Atlantic, Gulf Coasts Face Ship Walkout

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. — A federal mediator said late today that a tieup of Atlantic and Gulf coast shipping appears probable tomorrow through a strike of the AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots union.

William N. Margolis, an assistant to federal mediation chief Cyrus S. Ching, made the statement after an unsuccessful mediation parley with the union and east coast ship owners. He told newsmen:

"It looks very much like a strike tomorrow at midnight.

"If it occurs, it will tie up most of the East and Gulf coast shipping."

Meeting Set Today

Ching called another meeting of the union and the shipowners at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in an eleventh hour effort to avert a walkout.

A strike will affect some 2,000 licensed merchant marine officers and idle approximately 25,000 seamen.

The Union and the American Merchant Marine Institute are deadlocked in negotiations for a new contract to replace the agreement which expired Sept. 30. The union has agreed to two contract extensions, the last of which expires tomorrow.

Capt. Charles F. May, president of the MMP, said after today's meeting with Ching and shipowners that "we are notifying our people to prepare for a strike."

Hiring Hall Plan Demanded

May declared that American merchant ships operating from the East and Gulf coasts will be struck both at home and in foreign ports. He said the USS America, which is scheduled to said tomorrow from New York would be struck at its destination.

The dispute involves the union's demand for a hiring hall. Under the hiring hall, shipowners would be required to fill all jobs below those of master and first officer through the union.

The expired contract contained a provision under which union members were given preference in employment.

A spokesman for the shipowners estimated that a walkout by the Masters, Mates and Pilots union would tie up about half of the nation's merchant shipping. He said 38 companies would be affected.

Frank J. Taylor, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute, declared the shipowners will continue to insist upon their "traditional rights" to select officer personnel.

Taylor asserted that the union's demand would end the right of the

Three Hurt In Area Mishaps

THREE more persons were injured Monday and another died of injuries suffered Friday as the traffic toll over the South Plains continued to rise.

Norman James, 48, injured in a car-train collision at Brownfield Friday night, died in Treadaway-Daniell hospital there at 2 a. m. Monday.

Hurt in the latest accident were:

George French, about 30, of Altus, Okla., and Earl Allen Bright, 33, of Littlefield. Both men were riding in a car which struck a culvert at Roundup shortly after 7 p.m.

Man Is Hospitalized

French was admitted to Payne-Shotwell hospital at Littlefield where his condition was reported as satisfactory. He suffered a head injury, attendants said. His companion was released after first aid treatment for lacerations and abrasions of the face and hands at Littlefield hospital.

Norman's death brought the total number of dead in traffic accidents on the South Plains in the last 16 days to 22, 15 of them killed in the last nine days. Total for the year now stands at 79 killed and more than 635 injured.

HOBBS MAN DIES OF INJURIES IN ACCIDENT

BROWNFIELD, Nov. 14 (Special)—Norman James, 48, of Hobbs died here Monday at 2 a.m. in the Treadaway-Daniell hospital, the third death resulting from a train-automobile collision here Friday at 6:15 p.m.

Killed instantly in the crash was Sammie James, 15 year old son of Norman James. Dwayne James, 12, another son, died Saturday morning.

James had been a roughneck for an oil company in Hobbs.

Men Trapped By Rock Fall In Tunnel

15 Miners Rescued From Blocked Shaft

(By The Associated Press)

MAHANOY CITY, Pa., Nov. 14. Fifteen miners emerged uninjured tonight after being trapped more than six hours behind a fall of rock at the bottom of the Maple Hill colliery of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company. The men were down some 600 feet and 3,000 feet inside the shaft.

Edward Fox, general manager, said the men were trapped when a mine car jumped the track, knocking down supporting timbers and sending tons of rocks cascading down the passageway. The entrance to the shaft was blocked.

A crew of some 25 fellow miners with picks, shovels and any other digging tools they could lay their hands on rushed to the rescue.

Fall Hits Seventh Level

The fall occurred on the seventh level of the mine where the men were working in pairs supervised by a foreman.

Fox and George A. Roos, a company vice president, said rescue workers were able to communicate with the trapped miners by tapping the rail leading into the buried section. The rescuers tapped on the outside and received an answering echo from the rock trapped miners.

After emerging from the chamber where they had been trapped, the men were taken in a small donky engine to a shaft elevator and then to the surface.

Roos said none of the trapped men had been hurt but that as a safety measure each one would be given an immediate physical checkup.

Company officials were busy helping and directing the rescue operation and couldn't be reached for a complete list of the men trapped in the section.

The fireman of the night shift, Anthony strike said that among those trapped were Willim Link, Eddie Damashick and a miner named Jones from Shenandoah, and Anthony Lasky of Mahanoy City.

The colliery employes about 1,120 men. Those buried by the rock slide were working on the second shift.

Officers Seeking Morton Escapee

South Plains law enforcement officers Monday night still were searching for a 27-year-old Latin-American who apparently "walked out" of the Cochran county jail at Morton after beating a fellow prisoner Sunday.

Object of the search, Jose M. Sandoval, of Puerto De Luna, N. M., was still wearing handcuffs when he fled the jail supposedly "with the help of an unknown person," Sheriff H. D. Crockett told newsmen. Windows surrounding the sheet-iron cages used as cells are not barred, the sheriff said.

Friend May Have Helped

It was believed a friend of Sandoval's had entered the room through a window and helped the prisoner break the lock on the cell door.

Sandoval has been charged with assault with intent to murder in the beating of his cellmate, Bruno T. Garcia, 30, of Robstown. Garcia was treated at a Morton hospital for minor head wounds and returned to the jail.

Thefts of money, clothing and a bicycle were reported to officers here by three persons Monday.

Jose W. Leal, a Mexican national, said someone had entered his quarters at the West Texas compress late Sunday or early Monday, taking $101 in $10, $5, and $1 bills from his wallet. Also missing

Winchell's Mother Plunges To Death

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—Walter Winchell's mother plunged to death tonight from the 10th floor of a hospital where she was under treatment.

The official police report said Mrs. Jennie Winchell, 77, "jumped or fell."

Her death was discovered when a nurse came into her room at doctor's hospital and found a window open.

Mrs. Winchell's nightgown-clad body was found shortly afterwards on the 87th street sidewalk below. A hospital doctor pronounced her dead.

Later she was identified by the columnist's wife, who said Winchell had been notified in Miami, Fla., and planned to fly here tonight or early tomorrow morning.

The elder Mrs. Winchell, who had been living at the Hotel Franconia, had entered the hospital for an operation and was suffering from a heart ailment, the hospital said.

Government Delays Coal Strike Action

By PHILLIPS J. PECK
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The government today adopted a policy of "watchful waiting" for the next 24 to 48 hours in hopes that John L. Lewis and the mine owners will end their dispute voluntarily without federal action.

Federal Mediation Director Cyrus S. Ching announced postponement of any government move for this period following a White House conference.

Ching conferred for 45 minutes with presidential assistant John R. Steelman but told newsmen "no conclusions were reached." He added:

"The case is still in the hands of the mediation service and we have no immediate plans of action."

No Sign of Agreement

Despite Ching's announcement, there were as yet no concrete signs of Lewis and the operators getting together on an agreement which would forestall another mine shutdown when the present three-week strike truce runs out Dec. 1.

The United Mine Workers chief returned to Washington from a weekend visit to New York and was reported in his office at union headquarters "awaiting the convenience of the operators."

Over the weekend Lewis made two indirect bids to the mine owners to resume bargaining. Both were spurned. George Love, chief spokesman for northern producers, reiterated an extension of the old contract.

Coal Group Meets

Major interest was focused, however, on an all-day meeting in Washington of the Southern Coal Producers association which all summer long conducted separate wage negotiations with the UMW.

Joseph E. Moody, president of the southern producers, had no comment on Lewis' second bid for a bargaining conference and it was learned the association canvassed all aspects of the coal dispute in its closed-door sessions.

One bituminous operator, who declined to be quoted by name, cautiously predicted that "something may happen here this week."

There was no visible evidence, however, that any of the operators were making any overtures to the union.

In event a federal move is necessary, President Truman is expected first to propose fact-finding in the coal wage controversy despite advance signs of opposition to such a move from the UMW.

Rail Fares Are Raised In East

By ALLAN J. FUNCH
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.— The Interstate Commerce commission by a split 6-to-4 decision today granted 61 eastern railroads a 12.5 per cent fare increase, effective after five days notice.

The fare boost, third granted these lines in the postwar period, raise coach rates to approximately 3.375 cents per mile and pullman fares to 4.5 cents. Commutation fares are not affected.

The increases are intended to provide the roads with $37,800,000 of addition annual revenue to cut down existing deficits on passenger travel.

Such railroad giants as the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, and the New York Central are among those affected. The rate increases are granted to all passenger-carrying lines east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers.

Examples Are Cited

New York to Washington: Coach, one way, $6.74 to $7.58; coach, round trip, $13.48 to $15:16; pullman, one way, $8.93 to $10.05; pullman, round trip, $17.86 to $20.10.

Acheson Pledges Help To Nations Defying Soviets

Germans Told Of U. S. Plan

By RICHARD S. WEIL
INS Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Nov. 14—Secretary of State Acheson declared today that Soviet "thrusts" at freedom would be met "whenever they occur" and pledged U. S. aid to Germany or any other nations "determined to help themselves" in the fight to preserve their independence.

He said the same promise of aid applied to nations trying to prevent collapse of their economies.

Fight "Must Go On"

At a news conference Acheson told once-blockaded Berliners and other Germans the struggle against Soviet inroads "must go on."

(Acheson returned to Frankfurt late tonight and left almost immediately in a chartered American Overseas airline plane which is due at Washington Tuesday at 10 a. m. CST.)

Before heading back for the United States tonight Acheson chatted informally for 15 minutes with Gen. Vassily Chuikov, Soviet control commision head, at a reception for the American visitor. The two toasted each other's health.

The reception was attended by other top Soviet officials in Germany, with the exception of Soviet ambassador to eastern Germany, Georgi Pushkin, who was not invited.

No Meeting Planned

Acheson made it clear, however, there are no plans at present for a new Big Four meeting on Germany.

(French Foreign Minister Schuman declared in Paris the West will defend Western Germany at its eastern frontier if necessary but voiced strong opposition to German participation in the Atlantic pact.

(Schuman declared Western Germany will remain disarmed but added its integration with Western Europe is well under ay.

New Peace Plan Proposed In UN

By PIERRE J. HUSS
INS Staff Correspondent

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 14 The United States called on Russia today to lift the iron curtain and halt Cominform "hate" campaigns against the non-Soviet world.

At the same time, the United States and Britain jointly offered a motion in U.N. urging individual states to abandon the use of force, threats, the fomenting of civil wars or acts suppressing free regimes by Cominform tactics.

Soviet Plan Rejected

U. S. Representative Warren R. Austin, taking the floor of the political committee immediately after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky charged the western powers with plotting atomic war against Russia, rejected the Soviet proposal for a five-power peace pact on the grounds that it is "an artificial olive branch surrounded by thorns."

Austin continued:

"If the Soviet government wishes to undertake measures for strengthening peace, the means are at its instant command. Stop your campaign of hate against the non-Cominform world. Forsake your doctrine that the non-Cominform world is your enemy. Let your people meet with ours and discuss together our common problems. Lift your iron curtain and you will strengthen peace.

The joint British-American motion was introduced in the U.N. political committee to counteract Vishinsky's resolution for "con-

Eastern Coffee Prices Soar To Highest Level On Record

BY THEODORE KOSLOW
INS Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The price of coffee jumped a maximum of seven cents a pound today to the highest level on record.

One prominent "name" brand was quoted at 82 cents at retail, the nearest approach to the one dollar a pound high level that coffee has ever reached in the United States.

Since the upsurge in coffee prices began little more than a month ago, coffee has risen approximately 20 cents a pound.

W. F. Williamson, secretary-manager of the National Coffee association termed this the sharpest and most rapid coffee price advance in history.

He explained that actually today's mark-ups by roasters were in recognition of what already had taken place in green coffee beans.

The coffee association executive pointed out that the price of the popular Santos coffee green beans have advanced 31 to 51 cents a pound

City-County Library Plans Studied At Meeting Here

By H. I. KIEFER
Avalanche Staff Writer

PROSPECTS brightened Monday afternoon that Lubbock dreams of a public library worthy of the community may be nearing realization at last.

The latest development in the improving outlook occurred in a joint meeting of members of the city commission, the county commissioners court and the board of trustees of Lubbock Independent School district in the Hilton Hotel.

Members of the two commissions received with professed favor a suggestion that plans might be worked out for a joint City-County library which would be better and less expensive than anything the two groups could provide separately.

Library Expansion Seen

Everyone agreed that, if such a library should be established, it would maintain and expand the rural services of the present City-County library now crowded into a second floor corner of the courthouse. That library now operates branches in Idalou, Slaton, Shallowater, Wolffarth and New Deal.

If the city-county approach to the new library problem materalizes, the present branches would be maintained and enlarged, others probably would be established and "bookmobiles" probably would be added to the equipment.

The new development appeared all the more significant because of others which have occurred within the past few days. They have evidenced a further awakening of interest in the library project for which $500,000 in city bonds were voted nearly three years ago but which has been in mothballs since that time.

The first evidence of re-awakened interest in the project was given by members of the city commission last week. Mayor W. H. Rodgers was asked to investigate the cost and feasibility of

South Plains Cotton Ginnings Soar To Almost 500,000

Despite a critical labor shortage, both in the fields and at gins, cotton ginnings in the 19 cotton-producing counties of the South Plains have practically reached the 500,000-bale mark.

Monday's bulletin o fthe Texas Employment Commission revealed ginnings to date total 497,320 bales.

This report, unofficial, but reliable, reveals that approximately one-third of the area's crop has already been ginned. Latest estimate of production for the area by K. N. Clapp, Lubbock cotton man, was 1,538,000 bales.

Gins Snowed Under

Most of the gins in the entire area are "covered up" with cotton due to continued good weather for the past two to three weeks. Cotton is piled on the ground in scores of gin yards and many farmers are piling the cotton on the ground in fields and on their farm premises.

Ginnings were listed by the TEC as follows:

821 Dead, Missing In Philippines Typhoon

MANILA, Nov. 14 (INS)—A total of 821 persons were listed as dead or missing today in the wake of a screaming typhoon which lashed northern Mindanao island in the Philippines, still reeling under the effects of two other storms.

The new typhoon which cut a 200-mile swath of devastation across Mindanao Thursday and Friday left 71,000 homes destroyed and raised the death toll in all three storms to substantially more than 1,600.

The devastation accompanying the tropical tempest's howling gales and torrential rains were described in an official announcement by Philippine President Elpidio Quirino.

The president, who only hours before had claimed victory in last Tuesday's presidential elections, said the bodies of 314 known dead have been recovered and that 507 others are missing and presumed dead in this newest tropical disaster.

One Injured When Explosion Wrecks Small House In City

A 19-year-old negro woman, Mabel Dean Smith, received first and second degree burns over her body when an explosion demolished her one-room home at Thirty-first and East Ave. M shortly after 6:30 p.m. Monday.

Firemen said the explosion and subsequent fire occurred when fumes from a gas leak under the house were ignited by a match as the woman attempted to light a stove.

Homes Of Two Union Leaders Are Bombed

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 14 (INS)—The homes of two Pontiac AFL leaders were damaged by bombs set off within a half-hour of one another tonight but none of the occupants was injured.

The first explosion shattered windows and ripped a section of the porch off the home of Louis Linteau, in Pontiac proper, while Linteau, the local Teamsters' union secretary, was returning from a union meeting.

His wife, mother-in-law and child were at home but escaped injury.

Some 25 minutes later, an explosion damaged the garage at the rural home of Dan Keating, the Teamsters' local president. Oakland county sheriff's officers said the explosive had been planted in the garage and did little damage to the home.

Annual Tech Pig Roast Set Today

A $300 Borden scholarship to Texas Tech's most outstanding senior agriculture student will be awarded tonight at the annual college pig roast in the campus pavillion.

Awarded each year to some Aggie student who has been outstanding while enrolled at Tech, the Borden scholarship, presented by A. W. Wentworth, New York, secretary of the National Borden foundation, will keynote the pig roast at which members of Tech's seven judging teams will be honored.

Teams to Get Send-Off

The roast will serve as a send-off to judging teams yet to compete in inter-collegiate contests this year and as a climax to other activities performed by them, according to John Dwyer, Agriculture club president.

Over 500 members and guests are expected to attend the annual roast, described as the largest event of the Aggie department during the year. It has been held annually since 1927, according to Dwyer.

Yet to compete in judging contests is the International Livestock judging team and the Collegiate crops judging team, both of which will be in Chicago Nov. 26. In addition, the crops team

Texas School Officials Block Circulation Of USSR Bulletin

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Nov. 14.— Soviet information bulletins coming to Texas high schools the past few months have been kept from the teen-agers.

"Out and out propaganda," Dallas Superintendent of Schools W. T. White said. "They've been coming to both our junior and senior high schools. I've filed them in the 'round file'—the wastebasket."

Seven other Texas cities reported the bulletins had come to their high school libraries. All said they had kept them off the school library shelves

Rep. George Mahon (D-Tex) said he had written the U. S. Office of Education, the secretary of state and the postmaster general asking them to stop the "infiltration" through the mails.

"I know that the Russian press and Russian statements generally are completely untrustworthy," Mahon said, in an interview "and I think it would be a tragic thing to see the minds of the youth of our country poisoned by mis-statements from Moscow."

Roosevelt has been prominent in California politics for several years. He is Democratic national committeeman.

The current governor of California is Earl Warren, the Republican vice presidential candidate in the last election. It has been presumed in political circles that he intends to run for re-election.

Government Ends Hearings On Plane Crash In Which 55 Died

By FREDERIC TUTTLE
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. — The government ended public hearings today on America's worst plane disaster with Eastern airlines demanding that Congress act to stop crashes such as the Nov. 1 collision that killed 55.

Earlier witnesses told the Civil Aeronautics board that the Bolivian whose P-38 collided with an Eastern airliner at Washington National airport flunked a transport pilot's test in 1947 and apparently flew without authorization the day of the crash.

John Haliburton, assistant operations officer of the Eastern, told the panel of experts conducting the inquiry that the airline has experienced 29 near collisions occasioned by military aircraft flying "in violation of civil air regulations and common sense."

He said that in the Washington crash the Eastern plane was "overtaken and destroyed by a military aircraft of far greater speed striking us from an angle out of the vision of our crew."

Haliburton also recommended that all planes operating at busy airports such as Washington, New York or Chicago, should be com-

SOVIETS TAKE OVER KEY BASE

Russian Sub Base Is Claimed Operating In Mediterranean

By EDWARD M. KORRY
United Press Staff Writer

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 14.—A Russian submarine base is in operation on the strategic island of Saseno, where the Adriatic and Mediterranean seas meet, western intelligence reports said today.

Trustworthy sources in Rome, Athens and Belgrade have confirmed reports of Albanian refugees who said the Soviets were constructing a large naval base on the key island in the Bay of Valona, informants said.

More recent reports, also confirmed, told of Russian submarine personnel in the streets of Valona and Soviet underseas craft arriving at the former Italian base on the island.

Solution Is Found

Meanwhile, diplomatic circles here were satisfied they had come up with the one correct explanation of why Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia finally decided to sever his last ties with the Cominform by renouncing his military aid pact with Albania's Premier Enver Hoxha.

It goes back to August, when the Greek government was threatening to invade Albania in pursuit of Greek rebels who had taken refuge there.

The Yugoslav government, alarmed by the possibilities of such action, asked the United States and Britain—through the ambassadors here—to intercede with the Greek government.

Assurances Satisfactory

The western powers, according to Saturday's Yugoslav note to Albania, responded with "satisfactory assurances."

In late September and early October, when the U.S.S.R and all her satellites—except Albania—tore up friendship treaties with Yugoslavia, Tito decided there no longer was any point to maintaining the pact with Hoxha.

However, until the United Nations Assembly meeting began at Lake Success, Tito was not certain he could trust either the west or Greece. And if he denounced the treaty prematurely, it might have been interpreted in Athens as an indirect invitation to invade Albania.

At the UN, the western powers, supported by a majority of delegates, clearly demonstrated they were against Greece attacking Albania for any reason. With the danger of a Balkan peace being shattered by a Greek invasion removed, Tito had nothing to lose and finally broke his last tie with the Cominform.

Tech Student Council Seeks Trophies For Campus Display

"T" day has been proclaimed on the Texas Technological college campus and unconditional surrender is the terms.

The "T" stands for trophies won by individual and team representatives of Tech since its establishment and the unconditional surrender refers to the desire of the student council to collect all such trophies for display in the college's new trophy case.

Robert Lee Craig, Stinnett, has been appointed chairman of a committee to collect the awards and bring them to the new administration building case, according to Curtis Sterling, president of the student council.

Trophies won in sports and other inter-collegiate contests fall into the "wanted" list, says Sterling, and anyone having such an award in their possession has been asked to contact the council office, phone 8541.

