and keep costs to a minimum? A chain saw can be rented at very reasonable rates by the day or week. Remember that this tool deserves a lot of respect. Always operate the saw on the ground. Serious injury can occur if the saw is used while standing on a ladder or while in a tree.

At BOB'S RENTAL CENTERS INC., 2700 Rankin Hwy., 685-1271, 2909 N. Big Spring, 684-8294, when we rent an item you can be assured that it is in good working order. In addition, we will provide the necessary instruction for you to operate the tool properly and safely. Whether it is tools or any other item, you can count on BOB'S RENTAL CENTERS INC. for the quality rental item along with the personal service attention that will make your goal achievable. UCLA's Blanchard Montgomery (27) and Don Rogers (7) stop Washington quarterback Tim Cowan (14) during Pac-10 action in Seattle Saturday.

By The Associated Press

SAN MARCOS, Texas — Quarterback Ron Jacoby ran for two touchdowns and passed for a third to lead the Southwest Texas Bobcats to a 42-16 victory over Angelo State in Lone Star Conference play Saturday.

Leading 14-10 at the half, Southwest Texas scored three times in the first 15:04 of the second half and held Angelo State to minus 4 yards offense in the same time.

Southwest Texas now stands 9-0, while Angelo State falls to 4-4 on the season and 3-2 in the league.

Sul Ross St. 32, Austin Col. 25

ALPINE, Texas — Linebacker Carl Lee recovered a fumble for one Sul Ross touchdown and safety Frankie Friar intercepted an Austin College pass at the goalline Saturday to give Sul Ross a 32-25 win and its first Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association title.

Sul Ross is 7-0 on the season and Austin College now 5-2.

The Kangeroos were on the Sul Ross eight late in the game when Friar picked off a pass and raced 60 yards to the Austin College 40 to end the threat and preserve the win.

SFA 21, Howard Payne 10

BROWNWOOD, Texas — Stephen F. Austin's Doug Jefferson rushed for 110 yards and caught two passes for 22 yards as SFA whipped Howard Payne 27-10 in a Lone Star Conference football game Saturday.

The win raises SFA's record to 4-5 overall and 2-3 in the league. Howard Payne falls to 2-6 and 1-4.

Tarleton St. 12, McMurry 3

STEPHENVILLE, Texas — Kevin Petty threw a 5-yard touchdown pass to Wade Wilson and Bobby Stultz kicked field goals of 25 and 38 yards to lead Tarleton State past McMurry 12-3 Saturday in a Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association game.

Tarleton is now 4-3 and McMurry 2-7 for the season.

New Mexico St. 30, NTSU 19

LAS CRUCES — Quarterback Jamie McAlister passed for 300 yards and two touchdowns Saturday to spearhead New Mexico State to a 30-19 non-conference football thrashing of North Texas State.

McAlister completed 25 of 37 passes as the Aggies broke a 10-game losing streak to North Texas State and improved their record to 3-7 this season, while the Eagles' mark fell to 1-8.

The Aggie offense generated 488 yards, while North Texas State was held to 170.

Jackson St. 34, Texas Southern 28

JACKSON, Miss. — Quarterback John McKenzie passed for 165 yards and two touchdowns and ran for a third on Saturday as Jackson State withstood a 34-28 challenge from Texas Southern in Southwestern Athletic conference football.

Jackson State improved to 8-2 overall and 5-0 in the SWAC.

Mustangs rip Oaklawn, 52-6

Midland Christian finished its 1982 six-man football season on a winning note yesterday by defeating Oaklawn Park Baptist 52-6.

This year the Mustangs' schedule included eight public schools and they finished the season with a 3-6 record. Last year Midland Christian was 5-4 but only played against private institutions.

Senior Dan Carter scored three times in leading the Mustangs in the abbreviated contest. The game was called in the third quarter on the 45-point rule.

Carter scored on runs of two and three yards and hauled in a 56-yard pass from quarterback Joe Gould.

David Holmes had runs of 13 and 55 yards for two more touchdowns as the Mustangs lead 40-6 at the half.

Robbie Powell ran one in from 33 yards out and John Smith added a five-yard score in the second period.

Sheldon Ball closed out the scoring with a one yarder.

Huskies make coach sick

SEATTLE — UCLA football Coach Terry Donahue almost was too sick to come to his team's Pacific-10 Conference crucial game with Washington's Huskies Saturday.

With a team doctor at his side, he finally made it to Husky Stadium just 15 minutes before game time. But the Huskies' defense had to make him feel even worse.

Led by linebacker Mark Stewart, Washington's defense proved too much for UCLA and the nation's leading passer, Tom Ramsey.

The result: a 10-7 win by the 10th-ranked Huskies over the ninth-rated Bruins.

The victory kept Washington's hopes of going to the Rose Bowl for a third consecutive season very much alive while the loss seriously dented the Bruins' chances of going to Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's Day. Washington is at fourth-ranked Arizona State next Saturday night in the game that figures to decide the Pac-10 representative to the Rose Bowl.

Gary Rausch, UCLA men's sports information director, said before game time that he did not know if Donahue would be able to be at the game because he was so sick. Rausch said Donahue was vomiting and so weak that he couldn't even get dressed.

THE FAR WEST

Arizona 41, Stanford 27

STANFORD, Calif. — Brian Holland fooled Stanford with an 11-yard touchdown pass from his halfback position and also ran for two touchdowns in a late scoring flurry which gave the Arizona Wildcats a 41-27 Pacific-10 football victory over Stanford Saturday.

Stanford took a 27-13 lead early in the final period when Vincent White ran 22 yards for a touchdown on a draw play. But Arizona, which remained in contention for the conference title with its victory, struck back quickly as Tom Tunnicliffe passed to tight end Mark Keel on a 63-yard scoring play.

The Wildcats, 5-2-1 this season, tied the score with 5½ minutes remaining. Holland plunged 1 yard to end a 72-yard touchdown drive.

Stanford's Ken Williams then fumbled on the ensuing kickoff return, and Bryan Evans recovered for Arizona to set up the go-ahead touchdown pass by Holland.

Arizona made its Pac-10 record 3-1-1. Stanford fell to 3-3 and is 5-4 for all games.

Southern Cal 42, Cal 0

LOS ANGELES — Junior tailback Todd Spencer scored three first-half touchdowns Saturday as the 16th-ranked Southern Cal Trojans took command early and rolled to a 42-0 Pacific-10 Conference football victory over error-prone California.

The alert Trojan defense intercepted eight Cal passes, six off Bears' quarterback Gale Gilbert, and returned two for touchdowns.

Spencer finished the game with 69 yards on 18 carries for the Trojans, who are 6-2 overall this season and 4-1 in the Pac-10. They're ineligible for the conference title, however, because they're on NCAA probation.

The loss dropped Cal to 5-4 overall and 2-4 in Pac-10 play.

Brigham Young 23, Wyoming 13

PROVO, Utah — Quarterback Steve Young passed for one touchdown and ran for another as Brigham Young held off a second-half Wyoming rally to post a 23-13 Western Athletic Conference victory Saturday.

BYU had led 14-0 at halftime as Young connected on 14 of 15 passes for 172 yards. The Cougars made it 20-0 early in the second half on a 10-play, 79-yard drive culminated in an 11-yard scoring run by Young.

Wyoming now is 4-6 is overall and 2-5 in the league. BYU leads the WAC with a 5-1 record and a 6-3 overall mark.

Utah 42, Utah St. 10

SALT LAKE CITY — Ken Vierra threw four touchdown passes and Carl Monroe set a school season rushing record as host Utah downed Utah State 42-10 in nonconference football Saturday.

Monroe rushed for 109 yards, which gave him a season total of 1,136, which eclipsed the school record of 1,127 set last year by Del Rodgers.

UNLV 36, Colorado St. 31

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Sophomore Randall Cunningham passed for four touchdowns and repeatedly got Nevada-Las Vegas out of poor field position with booming punts, leading the Rebels to a 36-31 upset over Colorado State in college football Saturday.

Nebraska, Oklahoma keep on rolling

Nebraska I-back Mike Rozier (30) leaves the Oklahoma State Cowboys in a cloud of dust during a Big Eight clash Saturday in Lincoln, Neb.

By The Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Junior I-back Mike Rozier scored four touchdowns and set a single-season rushing record as sixth-ranked Nebraska defeated Big Eight rival Oklahoma State 48-10 in a college football game Saturday.

Rozier, who had 251 yards on 33 carries, surpassed Husker Bobby Reynolds' total of 1,342 yards set in 1950 with 1,379 yards this season. Rozier also became the Huskers' No. 3 all-time leading rusher with 2,322 career yards.

THE BIG EIGHT

But it was not only the Husker offense that ruined the Cowboy performance.

A stingy Nebraska defense held the nation's leading rusher, Ernest Anderson, to 68 yards on 15 carries.

Rozier scored on runs of 4, 17, 2 and 37 yards. He scored every Husker touchdown in the final half. Nebraska built a 7-0 first quarter lead on a 13-yard run by wingback Irving Fryar and added 14 points in the second quarter with a 9-yard pass from quarterback Turner Gill to tight end Jamie Williams and Rozier's 4-yard run.

Oklahoma 24, Kansas St. 10

NORMAN, Okla. — Freshman Marcus Dupree broke off an 80-yard touchdown run and scored again as 14th-ranked Oklahoma crimped Kansas State's best season in decades with a 24-10 Big Eight football win Saturday.

Dupree's second touchdown, a 1-yard leap over the staunch Wildcat defense, was set up by workhorse fullback Stanley Wilson, who gained 143 yards. Wilson had angled through the field like a pinball for a 43-yard gain before being knocked out of bounds just shy of the goal.

But Keith Stanberry's 41-yard interception return for the Sooners' third touchdown iced the sluggish game. It was one of several losses of possession that hurt the Wildcats, who have the best record in the country for turnovers.

Kansas 24, Iowa St. 17

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Frank Seurer engineered three second-half scoring drives and E.J. Jones capped a 74-yard march with a 1-yard run with 2:56 left Saturday to rally Kansas past Iowa State 24-17 in a Big Eight football upset.

Missouri 35, Colorado 14

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Sophomore quarterback Marlon Adler drilled two touchdown passes to James Caver to cap a 25-point second quarter and send Missouri to a 35-14 victory Saturday over Colorado in Big Eight football.

Adler's strikes of 20 and 13 yards came a minute and 40 seconds apart, constructing a 35-0 Missouri advantage at halftime. The Tigers, winning their first in five weeks, coasted to their first conference triumph.

Missouri's offense, with assistant coach Jim Donnan signalling plays from the sideline, produced points five of the first six times the Tigers had the ball.

Sophomore Glen Malvern cracked the goal line from the Colorado 1 to cap Missouri's first drive and sprinted 20 yards to a second touchdown a period later.

Junior Brad Burditt booted field goals of 19 and 34 yards. His second kick established a 20-0 advantage midway in the second quarter, and Adler's passes afterward catapulted the Tigers out of range.

Jones inks pact

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Padres announced Saturday they have reached an agreement on a multi-year contract with outfielder Ruppert Jones, the club's lone All-Star representative in 1982.

The announcement came hours before Jones, 27, would have become a free agent.

Penn State clobbers Wolfpack, 54-0

By The Associated Press

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — Jon Williams and Curt Warner scored touchdowns and Nick Gancitano kicked a field goal during a seven-minute span in the first period as seventh-ranked Penn State routed North Carolina State 54-0 Saturday.

Scouts from the Sugar and Cotton Bowls watched as Williams, Warner and Tony Mumford each scored twice in Penn State's eighth victory of the season against one loss, to Alabama.

It was the fourth defeat — all to top 20 teams — for the Atlantic Coast Conference Wolfpack, who have won five.

It was only the second time since 1968 that Penn State had more than 50 points in two consecutive games. Last week they beat Boston College 52-17.

Air Force 27, Army 9

WEST POINT, N.Y. — Air Force's Jody Simmons rushed for 96 yards, including 37 yards for a touchdown, while teammates Mike Brown and Marty Louthan scored on runs of 1 and 6 yards, respectively, as the Falcons trounced Army 27-9 in a college football game Saturday.

THE EAST

The victory tied the series between the service academies at 8-8-1.

Air Force now has a 6-4 record, while Army is 4-5.

Maryland 18, Miami 17

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Freshman fullback Rick Badanjek scored two touchdowns and Jess Atkinson booted a 38-yard field goal with 2:14 left Saturday as No. 19 Maryland nipped Miami 18-17 in college football.

With a steady wind at his back Atkinson, who missed a 23-yard attempt in the third period, put the Terps, 7-2, ahead for the first time since the second period.

Miami's Jeff Davis, who booted field goals of 25, 36, and 46 yards, missed a 40-yard attempt with 10 seconds left to play.

The loss dropped Miami's season record to 5-3.

Atkinson's game-winning kick came after Badanjek's 4-yard touchdown and quarterback Boomer Esiason's 2-point conversion pass to Mike Lewis that narrowed Miami's lead to 17-15 with 7:10 left.

Running back Willie Joyner, who rushed 95 yards on 20 attempts, and Badanjek moved the ball to the Hurricane 21 in seven plays to set up the winning field goal.

Navy 20, Syracuse 18

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Napoleon McCallum bolted 27 yards for a touchdown, set a Navy punt return record and rolled for 147 yards rushing as the Midshipmen defeated Syracuse 20-18 Saturday in college football.

Teammate Todd Solomon kicked field goals of 24 and 39 yards and Navy took advantage of three critical fumbles to increase its record to 5-4. Syracuse fell to 2-7.

West Virginia 20, Temple 17

PHILADELPHIA — West Virginia substitute quarterback Kevin White rifled a 68-yard scoring strike to wide receiver Rich Hollins early in the final quarter as the 17th-ranked Mountaineers narrowly escaped with a 20-17 come-from-behind victory over stubborn Temple Saturday in college football.

With scouts from six post-season bowl games looking on, West Virginia compiled 237 net yards to boosted its record to 7-2, while Temple mustered 235 total yards, but dropped to 4-5.

White, a sophomore, playing in his second straight game since first-string quarterback Jeff Hostetler was sidelined with foot injuries, completed 11 of 21 passes for 182 yards.

Boston College 34, Massachusetts 21

AMHERST, Mass. — Junior fullback Bob Biestek barged across for two short touchdown runs, and quarterback Doug Flutie threw for 205 yards to lead Boston College to a 34-21 non-conference football victory over Massachusetts Saturday.

The Eagles, 6-2-1, led 17-7 at halftime and 34-14 late in the game after Leo Smith scored on a 3-yard run.

Flutie, who completed 11 of 28 passes and had two intercepted, led a balanced attack that produced 215 yards and all four touchdowns on the ground.

Garry Pearson broke Massachusetts' single-season rushing record with a total of 1,212 yards. The old record was 1,139 yards set by Dennis Dent in 1978.

Duke 46, Wake Forest 26

DURHAM, N.C. — Chris Castor set two Atlantic Coast Conference football records Saturday as he converted 11 pass receptions into 283 yards and three touchdowns to lead Duke to a 46-26 victory over Wake Forest.

Castor's touchdowns gave him 13 this year, bettering the ACC single-season mark of 12 set by Wake Forest's Kenny Duckett in 1980. His yardage topped the 271 gained by the Demon Deacons' Wayne Baumgardner against South Carolina, also in 1980.

Duke quarterback Ben Bennett, who completed 21 of 37 passes for 407 yards, set a school season yardage record as he raised his total to 2,447, breaking Leo Hart's standard of 2,238 yards.

Wake Forest quarterback Gary Schofield, who completed 27 of 44 passes for 325 yards, set an ACC record by passing for more than 300 yards for the third straight game. He also set a school record by raising his career completion total to 431, breaking the record of 412 held by the Deacons' Jay Venuto.

Harvard 24, Holy Cross 17

WORCESTER, Mass. — Junior cornerback John Dailey intercepted his second pass of the game to set up a 4-yard touchdown plunge by Mike Ernst with 19 seconds remaining Saturday, lifting Harvard to a 24-17 upset football victory over Holy Cross.

Harvard struck back after Holy Cross, a two-touchdown favorite, pulled into a 17-17 tie with six minutes left when quarterback Peter Muldoon capped an 84-yard drive by sneaking 1 yard for the score.

Lafayette 47, Princeton 37

PRINCETON, N.J. — Tailback Nick Kowgios ran for a record 269 yards and scored four times Saturday to lead Lafayette to a 47-37 college football victory over Princeton.

The Leopards scored the first four touchdowns and never trailed in the first meeting between the schools since 1953.

Sneva beats Mears for Miller 150 title

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Tom Sneva won a mid-race battle with series champion Rick Mears and went on to record his third straight victory in the Miller High Life 150 Indy-car race Saturday at Phoenix International Raceway.

Sneva, a 34-year-old from Spokane, Wash., picked up the eighth triumph of his Indy-car career and second of the year as he ran away from Mears, the record-setting pole-sitter and the man who replaced him on the Penske Team in 1979.

Mears, who won four races in 1983 on the way to his third CART-PPG Indy-Car World Series championship in four years, led until the first caution flag came out on lap 16 when Indianapolis 500 winner Gordon Johncock and Pete Halsmer tangled in turn one.

Mears, Sneva and Mario Andretti, running 1-2-3 at that point, pitted during the caution period and Howdy Holmes, who stayed on the track, took over the lead.

Holmes remained on top through the second yellow flag, brought out on a harmless spin by Dick Ferguson, and still was ahead of Sneva when Mike Mosley spun on lap 59 to start the third caution period.

At that point, the race became a battle between Sneva and Mears, with Holmes fading off the pace and Mears coming out on top when the green flag waved on lap 68.

Sneva grabbed the top spot on lap 87, passing Mears in traffic, and Mears regained the lead one lap later, passing Sneva in traffic. Sneva then took over the top spot when Mears was hampered by slower cars in the first turn of lap 92. Sneva trailed Mears only briefly after that following his final pit stop in the 150-lap event on the one-mile oval.

Sneva's white and red Texaco-sponsored March racer crossed the finish line a solid six seconds ahead of Mears' blue Penske PC-10.

Sneva gained quite a bit of that final edge by getting the jump on Mears on his last pit stop. He ducked in on lap$124, while Mears stayed out.

Washington St. drowns Ducks

By The Associated Press

By The Associated Press

EUGENE, Ore. — Cedrick Brown jumped on an Oregon fumble in the end zone in the third quarter for the game's only touchdown Saturday as Washington State struggled to a 10-3 Pacific 10 Conference football victory over the winless Ducks.

The victory was Washington State's first since its season opener against Idaho. The Cougars are 2-6-1 overall and 1-3-1 in the conference. The Ducks dropped to 0-6 in the Pac-10 and 0-8-1 for the season.

The fumble came as Oregon attempted to punt from its own 17 yard line. The snap was low and the ball scooted through punter Kevin Hicks' legs and bounced into the end zone.

A wild scramble ensued before the officials ruled that Brown had recovered.

The touchdown, which came with 3:35 left in the third quarter, gave the Cougars a 7-3 lead.

Washington State padded the margin on John Traut's 32-yard field goal with 13:38 left in the game.

Oregon had taken a 3-0 lead in the third quarter after Oregon's Bill Lowder sacked WSU quarterback Clete Casper at the Cougars' one yard line. Washington State punted to the Oregon 42 yard line and Ducks' freshman Eugene King sprinted 36 yards on the next play, the longest rushing play for the Oregon offense this season.

After three plays lost a yard, Todd Lee kicked a 24-yard field goal to give Oregon the brief lead.

The first half was a scoreless exercise in futility. The closest either team got to scoring territory was its opponents' 33 yard line.

Oregon, which leads the Pac-10 in turnovers, lost three fumbles and an interception in the contest, which was played in a variety of weather including sunshine and a driving rainstorm. Washington State had no turnovers.

LATE GAMES

Tulsa 59, West Texas St. 21

TULSA, Okla. — Michael Gunter and Ken Lacy ran for more than 100 yards each as Tulsa won the Missouri Valley Conference championship with a 59-21 thrashing of West Texas State Saturday night.

The Hurricane scored the first three times they had the ball and never looked back, piling up yardage at will against the outmanned Buffalos.

Tulsa improved to 5-0 in the Valley and 8-1 overall, its best nine-game record in three decades.

Gunter, the nation's eighth leading rusher, picked up 139 yards on 11 carries and Lacy added 116 yards and three touchdowns on 18 carries.

Lacy scored on runs of 5, 11 and 9 yards in the first half as Tulsa built a 28-0 halftime lead.

West Texas showed signs of life at the start of the second half, recovering an onsides kick to begin a 46-yard scoring drive. Quarterback Victor McGee took the ball over from 5 yards out to make it 28-7.

But Tulsa took the ensuing kickoff and went 80 yards in five plays to put the game away. A 35-yard run by Gunter highlighted the drive.

Tulsa place-kicker Stu Crum broke one conference record and tied another. His 34-yard field goal in the third quarter gave him 16 for the year, a Missouri Valley record. And he hit eight extra points to tie the conference career record of 107.

Arkansas State 20, Lamar 19

BEAUMONT, Texas — Senior running back Waddell Kelly's fourth-quarter, 89-yard touchdown run off a shovel pass led Arkansas State to a 20-19 Southland Conference win over Lamar Saturday night.

Facing a third down and 15 to go at the ASU 11, Indian quarterback Tim Langford threw the shovel pass to Kelly, who burst up the middle, eluded the last two Lamar tacklers at the ASU 35, and went on to score.

The Indians now stand 4-5 on the year, 2-3 in league play. Lamar falls to 3-6, and 0-4 in SLC play.

In the first quarter, Lamar flanker Herbert Harris caught a 17-yard TD pass from quarterback Dale Brannan and the Cardinals got a safety as ASU's Harold Mason stepped back into the end zone after a kick-off.

The Indians went ahead 14-9 in the second quarter as Langford had TD runs of 15 and 10 yards, but Lamar came back to lead at the half 16-14 on a 5-yard run by Brannan.

A 42-yard field goal by Jaime Harvey gave Lamar a 19-14 edge before Kelly's heroics.

Arizona State 30, Oregon St. 16

TEMPE, Ariz. — Luis Zendejas kicked three field goals, including a school-record 55-yarder, while Alvin Moore, Todd Hons and Darryl Clack each had touchdown runs as fourth-ranked Arizona State stayed undefeated with a 30-16 victory over winless Oregon State Saturday night in a Pacific-10 football game.

The Sun Devils, 9-0 overall and the conference leader at 5-0, trailed the hapless Beavers 16-10 late in the second quarter. Tailback James Terrell's 62-yard TD run on a fumble recovery 2:43 before halftime gave Oregon State the lead.

Moore then capped a six-play, 73-yard drive with a 4-yard scoring run 1:11 before halftime for a 17-16 Arizona State lead.

Zendejas added a 28-yard field goal midway through the third quarter and a 37-yarder 1:18 into the fourth, while Clack sealed the victory with a 25-yard touchdown run with 1:03 remaining.

The loss dropped Oregon State to 0-8-1 overall and 0-6-1 in Pac-10 play.

After Zendejas' record-setting kick 4:05 into the game, Mangold opened the second quarter with a 22-yard field goal.

The Beavers went ahead 10-3 on fullback Bryce Oglesby's 25-yard touchdown run one play after Kenny Taylor's interception and 39-yard return.

Michigan moves close to Rose Bowl bid

By The Associated Press

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — All-American Anthony Carter grabbed five passes for 125 yards, including a 40-yard touchdown strike, to lead Michigan's 15th-ranked Wolverines to a crucial 16-10 Big Ten football triumph Saturday over Illinois.

Carter's big-play efforts and the powerful running of Lawrence Ricks helped set up three field goals by Al Haji-Sheikh as the first-place Wolverines posted their seventh conference triumph without a loss.

Michigan, now 7-2 overall, needs only one victory in its last two games to clinch the league title and a Rose Bowl bid. Illinois slipped to 5-3 in the Big Ten and 6-4 overall.

With Eason completing 28 of 47 passes for 272 yards, Illinois kept threatening. In the closing minutes, the Illini moved from their own 8-yard line to the Michigan 2, but failed to punch the ball over in a desperate last attempt, surrendering on downs to the dismay of a crowd of 75,256, largest in Memorial Stadium history.

THE BIG TEN

Indiana 20, Wisconsin 17

MADISON, Wis. — Sophomore Doug Smith kicked a 42-yard field goal against a stiff wind with 4 seconds to play, lifting Indiana to a 20-17 Big Ten football victory over Wisconsin Saturday.

Quarterback Babe Laufenberg passed the Hoosiers into position for Smith's winning kick after Wisconsin's Kevin Rohde had tied at 17-17 with a 44-yard field goal field goal with 1:15 to play.

On third down and 15 from the Indiana 15 after Rohde's kick, Laufenberg passed to John Boyd for a 27-yard gain. Laufenberg then passed for gains of 9 yards to Chris Cook and 9 to Scot McNabb to carry to the Wisconsin 26, setting up Smith's kick.

Wisconsin, 5-4 overall and 4-3 in the Big Ten, appeared to have a victory clinched when Indiana's Duane Gunn recovered his own fumble on a reverse which lost 24 yards back to the Indiana 33 with 4:45 to play.

But Wisconsin's Brian Marrow fumbled a punt, and Indiana recovered at the Badger 22 with 4:18 left. Freshman Bobby Howard scored from a yard out 5 plays later as the Hoosiers, now 4-5 on the season and 3-4 in the Big Ten, took the lead at 17-14 with 2:42 left.

Purdue 16, Iowa 7

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Purdue's young and mostly ineffective defensive and speciality units had their finest performances of 1982 Saturday as the Boilermakers upset Iowa 16-7 in Big Ten football.

Junior Tim Clark, five of 11 in field goal attempts heading into the game, was perfect in three first-half kicks to give Purdue a 9-0 lead.

Ohio St. 35, Minnesota 10

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Sophomore quarterback Mike Tomczak completed nine straight passes in one stretch, ran for one touchdown and passed for another score Saturday, leading Ohio State to a 35-10 victory over Minnesota in Big Ten Conference football.

The triumph kept alive the Buckeyes' flickering league title hopes. Ohio State, 6-3 overall, lifted its league record to 5-1 behind Michigan's leading 7-0 mark.

Minnesota, suffering its sixth straight defeat, fell to 3-6 overall and 1-6 in the conference. The Gophers have not won in Columbus since 1947.

Tomczak, the target of boos in Ohio Stadium earlier this season, connected on 10 of his first 11 passes and had 166 air yards by halftime. That helped the Buckeyes into a 21-3 lead.

Michigan St. 24, Northwestern 28

With a third-and goal situation at the Michigan State 7 yard line, Schwab handed off to Edwards, then slipped into the left corner of the end zone where Edwards hit him with the game-winning toss.

The victory left the Wildcats 3-7 for the season, 2-6 in conference play. Michigan State fell to 1-8 overall and dropped into last place in the Big Ten at 1-6.

East Texas State romps past Texas A&I, 37-22

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — East Texas quarterback Kyle Mackey passed for 295 yards and two touchdowns Saturday to guide the Lions to a 37-22 Lone Star Conference victory over Texas A&I.

Mackey completed 17 of 31 passes and his touchdown strikes were 5 yards to Ron Tammell, and 9 yards to Mark Spencer. The Lions rolled up 725 yards total offense, compared with Texas A&I's 457 yards.

ACU offense moves over Sam Houston

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Loyal Proffitt threw for two touchdowns and ran for a third to lead Abilene Christian to a 36-10 win over Sam Houston in a Lone Star Conference game Saturday.

Abilene Christian rolled up 446 yards total offense. Sam Houston had only 258 total yards. ACU sophomore fullback Anthony Thomas carried 27 times for 184 yards.

ACU now stands 5-3-1 overall and 3-2 in the LSC. Sam Houston is 3-6 and 1-4.

76ers nip Celtics in overtime battle

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Julius Erving's jump shot with 38 seconds left in the second overtime period gave the Philadelphia 76ers a 119-115 come-from-behind victory over the Boston Celtics Saturday in a battle between undefeated National Basketball Association teams.

Erving's field goal put the 76ers ahead 116-115.

Malone then dropped in two shots from the foul line.

When the Celtics inbounded the ball to Quinn Buckner, Malone knocked the ball from his hands, and rookie 76er guard Franklin Edwards was fouled by Kevin McHale while attempting a shot.

Edwards made good on one of his two foul throws to give Philadelphia its 119-115 lead.

Erving and Malone were high scorers with 28 points each, as the 76ers took over first place in the Atlantic Division with a 5-0 record.

Robert Parish tallied 25 points for Boston, Larry Bird 21 and McHale 18 as the Celtics lost their first game after four victories.

Regulation play ended with the 76ers coming back from a 10-point deficit early in the fourth quarter. Erving tied the score at 93-93 with a jump shot with 22 seconds left.

Mississippi bombs Tulane

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Quarterback Kent Austin, missing only once, passed for 269 yards and two touchdowns and tailback Andre Thomas scored three times Saturday night to lead the Mississippi Rebels to a 45-14 football victory over Tulane.

Austin, a sophomore, hit 18 of 19 passes, teaming with split end James Harbour on a 55-yard pass-run scoring play and Buford McGee on a screen pass covering 57 yards for another touchdown.

Thomas, hobbled by injuries for three games, rushed for 106 yards on 26 carries. He scored on a 18-yard run and two six-yard dashes.

The victory gave Mississippi a 4-5 record while Tulane, suffering three pass interceptions and two lost fumbles, fell to 3-6.

Freshman quarterback Bubba Brister came off the bench to lead Tulane on two 80-yard scoring drives.

NFL season is now officially in trouble

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League strike negotiations collapsed Saturday night when mediator Sam Kagel pulled out in frustration, and a spokesman for the owners said the 1982 season is in "serious, serious jeopardy."

The players' negotiators said they would stay in New York in hopes the talks could resume, but no further bargaining was scheduled and Jim Miller, a spokesman for the owners' NFL Management Council, said, "We're leaving."

"At some point, you have to lose the season," Miller said. "At what point do you still have a season? Is three games a season?"

Only two weekends of games were played before the strike began 47 days ago, and seven weekends — 98 games — have been wiped out since then. Seven weekends of the original schedule remain.

Kagel, a 73-year-old San Francisco lawyer, left after ending face-to-face bargaining and resorting in shuttle negotiations in a futile effort to save the talks.

"For the past eight days, the parties have exchanged proposals on all subjects," he said. "However, the parties still remain in dispute as to the value and implementation of the economic factors. Until an agreement is reached in this area, no agreement can be reached.

"Until both parties are prepared to change their positions, it is appropriate that I return to San Francisco."

He said he would be come back at the request of both the owners and the players.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said union representatives would "be in touch with the Management Council as soon as the player reps have had an opportunity to complete their review of the document they gave us today," a 75-page compilation of the owners' proposals.

"It is quite apparent that the general counsel of the NLRB (National Labor Relations Board) has been unable to get the owners to bargain," Garvey said.

MC hopes to pack Chaparral Center

"Pack Chap Center Night" is expected to draw the largest crowd in the history of Midland College basketball Tuesday night when the Chaparrals entertain Lon Morris College of Jacksonville at Langford Chaparral Center.

The Chaps, the nation's defending national title holders, are 1-0 on the year under head coach Jerry Stone after last Tuesday's win over Cisco in a rematch of last year's Region V tournament.

The Midland Chamber of Commerce has distributed more than 10,000 tickets for its members to give out. Tickets may be picked up from any Chamber member business prior to the game 8 p.m. game Tuesday.

MC is still selling reserved seats and they are priced at $40 each. Season tickets may be purchased Monday from Chaparral Center director Mike Stevens and at the game Tuesday.

Delnor Poss, MC athletic director, said sections H through K have been reserved for season ticket holders this year. "The response to the season ticket concept has been very good this year in our first effort to offer season reserved seats. We still have some very good seats left."

THE CHAPS took their season opener last Tuesday with a struggling 69-62 win over the Cisco College Wranglers. It almost looked like a rematch of their battle last March in the Region V finals.

"We had some first game jitters and a few of our starters got in early foul trouble," MC coach Jerry Stone noted. "Cisco was as tough as we thought they would be. It was a good opener for us and now our players know that everyone will be out to knock us off since we are the defending champions."

Lon Morris College is a small, private Methodist two-year college in East Texas and traditionally has strong basketball programs. Stone feels they will be another good test for the Chaps.

Tuesday's game is 8 p.m. although fans are urged to arrive early for the best seats.

Following their game with Lon Morris, the Chaps take to the road and won't be back hom for three weeks. Their first stop will be in Great Bend, Kan., for the Barton County Classic, Nov. 18-20. Then they will be in Amarillo during the Thanksgiving holidays for the Amarillo Classic, Nov. 25-27. The team will reamin in Amarillo Sunday and then head to Clarendon for their first conference game against Clarendon College on Nov. 29.

CHAP CENTER will again come alive Dec. 2-4 as the MC squad hosts its own Chaparral Classic.

Stone will be cautioning his players as they head for Great Bend and Amarillo. Last year's slow-starting Chaps lost two games in the Barton County Classic and lost again to host Amarillo College, which ended up with two victories in three meetings against MC.

But the Great Bend and Amarillo events don't count, except on the total record. It's the conference meetings which are important and by the time they arrive in Clarendon, Stone likely will have his team shaken down and ready to defend their conference title.

MHS' Hardy earns state berth with sixth in cross country

LUBBOCK — Midland High's Claire Hardy posted a 12:00.7 here at Mae Simmons Park Saturday morning to earn a state cross country berth after finishing sixth in the Region I cross country meet.

The top three teams and top 10 individuals won state berths here, so Hardy will move to Austin next week for the state run. El Paso Jefferson's Claudina Rivera won the Region I title with an 11:36. Amarillo's Brenda Moore, the winner of the Tall City Invitational, was second with an 11:40.7.

