City council to meet

Emergency measures on agenda

By CINDY RUGELEY
Staff Writer

Wichita Falls City Council Tuesday will discuss extending the state of emergency in the city and continuing retail price controls during an emergency meeting.

The council also will discuss repealing the ordinance placing a curfew on tornado-damaged portions of the city.

A ceiling was placed on many retail items during a special council meeting April 11, the day after the tornado hit. That ordinance will expire Thursday. The council will consider extending the ceiling until May 11.

The council will consider extending the state of emergency, due to expire Wednesday, another seven days.

In addition, the council will be asked to consider an ordinance authorizing the city to enforce subdivision deed restrictions and one prohibiting the issuance of building permits for anything but single-family residences in areas with such deed restrictions.

According to the proposed ordinance, anyone wishing to construct a commercial building or to convert a single-family residence into a commercial business must show that no deed restriction prohibits its construction.

If a deed restriction does exist, the city building department must deny the building permit.

The ordinance was recommended by the reconstruction and redevelopment committee in an effort to prevent commercial entities from purchasing all the land in the devastated area of the city.

The ordinances dealing with deed restrictions would expire in 360 days unless renewed by the council.

City Manager Gerald Fox has recommended that the council approve a resolution giving the Citizens Advisory Committee the responsibility for establishing short and long-range goals and plans for the city, including redevelopment and reconstruction of the damaged area.

"This additional charge should also include the mobilization of both public and private sectors and resources to meet the established goals and plans," Fox said.

He said the tornado has "drastically changed" the recommendations of the Citizens Advisory Committee that were presented to the council in January.

The advisory committee at that time recommended a $9 million capital improvements bond election.

The resolution also would make the reconstruction and redevelopment committee a subcommittee of the advisory committee. The reconstruction and redevelopment committee, meeting Monday afternoon, asked chairman Charles Harper to recommend that the city council not make the committee a subcommittee of the Citizens Advisory Committee. Instead, the redevelopment group asked that it be allowed to continue as an autonomous body when dealing with the council.

Committee members objected to funneling recommendations to the city council through the advisory committee.

In other business, the council Tuesday will consider:

- An ordinance authorizing temporary placement of mobile homes outside the disaster area, contingent upon deed restrictions.
- An ordinance accepting electrical examinations and licenses from certain other Texas cities.
- An ordinance suspending competitive bidding requirements for a temporary period.
- A resolution naming Joe Winkle the representative for obtaining federal disaster assistance.

The council will meet at 8:30 a.m. in council chambers of Memorial Auditorium.

House tentatively OKs $20 billion in spending

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House tentatively approved a $20.3 billion general appropriation bill for 1980-81 Monday night, far in excess of Gov. Bill Clements' spending recommendations.

Final passage Tuesday will send the bill to the Senate, which has yet to pass its own version of the state budget.

A joint House-Senate conference committee will attempt to blend the products of the two chambers into a single bill to send to Clements for signature, veto or partial veto.

The House bill exceeds Clements' recommendations by more than $500 million.

It leaves an estimated $261 million for tax relief or expenditure on schools, teacher pay or other items.

Also left "on the table" is another $269 million, but legislative leaders have earmarked it to avoid this fall's scheduled rise in local school districts' cost of the Foundation School Program. Any other expenditure of the money would cause local property taxes to jump — something running against the Legislature's and Clements' political commitment against new taxation.

House action concluded four full days of debate, running approximately 35 hours and disposing of 137 attempts to amend the massive bill to finance state government for the next two years.

Before the House took its vote Monday night, two controversial rider provisions were eliminated from the bill on points of order.

One rider prohibited the Texas Department of Human Resources from spending money for abortions or for purposes "that may lead to the performing of abortions."

The other expressed the "intent of the legislature" that state college administrators would use "all reasonable, legal means" to keep homosexual organizations off their campuses.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, sitting in temporarily for Speaker Bill Clayton who was suffering from hoarseness, held both riders attempted unconstitutional to enact general law through the budget bill.

Among the millions of dollars in new spending added Monday to the bill recommended by the House Appropriations Committee were $66 million for payments to nursing homes under the Medicaid program.

Carter urges 'educated' debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Monday the United States has "extraordinary means" of making sure that the Russians live up to a treaty limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

And Carter appealed to the scientific world to "help shape an educated public debate" on the proposed treaty.

The president made his appeal in a speech to the National Academy of Sciences amid some indications that a treaty might be announced by the end of this week.

"If science gave us nuclear weapons, it is no less true that science has given us the extraordinary means of verifying compliance with treaties governing those weapons," Carter said. He did not elaborate.

The SALT II treaty now nearing completion is part of "a long, slow progress of gradual steps toward sanity, based on mutual self-interest," he said.

"Many of the issues involved in assessing the treaty are very complex technically, and the American people will look to the scientific community to help shape an educated public debate," Carter said.

"Many of you devoted much effort to the debate over the SALT I agreement, and you played a major role in forming the consensus that developed behind that treaty," he added. "Today I ask you for a renewal of that commitment."

Although there were some indications a treaty might be announced by week's end, White House and State Department officials said the long-expected arms accord was not yet wrapped up.

These officials, who declined to be identified, said the Russians would like to have all major issues settled before announcing a summit meeting between Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

"There are things that are of substance still undecided," one official said.

And White House press secretary Jody Powell told the daily news briefing: "We're not done negotiating."

The U.S. position is that if there is general agreement on the major treaty provisions, Carter and Brezhnev could apply some of the finishing touches at the summit in late May.

But, in any event, at least one more session between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin is expected — and the date for that is still not set.

The president told his scientific audience: "SALT II will reduce the risk of nuclear war by lowering levels of strategic arms, constraining development of new weapons systems, and contributing to a more stable political relationship with the Soviet Union."

Vernon junior college president keeping eye on budget process

By BRUCE FISHER
Regional Staff Writer

VERNON, Texas — Most institutions of higher learning in Texas projected higher spring enrollments than have been experienced, but Dr. Jim Williams, president of Vernon Regional Junior College, said those overestimations won't necessarily mean a loss of money.

The Senate Finance Committee met last week to go over junior colleges' budgets, and when members of the committee compared projected spring enrollment figures to actual enrollment figures, they found a considerable difference.

The enrollment figures are a major factor in the formula used to compute funding for junior colleges, and the Legislative Budget Board uses the projected figures to prepare "budget recommendations" that are updated when the actual enrollment figures are tallied.

The difference in the projected enrollments and the actual enrollments would mean a $25 million difference in funding for the state's 47 junior colleges if the funding rate is not changed.

But Williams said a good chance exists that the projected rate — which is multiplied by the enrollment figures to compute funding — may be increased.

The Finance Committee told the LBB to refigure the budgets for junior colleges, and Williams said it is possible that the board may revise the projected rate for funding when it refigures those budgets.

He said with the projected enrollment figures, VRJC's budget would be about $3.38 million, and if the actual enrollment figures are used to figure the budget without altering the rate, the budget would be about $3.16 million or about $220,000 less.

"They (Legislative Budget Board members) ask us to project our enrollment for the next year. They multiply their recommended funding rate by our projections to come up with proposed budgets."

"We anticipated an across-the-state increase in enrollment that just wasn't there. Senior institutions suffered worse than we did, in fact. The actual appropriation is based on the actual enrollment figures," Williams said.

"We never count our chickens before they hatch. We will be able to live with whatever budget we get, but of course we'd do a better job with more money."

"We try to offer a quality education, but you have to have good people to do that, and you

Cosmic discovery puzzles astronomers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A baffling cosmic discovery — possibly a doomed star in "some terribly weird kind of trouble" — was described Monday as one of the strangest things found in the heavens in years.

"It's like nothing else we've ever seen," said UCLA astronomer Bruce Margon. "Nothing else even comes close."

He said the evidence appears to reveal an object that's racing along at up to 115 million mph in two directions at once — it seems to be coming and going at the same time. And the velocity swings up and down along a regular 160-day cycle.

Margon outlined the puzzle Monday at a Washington meeting of the American Physical Society.

He and a team of UCLA scientists discovered the mystery while studying an inconspicuous star called SS 433, which like our sun and 100 billion other stars is part of the Milky Way galaxy. Too dim to be seen with the naked eye, SS 433 is about 10,000 light-years from earth. A light-year is about 5.9 trillion miles.

Margon said in an interview earlier that a tentative explanation for the strange discovery "is that this is some kind of star that's in some terribly weird kind of trouble."

He said the dying star apparently rotates on a 160-day cycle. As it spins, it's spitting out two great streams of gas, much as a spinning lawn sprinkler shoots water from opposing nozzles.

But that theory, Margon said, "is just the wildest of guesses at the moment ... We really don't know."

Astronomers can determine a star's speed and direction by measuring changes in the wavelengths of its light. Margon said the changes in SS 433 were "larger by a huge factor than anything we've ever seen in a star."

Even more startling, he said, the wavelengths were simultaneously shifted in opposite directions, as if "one chunk of the object is coming toward us at an enormous velocity and another chunk is going away from us at an enormous velocity."

Who snapped that dramatic tornado picture that appeared on page 1 of the April 12 Record News, in newspapers nationally and worldwide, and which the Dallas chief of the Associated Press labeled "a masterpiece?"

It was our Leon Hooten, veteran reporter, editor and photographer since 1940, who now serves this paper as business and energy editor.

As the gigantic twister writhed and churned toward his home on Edgecliff, just off Southwest Parkway, Hooten made 17 portraits of that massive wall of fury.

Since our newspaper plant had been put out of action by the storm, a freelance reporter for New York Times took Hooten's film to Dallas for developing.

There, AP officials copyrighted the photos for the Record News before dispatching copies to member journals all over the globe.

A tornado is no new phenomenon for the tall, bespectacled Hooten who 32 years ago covered the deadly storm that killed 103 in Woodward, Okla. "I arrived within two hours after that tornado struck," Hooten recalled. "They were stacking bodies in Municipal Auditorium and all night long we could hear the wail of ambulance sirens."

A year after that, while he was editor of the Clinton, Okla., weekly, after a twister he snapped a picture of a lamp post bent at right angles, its light still shining.

Hooten told a hairy story about the Wichita Falls twister.

"We first spotted it about 6:05 p.m., so I had my camera ready. At 6:10, when all clocks stopped and lights went out, I was in the house when my daughter Diane, 22, let out a blood-curdling scream and pointed frantically toward the western horizon.

"I looked. It was the biggest, meanest tornado I ever saw in my lifetime!"

Hooten said he then took his 35-millimeter camera with an 85-millimeter lens and began shooting at 15-second intervals. After 17 shots, "it seemed the tornado was coming directly toward us down Southwest Parkway."

"I climbed into the bathtub with Diane and we covered our heads with pillows."

Then, in spite of the pillows, he could hear a banging noise accompanied by screams at his back door. A couple with two small boys had tried to outrun the storm and, seeing they were losing, had pulled into the first driveway they found. In their haste they broke Hooten's door down.

The six then covered in the bathroom while winds battered the house and uprooted the fence outside.

About his picture, Hooten exclaimed: "A newsman waits a lifetime for an opportunity like this."

He didn't say so, but a lifetime can end with an opportunity like this. Had not this particular tornado veered slightly to the north, Hooten with his daughter and three guests might have gone with the wind.

Like the pro he is, Hooten ignored the danger and snapped that awesome view of the black monster in the process of chewing up hundreds of other homes.

Removal of debris begins as 2nd cleanup week ends

By CINDY RUGELEY Staff Writer

The second week of disaster operations in Wichita Falls ended Monday with 350 persons visiting assistance centers and debris removal beginning in the southwest portion of the city.

Monday's turnout at the Federal Disaster Assistance one-stop centers brings the total number of registrants to 7,586 persons.

The one-stop center at Notre Dame High School will close Wednesday and the center at the 4-H Barn will close Saturday evening.

An applications service center will open Monday at Washington School, 700 Flood. Federal Coordinating Officer Joe D. Winkle said the center will be staffed by personnel trained to help applicants for aid who are having difficulty completing application forms.

The new center will operate six days a week from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

"We realize that some of the application forms for federal disaster assistance may be difficult to understand," Winkle said. "If you are having problems or if you have questions, I encourage you to drop by the Washington School Service Center."

Applications will be accepted at the service center and one-stop centers as long as they remain open. Persons have until June 12 to make application for most federal assistance programs.

The U.S. Corp of Engineers Monday cleared about a dozen lots in the Faith Village addition of the city. An area about a half-square mile north of Southwest Parkway between Hughes and Kemp is being cleared under a $58,000 contract awarded Sunday, Gene Dretke, emergency operations officer for the Corp, said.

Owners of private property to be cleared by the Corp are encouraged to salvage any materials they wish to keep before cleanup contractors arrive.

Salvage problems slowed the first day of cleanup operations, Dretke said.

He also encouraged homeowners to put an identifying mark or flag on such things as plumbing, pipes or fixtures they wish to save from debris removal.

In another problem related to cleanup work, Dretke noted that homeowners who stack debris on the sidewalks or in the alleys will not have the debris removed until they have signed a right-of-entry permit to allow contractors onto private property.

The engineers Monday awarded a $58,016 contract to Texas Tote Service of Waco to set up 61 more mobile homes at seven locations in Wichita Falls.

Dretke said the contract brings to 250 the number of leased sites now scheduled for mobile homes.

Work on placing 49 mobile homes at Lakeside Court is about 90 percent complete and about 30 of 140 mobile homes have been placed on Sunrise court.

In other disaster recovery activities, assistance agencies reported:

Slightly more than $51.6 million in insurance claims have been paid to victims of the April 10 storm, according to Frank Lewis, a coordinator of operations for the American Insurance Association.

A $46,985 contract was awarded Texhoma Furniture Warehouse to supply furniture for about 50 rental units to be used by homeless victims of the storm.

The Small Business Administration reported it has received completed applications for 176 disaster loans seeking about $2.2 million. Twenty-three totaling $99,000 have been approved.

Clements says budget control fight not over

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements lost an important first round with the Texas Senate Monday on increasing the governor's power in budget control, but immediately said the fight is not over.

Senators voted 18-13 on a motion to debate a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow the governor not only to veto but also to reduce appropriations already approved by the legislature.

The vote was three short of the two-thirds necessary to keep the bill alive in debate.

State Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls voted against the motion and State Sen. Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells voted for it.

"I'm terribly disappointed," Clements said a few minutes later. "I had anticipated it would come out in good order. But I assure you I am not going to let it drop."

The Senate vote came shortly after

Clements sent the 31 upper house members a message vetoing the legislature's approval of a bill to regulate and license pawnbrokers. It had been approved easily by the Senate.

"This bill ostensibly started out as a 'law-and-order bill,'" Clements said. "It was changed in the legislative process to one of protection of existing pawnshops ... an anti-free enterprise and special interest legislation."

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said Clements' demand for more control of the budget was "probably the most insidious proposal we will have so far as constitutional amendments are concerned." He said the governor could totally undermine the Legislature's intent, for example taking away money set aside for community-based correction facilities.

Brooks said he decided budget execution by a chief executive was not a good idea after former President Richard Nixon impounded funds that Congress had appropriated.

"This merely allows the governor to reduce line items in the general appropriation bill," said Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas. "He already has the power to veto such separate items."

Harris said his proposed constitutional amendment also would allow the governor to veto riders or special provisions in the state spending bill, which already are questioned by many legal sources.

"This just means the governor can just go in there with a pencil and rewrite the whole bill," protested Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado.

