JURY, STANDING 9 TO 3 FOR BECKY, DISMISSED

Six Inquiries Follow Detroit Cabaret Fire

Peacox's 'Girl' Tells Of Nights In Death Flat

FLAMES TRAP MERRY MAKERS IN NIGHT CLUB

17 Dead and 47 Injured Is Toll in Holocaut at Dance Hall

PROPRIETOR QUIZZED

Terrified Guests Found Piled in Rooms by Firemen

DETROIT, Sept. 20. (AP)—Seventeen dead and 47 injured tonight was the casualty record of the flames and smoke that early today swept through the Study club, a cabaret in East Vernor highway that for a year has been one of the bright centers of Detroit night life.

Nine men and eight women made up the death list. The injured were scattered in half a dozen hospitals, many too seriously injured to tell of their experiences.

Six Investigations

Six separate investigations were under way by state and city departments, but the cause of the fire that sent scores of men and women into two small rooms in the rear of the second floor dining room, there to be trampled, burned and suffocated, still was undetermined. Thirty men and women, battered and bruised, were found piled in one of the rooms, a dressing room. A women's rest room, opposite the dressing room, was the other trap for which the panic stricken dancers and diners dashed when the flames swept around the dining room.

The two rooms and the main stairway was curtained with flame. Windows of the hall had been sealed to conform with the scheme of decoration.

Cigaret Blamed

The supposition of Gabriel S. Goldwater, fire marshal, was that a careless thrown cigaret or match started the fire, and that the shout of "fire!" caused the panic that followed.

"If there had been one man in the place who could have kept his head, this need not have happened," said Martin Cohn, proprietor of the club.

Cohn was held after he made a statement to Duncan C. McCrea, assistant prosecuting attorney.

"There is evidence of criminal negligence here and I am going to find out who is responsible," said McCrea. He referred to the Study club, a two-story building, as a "fire trap."

Decorations Go Fast

The fire broke out in the dining room and found ready fuel in the flimsy decorations that covered the walls. As the flames shot around the room there was wild rush for the dance floor in the center and then for two small rooms. The small dressing room had no exit and 30 men and women piled up there, unconscious from smoke or fright. In the womens' rest room many more crowded in panic. A window, one of two on the second floor that could be opened, was the way more than a score slid to safety before a fire hose, used as a rope, broke and tossed one girl into an alley. After that many others were dropped out by Al Handler, leader of the cabaret orchestra. Then he, too, was pushed through the window by the frenzied crowd.

At the hospitals it was said many of the injured were in such condition their recovery was uncertain. Coroner Albert French announced an inquest will be held later.

John M. Bischoff, commissioner of the department of buildings and safety engineering, said an exit that every one overlooked or that no one knew about, was available for escape from the flaming dining room. It was through the kitchen with double doors leading to a stairway not touched by the flames.

TROUBLE BREWING

Volcano Eruption Following Earthquakes Is Expected

HONOLULU, Sept. 20. (US)—Severe earthquakes in the North Kona district recorded on the seismograph at Hilo last night, led to the prediction today that Mount Hualalai, dormant since 1801, is on the verge of eruption.

Dr. T. A. Jaggar, junior volcanologist at Hilo, declared the tremors were entirely local but that an outbreak of the long inert volcano may be imminent.

Alarmed by the tremblors and their apparent significance, cattle men and other residents in the vicinity of Hualalai were preparing today to remove their stock and household effects and to flee on short notice.

KNIFING TRIAL NEARS CLOSE

Testimony Ends in Pate Williams Case

AMARILLO, Texas, Sept. 20. (AP)—The testimony taking phase of the murder trial of C. S. (Pate) Williams, knife slayer of O. C. Hill Jr. of Ashtola, was completed in district court tonight and the case probably will go to the jury some time tomorrow.

The chief issue on which counsel examined and cross-examined witnesses was whether Williams was standing up or sitting when he slashed Hill fatally at a July Fourth rodeo, or was lying on the ground with Hill on top.

The prosecution contended that Williams "waylaid" Hill at the park entrance and started the affray that cost Hill's life. To the defense Hill was the aggressor from the time Williams stumbled over Hill's feet, enraging the latter, until the fight ended.

Hill's widow and three of his friends were the chief witnesses through whom the state sought to show that Williams was waiting at the incline to the grandstand when Hill and his party came out and that the man on trial said "there comes that big —— now."

A member of the police force swore that Williams had told him in the bleachers directly after Hill had cursed Williams "he's too big for me, but I'll get him yet. He can't get away with that."

Williams, a policeman, a man who said he didn't know either principal and most of the state witnesses agreed that Hill cursed the slayer in the bleachers when the disagreement began, although Williams had apologized for stumbling on Hill's feet. Defense witnesses reversed the gate scene, declaring that Hill, just as he came down the incline, said: "There' that little —— now," just before they clinched.

Williams testified that he was knocked down twice and to his knees the third time and that he did not use the knife until Hill was on top of him. State witnesses said Hill slapped at Williams and never did hit him. Most of those on the stand said both men had been drinking. Testimony brought out that Hill was much larger physically.

Vernon Ex-Chief's Suit Dismissed

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 20. —Following instructions of the court on a motion of the defendants, the jury in the case in which W. W. Gilbert sought $63,000 in a suit against Lon Byars et al. in connection with the plaintiff's discharge as chief of Vernon police returned a verdict favoring the defendants today and the suit was dismissed.

Gilbert asked $60,000 in damages and $3,600 in salary he claimed was due him.

Mayor H. D. Hockersmith, Commissioners W. O. Smith and A. J. Carpenter, and former Commissioner Byars were named as defendants.

The instructed verdict was returned after all evidence had been offered, and the defense attorneys made the motion the case be dismissed on the grounds that the plaintiff had failed to show sufficient grounds for action.

SARTIN FLINGS CHALLENGE TO DEMO FORCES

Anti-Smith Leader Scores Peace Terms Made By Wilcox

THIRD PARTY THREAT

Wichitan Asks Alvin Moody To Call State Rally Of Bolters

"If they don't want peace, then let's have war!"

Charging that the opinion of D. W. Wilcox, state Democratic executive committee chairman, that persons who bolted the Democratic ticket in the last election should not be allowed to run for office on the Democratic ticket in the coming election was likewise the opinion of the entire state executive committee, B. D. Sartin, announced candidate for congress, Friday night denounced Wilcox for his attitude and announced plans that may lead to determined organization of the bolter faction in Texas, with a full list of candidates in the field.

Issues Statement

Mr. Wilcox's statement was in answer to a letter he received from Judge Edgar Scurry, county Democratic chairman. That letter asked for his opinion as to whether or not members of the bolter faction would be allowed to vote and run for office in the next election under the mantle of the Democratic party. Mr. Wilcox answered that anyone who took the pledge could vote and run for office, but added as his personal view that he didn't think a person who signed the pledge in the last campaign and then voted Republican should be allowed to run for office as a Democratic candidate in the coming fracas.

Mr. Sartin, in a prepared statement Friday night, said he had reasons to believe that Mr. Wilcox's attitude towards the prospective candidates was a reflection of the attitude of the whole state executive committee, and that this attitude likely would definitely end the "peace movement" that has been attempted to reunite the opposing factions in Texas.

"We have tried to effect a reconciliation, but now it is ended," Mr. Sartin said. "If they don't want peace, let's have war."

Asks Rally of Bolters

The first step in this war, Mr. Sartin said, has already been taken. He said he has written Alvin Moody of Houston, chairman of the Anti-Tammany Democratic forces in Texas, and suggested the calling of a state-wide mass meeting of Hoover Democrats and all anti-voters who care to attend. The purpose of this mass meeting, which likely would be held in Dallas, would be to petition the state Democratic executive committee to either approve or denounce Mr. Wilcox's attitude toward bolter candidates.

Should the state executive committee endorse Mr. Wilcox's attitude, Mr. Sartin said, and oppose the placing of a bolter's name on the Democratic ticket, then the bolters will put a ticket in the field, and enter candidates for every office "from congressman to constable."

If, however, the state executive committee should repudiate Mr. Wilcox, they would remain in the Democratic party.

Mr. Sartin said that he, as vice-chairman of the Texas Anti-Tammany Democrats, was willing to start plans for the mass meeting immediately, but that he would confer with Mr. Moody before announcing anything definite. The meeting, he said, would be held in the immediate future if plans worked out.

Mr. Sartin's statement follows: "It has been the intention of men and women who opposed the nomination and election of Governor Smith, to cease hostilities, and forget the late differences that rent asunder the Democratic party in

LINDY LANDS

Flier and Passengers Reach Santiago At Dusk

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, CUBA, Sept. 20. (US)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, flying a trimotored Fokker plane and carrying Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh and a number of guests, landed here shortly after 6 o'clock this evening.

The Lindbergh plane came from Camaguey, Cuba, 180 miles from this settlement.

J. T. Trippe, president of the Pan-American Airways, was the first passenger to sight this this town, settling at the foot of the great Sierra Maestra.

At Camaguey, the Lindbergh plane picked up as a passenger, Leonard Fox.

$143,000 PAID BY SHIP FIRMS

Clinton Bardo Tells of Hiring William B. Shearer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. (AP)—Expenditure of $143,000 by shipbuilders for activities here at the time the Jones-White merchant marine act was passed a year ago was discovered today by a senate committee, in opening its investigation of William B. Shearer's services for shipbuilders at the 1927 naval parley which collapsed in Geneva.

Clinton L. Bardo, farm-born president of the New York Shipbuilding company, told of the operations of the shipbuilders in national and international affairs. He bluntly denied Shearer was hired to interfere with the Geneva negotiations instituted by President Coolidge.

He said $35,000 was paid Shearer by the three companies to learn the "trend" of the conference. He said he didn't care about the result and was "disappointed" that the conference failed.

The committee learned from Bardo of the $143,000 expenditures by the shipping industry at the time the Jones-White act was enacted.

Bardo said the Trans-Oceanic company, a subsidiary of the American Brown Boveri Electric corporation, spent $102,000 in its drive for legislation at the time it was projecting a four-day transatlantic service. The New York Shipbuilding company also is a subsidiary of the American Brown Boveri.

A list of the expenditures submitted by Bardo showed $35,693 advanced to L. R. Wilder, president of the Trans-Oceanic company, and $24,049 for hotel expenses were the largest items. Another item showed $6,750 to the Ivy Lee Publicity organization.

Willow Bank Robbery Trial at Mangum Delayed

Special to The Record News.

MANGUM, Okla., Sept. 20.—Trial of J. T. James and Paul Brooks, alleged Willow, Okla., bank bandits, scheduled for today, was postponed until Saturday by the failure of the Dr. J. F. Campbell trial to come to an end earlier. Dr. Campbell is being tried on charges of grand larceny and embezzlement, in connection with an alleged pardon deal.

The Willow bank was robbed a few weeks ago by two men who escaped with $3,100. James and Brooks were arrested in Wichita Falls the morning after the robbery.

Mrs. Waggoner Refuses To Waive Immunity

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. (AP)—Refusing to waive immunity, Mrs. Mary Belle Waggoner was not questioned by the grand jury today in the federal investigation of the method used by her husband Charles D. Waggoner, president of the Bank of Telluride, Colo., in fraudulently obtaining $500,000 credit in six New York banks.

Mrs. Waggoner arrived yesterday from Colorado in company with her son, Charles D. Waggoner Jr., and Miss Frances Carlson, young clerk of the Telluride bank, in answer to federal subpoenas.

Two Escaped Convicts Held in Richmond Jail

RICHMOND, Texas, Sept. 20. (AP)—Two of the six convicts who made their getaway from the Ramsey state prison farm Wednesday night were held in jail here today awaiting return to the farm.

The two men, W. H. Hendrickson, sentenced to two years for theft from Robertson county, and Earl Faulkner, serving seven years for theft from Carson county, were captured late yesterday by August Sieler, a farmer living near Needville, 16 miles south of here.

Sieler said the men surrendered after an exchange of shots.

Zeppelin Not to Make Flight to United States

BERLIN, Sept. 20. (UP)—The Graf Zeppelin will make no more flights to the United States this year, it was announced today by the owners. Instead, the huge dirigible will make about 10 flights through Germany and possibly fly over Scandinavia, Italy and the Mediterranean, chiefly to train a complete reserve crew.

SLAIN WOMAN'S DRESSES GIVEN FOR ALIBI AID

Frances Newman Details Long Association With Accused Youth

POOR GOLD DIGGER

Small Pay for Unwitting Help to Killer Told By Witness

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 20. —"Me and Willie—that's the boy friend I was living with—had an argument, so I packed my things, left him a note, and called up Mister Peacox, and asked him to drive me out of town."

But the hour was late, so "Mister" Peacox drove Frances Newman to the humble second floor flat at No. 32 Edison avenue, in Mount Vernon, which still echoed to the death cries of the young wife he had killed there just a few days previous, and where she promised to lend him a hand toward an alibi though she didn't know it was an alibi.

Thought Flat "Grand"

To the little flat that Dolly Peacox, the dead girl, had snuffed at as "the same old dump," and which Frances Newman thought was very grand, indeed, and where she had "cheated" on Willie, the boy friend, on several occasions with Earle Peacox, according to her own story.

For what, think you.

For love? No, not love. Frances Newman had no deep regard for Earle Peacox. She didn't see him often.

For hire?

Ah, no. Never a dime did Peacox give Frances Newman. Her only reward was a few worn dresses out of the hope chest that Dolly Peacox had proudly filled in the days of her happiness with the 22-year-old boy who now stands charged with her murder.

Poor Gold Digger

Only the worn dresses, and a string of cheap beads. The union gold diggers of Broadway are going to be highly indignant when they hear that Frances Newman is assigned to their camping ground. The humblest member would demand more than that.

It is to be regretted that every girl who dreams of the "gay white way" as a bright aisle where the lights are always shining and the jazz bands always playing, and where gents go around tossing diamond necklaces, and Rolls Royces in the laps of the ladies, couldn't have seen and heard her as she sat in the drab old courtroom in White Plains this afternoon.

They have had Frances in jail in Westchester county for four months. She apparently had no friends, or relatives, to help her out. A tough break for a girl whose only fault seems to be about the same thing for which other women have become rich and famous.

Betwixt and Between

She is about 22 years old. Not good looking, and yet not bad looking. Betwixt and between. You couldn't tell today how she might look dressed up like Peggy Joyce. The big hearted detectives who pinched her as a material witness bought her the pale blue dress she wore today.

A pathetic figure, this, as she sat in the witness chair, unsmiling, and answering questions in a small voice that was smothered by the noise of a riveting machine in the street outside until the stern old Judge Tompkins ordered the windows closed.

They met at the dance hall where Frances Newman worked on election night in 1928 and danced and went to Childs, and had something to eat, and then she went to Pea-

Mangum Attorney Scores Johnston For Conduct in Pardon Fraud Trial

Attack on Former Governor High Point in Arguments of Greer Physician's Case

MANGUM, Okla., Sept. 20. (UP)—A declaration that "the conduct of Henry S. Johnston in this trial justifies the legislature in impeaching him," was made by W. B. Garrett, Mangum attorney, today in argument before the jury at the trial of Dr. J. F. Campbell, charged with a $10,000 pardon fraud.

Garrett's attack on the former governor opened a stormy afternoon session in the crowded Greer county courtroom where prominent political and legal figures in the state had gathered to hear the final phases of the trial which has created a sensation.

"Johnston's conduct in shaking hands with the jurors just before he was scheduled to take the witness stand against Campbell, was due to one of two things in view of his 40 years experience as a lawyer," Garrett asserted. He referred to Johnston's act late yesterday which caused Judge E. L. Richardson to disqualify him as a witness.

"He was either too ignorant to know better, or felt because he has been governor of the state he is better than the ordinary clodhopper country lawyer," Garrett shouted.

Garrett bitterly denounced W. M. Williams, special prosecutor, and the Rev. B. M. Nelson, Oklahoma City minister. He said that Nelson was forced by defense counsel from telling a deliberate falsehood when he was obliged to admit he attended a conference with Governor Johnston about clemency for W. J. Radney.

The charges of grand larceny and embezzlement resulted from alleged manipulations by Campbell of a $10,000 note allegedly paid him by Radney to secure Radney's pardon from a 20-year sentence for manslaughter.

Garrett attacked Senator Williams for working for clemency for Radney while Williams was county attorney for Greer county.

In answer to defense counsel's castigations, John Stanley of Wewoka, special prosecutor, railed the defense counsel members.

Elinor Smith and White Arrive at San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 20. (AP)—Following arrival at Winburn field here today of Miss Elinor Smith and Bert White of the Irwin Air Chute company, delayed in Wichita, Kan., by investigation of the death of Miss Helen Williams there Sunday, it was announced that a demonstration of parachute jumping will be given at Winburn field here Saturday afternoon with Miss Smith as pilot. White, for whom a warrant charging manslaughter in the fourth degree in connection with Miss Williams' death by a fall from the plane, was issued at Wichita Thursday evening, said he expected to return to Wichita Monday morning.

Three School Fires Stir Denison Area

DENISON, Texas, Sept. 20. (AP)—Residents of this county have become greatly aroused following the burning of the third rural school house yesterday in as many weeks. The fire marshal here believed the fires were of incendiary origin. A state fire department representative was to arrive tomorrow to investigate.

25 Textbook Companies Indicted in Kentucky

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 20. (AP)—The Franklin county grand jury which yesterday indicted Gov. Flem D. Sampson, today handed down indictments against 25 textbook companies, incorporated in 13 states, charging them with making gifts to members of the Kentucky state textbook commission.

PROSECUTION OF CO-ED LIKELY TO BE DROPPED

Girl Bandit's Fourth Trial Results in Mistrial at New Braunfels

40 BALLOTS TAKEN

One Man Changes for Acquittal After Two Votes Taken

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas, Sept. 20. (AP)—The jury which for nearly 48 hours had sought to determine the guilt or innocence of Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, tried for bank robbery, was discharged at 5:40 p. m. for failure to agree. District Attorney Fred Blundell had indicated that he did not intend to attempt another prosecution.

The jury stood 9 to 3 for acquittal.

Fourth Court Appearance

Thus the fourth court appearance of Mrs. Rogers, demure 24-year-old former Texas university student, since she held up the Buda, Texas, Farmers National bank in December, 1926, ended in stalemate.

It was the first such mistrial of a felony in this county within 10 years.

There was just a trace of a smile on "Becky's" face as the verdict was read but she said nothing.

For Otis Rogers, who was 27 years old today, the jury's failure to agree was disappointing, but he thanked each juror for the "earnest deliberation." He had pleaded that his young wife, whom he married secretly while both were students at the university, temporarily was insane when she took around $1,000 from the bank with her small pistol.