Hardy's sixth tooped all District 4-5A runners, none of which advanced to the state meet. Permian's Paula Baccus finished 17th with a 12:31.9.

Other Midland High girls were Janet Betteridge, 48th, 13:39.5; Janette Betteridge, 51st, 13:45.5; and Diedra Bell, 79th, 15:58.1. Gayla Sutton was injured during the race and was unable to finish.

None of the Midland boys advanced to state as El Paso teams dominated the field. The top four teams were from El Paso with Austin winning with 34 points and El Paso High second with 48. Midland High finished sixth in the team standings with 174 points.

Leading MHS was Alberto Lozano with a 16:20, good for 21st place. Others were Chuck St. Germain, 23rd, 16:30; Jesse Diaz, 50th, 17:18; Arturo Arciga, 59th, 17:35; Danny Ramirez, 62nd, 17:41; Mike Mashburn, 80th, 18:21; and Danny Arguello, 84th, 19:01. Midland Lee's Carl Piccolo finished 44th with a 17:0[illegible].

Lee Maroon falls just shy of crown

Lee Maroon fell one game short of being the first Midland school to win the Midland-Odessa freshman football conference. The Lee frosh lost their final game to Odessa Nimitz 14-8 in the championship game Saturday. Nimitz finished the season 8-0-1 while Lee was 7-2.

Midland schools took four of the top six places in the final standings.

Midland Purple, 6-3, finished fourth after defeating third place Ector (6-2-1), 21-20 in its final game.

Midland Gold and Lee White tied for fifth place with 5-3-1 records. The Gold beat Crockett 25-12 and Lee defeated Bowie 30-0 to end their seasons.

In the eighth grade Midland-Odessa conference, Goddard finished an unblemished 8-0 season as they crushed Bowie 61-0.

Goddard dominated league play averaging more than 32 points per game while the defense allowed less than a touchdown per outing.

Nimitz finished second at 6-2 with a 31-6 victory over San Jacinto. In other final games, Crockett beat Hood 24-0 and Bonham downed Ector 16-6.

Trinity captured the Midland City eighth grade conference championship with a 6-0 mark. Trinity finished the season with a 14-8 win over Alamo, which tied with Goddard Red for second place at 4-2.

Goddard Red lost their finale to Goddard White 8-6. San Jacinto beat Midland Christain 12-8 in the last week of play.

Alamo Grey won the seventh grade American Conference title with a 7-0-1 record. The Grey beat Goddard Red 26-6 to wrap-up the season. The only blemish on Alamo's record was a 14-14 tie with San Jacinto Green midway through the season.

At 4-2-2 Goddard White was the only other team to finish with a winning record. Goddard beat San Jacinto Green 36-0 to finish in the runner up position. In the other closing game San Jacinto White beat Alamo Scarlet 12-0.

Goddard swept the top two spots in the seventh grade National Conference as the Red team finished 8-0 and the White was 6-1-1.

In the final week's games San Jacinto White defeated Alamo Scarlet 14-12, Goddard Red beat Alamo Grey 24-0 and Goddard White shutout San Jacinto Green 16-0.

Wichita State outscores Drake

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Eric Denson rambled for 194 yards and one touchdown and quarterback Prince McJunkins ran for two scores to power Wichita State to a 38-29 victory over Drake in Missouri Valley Conference football Saturday.

Wichita State bolted to a 14-0 lead before Drake ran a play and the Shockers'sent their record to 8-2 overall and 4-1 in the conference. Drake, which lost four fumbles and had two passes intercepted, fell to 3-7 and 1-4.

Permian protects No. 1 ranking

By The Associated Press

Brent Kelley made a 1-yard quarterback sneak to score the winning touchdown that propelled Odessa Permian to a 14-10 victory over Odessa High in schoolboy football play Friday.

Odessa Permian, top-ranked in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, overcame a 10-0 first-quarter deficit to remain undefeated at 10-0. Kelley made the sneak with 4:22 remaining in the game and Bobby Knott scored the extra point.

In other Class 5A games, quarterback Cliff Landry tossed a 13-yard scoring bomb to James Bobb that speeded Port Arthur Jefferson to a 29-17 win in a contest against Port Neches-Groves.

The second-ranked Yellow Jackets won their 30th consecutive regular season victory to become the District 25-5A champion. They face Aldine at 12:30 p.m. next Saturday in the Houston Astrodome in playoff action.

MOMENTS AFTER the Bobb catch, Mickey Fein scored on a 39-yard run, then caught a point-after pass from Mitch Gaspard.

TJ tailback Jerry Chaney opened scoring with a 1-yard run, and Landry kicked the first of his three extra points. PNG responded with a 25-yard field goal by Gary Wilson.

Port Neches Groves came within 14 seconds of defeating TJ, but the visitors scored 15 points in the interval to win. Port Neches met disaster in the second quarter with a fumble and an interception.

Regrouping after halftime, PNG made two more drives. The first ended on Denny Duhon's 1-yard run. Brad Warsham added two points running. Duhon capped the second drive with an 8-yard TD pass to Aaron Brown.

Also in 5A, Hurst Bell quarterback Craig Presnal passed for 168 yards against Euless Trinity with 12 completions in 16 attempts and three touchdowns as eighth-ranked Bell beat the fourth-ranked Trojans, 20-8, to cinch the District 7-5A championship.

After a fumble by Trinity fullback Nolan Farrow, Presnall threw an 11-yard completion to split end Stacy Allred to move the ball to Trinity's 22. Presnall hit fullback Darren Darder on third and eight with a 7-yard pass.

Tailback Tom Ward rushed 3 yards for the first down, and Presnall kept the ball on the ground. Ward rushed for the first touchdown to give Bell a 7-0 lead with 6:50 remaining in the second quarter.

Trojan quarterback Jay Fitch started a ground attack but was repelled when Bell cornerback Brent Hare and linebacker Jimmy Carter stripped the ball from him at the 1. Tackle John Cixar recovered the ball in the end zone for Bell to preserve a 7-0 halftime lead.

Ward scored from the 1 in the third quarter, the extra point was good and the Blue Raiders led 14-0 with 18 seconds remaining in the third quarter. The Trojans drove 63 yards for a touchdown on the next series.

Also in 5A, No. 3 Austin Reagan whipped Austin, 39-6, No. 5 Bryan beat Killeen Ellison, 20-0, No. 6 Fort Worth Eastern Hills devastated Fort Worth Wyatt, 34-0; seventh-ranked Plano edged Plano East, 14-13; No. 9 San Antonio Churchill clipped San Antonio Lee, 19-0; and tenth-ranked Conroe cruised by Houston Westfield, 60-20.

IN CLASS 4A, first-ranked Fort Bend Willowridge downed Houston C.E. King, 28-7; No. 2 Jasper beat Lumberton, 57-0; No. 3 Carrizo Springs toppled Uvalde, 27-24; No. 4 Cleburne subdued Mansfield, 28-7; and fifth-ranked San Angelo Lakeview defeated Snyder, 49-22.

Also in 4A, No. 6 Huntsville held Livingston scoreless, 42-0; No. 7 Brownwood stalled Crowley, 35-0; No. 8 Gainesville bombarded Mineral Wells, 39-0; No. 9 New Braunfels shut out Fredericksburg, 28-0; and tenth-ranked Corsicana slipped by Ennis, 21-14.

Class 3A action saw top-ranked Post pounding Idalou, 37-0; No. 2 Port Isabel subduing La Feria, 36-0; No. 3 McGregor surprising Groesbeck, 41-6; No. 4 Cameron reigning over Caldwell, 28-8; and No. 5 Refugio routing Corpus Christi West Oso, 60-0.

Other 3A action saw No. 6 Daingerfield beating New Boston, 27-13; No. 8 Waller defying Columbus, 50-29; No. 9 Kaufman ripping Mineola, 47-7; and No. 10 Van Vleck whipping Boling, 15-8.

Texans rank first in Masters' numbers

KENNY REDIN'S
Fin & Feather

Texans were well represented in the Bass Masters Classic.

Nine qualified for the world finals, more state representative than any other state. Of the 41 Classic qualifiers and contenders, Texas once again ranked first by numbers.

Each year the Texans fish the BMC Classic and BASS circuit in competition for the $100,000 fish-off.

Some of these Texans may not be as well known as the Roland Martins and Bill Dances, but they can fish with the best of them.

No Texan finished better than third in the Classic, but all made some money.

RONNIE YOUNG — This 35-year-old welding contractor from Wichita Falls finished in fourth place, winning $4,000. He was the first Texas angler from North Texas to ever qualify for the Classic and boated 10 largemouth and spotted bass in three days for a 22 pound, 14 ounce weight total.

Young fishes about 100 days a year and his favorite Texas lake is Toledo Bend. His favorite lures include: plastic worms, jig and eels, crank baits and spinner baits, in that order. Color patterns are grape in the work rig and chrome in crank baits.

He 11th on the BASS circuit this year.

DAVID WHARTON, 32, of Broaddus, is a professional guide on Sam Rayburn Reservoir and placed ninth, winning $1,500.

He fishes 225 days a year, including six tournaments and ranked 13th this season on the B.A.S.S. circuit.

Wharton says Rayburn is his favorite bassin' lake in Texas and he prefers fishing worms, jigs and eels and spinner baits with grape being his favorite flavored worm.

MARVIN BAKER is a veteran of 45 BASS tournaments and placed 21st this year. He has qualified for three Classic finals and is 23rd on the all-time money list with $23,054.80.

Baker sponsors himself in all the tournaments and is a pro fisherman, part time guide on Sam Rayburn and runs an auto parts store. He fishes about 200 days a year and chooses a white spinner bait as his favorite bass catcher, but prefers to fish a jig and eel the remainder of the time.

RICKY CLUNN, 36, has been fishing BASS and winning for years. He finished 23rd in the Classic, but holds two consecutive Classic titles.

He has been angling 30 years and has a string of nine straight Classic appearances.

With 51 money placings in 68 events, he ranks second on the all-time list with $127,249.56. Oddly, Clunn has yet to win a regular B.A.S.S. tour tournament.

Clunn's favorite lake in Texas is Fayette County Lake and he prefers to chunk crank baits, spinner baits and jig and eels...in that order.

TOMMY MARTIN, 1974 Classic winner, has qualified for seven Classics. His earnings on the Tournament Trail are $67,034.51 and this Toledo Bend fishing guide stands seventh on the all-time money list.

Martin, 41, started the 1982 81 pounds, 10 ounces to win Texas Invitational.

His favorite lake, of course, is big Toledo Bend and if he had to choose his favorite bait he would select the plastic worm followed closely by the jig and eel.

LARRY NIXON emerged as the 1982 Bass Angler-of-the-Year. Season leading $36,345 moved him into third on the money list with $102,655.28. With five BASS wins, he ranks third behind Roland Martin (14) and Bill Dance (7). He won the poundage race in 1980 and has qualified for six straight Classics.

Nixon finished 31st.

KENNETH WALKER, Georgetown, placed 36th and competed in his third straight Classic, although only a four-year veteran of the BASS tour. ified for his third straight Classic. In 19 events, Walker has banked $12,107.50.

LONNIE STANLEY, 36, from College Station, and maker of the famous Stanley Jig, finished 37th this year. He prefers the Stanley jig over any other bait. His rubber-skirted jigs have won a lot of money for other pros on the BASS circuit and this year, his debut, collected him earnings of $3,600.

RANDY BEHRINGER, a former Baylor linebacker, joined the tour in 1976 and has been a regular on the tournament trail since. He finished 38th this year, but ranks 29th the money list at $24, 723.

Chaps end tennis fall season with win over Angelo State

The Midland College tennis teams ended the fall tennis season with double victories over Angelo State Saturday with the men taking a narrow 5-4 win and the women winning by a 6-3 margin.

Angelo State and MC split 3-3 in the singles action and split the No. 1 and No. 3 doubles competition, but the Chaparrals took the vitory in classic style as Tim Shaugnessy and Craig Anderson came through with a win in the No. 2 doubles to give MC the edge.

The MC women won easily, really losing only one match to the Angelo women. MC had only five girls for this match and had to default the No. 6 singles and No. 3 doubles matches.

MC Girls 6, Angelo State 3

Singles: Linda Bryant def. Donna McGee, 6-3, 6-3; Kym Sommerville def. Karen Byrd, 6-3, 4-6, 7-6; Jodi Wertenberger def. Susie Mills, 6-2, 6-0; Lisa O'Briant def. Jackie Wilson, 6-2, 6-0; Patsy Waldman lost to Sharon Landry, 6-3, 6-2; Cindy Harrell of Angelo won by default because of no No. 6 player for MC.

Doubles: O'Briant-Sommerville def. Byrd-Mills, 6-3, 6-2; Wertenberger-Bryant def. Landry-McGee, 6-4, 6-3; Waldman-Alvarado lost by default to Harrell-Wilson.

MC Boys 5, Angelo State 4

Singles: Peter Brown def. Mitch Nichols, 2-6, 6-4, 7-6; Craig Anderson lost to Chris Mosso, 7-6, 6-1; Tim Shaugnessy lost to David Blakley, 6-1, 6-2; Randy Harwell lost to Wilson Fennely, 7-5, 7-5; Kris Cassela def. Tracy Manning, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5; Russell Coffee def. James Brackett, 6-2, 5-7, 6-0.

Doubles: Brown-Rick Fernandez lost to Nichols-Mossa, 6-1, 6-4; Anderson-Shaugnessy def. Blakley-Manning, 3-6, 7-6, 6-3; Craig Dominques-Cassela def. Fennely-Brackett, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Bulldogs to host EP Bel Air

The Midland High Bulldogs will face their second volleyball playoff opponent Monday night at the Midland High gym as El Paso Bel Air comes to the Tall City for a single-match elimination game at 7 p.m.

Midland High gained the home court advantage for the second time in the playoffs when head coach Linda Jolly successfully won a coin toss following a volleyball victory.

Tuesday night the Bulldogs rolled to a surprisingly easy 15-11, 15-8 victory over District 3-5A opponent Amarillo Tascosa and Jolly then made a "heads" call against El Paso coach Mary Thompson to determine home court.

Playing for the Bulldogs this year are Sheila Christian, senior; Lisa Coldeway, senior; Penny Griffin, senior; Theresa Haney, senior Jency Johnson, senior; Denise Lanz, sophomore; Maggie Marmolejo, junior; Melinda Raschke senior; and Laura Sherman, senior. Raschke and Griffin are the team's co-captains.

As it was for the first playoff matches, ticket prices will be $3 for adults and $2 for students with no season passes accepted.

Garvey unsigned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and representatives for veteran Steve Garvey ended five hours of negotiations this morning, without agreeing on a new contract for the first baseman.

The talks lasted until 1 a.m. today and another session, via telephone, was set for later in the day.

Water may protect against frost

By WILLIE STUMBERG
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

With cold weather and the first killing frost of the year just around the corner, gardeners all over the county begin asking "what can I do to save my garden?"

Generally, the season can be extended several more weeks by knowing what to do, prior to frost.

The first killing frost often is followed by several days, if not weeks, of favorable growing weather. Using this concept, a common water sprinkler may be used as a frost protectant system. Water is a great equalizer of temperature. As it freezes, it gives off more heat. This heat can be used to protect plants from freeze damage.

If a light freeze or frost is predicted the gardener might consider sprinkling the garden for frost protection. The water should be applied continually during the freezing period. Freezing temperatures throughout the night require sprinkling the entire night. If only a frost is predicted, protection is usually adequate if the plot is sprinkled in the early morning. Furrow watering, also, offers some protection against cold damage, but is not as effective as sprinkling.

Washing frost off with warm water may actually increase plant damage.

Remember, the first freezing weather does not have to mean the end of a successful summer garden. A little water applied at the right time may go a long way toward saving those highly nutritious and tasty homegrown vegetables.

Cooler temperature is, also, a signal for planting rye. Many homeowners overseed lawns or barren areas without established turf with rye to prevent erosion of top soil during fall and winter. Rye enjoys cold temperatures and remains green and growing throughout the winter when bermuda and St. Augustine are dormant.

Be careful when purchasing rye grass. Annual rye used for lawns is not the rye which should be planted in gardens. Annual rye remains small; cereal or Elbon rye grows taller and provides much more organic matter.

Elbon rye has proven to be the fastest growing, most cold tolerant annual grass available. It can be planted in late fall and produce grass 10-15 inches high in 60-80 days. In late winter, this grass should be shredded and tilled, so that rotting can occur before spring planting. Cereal rye beautifies the area, provides organic matter and its roots serve as a "trap crop" for those pesky nematodes. Once nematodes enter the cereal rye roots, they cannot escape and will perish. As the rye decomposes it, also, reduces the alkalinity of many garden soils.

Cereal rye can be planted by seeding directly on top of the garden soil and raking it in. Apply seed at the rate of one pound per 100 square feet. Be sure to water regularly and fertilize for maximum growth. There is no danger of rye becoming a weed problem during the spring since it cannot withstand hot temperatures and will die.

Plant some cereal rye in your barren garden. It will reduce nematodes, add organic matter and decorate your neighborhood with greenery all winter long.

HOW

DON'T JUST LOOK FOR IT. INSIST ON IT.

Before you put your name on the most expensive document most people ever sign, you probably put a lot of thought into it.

It's easy to get boggled by floorplans and locations, lot sizes and mortgage terms and closing costs.

But it's easier to feel a lot better about the whole process if you just know how.

HOW—the Home Owners Warranty—is America's first comprehensive homeowner's protection plan.

When you see the HOW symbol on a new home, you know you're getting a 10 year protection plan. Your home is protected against workmanship and material defects the first year. Defective wiring, ductwork and piping in the second. And your home is protected against major structural defects that vitally affect the use of your new home for 10 full years.* Your builder can give you all the details, including the reasonable exclusions.

When you add up all the things you're looking for in a new home, it's probably a list a yard long. Put the Home Owners Warranty program at the top of it.

Insist on it. It's the best way to protect against facing the wrong kind of signs in the future.

Your ERA Real Estate Specialist is now offering a worry-free way to buy and sell a home-the Sellers Security Plan.

First, the Sellers Security Plan can advance up to $100,000 on the equity in your present home to use as a down payment on your next home, providing you purchase that house through an ERA approved broker and your present home qualifies.

Then if your house hasn't sold after 210 days, ERA will buy it, at a price and terms you agree to when you accept the plan.

A minimal application fee and certified appraisal are required to see if your home qualifies.

The ERA Sellers Security Plan. Equity advance and assured sale at a price you can live with.

ERA® REAL ESTATE

*Some conditions and limitations apply. To see if you qualify, call your ERA Real Estate Specialist and review the Sellers Security Plan contract.

The first year's payment and buyer qualification will be calculated equivalent to a rate of 97/8% with a subsidy of the loan. After the first 12 months, payments will be changed at the most recent intervals. Example: the rate plus 1.25%. Payments on these mortgages are graduated so as to increase the principal and interest payments 7.50% each year for the next 4 years. At the end of the first 5 year period, the graduation in payments will cease. A new payment schedule will be computed using a variable rate mortgage to amortize the remaining balance over the remaining 25 years of the mortgage based upon the then current Treasury Bill rate plus 3.25%. The 7.50% maximum increase can be based on the original loan principle received. 25%. At each 5 year anniversary date the payment may be adjusted ...also the remaining permissible limit against the loan. ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE APPROXIMATE 16 7/8%

Lifestyle guidelines

The following are suggested guidelines for publication of stories in the Lifestyle Department of The Midland Reporter-Telegram:

Information for our Sunday pages must be in our office by 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday; or two days before publication in a daily paper.

Engagement announcements must appear at least four weeks before the wedding date. Wedding stories must be submitted within a week of the event.

Engagements, weddings, anniversaries and club notices must be submitted in writing. All materials should include the name and telephone number of the person submitting them. The Reporter-Telegram has forms for engagement and wedding announcement stories.

We cannot mail pictures or forms to persons living within Midland. Pictures must be picked up in the Lifestyle office within one month after publication.

Only the bride's picture will be used with both the engagement and wedding announcement.

Pictures should be black and white, preferably glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but they may reproduce poorly. Good reproduction cannot be assured when color prints are used. In general, snapshots are not acceptable.

There is no charge for publication of pictures and stories.

Penchant for pen pals leads to engaging correspondence

By BETSY PERSUN

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — The art of letter-writing is not dead. Just ask James Swabb, who met his fiancee through the mails.

Swabb, of this Lycoming County community, has been writing to pen pals since he was in junior high school. Last year, he began a correspondence with Shana Rogers, Morgantown, Ind. The two wrote to each other twice a week, on the average.

Swabb says they developed an "understanding" over the months. He made it official in August, when he traveled to Indiana and proposed to Miss Rogers on the third day of his visit.

"I don't know, there's just something about it. You can tell a lot about a person from what they write in their letters," Swabb says.

Swabb and Miss Rogers met through a pen pal device called a Friendship Book.

Swabb explains that one person will make a booklet for a friend.

The booklet's creator will send it to a pen pal, and that person will write his or her name and address in the booklet and send it on to another pen pal.

It keeps going until all the pages have been filled with names and addresses. Then the booklet is mailed to the person for whom it was made.

Anyone who encounters the booklet on its path may write to one of the names already written in it. Miss Rogers saw Swabb's name in a Friendship Book and started writing to him.

Now that they are engaged, Swabb writes to Miss Rogers every day. He is sending her an engagement ring for her birthday.

By JACK SMITH
Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service

I'm afraid it is poor timing to bring us back to serious scientific reflection when our minds are so numb from the political ads on radio and TV, but I feel obliged to report the highlights, at least, of the many provocative answers I have received to the question of why our fingertips wrinkle in water.

It was the talented author and musician Steve Allen who asked the question, in the first place, noting that sometimes his fingertips wrinkle almost as soon as he enters the water, but at other times they remain unwrinkled even after prolonged immersion.

"What the internal mechanism is that makes the fingers wrinkle in the first place I have no idea," he said. "Nor can I imagine what evolutionary purpose is served by such a reaction...."

My own explanation of what I presume to call the Allen-Smith Effect, since he defined it and I explained it, was that it is "a protective mechanism whose purpose is to keep people from staying in the water too long...." When the fingertips wrinkle, I pointed out, it is time to get out and slip into a dry martini.

I don't think many of the other explanations I have received offer a serious challenge to mine, but some are interesting for their ingenuity, like many failed hypotheses.

"It is a matter of osmosis," writes Frank W. Ellis M.D., "and relative tonicity of the fluids involved. When fingers are immersed in a hypertonic fluid. i.e., seawater, or bathwater with soapy solution, bath salts, or whatever, the hypertonic fluid draws water from the skin, leaving the temporary wrinkled appearance. I'm surprised that (this) information seemed so esoteric."

Ellis has merely described, in scientific terms, the "protective mechanism" I spoke of. A gratifying verification of my own thinking.

"All Steve Allen has to do," writes Dora Freestone, "is wait a few years for his water-wrinkled fingers to disappear altogether. It has to do with the resilience of youthful skin. Since his (wrinkles) form 'only once in a while,' he is almost there. Mine disappeared about two years ago and I'm just that much older than Steve. We were in a class together at Arizona State."

(I hope Miss Freestone means tha tAllen's finger wrinkles will disappear, not his fingers.)

Don Dedera, who also identifies himself as a fellow alumnus from Arizona State, wonders why Allen is curious only about the wrinkling of his fingertips. "In my experience," he writes, "the condition manifests itself at other anatomical regions as well.... Not sure I want this sort of immortality, but I've labeled this phenomenon the Allen-Smith-Dedera Effect."

Lynne Cox also brings the authority of experience to the question. "My friends David Yudovin and Louise Comar and I are marathon swimmers, and whenever anyone finds this out they always ask these two questions: "Aren't you afraid of sharks? Don't your fingertips get all pruned up?"

"The answer to the first question is yes, but the answer to the second is usually no. I think you will notice that in colder water, sub-70, your fingers retain their plumpness. But after swimming for 10 or 12 hours, your tongue and face get pretty swollen up. I don't know if you were serious, but I do think you're right. Your fingertips are warning you that it's time to get out...."

"Simply put," writes Rosanna Scott, "heat expands, cold contracts. Did you ever observe, when in water, ,that your teeth begin to chatter at approximately the same time you notice your fingers wrinkling and turning blue? Put a hot dog in boiling water and it puffs up. Then immerse it in cold water and it shrivels...."

(I hope Miss Scott means a frankfurter when she suggests putting a hot dog in boiling water. I am in trouble enough for describing "the paradox of Schrodinger's cat," a scientific "thought experiment" in which a cat is theoretically shut up in a box in which there is a 50-50 chance that it will be killed by cyanide gas. The question is whether the cat is neither dead nor alive until somebody opens the box and looks.)

Perhaps the most erudite theory comes from Harry Hill. "The explanation of the Allen-Smith phenomenon," he writes, "lies in the proximity of the water-immersed body to the equator. This is a direct influence of the Coriolis Force which, as you may recall, is the force controlling the spiraling pattern of draining water and hurricanes.

LIME PUDDING

Here's the correct method for preparing this dessert.

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 large eggs, separated
1 cup milk
1 teaspoons grated lime rind
3 tablespoons lime juice
2 tablespoons butter, melted

In a large bowl stir together ¾ cup of the sugar, the cornstarch and salt; reserve. Beat egg whites until foamy; gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar until straight stiff peaks form; reserve. Without washing beater, beat egg yolks and milk until blended; gradually stir into reserved sugar-cornstarch mixture, keeping smooth; stir in lime rind, lime juice and butter. Beat in until blended a small portion of the egg whites; fold in remaining egg whites. Turn into a buttered 1½-quart casserole (7½ inches wide and 2½ inches deep). Place in a shallow pan with enough hot water to come halfway up side of casserole. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until delicately browned — about 50 minutes. Cool, then chill. Makes 6 servings.

Designer's styles flatter, don't confine

By EILEEN PUTMAN
AP Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — John Anthony attires his women as gangsters, French strumpets and rhinestone-studded Greek goddesses, somehow managing to make them all look like queens.

This master tailor's approach to spring is a paean to the female form.

Whether in suiting or evening wear, the designs Anthony unveiled recently are a celebration of the body beautiful.

Black stripes done in a double-breasted Al Capone-ish suit need only a stogie to call to mind a Chicago speakeasy. Instead, Anthony tucks a lacy black hankie into the breast pocket for a demure but sizzling statement.

Unlike some designers who are stuffing women into impractical body-hugging suits, Anthony has done his in linens and damask, fabrics that have body of their own. They are so well constructed that they curve and caress without confining.

Although he preferred mostly ivory and charcoal colors, Anthony did offer a wrap dress and two-piece suit done with rich damask in cornflower blue.

That color also played well in a draped jersey dress that was a model of fabric and line, combining flowing dolman sleeves with dipped neckline formed by folds and folds of fabric.

For a more openly seductive look, Anthony used diaphanous chiffon and antique lace in sheer blouses sedately hidden under pinstripe suits with only a lace cuff or collar suggesting that a second glance would be promising.

More French froufrou appeared for evening, with black chiffon, beads and cigarette-slim slinky gowns that had his models taking the tiniest of steps along the runway.

From the rosewood gown studded with copper beading to the black halter silk organza with chiffon and netting, Anthony's evening wear drew expressions of approval from his showroom audience.

Where the waist was important, Anthony adorned it with perky netting or taffeta and added a huge bow. Where legs were assets, he let them be glimpsed through skirt slits or gathered the hemline up in front.

The silhouette always was perfectly proportioned and nowhere did it fare better than in the Greek goddess-like gown he offered for evening in ivory.

Shoulders were softly padded and draped from the back to the wide-banded waist. In front, the plunging neckline was mirrored by the hemline, which rose in an inverse 'v.' Rhinestones glittered over all.

Jim Brown scored an unmatched 126 touchdowns in his football career.

Huntz Hall: Not real 'Dead End Kid'

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

"I was never a Dead End Kid," Huntz Hall was saying, by which he means that he was never actually a ruffian, however lovable, like the ones he played in 25 "Dead End Kids" movies, 26 "East Side Kids" flicks and 48 "Bowery Boys" classics, all of them now a part of our "Late Show" memories.

All over the world they put on these Huntz Hall movies in theaters and on TV. "I'm what you call an international star," says Huntz. "People know this kisser of mine everywhere. In London, I'm walking along and the people give me the eye and nod and smile. They know me as Dippy and Gimpy and Satch, which were the roles I played in all the movies.

"They know me," says Huntz in his New York tones undiminished by so many years in California, "from all the generations. Old people, medium-ages, teens, little kids — they know me. One day, my 4-year-old grandson, Oliver, puts on the TV and he sees me in an old 'Bowery Boys' picture. The kid jumps up from the floor and he hollers: 'Dad, your silly father is on television!'"

WHAT HUNTZ HALL IS, of course, is a genuine legend in his own time, a cherished fellow in the annals of nostalgia. But he is an active legend. He spent a year in Spain acting in the movie "Valentino." And he has just closed a run in Neil Simon's comedy, "The Sunshine Boys."

Hall is a pretty fair city talker and he's great fun to listen to, as follows: "We had the Depression going in the 1930s and Sidney Kingsley wrote the play, 'Dead End,' and it's on Broadway and that's how it all started. What it meant, 'Dead End,' was a dead-end street by the East River in New York and a dead end for the tough kids who had no future. A serious play.

"But that wasn't me. It wasn't any of us. We were all actors, educated, trained, from good families. Gabe Dell's father was a doctor. Billy Halop's father was a lawyer. Bobby Jordan's father owned a garage. Leo Gorcey's father was an actor.

"My father was a steeplejack, workin' on all the skyscrapers — the Chrysler Building, the Empire State Building. I got my name 'Huntz' because my godfather was German and 'Huntzie' in German is puppy, which is what I was like as a baby.

"My people were all Irish. Sixteen kids in the family. I was the 14th. With all the big brothers I had, nobody came near me on the streets. My grandfather was a professor but in Ireland the English wouldn't let the Irish be teachers, so he came over to this country and he picked up some real estate in Manhattan, a whole block by Gramercy Park. But he bet it all on John L. Sullivan who lost the heavyweight title to Jim Corbett — and my grandfather went bust. Imagine losin' a city block on a fight!

"MY MOTHER'S maiden name was Mullins, real Irish, and she wanted one of her sons to become a priest — me, especially. But I had no vocation for anything but acting.

"Now I got a son, a Phi Beta Kappa from the University of California at Berkeley, studied at Harvard Divinity School — The Rev. Gary Richard Hall, an Episcopalian minister, the vicar of Westlake. The son of a Dead End Kid!

"My son the vicar says one day to my mother, who wanted me to be a priest: 'Grandma, I'm only a little step over the line.'

"I went to parochial schools, which cost my parents 12 bucks a month in those days. One day, the priest tells my father, 'Mr. Hall, what you have got here is a funny kid.' Meaning me. My father says. 'What do you want to be, Huntzie?' An actor, I tell him, which doesn't send him into shock because we've had stagehands and burlesque people in the family.

"So they send me to the Children's Professional School of the Performing Arts, costing $10 a month. They're savin' a deuce on me. Five days after I start school, they have tryouts and I'm on Broadway in 'Dead End.'

"People still think we were all off the New York streets," Huntz says, "but we were just actors doing a job."

HUNTZ GOES BACK to New York now and the old neighborhood is all changed. "People have written that I have a 'Hell's Kitchen accent,' which isn't true because Hell's Kitchen is way over on the West Side. I'm strictly East Side. They call the area Kips Bay now, for some reason.

"I'm talkin' here about around First Avenoo and in the 40s and below. People who come from around there are Telly Savalas, Ann Blythe, Ben Gazzara, and also Patti Duke, whose cousin is married to my brother, which makes us family. When I'm growing up, there was a slaughterhouse over on 40th Street, which they tore down. What they've got there now is the United Nations building.

"We lived in a brownstone that my father paid $11,000 for. It's long since torn down and they got apartments there that if you rent one today we're talking $2,000 a month. That's around where the old, old Madison Square Garden was. It's where my mother was a precinct captain with the Democrats.

A. A motor oil's ability to improve gasoline mileage is directly related to its ability to reduce friction. While motor oil itself is a lubricant and therefore reduces friction between rubbing surfaces, Gulf Oil experts point out that this ability is improved through the addition of friction modifiers or additives that further enhance the oil's ability to reduce friction. Oilier oil, so to speak.

New products for home improvements

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A sanding block for adhesive-backed sandpaper.

Manufacturer's claim — That this sander combines a one-piece, semiresilient model plastic sanding block with a roll of adhesive-backed sandpaper ... that the sander is shaped like a toboggan and can be used to get into tight places and inside curves ... that the paper does not slip and wrinkle to form folds that can gouge your work ... that the sander is shaped so that it can be used equally well by a left-handed or right-handed person ... that, when the paper is worn, the sanding surface is changed by tearing off the worn portion and unrolling a new surface ... and that the refills come in medium, fine and super fine grades.

THE PRODUCT — A roof ventilator.

Manufacturer's claim — That this ventilator can take the place of cap shingles ... That it will provide more net free vent area than 11 roof vents or five turbine vents ... that it provides a high volume of air flow the full length of the roof ... that it has an exclusive weather filter to keep out rain and snow, yet gives full air flow via the vent ... that it is self-flashing and extends over the top course of shingles, requiring no caulking ... and that the vent sections are joined with connector plugs that come with the product.

THE PRODUCT — An exterior latex flat house paint with special properties.