New Program On Dismantling Of Industry In Germany Seen; Acheson Studies Plan

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The Germans want "dismantling" ended. You'll be hearing more about it.

It's one of the things Secretary of State Acheson discussed last week in Paris with the foreign ministers of Britain and France.

He said so yesterday. And, without being specific, he said some important decisions were reached at the Paris conference.

When the Allies dismantle a German plant, it doesn't mean necessarily they tear down the building.

In most cases they leave the building standing but ship the machinery to one of the Allies countries for use there.

This is in keeping with a plan worked out by the big allies after Germany fell when they divided it into four zones: American, Birtish, French, Russian.

The dismantling was to be done in the four zones. No one here knows what the Russians have taken out of their zone, or how much it's worth.

But in the three western zones about 570 plants, worth around $250,000,000, according to State department specialists, have been dismantled. There are 200 or so on the list still to go.

The Allies said they wanted Germany to have a level of living as good, but not better, than her neighbors. At the same time they want her to pay for some of the war damages she did.

They figured they could kill two birds with one stone by taking from Germany plants which, they decided, were more than she needed to maintain that certain living level.

At first the allies put 2,000 plants on the dismantling list. Then they cut down to 1,000.

But last year the U. S. set up the Marshall Plan to help Europe get over the war, and this included Germany.

So the question came up: Why pour help into Germany and at the same time take away her plants.

Marshall Plan officials set up a special committee of American businessmen to study the dismantling program.

As a result of the commission's recommendations, the Americans, British and French agreed to knock off another 200 plants from the list (previously revised downward from 2,000) of 1,000 plants to be dismantled.

That left about 800 to go. Since 570 have now been dismantled, only around 200 or so are still on the list.

Meanwhile, the U. S., Britain and France set up a new German republic as one more step toward German recovery. Now Germans are protesting against further dismantling.

There have been protests in this country, too. Just before Congress folded last month, 44 senators, Democrats and Republicans, appealed to the State department to call a halt.

State department people say the French have not been very happy about suggestions that dismantling be stopped or trimmed in the country of her ancient enemy, Germany.

While a steel mill can turn out materials for war, it also can turn out materials for necessary peacetime things like locomotives.

Although 200 or so plants are still on the dismantling list, most arguments have been around a dozen or so, particularly a couple of big steel mills and a synthetic oil plant.

The dismantling program argument does not involve those German plants which were directly used in making war. For instance, a plant that turned out shells.

Meet Charlie Tobin — Another "Do-it-yourself" American

He created his own business!

Charles E. Tobin, Jr., Dallas, Texas, knows that nothing needs stop a man's carving out a career on his own! He put himself through college; and later, after Navy service, through law school. Then he founded a land-clearing company. It was tough going at first—meeting payrolls and felling timber along a 175-mile right-of-way for a power company. But today, equipped with the manpower and the machines he needs, he's ready to take on jobs for farmers, contractors, highway departments. At 30, Charlie had put his Right-of-Way Clearing Co. in the black. It's filling a need in his community... And he built it on his own!

☆ It's the American Spirit!

YOU'LL find plenty of folks who feel as Charlie Tobin does . . . on every Main Street! They're the ones with imagination, initiative, and drive. They're opening "new frontiers" of opportunity, not only for themselves—but for others. They're making their own security, too. For themselves and their families.

One evidence of this modern American "Do-it-yourself spirit" is this: 4 out of 5 families are voluntarily safeguarding their independence through life insurance. And new thousands are turning to life insurance every day.

To fill the growing needs of men and women in every walk of life, the life insurance business itself must grow. It must bring to some the satisfaction of knowing last expenses will be paid. To others, security for widows, education for children, or worry-free retirement years.

In doing so much for so many, 584 individual life insurance companies are actively competitive. Representing them at a personal level are 150,000 trained agents who devote their lives to helping individual American families help themselves!

It's a Fact...

It's a fact that the first consideration in making life insurance company investments is safety.

- State Insurance laws specify the kind of investments the 584 competing companies may make.
- These laws are made in the interest of the policyholders.
- The companies themselves make doubly sure their investments are safe, and that "all eggs aren't in the same basket."
- As a result, the greatest part of life insurance assets is invested in the form of bonds and mortgages.

To make sure you are getting the greatest benefit from your own life insurance, see your agent. Life insurance is a service! Your agent is trained to help you make the best use of it. The Institute of Life Insurance—central source of information—60 E. 42nd St., New York 17, N. Y.

Disaster Expert Urges State Control Of Civilian Defense

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (INS)—a disaster expert asserted today that civilian defense in the event of another war should be handled "principally by the states."

Horatio Bond, chief engineer of the National Fire Protection association, wrote in the current issue of the bulletin of the atomic scientists;

Self Help Emphasized

"Civil defense is self-help. Civil authorities who hopefully expect military forces to take over a devastated area and police and rehabilitate it under martial law, ignore this fundamental.

"In the event of war, the military will be engaged elsewhere."

He asserted that the controversial Hopley report, prepared for the secretary of defense by a committee headed by Russell J. Hopley, Omaha, Neb., telephone company executive, "establishes the sound principle" the civilian defense is a civilian job.

He said Hopley recognized the role of civilian authority by placing responsibility for civilian defense on the separate state governments.

Regmentation Is Problem

Bond defended the plan against charges of regimentation with the comment:

"Regimentation is clearly one of the dangers inherent in organization for civil defense. This is not a danger brought about by the Hopley report. It is a general problem of civilian defense."

Bond said the most serious weakness of the plan is that the military establishment has failed to provide a competent military statement about what sort of disaster can be expected. He added:

"The military establishment has not done the one part of this job which is theirs and theirs only."

He explained that civilian defense must be planned with reference to what weapons may be used and what these weapons will do.

Nazi Party Claimed Power In Germany

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Nov. 14 (INS)—The Nazi party has wormed its way back into a position of controlling power in Germany under the noses of the Allied occupation forces.

This was the assertion in Colorado Springs of Clen Robertson, former newspaperman and member of the U. S. military government division in Germany.

Robertson, working on a master's degree at Colorado college said flatly that the denazification program has been a failure. He declared:

"Members of the Nazi party have been ruling in the western party of Germany for at least the past two years."

"In November of 1947," Robertson said, "I wrote a report stating that the majority of German governmental officials were ex-Nazis. That report apparently never reached the person for whom it was intended."

The 44-year-old newsman, who spent the past five years in Europe, said the "pro-Nazi attitude" of the western powers, is driving many Europeans into the Communist ranks."

Middle-Aged Couple Joins Hands, Walks To Deaths In Ocean

HALF MOON BAY, Calif., Nov. 14 (U.P.)—A middle-aged couple spent a gay Sunday date over cocktails and dinner, then walked hand-in-hand to their deaths in the Pacific ocean at sunset as a score of witnesses stood frozen in horror.

The couple was identified tentatively as Myrtle M. Porter, 47, and Ted Yelle, 50, both of Belmont, Calif. The Coast Guard searched the heavy surf in vain for their bodies.

According to Deputy Sheriff James Beatty of Pescadero, the couple arrived at Martin's beach, about seven miles south of here, yesterday afternoon. They entered a restaurant run by Ed Watts.

Had Several Drinks

They had several cocktails and engaged in an animated conversation. About 5 o'clock, they sat down for a fish dinner beside a window overlooking the ocean.

Beatty said they had drinks during and after dinner. Finally, they said they were going to stroll a'ng the beach to watch the sunset.

A number of motorists had parked their cars along shore, also to watch the sunset, and several fishermen were packing their gear preparatory to going home.

Suddenly a cry went up from one of the persons who noticed the couple wading dangerously deep in the water, their hands joined together.

The couple paid no heed to the cry but continued their grim walk to death. The waters were swirling around their knees when a heavy breaker knocked the woman headlong. The man reached down and helped her to her feet.

Struggled Against Waves

Then they joined hands again and continued ploughing through the surf, the water churning around their chests. They found it harder than ever to struggle against the waves.

Along the shore and in the restaurant, men and women watched with pale faces, paralyzed with horror.

As the sun, now a huge red ball of fire, sank into the ocean, a tremendous wave broke over the couple. After it passed over them on its way to the shore, the onlookers found the man and woman had disappeared.

That broke the spell. Watts and the other witnesses raced down the cliff toward the spot from which the couple started their suicide walk.

They threw ropes and life preservers into the water in a futile attempt to save the couple. But it was too late.

Later, they reported they thought they saw the bodies bobbing up and down in the surf offshore. A helicopter, two Coast Guard boats and a Coast Guard seaplane failed to find them.

Beatty said the couple left no note to tell what prompted them to end their lives.

Yelle was a retired dry cleaning operator in Belmont. Mrs. Porter formerly was a nurse in a Belmont sanitarium, neighbors said.

Costly Yacht Turns Over On Side; Complete Loss Feared

ACAPULCO, Mexico, Nov. 14. (AP).— The costly yacht "Corsair," beached on the rocks here, fell over on her right side overnight.

Once the late J. Piermont Morgan's $3,000,000 pleasure craft, 2699-ton yacht looks to seamen more than ever like a total loss. Salvage experts and insurance appraises are coming from Los Angeles to see what can be done.

Captain of the Port Arturo Pena Alfaro meantime continued today his hearing of officers and crew. He is trying to determine responsibility, if any, for the harbor shipwreck Saturday at 12:20 a.m. as the boat was starting on her return to Los Angeles with 46 passengers and 82 crewmen.

Both the captain of the port and the ship's captain, H. Nedden, agreed the steering mechanism failed. The ship struck rocks within a mile of the Acapulco dock. By quick action, as his boiler fires were being put out by the rush of water through a tear in the port (left) side of the bow, the Corsair was beached half a mile from the rocks she struck. She lay with her bow in the rocky shore in sight of the Hotel De Las Americas Saturday and Sunday. During the night, the big ship fell over on her right side.

Aircraft Worker Is Slain After Argument Over Wife

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14 (INS)—An argument over attentions shown a pretty Canadian war bride ended in death today for her husband and the arrest of the woman and a cafe owner who employed her as a waitress.

F. D. Baze, 31, aircraft worker formerly with the Canadian Air corps, was shot at the height of a savage street fight over the fact that the restauranteur, Andrew D. Stucker, 39, brought Edith Baze, 25, home from work.

When Stucker drove up in front of the Baze home, police said, Baze began to throw rocks at the car and when Stucker pulled away the former pilot got in his car and followed.

Police said Baze forced Stucker's car to the curb and began to attack him with a pocket knife and a ballpeen hammer. The cafe owner drew his gun and fired when Baze began striking him over the head.

Mrs. Baze, mother of two children, and Stucker were held on suspicion of murder.

Angry Husband Goes To Jail To Beat Suspected Attacker Of Wife

DETROIT, Nov. 14 (INS)—An angry husband seeking vengeance against the man accused of attacking his wife talked his way into jail as a drunk early today and then beat up the alleged attacker, a prisoner in the same cell block.

Detroit police said Robert Brown, 32, walked into the Davison station and asked to be locked up as a "golden rule" drunk, explaining that he was too intoxicated to drive his car home.

Police agreed, and locked him in a cell block where the accused attacker, Arthur Troia, 34, was already held. A few minutes later officers heard screams coming from the cell block, and rushed back to find Brown administering a beating to Troia.

The vengeful husband was released after an investigation of the circumstances. Police said no charges will be preferred against him unless Troia decides to press the case.

BASIC BLACK

THE Paris and New York designers, who have managed to throw American women into a state of confusion about their styles, such as whether skirts should be long or short and dresses full or skimpy, now have another prediction:

"Women will wear basic black dresses no more."

The stylists say the classic little black number will be out of style in 1950, being replaced by basic bronzes, greens and plum shades.

THE writer has an idea the average American woman isn't going to pay one bit of attention to that fashion flash. A basic black dress is just as essential to the wardrobe as a shirtmaker frock, which incidentally is the only design foreign countries let us lay claim to as "typically American".

We know from experience you can get tired to death of green and bronze and plum shades in your wardrobe and finally you feel that people are saying "Oh, no, she isn't wearing that again!" But a black dress, well that's different. It never looks particularly new and it doesn't look old if the material isn't one of those synthetic types that goes to pieces at the tailor shop.

No, sir, the faithful little black dress has been a reliable number for too long to be cast aside just because the trend setters say it should go!

BAKING TIPS

HERE are a few fruit cake baking tips from little Raisin Nell, in case you are baking your own this year. We've decided to buy ours through the Lubbock Business and Professional Women's club, since the pictures look interesting and the sample we tasted was delicious.

Do not overbake your friut cakes. All sizes should be baked in a very slow oven (250 degrees F.) Allow three hours for a regular fruit cake loaf and four and one-half hours for a large fruit cake baked in a tube pan.

Remove baked fruit cakes from the pan while the cakes cool. Leave the papers on the cake until ready to serve.

Light corn syrup, boiled one-half minute, makes an excellent fruit cake glaze. Spread the hot syrup over the cooled cakes. Arrange whole roasted blanched almonds, candied cherries and other fruit in the syrup as desired. The syrup hardens on standing, keeping the decorations in place.

To store fruit cakes for ripening or aging: Remove papers from the cooled fruit cakes. Wrap cakes in cheese cloth which has been soaked in fruit juice, wine, brandy or whatever you use for soaking cakes. Then wrap in waxed paper or foil and store in a closely covered container.

PRAISES FIREMAN

A reader who asks that her name not be used calls to present a bouquet to the fire department. Sunday she answered her door to discover a Latin American girl who asked her in great excitement if she would telephone the fire department and report her cotton truck was on fire.

"In three minutes the fire department was in front of my house," our friend said. "And in less time it seemed to me the blaze was extinguished. I think the men deserve praise for such quick service."

So do we.

KARY MATHIS

WE shall remember Kary Mathis as a kind person, an educator who knew that children will respond to soft spoken words more satisfactorily than they will loud ones.

On the occasions we have visited George R. Bean school, where Mr. Mathis served as principal, we have noted his marvelous luck in discipline. The children adored him.

He was a man of many talents. He could build a house, he could manage a school, he could sing beautifully. And certainly not least he was a greatly loved husband and father.

B. G. Cunningham, 36-year-old welder for the Southern Pacific lines, was overcome by smoke in the bedroom of his home. Investigators said Cunningham apparently was asleep when fire broke out.

He was alone in the house, his wife and two children having spent the night at the home of a relative. Rescue crews tried artificial respiration for almost an hour.

The other fire victim was Albert S. Thomas, an 82-year-old retired carpenter. A gas stove set fire to a bedroom wall and burned him to death before a son could rescue him.

Actress Gets Signals Switched But Finally Receives Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14 (INS)— Nancy Guild, green-eyed actress, got her signals switched today and almost fumbled the ball when she went to court to divorce radio and screen actor Charles Russell.

Nancy explained that she was an outdoor gal, a horsewoman and a tennis player, while her hubby, a former New Yorker, liked only to sit at home and talk about the theater.

Superior Judge J. F. Moroney remarked as how all this hardly came under the heading of "extreme cruelty." So Nancy hopped up her testimony, full steam ahead, and told how her mate once ripped off her jacket in front of a hotel in Rome.

Nancy got the divorce—plus $1 per year token alimony.

Retail Business Faces Bright Future In Next Few Months

By RADER WINGET
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Retails are facing a pretty bright future in the next months ahead as far as their sales volume is concerned. The pinch comes in profits.

The amount of money being rung up on department store cash registers right now is only a shade below a year ago. And remember that last year was one of the best in grand totals that department stores ever had.

But this year their profits are being shaved down by high operating costs. On every score it costs more to stay in business now than a year ago. As one merchant said: "The more you earn the less you make."

Figures Are Compared

In a recent survey the National City Bank of New York shows that 58 large retail corporations in the first half of this year had a sales volume only four per cent under the comparable period of 1948. But their net income was down 31 per cent.

The 27 department and specialty stores in the list reported sales only three per cent under a year ago, but their profits were off 35 per cent.

The largest report of the federal reserve board gives department store sales at two per cent under last year for the week ended Nov. 5.

That's about the most cheering news these retailers have had all this year. From Jan. 1 to date, department store sales slumped an average of six per cent under 1948.

Compared to Boom Year

It's true that the comparisons of this year's volume has been made against the banner year of 1948, the tailend of the post-war boom. And it is also true that the present good showing is partially accounted for by a temporary but sharp drop in the volume of business at this time last year. Last year's bad business makes this year's business look still better.

What about the rest of this year? The head of the largest department store groups in the country—Fred Lazarus, jr., president of Federated Department Stores, Inc.—guesses that dollar volume will be "somewhat lower than a year ago."

That probably means only a few percentage points lower. An exact figure is impossible to give, even uncertainty of further strikes and at this late date, because of the shut-downs.

But with everything normal, retail trade can continue its present pace at the cash register.

Company dessert can be quickly made by using two store-bought sponge cake layers filled with chocolate pudding made from a packaged mix. Frost the dessert with whipped cream and garnish with pecans.

Solon Predicts Laborite Win

Europe Claimed Worrying More Over U. S. Depression Than War

BY ROSE McKEE
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Sen. Flanders (R-Vt) declared today that Europe is more apprehensive about whether America will plunge into another economic depression than the possibilities of a third world war.

Flanders, just back from a senatorial tour of Europe, said that Britain's Conservative party deplores Marshall plan aid and predicted the Laborites will retain power because British voters "can't shoot Santa Claus."

War Talk Declines

The Vermonter was asked whether he heard much "war talk" in Europe. he replied:

"The apprehension in Europe is over whether the U.S. is going to have a depression, and if so, how deep and how long it will be.

"That, rather than another war, is what concerns Europe today."

Flanders said his experience differed from that attributed to Sen. Thomas (D-Okla), a member of another senatorial junket. Thomas was quoted as declaring his group was "snubbed" by a foreign nation, he and his colleagues ran into "so much courtesy it was embarrassing."

The New Englander added that "there was an element of discourtesy at first—but it came from us."

Group Moved Too Fast

He explained:

"We were just swiping in and swiping out of a country so fast. It finally dawned on us that we were being a little discourteous to the governments of the countries we were visiting and to our own embassies."

Flanders made no mention of reported charges by Thomas and Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), that Sweden is taking all the Marshall plan aid she can get while not having any real need for assistance.

The Vermonter joined McClellan in paying tribute to Norway. He said:

"Norway evidenced a desire to take as little as possible and get out from under as soon as possible. They are independent people."

Flanders said that British Conservatives "told us we should never have given any assistance to Great Britain." He added:

"They said the Marshall plan kept the Labor party from collapsing.

"I have not analyzed their position in detail but on the face of it they make a pretty good case. Of course the Labor party is anxious to get all they can (in Marshall plan aid.)"

Asker for a forecast on the outcome of next year's elections in Great Britain—the first since June, 1945—Flanders replied:

"I fear the Conservatives will not win.

"The situation is about what it was here during the (Franklin D.) Roosevelt elections. Everone was against him but the voter—you just can't shoot Santa Claus."

Texarkana Man, Mistaken For Deer, Killed By Fellow Hunter

TEXARKANA, Nov. 14. (AP)—L. B. Watson, 42, was shot and killed today by a fellow hunter who mistook him for a deer.

Watson was hunting in a heavily wooded area 12 miles northwest of Wicks, Ark.

Coroner Richard Billingsley, of Mena, conducted an inquest. He returned a verdict of accidental death as a result of gunshot wounds inflicted by a man identified as Lt. Bobby Brewer of Texarkana.

Watson was a car dealer and gas station operator. He is survived by a widow and son.

Terry County Farm Bureau Meets Tonight

BROWNFIELD, Nov. 14. Spl.).—The Terry County Farm bureau will hold its annual convention and barbecue here Tuesday night at the Veterans Hall.

Many new members are expected at the meeting, after a membership campaign headed by H. L. King, secretary of the organization.

Delegates to the state convention will be elected here Tuesday, according to County Judge H. R. Winston, president of the group. The Texas Farm Bureau Federation meets in Dallas on Nov. 21.

Pharmacist Caught Embezzling Twice Finally Loses His Job

MANITOWOC, Wis., Nov. 14. (U.P.)—Joseph F. Decker, 45, twice-caught embezzling pharmacist, looked for a job today to pay back an eight-year, $21,163 raid on the cash register.

His former employer, Richard Buerstatte, jr., owner of the drug company that had hired him since 1924, said Decker definitely is off the payroll for good.

In 1941 he admitted taking $26,500 from the drug company.

He had lost some of the money during the depression on bad investments, but agreed to repay $18,000.

After World War II, Buerstatte became suspicious of Decker again. Investigators and fellow employes watched Decker and quietly collected evidence.

Last Oct. 29, the company caught Decker taking $2.75. Two charges were filed against the pharmacist—that he took the $2.75, and that he had pocketed $21,163 since 1941.

He was sentenced to five years imprisonment Saturday by municipal Judge O. T. Bredesen. The judge changed the sentence to probation at the request of Buerstatte. Decker agreed to pay back the money. But Buerstatte refused to rehire Decker.