Sen. Bob Vales, D-San Antonio, said the measure made no provision for the Legislature to be called back into session to consider overriding the governor's veto if the veto was made after the Legislature adjourned.

If approved by two-thirds of the legislature, the proposed constitution change by Harris would be put to voters on Nov. 4, 1980.

Junior colleges are funded through three primary sources: the state appropriation, money generated by the local tax base and student fees, Williams said. Small amounts of federal funding are acquired from time to time, he added.

If VRJC gets the financial break hoped for, occupational programming would be one of the areas targeted for improvement, Williams indicated. He said VRJC takes pride in offering a wide variety of classes "to help students get the job they want." But he said there are improvements planned if the funds are available.

Several entities can recommend that the funding rate be increased.

The House Appropriations Committee could do it, Williams said, and state Rep. Bill Heatley of Vernon and state Rep.

AUSTIN — A bill calling for a county court-at-law in Wichita County was recommended for passage Monday by the House Judicial Affairs Committee.

The measure was presented before the committee by Rep. Dave Allred, D-Wichita Falls, who also received the panel's permission to seek placement of the bill on the local calendar.

Placement on this calendar means quicker consideration, Allred said. He expects the bill to pass with no problem.

The committee affixed an amendment limiting the salary of the county court-at-law judge to no more than 90 percent of the salary of the state district court judge.

Rep. Ron Bird, D-San Antonio, said the committee was adding a similar amendment to all county court-at-law bills.

Because of the amendment, the bill must return to the Senate, but Allred said there still is plenty of time for the measure to receive approval before

The bill already had passed the Senate, where it was sponsored by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls. In the House, the proposal is sponsored by Allred and Rep. Charles Finnell, D-Holliday.

In the April 16 Record News, details of a collision were reported incorrectly.

According to the police report, a witness said Ernest M. Standifer's vehicle was northbound on Texas 79 when it was in collision with a vehicle driven by Glen Wade Austin, whose car was southbound on Texas 79.

The collision occurred at the intersection of the service roads.

Standifer's wife, Grace, was killed in the accident.

Theft bond set on Wichitan

Bond was set at $1,000 Monday for a 19-year-old Wichita Falls man charged with burglary of a vehicle in connection with the theft Sunday of a battery from a truck owned by a moving firm.

Bill Cole, who listed his address as the YMCA, was arraigned on the charge before Justice of the Peace R.L. Stewart. He remained in Wichita County jail Monday night in lieu of bond.

Police arrested Cole Sunday after a security guard reportedly saw a man remove a battery from a truck owned by Morris Moving and Storage, 211 Barwise.

Officers said they found Cole minutes after the theft carrying a battery belonging to the firm.

Red Cross urges needy to come

American Red Cross officials Monday urged all people who have immediate needs to come to Red Cross centers as soon as possible.

Ray Carmichael, disaster center public relations officer, said people who have insurance and other means to take care of storm losses should seek assistance if needed.

"We want people needing immediate assistance — food, clothing and shelter — to be served first," he said. "Persons with insurance or persons who feel they can wait for assistance are asked to do so."

Carmichael said the Red Cross would serve all persons affected by the storm, but wanted to be sure the neediest were served first.

Silkwood's plutonium contamination would cause 'no medical injury'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Karen Silkwood's contamination with plutonium would have caused her "no medical injury," a former Kerr-McGee Corp. consultant testified Monday.

Dr. Charles Sternhagen, 45, of Anchorage, Alaska, told jurors in the $11.5 million contamination negligence trial he and other doctors who examined Miss Silkwood assured her she wasn't in any danger.

"My opinion is, the exposure she had was not sufficient to be medically detectable," the radiation specialist said when asked about the short term effects of the contamination incident.

Sternhagen also said he doesn't feel there would have been long term injuries because of the November 1974 exposure if Miss Silkwood hadn't died in a Nov. 13, 1974, car crash.

"The amount of radiation she had was one-fourth of the acceptable limits and therefore would have caused no medical injury," he said. Miss Silkwood's survivors are suing Kerr-McGee alleging negligence in connection with her contamination. The company claims she contaminated herself, possibly while spiking her urine specimens. She was a Kerr-McGee nuclear fuel plant lab technician.

Sternhagen said specialists who diagnosed Miss Silkwood concluded she didn't have "a dangerous level of exposure."

On cross-examination, Sternhagen said although Miss Silkwood had less than 25 percent of the whole body burden of radiation allowed nuclear workers, that amount was as much as five times the limit for members of the general public.

He said her less than one-third lung burden was 16 times the annual rate set by the International Commission on Radiation Protection.

Three mobile vans are roving the disaster area with food for people unable to get to the stationary locations.

Aid programs

The following is a condensed outline of the various federal and state program available at the disaster assistance centers in Wichita Falls.

DISASTER LOANS

Loans to individuals and businesses for repair or replacement of home and businesses and personal property. Maximum loans are $55,000 to individuals and $500,000 for businesses. The interest rate on these long-term loans is 7 and three-eighths percent. People who suffered losses in the five counties and any adjoining county are eligible to apply.

VETERANS BENEFITS

Veterans Administration can make adjustments to payment schedules for VA insured home mortgages. In addition, VA personnel will assist in obtaining death benefits, pensions and insurance settlements.

FARM AND RANCH AID

U.S. Department of Agriculture makes available a number of programs to assist farmers and ranchers who have suffered losses. These include:
—Farmers Home Administration can provide loans for repair or replacement of farm homes and physical property and production and operating losses.
—Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service can provide grants of up to 80 per cent of the cost of debris removal from croplands, fence repair and rehabilitation of farmlands.

TAX ASSISTANCE

Internal Revenue Service will assist storm victims to file casualty loss claims and to amend income tax forms which may result in refunds on federal taxes already paid.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Social Security Administration will help in expediting benefit checks and in obtaining disability, death and survivor benefits.

LEGAL HELP

Young Lawyers Section of the American Bar Association will provide free legal counseling for disaster related problems, such as replacing legal documents, transferring titles and contracting.

INSURANCE

Texas State Board of Insurance field operations will provide counseling on insurance problems such as obtaining copies of lost policies, filing claims and expediting settlements.

GRANT PROGRAM

Texas Department of Human Resources will take applications for grants to individuals or families who have serious needs or necessary expenses which other aid programs can not meet. The grants, which can be up to $5,000, may be used for repair of owner-occupied homes, medical, dental and funeral expenses, replacement of personal property and various other necessary needs.

DEBRIS CLEARANCE

Contractors hired by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will remove debris considered a menace to public health and safety from both public and private property. Owners of private property who need debris removed must visit a disaster center and sign an access agreement before contractors may do the work.

TEMPORARY HOUSING

Housing for those whose primary residence was left uninhabitable by the storm may be made available without charge for up to one year. Housing may include existing government-owned and government-assisted units, privately owned rental property or mobile homes.

UNEMPLOYMENT AID

Unemployment compensation can be made available to those who became unemployed as a result of the storm. This includes those not covered by regular state or private unemployment insurance programs. Assistance in finding re-employment also will be available.

George Meany

to be hospitalized

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany is expected to be hospitalized for a few days for treatment of buritis in his left knee.

Albert Zack, a spokesman for the labor federation, said Meany, 84, entered George Washington University Hospital Sunday.

IP business told to move

IOWA PARK (Special) — Iowa Park City Council Monday night ordered Clark Catlin to remove his cement retail business from city property.

The property where Catlin has his business is city property and city officials said the lease had expired more than a year ago. Catlin sells cement to oil field drillers to use in drilling and plugging oil wells.

There has been some question whether Catlin's business meets Environmental Protection Agency standards dealing with dust, especially cement dust.

The council gave Catlin 30 days to relocate, and he indicated he would comply with the council's request.

In other action, the council approved the hiring of a temporary administrative assistant for City Manager Steve Morath. Council members approved the hiring of a student at Midwestern State University who is completing his master's degree in city management.

Paducah fix-up week proclaimed

PADUCAH, Texas (Special) — This week has been proclaimed cleanup, paint-up, fix-up week by Mayor V.L. Hutchison.

The proclamation is in cooperation with the chamber's improvement and beautification committee and Beautify Texas Month designated by Gov. Bill Clements.

In his proclamation, the mayor pledged the use of available equipment and personnel of the city. During the week, the city landfill will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. through Saturday.

City Manager J.B. Garrett is committee chairman and Wesley Polk, coordinator.

2 arraigned in burglary

Two men arrested in connection with the April 10 burglary of a downtown jewelry store were arraigned Monday on a charge of burglary of a building.

Arthur Powell, 30, and Odis Lee Robinson, 25, who both gave their address as the Duncan Hotel, were arraigned before Justice of the Peace R.L. Stewart. Bond was set at $2,500 for Powell and $5,000 for Robinson.

The pair remained in Wichita County jail Monday night in lieu of bond.

The suspects were arrested by police after information was received that they were connected with the burglary of Zale's Jewelry Store, Eighth and Indiana. Police said a window was broken out of the store and several watches and rings were taken.

Accident victim said satisfactory

A Cunningham Elementary School student was in satisfactory condition Monday night in Bethania Hospital after being hit by a car on his way to school shortly before 1 p.m. Monday.

Police said Dustin Wood,

Ordered to move

Carl Catlin owns and operates this cement retail business in Iowa Park, all except the property that is. The city council Monday night ordered him off the property, which the city owns, because the lease expired more than a year ago and Catlin apparently has had problems meeting Environmental Protection Agency guidelines on dust emissions. Electra board members sworn in ELECTRA (Special) — Electra School Board elected new officers following Monday night's swearing-in of two new members.

Harold Haynes and James Cotton were elected to seats April 7.

Jack Hesse was elected president. Other officers are Herbie Adams, vice president, and Benny McHugh, secretary-treasurer.

Lawton residents arrested in raid

LAWTON, Okla. — Six persons were arrested Monday evening in a Lawton trailer park after authorities, armed with a search warrant, entered the mobile home and found a quantity of what is believed to be marijuana.

Police said they entered the Sherwood Village trailer home in northeast Lawton shortly after 6 p.m. Monday and arrested four men and two women after finding the allegedly illicit drugs.

Authorities were preparing charges against at least two of the suspects late Monday. There were indications that four of the persons arrested might be released.

Accident victim said satisfactory

A Cunningham Elementary School student was in satisfactory condition Monday night in Bethania Hospital after being hit by a car on his way to school shortly before 1 p.m. Monday.

Police said Dustin Wood, whose age and address were not available, had just gotten out of his mother's car when he was hit by a van traveling east on Phillips as he crossed the street.

Police said the accident occurred about 12:45 p.m.

Vandals spark curfew request in Childress

CHILDRESS, Texas (Special) — Police Chief Alvis Maddox is calling for a 10 p.m. nightly curfew after recent vandalism he described as the worst in the city's history.

Maddox said he will ask officials for permission to set a 10 p.m. curfew nightly for persons under age 21.

"I want this curfew to keep vandals off the streets until we catch them, and I will ask the city council for permission to enforce the curfew until the violators have been arrested," Maddox said.

His action stemmed from multiple acts of rock-throwing in Childress Friday night. Police estimates of damage in the vandalism are between $3,000 and $4,000.

Officials say the vandalism, reported in every section of the city, occurred between 11 p.m. Friday and 1 p.m. Saturday.

The largest amount of damage was at Childress High School, where 12 large windows were broken by rocks hurled from the school's courtyard area. Many residents also reported windows broken in their homes by rocks, and several vehicles were damaged, including one incident of tire-slashing.

Man released on $1,500 bond

A 44-year-old Wichita Falls man posted $1,500 bond Monday after he had been arrested for reportedly hitting a police officer with a piece of pipe.

William Benjamin Barncastle, 1307 Bluff, was arraigned Saturday before Justice of the Peace R.L. Stewart.

He is accused of striking police officer Roy Perkins Saturday afternoon after Perkins had answered a domestic disturbance call at 1307 Bluff.

Barncastle allegedly ran when officers arrived, but then turned and threw a piece of pipe at Perkins and struck him in the shoulder after being ordered to halt.

Perkins was not believed seriously injured.

Smiling evacuees

Lillie Dean has a smile for the world as her husband, Horace, pulls her and their skiff-load of belongings away from their Beaumont, Texas, home that was flooded by rising waters from the nearby Neches River. Torrential rains last Thursday and Friday caused the river to rise Monday and many nearby homes were flooded. (AP Photo)

Floods still threaten Beaumont

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Floodwaters receded to creek and river banks for parts of Southeast Texas Monday, but the threat of more flooding downstream still loomed for residents in the Beaumont area.

No rain fell Monday and forecasters said it would be midweek or later before more is expected.

The Neches River is expected to crest at Beaumont in Jefferson County on Tuesday, the National Weather Service said, with widespread flooding in the lowlands. The record crest of the Neches at Beaumont is expected to be 12 feet with flood

John Gacy indicted again

CHICAGO (AP) — John W. Gacy Jr., a contractor already charged with the slayings of seven young men and boys, was indicted Monday on another 26 counts of murder in the deaths of young males.

The indictments, which accused Gacy of having homosexual relations with his alleged victims, were handed down by a Cook County grand jury.

Only nine of the 26 victims listed in the latest indictments have been identified by authorities. In total, 17 of the 33 victims have yet to be identified.

Since Dec. 21, 29 decomposed bodies have been unearthed at the site of Gacy's home in an unincorporated area northwest of Chicago. Four bodies were found in area rivers.

stage at four feet. This compares to 9.9 feet in May 1969.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Office said Pine Island Bayou had receded seven inches by early afternoon Monday and was continuing to drop. However, only a few residents in the flooded Bevil Oaks area could get to their homes because of street flooding. Several homes in the subdivision also were flooded.

The creeks and bayous feeding the Trinity caused most of property damage north of the Beaumont area.

Village Creek, which crested Sunday, already had dropped five inches by noon Monday, said Hardin County Sheriff Billy Paine in Silsbee. Pine Island Bayou and Cypress Creek also overran their banks. Village Creek, with a flood stage of 12 feet, crested at 27, Paine said.

"We're ready to get them (displaced residents) back in their homes," he said, once the creeks get lower.

Paine estimated that 1,000 homes and businesses and three-fourths of his county had been affected by the floodwaters, which went up to the roofs of many houses this past week.

"All you could see was the color of the shingles," he said. Some trailer homes were totally submerged, he added.

The situation was about the same in neighboring Liberty County, where a sheriff's spokesperson said a slow fall was in progress on some creeks.

The Trinity River, which splits the county north to south, rolled downstream Monday from Lake Livingston and was expected to crest at a record high near Romayor the next few days, the weather service said.

Lowland flooding was expected as crests were expected to be from three to five feet above flood stage.

Flooding from the east fork of the San Jacinto River hit mainly streets in Sam Houston Lake Estates, Dayton Lake Estates and Trinity River Estates between Cleveland and Romayor in northwest Liberty County, the sheriff's spokesperson said.

The water did not go into the houses but residents were restricted to boat travel in those neighborhoods.

On the Sabine River, boundary between Texas and Louisiana, moderate and lowland flooding from above Bon Weir down river to near Orange was expected the next several days, forecasters said.

It was at flood stage of 20 feet Monday and was falling slowly. At Deweyville the river crested near 15.5 feet Monday, a foot and a half over flood stage.

In South Texas, hit by flash flooding this past weekend, the rivers posed no problems. The Nueces, Atascosa, Guadalupe, San Antonio and Frio had minor lowland flooding, the weather service said.