Manufacturer's claim — That the formula for this paint provides great flexibility and breathability ... that the paint film shrinks, stretches and "breathes" to resist the effects of surface expansions and contractions caused by changes from hot to cold weather...that it can be applied over layers of existing oil or latex finishes ... that it resists cracking and peeling ... and that the paint has a high resistance to mildew and is resistant to streaking and waterspotting.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

(The sanding block is manufactured by 3M products, 3M Center, St. Paul, MN 55144; the roof ventilator by Air Vent, 4801 N. Prospect Rd., Peoria Heights, IL 61614; the locking pliers by Stanley, 195 Lake St., New Britian, CT 06050; and the house paint by PPG Industries, One Gateway Center, Pittsburgh, PA 15222.)

PTS: Many U.S. veterans are still suffering

By BARBARA MORAN
Copley News Service

CINCINNATI — In the small china shop, a portable television blared out the details of a conference being held here on the readjustment problems of Vietnam veterans.

As a television announcer explained the symptoms of Post Traumatic Stress, one employee laughed, a little too sadly.

"Well," said Bill, the store's clerk, with a rueful smile, "I'm glad they finally gave it a name."

Bill, slightly built and almost youthful-looking despite his silver hair, has worked at the little store in a run-down part of town for years, wrapping china purchases in newspaper for customers. His hands are blackened by the newsprint.

BILL IS a veteran of World War II. His unit liberated Buchenwald, one of Hitler's notorious death camps.

"We had it cleaned up by the time the congressmen arrived," he remembered. "I can't even describe in human terms what it looked like when we first got there."

But he can still see it. He dreams about it. He also dreams about buddies who never made it home.

He came back from the war and tried to return to high school, but "I just couldn't relate to anyone. They would be all worried about who to take to the big dance and I'd just look at them and say, 'Grow up.' They'd look back at me just as weird and say, 'We are grown up. We're seniors.' I tried there three times to finish high school, but never made it."

Bill is divorced and has drifted through jobs all his life. In other words, he exhibits many of the symptoms of Post Traumatic Stress syndrome.

THE DIAGNOSIS for PTS has been recognized for only about two years and was developed, in large part, because of the massive readjustment problems faced by so many Vietnam vets. The syndrome is now considered to be a normal reaction to gross stress, such as that experienced during a war.

It is also being used to identify the problems police officers face after working at air-crash sites or other tragedies where the person cannot cope with what he or she sees.

Vietnam War vets, because of their long, daily exposure to death, fear and violence, may be the greatest victims of PTS. But, said Bill (who asked to be identified by his first name only), vets of other wars still exhibit its symptoms.

"I tried to get help when I first got back. They treated it then with R and R (rest and recreation). If you didn't get over your depression after that, they would label you manic-depressive or something."

Bill said he knows other older vets who have been carrying such labels for years. "I think it's this PTS. I have a buddy who fought in Korea. He still doesn't know why he went over there. Not only that, but he encouraged his kid to go to Nam and his kid died. He won't talk about it, though. He drinks."

BILL'S EYES drifted back to the TV. "At least I had a Hitler to defeat. I'm really proud of what I did. But I don't think it's quite accurate to say we haven't had any problems coming home. We just stiff upper-lipped it. And we had our families and friends to call us heroes."

"There are increasing reports in some of the latest literature on World War II veterans actually being treated for Post Truamatic Stress," said Ray Scurfield, the chief of counseling services for the readjustment counseling program of the Veterans Administration.

Scurfield, a speaker at the first national conference on PTS, said, "There was no label to put on it before." To date, he said, he does not know of any claims filed with the Veterans Administration for PTS by veterans of other wars, but added, "I would be surprised if there weren't isolated cases of that happening. I suspect there will be more cases. I suspect that a lot of the previous diagnoses were incorrect and they labeled them 'psychotic, psychoneurotic' and that they probably should have had Post Traumatic Stress diagnoses."

The conference gathered together about 300 counselors, therapists and doctors in both private and public practice as well as medical researchers — all who have worked with Vietnam vets — to share their experiences and data.

SEVERAL AUTHORITIES at the conference agreed that veterans of World War II and the Korean War undoubtedly suffered from PTS. Case histories of those vets reveal the same symptoms: vets who seem always to be in a state of crisis; who seem irresponsible as providers and parents; who seem cold and distant, isolated from spouses and children; who are extremely demanding and rigid; who are alcohol and drug abusers; who exhibit erratic behavior from instant rage to remorse; who seem to sabotage success; who brood and have fits of jealousy, who have low self-esteem and feelings of helplessness.

But those same authorities caution against automatically assuming the older vet has PTS. Counseling may be needed to determine if that's the case.

"The World War II vets I've talked to think this (recognition of PTS) is going to be very important when they get around to doing their thing about World War II. They think this is a precedent. And I think they're right," said Scurfield.

But because this idea is so new, the VA has not formally set up any counseling programs for older vets who feel they may be suffering from PTS. And because of the great number of years that have passed, identification and treatment would be doubly hard.

STILL, SAID Shad Meshad, who oversees the operation of 33 federal counseling centers for Vietnam vets in the Western region of the United States, he has seen cases where veterans of other wars have asked about PTS.

Stained glass restorer Joe Haney checks a piece of stained glass against a 100-year-old window in his Stillwater, Okla., workshop. Haney, one of the few practitioners of a nearly-forgotten craft, says the work is so painstaking he can't work on it for more than two hours at a time.

Restoring stained glass vanishing art

By BILL JOHNSON
AP Writer

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Bit by precious bit, the skillful hands of Joe Haney restore a broken, grime-encrusted piece of glassware to the sparkling brilliance it had when first created almost a century ago.

When he is finished, he'll begin work on a second — the matching piece to the stained glass window spread in dirty bits on a workbench.

"You can't work on something like this for more than an hour and a half to two hours at a time," says Haney, who began working with stained glass four years ago. "It's such painstaking work; you get so tired and have to quit.

"Then when you come back later and see what you accomplished, you get all excited and want to get back at it again."

The windows are but the latest restoration work by Haney, one of the few practitioners of a nearly forgotten craft. He's restored windows in Stillwater and nearby communities, working on some at Chuck's Paint and Paper, where he is employed, and others — because they couldn't be moved — in their setting.

"It's always a challenge," the 28-year-old Haney says. "You never know exactly what you're getting into when you start on one."

He points toward the piece he is working on, the 30-inch by 6-foot panel depicting a plant stand and growing roses.

"I call this a learning experience," he says. "We said we'd restore it for $600. That was before I saw how really bad it was. I told the lady who owns them it probably will cost about $1,500 to restore the other one."

Haney estimates the two pieces were constructed "at least 100 years ago. You can tell by the kind of glass that was used that it's real old."

But he can't tell when or where they were made, although he says the style is that of Louis Tiffany, the turn-of-the-century stained glass artist who gave his name to fanciful works. "There's no way to tell if they are Tiffany, though," he adds.

What Haney does know about the pieces is that they were bought at auction in Chicago about 30 years ago. When he finishes work on the glass, which he believes were made to fit on either side of a door, each piece should be worth about $5,000.

One problem in restoring the two windows is their advanced state of deterioration. The lead that separates and holds each piece was as limp as a hot liccorice stick.

"That is caused by oxidation," Haney says. "Pollutants in the air attack the lead and make it soft, and then the glass is likely to break. Rain and other moisture seep between the glass and the lead and cause the putty to break down."

Many of the individual pieces of stained glass in the pieces he was working on were broken, some to the point where they had to be replaced. But Haney says that where possible, he uses the old glass, even if it means patching cracks with epoxy glue.

He points to one of the window's red "jewels" — a faceted piece of glass that represents a bloom. "This was covered with some sort of dust," he says. "I tried to get it off and all of a sudden I realized that this 'dust' was 24 carat gold.

"The only way to get the real red glass is to use gold in the process. Apparently, this gold didn't melt completely."

When finished, the windows will be more sturdy than they were originally, and Haney hopes to be able use only two braces instead of four to hold the windows in place.

Despite the restoration, the windows will still be possible victims of pollution and the weather — the enemies of stained glass. So Haney puts a heavy coat of a good grade of auto wax on each piece of stained glass he finishes.

Make real 'bread' baskets for holidays

By ELLEN APPEL
Copley News Service

Each year around this time, countless people request the recipe for "bread" baskets ... that is, baskets made literally from bread dough.

It's no wonder so many people make bread baskets each year. They are perfect for holding holiday rolls, breads, cookies and pastries.

This year, why not make the baskets extra-special by lacing them with colorful ribbons? You can even line the baskets with elegant linen napkins, or paint tiny flowers along the upper rim.

No matter how you embellish them, however, the basic basket it simple to make. The recipe is merely flour, salt and water.

Just like ordinary bread-baking, the ingredients mix up like dough, roll out with a rolling pin, and bake to a characteristic golden brown. The difference is in the end product only. A basket made of bread is decorative, not edible.

Here are directions for making a bread basket, laced with ribbons:

MATERIALS: Six cups of flour; 1½ cups of water; large mixing bowl; rolling pin; pastry cutter or paring knife; baking sheet; ovenproof bowl; straight pins; damp cloth.

Optional decorating supplies: Varnish or spray glazes; paints; paintbrushes; ribbons; napkin; old newspapers for work area.

MIXING THE DOUGH: 1. Mix flour, salt and water in the mixing bowl. 2. Turn dough onto a lightly floured bread board or counter. 3. Knead dough for five minutes. 4. Roll dough to ¼ inch thickness with a lightly floured rolling pin.

CUTTING DOUGH: 1. Using paring knife or pastry cutter, cut dough into 1-inch wide strips. 2. Cover strips and dough until needed with damp cloth.

WEAVING THE BASKET: 1. Turn ovenproof bowl upside-down on baking sheet. 2. Lay strips of dough over bowl in evenly spaced parallel rows. Be sure ends of strips touch baking sheet on both sides of the bowl. 3. Weave new strips under and over the strips already on the bowl (a). 4. As you weave, moisten places where strips meet. Smooth rough areas with wet fingers. 5. Weave strips around the sides of the bowl. 6. Pin as needed to keep strips from slipping down.

FINISHING: 1. Wind last strip around bottom edge of bowl. Press this strip firmly against the strips already on the bowl. 2. Bake basket at 325 degrees until dough becomes dry and lightly browned. Expect this process to take up to 1½ hours. 3. Remove from oven. Carefully remove pins. Let basket cool. 4. Ease basket off ovenproof bowl.

DECORATING: 1. If desired, paint flowers, hearts, or other designs on basket. Let paint dry. 2. Apply a coat of varnish to basket. Be sure to completely cover every part of the basket. 3. Let varnish dry. 4. Apply a second coat of varnish. 5. Let varnish dry again. 6. Weave ribbons under and over the spokes of the basket. Tie ribbon ends into a bow. 7. Line basket with a pretty napkin.

GREEN BEANS PLUS

A flavorful combination.

1 pound snap beans
¼ cup butter
1 medium-small onion, finely diced
1 medium green pepper (seeds and membranes removed), finely diced

Tip snap beans, scrub with cold water and rinse. In a food processor with a slicing disc or with a knife, slice crosswise into ¼- to ½-inch pieces. Steam or water-cook until tender; drain. Meanwhile in a 10-inch skillet heat butter; add onion and green pepper and cook gently, stirring often, until onion is wilted. Stir in snap beans and, if necessary, reheat. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Best Manhattan hotels noted

By JERRY HULSE
Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

NEW YORK — A roll of the drums while we tabulate the ballots.

For the third time since 1975 we take note of the friendliest small hotels of Manhattan, a city not always regarded for its warmth or hospitality.

The sleuthing involved nearly a week of peering into bedrooms, bars and bathrooms, all the way from Lower Manhattan to the upper 80s. When it was over, the results were strikingly similar to those noted in earlier surveys.

Without argument, the front-runner remains the charming little Wyndham, which we discovered one afternoon while exiting the back door of the fashionable Plaza Hotel. That was seven years ago.

Rising a block off Central Park and just around the corner from Fifth Avenue, the Wyndham deserves the same accolades that we bestowed upon it earlier. Namely, it remains a delightful, intimate and unassuming little hotel with the freshly scrubbed look of an inn in the Cotswolds or an auberge down from Paris.

Why else does it remain my favorite Manhattan hotel? For various reasons: location, price, atmosphere. But in particular there is an air of genuine friendliness as well as devotion to duty by a staff that truly cares.

THIS SENSE OF well-being envelops one the instant the front door opens and one is ushered into the tastefully furnished small lobby with its array of comfortable sofas and chairs.

Granted, there are non-dial telephones in the rooms, but who cares? The switchboard operator is cheerful, so it's almost like having a private secretary at one's bidding. In addition, there are non-automated elevators. So instead of pushing buttons, one is greeted by smiling Mohammed Khan who bows politely and inquires, "What floor, please?" Only once does he ask; after the initial greeting Mohammed remembers. Faces and numbers stick in his mind, no matter whether its Peter Falk, Ginger Rogers, Ben Gazzara, John Cassavetes, Hume Cronyn or unfamiliar figures that just happen in out of the night.

Besides running an elevator, Mohammed looks after other wants of the Wyndham's guests. Last spring he delivered breakfast and morning newspapers daily to Ingrid Bergman, who could have afforded the Plaza across the street but chose the Wyndham instead. Singles at the Wyndham start at $68, doubles at $78 and suites can be had for as little as $120.

When he quotes rates over the telephone, owner John Mados frequently is asked by a startled caller: "Is that with or without bath?"

It is with bath always, of course, for the Wyndham is first-rate from the ground up. Equally reasonable is the restaurant where eggs Benedict can be had for $3.75. Or just around the corner, on Avenue of the Americas, there is the tidy little New Chambers restaurant with its checkered tablecloths and bacon-and-eggs breakfasts for only $3.25 (next door there's a deli that turns out sandwiches at near pre-inflation prices).

The Wyndham: a miracle in Manhattan.

LIKE THE WYNDHAM the Algonquin appeals to Broadway stars who find solace in the oak-paneled lounge and dining room. Its fame was born originally of its Round Table and the celebrities who gathered at noontime: Alexander Woollcott, Franklin P. Adams, Dorothy Parker, James Thurber, Robert Benchley, George S. Kaufman and a host of others.

Fresh flowers grace coffee tables in the lounge and a grandfather clock ticks away the hour, so there is more the atmosphere of one's own living room at teatime or the cocktail hour than that of a hotel lobby.

To be sure, the Algonquin is more than a small hotel. Its lounge is a social gathering place for actors and actresses as well as the curious who sink deeply into its sofas to observe the Manhattan merry-go-round while sipping a Campari and soda or a hefty belt of Scotch.

Granted, rooms at the Algonquin are small (from $72 single and $75 double and up) but few fault the service. The Algonquin is simply a very civilized place where traditions refuse to die.

Teatime in the Oak Room is an hour when guests ring librarian bells to summon waiters during a babble of voices.

Andrew Anspach, the managing director, insists that the Algonquin possesses all the enduring qualities of a fine old inn. Yes, including a cat named Hamlet, although the original Hamlet died a few months back. No ordinary cat, Hamlet was given a proper send-off both by newspapers and wire services. The Associated Press dispatched a 200-word bulletin; Variety carried Hamlet's obit. Now there is Hamlet II, curled up in the departed Hamlet's spot on a stack of magazines at the newsstand, purring, evidently happy with its new home.

ONCE AGAIN, LOCATION prevented the 180-room American Stanhope from placing first in our survey of Manhattan's hotels. On the other hand, its position far uptown could be a plus for those who tire of the midtown action (besides, there's free limousine service from the door).

On Fifth Avenue at 81st Street, the Stanhope faces the imposing Metropolitan Museum of Art and its Sunday afternoon concerts. A mini-museum itself, the hotel claims the largest 19th-century American antique collection in the nation. A sizable fortune was spent refurbishing public and guest rooms recently under the scrutinizing eye of owner Mimi Russell, daughter of Lady Sarah Spencer-Churchill and ex-magazine publisher Edwin Russell.

In her search across America, this proprietress with an eye for artful treasures came up with dozens of Empire and Victorian pieces that places the American Stanhope in a league by itself. Along with priceless furnishings, rooms are graced with paintings that frequently are on loan to various New York galleries.

Like the Wyndham and the Algonquin, the American Stanhope has its own celebrity list. Paul McCartney uses it as a hideaway, as do Peter O'Toole and Dick Cavett. Ambassadors and senators have also autographed its register. Guests dine at a sidewalk cafe and high tea is taken in the drawing room with its picture-covered walls.

By now possibly you've gathered that the Stanhope isn't one of those inexpensive little Manhattan hotels. And indeed it is not. Rates start at $115 for singles and $135 for doubles, but where else can one dispatch a post card home, boasting of snoozing in a little museum across the street from one of the world's biggest?

New in our survey this year is the trim little Doral Park on prestigious Park Avenue at 38th Street. Here the cast of "The French Connection" took shelter while filming on location in New York. Rooms are cheery and there's a swinging little bar where Manhattanites gather at the cocktail hour.

WAITER-BELLMAN ERWIN Wallner once served as the private butler for the American High Commissioner in Austria, and at the Doral Park he's familiar to Jackie Gleason as well as other celebrities. Again, here is a small (only 200 rooms) hotel with style as well as warmth, the rates starting at $85 single and $95 double.

The Doral's little sister, the Tuscany (on 39th Street between Lexington and Park) is a repeat selection on our list of small hotels (current rates: $85-$90 single, $100-$105 double).

Depending on the location of one's room, it also could be the quietest hotel in Manhattan (ask for accommodations facing the garden court at the rear). Just off the lobby, the Tuscany's restaurant features an aura of romance, with candlelight, fresh flowers and quiet elegance.

TRAVEL

Buy diamonds or nothing

By EVELYN KIERAN
Copley News Service

For most of us, it was a first visit to China — a one-day trip from the Portuguese colony of Macao — and we were wandering around a huge commune, caught in the magic of just being there.

We had visited a school, a small factory and driven through miles of farm land. Now the guide led us around some farm buildings, towards a huge shed.

Sitting peacefully in the shade were a number of men and women, chatting as swiftly as their fingers were flying. Baskets, the kind used for steaming fish and vegetables, were stacked in piles all around them, awaiting shipment.

Hah! I thought, the perfect souvenir for numerous friends who have adopted Chinese cooking as their very own — steamer baskets handmade and hand-carried from China.

It took a few minutes to persuade the head comrade that I really wanted to buy and carry half a dozen of the rather awkward objects. But eventually he tied them all together and away we went.

Normally, I am not a shopper — and never do I schlepp awkward bundles from my travels. But this was different. I had actually been in the shop where the baskets were made, photographed the weavers, smiled at the women with the swift fingers.

In my enthusiasm I had totally forgotten that plans from Hong Kong were not to go directly home, but to travel on to London and Geneva and then back to San Diego — a full circumnavigation of the globe — a long journey, complete with hand-carried baskets.

It didn't take very long to realize that my basic rule, "don't buy anything bigger than a diamond," existed for a very good reason. Those airy, light-weight baskets grew heavier and bulkier with every mile. In proper Switzerland, the bellman looked at me as though I had surely lost my mind. I smiled sweetly, as though, of course, every world traveler lugs her own steamers. Eventually, of course, I got them all home. Friends did seem to be suitably impressed — if not with the baskets, at least with the idea I had carried them all over the globe.

A few weeks later, an assignment took me to San Francisco — mine and nearly every one else's favorite city. A delicious lunch with some friends in a funky old restaurant in Chinatown was on the agenda, followed by a pleasant walk through the "real" Chinatown — not just Grant Avenue, but Stockton Street and the numerous byways and alleys in the area where the Chinese population lives.

I suppose it was inevitable that we wandered into a great hardware and housewares shop. The windows were filled with woks, cooking utensils, unusual dishes, spices, condiments and groceries. All of us bought luscious bits and pieces. Then, as I strolled among the tall racks, I spotted them.

Steamer baskets — from tiny to giant size — dozens, even hundreds of them, were neatly stacked and spilling all over the floor. I picked one up, turned it over: "Made in China" was neatly stamped in English on the bottom.

And right beside it, the price tag. About half what I had paid in that charming little village some 20,000 miles away!

It really is much easier to shop in Chinatown, San Francisco, than in the People's Republic of China — and in terms of variety, quality, price and selection — it's a whole lot more satisfactory.

I remembered showing a friend from Burma through some of those shops. She had brought gifts for friends from that faraway land, toting, dropping, swearing, apologizing all the way.

She agreed. From now on — diamonds or nothing.

They do shorten distance.

A mother and son find that the shops in San Francisco's Chinatown offer an infinite variety of familiar items "Made in China" — and they are a lot easier to carry from there.

Travel on the Orient Express

By MICHAEL CARLTON
Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

We are a varied lot, the 100 of us speeding across Bulgaria on the Orient Express. We are actors (Hal Linden of "Barney Miller" fame), doctors, bankers, journalists. Mostly (with the exception of the journalists) we are rich, or at least very comfortable, for our three-day ride on the Orient Express costs nearly $5,000 per person, not including air fare from the United States to Istanbul, the port of embarkation. And, like those early travelers in Agatha Christie's book, we are interested in the romance of the road.

The Orient Express is running again. In fact, two Orient Expresses are running again, bringing that romance of old back to one of the world's most historic railway lines.

The Orient Express itself is not a train, and never was. It was simply a routing from Paris to Istanbul. Throughout the century of its existence, many passenger trains have run the route through Turkey, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Italy, Switzerland and France.

But the name Orient Express did have one common bond — it stood for the most elegant and sophisticated train travel in the world. "A Grand Hotel on Wheels" La Compagnie Internationale des Wagons-Lits, owner of the route, called its trains. And so they were.

The inaugural run of the Orient Express in 1883 was a great event. The train, with its blue-painted cars gleamingly emblazoned with the gold Wagons-Lits emblems, consisted of a locomotive and a coal car, followed by a baggage car which carried mail as well as the 330 pounds of luggage allowed each passenger. Next were three Pullman-type cars, called "Houses on Wheels." Following was another baggage car for the vast kitchen provisions, wine cellars and iced storage.

Many more pleasure ships cruising seven seas

By PHILIP SOUSA
Copley News Service

As the cruise industry sails into the 1982-83 season, those with a sea holiday in their travel horizons have an unprecedented choice of options.

The expanded fare includes six new liners, several refurbished ships sailing under new names and owners, new itineraries, additional less-costly voyages of a week or less, and an expanded lineup of adventure-oriented journeys.

A partial list of the major lines with their upcoming cruises in alphabetical order would include:

— American Hawaii Cruises operates the twin 30,000-ton liners Constitution and Independence on week-long voyages around the Hawaiian Islands from Honolulu throughout the year.

— Astor United Cruises is a new entry in the American market with offices in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The line's new 18,000-ton Astor will do 10- and 12-day Caribbean cruises from Fort Lauderdale and San Juan, Puerto Rico from October through next March.

— Bahama Cruise Line offers week-long sailings aboard the 700-passenger Veracruz from Tampa, Fla., to Mexico's Yucatan and Key West from October through next May.

- CARNIVAL CRUISE LINES has added the new 37,000-ton Tropicale to its fleet of "fun ships" it has based in Los Angeles. Now, through spring, the liner will do seven-day cruises along the Mexican Riviera to Puerto Vallarta.

— Commodore Cruise Line operates the 11,000-ton Boheme on seven-day sailings from Miami to Puerto Plata in the Dominican Republic, St. Thomas, San Juan and Cap Haitien in Haiti.

— Continental Waterways Ltd. has expanded the fleet of river barges it operates in France and England. These week-long journeys usually operate from April through November, but we include them on this listing because reservations several months in advance are normally required.

— Costa Cruises offers three- and four-day trips to the Bahamas from Miami and Fort Lauderdale as well as seven-day visits to the lower Caribbean from San Juan using the Amerikanis and other of its own ships as well as such vessels as the Danae leased from other companies.

— Cunard Line Ltd. got back its Queen Elizabeth 2 after service in the Falkland Islands and spent $10 million giving the 67,107-ton superliner new facilites as well as a new look. QE2 has resumed Atlantic crossings as well as scheduled cruises from New York and Port Everglades to Bermuda, the Caribbean and California via the Panama Canal. A 61-day "Circle Pacific and Orient Odyssey" will start in Los Angeles on Jan. 31, 1983, with two- and three-week segments available for those with limited time.

— Delta Line Cruises offers the only scheduled service around South America from the West Coast. It's four 20,000-ton passenger and cargo vessels, the Santa Maria, Santa Mariana, Santa Magdalena and Santa Mercedes, sail every two weeks and feature the transit of the Panama Canal and the Strait of Magellan in their full 52-day itineraries from Los Angeles.

- DELTA QUEEN STEAMBOAT Co. has included special Thanksgiving and Christmas cruises from New Orleans in the winter schedule for its famed Delta Queen and Mississippi Queen riverboats. Before and after the holidays, both vessels sail on Mississippi River journeys ranging in length from two to seven nights.

— Floating Through Europe Inc. has added a new 24-passenger barge to the six-vessel fleet with which it runs cruises along the rivers of Belgium, Britain, France and Holland. The season runs from May through October, but you must book months ahead to get your choice of dates and accommodations.

— Holland American Cruises reports only a few staterooms remain available for the full 82-day voyage around the world that will depart from New York on Jan. 8, 1983. Because of the heavy demand for the complete cruise aboard the 38,000-ton Rotterdam, reservations for the 14-day, three- and four-week segments being offered will be on an "as available" basis.

— Home Lines launches a series of Caribbean cruises from Florida using both its new 38,000-ton Atlantic and the 39,000-ton Oceanic. The former will do voyages of nine to 11 days while the latter will sail on week-long trips.

— Norwegian American Cruises operates the only two ships to receive the highest rating — "Five-Plus Stars" — from the respected "Fielding's Worldwide Guide to Cruises" by Antoinette DeLand. Currently cruising European and African waters, the elegant Vistafjord will return to Port Everglades early next year for Caribbean and other sailings. Meanwhile, Sagafjord continues until December its current series of six-night Mexican cruises between Los Angeles and Acapulco interspersed with 11-night trans-Panama Canal sailings between Acapulco and Fort Lauderdale.

— Norwegian Caribbean Lines sends its five liners on a variety of cruises to the Bahamas and the Caribbean, none longer than a week, from Miami. One of them, the 69,500-ton Norway, gives its passengers a day on the line's own uninhabited Bahamian isle.

- PEARL CRUISES OF Scandinavia makes its debut this summer with a series of 14-day visits to the People's Republic of China from Hong Kong and Japan aboard the refurbished 12,456-ton Pearl of Scandinavia. From November through May, when the Chinese trips will resume, the ship will sail on a variety of two-week cruises around the South China Sea, Indonesia and the Philippines.

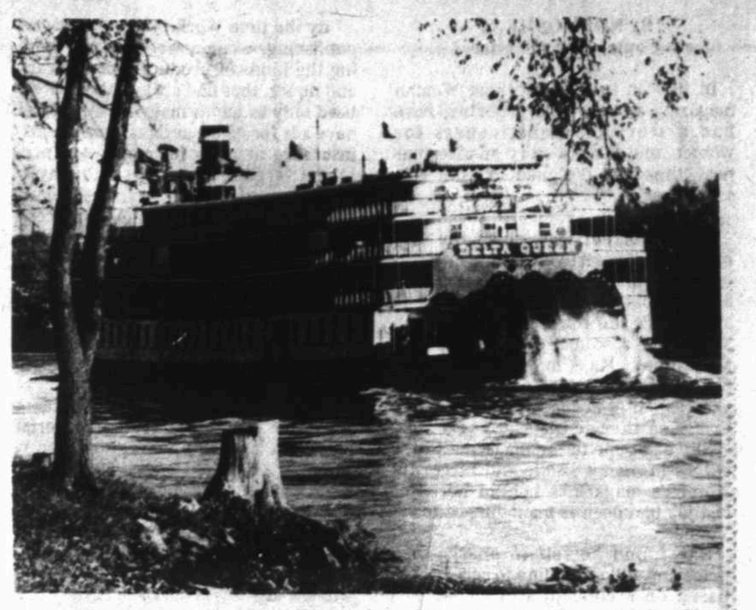
— Princess Cruises offers a host of Caribbean, Mexican and trans-Panama Canal sea holidays aboard its three Princess liners, the Island, Pacific and Sun. Now through spring, Island Princess sails on 14-day cruises between Los Angeles and San Juan through the Panama Canal; Sun Princess is moving in early November to its winter base at San Juan for weekly Caribbean sailings, and Pacific Princess resumes its seven-day Mexico sailings from Los Angeles in November.

— Royal Caribbean Cruise Line has revamped the schedules and the itineraries of its ships — The Song of Norway, Sun Viking and Nordic Prince — to offer what it claims is the largest number of 10- and 14-day Caribbean cruises as well the widest choice of ports on week-long voyages from Miami. Joining the fleet on Dec. 5, the new $140 million Song of America will sail year-round from Miami on seven-day cruises to Nassau, San Juan and St. Thomas.

— Royal Cruise Line brings its new 25,500-ton Royal Odyssey from Europe to Florida in December for the start of a series of 12-day air-sea cruises between Acapulco and Miami through the Panama Canal. Meanwhile the line's Golden Odyssey will do four 12-day cruises between San Juan and Acapulco starting Dec. 16 and five 10-day voyages around the Caribbean from San Juan beginning Jan. 29.

— Royal Viking Line this winter introduces five- to eight-day cruises from California to Mexico aboard the 28,000-ton Royal Viking Star. Also new are five two-week China-Orient journeys which, while starting next April, those interested should consider now as most RVL sailings are usually rapidly booked.

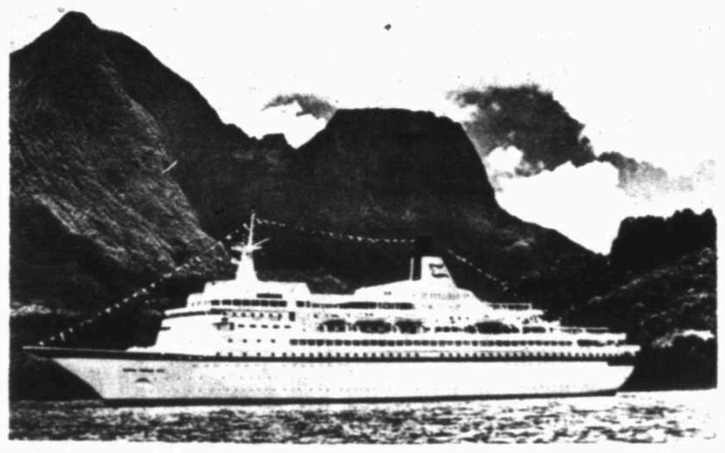
— Sitmar Cruises has added several new stops to the itineraries of its Fort Lauderdale-based 25,000-ton Fairwind and has increased the number of those 10-, 11- and 14-day Caribbean sailings. Meanwhile, the same-size Los Angeles home-ported Fairsea continues its current series of seven, 10- and 11-day voyages to the Mexican Riviera.



The Delta Queen, with sister riverboat Mississippi Queen, sails the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers on regular and holiday special cruises.

OTHERS WOULD INCLUDE Seattle-based Society Expeditions, whose 120-passenger World Discoverer was specially designed for exploration of such regions as Antartica and New Zealand's fjords; the Caribbean cruises aboard Stella Solaris and Stella Oceanis under the Sun Line banner; the three- and four-night mini-cruises from Los Angeles to Ensenada on the Azure Seas of Western Cruise Lines; the new four- and five-night cruises along Panama's Atlantic and Pacific coasts aboard the 92-passenger Great Rivers Explorer operated by Seattle-based Explorations Cruise Lines; the new three- and four-night sailings from Miami to the Bahamas offered by Paquet French Cruises on the Dolphin as well as the Caribbean cruises on the renowned Mermoz, and the new sea link for passengers and cars between New York and Florida via Grand Bahama Island provided by the new $100 million Scandinavia of Scandinavian World Cruises.

A lot of choices indeed. But with the counsel of a professional travel agent who can answer the where, when and how much factors inherent to any journey, selecting the cruise that is right for your taste and pocketbook should be as easy as enjoying life at sea.



The mountains of Moorea in French Polynesia form a backdrop for Royal Viking Line's Royal Viking Sea. Both Moorea and nearby Tahiti are ports of call for upcoming winter cruises.

'IN World' snobby guide

By MORRIS D. ROSENBERG
Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

If you're a member of the jet set, you probably already have it.

If you're not, you probably don't need it.

And — remembering J.P. Morgan's remark about his yacht — if you have to ask how much it costs, you probably can't afford it.

We're talking about the fourth edition of "IN World Guide," the travel guide for people who have everything, or those who collect status symbols (it's been called "the most snobby guide"). Published in Vaduz, capital of Liechtenstein, by IN Publishing Establishment, the book is bound in "sterling silver-trimmed black or burgundy leather" and printed on "over 1,200 pages of Bible paper."

The price is $125.

The author is German-born Peter Finkbeiner-Zellman, described as an international traveler. His book is aimed, according to a press release, at "people who have style and taste and can appreciate and afford the utmost in luxury and service." French chef Paul Bocuse describes it as "the ultimate guide to elegant living."

It would be unfair to nit-pick and fault the IN Guide for occasional errors, omissions or certain value judgments. Few guidebooks can claim they have never listed a restaurant or club that closed its doors before the latest edition was off the press. Some readers' favorites are inevitably left out, and praise will always be given that somebody feels is undeserved.

But the book can be criticized for a tendency toward aimless name-droppingwithout necessarily including the "inside" information it promises. Perhaps part of the problem is the ambitious scope: the guide tries to cover history, conditions, hotels, restaurants, bars and shops in more than 50 countries, spreads itself thin and often winds up with nothing very new or different to say. (Even Temple Fielding would never attempt such a project.)

It does present a vast amount of information — the author's far-ranging eye must be admired — but there's not a word about prices. The elite, one is left to presume, do not worry about such vulgar matters.

