Coast across Texas

Warming up for a cross-country ride this summer is Ann Kovich, 28, left, who pedaled through Midland Monday with her coach, Conrad Geiger, on a 900-mile run from El Paso to Orange. A graduate student at The University of Texas at Austin, Ms. Kovich plans to set the women's record for cross-country bicycling by taking the 2,500 mile trip from Santa Monica, Calif., to New York this summer in 12 days.

Reagan says oil decontrol created glut

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — President Reagan said today that lifting controls on oil prices helped create the current oil glut and was responsible for greater conservation and lower energy costs.

While not claiming direct credit for himself for removing oil price controls, Reagan was sharply critical of former President Carter's energy program, under which decontrol was drawn up.

"The last administration's 'moral equivalent of war' which depended on government planning, bureaucracy and regulation gave us higher prices and shortages," Reagan said in a speech prepared for delivery to a joint session of the Oklahoma Legislature.

"Decontrol unleashed the competitive powers of the market place, and gave us more supply, more conservation and lower prices," he said. "We reduced our imports by nearly half."

Reagan continued: "Those who credit the world oil glut for stable energy prices missed the point. Unleashing our domestic oil industry and continued conservation by the American people have helped create this favorable world energy situation."

Reagan said oil price decontrol is "just a first step" in energy issues and that phasing in complete decontrol of natural gas prices is another.

Although the president said he favors natural gas decontrol, his aides said recently he would delay sending Congress a proposal on the subject until after this year.

Under legislation signed by Carter, price controls will be removed from 60 percent of the nation's natural gas by Jan. 1, 1985.

Carter also signed legislation phasing in the decontrol of oil prices, but Reagan accelerated that process eight days after he took office by lifting all controls on crude oil prices.

The building in which Reagan spoke is the only Capitol in the world featuring a producing oil well on its grounds, according to a White House statement. Capitol Site No. 1 was completed in 1942 and pumps oil from a mile and a quarter beneath the structure.

The Oklahoma Legislature was Reagan's third and final stop on a 2-day trip in which he also spoke to lawmakers in Alabama and Tennessee. He was returning to Washington late today.

The emphasis on oil today, a key issue in Oklahoma, represented a shift in Reagan's drum beat on behalf of his economic program of budget and tax cuts and the "new federalism" program that would shift to the states responsibility for more than 40 federal programs.

Reagan rejects weapons freeze

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — President Reagan said today that a freeze on nuclear missile deployment in Europe would lock in a 300 to zero Soviet advantage, and challenged Leonid I. Brezhnev to "join in real arms reduction" instead.

He said the Soviet president's announcement of a moratorium on deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe "simply isn't good enough because it doesn't go far enough."

Reagan told the Oklahoma legislature that if Brezhnev is serious about arms control, he will accept the U.S. offer to refrain from missile deployment in exchange for Soviet agreement "to dismantle what they have."

Reagan, on the road in behalf of his economic and federalism proposals, began his speech in Oklahoma City by demanding more than Brezhnev offered.

He said the Soviet Union now has 300 SS-20 missiles with 900 warheads, deployed and capable of hitting targets anywhere in western Europe. NATO, he said, has "zero land-based missiles" that can hit the Soviet Union.

Furthermore, Reagan said, Brezhnev did not mention that the Soviet missiles are mobile, so that it doesn't make any difference where they are based. He said they could be moved to the east and still would be within range of western Europe.

"Our proposal is that we not deploy any intermediate missiles in exchange for Soviet agreement to dismantle what they have," Reagan said.

"That's fair."

Earlier, presidential counselor Edwin K. Meese III, interviewed in Washington, characterized the Soviet proposal as an attempt to maintain Soviet missile superiority in Europe, rather than an offer to eliminate nuclear-tipped missiles from the continent.

"What he is talking about is a situation where, two-thirds of the way through a football game, one side is ahead 50-10, or 50-0 as it would be in this case, and they they want to freeze the score for the rest of the game.

"That's not exactly a fair kind of thing or something that would be in the interest of protecting the people of Europe."

In Washington, Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., was more upbeat than administration officials in his assessment of the Brezhnev announcement.

Asked about the Soviet proposal, O'Neill said: "I'm more than happy that they're talking about it. It looks like the frozen ice out there has cracked a bit."

O'Neill added, "I hope it's the start of concrete talks" on restraining U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals. "I see it as a movement in the right direction," he said.

On Monday, Reagan has rejected a congressional proposal to freeze the number of U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons, saying the plan doesn't go far enough and that "verifiable reductions" in arms are needed instead.

'Wardrobes That Work...'

Mary T. Millican

Beginning Friday, The Reporter-Telegram will begin a locally written, weekly column on women's fashions.

The writer, Mary T. Millican, has been associated with the fashion field from New York's Fifth Avenue to Midland and her experience will be helpful to the working woman, the career woman and those women concerned with fashion trends who want answers to their questions.

Queries concerning fashion problems and wardrobe coordination will be answered for those who want to get the most from their wardrobes while dressing appropriately at the same time.

"Wardrobes That Work" will appear each Friday in the Lifestyle Section. Be watching for it!

Brezhnev warns of 'retaliatory steps'

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev today announced a freeze on deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in the western part of the Soviet Union.

But he warned of "retaliatory steps" if no progress is made at Soviet-American talks on arms limitations.

Brezhnev's announcement was quickly rejected by the Reagan administration as a trick to maintain Soviet arms superiority.

Brezhnev also said the Soviet Union plans to pull back a "certain number" of the medium-range missiles it already has deployed in the part of the Soviet Union west of the Urals, considered the European part of Russia.

Brezhnev said the freeze would remain in effect until Soviet and U.S. negotiators in Geneva — who today recessed their talks to May 20 — reach agreement to limit the deployment of medium-range missiles in Europe, or until the United States begins "practical measures to deploy" Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe.

Brezhnev said failure to reach agreement on medium-range nuclear missiles would be "a real threat to our country and its allies by the United States." "This would compel us to take retaliatory steps that would put the other side, including the United States itself, in an analagous position," he said.

He did not elaborate on the "retaliatory steps," but analysts interpreted the statement to mean the Soviets would station missiles near Western borders.

In Bonn, the West German government said of the Brezhnev announcement: "Whether this is a step in the right direction depends on whether it will mark a turning point for the Soviet Union in its medium-range missile arming, that is, whether it (the Soviet Union) will not only end the further massing of rockets but is ready for a real reduction within the framework of the Geneva negotiations."

Brezhnev said, "The Soviet leadership has taken a decision to introduce unilaterally a moratorium on the deployment of medium-range nuclear armaments in the European part of the U.S.S.R.," Brezhnev said.

"We are freezing, in both the quantitative and qualitative respects, the armaments of this kind already stationed there, and are suspending the replacement of old missiles, known as the SS-4 (and) SS-5, by new SS-20 missiles," he said.

He made the pledge in an address to a Soviet trade union congress in the Kremlin and a text of his speech was released by the Kremlin. Soviet television did not broadcast the speech, as it has in the past, prompting renewed speculation about the health of the 75-year-old president and Communist Party chief.

Brezhnev also again urged talks on limiting strategic nuclear weapons, and proposed that the Soviet Union and United States "agree to a mutual reduction in naval operations."

Allison Center keeps cancer patients at home

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a five-part series on cancer and its diagnosis, treatment and effects.

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Before the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center was built adjacent to Midland Memorial Hospital, most Midland cancer victims had to disrupt their lives and travel away from their homes for treatment.

Some went to Odessa Medical Center, but treatment there, at least until this year, was limited.

The more sophisticated cancer therapy machines are located in Dallas, Houston, El Paso, Lubbock, San Antonio and Amarillo — and, as of June 1981, Midland.

The Allison Center is equipped to give radiation treatments and chemotherapy.

MMH was awarded a three-year certificate of approval from the Commission on Cancer of the American College of Surgeons in January. This approvals program was established in 1956 to encourage the best in cancer therapy. Only about 10 percent of Texas hospitals have approved cancer programs.

IN ADDITION TO having a clinical program that meets the requirements of the Commission on Cancer, the Allison Center also meets the requirements of having a well-functioning tumor registry.

The registry keeps a record of each cancer patient and makes certain that follow-up examination and rehabilitation of patients are done in a systematic manner at specified intervals which make studies of cancer cause and treatment possible.

The Allison Center houses two state-of-the-art cancer therapy machines — the 6 and 20 Million Electron Volt Linear Accelerators. In addition, the cancer center has a therapy beam simulator, orthovoltage unit, block cutter, computerized treatment planner and a cancer registry.

According to A.C. Buchanan, vice president of operations at Midland Memorial Hospital, a total of 3,193 radiation therapy treatments have been given since the opening of the Allison Center.

However, 171 patients have been seen, with 105 treated with chemotherapy.

"PRESENTLY, THE center does not have a full-time medical oncologist," Buchanan said, referring to a doctor who specializes in drug therapy, or chemotherapy.

But every Wednesday, through a contractual agreement, a medical oncologist comes from Sammons Cancer Center in Dallas to see patients.

In July, Dr. David Snyder, a medical oncologist from Sammons, will be practicing at the Allison Center full-time.

"This will make a tremendous impact on the patient load. Patients always do better when they see the same doctor," Buchanan said, referring to the different oncologists who now visit the center weekly.

"When he (Snyder) comes, I suspect the patient load will grow dramatically. It will virtually double," he said. "I know of two doctors who are presently following 40 patients (receiving chemotherapy) and I think it will give the center a 50 to 60 percent increase.

"IT WILL TAKE years to develop a wider referral pattern," Buchanan said. "Our scope is regional-natured. There is no incentive for doctors in other cities outside the Permian Basin to refer their cancer patients when they have similar sophisticated equipment."

Although the referral process is slow, Buchanan noted that cancer patients from Fort Stockton and Alpine who used to go to El Paso for treatment are now coming to Midland.

In the next five years, the center hopes to reach all 17 counties.

"We want people to understand this is a regional center," he said. "It is the only way we can justify having this facility.

"Midland alone could utilize this center, but not fully utilize it. If we were just going to treat Midlanders we probably would have just bought the 6 MEV. But since we're seeing patients from the entire Permian Basin this justifies the level of the center's equipment," Buchanan said.

Presently, Dr. Eric Svenson, radiation oncologist, will travel the outlying areas, explaining to physicians through lectures how they can refer their cancer patients to the Allison Center.

Two or three Midland physicians who have a substantial oncology practice are still referring their patients to Dallas or Houston.

"The doctors want to see the continuing, after care," Buchanan said, referring to chemotherapy treatment after surgery which is offered only once a

Texas area forecasts

West Texas — Partly cloudy with warm afternoons through Wednesday. Windy north today with occasional blowing dust South Plains. Highs near 70 north to low 80s south and mid 90s Big Bend. Lows upper 30s north to near 50 south except mid 30s mountains. Highs Wednesday near 70 north to near 80 south and low 90s Big Bend.

North Texas — Partly cloudy with warm days and mild nights through Wednesday. Widely scattered thunderstorms east today. Highs 78 to 83. Lows 48 west to 62 southeast.

Winds expected through Wednesday

Typical March winds are expected to blow through Wednesday, as warm afternoons and mild nights should greet residents of the Permian Basin.

Winds should be westerly to southwesterly at 10-15 mph tonight before increasing to 15-20 mph and changing to westerly on Wednesday.

Temperatures should be in the mid-40s tonight, rising to near 80 Wednesday.

The high Monday reached 80, not far off the record 88 in 1974, while the low of 43 was well above the record for the date of 23 in 1947.

No precipitation is forecast for the next few days, though a chance exists for widely scattered showers or thunderstorms on Saturday. The yearly precipitation total stands at 0.58 inch.

Tornadoes kill five in central Plains

By The Associated Press

National Guardsmen patrolled several towns in the central Plains today after more than 20 tornadoes swept through the region and killed at least five people.

Downed branches and power lines caused by Monday night's tornadoes left some areas virtually inaccessible.

"I've been here since '55 and this is the worst one I've seen," Crawford County Undersheriff Lynn Fields said of the tornado that struck the town of Mulberry, Kansas, Monday night.

"It was a big son of a gun," Fields said. "Looking at it, you couldn't see anything but it."

One man was killed in the Mulberry twister. Two others died in Kansas, one in Oklahoma and another in Missouri.

Gov. John Carlin issued an emergency order sending a National Guard unit to patrol Mulberry on the Kansas-Missouri line about 90 miles south of Kansas City, Mo.

Kansas Highway Patrol troopers also were in Mulberry, where some looting was reported immediately after the tornado struck.

In Missouri, twisters accompanied by high winds, hail and heavy rain struck western, southwestern and west-central portions of the state.

Five tornadoes were reported in a 25-mile stretch in west-central Missouri, coming just two days before a statewide tornado drill was planned.

Twisters also cut a path through Bartlesville, Okla. National Guardsmen armed with ax handles stood watch against looters overnight in that city.

More tornadoes struck the town of Ada, Okla., about 50 miles southeast of Oklahoma City. Floyd Fullingim, 60, died of injuries he suffered in the Ada twisters, authorities said.

Army of volunteers battles floods

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — This city under siege by the worst flooding in more than half a century drew an army of 2,000 volunteers who came from miles around to help build a sandbag barrier to hold back the raging water.

Other volunteers cook meals for the sandbag crews and tend babies and the elderly at evacuation centers. Among them are students, soldiers, Red Cross workers and 170 Mennonites.

"We believe in putting our faith in shoe leather — in action," said George Lengacher, head of the Fort Wayne chapter of the Mennonite Disaster Service. "We like to think of ourselves as modern day Samaritans."

Gov. Robert Orr watched Monday as the volunteers unloaded sandbags to reinforce a dike along the Maumee River in the Lakeside subdivision.

"I've never seen anything like this in my life," Orr said as firefighters pumped water from a sewer system and city trucks streamed in with more sandbags.

The volunteers worked with their eyes on threatening skies. More rain could create even greater problems for this city of 170,000 where flood waters burst into homes and businesses during the weekend.

Flood waters have driven about 3,500 Fort Wayne residents from their homes, Mayor Winfield Moses Jr. said. Damage is estimated at $16.3 million.

Nicaragua suspends individual rights

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The leftist Sandinista government has suspended individual rights for 30 days and imposed strict censorship to counter alleged U.S. attempts to use its exiled foes against it.

Junta member Daniel Ortega said the suspension may be extended "in keeping with the prevailing circumstances in the country."

Speaking at a ceremony for the Sandinista militia Monday night, Ortega said the emergency measures were necessary because of "plans for aggression against our country" directed by the United States "with the complicity" of anti-government groups based in neighboring Honduras and Miami.

The Washington Post reported last week that the Reagan administration was planning a $19 million CIA program for a force of 500 Latin American commandos based on the Nicaragua-Honduras border who would attack dams, power stations and other economic targets in Nicaragua.

President Reagan has refused to say whether such plans exist but accuses Nicaragua of funneling Cuban and Soviet arms to the leftist guerrillas fighting the U.S.-backed government of El Salvador. The Nicaraguan government says it only gives moral support to the insurgents.

Ortega's announcement was made hours after the Interior Ministry reported guerrillas dynamited two key bridges in the north and northwestern part of Nicaragua, near the Honduran border, Sunday night, seriously disrupting transportation.

REFERRING TO THE sabotage in a message to the U.S. Congress, Foreign Minister Miguel d'Escoto said plans to destabilize Nicaragua "oblige our government to adopt legal measures to protect our government to protect our institutional life and the order and internal security in our country."

In Washington, the State Department said it would not comment on the charges until today. But the new American ambassador, Anthony C.E. Quaiton, told reporters who asked him about the alleged U.S. plan: "I cannot discuss a plan that does not exist."

Quaiton, who arrived Monday night to take up a post that has been vacant for seven months, said the United States "does not seek to intervene in Nicaragua or any other place in Central America."

