County still studying contract with architects

Deaf Smith County Commissioners Monday continued to tread lightly amidst the move to have a special events center built here, declining to approve a contract with an architectural firm for the project as recommended by the ad-hock committee proposing the SEC's construction.

After meeting Monday morning with representatives of Pierce, Goodwin, & Alexander of Houston, the firm selected by the SEC committee to act as architect for the proposed project, the court decided to meet with them again Monday afternoon, and finally decided to have a third encounter beginning at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Representing the architectural firm were Allen Pierce and Steven Peters, who presented a contract for their services to the county on a contingency basis.

Although a copy of the standard contract had been mailed to the county last week, none of the four county fathers had seen the document as of Monday morning, and as a result, they were reluctant to take any action.

Accompanying the architectural firm representatives to the meeting Monday morning were SEC committee members Jim Conkwright, Wayne Thomas and Ken Rogers, along with City Commissioner Ed Coplen.

Basically, the firm's contract calls for a fee of 6½ percent of the total project cost, which has been loosly estimated at $10 million, with the county's share of the project set at $4 million.

The court has stated before that it does not wish to spend any taxpayers' money on the project until the idea has been approved by the voters of the county in the form of a bond revenue issue to finance the construction.

The commissioners took the same cautious attitude in

Tonnage Looking Good

The 21-acre beet stockpile plot at Holly Sugar has hardly reached its capacity since harvest is only 35 percent complete. Cal Jones, agriculture director at Holly said the sugar percentage is up this year and tonnage is looking good with 20 to 22 tons an acre being harvested. Accelerated harvest begins Nov. 1 and Jones said it should be completed by Nov. 22. Jones also reported factory operations were, due to employees' good attitudes and fine performances, "excellent." Farmers push White candidacy

BY BOB NIGH

Opting for a man in the state's executive mansion who "understands agriculture and who will listen," several area farmers and ranchers are making a last-minute sweep of the area to voice their support for Democratic Gubernatorial Candidate Mark White in the Nov. 2 General Election.

Speaking on behalf of the group, Jerome Friemel of Hereford said that farmers feel that "Gov. Clements has pretty well sold us down the river a time or two."

"We would like the voters of Texas to send a message to Washington by clearing the state house of Republicans," Friemel continued. "We can't afford to have Clements in office much longer."

"We can't stand much more of Reaganomics," Carl King of Dimmitt added. "Like some have said, when Reaganomics set in it was more like rigor mortis."

Friemel and King were just two local area farmers in the group called Farmers and Ranchers for Mark White, which was organized by Dist. 31, State Democratic Commiteeman Doug Seal of Wellington.

The group also planned to make stops in Tulia, Amarillo, Dumas, and Pampa today, meeting with White

Stock market drops 36 points

NEW YORK (AP) — Traders reeling from the worst day on Wall Street since the crash of 1929 are blaming uncertainty over interest rates for the plunge, but analysts called it just an overdue correction in a "manic-depressive" market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had soared more than 250 points since Aug. 12, plunged 36.33 points Monday to 995.13. It was the average's largest single-day drop since it fell 38.33 points on Oct. 28, 1929.

The drop was "an overdue correction in stock prices" in a "highly volatile market," said analyst Howard J. Abner of Abner Herrman & Brock Inc.

The selling was touched off by fears that the Federal Reserve Board had stopped letting interest rates fall, analysts said. After intense speculation that the Fed would cut the discount rate — its loan rate to private financial institutions — the agency left it untouched at 9.5 percent.

That action "was the No. 1 reason in the hit parade affecting stock prices today," said Jack Baker, head of equity trading at the First Boston Corporation.

Monday's selloff erased more than $50 billion from gains recorded by the market in its rally of late summer and early fall.

But Peter Roussell, deputy White House press secretary, said other economic indicators, such as the Consumer Price Index due out today, should be examined before reaching any conclusions about the economy.

"We had one bad blip today, but we set other records last week," he said late Monday. "Let's see what happens tomorrow."

One broker said the market's recent wild fluctuations were testimony to a "manic-depressive" mood among professional money managers.

Once prices began to fall Monday, investors scrambled to cash in their recent gains, putting added downward pressure on the market.

"You've got to put today's selloff in its proper perspective," Abner said. The ruinous 1929 decline occurred from a much lower starting point, so Monday's drop "amounted to only 3.52 percent, compared with 12.8 percent on Oct. 28, 1929."

Also, Monday's volume of 83.72 million shares on the New York Stock Exchange — well below recent trading days of 100 million-plus — suggested little of the atmosphere of the 1929 panic.

Changes in interest rates, which have fallen in the past few months, have become a powerful force on the market, because lower rates tend to make stocks more competitive with yields on fixed-income securities such as bonds.

With the dropping rates, the Dow Jones average had hit a 10-year high of 1,036.98 on Thursday.

Monday's decline came across the board.

Thefts, vandalism keep local police hopping

Bicycle thefts and a case of vandalism were among a list of complaints being investigated Tuesday by the Hereford Police Department.

Linda Vallejo of 501 Jackson reported the theft of a pair of bicycles from her front porch. The value of the items was listed at $150.

Janie Galan of 206 Bennett also reported the theft of a bike, valued at $150.

Officials at Litho Graphics Printing and Office Supply, 621 Main, reported an extensive amount of damage from someone writing on a back door of the business with black shoe polish.

Also being investigated was the theft of 18 pair of boots from Red Arrow Freight, located on South Blevins.

Taylor and Sons, 105 E. Park, reported a juvenile had removed $7.13 worth of items from the store without paying for them. That case was turned over to juvenile authorities after the suspect was apprehended.

Jessie Carmona, 26, was arrested by police on a burglary warrant stemming from a case the previous week.

Nine citations were issued. No tickets were reported and there were 12 police related calls.

Thefts and criminal mischief incidents filled the weekend police blotter.

Rumaldo Garcia, 208 W. Ninth, reported a black station wagon stolen, however it was recovered several hours later.

Funeral held Monday for longtime resident

Funeral services were held Monday at 10 o'clock in Temple Baptist Church for H.S. (Ham) Fuller, 62, who died Saturday at his home after a sudden illness.

The Rev. H.W. Bartlett, pastor, and the Rev. Charles Davenport of Tulia, former pastor of Dawn Baptist Church, officiated. Special music was provided by Douglas Morris and Steve Brashear.

Mr. Fuller was born in Holland, Texas on February 25, 1920. He married Jessie Lee Wilson on May 20, 1939, in Belton. They came to Deaf Smith County in 1948, settling in the Dawn community, where he served as deacon in the Dawn Baptist Church for 18 years.

H.S. FULLER

After moving to Hereford, he was employed at Oglesby Equipment Company and was a member of Temple Baptist Church. He was a veteran of World War II in the U.S. Army.

Pallbearers were Edgar Lemons, Leroy Johnson, Carl Wimberly, Reese Steward, Walter Lemons, and Ray Steward, who Mr. Fuller served with as deacons at Dawn Baptist Church. Honorary pallbearers were employees of Oglesby Equipment Company.

Survivors include his wife of the home; four sons, H.S. Fuller, Jr. of Hereford, Glenn Fuller of Carlsbad, N.M., Joe Fuller of Dimmitt, and George Ray Fuller of Littlefield; three brothers, Wilburn Fuller of Amarillo and Ray and Frank Fuller of

Langley appointed to study contract

Questions on some of the binding phases of an architectural contract for the proposed special events center will be studied and revised by city attorney Ernest Langley, city commissioners decided Monday in a special meeting.

Allen Pierce of Pierce, Goodwin and Alexander of Houston presented the contract to the commissioners.

City leaders were hesitant to agree on the contract since it contained a commitment to promotion of a bond election and includes more potential liability than with the bonding agent already hired.

The contract provides that if the bond issue is not passed by voters, then the city has not lost any money. If the issue does pass, the city will pay the firm for work up until that date and the contract becomes valid. If only one entity passes the bond issue, a fee would be required for schematic design work.

Commissioners questioned the liability of having the construction costs exceed estimates.

No date was set for reconsideration.

Pierce will present the contract to the school board today at 4 p.m. in the HISD administration building.

Close strike vote predicted

DETROIT (AP) — A United Auto Workers leader predicted a close vote today as Chrysler Corp. workers make a "heart-wrenching" choice between working without a quick pay raise or walking picket lines during the holiday season.

The company's 43,200 working UAW members, along with an uncalculated number of the 40,000 workers on indefinite layoff, were eligible to vote in the one-day referendum, which both analysts and UAW leaders said was too close to call.

The workers are deciding whether to strike at 10 a.m. on Nov. 1 or stay on the job under terms of an expired contract until early next year, when talks would resume.

"I hope that they will vote to extend the (expired) contract; I would not like to see a strike," UAW secretary-treasurer Raymond Majerus said in an interview Monday.

Coleman will moderate panel

Deaf Smith County Commissioner Bruce Coleman (Pct. 3) has been chosen to moderate a major panel session at the Third National Assembly on the Jail Crisis Nov. 10-13 in Washington, D.C.

The purpose of the conference is to help communities find ways to reduce jail populations through community alternatives, upgrade correctional programs, and improved jail conditions.

Coleman, a member of the National Association of Counties board, will direct discussion at a panel session entitled "Diverting the Mentally Ill from Jails," which will take place from 2-5 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 11.

Panelists include Dr. Naomi Dank, Administrator of the Montgomery County MH-MR Emergency Service, Inc., Robert M. Hayes, Director of the Coalition for the Homeless, and Lt. Ray Holbrook, Mental Health Deputy for the Galveston County Sheriff's Dept.