Meanwhile, Montgomery County residents around Conroe were cleaning up the mess Monday caused by heavy rains last week. There were unofficial damage estimates of $50 million to $75 million in the county, Montgomery County Judge R.A. Deison Jr., said he would ask for federal disaster relief.

Harris County residents to the south also tried to dry out their cars, homes, and personal belongings after heavy rains inundated Houston and surrounding towns.

Iranian general assassinated

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Gunmen killed a high ranking military officer of the new government Monday. It was the first assassination of a major figure of the revolution.

Gen. Mohammad Vali Gharani, the first army chief of staff after the revolution ousted the monarchy, was shot while standing in his garden and died during surgery.

New fighting broke out between ethnic minorities in the northwestern town of Naghadeh after the second government-sponsored cease-fire in three days collapsed. A third truce was called Monday night and appeared to be holding.

Nine more men were executed Monday by Islamic firing squads, bringing the total to 158 since the revolution.

Reporting on the assassination, Pars, Iran's state news agency, said one attacker held bystanders at bay with a machine gun while a colleague scaled the outer wall of the garden and shot Gharani.

The general was forced to resign March 27 after he failed to convince troops who deserted during the revolution to return to their barracks. No group has claimed responsibility for his death. His assassins escaped.

He once served as intelligence chief for deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi but was jailed for his anti-monarchy views.

Ethnic Turks and Kurdish tribesmen, meanwhile, resumed street battles in Naghadeh, then obeyed an appeal from Ayatollah Mahmoud Taleghani, Tehran's respected Shiite Moslem leader, to lay down their arms and start negotiations.

Reports from the town said about 600 government troops sent Sunday to restore order retreated to safer positions within the city after the cease-fire collapsed.

Mohammad Mehdi Abbasi, governor general of West Azerbaijan province, said the troops did not take part in the fighting and would be withdrawn when peace was restored.

Communications with Naghadeh were cut and roads to the town were blocked by army units and guardsmen.

Fighting started Friday after unidentified gunmen fired on Kurds at a rally of the Kurdish Democratic Front Party, a left-of-center organization championing Kurdish demands for regional autonomy.

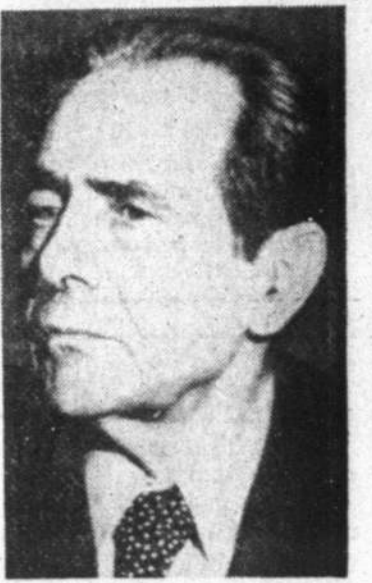

State radio said Monday that between 100 to 150 persons have died in the fighting. Pars put the toll at 180. The figures could not be confirmed independently.

The fighting is the third major ethnic violence in Iran since the revolution. In March, Kurdish autonomists in Sanandaj battled government forces for a week while Turkoman tribesmen in northeastern Iran early this month fought pro-Khomeini committees and soldiers in Gonbad-e-Qabus over autonomy and land rights.

Islamic firing squads executed nine more officials and supporters of the shah's government Monday.

Soldiers in Kermanshah again refused to turn a comrade over to a firing squad for execution.

Farm debris assistance

Debris from the April 10 tornado that severely damaged Wichita falls has covered a wide area from the damaged city to near Ardmore, Okla. In some places farmers and ranches are literally covered.

Among assistance programs available to residents of the tornado-affected area is a program to assist in cleaning up agricultural land. Farmers who need help with heavy debris should visit the Disaster Assistance Center nearest them for advice on the program.

Farmers who do not live near an FDAA center may visit their county Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service office.

Assistance is limited to 80 percent of the cost of cleanup, according to FDAA. The farmer may move and dispose of the debris himself, or hire it done. He also may hire others to help or, if he so desires, offer the job to a contractor.

Large items should be moved to a location adjacent to a county road. The farmer then may call the county commissioner's office in the area in which he resides and request that the debris be picked up.

Small debris is not included in the reimbursement program, according to FDAA, since it should be within the farmer's own capabilities. Small debris should be taken to designated dumping sites, whose location may be obtained from the nearest ASCS office or county commissioner, said FDAA officials.

Other questions may be answered by calling a toll-free number for disaster aid information: 1-800-522-0184. Such assistance programs recognize the federal government's responsibility in helping people help themselves, and deserve everyone's support.

Better jury efficiency

Our court system is supposed to guarantee a fair trial before a jury of peers for anyone who finds himself in court or in need of a fair settlement of differences in civil cases.

Since there's some doubt as to how often this ideal is reached, a million-dollar federal program is being planned to improve effectiveness of jury selection and result in fairer trials.

The program will involve "up to seven grants ranging from $100,000 to $200,000 to various states to start a 'Juror Utilization and Management Incentive Program,'" said Henry S. Dogin of Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Proposed innovations include calling smaller jury panels, making master jury lists more representative of the general public, removing class exemptions on a national basis, streamlining questioning of prospective jurors and having jurors spend less idle time in the courthouse.

Wichita County courts perhaps make better than average use of jury panels, but some improvements in the above list of proposals perhaps could be instituted here. Jury service is supposed to be every citizen's duty, but too often a prospective venireman's sense of duty evaporates through the long hours of waiting, being treated as one of a flock of sheep and harassment in finding a parking space.

Less impersonal handling of prospective jurors would do more to improve the jury system than any federal program to "streamline" the process.

Outrider

Playing with our health

By GARRY WILLS

Making fun of government regulatory agencies is a national sport, especially below the Mason-Dixon Line. But I don't think you would raise many laughs with those jokes near Crestview, Fla. That is the place where 4,500 persons had to be evacuated last week because of an explosion in a swamp.

James King, chairman of National Transportation Safety Board, as unlikely a bureaucrat as I have met, tells how disastrous that explosion might have been.

It occurred when a train of the Louisville and Nashville line was derailed. The line has a terrible safety record, 34 accidents since 1976, five of them major, with 33 dead, 356 injured and a loss of $24 million.

So what does this Toonerville Trolley do when entrusted with a volatile and dangerous load of chemicals? It sends out a train with 122 cars, though King says 75 is the maximum number considered safe on grades and curves of the sort that caused the derailment.

And what were the chemicals being pulled in that overload? Things like acetone, chlorine, ammonia and carbon tetrachloride. At the derailment, the explosion sent up a fireball and a vapor cloud. Carbon tetrachloride gives off poisonous phosgene gas. As King put it, the company placed a deadly chemical mix "in a shake-and-bake bag."

Luckily, the explosion was out of a populated area, where evacuation would have been too slow to prevent contamination. Only that minimized the danger and loss. Now, if you were an inhabitant of the Crestview area, how would you respond to these questions? Would you like the federal government to regulate the number of cars with deadly chemals a train can pull? Would you like the federal government to have more power to control a company with the Louisville and Nashville line's accident record? Do you think trains traversing populated areas should be subject to rules that protect the people in those areas?

Other regulations that will help are these: Required information on each car, not only of what it carries but of the proper way to control fire and toxins, in case of accident. A fire department called to a wreck can spread rather than smother a fire if it does not know what chemicals it is dealing with. In the Florida wreck, firemen called on federal officials, a thing not possible in a populated area.

Canada has such regulations. We should have them. Those who complain about government regulations forget the kinds of disasters that caused regulation in the first place: the New York garment district fire, coal mine cave-ins, child labor conditions, construction site deaths.

No one who flies often would have the government relax its control tower or flight regulations. When an accident occurs, we want the government to tell us what went wrong, not the company involved. Who would trust an investigation of the Louisville and Nashville undertaken by the Louisville and Nashville?

At Three Mile Island, the news gained credibility when the nuclear regulatory agency took over from Metropolitan Edison; and most experts feel NRC should impose more, not fewer controls, on nuclear plants. These are good things to remember when griping at the government. The alternative gives a private company license to play "shake-and-bake" with the nation's health.

Inside Report

SALT sellers' backfire

By ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The almost completed SALT II treaty has stimulated so much political spending by the Carter administration to assure its Senate ratification that a congressional backlash has been triggered with dangerous implications for both the president and the treaty.

At issue is not President Carter's unquestioned right to seek public approval of the new strategic arms limitation treaty. The issue is whether in his zeal to make SALT palatable he will oversell the product, overspend federal tax dollars to finance his super-sell and fuel the backlash already started.

The super-selling galvanized Barry Goldwater, who is not easily provoked to wrath these days, in December after he had received manifold complaints about administration tactics. He asked General Accounting Office, the watchdog of Congress, for details. On March 16 the Arizona senator got an earful.

Since last June 29, when the administration opened its national campaign, lobbying for SALT cost more than $100,000 a month (through December), the GAO told Goldwater in a March 16 letter. For travel alone by officials of the State Department, Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and the Defense Department, the six-month bill was $76,230.

At the administration's first Pro-SALT "conference" on June 29 at Racine, Wis., 17 administration officials (12 from the State Department) were present. Giving briefings, handing out pamphlets and video-taping questions and answers, they began building the pro-SALT portfolio. The ratio was one federal official for each 17 participants.

What upset not only Goldwater but other politicians of both parties who have doubts about SALT II, was the administration's effort to "pack" the Racine meeting. Although citizens present could not be identified with Jimmy Carter, known foes of SALT were not invited.

The growing anger of senators not in the pro-SALT bloc raises a future threat to tax-financed lobbying that involves taking officials back and forth across the country, high-cost communications gear and empty desks in Washington. An invitation for just such a hint of congressional action to limit a president's open-ended use of tax money came in a 1977 U.S. District Court decision.

Energy enemy is ourselves

By MARTHA ANGLE & ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON — President Carter, confronting his twin nemeses of energy and inflation, in effect has adopted the old Pogo line: "We have met the enemy and he is us."

That is hardly a message of cheer and comfort, and White House political advisers are aware of the fate traditionally reserved for the bearer of bad news. Yet despite the risks, Carter has opted for bluntness.

By every available measure of public opinion, most Americans still perceive the energy crisis as a figment of the oil companies' imagination, a plot to manipulate supplies and drive up prices. Not so, the president said. The crisis "is real," and it consists of a dangerous dependence on foreign oil that has been brought about by our own excesses and wastefulness. There is no quick cure, and the medicine prescribed for eventual amelioration is bitter indeed: "Each one of us will have to use less oil and pay more for it."

There is no point sugar coating the pill. The only way this nation can "use less oil" is to accept, however grudgingly, a decline in our present standard of living, a proposition that runs directly counter to every impulse of the American character.

To "use less oil" means to drive smaller cars less often at slower speeds. It means colder homes and public buildings in winter, hotter ones in summer. It means, in short, some real discomfort. And for all this we will have to pay more, a lot more, and do so indefinitely. There is no light at the end of the tunnel, no halcyon day ahead when energy again will be cheap and plentiful.

This means, of course, that steadily rising fuel prices that have contributed so heavily to the overall surge in the cost of living will continue to drive up the inflation rate. If inflation is to be curbed

Throwing out a case brought against Carter for using public funds to lobby Illinois legislators for the equal rights amendment, the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Illinois held that "it may offend a sense of fairness especially of persons who differ" with the president to let the White House run a massive lobbying campaign. Nevertheless, "this is a matter properly in the hands of Congress," not the judicial branch.

The pro-SALT campaign is centered in the White House under Gerald Rafshoon, Carter's image-maker, and Hamilton Jordan, his top White House aide. But the men running around the country selling SALT are in the State Department and at ACDA. Those two agencies, according to GAO, spent $595,351 in the last few months of 1978.

SALT II spending in 1979 will dwarf that figure. Indeed, tax-paid lobbying for SALT will outdistance any other lobbying campaign for any congressional enactment in history. Although the heavy national lobbying for the Marshall Plan a generation ago was mostly privately financed, most SALT selling has been from tax funds.

So mobilized is the State Department in pushing SALT that diplomats abroad report back on anti-SALT statements by foreign politicians. In a telegram to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance several weeks ago, Ambassador Kingman Brewster quoted from a debate in the House of Commons during which Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher asked hostile questions about SALT.

Brewster then commented on the danger of this to the treaty: "Mrs. Thatcher's question reflects growing awareness in the Conservative party of SALT as a political issue and is evidence of the impact the U.S. debate is beginning to have in Britain." When that telegram was shown to one pro-SALT U.S. politician, he asked, "Is SALT going to persuade Carter to weigh in against Thatcher and the Conservatives in the (May 3) British election?"

A second message from Brewster's embassy outlined a major U.S. SALT selling project in Britain: "Encourage U.K. (United Kingdom) opinion leaders who support SALT to make their views known effectively. Seek to reassure those who entertain SALT reservations... (and) dampen echoes of the simplistic and rhetorical elements raised in the U.S. debate."

British history

By DON GRAFF

History is something about which the British know quite a bit.

As a people they've seen and made more than a little history, and recent events in London suggest they may be at it again.

The single-vote defeat of Prime Minister James Callaghan has called with Her Majesty's Labor government on the question of Scottish home rule was the first time in 55 years that a British government has lost a vote of confidence. Ironically, it was the country's first Labor government that was brought down on the last occasion, in 1924.

The May 3 election Callaghan has called with Her Majesty's consent also may make history by bringing to power Britain's first woman prime minister. Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives head into the election with a lead in the opinion polls.

Much will be heard in the campaign about home rule, Britain's Common Market association, defense spending, better relations with the United States and other allies, social welfare programs and the economy in general.

But none of these is the burning issue. It is the ongoing confrontation between the British government and labor that dominates politics and immobilizes the economy.

Nowhere in the democratic world is organized labor as politically powerful as in Britain. But from this strength comes a national weakness.

British politics have been class-based since World War I and emergence of the Labor party as a sharer of power. Since World War II, politics has been increasingly dominated by bread and butter economic issues and wage and benefit demands rather than long-term development. In the process, the national economy has stagnated.

Britain, which launched the Industrial Revolution, brings up the rear among major industrial powers. Its gross national product is little more than half that of France, long its economic inferior. Productivity of British workers lags far behind their German and Japanese counterparts.

Demands for larger cuts of a growing economic pie have resulted in inflation, paralyzing strikes and a running battle with governments of whichever party happens to be in power.

The odds are that on May 3 British voters will decide that the Conservatives, with the promise of firmness, can best deal with the situation. On the other hand, it would be no great surprise should voters again buy Labor's argument that it speaks the working man's language and is best positioned to achieve an accommodation.

MacNelly wins Reuben Award

Jeff MacNelly, whose editorial cartoons appear in the Wichita Falls Record News and whose comic strip "Shoe" appears in the Wichita Falls Times, has received the Reuben Award, the highest honor of the National Cartoonists Society.

The award was based on his editorial cartoons as well as the comic strip. MacNelly won Pulitzer Prizes in 1972 and 1978 for his editorial cartoons which appear in more than 350 American newspapers. He also has received the George Polk Award and the National Cartoonists Society Award for editorial cartooning.

MacNelly, 31, began "Shoe," which appears in more than 480 newspapers daily and Sunday, in 1971. The strip provides a light and deft commentary on the pratfalls of daily life, using a clutch of scruffy birds that resemble a newspaper editor, an absent-minded "perferer," a secretary, a barmaid, an inept pilot and the "perferer's" nephew.