"The government of the United States wants to establish effective and sincere relations with the government and people of Nicaragua," he said.

Ortega said in addition to the suspension of individual rights, the government would strictly control the news media. Minutes before he spoke, the Interior Ministry announced the shutdown of Radio Catolica, a station run by the Roman Catholic Church, for violating already stringent communications laws in effect for two years.

A communique said the station was closed indefinitely because it reported the dynamiting of the bridges before the government announced it.

ORTEGA DID NOT elaborate on what the suspension of rights entailed. Government sources said it affected freedom of expression, political and union activities and the right of habeas corpus. Normally, the government can hold people without formal charges for only three days, but now they can be held indefinitely.

Earlier Monday, a Nicaraguan youth who embarrassed U.S. officials by changing his story about his part in El Salvador's guerrilla war returned home to a hero's welcome.

GM presents proposal; Union works on AMC plan

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. wants its 320,000 autoworkers to accept a wage freeze and give up increases in cost-of-living allowances for nine months, but the United Auto Workers president says the plan contains mistakes.

The union's American Motors Corp. council, meanwhile, planned more work today on a counterproposal to AMC's concessions offer.

"There were several things that we took note of," UAW President Douglas A. Fraser said at a news conference Monday after GM handed over its proposal in the second day of revived bargaining. "In plant closings, they talk about future plant closings. Of course, we want to talk about past plant closings."

Fraser said he wants to discuss GM's closing of seven plants since previous concessions talks broke down in January.

GM also omitted a contract reopener if car sales rebound, Fraser said. The automaker may want changes in health benefits the UAW would find unpalatable and doesn't mention the use of attrition rather than layoffs for reducing the workforce, he said.

"But I'm sure all ... of those things are mistakes and we'll be discussing them in the days ahead," the union leader said.

The two sides broke off for internal meetings late Monday. Subcommittee meetings could start today or Wednesday, depending on when the union finishes exploring the company proposal, officials from both sides said.

THE PROPOSAL presented by GM would run to Sept. 14, 1984.

It would eliminate nine paid personal holidays per year, a December Sunday bonus payment, and seek ways to halt absenteeism, ease the burden of health care costs and make changes in local plant agreements. New hires would start at lower wage and benefit scales.

Many provisions are similar to those in a contract signed two weeks ago at Ford Motor Co., but some, including absenteeism, health care and local plant measures, are new.

In return, GM offers profit sharing, a two-year moratorium on plant closings related to subcontracting of work to non-union and overseas facilities, cooperative efforts to improve labor-management relations, an increase in moving expenses, improvement of Supplemental Unemployment Benefits and pension plan, and guaranteed income for workers with 15 or more years' seniority.

In nearby Southfield, the union planned more work today on a counterproposal to AMC's request that its 14,000 U.S. workers give up 10 percent of their wages and benefits — about $150 million — over the next 22 months to help further the automaker's $1 billion product development plans.

The union's 42-member AMC council met for about three hours Monday without drafting a final counterproposal, said Donald Stillman, a UAW spokesman.

THE COMPANY SAYS it would repay the money, with interest, possibly as early as 1984, but union officials have said they want greater job security guarantees.

AMC reported a $136.6 million loss last year.

GM, which earned a modest $333 million in 1981, wants concessions in order to become more competitive. GM officials said the profit came from non-automotive sales, not from car sales, which plummeted 32.9 percent in the first 10 days of March.

Three admitted after three traffic accidents

Three persons were admitted to Midland Memorial Hospital following three separate traffic accidents Monday.

In stable condition today with a punctured lung and multiple fractured ribs was Charles Richard Diamond, a 20-year-old Highway Department employee who was struck by a car driven by Eluterio Martinez Sanchez, no age available, of Odessa.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Sanchez was westbound in a construction zone on U.S Highway 80 three miles west of Midland about 1:15 p.m. Monday when his 1975 Plymouth hit Diamond, who was working on the road at a point where traffic is prohibited.

Sanchez then left the scene westbound in the eastbound lane and hit a 1977 Buick driven by Charles Coleman of Odessa. Following that accident, Sanchez attempted to flee on foot but was captured and jailed on drunk driving charges. Coleman was not injured.

Shortly before 2 a.m. Monday, a 1968 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by 28-year-old Robert D. Tucker of 1902 N. Midland Drive left the road at a high rate of speed on North A Street near Midland Air Park and rolled over after hitting an embankment, according to city police.

A passenger in the vehicle, Edward Nelson, 25, who lives in a trailer behind 5101 North A Street, was listed in stable condition with scalp lacerations. A second passenger, 22-year-old Diana Tucker, also of 1902 N. Midland Drive, declined medical treatment. Robert Tucker also refused treatment.

A police department dispatcher suffered multiple facial lacerations when her 1979 Mazda and a 1977 Buick driven by Ronald L. Ivy, 17, of 2105 W. Michigan, collided at the intersection of North Main Street and Scharbauer Drive about 1:55 p.m. Monday.

In stable condition this morning was 23-year-old Betty S. Modkins of 109 W. Wadley Ave. According to police, both vehicles ended up in Scharbauer Draw after the accident. Ivy apparently escaped injury.

Longview Rep. Mike Martin, accompanied by his wife, arrives at Gillespie County Courthouse Monday morning for a pre-trial hearing. Martin is accused of lying to a grand jury about his own July 31 shooting.

Martin seeking 2nd change of venue

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

FREDERICKSBURG, Texas (AP) — A gas station owner, a newspaper publisher and a savings and loan executive say Rep. Mike Martin can get a fair trial here.

But a local insurance man disagrees and says the bizarre tale of the legislator accused of having himself shot has been a hot topic on the local coffee shop circuit. Insurance man Thomas Eilers testified that the people he has talked to here believe Martin is guilty.

The change of venue hearing in Martin's aggravated perjury case was to continue today before state District Judge Robert Barton.

Eilers testified Monday as Frank Maloney, Martin's lawyer, tried to convince Barton that the lawmaker can't get a fair trial in this Central Texas city.

Martin, R-Longview, is charged with lying to Travis County grand jurors when he told them in August that he did not stage his July 31 shooting. Martin was wounded in his left elbow by shotgun fire near his trailer in Austin.

He offered varying accounts of the shooting, but Charles Goff, his cousin, later said he was the gunman, recruited by Martin for a staged shooting planned to gain publicity for the freshman legislator.

MALONEY says the same extensive publicity that forced the trial out of Austin has spilled into Gillespie County from Austin and San Antonio, necessitating a second move.

Eilers, called to the witness stand by Maloney, testified that local people he has talked with have said Martin "staged his own shooting in an attempt to get public sympathy for votes."

Other witnesses called by Maloney agreed that it would be unfair to try Martin here because local opinions hve been swayed by media coverage of the case.

Michael Penick, a real estate man, said many local people have talked about the case "in jovial terms" and consider it a "funny incident."

But Arthur Kowert, publisher of the Fredericksburg Standard newspaper, testified he had heard "practically nothing about it from the rank and file."

"I feel the people just didn't pay that much attention to it," he testified. "I don't feel there would be any problem with him getting a fair trial in Gillespie County," said Kowert, called to the stand by prosecutor Bill Willms, who wants the case tried here.

GAS station owner Charles Kiehne agreed with Kowert, saying he felt he could serve as an impartial juror.

Narcs say sentence fair

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Former undercover narcotics agents Creig Matthews and Kim Ramsey Matthews say their prison sentences for framing a nightclub operator on cocaine charges are "lenient and fair."

Matthews, 35, was sentenced Monday to three years in prison and his wife, 27, was sentenced to 1½ years. They were not married when they were undercover officers for the Tyler Police Department in 1979.

The sentencing was by U.S. District Judge William M. Steger, who could have punished the couple with up to 10 years in prison and fines up to $10,000.

The two were convicted of violating Kenneth Bora's civil rights in 1979.

Bora was tried three times on drug charges but never convicted. He later was convicted of deadly assault in a shotgun attack on Matthews and was sentenced to 20 years in prison, but he was released after a federal investigation of alleged wrongdoing in the Tyler police department.

Teen pleads innocent to rape, murder

SAN JOSE (AP) — The teen-ager accused of killing a 14-year-old girl and then taking friends to view her body has pleaded innocent to charges of rape and murder.

Anthony Jacques Broussard, 17, entered the pleas Monday before Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge James Wright. The judge set April 13 for the trial, despite a protest by Broussard's lawyers that they needed more time to prepare.

Broussard is to be tried as an adult in the murder of Marcy Conrad, a Milpitas Junior High School student whose body was discovered by police in a ravine on Nov. 5.

Center cuts down on travel, expense

Medical oncologist to join staff soon

week by different doctors at the Allison Center.

DESPITE THE physicians' cautious attitude about the center, Buchanan said the Allison Center is "seeing as many if not more as Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

"We are now estimating that we will see approximately 300 new patients a year and, if the Permian Basin population continues to grow at its predicted rate, we expect in five years to be seeing 450 new patients a year," Buchanan added.

A total of 67 physicians have referred patients to the center, Buchanan noted. An analysis of the referrals show 35 Midland County doctors referring patients, while 12 from Ector County and 20 from other counties have sent patients to the cancer therapy center.

Of the patients being treated, 68 percent come from Midland County and 10 percent from Ector County. The remaining 22 percent are from Andrews, Brewster, Crane, Dawson, Howard, Lea (N.M.), Martin, Reeves, Upton, Ward and Winkler counties.

Besides treating the patients, the Allison Center also keeps records of how many different major sites of cancer they see whether the patient receives treatment or not.

ACCORDING TO the Allison Cancer Report, 15 percent of the primary disease seen in the Permian Basin have been lung cancer, 19 percent breast cancer and 9 percent prostate cancer. The following account for 4 percent each: bladder, uterine, colorectal and ear, nose and throat.

A combination of brain, Hodgkins, lymphoma, myeloma and leukemia add up to 10 percent of the cases. All other sites constitute the remaining 32 percent, with 12 percent of that total non-malignant conditions.

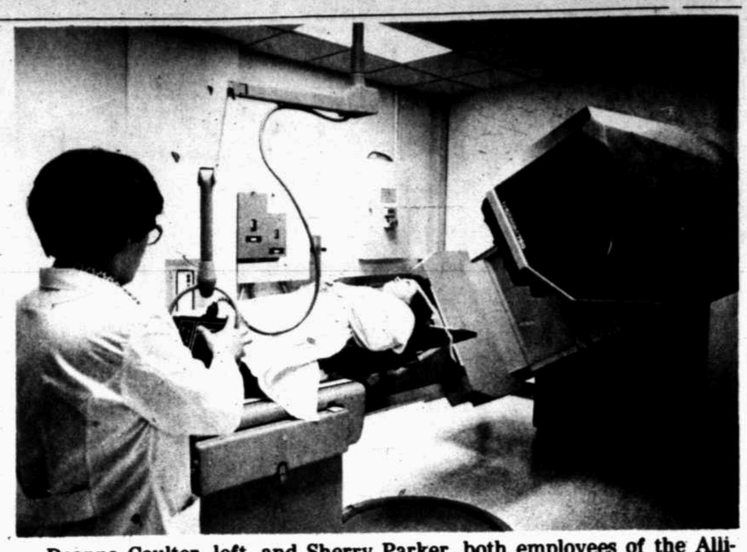

Economically, the Allison Center is and will be successful, Buchanan noted. The initial $3.5 million in donations for the center went toward the building and capital expenses.

Buchanan said that the center, as a department of MMH, became self-supporting which includes salaries and supplies as of October 1981. In addition, the use of MMH ancillary services reflects the increasing patient load of the center, especially in the departments of the laboratory, pharmacy and radiology.

Future plans, besides the recruitment of a medical oncologist and the computerized cancer registry, include recruiting additional certified technical personnel and designation of an oncology ward.

"Our expectations in the next two years or so is to designate a 10- to 15-bed unit within the hospital for cancer patients." Buchanan said.

Working at Allison Cancer Center not an easy life

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Eric Svenson lives with cancer.

He hasn't had the familar radiotherapy, chemotherapy or surgery associated with cancer treatments.

But every morning he heads toward the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center.

Svenson

Svenson is a radiation oncologist — a doctor of cancer.

Likewise, Ann Parsons lives with the disease.

She, too, arrives every morning at the Allison Center, but not for treatment.

Ms. Parsons is an oncology nurse for the cancer center.

These two people give hope to cancer victims.

The cancer center can be frightening to some people because they do not understand what goes on inside.

THE MASSIVE machinery can be intimidating, but Svenson and Ms. Parsons, along wth the staff at the Allison Center, work with the patient, explaining the procedure to him and the family.

The Allison Center, an extension of Midland Memorial Hospital, is the first such facility for West Texans. It was designed to provide local cancer care for Texans in the 17-county Permian Basin area.

Svenson and Ms. Parsons both said the center is convenient for patients in West Texas.

"We try to involve the entire family," Svenson said. "Patients can have the treatment here and their family close by.

"It's not an easy treatment, but cancer isn't an easy disease," he added.

There are three options in helping the cancer victim — radiotherapy, chemotherapy and surgery.

Svenson said it is not uncommon to combine all three.

Radiation treatments and chemotherapy are done in the Allison Center.

IN THE BUILDING, there are two rooms with seven-feet-thick walls. Behind each of the thick lead doors which seal the rooms, there is a state-of-the-art cancer therapy machine.

The 6 and 20 Million Electron Volt Linear Accelators sit in their special concrete rooms decored with scenic wall murals and camera monitors attached to the walls.

There are many advantages to having the radiation equipment.

"There are fewer complications with these machines. They are more powerful which means more radiation goes through the patient with less radiation staying in the body, but the radiation is spread more evenly and that's the part that counts," Svenson said, referring to the intensity of radiation from the linear accelerators.

The cancer therapy equipment is the major source of treatment in the center, with the 6 MEV providing some 80 percent of the center's radiation treatment.

The Allison Center houses some of the most advanced equipment in the field, including a therapy beam simulator, an Orthovoltage unit, a block cutter and a computerized treatment planner.

BEFORE TREATMENT begins, the patient must go through a "dry run" so that the doctor can determine the exact location of the tumor.

Beginning with the simiulator, a sophisticated X-ray machine, a photograph can show the density of the tumor by taking pictures of it from many different angles.

As its name implies, the machine simulates the radiation treatment, by getting a precise angle of the ray before using the radiaion of the accelerator.

Because the radiation from the accelerators are so intense, the unaffected areas of the patients' bodies need to be protected with approximately eight-inch lead shields so healthy organs won't be damaged.

Because it would be uncomfortable and impractical for the patient to wear the lead apparatus, the block cutter, or styroformer, allows a technician to prepare a shield to be placed between the patient and the radiation outlet.

An outline drawing is made with a pencil-like device with a thin, razor-like blade to trace outlines from the patients' X-rays. While the cancerous material is traced, the block cutter slices a styrofoam replica above it.

THE REPLICA, five inches thick, is used as a mold for the ostalloy cast which functions like lead.

It is then placed on a plexiglas plate and placed into the head of the machine.

Svenson explained the radiation passes between the shield castings into the precise area on the patient, protecting the rest of the body from unnecessary radiation.

Another step used in conjunction with the accelerator is the treatment planner. While the simulator simulates where the beam will penetrate the body, the treatment planner develops a map of the treatment by producing a computerized configuration of the body parts, pinpointing places and angle of beams as well as dosages to be used.

Besides the accelerators, the Allison Center has another type of radiation machine, the orthovoltage machine. Unlike the accelerators, which possesses millions of volts of power, the orthovoltage uses 75 to 250 kilovolts. It is smaller than the accelerators and is usually used for skin cancers. Additionally, Svenson said the machine is also used for treating benign and non-malignant tumors.

