400 state bills left to consider

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says he still has some 400 bills to consider before a midnight Sunday deadline.

Among those remaining are the $37.2 billion state budget, a bill to triple college tuition and one to require motorists to wear seat belts. They must be signed or vetoed by midnight Sunday, or they become law without White's action.

The governor said anti-crime legislation he signed Thursday shows the state can protect its citizens.

"We are doing something about crime in Texas. We are doing something about criminals and we are doing something for victims," White said.

White said the anti-crime bills passed this legislative session "will ensure that every invididual in every house on every street in every city in Texas will be safer."

Before midnight Sunday

The victims' bill of rights calls for notifying and explaining procedures in the criminal process to victims, including pretrial release of suspects, trial, sentencing and parole.

It also provides for written input from victims regarding the physical, financial and emotional effects of crime on them, and says that will be considered by the parole board before a prisoner is released on parole.

The legislation to have parole laws explained to juries was sponsored by Sen. Buster Brown, R-Lake Jackson.

During hearings around the state, he said, "Witnesses decried the fact that juries are not allowed to know the full facts about sentencing. With the passage of the jury instruction bill, the blindfold will finally be removed from the eyes of juries in Texas."

The bill allows juries considering punishment recommendations to be told the effects of parole laws and "good time" rules on the length of time an inmate serves in prison.

Another bill signed by White will require lawyers to bring up an error in an indictment before the time of trial. The state then will have an opportunity to correct the error.

The governor also praised bills that he said will help crack down on inhalant abuse.

The bills increase penalties for possession and use of toxic inhalants, better define abusable glues and spray paint, specify which cannot be sold to persons under age 17 and give greater flexibility in commitment proceedings for chronic abusers.

"Inhalant abuse is one of the most dangerous forms of substance abuse. Unfortunately, while much attention has been focused on various forms of substance abuse, inhalant abuse has been largely neglected," White said.

As for bills he has yet to sign, White said he is inclined to approve the measure tripling state college tuition to $12 per semester hour this fall.

White said he is satisfied that the bill includes sufficient funds to permit poor students who are otherwise qualified to attend college. "I think it's one that met the standards that I imposed," he said.

White also said he is weighing the seat belt bill.

"I hate to see government interfere with individual liberties and I hate to see government mandate decisions that might be wise for citizens to adopt on their own," he said.

"At the same time, I don't like to see these increasing numbers of deaths on the highway, many of which could be prevented by the use of seat belts."

Other bills signed by White included:

— A measure that would authorize a foreign trade zone if a Texas location is selected for the Saturn automobile manufacturing plant.

— A bill to allow hearsay or second-person testimony in child abuse cases.

— A bill calling for suspension of a driver's license if the driver carries no liability insurance.

- A resolution expressing the sympathy of the state to the heirs and descendants of Chipita Rodriguez, the only woman ever officially executed in Texas.

Flag Day

Flags are flying today, Flag Day, across the nation to honor Old Glory. These three wave daily at the county courthouse - the American flag, the state flag, and the new Sesqui-centennial banner.

Spy execution suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ted Stevens says selling classified secrets is such a serious crime that people convicted of espionage should be executed on national television.

The Alaska Republican introduced a bill in the Senate on Thursday providing capital punishment for conviction in cases where secret information is sold.

Any executions should be televised because "we're trying to bring up the visibility of this type of crime and deter people who may be starting down this road," Stevens told reporters.

Stevens' proposal would provide death sentences only in cases where the secrets are sold for money — as the government alleges occured in the case involving John A. Walker Jr., his son, brother and friend.

Instances in which classified information is simply given away would retain the current maximum penalty of life in prison under Stevens' bill.

"These recent cases have all involved sale of secrets for money," he said, referring to the latest case.

Selling secrets during wartime is already punishable by death under treason laws.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger briefed members of the Senate Intelligence Committee in a closed session Thursday and Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., vice chairman of the panel, said Weinberger repeated his desire to establish a death penalty for espionage.

And Attorney General Edwin A. Meese told a news conference that he, too, favored capital punishment in espionage case because "I think it would serve as a deterrent."

In the Pentagon, the Army and Air Force announced they have set up special teams to find out if any of their codes and messages were compromised by the spy ring that allegedly sold Navy secrets.

Two-block flag too huge to fly

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — The Great American Flag made here five years ago won't be waved today.

Even if it weren't folded up in a suburban Washington, D.C. warehouse, socked away like a forgotten red, blue and white elephant, the flag would be a little hard to hang up on the front porch or carry down to your local parade.

It measures 411 feet by 210 feet — about the size of two city blocks — and was stitched together at Evansville's Anchor Industries from 7 tons of polyester.

The 86,310 square foot banner was supposed to have been permanently hung within sight of the Statue of Liberty, in New York harbor on the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge.

But a fund drive to pay for steel rigging so that the enormous banner could be hoisted and lowered on special holidays fell hundreds of thousands of dollars short.

As interest in the project flagged, a housewife who now lives in Houston, picked up the banner.

Mary Jo Jansson, 55, said in a telephone interview that she worked for more than two years to raise funds for the bridge-hanging by singing patriotic songs in the Kate Smith style at halftime shows during National Football League games.

She said she also spoke on radio talk shows and spread the word about the project as much as possible.

"I began to get the message as to why the New York people weren't successful in their project to get the flag hung on the bridge," she said. "People were asking themselves 'Why should we help with a tourist attraction in New York?'"

The flag will make one appearance this year — in a manner of speaking. Mrs. Jansson says it will be part of a July 4 parade in Washington. But nobody will gasp at the 13-foot-wide stars or thrill to the 21-foot stripes because the banner will be hauled down Constitution Avenue inside a trailer.

The flag has rarely been unfurled. Perhaps its finest hour came in January of 1981, when it greeted the American hostages on their return from Iran.

Now it gathers dust in a General Services Administration building at Fort Meade near Washington, a gift to President Reagan from a former owner.

Eric Soelter, the Anchor Industries executive who supervised the flag's construction, said he still gets calls about the mammoth banner, "But not as many as I used to.

"People say they want to display it, but they don't really grasp the size," he said.

Toddler stable after collision

A two-year-old Hereford boy was in stable condition this morning after he was hit by a car Thursday evening around 7:30.

A DSGH spokesman said David Vasquez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesus Vasquez of 401 Blevins, suffered a minor abrasion to the scalp and would probably go home today or Saturday.

An eye witness to the accident, another boy playing in the area, told Hereford Police the boy ran into the street from between two parked cars. There were no charges filed against the driver, who told police she was only going about 20 miles an hour but could not stop in time.

