American's fares quickly matched

By SCOTT McCARTNEY
AP Business Writer

DALLAS — American Airlines' plan to undercut discount carriers by slashing rates up to 70 percent was quickly matched by five other airlines, sparking fears of crippling fare wars and sending industry stocks into a tailspin.

Starting next month, fares ranging from $39 for short trips to $129 for one-way cross-country travel will be available in all 92 cities American serves, with 5 million reduced-fare seats offered in the first five months of the "Ultimate Super Saver" plan, American said Thursday. American serves Midland Regional Airport, and area travelers were lighting up the local American switchboard this morning to take advantage of the new discounts.

"Our call volume has been extremely busy," said Linda Johnson, American's manager of of corporate communications in Dallas. "The response has just been overwhelming."

The cut-rate fares carry restrictions that include purchases 30 days in advance and a provision that 25 percent of the ticket price is non-refundable. A limited number of full-coach fare seats will be reduced up to 70 percent, American said.

The airline said the fares "are also designed to be competitive with low fares offered by carriers like People Express."

Other major carriers responded quickly, as did investors. On Wall Street, the common stocks of eight carriers and airline manufacturers plummeted following American's announcement.

Trans World Airlines, Pan Am, Delta Airlines and Northwest said they would match the fares. United Airlines will do so "reluctantly," said spokesman Joe Hopkins.

Hopkins called the reductions "a tremendous offer" that will "bring affordable travel within the United States within the reach of most Americans. But it's an open question as to how much new business will be stimulated. In 1982, when there was the $99 fare, carriers lost their shirts."

Some investors are worried the same thing could happen again because any talk of fare-cutting "is clearly a red flag," said Charles Hanneman, an airline industry analyst at Thomson McKinnon Securities in New York.

"People start running for the doors" because of the prospect that reduced fares would reduce earnings at a time when airlines are still attempting to recover from a severe slump, he said.

But American is betting that the restrictions it has imposed will ward off a repeat of 1982, said spokesman Lowell Duncan.

American's new fares apply to travel beginning Feb. 18 within the 48 continental states and require a Saturday night overnight stay. The number of seats available at the lowest price will be limited, and certain peak days such as holidays will be blacked out.

Central American talks next?

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, seeking a broader dialogue with the Soviet Union, intends to propose talks on Central America and other unstable areas of the world now that it has a new agreement to exchange views on the Middle East, according to U.S. officials.

"To the extent that we can clarify positions, it makes the world a little less dangerous place," an official who spoke on condition of anonymity said Thursday.

In the Nixon and Ford administrations, the United States tried to reach an accommodation with the Soviet Union to lessen tensions around the world. Ronald Reagan, campaigning for the presidency, led a charge by conservatives against detente. And in his first three years in the White House, he followed the same hard line, denouncing the Soviet Union as an "evil empire."

But Reagan signaled a shift in a speech Jan. 16, 1984. "We must and will engage the Soviet Union in a dialogue that will serve to promote peace in the troubled regions of the world," he said. Then, in a U.N. speech last Sept. 24, he called for a "better working relationship" that included talks at the expert level.

The agreement reached Jan. 8 in Geneva to resume talks on reducing nuclear weapons reopened the dialogue on an issue that is central to U.S.-Soviet relations. It also cleared the way for talks on other topics, although the agreement on the Middle East actually had been reached earlier. It surfaced when Mark Palmer, a State Department official, briefed the Israeli government on the Geneva meeting a few days later.

The time and place for the Mideast talks have not been set, although Washington and Moscow are likely sites. Richard W. Murphy, a former U.S. ambassador to Lebanon and Saudi Arabia and now assistant secretary of state for the Near East, probably will represent the United States.

However, Secretary of State George P. Shultz may take on the assignment if he makes a trip to Moscow after the arms control talks open.

"We'd be happy to chat with them about any number of different regions," a U.S. official, who declined to be identified, said. "This (the Middle East) is the only one where there is an agreement of principle thus far. We have offered to talk about a number of other regions as well. We'd be happy to have that."

Eastern Airlines crew fools would-be hijacker

By JANET BRAUNSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — A man who threatened to ignite a can of gasoline aboard an Eastern Airlines jet unless he was taken to Cuba was apprehended when the plane landed in Orlando today and he was told he was in Havana, authorities said.

No one among the 120 other passengers and nine crew members was injured aboard Eastern Flight 403, which left Newark, N.J., at 10:30 p.m. Thursday en route to Miami, said airline spokeswoman Paula Musto.

The hijacker, identified by airline and jail officials as Lazaro Hernandez, 30, of Passaic, N.J., was arrested by Orlando police after Flight 403 was forced to make an unscheduled landing, said Carolyn Fennell, a spokeswoman for Orlando International Airport.

The plane arrived in Miami at 4:18 a.m. today.

The A300 Eastern jet made an emergency landing in Orlando at 1:14 a.m., and "by 1:50, it was all over," said Roger Myers, spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta. "The passengers were taken off the aircraft and the hijacker was taken into custody."

Upon landing at the airport, 2nd Officer Dennis Lawrence spoke with Hernandez, who had been holding a package and a cigarette lighter, said Ms. Fennell.

"Lawrence indicated to the potential hijacker that he had landed in Cuba, at which instant (Hernandez) handed his lighter to the second officer and dropped the substance that he was holding and was apprehended by the Orlando Police Department," she said.

Lawrence and an unidentified passenger overpowered Hernandez and "pinned him to a seat," said Ms. Musto.

Passengers were taken to a holding area in the airport and the jet was refueled, said Ms. Fennell. It left Orlando at 3:32 a.m. for Miami with all the other passengers on board, she said.

Carol Bellamy, president of the New York City Council, was on the passenger list of the plane, said Ms. Musto. Another airline spokesman, Glenn Parsons, said Ms. Bellamy's New York office confirmed that she was aboard the plane and a passenger, Irv Sherman, 39, of East Brunswick, N.J., also said she was aboard.

Michael Internoscia, 16, who traveled to Miami from Old Tappan, N.J., said the hijacker "stood up and he was screaming. He looked nuts, crazy. I didn't understand what he was saying except 'Cuba.' "

Law enforcement officials and emergency vehicles were in place in case of an accident, a spokesman added.

Senate Republicans hint at new taxes

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

■ Related story — Page 4A

WASHINGTON — Senior Republicans in the Senate, determined to slash federal deficits dramatically over the next three years, are beginning to concede that higher taxes may be needed to help achieve this goal.

"I just know that when we're finished we're going to need taxes" to meet the ambitious deficit-reduction goals the party has given itself, GOP Sen. John Chafee of Rhode Island declared on Thursday as Republicans continued their struggle to produce a plan to cut $200 billion annual deficits in half by 1988.

Chafee is the second senior GOP senator to discuss the possibility of higher taxes despite Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole's insistence that spending cuts alone would do the job.

On Wednesday, Sen. Robert Packwood, new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said the deficit-cutting effort would probably include some disguised tax increase, such as retaining the present 16 cents-a-pack cigarette tax. The levy is scheduled to fall to eight cents next fall.

Asked about the cigarette tax on Thursday, Dole said the Senate would probably have to address that issue before the levy decreases but declined to state his own position.

Chafee discussed possible tax increases as House Republicans bluntly told Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger that he will have to take less money for defense than the Pentagon wants, especially if he hopes to save the controversial MX missile from congressional defeat.

Changes in school boundaries, clusters opposed

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Parents of children attending West, Santa Rita, Quanah Parker and other Midland elementary schools are arguing with the district's efforts to restructure boundary and cluster assignments to accomodate a new elementary school scheduled to open in September.

An estimated 50 parents gathered for a public hearing Thursday at Sam Houston Elementary School to voice opposition to the changes; contending that children in their respective neighborhoods have been "bounced around from pilar to post."

Constance Roe, 4500 Amistad Drive, told Midland trustees that she opposes the recommended redistricting after seeing her child moved from three different elementary schools in three years due to changes in the district's clustering structure. The area has been rezoned once in recent history, however, a spokeswoman for the district reported.

"I am seeing my child's personality disintegrate," an emotional Mrs. Roe told board members.

Trustees approved on first reading recommendations for boundary and cluster assignments for the school at its Jan. 8 board meeting. Final action is expected to be taken at Tuesday's regularly scheduled meeting.

The recommended attendance area for the school begins at the intersection of Northgate Avenue and Holiday Hill Road and continues west to include the Northgate neighborhood and the undeveloped areas surrounding the school.

Additionally, several rural areas are recommended for assignment to the school including areas served by buses in the Warfield area, currently assigned to Henderson Elementary School; the Ridgewood subdivision and the area along State Highway 80 west, currently assigned to Parker Elementary School; and the Airline Mobile Home area, currently assigned to Santa Rita Elementary School.

The proposed cluster assignment for the school would expand the Houston Elementary School attendance area to incorportate the West Elementary School attendance area and form Cluster Five (Parker, Houston/West and De Zavala).

West elementary would continue to serve as a campus for primary students in grades kindergarten through three in the present West attendance area. Intermediate students in grades four through six would attend the appropriate school in Cluster Five (fourth grade — Parker, fifth grade — Houston and sixth grade — De Zavala elementary schools). The new elementary school would become a part of Cluster Six along with Bonham and Washington elementary schools.

'Dame' can't hold back instructor's flood of bloopers

Associated Press

ORANGE PARK, Fla. — According to students in Jim Mattson's English classes over the past four years, floods can be prevented by putting dames in the river, Socrates died from an overdose of wedlock and a horse divided against itself cannot stand.

Mattson said he began keeping a list of student bloopers about four years ago when he was teaching in Exeter, N.H., and is updating the list with the help of his Orange Park High School students.

"I don't think they really know what they've written," he said.

Some of the classics include:

—"The death of Francis Macomber was a turning point in his life."

—"The difference between a king and a president is that a king is the son of his father, but a president isn't."

—"A virgin forest is a place where the hand of man has never set foot."

One of Mattson's favorites is "in 1957, Eugene O'Neill won the Pullett Surprise."

"I literally fell out of my chair laughing," he said. "I was laughing so hard I was crying. I showed it to my wife and tears came down her cheeks."

The beauty of the English language, Mattson said, is "it opens itself up for those kinds of connotations."

Mattson said the blooper list is an excellent teaching tool on how not to use the language. His students have compared him to a sort of Johnny Carson of the classroom.

"He's not cut and dried like so many other teachers. He gets to students better — he's more on their level," said Lisa Beir, a former student.

"Hey, I'm a teacher," Mattson said. "I've got to have a sense of humor to survive."

By ALISON SMALE
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — A new film extolling the border guard service of President Konstantin U. Chernenko a half-century ago is being shown, apparently to portray him as a military hero in time for the 40th anniversary commemorations of the victory over Nazism.

The 20-minute documentary, shown to the public for the first time this week at movie theater in an outlying district of Moscow, recalls Chernenko's service as a border guard in the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan from 1930 to 1932.

Many Soviets and Westerners in Moscow see the film as part of the effort by cultural and political authorities to commemorate the victory in the Great Patriotic War, as World War II is known in the Soviet Union.

The anniversary, celebrated by the Soviet Union on May 9, has already prompted Soviet newspapers to run articles recalling World War II military leaders. A daily feature on the evening television news shows footage of Soviet troops advancing toward Berlin 40 years earlier.

In light of the personality cults which surround top Soviet leaders, it would be unnatural for Chernenko to be excluded from this effort.

By the time the Nazis invaded the Soviet Union in 1941, however, Chernenko was already out of the armed services and entrenched in Communist Party work.Thus his two years in the border guard may have been seen as the best vehicle for portraying him as a military figure.

The first sign of this was an article on April 10 in the Defense Ministry daily, Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star).

The article, which officially marked the 60th anniversary of the Red Banner border detachment where Chernenko served, praised him as a "crack shot" who "never missed the mark when throwing hand grenades" and a gallant horseman who always rode at the head of a detail when guarding the border with China.

It did not cite any specific heroic deeds performed by the future leader and gave his work in the Communist Party, which he joined in 1932, as much prominence as his military prowess.

The film also gives no detail of individual feats performed by Chernenko in defense of the Soviet border — a duty always cited as a high priority in this vast, security-conscious nation.

Grigory Konev, a farmer who served alongside Chernenko, recounts that the time of their service was "very difficult" because of the collectivization of peasant holdings into state-owned farms that was taking place in Kazakhstan.

"Every day we had to serve on the border," Konev says, recalling one incident in May 1932 when he, Chernenko and 18 others "liquidated" a band of bandits crossing the border.

Only one still photograph of Chernenko as border guard is shown in the film and it appears repeatedly throughout the film. The picture also appeared last April in Krasnaya Zvezda.

More attention is devoted to archive footage of the mass labor efforts required to collectivize eastern Kazakhstan and to modern film of the Russian wooden-log dacha where Chernenko first got his Communist Party card.

This is spliced with pictures portraying today's border guard duty as a daring adventure full of helicopter and horse rides across the dramatic mountains in the area.

A return visit by Chernenko to his border guard unit in August 1979 also is featured.

WORLD in brief

Drought, famine spread

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drought and famine are spreading in Africa and starvation in the Sudan and other nations could become as serious as in Ethiopia, according to U.S. officials.

W. Peter McPherson, head of the Agency for International Development, announced Thursday that the United States would increase its food aid to the Sudan from 100,000 to 200,000 tons in part because of Ethiopian refugees fleeing civil war and spilling over the border between the two countries.

While most attention has focused on Ethiopia, McPherson said, the Sudan and Kenya have gone on the "danger list" of countries threatened with mass starvation in coming months.

One killed by car bomb

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded in Moslem west Beirut and shells blasted the Christian sector today, killing one person, wounding 14 and jeopardizing another government effort to neutralize rival militias, police and Beirut radio said.

The radio said dust and fog at Beirut Airport delayed the arrival of U.N. Undersecretary-General Brian Urquhart, who is trying to coordinate Lebanon and Syria's response to Israel's plans to begin a three-stage withdrawal from southern Lebanon next week and complete the first stage by Feb. 18.

The radio said a civilian was killed and 10 wounded in the car bombing in the Beir El-Abed neighborhood just before midday in a vacant lot usually used as a playground. Witnesses said not many children were around when the bomb went off.

Pullout reaction mixed

BATER AL-CHOUF, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli soldiers based at this checkpoint are eager to begin their withdrawal from south Lebanon, and many Lebanese share their impatience.

But others in Lebanon fear the withdrawal will trigger sectarian massacres, and Israelis living across the border say their towns will become guerrilla targets again.

In Kiryat Shmona, a town in northern Israel, about 250 residents gathered Thursday to protest the withdrawal, which they fear will lead to renewed terrorist attacks on border settlements.

Stock sold in Shanghai

PEKING (AP) — Thousands of buyers lined the street this week for the first stock issue in Shanghai since the Communist takeover in 1949, an official press report said.

It was the second reported large-scale issue of public stock in China since last year, when the once-denounced capitalist practice was reintroduced.

Some Chinese economists have said Shanghai should reopen its stock exchange, which thrived in the 1920s and 1930s in the export capital's imposing business district.

Jamaican violence eases

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Police said most of Jamaica was calm after two days of violent protests, but two people were killed in a gun battle between rival gangs before security forces chased away the combatants.

Police and soldiers cleared away the roadblocks erected during the protests against Prime Minister Edward Seaga's economic policies, and most businesses in Kingston reopened Thursday. But they closed early after gunfire broke out at midday near the capital's downtown area.

In radio broadcasts, factory managers appealed to their workers to return to work today and schools advised students they would reopen today or Monday.

Gavin ignores rumors

MEXICO CITY (AP) — U.S. Ambassador John Gavin has heard the rumors he is leaving so many times that sooner or later, he says, someone will get it right.

But he denies that any departure is planned or imminent after four years of work that has sometimes attracted fierce criticism from the Mexican press and public figures here.

"I'm not looking to depart at this moment," Gavin said in an interview this week with The Associated Press. "Why leave when you're ahead?"

Israeli forces uneasy with role as policemen in southern Lebanon

EDITOR'S NOTE — This dispatch was submitted to the Israeli military censor who did not order any changes.

By NICOLAS B. TATRO

NMAIRIYEH, Lebanon (AP) — "I don't know what it is to win in this war," the Israeli commander said. "I don't think anyone in history has won a war like this. You cannot fight against the population."

He commands a unit of the Israeli occupation force in South Lebanon and in line with military regulations he identified himself only as Yaacov, a colonel.

His men patrol the area, on guard against ambushes, on the lookout for sabotage, wary of boobytraps and mindful of the scornful glances from Shiite Moslem villagers.

Brian, a 22-year-old South African immigrant to Israel and now one of its soldiers, was aboard an armored personnel carrier, accompanied by a reporter.

"When we first came here the population was rather glad to get rid of the terrorists (Palestinian guerrillas) and return to some type of normalcy," he said. "But as we have stayed, they have got sick and tired of seeing us. The relationship has changed and we have to look after ourselves now.

"We are moving targets, but better we are the targets than our families back home."

As the personnel carrier rumbled slowly around a sharp curve outside Nmairiyeh, Brian leaned across his machine gun and pointed to a clump of bushes about 50 yards away.

"That's where my friend was killed when the terrorists ambushed us."

An average of two or three such attacks are mounted daily against Israel's occupation force in South Lebanon, estimated unofficially to number 20,000.

The guerrillas operate in small groups or alone. They fire a burst of shots from an orange grove, hurl a grenade in a narrow street, detonate a roadside bomb or rig rockets to be fired by a clock timer. Larger squads try to cross Israel's front line on the Awali River with backpacks full of explosives and arms.

These attacks characterize the successful guerrilla campaign mounted by a loose confederation of Shiite Moslems, Communists and Palestinians. They have accounted for nearly half the Israeli casualties — 604 killed and more than 3,500 wounded — since Israel invaded Lebanon on June 6, 1982.

Israel fights back with road blocks and weapons searches that disrupt commerce, curfews that seal off villages for days at a time and arrests that embitter the predominantly Shiite Moslem population of 900,000 in South Lebanon.

Col. Yaacov said such operations had reduced the number of attacks and thwarted about half the attempts.

But he added that victory is elusive because the guerrillas have plentiful supplies of small arms and could easily blend into the population after staging hit-and-run attacks.

Brian's patrol was greeted by mostly sullen, hostile stares as it drove through Shiite villages. Only two or three people waved during the hour-long journey.

On an earlier foot patrol in the same area, Israeli soldiers trekked through the rock-strewn hills overlooking the highway. An Arabic-speaking Israeli soldier stopped and exchanged pleasantries with a Bedouin shepherd, asking if there were any signs of troublemakers.

"I haven't seen anything," the shepherd responded.

The half-dozen soldiers then set up a roadblock to check identity papers and search cars for weapons and explosives.

Villagers petition court for baker's release from prison

VENDOEUVRE, France (AP) — The elderly villagers of Vendoeuvre are thankful to baker Marc Fricaud for delivering their daily bread, and Fricaud is grateful to them in return for delivering him from prison.

Fricaud, 44, spent a week in prison for failing to pay alimony, but was finally released so that he could resume his rounds.

"The grandmothers all embraced me. They were so happy. It was really very moving," Fricaud said after returning from his first tour of the snow-bound region.

Authorities released Fricaud after 500 villagers from Vendoeuvre, Sainte-Gemme, Migne and Mezieres-en-Bremme submitted a petition to the court asking for clemency for the baker "to assure the daily supply of bread to the population."

Fricaud did not get clemency. He has 24 more days to serve, but the court agreed to let him to do so on Thursdays and Sundays — when the bakery is closed.

Fricaud went to prison Jan. 3 for failing to pay 700 francs (about $77) monthly to his former wife to support their two children. He had been sentenced to six months in prison with five months suspended.

WEATHER SUMMARY

National Weather Service NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

AP Laserphoto Map

Very cold weather is forecast Saturday from the northern Plains to the upper Mississippi Valley and for most of the Northeast, according to the National Weather Service. Rain and snow are expected in the Northwest and western Plains; snow is predicted for the Northeast.

Temperatures in 60s forecast for Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

It won't seem much like winter during the next 24 hours as temperatures are expected to reach to the upper 60s Saturday.

Forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport are calling for fair skies with temperatures in the mid-30s tonight warming to highs in the upper 60s Saturday. Winds from the southwest at five to 10 mph tonight will increase from the west Saturday at less than 15 mph, shifting to the southeast in the late afternoon.

Thursday's high of 53 was 31 degrees below the record set in 1974. This morning's low was 24 degrees above the record of 7 set in 1949.

STATE

Texas was blessed with spring-like weather today, with temperatures mostly in the 60s, but the National Weather Service suggests that you enjoy it while you can.

An arctic air mass is gathering strength over northern Canada and will arrive in North Texas over the weekend, sending temperatures plummeting, weather officials say.

Today, clear skies were evident statewide except for patches of scattered clouds reported over extreme south texas.

A weak trough of low pressure extended across portions of West Texas shifting winds to the west and northwest over the High Plains and Trans Pecos region with southwesterly winds at 5 to 15 mph common elsewhere.

Belgium makes missile 'decision'

By ROBERT WIELAARD
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Prime Minister Wilfried Martens says his government has made a "firm decision" to station NATO nuclear missiles in Belgium but won't deploy all of them if the Soviets agree to reduce their arsenal.

The Reagan administration had urged Martens to commit Belgium to deploying the missiles assigned to it as part of the alliance's plan to put a total of 572 U.S.-built medium-range rockets in five Western European nations.

Martens, who met with President Reagan in Washington on Monday, had said his center-right government wanted to see how U.S. and Soviet efforts in the arena of arms control negotiations fared before committing his nation to the deployment schedule set by NATO.

But at a news conference Thursday in Brussels, Martens announced: "NATO can be happy that we will decide (on a deployment schedule) before the end of March and the period of pure evaluation has been transformed into a firm decision (to deploy) by the Belgian government."

NATO's schedule had called for Belgium to deploy by mid-March 16 of the 48 missiles assigned to it. Belgium is supposed to install the remaining 32 missiles by late 1987.

However, Martens' announcement that Belgium wait until the end of March to decide on a deployment schedule means the first group of 16 missiles is unlikely to be in place in time to meet NATO's timetable.

Martens said his government was "no longer" linking the beginning of deployment to an evaluation of progress in East-West arms talks, a policy switch that he called a "major change."

"We have arrived at a point where we have to carry out" Belgium's deployment, Martens said.

Martens said that if the Soviet Union doesn't agree to cut its arsenal of SS-20s missiles significantly, Belgium will deploy all 48 cruise missiles.

But if there is "partial" success at arms negotiations that the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to begin soon, Belgium will deploy a number of cruise missiles that correspond to the results of those talks, he said.

The Soviets reportedly have 396 SS-20 nuclear missiles stationed in Soviet bloc countries and trained on Western Europe.

In Washington, a White House spokesman, Robert Sims, was asked about Martens' remarks on Thursday.

"Nothing has changed in our view. We expect Belgium to live up to commitments it has made as a member of NATO," he said.

NATO's plan calls for Belgium to install 16 of the cruise missiles by mid-March at Florennes airbase, which is 40 miles south of Brussels.

Martens said preparations for the installation at Florennes airbase will continue. About 700 U.S. military personnel are at the base to help.

Martens' coalition government of Christian Democrats and Liberals came to office in 1981. It faces elections in December in which Socialists are expected to gain at the expense of Martens' Christian Democrats.

Socialist leaders have said recently that if they win a place in government, they will remove any missiles installed under the Martens administration.

NATO officials have said that Britain, West Germany and Italy have already installed some of the missiles. The Netherlands is also assigned a share of the NATO arsenal, but hasn't begun its deployment.

Europe suffering under long, strong cold spell

Associated Press

From ice-bound Scandinavia to the chilly Mediterranean coast, Europe is struggling with a stubborn cold spell that has claimed at least 280 lives in 13 days.

Icebreakers worked round the clock to clear Denmark's Baltic Sea harbors, France suffered its coldest temperatures in 30 years on Thursday — including 7 below zero in Paris — and northern Italy and southern Switzerland were hit by the heaviest snowfalls in decades.

In Bonn, West Germany, an airport arrival ceremony for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain was canceled, reportedly because the 21 degree temperature was considered too cold for the military band to play the national anthems properly.

An unofficial tabulation by European bureaus of The Associated Press put the death toll at 280 Thursday.France has been the worst hit, with 143 deaths attributed to weather-related accidents or illnesses.

Most of those who died were homeless tramps, elderly people living alone without heat, or victims of fires believed caused by frozen pipes bursting and causing electrical short-circuits.

French Railways reported that five workers have been killed in the past 10 days, three of them struck by trains as they were trying to thaw switches.

Fuel industry officials in France and Switzerland said sharp increases in demand for heating oil were causing supply difficulties.

In the Aude region on France's Mediterranean coast, flamingos continued to die by the hundreds.

Sherre Parker, president of West Elementary School Parent/Teacher Association, said representatives of her neighborhood were concerned over children being required to cross busy intersections in order to get to their respective cluster schools.

Calling for a committment by the board, Ms. Parker said "We support the proposal only if bus transportation to the various cluster schools is provided."

Currently, the district's 21 elementary schools are grouped into seven clusters consisting of three schools each to offer elementary school instructional programs for grades kindergarten through six.

Prior to the opening of Quanah Parker and Santa Rita Elementary schools in 1982, a public hearing was held before making final cluster assignments for the two schools.

During the course of the discussion at that hearing, it was suggested that the new school replace West Elementary School in Cluster Six of the clustering structure.

Maharishi could 'solve' nation's ills

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Sitting quietly, just five blocks from the White House, one of the world's most famous wise men proclaims a simple solution for any military, economic or other troubles the nation might face in President Reagan's second term.

In fact, Maharishi Mahesh Yogi says his plan could turn world chaos into pure coherence, creating a literal "heaven on earth."

All he needs, he says, is 7,000 good men and women, trained in the advanced principles of his already widely practised Transcendental Meditation, blending their mental efforts a few minutes every day — all together in one place, Washington, D.C.

The diminutive, gray-bearded maharishi, going strong nearly two decades after his meetings with pop music's Beatles multiplied his cult fame, was in Washington the past week to officially open a new university in the nation's capital.

Maharishi Vedic University will join Maharishi International University College of Natural Law, which already has several hundred students in Washington.

In a news release from his Continental Capital of the Age of Enlightenment, a converted hotel in downtown Washington, the mission of the new university was described as providing a center for studying the ancient knowledge of India, "which maharishi said makes the mind familiar with the most basic laws of nature, the unified field of natural law, and trains it to function from this level."