A native of Cedarhurst, N.J., who attended Phillips Academy at Andover, Mass., MacNelly began his career drawing sports and editorial cartoons for his college paper, the Daily Tar Heel, at the University of North Carolina. Later, as an editorial cartoonist for the town newspaper, The Chapel Hill Weekly, MacNelly hit his stride, spoofing the local upheavals and "ridiculousities" that characterize North Carolina politics.

His efforts earned the National Newspaper Association's 1969 award for best editorial cartooning, and the following year he became editorial cartoonist for the Richmond, Va., News Leader, where he still works.

MacNelly and his wife, the former Rita Daniels, live in Richmond with their two sons. MacNelly cites his father, C.L. MacNelly, a portrait artist who has been an advertising executive and a publisher of The Saturday Evening Post, as the single greatest influence on his career.

"Dad has painted Jimmy Durante, the late Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, photographer Wingate Paine and former HEW head Bob Finch," MacNelly said. "When we get together, Dad tries to teach me painting techniques and I try to teach him to draw caricatures. Neither of us has been very successful, however."

MacNelly's college years spanned most of the student strikes and late 1960s Vietnam protests. To him, it appeared that "all this activity was not only polarizing the campuses to one point of view, but was also closing the minds of most of the participants," he said.

"Most of the activists were, to me, a humorless, one-sided bunch, and this kind of thing goes against the spirit on which the university is based. Certainly the system and the establishment should be challenged, and challenged constantly. But shouldn't the alternatives be subject to challenge also?"

MacNelly challenges politicians with his humor. "I try to make my point through humor," he said. "I believe that this is the most effective way to reach my reader, while I'm entertaining him."

MacNelly editorial cartoons and comic strips are distributed by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate Inc.

Windfall profits tax supported by Congress

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders said Monday they expect Congress to pass the "windfall-profits" oil tax President Carter wants, but Carter predicted efforts to "hoodwink the American people" by weakening the measure before enactment.

Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said Carter "can have the windfall-profits tax for the asking. ... I'm hard-pressed to find anyone who's opposed to it."

Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said he thought there would be strong public support for a tax on additional revenue oil companies receive as a result of lifting federal price controls.

The president directed his criticism at efforts to amend his tax blueprint by exempting from taxation decontrol profits that would be used to develop new petroleum resources.

"They will try to pass this charade off on the American people as a 'plover back' provision, he said, adding that he saw it as a "kickback" to the oil companies.

The president needs no congressional action to go ahead with his plan to phase out price controls of U.S.-produced crude oil by mid-1981. However, a windfall profits tax requires congressional approval.

Carter wants a 50 percent tax levied on the revenues generated by phasing out oil price controls. The tax money collected would be used to provide energy cost rebates for the elderly, for mass transit and for research into alternative energy forms.

But Carter expressed fears that an effort will be made to amend his tax plan to add "loopholes so the oil companies will get another $4 billion to $5 billion in unearned profits on top of the $6 billion they would get under ... an honest windfall profits tax."

Without naming names, Carter told the National Academy of Sciences that opponents realize they cannot defeat the tax and hope instead to pass a tax "that is in fact a charade."

Baker asks asylum for exiled shah

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker called on the Carter administration Monday to grant asylum to the exiled Shah of Iran.

Failure to do so will call into question the willingness of the United States to aid its friends in time of trouble, Baker said.

The administration has made it known to the shah that he would not be welcome to take up residence in the United States, at least while U.S. relations with the successor regime in Iran remain tenuous.

Fronts, jet stream spawned tornado

By ROCKY SCOTT Staff Writer

The monster was born 14 days ago in the early morning hours along the Texas Gulf Coast.

A warm front, soaking up moisture like a thirsty sponge, fanned gentle, rolling waves towards the shore. Gulls wheeled through the air, squawking an imperious greeting to another lazy, sandy gulf coast day.

Three hundred miles north, a city of 100,000 was already bustling. Morning rush hour traffic inched through stop lights.

Book awards announced

NEW YORK (AP) — Novelist Tim O'Brien won the 1979 National Book Award for fiction on Monday for "Going After Cacciato," about a GI who abandons the Vietnam War for Paris.

A spokesman for the awards, sponsored by the Association of American Publishers, Inc., said O'Brien was the winner over such authors as John Irving, who wrote "The World According to Garp" and 1979 Pulitzer Prize winner John Cheever.

The winner in the category of biography and autobiography was "Robert Kennedy and His Times," by Arthur Schlesinger Jr.

The award for children's literature went to Katherine Paterson, who authored "The Great Gilly Hopkins," a story of a foster child shunted from home to home.

"The Snow Leopard" an account by Peter Matthiessen of a two-month journey by foot in the Himalayas won in the contemporary thought category.

coffee pots perked and washing machines tumbled.

Automatic ovens, pop-up toasters, hair dryers, all products of humankind's inventive genius, whirred with electric efficiency.

Winds had been switching from north to east the day before. The April 10 morning breaking over Wichita Falls was, in most respects, unremarkable.

To the northwest, Amarillo was chilly. A cold front lay draped across the Panhandle, spun off from a blizzard that was skating across the northern tier of states.

It was a typical, last-of-winter, first-of-spring kind of day in "Tornado Alley." A National Weather Service observer going off duty at 8 a.m. thought some severe weather might develop later in the day when the warm front and cold front collided, somewhere around Wichita Falls, he figured.

As the morning wore on, the warm front lifted its gray cirrus skirts and began tracking north. Powered by the rising sun reflecting off the baked Texas hide, it headed, slowly at first, then gently accelerating its pace, towards a chilly, atmospheric union with destiny.

There was to be a birth that day; both parents were already feeling labor pains. As the warm winds gathered force and spiraled upward, the cool northern air began collapsing at its center and moving east.

By mid-afternoon, thunderstorm embryos had formed, precursors of the birth to come.

The two fronts approached each other, coyly at first. Fencing, flirting, they thrust and parried with lightning bolts, then entwined in a churning dance of conception.

Drum-roll thunder signaled the onset of contractions. Below, people watched with wary eyes.

For any birth there must be a midwife. High above, the jet stream hurtled along at 100 mph. Sleeves rolled up, it reached down to help with the delivery.

Then something went horribly, dreadfully wrong. The union of soft ocean sand and cool mountain breezes produced a monster.

Three-headed, the mutant lowered its maw toward the ground below and began to suckle hungrily. First nibbling at freshly-budded branches, then gnawing on power lines, the omnivorous, deformed child took its first tottering steps to the northeast.

It grew in geometric proportions as its horrified parents looked on. Insatiable, it devoured houses, buildings, cars, laughing all the while at the frail human forms cowering in its path.

Pounding and pulsing, it hammered across the toasters, coffee pots and hair dryers, leaving twisted metal, useless scrap in its wake.

And still it grew. Half a mile across at its mouth, it gorged continuously, never looking up, never seeing clouds hurtling toward its center at kamikaze speed to surrender themselves.

A mindless child, a conscienceless tot that cries as much for the dead kitten as for a dead sibling, the storm stomped through a living, breathing city and left death in its path.

It performed open heart surgery without benefit of anesthetic, an amputation with only a bullet between the teeth for solace.

Finally, it moved on. Squat, dark and hanging low on the horizon, it lumbered to the northeast and darkness. Sixty-five miles later, the monster died, a victim of its own gluttony and greed. The mutant was sterile. No offspring arose to take its place.

In all, the malformed beast lived just more than an hour, and 44 lifetimes.

This form can keep your company out of the insurance business.

Some of the so-called "bargain" insurance plans floating around can end up costing your company a fortune.

Both in time and money.

Because you have to do all the paperwork — all the filling out and filing of claims forms.

It literally puts your company into the insurance business, and can mean a lot of payroll and man-hours going to doing the insurance company's job.

Unless you go to the people who do the job for you.

Speaker will be Patsy Lamson, family life education specialist.

A second meeting will be at 7 p.m. Thursday and the speaker will be Dr. Jerry Lyles, clinical psychologist and family marriage counselor.

This two-night short course is sponsored by the Knox County family living committee and the extension service.

Slain Mexican's friend on probation

The companion of a Mexican alien shot and killed last week by a Wichita Falls police officer was convicted two years ago of smuggling illegal aliens, a Laredo, Texas, probation officer said Monday.

Louis G. Brewster, supervising federal probation officer for the Laredo district, said Filberto Ramirez Delgado, 31, is currently serving a five-year probation sentence for aiding and abetting the illegal entry of three Mexican aliens in Laredo in 1977.

Delgado, foreman of a landscaping crew, and Rosendo Sosa Ortiz, 19, were stopped by police just before midnight April 15 in the downtown area for a curfew violation.

Ortiz was fatally shot by rookie officer Jay Wright after Ortiz bolted from the car and refused to halt, police said. He was shot as he appeared to be reaching for a weapon, according to police.

After hearing testimony from Delgado, Wright, his partner John Bailey and police investigating officer James Shelton, the Wichita County grand jury last week ruled that Wright had acted in the line of duty when he shot Ortiz.

Local and state Mexican-American groups have protested the shooting and criticized the grand jury.

Brewster said Delgado was sentenced July 5, 1977, to 90 days in jail, but was given a three-year probation sentence and a $250 fine.

Three weeks later, Brewster said, Delgado's 90-day sentence was revoked and he served the original sentence in Laredo's Webb County Jail. He also was sentenced to six months in jail, but that sentence was probated for five years and Delgado was ordered to pay a $500 fine, Brewster said.

Brewster said he had no details about Delgado's arrest. One official, who asked to remain anonymous, said information regarding Delgado's arrest in Wichita Falls for the curfew violation would be forwarded to the Laredo probation office.

The official said it is a violation of the terms of a probation to associate with criminals so Delgado might be subject to having his probation revoked for being with Ortiz, an illegal alien.

Union official wounded

MARTINS FERRY, Ohio (AP) — Floyd "Bill" Lamb, controversial official of the United Mine Workers union, was shot and wounded early Monday while en route to Washington for a meeting of the union's International Executive Board, authorities said.

Harris County Sheriff Richard Rensi said Lamb was shot twice at about 1 a.m. near Harrisville.

He was reported in satisfactory condition at Martins Ferry Hospital where he underwent surgery to stop bleeding from a wound in his upper left arm. He also was wounded in the upper left leg.

New DA aide loves his job

"Prosecution is my first love," says Assistant District Attorney Jerry Andress.

Andress, a 20-year U.S. Air Force veteran, joined District Attorney Tim Eysen's staff last week as his fourth assistant prosecutor.

The 49-year-old Muskogee, Okla., native earned a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Houston while in the Air Force, and upon his retirement as a staff sergeant in 1968, attended Bates School of Law at the University of Houston.

After graduating from law school in 1972, Andress, an air controller in the Air Force, became assistant district attorney in Hidalgo County for three years before becoming assistant county attorney and then assistant district attorney in Bell County.

He went into private practice in Temple, Texas, after an unsuccessful bid for Bell County court-at-law judge. He said he took the Wichita County assistant district attorney's job because he wanted to return to prosecution.

He and his wife have three grown children and a 9-year-old daughter at home.

Marijuana researcher to speak

By BRENDA SIMMONS Regional Staff Writer

Dr. Keith Schuchard, an Atlanta, Ga., author who became interested in marijuana research because of her role as a mother, will be the keynote speaker at the Regional Chemical Abuse Institute May 1 at Midwestern State University.

In addition to Mrs. Schuchard, 17 other authorities on drug abuse prevention will conduct seminars for professional and para-professional persons working in fields which may relate to drug abuse.

"Here's to Prevention: Strategies for Healthy Living" is the theme for the sixth annual event, and Mrs. Schuchard will open the seminar discussing "Parents, Peers and Pot."

She organized a parent prevention program in Atlanta and the Parent Resource Institute for Drug Education at Georgia State University. Mrs. Schuchard recently has completed writing a handbook about drugs designed for parents and also is a consultant to the National Institute for Drug Abuse.

Becky Davis, drug abuse and alcoholism coordinator for North Texas Regional Planning Commission, said Mrs. Schuchard has the "latest research in marijuana studies which are quite different results than many of the earlier reports which said marijuana caused no great harm."

The drug abuse prevention seminar is sponsored by North Texas Commission on Alcoholism, Texas Department of Community Affairs' Drug Abuse Prevention division, MSU Department of Continuing Education and Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

"The institute is to enhance professional and para-professional skills for persons working directly or indirectly in the field of alcoholism and drug abuse," Mrs. Davis said.

Seminar participants will be eligible to receive credits through the MSU continuing education, and the institute also has been accredited by American Medical Association for the highest credit rating doctors may get, Mrs. Davis said.

Others who may obtain credit are nurses, law enforcement officers and alcoholism counselors.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. in Hardin Auditorium.

MSU President Dr. John Barker will welcome participants and Mrs. Schuchard's speech will begin at 9 a.m. at the auditorium.

The workshops will begin at 10:15 a.m. in Clark Student Center.

Wichita Falls drug and alcoholism abuse prevention directors scheduled to conduct a session are Joi Anne Garrett and Mary Jo Gruca of First Step Inc.; Moises Garcia Jr., Wichita Falls Community MH-

MR Center; John Heath, Standards Compliance officer of Vernon Center; Lt. Col. Joseph Konecick of Sheppard Air Force Base Mental Health Sciences; and Dr. Richard E. Millicci, internal medicine.

Other seminar leaders will include Darrol Groth, John Welborn, and Dr. Frankie Williams of Vernon Center; Dr. Robert Sullivan, Hypnosis Training Center in Waco, Texas; Dr. Philip Zybnot and Manuel Fernandez of Texas Commission on Alcoholism in Austin; Roy E. Byers, Texas Department of MH-MR; Dr. Daniel J. Anderson, Hazeldon Foundation in Minnesota; Dr. Carl Andersen and Dr. William Landers of Texas Tech University in Lubbock; and Helene Botsonis, registered nurse and director of health services in Texas Panhandle Community Action Agency in Amarillo.

The workshop topics will include hypnosis, family counseling, prescription drug abuse, fetal alcohol syndrome and sexuality and alcoholism.

Unloading vinegar

Jim Hance, minister of Edgemere Church of Christ, supervises the unloading of 2,400 gallons of white distilled vinegar, a gift to Wichita Falls tornado victims from the H.J. Heinz Co. of Pittsburgh. (Photo by Mark Peel)

Vinegar arrives to help victims clean laundry

A load of 2,400 gallons of white distilled vinegar arrived in Wichita Falls Monday afternoon scheduled for distribution free to victims of the tornado.

The vinegar will be used to clean clothing contaminated with fiberglass from blowing sheetrock.

The shipment resulted from a phone call to the Edgemere Church of Christ shortly after the twister struck. Twila Duncan of New York City was asking what could be done to help. "We sure could use some vinegar," Jim Hance, minister, told Ms. Duncan. After a phone call from Ms. Duncan to the H.J. Heinz Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., the shipment was dispatched immediately to Wichita Falls. The Heinz Co. refused payment and paid freight charges, Hance said.

Hance, Don Foster and Tom Reid of the Church of Christ were on hand to receive the vinegar. They were aided by troops of the 3780 First School Squadron of Sheppard Air Force Base.

