Texas part of U.S.

WASHINGTON — Cartographers won't have to redraw their maps after all: Texas was, is and shall remain part of the United States. So says a federal judge in Washington, who this week rejected the contention of Republic of Texas "chief ambassador" Richard McLaren that Texas is a captive nation illegally annexed by the United States in 1845.

Tapes show Hubbell theory on probe

"Everybody knows Seth, and knows I couldn't have not advised him. So I was billing it, but for ... some reason, I haven't figured out why — Hillary billed it, my time as hers. That's kinda the theory."
— Webster Hubbell, in a conversation taped while he was in prison

■ In recorded prison conversations, Hubbell suggested that prosecutors might have been investigating Hillary Clinton because they believed she had double-billed a legal client.

By Larry Margasak
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In conversations taped while he was in prison, Webster Hubbell raised the possibility that Whitewater prosecutors were investigating Hillary Rodham Clinton for double billing on her legal work. "That's kinda the theory," Hubbell told a friend.

The former associate attorney general also suggested that it was "highly possible" that Mrs. Clinton once drew up a controversial document in an Arkansas land deal that is now under investigation by prosecutors.

The tapes also show that Hubbell, even in his darkest days of incarceration, maintained unswerving loyalty to the first family. At one point, he asked his wife to make that clear to White House friends, even giving her the words to say.

Hubbell's phone conversations were taped by prison authorities in 1996. Portions were made available to The Associated Press by the House Government Reform and Oversight Committee. The recording policy is routine in federal prisons and Hubbell was aware of the taping.

In an Oct. 30, 1996 taped conversation between Hubbell and his attorney, John Nields, they discuss amending past tax returns. Nields told Hubbell he should review an amended return the lawyer had prepared and check the numbers "to make sure it's right."

"Which I should have done last time," Hubbell acknowledged.

Nields also referred to the presidential election six days away with remarks that investigators for the Republican-controlled committee characterized as possibly a reference to a potential presidential pardon, even though the word "pardon" is not on the tape.

'Brain Matters'

Hands-on exhibit makes for brainy students

By Richard Enos
Staff Writer

It's the most complex computer known and it's behind all of our successes and ideas. The human brain continues to mystify scientists and fuels humankind's many innovations.

Some young Midlanders on Friday received a quick lesson on how this living computer works.

The Museum of the Southwest's Children's Museum recently unveiled "Brain Matters," an interactive exhibit on the brain. A group of Midland Christian School seventh-graders toured the new wonder.

Kristin Wilson, the children's museum curator, said the exhibit is an excellent hands-on way for children to learn about this complicated part of the body.

"It's an aspect of science that they don't usually get to see," she said. "It's all presented very easily for kids to understand. Since it's hands on, kids remember and they retain the information."

The exhibit is composed of a variety of models, computer simulations, motor and visual skills tests, and even a freeze-dried human brain.

There's "Brain Twister," a unique bean bag throw. And visitors can place a pair of special glasses over their eyes that distort their vision so that a target appears off center. It takes practice to hit the target.

"It's illustrating how your brain learns. The brain will learn how to adjust your throwing pattern," Ms. Wilson explained.

Children also can look at magnetic resonance images

$5,000 Stop DWI donation helps finance breathalyzers for local law enforcement

By Rick López
Staff writer

In the near future, local law enforcement officers will be able to prove a driver's level of intoxication within minutes.

With the help of a $5,000 donation from Stop DWI, both the Midland Police Department and Texas Department of Public Safety soon will be equipped with five or six preliminary breathalyzers, which will allow officers to administer initial sobriety tests at drinking parties or traffic stops.

DPS Sgt. Carey Matthews explained that the preliminary breathalyzers can be used as part of a field sobriety test whenever officers suspect that someone is under the influence of alcohol.

For adults, the test can be used to determine whether the officer should take the subject to the jail for a test on the state-certified intoxylizer or allow them to go home. An arrest can't be made based on the results on the preliminary test, Matthews said.

However, minors are not allowed to have even a trace of alcohol in their system. Officers can cite minors with any detectable amount of alcohol in their system and suspend their driver's license for up to 60 days, based on what the portable unit indicates.

The new equipment also will aid law enforcement in cases when a driver is arrested for DWI and the vehicle is taken from him or her. If a passenger in the vehicle can pass the sobriety test and has a valid driver's license, the vehicle can be turned over to that passenger, Matthews said.

The preliminary breathalyzer is smaller than the intoxylizer housed at the Midland County jail. The new machine is about the size of an index card, but approximately 2 inches thicker. Officers attach the mouthpiece to the top of the machine to administer the test.

The device has two buttons — one cleans out the

El Niño worsens drought, unrest in Brazil

AFOGADOS DA INGAZEIRA, Brazil (AP) — The corn had withered long ago when Sebastiao da Silva's parched fields at last produced some food: a rodent.

Da Silva held up the fur-covered prea, an animal the size of a small rabbit, and a grin cracked his face, baked to leather by years of sun. "At least tonight, my family will have something to eat," he said.

Here in the country's vast northeastern outback — which has been without rain for six months — there isn't much else to consume. An estimated 10 million people are at risk of going hungry — and some have turned to looting government warehouses.

Droughts occur here every few years, but this year's has been exacerbated by El Niño, a phenomenon that affects weather patterns, creating dryness in some areas and heavier-than-normal rain in others.

The drought also has created friction between the federal government and peasant groups backed by the Catholic Church. As social unrest deepens, the misery takes on political tones.

Brazilians call it "the drought industry": When property values drop, landowners increase their holdings. Meanwhile, the government builds reservoirs and wells on large estates, which are worth more when the rains return.

Local politicians also welcome a drought in an election year. "It's easier to buy votes when the people are starving and will agree to anything for food," said Catholic Bishop Francisco de Mesquita Filho of Afogados da Ingazeira.

Cattle carcasses dot the dusty scrubland near Afogados Da Ingazeira, a town 1,200 miles northeast of Rio de Janeiro. Officials say 60 percent of Pernambuco state, where the town is located, is without water.

Desperate families try to stave off starvation by eating cactus — and by looting. Last month, 700 men, women and children raided a government warehouse, carrying off almost 13 tons of rice, beans, flour, manioc meal, corn and pasta.

"We lost our crops, and most of the time we can't afford to buy food because there are no jobs," said Ivani Teodoro Nascimento. "When my husband woke me up at 5 a.m. to join the looters, I didn't think twice."

The looting lasted 30 minutes, long enough for the couple to make off with 120 packages of pasta and 75 of corn meal, Mrs. Nascimento said. She kept half and gave the rest to neighbors who also needed food.

"I was scared, but if I have to I'll do it again," she said.

Local authorities are reluctant to prosecute.

"There may have been one or two agitators among them, but most of the looters were honest, hard-working people who had nothing to eat," said warehouse manager Carlos Alberto Jose Brasil.

Former Rwandan official pleads guilty to genocide

ARUSHA, Tanzania (AP) — The prime minister who led Rwanda's government during the 1994 genocide of more than 500,000 Tutsis pleaded guilty Friday and promised to testify against other alleged ringleaders of the slaughter.

The United Nations said Jean Kambanda was the first person in history to plead guilty to such charges before an international tribunal, including the one at Nuremberg.

It also marked the first verdict for the tribunal, which was set up in November 1994 and has been criticized for being slow and bumbling.

His voice clear and steady, Kambanda, 42, admitted to four genocide charges and two charges of crimes against humanity, the Swiss-based Hirondelle Press Agency reported.

After each plea, murmurs rippled through the packed courtroom in the northern Tanzania town of Arusha.

Many Rwandans, their memories of the massacre still fresh, welcomed the confession and hoped it would unleash more convictions. U.N. prosecutors hoped it would foster reconciliation in Rwanda, where Hutu rebels and the Tutsi-led army continue to fight.

In the Arusha court, tribunal president Judge Laity Kama, asked Kambanda if he understood the charges, and whether he had made his plea under threat or pressure.

Kambanda replied that he made his plea "consciously and voluntarily," and assured the court, "My plea is not equivocal. I have understood," Hirondelle reported.

Kama then pronounced him guilty.

The gravest penalty the tribunal can impose is life in prison. A presentencing hearing was scheduled for Aug. 31.

Deputy Prosecutor Bernard Muna said Kambanda was willing to testify against others accused of genocide. The tribunal has another 22 people in custody, and has indicted 35 in all.

The tribunal has agreed to give Kambanda's wife and two children special protection, but has not guaranteed him a reduced sentence in exchange for his cooperation, Muna told Hirondelle.

But under the tribunal's rules, he cannot be tried again in Rwandan courts for the same crime. On April 24, the Rwandan government executed 22 genocide convicts by firing squad, the first executions for the slaughter.

Hirondelle, a Swiss charity, is reporting on the genocide trials in an effort to provide Rwandans and others with unbiased information from this remote town.

Louise Arbour, chief prosecutor of the U.N. tribunals for Yugoslavia and Rwanda, said Kambanda's plea could help heal the genocide's wounds.

"I hope that this admission of guilt will begin to bring some solace to the survivors," Arbour said at her headquarters in the Netherlands.

The tribunal has been severely criticized for its slow progress. U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan plans to visit it next week, and on Thursday, the Security Council approved a third courtroom to try to speed up trials.

Kambanda is the highest-ranking former political leader in the tribunal's custody.

He led a hard-line Hutu government after the assassination of Prime Minister Agathe Uwilingiyimana on April 7, 1994. She was among the first killed in a bloodbath sparked by the shooting down of President Juvenal Habyarimana's plane the day before.

The indictment said as prime minister, Kambanda controlled government ministers and military officers during the massacres.

He was also accused of distributing weapons he knew would be used in the slayings. In a radio address, Kambanda incited massacres of Tutsis, saying genocide was "an indispensable weapon in the fight against the enemy."

The killing stopped only when Tutsi rebels seized power in July 1994.

East-west split in Germany deepens

HALLE, Germany (AP) — Home for Hans-Joachim Richter is a decaying communist-era housing project at the edge of town. Not the most appealing place to live, but still, the 52-year-old policeman is ahead of many eastern Germans: He has a job.

Even so, he can't shake anger about feeling short-changed in a country that has been united for nearly eight years.

"We're not equal citizens," he complains. "They" — he means the federal government far to the west in Bonn — "definitely haven't done enough for the new German states."

But what rankles is not just that the east remains economically behind, with unemployment twice as high as in the west. It's the broken promises of traditional German centrist politics that have led to growing estrangement among easterners.

The "flowering landscapes" that Chancellor Helmut Kohl and his Christian Democrats promised the new citizens of a united Germany haven't materialized. The rival Social Democrats likewise seem to offer little that relieves desperation in the east.

Increasingly, it's the extremes that offer comfort. As a result, mainstream politicians and academics now fear the economic gap is dividing the country politically, too.

Dissatisfied eastern voters have until now turned to the ex-communist Party of Democratic Socialism, a home-grown option for those who feel colonized by the west and cherish what seems like a simpler, more stable time under communism.

But in a shock for Germany's conservative political culture, young easterners are venting their rage by backing right-wing extremists whose simple slogans speak to their frustration: "German jobs for Germans" and "Criminal foreigners out."

Many worry that the success of the right-wing German People's Union — the party won 13 percent of the vote in Saxony-Anhalt last weekend — could be repeated in another eastern German state election in September, and that the splintered far right could unite for Sept. 27 national elections.

It's already clear that Kohl, who is seeking a fifth term, can no longer count on easterners' votes as he did in 1990 and 1994.

Resentment over the pain of switching to capitalism has exploded, especially among people under 30 who are stuck without work or who fear for their jobs.

Support for the far right has not been limited to shaved-headed neo-Nazi youths known as skinheads, who regularly terrorize neighborhoods, especially in the east.

A much larger group of people has concluded that democracy and capitalism, joyfully welcomed after the 1989 fall of the Berlin Wall, don't work. Polls have shown that only two-thirds of easterners say it was right to introduce the western political system.

European leaders take giant step in the quest for unity

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Union began the process of breathing life into the long-awaited single currency Friday when finance ministers designated 11 countries to join in a new monetary union.

The European Parliament and EU leaders will confirm that choice on Saturday, taking a giant step in the quest for stronger European unity.

The euro, as the new money will be known, is of far more significance than merely binding European economies. The 11 countries participating in this venture will be inextricably linking their destinies for the 21st century.

"The recommendation of the Council is that 11 member states ... fulfill the necessary conditions for economic and monetary union," said British Chancellor of the Exchequer Gordon Brown, chairman of the finance ministers meeting. He called it "the beginning of a new era for Europe."

Recommended for single currency membership are Austria, Belgium, Finland, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Portugal and Spain. Britain, Sweden and Denmark have chosen to remain out, at least for the time being, and Greece was unable to meet entry criteria.

"The Europeans have transformed a vision into reality," EU Commission President Jacques Santer told reporters. "It will change the destiny of our union."

The ministers made their decision in a brief, two-hour meeting that preceded Saturday's EU summit.

The ministers will meet again Saturday, after the summit, to take care of some remaining matters, such as fixing exchange rates among existing currencies and making recommendations for membership on the board of the new European Central Bank.

Fixing the exchange rates means the currencies of participating countries — German marks, Italian lire, Spanish pesetas, Dutch guilders, Austrian shillings, Irish punts, Finnish markkas, Portuguese escudos and French, Belgian and Luxembourg francs — will rise and fall together on exchange markets.

Casting a pall over what should be a joyous occasion was the bitter wrangling between France and Germany over the presidency of the ECB, a problem many thought was resolved a year ago.

Most EU leaders thought when they named Wim Duisenberg, the 62-year-old former chief of the Dutch central bank, to head the European Monetary Institute, forerunner of the ECB, that he was the natural candidate to continue at the ECB. But President Jacques Chirac of France proposed his own candidate, French central banker Jean-Claude Trichet, 55.

Neither Chirac nor Dutch Prime Minister Wim Kok appeared Friday ready to cave in for harmony's sake. But France stood virtually alone as most other leaders were said to back Duisenberg.

German Finance Minister Theo Waigel said he expects a unanimous decision on the presidency when the leaders meet.

In Paris, European Affairs Minister Pierre Moscovici said France would accept sharing the ECB presidency's eight-year term, four years for Duisenberg and four for Trichet. Santer noted, however, that there was no provision for such a solution in the EU treaty.

Several finance ministers said on arrival they opposed a split term, and Jean-Claude Juncker, who serves as Luxembourg's prime minister and finance minister, said he would veto any move to do that.

The choice of bank chief has to be unanimous, and the bank must be ready to go by July. On Jan. 1, governments and businesses will start using the euro in their accounting, and consumers will increasingly see goods and services priced in both national currencies and euros.

The euro's value is likely to be set at around $1.10.

"Tomorrow, the euro will breathe life and meaning into the internal market," Santer said. "It will make trade easier, investment easier and make it easier for Europeans to move from one country to another."

EXHIBIT: Rat maze a big hit with students

(From 1A)

of both a healthy brain and one with possible tumors.

They can learn from a neuron path simulator by pressing buttons that show how nerve cells pass messages to each other. The simulator shows that neurons fire sluggishly if a person is under the influence of alcohol and fire too fast under the influence of cocaine.

"I think it's very graphic with the cocaine and alcohol," Ms. Wilson said. "It explains about the neurons and how important they are. They are the telephone lines."

There's also a diagram of how brain damage negatively affects a person's body. The most dangerous damage is that which harms the brain stem. It controls breathing.

"As long as the brain stem remains intact you'll live -- you'll be messed up but you'll live," she said. "It controls the vital organs."

Children particularly like the rat maze, which illustrates stimuli to the senses.

Two large fluffy white Siamese rats — Nicodemus and Teresa — are placed in the maze in a race. The female rat usually beats the male rat, for unknown reasons.

Ms. Wilson said the maze allows students to learn about science experiments. The rats can be given a cereal treat at the end of the maze as an incentive.

"The rat maze gives (students) a chance to theorize, male versus female, treat versus no treat," Ms. Wilson said. "They formulate a theory."

A panel in the exhibit also shows major steps of brain development, from the human fetus to adulthood.

The brain grows tremendously until about age four in humans.

"It's amazing to me that we start educating the kids at age five," Ms. Wilson said. "From birth to age four is when the most critical learning takes place. (The brain) has all the brain cells that it's ever going to have at age four."

The rat maze was a big hit with the Midland Christian students, as was the Brain Twister. Erin Hicks said she liked the feel of the brain model.

"I like the brain. It was all 'squooshy'," Erin said. She liked the rat maze, but has no plans to own a rat. "I thought it was really ugly. I didn't touch it," Erin said.