Finkbeiner-Zellman can guide you to drugs and sex in Manhattan but has no revelations (spicy or otherwise) about Washington. He does assure concerned readers who plan to stay at the Watergate, "No matter what you've heard about wiretaps, it's as safe as any place for trysts." For the majority of travelers, it would be far more useful and practical to invest one-tenth of this book's cost in an authoritative guide to a specific country or area of the world.

Perhaps the most pleasurable thing about the guidebook is the way it feels and looks. Soft, dignified, classy-rich. You don't need to read it; just stroke it occasionally and leave it lying around to impress guests. But keep an eye on it.

"IN World Guide" can be ordered from Sofaco Publishers U.S.A., Inc., 401 East 63d St., New York 10021, for $125 plus $2.50 for postage.

Grand Tetons: This is splendid West

By EVELYN KIERAN
Copley News Service

You can look at paintings and photographs, read poetry and prose, exclaim and exult over the painted-prop look of the place, but until you stand there, in the dawning light, watching the clouds unveil the mountain peaks in some sorcerer's dance, you cannot fully understand the magic of the Grand Tetons.

This is The West. This is the way the first explorers saw it — as the Indians have known it for countless eons — and, thanks to the national parks system, as you and your grandchildren may see it, feel it, taste it, touch it, smell it and know it. But with some creature comforts prior generations never dreamed possible.

For centuries, Indians roamed the mountains in search of moose (which still come to the water holes every day) and antelope, buffalo, elk and mule deer, which are often sighted by the most casual visitor.

In 1806, trapper John Colter (for whom one of the bays of Jackson Lake is named) left the Lewis and Clark expedition in search of beaver. He was probably the first white man to come through the Grand Tetons. Soon after, the mountain men, traders, cattlemen and other trappers arrived. Hardy souls that they were, they survived the long and bitterly cold winters — those same winters which made fur pelts extra thick and luxurious.

BUT THE HOMESTEADERS who tried to live in the Jackson basin in the 1880s found the winters impossible. Farms did not flourish in the short growing season. And the land was far too rocky. The landsmen soon went farther west.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. first visited the area in 1926. He fell in love with the untrammeled, stark beauty of the place. Quietly he set about buying up acreage for preservation.

When he had acquired 30,000 acres of the Jackson Hole Basin, he gave it to the government — not without some difficulty and a lot of bad publicity. There were those who insisted the ranchers had been pressured into selling to the multimillionaire. But examination of the records proved Rockefeller had paid honest prices and coerced no one.

Eventually, the government accepted the magnificent grant and then Rockefeller provided the funds for the construction of Jackson Lake Lodge and the facilities at Jenny Lake and Colter Bay. His dream of sharing such beauty with his fellow Americans was well under way.

THE AREA WAS established as a national park in 1929 and the great highway running through it named in honor of Rockefeller.

One would hope that honest people were not hurt in the negotiations. The end result is such a wonder, such a joy, and such an inspiration to the millions of visitors who come each year it would be difficult to be less than grateful to the man whose vision and wealth have made it all possible.

You can fly into Salt Lake City as I did recently — then drive through Utah and Idaho to Jackson Hole. The drive is long — six or seven hours — but a thrilling revelation of the richness of the American West, not to mention some of the most spectacular scenery in the world.

(We returned to Salt Lake through western Wyoming — fabulous ranch country — and down into Utah's Logan Canyon — a place of breathtaking beauty.)

The point is to get there. And to stay — as long as you possibly can — until your soul is freed of all the nagging bits and pieces which tie up our everyday lives, and your spirit soars, without words. You'll make your own music.

THE PARK IS arranged to help visitors get as much as possible from whatever time they can manage. We stayed at Jackson Lake Lodge and in a few days sampled a dozen distractions we would give anything to return to and enjoy at a more leisurely pace.

Some well-trained and very comfortable, slow-moving horses took us to a breakfast cook-out one morning. We wandered a trail through a forest, watched the mists unveil the mountains in a beautiful meadow and ate some of the best flapjacks ever made.

(I watched the cook's crew, a young woman and man, break 200 eggs — fry sliced ham in a 24-inch skillet into which they poured maple syrup, and then stood in amazement as they added a quart of 7-Up to the pancake batter. (No wonder they were so light!) Believe me, the riders did it all justice.

Then we floated down the Snake River (the quiet part) for several hours one afternoon. Our companions on the raft were Easterners, and they were overwhelmed with the undisturbed beauty of the river course. Beaver lodges were easy to see. Huge moose came to the water's edge to drink, not at all bothered by our presence.

The young guide told of high weather days on the river, when the banks along the sides are cut and cut again and great trees slide into the stream.

IT ALL SEEMED terribly improbable on a glorious sunny day. We floated for a matter of hours in calm waters, but you can arrange much longer trips and through much more exciting parts of the river, camping at the river's edge to enjoy fresh-caught fish for breakfast or dinner, watching the sunsets and sunrises and generally finding peace with the natural order of things.

Later, we drove around the park, checking the lodges and accommodations at Colter Bay and Jenny Lake and climbing to the top of Signal Mountain to survey the entire basin. It's magnificent.

A sunset cruise on Jackson Lake took us to Elk Island and a cooked-to-your-order steak dinner. A huge canoe was filled with salads and salad makings. Baked potatoes, corn on the cob, french bread and apple pie with lots of coffee completed the perfect barbecue dinner.

Meals at the lodge are excellent — plentiful, well-prepared and served by a cheerful staff of young people who cherish their summer jobs at Jackson. It's easy to see why.

Most visitors come for a week or so — enjoying the solid comfort of the lodge or the simpler (though just as comfortable) accommodations at Colter Bay or camping at Jenny Lake.

Many go on to Yellowstone, near neighbor to the north. But whether they are native Americans or visitors from dozens of foreign lands, no one passes through Grand Teton National Park without taking from it a dream — and a memory.

A hippopotamus has a skin an inch and a half thick — too thick for most bullets to penetrate.

Working Woman magazine: Idea that worked

By NOEL OSMENT
Copley News Service

In 1977 an issue of Working Woman magazine would, most probably, have had a story on assertiveness for women, and if not a story on assertiveness, then one designed to raise consciousness.

In the current issue about the only mentions of assertiveness are in terms of entrepreneurship or in dealing with a stockbroker.

"In 1977 the tone was still one of, 'Gee whiz, a woman's doing this job,' and, 'Look, Ma, I'm working,'" says Kate Rand Lloyd, who took over that year as editor-in-chief of the fledgling magazine, then a little over a year old.

She had gone to the magazine with a career in highly visible and successful women's magazines behind her. Her last job had been as managing editor of Vogue.

She found herself in charge of a magazine still struggling to survive and based on a concept still considered rather "off-the-wall at that time," she said.

DURING AN INTERVIEW, Lloyd recalled trying to get financing for the magazine, which now has a circulation of over half a million, and having a source say, "But Kate, don't you think it's just a fad?"

"And then, there was the head of an advertising agency who said to me, 'After the first couple of issues, what will you write about?' At that point, there were 38 million women in the working force."

Within a few years, if that advertising man were looking, he would find that not only was there an infinite variety of editorial content, but that agencies were now placing ads, before only found in men's magazines, in Working Woman.

"By the time Working Woman began publishing, women were already buying the kinds of products, such as cars and liquor, that had always been advertised only in men's magazines. Now we have ads for office automation systems, insurance benefits for employees, personnel recruiting agencies and travel. By the time United Airlines began advertising in the magazine, 30 percent of their business traveling was being done by women."

HOWEVER, LLOYD is careful to point out, Working Woman has evolved, consciously, into a magazine aimed at only about 20 percent of the women in the work force.

"Eighty-nine percent of our readers are in the professions or in managerial positions, and the average reader is about 31 years old, earns $21,000 per year," and slightly more than half are married.

"Eighty percent of working women," she said, "are stuck in low-status, low-paying jobs, and will stay there. Those women are my concern, but they are not our readers."

As a member of the National Commission on Working Women, Lloyd said she has learned that the women in this 80 percent "have very little sense of their own power as individuals, in a group, or even within their own families. They don't read our magazine, because nobody buys a magazine called Working Woman who hasn't made a commitment to being in the work force."

However, these women, she said, must be the concern of people like her because "the other 20 percent will not reach parity with men as long as the 80 percent is discriminated against. The habit of under-evaluating women is so pervasive, that women in management are getting paid only about 60 percent of what men in management are being paid."

LLOYD SAID the addition of information such as money management began by about 1978, and changes have been constant.

"We have added entrepreneurial material because on my travels around the country, I have learned that there are many women interested in starting and running their own businesses."

While these women can learn about finances, economics, business and professions from specialty magazines such as Forbes or Fortune or from The Wall Street Journal, Lloyd said these publications still provide a "cold climate" for women, and in some cases actually put women down. She cites, as an example, a Fortune columnist who applauded the defeat of the ERA.

"We try to look at political and economic issues as they affect working women. For example, we have been looking at changes in tax laws and at Reagonomics. We find they have encouraged the middle-class working woman, who can afford to put money in an IRA, for example, to get a job. The changes in marriage tax laws and the child-care tax credits also help these women. But these changes do absolutely nothing for poor women on the verge of welfare."

Self-taught painter still working at 90

By MARK MITTLESTADT

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP) — It was 30 years ago at age 60 that Ed Stuekerjuergen decided he needed a pastime for his retirement years.

"I was just a cabinet maker, and to tell the truth, I wasn't much interested in drawing," he recalls. "I didn't get too much in school, maybe two afternoons a month. I never touched a brush, an art brush ... Then I saw an old man painting one day and decided I would try it."

He tried his hand at it and found that he liked it. He soon started reading everything he could on the subject. Today, at age 90, he is an accomplished artist.

"I'm self-taught," he said with a smile. "I learn by experience and reading and figuring things out myself, like how to handle a brush. I only work with oils."

He admits he's "not good at composing" so he copies other pictures. Some are postcard size, some calendar size, but no matter what he chooses, he must enlarge them. He describes his style as "kind of original" since he paints the background according to what he likes and he'll change or add details.

Painting in six different formats, he offers customers a variety of sizes, from 8 inches by 10 inches to 18 inches by 24 inches.

His studio is set up in his kitchen. A personal gallery set up in another room is splashed with color. One day recently, two display easels each held six 16- by 20-inch canvases, partially completed and drying. On the floor were eight wooden storage cases to hold his completed works.

FABRIC SECRETS

By Betty Martin

When fabric is drawn together into a small area to create soft, even folds, it is called gathering. The fabric is usually drawn to one-half or one-third of the original width to create a drape or billowy effect. This process is accomplished after construction seams have been stitched, seam-finished and pressed. The stitch length for a gathering is longer and the tension is looser. The shorter the stitch length, the more control there will be over the gathers. It is the bobbin's thread that is pulled. Looser upper tension makes it easier to slide the fabric along the thread. With extra heavy fabric, use extra-strenght thread in the bobbin.

At LEGGETTS FABRICS, 1541 Parkway, Odessa, 362-8255 and No. 9 Plaza Shopping Center, Garfield at Wadley in Midland, 683-3010 you will find a wide variety of notions including threads, extra bobbins and much much more. JUNIOR COOKS AT HOME ON THE RANGE

Learning to cook can be great fun for boys and girls. It's also an important "life skill" they will need to know eventually, and age 8 or 9 isn't too young to start teaching them. If children are at least in the third grade, they already have a keen interest in food, and they'll love the grown-up independence and sense of accomplishment that comes from preparing food. As with other new experiences, they'll need an adult "coach" to help teach them the rules.

Children learn with amazing speed when they're participating in an activity, so provide careful guidance using simple, nutritious recipes that yield quick results. Your beginners will feel good about their first attempts at cooking, and will look forward to the next "lesson."

Teaching children to use the range top is a good way to begin. Make your child's first cooking experiences fun and safe by following these safety pointers from the Kraft Kitchens:

- Stress the importance of having adult approval before beginning to cook.
- Teach children to wash and dry their hands well before beginning to cook.
- Provide a sturdy step stool so "short order" cooks can see all the action.
- Demonstrate how to turn the range on and off, and to adjust temperatures.
- Select a wooden spoon with a long handle for stirring foods on top of the range. Metal spoons can heat and burn small fingers.

Cheesy Grilled Sandwiches is a recipe your junior cook can "custom tailor" to as many servings as are needed. The sandwiches are "grilled" or fried on top of the range. The key ingredient, Velveeta pasteurized process cheese spread, has a pleasing mild flavor children will love, and it melts smoothly and easily, making it ideal for beginning cooks. Show children how to keep the range heat at low to medium when cooking cheese products. When the cheese spread is melted, it's "done."

Teach junior cooks these range top safety guidelines as you work together in the kitchen:

- Select the correct size utensil for the amount of food being cooked. Use a small skillet for 1 sandwich, a griddle or large skillet for 3 or 4 sandwiches.
- Select the correct burner size for a cooking utensil; large burners under small saucepans or skillets can be a hazard.
- Keep saucepan and skillet handles turned away from the edge of the range so they will not be knocked off or spilled.
- Turn the range off when cooking is completed.

CHEESY GRILLED SANDWICHES

You will need:

Velveeta pasteurized process cheese spread
Raisin or whole-wheat bread slices
Apple or pineapple slices
Soft Parkay margarine

Take out:

cutting board
wire cheese cutter or small sharp knife fork
table knife skillet
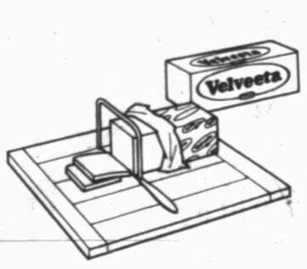
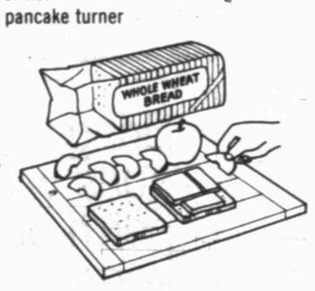
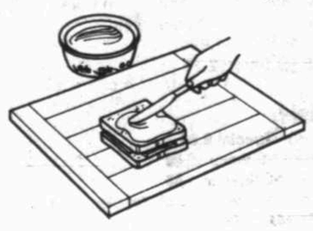
pancake turner



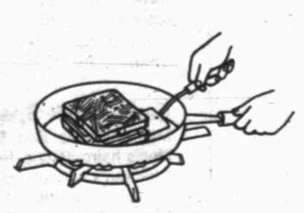
1. • On cutting board, cut 2 process cheese spread slices for each sandwich, using wire cheese cutter or small sharp knife.



2. • For each sandwich, place process cheese spread slice on a bread slice.
   • Top with apple slices or pineapple slice and second bread slice.



3. • Using a table knife, spread top and bottom of sandwich with margarine, spreading all the way to edges of bread.



4. • Place sandwich in skillet over medium heat.
   • Cook until lightly browned on bottom.
   • Using pancake turner, turn sandwich.
   • Cook until other side is lightly browned.

USING KNIVES SAFELY

Small children will require adult supervision when slicing and chopping foods. Keep these safety guidelines in mind when teaching junior cooks to use knives:

- Select a knife that your child can hold easily.
- Use sharp knives only. A dull knife takes more pressure to use, so it may slip easily and cause accidents.
- Cut only on a cutting board. This will keep knife edges sharp, and will protect counter tops.
- Cut slowly and carefully, with fingers kept out of the way.

"KIDS COOKING—A Guide For Beginning Cooks" is a new 36-page booklet from the Kraft Kitchens. It's a great way for children to learn a variety of cooking skills, nutrition and safety tips, and simple meal planning. Line drawings accompany each of 12 "cooking adventures," and recipes have step-by-step directions that make them easy to follow.

To receive a copy of this booklet, send your name, address, zip code, and 25¢ (no stamps), to cover postage and handling, to:

KRAFT Kids Cooking Booklet Offer

Main dish recipes that begin with packaged pasta dinners can help boys and girls gain confidence in their cooking skills because they can produce foods which might be too difficult for them to prepare "from scratch." Blushing Mac Salad is a fun-to-make creation that novice cooks will enjoy. It begins with Kraft macaroni and cheese dinner, which provides pre-measured macaroni and Cheese Sauce Mix.

Macaroni cooks in rapidly boiling water. The water should be steaming, and have large and fast-moving bubbles. A time range is given, because people have individual preferences about how "done" or tender macaroni should be. Show boys and girls how to test it for tenderness:

- Lift a piece or two of macaroni from the boiling water with a long-handled slotted spoon.
- Drain briefly by holding it over the saucepan a few seconds, then run cool water over it.
- Taste. If it's not as tender as you like it, cook another minute, then retest.

BLUSHING MAC SALAD

You will need:

6 cups water
1 7-1/4-ounce package Kraft macaroni and cheese dinner
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup Parkay margarine
1/4 cup milk
1-1/2 cups chopped cooked chicken, ham or salami
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped sweet pickle
Miracle Whip salad dressing
1 tomato, cut into wedges

Take out:

3-quart saucepan
measuring spoons wooden spoon
colander glass and metal measuring cups large bowl
cutting board and small sharp knife plastic wrap, foil or bowl cover

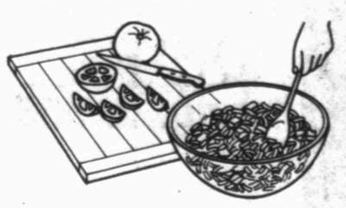
1. • Pour water into saucepan and bring to a rapid boil.
   • Add macaroni and salt.
   • Stir with wooden spoon.
   • Boil rapidly, stirring occasionally, 7 to 10 minutes or to desired tenderness.

2. • Drain macaroni into colander in sink.

3. • Return macaroni to saucepan.
   • Add margarine, milk and the Cheese Sauce Mix.
   • Mix well.
   • Transfer to large bowl.



4. • Add chicken, celery, pickle and enough salad dressing to moisten, mixing lightly.
   • Cover bowl with plastic wrap, foil or bowl cover and chill.
   • Add additional salad dressing before serving, if desired.
   • Garnish with tomato wedges.

Retired treasury agent William "Big Six" Henderson stands amid his collection of whiskey decanters,

Used to smash what he now collects

By THOMAS S. WATSON
AP Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — He was the scourge of moonshiners, tromping through the hills of Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee, smashing illegal stills and confiscating bottled brew.

Now in his retirement years, William "Big Six" Henderson collects whiskey decanters instead of destroying them. He boasts a collection of nearly 3,000, with likenesses of politicians and celebrities, animals, states, weapons and even a moonshiner, complete with corncob pipe and whiskey jug.

"They say I have the largest collection in the world," the 79-year-old Henderson says.

"I don't advertise my collection generally, because if anybody tried to steal any of the decanters, I'd have to shoot them."

During his 28 years as a treasury agent, Henderson roamed the hills of Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee and West Virginia, seizing and smashing more than 6,000 illegal stills. He keeps a still he captured in his basement, which also houses his bottle collection.

Henderson began collecting decanters after seeing a Civil War commemorative bottle of a Union sergeant who looked like his father, George Washington Henderson. The elder Henderson fought in the Civil War.

He "raised the flag at Bowling Green March 12, 1862," Henderson said, and was later captured and imprisoned by Confederate troops at Andersonville, Ga.

One of the few children of Civil War soldiers still alive, Henderson said his father was 63 when he was born.

Henderson has some has strong and painful memories of his career as a treasury agent. He has some dangerous keepsakes, too.

"I keep a machine gun, two sawed-off shotguns and an M-2 loaded and ready," Henderson says. "I've been shot four times and I've accidentally shot myself twice."

His left arm is partially disabled because of a shotgun wound inflicted by a moonshiner.

Henderson got his nickname, "Big Six," when he was a child because he resembled Christy "Big Six" Mathewson, a pitcher for the old New York Giants. Later, after earning a law degree, Henderson spurned a pitching offer from the Chicago White Sox because his mother didn't approve.

"She started crying," he said. "I already had a law degree I had gone to school at night to get."

But Henderson made little use of the law degree; he joined the Louisville & Nashville Railroad as a rate clerk. After that, he became a treasury agent.

In 1970, he was appointed federal marshal for the western district of Kentucky by then-President Richard Nixon and held the position for almost six years.

In the last few years, Henderson has spent some of his time making appearances at community events where he usually erects a still, producing distilled water instead of moonshine, and talks about his past. And, he has devoted much of his time caring for his bottles.

Many of the decanters, some no longer found in stores, were made by the James Beam Distilling Co. of Clermont, Ky.

One in the collection is a gold decanter depicting the late entertainer Elvis Presley.

"That cost a man in Bowling Green, Ky., $740 five years ago," Henderson said, explaining how the bottle ended up in his collection.

"A fellow in Bowling Green had a big liquor store that I caught bringing in moonshine whiskey," he said. "He got about 60 days and a $1,000 fine. This was 30 years ago. The old man died and his deathbed request was that I be given a set of bottles of his that I didn't have. It was just a few months ago that his son gave me the gold Elvis bottle, although he'd held it for years."

There are just two decanters from the Beam collection that have eluded Henderson's grasp. One is a rare First National Bank of Chicago centennial commemorative valued at $6,000, he said. The other bears the likeness of former Vice President Spiro Agnew.

"Sen. Marlow Cook (a former Republican senator from Kentucky) said he could get the Agnew bottle for $500," Henderson said. "I told him I wouldn't give $500 for the bottle and Agnew both. However, I'd give $1,000 or more for that First National Bank Bottle."

Conserve energy at home this winter

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q. Can you give me some tips for some easy measures I can take around the house to conserve energy? I don't mean insulation or a costly installation, which I can't afford at the moment. — Earl O.R.

A. By coincidence, I recently received these suggestions on energy conservation from the National Paint and Coatings Association:

In making a home snug for the winter, examine these problem areas for gaps or cracks — around door and window frames, around window air conditioners, around outside water faucets and other breaks in the outside surface of the house, between the garage or porch and the main part of the house, where pipes and wires penetrate the ceiling below an unheated attic, and any place where two dissimilar materials meet.

If a crack contains no filler, or if the existing filler is brittle or broken, it is time to caulk. Consult with your hardware retailer about the best type of caulking compound for your needs. Caulking is really quite simple, but be sure to read and follow the manufacturer's directions carefully on the product you choose.

Q. In answer to Elizabeth J. and her mildew problem, I have a very simple and inexpensive method. Pour full-strength white vinegar on a cleaning cloth and wipe to remove. No scrubbing or rinsing is necessary.

I moved to another house more than four years ago and within a few weeks discovered one entire wall beneath large windows was solid mildew. I used the above remedy and the mildew never returned.

Also, both toilets had a terrible coating of mineral deposits that conventional cleansers wouldn't faze, so I poured a quart of vinegar in each and let it sit overnight. The next morning, both toilets were clean. Soak a shower head overnight in vinegar and brush off the residue. Vinegar works like a charm on many things. — Mrs. Nevell, Downey, Calif.

A. Thanks very much for your advice. This column has also often recommended the use of white vinegar for various cleaning problems.

Q. We have a front porch floored with red tile which is not ceramic. Water spots it white. I have tried various cleaners but none has removed the white spots.

I have also experimented with many sealers. The regular water sealer turned into a sticky mess. A commercial cleaner, who does my windows, said he used a water sealer on the same kind of tile in a large office complex, and it took his crew three days of scrubbing to remove it. How do you remove those ugly white water spots? — Mrs. R.B., Bonita.

A. Chances are there has been a substance spilled on the tile which has removed the color permanently. If this is the case, you might be able to touch up the spots with a stain which probably would not be an exact match but make the spots less conspicuous. (Thompson's Water Seal which comes in colors is a good product.)

However, first try scrubbing with a 20 percent muriatic acid solution. Flush with clear water to prevent etching the tile. Observe label directions carefully since muriatic acid is a dangerous product and can be injurious to the skin or eyes.

Q. I'm curious. Just what is the difference between a cesspool and a septic tank?

I am currently building a house in a rural area that will require setting up my own sewage disposal system. I've been told a cesspool is a simple, less expensive installation, but that it is less efficient than a septic tank. Can you explain? — T.S.T.

A. Put in a septic tank. It may cost more, but it is worth it.

Here's why: A cesspool is nothing more than a stone-lined hole in the ground. Sewage enters it through a pipe from the house. Liquid sewage seeps away into the ground, while the solid matter accumulates and putrefies in the bottom of a cesspool.

Unlike a septic tank — which digests and liquefies much of the solid sewage so that it can flow away into leach lines in a drainage field — a cesspool merely collects it. As a result, cesspools are "dirtier" and have to be cleaned more frequently than septic tanks.

New book places 'last things first'

By DAVE LARSEN
Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — One title that George Gipe had considered for his new work was “The Book of Lasts.”

He was afraid, however, that people would think it was a book about shoes.

What emerged instead was “The Last Time When,” a fascinating compendium about everything from the final time a bell-crier cried to the concluding journey of the Orient Express.

“The study of firsts has produced several books,” Gipe writes in his preface. “Lasts often make better reading than firsts and, in many ways, illuminate the human condition with more clarity, poignancy and realism.”

Consider the bell-crier, whom tradition has walking through town and singing something like: “Twelve o'clock and all's well.” Actually, his responsibility was to ensure street illumination, and therefore a more typical cry would have been “Look to your lanterns!”

THE AUTHOR'S RESEARCH turned up the fact that the last community to give up its officially salaried crier was Liverpool, England, which retired Francis George in 1890 after his 60-year career.

“The book was three years in the making (World Almanac Publications: $8.95), and my research would reach 12 feet if piled from the floor,” Gipe said. “It got so that every time I read something, the word ‘last’ would jump out at me.”

Sometimes serendipity smiled.

“It was while reading a newspaper obituary — of Samuel Seymour, who died in Arlington, Va., in 1956 — that I learned he had been a 5-year-old in the audience at Ford's Theater the night President Lincoln was shot,” Gipe went on. “I feel safe in concluding Seymour had been the last eyewitness to the event.”

There are all manner of tidbits one might not have otherwise known about. Or, for that matter, cared.

In World War II, for instance, certain Japanese kamikaze pilots had their planes loaded with explosives and enough fuel for a one-way trip to crash into an enemy ship. The book states that 2,257 of these suicide sorties took place. The last was on Aug. 15, 1945, by seven planes.

OR CONSIDER that for nearly a century, beginning in 1883, the Orient Express symbolized luxury as it made its way from Paris to Istanbul. “The cars in which they (the passengers) traveled had seats trimmed with Brussels lace, lush damask curtains on the windows, and fittings of solid oak and mahogany. ... Gourmet meals were commonplace, of course, featuring oysters and pheasant, all served by waiters in morning coats.”

On May 22, 1977, with the day coaches crowded with passengers generally unaware of the trip's significance, the 18 in first class sang “Auld Lang Syne” and swallowed the last of their champagne as the now-seedy train pulled into the Istanbul station for the last time.

Gipe, co-writer of the movie “Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid,” said that sometimes he consulted books on firsts to discover potential lasts, such as for horsecars.

“I also read five sets of encyclopedias. I went through the entire indexes of Time magazine, the New York Times and the London Times, and without using any outside researchers.”

Heavy stuff for a man, now 48, whose career as a professional writer began as a composer of gag captions for movie stills. His first, for which he was paid $5 and which showed Gregory Peck using a walkie-talkie in a war scene, had the star saying: “I told you never to call me at work!”

WHEN NOT OCCUPIED with books and screenplays, Gipe likes to sit in his home in nearby Studio City, Calif., and dream up capricious titles for unlikely books, such as “The History of Masking Tape,” “A Century of Arm Rests,” “Peeling Bananas From the Middle.”

But there is nothing unreal about “The Last Time When,” especially not the chapter that tells the final earthly words of the famous.

Examples: Emily Dickinson: “I must go in for the fog is rising.”

George Sanders (suicide note): “I am leaving because I am bored.”

Alexander Graham Bell: “So little done. So much to do.”

William Palmer, about to be hanged, as he stepped onto the trapdoor: “Are you sure it's safe?”

William Sydney Porter (O. Henry) to a friend: “Charlie, I'm afraid to go home in the dark.”

William III, king of England, to his physician: “Can this last long?”

Gertrude Stein: “What is the answer? What was the question?”

GIPE SAID HE GOT the idea to package lasts while he was riding a train home from Boston in 1979. “I had just finished a book and needed something to work on, so I was researching the V-rockets which fell on London. But I could find nothing which listed the last one until I consulted the London Times of 1945 (the last was on March 29 of that year).” Thus was born a book, although not with the title the author had in mind. “My choice was ‘Last Things First,’ but the publisher changed it.”

The author said that for space reasons they also excised gems such as who the last castrato was. Castrati, he explained, were males in the 16th and 17th centuries who were castrated at an early age to preserve their high voices for use in churches and operas.

Diligent pursuit of the mystery turned up the name of Alessandro Moreschi, who died in 1922.

The 341 pages that did survive in print, however, are uncommon reading. They are divided into such chapters as lively arts, sports, literary, transportation, political, crime and punishment.

For instance, the final beheading in Great Britain was on April 19, 1747 — of a victim who first put on his spectacles to make sure the inscription on his coffin was correct.

New designer of maternity high-fashions: U.S. Army

By DAN FREEDMAN
Hearst Feature Service

SAN ANTONIO — There's a new designer in the high-fashion maternity wear market: the U.S. Army.

Expectant soldiers soon will be able to wear fatigues normally used for blending in with tropical foliage.

The new look in maternity clothing is nothing more than standard camouflage fatigue — just like the ones worn in countless late-show war movies — adapted for a pregnant female's girth.

Before anyone gets the idea that the U.S. Army wants to parachute pregnant GIs behind jungle lines, let it be said that maternity “camies” are strictly for non-combatant work assignments.

“It's not a battle dress uniform,” explained Maj. George Stinnett, Pentagon Army spokesman. “It's simply a work uniform designed to be visually consistent with other soldiers' uniforms. We want all our soldiers to dress alike, to present the appearance of uniformity.”

Maternity camouflage will be available by 1984, according to an order issued by Army Chief of Staff Gen. Edward C. Meyer last month. Uniforms will not be automatically issued to pregnant females. Rather, the Army will keep the outfits in reserve, and dispense them as needed.

For the first time, women in non-office work assignments, who normally wear camouflage or olive drab outfits, will be able to carry on in style while pregnant. Previously, women either had to switch to a “Class A” dress maternity uniform — designed for office duty — or obtain permission from their post commander to wear civilian clothes.

The new rage in camouflage failed to impress at least one group of pregnant GIs stationed at Fort Sam Houston here. Three pregnant soldiers of the 41st Combat Support Hospital said the new uniform is unnecessary because expectant females are not likely to be assigned field duties.

“It's a waste of money,” said Pfc. Janine Nagy, 19, of Lorain, Ohio, who is three months pregnant. “I love my ‘camies,’ but why waste money on a maternity field uniform when we need money for things like schools?”

“I prefer what I've got on now,” said Spec. 5 Juanita Speights, 23, from St. Petersburg, Fla., sporting her maternity-style dress uniform: dark green stretch pants and a light green shirt, covered by a dark green smock. “It's an all-purpose uniform.”

First Lt. Elizabeth McNeill, 25, who is two months pregnant, pointed to the adjustable straps that keep her standard camouflage pants snug to her waist.

Junior League to hold jewelry show

Designer jewelry by Tiffany, Cartier, Van Cleef and Arpel and Rosenthal will be featured during a two-day show and sale sponsored by the Junior League of Odessa Nov. 13-14 in the employee lounge on the second floor of State National Bank, Odessa.

The show-sale will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 1-6 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Estate jewelry and designer pieces by Caldwell and David Webb will also be on display at the show coordinated by Delora Kirby of Red Door Antiques.

The Junior League of Odessa is a volunteer organization whose primary purpose is to advance and support charitable, cultural, welfare and educational organizations, projects and causes.

The organization trains its members for effective participation in the commuity through a program of education in volunteer service.

Past projects include the establishment of the Odessa Youth Shelter and a Parents League for Odessa, donation of the first Bookmobile to the Ector County Library and sponsorship of drug awareness seminars.

Genuine Oriental rugs come from Iran and China. The Iranian rugs are perhaps the best known in this country. Since Iran used to per called Persia, the Oriental rugs from Iran are often known as Persian rugs. They are known for their intricate patterns. These patterns, which are basically geometrical, over the whole rug, from the center to the outer border. Chinese Oriental rugs, on the other hand, usually have a lighter or white base color and have a less ornate pattern. They are known more for their open spaces and the patterns usually do not extend to the borders of the rug.

Leukemia survivability may be predictable through blood tests

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Writer

BOSTON (AP) — By measuring blood compounds when leukemia is diagnosed, physicians say they can predict who will die quickly and who will respond to treatment.

European researchers who conducted a five-year study said these substances, called immune complexes, can be measured with a simple blood test. The information may help physicians determine what levels of chemotherapy should be used to treat the cancer, which often is fatal.

Immune complexes are a product of the body's defense against disease. Researchers found that victims of acute myeloid leukemia were hard to treat successfully if they had high levels of these substances in their blood.

The doctors examined the link between immune complexes and survival in 186 men and women who had acute myeloid leukemia. They found that people with immune complexes survived an average of less than two months after their disease was diagnosed, while those free of the complexes lived almost two years.

People with the immune complexes in their blood also were far less likely to have a remission from their disease, the doctors said.

"Measurement of immune complexes may be predictive of complete remission and its duration," the researchers wrote.

The study was directed by Dr. Nicole A. Carpentier and colleagues at Hopital Cantonal Universitaire in Geneva and Hopital E. Herriot in Lyon, France. It was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Also in today's Journal was a report indicating that giving heart attack victims shots of a clot-dissolving medicine soon after they are stricken reduces the death rate by about 20 percent.

Doctors from Harvard Medical School and Brigham and Women's Hospitals in Boston reviewed eight studies done in Europe primarily during the 1970s. In all the studies, the researchers compared the results when heart attack victims were given injections of the drug streptokinase within a few hours after being stricken.