One basic law the maharishi says he's discovered is that 7,000 minds meditating together on such a level — the number represents the square root of 1 percent of the world's population — can, simply, make everything better.

U.S. capitalism, Russian communism, democracy, dictatorship, it just doesn't matter. He says every system of economics and politics "can begin to bring satisfaction to all people" if such a relatively small group can concentrate its mental and spiritual efforts daily in "this capital of the most creative country of the world, where the destiny of the world is designed day and night."

To be sure, the maharishi and his followers have made similarly bright contentions about the potential for groups of 7,000 elsewhere, most recently in Europe, the Philippines and Brazil.

But the United States is special, he told reporters at a news conference, because of its influence as a world leader.

Still, he added, the nation suffers "a fundamental weakness, a non-alliance with natural law" — shown in the small thanks the United States gets for help it sends other countries and in the fact that "little, little countries challenge it."

He smiles when he says the group of 7,000 could change all that by creating "greater coherence" in the nation and the world. And there is plenty of laughter from skeptics at such claims as that some followers can "fly" in little hops from a sitting position at times of maximum brainwave coherence.

But the maharishi has a large following in many nations — in the Philippines, particularly, in recent years as well as in India — and he has established training centers and universities around the world. In the United States, more than 2,000 people practice his meditation theories as well as taking more conventional courses at Maharishi International University in Fairfield, Iowa.

His followers include men and women with scientific degrees from more widely recognized universities. And they — and he — say experiments the past several years have proven the effectiveness of his "technology of the unified field," the idea that mass meditation can fix world problems.

One three-week gathering of 7,000 was held at the Iowa campus at the start of last year to give the world "a taste of utopia." And the group claims positive effects as specific as a rise in the U.S. stock market, decreased traffic fatalities in the United States, South Africa and Australia and fewer war deaths and injuries everywhere during that period. General effects included "increased confidence, optimism and economic prosperity" and "increased harmony in international affairs."

More recently, the group credits the work of several groups of 7,000 in India with restoring calm to that nation after the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Simply the presence of hundreds of practitioners in Washington has helped the economic revival in the United States the past two years, the maharishi said.

Transcendental Meditation was much discussed in the United States in the late 1960s, and many Americans still practice it for what they feel are its calming, stress-reducing effects.

Finance ministers agree to 'maintain order'

By CLIFF HAAS
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — The top finance officials from the five major industrial nations have agreed to intervene as needed to maintain order on world currency markets, which have been rocked by the record rise of the dollar in the past five years.

"We are willing to undertake coordinated intervention when we agree that it would be helpful," Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Thursday after a private day-long meeting that also included Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker and finance ministers, central bank governors and other officials from Japan, West Germany, France and Britain.

When finance officials speak of "intervention," they mean a government buying or selling a currency on foreign exchange markets to try to increase or lower the value of that currency.

The Reagan administration has been reluctant to intervene in currency markets, although such action frequently is taken by other governments.

"Massive, prolonged intervention does not work," Regan insisted, adding that the administration still believes that it should intervene only when markets are disorderly.

Government leaders around the world have expressed concern about the rise of the dollar, which is up almost 80 percent over the past five years.

Earlier this week, the dollar climbed to an all-time high against the currencies of Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Sweden and South Africa and to a 12-year high against the West German mark, a 13-year high against the Dutch guilder, a seven-year high against the Swiss franc and a two-year high against the Japanese yen.

Financial analysts have cited a combination of firm economic growth, a sharp slowing of inflation and political stability in the United States as reasons for the dollar's steady rise. In addition, high U.S. interest rates make dollar-denominated investments popular with traders worldwide.

The high value of the dollar compared to other currencies has decreased the cost of goods imported into the United States and allow other nations with high debts to ship more goods to U.S. markets.

Foreign demand for the dollar also has made it easier for the Treasury to borrow money in financial markets to finance huge federal budget deficits.

However, U.S. manufacturers have been hurt by the strong dollar because prices for their goods have been pushed too high for many foreign customers.

In addition, a rising dollar makes it more difficult for developing countries to make payments on their dollar loans. And other governments have felt compelled to keep their own interest rates high to discourage the flight of money to the United States. In many cases, foreign countries would prefer to have lower interest rates to encourage business development at home.

Regan — who will be swapping jobs with White House chief of staff James A. Baker III — said the group echoed a position on intervention taken by world leaders at the Williamsburg, Va., summit two years ago, and made it clear the reaffirmation was an important step.

In a joint statement released after Thursday's meeting, the finance officials also pledged their commitment to policies that promote non-inflationary, steady growth, and stressed the importance of removing structural rigidities in their economies. They added those steps would help promote sustained recovery, lower inflation, more jobs and more currency stability.

Reporter's 'fine' includes documentary

Associated Press

ROCKVILLE, Md. — A television reporter fined $500 after causing a fatal auto accident while intoxicated says he will prepare a documentary on the evils of drunken driving "to salvage soniething out of this."

Kelly Burke, a reporter for WRC-TV in Washington, received a suspended sentence Thursday for driving while under the influence of alcohol. Montgomery County Circuit Judge William Cave also placed Burke on two years' probation on the condition that he produce the documentary.

Burke's van crossed the center line of a Bethesda, Md., street July 1, slamming into a car and killing its driver, Dennis Lee Crouch, 32, of Poolesville.

Originally charged with homicide with a motor vehicle while intoxicated, Burke pleaded guilty to the drunken driving charge and failure to stay in the proper lane. Those charges were part of a plea bargain with prosecutors.

"I was surpised I didn't get jail time, but I was prepared to deal with whatever the judge's decision was," said Burke, who could have received up to 60 days in jail and a $1,000 fine.

"I'm not trying to seek sympathy. I'm just trying to channel this constructively to salvage life out of this. What else can I do," Burke said, explaining his request to make the documentary as an alternative sentence.

The judge's sentence was criticized by Crouch's widow, who is a Montgomery County police officer, and officials of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers.

"All the facts we heard today do not change the one thing I want to change: My husband Dennis is dead," a sobbing Sandra Crouch said at the sentencing.

Mrs. Crouch was eight months pregnant when her husband was killed.

Vigils planned at abortion clinics

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Alabama abortion counselor, whose clinic is one of more than two dozen planning overnight vigils this weekend, says she won't surrender to anti-abortion terrorism despite injuries she suffered during a protest.

Kathryn Wood, a counselor at the Women's Community Health Center in Huntsville, and others from clinics around the nation spoke Thursday in support of vigils planned by the National Organization for Women at 25 clinics in 18 states. The vigils, to begin tonight, come just before the 12th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

NOW says the overnight stays by women supporting the right to abortion will "signal our determination to stand up to the terrorists and the bullies" who bombed or burned nearly 30 clinics last year.

But some of the clinic workers also said the bomb throwers have taken their toll.

NATION

Ms. Wood, who says she underwent surgery for her injuries, told reporters of anonymous letters to her neighbors calling her a baby-killer and of bomb threats on her home. She told of her children being attacked at school by other children and being insulted by some of their teachers.

And she told of fear.

"The closer I get to the clinic in the morning, the more my heart races," she said. "We know we will be verbally assaulted as soon as we get out of our cars, called Nazis, murderers and baby killers. We are afraid..."

In mid-June, a Catholic priest entered Ms. Wood's clinic with red paint that he hoped to pour on surgical equipment used in abortions.

"I was afraid for our patients' lives, and tried to block his way," Ms. Wood said. "He threw me against a wall and I blacked out. Injuries to my neck have already required surgery.

"The psychological harassment has reached levels that are absolutely intolerable," said Judy Goldsmith, NOW president. When clinic workers and their patients are threatened, she said, "That is not free speech. That is illegal harassment."

Girl 'clinically dead' from being outside

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — A 3-year-old girl who was apparently put out of a car in freezing weather by her mother was clinically dead when she arrived at an emergency room, but within hours her temperature had climbed 30 degrees to normal, officials said.

Megan Birmingham's heartbeat was restored and her condition was upgraded from critical to serious, officials at Olathe Community Hospital said early today. Her body temperature had been raised from 68 degrees to 98 degrees.

"There was no heartbeat," said Dr. Robert C. Matthews. "She was absolutely colorless. Her eyes had glazed over. She was so stiff you couldn't even move her."

Officials said it would be days before they could say if the girl suffered permanent damage.

Megan was found unconscious Thursday morning in the snow, wearing only a dress, pullover shirt and tights. She had been alone outside for at least four hours in temperatures that reached a low of 23 degrees, Matthews said.

"When I got to her she was in a semi-frozen state," said Johnson County Deputy Donald Rutledge, who scanned roadside ditches with a searchlight for two hours before finding Megan.

Woman, dog sue Reagan to halt nuclear arms race

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A homeless dog and a woman who says she "doesn't want to see life on this planet wiped out" have sued President Reagan and members of his cabinet to stop the nuclear arms race.

Frances Tyson, 72, of Las Vegas, N.M., and Nanki-Poo, a homeless pup at the Las Vegas pound, filed their class-action lawsuit Jan. 9 in U.S. District Court. It contains Mrs. Tyson's signature and the dog's pawprint.

The suit does not seek damages, but calls for a halt to the production of nuclear arms and ask that Reagan order the prompt dismantling of existing weapons.

"I'm too old to get out and march so I just keep writing," Mrs. Tyson said.

The suit says the dog was included to symbolize the plant and animal life that would be destroyed in a nuclear war.

Teen allegedly shot parents

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — The 18-year-old son of a high school assistant principal faces charges he murdered both his parents with shotgun blasts to the heads, police said.

Johnnie Mac Trice II, 18, was held without bail Thursday on two counts of murder and possession of a firearm while committing a felony, police said. He was arrested Wednesday.

He is accused of shooting John and Alice Trice at their home on Friday night. Police Chief William Kohnke offered no motive for the slayings.

Knife-wielding youth shot

CHICAGO (AP) — An elderly man carrying an armful of groceries shot and seriously wounded a youth Thursday after being threatened at knifepoint, police said.

Two witnesses at the scene told police the man fired four shots after two youths tried to rob him at knifepoint on the city's west side, said Detective Philip Ducar.

The elderly man and the second youth fled the scene, Ducar said. The injured youth had been shot in the head and was not expected to live, Ducar said.

Hospital, doctor sued

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — A woman suing a hospital and a gynecologist for $2 million says she was "devastated" when she became pregnant after being raped because a hormone that was supposed to prevent the pregnancy didn't work.

The 33-year-old woman alleges that Dr. Julio C. Novoa prescribed the estrogen hormone Estrace in too small a dose to prevent the pregnancy, according to testimony Wednesday in Baltimore County Circuit court.

Her family and friends wanted her to have an abortion or put the child up for adoption because she is white and the rapist was black, and the child, now 2½, has biracial features, the woman testified.

Goetz statement taped

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernhard Goetz, who says he shot four youths on a subway after they asked him for $5, told police he would have kept firing but was "out of bullets" and wanted to gouge out the eyes of one youth, according to published reports.

The New York Post and the New York Daily News reported today that Goetz made the comments during a two-hour videotaped statement made shortly after his Dec. 31 surrender to New Hampshire police.

Good decision

Midland County Commissioners acted wisely earlier this week when they approved a request from a group of voters to delay the election on a proposed new jail for the county at least 90 days. The decision is to the advantage of both proponents and opponents of a new jail.

The jail question is a complex issue, spanning several years and a number of starkly different proposals ranging from the "jail stockade" proposed during the administration of former Sheriff Dallas Smith to a $12 million jail-courthouse expansion rejected by voters four-to-one in 1982 to the $9.9 million new jail package proposed by the commissioners and, until Tuesday, scheduled to be placed before voters Feb. 2.

After former commissioner Charlie Welch, speaking for Committee of Concerned Voters spokesman Bill Williams, asked commissioners to postpone the election to allow voters to be fully informed of the issues, commissioners agreed.

That's good because in the current climate surrounding bond proposals it would be foolish to call an election regarding an issue on which the electorate is not fully informed.

Only one aspect of the jail situation is clear at this time: Midland County Jail has been teetering on the brink of being ruled in violation of Texas Jail Commission standards for a couple of years now. Beyond that point, though, the story gets murkier. For example, voters obviously need to know what it will require to bring the jail into compliance? Can it be done more simply and with less expense than in some of the proposals offered so far? Are other options yet undisclosed available for consideration?

All those questions and many more need to be answered before the jail proposal is placed before voters. In recent years, voters have begun to scrutinize much more closely proposals for public spending. That's a good trend because the public needs to maintain control of how tax dollars are spent.

In choosing to delay the jail bond issue, commissioners have given both sides — proponents and opponents — an opportunity to render an invaluable service to the Midland County electorate. That's laudable because an informed electorate is an electorate that can render wise decisions at the polls.

Another View:

Relief for high court

In the chambers of the U.S. Supreme Court, says Chief Justice Warren Burger, a 70- or 80-hour week is commonplace. Despite those grueling hours, the nation's highest court hasn't kept up with its swelling caseload. The court is a victim of the litigation epidemic, and the chief justice thinks he has a cure. Unfortunately, some of his remedies could bring more harm than help to the court.

Burger's year-end report on the judiciary notes that the court's workload has nearly tripled in the last two decades, forcing the nine justices to work "beyond any sound maximum limits." The escalating caseload has reduced time available for reflection and opinion-writing, a situation which Burger says threatens the quality of the court's work.

To lessen that threat, Burger offers a number of proposals. Some, such as expanding the court's power to deny requests for review, would offer immediate relief. Other suggestions, such as working to solve the lower courts' caseload problems and hiring more federal judges, could eventually ease the high court's distress. But a few Burger proposals are more extreme — and less sound.

Burger urges the creation of a new federal court that would decide legal questions on which the country's 13 appeals courts have issued conflicting answers. The new sub-Supreme Court would free the nine justices from their obligation to resolve the many issues that divide the circuit courts. And Burger has another time-saving idea; adding to the high court a 10th justice, chosen by the chief to handle administrative matters.

But the Constitution calls for "one Supreme Court" at the pinnacle of the federal judiciary; the new tribunal envisioned by Burger would rule with finality on many crucial matters. The Constitution requires that Supreme Court justices be chosen by the president and confirmed by the Senate; Burger wants the power to appoint a 10th justice to manage the entire court. Both proposals would rob the nine current justices of the important power to decide which cases warrant their attention. Both could block avenues of relief now available to appellants. Both would remodel the court structure in ways that contradict the Constitution and this country's judicial tradition.

The unfortunate crowding in the halls of justice may be less a reason to tear down the walls than to rearrange the furniture. Justices already oversee clerks to whom they delegate a number of administrative tasks; perhaps they should hire and delegate more vigorously. And there are other ways to trim the workload, including Burger's sounder proposals. With imagination and congressional help, the high court should be able to slow its hectic pace without forsaking tradition — or the law.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 18, 1919, the World War I Peace Congress opened in Versailles, France.

In 1911, the first landing of an aircraft on a ship took place as pilot Eugene B. Ely brought his plane in for a safe landing on the deck of the USS Pennsylvania in San Francisco harbor.

In 1912, English explorer Robert Scott and his expedition reached the South Pole only to find that Roald Amundsen had beaten him to it. Scott and his party died during the return trip.

In 1943, during World War II, the Soviets announced they'd broken the long Nazi siege of Leningrad.

Also in 1943, a ban on the sale of pre-sliced bread went into effect for the duration of World War II in an effort to save on labor costs and steel cutting equipment.

In 1970, Mormon president David McKay died at the age of 96.

Ten years ago: The situation comedy "The Jeffersons" premiered on CBS.

Five years ago: The price of gold hit a record $845 an ounce in Europe.

One year ago: The president of the American University of Beirut, Malcolm H. Kerr, was killed by two gunmen as he walked to his office. A telephone caller claimed responsibility on behalf of the Islamic Holy War.

Today's birthdays: Actor Cary Grant is 81. Comedian-actor Danny Kaye is 72.

Thought for today: "Few men are admired by their servants." — Michel de Montaigne, French author (1533-1592).

Deadly winds missed AF One

WASHINGTON — This is the story of a disaster, heretofore unreported, that missed President Reagan by six minutes.

Jack Anderson

Air Force One, with the president aboard, landed at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington on the afternoon of Aug. 1, 1983. The weather was dry and northwest winds were blowing at 10 to 20 knots. The presidential party disembarked and headed for the White House without incident.

Six minutes later, the airfield was engulfed in the sudden fury of a "microburst," with winds gusting up to 120 knots. Microbursts are powerful downward blasts of air usually associated with thunderstorms. They are probably the deadliest weather phenomenon encountered by air travelers.

Microbursts are immediately followed by violent, horizontal gusts of air known as "wind shears." Planes landing or taking off are torn out of control by simultaneous head wind, tail wind and downdraft. Since 1970, this fatal combination has contributed to at least six crashes that killed a total of 440 people.

The Andrews AFB microburst was the strongest ever measured since government research began in 1978. While Air Force One escaped damage on the ground, the freak weather damaged a building on the base, three Air National Guard jets and an F-4 fighter sitting on the tarmac.

In a report presented to the Air Force and Rep. Elliott Levitas, D-Ga., Dr. Theodore Fujita, a University of Chicago meteorologist, described the incident as "a close call" for the president.

"At the present time," Fujita wrote in December 1983, "there is no means of detecting the Andrews AFB type of microburst in advance ...." All the airfield's weather station had picked up was a small thunderstorm moving in from the west.

Fujita "urgently" recommended installation of a Doppler-type microwave radar "at a strategic location in the Washington, D.C. area capable of scanning Andrews ... and the helicopter route between the White House and Andrews."

But to this day, there is no such warning device in place. A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman told my associate Tony Capaccio that it hasn't been installed because the Doppler technology "is in the research phase right now." He said he had seen it work in tests, and predicted it will be "the next breakthrough in radar technology."

The FAA's relaxed approach has drawn criticism in a draft staff report to the House Public Works investigative subcommittee. The report analyzes several years of the agency's promises to improve weather-hazard detection and warnings to pilots in the air. The report also assesses the FAA's research-and-development program as "more promise than delivery."

The staff concluded that "it will likely take years before ... the systems needed to observe microburst and wind shear, and alert pilots in a timely manner ... are implemented at airports."

The staff report noted that FAA officials testifying before the subcommittee in 1981 and 1983 promised the installation of systems then in the research stage, including microburst-detection equipment. "We found," the staff wrote, "that despite major expenditures in the past, the record fails to show significant improvements in weather-related aviation safety."

The FAA spokesman explained that the agency's procurement procedures are governed by safeguards that often cause delay by imposing "time lines" on development contracts.

In other words, the FAA bureaucrats are talking about contractual safeguards when they should be worrying about physical safeguards for the president of the United States and everyone else who flies.

FIGHTING THE FED: Treasury Secretary Donald Regan's move to the White House as the president's chief of staff is bad news for the haughty overlords of the Federal Reserve Board. Regan has been an outspoken critic of the Fed and its chairman, Paul Volcker, whom he has blamed for almost turning the economic recovery into another recession by keeping money tight and interest rates high.

Regan is now in a better position than ever to revive a White House plan to curb the pesky Fed's independence. There are many in Congress — and not just supply siders — who would welcome the opportunity to clip the condescending Fed chairman's wings.

RIPPLE EFFECT: Washington's large Ethiopian emigre population has spawned several small restaurants that specialize in the spicy, exotic cuisine of the homeland. The recent spate of news reports on Ethiopia's famine caused a temporary drop-off in business at one restaurant, the owner said, because the famine reports made people "nervous." Another Ethiopian restaurateur contributed a full night's receipts, more than $1,000, to famine relief.

An earlier effect of the decade of turmoil in Ethiopia was the cutoff of wine exports from the homeland. The unique Ethiopian honeyed wine is now imported from Canada, where it is made from recipes thousands of years old.

Sandinista raids carry message

WASHINGTON — A sudden increase in Sandinista raids across the Honduran border against contra supply bases carries this somber message: Leadership changes in the Senate and House Intelligence Committees have so undermined prospects of resuming U.S. support for the guerrilla fighters that Nicaragua need no longer fear them.

Rowland Evans

No foreign development since the election has so disturbed President Reagan's policy advisers as the increasing rhythm of new cross-border raids. Adding to their concern was the recent arrest in Honduras of a Moskito Indian leader in the fight to overthrow the pro-Soviet, Castro-backed regime in Managua. While low in military significance, these changes symbolize the diminished state of American credibility.

Robert Novak

Such symbolism portends political and military defeat in Nicaragua today and elsewhere in Central America tomorrow. That is because the Reagan administration's faulty efforts at covert warfare against the Sandinistas seem doomed by Capitol Hill intelligence oversight committees whose new leaders may bring far-reaching changes in U.S. intelligence. That is reason enough for the new Sandinista confidence.

Rep. Lee Hamilton, incoming House Intelligence Committee chairman, has never voted for CIA covert aid for the contras. In contrast to his predecessor, Rep. Edward Boland, he opposes on principle all covert CIA operations anywhere. Like his Senate counterpart, Sen. David Durenberger, Hamilton can veto any Nicaraguan policy set by CIA Director William Casey. Squeezing new contra money through Congress would be next to impossible if the committee chairmen want to block it.

Nevertheless, administration officials respect Democrat Hamilton. They have not given up finding some way of persuading him to let the president resume CIA backing for the contras, perhaps under a new cover.

But Durenberger, a Republican moderate, appears out of Reagan's reach. With his public attacks on Casey, the CIA and the Reagan administration, he looks like he is spoiling for a fight. Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole agreed to give Durenberger the Intelligence Committee chairmanship, even though conservative Republican senators warned that he was putting a hair-shirt on Reagan's back.

Durenberger's differences with the president over the correct policy toward Nicaragua are immense. If the Sandinista revolution had been allowed to develop without interference from Washington, he told us, "it would have been a democratic revolution," ending up with a pluralistic government hostile to communism. He said covert CIA aid to the contras is "dead today" and that although he would "put it up to the committee for another vote," Casey himself should be "campaigning against it."

Yet last fall when the Senate handily approved new funding, Durenberger himself voted for it. In a zigzag the previous spring, Durenberger led the fight to end the CIA's help for the contras. Furthermore, the senator told us he could well support overt military aid to overthrow the Sandinistas. But that would require the U.S. to withdraw recognition from the ruling regime and recognize the contras as the Nicaraguan government.

Apart from Nicaragua, Durenberger has instituted new rules for running his committee that have dismayed its new members from both parties — notably Democrats Ernest Hollings and David Boren and Republican Orrin Hatch.

Each member has had a "designated" staff aide of his own choice ever since the committee was established eight years ago. In the twilight zone of top-secret intelligence, no member could begin to keep abreast of the CIA without a trusted, full-time staffer. Durenberger wants to end that and centralize control in himself and the Democratic vice chairman, Sen. Pat Leahy, a demonstrative foe of the anti-Sandinista program. The new, centralized staff will also be responsible to him and Leahy.

That suggests major uncertainty ahead for the congressional oversight role, for the CIA and for the president's still-flickering hope to revive the fight against the Sandinistas. Durenberger has shown a desire to revolutionize the Senate Intelligence Committee as a step toward a new, major "reform" of the CIA. Doing in the contras is the first step in that process, despite the consequences for Central America.

Protect unborn

K.P. Walker, your compassion for unborn babies is overwhelming at best. Your opinions make me very ill. How dare you!

Tell me, if an unborn baby is not human, then why does it experience pain? I saw a televised abortion on the 700 Club. Before that, I had abortion reasoned out into three circumstances — rape, incest, and Downs' Syndrome. What a hypocrite I was. But, seeing that film, I knew I could only see its use in cases of incest.

A baby will fight in every way possible to escape the abortionist's tools. I saw one do such a thing before the abortionist killed it. To fight for life in such a way indicates to me that not only is the child alive, but also possessing a soul.

Do you know what these people are doing to the babies that are left intact? They are testing them to see if they react to painful stimulus. They do this by sticking the babe with a needle while it is dying. Don't you think this is cruelty beyond what is necessary? Trust me when I tell you the babe will respond quite well. It definitely feels pain. Nobody, and I mean nobody deserves to die in that manner.

Mr. Walker, do you have any idea how abortions are performed? I gladly will fill you in.

1. The suction method: A hose is used to go into the womb and suck the baby out. This method will rip the child to pieces.

2. Saline method: Saline is injected into the child's body, thus burning it to death from the inside out. The mother will go into labor and deliver a dead baby.

3. The physician goes into the woman's womb with a scapel and cuts the baby to bits.

Mr. Walker, how would you like to die like this?

As to your challenge to P4, nobody owns a woman's body, but we are all accountable to the Lord for our actions. Also I would like to ask you to read Matthew 19:14. Do you think Jesus really cares if the child is born or unborn? And in the Psalms 127 and 128 the Lord says children are a blessing and one should take pride and joy in their children and it also says may you live to enjoy your grandchildren.

We humans dispute the Lord's word 1.4 million times a year in the United States of America — the country where human rights are such a big issue. Americans are only concerned about human rights off our soil. We don't give a flip about human rights unless it is to point an accusing finger at some other country about the way the people are treated on their soil.

Charity begins at home. And there is damn little of it to go around for the defenseless unborn children at home.

Group runs into 'brick walls'

The Grayson County Right to Life Organization first learned of Mary Evelyn Mosquedo on Dec. 13 when a story ran in their local paper. She is the little 5-year-old girl from Odessa, a ward of Ector County, who desperately needs a liver transplant.

Ector County Commissioners voted 4-1 against paying previous hospital bills related to her first transplant in June of 1984. The Right to Life group agreed with Mary's caseworker, Ms. Connally, that since Mary is a ward of the county, she is also a ward of the state.

Members of the group immediately set up a trust account in Mary's name and put up posters/donation canisters in many local businesses, but they ran into brick walls when they contacted TV stations and politicians. According to a group spokeswoman, Mrs. Jeanene Clarke, "All we wanted any of them to do was help us publicize the fact the private donations were being accepted and where they could be sent, but instead we were told by one of Governor White's aides, 'we shouldn't bother him with it at this time', a White House staff person referred us to a liaison agency, a Dallas TV station told us 'liver transplants are old news,' and a local TV station said 'since Mary lives in Mineral Wells with her foster parents and our group is based here in Sherman, they couldn't find a way to tie the story together and make it newsworthy'."

It's a shame that these people are willing to play a "waiting game" with this child's life and that good deeds are no longer considered newsworthy. I wonder if they would have the same attitude if this were their child or if Mary were a blonde-haired, blue-eyed child?