40 Ballots Taken

The verdict was received on behalf of the state by County Attorney Frank Voigt. District Attorney Blundell already had gone home to Lockhart, where his wife was reported seriously ill.

The jury took 40 ballots. In the first two, the count was 8 to 4 for acquittal but one man was won over and thereafter they registered over and over again—9 to 3.

Rogers, assisted in presenting the defense only by two young lawyers, classmates and friends of his college days, prepared to take his young wife back to their home in Fort Worth immediately. The next move, he declared, was the state's. District Attorney Blundell's statement of this morning that if a hung jury resulted Rebecca should be confined in an institution for treatment "in justice to her and to the public" drew from the young lawyer-husband this indignant reply:

Going Back Home

"If she was declared insane, her friends over the state—and they are legion—would never permit her to be sent to an asylum. They would post a bond in twd minutes of any amount and she would remain in my care, as it is my wish that she do. . . . We will go back

TWO INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Express Truck Crashes Into Load of Pipe

Two men were severely injured in an odd accident about 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon when an American Express company truck, driven by L. B. Taylor, 1329 Thirty-fifth street, collided with a hoist load of pipe which was protruding from the end of a flat-car on the tracks at the rear of the Wichita Ice company.

The load of pipe swung around sharply and fell on E. S. Jones of McCamey, Texas, an employe of the Shell Pipeline company who was assisting in transferring the pipe from a truck to the flat-car. Mr. Taylor, driver of the express truck, was thrown from his seat to the ground by the impact of the crash.

Mr. Jones was taken to the Wichita General hospital in a Merkle company ambulance. Physicians at first thought he had sustained internal injuries but examination proved that he had suffered, only painful bruises and shock. He was reported resting well late Friday night.

Mr. Taylor was taken to the Hargrave-Walker hospital in an Albert's company ambulance. His injuries consisted of severe cuts on the face and head, caused by the flying glass from the windshield of his truck. It was thought that some of the glass had entered the mouth. He was also reported resting well late Friday night.

Jurist Implicates Officials in Killing

AMARILLO, Texas, Sept. 20. (AP)—"It is my opinion that the murder of Johnny Holmes was the most serious crime in the history of Texas for 30 years," Federal Judge James C. Wilson said today at a meeting of the American Business club here, "and that the hand that fired the gun either was the hand of an official or had official sanction."

Judge Wilson stressed that he was speaking as a citizen of the United States and not in his official capacity as a United States district judge.

Stimson Confers On Armament With Claudel

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. (AP)—Secretary Stimson today initiated conferences with diplomatic representatives in Washington of three naval powers to be invited to join the United States and Great Britain in a sea power limitation conference next January.

His first talk was with Paul Claudel, the French ambassador, and it was indicated that there would be conversations later with the Japanese and Italian ambassadors. Neither the secretary of state nor the French diplomat discussed the meeting. Since the invitations to the conference are to be issued by the British government, there was speculation as to what the subject matter had been.

Italian Ship Radios Message of Distress

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 20. (UP)—The Italian steamer Disciplina, 2,000 tons, sent out an SOS tonight saying: "Ashore hook of Holland owing to storm."

Two steam tugs were dispatched to the rescue. The sea was rough and the Disciplina was in a dangerous position.

200 Unconscious Hours End in Man's Death

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 20. (AP)—Lawrence A. Moltane, 45, died here today after remaining in a coma for approximately 200 hours. A postmortem examination performed by five physicians convinced them that Moltane had suffered from encephalitis, a rare disease in this section of the country.

Soviet Plane Plans Takeoff for America

BREMERTON, Wash., Sept. 20. (UP)—The naval radio station today announced reception of a message which indicated, officials said, that the Russian airplane, Land of the Soviets, would take off today from Petropavlovsk, Siberia, for Attu, Alaska, on its Moscow-United States flight.

PEACOX'S GIRL TELLS STORY

Frances Newman Spent Nights in Flat

cox's room with him downtown. It was the beginning of an intermittent friendship that lasted up to the day Frances found out Earle was a murderer.

Frequent Meetings

She met him on an average of once every two or three weeks. In March last she went to his apartment for the first time which was when he told her of his separation from his wife, and showed her Dolly's picture, and spoke of Dolly as "a very pretty girl." All in all, and off and on, "I went with Mister Peacox about six months," Frances said and all this time she had Willie, the boy friend, on her staff.

The most important feature of her testimony as far as the state is concerned in its efforts to establish premeditation against Peacox, was her statement that Peacox had told her that his wife was living downtown with two men, and that if he ever caught them he would finish them, though just what he meant by this threat didn't seem altogether clear to Frances.

You get an idea of Peacox from the testimony in general that he was by no means an unsophisticated youth. He knew his way around the big town. Frances told of trying to arrange a party for him at his apartment one night but her girl friend, Margery, didn't keep a date with her at Times Square, so Frances went alone to find a Mr. Hibbits also present.

They had one of those terrible nights, a few drinks, percolator coffee, and music from the radio. Mr. Hibbits got tired of all this hilarity, with being a sort of ghost at the banquet, so he took the air, and Frances remained. It was this night, which was some time before the murder, that Earle got out his wife's hope chest and gave Frances some lingerie and dresses.

William "Two-Timed"

She said she remarked to Earle that she was afraid his wife might want the clothes herself, but he said he was sending them all out to her mother's in Bronxville anyway, and she wouldn't miss anything. That particular night before going to Peacox's apartment, Frances had maneuvered out of a date with Willie, her boy friend, so it would appear she was two-timing William.

When she finally decided to move out on Will entirely, she packed her duds and went up to 125th street and called Peacox from there. He made an appointment to meet her and picked her up in his car late in the evening, and after vetoing her idea of being taken out of town, drove her to the Edison street flat.

He told her on the way up, Frances said, that he had "picked up a bum" on the Boston Post road one night not long before this and taken her to the flat, and that she was drunk and had created a row, and that he had carried her out of the place and taken her back up the Boston road and left her.

Alibi Planned

He was afraid the landlord, or somebody, might kick up a fuss about the noise in his apartment that night, so would Frances say, if anybody asked, that she had been there, and was the party who made the racket.

"Sure," said Frances. "I'll say I was drunk and stumbled, or something."

"That's great," replied Earle. "Try and remember it."

She didn't know Dolly Peacox was dead. Didn't know the girl-wife had been lying in a roadside thicket for several days. Frances stayed in the apartment that night, and the next day Earle left her alone there for about half an hour, telling her not to be afraid, and not to answer the telephone, and when he came back he took her down to 151st street, which was the last she saw of him, until after her arrest.

Attorney Coyne asked the girl if Earle had ever spoken of marriage to her.

"Oh," she said, "he once said he never intended to go back to his wife, but would get a divorce and marry me. Then he laughed."

And the girl's unsmiling face relaxed a bit, as if she, too, were ready to laugh at the idea of Earle marrying her.

Muriel Gertrude Clark, a neatly dressed, rather prepossessing young matron, who lived under the Peacox flat, brought a new element into the affair when she testified that she smelled the odor of ether the night of the murder.

This ether business is entirely new, and Attorney Syme tried to make Mrs. Clark admit that she often got the fumes of a nearby gas house in her home. But she wouldn't give in on that point.

The judge took a hand in questioning her, and Attorney Syme objected to these interruptions by the court, but didn't get anywhere with his objection. She said she heard the sound of the radio in Peacox's flat in the wake of the screams and thumps, and heard Peacox coming down the stairs and leaving the house, and smelled the ether.

She peered from one of her windows and saw Peacox putting a bundle in his car but she couldn't tell just what it was.

"And you've never smelled any odors around your house such as gas?" asked Attorney Syme, anxious to clear out that smell of ether.

"I've smelled a lot of odors around my house, but not gas," said the lady with some asperity. She was a bit sharpish in her answers to Syme all the way through, but smiled at him slightly when he bowed and said "That's all."

Flag Pole Champ Sleeps Two Days In Preparation for Feat Here

Four days, four nights and four hours atop a flagpole, without sleep or rest, is the mark set by himself for Benny Fox, world champion flagpole sitter, who has retired to the seclusion of his room for two days of sleep and rest before beginning his endurance test on top of the Marchman hotel at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Benny will have a number of the conveniences of home while sitting on his flagpole, including a telephone, phonograph music, reading matter, personally prepared meals and other services, with only the drawback that he will be sitting on a small, hard board and will be locked to the pole during the entire test. His telephone number will be 8174 and he has invited telephone calls at any time of day or night.

If the family alarm clock runs down or a business man finds that his watch has stopped in the middle of important work, Benny will be prepared, through the courtesy of the Zale Jewelry company, to give the correct time by telephone. He will be made visible at night during the test by large searchlights directed at the top of the pole, to convince the skeptical that he is there even though almost everyone else is in bed.

Following the completion of the test, he will be put in bed, under the care of Dr. H. E. Breevort, in the window of the Star Furniture company, 916 Scott avenue, where he may be seen until his condition permits his removal.

During the stay he will hear Victor music furnished by the victrola department of the Zale Jewelry company. His home atop the Marchman hotel was erected by Charles G. Hughes, plumber. As for food, the coffee shop of the Marchman hotel will prepare the meals, with the Producers' Creamery company furnishing milk and cream, the Wichita and Peoples Ice companies furnishing ice, the Home Baking company furnishing bread and pastries and the Bert Bean Coffee company serving him coffee at all hours of the day and night. The white clothes, which Benny always wears in his flagpole sitting tests, will be laundered by the City laundry.

ROGERS JURY IS DISCHARGED

Fourth Trial Fails to Convict Girl

to our little home in Fort Worth where her treatment under Dr. Wilmer Allison will continue. It will be the state's next move, not ours."

Mrs. Rogers was a stenographer in the offices of the then Attorney General Dan Moody, now governor, when she stuck up the bank. Shortly after her arrest, she was brought into the district court at Georgetown, Texas, for trial on an arson charge, lodged on the state's claim that she fired a vacant residence house in Round Rock, just prior to the Buda robbery, hoping that an adjacent bank would be deserted and that she might slip in and rob it. The jury disagreed.

Then, she went on trial at La Grange for the Buda "job." A 14-year penalty was assessed but later reversed. Back the case went to La Grange and this time a jury could not be obtained. The transfer to New Braunfels followed.

LOCKHART, Texas, Sept. 20. (AP)—Having learned of the jury's failure to agree in the Rebecca Bradley Rogers bank robbery trial at New Braunfels, District Attorney Fred Blundell tonight said he did "not know" what court action next would be taken in her case.

He reiterated the assertion that if Otis Rogers, the young defendant's husband and chief lawyer and his backers are "sincere" in claiming she is insane they "should have her placed under treatment."

"I, myself," he added, "believe she is sane."

Blundell came here before the jury at New Braunfels was discharged to be with his wife, who is seriously ill.

CLARENCE SAUNDERS SOLE OWNER OF MY NAME

"Mother gave us children Black-Draught when we would complain," says Mrs. W. C. Clark of 414 Elm Street, Hopkinsville, Ky.

"Black-Draught has always been a family medicine in my mother's home. After I was married, when I would get bilious, have bad taste in my mouth, be dizzy, or have a headache, I would take a few doses of Black-Draught, which would make me feel much better.

"Black-Draught is good for indigestion. If I feel bloated, or uncomfortable after meals, Black-Draught relieves this. I can recommend it very highly."

This testimonial is genuine, and was given freely. No pay has been given or promised for its use.

COUNTY FAIR PLANS MADE

Details Complete for Iowa Park Exhibition

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Sept. 20.—With preparations for the Wichita county fair almost completed, the streets of Iowa Park decorated in bunting and flags and plans for the parade made definite, it was announced today that Thursday, the first day of the fair, will be Electra and Burkburnett day, Friday will be Wichita Falls day and Saturday will be Iowa Park, Ladies', Farmers' and School day.

The parade will begin at 9 o'clock Thursday morning at the Will F. George high school and will proceed up and down the streets to the Tom Burnett corner and thence to the gates of the fair grounds at 10 o'clock. At this point the judging of the floats entered in the parade will be made and the prizes awarded. Thursday afternoon's main feature will be the judging of the flower exhibits.

Friday, Wichita Falls day, will be occupied with the judging of the livestock, agricultural exhibits, poultry and pigeons. The baby show will be held Saturday, the closing day.

One of the features of the fair will be a real old-time terrapin race, the slow animals unknowingly winning or losing their backers' money by crossing the line of the circle first or perhaps remaining immovable in the ring. There will be a rodeo performance each afternoon and night during the fair, beginning with a night performance Wednesday. A free rube clown act will begin Monday, presenting its hilarious stunts in town from that time until the close of the fair.

Airport Notes

Several Wichita Falls residents had their first experience at night flying Thursday night when Fred Ridenour, pilot of the Lone Star Aviation company, made six trips over the city by moonlight in the Challenger-Robin monoplane belonging to L. P. Hammond. Those taken up included Mr. and Mrs. Hammond, Miss Eleanor Fleming, Miss Gertrude Datson, Howard Gordon and Bryan Cunningham.

Visitors at the Municipal airport Friday included Dick Dodds of Los Angeles, Calif., who landed here while en route from the Cleveland air races to Los Angeles in his Wricht Whirlwind-Waco biplane. Another visitor was W. T. Waggoner Jr. of Electra, who paid a short visit to the Municipal port about 10 o'clock Friday morning and another about 4 o'clock in the afternoon in his Whirlwind J6 Eagle-rock from Staley field.

James E. McKanna, local oil operator, took off from the Municipal airport bound for Oklahoma City about 4:45 o'clock Friday afternoon in his Travelair J6 monoplane. His family accompanied him on the trip, which will also take the party to Wichita, Kan.

L. P. Hammond of the Lone Star Aviation company took off for Oklahoma City from the Municipal port in his Challenger-Robin about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The Braniff and S. A. F. E. airliners Friday morning reported a total of nine passengers at the Municipal port. On the afternoon schedule trips, the two lines reported eight passengers.

Air and Bus Lines In Wichita Area Linked

Speeding up of traffic by the establishment of cooperation between the Braniff airlines and all bus lines entering Wichita Falls was accomplished Friday when all of the companies concerned were authorized to issue tickets either for continuation by airplane out of this city from incoming busses or vice versa, according to R. P. Mercer, traffic manager of the Braniff lines. This inauguration makes it possible for persons in outlying districts to reach Wichita Falls by bus and continue by air or for airline passengers to reach small towns by bus after landing here.

Veteran Geologist Sees Hope Of Great New Oil Pool in Area

Editor, The Wichita Falls Record News:

In The Record News of September the 19th an article appeared commending the drilling of ten (10) deep tests for oil in the Wichita Falls oil area. The specific area mentioned being from Wichita Falls to Lake Kemp on the north and the south line of Archer county on the south. To this movement I wish to lend my support and in doing so will say that I have only been doing geological work in Texas and adjoining states 27 years and realize that there is a lot for me to learn.

I believe the utmost discretion should be used in selecting a location for a deep test for oil in Archer county as deep oil will not be found in paying quantities in this area except in major gathering basins which extend northeast and southwest and on or near where a major axis crosses such gathering basins. There are only three major crokfolds in Archer county. One of the greatest gathering basins in this area extends from Seymour to Petrolia and crosses the apex of the major axis mentioned by Mr. Trout at or near Geraldine townsite making this area a logical place for the location of a deep test.

The geological conditions at Oklahoma City are very different from those which obtain in Archer county. The Pennsylvania formation is encountered at less than 1,000 feet at Geraldine and around 3,500 feet at Oklahoma City. Therefore, the same stratigraphic horizon in which oil is found at Oklahoma City should be encountered at around 3,500 feet at Geraldine.

The gathering basin which extends from Seymour to Petrolia passes near Wichita Falls on the south side.

A non-conformity probably caused by an earthquake extends from Fowlks Switch to Charlie and from the Wichita river and the Denver railroad to the shallow field south of Burkburnett. Any oil which this area contained has been forced by the greater specific gravity of salt water into higher levels in the great gathering basin which lies under and near Wichita Falls.

When I talked oil at Burkburnett from 1908 to 1912 some folks said I was crazy, and, my most intimate friends criticized me almost to the point of ostracism. Now I wonder what the people of Wichita Falls will say when I tell them through the press that in my opinion more oil will be found within a radius of seven miles of this city than has been recovered within the same radius of Burkburnett or Electra. I am warranted in making this statement by the seven or eight perfect structural closures which are easily discernible in this area.

These closures are the result of a minor axis crossing a major gathering basin and should produce oil in one or more sands to a depth of 2,000 feet.

I understand that there are two blocks of acreage in this area on which wells are to be drilled in part through the sale of acreage to a depth of 2,000 feet.

Up to this time I have never been accused of possessing very much egotism and it has never been my desire to be the center of any special attraction. I have never been entirely ostracised as a false prophet nor have I ever been lauded as a benefactor of a great city but I am frank to admit that I am yearning for the cooperation of the citizenship of Wichita Falls in the development of our natural resources through either deep or shallow drilling.

Through your cooperation we will develop the subject matter around which more history will be written and an era of prosperity will be ushered in.

With your cooperation one can visualize a city into the banks of which will pour as it were streams of liquid gold. The dwellings will be filled with happy and contented families. The business houses with prosperous merchants. The hotels and rooming houses will be filled to capacity. The office buildings will be occupied and the streets and sidewalks with their teeming thousands will assure the proportions of a real live city.

Signed,
J. R. SULLIVAN.

Junior C.-C. Committee Greets Bailes Here

Members of the junior chamber of commerce aviation committee, headed by Paul Hines, were at the Municipal airport at 3:40 p. m. Friday to greet Chester Bailes, Wichita Falls man, making his first flight as pilot for the Braniff airlines.

Mr. Bailes arrived on time from San Angelo en route to Oklahoma City. Mr. Hines introduced the other members of the committee, and in a brief talk, conveyed they their commendation of the Junior chamber of commerce to the aviator for conduct which brought him recently a bravery award from the Chicago Daily News.

T. J. Waggoner Jr., S. M. Gose, B. Q. Hall, William McKemie Jr. and J. C. Barnard were the other members of the committee.

BURK GROCER DRAWS FINE

$10 Assessed in Garbage Disposal Case

The first legal action in connection with the recent epidemic of typhoid fever in Burkburnett was taken Friday morning when the manager of a Burkburnett grocery store was convicted by a jury in justice court of that city of "operating a business in a manner injurious to the public health." The penalty assessed was a fine of $10 and costs.

The case was tried before a jury in Judge H. I. Johnson's justice of the peace court, and the prosecution was conducted by L. V. Abernathy, assistant Wichita county attorney.

The charge was filed Thursday by Mr. Abernathy following investigations at Burkburnett by W. N. Dashiell, district health officer assigned to investigate the typhoid epidemic. It alleged specifically that garbage and refuse was allowed to collect in the rear of the store.