Dr. Dank will discuss how his service evolved and explain how other counties can lunch similiar undertakings, while Hayes will discuss intergovernmental aspects of the problem, the shift in responsibility from state to county and the chaos that has resulted at the local level, and Holbrook will discuss Galveston County's "Mental Health Deputy Program."

Mauro to appear at chili supper

Gary Mauro, Democratic candidate for Texas Land Commissioner, brings his campaign to Hereford Wednesday when he appears at a chili supper in the Community Center.

The public is invited to meet the candidate at the chili supper, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

A 34-year-old Austin lawyer, Mauro managed Bob Kruger's successful first race for Congress and later was appointed an assistant comptroller by Bob Bullock. In 1978 he resigned from governmental service to open his own law office.

The land commissioner has the job of managing the 22.5 million acres of state lands and the $800 million per year in income from those lands - most of which goes to the Permanent School Fund and the Permanent University Fund.

The office also administers the Veterans Land Program and awards oil and gas leases for exploration and production of state lands.

Students market poison 'test kit'

WACO, Texas (AP) — Two business students at Baylor University are marketing a test kit they say will protect consumers against poison and acid in aspirin, aspirin substitutes, mouthwash, eyedrops and nasal sprays.

Mark Bower said he and his roommate, Chuck Watson, got the idea after the recent deaths of Chicago-area residents who were poisoned by cyanide-spiked capsules of Extra Strength Tylenol and contamination of over-the-counter health products elsewhere.

Bower said a fraternity brother, who majors in chemistry, helped to develop the kit, which he said is "easy to use."

The kit, which sells for $19.95, uses chemicals that change color and give off an odor if cyanide or arsenic is present in pain-killing tablets or capsules, Bower said.

The kit uses litmus paper to discover acid in eyedrops, mouthwashes and nasal sprays, he said.

Bower said newspapers in Chicago and Dallas refused to run advertisements for the test kit.

"The problem was gaining credibility," Bower said. "We are college students and are operating as a mail-order business."

But Bower said inquiries started coming in after the Fort Worth Star-Telegram ran the ad last Friday.

Bower said his employer, Waco motel owner Tom Kuebler, put up the money to market the kit.

"He (Bower) came to me one night and said if I had some money, he has an excellent product ... I thought it was an excellent idea," Kuebler said.

Bower also said Baylor's Center for Private Enterprise Entrepreneurship has aided the venture.

Excedrin capsules tainted in Denver

DENVER (AP) — Colorado stores were urged to pull extra-strength Excedrin capsules from their shelves after a man became ill from taking a capsule of the pain reliever laced with toxic mercuric chloride, authorities said.

After the poisoning Monday, state health officials advised residents to stop taking Excedrin and return what they have to the stores.

"I want people at home to put it in plastic bags and not touch it any more than they have to" in case police need to check Excedrin bottles for fingerprints, said Dr. Barry Rumack, director of the Rocky Mountain Poison Control Center.

He said handling capsules containing mercuric chloride, used in mercury batteries, fireworks and dyes, probably would not poison anyone who did not swallow them.

Larry Gomez, Denver district director of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, said he lacked authority to order stores to quit selling Excedrin, but called for voluntary action and said federal agents were checking store shelves for other tainted capsules.

The Excedrin incident was the latest in a rash of product taintings around the nation since seven people died in Chicago near the beginning of October after taking cyanide-laced capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol.

William Sinkovic, 23, was listed in stable condition today, improved from critical, in the intensive care unit at Aurora Community Hospital after taking Excedrin found to contain the toxic substance.

A nursing supervisor said Sinkovic was conscious early this morning and able to speak.

Rumack said Sinkovic took three capsules at about 10 a.m. Monday. About a half hour to 45 minutes later he developed acute stomach pains and began vomiting and bleeding — symptoms of heavy metal poisoning, Rumack said.

Sinkovic's wife and mother both said late Monday they did not know where he bought the capsules. Rumack said the pills apparently were purchased within the past month, possibly at one of two local supermarkets.

Harry Levine, spokesman for New York-based Bristol-Myers, which makes Excedrin, said early today the company no immediate comment on the Colorado incident.

But Rumack said he talked Monday to Ben Lanan, medical director of the company, who hoped the spiking was a local problem and offered the services of Bristol-Myers labs.

'Candy Man' seeks stay of execution

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Attorneys for Ronald Clark O'Bryan awaited word from a federal appeals court today that would stay O'Bryan's execution by lethal injection on Halloween for the trick-or-treat cyanide poisoning of his son eight years ago.

In an appeal to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, attorneys characterized O'Bryan as a dreamer with a peaceful nature and said jurors who recommended the death penalty did not give enough consideration to his peaceful nature.

The appeals court did not indicate when it would rule on the request for a stay.

"There is no evidence that Mr. O'Bryan had a prior criminal record or that he ever committed an act of violence in the past," the petition, filed Monday, said.

The brief said that O'Bryan, who would be the first person in the U.S. to be executed by lethal injection, had the best interest of his family at heart.

"Mr. O'Bryan admitted to living beyond his means because he wanted his family to live as well as possible," the petition said. "He was a dreamer. He dreamed the very best he could get for himself and his family."

Jurors who might have had reservations about the death penalty were unfairly excluded from O'Bryan's trial panel, the petition charged.

O'Bryan was convicted in 1975 of giving cyanide-laced candy to his 8-year-old son, Timothy Marc. The boy died within minutes.

Texas District Judge Mike McSpadden on Sept. 30 sentenced O'Bryan to die before sunrise on Halloween, Oct. 31. The judge said he believed the date was appropriate for O'Bryan.

Texans charged with looting casinos

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Three Texans are being held in a Monaco prison on charges they stole $62,500 from two gambling establishments here this summer, police said.

The three, who police allege are part of a gang of eight professional thieves that tampered with slot machines to pay jackpots, are charged with fraud and attempted fraud, authorities said Monday.

Police said one of the gang would use a small, portable battery-powered drill to punch a tiny hole in a slot machine window and insert a thin wire to lock the rotating cylinders of the machine at the jackpot payoff position.

The suspects were identified as Larry Woody, 36; Mark Ellis, 23, and Ellis' wife, Marilyn, 24, all of Palestine, Texas. All three were arrested in August and all are scheduled for trial here sometime in early November.

Five other people sought in the case escaped and none of the money has been recovered, authorities said.

Officers said the trio was arrested after an employee of one of the two establishments checked a slot machine after the jackpot was hit and discovered a thin metal wire left by one of the gang members.

Sheriff corrals suspect quickly

YORKTOWN, Texas (AP) — In Dewitt County, Sheriff Bobby McMahan says he always get's his man.

When a man used a 20-guage shotgun Monday to rob the Yorktown Community Bank of $5,206, McMahan arrested a suspect within 30 minutes.

"We don't fool around down here," McMahan said.

McMahan said a gunman walked into the bank at 2:25 p.m. and demanded money. About 30 minutes later, McMahan said, a car matching the description of the bandit's car was spotted in the nearby South Texas town of Runge.

The car ran through a fence and slammed into a tree, McMahan said. "This old boy here wrecked out. He got a few bruises on his head where he through a fence and hit a tree," the sheriff said.

All the money was recovered, he said.

Guy Laurence Able, 43, of Kenedy, was charged with aggravated robbery and ordered held in the Dewitt County jail on a $50,000 bond, said Justice of the Peace Clarence Riedel.

Able was treated at a hospital in Kenedy and then transferred to the Dewitt County jail in Cuero.

Evil, in the name of 'Religion'

You've heard or heard about the Norman Lear television movie which alleges "McCarthyism in the name of religion."

The TV program accuses some religious groups such as Moral Majority of seeking to force their beliefs on others – even to exerting political force toward that end.

Moral Majority mentor, the Rev. Jarry Falwell, says it is the Lear People who are trying to get rich by promoting "gratuitous sex" on television – and he demands equal time on every station which airs the Lear commentary.

This debate is one of the best things that could happen right now to bring into focus two incontrovertible facts.

One: TV can become an open sewer.

Two: Evil in the name of religion is ever-present.

The apparent dichotomy of an evangelist, Jim Jones, urging his followers into a jungle orgy of death, demonstrates the power of religion to "mislead," also.

What Prof. Howard Didsbury of Kean College calls "the tyranny of the righteous" justifies "killing for religion."

There is, in religion, a strong bond of hatred for the outgroup.

We are seeing it in half the countries of the world, where Amnesty International has confirmed jail, torture of execution of people "for their beliefs."

In Iran, where one Moslem sect is trying to kill off members of another Moslem sect, more people were executed over the past four months than in the entire world last year!

In Ireland, apparently endless rivers of blood flow as people kill people in the name of religion.

In Cambodia, countless thousands of Buddhists and Christians were slaughtered by Pol Pot because they were Buddhists or Christians.

As Jews cannot ever forget Auschwitz and Buchenwald and Dachau, India's Hindus and Moslems cannot forget their tens of thousand who died in 1947 when Pakistan was created.

There is Scripture for what is happening: John 16:2 says, "The time cometh that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God's service."

Twenty years ago evangelical Christians in the United States condemned liberal churchmen for involvement in politics. Today 40 million evangelical Christians have themselves become a potent political force.

A renaissance of righteousness in our nation has been the petition of all prayers, but history urges caution.

Perilous times make submisison to an absolute authority increasingly attractive.

And either the rootless left or the righteous right, dominating the world's most potent ever media, is worth worrying about.

Bond denied in cocaine flight

LAFAYETTE, Ga. (AP) — Two men were being held without bond today and five others on bonds of $5 million following the seizure of $300 million worth of cocaine at a northwest Georgia airport, authorities said.

The seven were arrested early Monday by federal and state agents who said they confiscated a planeload of South American cocaine.