"These results suggest that intravenous streptokinase therapy after acute myocardial infarction (heart attack) reduces mortality over the subsequent few weeks by about 20 percent," they wrote.

Much research recently has focused on injecting the medicine directly into the heart with a thin tube threaded through an artery. But the Boston doctors noted that ordinary intravenous injection is "less invasive, less expensive and easier" and deserves more study.

In the leukemia study, the researchers found that age also is a factor in determining how well the patients respond to drug treatment, but it is not as important as their levels of immune complexes.

Ninety-four percent of the patients with no immune complexes in their blood achieved complete remission, compared with 32 percent of those with the complexes.

Even when they achieved remission, the people with immune complexes did not do as well.

DEAR ABBY

Unknown soldier fathers baby of virgin

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You said it is possible for a woman to become pregnant and still remain a virgin. It sounds impossible, but I know it's true, which reminds me of a similar story I read in a reputable magazine some years ago.

It seems that during the Civil War (May 12, 1863, to be exact), a young Virginia farm girl was standing on her front porch while a battle was raging nearby. A stray bullet first passed through the scrotum of a young Union cavalryman, then lodged in the reproductive tract of the young woman, who thus became pregnant by a man she had not been within 100 feet of! And nine months later she gave birth to a healthy baby!

You don't believe it? If it hadn't been published in the very reliable American Heritage magazine (December 1971, page 99, in a story titled, "The Case of the Miraculous Bullet"), I wouldn't have believed it either. — LELAND E. SMITH, NASHVILLE, TENN.

DEAR MR. SMITH: Several years ago I ran that item in this space, which brought me a letter from a 90-year-old South Dakota Indian. He said he heard a different version of the same story. Only the girl wasn't a Virginia farm girl, she was an Indian maiden who claimed she had been impregnated by a bow and arrow.

Maybe that's where the traditional Indian greeting "How?" originated.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to congratulate you for doing something I have never seen another performer do, although I'm sure that many wanted to.

I was in the audience at the Capitol Theater in Yakima, Wash., yesterday when you lectured for a Town Hall series. You were about 10 minutes into your talk when a baby started to cry. The cries did not let up. Instead they became increasingly disturbing. Almost everyone in the auditorium (it seats 1,500 people) became distracted and many were obviously annoyed, but the mother of the crying child just sat there, apparently unconcerned.

You stopped talking, Abby, and all that was heard in the theater was the sound of the crying baby. After what seemed an eternity, you said softly and apologetically, "I'm sorry, but I can't go on with that distraction."

In support of your courage the audience broke out in wild applause! Finally, the mother left with the crying child in her arms.

Count me as one who appreciated your courageous action. — A FAN IN YAKIMA

DEAR FAN: Thanks. I needed that.

DEAR ABBY: I recently gave a zircon ring to my girlfriend. I had every intention of telling her it wasn't a real diamond, but she became so excited when she saw it, I just couldn't get the words out of my mouth.

She showed it to all her friends, and they all thought it was "real," too, which made matters worse. Should I tell her the truth or let her go on thinking it's a diamond? — BETWEEN A ROCK AND A HARD DECISION

DEAR BETWEEN: They say "A diamond is forever," but don't expect the same mileage out of a zircon you've tried to pass off as the real thing. Tell her the truth before somebody else does.

(You're never too old (or too young) to learn how to make friends and be popular. For Abby's booklet on Popularity, send $1, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

AT WIT'S END

Shopping for groceries

By ERMA BOMBECK

I heard a man remark the other day that he did not know how his wife could go to the supermarket, purchase $85 worth of groceries, come home and have nothing to cook for dinner.

Isn't that just like a man? Men like that probably don't even understand why a woman has a closet full of clothes and still has nothing to wear.

Grocery shopping is one of the last of the little-known sciences in the world. All the experts know is it's demanding, requires great concentration and split-second timing.

Researchers a few years back tried to pin down why women bought as they did in supermarkets. They discovered that when women entered the store and their hands curled around a cart handle, something happened. Their "eye-blink" rate dropped to 14 a minute, putting them into a hypnoidal trance, which is the first stage of hypnosis. (One researcher said it was incredible how women passed by friends and neighbors without realizing they were even there.)

At the check-out, however, their consciousness seemed to be triggered by the cash register bell which brought their "blink-rate" up to 45 a minute. (Which is normal.)

Women spent 20 seconds on each aisle, tossing and throwing. The list-makers went around mumbling, "Do I have oregano?" and answering themselves, "What kind of question is that? Of course, you have oregano. You're Italian, aren't you?"

Every woman has her "system." I am not a list-maker. I found that when I made out a list of everything I needed for well-balanced, attractive meals I had to arrange for financing at the check-out.

I tend to stick to the basic things I've been buying for the past 20 years and hope that something wonderful will happen to them during the week.

As for not having anything to cook when you've just returned from the supermarket, I have a rather interesting theory about that. I equate shoppers with the pioneer hunters who dragged home a 300-pound moose, lugged it to the log cabin door and said, "I shot it. Now YOU cook it!"

If you don't understand that, then you deserve to have frozen pizza, a set of cookware, a room deodorizer, and an encyclopedia for your dinner!

Serve Dixie Spread to party guests

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

DIXIE SPREAD

We find it thrifty to cook a small butt, use the cooking liquid for split pea soup and the meat itself for such a spread as this or sliced to serve various ways.

Leftover cooked smoked boneless pork shoulder butt
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 to 4 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard

Remove any large pieces of fat from the part of the butt you are going to use; you'll need about 8 ounces lean meat. In a food processor or food chopper, grind fine — there should be 1 cup, firmly packed. With a spoon thoroughly mix together the 1 cup ground butt, mayonnaise, pickle relish and mustard. Store in a tightly covered container in the refrigerator. Serve with crackers. Makes about 1¼ cups.

Fantasy film is winner

NEW YORK (AP) — "Crystal Dreams," a winter fantasy and fashion film by Willy Bogner of Munich, took top honors here in the ninth annual International Ski Film Festival.

Second place went to "The Ski Dummies," a comedy about ski etiquette with two "clown" skiers showing how not to do it. It had won in the ski instruction and technique category. "Crystal Dreams" had won in the special ski category.

Third place was a tie, "Traditions," in which an older man returns to Winter Park, Colo., and "Record of Time," showing the 1982 World Cup downhill race. Those films had won in the ski resort — travel and racing — competition categories.

Twenty-nine films were entered. Judging took four days.

The winning films will be shown, sponsored by Salem Cigarettes, at resorts and ski shows in Chicago, Boston, Hartford, Detroit, Cleveland, Atlanta, Milwaukee and Minneapolis.

Delicious Spice Gems eggless

SPICE GEMS

Many cooks welcome our eggless baking recipes and this is a new one.

1-3rd cup raisins
½ cup boiling water
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
6 tablespoons butter
½ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1-3rd cup walnuts, chopped medium fine

In a cup soak raisins in water until water is cool — 20 to 30 minutes. On wax paper stir together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. In a medium bowl cream butter and sugar; stir in flour mixture in 2 additions, alternately with raisins and water, just until batter is smooth. Stir in walnuts. Scoop into buttered muffin-pan cups (each 1-3rd cup capacity) filling them about half full. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 20 to 25 minutes. Tops will be flat. With a small spatula remove at once to a wire rack to cool. Makes 12.

AT WORK

Build your personal reputation by 'broadcasting' yourself

By DR. ADELE SCHEELE

The other night at a party, a middle-aged woman revealed that she lived in terror of her job with the county being eliminated. She felt depressed, each day being more difficult to bear. Gripping my arm, she begged me to give her a prescription for developing her reputation, convinced that only then would she be safe.

She's right about that. Of course she should have started much earlier. But better late than never. As the experience of countless successful people proves, our reputations are all we really have to trade on. Check it out for yourself by looking into the careers of business and industry leaders. If you look for the seemingly hidden moves of their careers, you will, no doubt, find that they have become well known to others who are important.

This goes beyond talent. Many of us are talented and are willing to do and give more. But our talent is not enough. We have to gain the confidence of our superiors and peers before we can get that better assignment or next job. To do this we must broadcast ourselves.

People at the top have all waged what amounts to a public relations campaign during their early career, turning it over to a paid employee or agency later. Most of us cannot hire someone to act for us, but we can all learn to do for ourselves what a talented PR agent does for others.

What would such an agent suggest? First, you must figure out who your target audience is. In the case of our county worker, it may be the highest county officials, the public at large, politicians in power, or all three.

Second, plan how to get to them. Start by volunteering short presentations or speeches to agencies, political clubs, civic groups. Offer insight on issues that interest them. If you are shy at first about doing this, put together a panel and invite others you respect. Be a panelist yourself the first time; then move up to moderator. Repeat it for your professional association. If you don't belong to one, you can still offer an evening's presentation.

Each time you speak at any function, ask the chair to help you announce your appearance. Getting both your name and that of the organization in the newsletter or local newspaper does each of you good. If you were pleased with the speech or panel and got good response, then ask that group to recommend you to another. You must then follow up and call those they recommend.

You could also think of getting yourself in print. Write up several points in your speech or another aspect of your expertise. If it is impossible, then suggest a story about your work or ideas to an editor of the local newspaper or professional journal, offering yourself as an expert resource. If you need an ice-breaker, pick out articles you've enjoyed reading and begin by complimenting the editor or writer.

Talk shows, particularly radio or local television, are another way of building your reputation. Call the program director and suggest a topic interesting to a broad audience. Know that the people you see and hear interviewed are not "discovered"; for the most part, they have gotten on because they have asked to be on.

Some words of caution. Don't expect miracles to happen each time you put yourself on a podium or on the airwaves, either before the PTA or the Rotary. Publicists admit that publicity's effectiveness is cumulative. People tend to accept you as expert the more times they see your name in print or hear you on the air.

Then, too, you have to steel yourself against criticism from your peers, friends, even family. Don't be scared off. Remember that most people react to change with discomfort or even jealousy. Don't hold back your efforts because of someone's thoughtless comments.

Do instead find others who have successfully built reputations for themselves and ask their advice. Know that sometimes you will bomb, other times you will soar, and sometimes just be mediocre. Building a reputation is a stressful act, but it is the positive stress of moving yourself out of what has only been comfortable, even stagnant, into a new arena. And that risk is worth the anxiety.

Dr. Scheele, author of "Skills for Success," is a career strategist for organizations and individuals. She has a Ph.D. in Education-Business from U.C.L.A.

Nation's first menswear college will open

By RANDALL HACKLEY
AP Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The nation's first University of Menswear will open here next January, the offbeat school's progenitor says.

"The traditional role of women fixing breakfast, making the bed and shopping for the family is a thing of the past. Women now work in the office, and just don't have time to buy for the men," says Gerald R. Childs, innovator of the fledgling menswear college.

Women still influence menswear sales because they buy a large portion of their mates' clothing, but with singles "becoming much more vital in the economy," Childs, executive director of Dallas' World Congress of Menswear, decided it was time to start the school.

The innovative menswear college will offer up to 200 "serious retailers" a specialized three-year program in male's textiles, styles and marketing techniques to keep one step ahead of the highly competitive, usually female-oriented industry, school officials say.

The menswear industry, bouyed in the past by sales of high-priced business suits and sportswear, "has been noticeably flat the last two years. (Economic problems) have caused men to hold onto their suit longer, and maybe buy a new tie and shirt," Childs said.

Now, with trends appearing more favorable for an economic upturn, UM will offer professional retailers 12 menswear courses in industry-related courses such as textile quality, fashion marketing techniques and visual merchandising, said WCM spokeswoman June Taylor.

"The object is to bring more professionalism into our business. We want menswear buyers to know how a suit is made," Childs said this week. "A lady essentially buys style. But if a man's $200 garment is not made properly, it shows up quickly — the fit is much more critical."

No longer should retailers offering men's and women's clothing be more concerned with female's fashions, observers say.

"It's not just a women's world," says Childs, 51, a retailer from Tifton, Ga., who has been involved in Dallas fashion promotion for 20 years.

Men's fashions will continue to offer the "classics, which are not to be confused with preppy. The cutesy, preppy look is out, but Bass Weejuns and Topsiders always sell, although probably not anymore to 2-year-olds," Childs predicts.

"But cowboy is not out," he adds. "Urban cowboy and the glitter is out." Trendy New York City spots still feature men and women wearing Western boots.

Three famous variable stars

Well positioned for viewing in the November sky are the three classic variable stars, Mira, Delta Cephei and Algol.

Mira, in the constellation Cetus, is the prototype long-period variable. These Mira-type variables are unstable red giant stars which pulsate with a period of close to a year, and vary in brightness by as much as a factor of 100.

Delta Cephei, in the constellation Cepheus, is a pulsating star that has a period of a little more that five days and varies in brightness by a factor of less than two. These stars are useful in determining distances in the universe because there is a close correlation between their period and luminosity.

Algol, in the constellation Perseus, is an eclipsing binary rather than an intrinsic variable. It is a double star and one of the members of the pair periodically blocks our view of the other, thus causing the total light from the system to vary with a period of less than three days.

Cheese from California has long, interesting history

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

There is a semisoft cheese that was invented by the Franciscan fathers in California and first went on the market just 100 years ago. Known as Monterey Jack, it has the delicacy of a Muenster with a little more authority — and an interesting history.

In the early days of the Spanish missions, the fathers found themselves with a more than ample supply of milk. Soon they hit upon a formula for making a soft delicacy which they named "queso blanco" or white cheese and kept it for their personal use.

What about its present name? It seems that during the 19th century a Scotsman named David Jacks was lured to California by the gold rush but found prospecting too strenuous for his taste. So he opened a dairy in Monterey and soon amassed some 60,000 acres throughout the region.

Like the Franciscans, Jacks had more milk than he knew what to do with, so he proceeded to make the cheese perfected at the missions years earlier. In 1882 he began to market it on the West Coast.

Jacks did not invent the cheese, of course, but he felt that since he was the first to produce it commercially, he should get credit. So he dropped the "s" from his last name and began stamping Jack on the cheeses. Soon it became known as Monterey Jack.

Today Jack cheese, made by various producers, often differs from the original queso blanco that was delightfully soft but ill-suited for slicing for sandwiches.

Now there are two types of cheese: a firmer one and the original soft, high-moisture style. Generally the sandwich variety is called Jack cheese and the original California creation is known as Monterey Jack.

Many different types of historical sites found in Ohio

By JACK BIESTERFELD
Copley News Service

History is the stock in trade of Lebanon, Ohio, a popular little town 30 miles north of Cincinnati.

Whether it be ancient Indians, a religious sect, a castle, historic inn or elegant old mansion, they can all be found within a short drive.

Some of the first inhabitants of the area were the Hopewell Indians who lived in the Cincinnati area between 100 B.C. and 600 A.D. They left their mark in a series of earthen enclosures and mounds now preserved in Fort Ancient State Park, east of Lebanon.

Dioramas in the museum on the grounds tell visitors about the life of the Indians. They were evidently prosperous farmers and hunters, and traded extensively with other tribes from as far away as Wyoming and the Carolinas.

Out in the park itself, the mounds poke out of open fields and wind through the forests. Trails lead to the more obscure sites and to an overlook with a beautiful view of the Little Miami River Valley.

ANOTHER ERA of history has been preserved at the Golden Lamb, Ohio's oldest inn, built in 1815. It is still in operation, with 19 unique rooms and a restaurant which features tasty American recipes which may have been enjoyed by coach travelers and horsemen more than 150 years ago.

The inn has hosted presidents, statesmen and all manner of important personages and each room is named after one of them. The Charles Dickens room, for instance, is furnished in elegant Victorian furnishings, while the DeWitt Clinton room contains country furnishings. The inn also has a series of museum rooms, which depict the simple lifestyle of the Shakers, a religious sect which lived nearby.

More of the area's Shaker heritage is displayed in the Warren County Historical Society Museum a block away. It contains one of the most extensive collections of Shaker furniture and artifacts in the nation.

Much of the Shaker furniture and household items, such as chairs and candleholders, were hung from pegs on the wall. Other pieces include handcrafted tables and chests.

THE MUSEUM ALSO contains an entire village of shops and buildings. There is a toy shop, bank, silver shop, hat shop, schoolroom, general store and livery stable, complete with horse and buggy. Antique farm machinery and household items are found in another display, while Victorian and other period rooms are found on an upper floor.

The Glendower Mansion, built in 1835, shows how the rich would have lived back in that era. It is a massive brick Greek Revival structure, highlighted by tall, white fluted columns. Inside, there are five large rooms and a central hallway and stairs on the first floor. Four bedrooms and several smaller rooms are found on the second floor.

All have been restored and furnished with antique beds, chairs, pianos, tables and chandeliers.

Between Lebanon and Cincinnati, a castle rises above the Little Miami River in the town of Loveland. An eccentric bachelor began building it by hand in 1929 and was still hard at work when he died at the age of 90 a year ago.

THE LOVELAND CASTLE, or Chateau Laroche, was modeled after English and Norman castles of the medieval period by Harry D. Andrews.

Battlements, towers and balconies all rise above the river like a castle on the Rhine. There are curving stone staircases, tower rooms where a princess could be held captive, a throne room where knights would gather to boast about their exploits, a dungeon for prisoners and a dry moat to fend off attackers.

They were all built to one-third scale by the eccentric old builder. He also built medieval features into his castle, such as a secret peephole so he could see if there were any enemies approaching his front door, slitted windows to make it hard for enemies to shoot arrows inside and a fireplace grill that would have been used by knights to melt lead to be poured down on their enemies.

Visitors who have overdosed on history can escape to a modern-day wonderland at Kings Island, one of the nation's largest and best theme parks. It is dominated by a 33-story replica of the Eiffel Tower. An elevator whisks visitors to the top for a panoramic view of the park and the Cincinnati countryside.

WHY ARE YOU LOOKING AT THIS AD?

If your reason for looking is to save money on fine quality furniture, then read this ad, but if you just want to kill time then don't read this ad because you'll find the comic section more interesting. This ad is only filled with the best furniture buys in the whole state of Texas. This is the final week of our first Anniversary Sale and we are determined to make it the biggest week in our short furniture history. We have removed our price cutting knife from its hiding place and honed it to a razor sharp edge. So here goes the deep cuts ..... Now at Spears

From the hidden recesses of our furniture store, we bring to the spotlight a sofa manufactured by Clayton Marcus. The reason I infer that this sofa was hidden was because no one looked at it for the one year that we have been in business. In fact, this is really the first time that I have ever really examined it and I don't like it, and I bet you won't either. It's a traditional sofa with wood trim and it's covered in a floral print that is quilted. The color is a dull looking brown pattern, but the most horrible thing about this sofa is its price. Just imagine, we have been asking $1,149.00 but NOT NOW because we want you to have to look at it the rest of your life. So for $199.00 you will own this one time expensive sofa. Looking for a game set? Well, we have just what you are looking for. In fact, we have it in three styles; French, Italian and Oriental. These handsome groupings include a 42" table and four chairs on casters. The tables have a fancy inlaid top with a secret. It's really a high pressure laminate, so spill on it and wipe it up. It's as practical as any dinette set. Forget the $1,079 tag, but remember $599 and enjoy it for years to come. Now from the Thomasville Company,we bring you a handsome country 8 piece dining room group called Homecoming. It includes a buffet, hutch with a lighted top, round pedestal table, 2 arm and 4 side chairs. It has a price tag of $3,369 but if you act quickly, you can own it by just paying us $1,959.00. This is now the time to bring your attention to a Henredon china from the Artifacts Collection that is crafted from all oak. The china has an all glass front with 4 glass shelves, spotlights on the top and bottom compartments to give you a place to show off your china. Ignore the regular price of $1,749 and just say "I'll pay $888.00" and it's yours. Or maybe you are in need of a decorating desk. If you are, then we may have what you want, in fact, we have two. One is called a George Washington desk that retails for $1,019.00. Then we have another one that is called an English writing desk that sells for $899, but if you hurry, you can have either one of these desks for $499. Here is an item that might interest you, if you want to doll up your bedroom with a little decorating flair. We have 3 boudoire benches with rolled Lawson arms and all three are upholstered in good looking covers with a tagged price of $489.00. But forget that price and try $238.00 on for size. If it fits, buy one or all three. Do you like leather? If you do, we have a blue leather bustle back sofa that is real sharp. In fact, I own one myself. The retail price is $2,459, but if you hurry you can buy it for $988.00. I suggest you hurry because we only have two of these in stock and no more on the way. Here is one of the best buys that you will find in town on a quality bedroom group by Thomasville called Intrigue. This 4 pc. suite has a subtle oriental flavor to suit your modern home. However, Intrigue's gracious lines allow it to blend beautifully with pieces from any period. This 4 pc. group consists of triple dresser, vertical mirror, a big 6-drawer chest and a queen size headboard. The retail on this set is $2,149.00 but while it lasts, they will be sold for $997.00. While you're deciding if you want a bedroom set or not, let me ask you if you want a dark brown velvet pit by Shufford? This pit is priced to sell for $2,279.00 but I am going to cut $1,000 off and you don't have to be a math whiz to figure out that you can buy this beautiful pit for only $1,279.00 if you hurry. Now I spot a sofa and loveseat combination that makes me shake my head. It's awful looking. It reminds me of Easter. The colors are bright and hideous. Imagine this color combination, a bright flame red and a yucko orange. The retail price is a big $1,329.00. No one is going to pay that, so I am going to take the sharp knife and trim the old price to $529.00 for both the sofa and loveseat. Before I leave this spot in the store, and as long as I still have my knife sharp, there is another $1,329.00 sofa & loveseat combination that's not near as ugly. In fact, it's a Traditional style, upholstered in a micro-dot burgandy velvet and wham-bam ... just like magic ... the price is whittled to $579.00. We have a Stearns & Foster sleeper (queen size) with a top notch innerspring mattress for years of comfortable sleep and it's upholstered in a damask cover with colors of Celedon green and rose flowers. The price is $1,099.95 but not anymore. If you are quick, this quality sleeper can be yours for $399.00. Here is a real good buy on aSligh desk. This desk is outstanding and shows real class with its solid brass legs and its leather top embossed with 24 carat gold. The full retail price is $1,399.00 but with one swift chop of the knife, the price is only $599.00. But hark! There's a catch to this deal. The leather top is scratched but if you use your imagination and an ashtray, you won't even know the scratches are there and you will have this classy desk at a give-away price. One of the very elite lines of furniture manufactured in the good 'ole U.S.A. is Henredon and I am going to give you a chance to buy one of their groups called Artifacts at a great price! This is a 7 pc. oak bedroom that consists of triple dresser with twin decorator mirrors, a large chest of drawers, a queen size headboard and two matching nightstands with a full retail price of $4,755.00 for only $2,511.00. This won't last long if the right person sees this set. If you want a wall unit from this same group that consists of two pier cabinets, a light bridge, and a canopy bed that is tagged at $5,639.00, if you wear your Jessie James outfit, you can get this beautiful Henredon group for $2,558.00. I keep forgetting that I am getting older and some of you may not know who Jessie James was. Well, he was a train robber back in the post Civil War period. As long as we are selling Henredon, I would like to bring to your attention a tremendous buy on a Traditional Henredon sofa that's upholstered in a rich brocade-like fabric with muted colors of lavender and peach. When I say muted colors, that is what I mean because if this sofa was a man you would have to take its pulse to see if it was alive but the retail price was $1,709 but now for only $699.00 you can buy this sofa. Oh by the way, we have a matching set of chairs that will correlate with the afore mentioned sofa because it has the same peach color. Each chair retails for $699.00 but you can buy the pair for $699.00. Now every store has an owner and naturally if you own the store you just don't make mistakes and our illustrious owner, Harrell Spears, is no different. However, he bought a Highland sofa in a cover that he says has that Southwestern United States look. Well, naturally we agree with him, he is the owner. However, you people out there don't seem to know the Southwestern look. So we are going to put a $600 reward on this sofa because we can't mark it down because then we would be saying that the owner made a mistake. So to the smart person out there that comes in and discovers thishasa Southwestern look we allow you to apply the $600 reward toward the purchase of this sofa which is tagged $999.00. Use the $600 reward and the sofa ends up only costing you $399.00.

If you think we've offered these buys just to get you into Spears, you're dead right! We've got the best values in town and not by just a little. But we can't prove that to you unless you come in. And one last parting shot, choose from a huge selection of furniture with quality built in. As a reward to you that read the whole ad, we have 6 A. Brandt rockers that are tagged for $299.00 at a give-away price of $88.00 but I would hurry, if you even want to look at them!

The furniture store that tries harder to be YOUR furniture store.

FOCUS: R.O. 'Jack' Major

He's extremely optimistic about the oil business

By LESLIE HAINES
Energy-Business Writer

MGF Oil Corporation is in a survival-of-the-fittest mode — even president and chief executive officer R. O. "Jack" Major has taken a pay cut of late, right along with many of his employees.

But Major is not worried; in fact, he is pretty relaxed. The company, one of Midland's largest and most successful public independents, will ride out the recession and rebound when the economy says the time is right. Meanwhile, 1982 will see an operating loss, which comes on the heels of the 12-year-old company's best year ever, 1981, when revenues more than doubled, from $73.6 million to $115.8 million.

"I am, and I always have been, extremely optimistic about the oil business. This is not the worst time we've seen in the oil industry," says Major, who started in the business in 1950, with a brief hitch with the Texas Railroad Commission as an engineer.

"The times said grow, and grow faster, and we did. We built a company based on fast growth, and we were overstructured in many ways," he admits. "We hired people like crazy."

MGF, which has been aggressively acquiring companies and acreage in major plays from Oklahoma to North Dakota for about five years, is still on the lookout for interesting prospects. It's first foreign deal, with the government of Thailand for an onshore concession, is 99.9 percent sure. Major is eagerly awaiting final documentation from that country in the next few weeks.

ACQUISITION OF Griffin Petroleum Corp. of Denver was completed earlier this year, but other purchases are pretty much on hold.

One recent investment was just for fun: the company bought a little piece of the movie "Waltz Across Texas," which starred MGF Rig 10.

"I told them I'd loan them my equipment just as long as they didn't make the oil industry look like a bunch of idiots." In the film's credits, MGF drilling coordinator Norman Van Liew is listed as a consultant to the film's creators.

MGF has 46 rigs. Twenty-five are working and 21 are "resting," as Major says. "Don't ask me what their profit margin is. Our bidding is very cheap and profitability is not the game; cash flow is what we are living for."

Major has succeeded in maintaining a positive cash flow, but not without making some adjustments that trouble him. Early in 1982, the company reached a maximum of around 1,450 employees; today there are 825.

"I CAN SIT HERE and talk in a fairly unemotional way about the number of people we let go, but believe me, it's not a simple thing. It's not easy to see people, good people, who have built the company, go. It's most distasteful." Major says he hopes someday to hire back most of them, but he doesn't see it happening any time soon.

He has had to cut back on drilling activities as 1982 drilling funds have not met expectations. A $40 million registration generated $26.5 million, which in retrospect is pretty good, he says now. A second fund was recently cancelled altogether and the money raised was returned when it became clear MGF would not raise the full amount. Major is waiting until 1983 to start anew.

"We were very disappointed until we looked around (at results of other companies). I don't think we can raise the level we raised in 1981, but if we can raise $20 million next year, that will be pretty good. It's a brittle thing, a sensitive thing."

In addition, MGF is centralizing many staff functions at corporate headquarters in Midland, and has cut loose two of its three aircraft.

Another major project is coming along slowly, as MGF's planners continue work on a financial package for a luxury hotel/office building in Midland.

DESIGNED BY architect I. M. Pei, the building will be, in Major's opinion, somewhat of a gift or monument to Midlanders from MGF.

"At the time we conceived the idea, there was a greater need for office space in Midland than there is now. And, our hotel situation has historically been poor.

"And, if I may be somewhat immodest, MGF has been pretty significant in Midland (in terms of employees' payroll and income generated). We kind of felt we could do something else worthwhile for the community.

"We don't intend to get into the building business."

The oil business is Major's main concern. He was once offered a scholarship by an Eastern school to pursue his PhD in geology, but he went to work instead, as he had a young family to support. At the time, jobs were scarce, but he was able to get on with the Railroad Commission.

About a year later, he was employed by Bankline, which later purchased Signal Oil Company.

MAJOR PURCHASED Signal's log library and went into business for himself. He and Aaron Giebel became partners. The first deal Major ever sold was a dry hole.

As business grew, Major realized he could not be an academician/technician and a manager too, and do justice to both, so geology fell by the wayside and managing came to the fore.

Managing meant financing, to a large degree.

"In 1967, Fred Forster came in with his three rigs, and we had MGF. We put together deals and peddled them on the street. It was very illegal. We weren't registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission — we didn't know what the SEC was. Our legal counsel pointed this out," and the trio knew it had to incorporate and become a public company.

"The first year like to broke us. The SEC was deciding what to do with changing regulations, and for almost a year, we had to be inactive. It was awful, just terrible. Talk about waiting on a concession from Thailand!"

BECAUSE OF THE economy and stock market conditions in 1970, when MGF went public, a local stock broker predicted the company wouldn't make it, although he was helping MGF to do so. But Major got some encouragement from one of the Midland independents he admires, B. J. "Joe" Pevehouse, of Adobe Oil and Gas.

"I remember when I started, I talked to Joe and he was a few years ahead of us in this New York scene. It's quite an experience. He told me to wear new shoes because I'd wear out the soles tramping up and down Wall Street."

Major says he admires many Midlanders. "I'd have to look to the Brown's (Tom Brown Inc.), the Pevehouses, the Stoltz' (Deane Stoltz of Tipperary). They came in and fought for the same kind of thing. And Claytie Williams. He's done a lot for a man his age.

"A lot of people here are pretty strong."

Strength may be needed given what Major calls the "weird things" which happened on Nov. 2, Election Day.

"(President) Reagan should have made some dramatic moves, and he didn't, and payday came yesterday (Nov. 2). The public is saying 'Get us back to work.' I favor his policies but he hit the public too hard."

Major says Reagan has been insensitive to imports in the steel, auto and other heavy industries.

All in all, Major is still optimistic, and thinks he sees slight improvements in the economy: the cost of money is down, for example. He believes this, along with the economies he has taken, will allow MGF to recoup in 1983.

Reagan names an expert new head of Energy Department

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday picked Donald Hodel, a close friend of Interior Secretary James Watt, to be the country's new energy secretary.

Like Watt, Hodel has often come under fire from environmentalists, but unlike preceding energy secretaries, he is unquestionably an expert on the subjects the agency handles.

Hodel, a 47-year-old lawyer now in the No. 2 job at the Interior Department, served for six years as head of the giant Bonneville Power Administration, the federal agency which markets electricity in Western states.

Hodel's appointment was announced without fanfare by White House Deputy Press Secretary Larry Speakes. Neither Reagan nor Hodel were present. Aides said Hodel was too busy finishing up work at Interior to meet with reporters Friday. His first day in the new job will be Monday.

In keeping with the low-key nature of the appointment, Hodel was sworn in as secretary in the late afternoon by an Interior Department personnel officer before a small gathering of family and friends in Watt's office. The appointment is temporary because the Senate is not in session. When it returns Nov. 29 for a lame-duck session, Hodel will be nominated for a permanent appointment if the Senate agrees.

After hearing of the appointment, Rep. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., chairman of the House energy conservation and power subcommittee, blasted the way the department has been run under James Edwards and said, "I hope the 'under new management' sign on the department means more than just the same old stew dished out by a new cook."

Ottinger said Hodel should immediately fire Assistant Energy Secretary Joseph Tribble, whom he accused of gutting operation of the department's conservation and solar office. He said the nation is no better prepared to deal with another energy crisis now than when Edwards took office.

The administration wants the 5-year-old Energy Department abolished and has already trimmed it drastically.

Speakes denied that Hodel will simply be a caretaker secretary while Congress debates the agency's future, but he said the president remained committed to getting rid of the Cabinet agency.

Hodel succeeds James Edwards, a former South Carolina governor who had pledged to become the first Cabinet secretary in history to abolish his own job — a goal he failed to accomplish.

Edwards is returning home to become president of the Medical University of South Carolina. He told reporters this week that he got rid of the "most objectionable" parts of the agency. Employment at the department has been cut by 17 percent from the 20,000 positions built up under the Carter administration and the budget over three years has been trimmed by $10.4 billion.

Environmentalists vowed to fight the appointment.

"Ronald Reagan has continued to fill his Cabinet with anti-environmental zealots," said Rafe Pomerance, president of Friends of the Earth. "The symbolism of giving Watt's deputy a seat on the Cabinet is absolutely incredible."

Sierra Club President Denny Shaffer said, "America does not need a second James Watt in the Cabinet."

Some administration officials had questioned whether Hodel should be tapped for the energy position because of the opposition Watt's policies have drawn in Congress. In the end, it was decided Hodel was the best person for the job because of his commitment to carrying out Reagan's pledge to abolish the agency and transfer most of its functions to the Commerce Department, said administration sources who asked not to be named.

Hodel was also an attractive candidate because of his strong advocacy of nuclear power — a position favored by Reagan.

Hodel's policies prompted heavy criticism when he was head of the power administration from 1972 through 1977. He was one of the architects of the Washington Public Power System plan to construct five nuclear power plants to meet future power needs in the Northwest. Two of those plants have had to be scrapped, leaving customers of almost 100 utilities saddled with a debt estimated at $7.4 billion to pay for the uncompleted plants.