Jackie Brock said her favorite was the bean bag throw. "I like the bean bags. Sometimes I could get it. It was just hard," she said.

Jackie said she doesn't know a lot about the brain, but she knows it's critical to life. "If you didn't have a brain you couldn't do anything," she said. "The nervous system ... helps you move, sends impulses to the brain."

Breanne Fietz said she liked the rat maze — because the female won. "The guy lost to the girl. So we have to rub it in with all of the guys," she said. And Breanne would like take a rat home with her.

"I like the rats," she said. "I thought the rats were ugly, but they're cute and nice."

Aaron Schrank said he also liked the bean bag throw. "That little bean bag thing was cool," he said. "It messes up your vision. I missed totally."

Ms. Wilson said the exhibit helps children understand the human brain. But there's still much adults and scientists do not know about it.

"I know we're constantly making advances," she said. "The fact remains that, since it's inaccessible, since its so complex ... a lot of it remains a mystery."

The exhibit will be on display until Sept. 13. The museum will hold eight-hour educational summer mini-camps on the human brain. The four-day sessions are June 2-5 and July 7-10, at either 10 a.m. or 1 p.m. for both dates. Registration is $39 a child or $29 for museum members.

For more information on these and other mini-camps, contact Ms. Wilson at 683-2882.

National Astronomy Day marked with activities today

From Staff Reports

Special activities for National Astronomy Day are planned from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the Blakemore Planetarium, Museum of the Southwest complex, 1705 W. Missouri Ave.

National Astronomy day began in 1973 and is held each year between mid-April and mid-May on the Saturday nearest the first-quarter moon. Astronomy Day activities are conducted by planetaria, science centers and astronomy clubs nationwide to address the public's fascination with the rapidly changing universe of astronomy.

This year's event at the Blakemore marks the second annual observance of Astronomy Day by the Blakemore Planetarium. Last year, some 500 people from throughout the Permian Basin region attended.

Plans for this year include Planetarium Sky Shows and films to be presented continuously in the theater from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and a variety of exhibits, demonstrations and prizes for the entire family.

They are:

"The Space Bus," geared for younger audiences, features a wild ride to the planets of our solar system and an encounter with alien creatures called Twombies.

"Seeing the Invisible Universe" is a journey through the spectrum and the planetarium's newest show. Discovery Channel's Bill Curtis narrates this look at quasars, pulsars, black holes and other strange celestial beasts that are studied using "invisible" forms of light.

"Daytime Telescope Viewing" with members of the West Texas Astronomers will provide breathtaking views of giant sunspots and other features of the sun's surface, as well as a rare daytime look at craters on the moon.

"Game Show Mania" presents Gary Pledger and the ultimate astronomy game show. Become a contestant in front of a live audience and test your knowledge of astronomy and space science as you compete for fun and prizes.

"CD-ROM Astronomy" with West Texas Astronomers president Gene Hardy will feature hands-on demonstrations of astronomy software for personal computers.

"Choosing a Family Telescope" will be discussed by West Texas Astronomers club vice president Sheryl Borden in an informal demonstration and discussion held outdoors on the planetarium lawn.

"McDonald Observatory," operated by the University of Texas, will present a display featuring photographs and inside information on the new Hobby-Eberly Telescope and astronomical research going on at the McDonald Observatory in Fort Davis.

"Amateur Radio Emergency Service of Midland" will demonstrate amateur short-wave radio technology by attempting to communicate with both unmanned and manned satellites, including Space Station Mir and the Space Shuttle, Columbia.

"Mutual U.F.O. Network (M.U.F.O.N.)" will present a display of photographs and information on UFOs. MUFON, based in Seguin and now in its 30th year, is the largest organization in the world dedicated to investigating the UFO phenomenon, said Steve Schmidt, director of the Blakemore Planetarium.

"Astronomy on the Internet," presented by Odessa amateur astronomer Michael Pierce, will feature a guided tour of some of the hottest astronomy sites on the World Wide Web.

"The 95X Van" will be broadcasting live from the planetarium.

All outdoor demonstrations and events are presented free of charge. Sky Shows, films in the dome and Game Show mania admission is $3 for adults and $2 for children ages 12 and under. All children must be accompanied by an adult at all times.

Prizes and other support for National Astronomy Day at the Blakemore Planetarium have been provided by 95X, Barnes & Noble Book Sellers, Astral Castle, Game Show Mania, A-V Workshop and Long John Silver's.

For more information call 683-2882.

Also, the Sky Show "Seeing the Invisible Universe" is being shown on Friday evenings at the Blakemore Planetarium.

Telescopes, provided by the West Texas Astronomers, are set up every clear Friday night following the public sky show.

TAPES: Hubbell vows loyalty to Mrs. Clinton

(From 1A)

"There is some chance that the day after Election Day, they will make a move that moots everything," Nields tells Hubbell. "And I don't want to discourage it. I would like to make a record of complete and forthrightness at every step of the way."

In discussing Mrs. Clinton, the former associate attorney general suggested in another conversation that it was "highly possible" she once drew up a controversial document in an Arkansas land deal that is now under investigation by prosecutors.

One Hubbell discussion, with his accountant and friend, Michael C. Schaufele, occurred in August 1996 at a time when Whitewater figure James McDougal had become a cooperating prosecution witness.

Hubbell also was a cooperating witness after pleading guilty to charges he had bilked his clients and the Rose Law Firm, where he and Mrs. Clinton worked as lawyers in Arkansas.

"Is McDougal saying things? Is that what they were asking about?" Schaufele asked.

Hubbell, apparently recounting a recent session with prosecutors, talks about their interest in a real estate deal involving his father-in-law, Seth Ward, under investigation by prosecutors. Mrs. Clinton's law firm records indicate she also may have worked on the deal.

Hubbell suggests prosecutors believe he did the legal work but that both he and Mrs. Clinton billed the client for it.

"Well, it's pretty clear, at least they are speculating that someone — I was doing the work because I was advising Seth," Hubbell said.

"Everybody knows Seth, and knows I couldn't have not advised him," Hubbell said on tape. "So I was billing it but for ... some reason I haven't figured out why — Hillary billed it, my time as hers. That's kinda the theory."

David Kendall, Mrs. Clinton's private lawyer, said the first lady never double-billed. "Mrs. Clinton billed her time for work she, and she alone, did."

Hubbell; his wife, Suzy; his accountant, Schaufele, and Little Rock, Ark., lawyer Charles C. Owen were indicted Thursday on tax charges that included conspiracy, tax evasion, impeding and impairing the Internal Revenue Service and mail fraud.

Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr struck at Hubbell just 14 months after he finished a 21-month prison term for bilking his clients.

Hubbell repeatedly states on the tapes that he wouldn't do anything that would harm Mrs. Clinton.

POLICE REPORTS

Missing woman

Authorities are looking for a Midland woman who has been missing from her residence since 4 p.m. Monday, according to a report from the Midland County Sheriff's Office.

Hulslander

Daytina Blair Hulslander, 25, was last seen at her residence on E. County Road 86. She is 5 feet, 8 inches tall, has blonde hair and wears glasses. She has Harley Davidson tattoos on her chest and one of her legs. A missing person's report was filed Thursday at 8:50 p.m., MCSO Sgt. Terry Lowe said.

Authorities do not have a clothing or vehicle description at this time. Anyone with information on her disappearance is asked to call the Midland County Sheriff's Office at 688-1228.

Rape arrest

ODESSA — Odessa Police arrested a man Friday in connection with a rape and residential break-in that occurred in west Odessa this week.

Gregory Mark Levitz, 40, was arrested and charged with burglary of a habitation with intent to commit sexual assault, a first degree felony. Detectives located Levitz in the 3000 block of JBS Parkway at 10 a.m. Friday. He was arrested without resistance, police said.

Odessa detective Sgt. Rick Pippins said that Levitz's charges stem from an alleged sexual attack on a 23-year-old woman. The woman had just taken a shower and was walking to her living room when she was startled by a man who gained entry through an unlocked front door.

She told the man to leave, but he refused. The man then followed her to her bedroom and used physical force to rape her, police said. During the attack, the woman managed to shove the man in a manner that caused him to fall to the floor. He got up and ran from the residence. The victim went to a neighbor's house and called police, Pippins said.

During the investigation, detectives recovered information and evidence that led to Levitz's arrest. On Friday, a warrant was signed by Ector County Justice of the Peace Eddie Spivey.

"The investigation is continuing and other charges may be filed against Mr. Levitz at a later time," Pippins said.

Booking officers with the Ector County Detention Center said that Levitz remained there Friday without bond.

Meanwhile, a man who raped a woman at her west Midland residence Wednesday morning remained at large Friday, Midland Police Department officials said.

The victim, a 48-year-old woman, said that her assailant was a white male in his 30s, 5 feet, 9 inches tall and weighing approximately 170 pounds. She had returned to her house from an early-morning jog and was attacked there. She had left her door unlocked.

The man fled the scene on foot, the victim said. Though she could not identify the man, she was able to give police his physical description.

Tina Sanders-Jauz, public information officer for the Midland Police Department, said that local police have not found any connection between the two Wednesday rapes.

alcohol chamber and the other starts the test. The subject's intoxication level comes out on a small digital screen. The mouthpieces are disposable and are wrapped individually.

Instead of having to take 30 or 40 minutes of their time to administer the test, troopers can get results in less than 30 seconds, Matthews said.

Faye Higgins, a victim's advocate for Stop DWI, said that the donation came from a grant from the Abell-Hanger Foundation. Earlier this week, she presented the donation after honoring several local officers for their success in making an impressive number of DWI arrests in 1997.

"We're grateful for their efforts. While making those arrests, they could have saved one of our family members without knowing it," Ms. Higgins said. "These are extra hard cases for them to work. They take a lot of time and effort. We appreciate them."

Officers with the Midland Police Department who were honored include Paul Brown, Craig Matthews, Paul Padget, Stuart Simpson, Roy Lible, Joe Rodgers and Gary Kennedy.

Midland County sheriff's deputies Dale Burns, Ray Weatherby, Joe Waters and Bill Anderson also were recognized for their work.

DPS troopers Brian Rippee, Marcellous Anderson, Matthew Ruff, Damon Dublin and Don Williams also were praised for their efforts.

"We have troopers that are doing an excellent job and making the community a safer place to live," Matthews said. "It's nice to be recognized for the things that we're doing right."

Risks and benefits of NATO enlargement

By Tom Raum
Associated Press

■ News analysis

WASHINGTON — Opponents of NATO expansion invoked stark images of nuclear confrontation at the Polish border, of a jilted Russia befriending China and Iran and of costs to taxpayers of untold billions. Supporters talked of slight costs, European unity, peace and prosperity.

Trying to determine the actual impact — and costs — of bringing Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic into the Western military alliance is another thing.

Despite the self-assured and contrary rhetoric from both sides, it may be just too early to know whether the benefits of NATO enlargement outweigh the risks.

The Senate voted 80-19 Thursday to include the three former Soviet satellites in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — and to keep the door open for more to follow.

On the political level, the outcome was a clear foreign-policy victory for the president. And in the final days, he put a heavy effort into achieving it.

On Thursday, when he was occupied with his first full-fledged news conference of the year, President Clinton worked the phones through the day, calling members in a successful effort to ward off weakening amendments. Defense Secretary William Cohen leaned on former Senate colleagues in person while Secretary of State Madeleine Albright lobbied with long-distance phone calls from China.

Addressing workers Friday at a sheet-metal factory in California's Silicon Valley, Clinton called NATO expansion "a big deal" and said it means "your children likely will never have to go there (Europe) to fight and die in a war."

While 11 more of NATO's 16 current members still must ratify the enlargement, the outcome is no longer seriously in doubt now that the United States has approved the deal.

In fact, NATO leaders already are planning a ceremony to formally welcome the three new members at a heads-of-state meeting in Washington in April 1999 to coincide with NATO's 50th anniversary.

The scariest argument raised by opponents was that the sleeping Russian bear might reawaken, angered at the notion of NATO at its very doorstep, and rethreaten its former satellites. That could bring the United States into defending, with nuclear weapons if necessary, territories once part of the Soviet empire.

It could mean nuclear war, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan told colleagues. Sen. Robert G. Torricelli, D-N.J., raised the specter of U.S. forces suddenly having to defend the Polish frontier.

Supporters play down the risk, suggesting a larger NATO would lead to increased stability.

Stargazers set record for most distant object sighting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronomers have detected a small galaxy 12.3 billion light-years from Earth — the most distant object ever seen — and say they are on the brink of seeing things even farther away and closer to the big bang beginning of the universe.

"We've already got some candidate objects that are even farther away," said Esther M. Hu, a University of Hawaii astronomer and co-discoverer of the most distant object. "We are looking about 94 percent of the distance back to the big bang."

The discovery was first announced in Science News, a weekly journal of research reports. The journal is to publish the story on Saturday.

The big-bang theory holds that the universe started with a huge explosion and has been expanding ever since. In the billions of years since, the hydrogen and helium in the big bang have been processed through stars to form other chemicals. Just when the big bang happened is controversial, but most astronomers say it was about 13 billion years ago.

Just six weeks ago, another team of astronomers found a small galaxy about 12.2 billion light-years away to establish a most-distant mark. Both teams used the Keck telescopes in Hawaii. A light-year is the distance light travels in a vacuum in one year, about 5.8 trillion miles.

"The records for most distant galaxies have become really fragile," said Bruce Margon, a University of Washington astronomy professor. "Once they would stand for six or seven years. Now it changes in a matter of months."

Margon said the latest discovery is important because it continues to push back the time when it is known that stars and galaxies formed after the big bang, giving more understanding of the developmental history of the universe.

Hu and her colleagues, Lennox L. Cowie of Hawaii and Richard G. McMahon of the University of Cambridge, England, sighted the distant galaxy by analyzing a particular wavelength of light emitted by hydrogen atoms.

This technique, said Hu, will enable the group to probe even farther back in time and distance.

One way astronomers measure distance and time is by a value called the redshift. This is the amount that a wavelength of light has been stretched, or shifted, by the expanding universe. The new most-distant galaxy found by the Hu team is at a redshift of 5.64. This is about 60 million years earlier than the previous mark, which was a redshift of 5.34.

"We already have candidates at redshift 6.5 and I think we'll eventually push it back to a redshift of 7," said Hu. This would push the viewed universe back to within 4.4 percent, or about 500 million years, of the big bang, she said.

Galaxies at that distance, said Hu, will all be young, only a few tens of millions of years old, since the universe at that point is also very young.

Margon said there is a physical limit on just how far back toward the big bang astronomers will see. For about the first million years after the big bang, when the universe was just beginning to expand, the matter was still so dense that if there was light it could not travel very far before being absorbed.

Additionally, it is believed that it took several million years for stars to form, and without stars, said Margon, there was no light to be seen.

Teens arrested in shooting spree

HAINES CITY, Fla. (AP) — Three teen-age boys in ski masks went on a one-hour shooting rampage, killing a woman in a car and wounding seven other people, including five relatives who were gunned down in their motel room during a family reunion, authorities say.

The suspects, high school students ages 16 and 17, were arrested and charged late Thursday in the shootings and in a separate slaying on Sunday, investigators said.

Investigators said the motive was unclear. Nothing was taken from the victims.

One of the wounded, a 10-year-old girl shot in the motel room, was in critical condition. The others were in good condition.

The rampage took place in three central Florida communities.

The shootings began Thursday night when gunmen jumped from a car and opened fire on a couple who had stopped their car at a mailbox in Davenport. The driver was wounded.

Within about a hour, two people were reported shot in a vehicle at a stop sign in Dundee. Christy Large, 21, was killed, and another person in the car was wounded.

Around the same time, there was a knock on the door of a motel room door near Haines City, and a masked gunman opened fire on five family members from Hinesville, Ga. — two girls, ages 10 and 15, and their mother, aunt and uncle. The family had just checked in for a reunion.

Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver, candidate for president on the Peace and Freedom Party ticket, stands beside his bullet riddled campaign poster in the window of Black Panther headquarters, September 11, 1968. Cleaver, whose prison-written book "Soul On Ice" became one of the seminal works of the Black Power movement, died Friday at age 62.

Former Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver dies at 62

POMONA, Calif. (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver, the fiery Black Panther information minister whose prison book "Soul On Ice" became a seminal work of the Black Power movement, died Friday at age 62.

Cleaver, who after a shootout with police and exile in Algeria returned to the United States and traversed the political spectrum, died at Pomona Valley Hospital Medical Center. Spokeswoman Leslie Porras declined to provide the cause of death or details about his hospitalization, citing the family's request.