FBI agents said the twin-engine Piper-Navajo-Panther arrived from Colombia about 12:45 a.m. with 647 pounds of "very high grade" cocaine. Gunfire was exchanged as the officers closed in, but no one was injured, said FBI agent Al Millard.

The seven men — including the pilot, co-pilot and five men waiting on the ground — were charged with violating federal narcotics laws, Millard said.

U.S. Magistrate Clinton Morgan denied bond for John Oscar Luck, 52, of Clarkston, Ga.; and Franklin Crump, 44, of Alpharetta, Ga.

Morgan set bonds of $5 million for Ralph Larry Pace, 24, of Cumming, Ga.; William Page Vicary, 48, of St. Claire Shores, Mich.; Gene Claude Easterling, 50, of Cayce, S.C.; Charles Donald Boldin, 43, of Clarkston, Mich., and Johnny Ray Moore, 50, of Houston, Texas.

Prosecutors said Luck already was out on bond in connection with the bombing of an Atlanta strip club in August. They said Crump was out on bond on a motor vehicle theft charge.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steve Wisebran had asked Morgan to deny bond to all seven, arguing that each of the men had the financial resources to leave the country.

After setting bond, Morgan scheduled a preliminary hearing on Nov. 2 for the seven, who were being held in the Floyd County jail today.

It was the third major cocaine seizure in the area in four months. In July, state and federal agents seized about 1,100 pounds of cocaine valued at about $400 million in Bradley County, Tenn., just north of the state line. Last month, cocaine valued at more than $500 million was found in containers in a wooded area near Ellijay, Ga., about 60 miles east of here.

Millard said agents "do not know what connection" the latest seizure may have with either of those cases.

Agents of the FBI, Drug Enforcement Administration, U.S. Customs Service, Georgia Bureau of Investigation, Georgia State Patrol, Lafayette police and Walker County sheriff's office staked out the small Lafayette airport.

"We didn't know in advance how they were going to unload the drugs," Millard said. "We had the whole airstrip covered."

In addition to the airplane and the cocaine, the agents seized a small amount of marijuana and four cars that were waiting on the ground to pick up the drugs, authorities said.

Walker County Sheriff Ralph Jones said the plane was empty of seats except for the pilot's and co-pilot's seats.

Millard said the cocaine, packaged in plastic, had a wholesale value of about $64 million. But John Glover, FBI agent in charge in Atlanta, said the street value was closer to $300 million.

Agents exchanged gunfire with three men who attempted to flee in one of the cars, Millard said. When one shot hit the tire of the fleeing vehicle, the three men ran into some undergrowth. One was arrested immediately, and the other two were captured with the aid of a bloodhound from the Walker County Correctional Institution, he said.

Tom Parker, the correctional officer who handled the tracking dogs, said one of the men ran until he came to a road but "was apparently scared to cross the road because it was lighted. He had stopped running and was lying down when we found him."

Millard said the stakeout was "the climax of an extensive investigation" of drug trafficking in north Georgia.

Reagan campaigning in North Carolina

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, embarking on a final week of politicking that will take him to five states, is making his only campaign trip to the South to work for a strong Republican House candidate.

Reagan planned a 2½-hour trip today to Raleigh, N.C., for a rally and fund-raising reception intended to boost the chances of William Cobey, a GOP candidate running in one of the few races where strategists think they can dump a Democratic incumbent.

Reagan, who has tried to make the successful aspects of his economic program the focus of his campaign speeches, was expecting good news about inflation when the government released the September Consumer Price Index today. Economists predicted the index, which measures consumer prices at the retail level, would rise no more than 0.2 percent, and perhaps drop.

The political trip to North Carolina is offering Reagan further opportunity to highlight his anti-inflation efforts rather than rising unemployment.

In the North Carolina race, Cobey is running against Rep. Ike Andrews, a Democrat who represents the 4th District. Andrews was convicted earlier this month on drunken driving charges.

Cobey, a former athletic director at the University of North Carolina, has the support of the National Congressional Club, a conservative fund-raising group led by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

"It's a good shot for us," said one Republican strategist who requested anonymity. "In an off-year, it's tough to beat incumbent Democrats."

There was little new in the president's message, prepared for delivery at the Raleigh Civic Center. In the text, the president once again told voters that interest and inflation rates have dropped since he took office 21 months ago. Unemployment, however, has risen 2.7 percent from the rate of 7.4 percent when Reagan was inaugurated. The jobless rate of 10.1 percent is the highest in 42 years.

In his text, Reagan criticized those who see "gloom and doom" in the nation's economy, and singled out the "network evening blues."

The GOP strategist, who asked for anonymity, said that in North Carolina, a presidential visit one week before Election Day could add three points to the candidates' performance at the polls. Reagan carried the state in the 1980 presidential campaign.

The trip was the president's only appearance in the Deep South during the election campaign.

"It's an area where he is unusually popular. He's still 55-plus in every state down there," said the Republican strategist, referring to the president's standing in public opinion polls.

In addition to the rally, Reagan was to be the star attraction at a $200-per-couple Republican fund-raising reception.

Reagan planned to pause in his campaign work to give the Medal of Freedom to singer Kate Smith, 75, who lives in Raleigh. She will be honored for her efforts in selling government bonds during World War II. She is perhaps best known for her rendition of the song "God Bless America."

Reagan plans one more campaign trip before Nov. 2. On Thursday and Friday, he will speak at Republican rallies in Wyoming, Montana, Nevada and New Mexico, states where his support is strongest.

"The man will be out three days this week. The rest of the time he will govern," said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

Reagan is also making videotapes this week for use on Saturday, Sunday and Monday evenings on the three major commercial television networks and in 60 regional television markets. The Republican National Committee is picking up the tab for the five-minute spots, Speakes said.

There are no statewide races in North Carolina this year. The 11-member House delegation is made up of seven Democrats and four Republicans.

Russell Walker, chairman of the state Democratic Party, said, "I think we've got to improve our position by at least one, and that's what I think we'll do.

Another architectural firm, the MMM Design Group, appeared before the court Monday, concerning renovations and additions to the county jail. The court has already been informed by the jail standards commission that changes will have to be made in order for the jail to remain in compliance with strict state guidelines.

Bill Pugh, Senior Vice President of the MMM firm, pointed out three areas of concern which the court will have to deal with in the near future. Those areas included the addition of a juvenile detention area, a work release prisoner section, and an exercise area.

Greg Ruzinski, Chief Architect for the MMM group, estimated the cost of the needed renovations at "between $250,000-$350,000."

The county fathers took no action presented by the firm, stating that they were in the early stages of action on that problem, and still had much information to gather concerning it.

In other action Monday the court approved a resolution calling for the state legislature to increase the per capita funding for local libraries from 31 cents to $1.50, and amended a prior motion concerning the purchase of the right-of-way along a road in the eastern edge of the county for the widening of a county road.

County Judge Glen Nelson was absent from the meeting Monday due to a vacation trip to California.

Trying to save California grasslands

By THOMAS MURPHY
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When the first settlers crossed the high Sierra into California, they found a sea of grass covering almost 23 million acres. Today, only 10,000 of those acres remain unchanged.

Now the Nature Conservancy is finishing the most ambitious private conservation effort in California history to save 11 of the state's most endangered ecosystems — varied landscapes ranging from desert oases to freshwater marshes, from native wildflowers to saltbush scrub.

Each of the 11 systems is in danger of vanishing as shopping centers, parking lots, homes and farms cover the increasingly valuable landscape.

The 140,000-member conservancy, which acts as the real estate arm of the conservation movement, was established in 1951 and since then, it says, has preserved more than 1.8 million acres in the United States, Canada and the Caribbean.

To meet its goal in California, the conservancy must raise another $5 million by the end of the year. It already has collected $10 million since 1980, using the money to establish seven preserves throughout the state.

The California Critical Areas Program, as it is known, is similar to previous efforts successfully completed by the Nature Conservancy in California and other states. Perhaps the most spectacular was the $6 million purchase of 55,000-acre Santa Cruz Island in the Santa Barbara Channel in 1981.

Once they are acquired, the preserves will be open to the public for uses that range from bird watching to duck hunting.

With the help of several large corporations and a board of directors that reads like a Who's Who of California industry, the California chapter of the Nature Conservancy is unique among environmentalist groups in its ability to raise funds.

Still, California director Peter Seligman is not sure the Critical Areas Program will succeed.

"I'm hopeful that we'll raise the last $5 million," said Seligman, "but I have my fingers crossed."

Seligman, a Harlem-born graduate of Rutgers and Yale, says the Nature Conservancy has an odd composition for an environmental organization.

"The supporters ... run from left to right, all the way," said Seligman, resting his sneakers on the desk of his San Francisco office. "Some of them are conservative and some of them have long beards and live in the woods in Mendocino County."

Seligman suspects the organization is popular with both ends of the political rainbow because it stays neutral on most political issues.

Its Critical Areas Program committee is made up of some of the state's top business leaders including Bank of America chairman Leland Prussia, Southern Pacific chairman Alan Furth, Hewlett Packard chairman David Packard, and Robert Erburu, president of Times Mirror.

"They have a tremendous love of California," said Seligman. "They've lived here all their lives and they've seen the change."

The board also includes the California head of the Bureau of Land Management and the director of the state Department of Fish and Game.

While an organization like the Sierra Club might lobby publicly to prevent a particular environmental mishap, Seligman says his group takes a quieter approach.

"We probably would use friends to contact important people who could influence the decision," said the 32-year-old director.

The business contacts have helped.

Southern Pacific sold the conservancy the Vernal Pools Preserve in Solano County. The conservancy is now negotiating with Union Oil to buy sand dunes in Humboldt County along the northern California coast.

Getty Oil and Chevron contributed a total of $1.5 million to help acquire a tract of valley saltbush scrub in the oil-rich Elk Hills area of Kern County west of the Mojave Desert.