An attempted burglary was discovered at a business on West Highway 60, where the glass front door was broken. Apparently the building was not entered.

There wre two prowler reports, with both persons hearing someone banging on the outside walls of their homes.

Criminal mischief was reported in the 100 Block of Hickory, where the windshield of a van was sprayed with a black substance. A stop sign in the area had also been sprayed.

A woman allegedly assaulted by her husband told police she would file a complaint, and officers broke up a fight between two brothers fighting on the front porch of their mother's home.

DSGH employees told police they had treated a man for a stab wound to the right shoulder, and the man did not intend to report the incident.

There was one arrest for public intoxication.

Deputies check squabble, trampoline theft reported

Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Deputies are investigating a pair of Thursday complaints from two families living in the Labor Camp.

The first call came Thursday afternoon, from a man who said another resident of the area had been exposing himself to the complainant's wife and children.

Later, deputies hurried to the camp after receiving a report that a shooting was about to happen. Officers arrived to find two men involved in a fist fight.

An ambulance was dispatched about that same time, when a pregnant woman was said to have passed out. The woman appeared to be fine by the time the ambulance arrived, the sheriff's report said.

Deputies also made one arrest for driving while license suspended, and took a report from a busines on East Highway 60. A pad valued at $195 was taken from a trampoline on display in front of the business.

Brothers out on bond

Two Hereford men accused in the May 9 shooting death of Henry Garcia, also of Hereford, have been freed on bond.

Benjamin Garcia Jr., who was indicted on murder charges May 16 by a Deaf Smith County grand jury, is free on $35,000 bond. His brother Anthony, who was charged with the murder but not yet indicted, was freed on $25,000 bond.

Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul said the same grand jury will again consider charges against Anthony when it meets June 20.

Bond for both men was originally set at $100,000.

The pair was arrested in Amarillo the day after the shooting, which occurred early the morning of May 9 on a street in west Hereford.

Henry Garcia's wife, who was seated in the pickup beside her husband when he was shot, told police she believed Ben fired the gun and Anthony was driving the car from which the shot was fired.

The two families, who are not believed to be related, had apparently been fueding for quite some time.

Honesty, discipline, hard work helped Rivera find success

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

When Freddie Rivera graduated from Sharyland High School in 1955 he was voted Class Favorite and Most Popular Boy.

If such distinctions were handed out in the trucking industry, Rivera would probably do just as well.

Rivera is a truck broker, and he is also well-liked. Unfortunately, that does not often happen.

Truck brokers are people who find loads for truckers and truckers for shippers. A lot of truck brokers do business from a motel or even a truck stop. They're not always the nicest guys around either. It is not uncommon for a truck broker to take the shipper's money and run–before the trucker gets his share.

Because of that reputation, Rivera admits there have been times when he was almost ashamed to introduce himself as a truck broker.

Almost, but not quite. Because his business, Rivera Produce Incorporated (RPI), is known all over the country for its dependability.

"The most important thing my Dad ever taught me was honesty. He was honest, he never cheated anybody. We do a good job, and we pay our bills."

From cotton patch to business

Rivera has two attractive office buildings–one in Hereford on West Highway 60 and another in the Rio Grande Valley. When his clients load in Hereford they stop by the office, to chat or take advantage of the free shower, lounge and kitchen facilities Rivera makes available for the truckers.

"Very few brokers do anything like this for the truckers," Rivera admits. "But we make our money from them, and we want to give a little of it back to them."

Even though Rivera does most of his business over the telephone, he makes an effort to get to know his clients personally. Last year, he and his wife, Josie, flew to the East coast to visit customers there. Among those they visited were Mr. and Mrs. William Chester of Newfield, New Jersey, owners of a fleet of trucks and longtime RPI customers.

"Freddie is dependable," Mrs. Chester said. "He's honest, and his pay is prompt. He goes out of his way for our drivers."

Also interviewed by telephone was Lucille Lewallen, owner of a Springdale, Ark., trucking firm. "Every time I've ever called him, he's found a load," Mrs. Lewallen said. "All my drivers like for me load with him. He's pleasant and friendly...he has a vast conception of where the loads are."

Rivera's knowledge of the produce industry is firsthand–and hard-earned. Like most other farmers in the Rio Grande Valley, Freddie's father depended on his children to help earn the family's living.

"I picked cotton from the time I was able to crawl until I graduated from high school," Rivera said in his half-joking way. He often missed the first few months of school, an absence which he feels handicapped his math ability.

Rivera attended a segrated school from grades one through four, but all lessons were taught in English. "We were disciplined when we spoke Spanish," he remembers.

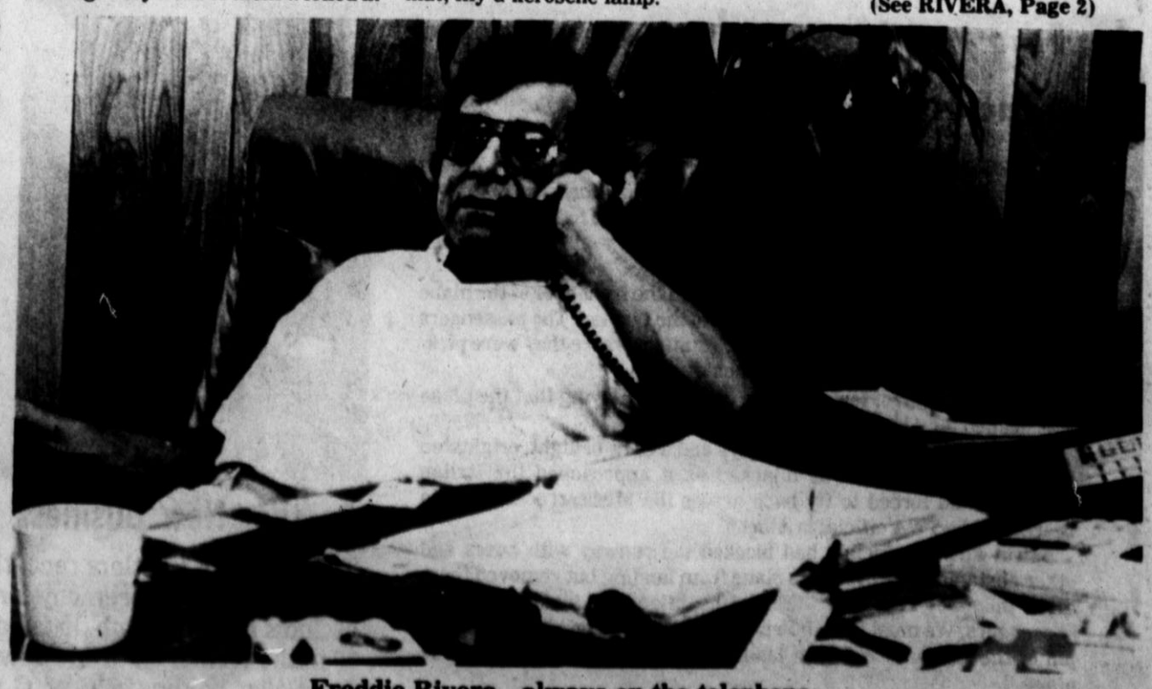

"My parents believed in discipline and hard work. I did not resent that. I believe in discipline."