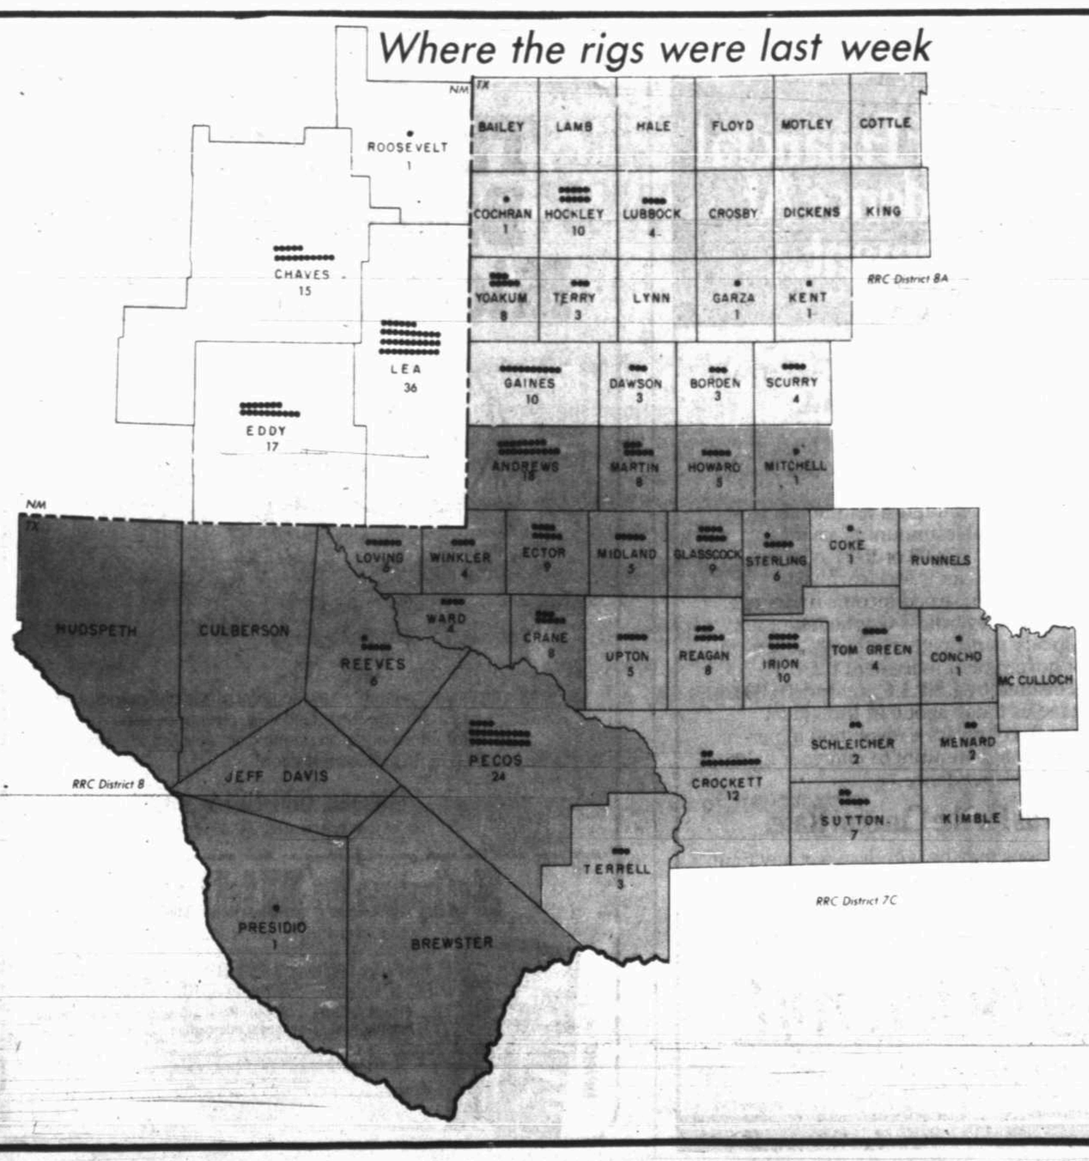
Critics of the administration's energy policies complain that conservation programs and efforts to develop solar and other renewable energy sources have been almost totally eliminated in favor of a heavy emphasis on reviving nuclear power.

Hodel, while head of the power adminstration, took his own jabs at environmentalists, labeling them "prophets of shortages" and an "arrogant faction which is dedicated to bringing our society to a halt."

Since becoming Interior undersecretary in February 1981, Hodel has kept a low profile. He gained a reputation as an effective behind-the-scenes administrator who has carried out Watt's programs to open up federal lands to more energy development.

Hodel will be the fourth secretary of the department created at the urging of President Jimmy Carter to provide a central focus to government planning on energy problems. Carter appointed James Schlesinger, a former defense secretary, as the first secretary. He was followed by former Coca-Cola President Charles Duncan and Edwards, an oral surgeon.

Where the rigs were last week



Regional, national rig counts up

The Permian Basin regional rig count took a turn for the better last week. According to a survey by Reed Rock Bit Company, 286 rigs were active in the area covered by the map, up from 278 on Oct. 29.

The rig count Oct. 22 was 279. It was 282, Oct. 15; and 286, Oct. 8.

One year ago Reed tallied 474 rigs working the region.

The national rig count is also moving upward — for the first time in many, many weeks. The International Association of Drilling Contractors reported 2,413 rigs drilling Nov. 1, one week earlier the score was 2,380.

A breakdown of the figure shows much of the increase is attributable to increased drilling throughout Texas.

The IADC report lists 746 rigs inland rigs making hole in Texas. An additional 78 were spotted in New Mexico.

On Nov. 2, 1981, 4,346 rigs were truning to the right.

The International rig count for Septemeber is down slightly. The tally was 1,455. The August figure was 1,460.

The IADC says 210 rigs were making hole in Africa during September, 220 were in Europe, 273 were found in the Far East, Latin America had 511, in the Middle east 208 were busy, and there were 33 in the South Pacific.

Windfall Profits Tax ruling may be appealed

By BOB KERR
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — The Independent Petroleum Association of America says it may appeal a federal judge's decision knocking down the windfall profits tax even though the ruling is favorable to the oil industry.

The ruling in Cheyenne, Wyo., on Thursday by 83-year-old U.S. District Judge Ewing T. Kerr addressed only one issue of the oil industry's challenge of the tax, said Harold Scoggins, general counsel and vice president of the IPAA.

Other issues, including the "taking of private property without just compensation," remain unsettled, Scoggins said Friday at a news conference called by oilmen to discuss the decision.

The Justice Department had not announced any intention of an appeal by late Friday but oil industry spokesmen indicated that a government appeal was likely.

Kye Trout, chairman and president of IPAA, said he was ecstatic over the court decision and added that it "could really help redo our industry."

Trout said the tax amounted to "confiscation of property of a politically unpopular minority" and, if allowed to stand, would remain a threat to other political minorities in the United States.

Kerr ruled that the tax was unconstitutional because it exempted from the tax oil produced on Alaska's North Slope.

"All taxes Congress assess shall be uniform among the states," Kerr said. "They (Congress) exempted half of Alaska. That isn't being uniform."

The scaled tax was imposed on domestically produced crude oil, beginning on Feb. 29, 1980, and the government projected it would raise $228 billion in revenue by 1987.

Actual collections have fallen short of projections and Scoggins said only about $25 billion, after taxes, would be refunded if an immediate payback were ordered.

Scoggins said the case has moved through the courts on schedule since it was filed in October 1980 by the IPAA, oil producers, royalty owners and others.

"Getting this far in the time we have is an accomplishment," he said. "I anticipate that within a year we should have a resolution from the Supreme Court."

Scoggins said that while an end to the tax would not result in "any direct, dollar-to-dollar reduction" to consumers, U.S. consumers would profit in the ultimately due to increased exploration and production.

He said the tax is "a tax on production, not on consumption."

The result has been the loss to oil companies of money "to develop resources we have," he added.

Ken Monroe of the Rocky Mountain Oil and Gas Association, said oil producers would continue to pay the tax under protest until the case is resolved.

State production reported

AUSTIN — Texas crude oil production totaled 73,380,503 barrels in August, according to Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Nugent.

The figure compares with reported July production totaling 73,487,527 barrels and August 1981 production of 75,175,649 barrels.

Texas oil production averaged 2,367,113 barrels daily in August, down from 2,370,565 barrels daily in July.

Half-dozen new restaurants soon will open in Tall City

By LESLIE HAINES
Energy-Business Writer

More and more people are eating out, and soon, there will be half a dozen new Midland restaurants to do it in.

Several major chains have either made definite plans to locate in Midland, or are still dickering over possible sites and lease rates.

Within the next six months, Bennigan's, Harrigan's, Grandy's and Tanglewood Farms will open their doors to hungry Midlanders. Other chains, including People's Restaurants and several oriental, hibachi-style ones, are nosing around and may come to the Tall City later in 1983.

They are all seeking a share of what the Texas Restaurant Association estimates will be gross Texas sales of $8 billion in 1982.

TRA consultant Giles Spillar says that this year, about 40 percent of a person's food dollar will be spent on eating out in restaurants — whether they be fast food chains, family-style houses or elegant and pricey eateries. By 1985, the percentage will be 50 percent.

SOME OF THAT MONEY will be spent in Midland, as the Tall City continues to attract new restaurants. What citizens have long claimed was an inadequate variety of eating places is gradually changing as Midland's population and demographics begins to meet acceptable standards for major restaurant chains.

Ground has been broken for a Bennigan's Restaurant near Midland Park Mall and for Harrigan's Restaurant at ClayDesta Plaza. The fastest growing chain in the country, Dallas-based Grandy's, is remodeling on the site of the former Sambo's on Andrews Highway.

Tanglewood Farms, a young Waco-based chain of family restaurants, will open its doors on Highway 80 next to the new La Quinta Motor Inn.

And according to one realtor, more than one oriental hibachi-style chain has been looking at Midland, although nothing definite has been announced yet.

Why Midland — and why now, when the economy is in a no-growth mode?

FOR STARTERS, the practice of eating out has increased, with working mothers and active young professionals wanting to eat and run.

Since the late 1960s, the restaurant business, and especially the fast food chain segment, has proven to be almost recession-proof. Annual growth rates have been astounding, as hamburger, chicken, and pizza chains, especially, have popped up all over the landscape.

According to Restaurants & Institutions, a trade journal, the American foodservice industry showed real growth of 1.3 percent in 1981, and it's annual list of the 400 top restaurant and chain companies showed growth of 3.6 percent.

Sales of the 400 totaled $69.4 billion.

The most astounding growth was attributed to Grandy's, a company begun in 1973 near Dallas. In 1981, the corporation grew 226 percent on sales of $33.3 million.

THE MEDIUM PRICED, family-style chicken restaurant features a carved oak salad bar and country-nostalgia decor. It will open in January on the site of the former Sambo's in Midland.

"The economy is down a little, but from an expansion point of view, this is a natural progression," explains Grandy's Patrick McHugh, vice president for marketing. "We've been expanding into West Texas (Lubbock, Abilene, San Angelo).

"Based on our performance in other markets in West Texas, our units are faring well, so we don't have a negative feeling."

The down economy is a stepping stone for smaller chains which are trying to grab their market share, according to Kip Allison, district manager of Harrigan's, a chain which originally started in Lubbock.

"There's a lot working against us, because we are competing with the majors. But in this economy, they are being conservative. The only chance for us is to move when they aren't. We have to be aggressive, because we don't have the big money behind us," Allison says.

Construction costs are down somewhat due to the reccession, Allison says, and since no one else is expanding now, Harrigan's sees its opportunity.

The Midland unit, to open in ClayDesta in April or May, will be the company's fifth. Others are in Odessa, Lubbock, El Paso and Albuquerque. Property has also been acquired in Colorado Springs, Co., and Phoenix, and negotiations are underway in Tulsa.

NOT ALL is smooth is the restaurant business, however. People's Restaurants, a major chain based in Lewisville, Texas, was about 20 percent into a remodeling project at Centre Point, the site of the old Sears Store on Cuthbert Avenue, when a legal problem concerning the site was discovered. Construction has halted.

People's officials are now looking for another Midland site. A spokesman said they will definitely build in Midland, but couldn't say exactly where, or when.

The chain, begun two years ago, has 29 restaurants in several states. It is ownd by the people behind Bonanza restaurants, and features a salad/food bar with 60 items.

Realtor Scott Calhoun, leasing agent for Centre Point, said last week he was not sure yet whether he will try to get another restaurant in the project or convert all the space to offices, which he said were in real demand.

Many major corporations are branching out into the medium-price, restaurant and bar concept. Companies like S & A Restaurant Corporation, which owns Steak & Ale, may not be able to justify coming into a smaller market such as Midland, but their subsidiaries can. S & A owns Bennigan's, which is under construction at the corner of Midkiff and Loop 250.

Other new restaurants planned include the Oyster Bar, on Wall Street opposite the Post Office; Texas Reds, a barbeque place on the corner of Wadley and Garfield; a sandwich shop in the basement of ClayDesta Towers; and two small establishments in Mesa Verde Shopping Center, on the corner of Neely and Midland Drive.

"The more good restaurants we have in town, the happier everybody is," says long time Midland restaurateur Louis Hochman, who sits on the TRA board and is chairman of Midland's conventions and visitors committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Fortunately, Midland's economy is such that chains and other restaurant companies are looking at Midland. "They ask themselves, 'Is the money available (to be spent on eating out)? Is there a good location with easy access?' You would not go to Detroit to open a restaurant now."

FERC told inerstate gas glut hurts Texas consumers

By WILLIAM GARLAND
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Natural gas from the glutted interstate market is flowing back into Texas and driving up the cost of gas to residential users, according to testimony before a federal agency this week.

Prices could rise in Texas by almost $1 million annually, according to testimony Thursday before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Residential and commercial customers will bear the burden of the higher prices because interstate gas, which is cheaper, is sold mostly to electrical utilities and industry, said Walt Lilie of the Texas Railroad Commission. The commission regulates the oil and gas industry within Texas.

Lilie and other witnesses before FERC Thursday and Friday estimated that intrastate pipelines are losing sales of approximately 200 million cubic feet per day to interstate suppliers.

Interstate pipelines can sell gas at a lower cost than pipelines that circulate within the state due to the current federal law that regulates wellhead prices of natural gas.

Lilie suggested that interstate pipelines be allowed to sell their excess gas back to intrastate pipelines, which they are barred from doing under the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978.

That solution would be supported by the interstate companies, according to Dan Shillito with the Interstate Natural Gas Association of America in Washington.

Another result of the the loss of sales to intrastate pipelines is a reduction in purchases of natural gas from producers, including purchases for future reserves, Lilie said.

The glut in the interstate market has been caused by reduced demand for natural gas (because of conservation and switches by utilities to other fuel sources) and by contract provisions that force interstate pipelines to purchase gas even if they don't need it.

When that glut in the interstate market passes, and industrial and utility purchasers need gas again from the intrastate market, there may be a shortage of supply and higher prices, said Lilie.

"The required supplies would not be available if intrastate gas acquisition programs have been seriously damaged in the interim," Lillie said.

Also testifying before the commission were representatives of natural gas producers.

Bill Tindell, an independent gas producer from Abilene representing both the West Central Texas Oil & Gas Association and the North Texas Oil & Gas Association, told the commission that a revision of the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 with its intricate pricing regulations would help solve the marketing problems.

Electronic gamester wants you to hand over children

By THOMAS W. LIPPMAN

WASHINGTON — Nolan Bushnell wants your children. He says you're undermining their future if you don't hand them over.

Bushnell is the man who sprang the electronic game craze on the nation with the invention of Pong and the development of Atari. He is also the creator of Chuck E. Cheese's Pizza Time Theatre, the chain of restaurants that also are game arcades and stages for electronic puppets and viewing rooms for giant-screen televisions and, soon, computer schools.

It's in the restaurants that Bushnell is planning to take on the tradition-minded educators and parents who think electronic games are addictive and moronic. He says Pizza Time theaters are the key to the country's educational future, the laboratories where the next generation will free itself from stodgy, outmoded curricula to become "computer literate" and competitive in the electronic age.

In short, Bushnell is either a visionary genius or a mad scientist, depending on one's point of view. The answer could become clear over the next six months as parents, customers and Pizza Time investors get a look at Bushnell's newest ventures.

Pizza Time Theatre is installing personal-size computers in the restaurants, and offering promotions that will enable schools to get computers for their classrooms if they spend enough money at the restaurants.

According to Bushnell, "We want to transfer the entertainment aspect of computers to a learning function that promotes computer literacy. One of the best ways of doing that is through Chuck E. Cheese," the oversized rodent character who roams the restaurant. "Chuck E. is the perfect incentive for a school group to start working with a computer."

In addition, Bushnell said, the restaurants will introduce next spring a new batch of electronic games aimed at the toddler set, the 4-year-olds, who are too young or too small to play the games or use the keyboards on equipment designed for teen-agers. If parents and educators don't like this, Bushnell said in an interview at the Chuck E. Cheese restaurant at Bailey's Crossroads, Va., if they think it's just an effort to get the kids hooked earlier, it's because they don't understand children, or education, or the future.

"Woe to those parents who deliberately restrict their children" from playing with these new games, he said. "They will be handicapping their children. Ask them, is the computer here to stay? Does a child need to learn word processing to succeed in college? And where is he going to learn it?" Why, at Pizza Time Theatre, of course, where in Bushnell's vision entire families will eat, play, compute, learn — and spend — in an enlightened electronic future.

Bushnell, 39, dapper in a three-piece pinstriped suit and pale pink tie, said his own son is approaching computer literacy at the age of four by manipulating electronic gadgets at home. Bushnell said this confirms his belief that electronic games can be educational, in subjects today's youngsters really need to learn, and amusing at the same time. "It's education by osmosis," he said.

"Small children," he said, "have very good mental facilities, ahead of their eye-hand coordination. They need play structures where they can learn computers by running and jumping, not by sitting at a terminal. We have an item with buttons that are fist-sized — the little kids can't use an ordinary keyboard but they can sure use their fists to bash one with big buttons on it."

Bushnell's enthusiasm about the future is apparently not shared by professional investors. The company's stock, traded over the counter, has dropped to less than $16 a share, half its price earlier this year. But Bushnell said Pizza Time is now large enough to amortize the engineering costs of the new machines. They are now going into production, he said, and will make it possible for Pizza Time to challenge youngsters who have "plateaued" on existing equipment.

His goal, he said, is "to have an educational experience superior to that in the average public school. That's what the educators are afraid of" in their antipathy to video games, he said. "The public schools are predicated on the theory that education has to be drudgery. That's bull. Kids waste more time in school than they do in a Pizza Time Theatre."

In fact, the restaurants, sensitive to parental and educational opposition to the games, deny admission to children under the age of 18 who are not accompanied by an adult. The computer-in-school campaign, company executives said, is aimed partly at overcoming public hostility to the games concept.

Competition is pushing gasoline prices down

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fierce competition between major oil companies has pushed the price of self-service gasoline in Los Angeles below the national level, and experts are predicting further price declines.

"The competition is so rife, it's so fierce down at this cash self-serve level, that notwithstanding the 6½ percent sales tax, you find that our price in this area is below that of the nation. It's actually almost a penny lower," oil analyst Dan Lundberg said Friday.

He said prices may drop even more after a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Dec. 9 in Nigeria, but that the anticipated lower cost of crude oil will be partially offset by increased refining costs.

"The great probability is that world crude oil prices are going to come down as the OPEC nations try to recover lost revenues, favorable balances of trade" resulting from decreased gas use, Lundberg said.

George Naniche, a Standard Oil Co. of California economist, said Thursday that gas prices may fall as much as 5 cents a gallon, to their lowest level since early 1980.

According to figures in the Lundberg Survey, an industry newsletter, dealer profit margins in the Los Angeles area on regular leaded self service gas have fallen to less than a cent a gallon, compared with an average 3.21 cents nationally.

The average per-gallon cost for regular leaded self-service gas in the most recent survey was $1.116, Lundberg said, compared to a national average price of $1.171.

However, prices in Los Angeles are higher than the rest of the nation for full-service credit purchases, reflecting the higher tax, Lundberg said. The average for all grades was $1.385, compared to $1.333 nationally.

The American Petroleum Institute, an oil industry trade association, estimated gasoline prices have dropped 17 percent from their March 1981 record after adjusting the figures for inflation.

Explosion injures 27

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An explosion and fire at a petrochemical plant owned by the state oil monopoloy Pemex injured 27 people Friday, five of them seriously, the company announced.

A Pemex statement said the blast occurred at 3:40 p.m. in a purification plant at the Cosoleacaque complex in Veracruz state, about 400 miles southeast of Mexico City.

The blaze was confined to one building and firemen had it under control in about an hour, the statement said. No reason was given for the possible cause of the explosion. The statement said damages were limited but some pipes and other equipment would have to be replaced.

Dow Jones average praised, vilified for almost 100 years

By CRIS OPPENHEIMER
Los Angeles Times
Washington Post
News Service

"How's the market?"

"What did the market do today?"

"The market's up 12, should I sell?"

When people talk about the market's ups and downs, invariably they are talking about "the Dow."

The most widely watched financial indicator in the world, the Dow Jones industrial average has become synonymous with the performance of the stock market. And for good reason: The Dow has been quoted, praised and vilified for almost 100 years.

"People have been criticizing the damn thing since the day it was born," says Frederick Taylor, executive editor of The Wall Street Journal. Taylor is the unofficial Keeper of the Dow, along with an assistant managing editor, Charles Stabler. Together, the two decide what companies will be listed on the Dow. The Journal is owned by Dow Jones & Co.

"When the market's on the bottom, critics keep showing other averages showing the market to be higher. All we ever claimed for it was that the Dow was an index of those stocks involved, and that it gives the flavor of the way the market moves," Taylor said.

"What the Dow Jones has got is a historical record," he added. "It's a good barometer. Not a precise, scientific barometer, but a good indicator."

ITS BEGINNINGS were humble. In 1884, a neophyte financial reporter named Charles Henry Dow, wanting to understand how stock price fluctuations reflected the market, came up with a simple formula: list 12 stocks, add up the price of each, divide by 12, and there's your daily Dow average. It was printed in a two-page bulletin that was hand-delivered throughout Wall Street.

Today, the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 stocks is the most widely used measure of stock market prices.

When the Dow cracked the magic 1,000 mark recently, some called the event a harbinger of an upturn in the economy.

Others demurred. Recalling that the Dow first traded above 1,000 in February 1966, economist Arthur B. Laffer said that in today's dollars, the 1966 Dow would have exceeded 2,900. "In reality, even after piercing the 1,000 mark, the Dow is a puny vestige of its former self," said Laffer, an adviser to President Reagan and professor of business economics at the University of Southern California.

Still others argue that the Dow does not accurately reflect the health of American industry because it is heavily weighted toward large, staid, blue-chip companies. The first financial services company, American Express Co., was added to the list only last summer.

It is also not an average of the 30 stocks listed, and the historical perspective has been somewhat skewed by the addition and deletion of companies.

WHILE THE DOW average was the brainchild of Charles Dow alone, the company — Dow, Jones & Co. (the comma was deleted in 1949) — was a collaborative effort by three reporters. In 1882, Dow and Edward Davis Jones quit the Kiernan News Agency in New York City to start their own business. "And Company" was Charles M. Bergstresser.

The beginning was not propitious. Dow, Jones and Bergstresser worked out of a tiny basement room downstairs from Henry Danielson's soda fountain at 15 Wall St. Bergstresser, along with Dow, who was renowned for his habit of taking notes on his shirt cuffs, wrote the stories. Jones edited and dictated the stories to scribes. The hand-written bulletins, called "flimsies," were delivered by messenger boys to subscribers.

The two-page "Customers' Afternoon Letter," their first real publication, appeared in November 1883. It summarized bulletins issued earlier in the day. In 1884, the Letter inaugurated the Dow Jones Average.

By 1889, 50 people worked for Dow Jones & Co. The Letter was turned into The Wall Street Journal. The first issue, four pages, appeared on July 8, 1889, and sold for 2 cents. Seven years later, the Dow Jones industrial average first appeared in The Wall Street Journal.

At that time, the Dow Jones average really was an average. In the 1920s, a constant divisor was selected. Since then, as the stocks of companies were split, dividends declared and new companies added, the divisor has been adjusted. Today, the industrial average is obtained by using a divisor of 1.359.

"It's deceptively simple. The divisor reflects all changes in the Dow, so that the average has historical value," explained Peter J. Frein, chief statistician for the Journal. For example, on the day American Express replaced Manville Corp., Frein substituted American Express' price for Manville's, added up the prices of the 30 stocks, and divided by the closing average reached using Manville. That gave the Dow a new divisor.

FOR A 2-FOR-1 stock split, Frein reduces by half the price of the stock that is splitting, adds up the prices of the 30 stocks, and divides by the closing average for that day. Once again, the Dow has a new divisor.

The Dow Jones average started with 12 railroad companies, including Chicago & Western and Union Pacific. It first expanded in 1885, with the addition of Pacific Mail Steamship and Western Union. By Oct. 1, 1929, the Dow had grown to 30 companies.

The list of stocks has changed, albeit slowly, to become a better measure of market activity. The railroads of Dow's day have been replaced by the likes of Exxon Corp., American Telephone & Telegraph Co., General Foods Corp. and U.S. Steel.

Four significant changes occurred in the past six years:

—August 1976, 3M replaced Anaconda Co.

—June 1979, International Business Machines Corp. replaced Chrysler Corp. and Merck & Co. replaced Esmark Inc.

—August 1982, American Express Co. replaced Manville Corp.

THE INCLUSION of the drug company Merck was the Dow's first attempt "to get away from the smokestack industries," the Journal's Taylor said. The addition of American Express helped bring the service sector into greater play within the Dow. American Express has been one of the biggest gainers of the 30 stocks over the past two months.

Taylor, who has been with the Journal 25 years, said he had been watching and making changes in the Dow since becoming managing editor a dozen years ago. He was appointed executive editor in 1978. In the case of American Express, Stabler investigated a variety of stocks and Taylor made the final decision.

American Express fit the basic criteria for inclusion on the Dow, Taylor said: the company is well-capitalized, has a large number of stockholders, is well-established and does a large volume of business. American Express also is a financial services company, and that was just what the Dow needed, he said.

"We are deliberately changing the mix of stocks," Taylor said. "We're moving into the 1980s a little late." For example, there is only one computer stock — IBM — on the list; six stocks are either oil companies or companies with subsidiaries in the oil business. There are no bank stocks. And the Dow industrial average still leans heavily toward the most-troubled sectors of the American economy.

Taylor rebutted criticism of the list's inclusion of International Harvester Co., the near-bankrupt farm-equipment manufacturer. "My argument is that some American companies are in deep trouble. You don't take (International Harvester) out just because it's one of them," he said.

Manville Corp. was replaced after it filed a controversial bankruptcy petition last summer. "One day we had the Dow Jones 29, because there was no trading in Manville," Taylor explained. "International Harvester is still on because it's still being traded."

Being bumped from the Dow does not preclude inclusion at a later date, however. IBM first went on the list in May 1932, replacing NCR. It was bumped in March 1939, to be replaced by AT&T. And 40 years later, in June 1979, IBM reappeared — replacing Chrysler.

IF IBM HAD been included for that entire period since 1932, the Dow would be much higher than it is today, asserted Victor J. Hillery, writer of the Journal's daily "Abreast of the Market" column. Hillery noted that IBM stock, which has split several times, increased tremendously in value during the period it was off the Dow. Had it remained on the Dow, the industrial average would have reflected the rise in IBM stock, he said.

"There's no perfect index," argued Newton D. Zinder, chief technical analyst at E.F. Hutton & Co. "The Dow is overly weighted with cyclical stocks, but still has most of the biggest companies in the country. It's not totally representative, but it gives a direction of where the market's going. It's widely used and will continue to be."

The recent Dow numbers have been staggering. The Dow Jones industrial average climbed from this year's low of 776.92 on Aug. 12 to a recovery-high close of 1,036.98 on Oct. 21. It was the highest close since the Jan. 12, 1973, close of 1,039.36, which came just one day after the 1,051.70 record was set.

The week of Oct. 18, the Dow also gained 38.36 points, or 3.86 percent, on the second highest weekly volume ever: 555,050,000 shares. Last week, the Dow nearly broke another record, plunging 36.33 points on Monday. It was the Dow's second-largest point decline since Oct. 28, 1929, when it sank 38.33 points in the pre-Depression market crash.

Financial analysts, investors and politicians are debating the significance of the Wall Street boom. Is the gain important because of the potential psychological lift or because historically such upswings have heralded an improved economy? Is the market predicting a recovery or, potentially, helping a recovery?

The bottom line: The market has forecast the end of all seven previous recessions since the end of World War II. Usually there is a four- or five-month lag period.

ON OCCASION, the Dow has missed the mark. "The Dow has called a few recessions that never occurred but is quite good at calling recoveries," Hutton's Zinder said. The Dow declined in 1962, after a confrontation on steel prices between President Kennedy and the chairman of U.S. Steel, Roger Blough, but no recession followed.

The Dow is far from alone in calling for an economic recovery in early 1983. While the Dow is up more than 30 percent over the past two months, other key indexes — the New York Stock Exchange composite index, Standard & Poor's averages, the American Stock Exchange market value index and the NASDAQ composite index — also are up by comparable amounts.

But the numbers do not mean quite what they used to. Economist Laffer noted that, while the Dow first traded above the 1,000 mark in February 1966, the index remained relatively flat for the next 16 years.

"Yet the differences in the economy between now and 1966 are striking," Laffer said. In 1966 the unemployment rate averaged 3.8 percent; today it is 10.1 percent, the highest rate since the Great Depression. A dollar in 1966 purchased three times what a dollar purchases today.

The betting is that the numbers will provide a psychological boost that could jolt the nation out of a recession. "If the Dow were to move higher, it would be an enormous psychological boost as well as an economic indicator," said market analyst John B. Burke, president of J.B. Burke & Co. in Hartford, Conn.

"A record high on the Dow also could be enough to force people, individual investors and institutions, to switch their funds from money-market instruments and the bond market to the stock market," he said. "There could be enormous sums of money to fuel prices in the future."

Lovelady to test Hillger well

Ike Lovelady Inc. recently announced the Texas Railroad Commission's grant of a 30 day, 400 barrel per day allowable on the Hillger P1 well in Glasscock County. The Railroad Commission will consider a permanent increase in te Hillger well allowable following receipt of information from the 30-day test.

The well, completed as a discovery in May, 1982 has been producing at a daily allowable of 80 barrels per day following the original test of 297 barrels per day. Subsequent tests of the well included an 11 hour test which produced at a calculated daily rate of 2,194 barrels per day with non conventional equipment and a 48 hour test which produced 583 barrels per day with conventional equipment. There was no water produced at any time, including all tests. Fluid level during the 11-hour test dropped 62 feet from the static level. During the 48-hour test, the fluid level dropped 31 feet.

The well is producing from an open hole section in the San Andres formation from 2,964 to 3,058 feet. Total production through September 1982 was 12,192 barrels of oil and estimates of reserves by independent petroleum engineers indicate estimated ultimate recovery by primary production methods to total in excess of 700,000 barrels of oil. Present value of future revenues from the Hillger well with a constant $31 per barrel oil price and discount rate of 12 percent have been calculated to be $6.6 million at 80 barrels per day production and $14.5 million at 400 barrels per day.

Ike Lovelady Inc. and Lovelady Oil & Gas Program 1981 Ltd. own a 50.25 percent working interest and a 37.69 percent net revenue interest in the well with the company having a 25.83 percent working interest and a 19.37 percent net revenue interest.

Big Oil's image improving

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When it comes to popularity contests, Big Oil is no darling.

But after enduring heaps of public scorn in the 1970s — when gasoline prices were soaring and supplies were sometimes scarce — the image of the oil giants today is healing almost as rapidly as memories of the energy crisis fade.

"We've moved up above the used car salesman," jokes Walter K. Morris, vice president of public affairs at Standard Oil Co. of California.

The reasons are simple: The price of gasoline and other fuels is going down. Gasoline lines are a thing of the past. And no one is hollering about "obscene" increases in oil profits; the companys' earnings are plummeting.

It also has helped the industry that a Republican administration is in power, one not given to former President Jimmy Carter's tongue lashings of Big Oil.

Oil's image also may be gaining from the recent fumblings of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which during the Arab oil embargo of 1973 and the Iranian revolution of 1978 helped fan the flames of public frustration at waiting in lines — and paying a higher price — for gasoline.

Following the Iranian revolution, for example, Americans' opinion of the U.S. oil industry seemed to fall in tandem with increases in gasoline lines and prices.

In opinion polls taken by Standard of California, for example, the percentage of people who said they viewed the American oil industry favorably dropped from 49 in early 1978 to 29 a year later. Those who viewed the industry unfavorably grew from 44 percent to 64 percent.

In that same 12 months, disorder in the world oil markets following the Iranian revolution sent crude oil prices skyrocketing, and fuel supplies tightened. The price of a gallon of gasoline in the spot market more than doubled, from 45 cents to 94 cents, according to Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc.

By 1980, however, when supplies expanded and the price rise slowed, public opinion began to shift. Thirty-seven percent of the people interviewed by Standard of California in early 1980 said they held a favorable view of oil and 61 percent were unfavorable. And in early 1981 the split was 38 percent favorable and 58 percent unfavorable.

Morris says that while the company's 1982 survey results are not yet computed, he expects the trend toward a more favorable view of oil companies to continue.

"We have learned, and I might say the hard way, that there was a great deal of misunderstanding and misinformation about our industry," Morris says. "This was fertile ground for myths. We also found that once we developed the ability to communicate thoroughly and accurately, we were dispelling those myths."

He includes among the myths the contention that oil companies conspired to create shortages in order to get higher prices and that an unregulated industry would result in higher prices and runaway profits.

But while oilmen are attracting less flak, the change may be illusory.