Seligman said most corporations are cooperative when they discover they own it and especially when they "can donate a piece of land and just write it off the way they do with standard charitable contributions."

The state Department of Fish and Game helped the conservancy assess endangered ecosystems and set priorities for inclusion in the critical areas program. Criteria for inclusion were uniqueness, adequacy of present protections, and "closeness to extinction."

It was this survey that determined there was only 10,000 acres of native grasslands left of the 23 million acres of fertile soils where native grasses once grew in California.

Newcomer enjoys helping others get acquainted

BY LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

My main interest is in the people around me – I love people," says Tracey Duncan. "I enjoy learning what they think and believe, and feel I have a sensitivity to others which is a gift that I want to use as much as possible."

Tracey is currently using her enjoyment of people as second vice-president of Hereford Newcomers Club. In charge of membership, she is often the first contact newcomers to Hereford have with someone who cares about them wants to make them feel welcome in a new place.

Tracey and her husband, Dave, and their two children, have been in Hereford 11 months. He is assistant factory manager at Holly Sugar, having worked with the company almost 10 years.

"We lived in Clovis when he started with Holly and he commuted back and forth from there to Hereford for a while before we were transferred to Colorado Springs," comments Tracey.

The couple lived in Colorado seven years and then near San Francisco, Calif., for two years before moving to Hereford.

Their two sons are Tyson, who is almost four and attends day school at the Central Church of Christ, and Toby who is nearly two.

Tracey says that they came to Hereford right in the middle of the tumbleweed storm last fall. "Some initiation," laughs Tracey. "You forget how much the wind blows in this part of the country."

Both Tracey and Dave are from the Southwest originally; she from Farmington and he from north of Texico. They met in Portales, while Dave was studying chemistry at Eastern New Mexico State University.

"We're a lot closer to family now and feel pretty much at home in this part of the country," notes Tracey.

"I had always heard about Texas hospitality," she adds, "and now I believe it. We've met so many nice people here.

"What impressed me about Hereford is that people really want you to like it here – and we do."

Tracey loves to travel, and says that the first eight years she and Dave were married, before they had children, she spent with Dave on his business trips, enjoying seeing different parts of the country.

As far as other "hobbies," Tracey says she doesn't really have any. "I enjoy working outside in the yard," she notes, "but would rather be around people than sit and do something with my hands, like needlework or sewing.

"I'm not into a lot of clubs or organizations, but I do enjoy Newcomers because I feel it really serves a purpose in the community and meets needs. We are trying right now to make the club more actively involved in promoting friendships and contacts between members at other times during the month than just at the meetings.

"I think that's important. I've taked with several people who joined Newcomers when they first came to town, and they say that the friends they made there are still good friends.

"I like helping people meet others. Sometimes they are too shy to call someone just to talk or get acquainted, but we try to give them a little encouragement and show them how rewarding it can be, especially when you are new in town and don't know very many people."

Becoming a leader

BY PENNY REINART
Assistant County Extension Agent

America has entered the "age of volunteerism," and that's important to 4-H.

The current emphasis on lessening governmental influence has brought the realization that volunteers may be the only way to service many of society's future needs, including youth programs such as 4-H.

As early as the 1920s, several youth organizations were heavily into the business of volunteers. The industrial age suddenly freed some of the time Americans normally spent in earning their livelihood, and they used this time in volunteer service. Youth organizations flourished.

But the great depression which followed left many of those organizations in a quandry. They were forced to reduce services and many simply went broke.

With the advent of World War II, youth organizations again flourished as America's young people found it popular to become a part of a youth group. It was during this period that the 4-H Club organization, long active in farming areas of the nation, came to the forefront. Victory Gardens were everywhere and 4-H gave them the emphasis they needed.

Suddenly 4-H received nationwide recognition and volunteers flocked to become a part of the group.

Today's 4-H program offers volunteer opportunities for more than one-half million persons from every walk of life. The enormous growth of 4-H during the 1970s sparked renewed interest, interest which has made 4-H the largest youth organization in America.

Today's 4-H volunteers might be working mothers or retired corporate executives. They may live right next door to you. Texas currently has 20,000 volunteers who work with 150,000 young men and women in 3,000 4-H clubs and groups all across the state.

Just about everything there is to do in 4-H is done by volunteers. They serve on planning and advisory committees, as teachers by being project leaders in some 40 different subject-matter areas, help to plan and conduct camps, transport members to and from activities, and recruit new members and new volunteers.

But most of all, 4-H volunteers listen, learn and love the boys and girls with whom they work.

If you have a few hours to give and if you truly care about young people, 4-H has a place for you. Why not call you county Extension office? 4-H can open the door to opportunity for you.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Rose reviews article on Reagan's policy

Los Ciboleros chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met Thursday evening at the Community Center. The meeting was opened with the DAR ritual lead by the regent, Mary Williamson.

The national defense report, given by Helen Rose, was a review of the article by Dr. Fred C. Ikle, Under secretary of Defense for Policy, on "The Defense Policy of the Reagan Administration."

According to Ms. Rose, he pointed out that the defense budget in 1968 claimed 43 percent of the total federal budget while the proposed 1983 budget would account for less than 29 percent. He also wrote, "The principal thrust of our defense effort is devoted to convential arms, not nuclear arms. It is primarily the conventional strength that gives us a convincing deterrent capability to preserve the peace."

The program leader, Ruth Knox, introduced Mrs. Peggy Accord of the Texas Panhandle Audubon Society of Amarillo who showed slikes on "Flora and Fauna of Our Texas Panhandle" with very interesting comments.

Past Regent Bruce Carter was presented an ex-regent's pin by Mrs. Williamson with the thanks and appreciation of the chapter.

Charlotte Clark, Registrar, reported that the memberships of Wanda Jones and her daughter, Cynthia Jones Greever, had been confirmed by the National Society. As Mrs. Jones was present, Ruth Knox welcomed her as a new member.

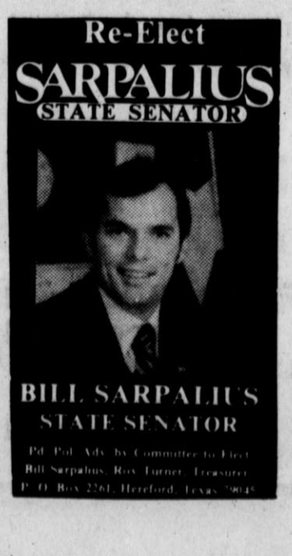

The DAR Service for Veteran Patients committee chairman, Mildred Drake, reminded members that the Gift Shop for patients in the Amarillo V.A. Hospital will be Dec. 5 to 7. Gifts need to be brought to the next meeting. Since there are gifts for the patients to select and send to their families, these gifts should be brought unwrapped.

Refreshments were served which were prepared by the hostesses, Mildred Sheffy, Marlene Watson, and Patsy Smart.

Others present were members, Edwina Thomas, Lois Gililland, Beth Clark, Mary Van Pelt, Bea Barrett, Corene Smith, Sue James, Leta Kaul; and guests, Leesa Clark, Dovie Cherry, Allo Reeve, Willo Ellison, and Jean Warden.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 18 at the Hereford State Bank Hospitality Room. Jack Flynt, Past National Commander of the American Legion, will be the speaker. Guests are welcome.

Operation Good Shepherd updated for L'Allegra Study Club members

Eloise McDougal gave an enlightening program on Operation Good Shepherd when members of L'Allegra Study Club met Thursday in the home of Margaret Carnahan.

Ms. McDougal described the origin and functions of Operation Good Shepherd, explaining that the central headquarters are located at First Christian Church, storage closets are at Wesley Methodist Church and Community Church, and a food pantry is kept at First Baptist Church.

She also related many interesting stories and experiences since being involved with the program. Anyone interested in the program may contact Ms. McDougal.

During a business meeting conducted by President Karen Payne, Kay Lynn Caviness was welcomed as a new member.

Naomi Schroeter assisted Ms. Carnahan as co-hostess. Others in attendance were Janice Conkwright, Kitty Gault, Rosie Griffin, Joyce Lomas, Mary Kay McQuigg, Susie Mannschreck, Betty Martin, Selsey Metz, Ella Marie Veigel, and Donna Parris.

Program on Braille work presented

Mrs. Wilma Goettsch was hostess to members of the Cultural Extension Club on Friday. She introduced Ella Stehr, who gave a program on the Braille Work she is involved in through the Immanuel Lutheran Church.

The title of her talk was "Bringing Christ to Those in Darkness With Braille." She said that there are 80 million blind people in the world and many more than thay have bad eyesight.

Mrs. Ira Scott gave a report on the Deaf Smith County 4-H boys and girls, and Mrs. Tom Hargrove reported on the 20th annual Rural Homemakers Day which she, Mrs. M.H. Wiseman, and Bertha Dettmann attended on Thursday in Amarillo.

Mrs. M.W. Sumner, nominating committee chairman, presented a slate of officers chosen by the committee, Elected by acclamation were Ms. Dettmann, president; Jewel Rogers, vice-president; Vernis Parsons, secretary; Mrs. Art Lewis, treasurer; Mrs. Johnie Townsend, reporter; and Mrs. Goettsch, council delegate.

A reading, entitled "I Know Something Good About You," was given by Mrs. Johnie Townsend and roll call was answered with "A Program I'd Like."

A family get-together was planned for Nov. 19.

Mrs. Bettye Blair was welcomed as a guest by the 12 members in attendance.

Women's Missionary Union hosts Noah's Ark Coffee

A Noah's Ark coffee was held recently in the Fellowship Hall of First Baptist Church. Members of the Women's Missionary Union and their guests came in twos to the coffee.