The manager denied the charges, and pleaded not guilty when arraigned for trial Friday morning. He testified that he had made an effort to comply with health rules laid down by Mr. Dashiell in the interests of the welfare of Burkburnett citizens.

The Transfiguration

JUST as nobody, for some inscrutiable reason, loves a fat man, no one ever speaks up to express a downright fondness for a rainy day. The April shower, to be sure, gets a good word now and then; but the cold, drizzly rain of early autumn goes unhonored and unsung.

That is rather unfortunate. When we accept the autumn rain as dour and cheerless we are shutting our eyes to the plain truth of the matter. In reality, it is quite as worthy of praise as the harvest moon, or the Indian summer haze of late October.

The whole face of the open country changes under a continuous rain. The neighboring hills, that ordinarily look quite commonplace and unexciting, grow misty and mysterious, as if they rimmed an unknown country where all the unknown trails met. A little grove of trees becomes a primeval forest, its tree trunks gleaming in shiny blackness, its scanty underbrush drooping low in the wet as if some dank Eocene era of sluggish reptiles and frightful monsters were about to begin again. A reaped cornfield takes on the look of a limitless desolation; a tiny valley is transformed into an enchanted vale in which any marvel might lurk.

At night the transformation is even more complete. Stand on the front porch of a farmhouse, after dark, during a chill September rain, if you want to encounter the familiar earth in a new guise. The steady patter of the rain becomes a strange chorus—a requiem for the dying life of autumn and a chant, from beyond the border, of the indomitable life that will succeed it. You can see nothing but darkness and you can hear nothing but the rainfall, yet you know that you are in the presence of a mystery.

And in the city?—well, a city actually becomes an endurable, praiseworthy place when a September night brings a steady downpour. The black streets glisten and mirror their long rows of lights, changing from dingy thoroughfares into enchanted avenues leading to all sorts of improbable surprises. The downtown buildings bulk large and mysterious; they cease to be ordinary factories, office buildings and stores, and turn into towering cliffs that unconquerable men have made their own.

The homes, too, grow better for the rain. Their commonplace sameness falls away. They are not simply the wood and brick boxes in which live the sadly unattractive Joneses and Browns and Smiths and Robinsons; they are places of refuge from the surrounding darkness and cold, islands of light and warmth in a trackless universe that has none too much of either.

Look from an upstairs window over a rain-pelted city, in the cool of a wind whipped night. The change fairly cries out to you. This is not your familiar town, with its ugliness and drudgery and monotony. It is mystic and haunted, the habitation of wanderers who have strayed from light into darkness and are pluckily making the best of it. Its buildings, where the lamplight gleams from windows, are the abiding places of miracles. Its streets, even the meanest, lead to unpredictable glory.

Look for these things, the next time a rain boxes you in. You'll see them, if you look. You and your earth are nobler than you know.

The Pig Is Not Piggish

FROM the day when man first began to eat bacon, the word "pig" has stood for the ultimate in greed and bad manners. But now comes the U. S. department of agriculture with a bulletin asserting that the pig has been foully wronged. He is not, after all, piggish by nature; under the surface he has unsuspected forces of restraint and daintiness.

The department found this out by experimenting with self-feeders for pigs. These things, it seems, are contrivances by which the pig can help himself to his food whenever he feels like it.

One might expect that this would find the pig with his snout forever in the trough. But, as a matter of fact, the pig eats less this way, and is far nicer about it, than when he is fed by hand.

In other words, the pig's piggishness has been forced on him by man. When we call a greedy glutton a pig we are slandering the noble race of porkers.

The Air Liner's Tragedy

NO AVIATION ENTHUSIAST can enjoy reading the story of the tragedy that befell the air liner City of San Francisco. But if the story of that disaster makes you suspect that the airplane is, after all, a pretty risky and unsafe form of transportation, just remember this:

The wrecked plane was found after a hundred other planes had spent days circling over the lonely waste into which it had fallen. All of the rescue parties went out by plane as a matter of course. The newspaper men who wanted to get to the scene flew there. The picture organizations, spending huge sums to get photographs of the event, did not hesitate to use airplanes to get their photographers there and back.

One accident does not discredit commercial aviation. The way in which planes were used immediately after the crash is rather more significant.

A Cause for Regret

THE ENTIRE COUNTRY, no doubt, will regret that the members of the Grand Army of the Republic rejected the proposed joint meeting with the United Confederate veterans, planned for next year.

The confederates had already accepted the plan, but the Union men were obdurate.

It has been more than 64 years since the last gun was fired in the civil war. That length of time, surely, should be long enough to wipe out the last trace of hostility or bitterness. Yet sentiment at the recent G. A. R. convention ran strongly against the reunion.

It is a pity. The civil war men, North and South, will not be with us much longer. Would it not be better if they could bivouac together in friendship one last time before they pass on?

First Christian Laymen to Meet

The first meeting of the laymen's movement sponsored by the First Christian church will be held at that church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, it was announced Friday.

The question to be discussed Sunday afternoon will be: Is capital punishment right on Scriptural grounds for the death penalty in murder cases? One of the laymen will attempt to prove by both the Old and New Testaments that capital punishment was ordered by God. A general discussion will be held and the views of all in attendance will be presented.

Members of all denominations are invited to attend the meeting, which will be in charge of C. W. Gorin, chairman of the committee appointed to plan the movement. The meetings will be held each Sunday afternoon, at which times questions of widespread and vital interest will be up for discussion, it was said. For the present the meetings each Sunday will be held in the First Christian church.

Parkins Trial Set In County Court Monday

E. A. Martin, Wichita Falls attorney, and Paul E. Parkins, insurance man, indicted by the July grand jury on a charge of barratry, are scheduled to go on trial before Judge Irvin J. Vogel in the county court at law next Monday morning, it was announced Friday.

A motion for severance of the charge, made by Mr. Martin, having been granted, Mr. Parkins will go on trial first, according to Wayne Somerville, county attorney. Mr. Somerville will conduct the prosecution.

A charge of barratry alleges that the accused has solicited legal business from the prospective client.

BONDS APPROVED

AUSTIN, Sept. 20. (AP)—The attorney general's department today approved the $75,000 bond issue of the Brownfield Independent school district, Terry county.

VIGIL PAYS

Sheriff Makes Arrests at Liquor Cache After Wait

Early Thursday morning Sheriff W. G. Bralley located a liquor cache of apparently large proportions on Woodrow street. There was no one near it, so he left it alone.

But it was closely guarded.

Late Friday night, the vigil was rewarded. A man and woman approached. Deputy Sheriffs Charles Gant and Dick Morris and the sheriff drove up in their car and the pair fled. The officers' car headed them off and the two were placed under arrest.

A total of 519 bottles of beer were taken from the cache. Federal charges will be preferred against the man and the woman Saturday, the sheriff said.

Man Held Here On Desertion Charge

Sam Cox, 2415 Fillmore street, charged with child desertion in a complaint filed by the district attorney's department several days ago, was arrested Friday, it was announced, and preliminary hearing in justice court was set for Saturday morning.

George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney, will conduct the hearing.

FUGITIVE BARRICADES HIMSELF FROM OFFICERS

FORT SMITH, Ark., Sept. 20. (AP)—Sheriffs of three counties combined their forces today in an effort to arrest Neil McLaughlin, at one time under death sentence in Arkansas, who barricaded himself in his bullet-proof home in a mountain fastness in Franklin county and staged a gun battle with officers last night. He was sought on a statutory charge and a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

U. S. Highway Head On Temporary Leave

DALLAS, Sept. 20. (AP)—A Washington special to the Dallas Times-Herald says:

The resignation of A. R. Losh, federal highway commissioner for Texas, to accept a position as state highway engineer for Oklahoma, widely believed to be permanent, was today revealed to be but a six months' leave of absence.

No new commissioner for Texas will be appointed until the expiration of the six months period, at which time Lost may return to the position if he so desires, the bureau of roads stated.

College and School News

Members of the Junior college and high school Girl Reserve organization acted as hostesses Friday morning to the entire student body, as their initial meeting of the year. Introduction of the new club president, Jane Adams, was made by Miss Juanita Kinsey.

An invitation for all girls in the institution to become members of the organization was issued in a talk by the new president.

Miss Erma Schnelle, Girl Reserve secretary of the Y. W. C. A., led the devotional. Two pianologs, "Stay in Your Own Back Yard" and "Why Adam Sinned," were presented by Mrs. Hermione Vaughn, new instructor of glee club and music. Nine uniformed members of the Girl Reserves who attended the summer Y. W. C. A. camp presented the code in the ceremonial, led by Jane Adams. Those participating were Jane Adams, Ula Goss, Charlotte Joiner, Mary C. Boone, Mary Sue Shanklin, Helen Powers, Dorothy Cline, Kathleen Cason and Margaret Bone.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A Day With Secretary Stimson

The scene is Mr. Stimson's office in Washington. The desks are covered with papers, the floor is littered and there is an atmosphere of indescribable confusion. Mr. Stimson, in his shirt-sleeves, is trying to concentrate as a dozen phones ring.

PHILLIPS

Mr. Stimson: Answer those phones.

Secretary: What'll I say, sir.

Mr. Stimson: If anybody wants me, tell 'em I've gone back to the Philippines.

Secretary: Yes sir.

Mr. Stimson: A fine nut I was to leave the Philippines for this, anyhow? I had a nice quiet job out there, with very little to do except take long rides and play bridge. And now look at me!

Secretary (after answering the phones): One of them was President Hoover, sir.

Mr. Stimson: Hoover! Hoover! Don't mention his name to me. He's the fellow who got me to take this job. Well, where was I when so rudely interrupted? I was about to dictate a note to China on the Manchurian question, was I not?

Secretary: No, you dictated the note to China yesterday.

Mr. Stimson: Did I?

Secretary: Yes. The Chinese notes go Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. This is Tuesday.

Mr. Stimson: It's getting harder and harder to keep track of business here. Well, what world crisis demands immediate attention?

Secretary: There's no world crisis at the moment.

Mr. Stimson (incredibly): No world crisis? Don't try to pull anything like that!

Secretary: It's only noon, of course.

Mr. Stimson: Are we all caught up on our reparations correspondence?

Secretary: Quite.

Mr. Stimson: How about notes outlining the government policy on naval disarmament?

Secretary: We've got two notes all written ahead in case of an emergency.

Mr. Stimson: How do we stand in our correspondence over the Arab outrages?

Secretary: You dictated two notes day before yesterday.

Mr. Stimson (wearily): So I did, so I did. It's been a frightfully busy week, hasn't it? How about Tacna-Arica. We haven't sent out any ultimatums on Tacna-Arica in some time.

Secretary: That's all settled.

Mr. Stimson: Well, for the first day since I took this job it looks as if I might have a chance to sit back and smoke a cigar. I may even be able to take more than 15 minutes for lunch if . . .

(Several messengers enter and place cablegrams on the secretary's desk.)

Mr. Stimson: I knew it! There's another crisis at Geneva over the revision of The Hague court statues and Root protocol, Great Britain and France charge America with insincerity in its disarmament claims, Hindenberg wants more damages for the Rhine occupation, the Arabs have disregarded world protests over the Palestine outrages, Russian airplanes are bombing the Manchurian line, a revolutionary plot is reported in Mexico, Premier Mussolini is protesting against our immigration bars and . . .

The Old Soak (Mr. Stimson's parrot): Dammitt! Dammitt!

Mr. Stimson: That's what I say!

"Miss Sunday School" On Trial at Church

"Miss Sunday School!" young and beautiful, will be placed on trial Sunday morning in the rally day program in the First Christian church. Superintendent J. Holmes announced the annual opening service for the Sunday school.

In a brief playlet "Miss Sunday School" will be charged by the "Arch Enemy" with the crimes of wastefulness and uselessness and inefficiency. Witnesses for the defense will be Mr. Man-of-Wide-Experience; Mrs. American Motherhood and O. B. Alert, a typical youth. Miss Sunday School will also speak in her own defense.

Those having parts are as follows: Miss Sunday School, Miss Margaret Bone; Mr. Arch Enemy of Religion, Jack B. Dale; Mr. Man-of-Wide-Experience, Judge John Kay; Mrs. American Motherhood, Mrs. Jake Dale; O. B. Alert, typical youth, Dean Harrison; Presiding Judge, Wayne J. Holmes; The Jury, the audience.

The trial of Miss Sunday School will be held in the main auditorium at 9:30 o'clock. All classes will assemble for the opening program in the main auditorium and later go to their own departments.

Sunday night N. V. Armstrong will draw a crayon sketch illustrating the popular song "The End of a Perfect Day" while R. E. Shepherd sings the song.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF CAB

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, through Mrs. Van Nuys, a wealthy customer and old friend of the family, gets Chatty a position as switchboard operator at the Van Nuys offices. Chatty meets Millie Langenau, a flip girl, and Agnes Hertford, private secretary to Mr. Van Nuys. Chatty falls in love with a young bond salesman, David Jordan, but when she gossips and causes Agnes to resign her position David drops Chatty. Chatty has dates with Bryant Dunning, a new salesman, who is married but says he has left his wife. Chatty has many parties at Winnie Talcott's house. Winnie is Mr. Van's new secretary.

One day Chatty overhears David talking on the phone about taking a new position at the Midas bank. Later she sees him copying names. Wishing to get even with him, and believing him stealing the bond buyers lists, Chatty tattles to Mr. Van. Mr. Van is very angry, as he has given David permission to copy the lists. Chatty has to apologize to David or leave. She leaves, and is unsuccessful in getting another position. She continues to have dates with Bryant Dunning, although her mother urges her not to do so.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER LVIII

As the slow days went by—they were slow, as lonely, heart aching days always are—Chatty became more slowly conscious of something happening around her that she didn't understand.

Her mother smiled a great deal, without any apparent cause.

Once she laughed out loud over her sewing, and had no explanation to give when Chatty asked her what she found so funny.

Billie Mayhew—Billie Langenau that was—wore an odd look on her face, now and then, Chatty noted that she often brought David into the conversation.

"Have you seen Dave?" "I wonder what's become of Dave?" "I would like to see Dave again!"

Chatty had not seen him. She did not know what had become of him.

That was all, but there was that curious look on Billie's face; a look as if she were listening; as if she expected something.

One day she met Agnes on the street. Agnes' first question was, "Have you seen David Jordon lately?"

"No," answered Chatty. "I never see him."

"Oh," said Agnes, and changed the subject.

Chatty wondered.

But she stifled any curiosity with a heavy hand. Curiosity had been her undoing—that, and the desire to provoke curiosity on the part of others, and then satisfy it. It had cost her her lover, her happiness. It had almost cost her her position through talk. She had been miserably unhappy through talk. Talk and chatter led her into a life in which, once thoroughly sunk, a girl never emerges—Chatty shuddered. She did, whenever she thought of Bryant Dunning.

Well, she wouldn't be curious now. But it was funny—mother's smiles, and Billie's look and Agnes' question—

Then, one day, Mr. David Jordon did come into the offices!

He did not speak to her as he went in. Chatty's heart sank—he must have seen her. But on his way out, he stopped.

"I hope you are well?" he began. His voice smiled, and his eyes were not unkind, but the mobile mouth was stern.

"Yes, thank you—"

Suddenly, Chatty resolved to ask David something. She rose from her chair and left the desk. "I've just a second," she said softly. "Please, Mr. Jordon. They know about me here. I'm not here under false pretenses. But don't—don't talk about me any more than you can help—"

"Why, Chatty!" The name apparently slipped out, for he bit his lip. "Do you think I would do anything to hurt you? Anyway, all that is as dead and forgotten as yesterday's newspaper. People don't remember things like that—I mean I—"

"Thank you. I didn't think you'd talk—but I'm trying to make good. And so I thought I'd ask you—"

With a nod, Chatty went back to her ear phones. She made three wrong connections in as many minutes and her hands shook as if she had the ague.

He had spoken to her!

He had called her "Chatty!"

His eyes had smiled, if not his lips.

He had appeared hurt that she should imagine he would spill any of her past to her present employers.

He hadn't, then, utterly forgotten her—

Chatty got up again to look out of the window, just in time to see him enter a very smart little car, and drive away.

Chatty sighed. "The old Pride of America is gone, of course." She thought, wistfully. "That's a much newer, prettier car. But I liked the old Pride of America—"

A mist of tears hid the street from view—tears for the days that were, and came not back; the most hopeless, painful of all tears. The tears of "it might have been."

That night she had another shock—and this not a pleasant one.

It was her custom to walk home. Walking saved car fare, and the exercise was good for her. Besides, she didn't like to walk, and Chatty, these days, did many things she didn't like to do, largely because she didn't like to do them; it was part of her self-imposed penance.

Hardly was she out of the congested section and into quieter streets when a car swung into the curb ahead and a man jumped out and planted himself in front of her.

"Chatty!" cried Bryant Dunning. "Of all good luck! My girl of the wild parties! Gosh, I'm glad to see you! I'd kiss you right here if it wasn't so public! Jump in and we'll go for a spin and have a drink and eat up at the old place—what you say, eh, Chatty?"

Chatty looked at him in wonder. The handsome face was drawn, lined, dark circles under the eyes. His nose was pinched, wan looking. Was this the handsome man she had been so crazy over? Could she ever have fallen for that slick hair, those made up cheeks, those loud clothes, that general air of sportiness?

"You look ill, Bryant!" she answered. "What has happened?"

"Ill, ill? Nonsense; I'm perfectly well! Too much booze, too much late hours—nothing else! Got a good job in Chi! Lots of money—look!"

He hauled out a big roll of bills. "Blow this all on you tonight."

Chatty sighed, a sigh of relief that there was no temptation in his words.

"Jump in, can't you? I want a drink and eats and a kiss—"

"But I do not!" answered Chatty. "I do not drink at all, any more. I do not go to the Lollypop, or other such places. And I do not want to be kissed!"

"Oho! Sets the wind in that quarter! The boy friend won't yet you, eh?"

"There is no boy friend, Bryant," answered Chatty. "I've just—changed!"

"Well, I'll tell the world you have! However, there are plenty girls! If I can't feed you, I know a lot I can. Guess Winnie will go . . ."

He lifted his hat, gave her a contemptuous look and left.

Chatty was sensible enough to regard his contempt as a compliment.

She did not tell him Winnie was married. Chatty was not telling anything, these days—not anything at all.

"Let 'em find it out for themselves!" was her motto.

But she walked home with her feet on air; Bryant's looks and her repulsion were both milestones in her life.

"I've come a long ways, since he kissed me!" she thought, and there was much joy in it.

"You are late, Chatty!" accused her mother as she came in. But the words came with a smile.

"Mother, what are you smiling about so much lately? Has anyone left you a fortune, or something?"

