The economy —

Wholesale prices show slight increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation at the wholesale level rose a moderate 0.4 percent in July, with only a surge in pork prices spoiling what would have been the best month since last fall, the government reported Friday.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices — as measured by the Producer Price Index for finished goods — increased just 8.8 percent in the 12 months ended in July, the lowest 12-month rise in more than three years.

In addition, private economist Donald Ratajczak said the 1.5 percent jump in wholesale food prices last month was "a blatant aberration," raising hope that the relatively low increases in overall national inflation in the past several months may continue.

Annual wholesale inflation rates for the past four months, for example, have ranged between May's 4.6 percent and June's 6.7 percent, with July in the middle at 5.5 percent. The annual rate is what one year's inflation would be if a particular month's pace continued for 12 full months.

The wholesale inflation rate for all of 1980, by comparison, was 11.8 percent.

Meanwhile, the economy continues to move ahead only sluggishly, as shown by a report from the Federal Reserve Board on Friday that industrial production increased just 0.3 percent in July. Much of the increse was caused by a post-strike rebound in coal production.

Output by large industries surged ahead at 1 percent or more per month during the second half of last year, but it has hovered around the zero mark since January, falling as much as 0.4 percent and rising by only as much as 0.6 percent per month.

David Ernst, vice president of Evans Economics in Washington, said both reports were "moderately encouraging," indicating that inflation will remain below 10 percent for some time and that producers have not cut back as quickly or as much as might have been expected in the face of near-record interest rates.

But Ernst cautioned that "the future of output depends a lot on whether interest rates remain where they are."

Ratajczak, who is director of Georgia State University's Economic Forecasting Project in Atlanta, also had some sobering words on inflation.

He said recent good news on wholesale prices "unfortunately doesn't mean a lot" concerning inflation at the consumer level, the prices people actually pay in stores.

With consumer food prices going up and housing costs once again soaring, the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index, which rose 0.7 percent in both May and June, "could well be in double-digit range in July," he said.

On the brighter side, he said there is little chance that overall food prices will rise as much as the 10 percent the Agriculture Department predicted at the start of the year.

Ratajczak's forecasting unit recently estimated the year's food price increase at 8.3 percent, "and we're going to cut back on that," he said.

The Labor Department reported that wholesale prices for all finished goods excluding food rose only 0.1 percent in July, "far less than in any month since last fall."

In fact, prices of all finished energy goods actually declined 1 percent in July, with 2 percent drops in gasoline and fuel oil costs outweighing a 3.1 percent increase in natural gas prices.

The food increase was responsible for raising the month's overall figure above the 0.3 percent increase recorded last September.

Ratajczak said most of the 1.5 percent food increase was concentrated in pork prices, which rose 10.1 percent.

"If you don't want bacon for breakfast, your food prices are not going up that much," he quipped.

All the increases are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

In all, the unadjusted Producer Price Index stood at 271.3 in July, meaning that goods that cost $10 at wholesale in 1967 would have cost $27.13 last month.

The government's industrial production index in July stood at 153.4 percent of the 1967 average that is used as a base for figuring increases or declines, 9.3 percent above the July 1980 level near the end of last year's recession.

Judge urges PATCO be decertified

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administrative law judge recommended Friday that the striking air traffic controllers union be stripped of its rights to bargain on behalf of the air controllers because of its involvement in the illegal air controller walkout.

Judge John Fenton urged the Federal Labor Relations Authority to "revoke the exclusive recognition status" of the union and that it be ordered to "cease and desist from calling or participating" in its walkout of nearly 12,000 air controllers.

The recommendation was a major victory for the Reagan administration, which has asked the labor authority to decertify the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization for engaging in an illegal strike against the government.

If the three-member authority goes along with Fenton, the union would no longer be recognized as representing air controllers in bargaining with the Federal Aviation Administration and would be deprived of automatic dues checkoffs.

PATCO president Robert E. Poli, declaring "We are still alive and still well," said he expected the law judge's recommendation and that the union intends to argue strongly before the labor authority to reverse it.

If that fails, Poli promised an appeal through the federal courts.

He noted that the union has a separate complaint before the labor authority accusing the government of unfair labor practice in the way it negotiated buring contract talks earlier this month.

Looking at the broader issues of the strike, Poli told reporters that the controllers were prepared to continue their walkout for months if necessary and said, "We're prepared for as long as it takes."

Dick Schoenfield, a spokesman for the Transportation Department, said the department would hold off comment until Fenton's 30-page recommended order can be further studied.