School For Bakers To Open This Morning At Hilton Hotel

A streamlined school for bakers will open here today at 9 a.m. in the Hilton hotel under the sponsorship of the Fleischmann division of Standard Brands Inc.

The school will continue through Wednesday and Thursday, meeting each day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Modern visual aid equipment will be used in the classes, including full color motion pictures, sound films and slides. Also featured in the school will be a fully equipped minature bakery, showing arrangements for large, medium-sized and small shops.

The course, "Accent of Quality", is to be conducted by G. W. Thomas, an experienced baker and instructor. The school is being given in the belief that bakery ingredients shortages no longer exist, and that it would be helpful to bakers in producing finer products.

Prince Charles Is Given First Salute By British People

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Prince Charles, second in line for the British throne, celebrated his first birthday today and took the first salute from the people.

They were the commoners on the sidewalk outside Clarence house, London home of his mother, Princess Elizabeth. They had gathered to honor the young heir.

Crowd Greets Prince

They waved and shouted "happy birthday" to the little blond prince as he was driven to Marlborough house to see his great grandmother, the queen mother Mary.

The first-born of the princess and the Duke of Edinburgh, who has a ready smile, grinned at the crowd and waved back gaily. Royalty's sidewalk admirers, who often frequent the gates of Buckingham palace, took him to their hearts.

His visit to Queen Mary was less of a romp than usual. The dowager queen, now 82, is suffering from a chill and her physicians have advised her to remain indoors for several days.

Has First Party

But the young prince found hilarity in his own crowd — London's exclusive nursery set—at his first birthday party. Among his guests were his five-year-old cousin, Prince Richard, son of the Duke of Gloucester, and several little girls.

The prince saw, but did not eat, his 40-pound birthday cake. It was flavored with rum in keeping with the traditions of the navy in which his father is serving at Malta.

Presumably Prince Charlie bit into a small un-rummed stand-in cake with his six teeth. The big cake, which weighed nearly twice as much as Charlie—he tips the scales at 24 pounds, eight ounces—was to be sliced up by Princess Elizabeth for guests at a tea party of her own.

Telegrams and messages of congratulations poured in from all parts of the world for the bonnie prince.

Fabulous Hope Diamond, Gem Of Disaster, Going On Nationwide Tour For Charities

BY LEO TURNER
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. — The Hope diamond, jewel of disaster, is going on a nationwide public tour, its owner, Harry Winston said today.

If it wasn't for the farmer's daughter, the world's diamond business would be in a bad way, Winston said.

So he's lending his famous collection to various charities for public exhibition to show the people who buy most of the world's diamonds the big gems that everybody talks about but few people buy.

Starts In New York

Winston's collection, including three of the five most famous diamonds in the world — the 126 carat Jonker, the 100 carat Star of the East and the 44½ carat Hope diamond — will go on public display first Nov. 22, at Rockefeller Center, with the proceeds going to New York's United Hospital Fund.

"We have 5,000 applications from charity organizations extending from Boston to Los Angeles and Duluth, Minn., to New Orleans," Winston said.

The man who is "Mr. Diamonds" to most of the world, is a short, stocky, polite, unassuming individual who likes dark, conservative suits and gray neckties. He sits at a large desk covered with black plush in a big, but modestly furnished office, beside three constantly ringing telephones.

Mammoth Guard At Door

The front windows of the six-story building housing Harry Winston, Inc., look out on St. Patrick's cathedral. A mammoth guard swings open the heavy steel barred door for visitors.

The 250 employes in the building design, manufacture and sell at both wholesale and retail Harry Winston's products.

What is the average size of diamonds sold in this country, which buys 80 percent of the world's supply?

"One-quarter carat," Winston said.

"The era when wealthy people collected expensive stones began passing in the early 20's when taxes began going up," Winston said. "Then there were hundreds of jewelry stores. Now jewelry stores are really department stores."

Who buys the fabulous stones?

"People who get a break. The average man doesn't understand that the man whose income is $1,000,000 a year pays 87 per cent taxes. He doesn't have the money to buy $100,000 pieces of jewelry without digging into his capital.

"So the people who buy the big pieces are those who buy for investment; oil men, mining men, women who suddenly inherit their husband's wealth, or people who receive money tax free."

Where are the most diamonds sold?

"No particular place. Buying run like an epidemic in one area, than another. Texas buys a lot. But so does Colorado. Victoria, Tex., and the Midland-Odessa oil field area of Texas buys a lot of diamonds. Oil men get a tax consideration on the depletion of their wells."

Winston frequently lends part of his collections and his new creations to retail jewelers, who display them in their stores or have prominent people wear them at social gatherings.

"Diamonds, for the most part, sell themselves," he said. "And the farm girl and the sweetheart of the small clerk and mechanic are the big buyers in America."

Rabid Foxes Are Reported Killed In East Texas Area

MALAKOFF, Tex., Nov. 14. (AP)—A fox head sent to the state laboratories in Austin indicated the animal had rabies.

Hunters have been killing foxes in this area almost every day and night. Stockmen said several head of cattle that have died recently appeared to have rabies.

In Crockett, hunters have been warned against letting their dogs chase foxes and wolves in the Davy Crockett National Forest. Two foxes killed last week had rabies.

Dr. J. T. Lang, Crockett veterinarian, said one of the foxes killed attempted to attack pickers in a cotton field.

Police Nab Armed Prowler To Prove Parking Argument

DETROIT, Nov. 14. (AP)—The cops were right when they told a couple of young lovers it's dangerous to park in lonely spots.

But Patrolmen John Major and Roland Knight were as surprised as the boy and girl to find out just how right.

The suburban Ferndale policemen noticed the car in a wooded area early Sunday.

"Don't you know this is dangerous?" they asked its occupants. "There might be men lurking around here with guns."

Then Major flashed his light around in a grand gesture, and the beam showed a man crouched near the car. Sure enough, he was carrying a revolver. The prowler was held for investigation.

TO START TV TESTS

DALLAS, Nov. 14—(AP)—Television test patterns will begin tomorrow from KRLD-TV, the Dallas Times Herald announced today. The station's first program will be the Southern Methodist-Notre Dame football game Dec. 3, Roy Flynn, chief engineer, said.

Nairobi, Kenya, has asked the British King to grant it the title of "city."

Alabama Solon Sees Fight Over Civil Rights Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—(AP)—Senator Sparkman (D-Ala) predicted today that Congress members from northern industrial areas will team up next year with southern Democrats to block a key part of President Truman's civil rights program.

The Alabama lawmaker said, too, that another fight in Congress over civil rights—regarded as practically certain—will jeopardize Mr. Truman's whole "fair deal" program.

Senate Democratic leaders have said they plan to call up early in 1950 what is probably the most hotly disputed of all the civil rights measures—a bill to set up a Fair Employment Practices commission. It is designed to bar discrimination in hiring because of color, race or religion.

Deer Hunters Take To Field

Hunting Begins East Of The Pecos

(By The Associated Press)

The deer season opens Wednesday for Texas east of the Pecos. The season already is over west of the Pecos.

Already there are many reports that deer are sleek, fat and plentiful in the areas where hunters will set foot at dawn Wednesday.

Highways were beginning to fill with red-capped hunters in cars towing trailers loaded with camping equipment.

The excitement was spreading. Out in the hill country the morning air had a snap and tang that brings the deer out for a run in the early mornings this week. Hunters hoped the weather would hold.

All the good hunting parts of the state reported deer more plentiful than in several years. Plenty of grass and a fine crop of acorns, ranchers explained.

Leases Average $50

Game Warden Adolph Heep estimated 3,000 deer would be killed in Gillespie county alone before the season ends Dec. 31.

Some 400 leases in that county bring in about $100,000 annually to the land owners.

Leases average about $50 a hunter for the season. But choice ones run up to $100 per gun. Day hunters pay from $8 to $15 a day.

County agent Ed Hyman at Mason said the deer in that county were fatter than they have been in years and the percentage of bucks much higher. Does, he explained, were more apt to die during the drouth and severe winter.

San Saba County had plenty of deer to offer. The weather has been sharp and nipping in the mornings. That brings the deer out for runs.

Llano was already filled with hunters.

Wild Turkey Abundant

The season west of the Pecos already has opened and closed—Nov. 6-11. The black-tailed deer killed out there this year were also fat.

Wild turkey was reported abundant in most sections. Plenty of feed for them, too.

Shooting hours are from one half hour before sunrise, Nov. 16, to one half hour after sunset, Dec. 31.

The season's limit on deer is two bucks. They must have at least one antlere prong. The limit on turkey generally is three gobblers, but in most hill country counties the limit is two.

Must Buy New License

This year under a new game law, hunters must buy a big game license costing $2.15. With it they must get two tags for the deer they kill. On the tag the hunter must write his name and address. Then when he gets his buck he must immediately tag it.

Sheriff Alfred Klaerner of Fredericksburgh said that "immediately" was causing consternation among some greenhorn hunters. It isn't true, he said with a twinkle in his eye, that the tags have to be tied on the horns first before you dare shoot the buck.

Rice Owl Scout Says TCU Will Be Tough

HOUSTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—Scout Melbert (Red) Bale today presented the Rice Owls with a bale of impressive information on Texas Christian's Horned Frogs.

Rice meets T.C.U. Saturday in Fort Worth in a game that could mean the Southwest Conference championship for the Houston team. A victory over the Frogs, combined with a Southern Methodist defeat to Baylor, would do the trick.

Bale thinks the Frog tilt will be tough.

The Owl scout watched T.C.U. Saturday in its upset over Texas and commented today:

"It was almost like attending all the sessions of a week-long coaching school in 2 1/2 hours. I have never used so many pencils and so much paper in watching one club.

T.C.U. threw the book at Texas with just about every formation in the game."

Bale said T.C.U. used an eight-man line, sometimes nine, against the Longhorns. He thinks such tactics would give the Rice passers, Tobin Rote and Vernon Glass, a rough day.

Squad Views Movies Of Odessa Game

Westerner Gridders Hold Light Workout

Lubbock's Westerners, just about fully recovered from the shock of their harrowing experience at Odessa last Friday, had an unusually light day on the practice field Monday.

Coach Pat Pattison showed his squad moving pictures of the 7-6 triumph over Odessa, sent the players through a snappy 15-minute pass drill, and called it quits for the afternoon.

Lubbock meets Midland at Midland Friday night in a District 3-AA game.

Except for Freddie Gray, regular guard who suffered a torn cartilage in his right knee early in the Odessa fray, all the Westerners reported in good physical condition Monday.

Gray Attends Drill

Gray, using crutches, attended the early afternoon skull practice at which the Odessa-Lubbock film was shown. Pattison said it probably will be several days before the exact extent of Gray's injury is known, but that it now appears possible that the stocky guard will return to action in time for the Brownfield game Nov. 25. Gray will not be used this week against Midland, however, regardless of any improvement in hiscondition, Pattison said, so that the knee may have ample time to mend completely.

Line Coach Bill Floyd, hospitalized with a throat infection, missed the Monday workout. However, he is expected to leave the hospital by mid-week and probably will rejoin the squad before the Midland game.

Lubbock Favored

The Westerners will be heavily favored to sew up the district championship by thumping Midland, one of the circuit's weaker teams. The Bulldogs have split even in two conference games this season, beating Brownfield, 26-7, after taking a 55-7 walloping from Odessa.

Lubbock has won both its district starts, downing Lamesa, 41-14, and Odessa, 7-6.

Lubbock fans may purchase reserved seat tickets for the Midland game at the high school office of E. J. Lowrey, athletic business manager. The ducats are priced at $1.50 each.

Louis Drops Shkor In Exhibition Go

BOSTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—Retired heavyweight champion Joe Louis dropped aggressive Johnny Shkor of Boston for three nine-counts during their lively 10-round no-decision boxing exhibition tonight before a cheering 8,471 crowd at the Boston Garden.

The 35-year-old Louis, weighing 229 3/4 pounds, had the 220-pound Shkor, six years the junior, down once in the second round and twice in the third. Shkor dropped under two-fisted barrages to the head and body but never appeared in dire distress. Twice the bell intervened before Louis could resume his savage attack.

But after the sixth round, during which Louis suffered a slight scrape near his right eye, the retired titlist started slowing down. From then until the 10th, Shkor landed frequently and several of his blows to the head appeared to pack plenty of steam.

Shkor gained considerable confidence as soon as Louis ceased stalking him—in the same fashion he did in his prime — and Boston Johnny was unduly ambitious when they came out for the finale.

He tried to make a theatening rush but Joe tied him up in his oldtime fashion and then gave him a terrific two-fisted lambasting about the head and body.

Hardin Eleven Has Top Mark In Texas Collegiate Football

(By The Associated Press)

Hardin has the best record but McMurry has shown the top offense in Texas college football this season.

Hardin rests this week with a 9-1 mark and an average of 31.2 points per game. McMurry, which meets weak Southwestern university, has a 7-2 record but has rolled up 35.2 points per contest.

There are no undefeated teams and only five that have not lost more than one game. These are Hardin, Baylor, 7-1, Rice 7-1, Texas A. and I., and Southern Mtehodist 5-1-1.

Charlie Justice Wants No Part Of Professional Footall

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Nov. 14. (INS)—All-America halfback Charlie Justice wants no part of pro football— at least not now, anyway.

Several weeks ago the North Carolina grid star indicated that he would take a coaching job after this year and pass up the play-for-pay game.

Today, "Choo-Choo" was more definite about the matter than he ever has been. He said:

"The way I see ie, I've made up my mind not to play pro football."

Justice, who sat on the bench last Saturday while Notre Dame pasted his teammates, 42-6, doesn't know yet whether his ankle injury will permit him to play next Saturday against Duke, the Tarheels' traditional rival.

Unofficial temperatures of 100 degrees below zero have been known on Mount McKinley in south central Alaska.

It's Autumn

Boys Club Cage Program Opens

The Boys club winter basketball program got underway Monday at the club, with six teams swinging into action.

Best game of the day was in the Midget league between the Eagles and Palominos, with the Eagles winning a 34-31 victory. Scoring for the winners was divided between two players. Wesley Houston, a lefthanded hoopster, poured 20 points through the basket, and Jim Hawkins scored the other 14.

Pacing the Palominos with 17 points was Dale Ball, and Arthur Eavns made eight tallies.

The Pee Wee contest was a shutout, with the Maulers living up to their name in stampeding the Stampeders, 10-0. Paul Sikes led the Maulers, making four points on a field goal and two free throws.

Led by Kikey Brady with 20 points, the Fancy Five dropped the Longhorns, 48-22, in a Junior game, and Leon Bostick helped the winners with 12 points. Morris Burger was high with 10, and Floyd Smith was runner-up with seven points for the losers.

Today's game put the Roughies and Buffaloes in action in the Pee Wee game, Galloping Ghosts and Regulars in Midget league and Hornets and Basketeers in the Junior league.

Only organized Monday, the Hornets will have Don Washington as captain and the Basketeers Jim Johnson. Two other teams are the Five Fools, Lyndell Bailey captain, and Sorry Lot, Bobby Tollison captain.

Approximately 125 boys are now engaged in the basketball program, and four teams have been formed in the Senior league. The quintets and their captains are Seventh Street Thugs, Tommy Yelvington; Dirty Demons, Bob Nabors; Unconscious Five, Sam Adams; and Golden Gophers, Billy Diamond.

An 8 o'clock game tonight will bring together Barber college and the Independents at the club.

Lubbock Fighters Enter TAAF Tourney

Odessa, Abilene and possibly Amarillo will bring teams to the district TAAF boxing tournament to be held in Sled Allen's arena Dec. 8-9.

In addition, 13 local fighters already have entered the tournament, whose champions will become eligible for the state TAAF meet the following week in Fort Wroth.

Bill Wooster, Odessa, and Billy Burkhart and Tom Adams, Abilene, notified sponsoring officials here Monday that they plan to bring squads to Lubbock for the event.

There also is a strong possibility that Amarillo's fine amateur mitt aggregation will compete here, since the Panhandle city does not have a district TAAF meet scheduled this year.

Lubbock fighters already entered are Ray Thornton, flyweight; Lyle Shelton, Bill Lewis and Red Lindsey, featherweight; Travis Fry, Pat McCarty and Dick Christi lightweights; Earl Pollard, George Melot and Jack Wellborn, welterweights; and Dan Williams, James Bickel and Johnny McWhorter, lightheavyweights.

The Lubbock entrants are working out daily at City Club gym for the TAAF event, which this year will serve as a "tune-up" for the annual Avalanche-Journal Golden Gloves tournament.

New Deal Gridders Will Be Guests Of Honor At Banquet

Members of the New Deal high school football squad, their fathers and the Lion coaches will be guests of honor at a banquet Thursday night in the Hilton hotel here.

Superintendent A. L. Faubion of New Deal said that the banquet was an appreciation affair for the Lions to celebrate their fine season's record. It also is to build up enthusiasm for the game with Meadow, which will be played Friday.

Thirty-four players and their dads will be honored by fans of the Monroe area, along with H. T. Pior, head coach, and Assistant Coach Sherman.

Arizona Cage Program Set

TUSCON, Ariz., Nov. 14. (Special)—The University of Arizona basketball team, shooting for its fifth consecutive undisputed Border Conference title and to extend its home-court winning streak which reached 51 games last year, opens the longest schedule in University history Friday, Dec. 2, in "Bear Down" gym.

First opponent on the 30-game 1949-50 schedule is San Diego Naval Air Station, which will be in Tuscon for two meetings with the Wildcats on Friday, and Saturday, Dec 3. On Dec. 9, the Cats will meet Culver-Stockton college at dedication of a new gymnasium at Douglas, Ariz.

In addition to their 16-game conference schedule, the Wildcats will also play 12 intersectional opponents, including Texas A & M, Texas University, St. Mary's (Calif.) Loyola, California Poly, and participate in the Sun Bowl Tournament at El Paso Dec. 30-31.

Although Arizona set a new Border Conference record in winning its fourth consecutive undisputed title in 1948-49, Coach Fred Enke sees no favorite's ranking for his Wildcats when conference play opens Jan. 7.

"I look for us to progress steadily as the season moves on," Enke, starting his 25the year as head coach at Arizona, said, "but we'll open with at least two new men in our starting lineup, and until we get a few games under our belt, will be shallow in seasoned reserves."

Graduation losses for the Arizona squad included Center Junior Crum, whose 13.68 points per game in 16 league contests won him runner-up scoring honors and second team All-Conference honors Guard Bill Mann, twice cited for All-Conference honors, and Forward Linc Richmond, slowed by a knee injury last year, but who was named three times for conference honors and scored more than 1,150 points in college.

RATHBONE RETURNS TO ACTION

Raiders Hold Long, Hard Drill In Preparation For New Mexico

Coach Dell Morgan told the Quarterback club last night that he shuddered to think of what might happen at Albuquerque Saturday when the Texas Tech Raiders play the University of New Mexico.

Coach Morgan said that when New Mexico upset Colorado, he was afraid that Coach Berl Huffman finally had the Lobos rolling. And, as much as he liked Berl, it was not a good omen for the Raiders.

This fear permeated the Raider camp yesterday afternoon, or at least the coaching staff. The mentors kept the Raiders working out until after darkness had fallen, with the lights being turned on at Jones Stadium to permit a longer workout.

Raider Spirits High

The Raiders, apparently, have no fear of New Mexico. Their spirit yesterday was as high as it has been any time this season, but the lack of drills Friday, Saturday and Sunday told in their workout. It wasn't good.

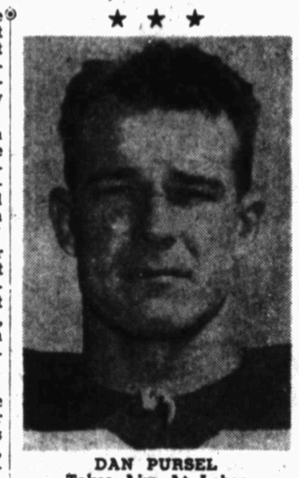

Gone was the finesse they had had before. Crucial blocks weren't being made and plays weren't being run well, even though it was dummy scrimmage and there was no tackling. If there had been contact, it's equally certain that the Raiders would have made few plays click.

Units Take Turns

Three offensive units took turns running the ball and the only cheering thing was Quarterback Milton Rathbone's return to action. Whether he will be used in rough scrimmage is another question, but yesterday he was operating at quarterback in one unit.

Halfback Walter Maloney is the only player still on the injured list. Maloney's knee still is taped heavily and gives him trouble, so that he can't run yet. He is jogging around the field to strengthen it and might be ready to go Saturday.

Coach Polk Robison scouted the New Mexico-Colorado game last week and brought back dire reports of a vastly improved Lobo eleven. He declared that New Mexico deserved to win Saturday because they outplayed Colorado and warned that unless the Raiders took the game seriously, the Lobos stood an excellent chance of beating Tech.

Robison said that he thought there was a good chance of the game duplicating the 1947 tilt, in which Tech rolled to 26 points in the first half, then nearly lost the game in the last stanza.