Those who need vinegar to clean clothing may get it at the Edgemere, Tenth and Broad and Faith Village Churches of Christ, Red Cross, Salvation Army, Fain Presbyterian Church or the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Saudia Arabia breaks relations with Egypt

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabia decided Monday to break diplomatic and political relations with Egypt in compliance with the Baghdad Arab summit decision last month to impose sanctions against the Cairo government, the official Saudi news agency reported.

The sanctions are intended to punish President Anwar Sadat for signing a peace treaty with Israel.

The agency said the decision was taken at a Cabinet meeting in Riyadh under Deputy Premier Prince Abdallah bin Abdul Aziz, also commander of the Saudi national guard.

Kuwait announced earlier Monday that it had broken diplomatic relations with Egypt for the same reason.

Saudi Arabia has been Egypt's main financial supporter, and there was no Cabinet statement on how that aid would be affected.

Prince Abdallah presided at the Cabinet meeting because Crown Prince and Prime Minister Fahd is abroad. He flew to Spain, reportedly for health reasons, as the Arab League ministers were meeting in Baghdad in March to approve sanctions against Sadat's regime.

Information Minister Mohammed Abdo Yamani said the decision to sever relations with Egypt was taken "because Egypt accepted and planned to exchange diplomatic representation with the Zionist enemy (Israel)."

"Egypt began to establish normal relations with the enemy without taking into consideration the minimum of demands the Arabs had been looking forward to as a basis for a just and comprehensive peace," the minister added.

He said Saudi Arabia "hopes that factors justifying this step would be removed so that relations could be restored between the two brotherly countries."

Arab diplomatic sources said all 19 Arab League members that participated in the anti-Sadat Baghdad meeting would take similar action soon.

Murder trial to begin for ex-San Francisco supervisor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge ordered the murder trial of former supervisor Dan White to begin Wednesday after refusing a motion by White's lawyers to prohibit prosecutors from excluding prospective jurors who oppose the death penalty.

The 32-year-old White, dressed in a gray suit and open-necked white shirt, looked pale and drawn Monday as Superior Court Judge Walter Calcagno said he thought a fair and impartial jury will be found to try White for the City Hall slayings of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk. White has pleaded innocent.

Jury selection was ordered to begin Wednesday from a pool of 250 men and women, 150 more than usually called in a murder trial.

White is charged with first-degree murder under the "special circumstances" provision of a new state law, which could result in a sentence of death in the gas chamber. He also could be acquitted, or convicted of second-degree murder or manslaughter.

TWU cites outstanding area exes

Four outstanding women, including a Wichita Falls native, as well as a former Vernon newspaperwoman, have been chosen to receive the highest honor that the Texas Woman's University bestows upon its alumnae — the Distinguished Alumnae awards.

Recipients are fashion photographer Constance Ashley ('66), writer Laura Lane ('33), singer-actress Jo Ann Miller ('49), and lawyer Sue Titus Reid ('60).

The women will be honored at a luncheon Wednesday on the TWU campus in Denton.

Constance Ashley is one of Dallas' most outstanding fashion photographers.

She is a Wichita Falls native who grew up in Snyder.

For more than 30 years, Laura Lane ('33) has been a journalist writing for and about rural American women. She began her career as a reporter for the Vernon (Texas) Daily Record.

Jo Ann Miller ('49) is the managing director of the successful Granbury (Texas) Opera House.

Sue Titus Reid ('60) is professor of law at the University of Tulsa.

Ann Landers Says Convent can't take place of therapy

Dear Ann Landers: I'm what you'd probably call a popular girl with the guys. I have had a lot of experience since the age of 13. Now I'm thinking of becoming a nun. But all the "good times" I've had are weighing heavy on my mind. I know I'd make a good nun, but the question is, can I trust my body?

I come from a broken home. My mother is an alcoholic and I've caught my father with other women. I had no one else to turn to except the church.

My problem is now whether I can trust my feelings towards men, if and when I become a nun. I've trusted you for years. Please don't fail me in my time of need. Thanks and love. — Popular In Montana

Dear Popular: I asked Sister Candida Lund, president of Rosary College in River Forest, Ill., to respond to your letter. This is her answer:

Dear Popular in Montana: A wise old head of a large order of nuns used to say that for a young woman to even consider becoming a nun showed a generous spirit. Beyond that, however, the question is not whether you can trust your body but what does your mind and heart tell you? There are valid reasons and invalid reasons for becoming a nun. On the valid side I would list (1) to serve God in a particular way; (2) to have fuller opportunity for prayer; (3) to live in a community with persons who share your ideals.

Among invalid reasons are (1) to escape from a broken home — or to escape from anything; (2) to find an instant solution to your problems; (3) to believe that a change in lifestyle will produce a new you. In short, the convent cannot be a substitute for therapy.

Dear Ann: In the March issue of magazine a Seattle woman whose son works for Pacific Northwest Life Bell said she was appalled to see photos (in a previous issue) of a person using the telephone while immersed in a hot tub. She said the phone carries a deadly charge of electricity when the user is in the water.

A few years ago I was enchanted by a picture of you on the cover of a magazine section of The New York Times — luxuriating in a marble bathtub with soap bubbles up to your pretty shoulders — talking on the telephone and reading your mail. Please tell me you won't do it anymore. — Worried In Washington

Dear W.: After 23 years of this work I considered myself positively shock-proof — but your letter prompted me to call Illinois Bell. They said, "She's right." So, from now on, no more telephoning from the tub. And if it rings — I get out to answer.

Vows said at Gainesville

BOWIE, Texas (Special) — Kenda Kay Webb became the bride of Robert Carroll Delashaw April 14 in the First Assembly of God Church in Gainesville.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Webb of Gainesville and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merwin Delashaw of Callisburg.

The Rev. L. C. Smith and the Rev. J. O. Webb, both of Bowie, officiated. Janna Webb was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Glenda and Linda Delashaw, sisters of the groom.

Randy Owens of Valley View was best man. Groomsmen were Charles Galubenski and Carroll Monden.

Darwin Webb and Jaime Sweeney were ushers and candlelighters. Summer Webb was flower girl and Keith Webb was ring bearer.

The couple will live in Gainesville.

Where you can help!

(Editor's Note: Many individuals are concerned with what they can do to help those who have been tornado victims with specific needs, such as doing laundry, transporting people to appointments or providing hot meals and supplies. To offer information on any small, individual aid that can be given, the following column will run daily in the Wichita Falls Times and Record News family pages.)

● Neighbors also may volunteer their time to take a child (without transportation because of the tornado) to a music lesson.

● Other needs will be picking up clothes from the cleaners, providing a mattress or going to the grocery store for tornado victims.

● The Rev. W. C. Harting, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, where three pickup truck loads of clothing, food and supplies were received from four Lutheran congregations in Dallas, said the clothes have been sorted to size and placed in the church basement.

"Those who suffered loss are welcome to come by between the hours of 8 a.m.-noon and 1-5 p.m. at the church, 11th and Holiday.

"In addition to clothing there also are food, pots and pans, bedding and a few items of furniture," Harting said.

The church and Our Redeemer Lutheran Church of Wichita Falls, both affiliated with the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, also are administering cash assistance sent from the Dallas congregations, as well as the Synod's district, Harting said.

● Sandwiches are available at St. Mark's Methodist Church, 4319 McNeil, furnished by Floral Heights United Methodist Church, 2214 10th. Also at Floral Heights Scout Hut across from the church there is clothing, including work clothes, baby diapers and children's clothes, bedding, linens and towels.

● Mrs. John Barker, volunteer services chairman for the American Red Cross, lists two primary needs.

"One of our big needs is for people to help us prepare food that is being distributed in vans by the Red Cross throughout the city, like sandwiches, coffee and this kind of thing. Another need is skilled clerical help, typists mainly. "We need to see them here at the Red Cross Volunteer Office in the Naval Reserve Building at the corner of Fifth and Denver," she said.

Your Health Go easy on bowel

By DR. LAWRENCE LAMB
NEA Writer

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an 83-year-old woman and in good health except for constipation, which I've had most of my life. I take Metamucil for bulk and about one-fourth teaspoon of Senokot. Also, I take mineral oil for lubrication and that seems to help.

I drink lots of water, get exercise and drive my own car. I only weigh 82 pounds and I'm 4 feet 11 inches tall. What is the best time for me to take medicine like I'm taking? Should I take mineral oil at bedtime on an empty stomach? Also, I take Metamucil and the Senokot in a glass of milk. Should this be taken at bedtime too? Kindly get me straight.

DEAR READER — I'm sorry to hear that you're taking so many things for your bowel function. Sometimes it's very difficult to reverse such a pattern, particularly if it is a long-standing habit of many years as seems to be your case.

The bowel usually functions normally in most people if it's not abused.

Unfortunately, many people do abuse the colon by using harsh laxatives, eating the wrong foods and developing habits that don't permit the colon to establish its own rhythm and natural function.

Senokot is a chemical laxative. I am sending you the Health Letter number 12-8, Laxatives, Enemas and Suppositories, to give you more information on these products.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of Wichita Falls Record News, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Chemical laxatives stimulate the colon to contract and it is wrong to take these all the time.

Mineral oil has a lot of drawbacks and I think the best choice here would be to stop it entirely. People who use mineral oil sometimes make it difficult for their own small intestine to absorb important vitamins and minerals. Besides that, part of the mineral oil is absorbed and is treated as a foreign body inside the organs. Then, of course, it has the unpleasant social problem of sometimes leaking through the rectum. I'm afraid I just can't recommend mineral oil.

The Metamucil, of course, provides bulk. Often that is what a person needs and, hopefully, most people will get it from natural food products. The best ones are the cereal fibers which you can get from whole grain cereals that provide bran.

Bridge group to resume play

The Bridge Department of the Woman's Forum will resume play at 12:45 p.m. Wednesday. Hostesses for the meeting in the Senior-Junior Room will be Mmes. Joe McNiel, Henry Clark and M. L. Stephens. Mrs. J. W. League, president of the group, made the announcement.

Meeting reset

Members of the Newcomers Club will meet as scheduled Wednesday at the Wichita Club. Reservations may be made with Mary Hutchinson or Jo Ann Schultz.

Peeling is easy

Peeling hard-cooked eggs is easy if you first crackle the shell by gently tapping it on a counter or table top. Then roll the egg between your hands to loosen the shell. Start peeling at the large end where the air cell is located. Holding the egg under running water or dipping it into a bowl of water usually makes peeling easier.

Iowa Park club honors students

The 23 Study Club of Iowa Park honored two young people — Jill Koonce and Bruce Holder — at a luncheon held recently at the home of Mrs. Glen R. Miller.

Parents of the students are Mr. and Mrs. Pete Koonce and Mr. and Mrs. Al Holder. Holder is also the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Holder of Wichita Falls.

This marks the 10th year that the club has sponsored the project, giving members of civic and church groups the opportunities to nominate young people for the Outstanding Boy and Girl for 1979.

Nominations, none of which was made by the 23 Study Club, are based on scholastic awards, school service, employment and church and extracurricular activities.

Mrs. James Sewell and Mrs.

Travis Smith and Miss Ethyle Kidwell were members of the youth committee. They prepared and distributed nomination forms for judging by Dr. Arthur Beyer, Midwestern State University; Mrs. Merle Anthony, and Mrs. D. C. Copelin, a retired teacher, both of Wichita Falls.

Miss Koonce has been active in nearly every club and organization in Iowa Park High School and plans to attend Rice University in Houston.

Holder has been president of the senior class and has been prominent in numerous activities. Both are honor students. Holder has been active in sports and is also a licensed pilot.

Older victims of tornado are studied

By PAT ZAJAC Staff Writer

In hopes of making recovery easier for elderly disaster victims in the future, two investigators from North Dakota State University this week are interviewing Wichita Falls and Vernon senior citizens affected by the tornado.

Dr. Bob Bolin and Dr. Daniel Klenow, assistant professors of sociology at the university, will be interviewing older disaster victims to find out what special problems they may have encountered in obtaining new housing and federal and state aid.

"The elderly have problems with transportation and their physical health. Both of those add to the difficulty of getting federal aid. They can't get down to the center. They can't stand in lines. Maybe they have bad eyesight and can't fill out the forms. They, in particular, have a lot of problems working the system," Bolin explained.

The research is part of a larger quick-response disaster research program conducted through the Institute of Behavioral Science at the University of Colorado, Bolin said. The research will be used to suggest ways policies can be changed to better serve different categories of disaster victims, he said.

The two sociologists also will be studying emotional problems the disaster may have created for the elderly. Bolin said, may suffer more hardship at the loss of pets, a home they may have lived in for 30 or 40 years and mementos which are the "artifacts of a lifetime."

The research team will be visiting disaster areas, hoping to interview older victims. Persons who would like to be interviewed may call Bolin or Klenow at 723-0841, ext. 122.

Clay C-C hears property tax talk

By LEE ANDERSON Regional Editor

HENRIETTA, Texas — Re-evaluation of property for tax purposes in Henrietta Independent School District is in the final stages, City-School Tax Assessor-Collector Ross Fry Monday told Henrietta and Clay County Chamber of Commerce.

Fry explained, "We are trying to update property evaluations to 1979 standards. Our figures haven't been updated since 1959."

City tax rate is $1.50 per $100 evaluation and school rate is $1.30 on $100, based on 70 percent of full market value.

"We are trying to achieve a tax equalization for the district," Fry said. "It is out of necessity to the city to re-evaluate property taxes."

The tax collector-assessor noted that the 4,000 taxpayers in the district paid $556,000 in school taxes and $180,000 to the city in 1978.

"I don't think it will raise tax receipts listed"

WALTERS, Okla. (Special) — City of Walters has received $10,798 from Oklahoma Tax Commission as a result of February tax collection. This is $2,600 more than February 1978.

City of Temple received $6,389, Al Shelton, director of OTC sales tax division, said.

Annual Fandangle event set Saturday near Albany

ALBANY, Texas — The annual sampler for the popular Fort Griffin Fandangle will be at dusk Saturday at Reynolds Bend on the Matthew Ranch, 28 miles north of Albany on the Clear Fork of the Brazos River. Included will be colorful wildflowers, rangy Texas Longhorns and a Calliope concert for the entertainment of members of the Fort Griffin Fandangle Association.

The sampler is held for the members, giving them a chance to preview the summer show, which is scheduled for the last two weekends in June. The gates at Reynolds Bend will open at 6 p.m. for the family-style picnic. Guests are invited to bring their own supper to eat on the grounds or take advantage of the barbecue and trimmings offered for sale by Texas Trails Chuckwagon owned by Clifford Teinert and Bob Echols.

Several Texas Longhorns will be penned near the picnic grounds for visitors and the careful observers might catch a glimpse of a buffalo, wild turkey or other wildlife roaming loose along the drive to the bend.

According to ranch manager Watt Matthews, wildflowers at the site and along the road, "are as pretty and abundant as I've seen in a long time."

He added, "I can guarantee that anyone who appreciates nature will enjoy the drive."

Also included in the schedule is an informal concert of the steam-powered Calliope, the only musical instrument in the state of Texas required to have a steam boiler permit.

Theme for the 1979 summer show is "The Frontier West As Seen Through the Eyes of a Young Girl," according to Fandangle director Marge Bray. "Memberships are important to us," she explained, "Without them we wouldn't be able to have a show at all."

Pot OK'd for patients

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill to let cancer and glaucoma patients take marijuana legally, all in the interest of medical research, was approved Monday by a Senate committee.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Tati Santesteban, D-El Paso, would enable "faculty and members of medical research facilities to conduct research through the supervised use of tetrahydrocannabinols and its derivatives."