Rivera was one of 14 children, sandwiched in the middle of six girls and eight boys. All of them worked in the fields, including his mother.

"When I was in high school, a truck would be there to pick me up at 3:00 every day. We worked until the sun went down. I did my homework after that, my a kerosene lamp."

Rivera remembers how his mother stressed the importance of cleanliness. "My sisters would clean their rooms, then my mother would come in to inspect. She would pull the

Cupid's arrow strikes on freeways

DALLAS (AP) — A new dating service has the answer for motorists who are struck with Cupid's arrow while on the road.

When a commuter spots an attractive stranger across a crowded freeway, he can now call on a new dating service, the Freeway Connection, for help in making a connection.

Subscribers put a 4-inch sticker bearing a four-digit code number and the Freeway Connection phone number on their rear windows. People attracted to the subscriber send a letter and picture to the service.

The service then forwards the mail to the subscriber, who decides whether or not to respond to the overture.

"If someone sends you a letter and you want to meet that person, you just call them. If not, throw the letter in the trash," said Shauri Darr, one of the service's founders.

Ms. Darr, 36, and Walt Madison, 45, said they started their new venture a few weeks ago after reading about a similar service in Southern California. They say it can be hard to meet people in Dallas.

Texas Air Corp. to acquire TWA

NEW YORK (AP) — Trans World Airlines Inc. found the friendly buyer it sought in order to avoid a hostile takeover by investor Carl C. Icahn, saying it agreed to be acquired for $793.5 million by Texas Air Corp., the parent of Continental Airlines.

Both companies' directors unanimously approved Texas Air's proposal to convert each of TWA's 34.5 million common shares outstanding into $19 in cash and $4 of a new issue of TWA preferred stock.

The agreement Thursday is somewhat of a victory for New York-based TWA, which spent the past month trying to defeat Icahn's effort. In addition to seeking friendly bidders, TWA had asked the courts and the U.S. government for help.

But Icahn once again would hardly be a loser.

His group — which owns 11.23 million, or 32.8 percent, of TWA's stock and had offered $18 for each of the remaining shares — stands to make a handsome profit under Texas Air's proposal. Much of the group's stake in TWA was bought for between $12.62½ and $16 a share, according to filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Water act amendments voted on

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas and other high-growth states will come out ahead if final approval is won on amendments to the Clean Water Act.

The Senate Thursday unanimously approved the measures to continue federal aid for wastewater treatment. The states with booming growth would get a bigger share of the money if the amendments are approved by the House and become law.

The action allocates funds at three times the level sought by the Reagan administration. It came after big-state lawmakers dropped a threat to tie up the legislation with a filibuster.

The lawmakers from larger states were opposed to a revised allocation formula that would have cost their states almost $290 million a year in federal grants.

"Texas and other high-growth states have been shortchanged for too long," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, a ranking member of the Environment and Public Works Committee which developed the new formula for distributing funds.

"Our new formula is a much more accurate reflection of both needs and the shift of population. It shows clearly the shift in growth to the South and West," he said.

A compromise resulted in a formula that would shift about $225 million from 19 states, most of them bordering the Great Lakes and Atlantic Ocean, and give it to mostly smaller states, many of them in the South and West.

The big winners would be Texas, $34.4 million; Washington, $25.2 million; and Florida, $25.2 million. The big losers would be New York, $43 million a year; California, $37.7 million; and Ohio, $21.9 million.

The bill, approved 94-0, was sent to the House. The revised funding formula appears headed for trouble there, where a House committee recently endorsed a continuation of the current program into the 1990s.

Deaths, illnesses linked to cheese

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twenty-eight deaths or stillbirths and 86 cases of sickness were linked to contaminated cheeses sold mostly to Hispanics, state health officials announced as they ordered the products removed from stores throughout California.

The manufacturer of the cheeses closed down voluntarily.

Most victims of the flu-like illness that has struck since April were women and their children, and all were in Los Angeles and neighboring Orange counties. But state authorities Thursday ordered all cheese produced by Jalisco Mexican Products Inc. off market shelves.

The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta said bacteria called Listeria monocytogenes were detected in samples of Jalisco cheese sent by Dr. Shirley Fannin, associate deputy director of health programs in Los Angeles County. She studied 50 to 60 different foods beginning in mid-May after health officials detected a link in a rash of influenza-like illnesses in the two counties.

Ms. Fannin said she learned Thursday that the cheese was contaminated.

Dr. Claire Broom, chief of the respiratory and special pathogens branch at the CDC, said Listeria monocytogenes, "attacks either people who have some underlying disease like cancer, or pregnant women.

Hijackers seize TWA flight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Hijackers seized a Rome-to-Athens TWA flight carrying some Americans today and forced it to land in Beirut after the pilot said they beat and threatened to kill hostages.

The heavily armed hijackers freed at least 17 women and children and the plane took off, reportedly for Algeria.

A yellow escape chute was lowered from the front door of the plane before the freed passengers slid down to the tarmac. The passengers then raced across the tarmac to a fire station, where they were picked up by airport vehicles and an ambulance.

The Beirut control tower quoted the pilot as saying that the plane was headed for Algeria.

The flight, carrying 145 passengers and a crew of eight, originated in Athens, Greece. It was hijacked as it approached the Italian mainland and forced to fly back across the Mediterranean Sea to Beirut, said a TWA official in Athens.

Beirut airport officials had blocked the runway with buses and other obstacles to prevent the plane from landing but removed them after the pilot reported: "They (the hijackers) are beating up passengers. We must land in Beirut. He (one hijacker) has pulled the pin of the grenade. We must land. He is ready now to blow up the plane."

He also reported the plane was running low on fuel.

After seeing new curriculum

Dimmitt school board 'dumbfounded'

DIMMITT – Dimmitt school board members were left "dumbfounded" and "flabbergasted" after breezing through a look at the new curriculum to be implemented in local schools over the next five to eight years Monday night.