Several members of the 1947 squad are seniors this year, but Guard Dan Pursel was the only member of this year's team that started the Albuquerque game. He remembers that game well and will seek to avoid a repetition of it.

Pattison Talks At QB Session

"I'm looking for the guy who wants to abolish the extra point!" Coach C. R. Pattison, Lubbock High school coach, told the Quarterback club last night at the weekly meeting in the Lubbock hotel.

Pattison, whose Westerners squeezed out a 7-6 verdict over the Odessa Bronchos Friday afternon, was the principal speaker at the meeting. Also heard from briefly were Coach Damon Hill, whose Dunbar High schbol Panthers lost to San Angelo 26-6, Coach Allie White, whose Texas Tech Picadors lost to the Hardin-Simmons frosh 21-13, and Coach Dell Morgan, who reported on the 19-7 upset of Hardin-Simmons by West Texas State college.

Pictures of the Odessa-Lubbock game and the 1948 Army-Navy game concluded the entertainment.

The main portion of the meeting was devoted to Coach Pattison's analysis of the game. He declared that he was as proud of this Westerner team as any group of boys that he had ever coached, if not prouder. He stated that they had not been quite ready for the game, which was why he called three meetings during the week.

Coach Joe Coleman of Odessa had his team up and ready for the game, the Lubbock coach declared, and went on to say that he got 100 percent out of them. "And any time a coach gets 100 percent out of his boys, whether it's Amarillo, Lubbock, Odessa, Port Arthur or any other big high school, they'll be tough. There isn't any one of those schools that can't lick any other on any given day if they are keyed up high enough," Coach Pattison said.

Backs Handled Game

The Lubbock coach went on to discuss certain aspects of the game. He mentioned the fact that he let his quarterbacks handle the game entirely, not attempting to call signals from the bench. He pointed out that that migh answer the question of why the Westerners didn't gamble more.

"Odessa had everything to win and nothing to lose by gambling," Coach Pattison asserted. "We decided to keep pounding at them, first one side and then the other. And there's another reason for it; Fullback Malcolm Young wasn't at full strength because of sickness.

"I kept Malcolm in the game for the psychological effect I hoped it would have on our kids, even though other backs probably would have been as effective, or maybe even more effective."

Coach Pattison also called the officiating fair and competent, even though he said: "I'll be darned if I can understand why our kids are such stinking sports and the other team's players are always so lily white. And if there are any reporters here, that's off the record". The crowd of over 300 gave him a big hand.

Coach Pattison apparently was referring to the fact the Lubbock suffered penalties amounting to 40 yards in the game, while Odessa didn't receive a single penalty.

Hill Lauds Team

Pattison discussed various individual plays in the game and their bearing on its outcome. His chief comment on Lubbock's mental attitude was that his boys apparently had beaten Odessa before they had ever met and were more interested in watching their runners than in blocking.

Coach Hill didn't have much to say, except that he thought his boys did a fine job of stopping a powerful San Angelo team for one half. "I thought we had them at the half," Coach Hill declared. "They were leading only 7-6. But they came back and scored two quick touchdowns and that was the game."

Coach White, asked to tell about the Picador game, spoke up from the rear of the room with the season's shortest and most succinct statement. "We lost!" he called out.

Coach Morgan said that Hardin-Simmons apparently had tuken the WTSC game for granted and ran into a hornet's nest as a result. After the Buffs had taken a lead in the third quarter, nothing could hold them and Hardin-Simmons could do nothing.

Buckeyes Banish Rose Bowl Talk

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14 (INS)—Ohio State may be the current logical choice for a Rose Bowl date, but if Buck Coach Des Fesler has his way, his boys won't hear of it.

Rose Bowl talk is virtually forbidden on the Buckeye practice field these days, and Michigan's mighty Wolverines are the reason why.

Fesler said today that although the Bucks have a scout in the west looking over California, Pacific Coast Bowl favorite, he won't even start to think of anything beyond the Michigan clash.

That contest, by all odds "The Game Of The Year" as far as both clubs are concerned, comes off Saturday at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Michigan, Western Conference champion for the last two years and a participant in the post-season classic two seasons ago, isn't eligible for the Jan. 2 date next year, but needs only a victory over Ohio State to become the first school in Big Ten history to win three successive Conference titles.

Tied With Wolverines

The Wolverines and Bucks now are tied for the loop lead with four victories and one loss apiece as a result of their respective wins over Indiana and Illinois Saturday.

If Ohio State takes Michigan, there'll be no question as to who gets the Conference title and the California trip. The Bucks even could get the latter with just a creditable showing.

Should Ohio lose decisively, however, the winner of the Wisconsin-Minnesota clash likely will make the Rose Bowl jaunt. Both those Bowl eligible teams are tied for third with three-two records.

On the basis of comparative records, Michigan appears a slight favorite, which is well enough for Fesler and his staff, especially since they learned today that first-string Tackle Jack Jennings and regular left Half Jimmy Clark most likely will miss the battle.

Both were injured in Ohio's 30-17 win over Illinois.

Others Show Improvement

However, offsetting the loss of that valuable pair, has been the vastly improved showing of Fullback Curly Morrison, the team's leading scorer, Guard Jim "Shag" Thomas and Tackle Jules Wittman, who will fill in for Jennings.

The loss of Clark proved a blessing in disguise for the Bucks Saturday, for it finally gave sophomore sensation Vic Janowicz, combination left half-fullback, a chance to show his offensive wares.

Although he hadn't played a minute for four contests because of an injured ankle, Janowicz was the sparkplug who ignited Ohio's 30-point game-winning second-half barrage.

Turkey Shoot Slated Sunday At Lubbock Gun Club Range

A turkey shoot will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 on the pistol range adjoining the Lubbock Gun club's skeet and trap layout at South Plains Air Force Base.

Twenty-five to 30 turkeys will be given to winning shooters by the 20-30 club of Lubbock, which is sponsoring the shoot. The club will furnish guns to all persons needing them.

Proceeds from the shoot will be used to buy safety equipment for school patrol boys and girls.

Coach Hits Platoon Rule

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (INS)—Coach Harvey Harman of Rutgers said today the majority of college football coaches are against the two-platoon system now in use.

He said those who will fight to abolish the unlimited substitution of players at the next meeting of the Football Rules committee will argue it serves only to make the strong stronger and the weak weaker.

Harman commented at a meeting attended by several of the country's leading coaches.

There are, of course, some notable exceptions among the coaches, men who favor retention of the existing rule. And for a very good reason—they have the necessary two platoons and even a third and fourth platoon.

Harman was most outspoken at today's meeting. He said:

"I venture to say 90 per cent of the coaches are against the two-platoon system. I think it's unfair to the weaker team.

"Here's the way it works out: You send in your team against a power house and manage to hold them even for a quarter. Then the coach of the powerhouse team sends in a fresh team against the tired team you can't replace. What's fair about that?

"Actually, it's a mistake to say some of these powerhouses are the best teams in the land. It would be more exact to say they have the best squads in the country."

Several coaches pointed out that they haven't sufficient assistants to teach both offensive and defensive squads. They must rely on their one squad without making specialists.

Lou Little, Columbia's veteran coach, said he thought it would be impossible to make teams even by legislation.

George Sauer of Navy, who said Columbia played Navy on pretty even terms for a half last Saturday, was asked what would have happened had both Columbia and Navy been forced to keep their first teams in action most of the time.

Sauer replied, "It probably would have been a much closer game."

Arizona To Play Michigan State

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 14. (Special)—The Michigan State college Spartans, ranked among the top 10 teams of the nation, invade the University of Arizona campus Saturday (Nov. 19) for an intersectional clash with the Wildcats under the lights of Arizona stadium. Kickoff time is 8 p. m.

Probably the finest team to appear on any Arizona gridiron, the Michigan State squad will be the heavy favorite, before an estimated crowd of 16,000, in the closing game on its 1949 schedule. The Wildcats close their season next Saturday (Nov. 26) against Kansas university in Arizona stadium.

The game will be the third meeting on the gridiron between Arizona and Michigan State. The Spartans took the first contest, in 1936 by a 7-0 score, and last year handed the Wildcats their soundest defeat, 61-7.

The Spartans, who this past weekend met Oregon State at Portland, have defeated Marquette, 48-7; Maryland 14-7; William and Mary 42-13; Penn State 24-0, and Temple 62-14, and lost to Michigan 7-3 and Notre Dame 34-21.

Arizona, which Saturday played Arizona State at Tempe, has won from New Mexico A&M 40-7 and New Mexico university 46-14, played to a 12-12 tie with Utah and lost to Hardin-Simmons, 35-0; Texas Western 28-0; Texas Tech 27-7, and Denver 20-6.

Top performers for the Spartans in the backfield are Lynn Chandnois and Everett Grandelius, both of whom piled up consistent yardage against Notre Dame. Chandnois, player of the week on two occasions this season and a top All-American candidate, has averaged seven-yards-per-carry from his right half position. Grandelius has averaged near the six-yards-per-carry mark.

In the line, Michigan State has two more All-American candidates in guards Don Mason and Ed Bagdon, and a top pass receiver in lanky 210-pound end Bob Carey.

In the Wildcat camp, prospects for giving the Spartans a rough ball game were brightened by the Arizona team's showing against New Mexico. For the first time this year, Wildcats ran from their new T formation with familiarity to the tune of more than 400 offensive yards, and Arizona's forward wall consistently outcharged the heavier Lobo line.

Leading ball carriers for the Wildcats, in seven games, have been Ed Wolgast, with a 5.4-yard average in 57 attempts; right half Les Kastner with 220 yards and fullback Charley Hall with 186.

Quarterback John Kelly hit for 11 pass completions against New Mexico to increase his pass yardage to 342. End Bill Glazier tops both receivers and scorers with 19 receptions good for 371 yards and five touchdowns.

Michigan State is scheduled to move from Portland to Arrowhead Springs, Calif., where the Spartans will work out until Thursday (Nov. 17) when they will fly to Tucson for night workouts in Arizona stadium Nov. 17-18. It is planned that Tucson will accord the Spartan team a typical western welcome with the reception committee led by gun-carrying vigilantes.

SMU HAS LIGHT DRILL

DALLAS, Nov. 14. (AP)—Southern Methodist university substitutes had a light football practice today, but the regulars skipped the drill. Coach Matty Bell said he would start serious practice for the Baylor game tomorrow.

SPORTS Slants

BY CHOC HUTCHESON

It's like counting your chickens before the hen lays the eggs from which they're hatched, but so many fans have expressed interest in Lubbock's state playoff outlook that I herewith present the complete picture:

A victory over Midland this week would clinch the District 3-AA championship for the Westerners (Odessa would thus become the only team with a chance to tie Lubbock, and Lubbock won over Odessa when the two teams met. Under a 3-AA agreement, if two teams tie for first, the title goes to the one which won the game between the two.)

The bi-district game would be with the winner of the El Paso district, at a site to be determined by flip of a coin. Austin High now is leading the El Paso pack, with a perfect conference record. In inter-district play, however, Austin has lost to San Angelo (26-7) and Abilene (27-18).

Should Lubbock get past Austin, the next playoff opponent would be the Pampa-Wichita Falls winner (assuming, that is, that Wichita comes through as expected in 2-AA). If the quarterfinal foe is Wichita Falls, the site would be determined by toss of a coin. If it is Pampa, the game would be played in Lubbock.

An Interscholastic league ruling provides that if two teams have met in a game which counts in league standings during the last six seasons, the team which last played away from home has its choice of site for the next meeting. Last year, Lubbock (then a 1-AA member) played at Pampa in a district game. So, even though Lubbock since has been transferred to 3-AA, the 1948 tilt still would be used as a basis for determining the site of a playoff contest, according to an interpretation of the rule by Rhea Williams, Interscholastic league director.

All additional playoff engagements involving Lubbock would be played at locations determined by flip of a coin or by mutual agreement of the schools concerned.

This writer, for one, was happy that Slaton and Littlefield school officials agreed Sunday to stage their championship 4-A football game at Lubbock's Jones stadium this week.

The decision, I firmly believe, was a wise one that will benefit everyone concerned.

For one thing, the Texas Tech stadium offers adequate seating capacity for all who might wish to see the game, which means a definite convenience to fans.

Secondly, the use of a neutral field of the caliber of the Jones stadium layout lends a colorful "championship" layout that befits a playoff game. It probably is no exaggeration to state that players of both teams will get at least a slight added thrill from performing on a collegiate gridiron.

And, lastly, both schools stand to gain financially from the decision to play here. A crowd of at least 5,000 fans is anticipated, which—in view of the reasonable rental terms— means a neat profit.

Last year's bi-district tilt between Post and Lockney, also staged at Jones stadium, proved successful in all respects. Here's hoping this week's Slaton-Littlefield game goes over equally well, and that a sizeable Lubbock delegation turns out for the tussle involving our South Plains neighobrs.

Illinois Delegate Scores Commissioner

National Boxing Association Gives Greene Vote Of Approval

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Nov. 14. (INS)—Abe J. Greene was given a vote of confidence for his work as commissioner of the National Boxing Association today after one member accused him of being a boxing "dictator."

Joseph A. Triner, chairman of the Illinois Boxing Commission, demanded to know what the "dictatorship of Greene has been doing for the NBA." The 200 delegates attending the NBA convention in Miami Beach promptly certified their approval of Greene's work.

After Greene made his annual report to the convention, Triner rose and said Illinois objects to one man holding power to control boxing in the NBA's 47 member states.

Greene said he would be willing to resign as commissioner in order to maintain harmony but the delegates immediately indicated they did not want that.

Several members openly praised Greene's efforts.

During a verbal exchange with Triner, Greene urged that "we submerge our personal dislikes and work for a unified NBA."

In his report to the convention, Greene said "There is no discord in the NBA as far as I'm concerned."

He added emphatically:

"There is no dictatorship, no attempt to preempt any authority."

Greene's report recommended that congressional assistance be sought to make federal funds available to gain a greater stabilization of boxing on a national scale.

U. S. Support Wanted

He told the delegates that millions of dollars are poured into federal coffers in boxing taxes and said if the government interest is to be sustained, "Washington should offer its protective assistance through an appropriation which is unavailable under other circumstances."

Greene pointed out that the NBA "proved itself" as the governing body of boxing with the Ezzard Charles-Joe Walcott fight for Joe Louis' vacated title last summer.

Greene also said the NBA has reached its highest point in its history, with every state except New York a member.

In conclusion, the NBA commissioner called for an intensive campaign for ring safety programs in each state.

The convention delegates planned to leave for Cuba tonight. They will continue their session in Havana tomorrow.

OLD PROFESSOR QUESTIONS CLASS

Bell Says Mustangs Played Top Notch Ball Against Razorbacks

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. — The Old Professor sat down abruptly. He didn't notice someone had removed his chair. He arose with injured feelings and addressed his hilarious Monday morning class of football coaches.

Old Professor — All right, all right, I can take a joke. Mr. Barnhill, why are you wearing that barrel?

John Barnhill, Arkansas — Necessity, Professor. We got the pants beat off us Saturday, fair and square. We have no complaints. We played a terrible game but if we had been at our best we couldn't have beaten S.M.U.

Matty Bell, Southern Methodist —Our boys played heads-up football. Arkansas just caught us when we were right.

Old Professor — right makes might, they do say. Why are you laughing, Mr. Bryant? Somebody tickling you?

Paul "Bear" Bryant, Kentucky —No Sir, but we were tickled to death to win over Florida. Everyone played a fine game for us. We had Florida outmanned and Florida wasn't keyed up as it was for Georgia. Florida has a well-coached team, but we got the breaks.

Ray "Bear" Wolf, Florida—Kentucky has a very fine team and it certainly was red hot. About 32 Kentucky players were outstanding against us. Oh, that Parilli! Center Jimmy Kynes was in every play for us and our boys put up a good fight.

Old Professor — In other words, you can't cork up a corking good ball club. Mr. Faurot, better move away from the window. You'll catch cold.

Dan Faurot, Missouri — Our players wouldn't. They couldn't even catch the ball when we had scoring opportunities. Take nothing away from Oklahoma, though. Wilkinson has a great team. We played well enough defensively, just should have scored a few more touchdowns.

Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma—I'm very pleased. We played just about as well as we have played all season. Missouri's defense didn't seem to want to crack. It never did.

Old Professor — Any comment, Mr. Snavely?

Carl Snavely, North Carolina—Notre Dame was easily the best team we've played all season. By the same token, I'm proud of our boys. They played a great game, if the score defensively does not indicate it.

Frank Leahy, Notre Dame — I don't mind telling you North Carolina had us scared to death in the first half. We beat a mighty fine team out there. In the first half North Carolina was as fine a team as I've ever seen. Snavely did a tremendous job. His boys just ran out of steam in the second half.

The Southern California - Notre Dame football series, inaugurated in 1926, is the oldest on the 1949 Irish slate.

Country Club Plans Sweepstakes Tourney

A men's and women's sweepstakes, the first of the fall golf season, will be played Wednesday at the Lubbock Country club for members, club officials announced today.

Foursomes will tee off anytime after 1 p. m., reservations being taken now by Herb Schroeder, professional. Foursomes will not be mixed.

Men, with an entry fee of $1, will play low net with handicap determining the winners. Women [illegible] play, according to Ruth Jennings, women's chairman, but will pay an entry fee of 50 cents. Prizes other than the usual golf ball awards will likely be presented.

The day's entertainment will be concluded Wednesday night at a 7 p. m. buffet supper with all golfers, their wives and non-golfer members invited to attend. Reservations for the supper are to be made by Thursday noon, Bill Overton, club manager, said.

The sweepstakes play is the first of a schedule of golf play being planned for the fall and winter, Jack O. Stone, golf program chairman said.

U. S. HEARINGS ARE SOUGHT

Supreme Court Agrees To Study Handling Of Alien Prisoners

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—The Supreme court agreed today to decide whether aliens jailed by United States authorities abroad can seek release in federal courts here.

The Justice department and the Army are fighting any such authority, which they contend would "impede the orderly administration of enemy-occupied areas" and throw all U. S. war crimes convictions into confusion.

1,300 Held Abroad

The Army said it is holding from 1,200 to 1,300 persons abroad who might be affected. It said from 500 to 600 of them are in Europe.

At the same time, the court refused to consider the case of an alien imprisoned by the action of an international war crimes tribunal. It has repeatedly declined to interfere with international court findings.

In other cases the court:

1. Ruled 8-0 that a veteran's right to job seniority under the selective service act extends beyond his first year of re-employment on his prewar job.

May Conviction Upheld

2. Refused for a second time to review the conviction of former Rep. Andrew J. May of Kentucky on charges of bribery and conspiracy. May was convicted of accepting a bribe of $53,000 from Henry and Murray Garsson to help them get war contracts.

3. Refused to give a speed-up ruling in a legal fight against deportation being waged by Irving Potash, one of the 11 top U. S. Communists convicted in New York of conspiracy to teach forcible overthrow of the government.

he said were his passport and social security card.

Homer Sealy, of Route 7, said a brown leather coat, valued at $32.50 had been taken from his car, parked in the 500-block Thirteenth.

The bicycle was taken from Tyke Pemberton of 2206 Ave. J. Value of the vehicle was placed at $35.

Marshall Negro Charged

A Marshall negro, Morton Taylor, has been charged at Levelland with attempted murder in the Sunday night stabbing of another negro, Levi Carpenter, Hockley county Sheriff Charlie Bullock said Monday.

Condition of Carpenter, who was given blood transfusions throughout the day Monday, late last night was described as "very serious." Both negroes had been working on a farm northwest of Levelland.

Local police said the number of persons arrested here since Sunday morning totaled about 95. While the offenses include one each of aggravated assault and assault with a deadly weapon, the majority of charges were filed for drunkenness, officers said.

Oklahoma Man Fined

Charles Raymond Franklin, 22, of Addington, Okla., was fined $150 and county court costs on a plea of guilty of aggravated assault. He admitted striking 32-year-old Walter Early of Lubbock, route 5, with a metal pipe Sunday.

F. R. Webb, 67, who gave his address as North College Ave. entered a plea of guilty to leaving the scene of an accident through his attorney in the court of Justice of the Peace C. E. Lynn, and was fined $25 and costs.

Bonds set included:

Reyes Zamaripas, charged with felony theft, $1,000; and Katherine Warren, 31, Slaton negro woman charged with liquor law violation, $500.

Others Are Fined

A fine of $200 and court costs was assessed against Jon A. Lucero, 20, on a plea of liquor law violation; Charles Neff pleaded guilty of an aggravated assault charge filed about a month ago and was fined $25 and costs of court; and Willie Dee Jordon, 25-year-old negro, was ordered to pay $1 and costs of Lynn's court on a plea of guilty of theft under $5.

James Hopkins, 21, a Lubbock negro, was fined $200 and county court costs on a plea of guilty of aggravated assault on Odessa Duty, a negro woman, a judgment Monday showed.

Negro Is Arrested

A 35-year-old negro identified as Arthur James Veal of Franklin, Calif., was arrested by police as a parole violator from the California state penitentiary. Arrest was by Lee Rice, jr., and L. W. Forrester, detectives.