At times a convict, political candidate and author, Cleaver was one of the original Black Panthers, formed in 1966 in Oakland by Huey P. Newton and Bobby Seale.

Later, he denounced his past stance, joined the Republican Party and became a born-again Christian. In 1978, he wrote the book "Soul on Fire."

In April 1968, Cleaver, the fledgling Black Panther Party's information minister, was involved in a violent shootout with police in Oakland. Panther treasurer Bobby Hutton, 17, was killed in the gun battle, and Cleaver and two police officers were wounded.

Cleaver was arrested after the shootout, but jumped $50,000 bail and fled to Algeria.

Prior to his return to the United States in 1975, he told reporters he believed he would be treated fairly in court.

"A new situation now exists in the United States. The war in Vietnam is over. The status and condition of black people has undergone a fundamental change for the better. The American people have been shocked into objectivity and vigilance by the exposure of the massive, systematic and conspiratorial subversion of their democratic rights," he said.

He also denounced the Black Panthers upon his return.

After a protracted legal battle, attempted murder charges in the shootout were dropped, and Cleaver was placed on probation and ordered to do community service for assault.

Before his Black Panther days, Cleaver was convicted in 1958 of assault with intent to kill. He was paroled after nine years in prison. He also had a 1954 conviction for narcotics possession.

While in prison, Cleaver wrote "Soul on Ice," a series of powerful essays decrying prejudice and racism. Published in 1968, it became a focus of the Black Power movement.

Cleaver ran unsuccessfully for president in 1968 on the Peace and Freedom Party ticket. Following his campaign, he was ousted from the Panthers because of a bitter and public dispute with Newton.

After his exile, Cleaver became a born-again Christian and a Republican. He made a failed attempt for the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate in California.

He also claimed to be a rabid anti-Communist, because of his experiences on the run behind the Iron Curtain.

Starr draws Watergate parallels on executive privilege claim

By Pete Yost
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Drawing pointed parallels between Watergate and his own executive privilege battle with President Clinton, Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr said Friday a president "must give way" and turn over evidence unless national security is at stake.

"If the evidence is relevant to a criminal investigation or prosecution it must be turned over," Starr said in a Law Day speech that invoked momentous Watergate-era rulings to justify his own legal efforts — but without ever mentioning Monica Lewinsky.

In what he called a "professorial" address, Starr went to lengths to describe historical precedents on the executive privilege issue, including President Nixon's losing fight with special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Starr promised at the outset of his speech "to steer clear of the controversy" surrounding Clinton and former White House intern Lewinsky.

But his references were clear as he spoke to the same bar association that Jaworski addressed 24 years ago — on the day the Nixon White House invoked executive privilege in an effort to stop prosecutors from listening to tapes made by a secret Oval Office system.

"As the Supreme Court said in United States vs. Nixon, the public has a right to every man's evidence, except for those persons protected by a constitutional, common-law or statutory privilege," Starr said.

Quoting Jaworski, he added: "Watergate taught the nation two valuable lessons — lessons that are especially appropriate for us to recall. First, our Constitution works. And second, no one — absolutely no one — is above the law."

Lawyers working for Starr argue that claims of executive privilege should not be allowed to block grand jury testimony by presidential advisers on personal matters such as the president's relationship with Ms. Lewinsky.

The White House counters that a president needs to be able to have confidence that he can seek confidential advice from his aides without risk of it being disclosed.

U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson is weighing both sides' sealed arguments.

Starr said the law presumes that "the public has a right" to critical evidence in a criminal case.

Using the Watergate-era Supreme Court decisions on the issue, Starr said justices acknowledged that "where military or diplomatic secrets are at issue, the president's claim to secrecy is especially strong."

But he quickly added that in instances where a president asserts merely a generalized interest in confidentiality, "the privilege must give way to what the court called the fair administration of criminal justice. If the evidence is relevant to a criminal investigation or prosecution, it must be turned over."

At the White House, aides said they felt Starr's speech did not give enough weight to a more recent court ruling in the investigation of former Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy that strongly endorsed the need for presidents to keep communications confidential in order to ensure strong advice.

"While we cannot comment on any matter before the courts, our view is consistent with that of the court's and Mr. Starr, who acknowledges the need for confidential communications and the need to balance that with the legitimate interests of the judicial branch," said spokesman Jim Kennedy.

Starr did not signal what is ahead in his court battle with the Clinton White House, but said he was heartened that it has provoked a healthy debate on the issue. "The recent debate on executive privilege ... has been wide ranging, informative, sometimes contentious," he said.

Jonathan Turley, a law professor at The George Washington University, said he thought the Lewinsky case "does not fall readily into a definition of the privileges of office, either in political or legal terms. ... These claims on their face appear to be over the top."

Mark Rozell, an American University political professor who has written a book on executive privilege, said the arguments the White House is waging are "not as strong" as they would be if the conversations directly involved the presidency itself.

But he also said, "It is conceivable that high-level White House aides would be involved in discussions of the private nature and that the privilege would extend to them if the president specifically was aware of the content of those conversations and he personally invoked executive privilege regarding those conversations."

Blue cheese salad dressing recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New Orleans food company issued a national recall of LaMartinique Blue Cheese Vinaigrette salad dressing Friday because it may be contaminated with dangerous bacteria.

No illnesses have been reported, but Reily Foods Co. said it had tested some dressing bottles and discovered listeria, which typically causes gastrointestinal symptoms in healthy people, but it can cause serious and sometimes fatal infections in young children, the elderly or people with weak immune systems.

This just in: Texas is a part of the United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cartographers won't be called on, after all, to redraw their maps: Texas was, is and shall remain part of the United States, according to a federal judge in Washington.

U.S. District Judge Paul Friedman this week rejected Republic of Texas "chief ambassador" Richard McLaren's contention that Texas is a captive nation illegally annexed by the United States in 1845.

McLaren drew national attention to himself and his separatist cause last year when he engaged in a week-long standoff with police after his ragtag band of followers launched a raid on some Davis Mountains Resort neighbors, taking two hostages.

He is serving a 99-year prison sentence stemming from the kidnapping and standoff and faces up to 755 years more during sentencing next month on federal fraud charges related to his group's issuance of $3.4 million in bogus checks.

Just before dropping his weapons last May, McLaren signed a cease-fire agreement with Texas Ranger Capt. Barry Caver stipulating that he could press his case for independence in Washington federal court.

McLaren and his wife, Evelyn, filed their suit in September, naming scores of defendants from President Clinton and the entire 32-member Texas congressional delegation to the United Nations and the government of Mexico.

The McLarens demanded that the court dissolve the current government of the "alleged state of Texas" and replace it with Republic of Texas leadership, declare Texas' members of Congress "impostors," and impose more than $66 million in damages.

Two gold seals, emblazoned with the words "Republic of Texas," were affixed to the legal filing, one of many documents the McLarens sent Friedman. The judge, apparently, felt he was the recipient of too many such filings. Last year, he ordered the plaintiffs to stop communicating with him unless they were asked to do so.

The case sent Friedman (or his law clerks) to the history books.

In his eight-page ruling Thursday, Friedman wrote: "The history of how Texas became a state is admittedly tortuous.

"Indeed, Texas' statehood tale is plagued with political stalling, confusion and delay from 1836, the year in which the Republic of Texas won its independence from Mexico, to 1845, the year in which Texas finally became one of the United States of America. The tale is even more complicated by the fact that Texas attempted to secede from the United States before the Civil War.

"On December 29, 1845, however, Texas did in fact become the 28th state," the judge concluded, citing an 1868 Supreme Court decision which found that Texas entered into an "indissoluble relation" when it was admitted into the Union.

While the McLarens contend that Supreme Court ruling was flawed, Friedman noted that all federal courts, including his own, are bound by the high court's dictates.

"The Republic of Texas no longer exists," he concluded.

Former Klansman, Texas lawmaker to debate racial issues

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Louisiana legislator and Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke on Friday praised the anti-affirmative action legal ruling known as Hopwood and criticized Gov. George W. Bush for not taking a tough stand against immigration.

Duke was in Austin on his way to San Marcos to debate racial issues against state Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, who is black.

The two were invited by a black student organization at Southwest Texas State University. The group says black students have been subjected to racial tension since three black football players were accused of raping two heavily intoxicated white female students in a campus dorm in March.

Duke, who ran unsuccessfully for U.S. Senate and for governor in Louisiana, said he agreed to come to the debate because "I'm the best known spokesman for white rights in the country, the same way Jesse Jackson speaks on behalf of black activists."

Gospel Jubilee

A Gospel Jubilee is set for 7 to 9 p.m. today at the Midland Suburban Lions Club, 2550 Flynt. Four classes will be offered: Fast Frozen Foods, Shelf-building and Storage, Food Canner How-tos and Emergency Preparedness.

"No one likes to think about it, but we're all vulnerable," said Jan Williams, director of public affairs for the local church. "Accident, illness or unemployment may face each of us at one time or another. That's one reason members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints have been counseled by their leaders to store a year's supply of food and other necessities."

By recording what you eat for two weeks and multiplying it by 26, with some modification, you can develop a shopping list of what's needed for a year's food storage.

Seniors' cross collection now numbers 90

■ St. Luke's United Methodist Church class has collected 90 crosses from around the world in the last decade.

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Without consciously intending to, a senior citizens' Sunday school class at St. Luke's United Methodist Church began collecting crosses 11 years ago, and now has 90 versions of Christianity's enduring symbol.

"The cross is one of the oldest and most universal of all symbols. It is, of course, the perfect symbol of Christ because of His sacrifice upon the cross," writes George Ferguson in his book "Signs and Symbols in Christian Art."

"In a broader sense, however, the cross has become the mark or sign of the Christian religion, the emblem of atonement, and the symbol of salvation and redemption through Christianity."

In 1987, the Keystone Sunday School Class moved into the new wing of St. Luke's and Bob Bonner, husband of class

WHAT IT MEANS TO BE JEWISH

Editor's Note: As Israel observes its 50th anniversary as a nation, the Jewish community is in the spotlight. This week, Religion Page editor Jimmy Patterson sat down with David Rosen, outgoing president of Temple Beth El in Odessa and asked him to explain certain aspects of Judaism.

What's it like being Jewish in West Texas?

For me it brought me closer to the Temple. Having grown up in New York City, there are literally millions of Jews. You're just one of many. In West Texas you're quite unique. Christian holidays and thought pervade our every day world and media, and it reminds us more of our own heritage as Jews. It makes me more mindful.

What are the principle tenets of your faith?

The great Rabbi Hillel summed up Judaism as follows: He said what's hateful to you, don't do to your neighbor. The rest is mere

Local Jewish community takes 'Trip to Israel'

Staff Report

ODESSA -- In celebration of the 50th anniversary of Israel's Independence Day, the local Jewish community took a "Trip to Israel" last Saturday at its synagogue, Temple Beth El in Odessa.

Hollywood loves them, but religious leaders are cautious of angels

By Matthew Brady
N.Y. Times News Service

In Hollywood, there are few places angels fear to tread.

We see them in the outfield, and on our shoulders; they're jumping off bridges in "It's a Wonderful Life" and chain-smoking across middle America in "Michael."

Now America is falling in love with a fallen angel in love, Nicolas Cage in "City of Angels." As of last weekend, the movie sat atop the box office with gross receipts of $34.1 million.

But is all this fervency just a bunch of philosophical folderol?

The short answer is yes. And no. And maybe.

Ask any theologian, and you will get an answer laced with ambivalence.

"The whole belief in angels and demons is a mixed bag," said Bob Patterson, distinguished professor of religion at Baylor University in Waco, Texas. Patterson was in Arlington, Texas, two weeks ago to talk about heaven with a group of senior adults at First Baptist Church.

"It can be healthy," he said. "In a secular society, anything that has anything to do with spiritual life may be a healthy indication. In a secular society, we are just not open to anything except what we receive through the five senses."

The theme of this year's prayer day is, "America, Return to God."

Church leaders appearing include Alan Williams, First United Methodist Church's Lane Boyd, Hope Lutheran Church's Eckhard Grimm and First

Cowboy coach lets Christian lifestyle speak for him

By Berta Delgado
Associated Press

DALLAS — It didn't take long for North Texans to notice that a Christian man was taking the reins of the Dallas Cowboys.

A short bio in The Dallas Morning News the February morning after Chan Gailey was hired included telling tidbits. The person he would most like to meet: Jesus Christ. What he would do if he were president for one day: allow prayer in school.

Gailey, born and raised Baptist, said his faith is as important to him as breathing. But he's not one to preach about it. He said he prefers being a quiet witness, letting the way he lives speak for his Christianity.

On a recent afternoon in April — between duties such as preparing for the National Football League draft of college players — Gailey spoke openly about Jesus, his family, his father and football. But it wasn't Chan Gailey, coach of one of the most popular sports teams in the world, talking. It was Chan Gailey, Christian.

"It's not my right to speak for any group. I'm speaking for me and my family," said the 46-year-old husband and father of two grown sons. "I don't ever want to

Giving pink slips to professional athletes

Would you work for a reasonable boss if they paid you $7 million a year? What if they added the stipulation that you could not choke, attack or threaten to kill your boss? Would you still sign on the dotted line? If you are like most Americans, you'd want to know where the nearest pen was.
After all, who doesn't have a boss who is unreasonable at least once in a while?

Jackson

Such is the life of a professional basketball player. In this case, one Latrell Sprewell. After a good college career at the University of Alabama, Sprewell was selected by the Golden State Warriors as the 24th player in the NBA draft. As a mid-level draft choice, Sprewell signed a four-year contract with the Warriors for $2.5 million. He was an instant star, performing far better than most players drafted before he was. After being selected for the All-Star team on three occasions, last year, "Spree" signed a new four-year, $30 million contract with the Warriors. For those interested in figures, that amounts to about $75,000 per game. The average income for the American family is $25,000 per year.

Earlier this year, Latrell Sprewell took his $30 million contract and flushed it down the toilet. After having an argument with his coach, P.J. Carlesimo, Sprewell attacked his coach and began choking him. When restrained by teammates, he left the building, only to come back and attack Carlesimo again. Originally, the Warriors suspended Sprewell without pay for 10 days. The next day, citing a morals clause in his contract, the Warriors cancelled Sprewell's contract. Two days later, NBA Commissioner David Stern suspended him for one year. An arbitrator then reduced his punishment to encompass only the rest of the current NBA season.

The response was swift and predictable. Most of the NBA players disagreed with the suddenness and severity of the original penalty. Just about everyone else said, "It's about time!" For too long, entertainers have been pampered and coddled. Whether they be singers, movie stars or athletes, these celebrities received preferential treatment and have been allowed to act like babies, all the while making millions of dollars.

I would like to think that the Golden State Warriors made this decision as courageous moral giants, but I doubt that was the case. Sprewell was the highest paid player on a team that had one exactly one game. To put that in perspective, the Lakers, at the time, had won 14 games. Sprewell had also become a disruptive influence on the team, constantly arguing with his coach and refusing to pass to open teammates. The removal of Sprewell from the Warriors' roster is a plus for the team.

It is unfortunate that entertainment has basically become an industry solely committed to the bottom line. If signing an unsavory character brings in more revenue, sign him still. This is true in television, where Jerry Springer referees a zoo every day, and it is true in sports, where immoral activities are covered over as long as the stars can perform at the opening whistle.

Sports used to be about winning with dignity and honor. Watch the film, "Chariots of Fire" as an example. Now, it's about luxury boxes, new stadium deals, long-term contracts and the bottom line. Until the American public says enough is enough and begins staying away from the stadiums and turning the TV channel, it will continue.

Whether the Latrell Sprewell situation becomes the norm or an abnormality depends on the American consumer.

The ball is in our court.

Recently completed is an extensive remodeling effort at Westside Church of Christ, 4410 W. Illinois. From a new sign that fronts Illinois to the new auditorium and classrooms, the church has expanded to meet its need for new facilities.

The auditorium and classrooms were originally constructed in 1981 as an expanded facility for Westside. Prior to that, members originally met for their first worship service on January 9, 1955 in a storefront building at 3405 Bankhead Hwy. About 40 people were present.

"Our desire was to give a fresh, updated look to our auditorium," said Gary Montgomery, minister at Westside. "Local builder and member M.R. Lary agreed to design and guide the project. His expertise and years of training and his experience as a designer/builder in Midland is reflected in the beauty and functionality readily seen in the completed project."

F.I. Stanley was the first full-time minister to serve the church family. The group continued to grow, and later built their first church facility at 3200 W. Illinois in 1956. In 1981, the need for expansion came and the move to the current location of the church was completed.