"No, but I just feel as if something pleasant was going to happen!"

"That's nice—" Chatty was vague. What pleasant could happen? She had a job. She was at peace with the world. But happy? Ah, no. There was no happiness for her—happiness was for the girl who married Dave—doubtless the girl she had been jealous of. Odd, she wasn't jealous now. The girl deserved him, of course. She hadn't lied and talked and gossiped and gotten into the newspapers—

Chatty was hardly seated at her phone board the next morning when a well-loved voice came over the wire.

"Yes, Mr. Jordon?"

"Good morning, Chatty!"

Her heart leaped.

"Is—er—Mr. Tolson in?"

"Not yet, Mr. Jordon."

"Thanks. Tell him to call me when he comes, please—"

That was all. But it made Chatty happy for the whole morning.

When she came back from lunch, a little box lay on her desk, marked with her name.

Opening it, she found a small bunch of violets.

No card was in the box. It was like the flowers in the hospital, anonymous.

"Now, who can be sending me flowers?" wondered Chatty. "And—why?"

Murder of Asylum Employe Baffles

WAUKESHA, Wis., Sept. 20. (UP)—The murder of Louis J. Strickler, Waukesha county asylum employe, has confronted officials of two counties with one of the most baffling mysteries they have encountered.

Stricker's body, perforated with bullets and mutilated by what appeared to be a blow from a hammer, was found yesterday a few yards from a highway.

The 35-year-old asylum attendant was without known enemies and there was no obvious motive for his murder.

Jimmy Watson's Pals Charged With Robbery

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 20. (UP)—Two men arrested with Jimmie Watson, who escaped from the jail here with Russell Gibson, bank robbery suspect, were charged today with robbery. The men were arrested in Tulsa Monday. They will not be returned here for trial until they face three robbery charges at Tulsa, police said.

Ponca City Man Held Under Attack Charge

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 20. (UP)—Richard Freeman of Ponca City was ordered held today on state charges. He was arrested after patrolmen had fired at him. Police said Mrs. B. M. Anderson, rooming house keeper, told them Freeman attempted to attack her.

Mrs. I. R. Greathouse Dies in Selma, N. C.

A message was received Thursday by Miss Dorothy Greathouse, announcing the death of her mother, Mrs. I. R. Greathouse, of Selma, N. C.

Miss Greathouse visited her mother on account of serious illness, only returning to Wichita Falls recently.

Miss Chamberlain To Have Open House

That all people interested in art as expressed in drawing and painting, are cordially invited to the open house and studio exhibition of Miss Ethel Chamberlin, 1508 Bluff street.

It will take place Tuesday afternoon from 3 o'clock until 9 o'clock in the evening.

Is That Nice?

Curate: I'm very glad to see you coming to church regularly, Mrs. Black.

Mrs. Black: Oh, yes, sir. I'll be coming often now. I does it to spite my husband. He hates me going to church.—Tit-Bits.

A Daily Illustrated Poem For Children

NURSERIES AT NIGHT

Now nursery rooms in the dark
Are perilous places to go.
You never can tell when you'll bark
A knee or a shin or a toe.

There's soldiers and boxes
And doll-beds and cloxes
And maybe a doll-house or two,
And marbles and bears
And overturned chairs
Just waiting in ambush for you.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Some one has just phoned us to ask how we found the pretty things of which we write.

❖ ❖ ❖

Since first we wrote of beauty in Wichita Falls, people who love beauty have been sharing their beauty with us.

❖ ❖ ❖

Just the other day we spoke of the loveliness of queen's wreath vine and since then, we have heard of a lovely one at Mrs. P. P. Langford's home and one covered with blossoms at the home of Mrs. H. J. Tracy and her daughter, Mrs. Lawing. Those vines of themselves should be a liberal education in beauty.

❖ ❖ ❖

Eldorado, to us, is a land of flowers and trees, full of friends who can think and talk without becoming angry over differences in opinion. In plain words, a lovely land where tolerance and justice are the ruling forces.

❖ ❖ ❖

Not that we ever expect to reach a land of Eldorado. But we do long for our spirit to know it, as yours may do.

❖ ❖ ❖

A human spirit is all it can experience and what it assimilates causes it to grow or die.

❖ ❖ ❖

We believe there are people going through life with dead spirits. They themselves have murdered them.

❖ ❖ ❖

So many women are guided only by social tradition; they have not time to think of their spirits, and they are like unwatered plants, all withered leaves.

❖ ❖ ❖

Yet social traditions change. Ten years ago, many mothers would have been indignant at the idea of her daughter acting as cigaret girl at some club or society function. Now, many of them smoke cigarets and the girl who can dress in a dainty costume and have a cigaret tray slung around her neck, is an ornamental part of social functions. We heard this very topic discussed at a meeting of representative women Thursday.

❖ ❖ ❖

The world of the past decade has changed. But laughter and tears are the same and flowers and birds and trees can still give pleasure.

❖ ❖ ❖

Spirits are lonely things unless they are nourished.

❖ ❖ ❖

Justice, to each man, means a different thing. Who can say what is exactly just unless he can see from two pairs of eyes, his and the other man's? Tolerance though is humanly possible. Believe your beliefs and do not disturb the other person's.

❖ ❖ ❖

We can say a thing like that and then find ourselves intolerant on one subject; that is on the mingling of races. For instance, we hear the negro actor, Paul Robeson, who has been popular in London, has been signed up by Maurice Brown to play Othello there. Brown expects then to bring him to Canada and America. The first thing that entered our mind was the question who would play Desdemona to a negro Othello.

Wife Has Reason To Distrust Men, Says Dorothy Dix

Are Middle-Aged Women Antagonistic to Men? Foolish Young Man Who Would Marry an Unemotional Girl—Does a Wife Need a Sparkling Wit?

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young girl 19 years old and engaged to be married. I don't want to make the mistake that so many women have made, so will you please answer these questions:

Why do middle-aged women distrust men? Why are they so domineering with their husbands? Is it the right thing to do? Is it right to watch and spy on your husband? When a good man who works hard, does not drink or gamble or philander, leaves his wife, why do all the middle-aged women sympathize with the wife? Don't you think one reason that wives lose good husbands to other women is because deep down in their hearts they criticize, suspect, condemn and distrust all men, and their husbands feel their thoughts?

Every woman that I have talked to who has failed in her married life seems to worship the female sex but hate the male sex. What makes them that way?

—AN INQUISITIVE GIRL.

Answer—If middleaged women distrust men, it is generally for good and sufficient reasons. You know Mr. Howells said that after two thousand years of Christianity men were still imperfectly monogamus, and by the time a woman gets along in her forties she has seen too many wandering husbands even if she hasn't had one herself, to believe still in Santa Claus.

Twenty years hence, my dear, you won't be quite so optimistic yourself about men as you seem to be at present, and you won't be so certain that when a marriage is a failure it is all the wife's fault, and that the husband is a noble martyr who has done his whole duty and deserves to be rewarded by a divorce and a flapper who weighs about half what his wife does and is young enough to be his daughter.

You will have found out that if wives are selfish and self-centered, so are husbands. If wives are peevish and fretful and hard to get along with, so are husbands. If wives don't understand and appreciate ther husbands, neither do husbands understand and appreciate their wives.

And you will know that the faults are about fifty-fifty and that both are to blame, and that if either one had had the intelligence, the self-control and the determination to save the situation and make the marriage a success, it could have been done.

As to why wives are domineering with their husbands, that is because they are poor, miserable human beings instead of pin-feathered angels, and because it is just natural for every one of us, male and female alike, to want to boss those about us.

It is wrong. It is foolish. It is bad taste, bad policy. It is what has lost more women their husbands than any other one thing. For a man will forgive a woman every other fault under the sun so long as she leaves him his personal liberty.

You never hear of a man leaving an easy-going wife who lets him do as he pleases. It is only when a woman begins to nag, and tell a man where to get off and where to get on, and make him toe the mark that he finds out that she has gotten old and ugly and fat and he has lost his taste for her anyway.

You are altogether mistaken in chinking that middle-aged women invariably sympathize with the wife when her husband deserts her. They don't. If the wife has been mean and jealous and selfish, they justify the husband and condemn the woman, and feel that it was about time the worm turned.

As a matter of fact, women are harder in their judgments of other women than men are, because women see through women more clearly than men do. And when a man deserts his wife because she nagged the soul out of him, or tortured him with her jealousy, the women who know her are universal in their verdict that it serves her right, and she got no more than she deserves.

It is ridiculous to say that middle-aged women are man-haters. In a long and varied experience I have only seen two of that species in all my life. Women love men instinctively, because they are built that way by nature, and even when they have been mistreated by one man they have too much sense to judge all men by him.

It is a good thing to study the technique of the wives about you so as to see their mistakes and avoid making them, but don't be silly enough to cultivate any prejudice against middle-aged women. They are the salt of the earth. Their experience with men make your theories seem like kindergarten stuff. Many a one of them has acquired the philosophy of a stoic through suffering, and hides wounds in her soul that never cease aching, and she would wear on her breast the cross of the Legion of Honor if she had her just deserts.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a young man of a very affectionate and sympathetic nature and have been keeping company for the past couple of years with a lovely girl who possesses good looks and every charm except that she is absolutely lacking in tenderness and affection. She is cold and unemotional. She says she likes me better than any one else, but she does not seem capable of really loving any one. Do you think it would be better for me to forget her and try to find a girl who fits in with my ideals? Do you suppose I could be happy with this girl?—CYRIL.

Answer—You can't make over people, Cyril, and when they are born repressed and stolid and unemotional and with ice water instead of red blood in their veins, why, they are just as God made them. They can't help themselves. Nor can you do anything to change them. All you can do is just to take 'em or leave 'em.

And if you are the warm hearted, loving sort, my advice is to leave 'em. Otherwise you will spend your life beating yourself against a stone wall because you will always be trying to break down the barrier that is between you and her and you will never be able to do it. Otherwise you will starve to death, for you will always be asking for bread, and the girl cannot give it to you because she simply hasn't got it on her shelves.

There is a theory that these frozen people who never tell you that they love you, who never give you a caress, who never show you any tenderness, are sort of volcanoes under snow, and that they really care as much as demonstrative people, but I have never believed it. I think the reason they are cold and hard is just because they never really care for any human being but themselves.

And, anyway, what does it matter whether they care or not if they give no sign of it? It does a man no more good for his wife to really love him, if she never lets him know it, than it would for her to have a million dollars locked up in the safe and let him go hungry because she wouldn't give him enough to buy a square meal.

I think no greater misfortune can happen to a man who is warm hearted than to marry a cold hearted woman, and if you will take my advice you won't do it.

Pick out a cuddy little thing who will want to love to be loved. Not a frozen face maiden whose kisses will be like a cold battercake flapping against your cheek.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am 28. I have a very attractive husband and two lovely children and we have become prosperous of late. My problem is that I haven't the gift of easy conversation or wit. It is hard for me to make friends, but when I do I keep them. If I could only cultivate the gift of repartee things would be different. I can talk, but it is the quick and ready retort that is important. Is there any way of cultivating this?—C. L. C.

Answer—No. I don't think there is. Spontaneous wit is a gift of the gods, and there is no way of making a synthetic substitute that is just as good. But, dear lady, don't waste your tears on regret over not being endowed with the ability to say sharp things. More women have cut their own throats with their tongues than ever profited by them. Reflect. Did you ever know a witty woman who was popular or who had any friends? Well, hardly ever, because there are few women who have the knack of saying smart things who can resist making wise-cracks, no matter if by so doing they make an enemy.

Any way, there are too many talkers in the world. The crying need in society is for intelligent listeners. Just have intuition enough to find out what people are interested in and ask them questions. That will start them off on their favorite hobbies and they will consider you the most interesting and brilliant conversationalist that they have ever met.—DOROTHY DIX.

Kansas Governor Praised by Church

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 20. (UP)—Editorially commended and condemned, Governor Clyde M. Reed of Kansas tonight received the praise of church and prohibition leaders, on the one hand, and the refusal of the North American Review to stop publication of an article purporting to review dry enforcement in his state, on the other, without comment.

The governor's request to the magazine asked that it withhold from its November issue an article by Jay E. House, columnist for a Philadelphia newspaper and former Topeka mayor, on the grounds of a letter written by House to the Rev. J. A. McClellan, head of the antisaloon league in Kansas, which made facetious statements about liquor drinking in the capital. These statements had been proven "fraudulent" the governor said.

Maskat Shriners To Give Program at Burk

A special program and entertainment for the Masons of Burkburnett will be given Monday night by the band, patrol, degree team, chanters and drum corps of Maskat temple, it was announced Friday by W. H. Caldwell, potentate. The band and other organizations have been practicing for several days. Several other trips have been planned for the fall and winter season, it was said.

Fowler Class Meets Thursday In Church Parlor

Mesdames O. Slopansky, D. B. King and their group of the Fowler Bible class of the First Presbyterian church met in the parlors of the church Thursday afternoon. Fall flowers were used in profusion in the decorations.

Hostesses in the receiving line were Mesdames O. Slopansky, D. B. King, Minnie Gaffney, A. T. Smart, W. H. Apple, L. M. Jernigan, B. B. Woodall, J. T. Butts and W. P. Bolding.

Mrs. I. H. Roberts presided over a business session in which the Rotary Home club fund was continued under the name of the Fowler Bible Scholarship fund. Mesdames J. W. Culbertson, Frank Kell and O. B. Gorsline were appointed as a nominating committee.

Mrs. H. J. Strief led the devotional and class songs were sung with Mrs. O. E. Maer at the piano. Mrs. W. F. Priddy gave two lovely vocal numbers.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames J. W. Crews, Ella Stanley, O. E. Maer, N. F. Grafton, O. B. Gorsline, E. W. Nicholson, H. A. Daenitz, Carrie Sigler, W. M. Wages, C. B. Mask, I. H. Roberts, C. I. We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

The Family Career

One career is enough in a family. It is true that occasionally we have a successful example of husband and wife each pursuing a chosen profession, but these examples are notable for their rarity.

What asually happens is a conflict of interests culminating in a mutual desire for separation and divorce.

❖ ❖ ❖

Almost any career worth its salt requires the attention of two people, one of whom must take care of the career and the other take care of the career-er!

The wives of genius have played an unobtrusive but none the less significant part in their husbands' achievements.

Tending of the lamp and the fire is superficially a thankless task, but it pays rich rewards as those who have devoted themselves to it will attest.

❖ ❖ ❖

Most women would far rather be the wives of successful and brilliant men than to win for themselves the greenest and most luxuriant laurel crowns. Therein lies the difference between the feminine and the masculine ego. For to the normal man his wife's success is as gall and wormwood unless his own overshadows it.

One big career is indubitably better than two mediocre ones.

Sometimes, however, it is the wife who possesses the superior talent and who buries it under a mount of domesticity in order that her husband's secondary gifts may have their chance. This is tragic. as is all waste and all unfulfillment.

None or few among men ever have to choose between marriage and a career.

But until men can master their conceit to the point of admitting that it is the woman in the combination who should have the chance of expressing herself, until they are willing to take over the house-dish-nursemaid jobs and let her go forth to battle with the world for the sake of a genius which surpasses that of her husband—until, in short, the world has moved further along the path of progress, women will find themselves confronted with the problem of so-called natural instincts versus the perhaps less natural but just as powerful instinct toward artistic expression.

The result nine times out of 10 will be compromise. Half the time a wife and half the time an artist, to the hurt of both excellent and worthy vocations.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. (US)—She is a "high strung" woman, whatever that is, and she bought herself a very fine radio at a Fifth avenue shop, in New York.

She used it a long time, and then one day it didn't seem to work just right. A repair man reported from the Fifth avenue shop and said the loud speaker was "shot." She needed a new one.

The lady swished into the store and ordered the best loud speaker and got it. Next day she phoned to say it worked beautifully. The machine was "like new."

Then she called again and said something was wrong and would the store be so good as to send her a good radio to use till hers was repaired.

The accommodating proprietor of the shop sent one of his best radios to the lady's home and she kept it ten days.

All her own machine needed was to have batteries recharged. She postponed the work and kept the new machine. It looked so pretty.

Then one day the man sent for his radio and took it away.

At 5 o'clock when the "high strung" woman came home and was told by her maid the radio was gone, she flew high up in the air and exploded. The idea! She was having a party and she needed it. The nerve of that man! Well he would jolly well return it. That's what he'd do or no more of HER trade.

"But madame," said the patient proprietor over the phone, "I can't give you a new radio for nothing while you let your machine stand there. I charge $4.50 a week to rent those machines and you have had it two weeks for nothing. I can't do it I tell you. But I don't want your trade. I can't help it you should have been charging these batteries. You had plenty of time. But I won't give you something for nothing. I'm sorry."

The lady's husband takes the phone. What does the man mean talking "that way" to HIS wife. The machine he sold first wasn't any good. And anyway his wife had decided that she didn't want that $35 new loud speaker he had put into the machine.

"But she bought it and paid for it and paid for having it put into the machine. I won't take it back," said the exasperated dealer.

"But she doesn't want it. She made a mistake! She didn't need it."

"Well—that's just too bad. She bought it."

In a few minutes the husband and the wife's sister (the wife was at home all unstrung and weeping) came into the victrola store.

The situation was thoroughly explained to them.

"Well, maybe," said the sister, "my sister will buy a new machine of you later if you will let her have that machine back, the one she's been using, till after her party, tonight."

"I won't sell her any more machines," said the dealer. "I don't want her business."

Floral Heights Class Has Lovely Fall Party

Mrs. Carlisle Norwood's lovely home on Hiawatha boulevard was made even more beautiful with the masses of roses and chrysanthemums used when the Floral Heights Wesley Girls class were entertained at the first of the fall season's parties.

Mrs. Clyde Tittle and her group composed of Mesdames J. O. Presley, Earl Stuckey, E. M. Crump, T. F. Hunter, Loren Taylor, W. E. Costley, J. C. Brown, C. R. Haworth and Mack Taylor, were hostesses for the afternoon.

Miss Viola Grace Doern, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. G. Wayne Barker on the piano, gave several lovely violin numbers. Miss Lucile Crouch gave piano numbers and little Miss Margaret Clements delighted her audience with her readings.

The entire class joined in an interesting game and following this a delicious refreshment plate was served to Mesdames John W. Dobbs, H. B. White, Ross Corlett, Grover C. Johnson, S. H. Corbin, O. W. Harvey, George Thorburn, J. P. Lea, Alex Fisher, R. J. Claypool, Edward R. Barcus, Fred Schmann, Billy Burt, Frank Elkins, Rhea Howard, Ben F. Shuls, Lester Jones, C. Buddres, W. S. Ellis, R. E. SHREDDED WHEAT

With all the bran of the whole wheat

With Shredded Wheat in the home you are ready for every emergency—a quick breakfast for husband and children with no work or worry—a delicious lunch—a satisfying supper—eat it with milk and berries or sliced bananas.