DISD Curriculum Director Corky Lockmiller presented an overview of the new curriculum which will be used to implement mastery teaching, a concept mandated by the state in House Bill 75 in the 1981 legislature and Chapter 75 of Texas Education Agency guidelines.

The mastery teaching guidelines set forth by the state call for all students to master certain essential elements every year, with testing designed to indicate the mastery.

"Instead of calling these areas 'essential elements,' we'll call them teaching objectives," Lockmiller said. "The curriculum guide for each grade will explain to each teacher what will be taught. It is up to the teacher, of course, to determine the manner in which it is taught, and in what order the objectives are taught.

"In the past we have used general objectives, but we now have OUR objectives. We will be finding material to teach our curriculum, not the curriculum spelled out by the textbooks. Our teacher committees have been working on restructuring all of our curriculum, with the exception of business and vocational education programs, the only two areas left untouched in our system."

The teacher objectives are spelled out by the curriculum, which will be provided to every teacher, and available on computer along with a three-year history of every student in the system.

"Good teachers have been researching how far along students are when they've had the opportunity," Lockmiller said, "but in the past, it has taken a lot of research, digging through student files. Now, teachers, in less than 20 minutes, will be able to find just what their students have already mastered, what their students haven't mastered, and know what they might have to go back and review before attempting to reach a new objective."

The computerized system will not only identify student needs, but will also assist in lesson planning, identify available resources, help assess mastery, score tests, and prepare for parent conferences.

The system will also help building principals monitor the delivery of the curriculum and the effect of the curriculum and curriculum development, management of teaching resources and identify areas where staff may need more training.

The system will help the central office monitor, system-wide, the delivery of the curriculum, needs of revision and needs for inservice training.

"This will prove valuable for restructuring our evaluation process," Lockmiller said. 'W'e will be more able to identify the strengths and weaknesses of teachers, and will be able to prescribe remedies for improving weak points. The evaluation will be focused, in the future, on improving instruction, and improving our teachers."

Lockmiller also described an instructional model ("used by all good teachers") and other areas which will all focus on the students acquisition of curriculum skills, with those skills organized from pre-kindergarten through the twelfth grade.

"This is, more or less, weaving all of the pieces which have just been out there into one piece," Lockmiller said. "Plus, we are having to merge all of our special curriculum, Title I, Title I Migrant, Plan A, English as a Second Language, all of our specialized areas, into one central curriculum.

"We can expect revision of the curriculum for at least three years, and maybe forever. We aren't going to get all of this into place in just one year. It will probably take five to eight years to get everything where we want it, because we can't dump all of this into the teacher's lap and say, 'Here it is.'"

Board members approved the new curriculum while heaping praise on Lockmiller for his work and the work of teacher committees who helped devise the new guidelines.

"We ought to get this patented and offer it for sale," said board member Cheryle Pybus. "This is really good work."

Gift For YMCA

A $400 contribution in the name of Robin Hopper, Hereford Lions Club sweetheart, was presented to the Hereford YMCA this week. Charles Hoover, "Y" president accepted the check. The money represented funds normally spent for the sweetheart's graduation gift and district Lions Club Queen's Contest. Robin requested the contribution be made to the "Y", which is currently conducting a fund drive to pay for furnishings and equipment.

New ruling made on drilled, mined shafts

The Board of Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 has recently adopted a new rule regarding the "Permitting and Regulation of Drilled or Mined Shafts" within the 15-county, 5,215,000,600 acre service area of the water district.

Jim Conkwright, board member from Precinct 4 of the district, said the rule was prompted by the U.S. Department of Energy's proposal to explore Deaf Smith County as a possible site for a nuclear repository.

Board president James P. Mitchell explains, "this rule prohibits the construction, whether by drilling or mining techniques, of any new shaft where all three of the following are met:

-the depth of the excavation is greater than its diameter.

-the excavation penetrates into or through the base of the fresh water aquifers, and

-and where the primary purpose of the excavation is the transportation of workers and materials to and from a destination, at depth, for the purposes of geologic studies, access to existing and planned subsurface mine workings, safety, or for ventilation of those workings unless a permit in compliance with all applicable permitting requirements has been applied for an received from the Board of Directors of the District.

Rule 23 applies to all drilled or mined shafts located within the District which are drilled after June 10, 1985, which was the effective date of this new rule, or which are modified or converted to a new purpose after that date. This rule does not cover potable ground-water wells.

bed away from the wall and do the "white rag" test. If it was dirty, she would mess up the room and make them clean it again."

Until he was 12 years old, Rivera lived in a stucco farm home with a dirt floor and roof thatched from palm leaves. Then the family moved to town, to a wooden home with a wood cook stove.

As a growing boy he did not especially care for beans or tortillas, but he did enjoy his mother's homemade french fries. The beef on his plate would be traded to whatever brother or sister willing to give up their french fries, so Rivera grew up without much of a taste for meat.

When he went to boot camp, his commanding officer noticed he left his steak on his plate and decided to make an issue of it.

"I'll bet the other guys would sure hate to stay here all night while you think about eating that meat," Rivera remembers the C.O. saying. "So I ate the meat, and it was really pretty tasty."

Rivera joined the Air Force as soon as he graduated and spent most of his four-year hitch in Munich, Germany. He was trained as an auditor while in the service, a skill that came in handy afterwards.

When his four years were up Rivera returned to Sharyland, farmed and worked as an auditor for a motel in McAllen. Deciding on accounting as a major, he hitchhiked to Pan American University in Edinburg for 3½ years. The trip was 13 miles each way.

Rivera accumulated 96 hours, nearly enough for a diploma. He blames his failure to graduate on fear.

"I was afraid to try statistics, because I had a poor foundation in math."

After college Rivera kept books first for a produce farm, then a truck broker. It was while employed by the broker that he made the decision to go in to business for himself.

The broker made him angry, told him he didn't know what he was doing, so Rivera set out to prove him wrong.

He packed up and headed for Nogales, Ariz., a distributing point for Mexican produce. "I went that far, where nobody knew me, to test myself." That was in 1965. Later that year he moved the business to Hereford.

The business was known first as American Truck Service, then with a different partner as Central Truck Brokers. Rivera Produce Incorporated was formed in 1978. Rueben Villareal and Danny Castaneda manage the Edinburg office.

Rivera admits he does have a few enemies. "There are some people I won't load. They don't like me. But if they don't pay their bills, I won't load them."

Rivera owns an orchard in the valley and considers that his most enjoyable hobby. He also enjoys photography and maintaining a classic car collection.