The government earlier in the week had argued before Fenton that PATCO should be decertified because it had condoned and participated a strike by more than 12,000 air traffic controllers although a walkout is prohibited by law because they are government employees.

Fenton's recommendation said the union was found to condone the strike because it failed to take actions to prevent the walkout.

The Pentagon, meanwhile, announced it soon will increase to 1,000 the number of military controllers assigned to help handle commercial traffic around the country. There currently are 660 military controllers working at the FAA centers and airport towers.

Earlier Friday, Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said the Reagan administration is determined not to rehire strikers. He said he would recommend a presidential veto if Congress acts to allow the strikers to resume work.

Also, the Federal Aviation Administration said there have been at least 17 instances of phony radio transmissions or inteference in legtimate transmissions between controllers and pilots since the strike began.

But Lewis said none has been linked to the controllers strike and none has compromised safety. Poli told reporters, "We are not involved in that."

Recordings of some of the radio transmissions were being turned over to the Federal Communications Commission and the FBI for investigation, as were a number of reports of interference with legitimate radio transmissions.

Officials said such radio interference is not uncommon and has been attributed to everything from faulty air conditioning to transmissions by a television camera crew.

While holding firm on the no-rehiring pledge, Lewis said a small number of the nearly 12,000 controllers being dismissed are expected tobe rehired if they can show they were harassed into staying off the job and made attempts to return to work.

These controllers, he said, would have to show they "were harassed,

Judge declares mistrial in oil theft case, sets new date

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The oil transport truck driver in a federal oil theft case was acquitted on one count of a five-court indictment Friday afternoon by a six-man, six-woman jury which otherwise ended up deadlocked in the case which involved three co-defendants.

The judge declared a mistrial, but set another trial date.

The transport driver, 47-year-old William David "W.D." Fikes of McCamey and Imperial, was found innocent of charges that he and co-defendants Howard Leon Ramsey, a 46-year-old contract pumper out of Iraan, and 31-year-old Crane oil operator Kerry Bob Coleman mailed fraudulent producers' reports for August 1980 to the Texas Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division.

Federal Judge Lucius D. Bunton dismissed that one count against Fikes and declared a mistrial on the other four mail fraud counts against him. Likewise, the judge declared a mistrial on the five counts against Coleman and Ramsey.

The judge scheduled the new trial in federal court on Nov. 2 but is considering severing the defendants and trying them separately.

Jury foreman Tommy Robbins of Odessa had announced that the jury was deadlocked on Thursday after it had deliberated about 4½ hours. But the jurors returned Friday morning and resumed deliberations.

By near noon Friday, the jury was still deadlocked.

The judge gave the jurors the Modified Allen Charge by which he instructed them to seek a verdict with utmost diligence.

"I'M NOT TRYING to make jury duty burdensome," the judge said. "This is an important case." He noted that the case was expensive in both time and money for the prosecution and the defense.

But he told the jurors to resume deliberations for another hour or so.

"No juror is expected to yield to an conscientious conviction," Bunton said. "If you can't make up your mind, you can't make up your mind."

About 1½ hours later, the judge again summoned the jurors to the courtroom in the George Mahon Federal Building.

"Evidently, my little pep talk didn't do any good," the judge had observed just before he declared a mistrial and ordered a second trial of the case.

Bunton indicated that he might sever Fikes from the co-defendants and grant him a separate trial, which his attorney, Warren Burnett of Odessa, had requested midway in the week-long trial. Bill Alexander, Ramsey's attorney, and Bert Smith, Coleman's attorney, also requested separate trials.

Just before the judge dismissed the jurors, he expressed gratitude for their service.

"I WANT TO SAY thank you for being one of the hardest working juries I've seen here. You obviously worked diligently," he said.

"We will have to try this lawsuit again, and whether or not it will be resolved...is anybody's guess."

Under rules of the Midland-Odessa Division of the federal court's Western District of Texas, jurors are forbidden from discussing the case with anyone unless the court approves, which it rarely does even if a trial lawyer petitions a conversation with a former juror, the judge said.

"This is your own secret, and that's the way it's going to be," he told the jurors.

He denied a poll of the jurors to determine how each juror had finally voted on each defendant and on each issue. However, the judge held in abeyance a ruling on Burnett's request for a separate poll on Fikes.

Prior to the declared mistrial, Burnett had requested that the jury resume its deliberations, but the judge, who noted that the jury foreman Robbins indicated a firm deadlock, overruled the motion.

Only Coleman's attorney, Smith, had preferred not to accept the jury's lone verdict just before Bunton declared the mistrial. But Smith's preference came before Court Clerk Bobbye Pieper had read the sole verdict: Fikes' acquittal on one count.