Arrangements were under direction of Grace Covington, Mary Herring, and Mildred Drake, members of the enlistment committee of the WMU.

Guests were greeted at the door by Ms. Covington and registered by Anne Rayburn, who gave them white dove identification tags.

The centerpiece at the serving table consisted of a miniature Noah's Ark with various animals going up the gangplank. Punch, coffee and cookies were served by Ms. Herring and Susan Robbins.

Jeryl Hoover furnished music for the social hour and Leatrus Clark, WMU director, welcomed the following guests: Dorothy Mercer, Jennie Buckner, Lois Ethridge, Gladys Merritt, Merle Clark, Jewell Hargrave, Ruth McBride, Johnie Turrentine, and Micki Baulch. Twenty-three members were present.

Plainsmen win, but struggle

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

Monterey wins UGLY!

And, you can spell it with a capital U-G-L-Y.

But, any way you slice it, the Plainsmen can wrap up the District 3-5A football title if they defeat Plainview Thursday night in Lubbock's Lowery Field.

A Plainview victory, however, could throw the race into a possible three-way deadlock for the top spot (between those two and Hereford, provided the Herd wins its final two games, against Amarillo High Friday and Lubbock Coronado next Thursday).

The Plainsmen are 7-0 overall and 6-0 in district play. Impressive record, you say?

But, look at some of the wins.

They squeaked out a 9-7 victory over intra-city rival Lubbock High, a team which likely will not win at all this season, and were fortunate to do so – actually being slightly outgained in total yards by the Westerners, who rank last in the district in both offense and defense.

They just got past Lubbock Coronado, 17-14, having to come from behind to accomplish that.

And, their latest close call came last Friday when they survived a Tascosa threat to post a 14-12 win against a team which has only one league victory, you guessed it, over Lubbock High.

Against Caprock, in a 10-0 win, Monterey led just 3-0 until the final minute of play, And, when you consider the fact Caprock had two TDs called back, you have to say it was another close call.

The 6-0 win over Hereford certainly could have gone either way.

A 38-yard TD pass, with the receiver just barely in bounds in the end zone, was all the scoring.

In that one, Monterey's defense was superb. It bottled up Hereford like no other opponent has been able to do.

Offensively, Monterey is what I call a "plugger". It doesn't overwhelm you .. it doesn't beat you to death with statistics.

Merely, it plugs along. Not too many mistakes, very few turnovers. It waits for the defense to get the ball in good field position, then comes up with a big play here and there.

While Monterey has struggled against some of the weaker teams in the district, it has played pretty well against some of the better ones – namely Hereford, Amarillo High and probably Coronado.

Injuries have taken their toll.

Three players went out in the Lubbock game, and since that time the Plainsmen have really struggled.

But, nevertheless, Thursday is the big one, and don't be surprised if Monterey doesn't win again.

Plainview, though, should test the Plainsmen defense with a bevy of good, quick backs. And, the Bulldogs' size on defense could bring the Monterey offense to a crawl.

I like Plainview to win, but won't be surprised either way. Monterey's just tough enough to win in this kind of situation.

But, for Plainview it's virtually a do-or-die situation.

If the Bulldogs lose they'd have to get some help in order to figure in the playoff picture (with the top two teams in the district advancing into post-season play).

Friday's Hereford-Amarillo game is also a big one.

The Sandies, another team that kinda plugs along, has put itself in the playoff picture.

If Monterey beats Plainview and AHS can defeat Hereford a three-way tie for second place would develop.

It's been an interesting district race thus far.

Most pre-season polls picked Plainview and Hereford 1-2, with Monterey a step back. And, thus far, those three teams have pretty well lived up to the advanced billing.

Palo Duro generally was picked fourth, but the Dons have flopped – standing 1-6 overall and 1-5 in district play.

Amarillo High would have won the old District 3-5A (as it was in the past). The Sandies beat the other Amarillo teams (PD, Tascosa and Caprock), in addition to Coronado. Their losses have been to Monterey (24-0) and Plainview (36-13).

Odessa Permian has all but wrapped up the 4-5A title, going 5-0 through last weekend. Three teams (Midland Lee, Odessa High and San Angelo Central) share second place with 3-2 records.

This week, Odessa plays San Angelo, while Lee takes on Abilene Cooper.

Likely, the San Angelo-Midland Lee game will determine the runner-up in that district, as Permian still must play Odessa.

With the regular season entering its final few weekends, numerous other districts are beginning to shape up.

The 1-4A race likely will be settled the final week when Lubbock Dunbar and Estacado tangle. Both are 4-0 in league play.

San Angelo Lake View has the inside track on the 2-4A crown, boasting a 4-0 mark. Lake View, which has already beaten Andrews, plays Sweetwater, this week.

Littlefield has the lead in District 2-3A, but must play Friona (a game back) the final game of the season. If Littlefield defeats Friona and Muleshoe wins its remaining games the Mules will garner the runner-up spot.

District 3-3A belongs to Post, the state's top-ranked team in that classification. The battle is for the second place spot between Floydada, Slaton and Idalou – all 2-1.

Frenship appears to be the 4-3A winner, having already beaten Denver City and Seminole. Denver City could grab the runner-up spot with victories over Seminole and Lubbock Roosevelt in its final two games.

Hale Center can wrap up the 3-2A title by beating Petersburg this weekend.

Farwell, a 42-21 winner over Olton this past week, leads 5-2A right now with a 3-0 mark. The Longhorns probably must beat Springlake-Earth the final game to nail down the title.

Vega can virtually wrap up the District 2-1A North title by beating Valley this week. A Valley win, however, could send the district into a three-way deadlock (as Happy also has only one loss and has played both Vega and Valley).

Pitt regains No. 1 ranking

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh is No.1 again, edging Washington out of the spot it had held in The Associated Press college football poll for six consecutive weeks, but neither team's coach was particularly excited by the change.

"It's best to be undefeated. If you're winning, everything else takes care of itself," Pitt Coach Foge Fazio said Monday night.

"As I've been saying all year, it's the final poll that counts. The national championship is still our goal," Washington Coach Don James said.

Despite an offensive struggle for Saturday's 14-0 win over unranked Syracuse, Fazio said he isn't surprised his Panthers were back on top.

"Nothing surprises me anymore. Nothing surprises me about how they vote," he said.

The Huskies received more first-place votes in the poll released Monday, but Washington missed the top spot by four points. Both teams remained unbeaten and untied.

The Panthers were No.1 in the preseason and first regular-season polls, but dropped behind Washington after beating North Carolina and then slipped to third after defeating Florida State.

Fazio and James said they don't emphasize poll rankings.

"I'm sure our team will look at that tomorrow morning and say, 'Wow, that's really great.' But I don't think anyone's going to do cartwheels," Fazio said.

"I really haven't given the polls a whole lot of thought," James said.

Yet, Fazio acknowledged the poll can affect the Panthers' opponents.

"If I was coaching a team and we were unranked and we were playing the No.1 team in the country, that's an added incentive. It's easy to get up for that," Fazio said.

But James said, "I think we've been getting everybody's best shot, but we may have gotten it anyway."

The Panthers' much-touted offense, with quarterback Danny Marino at the controls, has yet to deliver on its preseason promise for exciting football.

Against Syracuse, it produced just two touchdowns out of its 381 total yards.

Fazio said the win didn't disappoint him, although specific plays may have.

"We may have been ripe for an upset," he said, adding he was glad it didn't happen.

Pitt's first four victories were over teams ranked in the Top 20 when Pitt played them — North Carolina, Florida State, Illinois and West Virginia.

The Panthers received 21 of 58 first-place votes and 1,109 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Washington, which did not score until the final 9:35 and defeated Texas Tech 10-3 Saturday, received 28 first-place votes and 1,105 points.

Georgia and Southern Methodist held onto the third and fourth positions, while Arkansas moved up from sixth to fifth and Nebraska slipped from fifth to sixth.

Georgia, a 27-14 winner over Kentucky, received three first-place ballots and 1,010 points. SMU, which downed Texas 30-17 and knocked the Longhorns out of the Top Twenty, received two firsts and 976 points.

The Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press college football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

1.Pitt (21)	6-0-0	1,109
2.Washington (28)	7-0-0	1,105
3.Georgia (3)	6-0-0	1,010
4.So. Methodist (2)	7-0-0	976
5.Arkansas (4)	6-0-0	909
6.Nebraska	6-1-0	824
7.Arizona State	7-0-0	784
8.Penn State	6-1-0	763
9.Alabama	6-1-0	740
10.North Carolina	5-1-0	642
11.UCLA	6-0-1	610

17.Oklahoma	5-2-0	194
18.West Virginia	5-2-0	135
19.Auburn	6-1-0	124
20.Michigan	5-2-0	118

The other four first-place votes went to Arkansas, which thumped Houston 38-3 and polled 909 points.

Arizona State, one of six unbeaten-untied teams in the nation, was idle and received 784 points while climbing from eighth to seventh. Rounding out the Top Ten were Penn State, Alabama and North Carolina. Penn State rose from ninth to eighth with 763 points after trouncing West Virginia 24-0, Alabama fell from seventh to ninth with 740 points after a lackluster 21-3 decision over Cincinnati and North Carolina, idle last weekend, remained No.10 with 642 points.

The Second Ten consists of UCLA, Southern California, LSU, Florida State, Clemson, Miami, Oklahoma, West Virginia, Auburn and Michigan.

Auburn made it back to the Top Twenty after a three-week absence by trimming Mississippi State 35-17 and boosting its record to 6-1, while Michigan reappeared after a four-week lapse by crushing Northwestern 49-14. The Big Ten thus placed a team in the Top Twenty after missing last week for the first time since The AP poll began in 1936.

Negotiations break off

NFL season could be over

By The Associated Press

The National Football League and its players are locked in a defensive battle with neither side showing many signs of weakening.