"I think it's a lack of attention being paid to us rather than a conscious feeling that we've turned into the good guys in the perception of the public," Morris concedes. "No one's going around awarding us any medals."

The oil industry has paid particularly close attention to its image since a string of environmental, price and allocation controls were born in the 1970s. The industry recognized that public opinion was an important influence on public policy.

That is why oil executives are quick to note that the oil glut and falling prices of the last year.

"A lot of the things that our critics said would come to pass have not come to pass," says Herbert Schmertz, vice president of public affairs at Mobil Corp.

"For example, they said if we had decontrol of crude oil and gasoline the prices would go up. They went down. They said that there was a giant conspiracy to control the crude oil markets. If that was true how did we get to the surplus?"

Prices have gone down — a gallon of gasoline costs 12 cents less on average today than it did in the spring of 1981. And while that has helped deflect public criticism, the oil companies probably wish the declines were much more moderate.

Indeed, even as oilmen gather in Houston this weekend at the American Petroleum Institute's annual convention may feel better about their industry's public image, they will be searching for any encouraging signs of higher prices and profits.

Weak demand for oil products, partly because of the recession and partly because of conservation, has squeezed the profits of major refining and marketing companies. The producers also have been hurt by lower prices for the crude oil they pump.

The four largest U.S. oil companies — Exxon Corp., Mobil Corp., Texaco Inc. and Standard of California — reported combined profits of $6.09 billion for the nine-month period ended Sept. 30. That was 39 percent lower than a year earlier.

That total of $6.09 billion was the smallest sum those four companies have earned in any third quarter since 1978, when they reported combined profit of $3.98 billion.

"The image of Big Oil as the exploiter reaping in the profits didn't quite agree with the facts as presented in the profit and loss statements this year," says Sanford Margoshes, who analyzes the major oil companies for the investment firm of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc.

Expert says no good use for bypasses

AUSTIN (AP) — Industry officials say bypasses used to route natural gas around meters in need of repairs are necessary safety devices, but a Dallas engineer told a Railroad Commission panel that the bypasses can be used to steal gas.

D.E. Brown, who has spent several years looking into the use of the bypasses, testified Thursday there is no legitimate use for the devices.

"Anything relating to a bypass ought to be eliminated, period, unless there is an exception granted by the commission," he said.

Three commission examiners listened to testimony on proposed revisions in rules on gas measurement. Brown wants bypasses banned. He said the gas run through them and not metered could cost the state $100 million in taxes, in addition to cheating royalty owners.

"I don't know of any installation where the bypass line is either needed or justified. If there is, I'd like to see it," said Brown.

Michael Cooper, Brown's lawyer, said, "These types of devices present the opportunity for gas to go into the purchaser's pipeline without its being accounted for to the seller."

He said "a significant amount of gas is passing through the bypass underneath the meter" even when the valves to the bypass are closed.

But Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association witnesses said the bypasses are vital safety measures, needed to reroute gas when meters need servicing.

"You could not inspect the (meter) without this so-called bypass," he said, adding that shutting a line down to check a meter could damage wells or facilities on the line.

He said it cost "several thousand dollars" to bring back a Beeville well that was shut down during servicing of a meter on a line without a bypass.

As many as 3,000 bypasses now are in use in the state, according to Mid-Continent witness Carl Hester of Exxon USA.

The bypasses allow meters to be checked and services with "closing in oil and gas fields," said Hester.

Brown, a 30-year veteran of the gas business, first discovered a bypass on a line from his property 10 years ago. He said he recently traveled the state with an official from the state comptroller's office and found many bypasses in use.

Sun no longer sets on Midland oilman's empire

By DAVID C. SODAMANN
Energy-Business Editor

The sun no longer sets on the empire of Midland oilman Clayton Williams. When the sun drops behind the Davis Mountains, when darkness engulfs his West Texas holdings, a new day dawns in the land of the Bantu, where the wildcatter has undertaken a unique joint venture.

The Tall City's Number One Aggie has staked a prospect on the Zambezi. On a "lease" 45,000 square miles in size — half as big as the Permian Basin.

Williams has thrown in with Botswanan Gordon Cundill in a business catering to those who want to venture after wild cats — or elephants, or buffalo, or crocodiles, or a good deal more.

"We have bought out the company of Hunter's Africa in Botswana," said Cundill, who is in Midland putting the finishing touches on the deal. "It's what's known in our legal system as a proprietary company, which means its a privately owned corporation. It's a privately owned company with limited liability, I think is the best discription of it."

CUNDILL AND WILLIAMS are partners, each filling a special role.

"Cundill," Williams said, "is the hunter and worker, and I'm the silent bystander — if it's possible for Williams to ever be totally silent! Gordon is the manager and main guy; I'm more like an investor."

"Well now, that isn't quite true," Cundill remarked. "Because the presence of somebody like Clayton in the company does provide a greater degree of confidence from the point of view of the prospective client in coming out with us. It really is a very important factor in helping a man make up his mind to go off into Africa when he's never been there."

Williams and Cundill made it quite clear Hunter's Africa isn't just a game, a tax write-off for Williams; its a business they intend to pursue earnestly.

"Let me make one point," said Cundill, showing a surprising knowledge of American tax terms, "there is one safari company that is operated as a subchapter S corporation; in other words it is a tax advantage to the owner. That is not the way this company is operated. And I don't think its in the interest of the clientele that should be the case.

"Because," he explained, "the moment you take the incentive to provide a better service than any one else out of the basic motivation of the company, you take away what really makes a company provide the best possible safari."

"Those deals where people want to hunt and have a benefit to themselves end up in wrecks," Williams said, "because they lose the profit motive, and because the guy in Cundill's postion says 'What the heck, no use in me trying its just for Williams to have a good hunt.'

"Ours is a business proposition. We're trying to make a profit, and when I hunt, I'll pay the going rate."

Hunter's Africa offers its clients a good deal more than a bumpy truck ride into the bush for a quick kill.

"Our safari is essentially the traditional East African-type safari operation," Cundill said. "It is a holiday. We enjoy providing you with a situation in which you can rough it with as much luxury as we can provide.

"The unique thing to me is to go into an area where you're a thousand miles from anybody and still have a bottle of '61 Dom Perignon if you want to pay for it.

"On the other hand," Cundill continued, "depending on how you hunt, it's possible that you may decide, that in the interest of getting a lion, you may have to take a bedroll and sleep under the stars for a night or two. But you do need to go back to a well organized base camp.

"And particularly, in the light of the fact that in recent times more and more Americans bring their wives or their familes on Safari, it really is essential to have well equipped, well run camps.

CUNDILL DOESN'T have to hunt for clients like he does for lion.

"Eighty percent of our business currently is either repeat business, or referred business," he said.

"There are hunters' conventions there are hunters' clubs — and Clayton and I between us belong to a few of them — and some of the business comes from them," Cundill said. "But, it comes from those clubs because people get to know you. It's exposure to people through the medium of successful safaris.

"You can, through exposure, advertise a name, you can't do anything more than that. In my experience, the best way to sell safaris is to go amongst the people that you know, and talk to the people they know.

"It isn't the sort of business you can reduce to a brochure. If you put it in a brochure in a travel agent's office, you're not going to sell any safaris. The people who go hunting usually don't operate through travel agents.

EVEN THE SAFARI business has its ups and downs. When economic conditions slow down Midland, they slow down business on the veldt as well.

"As a business," Cundill explained, "its very vulnerable to the economic conditions in the countries from which we draw our clientele. Our principal source of clientele are the southern states of the United States of America. Right up with them are Mexico, Venezuela and Germany.

"And, as you can imagine right now, we don't have a single Mexican booking. Of course, Venezuela is not a good source of business. The German industrial climate is very negative. One seems to detect a great deal of optimism amongst Americans, and marketing is easier now than it was this time four months ago."

The safari business has at least one thing in common with the independent oil industry, it's a business where a good reputation is essential for continued sûccess.

"The most important thing you have to really sell is your acceptablity to your clienteie," Cundill said.

"The hardest thing in the world to get is a good reputation and it's the easiest thing you can lose. Any time we send back one good satisfied client we'll get five more. Send back one dissatisfied client, your going to lose ten.

"Its not just the mistakes my own people can make," said Cundill. "Mistakes my oppsition make can affect me. Because it's a luxury business, it's a highly personalized business, and it's a business of confidence."

HUNTER'S AFRICA is a staid enterprise.

"If we were to handle 60 individual licenses within a year — assuming about 21 days per person — you would have an exceptional year," Cundill said. "We are essentially a high-cost, low-volume business."

Hunter's Africa really offers its clients much more than a fair shot at exotic game.

"What you're marketing is a combination of the species which are available in the area, the time of your professional hunters and the quotas — that's the animals — which the game department allows you," Cundill said.

"I think the most important element is the fact that this 40-odd thousand square miles is country which we lease from the government, and is available for the exclusive use of ourselves and our clients. It's the exclusivity that is at least one of the elements of what we're selling.

"What I would say about the product that we market is that in large part you must disregard the trophy that you come back with. The big element is the experience.

"Some people who have been on many safaris will come out and may shoot one or two animals. What they come back for is the experience of being in the bush in this unique, exclusive bit of environment, that, for the period in which they are there is just for them — no intrusions; no competing parties.

ALTHOUGH HUNTER's Africa offers a luxury service, it isn't catering to many "money-is-no-object" clients. Cundill said people are looking very carefully at every bit of money they spend. They're looking for shorter hunts and comparing prices. As a result, Cundill "tailor makes" hunts to suit his clients.

"We are finding far more than in the past we are having to tailor these safaris to fit the fellow's pockets, and to fit the available time he has.

"When we're marketing to the younger man, we're having to look for shorter periods, because, although they can afford the money, they can't afford the time.

"By 'tailor making it,' " Cundill said, "I mean pre-planning it so that he will go into areas in which the species he wants are available.

"The other element to tailor making is the number of days, the number of animals.

"We need to know what a man wants to achieve before he ever leaves here.

ONE REASON Cundill likes to preplan hunts, is so he can tell his client how much the safari will cost.

It is an irritating, and even embarassing experience, Cundill said, to go on safari and then be presented with an unexpected bill for $4,000 or $5,000, or being "nickeled and dimed" for all sorts of smaller things during the trip.

"So it's very important, before a man even leaves, that he knows what it's going to cost," Cundill said.

For most a Hunter's Africa safari will cost in the neighborhood of $19,000 to $20,000.

"It would be a fairly average cost of a 21-day safari," Cundill said, "and that would include all the costs. Your basic daily costs, from which the company derives its benefit, runs at about $600 a day. And to that you've got to add government taxes, license fees, trophy fees, export duty and a whole variety of costs." Although the hunt is expensive, ardent hunters will be given the opportunity to bag their money's worth.

During a 21-day hunt, Cundill said, "You have the right to hunt every animal listed on our schedule."

Hunters may also take giant oryx, cape heartabeast, springbok, zebra, buffalo, crocodiles and many more varieties of prized game animals.

Cundill man of many talents

Oilman Clayton Williams speaks highly of his new hunting partner, Gordon Cundill.

"He's a very exceptional guy," Williams said of Cundill. "He speaks nine languages. Has a degree in languages and law. He's a Rhodes Scholar — spent a year and a half at Oxford.

"He thinks he's an operatic singer, but I can tell you he's not.

"He's well read. A man of letters, I guess you could say. He knows about half of Churchill's speeches by heart. Unfortunately, I don't know the other so I couldn't correct him," Williams said.

"I GREW UP in Africa," Cundill said. "I was born in Zululand. My father was a man who, after the First World War, went back to areas he had seen during the East African campaign and shot ivory until he was able to set himself up as a sugar planter.

"I suppose I started hunting when I was five years old. I've hunted in probably 11 countries in Africa. I've held a professional hunter's license for a little more than a quarter of a century.

"In the early '70s," Cundill continued, "I decide to get out of sugar (Like his father, Cundill was also a planter). I invested the money in the safari business and, thereby, doing what I like to do, which is to hunt."

The winds of change blew Cundill into Botswana.

"I moved out of Mozambique about the time (an unfriendly political faction) moved in," Cundill said, "and I went to Botswana to join the old East African company of Ker & Downey, which is the oldest safari company in Africa.

"In the fullness of time, Ker & Downey was bought out by a Texas-owned outfit, and for a variety of reasons I decided to go off with Hunter's Africa, which is also a company that had its origins in the British East African area."

Professional hunters in Africa are even more rare than some of the species.

"Its not an overcrowded profession," Cundill said. "I suppose there might be a hundred registered professional hunters in Africa."

Cudill said, "It is not possible to categorize your professional hunter. Their origins are as varied as their talents are. The only thing they really have in common with one another is they are, as a rule, good naturalists.

"They wouldn't elect to live on the outskirts of civilization. They enjoy the environment. They live in a primitive environment. And what they have to enjoy is the wildlife."

A professional hunter is one who pursues business more frequently than game.

"Conducting a safari well is not just placing a client in position to shoot a lion," Cundill said. "You have to prepare the logistics that go before the hunt. The equipment that goes into it. The staff that man it. The base operation that supports it. And then you have to run the camp.

"The very last factor is finding the animal in an area that you're familiar with, and placing somebody who is unfamiliar with the area, and the animals, in a position that he can ethically, and within the bounds of his own abilities, take that animal," Cundill said.

New twist in mergers

In another surprising twist to what is becoming an inexorable consolidation of the U.S. beer industry, G. Heileman Brewing Co. and Pabst Brewing Co. said Friday they have reached an agreement to merge.

Although two earlier bids to achieve a merger of the brewers have been discouraged by the Department of Justice, Heileman and Pabst said Friday that they have talked to representatives of the Department of Justice and were confident the merger would get government clearance.

Under the plan, LaCrosse, Wis.-based Heileman would also acquire Olympic Brewing Co. of Tumwater, Wash., which Pabst already is acquiring.

Pabst itself has long been the target of a takeover bid by a company controlled by Minneapolis financier Irwin L. Jacobs. Pabst's largest stockholder. Last month, a company formed by Jacobs launched a pending offer at $24 a share for a controlling interest in Pabst. Pabst has fought that move.

Under the new Heileman proposal, that company would make a cash tender offer of $25 a share, or a total of $150 million, for 6 million shares of Pabst common stock. The offer is subject to Heileman receiving at least 3.7 million shares. That, with some 400,000 shares Heileman already owns, would give it a majority of Pabst, which has 8,175,000 shares outstanding.

Help your neighbor!

If you had a neighbor who needed the services of a local organization, chances are you would be more than willing to donate to that organization to ensure that he could continue to receive the service.

That's exactly what's happening in Midland now. Your neighbor is in trouble.

The United Way of Midland — the umbrella organization that collects funds for that group's member agencies — currently is slipping behind its campaign goal this year. Less than a week remains in this year's campaign and as of early this week, collections amounted to only 75.4 percent of the goal of $1.612 million.

That shortfall is serious because it is not the United Way organization that will suffer. Even if the goal is not met this year, United Way will continue. United Way merely takes funding requests from organizations throughout the community, studies them, collects what it can and parcels out the funds to the various member agencies. That is, of course, a valuable service that keeps Midlanders from being approached by various solicitors throughout the year.

The reason you should be concerned is that a number of important organizations that receive funds from United Way likely will not receive their full request if the campaign falls short, organizations like the day-care center you leave your child with each morning, the YMCA where you work out in the evenings or one of the other agencies that provide so many services to make life better for so many Midlanders.

Said campaign chairman Joe Kloesel: "Community support has been very generous, but our figures show we will need a strong effort from now until the end of the campaign in order to meet our goal."

To meet the goal, the organization must raise more than $300,000 by Wednesday. That's a significant sum of money to raise in less than a week, but there are many dedicated individuals who've worked long and hard to make United Way successful this year and in years past. Their efforts are not to be overlooked, but neither is the importance of the member agencies.

When you talk about United Way, you are in reality talking about the member agencies and the quality of life they bring to Midland. Without your contribution, that quality of life for some Midlanders will suffer. Don't say no to United Way this year because if you do, you may saying no to a neighbor who needs your help.

Tightening the screws

To the communist leaders in Poland "freedom" is a foreign word. They have taken further measures to eradicate what little is left of it.

• The Parliament in Warsaw passed three laws threatening workers with forced labor or even imprisonment if they cannot prove they are gainfully employed. It is a double-barreled threat because under those laws employees can be fired by employers, then branded as "shirkers" and jailed.

The roots of this cruel oppression are in Moscow. If ever anyone had doubts about that, they were dissolved for the umpteenth time the other day by the Soviet Defense Minister, Dmitri F. Ustinov. He said what has been obvious for a long time, that the Kremlin is pulling the strings and is solidly behind the communist gauleiters in Warsaw.

Ustinov sent a message from Moscow to the Polish leader, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, in which he said: "There can be no doubt that all the calculations of internal counterrevolutionaries and imperialist forces to undermine the foundations of socialism in Poland to weaken the unity and solidarity of the socialist community are doomed to failure."

Another communist leader chimed in from Tallinn, the capital of another communist-captured country, Estonia: "The firm determination of the Polish working people, the Communists, the leadership of the Polish United Workers Party to uphold the gains of socialism finds full support on the part of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and the U.S.S.R."

Those "gains of socialism" are not fully appreciated by members of Solidarity, the union outlawed three weeks ago, and by hundreds of Polish workers languishing in detention.

But millions of Polish workers are not about to abandon hope. They are planning strikes and demonstrations on Wednesday, the anniversary of Solidarity's winning of its independence, and on Dec. 13, the anniversary of the declaration of martial law by the communists in Warsaw and the Kremlin. A general strike is talked about for next year.

More power to the Polish people as they struggle to put "freedom" back in their dictionary!

Another View:

A change of seasons

The regular schedule of American elections helps mark the change of seasons: we go off Daylight Saving Time; we celebrate Halloween, and, in even-numbered years, we — or at least many of us — vote.

Television ads, which also mark the season for more of us than care to admit it, also change. In September and October we are barraged with promotions for the season's new television shows and with advertisements for political candidates. Come November, these ads suddenly vanish.

For many, that is a welcome development. But for some of us, the return of "ring around the collar" and Mr. Whipple is cause for wistfulness. For political junkies, it's cold turkey.

Never again will your radio alarm wake you up with a commercial attacking or defending Paul Trible's congressional voting record. Not for two years — maybe never again — will your drive home or your evening's entertainment be interrupted by disquisitions on whether Stan Parris or Herb Harris is more devoted to the interests of federal employees. You won't see again that little girl climbing on the school bus in the National Conservative Political Action Committee ad attacking Paul Sarbanes. And that's only in this area.

New Yorkers are not going to see Lew Lehrman's red suspenders several times a night any more. Montanans won't see the talking cows who attacked outsiders campaigning against Sen. John Melcher for stepping in what they were trying to sell. Californians will never again see Candice Bergen saying, "I want to go on doing it," in the Jerry Brown ad attacking Pete Wilson for opposing the nuclear-freeze proposal.

The issues that aroused all this advertising will remain. But the ads stop, abruptly. In the golden days of oratory, political junkies could go around the country and sit entranced as the likes of William Jennings Bryan orated for three or four hours on the issues of the day. Today, the political junkie needs a videotape player and cassettes of 30- and 60-second and 5-minute spots. Most of you, we know, will miss this season's spots no more than you miss all those ads you saw two years ago about Jay Rockefeller's accomplishments as governor of West Virginia. But some of us are at least a little sad to have to say goodbye to all that.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Burger opting for decorum over 'rights'

WASHINGTON — The Honorable Warren Burger has the solemn mien, handsome profile and imposing white mane of a chief justice who had been cast for the part by Hollywood. Yet he sometimes puts appearances ahead of the Constitution he is charged with interpreting.

Jack Anderson

Burger's efforts to make the Supreme Court conform to his standards of decorum sometimes border on pomposity. When it comes to proper behavior on the front steps of the Supreme Court building, he would enforce a law upon others that he doesn't obey himself.

The story is told in a lawsuit, Grace vs. Burger et al. Now he has refused to excuse himself from sitting in judgment on this case, in which he was the principal defendant. Here's how the case evolved:

In May of 1978, Thaddeus Zywicky, an elderly Catholic missionary, appeared on the sidewalk in front of the Supreme Court and began handing out leaflets. These contained reprints of a letter to The Washington Post dealing with the removal of unfit federal judges.

Zywicky was accosted by a member of the Supreme Court police force, who notified him that he was violating Title 40, Section 13K of the United States Code, which forbids "assemblages" on the Supreme Court grounds. Though Zywicky was an "assemblage" of one, he was sufficiently impressed by the cop's legal argument that he left rather than face arrest.

Some time later, Zywicky returned with leaflets protesting political repression in Guatemala. Again he was threatened with arrest, and again he departed.

A friend of Zywicky, Mary Terese Grace, learned of the incidents and decided to make her own protest. She went to the Supreme Court sidewalk and unfurled a banner bearing the text of the First Amendment, which guarantees freedom of speech and "the right of the people peaceably to assemble."

She, too, was told she was breaking the law. So she, too, departed to avoid arrest.

But Grace and Zywicky filed suit against the U.S. government and against Burger, who is responsible for administration of the Supreme Court. Also named as defendants were the court marshal, the court police chief and the officer who sent them on their way. Grace and Zywicky won their case on constitutional grounds, and the government appealed to the Supreme Court. Burger did not join the appeal, thus becoming what lawyers call an "omitted party." But he can re-enter the case at any time.

The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled on the case last year. It found that the statute's ban on "assemblages" at the Supreme Court was so sweeping that it violated the First Amendment. The appellate judges rejected the Justice Department's argument that the law was needed to preserve the dignity of the Supreme Court.

When the Justice Department appealed to the Supreme Court, it put the justices in the delicate position of deciding the constutionality of a law that applies only to themselves. Even more embarrassing was the fact that the chief justice himself was still listed as one of the original defendants.

The court voted to hear the case. Court officials told my associate John Dillon that Burger did not disqualify himself when the vote was taken last June.

And that's the rub. Title 28, Section 455 of the U.S. Code is explicit: "Any justice, judge or magistrate of the United States shall disqualify himself in any proceeding in which his impartiality might reasonably be questioned." It goes on to include in this prohibition any case in which the judge "is a party to the proceeding."

But Burger has put himself above the law. In his zeal to shoot a hole in the First Amendment, he has refused to disqualify himself from the case.

An eminent authority on the Supreme Court, Prof. Eugene Gressman of Fordham University, had this to say about the high court's dilemma: "I'm not sure Burger would be any more involved or prejudiced than the whole court. They're dealing with the First Amendment at their front door."

Burger's track record on judicial dignity bodes ill for Grace and Zywicky. He once threatened to arrest then-Superior Court Judge Harry Alexander if he persisted in speaking on black history from the Supreme Court steps.

And when a motion-picture company wanted to film a brief segment of Jack Nicholson's "The Last Detail" on the Supreme Court steps, Burger refused. He even reportedly persuaded the National Gallery of Art — of which he is a trustee — to refuse permission to film the segment on its grounds. (In contrast, a scene from "First Monday in October," a film about the Supreme Court itself, was filmed on the grounds.)

On occasion, of course, Burger has himself violated the canons of judicial dignity. Late last year, for example, he took a poke at a television cameraman who had the impertinence to follow him into an elevator with his camera rolling.

As far as "assemblages" go, was there not a technical violation when Burger and Justice Sandra Day O'Connor appeared on the steps of the court before a crowd of photographers following the appointment of Justice O'Connor? The law prohibits the sale of anything on court property. Yet Zywicky was standing next to a newspaper rack when the court cop ordered him to take a walk.

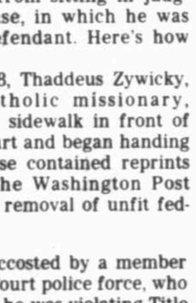
GEORGE F. WILL

Reagan should remain identified with change

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan may soon understand how Henry II felt about Thomas Becket. Reagan may mutter, "Who will rid me of this turbulent House of Representatives?" No one will. But the changed composition of the House will not make government much more anarchic than it already is. And Reagan can comfort himself with the thought that were God not a Republican, the Democrats would have controlled the Senate after each of the last two elections.



George F. Will

In 1981 and 1982, Reagan won the crucial budget votes in the House so narrowly that switches by four and 12 members would have stalled his program. But his program is now in place. To hold it there — to, say, block repeal of the third phase of the tax cut — he just needs the presidency's one great power, the veto. That is, he needs only one-third plus one of one house of Congress.

Confrontation with Congress can lead to chaos in the heart of government, the appropriations process. But there already is semi-chaos. Congress will stagger into the lame-duck session, and into December, the third month of the fiscal year, with only three of 13 appropriations bills passed.

There would have been governmental gridlock had the Republicans not controlled the Senate. Without control, they could not even get Reagan's agenda on the Senate calendar. In 1980, Republicans gained 12 seats and control of the Senate (54-46), although Democratic Senate candidates got nearly three million more votes than Republican candidates got. If in 1980 just 33,918 voters in five states (Idaho, Arizona, North Carolina, New Hampshire, Georgia) had voted the other way, the Democrats would have held the Senate. This year, a change of just 43,000 votes in Missouri, Vermont, Rhode Island, Nevada, and Wyoming would have returned the Senate to the Democrats.

Before the fields again are white with daisies, Congress may have come to grips with the related problems of restoring the solvency of the Social Security system, and strengthening the revenue base of the federal government. Talking to voters about Social Security during a campaign is like discussing trigonometry with King Lear while Lear is raging on the heath. The moment does not suit the subject. But now the test of the Democratic Party's fitness to govern will be its willingness to help formulate, rather than just fulminate about, the painful choices required.

Furthermore, Democrats must have the courage of their convictions about the need for new revenues for the rest of the government. The Republican Senate (read: Bob Dole, chairman of the finance committee) can not be expected to initiate tax increases so that the Democratic Party can take credit for protecting the programs the taxes will finance. That is not an acceptable division of labor between the parties. Besides, Tip O'Neill and other Democratic leaders in the House now have a majority so large that even they should be able to lead it, occasionally.

There is today an oscillation of bewilderment in many democracies. The Democratic Party's mild resurgence is a pale shadow of Europe's pattern. From Stockholm to the Hague, from Paris to Athens, and now in Madrid, the left is being given a crack at the disagreeable business of reconciling yesterday's political promises and today's economic and demographic facts. In Europe, as in the United States, but even more so, the political argument is about how to make the welfare state compatible with the rate of economic growth necessary to finance the welfare state.

The temperateness of America's electorate last Tuesday was evidence against a particular doubt about the capacity of democratic government. Margaret Thatcher's and Reagan's policies, although different, both test the theory that democratic governments can not mount sustained fights against inflation. An anti-recession policy is, politically, a piece of cake, involving the pleasure of stimulating demand. Anti-inflation policies produce pain — and perhaps electoral repudiation — faster than they produce success. Tuesday's results were too mixed to be called a repudiation.

The Economist (of London) notes that many recent elections have been won by the persons promising the most thorough change: Thatcher and Reagan, Mitterrand in France, Papandreou in Greece and now Gonzalez in Spain. Reagan's challenge for the remainder of this term is to remain identified with change while being identified with that which is to be changed — government. It was, to say no more, peculiar for the campaigning head of the executive branch of the federal government, to stand in front of a glistening Air Force One, inveighing against "Washington." He has worked that pedal on the organ quite enough.

ART BUCHWALD

Odds-makers don't favor Reagan plan

LAS VEGAS, Nevada — Every columnist has to go to one typical American town every fall to tell his readers what is really going on in the country. This year I chose Las Vegas, a nice friendly community situated in the desert somewhere between Salt Lake City and Phoenix.

Art Buchwald

I dropped into Caesars Palace, the local hangout, and sat around a crap table drinking coffee with some of the locals.

They told me Las Vegas has not been immune to vicissitudes of the economy. Business is way off, and unemployment is above the 10 percent mark.

"They're closing down blackjack tables left and right," a bearded dealer told me, "and half the roulette wheels have stopped turning."

Another old-timer said, "Our slot machines used to go day and night. Now we're lucky to have one shift working in the evening."

"A few years ago you used to have to wait two hours to get a seat in a poker game. Now you can walk into any place and they'll deal you a hand before you can take your money out."

"Things are that bad?"

"They've never been worse," a fellow in a cowboy hat said. "We got hoofers that haven't worked in a year."

"I thought Las Vegas was recession-proof," I said.

"So did we. We always figured that no matter how bad things got people would come here to see Wayne Newton and forget their troubles. But we were wrong. People are staying home and saying, 'Maybe next year, if things pick up, we'll go to Las Vegas and lose all our money.'"

"What is really killing us is Wall Street," a pit boss said. "When there was no action there, everyone came out here to shoot crap."

"Now the high rollers would rather gamble on the stock market than come to Las Vegas and bet on a sure thing."

"Another reason we're hurting," a cocktail waitress said, "is Atlantic City. They shouldn't have allowed casinos in New Jersey. It corrupts the people."

"It was a rotten thing for Jersey to do," the pit boss agreed. "When Bugsy Seigel built this town out of sand, he was given everyone's solemn word that Nevada would be the only state to have legalized gambling. Then Bugsy was hardly cold in his grave when Jersey reneged on its promise."

"We're not just worried about Atlantic City," the blackjack dealer said. "New York is talking gambling, Florida is talking gambling, even California is talking gambling. Every state that can't meet its bills is trying to find a new way of taking a taxpayer's money away from him."

"Maybe you're being too pessimistic," I suggested. "Surely most Americans have a sentimental attachment for Las Vegas that they don't have for any other town. After all, you replaced Niagra Falls as everyone's favorite tourist attraction."

"Crap shooters don't have sentiment. All they need is a green felt table and a pair of red dice, and they don't care where they are."

"If they put 10 slot machines at Chicago's airport, we could be out of business tomorrow," the man in the cowboy hat said.

"Do you people blame Reaganomics for the lousy shape the town is in?" I asked.

"What's Reaganomics?" the waitress wanted to know.

"It's President Reagan's plan for getting America back on its feet. It includes tax cuts for everyone, incentives for industry, a big cut in government spending, and eventually a balanced budget."

"What are the odds in Washington he can do it?" the pit boss asked.

"Right now they're 10-to-1."

"Tell the people in Washington if they fly out here, we'll give them 30-to-1 and all drinks are on the house."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Nov. 7, the 311th day of 1982. There are 54 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 7, 1917, Nikolai Lenin led the Bolsheviks against the Russian provincial government at Petrograd.

On this date:

In 1807, Russia broke off relations with England.

In 1956, the British and French declared a cease-fire in Egypt, but Britain said it would evacuate troops only on the arrival of a United Nations emergency force.

In 1966, Chinese diplomats walked out of the Bolshevik anniversary celebration in Moscow after hearing Soviet criticism of the Peking government.

Five years ago: Archbishop Hilarion Capucci was in Rome after being released by Israel, which had commuted his 12-year prison sentence for smuggling arms to Palestinian guerrillas.

AUSTIN — No one was surprised, really, the other day when former Gov. Dolph Briscoe said he's thinking about making a race for the U.S. Senate in 1984.

Politicians are always thinking about running, or thinking about someone else running, and anyone in, or who's been in, public office is likely to be announcing for some office or the other.

The only surprise to a lot of folks is that Briscoe has stayed out of politics — at least as a candidate — for this long.

There have been some signs that Briscoe hasn't put aside all his political ambitions.

Briscoe has been sticking pretty close to the Democratic Party and the powers-that-be within the party, while some former governors and other former Democratic officeholders moved over in the recent election to throw their support to Gov. Bill Clements against Democratic challenger Mark White.

It would have been difficult, of course, for Briscoe not to have supported White.

The two appear to be close friends, and White has acknowledged Briscoe as a politcal mentor.

It was Briscoe who named White as secretary of state, and it was from that post that White launched his bid for attorney general.

White was asked, at the time of his bid for attorney general, whether Briscoe had offered him any advice about making a statewide race.

"He said 'don't," White reported.

But obviously that advice wasn't heeded by its giver — who went on to make another statewide race on his own.

That effort led to Briscoe's defeat by then Attorney General John Hill, in a bitter primary fight which many observers felt was a contributing factor to Clements' upset victory.

Briscoe told reporters in San Angelo last month that he plans to announce, in perhaps January or February, his decision on whether to run against Sen. John Tower in 1984.

That won't be an easy assignment, if Briscoe decides to undertake it.

Briscoe had been thinking about challenging Clements this year, he indicated earlier, but had decided against it for personal reasons (his wife was recovering from surgery for an ear tumor).

At that time, he also confessed that serving as a U.S. senator had always appealed to him, but that he hadn't wanted to move to Washington because it would disrupt his family life.

Now, with the Briscoe children grown and away on their own, that factor is no longer a consideration, he noted.

In many ways, Briscoe seems to embody the rural conservative tradition of the Texas Democratic Party — and his support in rural areas seems to remain fairly solid.

But taking on John Tower will require a lot more than just reactivating Briscoe's old political network.

It's much too soon to know whether Tower will be vulnerable in 1984, for one thing.

Democrats always feel like Tower should be vulnerable, but the Republican seems to have as many lives as a cat, along with the cat's ability to land on its feet.

But Tower isn't likely to forget about Briscoe should the former governor decide to run.

In 1978, Tower was challenged by a relatively unknown college professor turned politician from New Braunfels, who ran him a close race.

Bob Krueger ended up with 1,139,149 votes, while Tower got 1,151,376.

And while, in an election that's good enough to win, that's not good enough to make a politician overconfident for another race. (In the governor's race in 1978, Hill got 1,116,919 and Clements 1,183,828 votes).

But Tower already is collecting funds which could be used for his re-election effort (although he's not said officially yet whether he's even running).

It's certain that the effort will be an expensive one (judging by the just-concluded Lloyd Bentsen-Jim Collins battle), and it would be surprising if Briscoe, assuming his decision is to go for the Senate, can avoid a primary battle.