Pleasant weekend forecast for Midland, area towns

It should be a pleasant weekend for Midland and the surrounding areas with partly cloudly skies and only a slight chance of nighttime thunderstorms through Sunday.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport predicts no significant temperature changes with the highs today and Sunday expected to be in the middle 90s.

Friday's high of 94 missed the record high for that date set in 1946 by 10 degrees. The record low set in 1940 of 60 was eight degrees cooler than the low recorded for Friday.

The winds will be from the south and southeast 5-10 mph today. There is a 20 percent chance of rain through tonight.

Rainfall total for the month stands at 1.07 inches and for the year to date at 8.61 inches.

Heavy rain pelted the Mississippi Valley and the deserts of the Southwest on Friday as sunny skies prevailed over the far West, New England and the south-central Plains.

Blythe-Calif., which has an average annual rainfall of 3.5 inches, received 1.65 inches in storms Friday morning.

Heavy rain also was reported in the upper Midwest, and rivers reached near bankfull in parts of Wisconsin.

Judge declares mistrial in federal oil theft case

The government's case against the defendants was built on investigations by Jack Hubbard, a private investigator reportedly hired by Sohio (Standard Oil of Ohio) Petroleum Co., by U.S. Postal Service inspectors, Texas Rangers and the Texas Railroad Commission.

FIKES, WHO WAS an oil transport driver for Scurlock Oil Co., is charged with pilfering sweet crude oil from the Sohio-Canon 63-2 lease in Pecos County but representing that the oil came from one of three allegedly less productive leases operated by and largely owned by Coleman.

Coleman, doing business as Nameloк Energy Ltd., was operating the A.T. Mann, the Mann A and the Foster A leases, which, reportedly but falsely, according to the government, were producing a daily flow of 22, 17 and 11 barrels of oil, respectively. Ramsey was the contract pumper for Sohio.

Evidence indicated that Coleman had received a check from Scurlock's Midland office for $34,000 in September 1980 for oil which supposedly came from the his leases, which were producing sour oil.

The government is trying to prove that the allegedly stolen oil, selling for more than $30 a barrel, came from the Sohio lease. The prosecutor, Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Bock, is trying to prove to a jury that the three men conspired in the oil theft scheme and deliberately submitted fraudulent and erroneous reports.

Fikes' run tickets to Scurlock allegedly were tampered with and did not represent the actual oil taken and from which leases.

Ramsey's reports to Sohio supposedly were off base.

And Coleman's production reports to the Railroad Commission allegedly were in error.

Penalty for mail fraud is a five-year prison term and/or a $1,000 fine for each offense.

The federal government came into the case via the mail fraud route. Otherwise, the lawsuit might have been tried as a felony theft case in state district court in Fort Stockton.

The defendants are free under bailbonds pending their second trial.

Judge orders separate Hughes trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Who gets half of billionaire Howard Hughes' estate will be determined by a single, delicate question — whether a cousin of the late tycoon was legitimate or the product of an illicit love affair, a judge ruled Friday.

Probate Judge Pat Gregory ordered a separate trial beginning Aug. 24 to determine whether the late Elspeth Hughes was the biological daughter of Hughes' uncle, New York playwright Rupert Hughes.

Gregory said the verdict will decide who are the heirs on Hughes' father's side, but he ruled the issue must be decided without the benefit of blood tests of 18 surviving cousins who banded together in 1976 to keep the Hughes fortune out of the hands of pretenders.

Gregory ruled previously Hughes died without leaving a will or any immediate survivors, setting the stage for a two-phase trial to find the rightful heirs.

While the first phase Monday to determine the maternal heirs turned out to be a formality, attorneys are predicting a long and bitter fight over the issue of paternal kin.

If a six-person jury agrees Elspeth Hughes was legitimate, half of the vast estate, valued from $180 million to $2 billion, would be awarded to five cousins on Hughes' father's side or their survivors.

Five hundred distant relatives will try to prove Elspeth's father Rupert Hughes contracted mumps as a child, became sterile and was unable to father a child.

If the jury agrees with them and rules she was not in the Hughes bloodline, Gregory said the complicated proceedings would be recessed and a second nationwide search would begin for any other heirs. That would further delay a settlement in the 5-year-old litigation.

Attorney George Parnham, who represents the 500 claimants, had hoped to use blood tests of 18 surviving cousins, including 14 maternal heirs who have already secured half the estate. But Gregory said he would not order them to "undergo an invasion of their bodies" and denied the request.