Mostly, though, he just answers the telephone. He and his newly-employed dispatcher, Greg Thomas, spend hour upon hour in comfortable chairs behind big desks, their ears to the telephone.

And even by the end of the day, Rivera's voice is still friendly, musical. "You wanna go where?" he says to the person on the other end of the umpteenth telephone call of the day, "Hey, that's no problem."

Maybe that's the real key to his success. Because for Freddie Rivera, life really isn't a problem. It's a joy.

Letter appreciated

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to alert all parents to the toll-free number of the Poison Control Center (1-800-252-2022). It can be a godsend.

A am the mother of two small boys and have used this number twice. What a relief to know I can pick up the phone and get instant instructions in case of an emergency. The people I spoke to both times were terrific. I was frantic. They calmed me down and told me exactly what should be done.

In one case the woman asked me to call back and let her know how my son was doing. I keep this number by the phone at all times and have informed my babysiter that she should not hesitate to use it if it is needed.

I hope I never have to use this number for a life-threatening situation, but just knowing there are competent people ready to help is very reassuring.–AN ILLINOIS MOM

DEAR MOM: Thanks for the letter.I just this minute tested the number and a very pleasant woman answered immediately. (No busy signal, Hallelujah!) I asked if the number I had reached served the entire country. She replied, "No–only Illinois." I lived in Connecticut or California. Her resonse, "Call the toll-free information number 1-800-555-1212 or ask for the Poison Control Center for the state you live in." (A few states do not yet have a poison hotline–in those that don't, call your doctor or hospital emergency.)

I also asked if they work 24 hours and was told, "Yes, of course." So, a bouquet of orchids to those wonderful folks. They do a fabulous job.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing in response to the letter from "One of Your Fans." She was an elderly woman who wanted to know whether to have her gold caps taken out when she dies. She planned to be cremated. You said cremators don't bother about removing gold caps because it is not worth it. Well, you are wrong.

My father had several gold caps. When he died they were removed because my mother requested it. She had the gold melted down and made into a necklace for me. I received it on my 16th birthday.

That necklace is worth a good deal of money and we still have some gold left over. That necklace was the best present I ever will receive.--PERSONAL EXPERIENCE IN KENOSHA

DEAR KEN: Thanks for sharing your experience. Not every girl would want a necklace made out of her father's teeth. To each his own.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a fairskinned, blonde female who is interested in the suntan pill I've been hearing about. They claim a person can get a quick tan with very little exposure to the sun and that the tanning pill has many advantages, the main one beng no wrinklers later in life.

The ad claims the pill is approved by the Canadian agency equivalent to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. It sounds too good to be true. What can you tell me about it?–AN ADMIRER IN TORONTO

DEAR TORONTO: The pill you are referring to belongs to the psoralen family of drugs. One must use it with great care because it sensitizes the skin and excessive use could produce a severe burn.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex–Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Vaccinations still needed

Immunizations save U.S. citizens an estimated billion dollars a year in health care costs - more than any other preventive health care practice.

These savings illustrate the remarkable effectiveness and good sense of immunizations, according to Dr. Robert Bernstein, Texas Commissioner of Health. "The widespread use of vaccines in the U.S. has had a tremendous impact on disease prevention. We have seen the number of diphtheria cases reduced from 206,939 cases in 1921 to only one case in 1984. Polio cases have decreased from 21,269 cases in 1952 to only 4 cases in 1984," Dr. Bernstein said.

He added that our past success in controlling these diseases does not mean that immunizations are unnecessary. "Quite the contrary, if children are not immunized, we risk new epidemics of infectious disease," he said.

In Texas, 1,606 cases of vaccine-preventable disease were reported in 1984. These included: 642 cases of measles, 219 cases of mumps, 75 cases of rubella, 60 cases of pertussis resulting in 3 deaths, and 10 cases of tetanus.

To help prevent cases of vaccine-preventable disease, Dr. Bernstein advised parents to check family immunization records to be sure they are complete and up-to-date. "Parents whose children are not immunized should call a doctor or local health department to make arrangements to receive the vaccinations," he said.

In Texas, state law requires immunizations for polio, tetanus, measles, rubella, mumps, and diphtheria before children may register in public schools. In addition, the Texas Department of Health and American Academy of Pediatrics recommend pertussis shots for children beginning at 2 months of age.

Using safety seats on vacation makes sense

When you load the luggage and the family in the car in preparation for summer vacation, don't forget to make room for a child passenger safety seat for you young child.

Texas law requires children under the age of two to be buckled in a child safety seat, while toddlers between the ages of 2 and 4 must be secured in a safety seat or by a seat belt. As of July 1, safety seats will be required nationwide. That's when a safety seat law goes into effect in Wyoming, the 50th state to pass such legislation.

Texas' safety seat law, which went into effect in October 1984, has helped lower the number of children ages four and under killed in vehicle crashes. In 1984, the number of deaths dropped to 68, nearly a 12 percent decrease. Another 6,629 children age 4 and under were hurt, but several of these youngsters might have been killed if they had not been secured by a safety seat or seat belt.

To protect children, safety seats must be installed and used according to the manufacturer's instructions. Safety seats must be secured to the vehicle with the seat belts. If a tether is required on the safety seat, it should be bolted or belted in place. Infants should ride in safety seats that face the rear of the vehicle. And, all children in safety seats, including booster seats, should have their seat harnesses fastened properly. Review the seat maker's instructions to ensure that seats are secured and used correctly.

On a long ride, children in safety seats can be entertained with soft toys. Snack should be limited to soft foods or crackers, but no bottles, hard candy or ice cream on a stick should be allowed in a moving vehicle. A child can choke on hard objects, and in a sudden stop, an ice cream stick or glass bottles can cause an injury. Every hour or so, the driver should stop the vehicle and allow all passengers to exercise and relax.

For more information about using child safety seats, or to request information or educational materials, call the Safe Riders Progrm toll-free, 1-800-252-8255. A bilingual operator is available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The Safe Riders Program is operated by the Texas Department of Health, in cooperation with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Man commits suicide after pleading guilty to assault of his 12 year old

DALLAS (AP) — Moments after pleading guilty to sexually assaulting his 12-year-old daughter and being sentenced to seven years in prison, a 39-year-old man fatally shot himself with a .38-caliber pistol in the Dallas County courthouse.

State District Judge Jack Hampton said he had just pronounced sentence on Jerome Roady of Mesquite when the shooting occurred about 4:15 p.m. Thursday in a woman's restroom directly behind his courtroom.

Roady died at 8:50 p.m. while in surgery at Parkland Memorial Hospital, assistant administrator Claude McCain said.