Use imagination and a little sugar to make vegetable foods delicious

Few things are more important than balanced diet in promoting health

COOKING experts are using their ingenuity to develop delicious methods of preparing vegetables. A well-known expert furnishes us this recipe for Polish Beets:

Peel 12 small cooked beets and mince fine with a fork. Put in a saucepan and sprinkle with a tablespoon of sugar. Add a tablespoon of vinegar, 1 tablespoon of salt and pepper and heat. Melt 2 tablespoons of butter and blend with it 1 tablespoon of flour. Stir this into the mixture. Add ½ cup sour cream and heat.

Whatever recipe you are using and whatever vegetable you are cooking, try adding a dash of sugar for a new, enjoyable flavor. This is an old secret recently rediscovered. It is not the purpose of the sugar to make the vegetables taste sweet. The dash of sugar brings out the delicate flavors of the foods and blends these with the seasonings used. Sugar is the master blender and the supreme condiment. It is the right hand of successful cookery.

Serve a varied, balanced diet—at least two cooked vegetables and at least two fruits daily. See that each member of your family drinks milk and eats milk desserts. You can often make meats more appetizing by adding a dash of sugar while cooking. Use a dash of sugar to improve meat gravies, sauces and soups. Learn the art of serving colorful and satisfying desserts. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

"ALL QUIET on the WESTERN FRONT"

BY Erich Maria Remarque

CHAPTER VII

At regular intervals we ram in the iron stakes. Two men hold a roll and the others spool off the barbed wire. It is that awful stuff with close-set, long spikes. I am not use to unrolling it and tear my hand.

After a few hours it is done. But there is still some time before the lorries come. Most of us lie down and sleep. I try also, but it has turned too chilly. Near to the sea one is constantly waked by the cold.

Once I fall fast sleep. Then waking suddenly with a start I do not know where I am. I see the stars, I see the rockets, and for a moment have the impression that I have fallen asleep at a garden fete. I don't know whether it is morning or evening. I lie in the pale cradle of the twilight and listen for soft words which will come, soft and near—am I crying? I put my hand to my eyes, it is so fantastic; am I a child? Smooth skin—it lasts only a second, then I recognize the silhouette of Katczinsky. The old veteran, he sits quietly and smokes his pipe—a covered pipe of course. When he sees I am awake, he says: "That gave you a fright. It was only a nose-cap, it landed in the bushes over there."

I sit up. I feel myself strangely alone. It's good Kat is there. He gazes thoughtfully at the front and says:

"Mighty fine fireworks if they weren't so dangerous."

One lands behind us. Two recruits jump up terrified. A couple of minutes later another comes over, nearer this time. Kat knocks out his pipe. "It makes a glow."

Then it begins in earnest. We crawl away as well as we can in our haste. The next lands fair among us. Two fellows cry out. Green rockets shoot up on the skyline. Barrage. The mud flies high, fragments whiz past. The crack of the guns is heard long after the roar of the explosions.

Besides us lies a fairhead recruit in utter terror. He has buried his face in his hands, his helmet has fallen off. I take hold of it and try to put it back on his head. He looks up, pushes the helmet off and like a child creeps under my arm, his head close to my breast. The little shoulders heave. Shoulders just like Kemmerich's. I left him be. So that the helmet should be of some use I stick it on his buttocks—not for a jest, but out of consideration, since that it his highest part. And though there is plenty of meat here, a shot in it can be damned painful. Besides, a man has to lie a whole month on his belly in the hospital, and afterwards he would be almost sure to have a limp.

It's got someone pretty badly. Cries are heard between the explosions.

At last it grows quiet. The fire has lifted over us and is now dropping on the reserves. We risk a look. Red rockets shoot up to the sky. Apparently there's an attack coming.

Where we are it is still quiet. I sit up and shake the recruit by the shoulder. "All over, kid! It's all right this time."

He looks round him dazedly. "You'll get used to it soon," I tell him.

He goes off. Things become quieter, but the cries do not cease. "What's up, Albert?" I ask.

"A couple of columns over there have got it in the neck."

The cries continue. It is not men. They could not cry so terribly.

"Wounded horses," says Kat.

It's unendurable. It is the moaning of the world, it is the martyred creation, wild with anguish, filled with terror and groaning.

We are pale. Detering stands up. "God! For God's sake! Shoot them!"

He is a farmer and very fond of horses. It gets under his skin. Then as if deliberately the fire dies down again. The screaming of the beasts becomes louder. One can no longer distinguish whence in this now quiet, silvery landscape it comes; ghostly, invisible, it is everywhere, between heaven and earth it rolls on immeasurably. Detering raves and yells out: "Shoot them! Shoot them, can't you? Damn you again!"

"They must look after the man first," says Kat, quietly.

We stand up and try to see where it is. If we could only see the animals we should be able to endure it better. Muller has a pair of glasses. We see a dark group, bearers with stretchers, and larger black clumps moving about. Those are the wounded horses. But not all of them. Some gallop away in the distance, fall down and then run on farther. The belly of one is ripped open, the guts trail out. He becomes tangled in them and falls, then he stands up again.

Detering raises his gun and aims. Kat hits it up in the air. "Are you mad—?"

Detering trembles and throws his rifle to the ground.

We sit down and hold our ears. But this appalling noise, these groans and screams penetrate, they penetrate everywhere.

We can bear almost anything. But now the sweat breaks out on us. We must get up and run, no matter where, but where these cries can no longer be heard. And it is not men, only horses.

From the dark group stretchers move off again. Then single shots crack out. The black heap is convulsed and becomes thinner. At last! But still it is not the end. The men cannot overtake the wounded beasts which fly in their pain, their wide open mouths full of anguish. One of the men goes down on his knee, a shot—one horse drops—another. The last one drops himself around in a circle like a merry-go-round; squatting, it drags round in circles on its stiffened forelegs, apparently its back is broken. The soldier runs up and shoots it. Slowly, humbly it sinks to the ground.

We take our hands from our ears. The cries are silenced. Only a longdrawn, dying sigh still hangs on the air.

Then again only the rockets, the singing of the shells, and the stars—and they shine out wonderfully.

Detering walks up and down cursing: "Like to know what harm they've done." He returns to it once again. His voice is agitated, it sounds almost dignified as he says: "I tell you it is the vilest baseness to use horses in war."

We go back. It is time we returned to the lorries. The sky is become a bit brighter. Three o'clock in the morning. The breeze is fresh and cool, the pale hour makes our faces look gray.

We trudge onward in single file through the trenches and shell-holes and come again to the zone of mist. Katczinsky is restive; that's a bad sign.

"What's up, Kat?" says Kropp.

"I wish I were back home." Home—he means the huts.

"It won't last much longer, Kat."

He is nervous. "I don't know, I don't know—"

We come to the communication-trench and then to the open fields. The little wood reappears; we know every foot of ground here. There's the cemetery with the mounds and the black crosses.

That moment it breaks out behind us, swells, roars and thunders. We duck down—a cloud of flame shoots up a hundred yards ahead of us.

The next minute under a second explosion part of the wood rises slowly in the air, three or four trees sail up and then crash to pieces. The shells begin to hiss like safety-valves—heavy fire—

"Take cover!" yells somebody—"Cover!"

The fields are flat, the wood is too distant and dangerous—the only cover is the graveyard and the mounds. We stumble across in the dark and as though spirited away every man lies glued behind a mound.

Not a moment too soon. The dark goes mad. It heaves and raves. Darkness blacker than the night rush on us with giant strides, over us and away. The flames of the explosions light up the graveyard.

There is no escape anywhere. By the light of the shells I try to get a view of the fields. They are a surging sea, daggers of flame from the explosions leap up like fountains. It is impossible for anyone to break through it.

The wood vanishes, it is pounded, crushed, torn to pieces. We must stay here in the graveyard.

The earth bursts before us. It rains clods. I feel a smack. My sleeve is torn away by a splinter. I shut my fist. No pain. Still that does not reassure me; wounds don't hurt till afterwards. I feel the arm all over. It is grazed but sound. Now a crack on the skull. I begin to lose consciousness. Like lightning the thought comes to me: Don't faint, sink down in the black broth and immediately come to the top again. A splinter slashes into my helmet, but has traveled so far that it does not go through. I wipe the mud out of my eyes. A hole is torn up in front of me. Shells hardly ever land in the same hole twice, I'll get into it. With one bound I fling myself down and lie on the earth as flat as a fish; there it whistles again, quickly I crouch together, claw for cover, feel something on the left, shove in beside it, it gives way, I groan, the earth leaps, the blast thunders in my ears, I creep under the yielding thing, cover myself with it, draw it over me, it is wood, cloth, cover, cover, miserable cover against the whizzing splinters.

I open my eyes—my fingers grasp a sleeve, an arm. A wounded man? I yell to him—no answer—a dead man. My hand gropes farther, splinters of wood—now I remember again that we are lying in the graveyard.

But the shelling is stronger than everything. It wipes out the sensibilities, I merely crawl still deeper into the coffin, it should protect me and especially as death himself lies in it too.

Before me gapes the shell hole, I grasp it with my eyes as with fists. With one leap I must be in it. There, I get a smack in the face, a hand clamps on to my shoulder—has the dead man waked up? The hand shakes me, I turn my head, in the second of light I stare into the face of Katczinsky, he has his mouth wide open and is yelling. I hear nothing, he rattles me, comes nearer in a momentary lull his voice reaches me: "Gas—Gas—Gas—Pass it on."

GOOD HUSBAND HARD TO FIND

That's How Mrs. Corey Expresses It

PARIS, Sept. 20, (UP)—Mrs. Mabel Gilman Corey, disappointed but far from discouraged with her failure to marry into the royalty of Europe, has turned her eyes toward India and its princely maharajahs, she told the United Press today.

The former wife of William E. Corey, American steel magnate, said she was not sorry over her failure to marry Don Luis de Bourbon, prince of the Spanish ruling house.

"I saw him recently, and he is really a disagreebale character," she said.

Then Mrs. Corey admitted she was contemplating a trip to India to look over several eligible maharajahs.

"But I haven't quite decided whether to go to India or not," she said. "You know, India is so far away."

The task of finding a new husband as good as her former one is a most difficult one, Mrs. Corey said.

"After all," Mrs. Corey declared, "Mr. Corey was a very clever man, a man who could have been president of the United States."

"I would gladly remarry, but I want companionship, regardless of nationality.

Mrs. Corey, a one-time musical comedy star, has spent the summer shopping roads on her castle grounds near Versailles. She is planning now to spend the autumn season in London, then to return to Paris for the winter, to resume her elaborate entertainments for which she was famous during the years following the war.

BOOZE DRIVE GETS IMPETUS

Big Centers to Be More Closely Guarded

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. (INS)—Approach of the "hot-toddy" months has caused another council of war to be held at Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran's headquarters.

Chicago and Detroit were designated as the main fronts of attack while less spectacular battles were indicated in New York, Philadelphia and other large centers where illicit booze is said to flow aplenty. Two dry officials from the Chicago sector—Federal Attorney George Johnson and Alexander Jamie, chief of special agents—were en route to their headquarters today with a determined mind.

It is probable the slogan of the new campaign is "dry up your territory by Thanksgiving" but Doran wouldn't say. His plans for a gigantic drive are complete, it was indicated, but he declined to give details. The government does not care to "give away its hand."

While officials today declined to discuss the situation indications were that the prohibition office would make an effort to get into closer liaison with U. S. Attorney Charles F. Tuttle, of New York, the justice department authorities at Philadelphia, and possibly some other cities of the Middle West and Pacific coast.

The objective would be to map out a plan of cleanup action to wipe out, if possible, the larger sources of bootleggers' supplies.

Increased activities of the federal prohibition machine were in evidence all over the country, where the states and municipalities were not doing their part. President Hoover has sought to shame the states into shouldering the responsibility of prosecuting the smaller violations and in many parts of the country full cooperation has been pledged.

There are sections, however, where sentiment is decidedly wet, and where little can be expected. Officials considered reducing the prohibition forces wherever possible, with local cooperation satisfactory, and throw the bulk of the dry army into such sections as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities.

A big concentration already has been made at Detroit where the prohibition and customs officials insisted that a big reduction in smuggling has been brought about.

San Francisco was another center where it was thought possible that the federal government would be forced to increase its vigilance in order to check activities of the organized rum traffic.

Another evidence of greater federal activity was the action of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, commandant of the marine corps of Quantico Va., who closed the town to the marines because of alleged liquor sales. Butler once was identified in a drive to cleanup Philadelphia but quit in disgust owing to lack of cooperation.

Western Union To Honor Boys For Safety Record

As a premium for not having an accident during the company's "safety campaign" all delivery boys for the local Western Union office will be honor guests at a banquet given by the company at the Kemp hotel Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, according to an announcement made Friday by W. B. Taylor, chief delivery clerk, who is in charge of the arrangements.

The campaign was started last January and lasted through June 30, Mr. Taylor said. This banquet will also be a "get together" affair and will be for the purpose of further stressing the safety campaign, Taylor stated.

Out of town guests and speakers for the evening will include H. C. Robertson, superintendent of the Oklahoma City office; H. C. Wesner, district manager of the terminal handlings, Oklahoma City; P. R. Napier, division manager of Dallas; Charles Pogenpohl, manager of the local office; W. V. Taylor, J. H. Allison, Jack Mayes and Herman Jones.

Charles Pogenpohl will act as toastmaster. About 30 guests are expected to attend.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 20. (UP)—Mrs. Nettie Brehn, of Oklahoma City, Okla., has sent a petition to the governor of Indiana asking that he parole D. C. Stephenson, her former husband, in order that Stephenson might aid in caring for their 12-year-old daughter, it was learned here today.

Hughes Suggests That Armstrong Quit

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 20. (UP)—A suggestion that W. J. Armstrong, chief conservation officer, resign if "he is dissatisfied with the commission under which he is working," was made today by Corporation Commissioner E. R. Hughes relative to Armstrong's criticism of the appointment of W. Cecil Moore as a conservation officer.

Moore, a brother-in-law of State Senator W. M. Gulagher, has been named a conservation officer for the Muskogee district. It will be necessary to discharge one of the 10 present conservation officers to make a place for Moore.

BRITISH HOBO NOT SO DUMB

James Eads How Learns Something Abroad

LONDON, Sept. 20. (UP)—James Eads How, the American "millionaire hobo," who hoped to join American hoboes with their English brethren in an internation hobo conference, has learned that it takes more than apples and tea to persuade the British hobo to sign away two cents a month of his "earnings."

Assisted by Nicholas Klein, a brother official of the International Welfare association of Cincinnati, he called the international conference last night to "take stock of the unemployment question and bring America's experience to people who wish to relieve those who are genuinely seeking work."

There was a goodly crowd and an orderly one until How began his inaugural address. The audience, it seemed, thought refreshments should precede any speeches and interrupted the American with cries of "when do we eat?"

How stopped long enough to hand out apples and tea and continued his address, asking them to sign a membership card providing for dues of two cents a month.

"Who will be treasurer?" the crowd interrupted again.

When the speaker did not answer and only continued waving the membership cards, the audience moved unanimously to adjourn and, leaving How with his membership cards, departed to seek lodging for the night.

GOTHAM HAILS RADIO MARTYR

Foe of Loud Speakers Takes Case to Court

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. (UP)—Down in Greenwich Village, where east meets west with a vengeance and the best red wine is invariably like the worst—in this place of all places a champion has arisen and dedicated his life to protecting all persons everywhere from neighbors who play their radios 19 hours a day.

Little of importance hitherto has come out of Greenwich Village excepting lettuce sandwiches and punk poetry. Its martyrs have almost without exception died only for some obscure reason set down by the authorities as malnutrition plus general incompetence.

Hailed as Hero

And so the ascendency of Robert Ferrari, who has nominated himself John of Arc of the electric age and dedicated his remaining years to obtaining some kind of a decision on the matter of other people's radio loud speakers, has been hailed in New York by both press and public.

Additional prestige has been added to Mr. Ferrari's voluntary martyrdom—which is about all it has amounted to so far—by the fact that he is a lawyer. There is a general feeling that as a lawyer, Mr. Ferrari must know his way around and that if he fumbles long enough he may even get a grip on something in the bill of rights applying to other people's radios.

Mr. Ferrari began his martyrdom on a quiet and personal basis. A gentleman who lived two floors above Mr. Ferrari in Perry street purchased a new radio of a particular powerful type and played it regularly from 7 o'clock each morning until 2 o'clock the following morning.

Mr. Ferrari went upstairs to protest. He found this gentleman to be a big gentleman, of Italian extraction, and much given to enjoying a horse laugh. That was in June. When the July rent came due, Mr. Ferrari protested to the agent that his work was suffering and he was losing clients through being forced to take his sleep in his law office and also such recreation as he now obtained. The agent said he was sorry and would speak to the large gentleman two floors above about the radio. Against his better judgment, Mr. Ferrari paid the rent for July.

Radio Howls On

The immutable cycle of the Augustan calendar brought August around and the large gentleman's radio two floors above still hit on all six tubes for 19 hours daily.

By this time, Mr. Ferrari, drawn and haggard and welcoming anything less than a lingering death, faced the wrath of the large gentleman two floors above him and had him hauled into magistrate's court on a nuisance charge. The large gentleman gave his name as John Covucci.

The court looked on the pale Mr. Ferrari and his heart softened. The court released Mr. Covucci but advised Mr. Ferrari to return and try to obtain an order to have the large gentleman and his radio deposited in Perry street forthwith if "reasonable" pleasure were not exercised in regards the radio.

By this time the attention of the entire New York public was focussed on Mr. Ferrari's gallant fight against a radio owned by a large gentleman two flights up. The general opinion was that Mr. Ferrari had won a hollow victory but was a game boy for trying.

Moody Refuses Walker Transfer

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—William J. (Whitey) Walker, noted bandit now in jail at Borger will be kept in Texas until the case, now pending against him at Borger, has been disposed of stated Governor Dan Moody late Thursday in a telegram to the sheriff of Hutchinson county. The governor had just received a request for a requisition for Walker issued by the governor of Oklahoma where he is wanted to answer a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of two deputy sheriffs of Hutchinson county.

This telegram was sent to the sheriff at Borger: "Requisition papers signed by governor of Oklahoma for William J. (Whitey) Walker have been presented to me. Papers state that Walker is charged with crime of robbery with fire arms in the state of Oklahoma. I am stating to Oklahoma officers that if he is not convicted in case now pending against him in your district that I will honor extradition papers. This is to advise you that if Walker is not convicted that extradition warrant will be issued for him and you are requested to hold him in such case for the officers of Oklahoma."