Two negroes, 23 and 15, females, were arrested and released to the Tahoka sheriff's department in connection with the theft there Thursday night of $411.

Road Equipment Taken

County road equipment was ransacked in Precinct 3 over the weekend, the sheriff's office was informed. Grease guns, wrenches, a log chain, a hammer and other property were taken, but machinery was not damaged.

Olen Farris of 2403 Sixth told police Monday night that two negroes had attempted to enter his car while he was stopped at a railroad track on East Nineteenth waiting for a train to pass. Farris said both doors were locked. One of the negroes released the car door when Farris backed the vehicle, but the other man held on, breaking off a door handle, he said.

Farris said a similar incident had occurred several night ago.

company's "to fill these positions of importance and responsibility."

The only East and Gulf coast vessels which would be unaffected by the strike are coal colliers and oil tankers.

USSR Bulletins

Waco and Dallas school officials reported receiving the bulletins.

Most of them said they came from the Russian embassy in Washington. They were in magazine form. The October issue included "Budapest trial was victory for peace, says Pravda editorial" and "honored and well paid scientists of USSR are encouraged by the state."

U. S., Britain Attacked

White said those received in Dallas contained "distorted and vicious" attacks on the United States, Great Britain and the western powers, particularly the United States.

J. O. Webb, assistant superintendent of Houston schools, said a check-up showed school librarians had either kept the literature off the shelves or destroyed them of their own volition.

Tyler school officials said they were keeping the bulletins for possible use in the journalism department to study propaganda technique.

Waco High school has received four Soviet information bulletins. They are being withheld from circulation.

The bulletins received at the Amarillo High school library are not made available for student use.

Principal Wade Keene of the Lufkin Senior High school said that Soviet information bulletins for school were discontinued at his request more than two years ago. The school received them for about a year.

SAN ANTONIO SCHOOL THROW AWAY BULLETINS

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 14. (AP)—Propaganda bulletins from the Russian embassy in Washington, delivered by mail to San Antonio high schools, have been promptly dumped into the wastebasket or destroyed.

A survey revealed that copies of the USSR information bulletin, mailed by the embassy under a Washington D. C., postal permit, had been received at at least four San Antonio Senior high schools.

Postmaster Dan Quill asked for copies of the publications and their wrappings and said he would request an opinion from the solicitor general of the postoffice department as to whether the material should be barred from the mails. In addition to the official Soviet publication, crudely mimeographed circulars purporting to be issued by the "Communist party of San Antonio" have been found in classrooms at Lanier High school, according to Principal R. H. Brewer.

Brewer said the circulars were apparently left by men attending the veterans' classes held on the school at night. They were removed by janitors before regular students came in the next morning.

The obstensibly local circulars found at Lanier were signed by "Communist party of San Antonio, care of the Communist party of Texas" at a Houston postoffice box. They urged readers to protest against the recent convictions of 11 Communist leaders in New York.

CHICAGO EDUCATOR SCORES BANS AGAINST 'FREEDOM'

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. (INS)—Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago said today that Americanism cannot be taught in schools if the freedom of those who are to teach it is impaired.

Hutchins, speaking at the American Legion symposium in Chicago said:

We are all opposed to Communism —because it is revolting to our moral sense, because in practice it has too often been tyrannical, unjust, and despotic—and because its advocates have too often resorted to deception and hypocracy . . . "

Hutchins reminded his audience of Chicago educators that Communism has found few converts in America and the way to defeat it is not by banning it from America's school. He warned:

"We should not fall into the error of destroying the preponderant good to correct the trivial wrong." He continued:

"Americans should be able to hear Communism expounded in its most seductive form—and to reject it because they know better. This requires background. It cannot be done in ten easy lessons."

City-County Library

buying and converting the Broadway Church of Christ or the First Baptist church into a library. Both the Broadway and First Baptist churches are building magnificent new homes and their present buildings are on the market.

The mayor reported Monday that the Broadway property has been priced at $135,000 and the First Baptist building at $70,000 Architects are investigating the practicability and cost of converting these structures into a library and are expected to report to an early meeting of the city commission.

Interest Not Limited

Rodgers emphasized, however, that the commission's interest is not limited to these two buildings.

"If other buildings suitable for conversion into a library are available, we would like to know about them," the mayor commented.

The suggestion that it might be to the interest of the city and county to cooperate in the library project originated with City Manager Steve Matthews and found immediate favor with the members of both commissions.

The gist of their agreement was that it obviously would be better, and cost less, to establish and maintain one large and complete library than two of smaller size.

No attempt was made to delve into such details as the site of such a library, its operations and how the costs should be divided.

Present Court House Unacceptable

The consensus was, however, that the present courthouse building would not be acceptable for that purpose because of the nature of the building, the parking problem and for other reasons.

Members of both commissions agreed to study the co-operative library plan further.

One of the principal purposes in calling the meeting was to discuss the request that the county be given access to a re-appraisal of property values in the city and school district now being made under the supervision of G. B. Whitney, of Fort Worth.

This permission was given. Spokesmen for the county agreed to share a proportionate share of the cost making the reappraisal. The exact amount will be recommended after a study by Matthews, H. B. Bryan, county tax assessor-collector, and A. C. Jackson, business manager of the school district.

$12,300 Payment Contracted

The city and school district have contracted to pay Whitney approximately $12,300 for his work. The county will assume a portion of this cost.

Members of the county commission also gave assurance of their co-operation in trying to obtain rights-of-way for the completion of dispersal systems streets in rural areas which may be annexed to the city within the next few weeks.

Present at the meeting were Mayor Rodgers and City Commissioners W. B. Price, Clarence Whiteside and E. K. Hufstedler; County Judge Walter Davies and County Commissioners Pat Corley, Otis Isom, George Green and R. O. Short; Clyde Tatum, chairman, and Dr. M. M. Ewing, Ruel Martin, G. C. Dowell and Glenn Woody, members of the school board; R. L. Oldham, city director of public works; Vaughn Wilson, city attorney; J. Y. Boyd, county auditor; Matthews, Jackson and Bryan.

New Peace Plan

demnation of the preparations for a new war and conclusion of a five-power pact for the strengthening of peace."

In addition to proposing that nations abandon force in the conduct of international relations, the Anglo-American motion urges U.N. members to agree to a limitation of national sovereignty in the interests of an atom control agreement.

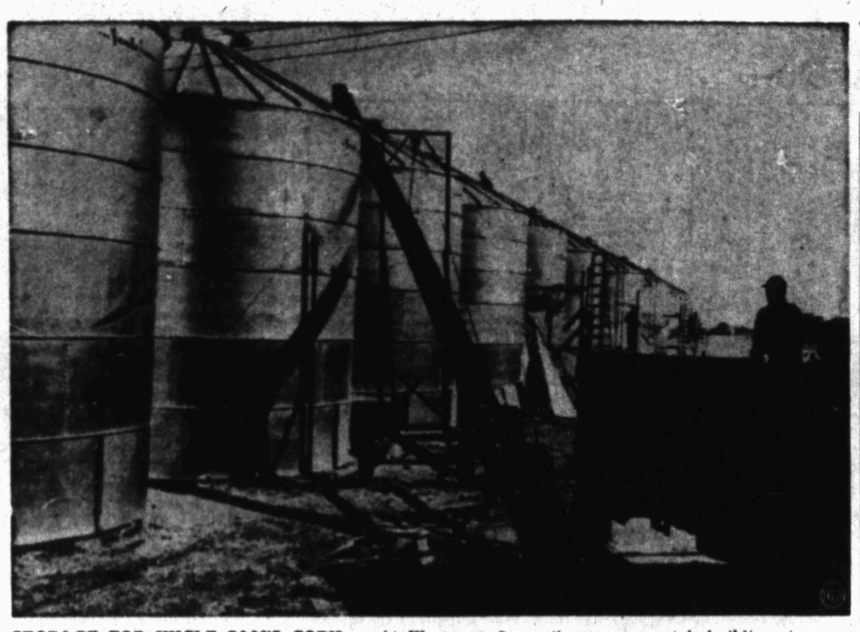

The resolution further requests all countries to honor international agreements and cooperate fully with U.N. It proposes that the big five powers "broaden progressively their cooperation" and refrain from excessive use of the security council veto.

Co-Operation Efforts Recalled

Austin cited United States efforts to achieve closer postwar cooperation with the Russians and said these hopes were futile. He assailed the Vishinsky peace pact offer as pointing "toward domination of world affairs by the major powers." Austin continued:

"This is an old objective of Russian policy, but it shall not become an objective of United States policy.

"We opose this Soviet proposal because we believe the people of the world want more peace, not more pledges. We regard treaties as instruments of inviolable law and not as instruments of propaganda. We are opposed to treaties that render lip-service to important principles but then provide easy means of escape and evasion."

STORAGE FOR UNCLE SAM'S CORN — At Winterset, Iowa, the government is building storage bins to receive about 740,000 bushels of corn acquired by the Commodity Credit Corporation. Eighty cylinderical steel bins, like those above, hold 3380 bushels each, 15 wooden bins will hold 60,000 bushels, and six Quonset-type buildings will hold another 60,000. As each storage unit is completed, it is filled with corn from the 1948 crop, freeing farmers' own bins for this year's big crop.

Acheson Pledges Aid To Nations

ed Allied policy has been "breeding current German imperialism against France" and "threatens to wreck Europe." He accused the United States and Britain of "profiting from France's degenerating regime" to implement their German policy, and called for a strong government in Paris.)

Meets German Officials

Before his news conference, Acheson met German and Berlin officials and lunched with the U. S. commander, Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor.

He told reporters that Britain and France would "respond with continued determination" to the "effort and resolution on the part of the Germans."

Acheson, in outlining the conditions of American aid, accused Russia of leading satellite moves to interfere with freedom "wherever possible" and added:

"Our help will be effective only in those cases where a nation has resources, the mind and spirit to solve its own problems but finds these problems a little too great to solve alone.

"If these conditions are not present American aid or the aid of any other nation will be to no avail."

At this point he turned to the situation in China and admitted he had become "increasingly irritated" in recent months with remarks about the failure of U. S. policy there.

"The fact is, there was no failure of U. S. policy but purely the failure of Chinese policy in China."

Dissenting Opinion Given

ICC Chairman Charles Mahaffie wrote a dissenting opinion opposing the fare increase. He was joined by Commissioners Walter M. Splawn, William E. Lee and Clyde B. Aitchison.

The commission stipulated that the roads must give "not less" than five days notice to the public and the commission before the increases go into effect.

The increases will raise eastern railway fares to 44 per cent above the level of June 30, 1946. The last boost granted the eastern roads was a 17 per cent hike awarded in July, 1948.

Mahaffie held that a traffic drop by reason of the boosted fares will "automatically increase the cost" of operating expenses and "thereby provide a basis for further demands for increases in charges."

Hike Claimed Necessary

The ICC majority declared, however, that the boost is necessary to enable the railroads to meet higher operating expenses caused by increased wages and a decline in revenues.

ICC added that the $37,800,000 revenue increase sought through higher fares "will not be an unreasonable contribution" to the needs of eastern roads.

The main dispute, the ICC pointed out, is whether the higher fares will produce additional revenue expected or, as Mahaffie contended, actually result in a decreased volume of traffic with a possible lower intake of money.

Mahaffie recalled that the railroads in the South and the West have increased passenger fares only about 10 per cent since 1946 while the eastern lines before this increase had raised theirs about "28 per cent." He added:

"It is significant, therefore, that the southern and western carriers, despite the smaller percentage increase reflected in their present fares and their materially lower passenger-mile revenue than in the east, are not seeking increases . . ."

PLANE LANDS SAFELY

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 14. (AP)—A crippled B-29 Super-fortress made an emergency landing at the Salt Lake City municipal airport tonight with one of its four engines in flames. Ten of the 13 crew members had parachuted from the big ship near Grantsville, Utah, 30 miles west of here near the south end of Great Salt lake. All were located, without serious injury, within three hours after their leaps.

Matador Woman, Lost Overnight, Is Found Safe

MATADOR, Nov. 14. (Special)—Mrs. F. H. Smelser, 74, longtime resident of the Matador area, today "appeared none the worse for wear" after having been the object of an all-inght search in a remote pasture and farm area north of here Saturday night.

Approximately 100 men joined in the search, and two airplanes from nearby towns also were pressed into use.

Mrs. Smelser was found about 8 a. m. Sunday near a small creek about four miles north of her home. Although she was wearing a light coat she apparently felt no ill effects from exposure.

She was located by Gus Bird, Malcolm Jameson, and Albert Watson.

Relatives said Mrs. Smelser had left her home, located about 15 miles north of Matador, late Saturday afternoon for a walk. When she failed to return by dusk, her husband began searching for her. Later several neighbors joined in the search, and when they were unable to locate the elderly woman, the Motley county sheriff's department was called upon for aid.

Men from Matador and surrounding area joined in the search, and combed pastures and farm land with flashlights the remainder of the night.

She has lived here since 1918.

Revised Edition Of Book Okayed

By BO BYERS
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Nov. 14.—The State Board of Education today adopted a revised edition of the civics textbook recently banned by the Houston school board as objectionable. It ordered further revision of this and three other civics texts.

The vote was 6-to-2 for adoption, but only one of the opposing votes was aimed directly at the book. The other negative vote was cast by a member who opposed adoption of any texts by the present school board.

The revised 1949 edition of "American Government," by Dr. Frank Magruder, does not contain the paragraph which displeased the Houston school board.

Paragraph Is Reworded

That paragraph, describing certain United States government trends as socialistics and communistic, has been re-worded in the new edition.

The question of whether any textbook contracts should be let by the present board had provoked strong disagreement earlier.

R. B. Cousins, jr., of Austin argued that three and a half million dollars could be saved by not adopting any books this year. Wallace Hughston of McKinney sided with Cousins, expressing doubt that the board had authority to let contracts.

He said the matter should be left to the newly elected school board which will take office Nov. 23 under terms of the Gilmer-Aikin law. John Ben Sheppard of Gladewater voted with Cousins and Hughston.

Cousins' motion to make no new contracts at this time was defeated 6-3.

Hughston voted "no" on all books, Cousins refrained from voting, and the other members voted "yes" until the controversial civics text was reached.

Shepperd joined Hughston in voting against the text which the Houston school board voted to ban Oct. 25. Shepperd also voted against the other three civics books on the multiple list.

Suspect Held After Drug Store At Brownfield Is Burglarized

BROWNFIELD, Nov. 14. (Spl.). A man identified as George Gonzales, 23, was being held here today on charges of burglary of the Palace Drug store at about 4:30 a.m. Sunday.

Gonzales was taken by city patrolmen Aaron Zeigler and L. H. Terral as he left the store building with a suitcase, which was filled with merchandise from the store.

A total of $22.75 in cash was taken from three cash registers in the store, as well as several fountain pens, some expensive sunshades, nine packages of cigarets, three billfolds, and three cigarette lighters.

The burglar gained entrance to the store by breaking the glass on a side door, making it possible to open the door. He left by the same door and was apprehended before he got across the street.

Date Announced For Bond Vote

The expected date of Tuesday, Dec. 13 was set this morning for an election on a proposal to issue $1,075,000 in city bonds for expansions of the sewage disposal plant and to buy rights-of-way for the city highway dispersal system.

The ordinance calling the election was approved as an emergency at a special meeting of the city commission by unanimous vote of those attended. They were Mayor W. H. Rodgers and Commissioners W. B. Price, E. K. Hufstedler and Clarence Whiteside. Commissioner John Spikes was out of the city.

The proposed issue will include $550,000 for enlarging the sewage disposal plant and for new trunk mains and $525,000 for the dispersal system.

City Manager Steve Matthews said the health of the community will be endangered unless steps are taken immediately to enlarge the present disposal plant, which was designed for the needs of a city not exceeding 50,000 population. Further extensions of the dispersal system must remain at a standstill until more money is available for rights-of-way, he added.

The Central Fire station, Tenth street and Avenue J, was designated as the polling place. R. Bush Smith was appointed presiding judge and Mrs. F. M. Maddox, Louis Murfee, jr., George W. Spinning and Glen Hess clerks.

Claims Certificate Limited

Before Haliburton took the stand, Robert E. Bell, federal aviation safety agent, asserted that Eric Rios Bridoux, the Bolivian pilot, held only a "limited" certificate after failing in the transport pilot's examination.

Final statement in the hearing was made on behalf of Bolivia by Maj. German Pol, Bolivian air attache, who extended his nation's condolences to the families of those who died in the disaster.

Bridoux, Bolivia's civil air director, is the sole survivor of the tragic collision at Washington National airport in which 55 persons died when his fighter plane cut an Eastern airliner in two.

Youth In Seminole Hospital After Serious Gunshot Wound

SEMINOLE, Nov. 14. (Special)—Nine-year-old Leon Wilson, whose spinal column was cut, perhaps completely severed, the middle of last week by a bullet, seemed in satisfactory condition this afternoon in Gaines clinic-hospital, his physician said.

Permanent paralysis, however, resulted from the .22 calibre bullet, from the lower chest downward.

A younger playmate picked up the rifle, which belonged to the victim's father, R. S. Wilson, an employe of the Amerada camp here. A shell had been left in the shell chamber by someone who had used the gun and returned it to his owner, officials here explained. The trigger was pulled.

The bullet entered the right arm and plowed through the right chest, through the spinal cord, and lodged in the left chest.

DENVER, Nov. 14 (AP) — An elderly Texan was held in the stabbing today of a fellow bus passenger.

Albert Butler, 67, Childress, Tex., was arrested after Mrs. Lourilla Robinson, 43, Watunga, Okla., identified him as her assailant.

She said Butler had pressed his attentions on her. They were on a Denver-bound Trailways bus. She said the Texan sat behind her and displayed a knife which he stabbed into her right arm and chest as the bus neared the terminal here.

The bus driver, Chester Wilcox of Pueblo, and Pvt. Leonard Jones of Fort Warren Air base, Cheyenne, overpowered Butler.

Coffee Prices

over the last six weeks.

Thus, the maximum advances at the retail level up to this point have merely kept stride with the rise in the green beans.

Williamson explained that the increase in the price of coffee at retail had to be somewhat greater than the rise

PRICES STABLE HERE NOW

Coffee prices in Lubbock have remained more or less stable the past few days compared to the past three weeks which saw a rapid rise such as that in other sections of the nation. Most prices for standard brands ranged from 73 cents to 78 and 79 cents, depending upon quality and grind, it was indicated Monday.

in green coffee beans since 16 percent of the weight is lost in the roasting process.

Meantime, although housewives throughout the nation have sought to stock up on coffee, a survey today indicated that the peak of the hoarding rush has apparently abated.

The A&P food chain reported that its managers noted no exceptional buying rush today, and said that coffee buying in many of its retail outlest was "quite normal."

A&P store supervisors have been industructed to give purchasers as much coffee as they want provided that the amount is not out of line with previous buying orders.

130 Million Pounds Hoarded

The extent of nationwide hoarding by housewives was estimated today by Williamson at 130,000,000 pounds.

George Gordon Paton & Company, leading coffee economists, predicted that the sharp rise in prices at which coffee is being sold to the consumer will bring about a reduction in world coffee consumption in 1950.

At the same time, it debunked talk of a world coffee shortage at any time in the near future.

The firm said that the world can count on 17,281,783 bags of Brazil and 15,000,000 bags of other types of coffee for the 1949-1950 season, or a total of 32,281,783 bags.

Requirements of Europe for 1949-1950 were estimated at 8,000,000 bags, those of the United States at 21,000,000 bags, and other countries at 3,500,000 bags, for an indicated total demand of 32,500,000 bags.

This estimate has made no allowance for any decline certain to develop because of devaluation or higher prices, the firm pointed out.

With the world demand at 32,500,000 bags, and an exportable supply of 32,281,783 bags "no serious shortage is indicated," according to the economists.

Red Successes Menace American Defense Arc In Western Pacific

By RUSSELL BRINES
Associated Press Staff Writer

TOKYO, Nov. 14.—The American defense arc in the Western Pacific is in danger of shrinking into isolated outposts.

This impression is almost inevitable after visiting two of the main points on the thin curve of American air bases drawn around turbulent Asia's rim.

The island of Okinawa and Clark field in the Philippines are the principal American positions facing South China and Southeast Asia.

Formosa's Fall Seen

The island of Formosa lies almost midway between these two bases. It is now held by the Chinese Nationalists, but among American officers nearby there is little doubt that, if the present trend continues, Formosa will eventually fall to the Chinese Communists. It is within fighter plane range of both Okinawa and the Philippines.

In unfriendly hands, Formosa could breach the American line. The Japanese used air bases there to knock America airpower out of the Philippines in December, 1941.

Col. J. R. Carpenter, chief of staff of the Philippines air command at Clark field, put the general opinion rather mildly.

"Our position," he told visiting correspondents, "would not be untenable, but it would be more dangerous if Formosa, in the center of our defense arc, should fall under Communist control."