Roady spoke briefly to his wife, who had testified and asked for leniency for her husband, and then apparently requested to use the restroom, the judge said.

"We heard a shot," he said. " ... I gave him seven years. I let him say goodbye to his wife, and bam! I don't know where the gun came from," the judge said.

Chief felony prosecutor Rider Scott said authorities believe Roady, a machine operator for AT&T for 15 years, hid the gun in his boot.

Hampton said he was uncertain whether there were any witnesses to the shooting. The bailiffs responsible for escorting Roady were not available for comment.

'Potato Project' bulging beyond its means

BIG ISLAND, Va. (AP) — The "Potato Project," which salvages potatoes that farmers otherwise would dump and distributes them to the poor, is bulging beyond its means, its officers say.

The project, which distributed 8.7 million pounds of otherwise wasted potatoes in 1984, reports it already has distributed more than 9 million pounds in 1985.

"If we had not been short of funds we could have done a great deal more," says the Rev. Ken Horne. He says the project had to turn down an additional 1.5 million pounds that farmers wanted to donate.

Founded two years ago by the Episcopal Society of St. Andrews, the project distributes discarded potatoes to 42 agencies for the needy in 22 states and the District of Columbia.

Project officials say it can get good potatoes that otherwise would be thrown away to rot for a total cost of three-and-a-half cents a pound.

"The program is simple, cost-effective and finding a growing acceptance with growers," Horne says.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Churches are losing the present generation of children because adults don't know how to communicate with them, a counselor told a Southern Baptist seminar.

"Most adults don't know how to love children," said Ross Campbell of Chattanooga, Tenn. "Today it is rare to find a child with a healthy self-concept and view of love."

7-5 over Rangers

Puckett leads Twins to victory

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

Kirby Puckett of the Minnesota Twins has been trying to be more selective in finding pitches he can "hammer" this season. Apparently, he is succeeding.

Puckett had three hits Thursday night, including a home run and two doubles, to lead the Twins to a 7-5 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"I'm trying to be more patient this year," Puckett said. "I worked in spring training to be a little bit more selective and get a good pitch to hit. I want to go up there and concentrate and do what I want to do. I want to get a pitch I can hammer."

One of Puckett's hammers, a double in the sixth inning, helped key a three-run Minnesota rally that broke a 4-4 tie.

With two out, Greg Gagne, Dave Meier and Tim Laudner hit consecutive singles off losing pitcher Frank Tanana, 1-7, and Puckett then followed with his two-run double.

"He going to get more consistent," Gardner said. "He really hit the ball tonight. He is still learning about big-league pitching."

The Twins took a 2-0 lead in the second inning. Tom Brunansky led off with a double and scored on Roy Smalley's double. Smalley later scored on Gagne's sacrifice fly.

Puckett led off the third with his second homer of the season and Gagne hit his first major-league home run, giving Minnesota a 4-0 lead in the fourth. Puckett, after his double in the sixth, also doubled in the ninth in going 3-for-5.

Cliff Johnson hit a three-run homer and Gary Ward doubled and later came home on Larry Parrish's ground out as Texas scored four times in the fourth to tie the game 4-4.

Winning pitcher Mike Smithson, 5-5, pitched 6 1-3 innings, giving up eight hits and all five runs against the Rangers, for whom he once played. Rick Lysander went the final 2 2-3 innings, holding the Rangers to only one hit for his third save of 1985.

Lysander is trying to rebound from some poor early season outings, and he said his performance against the Rangers is a sign he is coming back.

"I'm throwing easier," Lysander said. "Before, I was out of control. Now I am throwing the ball for strikes, and I felt good."

"I think the fans got their money's worth tonight," he said. "Our guys busted their butts and played good, hard baseball. We just came up a little short. We're going to win a lot of baseball games if we keep playing like that."

Orioles 8, Brewers 3

Someday, Cal Ripken Jr. may get to play again for Cal Ripken Sr. But for now, Earl Weaver is running the show — again — for the Baltimore Orioles.

"I've got to clean myself out of here. I just got fired," Ripken Sr. said with a smile Thursday night after talking by phone with Weaver following the Orioles' 8-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Ripken Sr. guided the team as it broke a five-game losing streak because a prior personal commitment kept Weaver away from Memorial Stadium. Weaver, who managed the Orioles for 14½ years, was named to replace the fired Joe Altobelli on Thursday and will make his return tonight when Baltimore plays host to Detroit.

Ripken Jr. hit two run-scoring doubles to help his father-led Orioles beat the Brewers.

Scott McGregor, 5-5, settled down after Cecil Cooper's two-run homer in the first inning to beat the Brewers and Ray Burris, 3-5.

Angels 2, White Sox 1

Reggie Jackson, once again rising to the occasion, snapped out f a 2-for-21 slump with a game-winning, pinch-single with the bases loaded and two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning on reliever Bob Fallon's first pitch.

"When you hit the ball enough times, once in a while you're going to hit it solid," said the 39-year-old Jackson.

Jackson batted for Gary Pettiss after California loaded the bases against Gene Nelson, 3-2, on a single by Bobby Grich and two-out walks to Bob Boone and pinch-hitter Daryl Sconiers.

The hit gave Jackson his 1,538th career RBI and moved him into 22nd place on the all-time list, breaking his tie with Joe DiMaggio.

Red Sox 8, Blue Jays 7

Rich Gedman's two-run double sparked a four-run rally in the seventh inning and Wade Boggs had three hits, including a two-run homer.

Boston roughed up five Toronto pitchers, including relief aces Gary Lavelle and Bill Caudill, for 14 hits in overcoming a 6-2 deficit after 4½ innings.

Royals 4, Mariners 3

Darryl Motley and Jim Sundberg hit home runs and Kansas City starter Mark Gubicza and relievers Joe Beckwith and Dan Quisenberry made the lead hold up in Seattle.

Bill Wilkinson, making his major league debut for the Mariners, struck out Willie Wilson and Lonnie Smith to start the game. But Frank White then singled, Steve Balboni walked and Motley welcomed Wilkinson to big-league life at the Kingdome with a three-run homer.

Spurs, Cavaliers pursue trade

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers and the San Antonio Spurs are pursuing a trade that involves Cleveland guard World B. Free and San Antonio guard George Gervin, according to published reports.

In the proposed deal, Free, guard-forward Ron Anderson and the Cavalier's first-round draft pick, the ninth overall, would to to the Spurs in exchange for Gervin, guard Johnny Moore and the Spurs first-round pick, the 14th overall, the (Akron) Beacon Journal and the (Cleveland) Plain Dealer reported.