F.I. Stanley was the first full-time minister to serve the church family. The group continued to grow, and later built their first church facility at 3200 W. Illinois in 1956. In 1981, the need for expansion came and the move to the current location of the church was completed.

After 15 years had passed, Montgomery noted, "the use and wear and tear at the church had become noticeable." Estimates were gathered and costs and plans submitted on a Sunday morning in early 1997. Members showed favorable support and three special offerings were announced to collect for the need. Funds totaling $53,844 were collected and applied in updating the project.

"The pulpit and stage area was redesigned with an apron of steps for easy access, and an open design for return vents in the air conditioning system," Montgomery said. "Updated speakers and sound equipment were relocated and installed along with additional lighting mounted to 12 old-fashioned ceiling fans that insure good circulation. All pews were removed and transported to a plant in Waco where new coverings and padding along with renewed stain and paint was applied to the colonial furniture. While the pews were removed, new carpet was installed in the auditorium, front halls and classrooms."

According to Montgomery, "a true sense of spiritual freshness and joy resulted from the program, yet the pledge made was to keep the same old fashioned Bible approach in the study and activities of this church family. A new look did not change the old story: Jesus and His love for all man and the plan of His church works to bring believers together."

Need a sanctuary? Consider church in a box

By Kimberley Greuter
Associated Press Writer

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (AP) — Pete van der Harst isn't a man of the cloth, but he knows how to pack the pews. And the vestments and Bibles, too.

Van der Harst owns Portable Church Industries, a company in Troy, Mich., that caters to new churches and parishes without permanent homes.

Not only will his company provide the goods for worship, it also will design the crates, boxes and cartons necessary to pack, move and store them each week. "If everything burned to the ground tomorrow," van der Harst says, "give us about eight weeks and we can have (a church) up and running in a local high school."

Portable Church Industries has a variety of clients — churches starting from scratch, churches moving into new homes, churches separating from other churches. It also can help churches destroyed by tornadoes, arson or other natural and manmade calamities.

Among the 1990 founders of Kensington Community Church in Michigan, van der Harst backed into the business of portable pulpits. "The leadership knew we were going to be portable for a long time," he says. "Everybody was throwing a pile of stuff in the back of their minivan and trying to survive."

Van der Harst was charged with finding the most convenient way to store everything needed for church, from musical instruments to baby wipes.

"We were able at the beginning to borrow some trailers," says Kathleen Furstnau, Kensington's administrative director. "Pete set about to build crates and each was labeled and fit in the trailers in a certain way."

It took van der Harst some time to smooth the weekly church-up-church-down ritual. Once he did, he realized he was on to something. By 1994, his part-time consulting was turning into a full-time business.

Portable Church Industries now has about 50 clients — 26 new ones this year alone — ranging from Honolulu to Canada. A two-day consultation costs $1,250, plus travel expenses for van der Harst or his other full-time designer.

After talking with church leaders, his company designs containers for church goods and fits boxes for storage space, such as a trailer the company can provide. Containers as large as refrigerators have wheels for easy movement.

The whole package is made to order within eight weeks, he says. Rush jobs can be ready in three weeks.

Last summer, Jeff Schulte turned to van der Harst's company when he helped start Fellowship Bible Church in Franklin, Tenn., south of Nashville. The church with 250 members has been worshipping in the high school cafeteria.

"You've got to come in and adapt it with little or no impact," Schulte says. "All you're using is their roof."

Each week, everything that makes a church — including toys, sound and projection equipment, religious instruction materials — is packed in containers and stored in a trailer. Following van der Harst's instructions, volunteers can set up and re-pack items in two hours.

The Church at the Springs in Ocala, Fla., has been in five locations since it was founded three years ago. Most recently, Higher rent and a growing congregation forced it out of a furniture showroom.

PRAYERS: 'America, Return to God' is day's theme

(From 1B)

Baptist Church's Gary Dyer.

Coordinating the local prayer festivities this year is Mark Ballard, pastor at Living Way Church.

"Prayer is something that ascends to the centraility of life, and that is God the father," Ballard said. "As we understand God, He hears prayers and brings that prayer, along with his administrative providence, right back down on the earth and it has its affect.

"I am happy to do the groundwork for this event because of its value and importance in terms of our national concerns."

William Lumry, state coordinator for the National Day of Prayer, said this year's focus is to serve as a reminder of "our desperate need for God."

"Our nation is very sick," Lumry said. "Symptoms like racism, spousal abuse, rape, child abuse and molestation, theft, burglary, homicide, school killings; things like perversion of truth and love into unrecognizable mockeries; these and many others have brought us as a nation to a point of raging fever and gross illness. So much so that the very land is cursed and sick. The only way back from here is to acknowledge we need the help of the Almighty God or we are doomed as a nation.

"We need help. We must ask God for that help for it can come from no other. That is prayer."

The theme of "America, Return to God," is based on Joel 2: 12-13, according to Lumry. " 'Even now, declares the Lord, return to me with all your heart, with fasting and weeping and mourning.' Rend your heart and not your garments. Return to the Lord your God, for He is gracious and compassionate, slow to anger and abounding in love, and He relents from sending calamity."

The National Day of Prayer began in 1952 when President Harry Truman signed a bill passed unanimously by both houses of Congress. National Day of Prayer, according to the bill, was to be held annually on a day other than Sunday. In 1988, under President Reagan, the bill was amended to state that the National Day of Prayer would always fall on the first Thursday of May.

The prayer observance is divided into four parts: For forgiveness of national sin; for those in positions of authority in our nation; for "the millions of people in our nation who are trapped by sin," and finally for revival in America.

During the segment of prayers offered for those in positions of authority, prayers will be said for the president, vice president, the Cabinet, Supreme Court justices, and representatives from U. S., state and local government.

The third and fourth portions of the ceremony will offer prayers for money and power addicts, those addicted to violence, substance abuse addicts, churches, young people, colleges and seminaries, labor unions and the media.

In addition to those previously mentioned who will be offering prayers, others who will lead prayers include Jerry Hilton, Jon Stasney, Nick Marziani, K.C. Blackketter, Roy Smith, Billy Raies, Dave Becker, Robert Walter, Gary Coe, Steve Holston, Sharae Buskirk, Leroy Lengyon, Robert Kirk, Bill Mayne, Yvette Villafuerte, Dick Spencer, Mike Benson, Betty McNerlin, Jose Chavez, Cecil Robinson, Vergil Schmidt, Ken Redmon, Curt Bezinque, Douglas Brown, Tod Brown, Fred Lybrand, Sammy Hayes, Albert Villafuerte, Chuck Redgar, Laman Martin, Freddy Haltom, Chuy Avila and Al Cooper.

SATURDAY, MAY 2, 1998

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, May 2, 1998:
You'll need your sense of humor to deal with confusion on the home front this year. Imagination is expansive and can bring great comfort as well. Others will love brainstorming and sharing. You're a source of constant fun to others. Crystallize your ideas, put them into action and take responsibility. Change is possible because of your vitality and commitment. Others respond to your energy. If you are single, romance occurs suddenly. A friendship could become more. If attached, the two of you share many a mental adventure. The good times roll, and you especially enjoy socializing together. LEO pressures you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ You are euphoric and maybe don't see the big picture. But do you really care? You feel good. Talks with those in the know help cast events in a more realistic light. Visualize from that point. Romantic embers sizzle, if you desire. Tonight: Where the action is.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Don't kid yourself. You need time alone at home. Think through recent events. A discussion with a trusted partner or friend brings up another perspective that is desperately needed. Together, you make a great team. Create what you want. Tonight: Close to home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Express yourself, though it is difficult to put your idealistic feelings into words. A partner compliments you and brings out another side of a story. Browse together through a store, an art show or a flea market. Talks bond you closer. Together: Dinner at a favorite spot.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Expenses are high, but you might not be realistic about a partner's participation. You are setting yourself up for disappointment. A co-worker helps enlighten you. Relax by doing errands, then go to the gym. You need some time off. Tonight: Get needed R & R.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ You aren't grounded, but you might be happier that way. Reach out for another; together, you let your hair down. The good times roll. You beam in whatever you want, so think before you pounce. After all, you are creating this scenario. Tonight: Let the fun continue.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Much is going on behind the scenes. What needs to happen could be different from what you think. Confusion surrounds work and day-to-day routine. Take your time before you leap into a decision or take action. You need some dream time. Tonight: Do your thing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Aim for what you want, but expect to be distracted by a child or new romance. You enjoy being whimsical. A talk restores a certain amount of reality into your life. It could be uncomfortable, yet is important. Talk about expanding your horizons. Tonight: As you like it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ You aren't clear about priorities, especially on the home front. Question a course of action, but refuse to commit any large sums. Be willing to take responsibilities and increase your finances. Others need your sense of direction. Tonight: In the limelight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Your vivid imagination goes haywire. Follow through on a lighthearted idea. Friends enjoy joining you for some good, clean fun. Others remark how different you are (and they mean it as a compliment). Be open to taking off, doing something exotic and opening new doors. Tonight: It gets interesting.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ One-to-one relating helps you find answers to various enigmas. You aren't seeing a financial matter clearly. Intuition is correct when dealing with another. Share vulnerabilities, and others will openly receive you. Tonight: Celebrate togetherness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ You see life through a haze. A friend means well with his probing questions. Do not take them personally. Others are there for you. Listen carefully to the feedback that comes your way. Socializing, being a trustworthy friend and having a good time play a role in the scenario. Tonight: Let it all hang out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ Things seem vague. Getting to the bottom of this matter is difficult, but a friend could be helpful. A boss or an authority figure demands a high level of responsiveness. Stay even, and get into a project. You mellow and see more clearly as stress lessens. Tonight: Your night off.

NEW YORK — Cindy Crawford says cancer touched her life as a girl.

The supermodel's brother died of leukemia when she was 8 and her grandmother, Ramona Crawford, survived breast cancer.

"At a very early age, I learned there was cancer treatment and death," Crawford said in Friday's New York Times.

Crawford plans to take part Saturday in a charity run in Manhattan to benefit cancer research and has donated money from her swimsuit calendars to the hospital that treated her brother.

"I see science working," Crawford said. "The kind of leukemia he had is now 75 percent curable."

LOS ANGELES — Magic Johnson has added banking to a list of business conquests that include movie theaters, restaurants and coffee shops.

Magic Johnson has added banking to his business conquests.

The former Los Angeles Lakers star joined with Janet Jackson and DreamWorks SKG senior executive Jheryl Busby to buy a 51 percent stake in Founders National Bank, California's only black-owned bank, with the aim of making it a favorite among black sports and entertainment stars.

"These are people who could invest some of their money in the bank. It would just make the bank better, have more money for other people in the community," Johnson said Thursday.

Johnson, Ms. Jackson and Busby paid $3 million to acquire the stake. The small bank, with about $100 million in assets, operates five branches in California.

MENDHAM, N.J. — Bobby Brown was slightly injured when a car in which he was a passenger overturned.

The Range Rover was traveling around a curve less than a mile from Brown's Mendham home when it flipped over early Thursday, police said.

Brown, 31, was treated at a hospital for a cut on his right wrist and released. Police said the driver, Shawn Cummings, 24, also escaped serious injury.

Authorities said they have not determined how fast the car was traveling.

LOS ANGELES — Steven Spielberg will direct a movie based on Arthur Golden's novel "Memoirs of a Geisha."

The film will be made by Columbia Pictures and DreamWorks SKG.

"As I heard it, (Spielberg) took it with him on vacation ... and when he got off the plane, he said he was halfway through the book and was mesmerized," Golden said Wednesday.

"Then, when he finished it this past weekend, he had decided to direct," Golden said.

The best-selling book tells the story of Sayuri, a girl from a fishing village who is sold at age 9 to a Kyoto geisha house and becomes one of the most celebrated geishas in Japan.

"I believe in love at first sight, which is probably why I fell so hard for Arthur Golden's novel," Spielberg said in a news release Tuesday. "I am looking forward to working with DreamWorks and Columbia to bring it to the screen."

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Mr. Ed was the best. Just ask Wilbur.

Alan Young, 73, spent five seasons in the '60s playing Wilbur Post, the guy who talked to his horse on TV's "Mr. Ed."

The horse was the best actor he ever worked with, Young said Thursday during a three-day fan convention.

"He didn't upstage you. He knew his lines. He got there on time," Young said.

So how did Ed talk? It was a closely guarded secret for years.

"I created the lie that we used peanut butter," Young said, but "we used a soft piece of nylon under his lip, which he tried to work out."

Western B-movie star Allan "Rocky" Lane supplied the voice.

OTTAWA — Celine Dion completed an unusual back-to-back awards sweep Friday, receiving Canada's highest honor a day after receiving the Order of Quebec from her home province's separatist premier.

Dion was presented the Order of Canada by Governor General Romeo LeBlanc.

"Today we honor an artist who has made the world sing with her in both the languages of our country," LeBlanc said.

Dion has resisted journalists' attempts to draw some political comment from her about the honors by governments that feud constantly over Quebec's place in Canada.

"This has nothing to do with politics," Dion said Thursday after receiving the Order of Quebec from Premier Lucien Bouchard.

"It doesn't matter if it's the government of Quebec, Canada or France honoring me," she said. "I see it as an award coming from the public."

ANGELS: No substitute for prayer, God

(From 1B)

The Rev. Mitchell Pacwa, assistant professor at the Institute for Religious and Pastoral Studies at the University of Dallas, echoed Patterson's cautious tone.

"It kind of reminds me of going to talk to your aunt or uncle when your mom or dad probably would say no. A lot of people go to their angels instead because they want stuff," Pacwa said.

"Culturally, we like things done quickly — drop in your coins, you get what you want from the machine. There is some of that fast-food quality to our spiritual lives as well."

But angels cannot take the place of daily devotion, prayer and fellowship with other believers, he said.

"The spiritual life can be a real struggle," he said. "Maybe you can ask God to take care of things, but it doesn't always happen the way we plan. I've prayed for children who were sick and dying. They don't all get well. Some of them die. You have to be ready for that."

However, unlike Patterson, who believes that angels should play a limited role in the mature Christian life, Pacwa embraces their presence as helpers and healers, and said they should play a role in people's lives.

After all, they played a role in the life of Jesus, helping him after his temptation in the wilderness and in the garden of Gethsemane, he said.

"This is something that you see in the life of Christ," he said. "I tend to use Jesus Christ as the norm for healthy spirituality."

Patterson, who emphasized that his opinion is not necessarily shared by his fellow Southern Baptists, said that some of the popular stories surrounding angels tell more about human nature than about God.

"I think that is a human attempt to deal with the nonhuman. We have to deal with it in terms of our own categories, which of course are inadequate," he said.

"They can be helpful, but you can get hung up on a juvenile understanding. As I say, you tell me what you believe about angels, and I will tell you what you believe about God."

Evidence to support the concerns of Pacwa and Patterson is easy to find. The Internet includes hundreds of sites devoted to angels. Some reflect orthodox views; others embrace what could be characterized as a New Age philosophy.

But at the heart of the angel movement are ordinary people, whose interest in angels is neither cultic nor academic.

People like Dorothy Allen of Arlington, whose life has been touched by angels.

Mother of five, grandmother of 11, Allen's passion for angels seems to extend into every nook and cranny of her life.

Concrete angels greet boaters on the dock of her home. Porcelain angels fill her hutch, and painted renaissance angels peer down from the ceiling in her den.

On Sunday nights, Allen usually can be found watching her favorite TV show, "Touched by an Angel."

The angels on her ceiling are a story in themselves. The chubby cherubs form a small part of a 9-foot-by-4-foot replica of the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel, a replica that came to Allen in the form of an 8,000-piece jigsaw puzzle.

She ordered it from a catalog in 1995 as a Christmas gift to her family.

Over the next six months, with the help of her children and grandchildren, she finished the puzzle and had it secured in a gilded frame. Her husband, Bob, came up with the idea of suspending it from the ceiling.

Her interest in angels began in 1995 when she was given her first porcelain angel, one of a series sold in gift shops.

About the same time, she had an angelic encounter of a more personal nature.

Allen said she was pulling out of the parking lot of a Winn-Dixie one afternoon when the miracle happened. She had looked both ways before pulling into the street, but just as she moved forward, a man on a bicycle crossed her path.

As she watched, first with horror and then with inexplicable peace, the cyclist passed through the hood of her car and kept on pedaling.

"Once he got through, it was the man on his bicycle," she said. "He never turned back. It was either his guardian angel or mine, maybe both. I don't know."