Clark field, which costs about $1,500,000 a month to maintain, also confronts another threat. It is situated in the center of the area where the Communist-led Hukbalahap guerillas range.

Armed with hand guns and mortars, these dissident Filipinos operate up to the front gates of the American base. The neat Air Force post periodically hears gunfire just outside. It is unsafe to leave the field at night, and next to impossible to drive the 60 miles to Manila in the darkness, due to the danger of "Huk" ambushes.

One rickety railway and two bumpy highways connect Clark field with the sea. The Huks, led by avowed Communists, could conceivably be enticed into cutting Clark field off from supplies in time of conflict.

Okinawa, perhaps the more important of the two bases, is not now troubled by political problems.

Maj. Gen. J. R. Sheetz, military governor, says there is no known Communist movement among the 560,000 Okinawans.

The standard elements for Communist encroachment are there, however. The docility and political immaturity of the Okinawans could make them easy prey for Red agents. This might be particularly true if the Americans fail to solve the island's complex economic problems. Okinawan living standards are lower now than before the war.

Both Okinawa and Clark field are in condition now to handle the heaviest bombers in use. Bombers are not stationed at either place, however. It is considered unnecessary to keep them in such advanced positions before an actual emergency. Each base does have a group of fast jet fighter planes.

Former Air Force Man Loses Baby-Sitting Trip To Hawaii

BROCKTON, Mass. Nov. 14. (AP) A former Airi Force sergeant has lost a job as baby-sitter for Little Eric Von Lick on a plane flight to Honolulu.

Everett Leland, 30, of Stoneham, was chosen from 150 applicants for the baby-sitting job, but the plans were upset yesterday.

Mrs. Henry F. Lick, telephoned from Honolulu that her husband, a Navy chief petty officer, had obtained a 30-day leave and would return for his 18-months old son next month.

The baby's grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude Le Febver, offered to pay the fare of anyone to escort Eric on the trip. She said she "planned to surprise" the parents by sending Eric to them, but Mrs. Lick learned of the plan from stories in Honolulu newspapers.

Mrs. Le Febver chose Leland as the baby-sitter after he told her he had hopes to eventually reaching Australia where his wife and two children reside. Mrs. Le Febver was unable to make the trip.

Lick and his wife were vacationing in Hawaii when he was assigned to duty there. They have been seeking some way to have ther son join them.

Texas Tech Students To Make Visit Of Denver City Plant

A group of eight or 10 chemical engineering students of Texas Technological college will make an inspection tour of the Frontier chemical company plant at Denver City Thursday, O. A. St. Clair, acting dean of engineering, announced Monday.

The tour is another phase of the chemical engineering department's aim of bringing students close to the industrial world, St. Clair said.

Fourteen members of a senior industrial engineering class went to Fort Worth last week for a tour of the Trinity-Portland cement plant there, the dean added.

Mississippi Court Rules Man White In Unusual Case

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 14. (AP)—The Mississippi Supreme court ruled today that Davis Knight, 32, is a white man, thus reversing a Jones county court decision which had ruled Knight part negro.

The Jones county court had sentenced Knight to five years in the state penitentiary for marrying a white woman after Knight's ancestry had been traced back to Rachel Night, his great-grandmother, who was alleged by the prosecution to be "part negro."

The Supreme Court said the testimony did not substantiate the prosecution claim that Knight was of "African descent."

The defense contended that Rachel Knight was a Cherokee Indian and had no negro blood.

Formed Own State

Knight was said to be the great-grandson of Capt. Newt Knight, famous Jones countian who refused to secede from the union during the Civil War, formed the "Free State of Jones," and fought several skirmishes against Confederate forces. Captain Knight was the first and only president of the Free State of Jones.

Witnesses testified during the lower court trial that Jeff Knight, Davis Knight's grandfather, was "regarded as a colored man" by residents of the Soso community near Laurel.

The miscegenation trial, first in Mississippi history, drew widespread attention.

During the lower court trial it was brought out that Davis Knight was "inducted into the Navy at Bay Springs, Miss., in 1943 as a white man, left for training with a white group, served for three years as a white man and was discharged from the Navy in 1946 as a white man."

Records were introduced to show that Davis Knight was married to Junie Lee Spradley, white, then 18, in April of 1946 by Mayor J. M. Powell of Ellisville.

Since his conviction in the lower court, Knight has been held in the Jones county jail. He was unable to raise $2,500 bond.

The State Supreme court ordered Knight freed.

Reminder Issued On VA Payments

A reminder was issued Monday by James C. Bryant, county veterans service officer, that all veterans who have 50 per cent or more service-connected disability should notify the Veterans administration immediately of the type and number of dependents they have.

"Those who do not submit this information by Dec. 1 will receive payment for dependents as of the date proof is received," Bryant explained. "Those who submit the information before Dec. 1 will receive payment as of then and will have until May 1 to get their proof in."

Payments Are Listed

Extra compensation for dependents for a man with a wife is $10.50 a month; for wife and one child, $17.50; for wife and two children, $22.75; for wife and three or more children, $28; for a man without wife but with one child, $7; two children, $12.25; three or more children, $17.50; for one dependent parent, $8.75; for two dependent parents, $17.50. Peacetime service-disabled men receive 80 per cent of the above amounts, according to public law 339.

Bryant announced that those persons who need help in establishing proof of dependencies are invited to call upon his office for aid.

Dependency allowances to disabled veterans were formerly limited to men drawing 60 percent or more disability compensation. The law was recently liberalized to include 50 per cent disabled veterans.

In Bosque county, Fanning's bid on the road project was $166,651. The project calls for work on Farm Roads 56 and 215, including 2.69 miles of Bosque river bridge and approaches from Valley Mills to one mile north and from Clifton to 1.7 miles east.

State Department Denies U.S. Is Acquiring Air Bases In Spain

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—The State department today announced as "absolutely without foundation" Moscow charges that the United States is acquiring air bases in Spain.

The Moscow Communist party newspaper Pravda declared the United States has built or is preparing 99 air bases in Spain. It quoted a Spanish Communist paper, Mundo Obero.

Lincoln White, State department press officer, said the charge is "so old it is beginning to grow whiskers." He added:

"It is completely without foundation and typical of the unfounded propaganda which the Russians have been putting out about United States relations with Spain.

The age of a haddock can be told by the growth rings on its scales.

Bells To Toll Time Again At College

The bells of Texas Tech began ringing again Monday.

An amplified, bell which tolls the time every hour on the hour has been put back into operation by the Tech student council after a 10-month silence. The chimes were donated the college by the class of 1941 and had been quiet since last Christmas.

Once again, however, the Westminister peel is heard hourly, followed by the toll of the time from 6 a.m. until midnight, Curtis Sterling, president of the council, said. Members of the Tech radio club have volunteered to service and maintain the system, located in the administration building's west tower.

Christmas carols will again be played over the loud speaker this year as in the past, Sterling said.

Date Changed For Submitting Grade Reports At Texas Tech

Ever change the middle of something without changing the entire "something"?

Officials at Texas Tech have done just that but some of the students aren't too pleased about it.

Because of a discrepancy in the college catalogue, which listed mid-semester as Dec. 3, the time for submittance of mid-semester grade reports has been moved to its correct date of Saturday, Dr. E. N. Jones, vice-president announced Monday.

The grade reports will allow officials of the college to warn students who are not passing their work that they must "get busy" in order to pass this semester's work, Dr. Jones said.

An extension of the Saturday deadline will be allowed until 5 p.m. Tuesday for the reports, he said, since many teachers may have planned tests before time for the reports.

Bright Spots Note Business Decline

Re-Emphasis On Home Life Is Jolt To Tavernkeepers

By GERALD B. HEALEY
INS Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Nov. 14—Some wives will like this while others won't, but anyway 500 tavern owners are scheming today in Chicago how to lure them and their husbands away from the fireside and home-mixed drinks back to the night clubs and bright spots.

The reason? In 1940, almost half of all the liquor sold in the United States was sold by taverns. Last year tavern sales were down to 32 per cent of the total, and this year the figure is expected to be lower.

Puerto Rico Plan Studied

The tavernkeepers, members of the Associated Tavern Owners of America, might take a tip from Puerto Rico and establish a giant promotion. The land of rum and coca cola is spending $3 million a year to tell the people how the R(h)umba can be done much better when there is rum around.

Lester A. Rodens, spokesman for the Puerto Rican group, said one way tavernkeepers can avoid getting the run around from customers and get the rum around is to create atmosphere.

You know. Palm trees, sand, deck chairs. Music of the south seas. Waitresses in grass skirts. And rum.

Tavern Popularity Declines

Rodens tore himself away from the rum long enough to trace the downward trend in tavern popularity.

Most important, he said, was the transition in American life that followed the war. As the country returned to so-called normalcy, life began centering around the home.

Then came television and amateur bartenders accelerated home experimenting. Package liquor sales zoomed upwards. Tavern owners wept as ice clinked in millions of kitchen cocktail shakers.

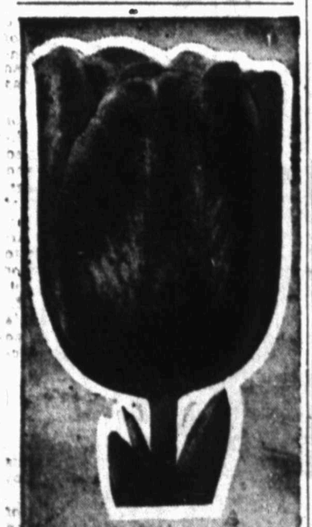

The tavernkeepers must combat this or a lot of them will go out of business. A lot have gone out of business. They've got television. Maybe they should fix their bars like living rooms. Possibly that's bad psychology, though, because that would remind the night-outers that their living rooms look like bars.

It's the tavernmen's problem and they'll be trying to work it out the next three days.

Larry Archambeault, defenseman for the Louisville Blades of the U. S. Hockey League, was a four-letter athlete at Massena, N. Y. high school.

Plainview To Be Host For Session

A five-district meeting of the Texas Water and Sewer Works association, the first meeting of that scope ever held in this area, will be conducted today in Plainview City auditorium.

City officials, water works representatives, health workers, supply and equipment representatives, sewer workers personnel and others interested will attend, with representatives of municipalities expected to make up most of the crowd. A group of Lubbock people will attend.

A. Haneman of Lubbock, district sanitary engineer of the State Health department, who will serve as program coordinator for the meeting, said arrangements have been made for 300 persons at a noon luncheon and attendance at sessions probably will be higher.

Mahon To Speak

Caprock, Canadian, Green Belt, Panhandle and Permian Basin associations are to participate in the joint session. Registration will open at 9 a. m., followed by the first session at 10:30, luncheon at 12, and the final session from 1:30 to 5 p. m.

Two demonstrations by Lubbock city representatives will be among those presented by various cities this afternoon.

Miss Oma Myree Johnson, technician of the City-County Department of Public Health, will present a demonstration on water bacteriological analysis technique, with L. D. Fletcher, sanitarian from the department, giving the explanation.

In addition to those appearing on the program, other city representatives will attend. R. L. Oldham, city director of public works, will attend the latter part of the program. Steve Matthews, city manager, may attend.

Former Air Force Base To Be Used

Improved Hospital Program Is Sought

By DAVE CHEAVENS
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Nov. 14. — Two strong agencies joined forces today to put into effect a program to improve state hospitals and special schools.

The State Hospital board marked the newly-created legislative council in on the plan to give the legislature a definite program for the eleemosynary institutions when it meets in January. The program is still in the study stage.

The two agencies will hold a joint meeting to consider recommendations the board will make, based on current surveys of the institutions. The legislative council voted to make the eleemosynary system's needs its No. 1 project.

Other Action Taken

The hospital board also took these actions at today's meeting:

Decied to utilize former Army air field facilities at Vernon to care for senile patients and thus relieve over-crowding to the extent of about 420 persons in mental hospitals.

Named M. E. Dumas of Fort Worth as superintendent of the orphans home at Corsicana to succeed Moyne Kelly, now executive director of the board. Dumas is a graduate of the Corsicana home.

Enlisted M. Robert Barnett of New York, director of the American Foundation for The Blind, for a survey of state facilities for the blind, and J. Thomas McIntire of Phoenix, superintendent of the Arizona children's colony, for a survey of special schools.

Heard various statement to the effect that the problem of caring for tuberculosis victims is one of the most serious faced by the board.

Learned that former Army facilities at McCloskey hospital at Temple will not be available for the board's use. That information led to adoption of the Vernon plan, which will be operated as an arm of the mental hospital at Wichita Falls.

The board also voted to buy two hangars now on the ground at what once was Victory Air Field at Vernon for use in connection fith the overflow hospital for $17,000. Buildings at the Vernon field were described as semi-fireproof and semi-permanent and apparently the best available to handle the overflow of senile patients from other state hospitals.

Chairman Claud Gilmer told the hospital board that its problems would become those of the legislative council when the special session begins.

First Performance Of Opera Slated In City Tonight

The curtain will go up tonight at 8 p.m. in the Lubbock High school auditorium on the operatic double-bill "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci."

Presented by the Texas Tech artists course, the production will remain here for a two-night stand with the final performance Wednesday night. Townspeople may see the second performance only at an admission charge of $1.80, according to R. A. Mills, head of the artists course.

A traveling troupe of 125 persons, including a company of 75 players, an orchestra of 30 and a mixed chorus of 20 will be included in the two operas, produced by Charles L. Wagner.

The story of simple Italian peasants, both operas were written nearly 60 years ago and have seen many stage productions since that time. Both represent the only successful works by their respective authors, although the two works have been termed immediate hits.

Texas Tech students holding even numbered activity fee receipts will be admitted to tonight's performance, according to Mills, and those with odd-numbered receipts tomorrow night.

Estate Seeks To Regain Land

Heirs of the late J. J. Dillard seek to regain from public use a narrow strip of the old Ave. A right-of-way adjoining the present highway at Thirty-first street, it was revealed when their representatives appeared before a regular meeting of the county commissioners court Monday afternoon.

A petition signed by Ada Dillard, Weldon B. Dillard, Bryan B. Dillard, Tillman Dillard and Overton C. Dillard was presented to the court by Robert A. Sowder, their attorney.

Property Location Given

The petition requests release from public use of a piece of property described as part of section 7, block B, beginning 1,320 feet north of the southeast corner of that section thence west 44.5 feet, thence north 575.4 feet to the right-of-way of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains Railway company right-of-way, southeasterly along the south line of that right-of-way 52.75 feet to the east section line, thence down that section line 558.58 feet to the beginning.

The court took no action on the request.

Other business was routine. The court set aside out of the permanent judgment fund a sufficient amount to pay first interest coupons Oct. 10, 1950.

Bills were approved, including one for $488.90 for machinery parts and repairs, paid to West Texas Equipment company out of road and bridge fund No. 2. The court also approved expenses of $11.05 for D. W. Robertson and $31.25 for C. E. Lynn, justices of peace, to be paid for out of fees they collected.

The bond of George B. Jones as constable was approved, and the court also approved bond of A. A. Gartman and William Lowrimore, jr., as weighers.

War Dead List Approved

Mrs. J. Spruce White, representing the Disabled American Veterans organization, appeared and received approval on 255 names of World War I and II dead for inclusion on a bronze plaque to be erected on the first floor of the new $1,250,000 courthouse building.

The court adjourned at noon to participate in a joint luncheon

BOOK RANKS TOPS IN CONTEST

1949 Westerner Yearbook Wins Fourth All-American Honors

By ROGER SOUTHALL
Avalanche Staff Writer

The highest rating—that of All American—that can be given to a high school yearbook has been given to the 1949 Westerner, yearbook of Lubbock Senior High school, according to information received recently by Mrs. Dick Cozby, idrector of publications at the high school.

The Westerner now has received the All-American rating for four consecutive years. The rating is given by the National Scholastic Press association, with headquarters on the campus of the University of Minnesota. Ratings are made each year after current copies of yearbooks are submitted to staff members of the National Scholastic Press association for evaluation and criticism.

The 1949 Westerner was submitted for judging under the classification of lithographed yearbooks in high schools with an enrollment of between 1,000 and 1,399.

Only four yearbooks in this classification received All-American ratings. High schools throughout the United States were competing in this particular division. Names of the three other schools were not known here Monday.

In the judging scorebook which was returned to Mrs. Crozby and members of the 1949 Westerner, the yearbook was commended for its unusually good art work, and for the general harmony of all art work throuhgout the book even though it was done by several different students.

The book also was praised for having excellent division pages, end sheets, coverage of organizations and activities, and coverage

UN Debate Shows Improbability Of Early Cold War Compromise

BY J. M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Debate at Lake Success over peace pacts and atomic control emphasizes the improbability of any early compromise in the cold war.

Russia proposed a big power peace pact, and all that's needed is for Russia to abide by it.

Vishinsky says Russia has not refused to permit inspection of her atomic industry—that the world should trust her more, send inspectors to a list of plants supplied by her, and only periodically, not on a full-time basis. What that seems to amount to is that Russia wants to conduct the tours, just as she guards the itineraries of the few foreign visitors she admits for any purpose. The United States says that is hardly a guaranty against illegal atomic operations.

The peace pact discussions are primarily propaganda maneuvers.

Behind the atomic discussions lies the urgency of a desperate need. But there is also a feeling on the Russian side that the western powers wish to use it as an economic handcuff, and on the Allied side that a pact wouldn't be worth anything anyway.

All through the long discussions there have been indications that, despite all the "warmongering" propaganda, the Kremlin may not really be afraid the United States is going to launch a war. Russia's real fear of international atomic control is that it would be used as another weapon in the cold war, to strangle her atomic development while the rest of the world went ahead, just as trade embargoes now hamper her industrial development.

Three-Year-Old British Girl Is Fitted With False Teeth

LONDON, Nov. 14 — (AP) — A three-year-old girl has been fitted with a set of false teeth under Britain's national health plan.

The child is Anne Smith of Birtley.

"Anne's own teeth caused her much ill-health," said her mother. "Doctors said they had to be taken out."

Anne will have to wear false teeth for seven years.

Then, said her dentists, she will have her own second set.

Navy Divers Succeed In Salvaging Crashed Bomber

FORT WORTH, Nov. 14 (U.P.)—Navy divers from Indian Head, Md., today wrote "finis" to the salvage mission conducted on a B-36 which dived into Lake Worth here Sept. 15, killing five members of its crew.

During 155 dives since the group came here Oct. 14, the divers had rubber suits ripped to pieces as they groped through mud, using underwater detector devices.

Some of the parts of the giant bomber had rammed as much as 16 feet into the lake bottom, they reported.

Peru Becomes 30th Nation To Revalue Money Since Sept. 18

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 14—(AP)—Peru today became the 30th nation to revalue its currency since Britain slashed the pound sterling from $4.03 to $2.80 September 18.

A decree published this morning said the government had abolished the official rate of 6.50 sols to the dollar (making the sol worth about 15 cents) and thus ended the system of two exchange rates—official and free market.

The free market rate of the sol now is about 5 cents.

Veteran Producer Signed To New Contract; Milton Berle To Star With Bugs Bunny

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
INS Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—Spencer Tracy doesn't have a lot of cronies, but he keeps his friends for years. One of his best friends is Lawrence Weingarten, who produced Spence's laugh riot, "Adam's Rib."

"Larry, who I met 30 years ago when he was Jackie Coogan's press agent, has just signed a long-term contract as an executive assistant to Louis B. Mayer and Dore Schary. He will also produce one picture a year.

His first picture under the new contract will be Sinclair Lewis' "The Willow Tree," and — you guessed it—Spence will be his star. You can rave all you please about our bumper crop of sensational new producers, but we also need men of experience, and Larry has that—21 years at MGM.

Berle And Bunny Together

When Milton Berle comes back to Hollywood next summer his co-starring partner will be Bugs Bunny, the cartoon rabbit. Bugs isn't scared that Milton will steal any gags from him—or is he?

Jerry Wald has written an original called "Slapstick" for Berle, and it is about a silent day screen comic who winds up working in a cartoon studio after his starring days are over. Warners own Bugs Bunny, so he won't have too much competition.

I hear from preview audiences that Milton's movie, "Always Leave Them Laughing," is just what his mother said—a very funny comedy.

Has New Role

Mae Clarke, the first girl ever slapped in the face with a grapefruit by James Cagney, is on the MGM lot after 11 years with a good role in "Duchess Of Idaho."

What an actress Mae was in the old silent days! If they had had Oscars when Mae was a top dramatic actress, she would have won a collection of them.

I called Elsa Lancaster to ask her if Charles Laughton had cut short his tour. She said she hadn't heard if he had, but she knows he wants to come home Christmas and that he is opposed to giving his recitation in too big a place, even though he has met with such a gratifying reception.

Both Frances and Sam Goldwyn are bursting their buttons with pride over Sam Goldwyn, junior—I don't dare call him Sammy any more! I'm told his script on "Death On A Side Street" is the finest one turned in to William Goetz in many a day. This is the picture that stars James Mason, Marta Toren, and Dan Duryea.