ALTHOUGH SOPHISTICATED accelerator machines are able to radiate cancer growths efficiently, the treatment has to be done in stages.

Svenson said the amount of treatments is based entirely on the type of cancer, but it could range from everyday for five weeks to seven weeks. Normal cells are also destroyed during the radiation treatment, but by allowing a limited amount of time between each treatment, the body cells can repair themselves.

"Depending where the radiation is given, it will kill the cancer cell, but it may take weeks or months," Svenson said. "With one radiation treatment, one-third to one-half of the cancer can be killed, but the cells may not die right away.

"The patient just feels a lump, but there are things in that tumor," he said, adding that this is why radiation treatments must be done over a prescribed period of time.

NEIL SOLOMON, M.D.

Don't take stuffed noses lightly

Dear Dr. Solomon: My children manage to avoid the serious illnesses, but they always seem to be bothered by minor problems such as a stuffed nose. I've been using a product I can get without a prescription but it doesn't help much and I don't like to bother my pediatrician with such a simple problem. Is there anything you would recommend for a stuffed nose? — Mrs. T.J., Little Rock, Ark.

Dear Mrs. J.: I have a very definite recommendation: Make an appointment with your pediatrician, particularly if, as you suggest, the problem is of long duration. There is no single treatment for a stuffed nose because there is no single cause of a stuffed nose.

Nasal congestion may be due to an obstruction that requires surgery, to an allergy, or to an infection, among other causes. According to a recent report in the Southern Medical Journal, antihistamines are the most common medications for allergic conditions, while decongestants are helpful for most nasal and sinus infections.

It is especially important to have your pediatrician prescribe a specific course of treatment because of the possible side effects of decongestants, such as nervousness and palpitations. For these reasons they may not be suitable for a particular patient.

Instead of experimenting with over-the-counter preparations, see your pediatrician so that the cause of the problem can be determined, and a course of treatment prescribed.

Dear Dr. Solomon: An uncle of mine is under treatment because one of his breasts began to get bigger. He is close to 70 years of age but looks and acts much younger. Is his condition unusual or is it that it's not given a great deal of publicity? — Hank, Albany, N.Y.

Dear Hank: A study of more than 300 men has shown an association between gynecomastia (breast enlargment) and advancing age. One explanation that has been suggested is that the sexual partners of older men may use vaginal creams containing estrogen as a lubricant. The estrogen may be absorbed through the penis, causing gynecomastia.

Dear Dr. Solomon: At times my pediatrician speaks of a food allergy and at other times he talks about food intolerance. Sometimes I think he's talking about the same thing, and then I think he's talking about two different things. Are they the same? — Mrs. F.L., Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Mrs. L.: I diagnose a patient as having food allergy when consumption of a particular food causes diarrhea, vomiting, hives, wheezing or a runny nose, and the patient has a blood test (RAST) positive for a specific food allergy. Food hypersensitivity is when the patient has the aforementioned symptoms, but has a negative blood test (RAST) for food allergy.

Food intolerance, which causes the intestinal tract to become irritated, results from the lack of the enzyme needed to digest a specific food. Either condition may be associated with a great deal of discomfort, but many of my patients are helped with specific medical treatment.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give pesonal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Scientists expecting mild eruption

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens could begin a mild eruption any time and probably will erupt before next week, scientists said after a half-dozen researchers returned from the volcano and reported its crater floor was swelling.

The U.S. Geolgical Survey and the University of Washington geophysics center predicted Monday night the volcano will erupt mildly within five days.

There is a "very small" chance that enough snow will melt during the eruption to cause flooding on the nearby Toutle and Cowlitz rivers below the mountain, said Kathy Cashman, a USGS geologist.

The eruption is expected to be the type that builds the lava dome in the volcano's crater, rather than spews ash and steam.

A mild eruption last winter caused no flooding, Ms. Cashman said.

On Friday, authorities issued an advisory warning of an eruption within three weeks.

Officials took no immediate action to close the "red zone" around the mountain to those holding permits, including scientists, loggers, government workers, reporters and camermen, said Thom Corcoran, spokesman for the volcano information center operated by the USGS and the U.S. Forest Service.

"The hazard zone will remain open until we get more information," he said.

Scientists who flew over the mountain Monday night used infrared equipment and detected a greater number of "hot spots" than they did on their last flight March 5, said Bill Chadwick, a USGS geologist. Gas tests conducted in the crater revealed increased sulfur dioxide emissions, he added.

Both findings are consistent with the prediction of an impending mild eruption, Chadwick said.

The eruption advisory issued Monday said "accelerating rates of ground deformation in the crater...suggest that an eruption, most likely of the dome-building type, will probably begin within one to five days."

"Deep earthquakes have almost ceased and shallow earthquakes continue at a moderate rate. A further increase in shallow seismicity is likely before the eruption starts," the advisory said.

Ms. Cashman said the amount of swelling of the crater floor and dome varied, but that it was generally on the order of "a few centimeters" in a day-long period. "It's not dramatic," she said.

Earlier, authorities had said there was a possibility that the eruption could be the biggest since 1980, but officials said that prediction was made because they didn't know the meaning of earthquakes deep in the Earth.

Authorities worried that an explosion of ash and superheated debris could topple the lava dome, melt snow on the volcano and possibly set off flooding.

The quakes preceding previous mild eruptions have been shallow.

Transportation board morale way down, head says

By DON WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The National Transportation Safety Board is suffering from "severe morale problems" and is unable to perform its job properly because of budget cutbacks imposed on the independent agency, its acting chairman says.

In testimony before the Senate transportation appropriations subcommittee Monday, acting NTSB Chairman James E. Burnett Jr. also said the agency has been unable to closely monitor the air traffic control system to see how it is recovering from the mass firing of striking employees last August.

"I think we should be looking over their shoulder constantly, but we lack the resources," he said. The NTSB's only two air traffic specialists have been tied up investigating the Jan. 13 crash of an Air Florida jetliner in Washington and other accidents, he explained.

The NTSB released a status report on air traffic operations in December, and Burnett said he hoped a follow-up study could be done in the next few months.

The agency's budget was cut from $18.3 million in 1981 to $16.9 million this year as part of Reagan administration economies. It is earmarked to receive $17.3 million in fiscal 1983, an increase well below the expected inflation rate.

Burnett, a recent Reagan appointee, said the "the board is not currently staffed to perform all the duties prescribed" by law and has had to pass up investigating some accidents involving ground transportation to concentrate on air crashes.

But more important, he said, "severe morale problems" have hit his staff because all are being laid off for at least three days this year in a cost-cutting move, all overtime pay has been eliminated, special awards for superior performance have been slashed by 76 percent and promotions have been cut by 50 percent.

Clean Air rewrite could get to House before break

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — An industry-backed rewrite of the federal Clean Air Act could emerge from a House subcommittee this week, possibly allowing the bill to go to the House floor before Congress begins its Easter recess.

Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health and the environment, said that while he could not guarantee a date, "I don't think it's inconceivable that we could complete action this week."

Based on votes over the last two weeks, the bill to emerge from the subcommittee would be a measure sponsored by Rep. Thomas A. Luken, D-Ohio, which is supported by the Reagan administration and by industry lobbyists.

Waxman offered the time assessment Monday under pressure from Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the full committee and a co-sponsor of the industry-backed bill.

Dingell said he thought the subcommittee should have been finished with the measure last week. But Waxman, who has been at odd with Dingell for months over the bill, said the subcommittee was "behaving responsibly" on the measure.

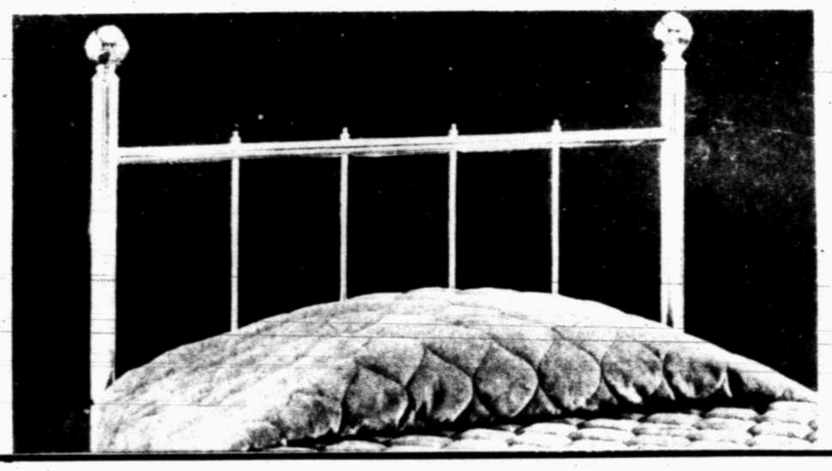

Action this week would give Dingell a chance to meet his original schedule of sending a bill to the House floor by April 6, when the House recesses for Easter. Under that plan, actual floor consideration would not occur until after the recess.

Waxman's prediction offered no comfort for environmentalists, who would rather see no bill enacted than the Luken proposal.

Although the Clean Air Act technically expired last September, its standards, deadlines and penalties remain in effect until Congress enacts a revised version. Thus, environmental lobbyists feel no pressure to push for a vote on a bill that might be weaker than the existing law.

Strategy in the gulf

Recent press reports have it that the CIA is secretly aiding some Iranian exile groups and seeking to influence public opinion in Iran by beaming radio broadcasts into the country. If so, it is a heartening sign that the Reagan administration is prepared to employ the CIA in circumstances tailor-made for covert operations.

Consider the prospective nightmare confronting American policymakers wrestling with the problem of how to preserve Western access to Persian Gulf oil. The region's two pillars are Iran and Saudi Arabia. A brutal, anti-American regime rules in Iran and seeks to spread its messianic brand of Islamic fundamentalism to such conservative, pro-Western Arab states as Saudi Arabia, Oman, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar, Kuwait, and Bahrain.

Success for the Ayatollah Khomeini's policy of exporting his revolution would breed chaos around the Persian Gulf and disaster for the industrial democracies of Japan and Western Europe. One likely result would be an expansion of the Iran-Iraq war to include other Gulf states and, in time, perhaps the superpowers as well. It does not require an overly sophisticated grasp of history or geo-politics to perceive in all this the seeds of a global calamity.

And even if these dire possibilities can be avoided, it is unmistakably apparent that Soviet influence within Iran is growing rapidly — a fact that bodes ill for Iranians no less so than for the West. Whether or not the Khomeini regime survives, the short-term likelihood is for an Iran increasingly dependent upon the Soviet Union for trade, aid, and the weapons needed to continue the war against the Iraqis.

Meanwhile, Khomeini's bilious anti-Americanism and the pariah status of his revolutionary regime all but preclude the conventional diplomacy that might keep Iranian doors open to the United States and Western Europe.

Filling this vacuum is precisely the kind of role for which the covert operations branch of the CIA was created. Thus, the agency is reportedly attempting to knit together a coalition of political moderates that would encompass portions of the Iranian military, the middle classes, anti-Khomeini clerics, and democratic politicians.

Should this effort bear fruit, it is conceivable that moderate forces might inherit power in Iran when the aged, ailing Khomeini steps down or dies. In any case, it is something well worth trying, regardless of the odds. The alternatives — indefinite turmoil and ever increasing prospects for a Soviet takeover in Iran — are simply too dangerous to go unchallenged.

Those who would argue that any Iranian project involving covert operations by the CIA constitutes interference in Iran's internal affairs have long since been outflanked by a Soviet campaign that includes both clandestine and conventional efforts to bring Iran into Moscow's orbit.

Americans should hope that the CIA is up to the task of promoting a better future for Iranians and a less perilous course of events in the supremely strategic but acutely vulnerable Persian Gulf region.

Court getting costlier

Forty years ago, hardly anybody thought about going to court to sue somebody.

A person could bump a pedestrian with his Chrysler Airflow and the victim would say something like, "No harm done," and walk away. Ipso facto. No filing of codicils, taking of depositions or polling the jury. Attorneys need not apply.

Unfortunately, times have changed. Witness the case handled by San Diego, Calif., Superior Court Judge Edward T. Butler recently. Standing before the judge was a man who has filed more than 50 Superior Court lawsuits in two years.

"The courts of the land are and ought to be open to all citizens," the judge told the hyperactive litigant, "but the courts have an obligation to protect persons from continued attacks."

Then Judge Butler declared the man before him a "vexatious litigant" — a person who files cases chiefly to cause annoyance — and ruled hereafter he would have to post a $5,000 bond for each defendant named in his lawsuits.

Good for Judge Butler.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

'Ice Queen' gets bodyguards — but why?

WASHINGTON — Environmental chief Anne Gorsuch clearly didn't come to Washington intending to win any popularity contests. Her cold, abrasive personality has frosted not only environmentalists aghast at her policies, but subordinates and congressmen who deal with her. She quickly won the soubriquet "Ice Queen."

Jack Anderson

But now, apparently, Gorsuch is afraid she may have made too many enemies as she presides over the virtual dissolution of pollution controls that the Environmental Protection Agency administers. For she is hiring three "personal security officers" — or, in plain English, bodyguards.

EPA officials were at a loss to explain Gorsuch's sudden concern for her personal safety. When questioned by my associates Lucette Lagnado and John Dillon, they insisted that their boss had received no death threats.

Some agency employees hostile to Gorsuch — and there are plenty of these — suggested that hiring personal bodyguards is just another example of Gorsuch's cavalier self-indulgence in an administration that is preaching the gospel of sacrifice.

They point to her penchant for fur coats — a slap at environmentalists — and her choice of a taxpayer-funded limousine: an Oldsmobile 98 diesel-powered Regency Brougham. Equipped with wire wheels, power windows and a telephone, the elegant Olds not only cost four times what her predecessor's car did, but it is one of the most pollution-prone passenger-car models made in this country.

Disgruntled and demoralized EPA employees also note that Gorsuch, her old friend and assistant James Sanderson and two or three other administrators have expropriated office space on the top floor of the EPA headquarters that used to house a dozen officials comfortably. The 12th floor, incidentally, is accessible only by a private elevator attended by a guard.

Gorsuch's aides are loath to admit that her policies and practices have given her cause to fear for her life. At first, they denied that any bodyguards were being contemplated for their boss. Key officials finally acknowledged that three "personal security officers" were being hired.

At a time when EPA personnel are being thrown out of their jobs, the hiring of three personal flunkies — at salaries of $20,000 to $30,000, and possibly more — will obviously do nothing to repair the shattered morale in the ranks. So the three bodyguards, who will be authorized to carry sidearms, are being disguised as part-time investigators in the EPA Inspector General's office.

But how much investigating they'll be able to get done is problematical; they'll be on call for guard duty whenever Gorsuch feels the need.

EPA officials insist that the three new employees will be much more than bodyguards. They will be trained professional investigators, possibly recruited from the Secret Service, the FBI or the Air Force Office of Special Investigations. They will also be expected to do advance work and unspecified "liaison" chores, the officials said. This means, of course, that they'll cost a lot more than ordinary bodyguards — and will be operating at less than their full qualifications when they're serving as Gorsuch's armed escorts.

Though some officials hinted, off the record, that Gorsuch's life may be in danger from some crazed environmentalist or ex-EPA employee, others wrote the move off as just Gorsuch's way of asserting her power and importance. Personal bodyguards will put the EPA administrator right up there with the big boys, like Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Democrats are privately relieved that President Reagan is being so stubborn against raising taxes in an election year. Discussing the president's determination, Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., observed to his colleague, Dante Fascell, D-Fla., in a House elevator: "Reagan has really dug his feet in." Pause. "Thank goodness," said Fascell.

— The Kremlin resisted the idea of aircraft carriers for years, but now the Soviet leaders have been converted. One thing they like, apparently, is the carrier's capability as a flagship and communications center for Soviet forces at sea. A top-secret National Security Agency report notes that the first Soviet carrier, Kiev, "has communicated with Moscow and the headquarters of all three western fleets, as well as the commander of the Mediterranean Squadron." The Kremlin has always liked to keep in touch.