Such use would be restricted to glaucoma patients who have not responded to "conventional treatment" and to cancer patients who experience nausea from their chemotherapy or radiation treatments.

Dr. Carmalt B. Jackson Jr. of the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston said the medical use of the drug was tested frequently prior to anti-marijuana legislation in the late 1930s.

Jackson said preliminary research showed the drug useful in the treatment of nausea which often accompanies cancer treatment. He also said research showed the active ingredient of marijuana could be used to reduce eyeball pressure — a possible treatment for glaucoma.

We are indebted to Paul Lukacs and the Bridge World magazine for today's hand. Playing at six notrump, South has 11 sure tricks and can get his 12th if hearts break 3-3 (a 36 percent chance) or the club finesse will work (a 50 percent chance). South would like to be able to try both but he must

India preparing for U.S. meetings

WASHINGTON (AP) — India's Minister for External Affairs, A.B. Vajpayee, conferred with his advisers Monday in preparation for meetings Tuesday with President Carter and other senior U.S. officials.

Vajpayee is here for the annual meeting of the joint Indo-U.S. Commission, which seeks closer U.S.-Indian cooperation in several areas, including economics, education, science and technology. But his talks with Carter, knock out the ace of diamonds before going after hearts. If hearts are 4-2 and the ace is in the hand with the long hearts he will lose both a heart trick and the ace of diamonds.

Furthermore, if he attacks diamonds and the man with the ace holds up twice, takes the third diamond and leads a second spade (a spade was led originally) South will be in dummy for the last time and will have to decide between his two plays right then.

Lukacs points out a method that will almost surely get East to take his ace of diamonds (if he does hold it) on the second diamond lead.

At trick two South comes to his hand with a heart, leads a diamond to dummy's king, comes back with a second heart and leads a second diamond to dummy's queen. East will surely take his ace in hopes that the diamond jack is in the West hand.

Now South can afford to try for the heart break and keep the club finesse in reserve.

Moscow disco lacks fever

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — A rap on the tiny window and a secret password get you through the door of Moscow's newest in-spot, the Blue Bird cafe — the city's only real discotheque.

Red, yellow, blue and green lights flash, a tape plays the Bee Gees, four girls in blue jeans dance an improvised disco routine and a young man with Bob Dylan curls pops mysterious little white pills.

It's a disco all right, but something's missing — it's Saturday night without fever. Maybe it's because you don't find "the decor of a whorehouse and the odor of cocaine" that so disturbed a Soviet journalist recently at New York's Studio 54 disco.

Whatever it is, the imagination, the fantasy, the energy that lit up the lives of John Travolta and his friends in the movie "Saturday Night Fever" are missing at this subdued nightspot, where closing time is a strict 10 p.m.

Youngsters in their late teens and early 20s sit at small tables eating tough steak and eggs and fried pork rinds and drinking vodka cocktails with maraschino cherries. They're dressed for the most part in jeans and old sweaters, sometimes in jackets and ties.

The young man in Dylan curls, who called himself Bobik, wound a woolen scarf around his neck for individuality and complained of ennui.

The fun of the Blue Bird, a 3-year-old establishment that is just being discovered by foreigners, is much the same as that of Studio 54: its exclusivity.

Though Bobik and his friends say anyone can enter if he or she lines up early enough, it is clear that most of the youngsters here are the children of the privileged.

They dance with each other, fight with each other, whistle and wave to each other from table to table. And when the doors close behind them at 10, they gather in the street outside to decide whose house to go to for the night.

Throughout the evening, though, there is a mob of the unfortunate around the basement doorway, trying to get in.

Elbow your way through them, rap on a playing-card-sized window and shout, "Irina Nikolayevna sent me."

When the door opens a crack, all the others try to push through with you, but Irina Nikolayevna, a stout little woman with a bun, shoves them back.

"They line up from 3 p.m. to get in," she says, "but we have only 80 seats."

"You must give money," says Bobik. "The first time, the second time, the third time. Then they know you and you can get in."

"I used to come here all the time. Here you can make contacts for selling jeans. I have to make a living so I sell jeans. Now I don't come here so often and I have trouble getting in."

Says Irina Nikolayevna, "I have a good memory for faces."

Inside, the visitors find a tightly packed, low-ceilinged room filled with smoke and loud music, with a bar-window shaped like a large mouth filled with foreign liquor bottles. The Blue Bird serves only Russian vodka and champagne.

"This is the most popular place for young people," Bobik says. "You can dance here, everybody is here."

Mrs. Trudeau walks off set of 'Today' show

NEW YORK (AP) — Margaret Trudeau, estranged wife of Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, walked off the set of NBC-TV's "Today" show Monday after being questioned about her personal life.

After a taping session with interviewer Jane Pauley, the 30-year-old Mrs. Trudeau was asked to stay for re-taping and cutaway shots, according to Associated Press photographer David Pickoff, who was on the set.

Instead, the softspoken Canadian first lady took off her microphone and walked out.

At one point during the interview, Mrs. Trudeau was asked about an alleged romantic relationship with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to which she responded: "I'm surprised at you for asking that. That's a vicious question," the news photographer said.

Kennedy has denied any such relationship.

Arts council details program

ALTUS, Okla. (Special) — Shortgrass Arts and Humanities Council has announced coming events for the year.

Oklahoma Townscape workshop and public program will be in May; the Will Rogers traveling exhibit is planned for summer; "A Century of History in Quilts," will be in September at the Museum of the Western Prairie; "Teen-age Pregnancy," will be shown Sept. 13 in First National Bank; Oct. 9-10, Marian McPartland Trio will perform Oct. 9-10; and in November, TeAlta, Indian actress, will interpret her culture.

Segar started drawing "Thimble Theatre" in 1919, and it wasn't until 1929 that Popeye joined the cast.

Segar died in 1938, and was replaced by Bela Zabala and Tom Sims. Twenty years later, Bud Sagendorf took over.

Sagendorf said Popeye had become an "American folk hero," but his influence is hard to gauge. Navy spokesmen refused to speculate on the effect of Popeye on recruitment.

Even Popeye's effect on the spinach industry is debatable.

Popeye to celebrate 50th birthday

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifty years ago, two men and a hen walked up to an odd-looking sailor on a dock. One of the men pointed to the sailor, and asked, "Hey there! Are you a sailor?"

"Ja' think I'm a cowboy?" retorted the gob, who would soon become Popeye, America's most famous cartoon sailor.

Popeye turned 50 on Jan. 17, but his birthday party was postponed until Tuesday, when he is to join 1,000 other invited guests — including "sweet potato" Olive Oyl — at the gala celebration at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The party is being thrown by King Features, which syndicates the comic strip, during the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

"I yam what I yam," says the middle-aged sailor, meaning, perhaps, that he is a major industry in himself, his jut-jawed, ham-armed image appearing on 1,000 products.

He appears in 200 newspapers in 20 languages, is the star of a Saturday morning cartoon show, and will be the hero of a Paramount film directed by Robert Altman, written by cartoonist Jules Feiffer and starring Robin Williams of "Mork and Mindy" fame.

All of this for a character who was a late addition to a popular comic strip. E.Z.

Crusaders still playing Texas-based jazz

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Arts Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Last Sunday, the Crusaders played at Avery Fisher Hall here. Quite a ways from the high school gigs the band's three original members played as kids back in Houston 26 years ago.

But the music — jazz with a Texas rhythm and blues base — is pretty close to the way the band played it way back when, according to Joe Sample, the group's pianist and one of its founding fathers.

"In southern Texas," he says, "the blues were coming at you like sidewalks. It was everywhere."

The five-member band has evolved through various phases of jazz — straight-ahead, then modern. In recent years, its back-to-the-roots movement has put it up on both pop and jazz record charts.

It began life as The Swingsters. Besides Sample, its original members were drummer Stix Hooper, tenor sax man Wilton Felder, trombonist Wayne Henderson and flutist Hubert Laws.

Been some changes, Sample says: Laws left in 1959 to study at Juilliard, then carve out a successful solo career in jazz. Henderson left three years ago to concentrate on record producing.

Now, Sample, Felder and Hooper appear with "guest musicians," various players who have the band's bass and guitar conceptions.

Been some name changes, too, from The Swingsters to the Modern Jazz Sextette to the Night Hawks and, after moving to Los Angeles in 1958, the Jazz Crusaders. The "Jazz" part was dropped in 1968.

Why? Three reasons, Sample says. One is that jazz of that time, as played by black musicians — which he is — had become protest music in an era of protest against racism and the Vietnam war.

"The Crusaders already had done our protesting where we lived in Texas," he says. "We wanted the music free of that."

"At the same time, I began to realize I was a Texan and that I was holding back, repressing, some of my natural desires and instincts to play the blues I'd heard growing up as a kid."

Reason No. 3: As the Jazz Crusaders, the group's albums — Sample estimates they've cut 31 by now — almost went in that often hard-to-find section of record stores marked "jazz."

"It's not necessarily that we wanted a wider appeal," he says. "I just wanted for people to hear our music without a biased opinion of what it was, to listen with an open mind."

"I didn't particularly care to have the music put in the jazz bin, because when that happened, we would automatically be put in a category where no one took time to give our music a chance."

The idea was to have no category but popular music. Listeners then could make up

Mart posts modest gain, DJI up 3.12

NEW YORK (AP) — Monday's national market for New York Stock Exchange issues was a quiet session with a modest gain Monday in the quietest session in more than five weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had fallen 18.71 points in the past two weeks, recovered 3.12 to 860.10.

New York Stock Exchange volume came to 25.61 million shares, down from 28.83 million Friday and the lightest total since a 24.63 million-share day on March 14.

Blue chip and glamor issues leading the upswing included International Business Machines, up 3% at 309 3/4; Teledyne, ahead 4% at 125 1/4; Du Pont, up 1% at 133 1/4; and Eastman Kodak, 3/4 higher at 63 1/4.

Teledyne was discussed in a Barron's magazine commentary.

On the downside, Caesars World, which recently reached record highs, was down 6 1/2 at 70 after trading as low as 66. The company said the selling pressure appeared to stem from a newspaper article about it published over the weekend.

Another gambling issue on the active list, Bally Manufacturing, dropped 2 1/2 to 72 1/2. Resorts International Class A shares, the volume leader on the American Stock Exchange, gave up 1% to 46 1/4.

Exxon rose 3/4 to 52 1/4. The company reported first-quarter earnings of $2.16 a share, against $1.55 in the first three months of 1978.

Most other oil issues showed small gains.

Revco D.S. fell 2 1/4 to 24 1/4. The company said preliminary merger talks with F.W. Woolworth stock was off 2%.

In the general market, analysts said the recent pullback in stock prices had evidently attracted some buyers. But they also noted lingering doubts about the outlook for interest rates and inflation.

The daily tally on the Big Board showed about five gainers for every four stocks that lost ground, and the exchange's composite index rose .20 to 57.29.

Hawks, Sixers face do-or-die time

Atlanta coach confident Hawks will win Tuesday

ATLANTA (AP) — Despite a disheartening overtime loss to the defending National Basketball Association champion Washington Bullets, Atlanta Coach Hubie Brown remains confident his unheralded Hawks will win Tuesday night and return home for game six.

Kevin Grevey hit on a pair of long baskets in the last minute of overtime to power Washington to a 120-118 victory Sunday, giving the Bullets a commanding 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

"I told them after the game that I'm very proud of them," said Brown. "They were within one play of being better than the defending champions. I told them that everyone who saw the game on national TV knows the Hawks are a basketball team that can compete with any team."

"We've played just as well as the Bullets in the first four games," he said. "We beat them in the last game in Maryland, and we're going to do it again Tuesday night. We're still in this playoff."

Brown was pleased with the Hawks' rally in the final 37 seconds of overtime after Grevey's two baskets and a free throw by Tom Henderson had given the Bullets a 119-114 lead. Eddie Johnson and Terry Furlow came back with baskets and the Hawks had the ball for a final shot by Johnson that rimmed the basket. If it had fallen, the game would have been tied.

"Anyone who saw that finish won't ever think that this team quits. So it's absurd to ask me if I think we can get up again for Tuesday's game. I know we can."

Johnson, a second-year guard from Auburn, held the ball during the final seven seconds of regulation time and the score tied. His pass to Tom McMillen was too late for a shot at a game-winning score.

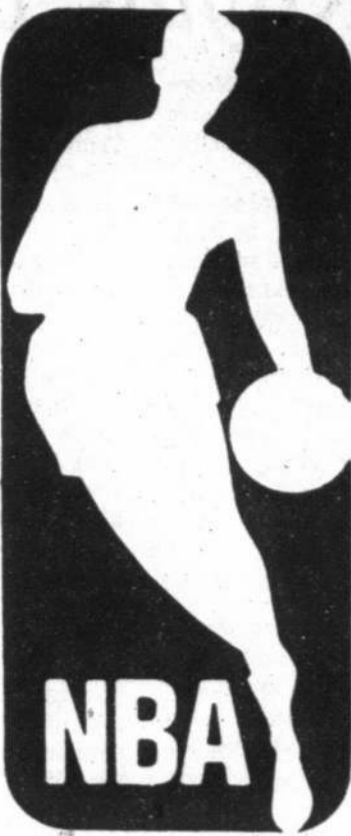

Did he freeze up?

"That's possible, but I don't think so," Johnson said. "I was so intent on not throwing the ball away. I didn't want to gamble on losing the ball, because even if we got a shot, and missed, the score was tied and we're going into overtime. When I got the ball to Tom, it was too late."

Johnson remains confident.

"There are going to be a lot more plays in game five Tuesday night. Atlanta fans haven't seen the last of the Hawks here this season."

If Atlanta wins Tuesday night, the sixth game will be played in Atlanta Thursday night, with game seven, if necessary, in Washington on Sunday.

K.C. forward questionable for next game

PHOENIX (AP) — Kansas City forward Richard Washington was listed as questionable for Wednesday's game as the Phoenix Suns and Kings held brief workouts here Monday prior to heading to Kansas City for game four in their best-of-seven NBA Western Conference semi-final series.

James Silas says Spurs will finish off Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — San Antonio Spurs' Doug Moe almost choked in the middle of a sentence.

Moe was talking to the media after his team defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 115-112 Sunday to take a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series.

Moe's sudden silence was brought about by what he heard James Silas telling other reporters.

"I predict we'll finish them off Thursday in San Antonio," said Silas, whose 19 points helped forge Sunday's triumph.

"I don't care what position we have to take or what we have to do. We don't plan on coming back to Philadelphia. Then, we'll take 'em one game at a time, against Atlanta or Washington," Silas said.

"We are playing as well as we can and we have so much confidence," said the 6-foot-3 Silas, who may win an award as the NBA come-back player of the year.

Silas missed most of the past two seasons because of an injury. He played in 79 games this year and scored 1,266 points — an average of 16 per game.

When Moe got his voice back, the Spurs coach observed, "Yeah, we're in the driver's seat. But we can still have an accident. The biggest thing is to guard against over-confidence. We can't afford that."

Moe said he really had no explanation for deciding at the last minute Sunday to use Larry Kenon to guard the 76ers' Julius Erving.