Allen said she has no logical explanation beyond the spiritual.

"I was blessed," she said.

Mary Emery of Arlington also said she has had encounters with angels.

"I've had a real rough five-and-a-half years," she said. The hard times began with the death of her mother and continued when her daughter was injured in a car accident.

Although her daughter went through the windshield, she survived.

"I just felt like someone was in there with her," Emery said.

The tougher life got, the more strength Emery found in her spiritual life. A member of Pleasantview Baptist Church, Emery said she collects angels and loves them, but that they do not take the place of Jesus Christ.

"Angels are just a little bit of heaven on earth," she said. "They are kind of a comfort, but I always talk to God. I don't think I ever find myself talking to angels."

Likewise, Allen makes a similar distinction in her devotion to angels.

She found the movie "City of Angels" insulting to her faith, so much so that when she got home, she sat down and put her feelings on paper.

"The message this fallen angel leaves with the audience is that leaving God and His kingdom is nothing compared to the love of another human being," she wrote.

As she handed over her review, Allen added a parting thought.

Although she loves her angelic artwork and figurines, in her opinion true love comes from a deeper source.

"I don't think there is any love greater than God's love," she said.

ROSEN: Christ not a part of Jewish religion

(From 1B)

commentary.

Is a person born Jewish or does he become a Jew?

He is born Jewish.

Do Christians and Jews believe in the same God?

I'll make no assumptions for Christians, but Jews believe that Judaism is the right religion for Jews, but we don't judge or condemn any other religion. Jews don't proselytize. We respect the believers of any other religion. We don't appreciate being witnessed to or proselytized to. Everyone is entitled to their beliefs. It is very offensive when someone tries to convince you that your belief is incorrect.

What are some of the common misconceptions of Judaism?

That Judaism is some brand of Christianity. That Christ somehow figures into Judaism. He doesn't figure into Judaism at all. Christian people believe that Jesus is a Messiah and Jews don't. That's the primary difference. We are waiting for the Messiah. Some Jews believe that literally, some figuratively. We will not know who that Messiah is until he reveals himself.

Another misconception is that Jews are a race of people. That was a canard that the Nazis brought to the forefront, and unfortunately a lot of people still believe that.

Another is that Jews are the chosen people. We as Jews don't look upon that moniker "the chosen people" as any thought of superiority. When we were offered the Torah (the five books of Moses), or our laws, we accepted them. We think it refers to the matter of accepting the responsibility of our laws and commandments as opposed to we don't believe that being, quote, "the chosen people," refers to any privilege or superiority or divine preference. It is more a matter of divine summons than preference. As Jews, we're asked to follow laws and commandments and we interpret that as a matter of choosing."

Do Jews experience any sort of persecution in West Texas?

Not that I am aware of. Jews belong to the country clubs, whatever organizations, or fraternal organizations in the area and we have long been welcomed.

How many members of the Jewish community live in West Texas?

About 80 families. Jews make up less than one half of one percent of the population in West Texas.

Do Jews and Christians agree on anything in matters of faith? The Old Testament, for instance?

Jews don't refer to it as the Old Testament because that implies there's a New Testament. We refer to it as The Bible. Our Ten Commandments are the same. Jews and Christians have an awful lot in common in how they think people should be treated in terms of respect for one another.

On what points do Jews and Christians differ?

The single greatest difference is that Christians believe Christ is the Messiah. That's paramount because that's central to Christianity. That's the central divide between Jews and Christians. Some Christians believe in a Trinity. Jews have trouble with that concept as well because they think of God as one.

How do Jews feel about the New Testament?

We generally don't read the New Testament. Rabbinical students often study it to understand Christian viewpoints.

Do Jews believe in the concept of heaven and hell?

We don't have a literal belief in heaven and hell. We think what's important is living a good life here on earth. When people die they live on in the memory of those they leave behind.

What is the difference between the three forms of Judaism -- Orthodox, Reform and Conservative?

Orthodox Judaism is the belief in the literal reading of the 613 commandments, or laws, in the Torah. Reform Judaism arose as a rebelling against that, trying to create more modernity into our religion and our religious practices. Reform Jews, for instance, might see the Bible as divinely inspired as opposed to divinely written. To Reform Jews, the story of Jonah, for instance, is a story meant to teach as opposed to inspire. Orthodox Jews think of it as literal. Conservative Judaism arose as an answer to Reform Judaism. It brings back more of the traditional practices but yet is not as literal as orthodoxy.

Is a person born into a particular aspect of Judaism or are they free to choose which beliefs they follow?

They may follow their parents' belief or they may choose their own.

What is a rabbi?

Rabbis are educated in Reform, Conservative and Orthodox seminaries. Women are not accepted as rabbis in the Conservative and Orthodox movements, but are accepted in the Reform movement. At Temple Beth El, our student rabbis come from the Reform seminary in Cincinnati, Ohio. We have had a female student rabbi for awhile now. We think that a rabbi is more of a teacher and leader, but in terms of communication with God, we're all equal.

What are the kosher laws?

Basically, kosher laws prohibit pork. We can only eat animals that chew their cud and have a cloven hoof.

Why is that?

It's written in the Torah. There are reasons behind it, others believe we do it because God told us to do it that way. Pork is thought to be unclean. If we eat seafood, it has to have scales and not be bottom feeders. No shrimp, lobster, crab or oysters. Another of the primary laws of kosher food is not having meat and dairy products together. The reason for that is you don't cook the kid in its mother's milk. We eat margarine, not butter, for instance, if we're eating meat.

What is the Torah?

The five books of Moses. It is literally a scroll made of parchment that is hand-written.

What is the Talmud?

The Talmud is books of legal, ethical and historical writings. It contains a lot of discussion and anecdotes and was initially edited in 499.

Since Christ as the Messiah is not a part of your belief, do you measure time as B.C. and A.D.?

In our discussions and writings, we refer to, for example, the year 500 as 500 C.E., meaning "common era"; whereas Christians would say 500 B.C., we would say 500 B.C.E. This year is 5758 C.E.

What occurred to establish the beginning of the Hebrew calendar 5,758 years ago?

According to tradition, Year 1 was the year of creation, though modern Jews interpret this as the dawn of civilization rather than the dawn of the world.

David Rosen, 48, is a self-employed geologist and outgoing president of Temple Beth El in Odessa. Sunday, Noah Fishman, the nominee from the Temple Beth-el presidential nominating committee, is expected to be named the temple's new president.

ISRAEL: Notes to be taken to Western Wall

(From 1B)

Israel is officially observed on the Hebrew calendar. The Christian calendar officially denotes Israeli Independence Day on May 14.

"Many people pitched in and helped set up the celebration that was enjoyed by both children and adults, even older adults, people into their 70s," said David Rosen, outgoing president of the Temple. "It was set up as a trip to Israel. People had fun singing, dancing and learning about Israel."

Songleader Jana DeBenedetti, of Shreveport, led the celebration in several songs. A video trip to many cities in Israel was viewed and religious school rooms set up as various locales in Israel.

"Jerusalem had its Western Wall — down to the slits in the bricks where special prayers and meditation could be placed, and a member of our congregation will visit Israel next month and take personal notes (from our celebration) to deposit in the wall," according to Picce Glast, a Temple member.

Also at the celebration, Tel Aviv was represented by a disco and a kibbutz was represented in another room where members could don special clothes or hats and have their picture taken as if they were on the kibbutz.

An authentic bazaar filled another room, with rugs, scarves, afghans, caftans, jewelry and Judaic items such as candlesticks, menorahs, plates, trays and books.

Outside, an archeological dig could be found on the playground where the children could sift through the sand and find special rocks, coins and Stars of David — a piece of the past that they could take home with them.

Typical Israeli foods were served for dinner, including pita bread filled with falafel, Hummus, and lettuce and tomato covered with tekina, eggplant salad and tabouli salad.

GAILEY: Faith has helped coaching career

(From 1B)

hide that I'm Christian. I don't ever try to do that. But it's not right for me to speak for the organization."

One on one, he'll talk incessantly about his faith.

He said he was fortunate to grow up in the church in the small town of Americus, Ga., where his parents were devout Baptists.

"I did it all. I was in the boys' choir, in the high school choir at church, in the FCA (Fellowship of Christian Athletes), and I did the Royal Ambassadors at church," he said, smiling at the recollection as he leaned back in the leather couch of his spacious but simple office at the team's Valley Ranch complex. "Living in a small town in south Georgia, when you weren't in school, you were in church."

He said his parents and grandparents guided him toward Christ, but it was ultimately his decision as a young boy whether to accept Jesus as Lord and Savior.

"Through years of going to church and being involved in Bible studies and Sunday school, you hear it, and then you have to make a decision whether you believe it or not I," he said. "And once you believe it, are you going to live it? So what I learned from my dad was make a decision, make the right decision, and live it. Don't just give it lip service."

He said his dad, Tom Gailey, who died last summer, taught him to do things the ight way.

"Was he perfect? No. Am I perfect? No," Gailey said. "Nobody's perfect. I still struggle, just like he struggled, but he pointed me in the right direction and then said, 'Go see what you think.' And I appreciated that."

Gailey prays that he's done the same for his sons, 18-year-old Andrew, who will attend Elon College in North Carolina in the fall, and 22-year-old Tate, a junior at Auburn University.

"They're both Christians, and they seem to be headed in the right direction," he said. "I'm very proud of them. I know I'm not supposed to have pride, but I do, in them. One of my human frailties is I have pride. But they're great kids. I'm very blessed."

The Gaileys won't move to the Dallas area until Andrew finishes high school in June. Meanwhile, Gailey visits his wife, Laurie, and Andrew when he can. As the head coach of a professional football team, there isn't that much free time. Gailey couldn't make it home for his 25th wedding anniversary last month or for Easter.

"There are a lot of little things you give up when you take this job, but our marriage and our family is strong enough because of where it's based or who it's based on," he said, "that missing one Easter together or missing one anniversary is not a major problem. There are too many other good times to make that a problem."

Through 22 years of coaching at the college and professional level, Gailey said he has relied on his faith for strength.

"For a Christian, your strength, your peace, your joy, your enthusiasm, your compassion, all stems from your relationship with God," he said. "That's where it all comes from. This is hard, even when you're a Christian. Life is hard. Everybody has a tough job. But I'm in this job for a reason. I don't know what that is, but I'm here for a reason."

Gailey said he takes what he learned from his father and what he learns from Jesus to be a good example, no matter what he's doing.

"I'm a competitor," he said. "I want to win whether I'm playing racquetball or whether it's Sunday afternoon for the Dallas Cowboys. I'm going to compete the same way on the golf course, playing Scrabble with my wife, whatever, but I'm going to try to compete and win the way it should be done, the way I perceive that a Christian should do that."

So, his faith plays a major role in every phase of his life, he said.

"I don't have to call upon it more on Sunday afternoon or anything like that or in particularly tough times, even though, naturally, we do cry out to God in stressful situations," said Gailey, who reads the Bible regularly. "That's the human side of us, is we tend to get lax when things are going smoothly, and we tend to cry out to God when things get tough. I don't believe that's the way it should be. I think you should try to build your relationship on a daily basis."

And that relationship is integral to knowing who Chan Gailey is. "I don't talk about it a lot. I just try. And I'm saying try because I have not arrived. I don't even think I'm close to that. But I try to do what I think God wants me to do with my life."

Quarterly offers sermons, writings of black clergy

By Dawn Fallik
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE — The Rev. Judy Witherspoon feels the spirit when she's preparing a sermon. Sometimes, though, she needs a little earthly inspiration.

That's when she turns to a new quarterly, "The African American Pulpit," which offers sermons, interviews and spiritual advice to more than 1,100 subscribers nationwide. Conceived by a white pastor, the magazine is dedicated solely to the sermons and writings of black preachers.

Why? The Rev. David Farmer, the magazine's founder, is honoring the greatest influences on his preaching style — two black ministers: Gardner Taylor, pastor emeritus of Concord Baptist Church of Christ in Brooklyn, N.Y., and James Earl Massey, pastor at Alabama's Tuskegee University, whom he heard when studying in Kentucky.

Until then, Farmer says, he had heard few black teachings beyond radio and television, "and they were kind of extreme.

"And here comes two well-educated, eloquent, warm preachers who did, in a very powerful way, display the genius of African-American preaching, using that creative use of narrative to bring to their listeners' lives a hopeful, uplifting kind of experience."

Farmer, pastor of University Baptist Church in Baltimore, admits that it took a while for his publication to gain acceptance. "There were some questions all along, about why was this white person doing this," he says.

But all Farmer saw was the need. According to the Magazine Publishers of America, there is no similar magazine.

While editing for "Pulpit Digest," Farmer met Kirk Byron Jones of the Andover Newton Theological School near Boston, who became his co-editor. "The African American Pulpit" hit mailboxes in November, and the spring issue was released in March. It is the first magazine published by Judson Press of Valley Forge, Pa.

Jones, who is black, hopes that the magazine connects church communities by sharing ideas and practices. "The participatory worship, the musical expression, the poetic beauty of preaching. Those are the gifts of our traditional service," he says. "But others also have gifts. We don't have the monopoly."

Taylor, a nationally renowned preacher who was one of Farmer's inspirations, says the time is right for a magazine based on spirituality. A former pastor at Amherst College in Massachusetts, Taylor now lectures at divinity schools nationwide on the practice of preaching.

"There is today a spiritual hunger in America that has been unmatched in the last 20 to 30 years," he says, noting how spirituality surfaces in motion pictures and secular magazines. "All of these things indicate something more than curiosity, that there is a hunger and craving for spiritual values."

Though it is always a challenge to get a congregation's attention, Taylor believes the publication could inspire new ideas.

"All preachers benefit from reading each other's sermons," he says, "not to imitate, but to see their angle of vision, see how they've gone about their sermons."

Including sermons by women was a must for Jones, even if it offended more traditional preachers. As publisher of women's sermons in "And Blessed Is She," Taylor agrees.

"Some of our members have a problem accepting women in ministry," Jones says. "But we've come to understand that they are indeed called and qualified."

Witherspoon, minister of music at God's House of Glory in Chester, Pa., appreciates the words of female colleagues. "There is a wave of spirit that's moving, bringing women to the surface in ministry," she says, "but women preaching goes back as far as Bible days."

For subscribers, it's not just the sense of community that the magazine brings; it's also the knowledge that the words of black ministers are being preserved.

"For 200 years, education was forbidden to the black race," Witherspoon notes, "so preaching was still going on, but the sermons weren't being written down."

That oral tradition, Farmer says, is still so popular that it is sometimes tough to find material for the quarterly. And while more preachers are putting sermons to paper as part of the creative process, the co-editors agree that pastors are open to spontaneity during the service.

Witherspoon appreciates seeing sermons in writing.

"When you read, you have to hear it in your head, either from past experience or creating it yourself," the seminarian says. "It helps to sharpen my skills and keeps me from getting dull."

EDITOR'S NOTE — The magazine costs $30 for four issues a year. For subscriptions call 1-800-331-1053.

CROSSES: Ancient Egyptian 'Ankh' symbolizes life

(From 1B)

teacher Wanda Bonner, made a hardwood cross for one wall of the new school room.

"That year, we went to Ireland and brought back these two Celtic crosses," Ms. Bonner said.

"From then on, every time anybody went anywhere, they brought a cross," Ms. Bonner said.

"Even Odessa," class member Fae Smith said with a chuckle.

The Keystone class includes 105 members, mostly couples, and an average Sunday attendance of about 70, said class member John Moreland.

The collection includes crosses made here in Midland as well as some from 10 states and 22 foreign countries including Ireland, Romania, Finland, Greece, Israel, Germany, Mexico, Indonesia, Wales, Switzerland, Costa Rica, Turkey, France, England, Venezuela, Bermuda, New Zealand, Russia, Italy, Spain, Africa and Canada.

Materials used in the crosses include various kinds of wood, including olive wood, bronze, stained glass, terra cotta and other ceramics, brass, woven rushes, silver on wood, porcelain, sea shells, iron and molded nails.

There are four Celtic cross designs, which usually contain a characteristic circle symbolizing eternity behind the four arms of the cross.

Among these is an ancient Celt God form on the cross and another pewter cross with the sage-like form of Christ holding a shepherd's crook, surrounded by three shamrocks on the upper arms of the cross.

There are several examples of the Milagrito cross. These are covered with hammered silver representations of things for which the penitent person is praying for, Ms. Bonner explained. These are popular from the Southwestern United States through Mexico and into Central and South America.