U. S. Road Designation To Await Improvement

AUSTIN, Sept. 20. (AP)—Designation of a proposed route from Dallas to Presidio, on the Mexican border, as a part of United States highway No. 67 will have to wait until counties along the way spend funds for highway improvement, a delegation of West Texans was told by the highway commissioners when they presented the matter.

CONFIDENT SPUDDERS READY TO RESUME SERIES PLAY TODAY

GLAZNER WILL OPPOSE PAYNE

Wichita Falls Chances to Win Held Bright

A determined Wichita Falls baseball team, imbued with a fighting spirit approaching pugnacity, will resume the Texas league playoff today at Dallas. All square in the first two games of the series played here, but having clearly outplayed the Steers in both contests, the Spudders were as cocky as the self-styled "Great Art Shires" as they left this town late yesterday afternoon.

Although they will finish the five-game series in the Mavericks' own bailiwick, with games tomorrow and Monday if a fifth is necessitated, Jim Galloway's gallopers have no fear of playing on an alien field. The impressive manner in which they whipped the Bovines Thursday by a 5-2 count after dropping the opener Wednesday, 3-2, with the breaks figuring no little in that result, have given Spudder players and enthusiasts just cause to regard the future with confidence.

Too, the Spudders enter play today in better condition than the Steers. Jim Moore, a leading hitter and star outfielder of the Steers, was out of Thursday's game with a badly injured knee and while Dallas yesterday was optimistically saying he would play today, it is improbable that the Tennessee Adonis will return to the lineup at any time during the series.

Spud Pitchers Ready

In the matter of pitching, the Spudders also are apparently in better shape than their rivals. Andy Messenger and Harold Wiltse hurled great ball for the Spudders in the first two games and are available to work Sunday and Monday. This leaves George Payne, Lester White and Milt Steengrafe in fine fettle to pitch today, with the probability that it will be the former.

On the other mitten, George Connally, one of the Steer aces, was a flop in Thursday's game. Stock doubtless will use Charley Glazner today, with Victor Frasier, who chucked very good ball to win the opener, ready to work again Sunday. Monday he must choose between Connally or Charlie Barnabe a left-hander who never has been much bother to the Spudders, or else rely on Gene Moore, a young southpaw or the veteran Oyster Joe Martina.

And still another angle enters into the calculations that favor the Spudders. It was discovered, to the lasting grief of Dallas, that the failure of Bud Stapleton to return was not a handicap. To the contrary, Larry Bettencourt, playing at first base in place of Stapleton, has been one of the outstanding stars of the series, both in batting and fielding.

Spuds O. K. All Around

The Spudders all have hit well and save for a lapse or two in the opener their fielding has been steady and at times brilliant. Indeed, in the game Thursday they played errorlessly and glittered with repeated sensational plays.

Spudderville thrilled yesterday to the magnificent victory of the Spudders Thursday, and hundreds of fans will descend upon Dallas today. The reserve seat supply of 350 proved inadequate early yesterday with innumerable demands received all day. Many fans who failed to get their seats here went to Dallas yesterday while many others planned to go this morning.

Today's game starts at 3:30 o'clock and tomorrow at 3.

Indian Outlook Best for Years

Wealth of Material Gives Tribe Great Team

Two new plays were given the Indian squad by Coach Baggett yesterday, and the Junior college machine began to shape up as a formidable team. With the brightest prospects in several years both in the line and backfield the maroon and gold probably will have the mightiest eleven since the origin of the Junior college several years ago.

Next Friday the Indians journey to Decatur to scrap it out with the Decatur Baptist aggregation. It will be the first game of the year for the Tribe. The backfield stands out especially with almost half of the squad reporting for the ball lugging department.

The ends are Toby Waggoner and Oliver Fudge. Tackles loom as the most powerful in the state with Clifford Hindman and Captain Emile Hutto. Henry Barton is alternating between guard and center, his mate at guard being Bill Habern. Ralph Parker holds down the pivot position when Barton is at guard.

Yesterday's drill was mainly on kicking and passing. Babe Anderson showed up well as a kickoff man while the punting and passing was handled by several prospective passers and booters.

Carmen's Convention Asks Five-Day Week

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 20. (UP)—A five-day week was asked by the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America in a constitutional amendment adopted in convention here today. The 8-hour day would remain in effect under the proposal which asked "adequate compensation" and a 40-hour week.

The recommendation now will go to the members of the organization for final ratification, according to W. J. Adames, delegate to the convention. Adames indicated the convention considered "adequate compensation" about the same wages the carmen now receive for a 44-hour week.

Loughran Boxes 9 Rounds Training for Mr. Sharkey

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Sept. 20. (UP)—Tommy Loughran boxed nine rounds today in preparation for his 15-round bout with Jack Sharkey a week from tonight at Yankee stadium, New York City. In addition he indulged in bag pounding and calisthenics. After the workout he weighed almost 190.

Amateur Tangles

He who can find the answer
Can also read the stars,
Or he can cure cancer
And put an end to wars;
And in the yearly wrangle
Of problems that must vex,
This same man can untangle
The mystery of sex.

For years beyond all number
I've tried to dope it out.
But now I nod and slumber
When some one starts to shout
Of cures for certain tangles
Within a payless shrine,
There are too many angles
For such a brain as mine.

We Shall See

Upon being interviewed both Jack Sharkey and his manager announce that Sharkey will knock out Tommy Loughran inside of 15 rounds. Upon being interviewed both Tommy Loughran and his manager say they would not be surprised to see Tommy upset Sharkey within the limit. It seems that one camp is doomed to be wrong in its predictions. Possibly both camps. The odds are against a knockout. It all depends upon the chances either side cares to take. There are stirring possibilities ahead in this battle if the two contenders care to cut leash and start swinging. But both as well remember that another one of those tiresome, practically even affairs won't help either to any large extent.

A Real Champion

No one will have to worry about the championship status of Jimmy Johnston, the new amateur king of golf. Johnson has been one of the best golfers in the country for many years. He has had a long run of fine golf that included sectional and state titles and he has more than once been a feature of the open and the amateur. The fact that he happens to be a modest, fine character won't hurt his position at the top.

The St. Paul golfer has no pet weakness. He is a long, straight hitter, a good iron player, excellent just off the greens and a sound putter. He has a sound, smooth, swing with just a trace of hesitation as he starts back, nothing however, to effect the smoothness of his stroke.

It All Depends

L. G.—Asks whether or not the winner of the Sharkey-Loughran fight will be considered the best heavyweight in the general vicinity. About 98 per cent of this answer depends upon what the winner has to show. Both Sharkey and Loughran will have to show more than they have shown in some time. To have Loughran outbox Sharkey by a shade and win a fairly close decision would show nothing. To have Sharkey win with about the same stuff he threw at Stribling would prove even less. The next heavyweight champion will have to prove he is heavyweight champion, not a top arrival through the default of the others.

There will be no answer given until the night of the fight, however one might figure out his guess. It is up to the winner to prove something, not to scramble through because the other was worse.

A Mackian Reflection

Connie Mack understands that the Cubs have Guy Bush and Hornsby, Hack Wilson and others, but he is just as well satisfied, looking back 24 years, that a young fellow named Mathewson will not be out throwing a baseball when the show opens.

Twnety-four years ago Mack saw Matty set his team down for three shutouts in three starts and itnever looked as if they could have scored if the series had lasted three months.

Beating Matty, when Matty was young, was all the job any team could handle. One season he beat the champion Pirates eight times in eight starts. The Matty of 1911 and 1912 had had a block of rubber worked out of his arm through winning and saving games others had about lost.

'Weak Sisters' Aid Cubs and Athletics

CHICAGO, Sept. 20. (UP)—Three "weak sisters" in each major league were stepping stones over which the Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago Cubs skipped on to pennants, a compilation of results to date reveals.

Anytime the A's played the Red Sox, Senators or Tigers it was a four-to-one bet they would win because against these teams the Mackmen have won 48 games and lost but 13. The Yanks, against the same, won 38 and lost 22.

The Cubs lost 12 to Pittsburgh while winning only nine, the only team to beat them in victories. But against the Phils, Braves and Robins, Chicago won 43 and lost 15, while the Pirates were winning 36 and losing 28.

HOLTON SCOUTS COYOTES' FOES

Barry Sees Lawton Eleven, Here Next Saturday

Coach Barry Holton yesterday left the Coyote squad in charge of Assistant Coach Bill Morris and journeyed to Lawton to watch the Sooners play their first game of the year. As the red and black tangles with the Lawtonites here next Friday, the Coyote mentor wants to get a line on a team which he has never seen in action before.

For the last few days the pack has worked chiefly on the perfection of the plays, with a hard scrimmage each day an extra part of the practice. Work on fundamentals has comprised the chief part of the afternoon program for several weeks, but the sessions are becoming harder each day.

Finding a kicker is the chief worry of Coach Holton, as a consistent booter has not yet been uncovered. Several likely booters have been showing possibilities of becoming fair punters, but no one has been consistent under fire. Monk Hodgkiss and Chick Holden are the best prospects for the season thus far, and it is likely that one of these will do the kicking.

Women's All-City Golf Opens Today

Mrs. Fisk to Defend Title At Weeks Park Course

Play in the second women's all-city golf tournament will be started today over the Weeks park course. Qualifying play will be held today, tomorrow and Monday and match play will be started Tuesday with two rounds to be concluded every week.

Mrs. R. R. Fisk will defend her championship which she won last year in the first women's all-city event.

Trophies to medalist and winners and runnersup of all flights will be offered. In addition there will be prizes for putting, driving and approaching.

A representative entry list of leading women golfers of Wichita Falls will be made for the tournament. Phil Hesler, professional at weeks park, is in charge of the event and entries should be made to him.

First Big World Series Wager Laid in 'Street'

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. (US)—J S. Fried & Co. of 80 Wall street, today reported the first big wager on the world series.

This bet, made for a man in the Middle West, was $15,000 against $17,500 that Chicago Cubs will win the world series from Philadelphia Athletics.

Fried & Co. also placed a wager of $5,500 against $5,000 that Chicago will win the first game of the

41 Indictments In Hall Court

Felony Cases Set New High Record

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Sept. 20.—What is said to be the largest number of felony indictments ever to be returned by a grand jury in this county, was returned last week by the grand jury empaneled for the district court of Hall county for the September term, in which there were 41 felony cases returned to the court, which furnishes, according to District Judge A. J. Fires, enough work to keep the court grinding for about 16 weeks.

The grand jury in its report to the court stated that it found Hall county to be in a "deplorable" condition, as to law violations, and put more blame on the citizenship than on the officials, in that the citizenship had failed to cooperate with the officials in the enforcement of the laws.

After visiting the county jail, the following recommendation was made: "We have visited the county jail and find it in a very good condition and have no recommendations to make with reference to the keeping of the jail; however, we find the building and equipment to be inadequate entirely for the needs of the county and would suggest that as soon as the county is in a financial condition so that same can be done, that either the present structure be enlarged or a new jail built."

Judge Fires is pushing the business of the district court that is now in session here along at a rapid pace, not only through the day, but is holding night sessions in order that the docket may be cleared of as many of the indictments handed in before the court closes this term in about three more weeks. Some important cases are yet to be tried, several of which are murder cases.

Gov. Roosevelt Invited To Sharkey-Loughran Go

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., Sept. 20. (UP)—Jack Sharkey today issued an invitation to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York to witness his bout with Tommy Loughran next Thursday night.

Sharkey went on the road this morning, played golf in the afternoon and then drove to New York.

Grid Camps

AUSTIN, Sept. 20. (AP)—The lay experts will get a chance to size up the situation tomorrow when the University of Texas meets Southwest Texas State Teachers' college at San Marcos for a practice game.

One week from now the Longhorns will have two games in a single day on their hands. On September 28 one team will meet St. Edwards university in Austin, while the second team meets Simmons university at Abilene.

BAYLOR MEETS AUSTIN

WACO, Tex., Sept. 20. (AP)—Baylor gridsters open their football season tomorrow with Stephen F. Austin on Carroll field.

Little is known here of the Nacogdoches team.

"I hope it is a strong team," Coach Morley Jennings said Friday. "My boys need a stiff workout."

AGGIES WORK HARD

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Sept. 20. (AP)—Having driven his squad of 50 through a bruising scrimmage tonight Coach Matty Bell planned to polish the week for the A. & M. gridmen with a fast light workout tomorrow.

His squad is pointing to several days of heavy practice before the opening game with Southwestern a week from tomorrow. Red Delery, hefty Houston tackle who joined the squad yesterday, worked overtime today to make up for lost time.

John Heisman Sizes Up Football Outlook in East and Middle West

By JOHN W. HEISMAN
Famous Football Coach

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The three leading college football teams of New York City are New York university, Columbia and Fordham. Each of them has lost an even four regulars from its 1928 lineup—one of the players having been a universal selection for all-American honors, Ken Strong, of N. Y. U.

The writer has personally seen each of these work out this fall and he makes the prediction that N. Y. U. will be about as strong as in 1929, while both Columbia and Fordham will have more formidable aggregations than they had a year ago. All three have a fine nucleus of regulars and lettermen returned, and all have inherited some highly talented material from their freshmen elevens of 1928. Of such La Mark, a back, and Concannon, a tackle, will be heard from at N. Y. U., while at Columbia considerable may be expected from Halfback Hewitt, and, at Fordham, from Halfbacks Janis and Murphy.

Each of these three teams will play a schedule of very stiff teams. What is more, 90 per cent of the games will be played right here in New York city. This means that on numerous days all three will be playing here on the same day. In addition Manhattan, C. C. N. Y. and other local institutions will play most of their games at home and, of course, army plays Notre Dame in New York.

Gotham Football-Minded

All this tends to show how football-minded New York is getting to be. Indeed, New Yorkers find themselves very fond of the game though, to speak by the card, they are not nearly so well up on the game as spectators of a dozen other large cities of the country. It takes time to learn how even to watch a game, to say nothing of how long it takes to teach men to play it well and for colleges to win championships. But New York will have better teams from now on. Once let the fans of a place learn how to take to the sport and you're bound to witness swift improvement in the playing thereof.

In the Middle West it seems certain that Illinois, Notre Dame, Northwestern, Minnesota and Drake will be very strong. This estimate is based largely on what they have back in the way of veteran players and known stars in their squads. The Swedes still have Nagurski, Northwestern retains Henry Bruder and Purdue will put out "Pest" Welch again. Michigan will miss Pomerenning at tackle and several other steady performers of last year but they have a find in the Sophomore back, Morrison, who weighs over 200 and who knows how to get up a crushing momentum and what to do with it. Coach Kipke is new, and that will hold the Wolverines back at first, but when they meet Harvard on Nov. 9 they'll be ready. Michigan is even now playing for the Crimson.

Iowa will have a lot of good men back in Nelson, Westra, Pape and Glasgow, but their troubles with the conference will weigh heavily on their minds, will sap their morale and will probably take the spark plug out of their play.

Wisconsin has a fine coach in Thistlethwaite, who has at last given the Badgers football organization. But he will have a lot of replacing to do this season. Still, I look for Wisconsin to be heard from. Wagner, captain elect, has been barred by the faculty because he participated in the charity game at Frisco last December.

Notre Dame Strong

Notre Dame had a green team last year, but every indication now is that the Irish will have a typical Rockne aggregation on the field. It will be more "battles awful" when they line up against Georgia Tech, Army, Navy, Southern California, Carnegie Tech, Drake and Northwestern. This I consider the toughest schedule of the year.

Purdue will wage some good fights; but Coach Phelan never has enough reserve strength.

Ohio State will have an entirely new coaching staff, and though Williamson, Don Miller and Hauser will surely turn out, even in their first year, something not to be sneered at, I hardly think they will be a power until 1930. Fesler, their star end, will be back but he may be sent to the backfield for a tryout.

At Nebraska the new coach, Dana Bible, who has been making history at Texas A. & M. is going to have a whale of a job on his hands in stacking his men up against the following: Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Kansas Aggies and Iowa State (Big Six conference teams) and, in addition, locking horns with S. M. U., Syracuse and Pittsburgh—three teams that, this fall, should average up about as tough as any three in the East and South.

Chicago doesn't look overly vicious for this fall again, nor Indiana; but all the rest that have won renown in the past from the Middle West appear more closely matched than ever—and that includes Drake, Texas, Baylor, Ohio Wesleyan, and, possibly, Marquette. Detroit will make further progress. The team that goes through without a defeat will certainly have earned its right to the title of Western champion this year.

SHORES BESTS TIGER ROOKIE

Athletic Juveniles Win in Tenth Inning, 2-1

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20. (AP)—The Athletics presented a lineup with only two regulars in the cast this afternoon, but again defeated the Tigers, this time by a score of 2 to 1 in 10 innings. The game was a pitching duel between Bill Shores and Whitlow Wyatt, Tiger rookie from the Three-Eye league.

Eric McNair, a shortstop the Athletics bought from Knoxville, of the Sally league for $25,000, made his big league debut in fine style. McNair handled himself faultlessly in the field and pounded out three of the eight Mack hits. In the tenth inning he stole second after forcing Bevo Lebourveau and scored the winning run on French's single to left. Score:

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. (AP)—Pitchers Alvin Crowder and Myles Thomas battled on even terms today with an error by "Goose" Goslin providing the edge that gave St. Louis a 1 to 0 victory over Washington.

The Browns scored in the fifth after Blue led off with a double McNeely sacrificed him to third Goslin came in and took Manush's loft in short left, but in trying to pick Blue off third threw the ball away, allowing the run to score. Score:

Vernon Defeats Frederick, 8-6

Lions Score 14 First Downs To Two by Sooners

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 20.—Vernon high school Lions were victorious in their first scheduled football game here today when they turned back an invasion of the Frederick Bearcats, 8 to 6. The Lions roundly outplayed the Oklahomans, recording 14 first downs to the two made by the visitors.

Frederick's touchdown was made in the first two minutes of play when a Vernon fumble was recovered on the eight-yard line and Davidson circled left end for the touchdown. Vernon scored in the second quarter when a pass, Williams to Richardson, netted 49 yards. Vernon got two points in the third quarter when Frederick fumbled and recovered behind the goal line.

Gelhausen was the outstanding player of the day. His sweeps off tackle accounted for many of Vernon's gains. The Lion forward wall showed to unusual advantage.

WORLD SERIES FEUD RESUMED

Memories of Athletics and Cubs of 1910 Revived

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. (UP)—The Cubs and Athletics of 1929, meeting in the world series, bid fair to revive the glory of the "good old days" of baseball.

Traditions of the national pastime still cling to these two ball clubs, although neither has been at the top for many years.

It is nearly a score of years—1910, to be exact—since Frank Chance, the peerless leader, led his Chicago Cubs against the Philadelphia Athletics, then, as now, managed by the astute and laconic Cornelius McGillicuddy.