— Historians are upset at the budget cuts imposed on the National Archives. Only half as much money is now available to handle the work necessary to release Archives documents to scholars. This has forced academicians to use the cumbersome Freedom of Information Act.

INSIDE REPORT:

Deaver's news leak about address puts Britons to howling

WASHINGTON — President Reagan can blame his closest aide, deputy White House chief of staff Michael Deaver, for the highly-embarrassing and premature announcement that Reagan would address a joint session of the British Parliament.

Rowland Evans

Before the unprecedented idea had even been proposed to opposition Labor Party leaders in London, Deaver leaked the fact that the president would make the address during his European grand tour next spring. The result: Red faces in Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government and fury in the opposition parties. The leak from Washington was the first they had heard of it.

Robert Novak

A footnote: The leak from discreet Mike Deaver, top social arbiter in the White House and Nancy Reagan's trusted ally, was worse than another premature White House leak that angered the French. Communications director David Gergen told reporters a full day in advance of the agreed release date that French President Francois Mitterrand was coming to see Reagan. The French government, always sensitive, was incensed.

PACKWOOD & REAGAN

White House anger over Sen. Bob Packwood's personal attack on President Reagan had not cooled when it was learned that Packwood had sent out fund-raising letters over Reagan's signature without getting approval for the mailing.

The Jan. 18 letter seeking charter members of the "Republican Presidential Task Force" at $120 a year makes it appear that Packwood, rebellious chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, and the president are fast friends. "Bob is planning on writing you special personal letters to keep you informed of any issues that he feels the task force should be taking immediate action on," said the Reagan letter, oblivious of multiple disagreements between Packwood and Reagan. The letter also includes a photograph of the president beaming at his least favorite senator.

When Ed Rollins took over as Reagan's political aide Jan. 21, he insisted that he check any letter going out over the president's name. He now wants the letter rewritten, which would cause Packwood to eat some $300,000 in unmailed letters.

TOWER REACTS

After quietly absorbing repeated discourtesies from an unwitting White House staff, Sen. John Tower of Texas threatened retaliation when the president just plain forgot to give him advance information on the new chairman to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Tower's eminence as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee alone should have entitled him to advance word, particularly in view of White House failures last year to inform him of the president's crucial strategic missile decisions. What gave Tower even greater claim to hear that Army general John W. Vessey would be the next Joint Chiefs chairman was Tower's hard battle to win that post for Marine general Robert H. Barrow.

When he heard the Vessey news on the radio, Tower understandably hit the ceiling. He informed one White House aide that if he were not brought more closely into the inner confidence of the White House, his pledge to back the administration down the line on the beleaguered defense budget might be open for change.

REAGAN'S MR. RIGHT

In answer to criticism by the New Right movement that its views are suppressed by President Reagan's aides, conservative theoretician Edwin Feulner will be brought into the White House temporarily as a policy consultant.

Dr. Feulner heads the Heritage Foundation, a New Right think tank, and recently turned down a full-time job as State Department counselor. But he accepted top presidential aide Edwin Meese's offer to advise him on policy initiatives for the next three months. During that period, he will split his time evenly between the White House and the Heritage Foundation.

Right-wingers have no illusions, knowing that tapping Feulner is partly a cosmetic move to still their complaints. Nevertheless, they believe Feulner has a golden opportunity to develop right-wing domestic proposals at a time when the Reagan administration's well of ideas seems dry.

ANOTHER SENATE HOPEFUL

A most unexpected volunteer has put himself forward to become the Republican-Conservative challenger against Democratic senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan in New York: Lawrence Kudlow, associate director and chief economist of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB).

Kudlow, 34, never has sought public office before. Consequently, state leaders of the Republican and Conservative Parties were surprised to get the call from David Stockman's right-hand man in Washington. Their reaction was cool. For one thing, Kudlow has become anathema to supply-siders, including Lewis Lehrman, now the front-runner for the Republican nomination for governor.

What is not surprising is that Kudlow, a Wall Street investment house economist, is ready to leave Washington after one year. He has confided to friends that he thinks it is time to go and is surprised that Stockman does not feel the same way. That sounds much like a desire to leave a sinking ship.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, March 16, the 75th day of 1982. There are 290 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1978, Italy's former Prime Minister Aldo Moro was kidnapped in Rome by left-wing guerrillas, who killed his five bodyguards in a street ambush.

On this date:

In 1521, Portuguese navigator Ferdinand Magellan reached the Philippine Islands.

In 1690, France's Louis XIV sent troops to Ireland to fight for James II.

In 1935, Germany repudiated the disarmament clauses of the Versailles Treaty, which ended World War I.

In 1979, the Soviet Union vetoed a U.N. Security Council draft resolution aimed at ending China's invasion of Vietnam and Vietnam's invasion of Cambodia.

Ten years ago: The United States asked for an impartial inspection of prisoner of war camps in North Vietnam in return for an agreement there would be no new American raids to try to free prisoners.

Five years ago: President Carter held a "town meeting" in Clinton, Mass., his first since taking office.

One year ago: Ayatollah Khomeini met with squabbling politicians, warning that internal discord could make Iran lose its war with Iraq.

Today's birthdays: Former first lady Pat Nixon is 70. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., is 55. Actor-comedian Jerry Lewis is 56.

Thought for today: Victory belongs to the most persevering. — Napoleon Bonaparte, French general-statesman (1769-1821).

CHARLEY REESE

Hypocritical rules placed on Israel

People who employ a double-standard are either stupid or immoral. The most fundamental concept of justice requires that all particulars be judged by one set of standards. To do otherwise is to abandon standards completely and to be merely arbitrary.

Charley Reese

No nation on earth and probably in history has been more victimized by double standards than Israel, a tiny country based on the same principles of individual freedom and respect for law as our own.

It is routinely demanded of Israel that she withdraw from conquered territories as a pre-requisite for peace negotiations. When she refuses, she is branded intransigent.

Thus, Israel becomes the first nation in the history of mankind expected to allow the losers to dictate the peace terms to the victor. You can see how absurd this is. It is as if Nazi Germany had demanded that the Allies withdraw from Germany before there was any discussion of the terms of surrender.

The Arabs, not Israel, were the aggressors. The land taken by the Israelis in 1967 was taken in self-defense and there is nothing in international law which requires the victim of aggression to return land to the aggressors.

Our State Department experts should be careful. Israel has a far more legitimate claim to Judea and Samaria (the so-called West Bank) than we do to Texas and California, both of which we took from Mexico in a war we started.

Other examples of the double-standard include U.S. reaction to Israeli bombing of the PLO headquarters in Beirut and to the annexation of the Golan Heights.

On the matter of Beirut, the bombing was not strategic (as in U.S. bombing of Tokyo and Hiroshima) but a pinpoint attack on one building. Furthermore there is no such thing as a "civilian sector" of Beirut. The entire city is a war zone in which several factions periodically shell and snipe at each other.

Moreover the bombing came in response to the rocketing of civilian towns in Northern Israel. There is no justification for our expressing outrage over the Israeli attack and only mild disapproval of the PLO attacks which caused it.

As for the Golan, our reaction to that was also absurd. Red China which is presently being courted by U.S. officials annexed the entire country of Tibet. The Soviet Union annexed the Baltic states, the Ukraine and a lot of other territory that didn't belong to them.

Here again the Golan was taken in response to Syrian aggression and Israeli law was extended to it after the Syrian government announced that it would never negotiate with Israel "...not in 100 years." The Israelis had sound reason to believe them since the Syrians have already refused for 33 years to make peace with Israel or acknowledge its right to exist.

Where is the U.S. reaction to Egyptian insistence that not one single Jew be allowed to remain in the Sinai or Judea and Samaria? Israel does not practice a no-Arab policy. It granted full citizenship to the 146,000 Arabs who chose to remain when the Jewish state was established. In the Israeli "declaration of independence" you will find not only a solemn guarantee of freedom of religion but also the statement that Israel shall have two official languages — Hebrew and Arabic. Yet, Israel is called intransigent.

There is an easy explanation for the double-standard treatment of Israel. The little country has no oil. Greed for oil and petro-dollars has destroyed our moral principles. Arabs, no matter how unreasonable, hostile and belligerent they are, must be appeased lest the sheiks revoke the profitable oil concessions held by American firms and give them to another company.

In 1973 when Israel, once more a victim of Arab aggression, was fighting for its life, oil company officials were lobbying the American government to shun Israeli pleas for arms and ammunition. Make no mistake. Profitable oil concessions are more valuable than the lives of 3.5 million Jewish men, women and children.

American appeasement of Arab oil sheiks is a disgraceful and dishonorable episode.

Recall restarted on toy ladder after California child's death

WASHINGTON (AP) — After voting last month to "close the file" on a recall involving thousands of toy ladders, the government is renewing it because of the death of a California 2-year-old.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission, in announcing resumption of the recall on Monday, said that up to 239,000 of the toy ladders may still be in use throughout the country.

Commission member Sam Zagoria criticized the toy's maker, the Creative Playthings unit of Gabriel Industries - a division of CBS Inc. — for conducting a "very inadequate" recall the first time.

The Creative Playthings Indoor Gym House toy consists of a small ladder that leads to a platform, with a slide on the other side.

Children have strangled on the toy by sticking their heads between the top rung of the ladder and the platform and getting stuck, said Sandra Kitzes of the CPSC compliance division.

After last month's decision to close the recall, the commission learned of the death of an Oroville, Calif., child, the third fatality involving the toy. The original recall had been announced in February 1980 after two deaths in October 1979.

Although CPSC member Zagoria said the company used "relatively modest devices" to announce the first recall, a Gabriel spokesman denied that. However, the spokesman acknowledged, "It is true we're doing more this go-around" to publicize the matter.

Zagoria said that only about 15 percent of the toy ladder sets had been replaced by the manufacturer when, at the firm's request, the commission voted to close the file last month.

Gabriel will replace the model in question with another that has more room between the ladder rung and the platform, Ms. Kitzes said.

The earlier model either has "Creative Playthings" or no name printed on its side. The redesigned model has "Child Guidance" printed on the side, she said.

Columbia's third liftoff may be shuttled by rain

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Meteorologists forecast more rain for the soaked Mojave Desert lakebed that is the space shuttle's primary landing site, while NASA officials predicted "a lot of headknocking" over whether Columbia's third flight will be delayed.

The third-mission schedule, so far virtually free of human or mechanical problems, calls for Columbia to blast off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., on Monday with astronauts Jack R. Lousma and C. Gordon Fullerton aboard. The spacecraft is to land here seven days later on March 29.

But at the Dryden Flight Research Center on this sprawling desert air base 100 miles north of Los Angeles, NASA spokesman Lee Reinerston said Monday the weather forecast called for increasing cloudiness with rain likely Wednesday and Thursday.

"We're still looking at the problem and whether we have a problem. It really depends on whether we have more rain out there," added David Garrett, a spokesman at the NASA headquarters in Washington.

"It looks like the place would be dry two weeks from today (when the landing is planned) if we don't have more rain," he said.

More than three-fourths of an inch of rain has soaked the base since Thursday, sending tiny streams cutting through Runway 23 where Columbia glided to near-perfect landings last April and November.

However, Reinertson optimistically noted that high desert weather is notoriously unpredictable.

"These weather things are really chancy. These conditions could exist or they might not," he said. "It's a cliffhanger."

Reinertson added that gusty winds had drawn off some standing puddles and, "it looks a little bit better than it did Friday afternoon. There's still standing water on the western shore."

If the lakebed is too soggy for Columbia, NASA apparently can either delay the launch or use an alternate landing site, White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico. That base and a landing strip at Kennedy Space Center in Florida are designated contingency sites for an emergency landing.

Some Massachusetts clams said unfit

BOSTON (AP) — More than 35 percent of the soft-shelled clams on the market in Massachusetts have traces of water pollution and are unfit to eat, the Department of Public Health has warned.

"The public should be concerned," Nancy Ridley, director of the department's Food and Drug Division, said Monday after disclosing the figures. She said a department survey disclosed that clam samples taken from wholesale and retail establishments exceeded the legal contamination level by 10 to 20 times.

She warned against such seafood favorites as steamed clams, which, she said, often were not steamed long enough.

Contaminated clams can spread hepatitis, a debilitating disease involving inflammation of the liver that can cause permanent liver damage and even death.

Harrisburg, Pa., residents line up to receive packages of processed American cheese, being offered to the needy by the Department of Agriculture. This giveaway and the government's normal assistance to schools and institutions, however, have made hardly a dent in surpluses.

Dairy price support issue again debated

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Get set for another scramble in Congress over federal milk price supports, a program that costs taxpayers more than $2 billion a year and has bought huge surpluses of butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk.

Congress scaled back the supports last year, but dairy farmers keep producing more milk. As a result, the Reagan administration wants further steps to trim subsidies.

Even some dairy producer groups acknowledge the support system is in deep trouble and are advocating their own legislative package that would let farmers absorb part of the cost of the government acquiring large surpluses.

Surplus cheese is being given away to needy families, and dairy products are given schools and other institutions as part of the government's normal assistance programs. But hardly a dent is being made in the surpluses.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, expressing a frustration that plagued many of his predecessors who were faced with rising milk surpluses, says the dairy program costs $250,000 per hour. He says that is "intolerable" and "unacceptable."

Just storing the surplus costs $42.5 million a year. Last year alone, the Commodity Credit Corp. of the USDA bought the equivalent of about one of every 10 gallons of milk that farmers produced.

By Block's latest reckoning, the dairy support program will cost $2.2 billion and may approach that level again in 1982-83 if nothing further is done.

The basic problem is too many milk cows, Block says. And there's only one real solution: A voluntary cutback of about 10 percent in the nation's dairy herd "before someone else does it for us," he told a dairy meeting recently.

Block has ordered a "public dairy symposium" to be held in Kansas City, Mo., on March 22-23 to gather view for drafting recommendations to Congress on changing the dairy support program.

What is this awesome dairy surplus and how did it get that way?

With the passage of the Agricultural Act of 1949, Congress authorized a nationwide milk price support program based on a percent of parity — an indicator linked to costs of production and purchasing power.

It has been tinkered with, sweetened and pruned many times over the last three decades.

The government does not pay dairy farmers directly. Instead, the Commodity Credit Corp. is required to buy butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk to keep prices from falling below the specified support price for "manufacturing grade" milk.

Related programs built around federal milk marketing orders — and, in some cases, state programs — set floor prices for milk sold at retail.

Dairy farmers were once more numerous, but the average herd was smaller and so was the average milk output.

But there were times of surplus production and government stockpiles rose sharply. In 1953, for example, the CCC bought the equivalent of 10.2 billion pounds of milk. Another bulge was in 1962 when purchases totaled 10.7 billion pounds. By comparison, last year's surplus purchases rose to 12.9 billion pounds, a record.

Milk production set records the past two years at 128.4 billion pounds in 1980 and 132.4 billion pounds in 1981. The old record was 126.9 billion pounds in 1964.

Cows today are gushers of milk compared to cows in 1964.

Last year, according to USDA records, the average dairy cow produced 12,147 pounds of milk — 1,412 gallons. In 1964, the average cow produced about 8,000 pounds or 930 gallons.

Expressed another way, it took 10.9 million cows in 1981 to produce a record level of milk, compared to 15.7 million cows in 1964.

The production climb has accelerated in the last few years. So have prices of milk paid to farmers, largely because of rising supports.

In 1978, according to official USDA figures, milk production was 121.5 billion pounds, with commercial use at 118.8 billion pounds. The average farm price of milk was $10.60 per 100 pounds.