Anyone wanting to make a donation can do so through: First National Bank, 500 Sam Rayburn Frwy, Sherman, TX. 75090 or American Liver Transplant Fund, 998 Pompton Ave., Cedar Grove, N.J. 07009, if they wish it to be tax-deductible.

Average American has diet too high in protein

Dear Dr. Solomon: Would you recommend additional protein or a protein supplement for a college basketball player? I want to improve my performance but I'm not stupid enough to use drugs. — Casey, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear Casey: The average American has a diet that is higher in protein than is actually needed. Rather than increasing your intake of protein, I would recommend a well-balanced diet and a sound training program.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Can a person who has a particular food allergy ever reach the point where he is able to eat that food? — James, Coatesville, Pa.

Dear James: According to Dr. William H. Wilson, of Denver, many food allergies can be overcome if the food is eliminated from the diet for about nine months and then gradually introduced once more. However, these patients are likely to have a reaction if they eat the food too often.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is there any new information about whether some things are added to food can make a child hyperactive? There was a big argument about this some time back, but I don't remember having seen anything about it recently. Most of the stories I've read in the past favored both sides of the question. — Mrs. D.W., Troy, N.Y.

Dear Mrs. W.: Dr. Harvey Singer, of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine in Baltimore, makes a similar point, and that is that there have been studies that support both sides of the argument. He notes, however, that these studies have not been scientifically sound. They involved only small groups of children, and those that were studied were exposed to food additives in varying degrees. This does not permit valid conclusions to be drawn.

Dr. Singer concludes that there may be a small group of children whose hyperactivity is caused by artificial food additives, such as synthetic flavorings and colorings. What are still lacking, however, are carefully controlled studies that can prove this theory to be true or false.

Controversy about the role of food additives in the development of hyperactivity in children will continue to exit until such scientificaly valid studies are carried out.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What's the story on whether stress can cause ulcers? I've read different things and they all seem to contradict each other. I know that when I'm under pressure on my job, my stomach seems to tighten up, and I would be surprised if it did not cause ulcers. — Rex, Detroit

Dear Rex: Different studies have arrived at different conclusions about the role of emotional stress in the development of ulcers. The fact is that stress is difficult to measure, and different people react to the same degree of stress in their own individual fashions.

There can be nothing more stressful than a combat situation, yet not everyone who takes part in combat develops an ulcer. It appears that a definitive answer to your question will have to await additional research on the subject.

Dear Dr. Solomon: You may have written about this before, but if you did, I missed it. I would like to know why an athlete who injures a knee or an ankle puts ice on the injury instead of a heating pad. Also, why do some athletes, especially baseball pitchers, put ice on their arms after they leave the game? — Douglas, Hoboken, N.J.

Dear Douglas: According to Dr. Paul Bauer, director of the Sports Medicine Orthopedic Medical Group in San Diego, ice reduces swelling, pain and inflamation; encourages healing; and increases motion. Heat would have the reverse effect.

Baseball pitchers apply ice to their arms after a game to prevent inflammation.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My nephew has a habit of holding his breath when he becomes angry. Can this cause damage to the brain? — Ms. D.S., Huntsville, Ala.

Dear Ms. S.: Dr. Samuel A. Shelburne, Jr., of the George Washington University School of Medicine in Washington, D.C., notes that children may hold their breath for more than 30 seconds and may do so several times a day, and yet not experience any brain damage.

Neil Solomon, M.D., is a columnist for Los Angeles Times Syndicate. If you have a medical question, write Dr. Solomon at 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon will not give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.

Copper town now ghost town

SILVER BELL, Ariz. (AP) — It was once one of the state's thriving copper towns. But now, Silver City is Arizona's newest ghost town.

Bruce Malone, manager of the nearly defunct ASARCO Silver Bell Mine that for years had been the economic backbone of this little community, said the last family moved out last week.

"That's it. The town's slowly disappearing," he said. "We've sold off the remaining houses and they're being hauled away. Everyone's gone."

In the heyday of copper mining 30 years ago, there were 800 people living in 175 company houses near the mine site in a range of rugged desert mountains 40 miles northwest of Tucson.

There were stores, recreation buildings, ball fields, a post office, a barber shop, a swimming pool. Men and women planted trees, put in gardens, raised families. Silver Bell was home.

In the early 1980s, everything changed.

The bottom fell out of the copper market. The mine cut production. Miners were laid off. Once or twice, things seemed to improve. Men were rehired. But then prices plummeted further, and last summer ASARCO all but shut down the operation by laying off 169 mine employees.

Now, Malone said only 27 workers remain on the payroll and none lives here.

"These are people who are working in the leaching operation (a process for recovering low-grade copper from ore), and they all live in Avra Valley or Tucson," he said. "There are only 48 houses physically left in town. They've all been purchased and they'll be hauled away."

Good decision

Midland County Commissioners acted wisely earlier this week when they approved a request from a group of voters to delay the election on a proposed new jail for the county at least 90 days. The decision is to the advantage of both proponents and opponents of a new jail.

The jail question is a complex issue, spanning several years and a number of starkly different proposals ranging from the "jail stockade" proposed during the administration of former Sheriff Dallas Smith to a $12 million jail-courthouse expansion rejected by voters four-to-one in 1982 to the $9.9 million new jail package proposed by the commissioners and, until Tuesday, scheduled to be placed before voters Feb. 2.

After former commissioner Charlie Welch, speaking for Committee of Concerned Voters spokesman Bill Williams, asked commissioners to postpone the election to allow voters to be fully informed of the issues, commissioners agreed.

That's good because in the current climate surrounding bond proposals it would be foolish to call an election regarding an issue on which the electorate is not fully informed.

Only one aspect of the jail situation is clear at this time: Midland County Jail has been teetering on the brink of being ruled in violation of Texas Jail Commission standards for a couple of years now. Beyond that point, though, the story gets murkier. For example, voters obviously need to know what it will require to bring the jail into compliance? Can it be done more simply and with less expense than in some of the proposals offered so far? Are other options yet undisclosed available for consideration?

All those questions and many more need to be answered before the jail proposal is placed before voters. In recent years, voters have begun to scrutinize much more closely proposals for public spending. That's a good trend because the public needs to maintain control of how tax dollars are spent.

In choosing to delay the jail bond issue, commissioners have given both sides — proponents and opponents — an opportunity to render an invaluable service to the Midland County electorate. That's laudable because an informed electorate is an electorate that can render wise decisions at the polls.

Another View:

Relief for high court

In the chambers of the U.S. Supreme Court, says Chief Justice Warren Burger, a 70- or 80-hour week is commonplace. Despite those grueling hours, the nation's highest court hasn't kept up with its swelling caseload. The court is a victim of the litigation epidemic, and the chief justice thinks he has a cure. Unfortunately, some of his remedies could bring more harm than help to the court.

Burger's year-end report on the judiciary notes that the court's workload has nearly tripled in the last two decades, forcing the nine justices to work "beyond any sound maximum limits." The escalating caseload has reduced time available for reflection and opinion-writing, a situation which Burger says threatens the quality of the court's work.

To lessen that threat, Burger offers a number of proposals. Some, such as expanding the court's power to deny requests for review, would offer immediate relief. Other suggestions, such as working to solve the lower courts' caseload problems and hiring more federal judges, could eventually ease the high court's distress. But a few Burger proposals are more extreme — and less sound.

Burger urges the creation of a new federal court that would decide legal questions on which the country's 13 appeals courts have issued conflicting answers. The new sub-Supreme Court would free the nine justices from their obligation to resolve the many issues that divide the circuit courts. And Burger has another time-saving idea; adding to the high court a 10th justice, chosen by the chief to handle administrative matters.

But the Constitution calls for "one Supreme Court" at the pinnacle of the federal judiciary; the new tribunal envisioned by Burger would rule with finality on many crucial matters. The Constitution requires that Supreme Court justices be chosen by the president and confirmed by the Senate; Burger wants the power to appoint a 10th justice to manage the entire court. Both proposals would rob the nine current justices of the important power to decide which cases warrant their attention. Both could block avenues of relief now available to appellants. Both would remodel the court structure in ways that contradict the Constitution and this country's judicial tradition.

The unfortunate crowding in the halls of justice may be less a reason to tear down the walls than to rearrange the furniture. Justices already oversee clerks to whom they delegate a number of administrative tasks; perhaps they should hire and delegate more vigorously. And there are other ways to trim the workload, including Burger's sounder proposals. With imagination and congressional help, the high court should be able to slow its hectic pace without forsaking tradition — or the law.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 18, 1919, the World War I Peace Congress opened in Versailles, France.

In 1911, the first landing of an aircraft on a ship took place as pilot Eugene B. Ely brought his plane in for a safe landing on the deck of the USS Pennsylvania in San Francisco harbor.

In 1912, English explorer Robert Scott and his expedition reached the South Pole only to find that Roald Amundsen had beaten him to it. Scott and his party died during the return trip.

In 1943, during World War II, the Soviets announced they'd broken the long Nazi siege of Leningrad.

Also in 1943, a ban on the sale of pre-sliced bread went into effect for the duration of World War II in an effort to save on labor costs and steel cutting equipment.

In 1970, Mormon president David McKay died at the age of 96.

Ten years ago: The situation comedy "The Jeffersons" premiered on CBS.

Five years ago: The price of gold hit a record $845 an ounce in Europe.

One year ago: The president of the American University of Beirut, Malcolm H. Kerr, was killed by two gunmen as he walked to his office. A telephone caller claimed responsibility on behalf of the Islamic Holy War.

Today's birthdays: Actor Cary Grant is 81. Comedian-actor Danny Kaye is 72.

Thought for today: "Few men are admired by their servants." — Michel de Montaigne, French author (1533-1592).

Deadly winds missed AF One

WASHINGTON — This is the story of a disaster, heretofore unreported, that missed President Reagan by six minutes.

Jack Anderson

Air Force One, with the president aboard, landed at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington on the afternoon of Aug. 1, 1983. The weather was dry and northwest winds were blowing at 10 to 20 knots. The presidential party disembarked and headed for the White House without incident.

Six minutes later, the airfield was engulfed in the sudden fury of a "microburst," with winds gusting up to 120 knots. Microbursts are powerful downward blasts of air usually associated with thunderstorms. They are probably the deadliest weather phenomenon encountered by air travelers.

Microbursts are immediately followed by violent, horizontal gusts of air known as "wind shears." Planes landing or taking off are torn out of control by simultaneous head wind, tail wind and downdraft. Since 1970, this fatal combination has contributed to at least six crashes that killed a total of 440 people.

The Andrews AFB microburst was the strongest ever measured since government research began in 1978. While Air Force One escaped damage on the ground, the freak weather damaged a building on the base, three Air National Guard jets and an F-4 fighter sitting on the tarmac.

In a report presented to the Air Force and Rep. Elliott Levitas, D-Ga., Dr. Theodore Fujita, a University of Chicago meteorologist, described the incident as "a close call" for the president.

"At the present time," Fujita wrote in December 1983, "there is no means of detecting the Andrews AFB type of microburst in advance ...." All the airfield's weather station had picked up was a small thunderstorm moving in from the west.

Fujita "urgently" recommended installation of a Doppler-type microwave radar "at a strategic location in the Washington, D.C. area capable of scanning Andrews ... and the helicopter route between the White House and Andrews."

But to this day, there is no such warning device in place. A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman told my associate Tony Capaccio that it hasn't been installed because the Doppler technology "is in the research phase right now." He said he had seen it work in tests, and predicted it will be "the next breakthrough in radar technology."

The FAA's relaxed approach has drawn criticism in a draft staff report to the House Public Works investigative subcommittee. The report analyzes several years of the agency's promises to improve weather-hazard detection and warnings to pilots in the air. The report also assesses the FAA's research-and-development program as "more promise than delivery."

The staff concluded that "it will likely take years before ... the systems needed to observe microburst and wind shear, and alert pilots in a timely manner ... are implemented at airports."

The staff report noted that FAA officials testifying before the subcommittee in 1981 and 1983 promised the installation of systems then in the research stage, including microburst-detection equipment. "We found," the staff wrote, "that despite major expenditures in the past, the record fails to show significant improvements in weather-related aviation safety."

The FAA spokesman explained that the agency's procurement procedures are governed by safeguards that often cause delay by imposing "time lines" on development contracts.

In other words, the FAA bureaucrats are talking about contractual safeguards when they should be worrying about physical safeguards for the president of the United States and everyone else who flies.

FIGHTING THE FED: Treasury Secretary Donald Regan's move to the White House as the president's chief of staff is bad news for the haughty overlords of the Federal Reserve Board. Regan has been an outspoken critic of the Fed and its chairman, Paul Volcker, whom he has blamed for almost turning the economic recovery into another recession by keeping money tight and interest rates high.

Regan is now in a better position than ever to revive a White House plan to curb the pesky Fed's independence. There are many in Congress — and not just supply siders — who would welcome the opportunity to clip the condescending Fed chairman's wings.

RIPPLE EFFECT: Washington's large Ethiopian emigre population has spawned several small restaurants that specialize in the spicy, exotic cuisine of the homeland. The recent spate of news reports on Ethiopia's famine caused a temporary drop-off in business at one restaurant, the owner said, because the famine reports made people "nervous." Another Ethiopian restaurateur contributed a full night's receipts, more than $1,000, to famine relief.

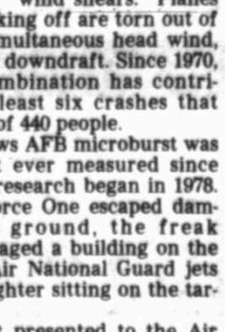

An earlier effect of the decade of turmoil in Ethiopia was the cutoff of wine exports from the homeland. The unique Ethiopian honeyed wine is now imported from Canada, where it is made from recipes thousands of years old.

Sandinista raids carry message

WASHINGTON — A sudden increase in Sandinista raids across the Honduran border against contra supply bases carries this somber message: Leadership changes in the Senate and House Intelligence Committees have so undermined prospects of resuming U.S. support for the guerrilla fighters that Nicaragua need no longer fear them.

Rowland Evans

No foreign development since the election has so disturbed President Reagan's policy advisers as the increasing rhythm of new cross-border raids. Adding to their concern was the recent arrest in Honduras of a Moskito Indian leader in the fight to overthrow the pro-Soviet, Castro-backed regime in Managua. While low in military significance, these changes symbolize the diminished state of American credibility.

Robert Novak

Such symbolism portends political and military defeat in Nicaragua today and elsewhere in Central America tomorrow. That is because the Reagan administration's faulty efforts at covert warfare against the Sandinistas seem doomed by Capitol Hill intelligence oversight committees whose new leaders may bring far-reaching changes in U.S. intelligence. That is reason enough for the new Sandinista confidence.

Rep. Lee Hamilton, incoming House Intelligence Committee chairman, has never voted for CIA covert aid for the contras. In contrast to his predecessor, Rep. Edward Boland, he opposes on principle all covert CIA operations anywhere. Like his Senate counterpart, Sen. David Durenberger, Hamilton can veto any Nicaraguan policy set by CIA Director William Casey. Squeezing new contra money through Congress would be next to impossible if the committee chairmen want to block it.

Nevertheless, administration officials respect Democrat Hamilton. They have not given up finding some way of persuading him to let the president resume CIA backing for the contras, perhaps under a new cover.

But Durenberger, a Republican moderate, appears out of Reagan's reach. With his public attacks on Casey, the CIA and the Reagan administration, he looks like he is spoiling for a fight. Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole agreed to give Durenberger the Intelligence Committee chairmanship, even though conservative Republican senators warned that he was putting a hair-shirt on Reagan's back.

Durenberger's differences with the president over the correct policy toward Nicaragua are immense. If the Sandinista revolution had been allowed to develop without interference from Washington, he told us, "it would have been a democratic revolution," ending up with a pluralistic government hostile to communism. He said covert CIA aid to the contras is "dead today" and [illegible] although he would "put it up to the committee for another vote." [illegible] himself should be "[illegible] against it."

Yet last fall when the Senate handily approved new funding, Durenberger himself voted for it. In a zigzag the previous spring, Durenberger led the fight to end the CIA's help for the contras. Furthermore, the senator told us he could well support overt military aid to overthrow the Sandinistas. But that would require the U.S. to withdraw recognition from the ruling regime and recognize the contras as the Nicaraguan government.

Apart from Nicaragua, Durenberger has instituted new rules for running his committee that have dismayed its new members from both parties — notably Democrats Ernest Hollings and David Boren and Republican Orrin Hatch.

Each member has had a "designated" staff aide of his own choice ever since the committee was established eight years ago. In the twilight zone of top-secret intelligence, no member could begin to keep abreast of the CIA without a trusted, full-time staffer. Durenberger wants to end that and centralize control in himself and the Democratic vice chairman, Sen. Pat Leahy, a demonstrative foe of the anti-Sandinista program. The new, centralized staff will also be responsible to him and Leahy.

That suggests major uncert[illegible] ahead for the congres[illegible] sight role, for the CIA [illegible] president's still-[illegible] revive the fight [illegible] istas. Duren[illegible] desire to [illegible]

Protect unborn

K.P. Walker, your compassion for unborn babies is overwhelming at best. Your opinions make me very ill. How dare you!

Tell me, if an unborn baby is not human, then why does it experience pain? I saw a televised abortion on the 700 Club. Before that, I had abortion reasoned out into three circumstances — rape, incest, and Downs' Syndrome. What a hypocrite I was. But, seeing that film, I knew I could only see its use in cases of incest.

A baby will fight in every way possible to escape the abortionist's tools. I saw one do such a thing before the abortionist killed it. To fight for life in such a way indicates to me that not only is the child alive, but also possessing a soul.

Do you know what these people are doing to the babies that are left intact? They are testing them to see if they react to painful stimulus. They do this by sticking the babe with a needle while it is dying. Don't you think this is cruelty beyond what is necessary? Trust me when I tell you the babe will respond quite well. It definitely feels pain. Nobody, and I mean nobody deserves to die in that manner.

Mr. Walker, do you have any idea how abortions are performed? I gladly will fill you in.

1. The suction method: A hose is used to go into the womb and suck the baby out. This method will rip the child to pieces.

2. Saline method: Saline is injected into the child's body, thus burning it to death from the inside out. The mother will go into labor and deliver a dead baby.

3. The physician goes into the woman's womb with a scapel and cuts the baby to bits.

Mr. Walker, how would you like to die like this?

As to your challenge to P4, nobody owns a woman's body, but we are all accountable to the Lord for our actions. Also I would like to ask you to read Matthew 19:14. Do you think Jesus really cares if the child is born or unborn? And in the Psalms 127 and 128 the Lord says children are a blessing and one should take pride and joy in their children and it also says may you live to enjoy your grandchildren.

We humans dispute the Lord's word 1.4 million times a year in the United States of America — the country where human rights are such a big issue. Americans are only concerned about human rights off our soil. We don't give a flip about human rights unless it is to point an accusing finger at some other country about the way the people are treated on their soil.

Charity begins at home. And there is damn little of it to go around for the defenseless unborn children at home.

Group runs into 'brick walls'

The Grayson County Right to Life Organization first learned of Mary Evelyn Mosquedo on Dec. 13 when a story ran in their local paper. She is the little 5-year-old girl from Odessa, a ward of Ector County, who desperately needs a liver transplant.

Ector County Commissioners voted 4-1 against paying previous hospital bills related to her first transplant in June of 1984. The Right to Life group agreed with Mary's caseworker, Ms. Connally, that since Mary is a ward of the county, she is also a ward of the state.

Members of the group immediately set up a trust account in Mary's name and put up posters/donation canisters in many local businesses, but they ran into brick walls when they contacted TV stations and politicians. According to a group spokeswoman, Mrs. Jeanene Clarke, "All we wanted any of them to do was help us publicize the fact the private donations were being accepted and where they could be sent, but instead we were told by one of Governor White's aides, 'we shouldn't bother him with it at this time', a White House staff person referred us to a liaison agency, a Dallas TV station told us 'liver transplants are old news,' and a local TV station said 'since Mary lives in Mineral Wells with her foster parents and our group is based here in Sherman, they couldn't find a way to tie the story together and make it newsworthy'."

It's a shame that these people are willing to play a "waiting game" with this child's life and that good deeds are no longer considered newsworthy. I wonder if they would have the same attitude if this were their child or if Mary were a blonde-haired, blue-eyed child?

Average American has diet too high in protein

Dear Dr. Solomon: Would you recommend additional protein or a protein supplement for a college basketball player? I want to improve my performance but I'm not stupid enough to use drugs. — Casey, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear Casey: The average American has a diet that is higher in protein than is actually needed. Rather than increasing your intake of protein, I would recommend a well-balanced diet and a sound training program.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Can a person who has a particular food allergy ever reach the point where he is able to eat that food? — James, Coatesville, Pa.

Dear James: According to Dr. William H. Wilson, of Denver, many food allergies can be overcome if the food is eliminated from the diet for about nine months and then gradually introduced once more. However, these patients are likely to have a reaction if they eat the food too often.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is there any new information about whether some things are added to food can make a child hyperactive? There was a big argument about this some time back, but I don't remember having seen anything about it recently. Most of the stories I've read in the past favored both sides of the question. — Mrs. D.W., Troy, N.Y.

Dear Mrs. W.: Dr. Harvey Singer, of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine in Baltimore, makes a similar point, and that is that there have been studies that support both sides of the argument. He notes, however, that these studies have not been scientifically sound. They involved only small groups of children, and those that were studied were exposed to food additives in varying degrees. This does not permit valid conclusions to be drawn.

Dr. Singer concludes that there may be a small group of children whose hyperactivity is caused by artificial food additives, such as synthetic flavorings and colorings. What are still lacking, however, are carefully controlled studies that can prove this theory to be true or false.

Controversy about the role of food additives in the development of hyperactivity in children will continue to exit until such scientificaly valid studies are carried out.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What's the story on whether stress can cause ulcers? I've read different things and they all seem to contradict each other. I know that when I'm under pressure on my job, my stomach seems to tighten up, and I would be surprised if it did not cause ulcers. — Rex, Detroit

Dear Rex: Different studies have arrived at different conclusions about the role of emotional stress in the development of ulcers. The fact is that stress is difficult to measure, and different people react to the same degree of stress in their own individual fashions.

There can be nothing more stressful than a combat situation, yet not everyone who takes part in combat develops an ulcer. It appears that a definitive answer to your question will have to await additional research on the subject.

Dear Dr. Solomon: You may have written about this before, but if you did, I missed it. I would like to know why an athlete who injures a knee or an ankle puts ice on the injury instead of a heating pad. Also, why do some athletes, especially baseball pitchers, put ice on their arms after they leave the game? — Douglas, Hoboken, N.J.

Dear Douglas: According to Dr. Paul Bauer, director of the Sports Medicine Orthopedic Medical Group in San Diego, ice reduces swelling, pain and inflamation; encourages healing; and increases motion. Heat would have the reverse effect.

Baseball pitchers apply ice to their arms after a game to prevent inflammation.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My nephew has a habit of holding his breath when he becomes angry. Can this cause damage to the brain? — Ms. D.S., Huntsville, Ala.

Dear Ms. S.: Dr. Samuel A. Shelburne, Jr., of the George Washington University School of Medicine in Washington, D.C., notes that children may hold their breath for more than 30 seconds and may do so several times a day, and yet not experience any brain damage.

Copper town now ghost town

SILVER BELL, Ariz. (AP) — It was once one of the state's thriving copper towns. But now, Silver City is Arizona's newest ghost town.

Bruce Malone, manager of the nearly defunct ASARCO Silver Bell Mine that for years had been the economic backbone of this little community, said the last family moved out last week.

"That's it. The town's slowly disappearing," he said. "We've sold off the remaining houses and they're being hauled away. Everyone's gone."

In the heyday of copper mining 30 years ago, there were 800 people living in 175 company houses near the mine site in a range of rugged desert mountains 40 miles northwest of Tucson.

There were stores, recreation buildings, ball fields, a post office, a barber shop, a swimming pool. Men and women planted trees, put in gardens, raised families. Silver Bell was home.

In the early 1980s, everything changed.

The bottom fell out of the copper market. The mine cut production. Miners were laid off. Once or twice, things seemed to improve. Men were rehired. But then prices plummeted further, and last summer ASARCO all but shut down the operation by laying off 169 mine employees.

Now, Malone said only 27 workers remain on the payroll and none lives here.

"These are people who are working in the leaching operation (a process for recovering low-grade copper from ore), and they all live in Avra Valley or Tucson," he said. "There are only 48 houses physically left in town. They've all been purchased and they'll be hauled away."

Ex-brick maker's clay figures on exhibit

HOUSTON (AP) — Retired brick maker Jose Varela sat on the edge of his bed at the Hyatt Regency hotel, munching on a Big Mac hamburger. He sipped on a Coke. He smiled a crooked smile as friends and relatives distributed food and chatted excitedly in English and Spanish.

But Varela, dressed in his best suit, was oblivious to the confusion.

He had just driven in a family caravan from San Antonio to Houston to attend his very first art opening — and the work on exhibit was his.

"I am happy," said the 77-year-old Varela, who was born in Mexico and speaks only limited English. "It is all right."

And that is almost all Varela said as his daughter, Ofilia Varela-Kindley, told his story.

As a child Varela immigrated to Texas with his family. At school, he was expected to adjust to a new language, American traditions, new values. But the Anglo community was often hostile and unwelcoming. In the Varela home, they clung to the old ways, the Mexican traditions.

Out of repect for those old customs, Varela's older brother, Simon, learned how to make clay figures in a way that had been handed down from generation to generation since pre-Columbian times.

Simon, a worker in a brick factory near his home, taught his younger brother how to fashion small figures out of Texas clay, fire them amid the brick in the industrial kilns and paint them in vivid primary colors.

Together the Varelas made "retratos," portrait busts of family and religious icons for their church and home.

But in those days Simon was the artist in the family, not Jose. After only a year in South Texas, Varela made another move with his parents — this time to California. And when it came time for him to start contributing to the family funds, he joined the men in his family, who were working as migrant workers, in the fields.

In time, Varela married, and he and his wife had a baby daughter. The ceramics became a part of Varela's past.

But in 1952, three members of the Varela family, including Simon, died. Varela moved his little family back to his old community near San Antonio. To support them, Varela began work in the brick factory. And out of love for the family he had lost, he took up ceramics.

Daring dog saves owner from hog

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — When Burnie Wilson was staring into the face of an angry 600-pound hog, he relied on a little help from man's best friend. And the help Wilson got from his German shepherd, Lady, has earned the dog special recognition.