Marjorie Main just had to break down and leave Palm Springs when her old studio asked her to play the comedy lead in Judy Garland's picture, "Summer Stock." Marjorie's role is Esme, Judy's cook. Can't you just see her?

The last time she was at MGM was when she was teamed with the late Wally Beery in "Black Jack." Then Marjorie decided she would only make one or two pictures a year. But a gal can change her mind, can't she?

Bill Eythe, who I told you some time ago had left "Lend An Ear," the show which he co-owned and co-produced, heads for Hollywood immediately. He has been paged by Columbia for "Customs Agent."

Columnist's Attacks Against Various Characters Ignored

By BOB CONSIDINE
INS Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Every time I write a piece about a bum who deserves only the back of our collective hand, suggesting this or that penalty, it arouses widespread disinterest among the authorities.

Some time back it was proposed here that Howard Unruh, the purty monster who killed 13 people in a Trenton street, including a 2-year-old baby and a 6-year-old kid in a barber's chair, should be exterminated.

It said here that, for Heaven's sake, let's not open the door and let in the psychiatrists and the professional bleeders, and the people who believe—perhaps sincerely—that ex-servicemen should be immune to the law. Kill the monster like you'd kill a mad dog, we said.

So two or three psychiatrists said Unruh was daffy, though the D. A. had a stenographic report of Unruh's sane and sadistic remarks immediately after the killing. Unruh was packed off to a free boarding house. The people of New Jersey will be forced to support him—in more comfort than most of them get by living decent working lives—either for the rest of his life or until a new crop of bleeders spring him as just a big, misunderstood boy; as they're now trying to spring Chicago's Nathan Leopold, cold-blooded murderer of Bobby Franks.

Tito Also Lashed

Then we wrote a piece about this bum Tito, and compiled the fellow's horrible list of crimes against humanity, his known acts of aggression against the U. S. (including the shooting down of planes and murder of un-armed U. S. airmen) and the rest of his infamous record.

The piece was written at a time when someone had suggested building Tito a steel refinery and lending him some much-needed U. S. dough, because he had differed slightly with Moscow on the best means of overthrowing what this country has worked 173 years to perfect.

Almost immediately after that, the Tito loan went through. Since then there has been another loan and the tacit promise that if Russia, in Hungary's cloak, starts to kick him around we'll go to his defense—presumably in order to save our investment in Italy. We probably will, too.

Now let's line up a bum in the other alley. This one is Wladyslaw Gomulka, the Polish Communist leader who is in the doghouse over there for committing certain ideological sins. Poland's Communist hatchet man, a crud named Edward Ochar, in setting up Gomulka for immortality, or potential support, accused him of being a "nationalist, impertinent enough to believe he could revise Marxist-Leninist doctrine and capable enough to lure some activists from the correct Communist party line."

But before we throw our hats in the air over Gomulka let's throw our hates. Here we can use the help of Stainislaw Mikolajczyk, the Polish Democratic leader who tried to carry out the Yalta beliefs that Poland could be ruled by both Communists and respecters of human rights.

Mikolajczyk is among the latter. He had to flee for his life. His sorely neglected book, "The Rape of Poland" still stands as the finest outline of Communist tactics I've ever read.

Gomulka is nuts, among other things. Stalin made this madman a monarch of millions of tragic humans in the disputed western area of post-war Poland. He was a plumber in the oil fields around Lwow, joined the party and became the racket's agent in the union of chemical workers. An older Polish regime put him away for plotting the overthrow of the government. In 1939 when the Red army entered Poland, as an ally of Hitler, he moved in with the USSR.

This leader of the "people's democracy" in post-war Poland—a government brought about by the condescension of Churchill and Roosevelt—was so beloved that he travelled in nine-car motor entourages, for protection.

He headed the spurious Polish workers' party, which became the single party of Poland in cynical contempt for the idealistic hopes of the west at Yalta. Gomulka ordered the destruction of the last free newspaper in Poland, the Gazeta Ludowa, organ of the Polish peasant party.

He destroyed the peasant party by killing hundreds of its members jailing more than 100,000 member-voters at the time of the "free and unfettered elections." He pulled a gun on Mikolajczyk, then deputy premier, for trying to carry out the promises of Yalta, and the devil knows what else.

But if he could set up a new dictatorship over there tomorrow, we'd probably be the first to offer to be his co-signer.

Quirino Claims Election Victory

MANILA, Nov. 14 (INS)—President Elpidio Quirino claimed a belated victory tonight in last Tuesday's Philippine elections and he announced at the same time that he will not run again for the office in 1953.

The chief executive of the young island republic said that the still incomplete tabulation of the election commission gives him a plurality of 311,880 votes over former collaborationist Jose Laurel, standard bearer of the Nacionalista party.

Laurel Refuses To Concede

Quirino's statement that the tally of more than half of the 4,000,000 votes cast in the election show him "definitely" re-elected was not immediately accepted by Laurel.

The Nacionalista candidate, who had attacked Quirino's close adherence to the American line in foreign affairs, said he will compare the official tabulation and that of his own party officials before he concedes. He added bitterly:

"We could have won in spite of the normal frauds but this election was a wholesale fraud."

Quirino declared also in his news conference that casualty figures in the election had been greatly exaggerated by the Philippine press. He declared that only six persons, most of them members of his own liberal party, had been killed on election day.

The president, who will celebrate his 57th birthday Wednesday when the tabulation is expected to be finally completed, specifically denied that 78 Filipino Mohammedans had been "massacred" when they tried to vote for Laurel.

IN CASE OF WAR:

Safeguards Set Up

MOST Americans naturally have assumed that basic national security planning includes provisions for a swift transfer of the seat of government from Washington if that city should be knocked out suddenly.

The recent assurance by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson that precautions for such an emergency are being made seem superfluous. Failure to have plans ready for such an eventuality would be inexcusable.

It is planning dictated by the inescapable realization that the National Capital would be one of the first, if not the first, targets of a surprise attack. The quick knockout of any of several industrial and transportation centers probably would be more injurious in the physical sense than widespread destruction in Washington. But the flattening of the Capital city would be a terrific blow to national morale. If the nation's political and military leadership should be destroyed with the city, chaos would result.

The nation which would dare in the atomic age to put all of its eggs of any kind in one basket would be risking suicide. It is vital to any security pattern that, regardless of what may happen to any segment of our national life, someone shall be designated in advance to carry on. If the reins of government, industry, transportation, or whatever they might be, ever should be blown from one set of hands, others whose leadership would be recognized and accepted must be prepared instantly to pick them up.

It is impossible to imagine a government so incompetent that it does not recognize these necessities. The probability borders upon certainty that, in the United States, preparations for the worst that our civil and military leaders can imagine as happening to this country have gone much further than most of us realize.

The presumption is entirely safe, we believe, that our defensive structure is not so vulnerable that the destruction of Washington, or any city, would be fatal to the nation. The fact that little is said about such preparations does not imply that they have not been made.

The Coffee Scare

GOVERNMENTAL and other authorities seem to agree that hoard buying was chiefly responsible for the recent skyrocketing of retail coffee prices. All insist that supplies would be ample if most people would buy only for immediate needs. This theorizing continues that so many people grabbed all the coffee in sight, causing temporary shortages, and consequent rises in prices —always the inevitable result of such action.

This explanation, if correct, still leaves one important question unanswered. If the spectacular price rise was the result of unjustified panic, who started the panic, and how? Certainly, someone in some manner succeeded in scaring a good many people into the belief that the nation was about to run out of coffee.

Although most people have had their fill of congressional investigations, recent events in the coffee markets suggest them as a field for official inquiry. If manipulations can be applied so profitably to coffee, then they might be used with equal effect to skyrocket the prices of almost any commodity.

Meanwhile, consumers still can help their own situation a great deal—and probably can correct it entirely—if they will follow the advice in which government and other experts concur.

It simply is this: Don't buy any more coffee than you actually need, and stretch it as far as you can. Widespread adherence to this rule, authorities say, will bring the prices down.

No wonder the modern Holywood actress is well groomed. She picks up a new one at the altar ever so often.

Pavement: Something that a city puts down so it can later be torn up for excavation purposes.

Culture is something that a man doesn't usually care about acquiring until he has a healthy bankroll.

Is It Safe To Come Down?

The Cameo

By VIRGINIA TEALE
Distributed By NEA, Inc.

(THE STORY: Martin Falter, one of the residents of the Dolorosa, Calif., art colony, appears at the Three Wishes Gift Shop, operated by Hagar Blair, with a carnelian cameo. Hagar, a collector of cameos, knows it is rare and valuable. As she examines it, her youthful assistant, Stephanie Smith, appears. At the sight of the cameo, she drops a vase. Hagar continues her examination of the cameo.)

II

MARTIN Falter picked a small shred of tobacco from the end of his tongue.

"I thought it would give you a jolt. Even the great unwashed like me have heard of the extent of your collection. But I still say you don't own anything to compare with this."

Hagar angrily faced his triumphant smirk: "I still want to know where you got this. Steal it?"

She watched Falter's grin fade while his pale eyes turned the gray metallic color of a dead fish.

"I can forgive that remark," he told her, "because I realize it would be entirely possible for you to steal—if the loot were a rare cameo like this. But, sorry to disappoint you, I came by the pin honestly. For, well, let's say: services rendered."

There was a shattering crash as something hit the tile floor. Hagar spun around and saw Stephanie staring down at a few bright-colored fragments that once had been a dela Robbia vase. One of the girl's hands was poised in mid-air over the silver box on the cabinet.

Hagar clasped her hands prayerfully and looked up at the ceiling, then turned an exasperated face to Stephanie:

"You realize, my girl, what that thing cost us?"

Stephanie bent miserably to gather the pieces: "I was dusting it — I don't know — it fell," she murmured. "I'll pay for it, Hagar. I'm sorry."

Hagar flapped both hands from the wrists: "Oh, don't look so woebegone! We'll work it out later."

She turned back to Falter: "Now listen: You probably know how much this cameo is worth. I don't doubt that you had it valued before you came loping in here with it. Also, I suppose you're going to quote me some astronomical p[rice] just because I'm a collector."

He shrugged and hitched one knee over the edge of a counter: "You should be grateful that I'm giving you first chance at it. As a matter of fact, my dear Hagar, I'm beginning to wonder if you realize what this little item is? Maybe you don't know its history."

"Which you do, I suppose?"

Falter lifted the pin from its box and displayed it in the palm of one hand.

Hagar's chocolate-colored eyes avidly registered each detail: the gentle rose-red glow of the carnelian with the exquisite carving of the weeping woman; the limned gold frame outlining the stone, set with small diamonds and extending at the outer edges into crown-like points which were topped with tiny pearls.

"Well," began Falter, "originally this pin was designed for Isabella d'Este by an Italian craftsman. Then, it was supposed to have fallen into the possession of Lucrezia Borgia during all that interfamily political and amorous intrigue which was taking place at that time."

Hagar shook her head in impatient denial: "You're giving the wrong spiel. It stayed in the possession of the d'Este family for almost a century. I don't know why people get so almighty fascinated with the Borgias that they have to ring them in on any and everything that took place in the 15th century. If Lucrezie Borgia actually owned every work of art and jewel that legend gives her, she'd have had to rope off the whole city of Rome to corral the stuff."

Martin Falter eyed her narrowly: "So you do know something about this pin?"

"YOU'RE common sense should tell you that any collector worth his salt would recognize a piece like this one. The only thing I don't know about it is how you happen to have it."

"Suspicion is unbecoming even to attractive women, my dear Hagar" He bowed as she jerked indignantly. "I'll say once again that I came by it honestly. And now, the main point: I have it and you want it. I happen to know that you have sufficient means to meet my price, provided your well-known—ah—prudence in money matters doesn't overcome your collector's mania."

Hagar stood tense, her eyes yearning. One fist was essed tightly up under her nose, the pressure warping her angular face into gargoyle outlines.

Falter ceremoniously returned the cameo to its box and offered

Looking At Life -- By Erich Brandeis

IT always makes me laugh when I hear that there are no more opportunities in this country.

BRANDEIS

I just got through reading an article about Conrad Hilton, who recently bought the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York.

He was born 42 years ago in San Antonio, N. M., a town of 700 people, second of a brood of eight. His father was a Norwegian immigrant, his mother German. Conrad's first job was toting salesmen's bags from the railroad station to his father's hotel—really a misnomer, because it was simply a boarding house where drummers could get room and board for $1 a day.

I shall not repeat his success story here. You can read about Conrad Hilton and his phenomenal career in almost any magazine these days.

Suffice it to say that this kid from San Antonio, N. M., is now the head (and controlling stockholder) of a corporation with a "going value" estimated at more than 140 million dollars.

No opportunity?

Everybody can't become a millionaire.

That is a gift—a talent just like painting, music or literature.

But opportunities are all around us.

They are not, as the saying goes, there for the asking, but for the thinking, the working, the planning, the doing.

IN Conrad Hilton's Waldorf-Astoria there is a headwaiter by the name of Robert Hansen.

Robert has a son-in-law, not yet thirty, who came out of the war with a lot of other fellows and floundered around for a while.

Then he did some thinking and planning.

He figured that Television was a field in which there should be excellent opportunities.

He got himself a G. I. loan and opened a television and radio shop in Long Island a year ago.

After a few months he dropped radio—which he thought had seen its best days—and specialized entirely in television sales and service.

He expanded his shop—borrowing some money from his father-in-law—and today already does a business of more than $100,000 a year.

He has paid Robert back what he borrowed from him. Pretty soon his G. I. loan will be liquidated.

He employs more than a dozen men and is hiring more.

In a few months he expects to have another shop, and in a few years perhaps a chain of them.

No opportunities? Don't make me laugh!

By the way, that article about Conrad Hilton ended on a note which I liked very much.

Every day Hilton takes a walk, drops in at St. Patrick's Cathedral and prays for a while.

"He doesn't pray to God to give him anything. He just goes there to give thanks for what he has."

FEDERAL CONTROL SEEN

Pension Fund Case

BY RAY TUCKER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON:—The alleged dissipation of John L. Lewis's pension fund for 400,000 coal miners and the general extension of retirement systems to almost every industry is expected to result in creation of another vast federal agency to supervise the collection and distribution of benefits which will eventually total many millions of dollars annually. Members of Congress and the Truman Administration have already discussed the plan in closed conferences.

TUCKER

Their theory is that management of so much money, in view of its broad effect on the national economy, cannot be left to the arbitrary conrtol of the unions or the corporations.

Inasmuch as the cash for these pensions amounts to a tax on the public in the form of royalties, which are reflected in the price level, advocates of the scheme contend that even private retirement programs are clothed with a public interest.

DISPUTE: They also point out that the government may have to assume charge for protection of the prospective beneficiaries. In the event of strife and splitup within a union, as has happened with the United Electrical Workers in recent weeks, there will be a dispute as to which group of unionists should be entitled to handle the funds.

The logical method of settling rival claims would be through the courts. But pending months and possibly years of litigation, the money would be tied up and workers entitled to benefits would suffer. They probably would be penniless during protracted arguments.

Another reason for federal control, according to proponents of the idea, is that all these pension systems are being integrated with the present Social Security System. The payments from industry, in general, are supposed to tie in with S. S. benefits to amount to a monthly income of approximately $100 a month.

SECRET: The ultra secret handling of the Lewis pension fund will provide powerful arguments for government control, as so many of the mine boss's maneuvers have already forced Washington to crack down on his organization. Government officials and members of Congress have been provoked by his arbitrary management of a fund which amounts to almost $100 million a year.

So far, however, Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, the third member, has usually voted with the mine leader. But he now admits that he is dissatisfied with the distribution of so many "emergency" payments, and concedes that he lacks detailed information on the welfare operations.

"EMERGENCY": Director of the fund is Miss Josephine Roche, former Colorado mine owner, an erstwhile official in the Roosevelt Administration and a longtime personal friend of Mr. Lewis. He selected her, and she is entirely loyal to his interests. She will give out no data on the reasons for payments or the amounts or the current balance, except under Congressional subpoena.

Miners themselves are reported dissatisfied with management of the fund, "Emergency" payments, which brought a recent protest from Senator Bridges, can be paid out to a man who complains that his physical condition will not permit him to work. It is obvious the director has considerable latitude in determining whether these applications are legitimate.

Because of alleged wasteful handling of this annual $100 million toll on the public, Mr. Lewis wants to raise royalty taps from twenty to thirty cents a ton. The relation between pension-welfare payments and rising retail costs of such a key commodity as coal is another factor which lies behind the demand that these semi-private funds be subjected to government supervision and control.

WEIGHT: National Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson has emerged with at least a superficial victory in the Navy-Air row, but even his friends concede that his role in the stormy controversy may have killed his chances for the Democratic presidential nomination of 1952, even if Mr. Truman disappoints his Missouri cronies by refusing to run again.

It will not be rank-and-file resentment which will hurt him, as such former commanders as Walter Winchell and Hollywooder Robert Montgomery contend, for not enough uniformed men vote to decide a Mayoralty election.

The Johnsonian stock has fallen far below par simply because of the arbitrary manner in which he scrapped the supercarrier, fired Admiral Denfeld, impounded Congressional appropriations and generally threw his weight around the Pentagon Building.

RAP: None of the powerful nominating and voting groups with a deep interest in the kind of man occupying the White House would willingly help to place the National Defense Secretary in such high office.

The politicians would entertain doubts that they would prosper under his rule. The pro-Democratic labor unions, always suspicious of a military-minded man, would oppose him openly and viciously. The liberals do not consider him one of their kind, and even less so as a result of the recent row.

In fact, canny and suspicious pols think that Mr. Truman permitted Mr. Johnson to take the rap for the White House, thus knocking off a rival and keeping the path open for himself.

Truman Continues To Win Votes

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON—It is timely in view of last week's election to take another look at Harry Truman, the politician, as distinct from Harry Truman, the President of the United States.

It must be generally recognized by now that Harry Truman is a very able politician. Performance is proof enough.

An intuitive sense of practical politics is a necessary ingredient to success as President, and he has that. This is demonstrated also by the converse, which is that a man with many fine qualities of mind and spirit and with the best of intentions still can fall short of expectations in the White House through lack of political instinct, of which the most apt illustration in recent times is Herbert Hoover, our last Republican president.

STOKES

FDR Led Field

The standard around here in recent years of the master political strategist is, of course, Franklin D. Roosevelt. The Republican party finally developed quite an inferiority complex about him that failed to respond to treatment.

Significantly enough, you hear it said around here now that Harry Truman is as good a politician as his predecessor, and some go so far as to say he is even better. Among the latter are those who still are mystified about the 1948 election and so conscience-stricken about their wrong prophecies that they are ready, finally, to throw up their hands and take refuge in the diagnosis that it was Truman's doing, in which there is most of the truth, and therefore that he was a miracle man, or medicine man, in that campaign. They go on naturally to give him top rating now with another triumph in the off-year elections, which usualllly don't go too well for a party in power.

LEAVING comparisons to history, where it is safe to leave them, it is presently interesting to compare the technique of the two presidents.

Mr. Roosevelt was a master of what might be called "the grand strategy," while Harry Truman's technique is grounded in the simple approach of folks to folks. The former, because of his family and background, fitted well into the grand manner which our people like, however they may deny it. And when, as in his case, this was coupled with an interest in the welfare of ordinary people, the result was something close to idolatry with millions, as the history of that era revealed.

He had the gift of dramatizing and symbolizing the needs and aspirations of people so that he could create great waves of public emotion. Further than that, he was able to turn this public pressure on Congress and, through it all, he had a fine sense of timing as to the moment to produce these waves for their best effect for his purposes.

Also Had Setbacks

Because of this, and his skill as a negotiator with the various elements in Congress, he was in that field somewhat more successful than Harry Truman has been, though Mr. Roosevelt had plenty of setbacks that since have been forgotten.

Harry Truman gets his results, and more successfully thus far with the people than with Congress, by simply being himself, a man of the people, very wise in the ways of people and winning in the end by the confidences he inspires of sincerity and earnestness in their behalf. He plays the role of Harry Truman, and never overplays it.

HE calls things by their simple names and is able to make great and often complex public issues simple. He reacts like the rest of us and he blurts out those reactions, so that his frankness, which often is also blunt, has its appeal. In his off-the-cuff remarks, about which his protective aides used to worry so, he often comes close to the old-fashioned cracker-barrel philosopher, and there's still a lot of cracker-barrel in all of us. The smartest thing he ever did was to throw away his canned manuscripts and start being Harry Truman at the whistle-stops.

What is often criticized as a weakness, especially in a President, is his loyalty to old friends who are indiscreet and embarrass both him and the party. This can hurt a President politically, beyond being bad administration and bad government. Yet thus far it does not seem to have become much of an issue.

We are all Harry's, Toms and Dicks underneath. Harry Truman's political gift is in recognizing this and knowing how to capitalize on it.

They have to take time off to spend the surplus. We would like to interview a few sober, industrious salesmen with family income. Cutback In Oil Production Seen

AUSTIN, Nov. 14. (AP)—A one-day cutback in Texas' crude oil production schedule next month appeared likely today.

Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson said warm weather is to blame, permitting fuel oils to pile up in storage instead of pouring into consumer channels as is customary this time of year.

The commission will hear testimony at a public hearing here tomorrow before ordering the December permissive production pattern.

Nominations by major purchasers of Texas crude submitted to the commission in advance of the hearing totalled 2,433,958 barrels daily from nominations for the current month.

Major decline came in the commission's Gulf coast District 3, down 34,263 barrels; in West Texas District 8, down 6,004 barrels; and in the big East Texas field, down 4,870 barrels.

The estimate of demand for Texas crude submitted to the commission by the U. S. Bureau of Mines called for 2,230,000 barrels daily during December, reflecting no change from demand estimated for the current month.

Commissioner Thompson said that storage tanks filled to the brim with fuel oils is good news for consumers facing colder winter weather ahead.

"It's good to know that we've got it before we need it. But it will probably mean a one-day reduction next month from the production standpoint," he said.

All of the state's field this month are on a 20-day production basis except east Texas which has a 19-day schedule. A blanket one-day hike in the production pattern had been allowed all fields for November.

If the cutback comes, it will be the first following three consecutive monthly increases. Before that, the fields had undergone eight consecutive monthly cutbacks.

Westerner Yearbook

of sports.

Purpose and theme of the book was complimented, and the character and personality of the volume was given superior rating.

In general, pictures and captions under pictures, particularly those under action shots, received high rating.

On the other hand, criticism of the yearbook was directed toward uniformity of head sizes and positions in pictures, particularly in class and club sections, and arrangement of copy in the senior class section.

Changing of type sizes from page to page and, in some cases, also was criticised.

All in all, however, scoring of the various segments of the book seldom dropped below the "excellent" mark, and then only to the "very good" mark.

Mary Ruth Sims was editor of The 1949 Westerner, and Dorothy Dale Kennedy was associate editor.

Members of the art staff were Anne Lingle, Kenneth Garrett, Bassel Wolfe, Bruce Hamilton, Joan Bolinger, Bettye Armstrong, Catherine Eubanks, and Christine Toles.

Other workers were Shirley Johnson, typist and proofreader; Janice Duncan, business manager; Tyler Curtis, photographer; Pat Branson, bookkeeper.

Alene Mitchell, Mary Frances Forkner, Nona Martin, George Lemon, Betty Power, Elouida Thomas, Nell Peel, Joy Randolph, Marshall Pharr, Whitney Victory, Carolyn Honea, Milton West, Pat Bolinger, Norman Bantz, Hubert Waddill, and Johnnie Sue Corcorran.

Mrs. Cozby was editorial and advertising advisor; Miss Claudia Neelley was art advisor.

The 1946 Westerner was the first to receive the All-American rating. Gloria Novak was editor of this issue and Oleta Stewart was associate editor.

In 1947, the second All-American edition of the Westerner was edited by Paula Fix. Associate editor was John R. Duncan.

The 1948 Westerner was edited by Claudyne Young and John R. Duncan, co-editor. Lauwanna Coccannour and John C. Norcross were associate editors.

Editors of the 1950 Westerner—which will be distributed next spring—are Beverly Bantz and Louise Davis.

Chicago Tribune Publisher's Sketches Of A-Bomb 'Shelters'

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. (AP)— The Chicago Tribune today carried drawings of 30 proposed atomic bomb shelters where its 3,869 employes may take refuge in Tribune tower in case of an attack.

"In devising the world's first atomic bomb protection program," the story said, "the Tribune has been compelled to rely upon its own resources. No help of any kind has been received from government agencies to which this newspaper made frequent appeals requesting advice . . ."

Prices in India continue to climb, being now three times the 1939 level.

it to Hagar. She shook her head:

"Hah. The old brush salesman trick. Tell me first how much?"

"I suppose I should ask $15,000. But, to you only, I'll say $12,000."

She stamped her feet. "You know darned well I can't afford any such price!"

He raised his eyebrows: "For what is probably the rarest cameo on the market? For the piece that would make your collection almost priceless? For the finest carnelian carving ever to come out of Italy?"

"Since when did you become an authority on cameos?"

Falter blew a plume of smoke toward the ceiling: "One learns what one may find profitable. I could tell you even more about this pin. About how it figured in Napoleon's war with Russia, how it was used as a pawn for freedom by a Russian archduke. And about how, finally, it got back into the Russian crown jewels and was eventually brought to this country and sold to provide bread for an exiled duchess."

"You've boned up well, Falter. But, since I'm positive you didn't give the bread to the duchess, I still question where you got hold of the pin. I haven't got $12,000, or even $10,000 to buy it." She brushed her palms together with brisk finality. "You can take the pin and—go up the street and sell it for $12,000! I've got an inventory to finish."

Falter shrugged, looked at the silver box regretfully and slipped it into his pocket:

"It seems I overestimated your good taste, Hagar, and underestimated your parsimony. Well, perhaps someday you may be able to feast your eyes on this cameo again—through the glass of some other collector's case."

* * *

AS he sauntered toward the door, Stephanie dashed forward and pulled at his sleeve:

"No! Wait!"

Falter, his hand on the doorknob, looked down at her with the heavy-lidded half smile that continued to madden Hagar.

Stephanie's face was turned up to his pleadingly. Her right hand tugged imploringly at his left elbow as she spoke:

"Come back tomorrow, Mr. Falter, will you? Come back tomorrow and bring the pin. Will you, please?"

His eyes traveled slowly over her face. A slight frown, like a try for recollection, rippled across his forehead.

He patted her shoulder. "I may stop in again—if I'm in the neighborhood."

He went out, closed the door quietly and walked away from the shop without a backward glance at the two staring women.

Hagar confronted Stephanie: "And what, may I ask, was the meaning of all that?"

The girl gave her a long, unwavering look, and Hagar drew back, startled, at the surface fire in the blue eyes.

"Hagar. Hagar, you must buy the cameo locket. You must!"

Hagar laughed nervously. "At that price? What's come over you, girl? I can't afford the thing, and that's final."

Halfway to the back room, she stopped and pivoted slowly to face Stephanie:

"Why did you call it a locket? It's a pin. A brooch."

Stephanie was staring into space, she shook her head:

"No. It's a locket. And you must buy it, Hagar. No matter what it costs, we must get it away from Martin Falter."

MARTIN FALTER made his way down the town's main thoroughfare. He passed a small building whose facade consised of a blue door and a wide window in which a ceramic urn was displayed in a drape of tapestry—this was the studio of Nell and Tom O'Neill, art potters and people-about-town.

Somewhere behind it, probably, were the buxom and impulsive Nell, and her husband, Tom, whose alternate preoccupation with his clay and his bottle left Nell feeling neglected and receptive to sympathy and attention from a discreet and personable friend.

A sign farther up the street was Martin's goal today and he hurried toward it. He glanced up at the narrow platform jutting out over the top of the doorway—on the platform rested a weathered spinning wheel. He rattled the knocker impatiently.

Quick footsteps sounded on the bare floor inside. A small Judas window in the top section of the door was opened cautiously. A key turned in the lock and the door swung wide.

"Martin! I was afraid it was some more of those sightseers the art gallery sends down. I had four here yesterday. The next time they come I'm going to pretend I'm a Japanese houseboy and nobody else is at home. Come in, won't you?"

Martin stepped inside. "Greetings, Arnold. Hard at work, I suppose?"

Arnold Pfieffer smiled and adjusted his blue linen smock. "Busy as a bee. Three more orders came in today and no price limit on any of them. Tapestry weaving, as an art, is really coming into its own again, you know."

THEY entered a spacious, brightly lighted room. There were shelves from floor to ceiling honeycombed with cubicles containing yarns and threads of every available color and texture.

Two handlooms stood near the vast windows, one was empty and the other contained almost a finished yard of gray and coral-colored cloth with an abstract design worked out in silver thread.

Arnold fussed about, dragging two maple chairs around into the sunlight and placing a small table between them. Martin lowered himself into one of the chairs.

Arnold seated himself and fitted a cigaret into his meerschaum and amber holder; he lighted the cigaret and leaned back, his eyes expectantly on Martin's face.

"Well, Arnold," Martin began, "my expenses have been heavy lately, and I find I could use a little extra cash." He watched Arnold's expression change, and chuckled. "Oh, don't look so trapped, dear boy. I'm not going to ask for a loan."

Arnold laughed depreciatingly and flourished his cigaret holder: "Why, I wasn't worried about that, Marty. You know I'd be only too glad—that is, I was just sorry to hear that things aren't prosperous for you."

"Nice of you. Anyhow, I was wondering if you'd do a little errand for me in San Francisco when you go up tomorrow. Tomorrow is the day, isn't it?"

"Yes. I have a tapestry to deliver."

"Mind you, Arnold, this is confidential."

Arnold nodded gravely.

Martin drew out the silver box from his pocket, opened it and pushed it across the table.

Arnold reached for it, giving a gasp of surprise and pleasure: "Good heavens! What a perfectly gorgeous thing! I've never seen anything like this—it's exquisite!"

"It's worth an exquisite sum, too," Martin said flatly.

"Oh, I can see it's a very rare old piece. What's it worth?"

"I'm asking $10,000."

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP) — Cotton futures were lower today in quiet trading. There was further evening-up and switching from nearby December to later months, anticipating first notice day on November 25. Mill buying was light. Although spot cotton sales have continued well above last year's levels, hedge selling was restricted.

Washington advices said that the ECA cotton export program is still indefinite, but will probably be lower than last year.

Cotton closed steady.

STOCK MARKET TUMBLES

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)— A midday sinking spell today gave the stock market its sharpest tumble in four weeks.

Transactions for the day totaled 1,250,000 shares.

After a narrow, trendless opening, some of the first signs of softness appeared in issues of automobile producers, whose plants have yet to feel the full impact of strike-induced steel shortages. The anticipated sharp upswing in steel output this week failed to stimulate stocks of that industry.

Railroads showed resistance to the downturn for a while, then gave up some ground. Gold mining shares again ended up with losses.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped .8 of a point to 67.3 for its sharpest setback since Oct. 17. Industrials took the brunt of it, falling .7 of a point; rails were off .4 and industrials 2.

Of 1,102 issues traded, 640 declined and only 221 advanced, despite this, 29 stocks touched new highs for the year.

American Power and Light $5 and $6 preferreds climbed more than a point each as the company's reorganization plan received federal court approval. The common was the day's most active issue, unchanged at 13¾.

A sharp loss was suffered by Universal Laboratories common. Heavy late dealings sliced 3½ points off its quoted value and it closed at 4½. With 51,300 shares changing hands, it was the second most active stock today. Brokers reported the company has been the subject of active rumors of merger and other activity recently.

Declines of a point or more were registered by International Paper at 62⅝, J. I. Case 43, American Smelting 47½, Du Pont 60⅜ and Allied Chemical 195½.

Down fractionally were such issues as General Motors at 70⅞, Bethlehem 29, Studebaker 25¾, Nickel Plate 79⅝, Homestake 44, Dome Mines 15¾, Phelps Dodge 46⅛, Sinclair 22½ Santa Fe 93⅛, Southern Railway 30⅞, Air Reduction 22¾, U. S. Rubber 33 and Woolworth 46½.

Anderson-Prichard Oil started with a gain of more than a point and held part of it to close at 25⅝, up ⅝. U. S. Gypsum and Sears Roebuck were among others that stayed on the upside.

The corporate bond market showed mixed changes. Long-term government issues showed some improvement in over-the-counter dealings.

Depressed in the curb were Cities Service, United Light and Railways, Raytheon, Schulte, American Republics, Ashland Oil, Ford Motor of Canada 'A' and Glen Alden Coal. Holding gains were such stocks as Sheller Manufacturing, Central States Electric preferred, United Shoe Machinery, North American Rayon 'B' and Arkansas Natural Gas. Sales in the curb totaled 300,000 shares against a turnover of 280,000 last Thursday.

Commodities were mixed. Cotton was down 5 to 25 cents a bale at New York and Wool tops off half a cent to one cent a pound. At Chicago wheat dropped ½ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel, but corn was unchanged to ¼ a cent higher, and oats unchanged to up ⅛ a cent.

Oats No. 2 white 91¼-92¼.

Sorghums No. 2 yellow milo, per 100 lbs. 2.07-12.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP) — Feed grains again had a firm undertone while wheat retreated on the board of trade today. The market thus followed the pattern of late last week with dealings continuing at a slow pace.

Little incentive existed for buying wheat and the bread grain was allowed to drift lower on small scale liquidation.

Slightly more than 600,000 bushels of corn were shipped from here by lake today, all destined for Canadian ports. This, plus a fairly light run of cash grain, gave the yellow cereal support.

Wheat closed ½-⅞ lower, December $2.10⅛-$2.11, corn was unchanged to ¼ higher, December $1.30⅛-⅜, oats were unchanged to ½ higher, December 74¾, rye was unchanged to ⅛ higher, soybeans were ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, November $2.20⅝-$2.21, and lard was 20 to 20 cents a hundred pounds lower, November $9.45.

OPERATION OF POINT FOUR PROGRAM QUESTIONED

Texas Congressman Checking South America With Regard To Foreign Investment Plans

BY SARAH McCLENDON
Avalanche-Journal Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. — Rep. Omar Burleson, Anson, now checking into possibilities in Latin America for use of President Truman's program to develop undeveloped areas, carries a great responsibility on his shoulders.

On his report which will grow out of this trip will depend how most of the Texas delegation will vote, possibly, and also how a number of other congressmen who believe Burleson to be a sober, serious-minded colleague, will be influenced. His report is expected to be written by January and will be filed with the House Foreign Affairs committee, of which he is a member.

Burleson has been lukewarm on Point Four. In an effort no doubt to get him and other congressmen like him to see the light, Chairman John Kee, West Virginia Democrat, sent him on this trip.

Burleson is accompaned by Rep. A. S. J. Carnahan of Missouri, D., and a key States department official, who also doubtless will be seeking to persuade Burleson, and other staff men. Burleson chose to go with him Rep. Olin (Tiger) Teague of Texas' 6th district, whose home is in Bryan. Teague is not a member of the Foreign Affairs committee but went along with European observers on the same committee last year.

Operation Concern

Teague comes from a district whose voters will have a great interest in Point Four, too.

Shortly before designated for this trip, Burleson told this correspondent of his qualms and fears about Point Four. He's not opposed to it in spirit but the thing which seemed to worry Burleson most was how it would or could operate. He was puzzled that the State department sent over two bills, embodying virtually the same thing. One went to the Foreign Affairs committee, the other to the House Banking and Currency committee. The former is still pending before the House Foreign affairs committee and the latter was approved by the Banking committee but not acted upon by the House. The bill placed before the House Foreign affairs committee bearing Kee's name provides for establishment of technical cooperation programs. The Kee bill is largely policy establishing and authorizes very broad powers for administrators. The other bill would amend the Export-Import banking bill to guarantee American investors abroad against risks of expropriation, convertibility or hindrance by foreign governments.

Purpose Of Two Bills

The question of why the State department sent up two different bills, both with the same purpose, to send capital and know-how into undeveloped areas was recently put to a State department official. His reply was that with two bills before two different committees, it gave opportunity to educate just that many more congressmen about Point Four. It also was done to mollify the Banking and Currency committee which is jealous of any other committee getting legislation dealing with export-import banking.

After the State department's presentation of these two bills, Rep. Christian Herter, R., Mass., who headed the original committee which recommended the Marshall Plan, introduced a bill which is specific and which covers the ground of both former bills. His is pending before the Foreign Affairs committee.

Congressman Burleson felt that the Herter bill had an advantage over the Kee bill in that it did seek to legislate regarding method an did put down in black and white how the program was to be accomplished.

Obligations Problem

But Congressman Burleson was still aghast at the obligations incurred by the U. S. to protect its private citizens in investments abroad. The Herter bill sets forth that it is U. S. policy "to encourage the flow of investment capital and technical knowledge and skill to those foreign countries expressing a desire and willingness to cooperate with the U. S. in a joint endeavor of economic development". Goals are raising the level of prosperity and standard of living in foreign countries.

There would be an administrator for Foreign Economic Development with an advisory board.

A program with each individual country will be launched to "create conditions that will stimulate a flow of private capital to that country". Financial assistance shall come through Export-Import bank and other agencies. The board shall recommend whether U. S. agencies should give financial assistance. Participating countries shall be those which have entered into treaties of friendship, commerce and navigation with the U. S. The administrator is to advise the secretary of state to proceed with bilateral agreements with eligible countries.

Income Taxed Once

Bi-lateral agreements shall provide for a joint commission of economic development, the sending in of technical missions by the U. S., appointment of technical advisers to determine how that country's business may be made more efficient and productive. Studies shall be made of the participating country's opportunities for investment of foreign capital and need for technical skill.

Provisions shall be written into such treaties for protection of U. S. nationals. They all get prompt and adequate compensation if the participating country expropriates any of their property, deprives nationals of normal control over their properties, imposes restrictions or charges on their property or business so as to deprive them of any substantial beneficial interest, destroys or substantially impairs the enteprise, business or property. There shall be unqualified convertibility into the currency of the investor's country of profits and interest on such investments.

Here's an interesting provi. and one that may drain off much capital for investment here to foreign countries. It states: "the income of business establishments of corporations owned by nationals of one country operating in the other country shall be subject to income tax only in the country where the income is earned."

Need Is Cited

Unless the foreign countries can qualify as participating nationals, after two years from date of this act, they may not get any loans from the Export-Import bank.

The need for the program can readily be seen from a glance at the standard of living of countries all over the world, particularly those of Latin America. The results which may be anticipated for improved education, health and social practices are unlimited. Most people would agree those would be a fine thing. For example, one proposal is to curb malaria in South America. Already in this country, one has seen the advantages in that from health programs in the Gulf coastal area.

What Burleson is going to watch is how such a program could be executed without international embroilment in disputes and whether the American taxpayer who would foot the bill for most of it would be buying himself new markets or more competition.

Burleson has in mind as he makes his trek across South America that one of the principal targets of capital as it flows from this country to foreign nations, particularly Venezuela and Brazil, would be development of other oil fields in competition with Texas.

His report will be watched with considerable interest.

Texan In Mexico

Another Texas congressman was in Mexico City recently at the same time Burleson and Teague were there. He was Rep. Ken Regan, Midland, 16th district, who with Mrs. Regan has been enjoying a vacation there.

The Mexican Embassy here reports that they were given the works and appeared to enjoy their stay very much.

Incidentally, it is expected that when time comes to return to Mexico the flags captured by the U. S. Army in the U. S.-Mexican war over a century ago, a Texas congressman will officiate. Already Senator Tom Connally's bill providing that has passed the Senate and this week the senator received a letter of thanks from Mexican Ambassador Rafael de la Colina. Rep. Lloyd Bentsen, McAllen, has a bill in the House to provide the same thing. Passage at the next session is confidently predicted.

Another move is on to cement Texas-Mexican relations. It is quite probable that the next person chosen to head the Mexican Affairs desk in the State department soon will be a Texan. And Mexico will approve, especially if it's a certain Texan they like.

Rodeo Clown Back In Hospital After Rescuing Performer

(U.P.) — Rodeo clown George E. Waggoner, injured by an 1800-pound Brahman bull in rescuing an amateur rider, was back in familiar surroundings today.

He had been hospitalized for the 14th time since he started clowning in rodeos 20 years ago—with a broken right leg and hip.

"It happened in the line of duty," he said, referring to his luring the bull away from a rodeo performer yesterday at the Convair Recreation Association rodeo in cowtown arena.

A young Convair worker, an amateur rodeo performer, had ridden the bull out of the chute and been thrown. The bull started trying to gore and trample him.

Waggoner, wearing baggy pants and a red wig, ran between the bull and the fallen rider and began tapping the animal on the head with a red and yellow cape.

"The bull made three passes at the cape," the clown said, "then I tripped."

Hooking its horns under Waggoner's legs the animal tossed him from six to 10 feet into the air.

Waggoner, a heavyweight himself, landed on his feet, but the impact was so great that his right leg folded under him.

Another clown, Herschel Dorman, lured the bull away from Waggoner and to the other end of the arena while rodeo hands carried the injured clown out.

Anyone interested in the position should write to Miss Amelia Anthony, Director, Girlstown, U.S.A., Whiteface, Texas.

EAT PLENTY AND TAKE OFF UGLY FAT

When you buy Barcentrate, you buy a preparation for taking off weight. You do not pay for any printed diet or for vitamins to fortify you against weakness while on a starvation diet. You need never know a hungry moment while taking this preparation. Barcentrate is the original grapefruit juice recipe for weight reduction.

Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Barcentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Then take just two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it.

Lost 56 pounds

Here is what Mrs. L. J. Bryant, P. O. Box 54, Whitewright, Texas, wrote us: "I want to tell you what Barcentrate has done for me. I weighed 268 pounds when I started taking it. I now weigh 212.

"I have taken my dress size down from size 50 to 44 and never felt better in my life and everybody tells me how much nicer I look than I did.

"I am still taking Barcentrate as I want to get my weight down to 140 or 150 pounds."