The 1985 National Basketball Association draft is Tuesday.

Neither organization would confirm or deny the proposed trade on Thursday.

Free, Cleveland's leading scorer, will begin the 1985-86 season in the final year of a contract he signed in 1983. If the Cavaliers do not pick up the option year, Free would become a free agent.

Free has formally requested that Cleveland exercise the option year for the 1986-87 season. Free's agent, Fred Slaughter, said the Cavaliers have rejected the request thus far.

One contingency for the deal might be the Spurs' ability to sign Moore, a free agent, before Monday's pre-draft midnight deadline. NBA rules stipulate that trades involving draft picks must be completed by midnight.

Moore cannot be traded because his contract with the Spurs has expired. But if the Spurs sign him to a new contract before Monday, the deal could be finalized.

Gervin has won four NBA scoring titles and has a career scoring average of 25.8

Wilson homer boosts Phillies past Mets 5-4

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

When Jesse Orosco took the mound in the eighth inning in his usual role as protector of another New York lead, Philadelphia's Glenn Wilson hardly pictured himself as a hero.

"All I can remember is two strikeouts and a couple of ground balls," said Wilson, hitless against the Met relief ace since coming to the Phillies last season from Detroit.

So the hot-hitting outfielder threw caution to the wind. He swung hard and got a fly ball into the breeze. It made it over the wall in center field to give Philadelphia a 5-4 victory Thursday night.

"I didn't think the ball was going out," Wilson said. "It didn't have that real good feeling off the bat. It didn't jump. The wind helped it."

The two-run homer, Wilson's seventh, gave the Phillies the rubber match of a wild three-game series which saw them set a slew of club records when they banged out 27 hits in a 26-7 victory Tuesday. The Mets collected 18 hits Wednesday, but had to rally for four runs in the 11th inning to post a 7-3 victory.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Montreal 9, Chicago 7; St. Louis 2, Pittsburgh 1; Cincinnati 9, Atlanta 2 in 11 innings, and San Diego 3, San Francisco 0.

Cardinals 2, Pirates 1

Efficient St. Louis got only two hits, Jack Clark's 13th home run, in the second inning, and a seventh-inning RBI double by Tito Landrum.

John Tudor, 4-7, scattered six hits over 8 1-3 innings before Jeff Lahti came on to strike out ex-Cardinal George Hendrick on three pitches for his fourth save.

Reds 9, Braves 2

Eddie Milner was "just trying to hit the ball hard" when he stroked a run-scoring single to break a 2-2 tie and start a seven-run Cincinnati rally in the 11th inning.

The Reds had been held to only one hit — Dave Parker's 10th homer, a two-run shot in the fourth inning — over the first eight innings by rookie Steve Shields. They managed only one more off three relievers before breaking the game open with seven singles — two on the infield and one a blooper — in the 11th.

Expos 9, Cubs 7

Terry Francona rarely gets to start at first base for Montreal, so he tries to make the most of his limited opportunites. He didn't fail as he and Hubie Brooks each had two hits and drove in two runs.

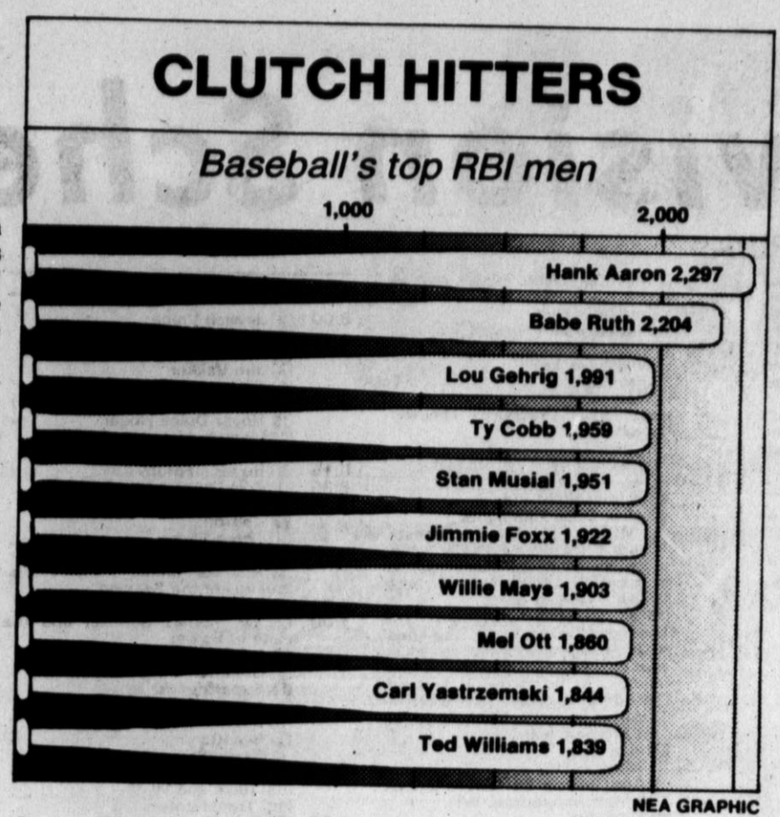

"When you don't play that often you try to at least get in good at-bats and hit the ball hard somewhere," Francona said. "You try to make your presence known in a postive way."

Bryn Smith, 6-2, pitched 7 1-3 innings as the Expos moved to within two games of Chicago in the NL East. Jeff Reardon retired the final Cub batter for his 19th save, tops in the major leagues.

Padres 3, Giants 0

San Diego Manager Dick Williams didn't hesitate to summon his stopper despite having what would normally be considered a safe lead, and starter Dave Dravecky, 5-4, didn't mind a bit.

"We've got an outstanding bullpen. Period. The Goose (Rich Gossage) has a great record, and it was an ideal situation for him," said Dravecky, who hurled seven innings and combined with Gossage foin thee weeks.

Don't underestimate Ty Cobb just because his base-hit record is threatened. Cobb, who played before the long-ball era, remains the only pure singles hitter to rank among homer kings when it comes to driving in runs.

'Earl of Baltimore' returns

By GORDON BEARD AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Earl of Baltimore is back, and the faltering Orioles will soon find out if his old fire remains after 2½ years out of baseball.

Earl Weaver, who quit at the end of the 1982 season following a highly successful 14½-year tenure with the Orioles, was lured out of retirement Thursday as an interim manager to replace the dismissed Joe Altobelli.

"We're not playing well," outfielder Gary Roenicke said of a slump that had reached 11-17 before the Orioles beat Milwaukee 8-3 Thursday night. "If anybody can light a fire, it's Earl."