An ornate crucifix, which includes the figure of Jesus suffering on the cross, comes from Bali, Indonesia. A metal cross including the carved figure of a guardian angel watching over small children comes from a Spanish mission in Tucson, she said.

A Tau, or T-shaped cross, was made by a class member and bears ancient Greek characters that, translated, mean "Love One Another," Ms. Bonner said.

Ms. Bonner keeps a ledger with all of the information available when someone brings in a cross.

An Egyptian "Ankh" — which predates Christianity — is very much a cross and is a symbol of enduring life.

One unusual cross appears to be a fusion of the Christian cross and the shepherd's staff, or crook. This cross was found in certain churches of Spain along the pilgrimage route to Santiago, she said.

A bronze cross from Heidelberg, Germany, bears the garments of Jesus draped over the cross arms, symbolizing the risen Christ.

A wooden cross from Switzerland includes German writing meaning: "God, bless this house and all who are coming in and out," Ms. Bonner said.

In view of this collection, the Keystone class meets every Sunday and boasts several members who have been a part of the class for 30 years, according to Moreland and Ms. Bonner.

MHS shares title

Midland High didn't even play a game on District 4-5A's last baseball playing date, but came away with a huge win anyway.

By virtue of Odessa Permian's 4-1 win over Abilene High Friday, Midland High will share the 4-5A championship with the Eagles, both ending district play with identical 8-4 marks.

Midland Lee defeated San Angelo Central, 6-3, Friday, dropping the Bobcats to the district's third place team. Had Central defeated Lee, three teams would have been tied for first place.

MHS and AHS will now have to play a seeding game, probably Tuesday, at a site still to be determined. The winner will own a first round bye in the state playoffs, which can begin as early as May 7.

Lee's Glover leaps into spot at state

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — At 5:30 Friday morning, Midland Lee boys track coach Kelvin Ratliff drove up to the house of his sophomore triple jumper T. J. Glover.

There, in the wee hours of the morning, was the regional qualifier, sitting on the porch with a track bag on one side and track shoes on the other.

There was Glover like he was portrayed in a real-life Norman Rockwell portrait, waiting for his ride to Lubbock and awaiting his opportunity of a lifetime. It was an opportunity he turned into the greatest masterpiece of his short high school career, winning the Region I-5A triple jump title and securing a trip to the state meet in Austin.

"I consider myself a winner and winners rise to the occasion. I guess I rose to the occasion," Glover said.

■ I-5A Track Meet

Glover becomes the second-straight Rebel to win the triple jump title. Last year, Dreyfus Andrews set a I-5A record with a leap of 49 feet, 10 inches set the table for the Lee repeat. Glover, who won with a best mark of 48 feet, was equally as impressive in his own way.

Glover came into the meet with a personal-best jump of 45-6, not a mark that would by any means claim a title. However, he was better on Friday than he had ever been before. In five of his six attempts, he bettered his personal record.

"To be honest, I never thought of going to Austin," Ratliff said. "When you look at the surface, T.J. has jumped 45-6 and even an improvement of a foot doesn't get to Austin. He improves 2 1/2 feet. He thought he could and that makes the difference."

Glover took the lead in the preliminaries with marks of 45-7 and 46-5.

In the finals, Glover extended the lead after a jump of 47-1, a mark later equalled by Lubbock Coronado's Trey Ivory in the fifth round. Glover finished the fifth round with a mark of 47-0. He had the lead thanks to having a better second-best mark.

MHS' Wilson bows out vs. No. 1 seed

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

LUBBOCK — It's almost a shame that Midland High's Toffee Wilson had to been in the same draw as a nationally ranked opponent in Friday's Region 1-5A tennis tournament.

But that happens when you draw names out of a hat and Wilson's had to land in the same side of the bracket as No. 1 seed El Paso Franklin's Kaysie Smashey.

"That's just the luck of the draw where she fell," said MHS coach Tom Heiting. "The quality of these players that come here is very high."

After Wilson breezed through her first match against Fort Worth Southwest's Michelle Fick, 6-0, 6-0 at the Lubbock Municipal Tennis Center, her quarterfinal match was another story.

Smashey used her strong serving and her low backhand shots to keep Wilson off-balance. Smashey's experience, which included a doubles state championship in 1997, proved also to be a factor as she knocked off Wilson, 6-0, 6-0.

"She kept the ball really deep along the baseline," said Wilson, a junior. "She's really a good all-around player. She should do really well at state."

Wilson's coach had praise for his young player.

"I thought she played wonderfully today," Heiting said. "She was always one ball away from winning a point against Smashey. Toffee made this girl work for every point. She didn't give too many free points. Smashey was just able to do so much with the ball."

It wasn't a surprise that Smashey, who's a nationally-ranked top-20 player and a University of Texas signee, got the No. 1 seed. It was a surprise to see both Wilson and San Angelo Central's Courtney Choate, the District 4-5A champion,

Steers' sprinter gets top times in two events

By Amy McDaniel
MRT Correspondent

SAN ANGELO - Big Spring High School's Tory Mitchell has set himself up for a double-gold performance here today at the Region I-4A Track and Field Championships.

Mitchell, a junior, qualified for the finals with the best time in both the 100 meters and the 200 during Friday's running preliminaries at Angelo State University's Multipurpose Sports Complex.

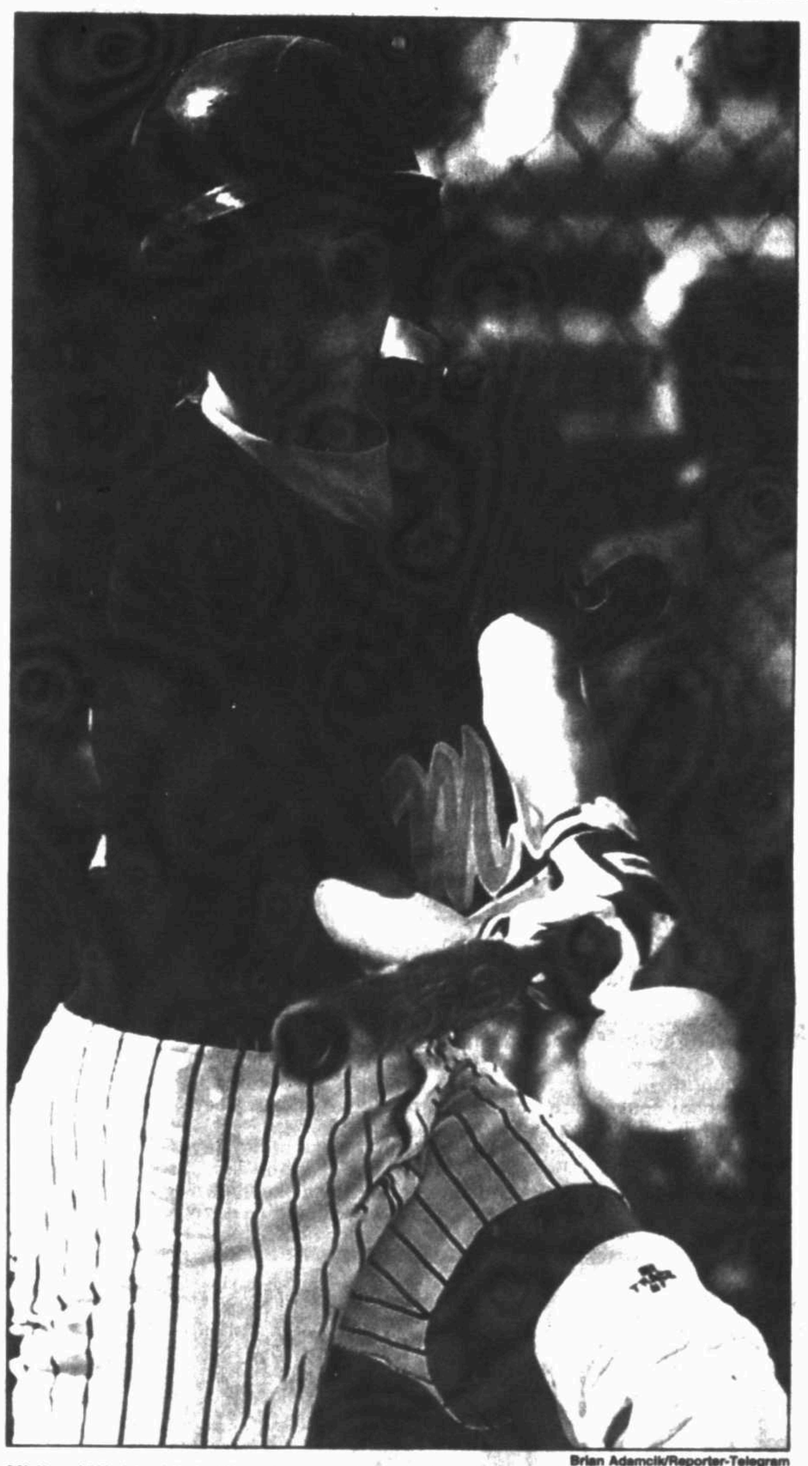

Competition continues today with the remaining field event finals beginning at noon and the running finals at 6 p.m.

Athletes are gunning for a trip to the UIL State Track and Field Championships in two weeks in Austin. The top two finishers in each final event qualify for state.

After running a time of 10.47 seconds in the 100 and 21.15 in the 200 just to make the finals, Mitchell is in good shape to challenge the meet record in both events. The record in the 100 is a hand-held time of 10.4 set by Esteven Golightly of Levelland in 1992. Mitchell's best hand-time

Lady Bulldogs breeze through another victory

The state softball playoffs are getting tougher for the Midland High Lady Bulldogs, but not by much.

EP Franklin	1
Midland High	7

MHS unleashed an 11-hit attack to defeat El Paso Franklin 7-1 Friday at MUGS Field in Ulmer Park in the area playoff round. And, yes, this was tougher than the bi-district match.

Midland High scored only seven runs instead of the 10 they put on the board against Lubbock Monterey in the first round. The Lady Bulldogs had to play a full seven innings instead of five. MHS had to settle for a four-hit game instead of a no-hitter. We'll just have to let you know when the real playoffs start.

"This is easier than it was in district," said MHS shortstop Kristi Heard. "We had to struggle for a win in nearly every game we played in district, but ever since we got into the playoffs, we've put it together. We really had it together out there today."

MHS never trailed in the game with the Lady Cougars, taking a 1-0 lead in the third inning when Crystal Shelton walked, stole second and third and scored on Francesca Salcido's double to left center. The Lady Bulldogs scored four times in the fourth to salt the game on RBIs from Beckie Hartman, Tiffany Robinson, Chancey Davis and Salcido. Two insurance runs were plated by RayLynn DeLeon and Hartman in the fifth.

"This was the best team effort we've had this year," Shelton said. "We've been playing good, but we expect it to get harder the farther we go."

Megan Clingman went the distance to pick up the win. She gave up a run in the seventh inning to lose the shutout, ending a streak of 11 playoff innings in which Lady Bulldog pitchers hadn't given up a run. Clingman had 10

Lee, Hanks battle in New Mexico

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

LOVING, N.M. — The Midland Lee softball team takes its Texas state playoff run out-of-state today when they face El Paso Hanks in an area game here at 2 p.m. (MDT).

LEE

And there is a little bad blood flowing between these two teams after two days of heated argument on where this game should be played.

Lee and Hanks met in the area round a year ago in El Paso at the Hanks field. Unlike football, where teams must return a visit to the other school in consecutive seasons, softball does not enjoy that rule, but that didn't make Lee softball coach Perry Young any happier.

"I thought we had a gentlemen's agreement last year that if we had to go out there, they would come here the next time," Young said. "I guess we didn't have a gentleman.

"We haggled over this for two days. Hanks wanted to go home-and-home again, but they wanted to flip for El Paso. We felt that if we went on a home-and-home basis, by rights, they should come here this year since we made the trip out there last year. Then we couldn't even agree on a neutral site. If we wanted Pecos, they wanted Alpine. This is where we end up — out of state."

Lee defeated Hanks 3-0 last year in El Paso and Young expects almost the same team for Hanks to show up again.

"They have the same team they had last year, but they lost their pitcher (Monica Almanza)," Young said.

Lee broke open a tight game against Hanks in the third inning when Adrian Nobles drove in Michelle Primeaux with what proved to be the winning run. Up until that point, Almanza was almost untouchable.

Hanks is the District 2-5A champion while Lee is riding the playoffs with the third seed out of District 4-5A

And untouchable is a good word to describe the recent

Indian Charlie, Favorite Trick try to reverse history in Kentucky Derby

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
AP Racing Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Indian Charlie and Favorite Trick will try and play jinx busters in Saturday's Kentucky Derby — a role that has not been played to critical acclaim in the past 18 years.

Indian Charlie is the early favorite for the 124th Derby and is expected to be the post-time favorite. No betting choice has won the race since Spectacular Bid in 1979.

Favorite Trick will be trying to become the first 2-year-old champion of the previous year to win the Derby since Spectacular Bid. He also will try and become the first Juvenile Breeders' Cup winner to win the Derby since the Breeders' Cup began in 1984.

A bit player who certainly would take center stage at Churchill Downs is Nationalore, seeking his first win in his 16th career start. But the colt — bred, owned and trained by Cho Myung-Kwon — has paid his own way. His earnings of $283,765 are believed to make him the richest maid in history.

Three supporting players who could share in Derby glory would be Kathy Walsh, a trainer; Earlie Fires, a jockey, and Rick Pitino, an owner, who also happens to be a basketball coach.

Walsh will try and become the first woman trainer to win the Derby when she saddles longshot Hanuman Highway, second in the Arkansas Derby, a head in front of Favorite Trick. She is the seventh woman to train a Derby starter.

The 51-year-old Fires will be on longshot Robinwould in his first Derby ride since he finished 13th on Sharp Gary in his fifth Derby in 1974.

Pitino, the Boston Celtics coach, attended eight Derbies when he coached the University of Kentucky. Saturday, however, he could end up in the winner's circle as the majority owner of Halory Hunter, the Nick Zito-trained winner of the Blue Grass Stakes.

Jazz prolong series by ripping Rockets

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — The Utah Jazz decided to make history on its own terms.

Karl Malone scored 29 points and led a second-half charge as the Jazz beat the Rockets 93-71 Friday night and avoided becoming the second top seed in NBA history to lose to a No. 8.

Utah was trailing 42-36 at the half and it looked like the Rockets might put them in the record books with the dubious honor before the Jazz outscored the Rockets 57-29 over the final 24 minutes.

"I told them at the half, 'You're going to make history,'" Jazz coach Jerry Sloan said. "The first half they were blowing us away. I don't know what we were doing. It's certainly a huge game for us today.

"I'm sure it will be a difficult game on Sunday. We were just fortunate to go back and play one more."

The victory evened the best-of 5 series at 2-2, with the deciding Game 5 set for Sunday in Salt Lake City. The winner will play the San Antonio Spurs in the second round.

Now, the Rockets get another chance to continue their string of 17 consecutive playoff series victories when they won the first game. Houston won Game 1 103-90 at Utah.

The No. 8 Denver Nuggets beat top-seeded Seattle in 1994, but the Jazz avoided that fate when Malone hit 10 points in the third quarter, and Utah outscored Houston 28-10 in the fourth.

Hakeem Olajuwon led Houston with 27 points and 15 rebounds, and Clyde Drexler was the only other Rocket in double figures with 11 points.

"We're still having trouble with Hakeem," Sloan said. "He gets down low and it's tough to guard him there. It's always been a mismatch for us to guard Hakeem."

The Jazz bench continued to beat the Rockets reserves with 15 points each from Bryon Russell and Shandon Anderson.

"We didn't start off well," Malone said. "But we stayed with it. Bryon did a great job and was a big lift for us off the bench. We had a game plan and we stuck with it.

"Our defense gave us a big lift down the stretch."

The Rockets played most of the game without Charles Barkley, who bruised the triceps muscle in his right arm in the second quarter and left the game after attempting to play in the third.

Russell and teammate Jeff Hornacek butted heads with 42 seconds left in the third period. Both received stitches and returned to action.

The Jazz started out with horrible shooting and allowed the Rockets to take early control, but Malone hit 10 third quarter points that got the Jazz started and blew out the Rockets in the fourth period.

But the Jazz started pulling back in the third period and finally got their first lead since the opening minutes on a pair of free throws by Malone for a 57-56 lead with 3:07 left in the period.

The Jazz never trailed again, and poured it on in the fourth quarter when they used a 10-0 run to blow it out and take a 83-65 lead with 3:42 to play.

The Rockets hacked out a brutal 42-36 halftime lead, holding the Jazz to 10-first quarter points (a playoff low for a Rockets opponent) but neither team could shoot straight. The Jazz went 7:14 without a basket in the first quarter.