During Friday's testimony it was brought out that there are no records to indicate the blood types of Elspeth Hughes or her parents.

Parnham argued against a separate trial on the legitimacy issue saying "it makes the case a paternity case rather than an heirship trial."

He said his argument will not "bastardize" the cousins. "The effect of the jury's verdict will have no results on their legitimacy status. What we are trying to determine is who gets the other half of Howard Hughes' estate, and inheritance passes by way of bloodline."

But Gregory responded, "We are not here to determine all of the ultimate relatives of Howard Hughes. We are trying to determine if there are any surviving descendents of his grandparents and if there are, it would automatically cut off all the second and third cousins."

Rupert Hughes, a New York author and playwright during the early 1900s, divorced his wife Agnes when Elspeth was a little girl. Her parents then became involved in a bitter custody battle.

During that court fight, Parnham says, a document filed by Rupert Hughes accuses his estranged wife of taking a lover. It is that lover, Parnham argues, who casts a shadow on Elspeth's legitimacy.

However, attorneys for the four surviving paternal cousins say they have documents including books by Rupert Hughes inscribed "dedicated to my loving daughter" and his will in which he declares Elspeth is his daughter and leaves part of his estate to her.

Hughes, 70, died April 5, 1976, on an emergency medical flight from Acapulco to Houston. Since then 40 wills have surfaced but all were rejected by courts. A massive search was under way but never turned up a valid will, prompting 22 relatives to draw up an agreement dividing the estate. Since the estate battle began four of those have died.

Even after the heirs are determined, Gregory said it could be years before any money changes hands. A variety of appeals are pending, and the states of California and Texas are fighting over which one gets to levy inheritance taxes on the estate. That issue could be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Attorneys ask judges not to attend statewide seminar

AUSTIN (AP) — Defense attorneys have asked the nine selected judges who can issue wiretap orders not to attend a statewide seminar for fear of "compromising your integrity and objectivity."

The Aug. 20-21 conference is scheduled at the Department of Public Safety, particularly for law enforcement officers and prosecutors. Special invitations were sent to the nine judges with an offer of free travel.

"That's seduction," said Austin attorney Frank Maloney, a former president of the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association. "Judges are supposed to be impartial. I'll be amazed if any judge shows up."

The seminar is sponsored by the Texas District and County Attorneys Association and the Criminal Justice Division of the governor's office. Also taking part are the Texas Police Association and the Texas Center for Judiciary.

Under the new law effective Sept. 1, the DPS will have the right to use wiretaps on telephones and place hidden microphones in homes and business to gather evidence on felony drug cases other than possession of marijuana. The nine judges were appointed last month from each of the state's administrative judicial districts and will be the only judges allowed to decide on wiretap requests from state and local officers.

Regents approve UTPB budget

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — University of Texas regents Friday approved a $6.8 million budget for the University of Texas of the Permian Basin for the 1981-82 fiscal year.

The $6,837,050 approved was part of the total system budget of $1,291,693,797.

In addition, regents approved $3,888,307 for expenses of revenue-bearing property and $2,382,000 for conservation and land reclamation projects, including vineyard development, on university lands in West Texas.

The UTPB budget includes $6,133,219 in educational and general funds, $573,273 in auxiliary enterprise funds, and $230,558 in gifts, grants, designated and other funds.

Regents withdrew from their agenda consideration of conditional approval of the completion of the 300-inch telescope project for McDonald Observatory, and withdrew a report on requesting proposals for consulting services to assess the economic feasibility of vineyard and winery development on university lands in West Texas.

Gift establishes endowment fund

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A $25,000 gift from the Abell-Hanger Foundation of Midland will be used to establish the Community College Leadership Endowment Fund at the University of Texas at Austin, UT regents announced Friday.

The endowment was given to the College of Education. Income will be used for activities in community college education programs.

The Abell-Hanger Foundation was incorporated in 1954 by the late George T. Abell and his wife, Gladys Hanger Abell.

The foundation emphasizes higher education, youth activities and the arts and has supported other projects in the UT system.

Items missing from YMCA

In theft complaints lodged with police Friday, an employee of the Park Center YMCA, 1509 Orchard Lane, reported a television set, 12 cases of soft drinks and eight cases of assorted candy were missing from the business. The estimated value of loss was $515. Entry was apparently gained by making a hole in a wall and opening the back door.

In other light criminal activity Friday, Candao Dotson reported an auto burglary. Taken was $150 in cash from a purse in a car parked at 214 W. Indiana.

Mentally retarded children graduate

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Katie Webster loves stories and books and singing and dancing.