Lady is one of nine finalists in the Ken-L Ration Dog Hero of the Year program.

Dig reveals new data about Custer's attack

BOSTON (AP) — Custer buffs have argued for a century about the firepower of the Indians, the bravery of the cavalry and other details of the Battle of Little Bighorn, but an archaeological dig has finally turned up some solid facts for historians to ponder.

"The historical record has been literally opinion and speculation based on no fact — in the sense of archaeological data — at all," said Douglas D. Scott. "Until a fire occurred in August of 1983 and burned the dense Montana sagebrush and grass off, there was no way to do an archaeological project, because you couldn't see the ground."

Last May and June, Scott, a National Park Service archaeologist, took advantage of the fire to lead an excavation of ammunition, rifles, bones and other remnants of war in an effort to piece together just what happened.

The data that emerge won't force a wholesale rewrite of history. But they do shake up some assumptions about what occurred during that bloody 90-minute encounter on June 25, 1876, when Lt. Col. George Armstrong Custer led about 220 soldiers to their deaths.

A popular belief, though not necessarily one shared by historians, is that the Indians led an undisciplined swarming assault on the vastly outnumbered soldiers.

In fact, says Scott, the research has turned up six positions where the Indians took cover in the grass and surrounded Custer's men.

"There has been an assumption that the Indians just rushed in there en masse, the old Errol Flynn image of war-bonneted savages defending their territory," he said.

Instead, it appears that the Indians cautiously crouched and picked off the soldiers, thinning their ranks before rushing in and killing all who remained.

"It certainly goes against the popular myth," he said.

Scott, who outlined his findings recently at a meeting of the Society for Historical Archaeology, said another widely held assumption disputed by the new data is the idea that the Indians were poorly armed with old, outdated firearms.

"We're certainly going to change some interpretations there," Scott said. "The Indians were much better armed than previously thought."

During the dig, 117 Indian weapons were found. They carried 25 kinds of firearms, and 60 of these were the most modern lever-action rifles, such as Winchesters and Henrys.

Based on an assumption that they found one-third of the Indian weapons, Scott theorized that the Indians carried at least 350 firearms into battle.

The location of soldiers' cartridge cases and other gear around their bodies gives some hint about how they fought in their dying moments, Scott said.

"My feeling is, based on the artifact pattern, that the men must have fairly well held their positions," he said. "I suspect that when their position was untenable at one location and there was still fighting going on elsewhere, they did get back to their other comrades, but eventually they were overwhelmed."

What the research won't reveal, however, is what was running through Custer's mind when he took on the Indians. Custer was under orders to punish Indians who had left their reservations in search of food.

However, he badly underestimated the size of an Indian camp he saw at a distance when he arrived with a regiment of about 600 men. Custer divided his men into three columns and attacked. But it turned out that the camp contained between 1,500 and 4,000 warriors. Custer and all the men in his column were killed.

Falling down correctly on the job isn't easy

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Silly as it sounds, falling down isn't easy. At least not if you want to do it right.

With that in mind, Postmaster Robert Walsh invited a New York Islanders hockey star to talk to his troops.

It occurred to Walsh that hockey players and mail carriers have one thing in common. They fall down on ice a lot.

He also noticed that when hockey players fall, they tend not to get hurt. But 26 mail carriers in the Hicksville postal district were laid up by ice accidents last year.

So Walsh invited Bobby Nystrom, the Islanders' right wing, to teach the mail carriers how to fall at the Farmingdale post office.

Armageddon: Quarter-mile of fire power

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland's Ron Van Meter has a set of wheels that spurts out smoke and fire, but it's no clunker.

You won't find Van Meter driving down Midland streets with this model. Just the name of his car should give you an indication of what to expect. He calls it "Armageddon."

Armageddon is a jet dragster that has turned in 278 miles per hour in 6.24 seconds over a quarter-mile course. Now that's getting from one red light to the other before the blink of an eye.

Van Meter has completed his first exhibition season with Armageddon, hitting stops in Phoenix, Oklahoma City, Albuquerque, Salt Lake City, Calgary (Canada), Mexico City and stops in Texas, including Penwell, Twin Cities Raceway and San Angelo.

And now Van Meter is looking at a second exhibition season in one of racing's most exotic dragsters. There are only 18 jet dragsters in the world.

"It's an elite group to say the least," says Van Meter. "We travel to race tracks all over, mainly for exhibitions. If another jet is around, we give an exhibition race.

"Race fans just naturally love the jets because of the power. We have smoke and fire shows that are awesome and then the runs over 250 m.p.h. are impressive."

ARMAGEDDON WAS built and designed by Romeo Palanides in Evanston, Ill., and raced in Australia for six months before Van Meter purchased the machine. He has made some modifications.

"It has a Westinghouse J34-34 jet engine with an afterburner and develops 5,000 horsepower and around 9,000 pounds of thrust," said Van Meter. "The jet dragster class is the fastest class allowed by the National Hot Rod Association. I've had one run of 278 miles per hour at Penwell during training, which is two miles under the maximum allowable set by the NHRA."

The Westinghouse engine, which burns either diesel, kerosine or jet fuel, is the same used by B-52 bombers and the Navy's Banchee fighter jets. "It's called a jet dragster because it really is a jet without wings," said Van Meter.

Although the jet dragsters do not race on competitive levels, Van Meter and Armageddon did run against several other jets during his first exhibition season.

"In our stop in Canada in Calgary, we beat Scott Hammack's "Smoking Thunder" by 2½ car lengths. He is considered the top jet dragster in the world. I don't know if we could do it again, but we can say we did it once," said Van Meter. "There were seven jets there and we won four, beating Nitro Nick, Bill Carter and Ron Hoover."

In Salt Lake City during a special promotion called "Night of Fire," 10 of the 18 jets in the world were on hand. Armageddon finished third overall in those exhibition runs.

Van Meter points out, "The jet dragsters are not really in competition. The NHRA keeps close tabs on us. You are not allowed to exceed 280 m.p.h. in 5.8 seconds over a quarter-mile. You can lose your license if you do. They want to make sure we don't get too competitive. We could make the jets faster."

DURING THE 1984 racing season, Armageddon set five track speed records on its tour.

"We've been contacted by 25 tracks that want us this year," said Van Meter. "We may add tracks in Louisiana and Florida this year. All the tracks we ran at last year, want us back and many want more dates."

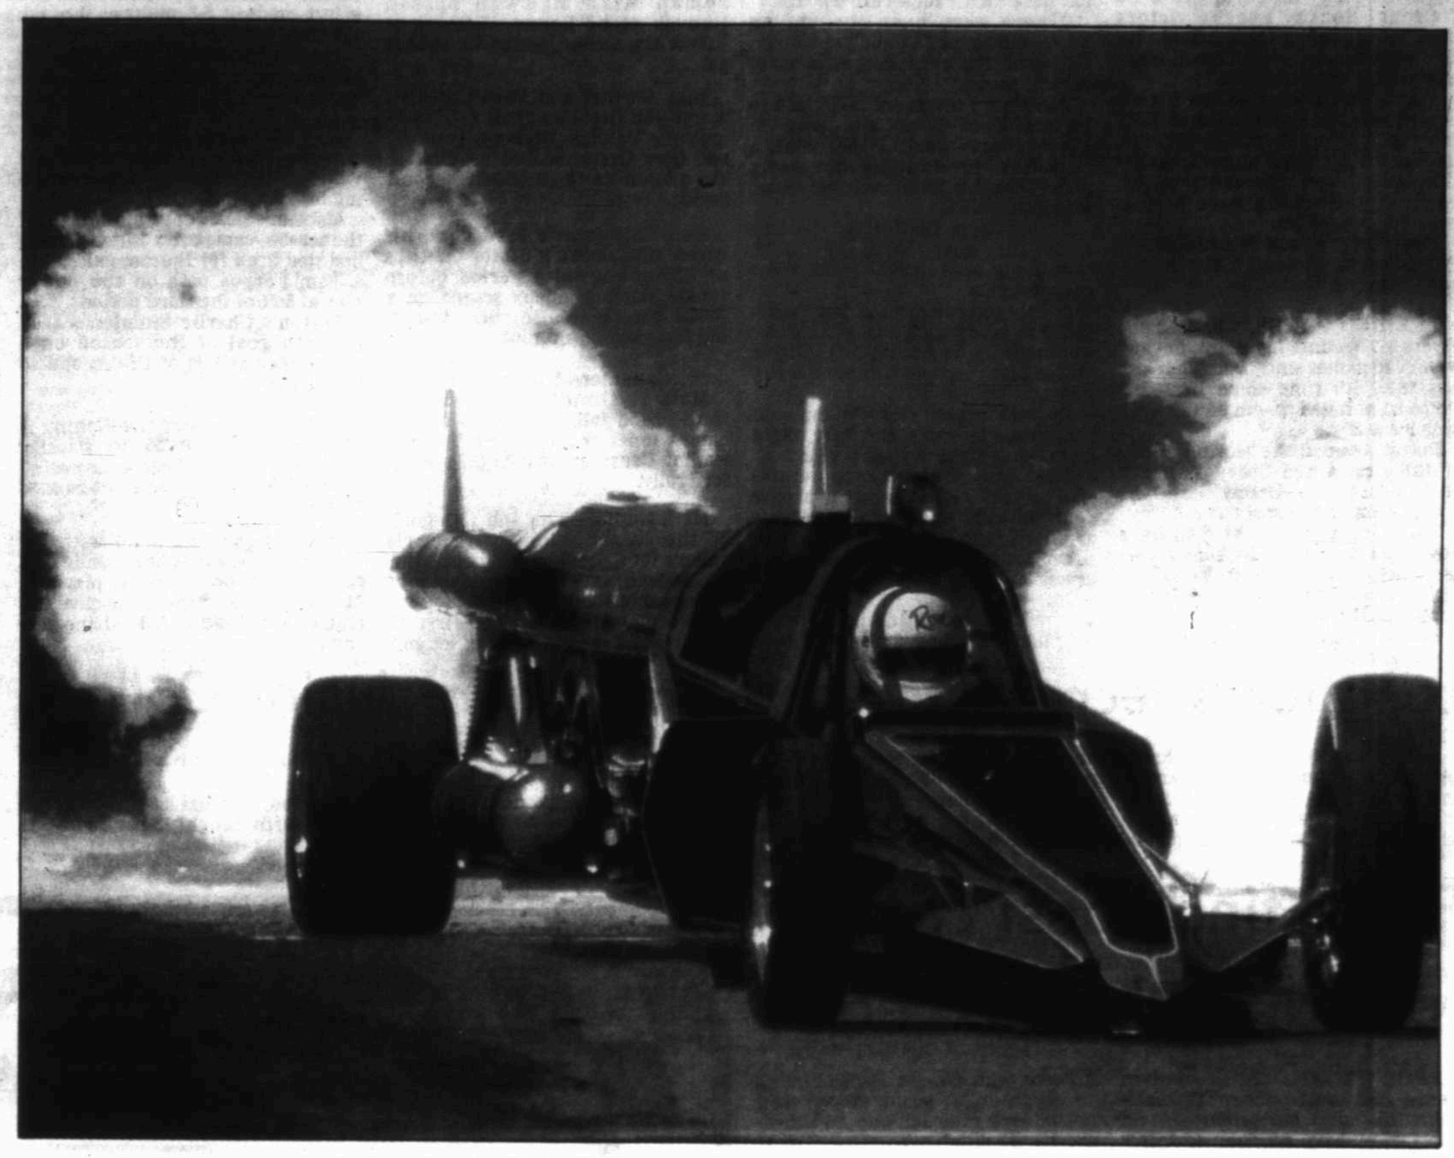

A ride aboard Armageddon is quite an experience, according to Van Meter, "You really just aim the car down the track. There is very little steering needed. A run of a quarter-mile happens so fast that your mind has to be ½-mile down the track. That's called thinking ahead.

"You experience a positive 3½ G-force at the height of a run, but there is a negative 5½ G-force when the parachute comes out to slow the jet. The biggest part of a run is just a blur."

The Armageddon tour is a Van Meter family affair for the most part. Van Meter's wife, Vicky, travels with him as part of the crew and daughter Leia (7) and son Shawn (5) help as they can. Midlander George Yeilding serves as a crew member when his schedule allows.

However, Van Meter is looking for outside sponsorship for the 1985 season. "We were lucky to get sponsorship from Power-Up Limited of Calgary and Oklahoma City last year, but they are contemplating a new plant in Oklahoma City and have their funds tied up in that new endeavor. I think it could be good advertising for someone."

Van Meter charges $500 per run and lodging for events within 300 miles of Midland and $750 and lodging for trips over 500 miles. There are discounts for multiple runs.

Lee Rebels control top rungs of district standings

MHS Bulldogs in thick of races as boy's, girl's tied for second

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

So far, this has been the year of the Rebel in District 4-5A basketball, both boy's and girl's. Each owns first place outright in their respective leagues.

On the other side of town, Midland High is fighting to hold onto second place in both league's, leaving a possibility for four Tall City teams in the bi-district playoffs.

Going into Tuesday's action, the Lee boys were in the midst of a four-team tie for first place with Midland High, Abilene High and Odessa Permian. Now, those three plus San Angelo are tied for second place, one game behind the Rebels.

Lee took care of AHS Tuesday, 91-74, while Abilene Cooper dumped Midland High, 59-52, and San Angelo dropped Permian, 60-59.

Owning a one-game lead in 4-5A play this year hasn't meant too much so far as teams keep knocking each other off, making this one of the tightest races in recent years. It's the reason Rebel coach Paul Stueckler isn't making any reservations for the playoffs. He won't feel comfortable until Lee is one-up with no more games left to play.

Tonight, the Rebels will try to hold onto their advantage when they host Odessa High — tied with Cooper for sixth place at 2-3 — at 8 p.m. at Chaparral Center.

The 4-5A evening is full of big games since only 0-5 Big Spring is rapidly falling out of the playoff hunt. MHS and Permian meet in Panther country at 8 p.m. while Cooper hopes to move up a notch with a win over San Angelo. AHS should remain in second considering Big Spring is the Eagles' opponent.

LEE HAS been able to put a lot of points on the board this year and from several different directions.

Brian Marczynski, 18.7 for the year and 19.8 in 4-5A play, and Derek Westbrook, 11.6 and 12.4, lead Lee's outside shooting attack while Raymond Morney, 12.1/15.8, and Anthony Dickens, 7.6/8.8, work the inside game.

Allan Bailey has been the Bronchos big gun this year, averaging 17.2 per game in 4-5A play while Keith Smith has added 15.0 and Paul Chavez 12.6.

For Midland High, Darrell Davis is still the top gun in 4-5A play, averaging 28.8 points a game compared to 26.0 for the season and that still leaves plenty of scoring room for other shooters.

Elvin Mackey has added 12.6 per game this season and 12.2 in 4-5A while Anthony Deande is 8.5/6.0, Matt Sears, 9.5/7.8 and Gil Brassard, 7.1/10.0

Permian is also loaded with shooters led by Terry Williams with a 15.4 league average, Jimmy Davis, 13.4; Orlando Ontiveroz, 11.2; and Tony Lewis, 10.4.

LEE'S GIRL'S basketball team has been the team to catch since the opening 4-5A buzzer. The Rebels ran their way through the first half of the season with a perfect 7-0 mark for a two-game lead over two teams in the standings.

The Rebels will likely hold that margin tonight when they host 0-7 Odessa High at Lee Gym at 8 p.m.

However, one of the two teams in second will fall to third as Midland High meets Odessa Permian, both 5-2, at Permian Gym at 8 p.m.

In other games, 4-3 San Angelo takes on 2-5 Cooper while 3-4 Big Spring battles 2-5 Abilene High.

Lee probably has the most balanced socring attack of any team in the league this year with five girls averaging within three points of each other. None, however, are in double figures.

Becky White is still the top Rebel shooter with an 8.5 season average while Diane White follows at 7.1, Denise Hatch at 6.2 and Tina Swinney and Roz Eaden at 5.8 each. You can never tell going into a game who will be the one to break loose for the big night.

At Midland High, Denise Lanz has the city's top average at 14.4 with four others in the upper single digits: Diedra Knapp, 8.3; Tina Knight, 7.2; Chrlotte Hines, 5.2 and Laura Martin, 5.1.

WTSU grabs first conference win

Associated Press

AMARILLO — West Texas State forward William Childs sank both ends of a one-and-one with 26 seconds left, then won a free-for-all scramble underneath the Drake basket with 2 seconds to go Thursday night as the Buffaloes won their first Missouri Valley Conference game of the season, 65-63.

Orlando Graham led West Texas with 16 points as the Buffaloes upped their record to 8-7 overall and 1-4 in the MVC.

The Bulldogs' Melvin Mathis led all scorers with 24 as Drake, 9-7 and 1-4, shot 63 percent from the field in the second half, but it was not enough to overcome a first-half percentage of 36.

West Texas, which had shot 55 percent from the field in the first half, was leading 36-31 at intermission and afterwards slipped to 48 percent.

Mathis and Darryl Lloyd, who finished with 15 points, each pulled down 9 rebounds for Drake.

Texas-Arlington 80, NE Louisiana 77

MONROE, La. — Texas-Arlington shot a torrid 79.2 percent from the field in the first half, then hung on to defeat Northeast Louisiana in Southland Conference action.

Texas scorers were led by James Harris who tallied 20 points on nine for 13 shooting from the floor. Three other Texas players reached double figures; Dennis Kwiecinski registered 13, Bob Hughes 12 and Ronell Peters 11.

Arthur Hays scored 17 points to lead Northeast's comeback, with help from Michael Saulberry's 16 points and 12 rebounds. Northeast took the lead twice in the second half, but the effort fell short.

After Northeast took the lead 61-60, Texas-Arlington came back to build an 11 point lead and hung on over the last 1:30 for the victory.

Bobby Jenkins and and Sean Paulfrey hit 15 for Northwest which shot 53.7 percent from the field.

But it wasn't enough. Texas-Arlington did cool off a bit, but still hit 66.7 percent of their shots from the floor.

The victory raises Texas-Arlington's record to 9-6 and 1-1 in the conference. The loss drops Northeast to 10-4 and 1-1 in the conference. The defeat also snaps an eight game home winning streak for the Indians.

McNeese 84, Lamar73

BEAUMONT — Joe Dumars scored 33 points to lead McNeese to a victory during Lamar's Southland Conference opener.

The loss brings Lamar's record to 7-7, and boosts McNeese to 8-5.

This is McNeese's first win in eight games and their first win in Beaumont since 1978.

'Who Won?': Chaps, 81-78

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland College beat Howard College Thursday night, but it was so close that after it was over Coach Jerry Stone had to ask, "Who won?"

The Chaps, running their Western Junior College Athletic Conference record to 5-0, took an 81-78 win over the Hawks from Big Spring, but a look at the bare statistics and it's little wonder Stone wasn't all that sure as to "Who won?"

Howard shot 67 percent from the field, 28-of-42, while Midland was 34-of-67 and the Chaps had to get hot in the last half to look that good.

From the line, Stone may have felt he was on the road instead of at home. The Hawks were 22-32 to MC's 13-of-21.

So going into Monday's game at Borger against Frank Phillips, MC is 15-2 for the season and still tied for first place in the WJCAC with Odessa College, a 12-point winner over New Mecixo Military Institute.

The Chaps and Wranglers meet in a showdow next Thursday, not Monday, as was stated in this space yesterday.

AS FOR Howard, the Hawks, 7-9 and 1-5, weren't supposed to be that much trouble. Good shooters, but with only eight players suited up, one wondered if they brought along enough to finish the game.

Even Coach E.L. Sparling had his doubts. "We don't have any height and I don't have a point guard. Mike Porter is playing there and he's really a shooting guard."

It was evident early what Sparling was talking about. Porter missed his first shot, then hit five in a row

Kerr's four paces Flyers to win, 7-5

NHL Roundup

Associated Press

Philadelphia's Tim Kerr, who plays in a town that features Julius Erving and Moses Malone on the hardcourt, compares his latest stellar performance on ice to a basketball player on a can't miss streak.

"When you get hot it seems everything bounces your way," said Kerr, who scored four goals Thursday night leading the Flyers to a 7-5 National Hockey League victory over the slumping Detroit Red. 'It's like a hot shooter in basketball when everything seems to drop."

Kerr's four goals tied the Flyers' record set by Rick MacLeish in 1973, matched by Tom Bladon in 1977 and duplicated by Kerr himself earlier this season. Kerr's second four-goal game of the season gave him 38 goals for the season.

Elsewhere, it was Washington 6, Pittsburgh 2; Montreal 5, Hartford 4, and Calgary 4, Boston 3.

THE RED WINGS, who tied the Flyers 1-1 Wednesday night, haven't won in 10 games since Dec. 28. It also was the 26th time since 1972 that Detroit has failed to win on Philadelphia ice (0-20-6).

Detroit opened the scoring at 1:51 of the first when Steve Yzerman centered a pass to Danny Gare, who scored from in front of the net.

The Flyers tied it at 6:43 on a power play. Peter Zezel sent a pass from behind the night to Kerr, who scored from five feet to the left of goalie Ed Mio.

Philadelphia went ahead 2-1 at 17:15 on Kerr's second goal, a tip-in from in front of the net. In the second period at 2:11, Kerr took a pass and backhanded a shot from the bottom of the left faceoff circle to make it 3-1 and a recorded a natural hat trick (three consecutive goals).

"There were some outstanding passes out there tonight," said Kerr. "It's hard for us to miss with those type of passes."

The Flyers increased their lead to 5-2 at 15:22 of the second period on Kerr's fourth goal of the night, a rebound of his own shot on a power play. It was his 15th power-play goal, tops in the NHL.

As for being the league's leading power-play goal scorer, Kerr said, "I'm being used more on the power play this year.

"I only scored seven all last season and I'm really glad I'm getting the opportunity to contribute to our power play ... we need those if we're going to win."

Detroit Coach Nick Polano said that inside the blue line Kerr might be the best right wing in hockey.

"He's one of those rare natural goal scorers. he just seems to always find the puck. Those type of players are the key to their teams and Kerr is certainly a big part of the Flyers' attack."

Capitals 6, Penguins 2

Craig Laughlin led the way with two goals for the Caps and goalie Bob Mason posted his eighth consecutive victory of the season.

Washington beat Pittsburgh for the second consecutive night and has not lost to the Penguins in their last 10 meetings.

Laughlin scored at 19:26 to cap Washington's three-goal first period, and then deflected a shot by defenseman Mike McEwen passed through goalie Roberto Romano at 7:30 of the second period to make it 4-0.

Mike Gartner and Dave Christian scored the first two goals for Washington's Patrick Division leaders, and Glen Currie scored his first of the season at 18:10 of the second period.

Bob Carpenter's 33rd goal, his career high, made it 6-0 for the Caps at 7:36 of the third period before rookie Mario Lemieux scored on a power-play at 9:59 to ruin Mason's bid for a second shutout.

Canadiens 5, Whalers 4

Mats Naslund's short-handed third-period tally proved to be the game-winner as the Adams Division-leading Canadiens staved off a Hartford rally.

Mark Hunter's 12th and 13th goals of the season, along with Chris Nilan's 10th, provided Montreal with the 3-0 lead just past the midpoint of the opening stanza.

"We played well in the first 10 minutes and then we sort of let go," said Hunter who snapped a personal 10-game scoring slump. "They got two goals and for a while we ended up playing the way they wanted us to."

Bobby Crawford and Ron Francis scored first-period goals to move the Whalers within 3-2.

Pierre Mondou's second-period power-play goal made it 4-2 and Naslund's breakaway short-handed effort made it 5-3 midway through the third period.

Hartford is winless in 19 attempts at Montreal in its six-year NHL history.

Flames 4, Bruins 3

Jamie Macoun's 40-foot slapshot with less than four minutes remaining broke a 3-3 tie.

Macoun's goal, only his fourth of the season, came after Butch Goring had tied it up for Boston, guiding in a Tom Fergus pass on the power play at 5:21 of the third period.

Boston's Charlie Simmer scored his 26th goal of the season on a power play at 1:35 of the second to tie the game 1-1.

Ray Bourque put the Bruins in front 2-1 when his 50-foot slapshot broke off goalie Reggie Lemelin's pads while Boston was short-handed at 3:10.

Hakan Loob tied it up with his first goal 28 seconds later while Calgary was still on the power play and his second goal of the game gave the Flames a 3-2 lead at 6:30 of the second period.

Longhorns recruit Jackson from Kilgore Junior College

AUSTIN (AP) — Mike Jackson, who played offensive and defensive end for Kilgore Junior College, has committed to attend Texas on a football scholarship but he will not be able to sign until he graduates.

Jackson, 6-foot-3 and 260 pounds, is taking 17 hours this spring and will need three more hours from Kilgore to be eligible to attend Texas next fall.

In receiving the pledge, coach Fred Akers ups his count to four commitments or signees. He has said he plans to hand out approximately 25 scholarships this recruiting season.

Jackson, who has 4.8-second speed for 40 yards, caught 13 passes for 112 yards.

Peete finds best combo for early Phoenix lead

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Calvin Peete, the most successful black golfer the sport has produced, said two factors have contributed to his fast start this season.

"The weather was gorgeous — ideal," said Peete, a notorious hot-weather player who has scored all his eight PGA Tour triumphs in summer heat.

And, too, there was some work during the offseason.

"I worked on my game over the holidays," Peete said Thursday. "Usually, I don't do that, just put the clubs in the closet and forget about 'em for a while."

The result was a no-bogey round of 6-under-par 65 that staked Peete to the first round lead in the $450,000 Phoenix Open.

"It was a very enjoyable day," said Peete, 41, who last season won the Vardon Trophy as the leading scorer on the PGA Tour.

"I managed my game well. And, at this stage of the season, that's want I'm trying to do, manage my game and have patience. This early in the year, you don't expect to hit shots like I did on the last two holes," he said.

Those two shots, with an 8-iron on the 17th and a sand wedge on the 18th, each nestled to within 18 inches of the flag, giving him tap-ins for the birdie-birdie finish that lifted him into the lead.

ISAO AOKI of Japan, Morris Hatalsky and rookie Phil Blackmar shared second at 66, a single stroke back. Blackmar chipped in two chip-ins, including an eagle-3 on the 18th, and used only nine putts over the last nine holes.

The group at 67 included Nick Faldo of England, Gary Koch, Ron Streck, Doug Tewell and Jeff Thomsen.

PGA champion Lee Trevino and Tom Purtzer, the defending titleholder in this 50th anniversary edition of the Phoenix Open, led a group at 68.