Neither team could shoot at the start of the game but the Rockets gritted out a 13-4 lead with 3:47 to go in the opening quarter.

TRACK: Lady Rebels relays perform well

(From 1C)

In fact, Glover had the title and a trip to Austin in his pocket when he took the runway for his final effort, the last jump of the competition. All that was left was to win the title outright. He did so with the 48-foot jump.

"I didn't want it to be a tie," Glover said. "I wanted him to come into state knowing I jumped better than him, not that he jumped the same as me."

When it came down to it, Glover was on, securing Midland's first state berth this season. Donning a shirt that displayed the phrase "LEEP (instead of Leap) OF FAITH," he busted out with an incredible win in front of his fans, who included former Lee track stars Corry Pertile and Fred Pertile, who are his cousins, and his sister Chavaye, who after one personal-best jump yelled, "That's my brother."

It was like something extraordinary was carrying him.

"I have been praying about this and God delivered and gave me what I asked for," Glover said. "All I can say is 'Wow'. That is all I can say."

LADY REBELS SET FOR IMPORTANT DAY: The Midland Lee girls track team can't make plans for Austin quite yet, but the girls on the relay teams took a big step on Friday. The Lady Rebels (Chavaye Glover, Toya Clater, Amanda Douglas and Maurion Strambler) ran the fastest preliminary time in the 800 meter relay with a school record time of 1 minute, 40.02 seconds.

"They know that is their ticket to state," Lee girls coach Randy Smith said. "That is their best chance at it and I think they will run better tomorrow."

In the 400 relay, the same four Lady Rebels ran a 47.5, which ranks fourth. Arlington Sam Houston posted the best time with a 46.8.

"Right now we are concentrating on going to the finals," Clater said. "We will do the rest tomorrow."

"This is competition," Strambler said. "You have to work to win this. Everything has to be perfect."

Along with the relays, the Lady Rebs have two other shots. Traci Broach is one that stands out. The senior ran a 2:20.1, the third best preliminary time in the girls 800. Broach finished just 1.2 seconds behind the top qualifier, Lyndie Galka of El Paso Hanks.

"As far as their track careers go, it is all on the line tomorrow," Smith said. "The better they do, the more publicity they get, and they will get to run in Austin. I like our chances, in both the relays and Broach in the 800."

SIMPSON TAKES FOURTH: Lee's Katie Simpson continued to act much older than her 15 years, claiming fourth in the girls 3,200 meters. Simpson, who attends Lee Freshman High School but runs with the Lady Rebels, ran 11:45 to take fourth behind Amarillo High's Kara Newton.

For Simpson, the day made it a sweet return to Lubbock, where she finished 17th at the region cross country meet.

"I knew I couldn't get 17th (because there were just 16 runners), but was surprised with what I did," Simpson said. "I am proud of myself. I didn't think I would go past district."

BULLDOGS MISFIRE ON FIRST DAY: To say that the Midland High boys had it rough might not be putting it nicely. The Bulldogs started the day as Wes Solansky, a the 4-5A runner-up in the pole vault, failed to clear his first height after passing attempts all the way to 15 feet.

Then, the MHS 400-meter relay, which won the 4-5A meet, didn't get the baton around the track, dropping it at the first exchange point. Weldon Cooks did manage to break the string of bad luck qualifying for the finals of the 100 meters. Cooks, the 4-5A 100 champ and runner-up in the 200, ran 10.9 but suffered an injury which forced him to miss the 200.

Raji Hickey, the 4-5A 200 champion, did win his heat in the 200, motoring around in a time of 21.5 seconds, which was the third best time of the preliminaries.

"We could have been there in the relay, but when we dropped the baton, I had to put everything in the 200," Hickey said. "I came out of the blocks well. I got to do that tomorrow to make it to the next level."

WYATT SETS NATIONAL RECORD: The O.D. Wyatt boys 400-meter relay set a national record with a fully automatic time of 39.99 which broke the previous record of 40.09 set by Jasper in 1991.

It probably could have been faster if Wyatt anchorman DeMario Wesley, who was the top qualifier in the 100 and 200, had not eased through the last 40 meters.

"Right now it is just another race," O.D. Wyatt coach Lee Williams said. "My job is to try to keep them focused on going to state. I don't care if we run 44 flat, if we get first or second.

"If they live on what they did today they could get their feelings hurt tomorrow. I have to go back to the hotel to make them understand that."

MORE MIDLANDERS: Midland High's Shai Simpson, the 4-5A girls 400 champion, ran a 58.11 to make today's finals... Lee's Brian Boyd didn't qualify for the finals of the shot put... MHS' Mahogany Jones hit a hurdle and went down in the girls 100-meter hurdles. The same fate happened to Lee's Gerardo Diaz in the 300 hurdles. Diaz was closing in on a finals' spot when he hit the last hurdle and stumbled across the finish line.

"As happy as I was for T.J., I was disappointed for Gerardo," Ratliff said. "I was hurt for him. He is a good competitor and gave it his all."

get tough draws. Choate also lost in the quarterfinals, to Franklin's Lindsay Deason, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2. After surveying the competition, Wilson saw that other than the seeded players and players from El Paso, other districts weren't on the same par as District 4-5A.

"It was fun coming here but when I got here I realized that our district was stronger than most," Wilson said.

The first match against Fick proved to be the opposite as Wilson was the one that was the dominator instead of the dominated.

"I was just trying to work on my serves and passing shots for my second match," said Wilson of her match, which lasted about an hour.

Heiting said he was impressed with the way Wilson played her opening round match.

"Her first match was flawless," he said. "There was nothing I could say to help her except 'keep doing what you're doing.'"

Even though the end of the day proved to be shorter than Wilson wanted to. As Wilson looked down to wonder what she could've done better to compete against Smashey, she said she was grateful for the experience and looks forward to coming back to Lubbock.

"Any experience I can get in regionals is going to help me next year," Wilson said. "I had a good spring season."

Heiting also feels confident that this experience will benefit Wilson as a senior.

"By coming here, she got to see what regional competition looks like," Heiting said. "She impressed a lot of coaches out here who thought highly of her demeanor on the court. She's got a good shot to land a good seeding next year and maybe go and compete on the state level."

Even though Wilson lost, she was still able to crack a smile in front of her family and friends. Sure there was disappointment that she couldn't go further but also knows that in the back of her mind lies the thoughts of what's to come in the future. Wilson is definitely going to be someone that the rest of District 4-5A and the region will have to keep and eye on.

Her coach certainly thinks she's got the attitude to make a return to Lubbock.

"It's been a privilege to work with her this year," said Heiting about Wilson. "She took in everything I said and applied it to her game. She was the perfect representative for Midland High and the city of Midland."

OTHER 4-5A RESULTS: San Angelo Central's Todd Petty made it into today's third place match against Arlington Lamar's Alan Haedge. Petty lost in the semifinals to Lubbock Coronado's Jeremy Earl, 6-1, 6-2. Earl will face Abilene Cooper's Theron Cole in the boys singles championship... In boys doubles, the Permian duo of Clayton Morgan and Tobias Heiler will play in the third place match against El Paso Franklin's Scott Walker and Stephan Pope. Morgan and Heiler lost in the semifinals to the No. 2 seeded team of Michael Mills and Kirk O'Connor of Wichita Falls Rider, 6-0, 7-6 (2)... In girls doubles action, Abilene Cooper's No. 1 seeded team of Lacy Johnson and Andi Wildner are in the championship against the No. 2 seeded team of Saber Pierce and Lauren Walker of Duncanville.

Gordon takes his first pole of season for California 500

FONTANA, Calif. (AP) — No one could blame Jeff Gordon if he already considers California Speedway one of his favorite tracks.

In two visits to the track 40 miles east of Los Angeles, Gordon has a race victory and, now, the pole for Sunday's California 500.

The winner of the inaugural Winston Cup race here last summer, Gordon was the fourth of 46 drivers to make a qualifying attempt Friday on the 2-mile, high-banked oval.

He turned a lap of 181.772 mph, and was initially disappointed.

"It was just a good lap," the defending Winston Cup champion said. "The car just stuck good. But when I saw the time, I was really surprised. It was the same speed we went in practice. I went into the corners a little harder on that (qualifying) lap and I thought it would be about three tenths (of a second) quicker than that.

"But it turns out that just about everybody slowed down from practice. I guess it must have been the track heating up."

The closest anybody could come to knocking Gordon off the top qualifying spot was Jeremy Mayfield, who put his Ford next to Gordon's Chevrolet on the front row with a lap of 180.659.

To Keep Your Comfort Up And Your Energy Costs Down, You Need Three Things.

(Four If You Count The Super Handyman.)

When it comes to around-the-house projects, expert fixer-upper Al Carrell is used to doling out advice on his nationally syndicated show. And when asked about replacing older heating and air conditioning equipment, you'll find he has some definite opinions.

"If you're replacing an older system, look at the long-term solution. This is one time you don't want a quick fix," he will tell you with a knowing smile.

Put Aging Equipment Out To Pasture.

"Actually, for your heating and cooling system to run at its peak efficiency, your equipment should have a SEER (Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio) of at least 12.0. That can really help cut costs. But new equipment alone won't cut it."

The Importance Of Being Insulated.

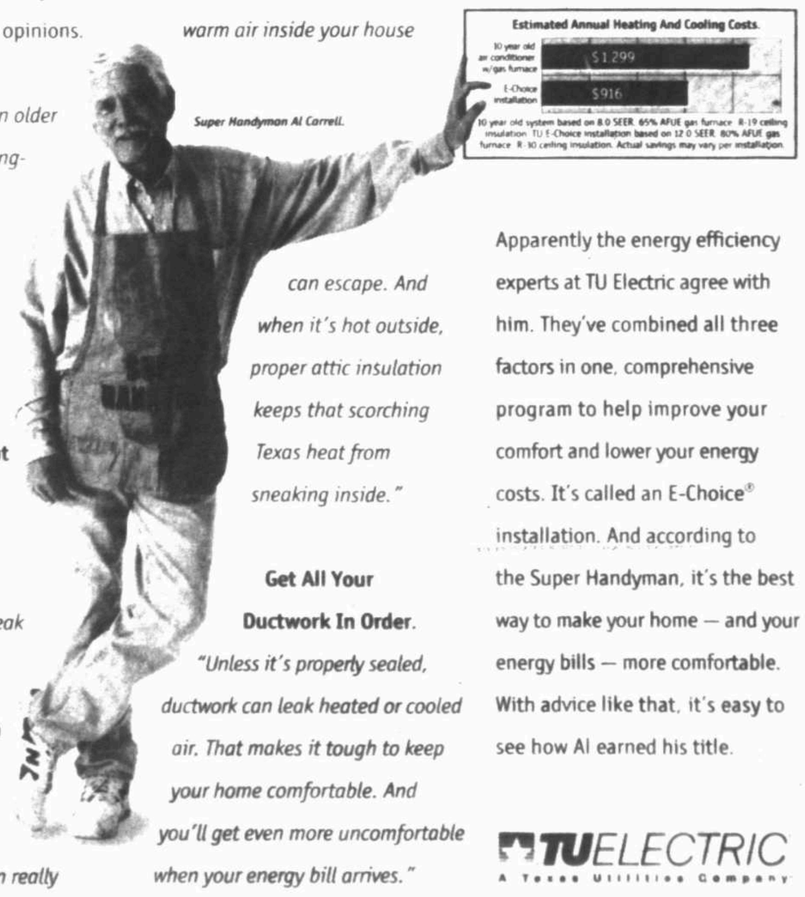

"If you don't have enough attic insulation when it's cold out, warm air inside your house can escape. And when it's hot outside, proper attic insulation keeps that scorching Texas heat from sneaking inside."

Get All Your Ductwork In Order.

"Unless it's properly sealed, ductwork can leak heated or cooled air. That makes it tough to keep your home comfortable. And you'll get even more uncomfortable when your energy bill arrives."

He Who Hesitates. . .

"Don't wait until your equipment goes out to deal with your heating and cooling system. Find a dealer who believes in the three factor philosophy."

Super Handyman Al Carrell.

Apparently the energy efficiency experts at TU Electric agree with him. They've combined all three factors in one, comprehensive program to help improve your comfort and lower your energy costs. It's called an E-Choice® installation. And according to the Super Handyman, it's the best way to make your home — and your energy bills — more comfortable. With advice like that, it's easy to see how Al earned his title.

Stanton's Davis goes to state

ABILENE — Stanton's Tyron Davis won a state track berth here Friday in the Region I-2A boys and girls track meet by winning the long jump with a 22-7, six inches better than second place finisher Kenny West of Jim Ned.

Davis is the only Buff to qualify for the state meet after the first day of action, but only field event finals were held. Davis was the defending region champion in the long jump, so this is his second state berth in the event.

Stanton scored 12 points and stand in fifth place, eight points behind Stamford and Albany, who have 20 points. Iraan scored 17 points for third place and Spearman has 15.

Stanton's other two points came from a sixth place finish by Justin Cobb in the high jump with a 6-2 and a sixth place finish by Kason Anderson in the discus with a 149-6.

Iraan's Felipe Bernal won the shot put with a throw of 54-3 1/4, over six inches better than Canadian's Chad Carr.

In the girls division, Stanton has yet to score points. Hawley leads the points race with 22 points while Iraan has 20.

Iraan's Brittney Lanehart won both the high jump and long jump, qualifying for state in two events on the first day of action. She had a 5-6, four inches better than Hamlin's state qualifier Jacqueline Agriccla, in the high jump and a 17-8 3/4 in the long jump, which beat the 17-5 1/2 posted by Winters' Jeanna Kozelsky.

Running event finals will be held today.

Rangerettes score four points

ODESSA — Greenwood scored four points on the first day of the Region I-3A boys and girls track meet here Friday at Ratliff Stadium.

Rangerette Kristi Brown placed fourth in the girls discus to account for Greenwood's points. Brown had a toss of 114-6. Nicole Hummer won the event with a 123-1 while Heather Tront took second with a 122-8, winning the two state berths.

Greenwood's boys didn't score any first day points, but only a few final events were held Friday as most of the day dealt with the running preliminaries.

The Class 3A meet will conclude today at Ratliff Stadium with all events being finals. The top two in each event earn state berths in Austin in two weeks.

Ranger homers rock Ozona

OZONA — The Greenwood Rangers rocked the Ozona Lions with four home runs here Friday for a 12-6 non-conference baseball victory.

Steven McFarden had a huge day with two home runs while Michael Otho and Frankie Keller each added a homer.

Greenwood climbed to 16-7-1 for the season with the win. Andrew Wooten got the victory, striking out seven batters.

Monty Magee went 3-for-3 at the plate and Gabriel Pallanez went 2-for-4.

Greenwood will play at Sonora at 5 p.m. Tuesday as the Rangers return to District 4-3A play. Greenwood is 3-3 in district play.

MHS captures share of District 4-5A crown with little help from Permian

■ Midland Lee defeats San Angelo Central, putting Bobcats in third place.

Staff Report

SAN ANGELO — Midland High didn't even play a game on District 4-5A's last baseball playing date but came away with a huge win anyway.

By virtue of Odessa Permian's 4-1 win over Abilene High Friday, Midland High will share the 4-5A championship with the Eagles, both ending district play with identical 8-4 marks.

Midland Lee defeated San Angelo Central, 6-3, Friday, dropping the Bobcats to the district's third place team. Had Central defeated Lee, three teams would have been tied for first place.

MHS and AHS will now have to play a seeding game, which has been set for 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in Snyder. The winner will own a first round bye in the state playoffs, which can begin as early as March 7.

"I'm in shock," said Midland High head baseball coach Barry Russell after learning of how the final day of district play went down. "I can't believe how Odessa Permian stepped up and beat Abilene High. I really didn't expect that. And I was the biggest Lee Rebel fan all day. Their win also helped us out a lot.

"All the district playoff scenarios were worked out earlier in the week and the one with us tying Abilene High for first had us playing in Snyder. It's a really big game because it puts a whole new twist on everything for us. We now have a chance to have another weekend off and go right to the second round. That's big.

"I'm so excited for this team. To come from 2-10 last year to the district championship is unbelieveable."

Lee ended its season with a 6-6 district record and 19-8 overall mark, placing fourth in the district race and missing the state playoffs by one victory.

Eric Neatherlin got the win with four innings of work while Nate Brignon and Eric Clodfelter finished up.

Lee scored three runs in the third inning and never trailed in the game. Matt Whitaker, James Latshaw and Neatherlin all drove in runs for the Rebels. Central committed six errors to Lee's one.