Labor leader begins farm wage march

AGRICULTURE

SAN JUAN, Texas (AP) — Farm labor leader Cesar Chavez accused the U.S. Labor Department of failing to enforce minimum wage laws with the result that many Texas farmworkers earn almost $1 below federal requirements.

"We tried to cover the entire Rio Grande Valley in a wage survey and found people are making $2.45 an hour," Chavez told a news conference Monday. "I couldn't believe it. That's lower than the Carolinas and Florida."

He said the survey conducted in the past two weeks covered 300 agricultural employers from Brownsville to La Joya.

Chavez arrived in Texas to lead a march beginning today at the federal courthouse in Brownsville. The marchers will cover 50 miles and meet Sunday here with another march originating from La Joya.

The two marches are to publicize farmworkers' wage demands to be paid the $3.35 minimum wage. Growers for years have disputed the union's claims of low wages.

Chavez said he will hand "hundreds" of wage complaints to Labor Department officials before the march.

However, the Labor Department's Brownsville office is located several miles away from the federal courthouse. Investigators will be at the office to receive complaints, a department spokesman said Monday.

"We have been acutely aware of the allegations of the UFW and we have re-extended a special invitation to them to bring their complaints," said Bill Nogues, assistant area director of the Labor Department's wage and hour section in Corpus Christi.

Nogues said in a telephone interview that 90 percent of cases involving alleged minimum wage violations are discovered by field crews driving through the Valley during harvest season.

"We're not waiting from complaints to come in from farmworkers. We're out there beating the bushes," he said.

UFW officials say they hope to attract more marchers along the route, as the group rallies each night in different towns before resuming the trek each day at 8 a.m.

"If we start with 50 people, we're fine," he said when asked how many will participate. "If we wind up with 1,000, I'm fine."

Chavez led a similar march in 1967 from Rio Grande City to Austin to protest 80 cents an hour wages.

"We were asking for a lousy $1.25," he said.

UFW organizing in Texas has suffered from leadership problems, Chavez said.

"Our first director here couldn't get off the ground and the second thought he could do better on his own," Chavez said. He second reference was to Antonio Orendain, who split with the UFW in 1975 to form the Texas Farmworkers Union — a constant sore spot with Texas UFW officials.

UFW organizing will be difficult in Texas without collective-bargaining legislation forcing growers to sign union contracts, he said. California, where Chavez launched the UFW, has such legislation.

"That makes all the difference in the world," he said. "Until we get that passed, we're not going to get too far."

More school lunch 'freedom' proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Local officials would have more freedom to determine how much food to serve children in school cafeterias if a new Agriculture Department proposal is adopted.

The proposal, announced Monday, also lays to rest a controversial plan considered last year that would reduce minimum food servings and allow substitutes such as ketchup for vegetables in school lunch menus.

Assistant Secretary Mary C. Jarratt, who oversees food stamp and child nutrition programs, said the so-called "offer vs. serve" menu plan would help prevent waste by allowing schools to serve children only what they intend to eat.

Some 23 million children eat federally subsidized lunches each day. The program is expected to cost the government about $2.5 billion in the fiscal year which began last Oct. 1.

The menu plan has been approved for senior high schools since 1976 and for junior high and middle schools since 1978. Congress last year authorized that it be extended to the lower grades.

Currently, under the plan, schools are required to offer full servings of five items — meat, milk, bread and two fruits and-or vegetables. But a child is required to accept full portions in only three.

Ms. Jarratt told a meeting of the American School Food Service Association that the proposed regulations would modify that rule.

DEAR ABBY

Medical airline is high-flying success

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is to bring you up to date on AirLifeLine, the non-profit association of airplane pilots (and others) who volunteer their time and planes to fly medical personnel, equipment and supplies, free of charge, in emergency situations.

We are progressing very well. We now have almost 500 pilots in 40 states. Money remains a problem, but I suppose that is the constant battle any group of our type faces.

Recently several volunteer pilots engaged in a four-month project flying mother's milk twice weekly from Sacramento to Modesto, Calif. to save a 1-month-old baby who had been kidnapped with his mother two weeks earlier.

The baby was found near his brutally murdered mother and taken to Modesto Memorial Hospital. There the doctors found that the baby was allergic to baby formula and might not survive without mother's milk. The call for mother's milk went out, and 13 mothers responded! Members of the Sacramento-based AirLifeLine donated their time, flight costs and privately owned craft in making the 60-mile hop between Sacramento and Modesto on a "mother's milk run" to keep the baby alive. The infant is alive today and doing well.

AirLifeLine also made three mercy flights to Culiacan, Mexico, in cooperation with the non-profit Surgical Eye Expeditions International in sending teams of specialists to perform corrective eye surgery at a clinic. They have provided free medical service to 131 Culiacan patients.

AirLifeLine recently flew a kidney to San Francisco where it was transferred to a commerical airline and delivered to a patient awaiting a transplant in Tennessee. Another pilot flew a rare blood type north to Oregon for an accident victim who might have died without it.

AirLifeLine is a network of caring professionals who volunteer their services to deliver vital human organs, tissue and rare blood types to recipients in remote areas not reachable by commercial carriers.

Your publicizing AirLifeLine has provided great impetus to our organization and has inspired our board of directors to name Dear Abby its first Honorary Life Member.

For those interested in membership, or in making tax-deductible donations, our address is: AirLifeLine, 1005 8th St., Suite 302, Sacramento, Calif. 95814. Phone: (916) 442-6230.

Again we thank you, as do the increasing number of beneficiaries of AirfLifeLine services. Sincerely yours — FREDERICK J. SIMONELLI, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

DEAR ABBY: Not every mother takes it lying down when she is neglected by her children. Enclosed is a note I received from my mother:

"Dear Son: Where in hell is my Christmas present? I didn't even get a blasted card! What gives? — Your ever-loving so-called mother.

"P.S. If you have died, please disregard this letter." — NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: "What gives?" your mother asks. Obviously, not you, son.

Symphony Guild to hear address on fund raising here Wednesday

Symphony Guild members will hear a program on "The Difference in Funding the Arts Is You," a speech on fund raising by Mrs. Theodore Strauss of Dallas Wednesday.

The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium of Midland College.

Mrs. Strauss, a graduate of Columbia University in New York, where she received her master of arts degree in sociology and psychology, is currently serving on some 20 boards across the nation, and has served previously on numerous other boards.

She has also raised over $6 million as leader in many city-wide campaigns and fundraising projects.

She was elected to Phi Beta Kappa her junior year at the University of Texas at Austin and was named Outstanding Woman Speaker in the Southwest, among other honors.

Basics cited for survival in the desert

By PEGGY BRYANT
Tempe Daily News

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Mike Trimble says you don't need as much to survive in the desert in an emergency as people think.

Trimble, who has been teaching courses and doing research on wilderness survival since his student days at Arizona State University, emphasizes in his courses that the most basic tool for survival is also the most important — your mind.

The Corona del Sol High School biology teacher says each situation is unique.

In an emergency, "instead of having the situation control you, you should control the situation," Trimble says. That demands a sound mental state that "removes the element of panic," common sense, a level head and imagination — all part of that most important tool, the mind.

Trimble, an avid outdoorsman who has had to put survival techniques to use himself on occasion, speaks of what he calls the five basic necessities for survival on desert, mountain top or other wilderness area.

The basics, he says, are food, water, warmth, shelter and mental or spiritual attitude. Trimble points out that the spiritual attitude becomes most important "when death is imminent" and it's recognized there is going to be no rescue.

And though the mind is the basic tool in survival, there are others — including survival kits that every traveler should carry in the car.

"A mirror is probably the most important tool" for that survival kit for desert travelers, Trimble says. If you're lost or stranded on the desert, "you probably won't hike out by yourself and you need a mirror to attract attention."

Trimble also advocates a pocket knife, useful for multiple purposes, and string, because it's so versatile.

Medical spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spending on total health care in the United States increased by 15.2 percent to $247 billion in 1980 — the last full year recorded — reports a medical publication.

According to Family Practice News, medical-care costs in general have grown faster than the American economy. In 1980, they made up 9.4 percent of the gross national product, compared with 8.9 percent the previous year.

More than 88 percent, or $218 billion, went for personal health care. The journal said an average of $941 was spent per person for personal medical care in 1980 — a 13.9 percent increase from the 1979 level.

Terrorist leader admits to Dozier kidnapping

By CLARA HEMPHILL
Associated Press Writer

VERONA, Italy (AP) — Eight of the 17 Red Brigades members on trial for kidnapping U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier look like ordinary people, and their leader, who testified today, looks the most ordinary of all.

Antonio Savasta, the 27-year-old son of a policeman, is wanted on 17 counts of murder in addition to his admitted role as leader of the abduction Dec. 17 of the highest-ranking American at the NATO base in Verona.

"I was responsible, both politically and militarily for the kidnapping of Dozier," said Savasta, who is believed to have joined the Red Brigades in 1977.

Clean-shaven, with a tidy haircut and black-framed glasses, Savasta has been nicknamed the baby-faced terrorist. He looked completely relaxed in his conservative blue blazer, turtleneck sweater and gray flannel trousers as he told the court why the Red Brigades kidnapped Dozier.

"We wanted to raise the problem of maximum security prisons," Savasta said. Had Dozier not been freed, he said, "we would have asked for the elimination of special sections in prison and of different treatment for political prisoners and common criminals."

Savasta was led to the witness stand from the metal cage where the eight defendants present at the trial are held under armed guard.

Dressed in Ivy League-style clothes, they often smile and chatter quietly in their cage, smoking cigarettes and waving to friends in the courtroom.

The other nine defendants are being tried in absentia, one because he refuses to appear in the courtroom and the others because they are still at large. The trial, which resumed Monday after a week's recess, is expected to last a week, and Dozier is expected to testify Thursday or Friday.

Savasta and four others were arrested in the police raid Jan. 28 that freed the general from an apartment in nearby Padua. Savasta was the first of those arrested to cooperate with the police, telling them in detail of the kidnapping and past activities.

Defense attorneys said his testimony encouraged six others to turn state's evidence, which could reduce their sentences as much as 50 percent. The maximum term for kidnapping is 30 years.

In his 25-page deposition, Savasta told in minute detail how the Red Brigades planned and carried out the kidnapping and even gave an expense account showing how much the leftist terrorists spent on the small tent in which Dozier was held inside the apartment, uniforms they used as disguises, trips around Italy and food consumed.

In an open letter to the press, he and several other defendants were abandoning terrorism because they realized they did not have the support of the working class.

"He's dissociated himself because he thinks it's useless," his lawyer, Emanuele Fracasso, said. "It's a process of reflection which may have begun before he was arrested."

Reputed Red Brigades leader Antonio Savasta, in manacles, is led to court in Verona, Italy, Monday by police. A judge ruled that confessions obtained from suspects in the Dozier kidnapping were inadmissable evidence because they had been obtained under duress.

Woman guerrilla leads attack

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas commanded by a woman made coordinated hit-and-run attacks on army posts in three working-class suburbs of El Salvador's capital, witnesses and rebel broadcasts said. Eleven dead were reported.

The insurgents' Radio Venceremos announced the daylight assaults Monday as soon as they began and said they were led by Anna Sonia Medina, a commander of the People's Revolutionary Army (ERP).

Some sources said as many as 200 rebels in trucks made the attacks in the suburbs of Mejicanos, Villa Delgado and Cuscatancingo, on the northern outskirts of the capital in an area where the guerrillas and government forces clash frequently.

A rebel broadcast claimed at least six national guardsmen were killed in Cuscatancingo and a political rally was held, indicating the rebels controlled the area briefly.

Witnesses in Mejicanos said a gunfight raged outside a Roman Catholic church and insurgents fired rocket grenades at the army post. A military source said two soldiers, two guerrillas and one civilian were killed.

There were no details available on the Villa Delgado assault.

Meanwhile, the military member of the U.S.-backed government junta warned rightist candidates in the March 28 constituent assembly elections not to try to reverse the junta's social reforms.

Pentagon: U.S. needs chemical weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States needs to resume production of chemical weapons to counter an enormous and potent Soviet threat that poses the "greatest vulnerability" to American soldiers, the Pentagon says.

The warning issued Monday by top Pentagon officials was in support of a Reagan administration request to resume production of chemical weapons at a Pine Bluff, Ark., arsenal.

No U.S. chemical weapons have been manufactured since former President Nixon banned their production in 1969.

The Soviet chemical threat is "our greatest vulnerability," Army Maj. Gen. Niles Fulwyler told the Senate subcommittee on strategic and theater nuclear forces.

If the Soviets attacked with chemicals, "We would face a choice at a very early stage of heavy losses or of going nuclear," said Richard N. Perle, assistant secretary of defense.

The administration has charged the Soviets with using chemical warfare in Afghanistan and Southeast Asia.

The administration wants to spend $705 million on its chemical programs in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, with most of the money going to improve protective clothing and produce binary bombs.

Binary weapons contain two separate, non-lethal chemicals which become toxic when they are mixed by firing the shell.

The request faces strong opposition in Congress, as demonstrated Monday by a letter signed by a dozen senators who oppose resuming production of chemical weapons.

Even if the United States builds the weapons again, they won't be deployed in Europe, where their possible storage is expected to raise complaints from U.S. allies, Perle told the panel.

"Allied views...clearly will be an important consideration when and if such deployment should ever be necessary," Perle said.

Begin renews invitation to Mubarak

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin today renewed his invitation to Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak to visit Israel, Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Aly said.

Speaking to reporters after meeting with Begin, Aly said he handed the Israeli leader a message from Mubarak and added that the visit would take place at some point.

Begin described the message from Mubarak as "very friendly" and said he would be welcomed "with open arms" when he decides to make his visit, the prime minister's spokesman said.

Jeff Fenn, 26, a truck driver, carries a bottle of distilled water over his shoulder Monday as he talks about his run-in with a man who was arrested in connection with the stabbing of actress Theresa Gilda Saldana in Los Angeles. Ms. Saldana, who played the jole of Jack LaMotta's sister-in-law in the movie "Raging Bull" was critically wounded Monday.

Rates for savings certificates fall this week

By The Associated Press

Savers will earn lower rates on six-month savings certificates issued today as a result of the government's latest auctions of Treasury bills.

The rate paid by banks and savings institutions falls to 13.212 percent from 13.226 percent the previous week. The interest on Treasury bills was up at Monday's auction, but the savings certficate rate was held down by previous auctions included in the four-week average.

At the same time, Monday's higher rates for three- and six-month Treasury bills will produce higher borrowing costs for the federal government. It had to pay an average discount rate of 12.962 percent to sell the six-month bills. In its previous auction the average rate paid was 12.064 percent.

The government's cost of borrowing is at the center of a debate on whether the Reagan administration should defer or eliminate individual income tax cuts in order to reduce the size of the projected budget deficits.

In a three-state swing through the South on Monday, President Reagan blamed Congress for enlarging the budget deficits and "aggravating the recession."

In Montgomery, Ala., Reagan told state legislators that Congress is at fault for changing his original proposal for cutting individual income taxes by 30 percent over three years.

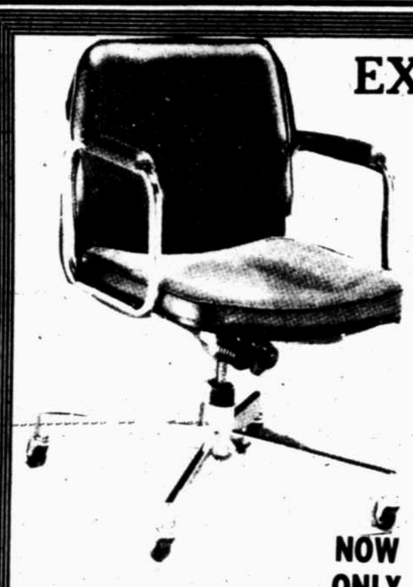

The president complained that he "had to accept a compromise" that reduced the first installment of the tax cut to 5 percent from 10 percent and delayed the starting date from Jan. 1, 1981 to Oct. 1 of last year.