Krueger, for example, has indicated that he's not abandoned his political ambitions, either, and there more than likely will be a number of other Democrats who want the chance to try to unseat Texas' most senior statewide officeholder.

But Tower didn't get to be the grand old man of the Texas GOP just by accident, and whoever comes up against him in 1984 had best, as the saying goes, pack a lunch.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Enough is enough

To The Editor:

Mrs. Hall is rightly concerned in regards to the operation and plans of Midland Memorial Hospital. We have been forewarned by some members of the MMH Board, "that if the issues of construction of a satellite drug and alcohol dependency unit and the expansion of the present hospital facilty were brought to the people in a bond election and failed to pass, the MMH Board can undertake the construction with revenue bonds."

Revenue bonds are issued and sold with the "intent" to pay the principal and debt service from generated revenue. As the hospital, to date in '82, is approximately some $1.5 million in the red, where will the revenue be generated. The bonds will have to be retired, so therefore your taxes must increase, in spite of the outcome of any bond election.

If the MMH Board is so intent on this undertaking, as jointly proposed in their planning stage, why go through the expensive farce of holding a bond election. This money could be better spent, along with the some $300,000 that has been wasted in the attempt to wipe-out the competition of Parkview and West Texas for expansion and drug and alcohol units.

It appears that the elected board of MMH that was established to represent the taxpayers is not allowed to make major decision but is only asked to "rubber stamp" decisions made by the board of governors and trustees. What is the business or purpose of the taxpayers elected board? Does the elected board only see to the collection of taxes and the day to day operations of MMH.

I do support expansion of MMH at the present facility. A strong medical facility is needed along with pre- and post-natal care. That facet of the hospitals in the Permian Basin has been sadly neglected. I agree with Mrs. Hall's quote, "Being bigger is not necessarily better, and having a choice is the American way." However, my additional concern is, "Should we allow any taxing authority, to be in direct competition with private industry in furnishing a service or facility when private industry is ready, willing and able, to furnish that service or construct that facility?" Drop the "fight" with Parkview and others over the drug and alcohol unit, spend this amount of money on your present facility. Enough is enough.

I wish to thank Mr. Mickey Cappadonna for the many years of service that he has graciously given to the citizens of the Permian Basin through his work and dedication to Midland Memorial Hospital. Mickey has given of his time and talents to numerous organizations throughout our area. I, for one, feel that we should join together in expressing our feeling of appreciation to Cappadonna.

'Flight of fancy'

To The Editor:

Reportedly, the name change from "Texas International Airlines" to "Continental Airlines" is causing much confusion among both employees and customers. That should come as no surprise.

For years, both of the subject airlines, and most of their competitors, have not known where they were going in West Texas, or where they were landing. They persist in referring to our airport as "Midland-Odessa." And anybody knows that it is the "Midland Regional Air Terminal," within the city limits of Midland and owned lock, stock and barrel by the city of Midland.

It is indeed a pity that the city of Midland doesn't stand on its legal rights and demand that the airlines and the FAA acknowledge its sovereignty. Oh well, I guess hoping that such a down-to-earth matter can be corrected is merely a flight of fancy.

Officer not helpful

To The Editor:

On Monday, Oct. 25, I flew in from Dallas to Midland only to find my car battery dead. The first person I saw moving in an auto (at 4:40 p.m.) was a Midland policeman.

I yelled "hey" and waved to him to which he responded by coming into the parking lot where I was. After corraling my 10-year-old and 1-year-old out of other traffic areas, I proceeded to explain my situation.

First, he said he couldn't boost me because he had no cables. I told him I had them. His next excuse was that his "radio would burn up" if he did it. I said "fine" and proceeded to find someone else to help me with a dead car battery.

I flagged down a young man in a company pickup who stopped to help. While he was helping, an acquaintance drove by with his wife (they live in Kermit), stopped and between his car and the first pickup, my car started.

In the meantime the policeman left the area. It's nice to know the law enforcement officers in Midland are so willing to help a woman with two children 95 miles from home.

Basis is Christianity

To The Editor:

Oh Mr. Hunter and everyone else who shares your liberal beliefs, this country would really go to pot if prayer and God got back in the schools, wouldn't it?!

The country's fathers who wrote the Constitution would rise from their graves right now if they could and clarify to you that this country was founded by men who prayed as they were establishing it. As God gets pushed further and further out of schools, records will verify the steady decline in performance, discipline and morals.

At present, God must almost be smuggled into the classroom, as if we were living in Russia. The very finest education occurs when Christian principles are mingled with general education. (Take God out of anything and it worsens.) As for Moslems, Buddhists, etc.; this country wasn't founded on a "minority religion." Our basis is Christianity and unless it stays as the foundation, you'll see the U.S. deteriorate until it drowns in liberalism!

School lacks books

To The Editor:

How long must our children go to school without enough books? Our school does not have enough science books for all of the fourth grade, so they only get to study in the classroom. This is not right. If the school board needs more books, it should get enough to provide for the needs of all students.

I know Jane Long is not the only school with the lack of books and supplies. I think nine weeks is long enough; don't you?

Men still missing

To The Editor:

As you are aware, many Americans are still unaccounted for throughout North and South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. The families of those men are very anxious to obtain information which will help account for those men.

If any of your readers have information or know someone who has information, and are willing to disuss that information with one of the familes, may I encourage them to contact me. There are many persons from those countries who now reside in Texas. It is the hope of the families that these persons might come forward with information as so many of their countrymen have.

This informtion has already been very helpful, however much more information is needed in order to gain a complete accounting. Information is needed on any live Americans in those countries after April of 1975, as well as information about crash or grave sights. We will be most grateful for any help your readers can give. Thank you.

Proud of Midland

To The Editor:

Thank you for your excellent coverage of the recent dog fighting trial. We the public are very concerned about activity such as this happening in our county.

Being active in the work of trying to change our state laws to make dog fighting a felony in the state of Texas, I see a lot of unconcern, not only by the news media but also by the public officials. We can be proud of Midland County!

Oklahoma has passed a state law making dog fighting a felony in Oklahoma. It is my opinion that the people who want to fight dogs will cease to do it where the laws are stiffer. I look for these people to move into Texas and Louisiana to continue this barbaric sport. We must work to make dog fighting a felony in Texas but until that time we can only protect our animals by arresting and bringing to trial people who want to fight dogs and assess whatever penalities we can at this time.

Again thank you for keeping the public informed on the process of the trials now going on in our county because someone somewhere did not value the life of an animal more than to put one dog in a arena pitted against another dog. I don't think these animals, given a choice, would have chosen to do this.

Fine human being

To The Editor:

In the early 1940s, Jack and Lucy Mashburn brought their bright little 6-year-old son to West Texas. That was indeed a wonderful day for the citizens of Midland, because those three people brought so much to this community that words cannot adequately express their value.

Jack and Lucy were two of the most outstanding educators with whom I have ever had the opportunity to serve. And their son, Jim, was truly one of the finest human beings, community leaders and district attorneys our city has ever known. Recently, Jim joined his wonderful parents in Heaven, leaving a lovely wife, two beautiful daughters, and a handsome, brave young son. What a marvelous legacy Jim left both his family and his city.

We'll miss you so very much, Jim. You were a great friend, father, and husband. It must have been you they were talking about when they invented the words "citizen" and "Midlanders." I know that Heaven has gained a great man. In your own words, may you continue each day in heaven to "...learn something new — and see something beautiful."

Special thanks

To The Editor:

Our very special appreciation to the Museum of the Southwest for the fabulous presentation by Hector Garza on the Day of the Dead. The exhibition and artifacts were authentic and showed a very clear perspective of the rituals and celebrations which are so very much a part of the Hispanic culture.

It was also a joy to see so many senior citizens enjoying this very special treat and night out. The people at the museum went all out to have everyone feel comfortable and have a good time. The movie was also very good and the bibliographic material and explanation were very well done.

The altar and delightful art brought a lot of memories of the way our culture celebrates in a very special way the day when we are called by our heavenly Father back home.

It is our sincere hope that the Museum of the Southwest will continue to bring more exhibitions of the many cultures which respresent the great city of Midland in which we are so very proud to be a part of.

SPEAKING OUT

UTPB deserves to have four-year college status

By CURTIS POOL

Curtis Pool is a landman-geologist who maintains offices in both Midland and Odessa. He is a graduate of the University of Texas-Permian Basin and a member of Friends of UTPB.

I read, with a great deal of amusement, the statements of "underhanded...shock and disappointment...conned a little bit, etc.", attributed to Midland College president, Dr. Jess H. Parrish in the article "UT Regents Favor Four-Year Status For UTPB" on the front page of The Reporter-Telegram for Saturday Oct. 9, 1982. Those statements should have been run in the comic section where they rightfully belong!

Dr. Parrish is surely aware that Friends of UTPB has been working diligently for more than the past year for four-year status for UTPB. Friends of UTPB has over 1,000 members in Midland alone, individuals from all walks of life including many very prominent people, companies and organizations plus about 5,000 others throughout the entire Permian Basin who have signed letters in favor of four-year status. These Friends of UTPB inundated the Board of Regents with personal letters requesting the four-year status be enacted NOW and that's what caused the regents to make the recommendation.

The upper-level concept was brought out in the 1960s and has never worked anywhere it has been tried! With very few exceptions, the original upper-level schools have now been converted to four-year universities. The only places where the upper-level concept has come close to working is in major metropolitan areas with large concentrated populations...exactly the opposite as found in the area served by UTPB. And, those upper-level schools still operating are trying for full four-year status. In 1979, less than ⅓ of the students transferring from junior colleges to four-year universities had enough hours to attend an upper-level school. Only 1,927 actually entered an upper-level institution. UTPB would have to enroll ALL eligible transferees in the entire state of Texas to have just its minimum enrollment needs. To suggest that UTPB has the slightest chance of survival in its present form is asinine at the very least!

Let's look at who opposes four-year status for UTPB. It is certainly not the majority of the board of regents nor the coordinating board nor Governor Clements nor Bill Hobby nor the Legislature nor most of the political candidates since Friends of UTPB has solidified those areas. Opposition does not come from the thousands of Midland residents who attend, have attended and graduated from UTPB and without which, might have never received an education!

No opposition is encountered from the thousands of area school children from kindergarten to high school seniors who will someday attend UTPB. Nor from their parents who recognize and are thankful for the value seen in having the inexpensive option of a nearby major four-year university. No opposition from area industry and business who reap the benefits of a prosperous area surrounding a major four-year university furnishing culture and providing upward mobility for the citizens as well as a pool of highly trained and specialized technical manpower to fill employment needs. Neither does opposition come from the thousands of Midland County and area residents who have settled here since the founding of UTPB, who have no knowledge of the antipathy felt for UTPB by the Midland "leaders" and whose only concern about UTPB is "Why isn't it a four-year university?"

The only real opposition to four-year status for UTPB comes from the area junior college and from a very small group of die-hard, antagonistic Midland "leaders." The junior colleges oppose four-year status because they predict injury to the junior colleges. They can offer no valid facts or reasons for their position and in order to justify their opposition, they completely ignore facts and figures showing that junior colleges actually thrive and prosper near four-year universities.

Further, the two institutions serve different markets with the junior college's main function being with vocational technical programs serving a community and the four-year school serving the needs of an area. The opposition from the group of so-called Midland "leaders" stems from the "fraudulent" locating of UTPB in Ector County at its inception rather than, as the "leaders" emphatically state, "in Midland County, where it should have been in the first place." That is the only reason these Midland "leaders" have for opposing four-year status for UTPB but they continue to villify UTPB, Odessa, its citizens and everything connected with Ector County in order to satisfy their infantile jealousies and they would actually deny over 330,000 citizens in the Permian Basin a four-year university in order to "get revenge" for the imagined wrongs committed against them by the "Odessans" during the initial founding of UTPB. In spite of this opposition 35 percent of the UTPB enrollment and graduates come from Midland County so UTPB has not been all bad for Midland regardless of the statements to the contrary made by the "leaders."

I truly question the value of such "leadership" and suggest that the needs of the 330,000 area citizens should take precedence over the need to continue a time and energy wasting vendetta directed toward Odessa and UTPB. How can there be any valid opposition to making UTPB a four-year university when it would help so many people over such a wide area for so long?

It appears that the die has been cast and that diligent efforts by many, many dedicated Permian Basin concerned citizens are about to be rewarded with four-year status for UTPB in the very near future. I predict that it will become the greatest boon that this area has ever received. To that end, I suggest that everyone in the area become involved and get behind this movement to speed up the process. Let's all join forces for the common benefit of the entire Permian Basin and for the future of our children.

Frank Mcfarlin can help you to stop that habit that you have been trying unsuccesfully to stop for so long. Hypnosis is wonderful, relaxing, and excellent for training your mind for many different things. For a free consultation or more information, call Frank McFarlin at 694-5485.

You can kick the habit with hypnotherapy

Everyone has a bad habit he/she would like to change! Some of the most common include smoking, drinking, and overeating. Once you really get into the habit, it seems almost impossible for you to change it, even though you may really hate it. Even though you really want to stop, you just can't seem to do it. You have tried everything possible, but you just can't! Well, you can!! When everything seems to have failed and you just can't quit and it seems that the habit will follow you around the rest of your life, call on Frank McFarlin. Clinical hypnotherapy could just be your answer.

Hypnosis is widely misconceived by the public today. Because of its gross misuse early in its history, hypnosis has been looked upon as something bad, some sort of witchcraft, and has been shunned. But when properly used as it is today, hypnotherapy can control weight, smoking,and drinking, improve memory, concentration, study habits, social life, business life, and marital life, eliminate frustrations, anxieties, tensions, and stress,... the list goes on and on. Anything that you really want to do, hypnosis can help you to "train" your mind.

Everything you do is controlled by your sub-conscious mind. All actions, reactions, speech, etc. comes from your sub-conscious mind. That's why even though you may consciously want to quit smoking, it is so hard to actually quit. Your sub-conscious is so used to the habit that you have to make a conscious effort over and over and over again until you "train" your mind to reject that next cigarette. Hypnotism allows the sub-conscious to come through and be open to suggestion from the hypnotist, who communicates directly with it. But the hypnotist cannot make you do anything you do not want to do! Your mind can and will reject any unfavorable suggestions. You must really want to change your habit so that your mind will not reject that suggestion. The direct communication with your sub-conscious allows you to "kick the habit" in only a matter of three or four sessions, not a period of months or even years that it may take you to do it consciously.

The state of hypnosis is something that is also grossly misconceived. A hypnotic trance is merely a state of relaxation, very extreme and yet very natural. While in a hypnotic trance, you are not "asleep" and unaware, instead you are conscious and aware. If anything, your senses are more acutely aware than normal. The feeling is one of tremendous relaxation, but total awareness. Everyone goes through several hypnotic trances every day, both right before you go to sleep, and right as you wake up.

A hypnotherapist is merely a coach to help you to train your mind to react in the desired manner at any given circumstance. He helps your mind to control emotions, pain, habits, memory, etc. Hypnotism is safe, easy, and effective, and is finding widespread acceptance in modern times as people realize that the myths associated with hypnotism are merely exaggerated tales. Hypnotism is a wonderful treatment for many people, as long as they really want to be helped. If you would like more information on hypnotherapy, call Frank McFarlin for a free 30-minute consultation at 694-5485.Hypnotherapy could be the cure that you have been hunting for, but gave up on!

Cattleman's Steak is a special dining pleasure

Everyone deserves a treat every now and then! No matter what you do or who you are, you deserve to be treated at times. If you enjoy eating, it sometimes seems a hopeless case to find a place that you really consider a treat without feeling that the place is feasting on your pocketbook. Good food at an affordable price is often hard to find. Or is it? If you just can't seem to find the right place to eat, with delicious food at a moderate price, you just haven't looked in the right places. Tonight, treat your family, as well as yourself, to a pleasant evening meal at Cattleman's Steak House.

One trip to Cattleman's and you'll love what owners Bill and Pat Henkle have done to serve you. The pleasant, relaxed atmosphere and the friendly, efficient staff will make you see what a treat eating really can be! Once you have eaten there, you will want to go back again and again. But, for as good as the service is and as friendly as the staff is, nothing quite compares with the delicious food.

Appetizers at Cattleman's range from an extra large or regular size mountain of onion rings, to shrimp cocktail, fried zucchini, or fried mushrooms. Maybe a hot bowl of homemade soup, steaming chili, or frito pie would better suit your tastes. The salad bar at Cattleman's is truly a work of art.

To complement your dinner, Bill and Pat have included a good selection of wines, champagnes, and sherry, ranging from inexpensive to exquisite. They serve only the premium beers, those generally considered to be the best.

Now comes the steak, cooked to perfection just the way you love steak. Dinner steak, club steak, or ribeye would be the perfect way to fill even the hungriest tummy. Sirloins come in all sizes, from sirloin for one up to sirloin for eight. T-Bone steak is an old favorite at Cattleman's, and comes in three sizes to satisfy even the hungriest appetite. Prime rib is a prime choice of many hungry diners (when available).

Steak is not the only specialty at Cattleman's, seafood is quite popular. Delicious fried shrimp, oysters, scallops, catfish, and even froglegs are available at Cattleman's. And although every item is a special treat at Cattleman's, you owe it to yourself to try their special specialty: chicken fried steak. Other menu items include chicken strips, hamburger steak, and Virginia ham steak. All entrees include a hearty baked potato and a trip to the wonderful salad bar.

For those of you who are not quite so hungry, Bill and Pat provide the all-American favorite hamburger and cheeseburger, each available in two sizes. If you really want to spice it up, try their jalapeno burgers. Grilled cheese, ham and cheese, steak sandwiches, and a delightful turkey, ham and cheese sandwich are waiting for you there if you only have a light appetite. A trip to the salad bar may be made without a dinner order.

Kids are welcome at Cattleman's, too. Special child's plates are available for the little ones. Beverages include tea, milk, soft drinks, and coffee. And the dessert is heavenly, if you have any room left after the steak. Top it all off with scrumptious cherry or blueberry cheesecake or delicious pecan pie. Hours at Cattleman's Steak House are from 10:00 to 2:00 and 5:00 to 9:30, Monday through Friday, and 5:00 to 10:00 on Saturdays. Cattleman's is closed on Sundays. And if the parking lot is full when you get there, go on and stop. It almost always is, and you very rarely have to wait more than five minutes to be seated.

Cattleman's Steak House, at 3300 N. Big Spring in Midland, is the best thing to happen to Midland since... well, oil! Treat yourself to an evening meal at Cattleman's tonight and see for yourself why it is so special. And if the parking lot is full, don't worry. It almost always is, but you almost never have to wait more than five minutes to be seated.

Dream vacations every year with Adventure

Although it is usually a very enjoyable experience, travel can also present a few problems. It seems that no matter how meticulous you are in your planning, you always leave a few details undone. There is so much to do to prepare for a trip now, something will invariably be left out. You need help! That's where the friendly staff at Adventure Travel comes in. They help thousands of people plan their dream vacation each and every year. They are experienced, reliable, friendly, and efficient. For the perfect vacation, step into the world of Adventure Travel.

Whether it be a trip to Hawaii or a Caribbean cruise, most people see their dream vacation as, just that, a dream. They see it as a luxury to dream about that is far out of reach. That is totally untrue! You will be surprised at the cost of your dream vacation. It will more than likely be less than you expected. All you have to do is to put back just a small amount each and every week in your own little "travel fund," and you could be dancing and dining on a luxury liner, or looking out of the airplane at the blue sky and ocean at this time next year instead of sitting at home reading the newspaper! It is really quite an experience. Visit Adventure Travel for details on your own little dream vacation.

There's no vacation quite like a Norwegian Line Caribbean Cruise. If you don't already have a dream vacation, this would be the one to take. This is the big travel trend of the 80's. And no wonder! Where else can you escape to year-round sun and be waited on around-the-clock as you enjoy the fantastic experience of being at sea? Chooses any of five great ships and six imaginative itineraries from NCL. Favorite destinations include St. Thomas, Nassau, and San Juan. Effective immediately, NCL will offer FREE ROUND TRIP AIR FARE to Miami from over 100 cities in conjunction with NCL's 7-night Caribbean cruises sailing from Miami until January 16,1983! See the professional staff at Adventure Travel; it costs no more for us to book your vacation than if you made the reservations directly with NCL. And we can also help you select your cabin and take care of most of the details. This is just one more way that the friendly staff at Adventure Travel stands out fron the rest.

If you are ready to take that vacation that you have always dreamed of but never thought you would get to take, cal on your friendly neighbors at Adventure Travel. They can help you with all necessary arrangements to make your vacation truly a once-in-a-lifetime experience. And if you want to take a trip for the Christmas holidays, or even give a trip as a gift to someone you really love, NOW IS THE TIME!! Number of farmers quitting up

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The proportion of farmers who quit farming in the 10th Federal Reserve District during the last six months rose substantially higher than last year, a Federal Reserve Bank economist said in Lincoln Friday.

In the past six months, 10th District agricultural bankers reported that 4.5 percent of the farmers in their trade areas went out of business or filed bankruptcy, said Marvin Duncan, a vice president and agricultural economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, Mo.

The 10th District includes all of Nebraska, Kansas, Wyoming and Colorado, parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico, and western Missouri.

Although the number of farmers who left business in the district still remained a small percentage of total farmers, it did represent a 41 percent increase from the normal pattern, Duncan said in an interview.

He repeated some of his comments Friday afternoon during an agricultural symposium for Nebraska legislators at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln.

"About 4 percent of the farmers have undergone partial liquidation due to financial difficulties - nearly three times the normal proportion," Duncan said.

District bankers expect another 3.7 percent of the farmers be forced from business or forced to liquidate substantial portions of their businesses during the next six months, Duncan said.

Duncan said patterns in the Chicago and Minneapolis Federal Reserve Districts are similar to those of the 10th District.

But he said the proportions of farmers leaving agriculture and in financial distress in the two districts appear to be slightly larger than in the 10th District."

Farmers - and the businesses which support them - are experiencing the "most difficult business climate since the 1930s," he said. Duncan said next year may be even more difficult.

To make matters worse, "no great improvement in business conditions is likely before mid-decade," Duncan said.

He said that three straight years of depressed farm income have "drained the liquidity of many farm businesses — sapped the emotional resilienee of farmers and their families as well."

Duncan said farm income this year is expected to decline 24 percent to about $19 billion.

"Looking ahead to 1983, only modest improvement in farm income appears likely," Duncan said. "Some improvement in livestock prices may result from growing personal income levels and increased numbers of job holders . . ., but burdensome supplies will limit grain price improvement."

He said the current farm economic situation has resulted in significant declines in farm real estate values across the Midwest.

Duncan said the most recent agricultural credit survey of 10th District bankers showed that credit conditions remained mixed and fund availability remains generally favorable.

He said although loan to deposit ratios are somewhat higher than earlier this year, they still remain at about the levels of 1981.

While loan repayment rates have improved somewhat throughout the second and third quarters of 1982, Duncan said the index of requests for loan renewals or extensions continues well above that of recent years.

Duncan said the months ahead might best be characterized as the "winter of discontent for America's farmers."

Study says rally enriched every household

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional study released Friday concludes that the surge in the stock market since August has had the effect of adding about $600 to the wealth of every American household.

The Joint Economic Committee study said the rebounding stock market has also indirectly added another $400 in increased household wealth through an improved financial outlook for pension and retirement plans that often have large stock holdings.

Lowell Gallaway, the committee economist who wrote the report, called the figures "rough approximations" that provide an idea of the magnitude of the stock market's impact.

He also acknowledged that the bulk of the benefits of the stock market boom are being felt by only those households that own common stock, about 30 percent of the nation's total. He said most of those households have incomes above the national median.

And, Gallaway added, "It's not in the sense of dollars in their pocket. It's dollars in their wealth position. The people feel wealthier."

He also said the other 70 million or more households that have no common stock holdings still benefit from the market strength through the increased capital activity it generates.

Many of those families, the study said, are also covered by retirement or pension plans with stock holdings.

"It would seem that the bull market of 1982 has laid and is laying the foundation for substantial progress in promoting economic growth in the United States," the study said.

In effect, it said, the 30 percent increase in the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks over the past three months has bolstered the worth of the stock held by millions of households and at the same time increased the liquidity of those households' assets.

Assets are a combination of financial holdings such as cash or stocks that can be quickly turned into cash and tangible holdings such as a house, appliances and cars that are not as easy to convert.

"With higher levels of wealth, especially of the more liquid kind, individuals will feel freer to make additional commitments to consumption," the study said.

At the same time, it said, savings should increase because households can use the increased wealth from the stock market to maintain or expand consumption, leaving a greater share of their current income available for other purposes.

English islands international centers

LONDON (DPA) — The English Channel Islands of Guernsey and Jersey, and the Isle of Man in the Irish Sea in recent years have successfully grown into global "offshore" international banking and investment centers.

The islands attract world capital by limiting personal and company income taxes to a maximum of 20 percent, and by imposing no capital gains, corporate or capital transfer taxes.

Investment firms promise "private and confidential service" or assure their clients that their name is "synonymous with security and discretion." In addition, political stability in the islands has contributed to the financial transformation.

The result is that the inflow of money is so great that the number of banks increased from 32 in 1965 to 132 in 1981. The number of registered money funds rose from 12 to 212 in the same period.

The money comes from Britain and many Continental European countries, as well as from the United States, Hong Kong, Australia and India.

The islands ar self-administered, largely without political parties, allowing business to function, as the quarterly review of a major London bank recently put it, free from the "changing whims of doctrinaire governments."

While having no formal legal autonomy in their relations with London, in practice the islands enjoy considerable monetary and economic independence. Their currencies stand in one-to-one parity with sterling, and the assets of the island banks are included in the estimates of the amount of money and reserves for the United Kingdom. In 1973 their share was 1.7 percent, but by last year it had risen to almost 4 percent.

Of the three, Jersey is far ahead, with 73.9 percent of bank-held assets, while Guernsey has 19.9 percent. The Isle of Man has 6.7 percent.

This is likely to change, however, since an increasing strain on its facilities caused Jersey in the 1970s to make it more difficult for new arrivals to settle there.

In the same period, Guernsey rapidly began to catch up. The Isle of Man is currently doing all it can to attract more people and institutions to its shores, although there have been some setbacks.

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

Repeal of Blue Law advised

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Repealing the "Texas Blue Law," and strengthening activities of the Texas Industrial Commission — including on small and minority business matters — are among the recommendations of House Business and Industry Committee in its interim report to the 1983 Legislature.

In its report, the Subcommittee on the Texas Blue law recommends that the Legislature abolish the law, saying the subcommittee has "heard many arguments in favor of repeal."

"Those in favor of repeal...say that the law is an intrusion of government in their lives, regulating what items can or cannot be purchased on certain days of the week," the report comments.

"Other arguments are that the law is anti-consumer, anti-free enterprise, and a special interest law which does not belong in today's society."

Several efforts have been made in recent years to abolish the law, and another effort is expected in 1983.

The Subcommittee on a Department of Commerce makes no recommendation on combining the Industrial Commission and some other State agencies, noting that that matter is under study by other groups (including a task force appointed by Gov. Bill Clements).

But the panel does recommend that the TIC "be strengthened in several ways," including creation of a research section "to perform in-depth economic studies that will analyze trends and industry changes to help pinpoint industries that should be targeted for location" in Texas.

Analysis should include market potential, feasibility studies on "growth industries," regional location information, and "a manual on starting and operating a business in Texas."

In addition to increased assistance to small and minority businesses, TIC should work to increase "job-creating international sales and (to) attract revenue-generating foreign industry by increased market information, valid foreign contacts and trade leads, and a thorough knowledge of trade procedures."

"The range of international activities should be expanded in Mexico and South America, and operations should include trading in Europe, Africa and the Middle East, "the report comments.

"Foreign location target companies should be those which are presently selling their products in the United States from plants outside the United States.

"Recruiting and site locating these industries will result in an increased number of jobs for Texas and increased state and local tax collections."

The subcommittee also recommends that Federal funding of the Energy Utilization Program, administered through TIC, "be replaced with State funding" since Federal funds are being cut.

The program, the report says, "has saved more than $4 billion in energy costs in five years, kept some industries profitable and saved Texas jobs that would have been lost by closing plants that would have been unprofitable because of higher fuel costs."

Another recommendation is that the industrial revenue bond financing program "be examined for a tax cost-benefit ratio to the United States and Texas, "with a data base prepared" to provide elected government officials with socioeconomic changes brought about by the bond program within the state."

Also proposed is "possible legislation" to waive the $1,500 appliation fee on industrial revenue bonds for small issue projects" of less than $500,000, to make it "more economically feasible for small businesses to use the revenue bond program for financing."

The Subcommittee on Industrial Standards calls on the Legislature to "investiagate the possibility" of statewide licensing for air-conditioning and heating contactors, coming that it "concludes and recognizes that problems do existing with the electrical contractors."

"There have been instances," the subcommittee reports, "of contractors wanting to bid on a particular project in a city where they are not licensed. They are told the examination will not be given for another six months."

"This causes the contractor to lose that particular job, and consequently, the job is awarded to a local contractor.

"Another area of concern is that of faulty wiring installation, "with some instances "of homes and residences" (mainly in unincorporated areas) with wiring installed "that presents a threat to life and property."

The Subcommittee on Condominium Housing Laws says "there is adequate need for new condominium housing legislation," and recommends that the Legislature proceed with legislation along the lines which was considered in 1981.

That legislation was passed by the House, but was amended in the Senate and failed to receive final approval.

Amarillo bank fails

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Depositors in a bank that failed because of uncollectable loans will become automatic depositors in a new bank that will open Monday morning at the same location, officials said.

The Texas Bank of Amarillo failed Friday because of substantial loan losses, but its deposits were assumed by the First Amarillo Bancorporation Inc.

The failed bank had more than $1 million in bad loans and its closing was related in part to loans made to video game companies that filed for bankruptcy recently, the Amarillo Globe-News reported today.

Texas Banking Commissioner Robert E. Stewart announced Friday night that the bank had voluntarily closed. Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation spokesman Bill Olcheski said hours later in Washington that the bank would reopen Monday as the First Bank of Amarillo.

He said all depositors in the failed bank automatically would become depositors in the First Bank of Amarillo.

Jim Melton, president of the new bank and a former vice president of First National Bank of Amarillo, said the arrangement to assume the deposits of the failed bank was made through sealed bidding at the FDIC office in Dallas. He said State District Judge Naomi Harner then approved the transaction.

The newspaper said at least 12 financial institutions from around the state were invited to participate in the Dallas bidding.

Olcheski said the assumption of the failed bank's liabilities avoids the necessity for payment of Texas Bank of Amarillo's 3,900 accounts.

Under terms of the new charter, The First Amarillo Bancorporation will assume $9.8 million in deposits and other liabilities and pay a purchase premium of $982,000 to the FDIC for securities and certain other assets of the failed bank.

The FDIC will advance $5.7 million to the assuming bank and retain assests with a book value of $8.3 million, said Olcheski.

He said the FDIC, which insures bank deposits up to $100,000, expects to recover a substantial portion of its outlay through liquidation of assets not transferred to the assuming bank. He said the FDIC will have priority in its claim over shareholders of the closed bank.

"The closing of the bank was caused by uncollectible loans which had to be classified as losses," the State Banking Commission said in a prepared statement. "The loans could no longer be counted as bank assets, forcing the bank into insolvency. Loans and other losses exceeded the bank's capital."

Texas Bank listed deposits of $11.4 million and capital of $1 million for the quarter ended Sept. 31.

The newspaper said the failed bank was listed as the holder of $500,000 in loans made to three video game companies that filed for bankruptcy recently.

The closure came after months of audits and inspections of the bank, the newspaper said.

West Virginia bank depositors out in cold

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Dozens of stunned customers, some of them clutching withdrawal slips, were left waiting out in the freezing cold Friday as the First National Bank of South Charleston was ordered closed.

The bank — only the second to fail in West Virginia since the Great Depression — was closed by the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency about 8 a.m. after a last-ditch attempt by bank officials to stave off the forced closing failed in U.S. District Court.

By Friday afternoon, the bank officially ceased to exist, its liabilities assumed by Charleston National Bank under an agreement with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Under the agreement, no one would lose money deposited in the failed bank, officials said.

But many customers were caught off guard Friday morning, arriving at the bank in 32-degree weather to find its doors locked and notices of the failure taped to the window.

"The way they did it seems so cold," said Delma Beach, wiping tears from her eyes. "To let you know this way, well, it's just cold."

Ronnie Smith said he was getting married Saturday and needed cash for the ceremony.

Others said they had heard rumors a failure was possible.

"I guess we should have taken heed a couple of months ago. But you try to keep faith in your community people. We try to do business with the local firms," said Corene Bryant, who said she has banked with First National since 1965.

Ann Rudinsky said she also heard talk of a collapse.

"When we heard the rumors, we called the bank," she said. "They said everything was all right. We have now opened a savings account here.

THE MONEY MARKET IS CHANGING.

A law enacted recently will enable First National to compete with the money market mutual funds. Here are some general facts on this unbeatable new investment:

Q When will First National begin offering this new investment?

A. Within thirty to sixty days, you'll be able to open a new money market account at First National, and take advantage of high interest rates, liquidity, and investment security of FDIC Insurance.

Q How will Midland benefit from First National's money market accounts?

A. Funds deposited in First National are used locally - not sent to financial centers in other parts of the country. Your locally deposited funds finance the credit needs of our community and region.

Q Why should I invest in a money market account at First National instead of a money market mutual fund?

A. In addition to our personal service, our competitive rate of return, and easy access to your money, bank deposits at First National are insured with the FDIC - security available only at a bank.