Angels' Ortiz stymies Missions

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — After being shut out by San Antonio on Thursday, the Midland Angels bounced back Friday night by almost posting a shutout of their own.

Angels' starter Ramon Ortiz went through 7 1/3 scoreless innings before Cliff Anderson hit a home run to right field. Other than that hit, Ortiz (2-1) had little trouble with the Missions in a 4-1 victory.

Ortiz struck out seven, walked three, and allowed just five hits. Juan Alvarez picked up his third save of the year.

The eighth inning proved to be the big hitter's frame as Angel Troy Glaus hit his 14th homer, a mammoth shot over left-center field to give the Angels a 4-0 lead. Glaus finished 2-for-3 on the night.

The game was scoreless through four innings when the Angels finally got to Missions starter Onan Masaoka (1-2) when Midland loaded the bases. Eddie Christian had an RBI sacrifice fly and Matt Curtis was walked with the bases loaded to give the Angels a 2-0 lead.

Keith Luuloa drove in Trent Durrington in the sixth inning to give the Angels a 3-0 lead.

Tonight, the Angels send Matt Wise (2-1, 4.60 ERA) to the mound against the Missions' Ricky Stone (2-0, 5.88).

Rangers' Sele suffers first loss of year

Associated Press

■ Texas MLB Teams

BOSTON — Aaron Sele finally lost, and his former team did him in.

Troy O'Leary hit a tiebreaking, two-run homer and the Boston Red Sox beat the Texas Rangers 5-3 Friday night.

Sele (5-1), who spent his entire career in the Red Sox organization before a trade to Texas last November, entered the game with a 2.00 ERA and two complete-game shutouts in his previous three starts.

Against the Red Sox, he allowed five runs and six hits in seven innings as his ERA rose to 2.72. He struck out eight and walked one.

It was a matchup of two of the AL's hottest clubs. They each entered with 18-8 records, behind only the Yankees' 17-6 mark.

Darren Bragg added a three-run homer for Boston, which handed the Rangers just their second loss in seven games.

Ivan Rodriguez went 3-for-4 for Texas, raising his AL-leading average to .455.

Astros 12, Phillies 5

PHILADELPHIA — Sean Berry drove in four runs and Derek Bell drove in three as the Houston Astros beat the Philadelphia Phillies for their seventh straight win.

Bell hit a solo shot in the fifth off Matt Beech (0-2) and Berry hit a two-run homer in the sixth.

Bell, who had three hits and scored three runs, has 10 hits in his last 14 at-bats and is 27-for-50 (.540) in his last 11 games. He raised his average to .421 and took over the NL lead from Colorado's Dante Bichette.

Phillies manager Terry Francona and coach Chuck Cottier were ejected by plate umpire Jerry Meals in the fifth, when they claimed Beech's run-scoring wild hit the bat of Brad Ausmus.

Shane Reynolds (2-2) allowed three runs and seven hits in six innings, helping Houston to its 11th win in 13 games. The Astros have outscored opponents 47-18 in that stretch.

MEET: Mitchell could challenge 2 meet records

(From 1C)

this year is a 9.9 run last weekend in Lamesa.

In the 200, the record is a 20.8 hand-held time set by Louis Wilson of Odessa Ector in 1971. Mitchell's best time is a hand-held 20.5 run earlier this year in Dallas.

Knowing that, Mitchell said he felt pretty confident going into today's finals.

"I feel pretty good," Mitchell said. "I'm just trying to make it to tomorrow. I'm shooting for the national record in the 100."

The national record happens to be a 10.15 fully-automatic time (FAT), meaning it is recorded by an Accutrack timer instead of by a person with a stopwatch. FAT times are considered to be more accurate than hand-held times because of the human factor. Generally, you add .24 seconds to a hand-held time to compare it with a FAT time.

All Mitchell is thinking about, he said, was "being fast. That's about it."

Mitchell finished third in both events last year at state.

Andrews' Shaud Williams was fast in the 110 hurdles, qualifying with the best time of 14.18. Williams, however, failed to qualify in the 300 hurdles after he hit the second hurdle with his lead leg and fell to the ground, failing to finish the race.

Big Spring's Keesha Lott just missed a shot at state with a third-place finish in the long jump. She jumped 18 feet, 0 1/2 inches, just shy of her personal best.

Superman's Truck:

'99 Ford F-250 Super Duty 4x4

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

The truck folks at the Ford Motor Company have certainly been busy lately. Starting with the complete redesign of the segment-leading F-150 pickup, the automaker rolled out: a light duty F-250 pickup, the large-sized Ford Expedition, and the luxury-sized Lincoln Navigator, all based on the updated F-150 platform. Then, the men and women of the blue oval decided to up the ante in the truck wars by becoming more competitive at the heavy end of the pickup truck market. In the past, the company has built and marketed a single Super Duty model built off of the F-350 chassis. Ford decided to develop a separate platform for a "Super" line of pickups for heavy duty personal and commercial applications. I spent some time with a F-250 Super Duty pickup to see how it will fare in the marketplace.

Built for Heavy Lifting

Without a solid, well-engineered chassis, there's simply no truck. The new Ford Super Duty chassis combines innovative features with rugged, time-proven construction to create a great platform for commercial and heavy-duty personal use. The Super Duty Series now consists of some forty-four models, up from last year's twenty three. The F-250, 350, 450 and 550 model designations replace the previous 250 HD, 350 and Super Duty trucks. Consumers can choose from the following: pickup or chassis cab configurations, Regular, Super, or Crew Cab, XL, XLT or Lariat trim levels, the M5HD five-speed manual or 4R100 automatic transmissions and 5.4L Triton® V-8, 6.8L Triton V-10 gasoline, or 7.3L PowerStroke diesel engines. I spent some time with a Regular Cab F-250 Super Duty 4x4 model. The pickup was equipped with the Triton 5.4L V-8, bolted to the ($970) optional 4R100 four-speed automatic transmission. The V-8 makes 235 horsepower @ 4,250 rpm and 335 ft-lbs of torque @ 335 rpm. With a distinctive grill that sets it apart from the other members of the Ford truck family, the F-250 Super Duty makes no apologies for being what it is: a strong truck for hard work. On the road, the optional towing package ($190) coupled with the 4x4 running gear delivered a stiff, but controlled ride. It became obvious very quickly that this truck was geared for weight, not for speed. Ford extended the chassis by four inches in order to build a very roomy cab. Displays and control are straightforward and functional — there are several "power points" to plug in additional electrical equipment, such as cellular phones and laptop computers. The driver's view of the road is good, enhanced by a novel "cut away" side window design. The bench seat in the XL model is comfortable. Underhood fluids are not consistently marked and hard to reach due to the height of the 4x4 model. Closing the aluminum hood will prove to be a unique challenge for short drivers. Properly equipped, the F-250 Super Duty can tow a trailer with a maximum weight of 14,200 pounds.

By the Numbers

Standard safety equipment for the F-250 Super Duty pickup includes: driver's side airbag, four wheel disc brakes and rear anti-lock brakes. Four wheel anti-lock brakes are a $500 option, limited slip rear axle is $260 additional. Retail sticker prices range from $18,520 for an XL regular cab to $28,330 for a Lariat Crew Cab 4x4 model. Supplies are very tight and there are no rebates.

Buick and Ford score well in first round of side-crash tests

The results of the first round of NHTSA's (National Highway Traffic Safety Administration) annual crash tests are in with good news for Buick and Ford. The one Ford model and both Buick models evaluated scored three out of five possible stars in the side-impact portion of the testing. The Buick Century and LeSabre four-door models along with the two-door Ford Mustang achieved the highest scores of the cars examined. The side-impact tests are part of NHTSA's New Car Assessment Program which has plans to crash fifty-six cars and trucks in 1998.

Consumers buying more truck and SUVs

People are more likely to buy a truck or SUV today than they were five years ago according to Automotive News, an automotive industry magazine. In 1993 sixty-one percent of vehicles bought were cars, but that slipped to fifty-eight percent by 1995 and fifty-five percent in 1997. The popularity of trucks and SUVs is on the rise and seems likely to continue. A lot of people are being drawn to the newer, more luxurious interiors offered coupled with the versatility for use at work and home.

Federal Luxury tax lowered

As of January 1st the luxury tax on higher priced vehicles dropped from eight to seven percent on transaction prices of $36,000 or greater. Any amount of the threshold transaction price over $36,000 is subject to a Federal luxury tax in addition to the applicable local and state taxes. For example, if you were to buy a car for $42,000, your taxable amount would be $6,000 and, at a tax rate of seven percent, your tax would be $420 as opposed to the previous eight percent ($480). The threshold amount will be adjusted every two years for inflation and will be readjusted again at the end of 1998. The tax will also decrease one point per year until January 2003.

Oldsmobile Intrigue goes X

Looking for something unusual to do this spring? If so, you might want to see if the "X-Files" Exposition will be stopping at a town near you. Oldsmobile's Intrigue will be sponsoring the expo which will run from March through May. The venues will include decommissioned military bases and will feature show props, games, photo opportunities and computer terminals for on-line activities.

Chevrolet Corvette convertible creates Indy Pace Car replica

That racy convertible pacing the pack for a 1998 running of the Indianapolis 500 looks unlike any other swift car on the Brickyard's track.

At a glance the slinky low prow and wide stance with muscular shoulders and that big butt supported by way-fat tires tells even a casual observer that this year's Indy pacer is nothing less than Chevrolet's speedy Corvette.

It's a new convertible issue based on the stunning sixth generational revolution of Corvette from 1997.

By BOB PLUNKETT
SPECIAL REPORT
Indianapolis, Ind

But there's more to Indy's Corvette pace car than sleek skin concealing all of that muscle, a lot of high-tech hardware plus the airy new pop-top operation: There are those crazy colors.

The body of this Corvette has been coated in a vivid purple hue — call it "Radar Blue" to be precise — and as it flashes past on the Indy oval you can see four wheels spinning in a blur of blatant yellow, then through the open top of the cockpit two tall leather seatbacks, also emblazoned in yellow, shining in springtime sunlight.

What's going on with such bold automotive colors?

Well, it seems that designers at Corvette have cast the new convertible edition in a combination of shades designed to sock it to you.

Street replicas of Corvette's 1998 Indy Pace Car, in a special package limited to only 1,158 issues, also get the distinct purple-and-yellow paint job as well as popular interior features. Also, a new chassis control system with lateral accelerometer aboard can correct bad pavement behavior like a skid and pull the car safely back in line without direct throttle or brake input from driver.

For those not enamored by purple paint, however, more conventional colors for Corvette's new convertible are also available this year and these too can carry the new chassis controller, dubbed Active Handling System.

One of the Pace Car replicas of Corvette rolled into a tester's driveway for a week of play, and it immediately prompted neighbors to gather and beg for a quick spin on those blatant yellow seats.

First, I had to pop the new convertible top, which amounts to an easy manual operation.

Unlock the top's front edge, which also releases the trailing edge so you can raise it slightly. Then punch a body button concealed behind driver's seat to undo the metal rear-hinged tonneau cover, which you lift by hand. Now fold the top back into the cavity below tonneau, and simply close the tonneau lid.

Release-fold-punch-flip-and-lock and you're done, with Corvette converted in seconds from weatherproof ragtop coupe to too-cool convertible 2-seater.

The bonus of this particular design comes at the rear, where a back decklid conceals a genuine trunk, the item sorely absent in some previous Corvette convertibles. This one's broad and long, with enough space inside to house luggage or two golf bags.

Now slip into a form-fitting driver's seat, which adjusts with power controls in uncountable directions, set a pair of electric mirrors the way you want and attach hands on a sporty leather-wrapped steering wheel.

Crank up Chevy's mighty short-block V8 to awaken 345 horses hidden beneath that extended hood, and Corvette's muscular snorts echo through the neighborhood.

Slap a short console stick into first of six forward gears and when you're ready stomp that throttle to release 18-inch rear rubber and smoke it down the street.

The needle of a tachometer clustered among analog gauges on the instrument panel swings toward red and all of that low-end torque propels Corvette to illicit speed before you realize it. Expect to pin shoulders to seat in each of the first three gears, but by then you'd better rein it to avoid an encounter with Officer Friendly.

Vette's LS1 aluminum V8 is a pushrod piece of work that musters massive power and torque.

The 5.7-L engine connects either to Chevy's electronically-controlled Hydra-matic automatic 4-speed transmission or a Borg-Warner 6-speed manual which becomes an optional item.

Add big brake rotors with 4-channel Bosch anti-lock action and traction control, plus Magnasteer variable effort rack and pinion steering, and it dances on pavement.

Superior handling traits of this latest Corvette begin at a rigid platform with full-length perimeter frame composed of seamless tubular steel. Each a single piece of steel stretched from tip to tail, the unique side rails curve downward at mid-section to make room for an expansive cockpit. Due to inherent strength of the rails, designers were able to make significant organizational changes between rails, revamping the cockpit with more space and efficiency.

Also, because the rails are lower and thinner than composite frames, riders don't have to crawl across a thick barrier and fall into Corvette's low-pitched seats because there's a lower step-in height with easy access.

A closed driveline tunnel also improves cockpit space, particularly since the transmission goes to the rear, thus balancing weight distribution fore to aft.

Then comes the magic: A suspension system mounted to the ultra-stiff chassis that permits superb handling control yet also delivers a smooth ride quality on the road.

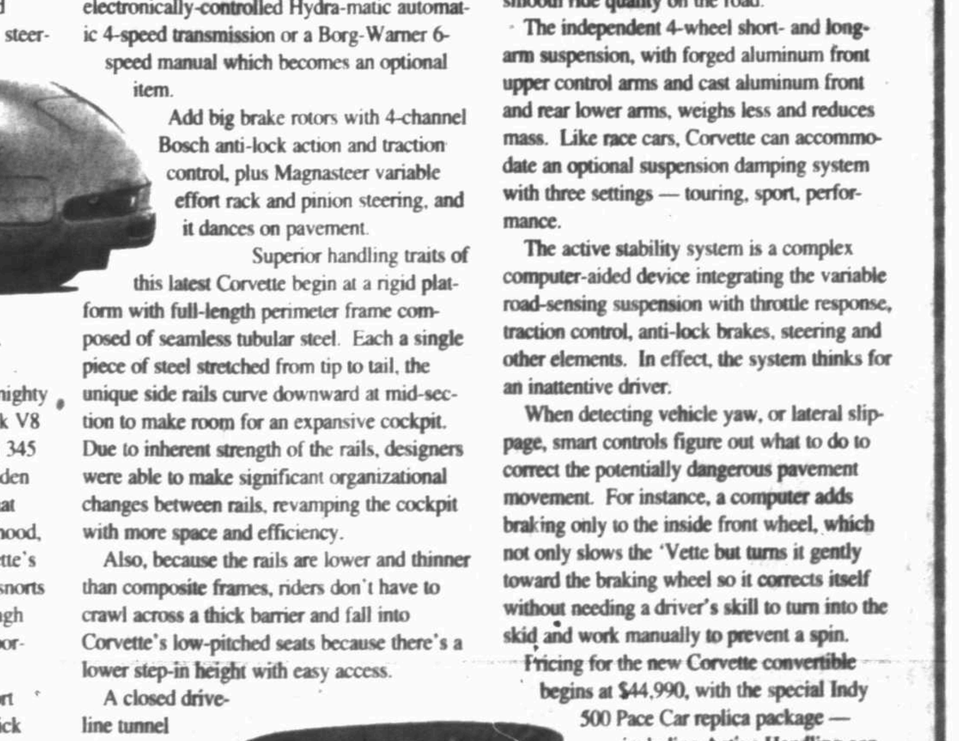

The independent 4-wheel short- and long-arm suspension, with forged aluminum front upper control arms and cast aluminum front and rear lower arms, weighs less and reduces mass. Like race cars, Corvette can accommodate an optional suspension damping system with three settings — touring, sport, performance.

The active stability system is a complex computer-aided device integrating the variable road-sensing suspension with throttle response, traction control, anti-lock brakes, steering and other elements. In effect, the system thinks for an inattentive driver.

When detecting vehicle yaw, or lateral slippage, smart controls figure out what to do to correct the potentially dangerous pavement movement. For instance, a computer adds braking only to the inside front wheel, which not only slows the 'Vette but turns it gently toward the braking wheel so it corrects itself without needing a driver's skill to turn into the skid and work manually to prevent a spin.

Pricing for the new Corvette convertible begins at $44,990, with the special Indy 500 Pace Car replica package — including Active Handling controls — adding $5,039.