Lanny Wadkins, a winner last week in the Bob Hope Classic, could do no better than a round of 70 on the 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course, and Masters champion Ben Crenshaw struggled to a 73.

Peete, who has established himself as golf's most accurate player, missed only one fairway and three greens. He didn't even come close to making a bogey. He chipped close to save par on two of the greens he missed, and chipped in for birdie on the other.

He made two birdie putts of about 8 feet on the front side, hit a 5-iron inside of 4 feet on the 11th and then took the lead on the strong finish.

"I'm looking for a good week," he said.

MHS bests Lee in soccer, 6-0

From Staff Reports

Midland High defeated Midland Lee, 6-0, Tuesday in the opening game of the high school soccer season.

David Malone led the Bulldogs with two goals while Robert McCracken and Ricky Kassanoff both added a goal and an assist to the MHS attack.

Outstanding defensive play was turned in by Matt Marcum, Fernando Gomez and Billy Doan.

Lee's Kevin Hancock turned in a fine performance in the losing effort.

Lee and Midland High have a rematch scheduled Feb. 23 at Memorial Stadium at 2 p.m.

MJT to hold tourney

Midland Junior Tennis will hold a tournament at 9 a.m. Jan. 26-27 at the Midland Lee courts. There will be boy's and girl's divisions for players 10-and-under, 12-and-under and 16-and-under.

Entry deadline is Jan. 24 and players may enter by contacting either Cary or Yvonne Garton at 683-1529. Trophies will be awarded to winners and runnersup. Balls and trophies are furnished by Midland Junior Tennis, which is sponsored by First City National Bank.

Larence Chumbley grabs a rebound for MC over Howard College defender Martin Jenkins (33) Thursday at Chap Center.

before missing again. He wound up with 17 for the night. Fortunately, however, he was out of position.

And with scouts from Seton Hall, Jacksonville and North Carolina State looking on, 6-foot-9 Teviin Binns notched 27 points on 13-of-23 from the field before fouling out with 59 seconds to play. And, at the time, the game was anything but tucked away safely in the W column.

IT WASN'T until 5-foot-4 Pookey Wigington, the hero of Monday's overtime win over Amarillo College, twice converted a brace of free throws at 0:24 and 0:09 for an 81-76 lead that Stone stopped panting.

"We're just not an offensive team," said Stone later. "No Nate Burfords, so we've got to do all the other things right. Tonight it never seemed like we were really into it. But that can happen against Howard. They have some pure shooters."

MC apparently caught the Hawks just in time. Sparling, who created a dynasty at Burlington (Iowa) Community College by going to nationals five times a few years back, said he will have another player eligible later this week and he has a 6-foot-9 player coming in soon. "Maybe we'll be a good team in a couple of weeks."

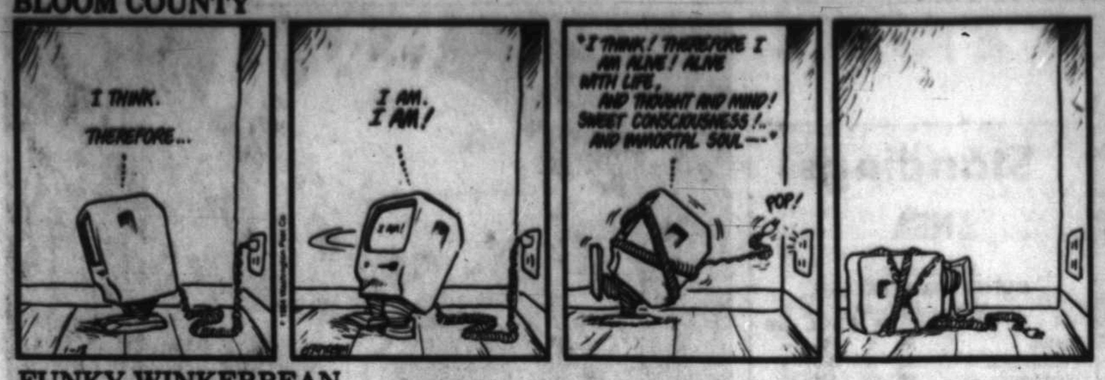

CHAPSTYQUES—Two of the plays of the night came in the first half. First Wigington sailed out of bounds just over midcourt on an interception and made a blind pass while in the air. Deon Hunter took it on a breakaway for a solo. Then Binns made a steal under the defensive boards, passed to Wigington, who fed Coleman for the basket as a defensive man prepared to block Pookey's lay up. The two scores boosted MC into a 17-9 lead, the Chaps biggest of the first half...Seton Hall's Michael Brown would like to get Binns back to the New York area, "so his folks and friends can watch him." That's a pretty good selling point. Located in East Orange, N.J., Seton Hall plays its home games in on-campus Walsh Gym, the Meadowlands and Madison Square Garden...

Sparling, was had gotten out of college coaching and was working in East Texas, said he took the HC job Sept. 29. "I didn't have a chance to do any recruiting. I even had to use a walkon or I'd really be short of players"...

Howard College — Walt Reynolds 0-1 2-2 2 2; Bruce Kimble 10-14 0-1 3 20; Marty Jenkins 8-12 10-14 5 26; Mike Porter 5-7 7-11 4 17; Joe Burney 3-6 2-2 3 8; Bernard Bell 1-1 1-2 3 3; Isaac Varnado 1-1 0-0 3 2. Totals 28-42 22-32 23 78.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actress Jean Stapleton, Dolly Parton, Nicholas Colasanto of TV's "Cheers," the Montreal Expos' Brad Mills, singer Phil Everly and Shelley Fabares share your birthday. Also born on this date: Edgar Allen Poe, Gen. Robert E. Lee, French painter Paul Cezanne and rock star Janis Joplin. Be diplomatic when dealing with both competitors and customers and you make rapid financial progress. A financial situation turns around completely by midyear. Those in college enjoy unusual academic success. Devote more time and effort to romance. A loved one who feels neglected could decide to depart. Material success means nothing without someone to share it with.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Focus on your long-term goals. Romance is uppermost in thoughts of those who are single. Keep a close eye on spending. You feel new enthusiasm for a creative venture. Forge ahead!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A financial problem calls for a candid discussion with family members. Be practical and revise a budget. Entertainment costs should be kept within reasonable limits. Romance thrives in an atmosphere of trust.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Not a good day to charge new purchases. Buy essentials only. Invite small fry to share a fun but educational experience. Social activities are favored this evening. Keep any medical appointments.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A fantasy will come true today. Enjoy yourself! Do not let a flatterer influence your opinions. A change in lifestyle means greater personal comfort. Join friends for dinner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Although romance looks promising, you may decide to stay home today and beautify your home. Deal with any feelings of jealousy in a constructive way. Work harder to achieve your goals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your loyalty to your family is tested. Singles find travel a romantic experience. Try to tie up some loose domestic or financial ends before nightfall. Make an overdue phone call.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are able to cap a recent triumph with even greater success! Let the artist in you come out. A social outing proves very pleasant. Try not to expect too much from romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Seek the limelight later today. Someone will honor you in a unique way. Certain changes that are in the works mean a brighter financial future. Promote your ideas to influential people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The emphasis today is on fulfillment of a wish. You are able to reconcile with a loved one. A special plan will come to fruition. Keep your priorities straight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A prominent person will meet you more than halfway. Attend to overseas interests. Look for imaginative ways to entertain at home inexpensively. Give special thought to your guest list.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Adopt a more conservative approach to financial matters. Review contractual obligations. A favor will be repaid when you least expect it. Be a good sport about a change in plans.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Window shopping can be as much fun as the real thing. If you notice a change in loved one's attitude, investigate. Singles could find new romance today. Dress your best.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣.

The bidding and play of the hand are not two separate phases. What you learn during the auction can be of inestimable value in the play. Consider this hand from the 1984 World Team Olympiad in Seattle.

East's two diamond overcall was a transfer to hearts. When South bounced into four spades, East introduced his second suit as a sacrifice, but South was not going to defend with his hand. His bid of five spades closed the auction.

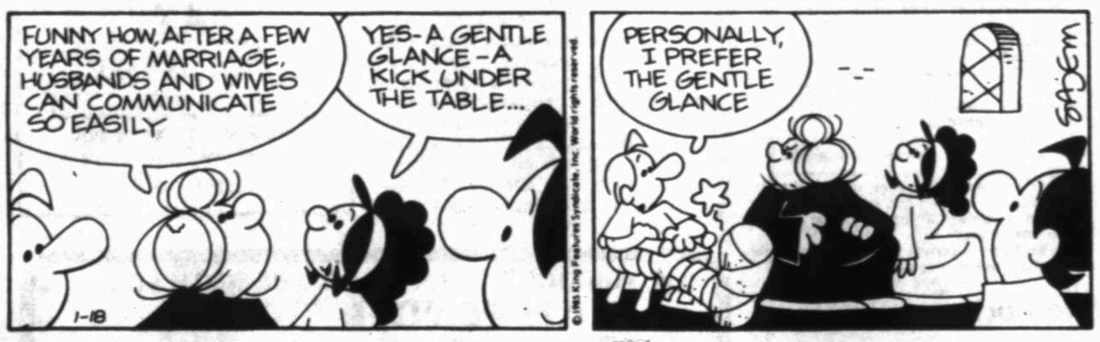

Note that East's decision to compete at the five-level was correct — South would have an easy time at four spades. However, in revealing his distribution East also pointed the way for declarer to make 11 tricks.

West led the jack of clubs. Declarer played low from dummy and ruffed in hand. He led a spade to the queen and ace, and East returned a club. Declarer won the ace, sluffing a diamond from hand, and ruffed a club. Then he entered dummy with the jack of spades, in the process drawing the last outstanding trump, and ruffed a club to strip that suit. Next came the king-ace of hearts and a heart ruff, to eliminate that suit from the combined holding.

Since East was known to have at least 10 cards in hearts and clubs, he had to be short in diamonds. Based on this knowledge declarer led the king of diamonds. West was caught in a bind. If he did not win the ace, declarer would continue with a diamond to the queen and the hand would be cold. So West rose with the ace.

Declarer's technique in stripping the hand was about to be rewarded. West had no choice but to return a diamond. Declarer simply went with the percentages. He ran it to his ten, and when East did not produce the jack, the contract was in the bag.

Visit to Chicago restaurant is stroll down memory lane

CHICAGO (AP) — Ike is still president and Elvis remains king at a '50s-style diner where ponytails, poodle skirts, burgers and malteds are still the coolest.

There's a silver-plated counter area, miniature tableside jukeboxes that blare golden oldies, and the waitresses, with names like Bubbles and Suzy Q, serve up rib-sticking grub like meat loaf, chili and homemade hamburgers.

Ed Debevic's Short Orders-Deluxe, which opened two months ago, is part of a nationwide trend toward upscale versions of the greasy-spoon restaurant. Even so, most of Debevic's customers think the place is definitely one of a kind.

"I can't really compare it with anything. The closest you could say would be an amusement park," said Debevic's regular John Madsen, 22, a Chicago sales consultant.

The waitresses and waiters at Debevic's are required to assume '50s aliases and "have to lean on the table, be witty with the customers, learn some diner lingo, learn to smack their gum and do the Debevic walk," said Steve Ottmann, project coordinator for the restaurant.

That walk is a, "how would you say, sashay," said "Blondie," alias Barb Supple, 23, who's worked at Debevic's since it opened Nov. 14 and has been a waitress since age 16.

"It's about the only restaurant that actually wants you to chew gum," said Miss Supple, sporting a roller-skate pin and a button picturing that all-American '50's boy, Beaver Cleaver.

Debevic's, including Ed himself, is the brainchild of Chicago restaurateur Richard Melman, who runs several area restaurants as president of Lettuce Entertain You Enterprises.

"Ed Debevic is made up," and is supposed to sound "like the name of a guy back in the kitchen slinging potatoes," Miss Supple said. "But when people ask, 'Where's Ed?' I usually say 'He's out bowling or playing bingo at the VFW.'"

Melman and business associate Lee Cohen of Phoenix, Ariz., wanted to create a "back-to-basics" restaurant with simple American food, Ottmann said. They toured the back roads of America to get ideas for the decor and the eats.

The result was Debevic's, complete with aqua overstuffed vinyl booths, posters for Kayo's "tops in taste" chocolate drink, cherry Cokes and pinball bowling games.

About the only contemporary things at Debevic's are the prices: A hamburger goes for $3.35, while a malted milk with whipped cream costs $2.35.

"It's not a serious place, it's a fun place," Ottmann said. "We encourage things that other restaurants don't. If you want to pull up a chair in the aisle, you can. If you want to sit six to a booth, do it. It's like anything goes."

According to Ottmann, the nostalgic, let-loose atmosphere at Debevic's has drawn patrons of every age and social strata. "You'll see limos pull up front, and we also have punk rocker-types and working people," he said.

"One guy said, 'Hey, I think I worked here in high school,'" said Miss Supple.

Debevic's is "dynamite," said Carlos Hernandez, 29, a businessman who says he likes almost everything about the place. "I grew up with the music. I love the music of the '50s. The people who serve you are all nuts — and I love it."

Opera star Placido Domingo to head new opera company

4 NEW YORK (AP) — Tenor Placido Domingo says he'll become the artistic head of a new opera company to be established in Los Angeles.

"Officially, we still have to make the confirmation but...indeed it is true," Domingo, 44, was quoted as saying the March issue of Ovation magazine. Domingo said he will become either artistic adviser or music adviser of the Music Center Opera Association of Los Angeles, which plans to import leading international companies while building its own.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The first great-grandchild of the late movie legend John Wayne weighed in at 9 pounds, 9 ounces, big enough to make the doctor wonder whether Kathryn Josephine McFarlane was a potential linebacker.

The child was born early Thursday at St. Joseph's Hospital, said her grandfather, producer Michael Wayne.

"We thought we had a linebacker, so did the doctor," Wayne said. "The doctor at first said, 'I think it's a boy.'"

The child's parents are Wayne's daughter, Alicia Maria McFarlane, 25, and James G. McFarlane, 29.

The mother, one of John Wayne's 23 grandchildren, and child were doing fine, said Bill Feeder of the Rogers & Cowan publicity firm.

LOS ANGELES — Joanna Carson isn't making ends meet on the $35,000 a month in temporary support she's receiving from "Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson and has asked the court for $6,000 more each month.

In a sworn statement filed in California Superior Court, the soon-to-be ex-wife of the talk-show host said, "My current monthly expenses are approximately $54,000."

Court documents filed by Joanna Carson's attorneys, said her expenses rose nearly $6,000 a month last October when she took over payment of expenses on one of the couple's former residences at the Hotel Pierre in New York City.

"I do not have sufficient current income either through spousal support or interest income from my separate assets to pay the monthly rent and occupancy fees attributable to the Hotel Pierre apartment," said Joanna in the sworn statement.

Joanna listed her eight-month income from investments as about $77,000.

She said Johnny's income was $1.5 million a month.

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II paid a hospital visit to a Cabinet minister's wife who was injured when the Irish Republican Army bombed the hotel where Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and other officials were holding a conference.

Queen Elizabeth

The queen spent about a half-hour on Thursday with Margaret Tebbit, wife of Trade and Industry Secretary Norman Tebbit, and then saw her senior race horse trainer, Maj. Dick Hern, who broke his neck in a hunting accident last month, a Buckingham Palace statement said.

Both are patients at the Stoke Mandeville spinal injuries center in Buckinghamshire.

Mrs. Tebbit was paralyzed from the neck down in the October blast at a Brighton hotel. Tebbit, who was also badly injured, returned to Parliament this week and said his wife was making slow progress.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mr. T, whose visit to a boy who was allegedly molested at his preschool was as helpful as therapy, told the child he'd "just hired the A-Team," the boy's mother said.

"Mr. T heard about how much trouble my son was having," the mother said. "That warmth he has for kids just came out...I cried all the way home."

She said the star of NBC-TV's "The A-Team" talked with her son and later attended his birthday party along with 15 other youngsters who were allegedly molested at three suburban Los Angeles preschools.

Mr. T, 32, met Tuesday with a prosecutor in a molestation case, but the hulking, jewelry-bedecked actor will not officially participate because media attention might "deflect from serious issues in the case," said Deputy District Attorney Lael Rubin.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Bill Anderson has filed a $1 million suit against a driver and a tavern where the man allegedly was drinking before an accident in which Anderson's wife was injured.

Becky Anderson, 38, suffered a concussion and contusions of the brain in October when her car collided with a truck.

The Andersons filed suit Dec. 7 in Metro Nashville Circuit Court against the driver, the company that owned the truck and the tavern, said the couple's attorney, Richard Speight.

Wake Forest sends message to ACC, Duke pays price

Associated Press

Wake Forest has a message for the rest of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"We just wanted some respect because we were picked at the bottom of the league," forward Mark Cline said after Wake Forest made its message a little clearer Thursday night by beating second-ranked Duke 91-89 in overtime.

Cline scored six of his 12 points in the extra period as the Deamon Deacons won at Duke. Still, Cline said he thought Wake Forest still has a way to go before getting the recognition it craves.

"It hurts. We want to prove that we are a better team than people thought," he said. "We think we have a good team, but we will have to win the conference to prove it."

The loss was the second straight for Duke, both of them coming in overtime. The Blue Devils lost 78-76 at Maryland Monday night.

In other Top 20 college basketball games, Iowa tripped No. 19 Michigan State 77-59, while No. 9 Kansas stopped Iowa State 76-72, No. 11 Illinois topped Wisconsin 78-67, No. 12 Louisiana Tech beat North Texas State 68-50, No. 16 Virginia Commonwealth tripped North Carolina-Charlotte 85-75, No. 17 Georgia Tech shelled Monmouth 96-66 and No. 20 Tulsa defeated Illinois State 79-69 in overtime.

Wake Forest's Delaney Rudd sent the game into overtime with a driving jumper with four seconds left in regulation that made it 73-73. Duke had led 60-53 with 8:30 remaining in the second half.

Cline connected on a 16-foot jump shot just 12 seconds into the extra session and reserve forward Charlie Thomas added a layup to give Wake Forest a 77-73 lead.

Wake Forest clinched its sixth straight victory by making 12 of 16 free-throw tries in overtime. Wake Forest is now 11-4 overall and 3-1 in the ACC.

Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski offered no excuses.

"They just played harder for longer periods of time," he said. "Their kids made big shots for them."

Duke, 12-2, is now 2-2 in the ACC. The Blue Devils' next game comes Saturday at No. 6 North Carolina.

College Basketball

Top Twenty

Greg Stokes scored 27 points and visiting Iowa led the entire way to beat No. 19 Michigan State in Big Ten action. Forward Al Lorenzen fueled an 8-0 burst with six points that gave the Hawkeyes a commanding 48-35 lead with 10:59 left in the game.

Iowa kept its lead by making 23 of 27 foul shots in the second half. Lorenzen, who finished with 15 points, made nine of 10 free throws in the final 20 minutes.

The victory raised Iowa's record to 14-3 and 3-1 in the Big Ten. Michigan State, which lost to Illinois in its last outing, slipped to 12-3 and 3-2.

Freshman Danny Manning scored eight straight points for Kansas to help the ninth-ranked Jayhawks hold off Iowa State in the Big Eight.

Manning, who wound up with 22 points, scored a basket to give Kansas a 67-63 lead with 4:17 left in the game. He also got the next six Kansas points that made it 73-67 with two minutes remaining.

Ron Kellogg added 18 points for the host Jayhawks, 13-2 overall.

A technical foul on Wisconsin Coach Steve Yoder provided the spark that helped No. 11 Illinois rally in the second half in a Big Ten game.

Wisconsin, playing at home, led 43-42 and had possession of the ball with 11:26 left in the game when Yoder was tagged with a technical foul for protesting what he thought was a missed Illinois foul.

Efrem Winters, who led the Illini with 22 points, made the two technical foul shots and Illinois also got the ball. Just 14 seconds later, Winters was fouled and again made two free throws for a 46-43 lead that Illinois held the rest of the game.

Illinois won its first Big Ten game in four tries this season and improved to 14-4 overall by overcoming a 31-point effort by Scott Roth of the Badgers.

Karl Malone and Wayne Smith scored 16 points apiece as No. 12 Louisiana Tech beat North Texas State in Southland Conference action.

Louisiana Tech, 14-1 overall and 2-0 in the conference, built a 32-24 lead by halftime and held off the visitors the rest of the way.

All five starters for Virginia Commonwealth reached double figures and the Rams led the whole game to trip North Carolina-Charlotte in a Sun Belt matchup.

Rolando Lamb scored 20 points and Calvin Duncan added 18 for the visiting Rams, who made 63.6 percent of their shots from the floor.

VCU, 12-1, made its first four shots in racing to an 8-2 lead in the opening three minutes.

In Atlanta, John Salley put on a dunking exhibition to lead No. 17 Georgia Tech past Monmouth. Salley ended the night with 10 dunks on his way to a career-high 28 points.

Mark Price scored 19 points and contributed a school-record 14 assists as the Yellow Jackets raised their record to 12-3.

Monmouth missed its first 10 shots from the floor while Georgia Tech surged to a 15-2 lead. Salley and Price each had 14 points by halftime in boosting the margin to 45-24.

Senior guard Steve Harris scored 10 of his game-high 26 points in overtime to lead No. 20 Tulsa over Illinois State in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

Dolphins, 49ers: Super Bowl could be terrific track meet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If the Miami Dolphins and San Francisco 49ers weren't otherwise engaged on Sunday playing Super Bowl XIX, the two National Football League teams could stage a terrific track meet.

Each team features players who earlier in their athletic careers were standouts in track and field.

Miami, for instance, has wide receiver Mark Duper, a former world-class sprinter. On one occasion, Duper helped Northwest Louisiana's sprint relay team to an NCAA championship over a squad from the University of Houston which included Carl Lewis, who went on to win four gold medals in the 1984 Olympics. Duper's best 100-meter dash time in college was 10.21 seconds.

San Francisco's roster includes fleet wide receiver Renaldo Nehemiah, world record-holder in the high hurdles, and defensive linemen Michael Carter and Jeff Stover, each elite shot-putters.

Nehemiah and Stover each joined the 49ers in 1982 after six years away from football. Carter, a 70-foot shot man, was signed a few days after winning a silver medal in the Los Angeles Olympics.

"I don't think you'd find many other NFL teams willing to take in someone like us and give us a chance," said Stover, whose top mark in the shot at the University of Oregon was 68 feet, 4½ inches.

Duper had only two seasons of football behind him when the Dolphins chose him on the second round of the NFL draft in 1982. His high school in Louisiana did not have a football team, and he went to college on a track scholarship.

Joe Delaney, the late Kansas City Chiefs' running back, was also on that championship relay team and talked Duper into trying football.

For the past two seasons, Duper has been one of the NFL's leading receivers, totaling 2,309 yards on 122 catches.

"When I first came into the league, I just used to take advantage of my speed," said Duper. "That's not to say I don't do it now, but I've picked up a lot of knowledge about football.

"Nat Moore isn't as fast as me, but he can get open as good as I can because of his great knowledge about football."

Moore, the 33-year-old receiver who now backs up youngsters Duper and Mark Clayton, is among several Super Bowl performers who competed in track on the high school level.

Nehemiah hasn't had the impact of a Duper, mainly because veterans Dwight Clark and Freddie Solomon have maintained a solid hold on the starting wide receiver spots. Still, Nehemiah has caught 43 passes, including 18 this season.

"I've done enough to instill confidence in myself," Nehemiah said. "If (49ers Coach) Bill Walsh didn't think I was helping the team, I wouldn't be here.

"But development comes with game experience, and I haven't been able to utilize what skills I have. The toughest part of football is sitting and watching."

Although it took thousands of hours of training for Nehemiah to achieve his 12.9 world record in the hurdles, he says, "I'm in better shape after three years of football than I ever was in track."

Stover, who suffered a knee injury in the opening game of this season but returned to uniform in late November, said, "Some of the training shot putters do carries over to football, like the weight work. The biggest problem was that I hadn't done any of the endurance training that's needed.

"Those three-hour practices in my first training camp nearly killed me. I couldn't go four or five straight plays without needing a rest.

"They gave me a conditioning program to follow the next two summers before camp opened, and I've always come in early with the rookies.

TEXAS

At the half Lamar was winning 37-32, but the Cowboys caught fire in the second half hitting 12 of 15 freethrows down the stretch. The Cardinals only shot once in the first three minutes of the second half, and hit only two buckets in the last six minutes of the game.

The Cardinals were led by Seniors Jerry Everett and Pontus Wilson with 14.

Louisiana Tech 68, N. Texas St.50

RUSTON, La. — Karl Malone and Wayne Smith both scored 16 points to lead 12th-ranked Louisiana Tech to a victory over North Texas State in a Southland conference game.

The victory raised Tech's record to 14-1 and 2-0 in conference play. North Texas is 2-12 overall, and 0-2 in the conference.

Tech took command of the game from the outset, building a 32-24 halftime lead. North Texas fought back to 34-27 early in the second half, but Malone's short turnaround jumper in the lane and Willie Simmons's break away slam dunk gave Tech an 11 point lead and they never looked back.

Tech put four players in double figures. In addition to Malone and Smith, Robert Godbolt and Willie Bland hit ten apiece.

Dennis Smith had 12 points for North Texas. Larry Banks added 10 for the Eagles.

Georgia Southern 61, Houston Baptist 48

STATESBORO, Ga. — Ron Jefferson, Bill McNair and Ben Bailey each scored 13 points to pace Georgia Southern to a Trans America Athletic Conference victory over Houston Baptist.

Southern played without leading scorer and rebounder Morris Hargrove, who was suspended Thursday for "disciplinary reasons within the basketball family," said Coach Frank Kerns.

Southern built an 8-3 lead early in the game and never trailed, leading by five points at the half, 24-19. The Eagles' biggest margin was 15 in the second half, just before Arthur Walton hit a desperation shot at the buzzer.

Reggie Watson added 10 points for Southern, 12-2, and 3-1 in the conference.

Houston Baptist, 11-4 and 3-1, was led by Ellington Wilkins with 14 points. Walton finished with 12.

Mercer 88, Hardin-Simmons 73

MACON, Ga. — Sam Mitchell scored 31 points as Mercer disposed of Hardin-Simmons in a Trans America Athletic Conference game.

Earl Walker added 24 points and grabbed 12 rebounds for Mercer as the Bears improved their record to 11-3 overall and 3-1 in the conference.

Mercer led all the way and built a 40-22 lead by the half.

Mitchell and Walker were the only Mercer players to score in double figures.