They were baseball giants in those days, although the might of the great Chicago machine was on the wane, while the Mackmen were just finding their full strength.

Both Won Over 100 Games

The Cubs had won the last National league pennant they were to achieve under Chance's leadership, with 104 victories and 50 defeats, 13 games ahead of their nearest rivals, the New York Giants. The Athletics had led the American league with 102 victories and 48 losses, 13½ games ahead of the New York Yankees.

In the one world series in which they met, that of 1910, the Athletics overwhelmed their National league rivals, winning four out of five games. Jack Coombs won three games for the American league champions, Chief Bender the other. Bender was the victim in the only game won by the Cubs, Cole and Brown pitching for Chicago.

Mighty men of baseball participated in that series, most of them now merely so many names to fans of the present day. The Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance combination no longer functioned in its smooth, run-killing way, but the powerful Heinie Zimmerman was at the keystone sack in place of the famous Evers.

A's Had Famous Infield

The Athletics had three-fourths of their $100,000 infield in Eddie Collins, Jack Barry and "Home Run" Baker. They had the best pitching staff in baseball (Jack Coombs was nearly enough in himself to win any given world series).

Yet the modern Mackmen, with Al Simmons, Jimmy Foxx, Mickey Cochrane and others, are a run-getting aggregation which may be able to overcome a comparative deficiency in the present day Philadelphia pitching force.

The Cubs of today have no pitchers as great as Three-Finger Brown, Orvie Orvall and McIntyre were in 1910. But the dynamic driving force of Rogers Hornsby, Hack Wilson, Kiki Cuyler and Riggs Stephenson gives the present Chicago team more power than the club showed against the Athletics 19 years ago.

LAWTON TEAM RUNS CRUSHER

Pack Rivals Friday Trim Temple by 26-0

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Sept. 20.—The Lawton High school football team, in its first game of the season with the Temple team, broke its own record today. Last year they beat Temple 25 to 0. Today they made it 26 to 0.

It was the first game for both teams this year. A good crowd saw the game.

Cash Gentry, right tackle, pulled off some breath-taking punting, and vied with Butler, left half, and Raol Valdez, brilliant open field runners, for the honor of being hailed stars of the game.

Next Friday the Lawton team will meet the Wichita Falls Coyotes at Wichita Falls.

MEMPHIS CRUSHES PADUCAH, 20 TO 0

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Sept. 20.—Martindale, star Memphis halfback, got away for a 50-yard run and scored the first two minutes of play between Memphis and Paducah today, and after that about all Paducah did was to follow the Memphis runners around. The final score was Memphis 20, Paducah 0.

The first quarter also was featured by a 30-yard run and touchdown by "Pee Wee" Pearson. Paducah didn't even threaten the Memphis goal line.

It was Paducah's first game of the season and the Memphis team's second. Last week they played Eldorado, Okla. Their foes next Friday will be the high school team from Canyon.

Walter Hill, Memphis right guard, sustained a fractured shoulder in the game.

LAMESA TRIMS STANTON, 12-0

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Sept. 20.—Lamesa defeated Stanton, 12 to 0 today in a slow but hard-fought football game here. Hill and Banta of Lamesa were stars.

WALTERS BEATS WILSON, 6 TO 0

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., Sept. 20.—Walters defeated Wilson here today in the first game of Southern conference, 6 to 0. Musgrove plunged the line for a touchdown from Wilson's 10-yard line.

PLAINVIEW BATTLES FLOYDADA TO TIE

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Texas, Sept. 20.—Floydada Whirlwinds and Plainview's Bulldogs opened the football season here Friday afternoon in a hard fought scoreless tie. The game was featured by long end runs by Howard Welborn, Whirlwind captain and Laird of Plainview.

A pass, Green to Welborn in the third quarter carried the ball to within a few yards of the goal but the Plainview team held. A large crowd witnessed the game which was the feature attraction of the third day of the Floyd county fair.

ALTUS VICTOR; FIELD DEDICATED

ALTUS, Okla., Sept. 20.—Altus defeated Snyder, 37 to 6, in the first Southwestern conference game of the season here today.

A feature of the game was the dedication services of the new field donated by the 1929 graduating class and crowning of Juanita Anderson as football queen.

Duke defeated Eldorado, 6 to 0, in a Cotton Belt conference game as a feature of the Jackson county free fair at Eldorado today.

WAURIKA LEADS CONFERENCE RACE

Special to The Record News.

WAURIKA, Okla., Sept. 20.—Waurika defeated Hastings, 19 to 0, in a South Central conference football game. As two other previous games played by other teams were tied Waurika took the conference leadership.

Vickers, quarterback; Burger, center, and Taber, tackle of Waurika, and Mitchell and Price, Hastings backs, featured the game.

Many Corn Products

We are all familiar with the stories of the early settlers in this country whom the Indians taught to plant corn, fertilizing each corn hill with a dead fish. Corn was used by the pioneers as a hurry-up crop, often being planted among the still standing stumps on uncleared land, and affording food both in the green and dried state. One of its advantages is that it thrives on rough and hilly ground and can be harvested in conditions under which wheat, requiring flat surfaces, could not be handled.

Properly prepared corn products are very appetizing. We find that cornbread is relished by Charles Evans Hughes; we read of the cornpone for which Mark Twain pined while he was abroad; and cornflakes are put down by Booth Tarkington as his favorite dish. Anyone who has read the autibiography of Benjamin Franklin realizes how much he valued hasty pudding, a sort of cornmeal mush.

The list of dishes and products which have been prepared from this grain runs into the hundreds. We have hominy made by boiling the corn with a lye bath, and also the hoe cake, so named because it was first cooked on the blade of a hoe over small fire by a negro mammy. And there is cornmeal mush made by boiling the cornmeal for an hour and serving with butter and cream. Of course, the South is famed for its cornbread and Johnny cake, and many a distinguished visitor has been served corn fritters.

The favorite use of green corn is to boil it on the cob and serve it with butter; or it may be roasted to a nut-like flavor over a campfire. The starch cells in green corn are easily digested, even though the grains are not well chewed. When not digested, they pass through the body without causing any harm, and appear in the feces in practically unchanged form. Since children do not usually take time to chew thoroughly, the corn will be noticed in their stools, and eaten in quantities, has quite a laxative effect.

Besides using the fresh corn, America cans enormous quantities, the corn being cut from the cob and prepared in a creamy, stewed form. It is also used mixed with lima beans as succotash, and makes an excellent corn omelet. Corn is indispensable in the tamale trade, the husks being used for a sheath and the meal for the under cover. It is also used by the Mexicans for tortillas, or flat cakes.

Corn meal makes the basis for a starchy meal if used in the form of corn meal bread, with the addition of milk, eggs and baking powder. The baking powder will give more uniform results than the use of sour milk and soda, although the latter mixture is quite wholesome. Do not add any wheat to the corn meal, as the latter digests more readily alone. Try this recipe:

Corn Muffins

To one cup of corn meal add a cup of milk and one well-beaten egg. To this mixture add another half cup of corn meal in which a teaspoonful of baking powder has been thoroughly mixed. Stir the two mixtures together and put into muffin tins in a hot oven. Turn down the fire to avoid overcooking on the under side. This recipe takes a little longer to cook than the cornbread made with wheat flour, but is more wholesome.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Deep Breathing

Question—Mrs. C. G. R. asks: "What would cause one to have to take a deep breath every minute? If I don't I feel like choking. I am healthy otherwise, and gaining weight, and have no pains whatever in my chest."

Answer—If you would take deep-breathing exercises two or three times a day I am sure you would lose the desire to take the deep breath every minute. It might be well for you to stop whatever you are doing several times during the day and inhale and exhale several times to the extreme. Your lungs no doubt want more air, and the deep breathing supplies this.

Milk

Question—D. F. asks: "Does milk form a solid in the stomach?"

Answer—If milk is taken in large swallows it will form large curds in the stomach and is then not easily digestible. However, if small amounts of lemon juice are taken with the milk, or if the milk is taken very slowly, the curds will be smaller in which form the digestive juices can have a better effect in digesting these curds.

Always Breeding

Question—R. H. asks: "What would you recommend for a person on whom destructive thoughts have gotten such a hold that she broods continually? The family doctor says there is nothing organically wrong, but she is becoming a total wreck physically and mentally."

Answer—She should have a good diagnosis made and find out the condition of her alimentary canal. It will no doubt be found that the abdominal organs are prolapsed low in the pelvis. Nothing will produce nervousness in a woman and lead to neurasthenia and insanity as quickly as congestion in the pelvic organs, and prolapsus is one of the commonest causes of such a condition.

Newspaper Story Locates Heiress

DENVER, Sept. 20. (UP)—A United Press story sent out of Denver and printed in the New York Telegram has located Rena Davis, 34, missing heiress, after a nation-wide hunt, advices from New York said today.

As a result she will receive the income for life from a legacy of $25,000 which otherwise would have gone to the national Jewish hospital here.

Ernest Morris, Denver attorney, on request of a Brooklyn legal firm administering the estate of Adolph J. Davis, who died last July in Paris, France, inserted a want ad in the Rocky Mountain News. From the ad the United Press developed a news story. The story was published in the New York Telegram.

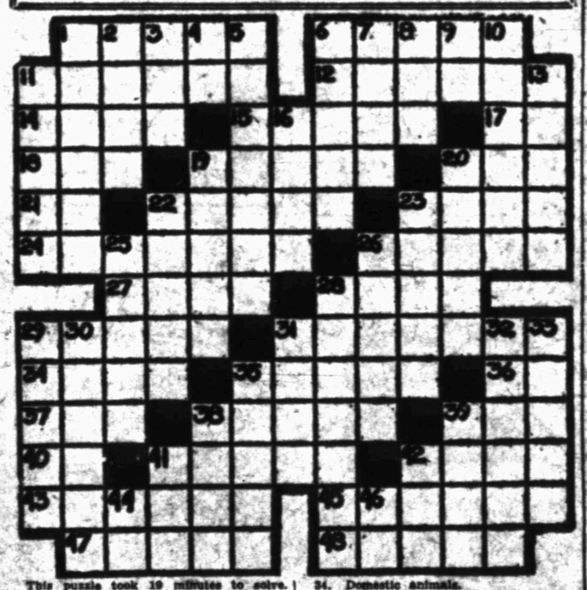

One of Miss Davis' relatives saw the story, knew of her whereabouts and notified attorneys. Yesterday Morris canceled the ad when he received word that Miss Davis had been located.

Mexican Air Leader En Route to Dallas

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20. (AP)—F. Buch de Parada, former assistant chief of the Mexican air service, left here today for Dallas via the Standard Air lines to deliver three Bellanca airplanes to be used in the new Mexican transcontinental air-mail hookup.

The new line, which will be known as Cia Transportes Aeros Trans-Continentales, will operate between Mexico City, San Luis Potosi, Torreon, El Paso and Dallas and will start its service Oct. 1.

TURKEY CROP QUALITY LOW

Poor Feeding Handicaps Many Texas Growers

Poultry dealers throughout Texas are giving much attention to a situation which threatens to reduce the 1929 crop of turkeys to far below the average harvest both in weight and quality, and which it is feared may create in northern and eastern markets a serious prejudice to the marketing of Texas turkeys, according to information given The Record News Friday.

It was pointed out that the present year has produced conditions under which the inadequacy of prevalent methods of handling turkeys has been strikingly demonstrated. The vast majority of these birds produced in this state, it was said, are kept in pens, or at least around the barn lot, only until they are a few weeks old. From that time on they range over wide territories, obtaining their subsistance from their own foraging.

Weather conditions and comparative failure of certain crops in many parts of the state this year have had a very noticeable effect upon thousands of growing turkeys, it was said. Many birds which have run wild over the farm since early spring recently were shown to weigh only five to six pounds each, while birds of the same age which had been kept in large pens and fed weighed as much as 12 and 14 pounds each. The poorer quality and lighter weight of the unpenned turkeys was attributed to lack of sufficient food and the necessity of ranging so constantly and widely for what was obtained.

Strict accounting has revealed, it was said, that the well-fed pen turkey represents a more profitable investment than that which is turned loose to provide his own scratch. The growth of turkeys, to be successful with fair regularity, must be conducted practically on a commercial basis, it was said, with attention to the cleanliness of the pens and the sufficiency of food. Development of large flocks of turkeys should be accompanied by raising of feed, or its purchase, to supply the birds without their ranging excessively.

On the basis of present conditions, it was stated, the annual crop of turkeys which will come on the market in this state for the Thanksgiving trade will fall from 30 to 50 per cent short of normal weight, and will probably grade generally as less than No. 1 stock. Should such a condition exist, a material handicap will be given to future sale of Texas turkeys in the country's largest markets. It was pointed out that conditions in Texas are as good for successful turkey raising as in the Northwest, from which quarter the best supply appears now to be available, but that better care and feeding will be requisite to holding a place as a leading turkey-producing state.

Slight increases in the receipts of poultry from farmers in this section were reported by different local dealers. Heavy springs, hens, and some turkeys comprise the bulk of poultry receipts. Few eggs above home needs appears to be available in this area.

Without a report from Kemp City, which point could not be reached by phone Friday evening, Wichita county reported a total of 277 bales of cotton ginned during the day, bringing the reported total to 2,356.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. (AP)—Bullish crop advices were reflected by increased activity and rather a sharp advance in cotton during the day's early trading, but there were reactions later under southern selling and realizing. December contracts after selling up to 19.02 or 25 points net higher closed at 18.81 with the general market closing barely steady net unchanged to 10 points net higher.

A report by one of the trade authorities estimating ginnings prior to Sept. 16 at 3,540,000 bales and commenting upon these figures as pointing to a reduction in the crop indication, seemed to stimulate buying which carried October contracts to 18.86 and March to 19.30 or 22 to 26 points net higher on the active positions.

Closing quotations showed reactions of about 20 points from the best.

Bullish views of the private ginning figures appear to be based upon an idea that they reflected premature opening and a short crop in some sections.

Export today 36,516 making 710,100 so far this season. Port receipts today 56,703, U. S. port stocks 930,759.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20. (AP)—Cotton developed a slight upward trend in today's moderately active trading, although a good part of the gains of the morning were lost in the late trading. After gaining 20 to 22 points prices eased off on liquidation by recent buyers leaving only a small net advance for the day. December, which closed yesterday at 18.68, advanced 22 points to 18.87 but later lost 15 points of the gain, closing at 18.70 or 8 points higher for the day. The general market closed steady 4 to 7 points net higher.

Liverpool came in 1 to 3 points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 2 to 4 points. The market advanced in early trading owing to fears of less favorable weather, a rather bullish ginnings estimate, and unfavorable review of the Texas crop. October traded up to 18.46, December to 18.78 and January to 18.84 or 11 to 14 points above close of the previous day.

The market improved most of the morning. October advanced to 18.54 and January 18.83. This was 20 to 22 points above the previous close. Much of this gain was lost after mid-session. Active months lost 15 to 17 points from the highs. October closed at 18.36, December at 18.70 and January at 18.77 or 4 to 7 points net higher for the day.

Financial Troubles of English Group Influences Lower Prices

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. (US)—Cable reports of financial troubles of a prominent English group enhanced the effect of professional selling and closed the stock market lower today. Further increases in brokers' loans influenced heavy selling at the opening. A rally that started toward noon was halted by the English news and the decline proceeded to the close.

Steel lost 6⅝, Radio dropped 8 points, Standard of New Jersey 3¼, United Aircraft 5¼, Otis Elevator 17, and American Can 2¾. A few specialties and industrials moved against the general trend with American & Foreign Power adding 8⅛ to its advance, Columbia Gas advancing 11 points, American International 4⅛ and May Stores 2⅝. Rails and Coppers turned reactionary with the rest of the list. Call money was held at 8 per cent throughout and appeared in good supply. Turnover increased to the 4,500,000-share level.

Cable advices from London telling of the financial troubles of the Harty group was the talked of excuse for selling but the main reason for the more irregular action of the market was the refusal of important banking groups to take an aggressive position. Trading is almost entirely professional and unless some unforeseen bearish development influences big public selling, it promises to remain that way for the next several weeks. Professionals have been very successful in staging week-end rallies but now that the stock exchange is keeping closer touch with members to stop the "free riding" of Saturday and Monday there is not much advantage in taking an extended position for over the week-end.

There is no doubt that the London reports caused a little liquidation but bankers did not lose any of their long-pull bullishness in so far as the New York stock market is concerned.

Report of a planned combination of Electric Bond and Electric Investors was taken as further evidence that the Utility interests are going right ahead with expansion and merger programs and refuse to be disturbed by foreign financial troubles or manipulation of money conditions here.

It is learned that securities held by Electric Bond & Share now have a market value of over $1,500,000,000. When these are added to Electric Investors Securities, the market value of assets of the combined companies will be several times the market value of their own stock. American International remains the favored investment trust. It not alone holds stock in leading industrials, utilities and banks but also has interest in other investment trusts which in turn own its stock.

Special activity was staged in United Gas and there were further brokerage advices pointing out the favorable position of National Power as one of the Electric Bond group likely to play a prominent part in mergers. Steel remains a disappointment but better support was evidenced toward the close. There is reason to believe also that good judges of such motor stocks as Chrysler are watching the market closely and will be "long-pull buyers" if the price slips a little more.

The United Aircraft break was belated but not unexpected. As warned of here several months ago when the aviation stock boom was most hectic, competition is being experienced and before the industry is stabilized some of the weaker organizations may meet the same experience as did the Radio and refrigeration companies after their respective booms.

Once again the federal reserve statements proved the National City bank was correct in doubting that the new reserve policy would keep credit from the stock market. The greater portion of the increase in brokers' loans was recorded in loans made for out-of-town banks. It would seem that these banks are using money made available by sale of bills to the reserve to extend accommodations to stock speculators. How long the reserve will permit this to go on is doubtful but no corrective measures are likely for the next fortnight as the big commercial and agricultural demand for funds is just being experienced.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Sept. 20. (AP)—Threatened blockade of movement of grain toward market centers northwest did much today to send wheat and other cereals to a lower level in prices. Sharp notice also was taken of the fact that exports of wheat from North America this week are nearly 4,000,000 bushels less than for the corresponding time last year.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 1¼ to 1½c a bushel below yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅝c to ¾c off, oats ⅝c to ¾c down and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

Lowest prices of the day in the wheat pit were current during the final transactions.

Corn prices today dropped to a new all-around low mark for the week. Improved weather conditions over the corn belt were a factor. Oats sympathized with weakness of wheat and corn.

Selling out on the part of holders of October lard made the provision market easy.

LONG ESTATE FIGHT TO END

McClintock Heirs Reported In Agreement

CHICAGO, Sept. 20. (US)—The five-year battle over the $1,400,000 estate of William "Billy" McClintock today was reported settled.