"There's no reason for me to sit here and say, 'If we just sit in there a little while longer, everything's going to be all right,'" said Atlanta Falcons owner Rankin Smith, adding that the longer the strike drags on, the more likely it becomes the NFL season will be called off.

New Orleans Saints player representative Russell Erxleben says the striking players would give up their wage scale demands if the NFL management came up with an acceptable alternative.

"But we won't take it off the table until they come up with something," Erxleben said. "They don't like it, but they won't give us an alternative. We don't have an alternative."

On Monday, Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, talked by telephone to Jack Donlan, management's chief negotiator, suggesting the two groups return to the bargaining table which was abandoned Saturday.

"What for?" Donlan asked, according to Jim Miller, the NFL Management Council's spokesman. "We met for 12 days in Maryland and there was no movement on the economic issues. So unless there's a change in your position, there's not much sense in getting together."

Later, Garvey said he felt the negotiations could resume by the end of this week.

But Chuck Sullivan, chairman of the Management Council's executive committee, said it was "very unrealistic. .. Based on what he (Garvey) continues to adhere to, there's no basis for negotiations right now. This isn't an argument as to how much. It's an argument as to what."

The strike has wiped out five regular-season weekends thus far. This coming weekend's games could be called off as early as today.

The NFL has said that a 12-game schedule, including two makeup weekends, is the acceptable minimum. Again, the players disagree.

"We could play an extended season until February," said Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Butch Johnson. "We had a playoff game in 37-degree-below-zero temperatures last year."

Erxleben said the union would consider any offer by management that covered all or the majority of a five-point plan drawn up by the players union in August. The plan called for the league to:

—Provide immediate substantial wage increases for virtually all players.

—Guarantee players a fair share of future NFL revenues.

—Eliminate wage inequities.

—Produce longer careers through elimination of incentives to cut older players for financial reasons.

—Reward performances through significant incentives.

Kuenn signs new contract

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Harvey Kuenn, the man who managed the Milwaukee Brewers to the 1982 World Series, is coming back in 1983, and the applause being heard is from team management and players.

The rehiring was "just great," said pitcher Jim Slaton after Monday's announcement.

Brewer President Bud Selig said he was delighted with Kuenn's decision to return.

Said third baseman Paul Molitor: "There is definitely no one on the team that dislikes the man."

"From a personal standpoint, we're all pleased to have him back," said Harry Dalton, Brewers' executive vice president and general manager.

The Brewers announced that Kuenn had agreed to a one-year contract, terms of which were not disclosed.

Kuenn, 51, said he didn't want a contract for a longer period. "I guess I'm different than a lot of people," he said. "I wouldn't want to tie the club down for two years."

Kuenn became interim manager June 2, replacing Buck Rodgers, who was fired after the Brewers had lost 14 of 21 games and had fallen into a tie for fifth place in the American League East.

Kuenn's message to the club when he took over — "Be loose. Have a laugh. Go out and play the game and have fun" — resulted in the team finishing with a 72-43 record under Kuenn and capturing the division title with the best record in baseball, 95-67. They went on to win the American League championship before losing the World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals in seven games.

"Harvey was a very key factor in the success of this team," said Dalton.

"He's seen the different managers, and he knows the personalities, and that's the biggest thing about managing," Slaton said.

Rangers delay naming skipper

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have backed off naming a new manager immediately and General Manager Joe Klein says "we'll see what happens by the end of the week."

Klein tentatively had scheduled a news conference for today, but he backed off Monday.

Although Klien has refused to confirm publicly who is in line to become the team's 12th manager in 12 years, published reports have named Chicago White Sox' coach Jim Leyland and minor league manager Doug Rader as the top candidates.

Bobby Valentine, a minor league instructor for the New York Mets, confirmed Monday that he has been dropped from consideration.

Junior high net team wins title

Hereford's 7th grade captured the team title in last weekend's junior high tennis tourney in Lubbock, while a trio of individuals grabbed top honors.

A pair of 7th grade double teams (Melanie Faulkner and Misty Stokes - Brad Barrett and Trent Bowling) won as did Shaun Moore.

Alisa Hoelsher and Marcia Geiger were runners-up in doubles, while Tiffanie LaGate was second in individual competition.

The doubles team of Brian Thomas and Chad Redwine placed fourth, as did Kevin Hanson individually.

Brent Berry was first in the consolation bracket, while the duo of Michelle Soloman and Jeannie Perales was a runner-up in the consolation bracket.

For the fall, the 7th grade won two of three matches.

In the 8th grade division, Hereford's Conrad Rodriquez and Keith Anderson won the consolation bracket, beating the Hereford duo of Markay White and Lana Kosub.

In 9th grade play, Natalie Sims reached the quarterfinals, while Missy Sims took third place. Adam Oliverson and Chuck Garcia were third in doubles.

The junior high tennis season for the fall has ended. It will resume in the spring.

Tournament Champs

Hereford seventh grade tennis players captured the first place title at a Lubbock tournament last weekend. Participating were, standing from left, Shaun Moore, Kevin Hanson, Brent Berry, Trent Bowling, Chad Redwine and Coach Rojelio Rodriguez; kneeling from left, Michelle Soloman, Jennie Perales, Stacy Brownlow, Melanie Faulkner, Misty Stokes, Kamille Martin, Marsha Geiger, and Alisa Hoelscher. Not pictured are Brad Barrett, Brian Thomas, Tiffanie Legate, and Julie Allison.

Amarillo man claims 1st in grid contest

K. Phommyvong of Amarillo missed only two games last week to win the weekly Hereford Brand football contest and claim the top prize of $25 in Hereford Bucks.

Second place went to Ronnie Bell of 202 16th Street in Hereford. Bell, who won $15 worth of Hereford Bucks, missed three games, but was closer on his tie-breaker pick than a number of other entrants, who also missed just three games.

Bell's tie-breaker score of 42 was just five off the actual – SMU 30, Texas 17 – of 47.

Rick Castaneda of 905 McKinley also missed three games, but took third place (worth $10 in Hereford Bucks) because of a closer tie-breaker score (40).

Four other persons missed just three games. They included Ben Conklin (last week's first place winner), Peggy Fitzgerald, John David Bryant and Bill Alexander.

Those missing four games were Randy Farr, Tracey Sheppard, S.T. Loerwald, Bryan Watts, Earl Stagner, Natividad Torres, Monty Giliam, Winston Short, L.V. Watts, Dave Hopper, Joaquin Gomez, Gilbert Gonzales, Dago Valdez, J.R. Johnson, Chris Schumucker, Susan Sanders, Darrell Dirks, Mike O'Randy and Bernard Basset.

The weekly contest appears in today's edition of the Brand. Remember, entry deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, You, too, can be a winner of Hereford Bucks.

Martin emerges as most coveted manager in game

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Billy Martin is baseball's "Mr. Fix-It." Head-strong, fiercely independent, fiesty and untamed, he has emerged as the most coveted and highest priced manager in the game.

He's worth every penny of whatever he gets. But put him on a short leash. He is impatient and restless. He doesn't like deep roots. He gets the job done — pronto — and then starts looking around for other fences to mend.

There's no manager in the world better able to take a tattered, disorganized and uninspired ball club and turn it into an instant winner. Trouble is he doesn't like to stay around and admire his handiwork. He outwears his welcome. Always he's got to hit the road again.

So now the fractious, pigiron-tough Casey Stengel protege is out of the corral again — a frisky maverick waiting to be grabbed by someone in dire need of help.

And there are a lot of eager grabbers.

Gabe Paul, boss of the Cleveland Indians, is dangling a $1 million, three-year bait under Billy Boy's nose. New York newspapers keep insisting he's coming back to the Yankees for the third time — or is it four? Out on the West Coast, talk is he is owner Gene Autry's choice to replace the highly respected Gene Mauch, who quit after failing to put the California Angels into the World Series. Autry denies it.

What kind of a guy is this wiry, mustachioed rebel who turned sow's ears into silk purses at Minnesota, Detroit, Texas, New York Yankees (twice) and finally Oakland only to be fired when the work was done?

You have to let him tell you himself.

When he takes over a ballclub, Billy says, the first thing he does is get rid of what he calls "the clubhouse lawyers, alibiers and complainers."

"When I'm managing, you'd better take your job seriously or you won't be around long," Martin says in his autobiography, "Number 1," written in collaboration with Peter Golenbock.

"If you play for me, you play the game like you play life. You play it to be successful, you play it with dignity, you play it with pride and you play it aggressively."

Billy said when he first came to the Yankees in 1975, he found the locker room operating like a country club.

"Players were bringing their friends in ... others were baby-sitting their own kids, and I noticed that in the bullpen during the game the pitchers were playing cards and eating sandwiches."

Martin quickly put an end to such informality, contending this lack of professionalism was reflected in the team's play.

Yet he insists he is not a strict disciplinarian. He is against driving a team in training, one of the few managers favoring brisk one-a-day workouts. He says, going to a new club, he softshoes it during the adjustment period, allowing players to sink or rise to their own level.

"I'll go over it four different ways, trying to figure out the right way to talk to a player to get my point across without hurting his feelings," Billy says.

HHS cross country teams cop honors

Running some of their best teams of the year, in a final tuneup for the District 3-5A meet this weekend, Hereford's cross country teams took top honors at the Dumas meet last weekend.

The Hereford boys, paced by a second-place finish by Fernando Carrasco and a fifth-place performance by Francisco Saucedo, easily outdistanced host Dumas. Hereford scored 36 points, while Dumas had 69.

The girls' division was closer as Hereford scored 59 points, compared to 65 for runner-up Canyon.

Cindy Morgan led Hereford with a ninth-place finish, while Belinda Warren ran 10th.