Jury deliberations begin in indecency with child case

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Jurors were to begin deliberations this morning in the indecency with a child case of an Odessan charged with exposing himself to an 11-year-old boy after the child entered the man's apartment to buy candy.

During testimony Thursday in the 161st District Court, four boys — ages ranging from 7 to 12 — testified that Gene Bobo, 52, stood nearby naked from the waist down as they bought cut-rate candy he had in his apartment.

According to the testimony of five Dowling Elementary School students, Bobo had established that they could enter his apartment without knocking if the door was ajar when they came to buy the candy, which he sold below the retail price charged in stores.

The fifth boy to testify, an 11-year-old, said he had told the other four of Bobo's arrangement. The 11-year-old's story remained unchanged after defense attorney Matt Thomas' questioning.

Under questioning by Thomas, the 11-year-old denied at least three times that Bobo had told him the arrangement had changed and the children should not enter without permission.

A 7-year-old testified that Bobo had shaken hands with him when he went to the northside apartment with the alleged victim.

Thomas emphasized this was the only evidence of Bobo touching the boys while they were in his apartment to buy the candy. He insisted the prosecution had failed to proved a necessary element of the crime — that Bobo intended to be sexually aroused.

None of the children said Bobo had an erection while in their presence. But prosecutor Roger Jones denied this meant he had failed to prove his case.

Jones insisted Texas law defined intent as "acts done or words spoken." If his case had not been proven well enough, "The classic trenchcoat flasher that does not have an erection could not be prosecuted," said Jones.

All of the boys said they lived nearby Bobo's apartment, several either next door or across the street from the scene of alleged offense. The defendant's genitals were exposed on three occasions the boys came to the apartment, according to their testimony.

The indictment alleges that Bobo exposed himself to the victim on Oct. 30. The victim testified that he and two other boys had entered the apartment to buy candy, with Bobo nearby exposing his genitals, and that Bobo had made no attempt to cover his genitals on any of the occasions.

The child said it was widely known to the neighborhood children that Bobo sold candy cheaper than the stores. Thomas stressed the fact the boys entered at least once without knocking, though testimony on this fact varied between the four boys questioned on it.

Odessa Police Detective Con Brazeal told the jury that Bobo was naked from the waist down when he went to the defendant's residence at Imperial Crest Apartments, located at 6501 Eastridge, on Nov. 1.

Brazeal's testimony that the apartment door had been ajar when he knocked supported the boys' versions of the incidents.

Bobo remains free on a personal recognizance bond. He was arrested on Nov. 20.

While the indictment alleges the offense occurred on Oct. 30, the police report of the incident lists the date of the offense as Oct. 28. The report list the crime as indecent exposure, a misdemeanor.

If found guilty of indecency with a child, Bobo faces 2 to 10 years in prison and up to a $5,000 fine, while indecent exposure is a lesser crime he could be found guilty of by the jury.

Under cross-examination by Thomas, the alleged victim said Bobo had shave cream on his face and was holding a razor on one occasion. The defense attorney worked throughout the proceedings to establish the children surprised Bobo in his apartment.

Another 12-year-old boy said Bobo had instructed them to tell other children about the cut-rate candy he was selling. He testified Bobo never scolded the boys for entering without knocking.

While five testified Thursday, District Attorney Eric Augesen said Judge Tryon Lewis had limited the prosecution to bringing 7 before the jury in this case. Currently, no other indictments have been issued for Bobo.

Lewis denied Thomas' motion for an instructed verdict, which asked that Bobo be acquitted or convicted of the lesser offense of indecent exposure, because of the lack of sufficient evidence.

While urging this motion, Thomas maintained Bobo was not guilty of either offense because the children entered his apartment without permission.

Both sides closed their cases Thursday afternoon. Lewis told jurors to expect to hear the charge and closing arguments this morning.

Retarded youths to compete

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Several Midland youths will participate in a regional Texas Special Olympics basketball tournament to be held in Lubbock this weekend.

"Area teams from Midland, Lubbock, Levelland and other towns will be participating," said the team's coach, Kathy Wade of the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens. "From there, the winning team will go on to state competitions."

The Special Olympics, a year-round, on-going event held for mentally retarded youths features a wide variety of activities from track and field, softball, basketball, frisbee and soccer to gymnastics, bowling and wheelchair races.

The winners at the annual Texas Special Olympics may have a chance to compete in the quadrennial International Special Olympics.

"But if you win the state competitions, it doesn't necessarily mean you go on to the Internationals," said Ms. Wade. "They work it funny — you have to apply and qualify."

The state competitions will be held March 1, 2 and 3 in Abilene.

For Ms. Wade, 32, the experience has been challenging.

"I haven't played basketball since high school," she said. "But that was 15 years ago. Fortunately, David Butler, who works in one of the MARC homes is helping — he really knows basketball."

Ms. Wade said that although the team members are retarded, "none of them are severely retarded or handicapped."

"We have one boy who has Down Syndrome and another with a nerve disease, but they are a bunch of athletic boys.

"The word 'retarded' takes in a whole lot," she said. "They are real good guys. Some of them pick up on some things that others don't, though."

"For instance," she continued, "the concept of guarding in basketball is hard for some of them to understand."

The teams, which play by high schools are also given special allowances.

"There are a few modifications in the rules," said Ms. Wade. "They are allowed to move their feet if they don't gain advantage (travel) and no lane times are called (three second violations)."

The team, while open to retarded youths, is still selective.

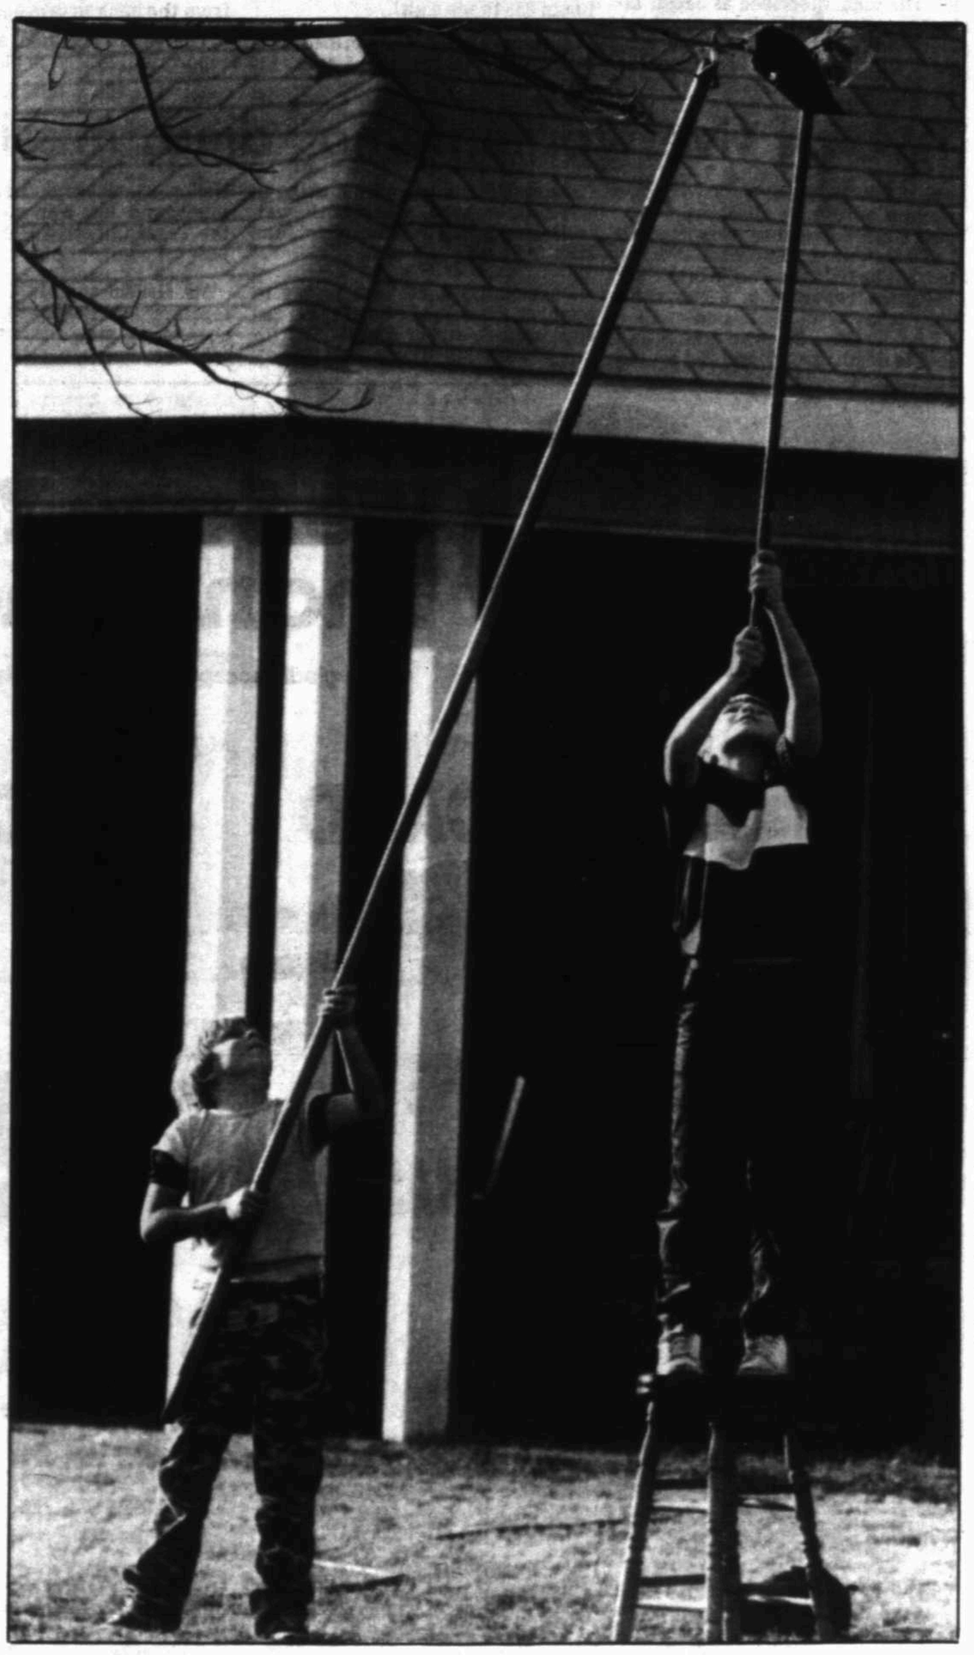

"Not everyone wanted to be on the team," she said. "We had one boy who would get seizures and fall whenever he ran. We just couldn't let him play because we were afraid he would get hurt."

The team, which practices twice a week at the Midland Parks and Recreation Center will be playing other teams on Saturday starting at 8 a.m. at O.L. Slayton Junior High School in Lubbock.

"We've been practicing," said Ms. Wade, "but not long enough."

The team members range in age from 15 to 26, but "I call them my boys," she said.

Team members are: Ronnie Hank, Wayne Smith, David Sanchez, Ricky Anderson, Floyd Sprouse, Mark Rhymes, Wayne Morgan, Nolan Cradall, William Woods and Sherman Hughes.

Construction will soon begin for Langtry Village

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Construction on a second housing project for elderly and/or handicapped persons should start by March 29, according to Bobby Trimble with the Christmas in April group that has coordinated local boards and federal paperwork on the project.

Trimble announced the starting construction date Thursday afternoon during a meeting of the Midland Housing Authority at City Hall. The Housing Authority board of commissioners signed a management agreement to operate the facility.

Dubbed Langtry Village for its proximity to North Pecos Street, the 85-unit facility was approved in September 1983 by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. It will be operated under a Section 8 housing subsidy program in which tenants will pay a portion of their income for rent and the remainder will be paid by HUD.

If construction can't start by March 29, another extension will have to be requested from the Washington, D.C., HUD office, according to Trimble.

Housing Authority board members expressed some doubts about operating Langtry Village with Chairman Gene Abbott saying he was concerned about it draining money from the Housing Authority.

Trimble said afterward that if the Housing Authority hadn't signed the agreement or decides later to pull out, a different route will have to be found to operate it.

The Housing Authority operates the first housing project for elderly persons known as Hillcrest Manor on Scharbauer Drive with Donald Craig as secretary. Langtry Village will be on Scharbauer Drive east of Hillcrest with Pecos Street dividing the two.

Hillcrest stays full with 100 tenants and a waiting list of almost that many, according to Craig.

Langtry is estimated to cost $3.5 million, said Trimble. In 1983 when the city applied for the project, Midland was approved for about $3 million to construct Langtry Village — the name reflecting the historical connections between the city of Pecos and a famous woman by the name of Lily Langtry.

This second facility is the culmination of efforts by Christmas in April, Midland Housing Finance Corporation, Midland Housing Authority and the city of Midland. The finance corporation put up $600,000 to purchase the tract on which the housing complex will be constructed. A nonprofit corporation was required to sponsor the application and that is when CIA was brought into the picture.

Trimble and his organization has served as the coordinator with the others, doing the paperwork, talking with HUD officials and trying to meet the deadlines. The architectural and engineering drawings are finished and have been approved, he said. Originally designed to be constructed of steel and stucco, the building was changed to block walls with concrete planks, he said.

Man reports he scared off burglar near wife's bed

From Staff Reports

A Midland man told police he scared off a burglar early this morning after finding the man in his bedroom standing over his sleeping wife.

James Kinsley, 601 George No. 81, said he was watching television in the living room with a friend when he went upstairs to get his keys from the bedroom where his wife, Christi, was sleeping.

According to reports, Kinsley saw a white male with long brown hair and wearing a blue and red thermal shirt and bluejeans standing beside the bed. Kinsley said he yelled at the man, who fled out the patio door and jumped to the ground.

Investigating police found a blue windbreaker with a woman's gold watch in a pocket and a pair of blue and white Nike tennis shoes on the patio. The items did not belong to the Kinsleys, reports said.

Footprints matching the shoes were found around a tree in front of the patio and police said it appeared the man climbed the tree to look into the apartment before climbing a fence to reach the patio. Entry was gained through the unlocked patio door.

A 14-year-old boy on a bike was almost run over by a car Wednesday afternoon after the driver apparently thought the boy had thrown a snowball at his car.

According to police reports, the child's mother, Kay Courtney, 2503 Seaboard, told police the boy was knocked off his bike, which sustained $150 worth of damage. The child suffered a bruise to the right thigh during the 5 p.m. incident.

There was no description of the vehicle, according to police reports. The case is being investigated as an aggravated assault.

In other complaints filed with police, Robert Dorn of 413 E. Hickory, said he was walking to his car parked in the church lot at 310 Fairgrounds Road when he saw a 13-year-old boy cutting the tires on his car. The boy, a student at Alamo Junior High School, was detained by Dorn until police arrived, reports said.

Total amount of criminal mischief was listed at $4,780.

Gail Caudle, 4317 Sentinel, told police two 13-year-old boys approached her daughter in an alley at 4 p.m. Thursday and stole her $629 clarinet and a $55-pair of tennis shoes. The girl said she had been harassed by the boys for the past two days.

Robert Doggett of 5101 N. A St. No. 280 said his apartment was burglarized and $300 in cash was taken. Entry was gained through a rear glass door between 7 p.m. Thursday and 1:30 a.m. today, according to reports.

Kay Shook of 814½ N. Loraine reported her purse containing $2,000 worth of jewelry was stolen at 7:30 p.m. Thursday from her desk in her office, 301 W. Ohio.

According to reports, she had walked to the back room of the business when she heard a bell ring, signaling someone had entered the front door. When she went back to the front, her purse was missing from her desk.

The purse contained a billfold, $30 in cash, credit cards, checks, a $100 gold-and-diamond watch and a $900 gold ring.

Jaycees honor First City vice president

Wageman named Boss of the Year

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

After Judge Pat Baskin paid tribute to the Midland Jaycees Thursday night as "an organization which manufactures lots of civic geniuses," the Jaycees selected one of their own, Alan Hale, to receive the Distinguished Service Award for 1985.

"He has demonstrated unusual leadership ability through his personal and professional development and through his civic, religious, charitable and social development," said last year's winner, Grant Billingsley, in presenting the award during a banquet at the Petroleum Club.

Billingsley noted that the 33-year-old Hale has been active in the Boy Scouts, the United Way, the Tape Lending Library and the Midland Association of Retarded Citizens, and served as president of the Jaycees in 1980-81.

"He has distinguished himself through his unselfish and extraordinary dedication of time and energy to his community, to youth, to his employer and to his family."

Hale is vice president of real estate for First City National Bank.

"This is a great surprise and a great honor," said Hale in accepting the award. "I don't think I'm as deserving of this honor (as previous recipients), but I will take it seriously and accept it graciously. I love the Midland Jaycees."

Thomas Wageman was honored as Boss of the Year.

"Since he became president of RepublicBank First National Midland, the bank has begun to show a profit and morale is way up," said Jaycees President Glenn Jennings. "And he's been extremely active in helping the Jaycees to build the park (Centennial Plaza in downtown Midland)."

Accepting his award, Wageman said he couldn't be boss of the year "without having the employees of the year. This award goes to all the folks at our bank and our customers."

Introducing featured speaker Pat Baskin, master of ceremonies Parker Humes noted the presence at the head table of Baskin's wife Joan, president-elect of the Chamber of Commerce.

"I can't help but think if we can have a woman president of the Chamber of Commerce, how long before we have a woman in the Jaycees?" Humes said. The assembled Jaycees responded with a mixture of groans and scattered applause.

Baskin, after being introduced by Humes as "The only Democrat in Midland who admits it," talked about the Jaycees' contributions to the local community.

"It has been routinely and without exception the finest civic organization in Midland," he said.

Past president of Lions International addresses club

From Staff Reports

Good things are happening for deserving persons around the world "because of you as Lions and the many worthwhile programs you sponsor," Everett J. "Ebb" Grindstaff of Ballinger, past president of International Association of Lions Clubs, told more than 200 Midland Lions and their wives at a Super Lions Meeting this week at Midland Center.

"But you can achieve even greater results in changing lives and making the world a better place in which to live if you are willing to go that extra mile," he said.

The Midland Downtown Lions club hosted the meeting, which attracted members of other local Lions clubs, including Southside, Westside, Morning, Suburban, Northside and Tall City. Honored were 21 past presidents of the Downtown Club.

Grindstaff, who served as president of Lions International in 1982-83, lauded the Downtown group on its many achievements during the past 56 years, stating the club now is the fourth largest in the international association.

Declaring that any worthwhile organization, program or project should have a reason for its existence, he said, "Do you have a reason for what you are doing?

"Too often we are guilty of following the crowd without proper thought, planning and reasoning."

Noting that many persons plead "slightly guilty" of such shortcomings, "How do you plead?" he asked.

"Many of us plead slightly guilty of not living up to our best potential; of not expressing our gratitude to God and to man; of getting our values mixed up; of failing to recognize the hunger and suffering which exist in the world, and slightly guilty of considering themselves only slightly guilty."

The Ballinger attorney said Lions International is involved in the war against drugs and is seeing a decrease in drug abuse by high school students. He cited specific programs being conducted by Lions clubs worldwide, adding that such programs are being accepted favorably around the world.

Grindstaff also mentioned Lions International's diabetic program and its efforts in sight conservation and eye transplants.

"This is what it is all about," he said, "and the good things are happening because of you and other Lions around the world who care and share. Thank you for what you are doing and have done in the past."

Midlander says he was swindled out of $180 in card game

From Staff Reports

A 56-year-old Midland man told police he was swindled out of $180 in a card game Thursday afternoon by two men before he realized he had been conned and tried to take the men to the police station.

The victim told police he was approached by a black male in his 20s in the Main Post Office parking lot. The man, described as 5-feet, 11-inches-tall and slender with short black hair, said he was from Alabama and was in town because of his father's death.

The suspect, wearing blue pants and shirt, a blue jacket and a blue baseball cap with a white triangular design, told the victim he had inherited $40,000 from his father.

Police reports indicate the suspect, who flashed the victim a large roll of money, told him he would pay for a ride if the victim would take him to the "White Star Hotel," Room 333 to see a girl.

A second suspect, described as a black male in his 40s, 5-feet, 11-inches-tall and weighing 190 pounds, approached the two. The victim and the second suspect, who had short black and gray hair and was wearing blue pants and a brown fleece coat, tried to convince the first man to put his money in the bank, reports said.

The man, claiming he didn't trust banks, said he wanted the victim to withdraw a large amount of money from the bank to prove it was safe.

The victim declined, according to reports, but agreed to play a game of "Three Card Monty," a con game.

The trio went to Nita's Cafe where they played the card game before the victim realized he had been swindled.

He then got the two suspects into his truck and was attempting to take them to the police station when they grabbed the keys from the truck and threw them on the ground before fleeing on foot.

Police are asking the public to immediately report any individuals matching the descriptions of the two and any similar con game.

Two of five women who died, missing co-workers

FORT WORTH (AP) — Two of five women who have disappeared or died since September in two suburban areas were co-workers at a restaurant in 1983, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported in a copyright story today.

Lisa Griffin, 20, who was found shot to death Jan. 10, and 23-year-old Catherine Davis, reported missing in September 1983, were both waitresses at a pizza restaurant in June 1983, the newspaper said.

Police, who have been trying to establish a link in the deaths and disappearances, earlier said Ms. Griffin knew both Ms. Davis and Cindy Heller, 23, whose decomposed body was found Jan. 5 in a creekbed on the Texas Christian University campus.

Ms. Griffin and Ms. Davis worked together, said Bob Bissonnette, manager of the pizza restaurant. But he told the newspaper he was uncertain how long they worked there.

The newspaper also reported it had learned that Mary Till, an Arlington woman found shot to death Jan. 4 in far south Dallas, was a part-time waitress at Ridglea Country Club, where Ms. Davis worked as a bookkeeper until her disappearance.

Boy Scout leaders receive Silver Beaver Award

Four adult Boy Scout leaders from Midland, Odessa and Alpine are to receive Scouting's Silver Beaver Award tonight in the 61th annual Recognition Banquet of the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boys Scouts of America.

To receive the award are Norman Henry and Woodrow Wickman, both of Midland; Dan Wagoner of Odessa, and Richard K. "Dick" Zimmer of Alpine.

The Silver Beaver Award is Scouting's highest award for outstanding volunteer service and is presented for "noteworthy service of exceptional character to youth by registered Scouters" within the 18-county area covered by the Buffalo Trail Council.

Ken Peeler of Midland is to be installed as president of the Council for 1985. Another Midlander, Michael Williams, is to be named treasurer.

To be appointed Council vice presidents are Frank Cowden Jr., Robert M. Leibrock, Rudy Wright, Tom Wageman, Vance Hendricks, K.D. Van Horn and Tom Savage, all of Midland; J. Arnold Marshall of Big Spring and Gary Watkins of Odessa. R.W. "Whitey" Harrington of Odessa is to be named Council commissioner.

Outgoing Council president George Eng of Midland is to be presented an oil painting in recognition of his three years of distinguished volunteer service to the Council.

To be named 1985 district chairmen within the Buffalo Trail Council are Carl Bradley of Big Spring for the Lone Star District; Ed Jones of Midland for the Chaparral District; Ron Lunsford of Kermit for the Sand Hills District; L.E. "Doc" Griffin of Snyder for the Lone Buffalo District; Tommy Hill of Odessa for the Comanche Trails District, and Richard K. "Dick" Zimmer of Alpine for the Big Bend District.

Approximately 300 adult leaders are to attend the banquet in the Holiday Inn Centre in Odessa. Robert Pomeroy, director of the National Court of Honor for the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, is to be the featured speaker. Master of ceremonies is to be Eng.

Steve Odom of Midland is Scout executive for the Council, which is headquartered in Midland.

Two teens arrested for robbery

From Staff Reports

A 19-year-old unemployed butcher from Midland and a 17-year-old youth were arrested Thursday night on charges of aggravated robbery in connection with the theft of beer Thursday at a Kent convenience store.

Lt. Earl Luckey of the Midland Police Department said the incident, first reported as a theft, occurred after the two entered the store and stole a small quantity of beer, according to a customer who witnessed the incident.

A store employee chased the suspects out the door, where one turned on him with a knife and cut him before fleeing. The employee was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Both suspects were arrested on a warrant at 8:30 p.m. at the home of the 19-year-old in the 100 block of North Tyler. The youth gave police an address in the 1000 block of South Terrell.

The two are expected to be formally arraigned today.

Suspect to have psychiatric exam

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — An Odessa man charged with the stabbing death of a pregnant 28-year-old woman on Aug. 21 will be sent to Austin for a psychiatric examination.

District Judge Gene Ater on Thursday granted the motion filed by the attorney for John Henry Hill that the 33-year-old man needed a special psychiatric examination before he could stand trial.

Hill was arrested and charged with capital murder after he told deputies he had visions of the murder of 28-year-old Janet Eva Gregston.

The victim's body was found about 5 p.m. on Aug. 21 on East Loop 338 in Ector County. She died from multiple stab wounds.

Craddick named to committees

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — State Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, has been named to serve on two committees in the State Legislature: the Energy Committee and the Natural Resources Committee. He will chair the latter group as he did in the last session.

Craddick said the first hearing on the water package is scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Two years ago he bottled up a water package in his committee because of what he termed problems with the bays and estuaries portion. Last Friday he filed in the House a bill that he said he hopes will resolve some of the problems with the last piece of legislation.

Gov. Mark White has said that passage of a water bill is a priority in this session.

Singer, guitarist started out young

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Clarence Garlow's business card says it all. Spelled out against a lime green backgound, the words "Let's let the Bon-Ton Roolay."

The Cajun "Let the good times roll" may be spoken and spelled several ways, as Garlow's record shows.

He has worked as a longshoreman, a mail carrier, and he has owned a television repair shop, but Garlow's first love is music. At 73 he says it always will be.

Known for many things, Garlow sings the blues as easily as he plays the Cajun guitar. He spent years on Golden Triangle airwaves as a radio disc jockey. Others know Garlow as the man who first showed Johnny Winter how to play guitar.

In his seven decades, Garlow has covered a lot of musical ground. His love for music perhaps was instilled in him when he was born. His father from Welsh, La., had a "little-old, three-piece string band." When Garlow was 8 and living with his family in Beaumont, he picked up an old fiddle belonging to his father. The first song he scratched out was "Home Sweet Home."

Although he got a good jump on a music career, as Garlow grew up he found more conventional ways of earning a living. He worked as a longshoreman in Beaumont before he ran his own business.