An agreement between William Darling Shepherd, the boy's guardian, and natural heirs, with beautiful Isabelle Pope, whose romance with Billy was cut short by his death in 1924, is believed ready for court action.

Under the agreement Shepherd is said to relinquish half of the estate with Miss Pope to receive $355,000 of the $700,000 and rest to be divided among 10 cousins who were named in Billy's will.

Shepherd will give up $400,000 in cash and $300,000 in securitites, the parties having agreed on estimating the McClintock estate at $1,400,000. Just what net Shepherd will have is problematical.

He is to pay all of the inheritance and federal estate taxes which will total about $100,000 and also his attorney fees.

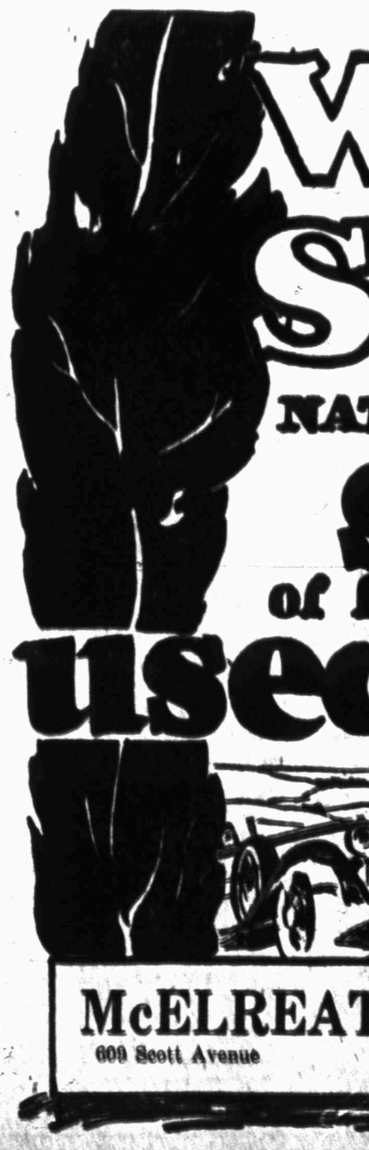

Miss Pope will take her $355,000 share from the shares apportioned to nine of the 10 cousins since one of the cousins, William Eaton, is in an institution for the insane in California and could not make a division agreement legally. Accordingly his full share will be paid his conservator.

Shepherd, who was tried and acquitted on charges of taking the life of his ward by administering typhoid germs, is to receive the old McClintock home, all except $400,000 worth of the $900,000 of personal property and all of the realty outside of Illinois. This consists of 2,421 acres of land in Texas, Canada, South Dakota and Kansas.

The nine cousins, each of whom will receive $70,000 subject to division with Miss Pope are:

William J. Eaton, Ira P. Eaton, Charles D. Eaton, Archie A. Eaton, Viola Eaton, Minnie Eaton Kersten and Maude Eaton Walker, all of Ottumwa, Iowa; Bertram Eaton of California and Luella Yokum of Buffalo, N. Y.

Counsel for the interested parties will go before Judge Philip L. Sullivan, before whom the will contest is pending, and move that the will be set aside and the estate distributed to the heirs in accordance with the agreement reached between them.

MOTHER APE SHOWS BABY

Zoo Attendants Get Brief Glimpse of Infant

He—the baby baboon—is a male. Attendants at the Municipal zoo were finally able Friday afternoon to persuade Mrs. Cynocephalus Porcarius, better known as Maggie, to come out of the seclusion of her enclosed rear cage and show her infant. Although attendants were not intrepid enough to enter the cage, the mother baboon allowed her little one to drop to the floor for a short time to be seen by himself.

She quickly snatched the baby back into her arms and again he became as a part of her body. She evinced a desire to return to the darkness of the rear cage and crouched in the corner as though unwilling to be viewed longer.

While the mother was in the barred portion of her cage, Mr. Cynocephalus Hamadryas, better known as Jim, impatiently paced his cage, next to that of Maggie. He would grunt and growl and press his face against the bars in an attempt to see into the next cage, his view obstructed by a solid wall. From time to time he would scamper back to the rear portion of his cage, next to that of the mother, and attempt to see through the cracks in the boards or carry on a conversation of growls with his wife.

He paid no attention to the visitors but would become excited when the zoo attendants approached Maggie's cage. He paid them small heed so long as they remained where he could see them, but when they went toward the mother's cage and were lost to his view, he would run back and forth, casting himself with fury against the bars, growling and showing his huge teeth.

Sartin Replies To Demo Leader

the South from Texas to North Carolina. Hearing that some have proposed that a disarmament conference be called for all warring factions within the Democratic party, a committee was appointed by a group of intl-Smith Democrats to seek out from those in charge of the Democratic councils if peace was really desired and what were the terms of such peace. While apparently the local Democratic chairman was willing to comply with the law and be governed thereby, it now appears that the state chairman of the Democratic executive committee, Mr. Wilcox of Georgetown, has lurking within his heart all the old venom and Tammany tactics that he so scheningly possessed in the late political battle; that he is not willing to abide by the laws of the state of Texas governing elections and the right of the people to pass upon the qualifications of public officials, but is still desirous of assuming a dictatorial and autocratic role of rights and prerogatives that belong only to the people of this state. This position of the state chairman, Mr. Wilcox, has been heralded far and wide, and he shall not get by with this challenge to the voice of the majority of the people of Texas who so thoroughly repudiated Mr. Wilcox and his Tammany cohorts last November.

"Ready to Fight"

"The independent men and women of Texas are not to be bluffed or cowed by the threats of Mr. Wilcox. They know his hand but they know their rights. These men and women are ready to fight for principle and the right to vote as their conscience dictates.

"While the Democrats of this state and of the entire South for that matter prefer that there be peace within the ranks of the party wherever it can be secured, they are not willing to sacrifice their sacred rights to pass upon the fitness of the men or women who may seek public office. They will resent bitterly the action of any committee, and do resent the preposterous attitude of Mr. Wilcox, in attempting to prescribe any man who fought their battles for principle and for Southern Democratic ideals.

"If Mr. Wilcox could drive out from the party men or women who opposed a Democratic nominee, then he would drive from out the party such men as Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan, and Woodrow Wilson, for these great Democrats reserved the right to blot any candidate that they opposed on the ground of principle.

Letter to Alvin Moody

"I understand, of course, that Mr. Wilcox, in making his statement regarding the ineligibility of "bolter" candidates in the next election, was expressing a purely personal opinion, but I have reason to believe that he is expressing the opinion of the entire state Democratic committee.

"In view of this, I favor a statewide mass meeting of Hoover Democrats and all other voters of the state who care to attend, to denounce Mr. Wilcox's attitude, and to seek from the state committee a ratification or a denunciation of their leader's views.

"As vice chairman of anti-Tammany Democrats in Texas, I have written Alvin Moody of Houston, chairman of that organization, in regard to the calling of such a state meeting within the immediate future."

MAJESTIC: "The Greene Murder Case." William Powell and Eugene Pallette driving a fiend from the musty house. Vitaphone vaudeville act. Paramount news.

STRAND: "Fashions in Love," with Adolphe Menjou. Comedy. Vitaphone vaudeville. Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: "Fancy Baggage," with Audrey Ferris and George Fawcett. Comedy. Pathe news. Lillian Murry company on stage.

GEM: "Tracked," western dog picture. Chapter 11 of "Pirates of Panama." Comedy.

Wichita Falls' younger set, (as the market page calls them), effervescent young spirits who bang their hands loudly for a change when the entertainment becomes lukewarm or cool, likes its murders at midnight. Some hundreds of them flocked to the Majestic at half past 11 Thursday night to frolic hilariously during the curtain-raiser comedies and squirm uneasily as Philo Vance prods about in the Greene mansion and in the Greene sub-conscious minds to find the killer of sundry members of the family.

A sufficient number of middle-aged nocturnists were present—oh no, not as chaperones!—to afford "The Greene Murder Case" opportunity to register its unmistakable appeal to all those above 12. The subtle implication of that observation is that children under 12 will thoroughly enjoy "Ranger," the dog, down at the Gem.

Hardly had we been made acquainted with the austere Greene mansion on the river bank, and with old lady Greene's really nasty disposition, when the characteristic touch of S. S. Van Dine became apparent. Apprehensive of an impending murder, (this title was designed to describe rather than conceal the plot), one's mind immediately begins weighing the impertinent children of the irascible old invalid to see whether parent or offspring shall be killed off for the common good.

Following Chester's sudden demise at straight-up midnight, motives and apparently incriminating circumstances come to light with kaleidoscopic speed from every bedroom and broom-closet in the house. The peculiar technique used in William Powell-Van Dine mystery plays repeatedly presents a new situation which causes the listener to hold his breath expectantly, confident of a material revelation—only to be switched in a flash to another promising layout.

It is through the person of Eugene Pallette, the police sergeant, that the story's humor is introduced when the accumulated suggestions and implications of these rapidly flashing scenes put such pressure on the burly sergeant that he just naturally must talk—and does; bringing forth solutions of the mystery which at the moment are just what the audience was thinking. Then the slow voice of Philo Vance, after a moment of tolerant consideration, "Well, I hardly think so, Sergeant." That voice of William Powell's, so modulated, puts us back where we were, and on we go to find another dead one.

The apparent incrimination of each member of the family except Chester—who first wrapped himself round a .38 calibre bullet to start things off—was skillfully constructed in the film version of Van Dine's story. About the seventh inning, you can be absolutely sure that either the vitriolic old widow, the sibilant Sibella, the angelic Ada, and the explosive Rex, or one of the house servants certainly bumped Chester off. It was too bad that it had to be Chester, with the only really balmy disposition in the house, and his nice, round laugh.

"The Greene Murder Case" was endowed with one of the most uniformly strong casts given to pictures shown here to date. The difference between Powell and Pallette is quite entirely one of roles; different types, both entertaining, and both excellently portrayed. The spooky voice of Jean Arthur and fanatical incantations of Marcia Harriss have been used most effectively in maintaining a mystery-laden atmosphere.

If voluntary testimonials voiced casually about town are a criterion, "Fast Company," which closed at the Majestic Thursday night, was one of the most generally satisfying productions shown here this year. Jack Oakie and Evelyn Brent have been frequently eulogized throughout the past week for a refreshing comedy, filled with truly artistic characterization, and entirely wholesome in its every detail.

JUNIOR C.-C. HONORS SPUDS

Delegation to Attend Fair At Iowa Park

Members of the Spudder ball team were entertained at luncheon Friday noon at the Kemp hotel by the Junior chamber of commerce, the occasion having been planned as a sendoff to the players on the eve of renewing the Texas league pennant fight with Dallas at the city Saturday afternoon.

Various members of the Spudder squad, including Manager Jim Galloway and Duke Hermann, were called upon to speak on the topic of the hour.

A program of entertainment opened with tap dancing by Miss Helen Peters of the Knickerbocker studio. Orchestral selections were given by the Frank Bird Bluebirds of station KGKO, and Zack Hurt, accompanied by the orchestra sang an original number, "Let's Go, Loyal Spudders, Let's Go."

Paul Hines, chairman of the Junior chamber of commerce aviation committee, was asked to have his committee meet at the Municipal airport at 3:40 p. m. Friday to greet Chester Bailes, Braniff airplane pilot, who recently received an award for bravery from the Chicago Daily News. Mr. Bailes' home is in this city.

C. C. Hudson, editor of The Iowa Park Herald, extended an invitation to members of the Junior chamber of commerce to attend the Wichita county fair which is to be held at Iowa Park on Sept. 26, 27 and 28. Walter Nelson Jr., president of the local organization, announced that a considerable delegation from this city will attend the fair at Iowa Park next Friday, which will be "Wichita Falls" day.

A singsong was led by Erwin F. Bohmfalk, with George Kerner accompanying.

Hoover Heartens W. C. T. U. Delegates

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 20. (UP)—A telegram from President Hoover lauding their efforts toward liquor law observation heartened 3,000 women attending the 55th annual National Convention of Womens' Christian Temperance union here tonight.

The message, received by Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president, said in part:

"I am daily impressed with the great need for extended work in education in the moral, physical and economic benefits to temperance.

"Since the adoption of the prohibition amendment too many people have come to rely wholly upon the strong arm of the law to enforce abstinence, forgetting that the cause of temperance has its strong foundation in the convictions of the individual of the personal value to themselves of temperance in all things."

Before the president's message was received, Mrs. Lena Lou Yost, delegate from Washington, D. C., recommended that the organization "carry prohibition beyond state and federal statutes into municipal codes."

A census of Carson, Iowa, shows that of the 620 residents, 113 are widows, widowers, bachelors and spinsters.

Jury Reaches Quick Decision In Damage Suit as Ball Game Calls

Shade Awarded $3,700 Damages on Claim for Injuries at Diversion Dam Fish Hatchery

To the satisfaction of at least one of its members, a jury in the 78th district court got through work late Friday afternoon, with plenty of time ahead for a flying trip to Dallas and the Spudder game.

The jury was that in the case of Fred Shade, who asked $17,725 damages of A. A. Anderson, contractor, and the latter's bondsmen for alleged permanent injuries sustained while working at the Diversion dam fish hatcheries under Mr. Anderson two years ago. Mr. Shade claimed he sustained permanent paralysis when struck on the head by a falling board. Negligence on the part of the defendant was charged.

The jury sustained Mr. Shade's charges, and in a verdict of special issues recommended that he be recompensed to the sum of $3,700.

But back to the ball game . . .

Thursday Judge W. W. Cook released 20 members of the petit jury panel on duty, in order that they might see the Dallas game. This was done, Judge Cook said, because there was "very little business, anyway."

Then Friday, as the arguments in the trial began gradually to reach an end, Mr. Shade, the defendant, said he heard one of the jurors say, in effect, that he "sure would like to see that game, if we get away from here in time."

The jury received the damage suit at 3:40 p. m. Friday, and exactly at 5 p. m. a loud knock on the jury room door announced that a verdict had been reached. Judge Cook previously had said that if a verdict was not reached by 5 o'clock he was going to lock the jurors up for the night.

Mr. Anderson's bondsmen in the case include G. W. Norwood, H. B. Hines and W. T. Martin. Since only $2,725 of the 17,725 listed as damages was asked of the bondsmen, they will be liable for that amount only, it was pointed out. Mr. Anderson was sued for $15,000.

In its verdict, the jury held that Mr. Shade was injured through negligence on the part of the plaintiff, and that the blow on the head was responsible for the permanent paralysis.

Mr. Shade was represented by the firm of Rhea and Carswell, attorneys. Attorneys for the defense were John C. Kay and J. W. Akin.

SLOW UP

Motorists Warned to Observe Limit in School Zones

Laxity in the observance of speed regulations in school zones marked by slow signs has resulted in the issuance of a warning from Chief of Police Frank Burns to motorists that more careful watch will be kept in these zones and drivers caught exceeding the limit will be arrested.

Several motorists have been fined every day since the installation of the slow signs, Chief Burns said. Motorcycle officers will be stationed in the vicinity of school zones, both for the apprehension of violators of the speed limit and for the protection of the children. As a safety measure to protect the lives of the school children, Chief Burns has reminded drivers that the limit in school zones is eight miles per hour.

SMITH WINS DISPLAY HONOR

Wichitan's Windows Called "Best in U. S."

W. C. Smith, window decorator for the P. B. M. company, received one of the highest honors of his profession when he was notified Friday that his window displays on the occasion of Father's day were considered, as a group, the best in the United States.

The contest, sponsored by the Associated Men's Neckwear industries, offered $1,000 in prizes, and due to the regulations it was not possible to present first prize to Mr. Smith since his displays were in the form of four simultaneously exhibited units, for which there was no provision. It was decided that he should receive third prize and a special award of honorable mention for his conception, art and skill in execution and salesmanship shown in his display.

Quoting the September number of the magazine Neckwear for Men: "The judges were of the opinion that Mr. Smith should have received first prize for his display considered as a group but contest conditions as issued made no provision for such a contingency."

Wichitans Go To District Ad Meet

Wichitans who will attend the meeting of the tenth district Advertising Federation of America at Dallas, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday are J. H. Allison, Albert E. Kelley, Jake Price, W. S. Abbott, Mrs. R. E. Davis, Mrs. Crady Baccus, and Mrs. Gertrude Green, it was announced Friday.

Mr. Allison will give a talk on "Local Advertising in Newspapers" at the session Monday. There will be no meeting of the local Advertising club Tuesday due to the convention, it was announced.

Many Visit Farm Station

Wilson Shows Tests Made On State Tract

Several dozen representatives of the Wichita Falls, Iowa Park and Valley View communities gathered Friday afternoon at the state experiment station near Iowa Park for a tour of inspection over the farm, and a program of speaking during the latter portion of the afternoon.

Between 1:30 and 3:30 p. m., members of the group were conducted on a tour during which Earl J. Wilson, superintendent, explained the various tests under way, and the objects of each experiment.

At 3:30 o'clock, Orville Bullinton, president of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, spoke on the possibilities of agricultural development in the irrigated valley lands. Short talks were given also by J. A. Kemp and Hubert M. Harrison, manager of the local chamber of commerce.

Activities of the afternoon concluded with a watermelon feast.

Boy Scouts of Iowa Park, in charge of Otis Weaver, visited the farm Friday night, and were entertained with a generous spread of watermelons.

Burk Theater Owner Asks Officers To Help Him Find "Moving" Movie

A moving picture show that is really moving was sought by county authorities Friday.

The moving movie consists of a truck, a load of films, and a projection machine. A charge of theft by bailee, filed Friday in Judge R. V. Gwinn's justice of the peace court by Lester Myers of Burkburnett, owner of the outfit, charged that his equipment was in the hands of Robert Williams, believed to be entertaining audiences in the vicinity of Stamford.

Mr. Myers, owner of a Burkburnett theater, told Assistant District Attorney George W. Anderson that he sent Mr. Williams and the moving movie to Bowie and Olney and Wichita Falls. Williams, Mr. Myers said, showed the films at Bowie and Olney, but never did come here. Authorities were informed, they said, that he went to Stamford, and then struck out in that immediate vicinity with the films, truck, and all.

Wichita Boys Attend Amarillo Hi-Y Meet

Wichita Falls boys who are attending the Hi-Y officers' convention at Amarillo this week-end are Springer Williams, president; Homer Lee, vice president; Bill Hord secretary and treasurer; Pat Henry, Aaron Kruger and Malcolm Harrison.

The boys were accompanied by T. F. Richardson, sponsor, and left Friday morning at 3 o'clock. Aaron Kruger, who was the only Texas delegate to the Hi-Y convention in Europe, will give a report of his trip. They are expected to return Sunday night.