New reports from the nation's automakers give no sign of recovery in that beleaguered industry. The Big Three automakers said new car sales fell 31 percent in the first 10 days of March from the same period last year.

Jury finds Claus von Bulow guilty

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A jury today found socialite Claus C. von Bulow guilty of twice trying to murder his heiress wife with insulin injections that plunged her into an irreversible coma.

Von Bulow, 55, could be sentenced to 40 years in prison, but he was allowed to remain free on $100,000 bond pending an April 2 hearing.

Gasps were audible in the courtroom, packed with reporters and relatives of the victim, as jury forewoman Barbara Connett announced the two verdicts, which the seven-man, five-woman jury reached after deliberating for 36 hours over six days.

The tall, balding defendant, seated at the defense table with hands folded in front him, gazed straight ahead with a worried frown, but otherwise maintained the stoic poise he displayed throughout the nine-week trial.

Superior Court Judge Thomas H. Needham continued bond for the Danish-born financial consultant and set April 2 to hear a defense motion for a new trial. No date was set for sentencing.

Von Bulow called his teen-age daughter, Cosima, immediately after the verdict and left the courthouse to cheers and applause as spectators chanted "Free Claus, Free Claus." His cab, escorted by six sheriff's deputies, cut a path through the crowd back to his hotel.

Defense attorney Herald Price Fahringer said an appeal was planned. Asked how von Bulow took the verdict, he replied, "He was very grave about it. He was obviously saddened but he took it like a man. I had told him in advance that I thought we would utlimately prevail in the appellate court should there be a conviction and I hope that gave him some encouragement."

AFTER THE verdict, Fahringer said, "I simply turned to him and said I was awfully sorry. He said he knew we had done our best."

He said he and von Bulow would fly back today to New York, where the defendant has a home.

Prosecutor Stephen R. Famiglietti said, "I'm happy, I'm delighted and I'm proud of this jury. I think they did a very difficult and courageous thing."

Mrs. Connett, in a clear voice, twice responded "Guilty" when asked by the court clerk for the jury's finding on the two counts of attempted murder.

The jury found that Von Bulow twice tried to murder Martha "Sunny" von Bulow with insulin injections. Prosecutors said he wanted the $14 million he stood to inherit from her $75 million fortune and also wanted to be free to marry his 36-year-old lover, a former soap opera actress.

Mrs. von Bulow lapsed into comas after both alleged attempts. She recovered the first time but has not recovered from the second coma after nearly 15 months.

"It has been a long trial and a tremendous strain on you, the jury, as well as the defendant," Needham said before recessing court.

Famiglietti urged the judge to revoke bail, saying von Bulow was a wealthy man capable of fleein[illegible] his native Denmark, and "we could not compel the country of Denmark to return him."

Fahringer told reporters that "I will never know how much his love of another woman played a part" in the jury's decision, "or his aristocratic background or the fact that he is not an American citizen."

If given concurrent 20 year terms on the two counts, von Bulow would be eligible for parole in 7½ years. If the terms are consecutive, he would have to serve nearly 14 years behind bars.

Auto sales down 31.5%

DETROIT (AP) — Rebates and other sales incentives are failing to attract the nation's new-car buyers, new industry figures show, and one analyst says there's no sign of a spring upturn.

Sales reports released Monday by the carmakers said deliveries in early March plummeted 31.5 percent, compared with the March 1-10 period a year ago.

U.S. automakers sold 156,432 cars in nine sales days, against 203,053 in eight days last year. The percentage decline is computed on a daily sales rate of 17,381 this year compared with 25,382 a year ago.

It is in the Monahans field which produces from the Permian Tubb at 5,601 feet.

Gasoline wars wage on in California

By KAREN TUMULTY
The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — With the cool determination of a seasoned general sketching out a critical military campaign Exxon dealer Harry Chouchanian plots what amounts to a frontal assault on nearby service stations.

"I'm going to take a chance," the 28-year-old Armenian immigrant says of his latest maneuver — a 2-cent-a-gallon price cut, which he made Monday in hopes of drawing more customers.

The busy strip of Santa Monica Boulevard, like other "gasoline alleys" in cities around the country, has become a battleground of sorts for the dozen or so service stations operating there.

Their weapons are their prices, which they and their counterparts throughout the nation have been slashing in recent months in a scramble to revitalize sluggish sales.

CHOUCHANIAN, for example, says he is still selling only his usual 70,000 gallons of gasoline a month, even though he has cut 16 cents a gallon from his prices during the last two months.

"When I went down," he complains, "everyone near me went down."

War, in other words, is hell — unless you happen to be a consumer.

After almost a decade of seeing gasoline costs take a growing share of their budgets, motorists are enjoying a year-long decline in prices. The national average price of gasoline has tumbled by about 10 cents a gallon since it peaked last March at a historic high of almost $1.38.

Moreover, prices have been falling more rapidly in recent months. Dan Lundberg, whose Los Angeles-based survey tracks gasoline price movements in 170 metropolitan areas, says the average has declined more than 4 cents this year.

BECAUSE GASOLINE prices rose so much during the 1970s, this year's decrease amounts to only 3 percent. But in terms of pennies per gallon, the 4-cent reduction is the steepest since the mid-1960s, when "gas wars" were as easy to find as 6 percent mortgages.

Low-cost independent oil companies are leading recent pricing skirmishes, which in some regions have become particularly fierce.

Twelve days ago, for example, Mars Oil Co. touched off an all-out battle with other oil companies in the St. Louis area when it sliced 7 cents off its prices and began selling leaded regular fuel at its 12 self-serve stations there for 96.9 cents a gallon. The price has been matched by some competitors and is believed to be the lowest in the nation.

In Birmingham, Ala., where Mars' prices have fallen to about $1.03 a gallon, the lines of eager customers have grown so long that several motorists have been ticketed for blocking traffic, company spokesman Gordon Hopper says.

Mars officials say they plan to hold their prices through the end of the month.

It is difficult to determine how far and how fast prices will fall. Most analysts say they expect the decline to continue, at least during the next few months. But while some are predicting that prices of less than $1 a gallon will be common by the end of the year, others are saying the most dramatic cuts already have occurred.

Of course, all bets are off in the event of a major supply interruption in the Middle East.

THERE ARE SEVERAL reasons for the recent turnaround in gasoline prices. Motorists, who are driving smaller, more fuel-efficient cars, are demanding less gasoline than experts had predicted.

Meanwhile, world oil markets are being flooded with new supplies, both from members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting countries and from other producers, such as Mexico and companies operating in the North Sea.

Although state taxes boost California prices slightly above the national average, industry sources say competition here is especially vigorous because the market is a prime target for a number of gasoline suppliers, including those who sell low-price Chinese fuel. Imports of Chinese gasoline have grown tenfold since 1979, and while it accounts for less than 2 percent of the total sold in California, analysts say it has played a significant role in easing prices in an already glutted market.

"The market is just awash in gasoline," one independent refining company planner says.

Faced with stiffer competition from small independent chains, major oil companies are trimming their costs. Atlantic Richfield Co., for example, announced last week that it will drop its credit-card business because the service adds an estimated 3 cents a gallon to the price of its gasoline.

IN THEIR ATTEMPTS to hold their eroding market shares, oil companies have been offering rebates to service-station dealers who could maintain their sales volume in the face of growing competition. But in the last two weeks, several — including Mobil Corp., Standard Oil Co. of California and Shell Oil Co. — have discarded the rebate programs in favor of across-the-board wholesale price cuts, which analysts said could bring down the prices of some major brands by as much as 8 cents a gallon.

Thus, the prices that service station dealers must pay their suppliers have been falling rapidly. Lundberg estimates wholesale prices fell more than 3 cents a gallon during the two weeks between Feb. 19 and March 5 alone.

Oil-company executives are quick to note that they are not making the cuts in an effort to stimulate more driving and reverse the fuel-conservation gains of the 1970s. What they are doing, they say, is trying to prevent other companies from taking a greater share of their business.

Meanwhile, the nature of competition among service stations continues to change. The familiar full-service outlet, complete with repair shop, is being replaced by high-volume, 'self-service stations, many of which can be operated by a single cashier in a glass-windowed booth. Such bare-bones operations can offer lower prices, because their costs are lower.

CHARLES KHALIL, a Mobil dealer operating along the Santa Monica Boulevard strip in Los Angeles, complains about the effect that one such streamlined Shell facility — located less than two blocks from Khalil's more traditional station — is having on his business.

"He sells at the same price I buy for," Khalil says, "and he sells five times more gas than I do."

New plan would lease virtually all coastal waters for oil, gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James Watt says he remains committed to his goal of offering virtually all of U.S. coastal waters for oil and gas leasing despite the furor the plan has provoked.

"This administration believes that we can develop America's energy resources while protecting our environment," Watt said Monday in unveiling an accelerated leasing program.

The 5-year plan, which would replace a leasing schedule drawn up by the Carter administration, calls for 40 separate lease sales and differed only slightly from a schedule Watt first proposed a year ago.

Responding to strong objections from the governor of Alaska, Watt did drop an April 1983 sale in Alaska's Bristol Bay, site of the largest salmon run in the world. However, drilling leases in the bay would be sold in April 1985 under Watt's schedule.

The interior secretary also dropped two sales off Florida's West coast and delayed for a few months two sales off Northern and Central California.

But the rest of the schedule is virtually unchanged and the overall goal of offering 1 billion acres was left intact.

Environmentalists charged that Watt was refusing to take into account comments from state and local officials that his leasing program would open up coastal areas too quickly with too few environmental safeguards.

"We are extremely alarmed about the magnitude of leasing that is contemplated," said Sarah Chasis, an attorney for the Natural Resources Defense Council.

Watt did retreat somewhat from one aspect of his program. The secretary had first proposed leasing entire offshore planning areas, which range in size up to 120 million acres. That represented a dramatic change from current lease sales which cover only about 2 million acres at a time.

The department said Monday that Watt now intends to be governed by a December memo in which he directed the leasing program to focus on offshore tracts nominated by the U.S. Geological Survey, oil companies or state government to be areas of high potential.

Under this approach, the 1 billion acres would be available for industry consideration, but only specific tracts which generate interest will actually be offered for lease.

Interior Department officials have said they expect this plan will result in between 10 million and 20 million acres being leased each year. By comparison, 2.2 million acres were leased last year, setting a record in the 27-year history of the offshore leasing program.

Oteiba wants price maintained

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — OPEC's chairman today was quoted as saying the world oil cartel must maintain its price of $34 a barrel and lower production, but would cut its price "considerably" if forced to by non-OPEC competitors.

"I hasten to say that we must maintain this ($34) price level," Mana Saeed Oteiba was quoted as saying in an interview with the Lebanese magazine Al-Sayyad. OPEC will meet in emergency session Friday in Vienna.

"We are now in a tight corner and we must defend this price and the only way to do so is to lower our production level and this step must be taken no matter what the sacrifices," Oteiba said.

Oteiba, the oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, said the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was "in the midst of an unprecedented storm," and warned that if OPEC lost its control over oil pricing it would disintegrate."

The OPEC nations produce about 20 million barrels of oil daily, some 2 million of which remains unsold on world markets every day. The Saudis, the biggest exporter, have cut production from 8.5 million to 7.5 million barrels, while other producers have been cutting prices.

Oteiba castigated small oil-producing countries who are not members of OPEC such as Mexico, North Sea oil producers and others for selling their crude oil at prices below OPEC's benchmark price. Britain slashed its price $4 a barrel last week.

"Oil-producing countries which are not members of OPEC must stand by us and defend our price because they are the only ones to gain if oil prices are increased, and it is not fair or correct for these countries to sell their oil cheaply because this increases pressure on OPEC prices and it is more advantageous for them to produce less and sell at higher prices," Oteiba said.

"We have told (these countries) that by reducing their oil prices they are being hostile to OPEC. On the other hand we have several options and if we find that we are being threatened then we will not hesitate in reducing our oil price considerably. The weapon is in our hands and we will not hesitate to use it."

Otaiba said a decrease in oil production levels was advisable but insisted on maintaining current prices. "... If we resort to producing less and selling cheaply this will not be to the advantage of any oil-producing country because of the current glut on oil markets," he said.

Bradley scores 95-81 win over Syracuse in NIT

Texas A&M survives road trip to Washington, 69-65

Washington Husky Kenny Lyles (35) reaches from behind Texas A&M's Lonniel Bluntson (35) for the rebound of an Aggie shot in the first period of Monday night's NIT game in Seattle.

Although it didn't do much to assuage Dick Versace's feelings, the Bradley coach exacted a measure of revenge against the Big East Conference.

Bradley's Braves, who were bypassed for the NCAA Basketball Tournament after winning the regular-season championship of the Missouri Valley Conference, took their frustrations out on Big East member Syracuse, trouncing the Orangemen 95-81 Monday night in a second-round National Invitation Tournament game.

"We're Missouri Valley champions, and it's a difficult league," said Versace, who has made no secret of his displeasure with Dave Gavitt, chairman of the NCAA Division I Basketball Committee and Big East commissioner, ever since four Big East teams were picked for the NCAA Tournament, while only Tulsa and Illinois State made it from the MVC.

"We should have been included in the (NCAA) tournament, although I'm glad to be in the NIT."

SYRACUSE COACH Jim Boeheim wasn't happy at all after the Orangemen were embarrassed on their own court as David Thirdkill scored 23 points for Bradley and Mitchell Anderson added 20.

"We didn't play well enough offensively to stay within reach. When they got ahead, all we could do was make an effort. They were excellent," said Boeheim, who refused to be drawn into the MVC-Big East controversy.

Bradley was outscored from the floor 37 field goals to 30, but won the game at the free throw line, connecting on 35 of 47, while Syracuse was only 7 of 15. The Braves built their lead to 13 points at halftime. Willie Scott hit two quick baskets after the intermission and five points by Anderson in the first five minutes built Bradley's lead to 62-38.

Syracuse and Rutgers were the only eastern teams left in the NIT field, but Rutgers was crushed by Purdue 98-65 at West Lafayette, Ind.

IN OTHER games, Georgia trounced visiting Maryland 83-69, Dayton shaded Illinois 61-58 at Champaign, Ill., Virginia Tech nipped Mississippi 61-59 at Oxford, Miss., Oklahoma, playing at home, turned back Cal-Irvine 80-77, Texas A&M won a road game at Washington 69-65 and Tulane won at Nevada-Las Vegas 56-51.

The semifinals and finals will be held in New York's Madison Square Garden next week. First, however, the third-round schedule finds Virginia Tech at Georgia, Tulane at Bradley and Dayton at Oklahoma on Thursday night and Texas A&M at Purdue on Friday night.

Keith Edmonson scored 29 points for Purdue, which built a 14-point halftime lead on 62 percent shooting and rolled over Rutgers. Baskets by Mike Scearce and Ricky Hall and a free throw by Greg Eifert early in the second half pushed the lead to 44-25 and Rutgers never came closer than 15 points the rest of the way.

Edmonson, a 6-foot-5 guard who led the Big Ten in scoring, had 17 points in the second half. Rutgers was led by Clarence Tillman with 25 points and Roy Hinson with 22.

GEORGIA'S ERIC Marbury equaled his career high with 25 points and Dominique Wilkins, who sat out seven minutes of the second half with four fouls, added 23 as Georgia downed Maryland. Marbury's jump shot from the right corner put the Bulldogs ahead to stay 10-8.

"Wilkins played great," said Georgia Coach Hugh Durham, "but something that made us feel good was the fact that we were able to increase our lead in the second half with Wilkins out of the game."

Mike Kanieski's scored 14 of his 23 points in the second half to help Dayton turn back several charges by Illinois in the closing minutes. The Illini got within one point with three seconds to go, but Dayton's Larry Schellenberg hit two free throws.