Thirty years had passed since Garlow first played "Home Sweet Home" on a borrowed fiddle, when he decided to start his own band. Garlow says it was musician T-Bone Walker who persuaded him to put down his mail bag and go on the road as a musician. Garlow has never regretted his decision.

The Clarence Garlow Band hit the local bandstand circut to hone its skills and to learn more about the the business of music. In 1949, Garlow went to Houston and recorded "Bon ton Roula" (another spelling of good times roll.) The song was played nationwide and to this day, remains Garlow's trademark.

The success of "Bon Ton Roula" paved the way in getting more recording deals for Garlow and his band. In 1951, he recorded "Bum Baby Bum," "Foggy Blues" on Jay Miller's feature label in Crowley, La.

Garlow

Garlow's other recording contracts included "Jumpin at the Zadacoe" and "New Bon-Ton Roulay" for Aladdin Records and George Khoury's Lake Charles label.

Later, Garlow took time off from his recording career to become a disc jockey at an area radio station. During his time at KJET radio, Garlow met the young Johnny Winter.

Garlow remembers the day he first hear Winter play the guitar. Garlow had gone to a music store to buy some strings for his own guitar. Inside the store, he heard someone playing a guitar in a back room. The guitarist turned out to be Winter, who was awestruck by Garlow's presence, Garlow says.

A fast friendship formed. Garlow says he took Winter to blues clubs and showed him a few pointers on the guitar. Although Garlow is frequently introduced as Winter's teacher, he dismisses the notion. Garlow says, "I really never taught him. I just showed him a few things."

Regardless of their implied teacher-student relationship, it's obvious Winter still thinks a great deal of Garlow. Winter dedicated his 1984 release, "Guitar Slinger," to Garlow.

TENDER STEAK AT A TENDER PRICE!
NEW YORK STEAK AND RIBEYE

When you think of Gardski's, what pictures pop into your mind? Hamburgers? Soft Tacos? French fries? Great, we like that. But, we'd like it even more if you added tender, juicy, fully-aged charbroiled steaks to that list. The same magic that Gardski's works on all their menu items is now lovingly used on steaks.

Let's take a closer look at our steaks. We'll start with...Gardski's New York Strip. Gardski's starts with a hefty, lean cut of fully-aged beef charbroiled just the way you want; rare, medium, well-done, or anywhere in-between. We serve it with a tossed salad with your choice of dressings and your choice of Gardski's famous fries or thick mashed potatoes, or a sumptuous rice pilaf. Just say the word and this steak is yours for only $8.95.

As if that wasn't enough Gardski's offers yet another steak...Gardski's Ribeye. Picture a tender, marbled ribeye steak, cut from a fully-aged side of beef, broiled to perfection and served to you with all the extras. It's just $8.95 too. But, don't make any decisions just yet.

Maybe, it's time to try...Gardski's Mexican Steak. Choose either the New York Strip or the Ribeye and prepare yourself for a treat from south of the border. Your charbroiled steak is topped with our delicious guacamole. We serve it to you with spicy hot jalapenos and zingy salsa on the side. A muy bueno fiesta for your mouth.

Now Gardski's knows that a great steak dinner doesn't start and stop at the plate. So, we searched for the perfect wines for your perfect dinner. We found Piesporters and Leibfraumilch from Germany, Lancers and Mateus from Portugal and reds like Beaujolais and Cabernet Sauvignon. These wines are sure to add a sparkle to your dinner. Did we say sparkle? Gardski's even has California champagnes for every occasion.

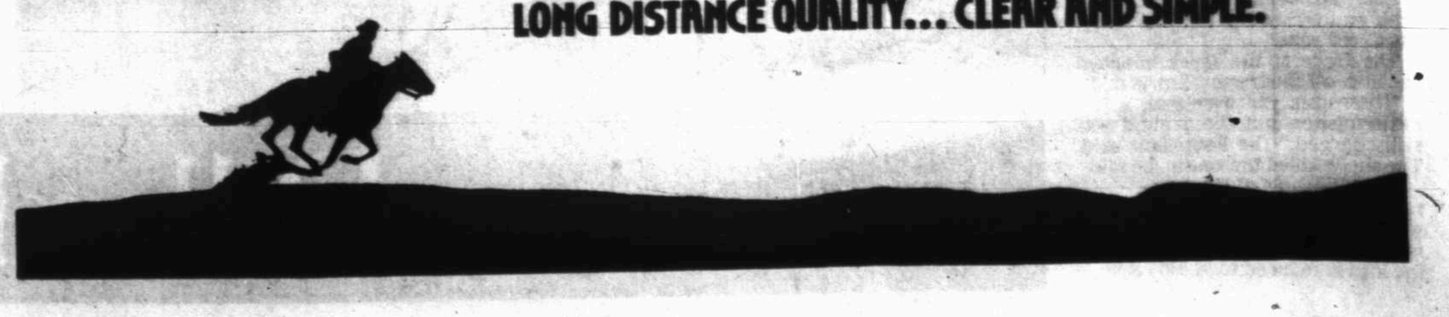

Now that, in your mind, you've savored our lean, fully-aged New York Strip, yearned for our juicy, marbled ribeye, whispered "ole" over Gardski's spicy Mexican steak and rolled our wines over your tastebuds. Now, picture one more thing ...YOURSELF at Gardski's. Get to Gardski's tonight.

Dioxin level 'harmless' at Scouts' Jamboree site, officials disclose

STATE

IRVING (AP) — The scare that began after Army officials disclosed that Boy Scouts from around the world camped in Virginia near dioxin-contaminated soil in 1981 was all for nothing, officials say.

Dr. Walter Menninger, who headed the private team that evaluated test results from soil at Virginia's Fort A.P. Hill, said at a news conference here Thursday that extensive testing has shown that dioxin levels were minimal and could cause no harm.

None of the 30,000 Scouts and leaders who attended the 10-day 1981 Boy Scout Jamboree needs to be tested for exposure, he said. Scout officials said they plan to return to the site in July for the 1985 Jamboree.

"The officials who first set loose the dioxin scare were irresponsible in playing on people's emotions rather than medical evidence," Menninger said.

Eating it, inhaling it or absorbing it through the skin are the only ways to be poisoned by dioxin, he said, adding that "unless one were bathing in the dirt or eating in the dirt, one should not be concerned."

The discovery of the pesticide byproduct, which has caused cancer in laboratory animals, in soil at Fort A.P. Hill last November alarmed parents of Scouts who camped at the base for 10 days.

Army tests released Nov. 9 showed contamination of up to 228 parts per billion under a storage shed where herbicides had leaked. The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta says the safe level of dioxin is 1 ppb.

Scouts from Texas and other Southwest troops had camped within 150 feet of the shed.

But 401 subsequent soil and water samples by the Army and Environmental Protection Agency, and a series of tests by a Boy Scout-hired consulting firm, revealed only one area just outside the fenced shed had over 6 ppb, Menninger said

Other traces of dioxin were isolated and below 1 ppb, he said.

"The likelihood of Scouts having contacted, inhaling or ingesting the dioxin is so remote it can be ignored," Menninger said.

The contaminated soil will be cleaned by the Army in a few weeks, Scout officials said, and letters explaining the results of the organizations' investigation have been mailed to the 1981 Jamboree participants and all Boy Scout Councils.

"As you can see by our actions over the last two months, we are committed to the health and welfare of every Scout," head Scout Ben H. Love said at the Thursday afternoon conference at the Scouts' national headquarters. "We're very relieved."

Love said less than 1 percent of the Scouts had canceled their 1985 jamboree registration after the dioxin reports were publicized.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Army Secretary John O. Marsh Jr. said he was "pleased" with the Boy Scouts' decision, adding that "the Army's goal has been to support the Boy Scouts of America and to provide them a location for their Jamboree."

Marsh said the 1985 Jamboree will be held away from the contamination site, but "clean-up of the contaminated material will begin next week and will be completed well before the Jamboree."

Man followed religious beliefs when he transported aliens, judge says

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A sanctuary movement worker who took three illegal aliens to a bus station did so based on his religious beliefs, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Hayden Head Jr.'s ruling Thursday shifts the burden of proof to federal prosecutors in the case against Jack Elder, the 41-year-old director of Casa Oscar Romero, a San Benito halfway house.

Head recessed pretrial hearings to Monday. Jury selection in Elder's trial was to begin that day, but Head delayed it until Tuesday.

Elder is charged with illegally transporting three aliens from the halfway house to a bus station 10 miles away in Harlingen in March. His attorneys argued he acted on religious grounds, and that the charges should therefore be dropped.

Defense attorney Steve Cooper had called several sanctuary movement leaders from across the country to the stand on Wednesday and wanted to continue that process on Thursday, but Head cut him off and ruled on the point.

Citing two Supreme Court rulings on freedom of religion, Head ruled that testimony showed Elder, a Roman Catholic, was "seriously committed to his religious values."

The sanctuary movement is a group of churches nationwide that pledge haven to Central American refugees they say deserve political asylum. The federal government has said the aliens are economic refugees.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Berg asked Elder on Thursday whether he knew of the U.S. Border Patrol check points and told illegal aliens about them.

After some debate, Elder answered, "Yes."

Berg also asked if the Salvadorans he took to the bus station told him they were going to Houston.

Man apologetic for girlfriend's death kills self

CONROE (AP) — A man who left a note apoligizing for the shooting death of a former girlfriend has died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound, authorities say.

Charles Williams, 40, died at 4:45 p.m. Thursday, more than a day after he shot himself in the head with a .32-caliber pistol, said Montgomery County Medical Center spokeswoman Julia Hales.

The north Harris County man pulled the trigger as Montgomery County Sheriff's Department deputies confronted him Wednesday morning along an isolated road, investigators said.

Officers found a note in the car that referred to the shooting death of Sallee Semkin, 27, an executive secretary, said Sheriff's Capt. Wayne Eason. Ms. Semkin had been shot seven times in the back, face and throat.

The note said, "I truly did not mean to harm her. My only intention was to frighten. I am deeply sorry."

Friends said the couple had dated for five years, but broke up recently.

Harris County sheriff's investigators said Ms. Semkin returned to her apartment from a health spa Monday and telephoned her roommate, who was still at the spa, to report someone apparently was in their apartment.

The roommate told Ms. Semkin to check the apartment while she waited on the line. Moments later, the phone was hung up. After the roommate called back and got a busy signal, she called for help.

Authorities said Ms. Semkin had apparently gotten into her car to flee when the assailant fired the seven shots.

Two cousins electrocuted

AUSTIN (AP) — Two cousins working at a construction site were electrocuted when one of the victims hit a high-voltage power line and the other tried to save him, fire department officials say.

The Thursday accident occurred when a drill being operated by one of the men hit a high-voltage power line.

The names of the two victims, ages 20 and 25, were not available, fire department officials said.

"The 25-year-old was driving a testing drill with a vertical boom," said fire Lt. Willie Kotrla of Engine Co. 25. "The boom came into contact with an overhead power line carrying 39,000 volts."

The force of the shock knocked the man off the tractor, Kotrla said.

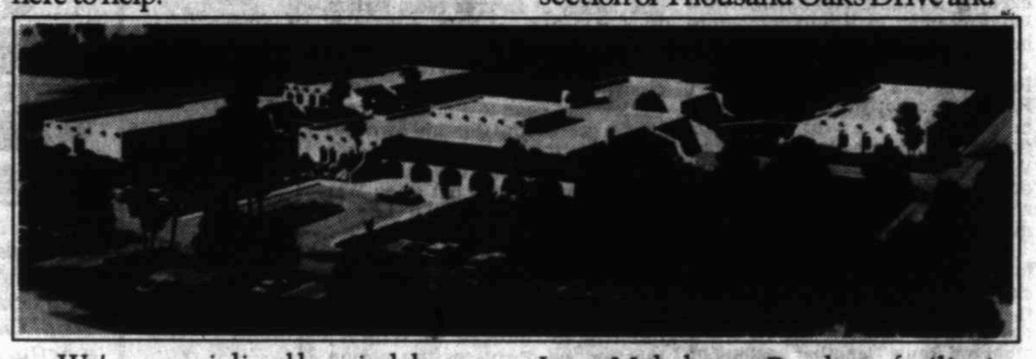

"His cousin ran over with a fire extinguisher, but the ground was still charged," the lieutenant said. The shock killed the cousin, he said.

John Williams of the Lower Colorado River Authority, said the line was a 69,000 volt line, but Kortla said when the voltage goes to a ground, the load is reduced to 39,000 volts.

On January 19, Your Chances For Successful Alcoholism & Drug Treatment Will More Than Triple.

We're Opening The Villa de Tejas Recovery Center In San Antonio With Over Three Times The Capacity Of Our Old One.

The need is there. And it's greater than ever. And as part of one of the country's most respected treatment centers for chemical dependency, we're here to help.

We're a specialized hospital designed for the treatment of alcoholism, stress and addiction.

And we're expanding.

Our new recovery center will open its doors on January 19 with three times more space than before. And we'll be having an Open House from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. You're encouraged to come by, tour the facility and meet some of our staff. We're sure you'll be impressed by our people, our methods and our new 72-bed facility.

In addition, a separate wing of our facility is dedicated solely to the specialized treatment of adolescent chemical dependency. A need that, in itself, is growing day by day.

Located just 2½ miles north of International Airport near the intersection of Thousand Oaks Drive and Jones Maltsberger Road, our facility is easily accessible and convenient for family members.

So, if you ever need our help, just stop by or call. We're Brookwood Recovery Center/Villa de Tejas. And we're ready to offer you more help than ever before.

Midland florist to help 'arrange' inauguration

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Midland florist Mildred Riddle Farris, owner of Mildred's Flowers, will be one of about 60 florists from across the nation who will help design and build the floral arrangements for President Reagan's inauguration next week.

Mildred Riddle Farris honored

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

When President Reagan is inaugurated for the second time, Midlander Mildred Riddle Farris will be surrounded with the sweet smell of success.

Mrs. Farris, owner of Mildred's Flowers in Midland, is one of about 60 florists from across the nation who have been invited to "help design and execute all the floral arrangements for all the inaugural events," she said.

The invitation, which came from the president of the Society of American Floriculture, was extended only to members of the Academy of American Floriculture, an honorary society whose members must be "recommended and then accepted" for membership, Mrs. Farris said.

Because this is the 50th inauguration of a U.S. President, the SAF wants the floral arrangements to be special. According to information Mrs. Farris received from the SAF office, more than 100,000 flowers will be used to make more than 2100 different arrangements, 270 of which will be 18-feet tall. Also included will be 950 centerpieces, 75 suspended arrangements, 100 arrangements for special events and 57 floats for the inauguration parade.

Among the flowers used will be roses, anthurium, carnations, spider mums, gladioli, standard mums, white carnations, white dendrobium orchids and white cattleya orchids, she added.

Even in mid-winter, florists aren't expected to have trouble finding fresh flowers. "Most of our product is grown in greenhouses," Mrs. Farris said. "Probably the majority will be from California," especially because the President is a Californian.

Although other Texas florists will be participating in the event, including three from Dallas and one from Fort Worth, Mrs. Farris said to her knowledge she will be the only florist there from West Texas.

Mrs. Farris said she became a florist because "it was something I wanted to do all my life, ever since I was a little girl." She waited until her children were "almost grown" before she sought employment in her chosen profession.

"My first experience was with Buddy Pullium at the old Buddy's Floral," where she learned basics of the profession. "He let me stand around and watch and get in the way ..."

Mildred's Flowers was opened in 1966 at its present location, 3802 Shell, making it the "oldest continuous ownership shop" in Midland, she said. Her original financing was through money Mrs. Farris inherited from her mother.

After 18 years as a florist, and with design experience in several foreign countries and "all over the United States," Mrs. Farris still lives in Midland and loves it here. "I've lived in Midland for 36 years. ... Midland has been good to me. I probably would not have been able to do what I've done anywhere else but Midland."

Cost of first lady's inaugural wardrobe estimated

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — What would it cost to purchase in a store the kind of wardrobe Nancy Reagan has ordered to wear in the celebration of her husband's second inauguration?

Certainly more than $25,000.

"That's ridiculous," Mrs. Reagan told a wire service reporter of that estimate.

However, a survey of industry sources confirms that the costs, at retail, for the clothes Mrs. Reagan plans to wear to the major inaugural festivities, excluding some accessories, would be $46,000.

The White House has declined to comment on the figures.

But according to retailers and manufacturers, the costs break down as follows:

— A totally beaded gown with Art Deco design and bolero effect by James Galanos, $22,500. The Austrian and Czechoslovakian glass beads, took more than 300 hours to apply by hand, the designer said last week.

— An electric blue matching coat and dress, each with a chain link belt, by Adolfo, $2,800. The designer has also made a roller-brimmed hat in the same blue

— A lacquer-red, heavy silk side-draped gown by Bill Blass to be worn to the gala, $3,000.

— In addition, Mrs. Reagan has also ordered a white double-faced wool coat with three jeweled buttons that close off to the side to wear over the white gown, $6,000; and a white mink blouson jacket, also a Galanos design, $10,500.

— A red wool jersey wrap, made especially to go over the red dress worn to the gala, $1,000.

— A twisted pearl choker and earrings by Kenneth Jay Lane to wear with the red dress, $200. (Actually, the designer made two necklaces to give Mrs. Reagan a choice.)

This $46,000 total does not include specially handmade shoes or other accessories to complete each outfit.

DEAR ABBY

Close friend suggests 'swapping'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My best friend of almost 15 years was married for the third time about a year ago.

Two months ago, she asked me if I was interested in "swapping" husbands. I immediately said "No" because: (1) I think it's immoral; (2) I value my marriage; (3) I do not want to have sex with another man ... especially with my best friend's husband. (She said it was her husband's idea.)

Since then, my best friend has been cool to me, but she's been coming on to my husband ... flirting, pressing against him, etc. Also, her husband has been coming on to me. He told me he's been dreaming about me, and ever since he heard I refused to go to bed with him, it makes him want me all the more!

I asked my husband what he thought about the swapping idea just to see what he'd say, and he said, "I'll think about it." I was angry because he didn't say no right off the bat like I did.

I still value my friendship with my best friend, and I feel sorry for her because she married that jerk.

How can we stay friends with this couple without agreeing to swap, which I think is what everybody wants, except me? — NO NAMES, SMALL TOWN

DEAR NO NAMES: You can't. And the sooner you say goodbye to your best friend and the jerk she married, the healthier your marriage will be.

DEAR ABBY: This is a suggestion for "Hurt Grandmother," whose grandchildren (living in a distant state) never found the time to write thank-you notes for her lovely gifts and generous checks:

On the next gift-giving occasion, send a generous check — but "forget" to sign it.

I guarantee that within three days you will receive some kind of written message plus the check for your signature. — BARBARA

DEAR BARBARA: Beautiful. But most grandmothers are such pigeons, they would probably sign the check and promptly send it back.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 62 years to a man who has the habit of mumbling. No one can understand him because he won't speak up. And to make matters worse, he has the habit of putting his hand over his mouth when he talks.

Everytime he says something, I ask him to repeat it. It really is nerve-racking.

I have asked him in a nice way to please keep his hands away from his mouth when he talks and to speak up, but it's like talking to a wall.

Is there a solution? Or is it true that you can't teach an old horse new tricks? — MUMBLER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: When your mumbler says something you aren't able to understand, don't ask him to repeat it, just ignore him. If it's important (to him), he'll repeat it until he gets his message across.

You can teach an old horse new tricks if it's in the best interest of the old horse to learn.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Mrs. Anwar Sadat to present lecture at UT

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — Mrs. Jehan el-Sadat, former First Lady of Egypt, will present a public lecture on "The Road to Peace" at 4 p.m. Jan. 31 at the University of Texas.

The lecture will be the first of the Liz Sutherland Carpenter Distinguished Visiting Lectureship in the Humanities and Sciences. Although this public talk will be free, tickets should be obtained from West Mall Office Building 201 to insure seating. Tickets will be required until 3:45 p.m., at which time those without tickets will be seated.

Mrs. Sadat will also appear at two smaller forums at the LBJ Library to discuss "Literature in the Middle East" and "Women in the Middle East." She will tour the library with Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Mrs. Sadat was born in Cairo and was married to President Anwar Sadat for 30 years. In 1980 she received a master's degree in Arabic literature from Cairo University. She is currently working on her Ph.D. thesis.

For information about tickets, call Karen Bordelon or Ellen McDonald at (512) 471-1442.

New book study of sisterhood

Hearst News Service

Dale Atkins begins her new book, "Sisters," by confessing that for three decades her relationship with her older sister has been an important force in the shaping of her own life and that she has relived over and over childhood experiences and attitudes derived from growing up as a younger sibling.

"The older sibling often becomes a surrogate mother or father, whose judgments and criticisms are remembered throughout the life of the younger child. The older child always feels like the trailblazer, the role model for the rest of the family. And many times, this role is perceived as an unwanted burden," said Atkins, who holds a doctorate in educational psychology.

"Many people first confront these feelings when they look around and realize that this brother or sister is the only connection left with their earlier family life. Parents die or divorce, their own children leave the nest, and the meaning of the family connection looms larger."

But, Atkins discovered, the expectations developed from those childhood sibling relationships are often unrealistic.

"There is a fantasy we have about that ideal American family, which is something like those Thanksgiving dinners in Norman Rockwell paintings. But ideal families don't exist outside of 'The Waltons.' Often, these relationships are childhood memories, enhanced by the myth of the ideal family. A surprising number of sisters continue to operate on these old foundations and don't really know each other.

"The emotional ties are not as strong for brothers as for sisters," she claims. "Brothers often fill their lives with other close relationships. Brothers are providers, not nurturers. You give your brother a loan, but you don't nurse him. Although women relate to each other much differently than men, many of the same precepts apply in any sibling relationship."

Much of Atkins' book deals with how to resolve the childhood conflicts that sisters drag into adulthood, and ways that sisters can make their relationships more nurturing and realistic.

"Often, the most important aspect of realigning sister relationships has to do with seeing each other outside of the family context. Sisters who live far apart often connect only through the family in rituals that merely emphasize their childhood relationships. If they are able to talk with each other about matters other than their children and their parents, if they are able to see each other as adults, decades away from those old memories, they already have a better basis for supporting each other. Sisters have to learn to address issues between each other in non-threatening, honest ways that do not simply release anger."

Another way in which women reevaluate their relationships with their sisters is by finding a "sister-by-choice" to augment the "sister-by-birth" relationship.

"The phrase 'sisterhood' has been overused, but it does define a real relationship that women can have to each other that expands beyond simple friendship. For example, I have a person who is much closer to me than my sister. We have similar sisterlike feelings, but the relationship is more positive, more supportive. Most sisters-by-choice offer an unconditional acceptance that sisters-by-birth are unable to give. The perspective that a good sister-by-choice relationship can provide to a woman may help her reassess her relationship with her sister-by-birth. Many times, it helps work out old problems, allows women to find emotional support elsewhere and finally to see their sisters-by-birth as whole adults without all of the sibling war.

"The possibilities of a stable psychological development are much greater if the sibling relationship can be made positive."

Center to push for child protection laws

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children launched a nationwide push Monday to promote state legislation aimed at improving methods of finding and helping victimized children.

At a news conference, officials of the non-profit center said that they are distributing to legislators in more than a dozen states a wide-ranging guide that recommends tighter, more effective "state laws to protect children."

The targeted states include Alabama, California, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia.

The legislative push, set amid increasing public awareness of child victimization cases, marks one of the first major undertakings of the seven-month-old center, which estimates that as many as 1.5 million children are reported missing annually in the United States.

"Before we set up (the center), we kept track of all missing automobiles in this country — but not the missing children," Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., the sponsor of a missing child bill that is now law, said at the press conference.

Walsh charged that so far, states have been slow to act on child victimization because "there is no lobby behind it. There is no money behind it. Children don't vote." He said that he has more than 100 appointments with state legislators in the coming months to discuss the center's 54-page legislative guide.

Jay Howell, the center's executive director, said that some of the problems with current state laws include statutes of limitations that run out before children can report abuses committed against them years earlier.

Author studies 'househusbands'

Copley News Service

More men are pushing brooms, vacuuming carpets and washing dishes these days. But househusbands apparently haven't taken any tips from their wives.

According to sociology Professor William Beer of Brooklyn College in New York, men and women are a world apart when performing household tasks.

In the book "Househusbands: Men and Housework in American Families," Beer says men perform their duties one at a time, while women do a series of different tasks simultaneously.

For example, Beer says when a man prepares a meal, that's all he concentrates on. But while a women's cooking, she will wash dirty pots and pans, care for a child and chat on the phone at the same time.

Beer also claims that women are "naturally" cleaner and neater than men.

Dollar falls, gold firms

LONDON (AP) — The dollar fell in active European trading early today amid uncertainty over whether a meeting of finance ministers in Washington will help bring the U.S. currency down from record-high levels.

Gold bullion edged up in response the dollar's decline.

In line with its downward trend in New York late Thursday, the dollar was quoted lower against all major currencies shortly after European markets opened today.

Currency dealers said the market was unsettled by the meeting of finance officials from West Germany, Japan, Britain, France and the United States.

Late Thursday, U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said the group had reaffirmed a 2-year-old commitment to take action on a day-to-day basis, depending on market conditions. But the United States still believes prolonged market intervention by central banks would be futile, Regan said.

Midmorning dollar rates compared with levels in Europe late Thursday included:

–3.1675 West German marks, down from 3.1825.

–2.6700 Swiss francs, down from 2.67475.

–9.7115 French francs, down from 9.7525.

–3.57475 Dutch guilders, down from 3.5930.

–1,944.50 Italian lire, down from 1,957.00.

–1.32585 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3265.

The beleaguered British pound rose to $1.12315 from $1.1195. A London dealer said sterling's improvement was a sign the Washington economic summit was having some success in sapping the dollar's strength.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 253.95 yen, down from 254.10 yen. Later in London, the U.S. currency was quoted at 254.30 yen.

Gold was quoted at $307.15 in New York late Thursday.

Silver was bid at $6.23 an ounce in London, up from $6.20.

Commission sets 100 percent oil allowable

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission once again has set the monthly statewide oil allowable at 100 percent of potential. The commission first went to 100 percent production in 1972, and February marks the 96th month in a row for the maximum allowable.

Major purchasers of Texas crude oil had submitted nominations to buy 2,228,213 barrels of oil per day next month, an increase of 11,417 compared with January.

As usual, the large East Texas oil field was restricted to 86 percent production to avoid possible waste.