"Four of our girls ran their best times of the year, and the other three were very close to their best," coach Martha Emerson said.

"It was our boys' best overall showing of the season. They had placed twice before and third twice.

"The thing that was most encouraging was our times," Emerson added. "With the district meet coming up this weekend in Amarillo, maybe our teams are starting to hit a peak. Hopefully, it will carry over to this weekend."

LaPlata freshman Selma Moreno continued her impressive list of showings as she ran a 12:44 (her second-best time of the year) in winning the junior varsity division.

In seven meets thus far, Moreno has won six and finished second in the other.

Another freshman, Judy Sanders, ran her best time of the year (a 13:25 over the two-mile course) as she placed second at Dumas. She has been third at Borger, fourth at Pampa and Amarillo and 8th at Plainview, after beginning the season with a 19th-place effort at Levelland.

Glenda Gonzales, another LaPlata freshman, also had her best time (13:41) of the season in running third. In other meets she has been 12th, 13th, 8th and 16th after running 57th in the opener at Levelland.

did you know?

Electricity is vital to our food supply. A full 16.5% of the energy consumed in the United States is used in the production, processing and distribution of food. Additional electricity is used by businesses like farm equipment dealers and feed suppliers who depend on agricultural sales. Managing electricity wisely helps the farmer, the utility company and each of us, since the cost of electricity directly affects the price we pay for food at the supermarket.

Sam Thomas, Agricultural Development Manager, Amarillo.

Air leaks in your home can increase your yearly electric bill by 20 to 40%. Air can enter your home through cracks around doors, windows or any other place where two materials or parts of the house meet. To find air leaks around your home, wait for a windy day, then turn off your furnace or air conditioner. Hold a small piece of tissue or a candle next to cracks around windows and doors. If the tissue or candle flame flutters, leaks are reducing your home's energy efficiency. Weatherstripping and caulking can help plug these leaks and save you money, too.

Helen Hernandez, Order Clerk, Carlsbad.

Caring properly for portable appliances improves their safety and efficiency. Always plug an appliance cord directly into a wall outlet, rather than into lightweight extension cords. Unplug the appliance immediately after use. When disconnecting an appliance, pull the cord plug from the outlet first, then remove from the appliance. Always grasp the plug itself; do not pull on the cord. When cleaning portable appliances, first check the instruction book to see if the appliance is immersible. Then wash it with hot sudsy water and rinse and dry thoroughly. And always read the instruction book before using an appliance for the first time.

Greeting Guests

A bridal shower to honor Miss Lynn Garrett, bride-elect of Rocky Hamby, was hosted by Mrs. J.A McWhorter Saturday morning. Receiving guests were, left to right, Mrs. Frank Garrett of Plainview, grandmother of the bride-elect; Mrs. Cal Garrett, the bride-elect's mother; the honoree; and Mrs. Geraldine Perkins of Borger, mother of the prospective bridegroom.

Shower given to honor Garrett

Miss Lynn Garrett, bride-elect of Rocky Hamby of Borger, was honored with a bridal shower in the home of Mrs. J.A. McWhorter Saturday morning.

Miss Garrett and Hamby plan to be married Nov. 13 in the First Christian Church.

Michelle Clarke secured the signatures of guests in the bride's book.

The serving table was covered with a hand-crocheted tablecloth of ecru cotton with a pinwheel design and centered with an arrangement of assorted pink and burgundy silk flowers in a crystal compote surrounded by silver candlesticks holding pink candles.

Linda Walker and Lynn Provence presided at the serving table. Crystal and silver appointments were used to serve punch, coffee, cheese squres, quiche, sausage balls, cinnamon rolls, and assorted fruit.

Special guests were Mrs. Frank Garrett of Plainview, paternal grandmother of the bride-to-be, and Geraldine Perkins of Borger, the groom-to-be's mother.

Other out of town relatives included Mrs. Gene Cribbs and Susan Cribbs of Lubbock and Mrs. Dora McBee of Plainview.

Hostesses assisting Mrs. McWhorter were Joyce Blasingame, Elaine Clarke, Rosie Griffin, Selsey Metz, Teena Reinauer, Nancy Russell, Kathy Allison, Pat Tubb, Jo Charest, Joan Hopper, Wanda Payne, Helen Rose, and Daleine Springer.

Pumpkins mean Halloween

DIBBLE, Okla. (AP) — It is here — near Criner Creek, next to grazing cattle and two or three dirt roads away from this tiny south-central Oklahoma burg — where the heritage, symbol and color of Halloween lives.

And it is here in the grand pumpkin patch where the October holiday becomes more than the small creatures who knock on doors each year, with outstretched hands and the giggles. It means hard work, dirty knees, aching backs and pumpkins, pumpkins — too many pumpkins.

Eddie Keeler knows that.

But he knows all too well that pumpkins mean Halloween and Halloween means pumpkins and all that surely means children. The reason he decided to farm pumpkins anyway was because his children insisted that he do so. The kids wanted their very own pumpkin corner, please daddy.

He made their dreams come true.

Keeler, a melon farmer for several years, has picked thousands of pounds of pumpkins this year in what can only be described as a bumper harvest. Although his pumpkin fields are nearly picked clean now, some enterprising youngster would have no trouble making a snarly-toothed monster from the warty leftovers.

The kids have been bragging to other kids about "the big ones," said Keeler.

Grandmother's favorite pumpkin pie recipe and it's a secret. A glob of whipcream on it. Pumpkin bread for tasty sandwiches (with french fries, maybe?). No whipcream on it. Pumpkin cookies, pumpkin cake and roasted, salted pumpkin seeds.

"You can make 16 pies out of the big ones (pumpkins)," said Maxine Keeler.

Spread out the newspaper, place the pumpkin on the newspaper and cut the pumpkin open on the newspaper. Easy. Scoop out the seeds, dig out the meat and cook it into pumpkin delights. Difficult.

Now your big pumpkin — say 140 pounds — has coarse meat. Baby pumpkins have smooth, tender meat. And medium sized pumpkins can go either way. A pumpkin with cracks, holes and flies swarming around it should be avoided.

Save the seeds from the big pumpkins. Place them in a pan and place the pan in the oven. Roast just a few minutes until crunchy. Salt — but just a pinch. Serve as a snack to family and friends. Cheap.

"I've never heard of fried pumpkin," said Mrs. Keeler as she laughed near the pickup truck, near the cattle guard, near the creek — in the pumpkin patch.

It's late morning at the Keelers and time to load up the pickup truck for a trip to the pumpkin patch.

Amy Keeler, 7, jumps in the front seat next to grandpa. The trip takes about five minutes over rolling county roads and farm fields. Open the cattle gate that protects the pumpkins from the cattle.

"They'll eat 'em," said Ollen Keeler, the patriarch of the Keeler clan.

The vines are tangled on soft, Oklahoma dirt. The pumpkins, which are clinging to the vines, are resting in rows on four acres. Some areas have been picked and these places are home to a few rotting pumpkins that will never make it to market.

Keeler said that he will harvest about 20,000 to 30,000 pounds of pumpkins before he finishes. The biggest pumpkins weighed as much as 130 pounds and the smaller ones tipped the scales at, roughly, 6 pounds, he said.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I've been following with a great deal of interest about Peggy Ward, the high school majorette from Monongahela, Pa., who has had to sit out several games because she was a pound and a half over the weight limit.

The band instructor who imposed the restrictions said he did so to avoid name-calling from the sidelines that occurred last year. It's not the first time a story of this kind has made the wire services.

Somehow, it brought back the story of the late and great comedianne, Totie Fields, who was co-hosting the Mike Douglas show one day when a starved starlet came out in a gold lame jumpsuit. The audience went crazy. Totie jumped to her feet, went to the footlights and said, "What are you all clapping about? All of you out there look just like me!"

As a woman who appeared a few weeks ago on the "tonight" show in a pair of gold satin pants and had to lie out flat on a sofa until I went on to keep from getting permanent creases where the legs met the torso, I'm with Totie.

That's why I'm going to dedicate the rest of this column to all you teenagers out there who are a pound and a half overweight. (And you all know who you are.)

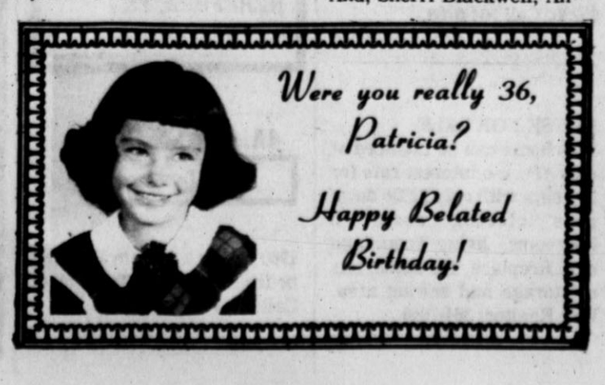

You may think that your life is over. It's not. You may think that marriage, children, or a successful career will elude you. It won't. You may wonder if you can be acceptable in a social and academic environment. You bet.

There's a lot of activities you can still do while carrying around an excessive pound and a half. You can tutor size 6's so they can remain eligible for the pompon squad. You can sew your Jordache labels on the hem of your overblouse and still be "in." You can wear a body suit under your gym clothes and when all the fat is pushed to your face tell everyone you fell asleep under the sun lamp. Money still talks. You can buy your way to the prom.

Forgive the satirical look at the problem. It's just that teenagers have enough problems and peer pressure in their lives without adding thinness to them. It must seem like a contradiction to them to be told in the classroom that self-esteem and success from within. What are your values? How do you relate to the rest of the world? How do you fit in?

And then you show up for tryouts for a job that dispenses school spirit and get told you have a bulge.