Virginia Tech's Reggie Steppe hit a pair of free throws with 33 seconds remaining and the Hokies held on when Ole Miss' Carlos Clark missed the last shot of the game. Clark, who led all scorers with 28 points, made a free throw with 15 seconds left but missed his second attempt. Ole Miss got the rebound but Clark's last-gasp shot bounced off the back of the rim. Jeff Schneider's 15 points topped the winners.

OKLAHOMA FELL behind Cal-Irvine by 17 points early in the second half before David Little and Bo Overton combined for 35 points after the intermission to pace the Sooners' rally. Little was scoreless and Overton had two points in the first half, which ended with Cal-Irvine on top 34-23.

Oklahoma, backed by 11,187 partisans, got back into the game with an 18-4 burst and led by as many as 10 points, but Cal-Irvine pulled within one with 19 seconds to go. Overton sealed the victory with a pair of free throws. Overton and Chucky Barnett had 20 points apiece and Little 19. Kevin Fuller and Randy Whieldon had 18 apiece for the losers, who played without injured All-American Kevin Magee.

"I'homa Coach Billy Tubbs. "They were awesome."

CLAUDE RILEY scored 17 points and center Rudy Woods added 14 to lead Texas A&M past Washington. Riley's rebound basket with 2:58 left gave the Aggies the lead for good 62-61. Milton Woodley made four free throws to keep the Aggies on top.

Paul Thompson scored 19 points and Tulane rallied from a nine-point second half deficit to defeat Nevada-Las Vegas. Thompson, who sat out part of the second half with four personal fouls, put Tulane on top when he made a three-point play with 2:05 remaining. Daryl Moreau added two free throws with 43 seconds remaining to give the Green Wave some breathing room.

Chaps open play in NJCAA tournament against Westark

HUTCHINSON, Kan.—Midland College begins its quest for a National Junior College Athletic Association basketball title at 7:45 p.m. against Westark of Fort Smith Ark., as the double-elimination tournament began its hectic five-day run.

Westark made it to the tournament by defeating Dodge City, Kan., 71-59 in Dodge City Friday night.

If the Chaps win today, they will play in the 8 p.m. feature tilt Wednesday. A loss would send MC into the losers' bracket and a noon game Thursday.

PLAY BEGAN noon today with unbeaten Tunxis, Conn., 26-0, facing Farrum, Va., at noon and concludes with a floor-quaking 9:30 p.m. showdown between 28-3 Southern Idaho, featuring 7-1, 255-pound Ricky Tunstall, against Miami-Dade North, 30-0, featuring 6-10 Ivan Joseph, the first native of Trinidad to play in the tournament and quite possibly the first pivotman who can speak four languages and read Latin.

Six games are on tap today and the first round of play concludes with two games early Wednesday.

COACH JERRY Stone's Chaps were scheduled to shoot some free throws at a local high school gym. Their only workout on the floor of the 8,000-seat coliseum was Monday morning, although they did workout at a high school later Monday.

Midland is only the third Western Junior College Conference team to make the nationals. Western Texas College went in 1975-77-78-79-80, winning the title in 1975 and 1908. Howard College also has come to Hutchinson five times, the most recent trip in 1969.

Five former national champions are back in the field. Moberly, Mo., a four-time winner here, is making its first trip since 1974. Vincennes, Ind., took titles in 1965-70-72 and brings a 31-4 record into the meet. Southern Idaho was a winner in 1976 and Mercer County, N.J., is one of two back-to-back winners, copping titles in 1973-74. Independence turned the trick in 1977-78.

TEXAS TEAMS have won their share of titles here since the inception of the tournament back in 1948. In addition to WTC's two titles, San Jacinto won in 1968, Kilgore in 1958, Angelo in 1957, Wharton in 1952, and Tyler won in 1949-51.

California no longer sends entries, but Los Angeles City College was a winner in 1950.

"Hutchinson is typical of Kansas towns," says Stone, who was raised in Ark City, Kan., "the red brick streets and old downtown sections. They all seem the same and never change. But tournament week in Hutchinson is something special. Everybody is talking about the teams and, stop for a haircut, and you'll probably hear about how great some team back in the 1950's was."

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Red Sox can't blame Rice for 9-1 loss to Cincinnati

By The Associated Press

While the Boston Red Sox know the main man in their lineup is Jim Rice, who has been tearing apart opposing pitchers in spring training, they probably wish he would save some of those offensive exploits for the summer.

The Red Sox lost a 9-1 decision to the Cincinnati Reds Monday, but Rice wasn't to blame. He stroked three base hits and has seven hits in a row over the last three games. Rice has 10 hits in 23 at bats for a .435 average, with several of those hits to the opposite field. The righty-swinging Rice long has been known as a pull hitter.

Mike Vail collected a double and a single and drove in a pair of runs to highlight the seven-run inning off Boston pitcher Dennis Burtt. Vail opened with a single to right and pinch-hitter Duane Walker singled him to third. A walk to Gary Redus loaded the bases and German Barranca delivered a two-run single.

Dave Concepcion's hit made it 4-0 and a walk and a ground out made it 5-0. Concepcion then stole home when a pickoff play by Red Sox catcher Gary Allenson backfired. Larry Biittner walked and Vail drove in the final two runs of the inning with his double.

IN THEIR first meeting since the 1981 World Series, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the New York Yankees again, this time 6-4.

Veteran outfielder Rick Monday drove in five runs, three with an eighth-inning homer off Yankee pitcher John Pacella that erased a 4-3 New York lead.

Monday drove in the Dodgers' first two runs with a bases-loaded single in the fourth and Ron Cey homered in the sixth.

Dave Collins and rookie Andre Robertson also homered for New York.

LLOYD MOSEBY slammed two home runs off pitcher Jesse Orosco as Toronto edged the Mets. Ellis Valentine homered for New York.

Braves Manager Joe Torre named Bob Horner the team's first captain since Hank Aaron in 1974. Then Atlanta upped its preseason record to 7-1 as rookies Gerald Perry and Glen Bockhorn each knocked in two runs in a five-run seventh.

After the game, Perry and Bockhorn were sent to the Braves' minor league camp.

Dave Engle's two-out single in the ninth capped a two-run Twins' rally. Gary Ward's double had tied the game before Engle's hit.

Pat Putnam and Bobby Johnson belted homers and Al Oliver and Leon Roberts each knocked in two runs for Texas. The other half of the Expos took Kansas City as Larry Parrish and Tim Blackwell hit three-run homers.

Richie Hebner drove in two runs and scored two and Dave Rozema pitched five innings of four-hit shutout ball for the Tigers.

SAMMY STEWART went Rozema one inning better when he scattered five hits and struck out six in six innings for Baltimore. Rookies Cal Ripken Jr. and Bobby Bonner drove in three runs apiece, Ripkin contributing a two-run homer and Bonner a two-run triple.

Bill Buckner's four hits and Ryne Sandberg's two-run double led the Cubs.

The White Sox sent 12 batters to the plate in the 11th inning as the Cardinals made three of their eight errors for the game. Tito Landrum had four singles and two RBI for St. Louis.

In Merida, Mexico, the Mariners were beaten when the Lions scored seven runs in the fourth inning.

Three Arizona games were rained out. In Casa Grande, Milwaukee led California 2-1 after four innings when heavy rains halted the game. The Oakland-San Francisco contest in Scottsdale and San Diego's game against a split Seattle squad in Tempe also were rained out.

Wooden doesn't like NCAA format

CHICAGO (AP) — John Wooden, who coached UCLA basketball teams to NCAA tournament records which may never be broken, said Monday he doesn't like the watering-down of the tournament format.

Wooden, in a promotional appearance for a high school all-American game, said he didn't like the present format of 48 NCAA tourney teams, "but if you're going to expand it, then go all the way and make it like the Indiana high school tournament and let everybody in."

"I'm not advocating extending the season, because it's long enough already," said Wooden. "Just cut off a game or two at the end of the season and add an extra weekend to the tournament."

"They'll soon go to 64 teams and we all know the reason is money. So why not go all the way?"

WOODEN ALSO discussed the use of a shot clock in college, the breaking of records and the dilemma of DePaul, whose 82-75 loss to Boston College knocked the Demons out of the tourney in the first round for the third straight year.

"It would be most unfair of me to judge the DePaul situation from afar," said Wooden. "For the last three years they have had only one loss a season and that has to be the best record in college basketball for those three years."

"Sometimes, when we want something so much that we hurt our chances of attaining it," said Wooden, who retired as UCLA coach after the 1975 season. "I wanted the first national championship so much I could taste it. For three years I did a good job, and we could have won it but didn't. It's possible that is what has happened to DePaul."

Eight fall MSA champs extend streaks

Apparently winning is addictive in the Midland Soccer Association. When the MSA kicked off its ninth season over the weekend, eight of the Fall division champions extended winning streaks.

Duane Garmeson's Golden Eagles, six-under champs of the combined girls and boys division, beat the Blue Bombers on a goal by Craig Irish while for Joe McIntyre's Blue Strikers it was 12 straight wins as Kevin Hebert punched into two goals in the eight under division.

McIntyre could find himself outlawed in the MSA if he continues to ravage the countryside. In two years of coaching, his teams are 27-0-3.

The Scorpions, coached by Larry Theleman, kept their streak alive with a 5-1 win over the Rusk Vikings in 10-under as Greg Brunet scored three goals. Nicole Craft, assisted by Susan Johnson's off-corner kicks, scored twice as Tom Morgan's Super Kicks won 3-1 over the Purple Dragons in the 10-under girls division.

In girls-under 12, N.K. Sharma's Blue Lightnings beat the Blue Blazers, 6-0, on a four-goal spree by Mandy Thorpe. In boys 12-under, Robert Bennett's Cosmos downed the Emerson Scorpions with Jeff Fry and Kris Hunicutt scoring goals.

The Blue Bombers of Sharone McIntyre got a two-goal effort from Kim Nix in a 7-0 win over the Red Devils in girls under-14. In boys under-14, the champion Hustlers beat the Roughnecks, 2-1, as Jody Dunn scored two goals, the second coming with two minutes to play.

The defending champion Thunderbolts of the 8-girls division drew a bye.

Willis pitches Rebels to victory over Pecos, 6-3

PECOS — The Midland Lee Rebels got seven innings of pitching from Bryan Willis and home runs by Joe Williamson and Barry Blackwell Monday enroute to a 6-3 victory over Pecos here.

Willis, 1-0 on the year, struck out four batters and walked one while giving up seven hits and three runs for the victory.

"Willis did a good job for us pitching and he's just a sophomore," said Lee coach Ernie Johnson. "He didn't throw a lot of pitches. He threw strikes all night, not giving them very much."

While Willis was getting the outs, the Rebel batters were scoring the runs needed to win. Williamson and Blackwell paced the long-ball hitters with their home runs, both solo shots, while Scott Ullom connected for a pair of doubles in three attempts and Lane Marks hit a double in a three-for-four effort.

While the Rebels collected a total of 11 hits in the games, they also stranded 13 runners on the base paths.

"Our runs were kind of spotted," said Coach Johnson. "We'd pick up runs one at a time. A big factor for us was we left 13 men on the bases, seven in the first two innings. If we would have gotten a few key hits, we would have scored in bunches."

The victory upped Lee's record to 5-4 on the year while Pecos dropped to the same mark.

On Thursday, the Rebels will make their home debut as they host Pecos at 4 p.m. at Lee Field. Saturday, Lee will face Lubbock Coronado in a double header beginning at 1 p.m.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Little overtakes White to win second OG title

GOLF

CITY OF INDUSTRY, Calif. (AP) — Sally Little shot a 3-under-par 70 to overtake Donna H. White and win the $150,000 Olympia Gold women's golf tournament for the second consecutive year.

Little finished two strokes ahead of White, who began the day with a 3-shot lead over Ayako Okamoto and a 4-stroke advantage over Little.

White shot a closing 76. Okamoto had a 74 and Nancy Lopez-Melton, unable to completely overcome a first-round 78, shot a 68 to tie for third, three strokes behind the winner.

Little, a South African who has now won 11 events since joining the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour in 1971, finished with a 4-under-par 288 total. She earned $22,500.

HOUSTON (AP) — Kathy Linney, who had competed on the Ladies Professional Golf Associaton tour since 1975, died of cancer at a local hospital, the LPGA announced. She was 36.

Linney's highest finish on the tour was a fourth at the Birmingham Classic in 1981, shortly before one of several major operations.

TENNIS

BOSTON (AP) — England's Jo Durie toppled fourth-seeded Barbara Potter 7-5, 6-1 in the opening round of the $150,000 Avon tennis championship.

In another opening round match, Andrea Leand defeated Pam Casale 6-3, 6-2.

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — Nick Saviano and Terry Moor, along with Vijay Amritraj of India, won opening round matches in the $300,000 WCT tennis tournament.

Saviano stopped Tim Mayotte 6-2, 6-1 and Moor downed Chris Mayotte 6-3, 6-3 in all-American battles, while Amritraj defeated Peter Rennert 7-6, 6-4.

METZ, France (AP) — Second seeded Pat Dupre eliminated Robert Reininger 7-5, 6-4 in the opening match of the $75,000 Lorraine Open tennis tournament.

In other matches, Paul Torre of France downed Heuk Sundstrom of Sweden 0-6, 6-4, 6-4; Jan Gunnarsson of Sweden defeated Helmut Kirchhubel of West Germany 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, and Dischalk van der Meerve of South Africa upset Dick Stockton 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Tim Wilkison upset Shlomo Glickstein of Israel 7-6, 7-6 and Brian Teacher ousted Brad Drewett of Australia 7-6, 6-4 in the opening round of the $250,000 Rotterdam Grand Prix tennis tournament.

In other matches, Vince Van Patten defeated West Germany's Peter Alter 5-7, 6-3, 6-4 and Mel Purcell ousted Junie Cnatman 7-6, 6-4.

BASKETBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Detroit Pistons rookie Kelly Tripucka, who scored 49 points against Golden State and averaged 32.5 points in four games, was named the National Basketball Association Player of the Week.

Tripucka also had 22 rebounds, 13 assists and seven steals during the week. After the Pistons' 121-117 victory over Golden State, in which the forward set personal and Silverdome scoring records, Tripucka scored 37 points as Detroit beat Cleveland 107-103.

HOCKEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Goalie Mario Lessard of the Los Angeles Kings, who posted shutouts against the New York Islanders and Colorado Rockies last week, was named the National Hockey League Player of the Week.

MC women down UTSA tennis 8-1

The Midland College womens tennis team handily defeated a squad from UT San Antonio 8-1 Monday at MC. The win raises the women's team record to 4-2 in dual matches for the spring season.

Today the women and men travel to Abilene for a dual match against Abilene Christian.

The women's hecktic schedule brings them home for a Wednesday match against a strong Wichita State squad, followed Thursday by their second conference encounter of the season against New Mexico Junior College. Here are the MC-UTSA scores with MC players listed first.

Singles: Liz Alvarado defeated Laura Dietrich 7-5

Brokaw could be intimidating, former co-worker Pauley says

Brokaw

Pauley

NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Pauley, co-anchor of NBC-TV's "Today" show, says she liked Tom Brokaw, but she was a little intimidated by his strong personality, which could "take a room by storm."

"Sometimes I adored him. Sometimes I didn't adore him so much," Ms. Pauley said. "But I always liked him."

The 31-year-old journalist said in an interview in Redbook magazine's April issue that Brokaw, who left "Today" to anchor NBC's "Nightly News," used to kid that it would take three people replace him.

"And it did," Ms. Pauley said.

Bryant Gumbel and Chris Wallace were added to the morning news show as Brokaw's replacements. Ms. Pauley remained, making three.

She said "Tom has a very strong, charismatic personality, the kind that can take a room by storm."