The 54-year-old Weaver was hired only for the remainder of the season, at which time the managerial situation for the future will be reviewed.

Although the official announcement ended 48 agonizing hours for Altobelli as speculation swirled over his fate, Weaver missed Thursday night's game because of a prior commitment and third base coach Cal Ripken Sr. handled the team.

Ripken, a 29-year veteran of the Baltimore organization, said he felt no animosity after being bypassed as a managerial candidate for the second time in less than three years. But Altobelli was highly critical of the way his dismissal was handled.

In taking over for Altobelli, Weaver succeeds the man who replaced him and led the Orioles to a World Series championship in 1983 -matching Weaver's record for his four appearances in the fall classic.

Owner Edward Bennett Williams, noting Weaver had rejected numerous offers to manage other clubs since he left the Orioles, said: "I think he came back out of loyalty to this organization. We went to the best possible source we could get."

The owner said he had "watched with some anguish" as the Orioles folded after a fast start this season, in the wake of a fifth-place finish last year, and contended the club had not played up to the best of its ability.

"We did not have the kind of leadership we expected to have," Williams said. "I say that reluctantly because I love him (Altobelli) so much."

When he visited Memorial Stadium Thursday morning for a clarification of his status, Altobelli was further angered to learn that Peters had departed for the Washington law office of William to continue negotiations with Weaver.

"I thought this was a class operation, but I guess I was sadly mistaken," Altobelli said as he headed for his clubhouse office to clear out his personal belongings.

The deposed skipper said he telephoned Peters twice from Detroit on Wednesday, after getting numerous queries from the media on his status, and was merely told by the general manager to "hang tough."

After finding Peters gone, Altobelli walked along the hallway of the club's new offices, pausing at each door to sarcastically inquire: "Does anybody know if I've been fired?"

He then departed for several hours, returning later to meet with Williams and Peters after they had come to terms with Weaver and driven back from Washington.

Babe Ruth is the all-time leader among major league batters in walks with 2,056. Ted Williams is second with 2,019 walks.

Another grievance possible against Gunslingers

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The USFL Players Association will file a grievance by next Tuesday if the San Antonio Gunslingers haven't received the June 11 payroll by then, an association spokesman says.

John Macik, assistant director of the players association, said if such a grievance is filed, it could not be processed until the season is over.

A similar players association grievance proceeding concluded last Saturday when team owner Clinton Manges made good on two payrolls that had been due in May.

An arbitrator had set a Saturday deadline for payment or the entire team would become free agents.

The players were due for another paycheck Tuesday, but the payroll was not met.

"We won't file another expedited grievance (against the Gunslingers) unless the players aren't paid by next Tuesday," Macik said Thursday.

Texas 1986 Sesquicentennial Commission

AUSTIN – Texas will be the place to be in 1986 for active athletes as well as the "armchair" variety, when the state plays host to several major sports events planned especially for the Sesquicentennial. The latest of these, a convocation of amateur athletic events called the Texas Games, will soon be "signed up" with the Sesquicentennial Commission as an official event.

The Sesquicentennial will provide the ideal vehicle to launch the first Texas Games, based on an idea for a state amateur athletic event that was first proposed to the Texas Legislature in 1983, said Association Executive Director Joe Wilson. The inaugural Texas Games will be hosted by the city of San Antonio July 25-27 and August 1-3, 1986, and will become a yearly event thereafter.

The Games will consist of the following events: adult baseball, youth and adult boxing, youth and adult golf, men's fast pitch and men's and women's slow pitch softball, youth swimming, youth and adult tennis, youth and adult track and field, and a 10,000 meter run for all ages. A number of other non-competition "demonstration" events, such as polo and soccer, will also be featured and will be considered as competitive events for future Games, said Wilson.

Events will be held at various city and private locations throughout San Antonio, and will be hosted by the San Antonio Parks and Recreation Department. "The Texas Games are also part of the San Antonio Sesquicentennial Commission's overall sports program," said Wilson.

The Games are expected to draw some 15,000 athletes, and many more officials and other events coordinators. Participants will be those persons who qualified earlier in district events held in each of the Association's state regions.

The Texas Games will open with a gala celebration similar to that of the Olympic games, said Wilson. "We hope to have some kind of torch carrying event, perhaps from the Capitol in Austin to San Antonio, and there will be bands, fireworks, hot air balloons, and other festivities."

For more information about the Texas Games, contact Wilson at 512/835-1434.

Off-shore oil platforms could provide sport sport-fishing

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Obsolete offshore oil platforms in the Gulf of Mexico and along the West Coast could provide the foundation for a lucrative sport-fishing industry, a recreation and parks expert says.

Instead of scrapping the rigs, Dr. Robert Ditton of Texas A&M University says the some of the structures should be left because they act as artificial reefs which attract fish.

"Fifteen to 30 years ago the fish were distributed all over the Gulf of Mexico. Then the oil and gas industries came in and built these vertical steel columns which attracted the fish that attracted commercial fishermen and spurred the development of a recreational fishery," Ditton said.

Ditton, who serves on a National Academy of Science panel looking into a variety of alternatives for disposing of the platforms, said there is a lot of interest in retaining some of the structures for fishery purposes.

"The platforms are preferable to using ships because if you sink a ship for an artificial reef it doesn't come up that high in the water column and there's really not the same diversity of fish," Ditton said.

Fishermen quickly discovered that the platforms provided good fishing grounds and often dock around them, Ditton said, especially in the Gulf of Mexico where there are more than 4,000 petroleum structures. About 1,000 of them are major structures.

Once drilling is complete, oil and gas companies are required to remove the platform and usually do so to eliminate their insurance liability.

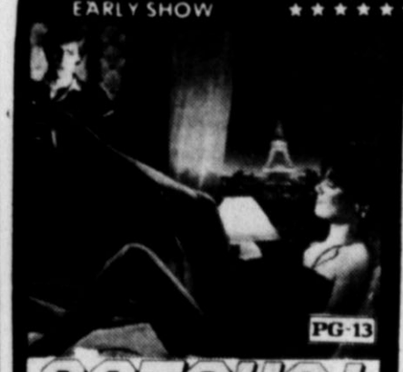

"There are thorny issues involved in keeping the platforms in place and the main one is liability. There are no clear-cut answers to liability issues because there are few precedents in court," Ditton said. "Companies aren't leaving the platforms in the water because very few states will assume responsibility for them."

Ditton said companies and government agencies are hammering out differences where liability, tax breaks and other issues are concerned to increase the number of artificial reefs off the country's coasts.