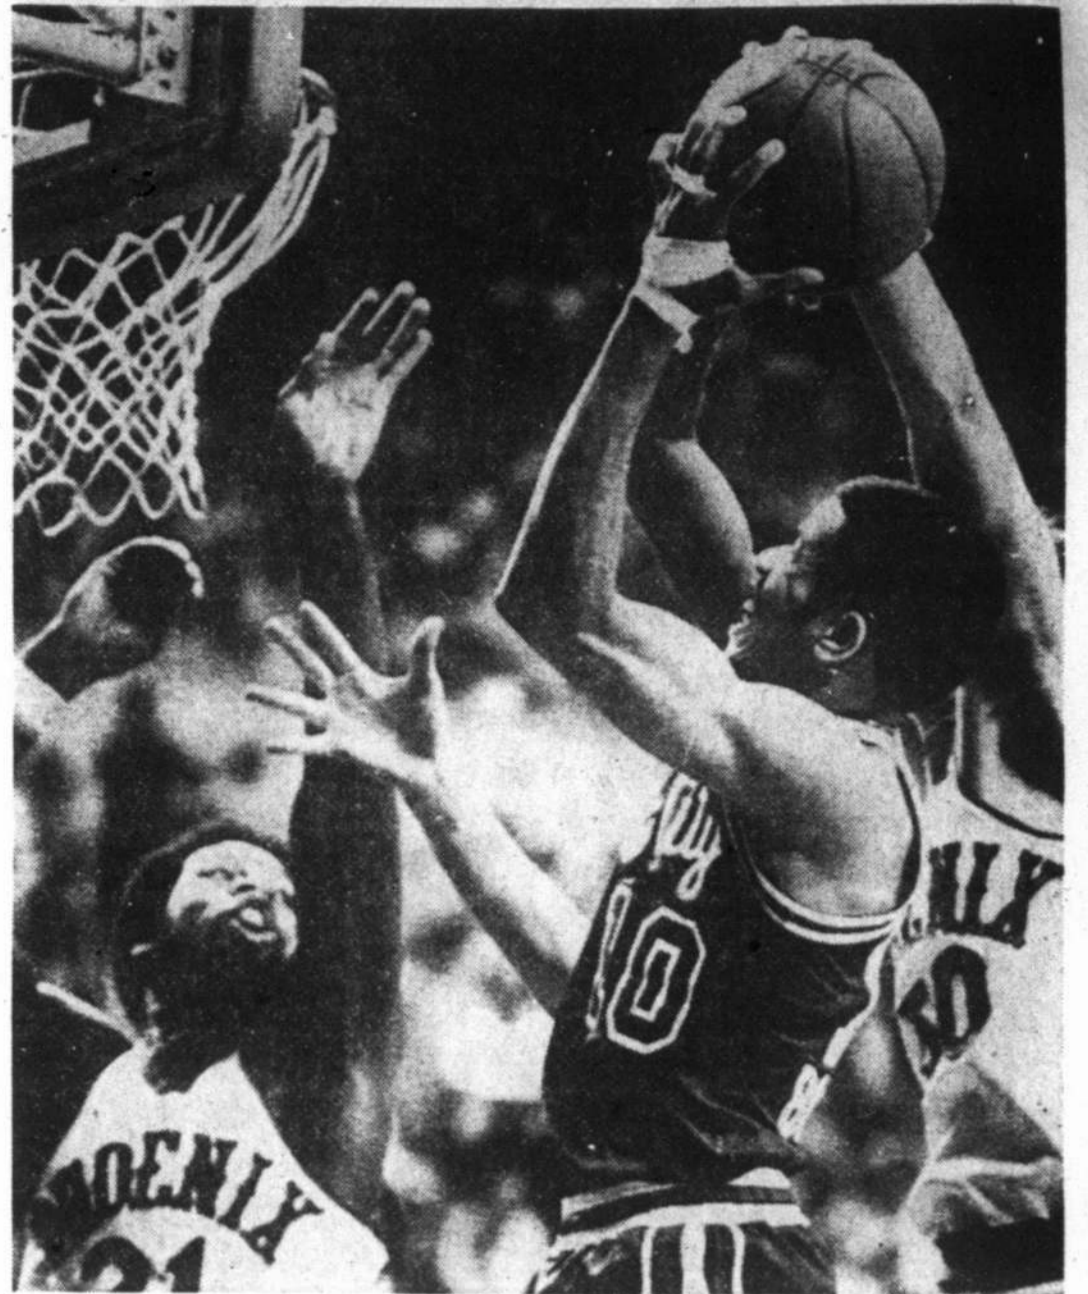

"I was saying what I usually say before the game," Moe explained. "Allan (Bristow) take J (Erving) K (Kenon) take Bobby Jones. And I just stopped. I said, 'No, K you take Julius.' I don't know why I said it. Just kind of a feel thing I guess."

So all Kenon did was go out and hold Erving to 15 points, just four through the first three periods. Erving got 11 in the last quarter, but they came late in the game when the Spurs were in front.

"He (Kenon) did a good job, hustling, overplaying, busting his chops at both ends of the floor. It's the most defensive pressure that I've had put on me," said Erving, who only got off 17 shots.

Sixers coach Billy Cunningham tried to explain the last play of the game which started with San Antonio ahead 113-112 and 10 seconds left.

The question was why didn't Philadelphia foul the Spurs quickly in the hope the shooter would miss the free throws and Philadelphia would get the ball for a last-second attempt to win.

Malone named year's top star

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Moses Malone, the youthful Houston Rockets' center who led the National Basketball Association in rebounding during the 1978-79 season, has been named the league's Player of the Year by Basketball Digest.

Malone, chosen by a panel of NBA experts and the magazine's editors, also was selected as the center on the All-Star team. Picked with him to the team were forwards Marques Johnson of the Milwaukee Bucks and Elvin Hayes of the Washington Bullets, and guards George Gervin of the San Antonio Spurs and Paul Westphal of the Phoenix Suns.

Cotton Fitzsimmons, who led the Kansas City Kings to the Midwest Division title, was picked as Coach of the Year. Guard Phil Ford, who helped turn the Kings from a last-place team in 1977-78 to divisional champions this season, was chosen as Rookie of the Year. And guard Dennis Johnson of the Seattle SuperSonics was selected as Defensive Player of the Year.

Joining Ford on the magazine's All-Rookie team were guard Reggie Theus of the Chicago Bulls, forwards Terry Tyler of the Detroit Pistons and Purvis Short of the Golden State Warriors, and center Mychal Thompson of the Portland Trail Blazers.

Phil Ford paces All-Rookie squad

NEW YORK (AP) — Guard Phil Ford, who played a key role in leading the Kansas City Kings to the Midwest Division title, was the only unanimous selection to the National Basketball Association All-Rookie team picked by the league's coaches, it was announced Monday.

Two members of the Portland Trail Blazers were named to the squad, Mychal Thompson and Ron Brewer, along with Reggie Theus of the Chicago Bulls and Terry Tyler of the Detroit Pistons.

Thompson and Brewer are the first teammates selected for the All-Rookie first team since 1969-70 when Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Bob Dandridge of the Milwaukee Bucks were chosen. Thompson, an All-America at Minnesota, was the first pick in last year's college player draft.

The others on the first team, except Tyler, were first-round draft selections. Tyler was the top pick in the second round out of the University of Detroit.

Ford, an All-America at North Carolina, averaged 15.9 points and 8.6 assists per game during the season.

The first four berths on the All-Rookie second team were voted to John Long of Detroit, Mike Mitchell of Cleveland, Maurice Cheeks of Philadelphia and Rick Robey of Boston. Five players tied for the remaining spot — Wayne Cooper and Purvis Short of Golden State, George Johnson of Milwaukee, Winford Boynes of New Jersey and Freeman Williams of San Diego.

'Big O' interested in coaching spot

NEW YORK (AP) — Oscar Robertson, one of basketball's all-time greats, says he'd be interested in returning to the National Basketball Association as a coach — but the situation would have to be right.

"If I'm going to coach, I would want to run the whole show," said Robertson. "I'd want to control draft choices, trades, all of that. It only seems fair, since good players make the coach."

Robertson's name came up after Larry Brown resigned as coach of the Denver Nuggets Feb. 1, but the 12-time NBA all-star ruled out that job because of the control Carl Scheer, the team's president and general manager, exercises over the operation of the Nuggets.

But if another team came to Robertson and offered him a coaching job that included control over all personnel matters, Robertson said he "would definitely think seriously about it."

"If it's a situation I could live with and the money was right, I'd be interested," he added. "If I got the right offer, I would coach. But New York, for example, would be tough for me. In

OSCAR ROBERTSON

Robertson also said he would not be interested in a college coaching job.

"There's too much system stuff in college ball for me to be bothered with," he said. "You have to deal with players at a very young age and you also have to deal with the administration. Right now I'm just not geared for that."

"I don't want to have to wear a suit just because that's what someone expects of me," he added.

Robertson also said he wanted no part of the recruiting that is so much a part of winning college basketball.

"I don't want to have to do that," he said. "It's not worth it to me. But the way the situation is set up now, it encourages cheating. It's designed to

New York I wouldn't have the time I'd need to build a winner.

"Owners want a winner, and they want it yesterday," he said with a smile. "When they don't get it, they tend to blame the coach. That's the nature of the animal. But that's why I would only want to coach if I could control my personnel."

Robertson was in New York to help promote the Hot Shot competition sponsored by Pepsi-Cola in conjunction with the NBA. The shooting contest for youngsters ages 9 through 18 drew over 2.8 million entries last year, and the regional champions will compete during the NBA playoffs to decide the age-group winners.

Since retiring from pro basketball in 1974, Robertson has served as a television commentator and also worked in the construction business in the Cincinnati area.

Bird comeback

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Frank White smacked a pair of doubles, drove in two runs and scored one Monday night to help the Kansas City Royals snap a five-game losing streak with a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Left-hander Paul Splittorff evened his record at 2-2 with relief help from Al Hrabosky. Chicago starter Rich Wortham lost his first game in four decisions. White, hitting just .213 going into the game, doubled to left with one out in the first inning and scored on John Wathan's single to center.

In the fifth, Joe Zdeb singled and Fred Patek made it 2-0 with a double. Willie Wilson's bunt single and a walk to George Brett loaded the bases and White greeted reliever Dewey Robinson with a double down the third base line to score Patek and Wilson.

The White Sox got three runs in the eighth on Claudell Washington's leadoff double, a pair of walks, a single by Alvin Moore and two errors by Wilson, the Kansas City center fielder.

In the eighth, the White Sox loaded the bases on Washington's two-base hit to left, a walk to Chet Lemon and the first error by Wilson, who ran down a fly ball to left then let it drop in front of him.

Washington came home on Lamar Johnson's double-play grounder and Eric Soderholm walked. Then Moore singled to center and both runners scored when Wilson allowed the ball to roll past him to the wall.

Hrabosky, claiming his third save of the season, cut short the rally by striking out Bill Nahorodny and held Chicago to two singles in the ninth.

Despite his defensive problems, Wilson, playing for an injured Amos Otis, had three singles in three trips to the plate and stole two bases.

Moore collected three singles and drove in one run for Chicago, while Washington batted out a double and single and scored once.

Cardinals 3, Braves 2

ATLANTA (AP) — Jerry Mumphrey's two-out single drove in Tony Scott with the winning run in the 10th inning Monday night as the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Atlanta Braves 3-2.

Scott beat out a two-out infield single off knuckleballer Phil Niekro, 1-4, then stole second and went to third when catcher Dale Murphy's throw sailed into center field. Mumphrey then lined his single just over the outstretched glove of shortstop Pepe Frias. The victory went to reliever Mark Littell, 2-0.

The Cardinals spoiled Niekro's bid for a shutout and his 199th career victory with a two-run rally in the ninth on RBI singles by Bernie Carbo and Garry Templeton.

Both Atlanta runs came on homers off St. Louis starter Bill Vuckovich. Gary Matthews hit his third homer of the year in the second inning and Jeff Burroughs connected for his first of the season in the sixth.

Scott's hit that started the game-winning rally was disputed by the Braves. It came on a grounder to Niekro's left which was fielded by first baseman Mike Lum, who then tossed to Niekro covering. The Braves argued the call by umpire Fred Brocklander and Niekro said after the game that he viewed a video replay four times and concluded that Scott was out, that the runner came down on the pitcher's foot, not the bag.

Atlanta threatened with two out in the 10th when Littell walked Glenn Hubbard and Jerry Royster before getting Rowland Office on a pop to short to end the game.

Phillies 4, Dodgers 3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt's single with one out in the 10th inning scored Larry Bowa and gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night in the first 1979 meeting of last season's National League division champions.

Bowa opened the 10th with a walk off Lance Rautzhan, the fourth Dodger pitcher. With Pete Rose at bat, Rautzhan uncorked a wild pitch, Bowa moving to second. Rose was then walked intentionally and Schmidt delivered his game-winning hit.

The Phillies had tied it 3-3 in the bottom of the eighth on Schmidt's RBI single. Walks to Larry Bowa and Greg Luzinski preceded Schmidt's line single to left.

The Dodgers took a 3-2 lead in the top of the eighth on Bill Russell's RBI double. Los Angeles built an early 2-0 lead against southpaw Randy Lerch on sacrifice flies by Dave Lopes and Steve Garvey, but the Phillies forged a tie on Greg Luzinski's two-run homer in the sixth inning.

ETSU's Burch sets LSC high jump mark

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — East Texas State's John Burch set a new Lone Star Conference high jump record with a 6-11 leap on the opening day of the league's track and field championships here Monday.

East Texas State, after four field events, led the meet by one-third of a point over second place Sam Houston State.

Cyclist aims for 25,000

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A language professor at Wabash College who took up bicycling after a heart attack seven years ago hopes to record 25,000 miles by the end of the month.

"I took up cycling for health reasons, but now I really enjoy it as a sport," says Peter Sillins, an associate professor of German and Russian at Wabash.

He averages about 100 miles a week on his bike, riding through Crawfordville, Montgomery County and the surrounding area.

"I started out slowly at first, going only 2-3 miles a day, but today I can bike 25-50 miles at a time with no trouble at all."

Cycling acts like a tranquilizer, a release from everyday tensions of teaching, said Sillins, a member of the Wabash faculty since 1960. He also has pedaled another 2,500 miles on a stationary bike when weather prohibits outdoor riding.

Soviets near another title

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris Mikhailov, the rugged center of the Soviet Union's hockey team, scored his 100th goal in world and Olympic competition Monday as the Soviets routed Sweden 11-3 to virtually clinch another world hockey crown.

Mikhailov, who has formed international hockey's most deadly line with center Vladimir Petrov and Valery Kharlamov the last decade, was the Soviets' most valuable player when they captured the Challenge Cup against the National Hockey League's All-Stars in New York last February.

But he has been somewhat off form in the championships before the home crowd, scoring only once and assisting on three other goals for four points in five earlier games.

The 35-year-old right wing, who also is a captain in the Soviet Army, netted his 100th goal at 3:09 of the first period. It was a typical goal for the Petrov line.

Kharlamov, the slick left wing, swept down the flank and fired a shot from the left circle after squeezing through. Mikhailov was right there for the rebound, tapping it home past Swedish goalie Per Lindberg.

Marian, Peter and Anton Stastny, the only brother line in big-time hockey, came alive again with three go-ahead goals as Czechoslovakia topped Team Canada 10-6 in the other championship round game Monday.

Would you believe Dr. Bradshaw?

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Dr. Terry Bradshaw?

The Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback — who once had the reputation of being somewhat less than a mental giant on the football field — will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from Alderson-Broaddus College on Sunday, May 20.