Ms. Pauley, who is married to Garry Trudeau, the Pulitzer Prize-winning creator of the Doonesbury comic strip, also said in the interview that her recent miscarriage "was certainly the saddest experience of my life and, I think, of Garry's life as well.

"But we found that the further we got in time from the episode itself, the less we mourned the past and the more we were excited about the future. I still hope to have children."

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Almost a decade after he won a Gold Medal and two silvers in the Munich Olympics of 1972, swimming star Mike Stamm is busy making midnight snacks for a Saudi Arabian prince.

At least five evenings a week, he drives to work at the ocean-view mansion of Prince Fahad T. Abdulaziz, 26-year-old nephew of King Khaled of Saudi Arabia. He advises Fahad about food, puts menus together, prepares and serves meals starting as late as 10 p.m. and works as late as 3:30 a.m.

Stamm, 30, who took the night job last September, also works part-time as a maitre d' at a nearby restaurant.

"I learned to cook in college," he said. "I lived with one of the other swimmers and we used to cook for each other."

"They're young people," said Stamm of the prince and his friends. "They have quite a bit of money to work with and are always polite." Fahad is a student at United States International University, a private San Diego school.

Stamm, a bachelor, lives in an old residential hotel at the edge of Balboa Park about eight miles from the prince's place.

"I have this thing for service — I enjoy entertaining people," he said.

Stamm won Olympic gold in the 4-by-100-meter medley relay and silvers in the 100 and 200-meter backstroke.

CALUMET, Mich. (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco has donated two dolls to help save a Roman Catholic elementary school, and so far the tiny figures have generated a lot of interest and bids of up to $500.

Organizers of the May 22 auction of celebrity items hope to raise $1,000 for the 79-student Sacred Heart Central School, spokeswoman Marcelaine Rovano said Monday.

The school sought donations from 300 celebrities in an attempt to keep the school open after the Diocese of Marquette said it might shut classrooms because of dwindling enrollment and rising costs.

The dolls, described as several inches high and dressed in royal garb to resemble Prince Rainier and the princess, were the first donations among several the committee has received for the auction.

Village Voice competitor folds

NEW YORK (AP) — The Soho News, which added readers last year but still lost $2 million in an unsuccessful bid to compete with the Village Voice, has folded after nine years of publication.

The decision was "unavoidable in view of continuing losses," sadi John Leese, the newspaper's publisher and editor-and-chief.

The 30,000-circulation paper, which had 60 full-time employees, closed Monday after the failure of what Leese termed "sustained efforts to find a suitable buyer willing to continue publication."

"There were circulation increases of 12 to 15 percent" last year, but advertising revenue had not increased proportionately, he said.

The Singing Binion Family from Nashville, Tenn., will perform in concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Church of God, 5300 Thomason Drive. There is no charge and the public is invited.

Program gets students working

By THERESA HUMPHREY

DOVER, Del. (AP) — All Sherry Mumford wanted when she graduated from high school last year was a job — and because of a state program that focuses on students most likely to be unemployed once they leave school, she has one.

Miss Mumford is one of the first success stories of Jobs for Delaware Graduates, a program that targets high school seniors pursuing general education diplomas.

She graduated from Dover High School in June 1981 and immediately began work at a newly opened fast-food restaurant. She started as a cashier and, in less than a year, has had two promotions and a wage increase.

The 19-year-old Miss Mumford says she owes her job to JDG.

"They teach you about interviews, how to fill out applications and write resumes," Miss Mumford said. "I probably wouldn't have gotten this job and the advancement if I hadn't gone through JDG."

In the past, Miss Mumford has had summer jobs, but it never occurred to her to take a resume when applying for a job.

If it wasn't for JDG, "I wouldn't have known how to go about asking an employer questions to let him know I was interested in the job," she said.

JDG — a statewide non-profit corporation — is the brainchild of Gov. Pierre S. du Pont IV, who wanted to provide high school students with jobs in an attempt to keep the teen-agers off the state's unemployment rolls. The program is funded by the U.S. Department of Labor, private foundations and state funds.

"I think it's an attempt not to add to the problem if you can't solve the problem," said Bebe Ross Coker, JDG's director of administration. "These are the kids who fall through the cracks."

The program attempts to teach students basic employment skills — such as how to act during an interview, the importance of arriving on time for work, how to dress, writing resumes, vocabulary and handwriting, among others.

The program is volunteer on the student's part and does not take away from regular class time.

JDG looks for entry-level jobs at businesses ranging from laundries to fast-food restaurants to department stores. Ms. Coker said most of the students start at minimum wage, but added that salaries for JDG graduates range from $6,000 to $16,000 per year.

"We tell kids there is dignity in work. You have to start somewhere," she said. "Invest in yourself."

Although JDG does not guarantee job placement, its results have been promising.

In June 1980, JDG's first graduating class had 611 students of which 517 were placed in jobs — an 85 percent placement rate. The program also includes a nine-month follow-up of students, and in March 1981, 74 percent of those placed were still working.

Ms. Coker said that some students who had changed jobs were included among those still working.

In June 1981, with 935 graduates, 800 of the students were working by September 1981. Retention figures for the 1981 graduates will not be available until later this month.

In the 1981-82 school year, 1,034 seniors are taking part in the program. JDG began in eight Delaware high schools and now operates in 24 of the state's 25 high schools.

Students fail to win a placement for a variety of reasons, Ms Coker explained. Some go back to school, others move from the area or get married and decide not to work.

Some students have been fired from jobs, she said, but many employers come back to JDG for more referrals.

"We're going to have kids that goof off," Ms. Coker said.

One student who worked as a mechanic for a major automobile dealer had a bad habit of taking "joy rides" in the new cars, she said. The youth was fired, but the employer turned to JDG for a replacement.

Seattle TV station wins photography award

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Station KING-TV of Seattle has won the television news photography station-of-the-year honors in the 1981 National Press Photographers Association television news photography competition.

Darrell Barton of KTVY-TV, Oklahoma City, was awarded the Enrie Crisp television news photographer-of-the-year laurels in the competition, results of which were released here Sunday. Crisp was a former president of the National Press Photographers Association.

KTVY-TV and NBC News in Washington were the only multiple, first-place winners among the record number of entries. Officials said 296 TV stations, all three major networks and three Canadian stations submitted entries.

Barton won a top honor in general news for his "Barroom Church" report, and tied for first-place in the sports category for his report on professional wrestler Skandar Akbar. George Fridrich of NBC-TV News in Washington shared that first place for a report titled "Baseball."

Fridrich teamed up with Robert Boyer for first place in features with "Christmas Blues."

Other first-place awards went to Byron R. Stirsman, WHIO-TV, Dayton, Ohio, in spot news for "Duffers Shootout"; Bob Selwyn of WSMV-TV, Nashville, for a mini-documentary on "Crimes Children"; and Paul Henschel, WCCO-TV, Minneapolis, for "Farewell to Freedom" and Ross Lowell of ABC-TV News, New York, for "The Monastery" in the documentary category.

The competition was co-sponsored by Eastman Kodak Co., Cinema Products and the Department of Journalism and Telecommunication at Arizona State University.

Here are winners in the competition:

Ernie Crisp TV News Award
Photographer-of-the-Year

Darrell Barton, KTVY-TV, Oklahoma City.

TV News Photography
Station-of-the-Year

KING-TV, Seattle.

Spot News

General News

1 "Barroom Church," Darrell Barton, KTVY-TV, Oklahoma City; 2 "Baltazaar Funeral," Ron Loving, WXIA-TV, Atlanta; 3 "Fight Over the Colorado," Houston Hall, NBC-TV News, Burbank, Calif.

Features

1 "Christmas Blues," George Fridrich and Robert Boyer, NBC-TV News, Washington; 2 "Horse," George Fridrich, NBC News, Washington; 3 "Jaybird," Jim Berger, KBTV, Denver.

'On Golden Pond' garners spectator-bestowed awards

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie-goers picked the two aging stars of "On Golden Pond" — Henry Fonda and Katharine Hepburn — as best actor and best actress in the 1981 American Movie Awards.

And they cast their votes for Jane Fonda as best supporting actress for her role in the film.

"Raiders of the Lost Ark" took the best film of the year award.

The awards, organized by the National Association of Theater Owners and presented Monday at the Hollywood Palace, were based on audience polls taken at 2,000 theaters nationwide.

John Gielgud, who plays the acerbic servant in "Arthur," was named best supporting actor.

"Raiders," the biggest money-maker of 1981, collected awards for best picture, best director — Steven Spielberg — and best script — by Lawrence Kasdan.

Movie-goers voted Alan Alda and Sally Field the most popular film stars, and Lionel Ritchie was the winner for best original song for his title tune in "Endless Love."

Special awards were presented to Warren Beatty, whose "Reds" won no awards although it was nominated in six categories. Composer John Williams and veteran producer Hal B. Wallis also received special awards.

Although only 13 awards were presented, the program lasted two hours as broadcast on NBC. Many of the gaps were filled with a parade of film clips.

Of the major winners, only Miss Fonda was present.

Fonda's award was accepted by Bette Davis, who told the audience, "We go back a long way." She recalled going on a blind date with Fonda when she was 18 and both were unknowns.

Miss Hepburn's award was claimed by her youthful co-star of "On Golden Pond," Doug McKeon.

Acceptance speeches by Spielberg, Gielgud and Beatty were prerecorded.

Harte-Hanks president gets leadership award

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Texas Daily Newspaper Association presented the fourth annual Pat Taggart award for newspaper leadership Monday night to Robert G. Marbut, president of Harte-Hanks Communications Inc.

The association also made a special award to Frank W. Mayborn, publisher of the Temple Telegram, for his contributions to the newspaper business for more than 50 years.

The Taggart award, named for a retired publisher of the Waco Tribune-Herald, is presented each year to the state's outstanding newspaper leader.

Marbut was cited for "his unrelenting crusade to keep the future of telecommunications free and competitive, both nationally and in Texas, and his inspiring leadership which has served every facet of the American newspaper."

Marbut heads the telecommunications committee of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, which has actively resisted efforts by American Telephone & Telegraph to provide the content of electronic communications to homes.

Mayborn, who also owns the Killeen Daily Herald, was presented a special award.

"For more than 50 years," the citation said, "from reporter to editor and publisher, he has dedicated a vigorous life to giving service, leadership and vision to the newspaper business and making exemplary, lasting contributions to a better quality of life for the people of his city, state and nation."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, March 17, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Ballet great Rudolf Nureyev celebrates this birthday with you. You get a chance to lead in the months just ahead and should find unusual success in business and finance. Loved ones are highly supportive and understand when work has to take precedence over their desires. A new romance adds spice to your life. Member of opposite sex will try to get you to make changes in both your appearance and your lifestyle. Be sure you know what you are getting yourself into! Money from several different sources help you build a firm financial foundation for yourself and your dependents. Replenish savings account before making investments.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can now solve a financial dilemma. Put original ideas on paper; submit concepts, formats and suggestions. Loved one pulls strings for you. Show your gratitude.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Some extra leverage is at your disposal now. Do not be afraid to use it! Good job performance will put you in line for a much-deserved promotion or raise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do something good for a worthy individual. Sympathy and advice are not enough. Give serious thought to older person's needs. Call a family conference to discuss sharing expenses.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Expect some good career or financial news today. Domestic matters will be emphasized during the next few days. Change your routines to relieve tension.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You now receive an opportunity or invitation that turns out to be important. You may have to make difficult decisions connected with your work. Consult mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An opportunity to travel arises. You are able to share your expertise with an influential person, and receive material rewards in return! A social occasion is highly glamorous.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Tensions at work require all of your tact and diplomacy. Public gatherings, travel, partnerships and domestic affairs are featured during the next few days.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Everything seems to go your way today! The support you receive from a loved one gives you a tremendous lift. Your ideas are given a warm welcome by the public.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Creative urges dominate early today. Leave speculation to others. Emphasize reliability, basic services and the need to rebuild relationships.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You will probably be asked for a special favor today. Welcome the opportunity to help. Influential people will see the results. Avoid making hasty commitments where romance is concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your capabilities may be misunderstood. Play for time so that you can prove yourself under more favorable conditions. Guard your money-making ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A friend helps you find your way out of a financial dilemma. Make your decisions only after consulting legal authorities. Out-of-court settlements are apt to be favorable.

The bidding:

| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

Opening lead: Eight of ♡.

The sight of a singleton in dummy can strike fear in the heart of even the stoutest defender. East was a victim of this syndrome in today's hand.

North judged that, at this vulnerability, South would have close to the values for an opening bid for his overcall. So, rather than put any strain on his partner, he elected to jump to game. As it was, South had extra values and he would have accepted any invitation by his partner.

West led his top heart. Declarer grabbed the ace in dummy and immediately led dummy's singleton diamond. East rose with the ace and returned the queen of hearts, but now declarer was in charge. He won the king of hearts, drew two rounds of trumps, ending in his hand, and led the queen of diamonds for a ruffing finesse. Whether West covered or not, declarer would get rid of dummy's heart loser on a high diamond. Even though the ace of clubs was with East, declarer could lose no more than one diamond trick and two clubs.

East should have realized that he had nothing to gain by grabbing the ace of diamonds. Even if South held the king, going up with the ace would establish the king for a heart sluff, so East would merely be swapping trick for trick.

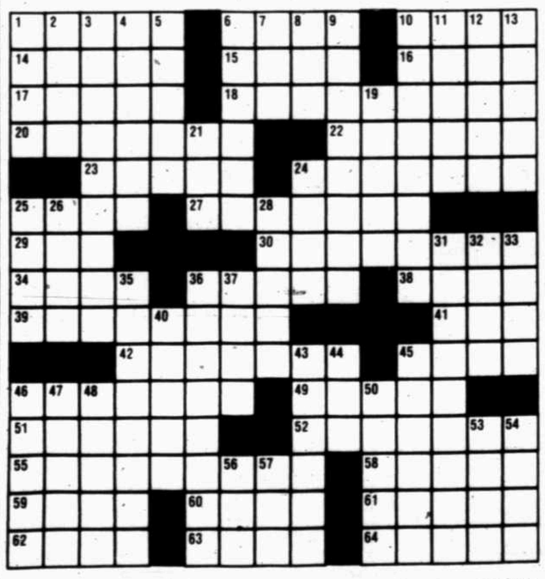

As the cards lie, declarer can be defeated if East plays low when the diamond is led from the table. West wins the king, and he must now shift to the jack of clubs. (If he continues with a heart, declarer can make his contract by stripping diamonds and then end playing East with the third heart.) Once the defenders have their two club tricks in the bag, they can revert to hearts to make sure of getting the setting trick in that suit.

WILD RIVER CANYON IS FOR SALE

Bids are being sought for over 14 acres of C-3 zoned land, appraised at over $2,000,000, located near the southeast corner of Andrews Highway and Loop 250 and which contains Wild River Canyon theme park. Approximately 10 building are included in the sale, along with numerous water structures. Personal property and equipment are not included unless bids specifically state.

The property is ideal for continued use as a theme park, or for conversion to apartments, condominiums, townhouses or office and commercial use.

Plans are available for conversion of the park land and adjacent 30 acres, also zoned C-3 into an office complex. In addition the numerous landscaping improvements, waterways, and existing buildings make the site ideal for an architecturally pleasing apartment, condominium or townhouse development.

Separate bids are being solicited for personal property and equipment, arcade equipment, architecutural specialties and ride equipment. Minimum bid on any grouping of these items is $5000. Items will not be sold on a piecemeal basis.

Bids and inquries from serious parties may be directed to:

BETNE, INC.
P.O. Box 8529
Midland, Texas 79703
Telephone 697-2352

Plats, plans and appraisal are available at 5025 W. Princeton, Suite 4. Owners reserve the right to accept or reject any bids.