The only lesson I can possible see in the story is that if you play to the bozos in the bleachers who make fun of the way anyone looks .. you've lost the game before you've even played it.

Ann Landers

Preoccupation with being thin

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today both men and women are painfully preoccupied with a passion to look thin. We have been bombarded with a hailstorm of diet pills, low-cal drinks and dozens of books on how to shed unwanted pounds while never going hungry.

When will these fools wake up and realize that not everyone can be thin, and not everyone wants to be? It takes all kinds of people to make a world. Personally, I'd like to tell the woman who wrote that I don't mind if she jiggles. – 20 And Free

DEAR 20: You and the dozens of Chicago construction workers during the lunch hour on Michigan Ave. The jigglers ate their dessert. Thanks for the upper.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read your column in the Cleveland Plain Dealer from the woman who was upset because all of her guests were dieting and refused to eat the gourmet lunch she worked so hard on.

Society has gone diet-nuts. The thin craze is being pushed on us from every angle - TV, radio, magazines, tapes, newspapers and best sellers, not to mention the fashion industry, It isn't just middle-aged ladies but teens and young adults who are so obsessed with being thin that they are willing to lay their lives on the line by inducing vomiting after meals (bulimia) and self-starvation (anorexia nervosa). These are not fads – they are illnesses that can do enormous damage to bodies and result in death.

I am not merely another annoyed reader. I am the mother of a 14-year-old girl who is in the hospital because of anorexia. It has done terrible things to her body and her mind. You have printed several letters about this in the past. In fact, you were one of the first to bring it to the attention of the public. Please keep telling your readers that being thin, thin, thin, isn't worth killing themselves for. -- Angry Mom In The Midwest.

DEAR MOM: Thanks for giving me a chance to put this hideous problem before the public yet another time. Some people need to hear it four or five times before they wake up and smell the coffee.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was dumbfounded when I read your advice to the woman who put her fur-trimmed jacket on the bed when she went to play cards at the home of a friend. A cat urinated on it and all the hostess could say was, "I wonder which one of those naughty little rascals did that!"

She asked you if she should send the women a bill for a new jacket. You said "No." I'd like to know why not. And what's wrong with suing in small claims court? Too many people have no respect for the property of others. The way to make sure they get the message is to sock it to 'em. So, get with it – or turn in your typewriter. –Ellie In Westchester

DEAR ELLIE: Is a longtime friendship worth the price of a jacket? I say cool it and keep dignity on your side. The onus will then be on her, not you.

Woman in extortion plot is jailed

HOUSTON (AP) — Jill Renee Bird, one of five persons charged with trying to extort $15 million from Gulf Chemicals Co., hoped to be released from jail today after her bond was reduced from $1 million to $200,000.

Ms. Bird, who earlier had been promised immunity by federal officials, could not post five percent or $10,000 of her bond Monday and was jailed while her family tried to raise the money.

Charles Szekely, Ms. Bird's attorney, said he was pleased that U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley had reduced the bond. But he noted he was disturbed the government had reneged on a plea bargain agreement that would have freed his client from prosecution.

Federal authorities promised Ms. Bird immunity in exchange for information from John Marvin McBride, 46, the alleged mastermind of the scheme in which five bombs were planted at Gulf Chemical's Cedar Bayou plant near here. The plant was closed for five days in late September and early October.

U.S. Attorney Dan Hedges said, however, McBride failed to live up to his part of the agreement and also argued that the immunity pact was not binding since the government entered into it under duress.

During Monday's hearing, U.S. Attorney Ron Woods had two letters read into the record which he said were presented to bolster the government's argument that Ms. Bird, 34, should be held on $1 million bail for her role in the extortion plot.

One letter, the original Sept. 28 extortion note sent to Gulf officials, stated that the conspirators "are all professional criminals who have never been caught."

The other, a Sept. 29 "love letter" to Ms. Bird from her common-law husband, John Marvin McBride, stated that McBride was "proud of the courage you've shown in our last investigation together."

Botley said he interpreted that as a reference to the extortion plot.

FBI agent Terrance P. Donahue testified that the FBI had traced a long distance telephone call that had been made from a motel room in Phoenix that had been rented by one of the persons indicted to a room in Houston that had been rented by Ms. Bird.

Ms. Bird and McBride were indicted Friday along with Theodore Duane McKinney, 45, Timothy K. Justice, 30 and Michale Allen Worth, 34. All are from Durango, Colo.

Today In History

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 26, the 299th day of 1982. There are 66 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 26, 1979, South Korean president Park Chung-hee was slain in the headquarters of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency.

On this date:

In 1942, the U.S. aircraft carrier Hornet was sunk in Battle of the Solomon Islands in World War II.

In 1962, Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev offered to withdraw missiles from Cuba if the United States removed its bases from Turkey. The offer was rebuffed.

In 1975, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat arrived in the United States with a bid for military and economic aid.

In 1978, the United States criticized Israel's decision to expand existing settlements in occupied Arab territories.

Ten years ago: Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger declared that peace was at hand in the Vietnam War and that Saigon would agree to a cease-fire.

Thought for today: "Nothing is terrible except fear itself." — Francis Bacon, English scientist (1561-1626).

Ants in the firewood

DEAR POLLY — I have several cords of firewood piled up in my basement to use in the basement stove. There are some ants around the firewood and they are getting upstairs into the hall, even a couple in the bedroom and kitchen. What can I do about this? If I spray with an ordinary insect spray, do I have to close up the house for any length of time? How long must I air the house out before we can come back inside? — MRS. G.H.

DEAR MRS. G.H. — There are many brands of ant killing sprays on the market which you can try. Generally there's no need to close up the house (unless you use a "fogger" type, in which case follow the directions on the can) since they destroy ants by leaving a residue of poison through which the ants walk. The ants also then carry the poison back to the nest to kill more ants. Poison-filled ant traps can also be placed in the affected area (in your case around the wood in the basement). Just be sure when using any of these poison products that pets and small children are kept away from the area. Wash your hands and any skin that the spray has come into contact with thoroughly after using. Some non-poison ant remedies include sprinkling cinnamon along their trails and across doorways, white vinegar sprayed along their trails and cucumber skins scattered about the place. However, these are more likely to prevent the ants from going certain places than to kill them. You might try using one of these home remedies around the stair area in your basement, in the hope of confining the critters to that area of the house. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Use old worn dishcloths for the linings of home-made pot holders. Fold the cloths so there are several layers of insulation, then cover with new bright fabric. Stitch layers together in several places to hold them securely. — RENA

DEAR POLLY — To stay cooler and fresher at night, sprinkle baby powder on the bed sheets before you climb in. — MARY JO

A survey showed that flowers with white or cream-colored petals gave off the most perfume.

Rabies scare in Texas

BIG LAKE, Texas (AP) — An affectionate, lovable but rabid cat caused a rabies scare in this tiny West Texas town that was heightened when area hospitals ran out of vaccine.

City officials said the 27 children and adults who befriended the cat traveled 70 miles to San Angelo hospitals for vaccines last weekend, but eight were turned away when doctors ran out of the anti-rabies vaccine.

Available vaccine supplies also were drained in Abilene and more had to be ordered from state health officials in Austin, said City Secretary Tony Wille.

None of the residents have been found to have rabies, an almost-always fatal viral disease.

"There was no serum in Big Spring or San Angelo," said Tina Ajirogi, a sister of a man who was bitten by the cat. "What are we supposed to do, sit around and die?"

"This is a life-or-death matter," Mrs. Ajirogi said. "...We're taking a chance if we don't take the shots."

More vaccine arrived Monday at Angelo Community Hospital, and the vaccine also was on re-order at Shannon West Texas Memorial Hospital, spokesmen for the hospitals said.

Eight people, including five children, were not treated during the weekend because both hospitals ran out of the vaccine, said Nina Hallmark, the mother of one untreated child who compiled a list of those who did not receive treatment.

Officials feared the worst when the black and white cat, cared for and fed by neighborhood children, was found to have rabies, said Wille, who coordinated local efforts to prevent an outbreak in this town of 3,400 people.

"This cat was an affectionate, lovable stray that was in the neighborhood for some time," he said. "All the children were feeding it and playing with it."

"The people who have been affected have been quite concerned. In some families, the whole family has been involved," Wille said. "It's all kind of traumatic for them."

"I wasn't that worried about it until I talked to my pediatrician in Houston, and he couldn't understand why we hadn't got the shots," said Angela Dodd, whose two children also had not yet received treatment.

The rabies scare began Tuesday when a man was bitten by the cat, which had recently had a fight with a group of dogs, Wille said.

A veterinarian in Big Lake killed the cat and sent its head to Austin where tests determined Friday that the animal had rabies, said Wille.

"The thing is, we just don't know how long it had rabies," he said. "It is quite likely that the exposure level was less than was thought. There are a lot of people being vaccinated on the supposition that a lot of small children were exposed."

The shots must be administered in a painful series of injections over 21 days.

Medical experts believe only three people have survived rabies, a viral disease that attacks the central nervous system, can cause paralysis and usually transmitted through the saliva of an infected animal.

San Angelo pediatrician Dr. Jane Rider said the shots to the 26 people not thought to have been bitten by the cat were a necessary precaution.

"These are young children," she said. "We don't know for sure if they haven't been scratched or bitten. Secondly, some people feel rabies are transmitted from saliva to the mucus membrane of the lips or mouth."

In 1979, a rabies outbreak ravaged Texas' wildlife, with 1,195 cases reported.

That same year, more than 8,500 dogs were killed in the Texas border city of Eagle Pass and its Mexican sister city Piedras Negras during a rabies outbreak.

Three children died, one of them infected on the Texas side of the Rio Grande.

Since 1960, the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta reports, rabies in humans has appeared at a rate of about two cases each year.