Commission chairman Buddy Temple reported Thursday that crude oil and petroleum products imported into the United States averaged 4,694,000 barrels per day for the four weeks ending Dec. 28, an increase of 19,000 barrels a day from the same period in 1983.

Here are the February nominations by major purchasers of Texas crude oil, in barrels per day, with any changes from January in parentheses:

Amoco 153,000
Conoco 64,000
Exxon 280,100 (down 1,500)
Gulf 105,500
Mobil 168,900 (up 700)
Phillips 75,300
Shell 148,000
Union of California 25,500 (up 500)

U.S., allies plan efforts to stabilize dollar

By The Associated Press

The United States and four major allies say they are ready "to undertake coordinated intervention" in an effort to stabilize the dollar, which has skyrocketed in relation to other currencies.

Meanwhile, several major airlines announced fare reductions Thursday, price-cutting spread in the oil industry and the government said that 1984 was the best year for builders since 1979.

Outgoing Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and the top government finance officials of Japan, West German, Great Britain and France said they are ready to intervene jointly in currency markets "as necessary."

"We are willing to undertake coordinated intervention when we agree that it would be helpful," Regan said after the officials met in Washington.

Regan said there was no way to tell what would prompt the group to agree that intervention was called for. "We're having to make a decision in the marketplace, we can't make a decision in a vacuum," he said.

Government leaders have been worried about the rise of the dollar, which is up almost 80 percent over the past five years.The high dollar makes it easier for the allied countries to sell goods in the United States.

The Commerce Department said Thursday that construction of new homes reached 1.74 million units in 1984, up 2.4 percent from 1983 and the best since 1.75 million homes were built in 1979.

Leading the air fare reductions was American Airlines, which announced it will offer highly restricted fares at levels up to 70 percent below full coach.

The "Ultimate Super Saver" — ranging from $39 for short trips to $129 for one-way, cross-country travel — will be available in all 92 cities the carrier serves. Five million seats at the lower fares will be available in the first five months of the program, American said.

Trans World Airlines, Delta, Pan Am, United Airlines and Northwest said they would match the fares.

In the oil industry, Sun Co. said it had reduced the price it will pay for the top grade of oil in the United States by 50 cents a barrel to $27. Atlantic Richfield Co., one of the last industry giants that had held onto the $29 a barrel level, cut its price for West Texas Intermediate to $28.

West Texas Intermediate, which commanded $30 a barrel in October, now mostly ranges between $25.90 to $28 at U.S. oil companies.

In other economic developments Thursday:

—The nation's basic money supply expanded by $2.1 billion in the week ended Jan. 7, the Federal Reserve said. The increase was a bit less than the $3 billion gain expected by many credit analysts, and prices of long-term bonds rose in late trading after the figures were released.

—Assets of the nation's 338 money-market mutual funds climbed $1.23 billion to $219.31 billion in the latest week, the highest level in 25 months, the Investment Company Institute said. The seven-day average yield on the money market mutual funds fell in the week ended Tuesday to 8.04 percent from 8.21 percent the previous week, according to Donoghue's Money Fund Report, a trade journal based in Holliston, Mass.

—First-time claims for unemployment benefits fell 72,000 to 326,000 in the week ended Jan. 5, the Labor Department said. The number of Americans receiving jobless benefits under state-run programs for the week ended Dec. 29 rose 192,000 to 2,538,000, the Employment and Training Administration reported.

Crandall named American chairman

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Robert L. Crandall, who helped guide American Airlines Inc. through another record earnings year, will replace Albert V. Casey as chairman and chief executive officer on March 1.

Crandall, 49, who has built a reputation as a tough, shrewd manager since joining the nation's second largest airline in 1973, was elected at the company's board of directors meeting Wednesday.

The election came after Casey announced he would retire as head of both the airline and its holding company, AMR Corp. Crandall will also retain his current title of president.

Also Wednesday, AMR Corp. reported that despite a slump in fourth-quarter earnings, 1984 was another record year, with net earnings of $233.9 million, or $4.16 a share.

The 1984 results were up $6 million over 1983, when fully diluted earnings per share of $4.48 were recorded.

Crandall, 49, entered the airline industry almost 19 years ago as a financial officer for Trans World Airlines in New York. He joined

Albert Casey

Robert Crandall

American in April 1973 as senior vice president-finance and served as senior vice president-marketing from June 1974 until his election as president and chief operating officer in 1980.

Casey, who turns 65 in February and will remain on American's board of directors, joined American as president and chief executive officer in 1974, and assumed the title of chairman two months later. He directed the creation of AMR Corp.

Prior to joining American, Casey was president of Times Mirror Co. of Los Angeles.

AT&T asks PUC for $123 million rate hike

AUSTIN (AP) — The AT&T Communications' rate hike package that includes a cut in basic long distance rates may not be the consumer boon it seems, says a skeptical Jim Boyle.

AT&T on Thursday asked the Public Utility Commission for a $123.4 million hike that features a 3.2 percent drop in tolls for basic intrastate long distance calls.

You have to look beyond the big numbers to find the possible effects on residential customers said Boyle, the state lawyer who represents consumers.

The Public Utility Commission set a Feb. 4 prehearing in the case.

The request winds up as a rate hike as a result of large increases for business services such as WATS and private lines. AT&T also wants to charge for director assistance calls and operator help.

AT&T has claimed financial woes in Texas since the Jan. 1, 1984, court-ordered break-up of the nationwide Bell System. The divestiture left AT&T with most of the long-distance business in Texas.

But Tom Jones, an AT&T Texas vice president, said Thursday the company is losing $300,000 a day, most of it as a result of payments it makes to Southwestern Bell and other local phone companies.

Without the rate hikes, Jones said AT&T would continue to lose money in Texas.

"For us to have earned a zero percent return in 1984 we would have needed another $60-plus million in revenue or reduced costs," he said.

In a separate request filed Thursday, AT&T asked the PUC to approve a $1 monthly charge for single-line business and residential customers. Other business customers would pay $6 a month. That money would go to local telephone companies to help offset AT&T's payments.

PREPARING YOUR INCOME TAX

More people will use the complicated 1040

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article in a series on preparing 1984 income tax returns explains who must file and which form to use.

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — You may have to file the long Form 1040 even though you don't itemize deductions.

More than 61 percent of federal taxpayers file 1040 but only about 36 percent itemize. To simplify things for the greatest number of taxpayers, the Internal Revenue Service limits the total income, adjustments, credits and exemptions that may be reported on the two shorter forms — 1040A and 1040EZ. That requires more people to use the more-complicated 1040.

That number may grow again this year. For the first time, many retired people are having to pay tax on a portion of their Social Security pensions and that will require them to file the long form whether or not they want to itemize deductions.

You must also use 1040 if you paid or received alimony, had capital gains in 1984, received any kind of pension, had employee business expenses, want to claim a credit for residential energy conservation or for certain investments in equipment, or if you claim such adjustments as job-related moving expenses.

The one-page 1040EZ is available only to single people whose taxable income after subtracting the $1,000 personal exemption and any allowable charitable contribution is less than $50,000. (Even if you don't itemize deductions and no matter which form you file, you may deduct a part of charitable contributions).

There is one other limitation on using 1040EZ: all your income must have been from wages, salaries and tips except for interest of $400 or less.

The two-page 1040A may be used by married or single people whose taxable income is under $50,000. Income may include unlimited interest, dividends and unemployment compensation. You may reduce income subject to tax by claiming the special deduction for working couples and by deducting contributions to an Individual Retirement Account. The only tax credits allowed 1040A filers are for child-care expenses, a portion of political contributions and the earned-income credit for poor working families with children.

If you file Form 1040A, you will have to attach a Schedule 1 if you have over $400 of interest income or over $400 of dividends, if you claim the deduction for a two-earner couple or take the child-care credit.

But do you have to file a tax return at all? Yes, if you are:

— Single, under 65 and had income of at least $3,300; or if you are single, over 65 and had $4,300 or more income.

— Married, living with your spouse, filing a joint return, both are under 65 and had income totaling at least $5,400. If one spouse is over 65, the filing threshold is $6,400; if both are over 65, it is $7,400.

— Married, with a dependent child but lived apart from your spouse all year, are filing a return as single or head of household, are under 65 and had income of at least $3,300; if you are over 65, the threshold is $4,300.

If you were widowed in 1983 or 1982 and had not remarried last year, you must file if you are under 65 and had at least $3,300 income; if you are over 65, the threshold is $4,300. A qualifying widow or widower with a dependent child does not have to file unless income exceeds $4,400 ($5,400 if over 65) and lower tax rates apply. Details are on Page 6 of Form 1040 instructions.

No matter what your income, you must file (on Form 1040) if your parents could claim you as a dependent and you had $1,000 or more in taxable interest, dividends or other unearned income. And you must file if you are self-employed and earned $400 or more after expenses.

Even if your income is so low that you are not required to file, you should file to get back any taxes that were withheld from your earnings.

NEXT: Figuring and credits.

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 255 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT (R) of Holliston, Mass. 01746 increased $1.8 billion to $208.0 billion during the week ended January 15, 1985. The taxable funds' 7-day average yield decreased to 8.04 percent from 8.21 percent. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield to 8.26 percent from 8.40 percent. The taxable funds' average maturity increased three days to 47.

William E. Donoghue says, "Total money fund assets climbed again this week as $5 billion flowed into the taxable and tax-free MFs. The money fund industry total has reached $234.7 billion, only $7.8 billion away from its record high of Dec. 1, 1982. The average maturity of taxable money funds extended by three days, an indication that portfolio managers expect further declines in short-term money market rates." OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Eddy discovery pumps 34 barrels

Staff Reports

A re-entry in Eddy County, New Mexico has resulted in a small discovery.

ANADARKO PRODUCTION CO. tested the No. 1 Matlock to pump 34 barrels of 43.1 gravity crude, 2 Mcfpd and 156 barrels of water. Gas-oil ratio is 44:1. The well is producing from perforations 7,776 to 7,816 ft., which had been acidized with 1,500 gallons of acid.

Drilled to 9,230 ft., the well is plugged back to 8,820 ft. The last casing set was 4 1/2 inches set at 9,230 ft.

With a ground elevation of 3,542 ft., formation tops are Sabn Andres, 632; Glorieta, 1,997; Abo, 4,240; Wolfcamp, 5,708; Cisco, 7,138; Canyon, 7,630; Strawn, 7,983; Atoka, 8,481; Barnett, 9,137; and Chester, 9,212 ft.

The well is located 1,980 ft. from south and 1,980 ft. from east lines of Section 4, T19s, R25e.

The project was a re-entry of a David Fasken well that was plugged and abandoned. The old depth of the well was 9,235 ft.

Lea discovery tested to pump 15 barrels

An undesignated discovery has been finaled in Lea County, New Mexico.

CITIES SERVICE OIL AND GAS CORP. tested the No. 5 State "DW" to pump 15 barrels of 35.9 gravity crude, 5 Mcfpd and 2 barrels of water. Gas-oil ratio is 347:1. The well is producing from perforations 5,091 to 5,096 ft., which had been acidized with 1,750 gallons and fractured with 9,165 gallons and 12,000 lbs. 20/40 sand.

The well was drilled to 9,030 ft. and plugged back to 6,764 ft. The last casing size set was 5 1/2 inches set at 9,030 ft.

On a ground elevation of 4,089 ft., formation tops are Rustler, 1,763; Yates, 3,233; Queen, 4,361; Grayburg, 5,090; San Andres, 5,100; Delaware, 5,854; Bone Springs, 6,802; First Bone Springs, 8,229; and Second Bone Springs, 8,688 ft.

The well is located 660 ft. from south and 660 ft. from east lines of Section 12, T18s, R33e.

Gulf adds producers to McElroy fields

Production has been added to the McElroy field of Crane and Upton counties.

GULF OIL CORP. completed three McElroy wells in Crane County. The No. 37-R J.T. McElroy Cons. was tested to pump 3 barrels of 30.2 gravity crude, 3.6 Mcfpd and 3 barrels of water. The well is producing from perforations 2,769 to 3,165 ft.

Drilled to 3,210 ft. and plugged back to 3,200 ft., the last casing set in the well is 5 1/2 inches set at 3,210 ft.

Gulf also completed the No. 1040 J.T. McElroy Cons. to pump 5 barrels of 32.8 gravity crude, 5 Mcfpd and 9 barrels of water. The well is producing from perforations 2,772 to 3,082 ft.

Drilled to a total depth of 3,185 ft., the well is plugged back to 3,164 ft. Casing set is 5 1/2 inches at 3,185 ft.

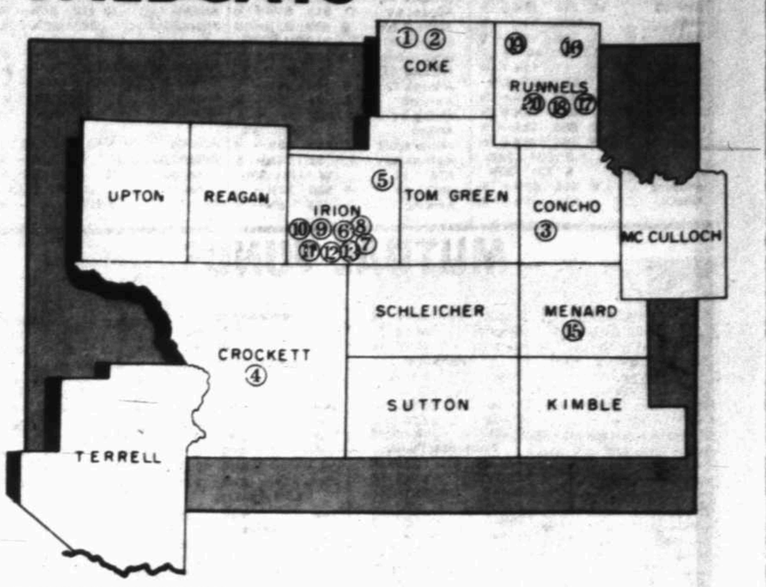

Also tested was the No. 1056 J.T. McElroy Cons. to pump 44 barrels of 32.8 gravity crude, 1.5 Mcfpd and 120 barrels of water. The well is producing from perforations 1,724 to 3,154 ft.

Drilled to 3,200 ft., the well is plugged back to 3,180 ft. Casing is 5 1/2 inches set at 3,196 ft.

Gulf also completed the No. 322 Crier-McElroy in Upton County to pump 20 barrels of 30.4 gravity crude, 5.7 Mcfpd and no water. The well is producing from perforations 2,656 to 3,142 ft.

Drilled to 3,200 ft., the well is plugged back to 3,180 ft. Casng is 5 1/2 inches set at 3,190 ft.

Midland-Odessa Symphony's fourth concert lacked verve

By GEORGIA TEMPLE

Georgia Temple

Not only was the crowd size disappointing this week for the Midland-Odessa Symphony's fourth subscription concert of the season, the performance lacked verve.

The program included Bach's Little Suite, Chopin's Concerto No. 2, Richard Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks" and Maurice Ravel's "Bolero." Performing with the symphony was Czech pianist Boris Krajny.

Little Suite comes from the Anna Magdalena Notebook, a collection of charming educational pieces Bach wrote for his second wife, who studied the clavier. The melodies in this suite were selected and arranged for orchestra by Thomas Frost. This year marks the 300th birthday of Bach's birth.

The Concerto No. 2 in F minor is the first of only six works for piano and orchestra, including two concertos, that Chopin wrote. In this work, the Larghetto, a wistful and nostalgic song, represents one of Chopin's most poetic pieces. The fiery concluding movement has many pages of virtuoso writing for the solo instrument.

Known as the "poet of the piano," Chopin had an outstanding ability to create on the piano a world of color in sound. His rich harmonies, bold or tender melodies and his dashing arpeggios opened new vistas to all composers who came after him.

However, this vitality did not come across, neither from Krajny nor the symphony. With the exception of the closing selection, "Bolero," the performance moved by rote. A lack of enthusiasm marked the evening.

In sharp contrast the same night, Roomful of Blues, a jump, rhythm and blues band from Providence, R.I., had 300 Midlanders wound up at the Yucca Theatre downtown.

Although band members had a laid-back air onstage, the music was anything but. Roomful's hard hitting, fast-paced presentation released a high energy zone inside the theater.

Roomful's problem was opening on time. The concert was supposed to begin at 8 p.m., but Roomful members didn't begin straggling in until around 9:30 p.m. The band began playing at 10 p.m.

Classical music and rhythm and blues are not as far removed as some suppose.

Ravel, who was born in 1875 in southwestern France near the Spanish border (his father was Swiss and his mother, Basque), was fascinated by the black musicians performing in Paris.

When Ravel toured the United States between 1922 and 1928, he insisted on spending as much time as possible in the Harlem night clubs, listening to the improvisations of the black jazz musicians of the 1920s. Jazz melodies, harmonies, rhythms and orchestral sounds began to creep into his music. Although this influence can be heard in his "Bolero," Ravel was, in his modern way, very severely classical.

Another difference in the two performances was the lack of a sense of cohesiveness in the symphony's programming, which is chosen by the director Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, as contrasted against the total dedication to a style and sense of music in Roomful's act. Roomful's skilled musicians know what they are about on stage and their enthusiasm for what they are doing is obvious.

Symphony members are also highly trained professional musicians who are likewise dedicated to their music; however, for their enthusiasm to shine through, it is necessary to have a program which creates a sense of purpose. The classical repertoire is vast and not all selections flow together for an evening's performance. None of this week's pieces were poor choices for a concert; they simply did not sparkle when presented on the same program.

Rites of Hollywood spring include Oscar nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "For your consideration — Best Actor, Tom Selleck, 'Runaway.' "

"For your consideration — Best Actress, JoBeth Williams, 'American Dreamer.' "

"For your consideration — Best Actor, Clint Eastwood, 'Tightrope.' "

These are the messages in full-page trade paper ads paid for by film companies — sometimes by agents — in the fond hope that voters of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences might be swayed to consider bestowing such nominations.

But the odds are long that Selleck, Miss Williams and Eastwood will be nominated for the coveted prizes.

All this is part of the annual rite of late winter and early spring, when hopes are high and anything seems possible. Reality sets in when the Academy announces the nominations, which will happen this year on Feb. 6.

Logic dictates that only a handful of film achievements actually draw consideration by the Academy voters, who generally reward the earnest and consciously dramatic efforts rather than the more frivolous entertainments.

Hence the two huge hits of 1984, "Ghostbusters" and "Beverly Hills Cop," will doubtless be negelected in favor of films that have drawn more critical praise and less box office.

Will 'Beverly Hills Cop' lead to 'Beverly Hills Cop Goes Hawaiian?

ENTERTAINMENT

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD — If "Beverly Hills Cop" captures 22 percent of the year-end movie market, can "Beverly Hills Cop Goes Hawaiian" be far behind?

Paramount Pictures would love to have Eddie Murphy do a sequel. When one is done it will, of course, have "Beverly Hills Cop" in the title even though the comedian played a detective from Detroit.

Sequels have become big business in the film industry economy. With few exceptions, the all-time top-grossing films have sequels or are themselves sequels, including the "Star Wars" trilogy, "Jaws," "Raiders of the Lost Ark," "Superman," "Star Trek," "Grease," "The Exorcist" and "The Sting."

An awful lot of borrowing will be seen in the coming year. Roger Moore returns as James Bond in "A View to a Kill." Sylvester Stallone will resume his multiple duties with "Rocky IV," this time battling a Russian boxer. The seven bumbling cadets will see active duty in "Police Academy II."

"National Lampoon's European Vacation" sends Chevy Chase, Beverly D'Angelo and kids on the Grand Tour in Europe. Michael Douglas and Kathleen Turner take their "Romancing the Stone" act to Egypt for "Jewel of the Nile."

Disney will be issuing "The Return to Oz," which includes the major characters of "The Wizard of Oz" and many others from the Frank Baum books. The company is also considering a sequel to its 1984 hit, "Splash."

Columbia Pictures also plans to cash in on its winners of last year with "Ghostbusters II" and "The Karate Kid II." Warners Bros. will issue "Mad Max III," perhaps with a title change; the second in the Mel Gibson films was called "The Road Warrior." Fox is ever hopeful that George Lucas will continue the "Star Wars" saga. Meanwhile, the company is releasing "Porky's Revenge."

Sequel fever isn't new, as film historians are quick to point out.

"There always have been sequels; they just weren't so noticeable," said A.D. Murphy, chairman of the Peter Stark Motion Picture Production program at the University of Southern California. "In other eras, the gap between hits and failures wasn't so great. The sequels were always B pictures. Today they're still B pictures, but they can make $30 million."

"It's all a matter of economics," added Lloyd Leipzig, former head of marketing, advertising and publicity for Orion Pictures. "Take a look at sequels and you will find that nearly all have earned at least 50 percent of the original. If you have a $100-million grosser, you can't lose.

"Besides, the companies own the properties. They don't have to put out a lot of money for the rights, though, of course, the actors always want more to do a sequel. But that can be negotiated."

For example, Paramount is trying to make a deal for "Star Trek IV" with William Shatner, who reportedly is seeking $2 million.

"Success breeds success," comments veteran producer Howard W. Koch ("The Odd Couple"). "You figure a sequel will attract at least part of the success of the original. 'Airplane II' (which Koch produced) wasn't a big moneymaker, but it did all right.

"It's a lot like television. People watch a series so they can follow the continuing story of characters they enjoy. The same with movie sequels."

But not every hit produces a sequel.

Will White House offer pomp or explanation?

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — President Reagan said his New Year's resolution was to get along better with reporters, but two members of the White House press corps expect four more years of presidential pomp without enough explanation of the circumstances.

"I don't expect to see the president much in the next four years," said ABC White House correspondent Sam Donaldson. He said the president had an obligation to discuss his policies and philosophies with the American people in "terms that go beyond the antiseptic."

"There hasn't been a lot of access to the president, and we complain about it all the time," said CBS White House correspondent Bill Plante. "His advisers haven't closed information off; they've closed him off. That way, there's less accountability than if the chief executive says it in public."

With former Treasury Secretary Donald Regan taking over as the president's chief of staff, Plante sees even less inside information leaking out of the White House. "I think we'll see less of the in-fighting that produced much of the information we got in the first four years," Plante said.

On Sunday, Reagan and Vice President George Bush will be officially sworn in for their second terms, followed by what is essentially a full-scale photo opportunity Monday: the public swearing-in and inaugural parade, covered live by the three major television networks and Cable News Network.

In the TV age, the White House holds almost all the cards. Reagan's team has been masterful at putting the president in postcard settings that say to the public, "Wish you were here," but often avoid telling them what it's all about.

Since Reagan doesn't often sit for one-on-one interviews, the best way to present him unfiltered is with prime-time press conferences.

In his first term, Reagan had 27 news conferences, one fewer than Richard Nixon had in his first four years in office. The White House is sensitive to charges of a secluded presidency. Before last week's press conference, White House spokesman Larry Speakes characterized that session as Reagan's 421st press encounter.

"But that included all the quickie exchanges under the wing of Air Force One," said Plante. "It's all an effort to keep the president from having to respond in situations in which the president is not prepared to respond."

When the president's staff feels it's in his interest to talk on the run, the Marines will shut down the turbines of his helicopter waiting on the runway. "If they don't want him to talk, they'll leave them on," said Plante.

This has become a common sight on the evening news: Reagan, his ear cupped, his shoulders hunched, straining to hear shouted questions from the media. Is that any way for the president and the press to conduct business?

"No, it probably isn't," said Lane Venardos, executive producer of the "CBS Evening News." "But a lot of that happens during a frustrating period, where access has been cut down."

According to a 1983 survey by TV Guide, CBS News was perceived as tougher on the White House than ABC and NBC because it more often went beyond merely recording executive action by reporting the consequences of presidential policy outside Washington.

"It isn't until you show real people in actual life situations that it becomes clear what the impact is," said Venardos.

Donaldson agreed that Washington correspondents would have to spend more time on Main Street. "We have to leave the press room and go around town," said the man whose shouted questions often pop up on CBS and NBC as well.

Meanwhile, the president will be spending more time being interviewed by Main Street reporters and perhaps less time with Washington-based journalists. The White House is creating a TV studio in the Executive Office Building so local stations can conduct mininews conferences by satellite.

"There's nothing wrong with that," said Plante. "But local news people don't have the context that comes from covering the White House every day to evaluate what the president tells them. They don't have the counterarguments as readily, and the White House is aware of that. The president's message will get through with less filtering."

Legal Notice

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
THE STATE OF TEXAS
TO: JAMES HAROLD AKINS, Defendant in the cause numbered and entitled below.

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear before The Honorable District Court, 238th Judicial District of Midland County, Texas, at the Courthouse in Midland, Texas, at or before 10:00 A.M. of the first Monday next after the expiration of 42 days from JANUARY 7, 1985, the date of issuance of this citation, by filing a written answer to Plaintiff's Petition that was filed in the Court on December 28, 1983, No. 33,057 on the docket of the Court, and entitled DORIS TAYLOR JONES, PLAINTIFF, vs. JAMES HAROLD AKINS, DEFENDANT.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows: An automobile accident on or about August 3, 1982, at approximately 8:02 A.M., between Plaintiff and Defendant on North Lamesa Road in Midland, Midland County, Texas, as is more fully shown by Plaintiff's Petition on file in this suit. Plaintiff claims she received damages as a proximate result of such accident and is suing to recoup her damages.

If this citation is not served within 90 days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

The officer executing this Writ shall promptly serve it and make due return according to requirements of law, and the mandates of this citation.

ISSUED UNDER MY HAND AND THE SEAL OF THE COURT at Midland, Texas, on the 7TH day of JANUARY, 1985.

Clerk, District Court,
238th Judicial District of Midland County, Texas.
By: Deputy, Wilda Smith

WHEN GERMAN DRIVERS PICKED THE WORLD'S BEST CARS, THEY PREFERRED SWEDEN'S SAAB TO PORSCHE, BMW AND AUDI.

To tell you the truth, the Germans surprised us this year.

The readers of Auto Motor und Sport, Germany's leading auto magazine, vote for their favorite cars in several categories every year. This year again, they named the Saab Turbo as the "best imported car under 2.5 liters."

That didn't surprise us. We've now won that category for each of the last four years. We are pleased to have won again. We're honored by their choice. But we're not surprised.

What did surprise us was the voting for the best cars regardless of category. In that tally, German drivers preferred the Saab Turbo to such famous German performance cars as the Porsche 911, the BMW 318i and the Audi Turbo.

You know, maybe there really is some truth to those television commercials we've seen about how knowledgeable German drivers are. They sure seem to know our car. SAAB