An official of the Philippi, W.Va., college said Bradshaw, who led the Steelers to their third Super Bowl championship in five National Football League seasons earlier this year, is being recognized for his "humanitarian efforts and his interest in people."

"It's great for him and it's great for us," said Steve Douglas, Alderson-Broaddus' director of public information. "He was very elated, excited and happy when he was informed."

An American Baptist college nestled in the rolling hills of north central West Virginia, Alderson-Broaddus has an enrollment of approximately 1,000 students — but has no football team.

"We don't think that's any problem," said Douglas. "Terry Bradshaw is a great football player and a great person. He's very deserving of this honor."

Bradshaw will be accompanied to the ceremony by his wife, ice skater Jo Jo Starbuck Bradshaw, and a Pittsburgh insurance man, Frank Bowen, who is vice chairman of Alderson-Broaddus' board of trustees. "But we want to get him here. We're very excited about this."

Douglas said Bradshaw's work with youth programs impressed the school's honorary degree committee, which was composed of faculty, administration and students. The degree was first proposed by John Dooley, the school's director of alumni relations, and was confirmed by the committee.

"He's the first athlete ever to receive a degree from the school," said Dooley.

Joe Gordon, director of public relations for the Steelers, said "the Steelers are very honored and I'm sure Terry Bradshaw is, too."

Bradshaw will be among five persons who will receive honorary degrees at the school's 100th annual commencement. The others are Maurice W. Phillips, director of world mission support for the West Virginia Baptist Convention; James P. Hamer, a wood products manufacturer from Huntington, W.Va.; Dr. Joseph Duffey, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities; and Dr. Robert C. Campbell, general secretary of the American Baptist Churches of the United States.

Duffey will present the commencement address, while Campbell will give the baccalaureate address.

Dr. Richard Shearer, Alderson-Broaddus' president, said the five are being honored for "a wide range of human endeavors."

Salt Lake fans support Jazz move

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Chamber of Commerce says it has collected nearly $10,000 in a season ticket drive to show the National Basketball Association that Utah is "basketball country" and can support an NBA franchise.

Owners of the New Orleans Jazz have proposed moving the team to the 12,000-seat Salt Palace after booking problems with the New Orleans Superdome, which has held up to 35,000 fans for basketball.

Weekend newspaper ads ask for $25 "no risk" pledges to get a purchaser's name on a priority list for the coming season. Salt Lake chamber spokesman Tom Horton said Jazz owners have agreed to honor the list in selling season tickets for between $205 and $369.

Purchasers were not asked to say which priced ticket they would buy. Horton said the only way a purchaser would lose the pledge would be if the Jazz comes and the buyer decides not to pay for a season ticket. A full refund would be made to a ticket buyer if the move to Utah is not made, he said.

Horton said Monday applications for 388 season tickets had been received by the chamber Friday and Monday.

The ticket drive is aimed at showing the 21 NBA team owners that Salt Lakers would support an NBA team, Horton said. Seventeen of the owners must approve the Jazz transfer.

Horton acknowledged the chamber was running a risk with the drive, which he said was not requested by Jazz owners.

"I suppose if it fails, that would do a lot of damage to efforts to bring the team here," he said. "But we believe we have more to gain than to lose."

"This is basketball country," Horton said, pointing to what he said has been good support for college teams, the Utah Pros of the Western Basketball Association and the former Utah Stars of the now-defunct American Basketball Association.

The Stars folded in 1975. Horton said that was not due to a lack of fan support but to large contracts with some players. The Stars' season ticket market was touted as No. 2 in the league, next to Denver.

Horton said the chamber is concerned about the impact the Jazz move would have on the Utah Pros but has to look upon it as a business decision.

"When the Pros came here last year, we supported them heavily. We still support them heavily," he said. "It does put the chamber in a bad position." But he said the chamber gets into similar positions when someone wants to build a plant that would compete with existing chamber members.

"If the Pros want to stay here and feel they can do a good job and another team comes in and wants to take over the territory, well that's the free enterprise system," he said.

Along with the pledges, the chamber is holding a contest to name the team. Jazz owners have said they will change the name. The prize is two lifetime season tickets.

U.S. arrival in North Korea apprehensive

PYONGYANG, North Korea (AP) — It was table tennis diplomacy all over again, but instead of China in 1971 it was North Korea in 1979 — and the players were very uncertain about the outcome.

The first American delegation to visit North Korea since the Korean War arrived here Monday night to a low-key welcome by what appeared to be an equally apprehensive group of local officials.

The 42 members of the American party included three officials who were part of the U.S. table tennis delegation that helped pave the way for normalization of relations with China.

But they all agreed that this is a different table tennis game. The Chinese invited the Americans to Peking as their guests. The North Koreans invited the Americans to Pyongyang as guests of the International Table Tennis Federation for the world championships which begin Thursday.

Sol Schiff of New York, head of the U.S. delegation, said, "We don't know what's going to happen but I have a hunch somebody will contact us."

Leah Neuberger, former U.S. mixed doubles champion who was part of the American delegation to China in 1971, said she didn't expect a diplomatic breakthrough. But she said she's brought a bag full of American flag pins anyway. "We don't know what to expect," she said.

Billy admits alcoholism, rehabilitation

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Carter, one of America's most famous beer drinkers, said Monday, "I am an alcoholic." He added, swearing off alcohol was like giving up "one of my best friends."

"The toughest part was when I made up my mind never to drink again — God knows I gave up one of my best friends," President Carter's brother told a news conference at the U.S. Navy's regional medical center here.

Carter, sporting a new mustache, said he lost about 10 pounds, quit smoking and feels great after seven weeks at the hospital's famous Alcohol Rehabilitation Service. He said he hopes to be released this weekend and plans to return home to Plains, Ga., for a month-long rest.

"I am an alcoholic," he said. "I'm cured as long I don't take a drink. If I take a drink, I'm not cured anymore."

Carter, 41, said he hasn't had a drink since he checked into the hospital, under special authorization by the Secretary of the Navy, on March 6.

Carter said the publicity and pressures of having a brother in the White House probably contributed to his drinking, but "I think I would have had the problem anyway. I've been drinking regularly for 20 years ... I was drinking way too much."

Carter once leased his name to a short-lived brand of beer. The label said Billy Beer was "brewed especially for and with the approval of one of America's all-time great beer drinkers."

Alternately joking and serious, Carter added, "I've found out water can be drunk straight ... (Besides) it's almost as much fun to watch the drunks as it is to get drunk with them."

He also said that he will pay the entire $12,100 hospital bill himself.

Carter said he previously promised to hold a news conference if local reporters let him go through the treatment program without requests for interviews.

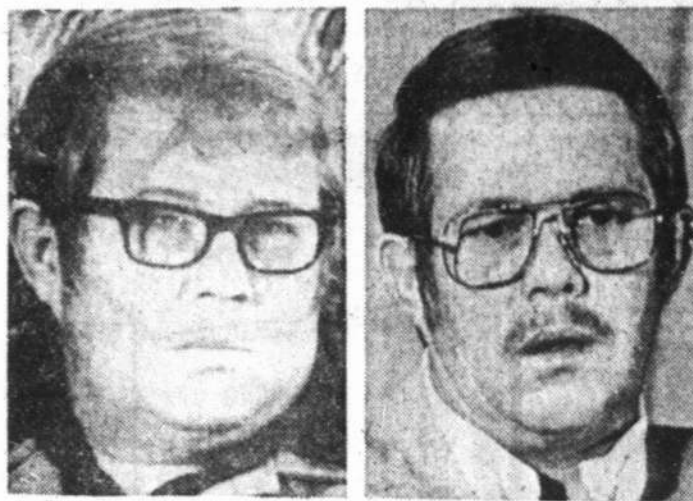

The President's brother "was given no special privileges of any kind," said Capt. Joseph Pursch, director of the program, which is considered one of the best of its kind.

"There was no history of any drug use other than alcohol," Pursch said of Carter. "There was no physical or mental impairment."

He said Carter's wife, Sybil, participated in the program for about four weeks since the therapy works best when the whole family is involved.

Pursch said the treatment is designed to "get the patient in touch with the fact he can no longer use alcohol. In daily group therapy sessions, he learned from other men and women who have the same disease."

In the past year, the Navy program has gotten increasing publicity after treating such famous patients as former first lady Betty Ford and Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga.

Rhodesian election called 'irregular'

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — One of three black members of Rhodesia's bi-racial transition government charged Monday that last week's five-day election to establish a black majority government was "grossly irregular."

The Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, whose internal wing of the Zimbabwe African National Union was trailing in early election results, issued a statement Monday saying his organization will not recognize the elections until a committee investigates the alleged voting irregularities.

Sithole said reports from parliamentary districts indicated the election had been "stage-managed" by the government's Internal Affairs Ministry.

"The reports indicate there have been gross irregularities," Sithole said. "Until these irregularities are impartially investigated, ZANU will consider the results of the election as not being the verdict of the people but of a particular ministry which has stage-managed the elections."

He identified the ministry later.

Sithole's charges came as high election officials defended a government claim that 63.9 percent of those eligible cast ballots in the election, which ended Saturday. Some of the 300 Western observers invited to monitor the voting have questioned that percentage, saying they found some cases of villages where more persons voted than were listed.

"There was no election in Rhodesia," said Joshua Nkomo, president of the Zambian-based Zimbabwe African People's Union in an interview in New York Sunday with the South African Broadcasting Corp. "As far as we are concerned the war will continue."

Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, leader of the external branch of the Zimbabwe African National Union, based in Mozambique, control an estimated 30,000 guerrillas inside and outside the Rhodesia.

Zimbabwe is the African name for Rhodesia.

Initial unofficial voting results showed ZANU's internal wing trailing far behind Bishop Abel Muzorewa's United African National Congress. The reports also showed Sithole's party running third behind conservative black parties in at least two key urban areas — Salisbury, the capital, and Bulawayo, the nation's second largest city.

No numerical results were available.

Both Sithole and Muzorewa are contenders to succeed white Prime Minister Ian Smith. The three men and Chief Jeremiah Chirau, also black, have been running the transitional government until the country's first black majority government takes office.

House approves more research into lignite power plant radiation

AUSTIN (AP) — The House agreed with two Central Texas legislators Monday that more research is needed into potential radiation hazards from lignite-burning power plants and high-voltage transmission lines.

Representatives voted 87-47 to add $80,000 to the $20.2 billion general appropriation bill and earmark it for research into radiation emissions from high-voltage lines and lignite power plants.

The money would be spent by the Center for Energy Studies at the University of Texas at Austin.

House members resumed work on the 1980-81 state spending bill after taking the weekend off. Debate began Wednesday.

Rep. Bill Keese, D-Somerville, said preliminary studies show radiation from a lignite-burning power plant exceed guidelines set by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) for nuclear power plants.

"The health and welfare of all the people along the lignite belt will depend on what we find out from the result of this study," Keese said.

He said the equivalent of 75 plants of 500 megawatts each will be built in Texas between now and the year 2000.

Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, said lignite from East and Central Texas had been found to be high in uranium content.

"I'm not against the use of lignite. I just want us to go into it with full knowledge of the facts," Wilson said.

Keese wanted just the uranium study but accepted Wilson's addition of a radiation study from high-voltage lines.

"We don't have any state standards on high-voltage lines — how close you can have a house, how long a person can work near one ... In Russia, they allow you to work only two hours a day near these lines. ... We haven't taken into consideration what the impact will be on livestock, human beings or plant life," Wilson said.

Senate OKs malpractice bill

AUSTIN — State Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls gained Senate approval of a bill, which finds, in effect, that the State Bar code of ethics isn't strong enough to protect doctors from frivolous medical malpractice lawsuits.

Under the medical malpractice law passed two years ago, the State Bar was directed to certify to the State Supreme

Man charged in robbery

By ROCKY SCOTT Staff Writer
Bond was set at $10,000 Monday for a 40-year-old man charged with aggravated robbery after two convenience store clerks were held up early Sunday morning.

Douglas Henderson, 100 Flood, was arraigned Monday before Justice of the Peace R.L. Stewart. He remained in Wichita County jail Monday night in lieu of bond.

Henderson is accused of robbing the Jiffy Food Store, 701 North Eastside, shortly after 6 a.m. Sunday.

Police said he allegedly entered the store with either a rifle or a shotgun and told the two female clerks to put money from the cash register in a paper bag.

The women said Henderson then ordered them outside after he put the money in his pocket, where he told them to disrobe, according to police.

After the women refused, they were allegedly forced to walk to a vacant lot at the corner of Wichita Street and Corwin Street, where the suspect reportedly tried to return the money.

After the women refused to take the money, Henderson allegedly drove away in a pickup. Henderson was later arrested at his home after police spotted a pickup matching the description of the one used in the robbery.

Police said neither the weapon used in the robbery nor the $160 reportedly taken has been recovered.

Man charged with burglary

A man arrested at a construction site Sunday evening was arraigned Monday on a charge of burglary of a building.

Alton Lee Hawkins, 29, Route 4, Wichita Falls, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace R.L. Stewart. He remained in Wichita County jail Monday night in lieu of $2,500 bond.

Police said Hawkins was arrested after he was spotted Sunday about 7:30 p.m. near Tanny Road and Lawrence Road with a welder in the back of his pickup.

According to police, Hawkins' pickup was stuck in some sand. Hawkins said he had been given permission to borrow the welder, but construction officials later said no one had been given him access to the site.

Housing available for Lawton victims

By REGIONAL STAFF
LAWTON, Okla. — Possibly the most traumatic consequence for survivors of a major disaster is having to cope with the loss or partial destruction of their homes.

When President Carter issued a major disaster declaration for the area hit by tornadoes April 10, Temporary Housing Division of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration began working to help relieve the confusion and helpless feelings associated with such a devastating event.

Multiple programs are available to help individuals and families deal with housing problems, including no-cost temporary housing for up to a year. This might include finding and paying for hotel and motel accommodations or bringing in mobile homes which are offered rent-free to eligible applicants. The program also may locate rental properties and assist with rental payments.

The Limited Home Repair program, administered by the state of Oklahoma, assists homeowners who wish to make their own repairs. The LHR is to return the residence to a habitable condition and is not intended for renters.

Another element of the housing program is a living kit, which consists of basic household items such as sheets, blankets, pillows, pillowcases, pots, pans, kitchen utensils, towels and mop. The temporary housing program also may loan basic essential furniture to persons whose home contents have been damaged or destroyed.

Bob Ives, F.D.A.A. temporary housing coordinator, stressed that applications should be made regardless of the amount of damage to one's home.

"These programs were designed and are made available to anyone who suffered from the tornado and meets the eligibility criteria," Ives said. "If our temporary housing program options don't cover someone's need for housing-related assistance, most likely some other agency program will. That's the whole point of coming to the one-stop disaster assistance center."

Questions about disaster assistance may be directed to the operators on the toll-free disaster hotline, 1-800-522-0184.

House votes

AUSTIN — This is how Wichita Falls area legislators voted on two measures before the Texas House:

An amendment to make a general 4 percent per year cut in appropriations. It was approved 76-67.

State Rep. Dave Allred of Wichita Falls — no; State Rep. Charles Finnell of Holliday — no; State Rep. Joe Hanna of Breckenridge — yes; State Rep. Bill Healy of Paducah — yes.

Passage of an amendment to increase pay raises for state employees from 5.1 percent to 7 percent per year. It was adopted 86-53.

Allred — yes; Finnell — yes; Hanna — yes; Healy — yes.