"She's a fighter, and she's going to be a winner," said the proud grandmother of the three-year-old child with Down's syndrome as she walked across the room, wearing a mortarboard to receive her diploma.

Katie was one of 13 mentally retarded children graduated Thursday night from the Fort Worth State School Developmental Center. Successful completion of their course means they are able to enter into public school special education programs this fall.

They have learned a variety of self-help skills, including how to walk and feed themselves, toilet training and communications they need for acceptance into public school, said Dr. Susan King, director of development for the state school.

"Some of our kids were extremely impaired," Ms. King said. "One little boy in this group was sitting up only with support when we first got him at age 5. We thought there was a spark there — that he had more ability than that. Tonight he walked up to receive his diploma. He's six years old."

There are 96 children participating in the program.

Joan Webster, Katie's mother, said the little girl has amazed her family since beginning with the development center 2½ years ago.

"When she was born they told us there were a lot of things she would never do," Mrs. Webster said. "She's doing most of them already. She's learned to be still and to pay attention and to color and feed herself. She's learned words and sign language to communicate things she can't say.

"I think she will do fine in public school, but I don't think there's any way she could be where she is now without this help," the mother said. "I'm really grateful. This is just the greatest public service I could imagine."

Reagan Cabinet reportedly goes overboard on spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Reagan was calling for an end to unnecessary government spending, members of his Cabinet were laying out $358,967 to spruce up their offices, the Better Government Association said Friday.

"The expenditures...must be a cause of concern for a president who hoped his appointees would set a cost-saving example," said BGA Executive Director J. Terrence Brunner.

"In several departments, political appointees have ordered costly and sometimes lavish redecorating while simultaneously cutting federal programs," Brunner said.

BGA, a private watchdog group based in Chicago, said the spending apparently violated an order issued by Reagan two days after he took office last January, forbidding office redecorating for top administration officials.

The officials involved say they only ordered necessary maintenance that should not be considered redecorating, but the list includes such items as solid birch wall trim in an office for an associate attorney general.

One department, Interior, appears to have taken Reagan's directive literally by not spending any money on office improvements, BGA said.

Interior Secretary James Watt issued an order of his own after Reagan raised the issue and said there would be no money spent for remodeling, redecorating, painting or any other refurbishments for executives in his department.

"He (Watt) said the president wants this and he's right and that's what we are going to do," said department spokesman Harmon Kallman.

The BGA said Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige authorized $118,246 for work at his office, including a newly carpeted private entrance at $1,768, new blazers for his security guards for $656, improvements to a private elevator for $1,730, remodeled reception area at $1,897 and a sink and vanity to replace the old sink in his office for $1,683.

"When I arrived at the Commerce Department back in January, I was appalled by the condition of the building," explained Baldrige. "It appeared that very little basic maintenance — even cleaning — was done during the past four years.

"The Commerce Department represents the government and the people of the United States," Baldrige said. "Every day we host foreign ministers, ambassadors, corporate executives and government officials. We shouldn't be ashamed of the way we look."

Baldrige said the work was "primarily maintenance necessary to bring the building up to an acceptable standard" and not simply a matter of his changing paint, carpets or upholstery to suit his taste.

And as for costs, Baldrige noted that "we have cut the overall Commerce Department budget by 25 percent."

The Agiculture Department was a distant second in renovation spending, according to the BGA list, with $59,300, followed by Justice with $52,323.

John Miranda, spokesman for Agriculture, said most of the money spent there was for relocating offices of about 112 people, including top executives and their staff members, in one second-floor area from previosly widely scattered locations, a costly but eventually economical move.

Others on the BGA list were Housing and Urban Development, $39,192; Defense, $35,007; Education, $21,969; Labor, $13,702; Energy, $11,309; Treasury, $6,121; and Health and Human Services, $1,796.

Reagan's memorandum to all heads of executive branch departments and agencies expressly commanded "appointees are not to redecorate their offices."

However, the same memo added that it "does not preclude reasonable and necessary cleaning, painting, and maintenance or structural changes essential to the efficient functioning of an office."

The reaction turned on varying interpretations of the difference between redecorating and necessary repairs. Baldrige, for example, said some of his carpeting was shabby and was replaced only after efforts to clean it failed.

But at Justice about $33,000 was spent converting three offices into two. BGA says one of the offices got solid birch wainscotting and much of the work was done on overtime, "costing the taxpayers 1½ times as much."

Agriculture Secretary John Block spent $2,147 for what BGA called "framing of mostly personal pictures for the secretary and support staff," and the taxpayers reupholstered his couch for $850.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan got a $250 icemaker for his dining room. And it cost $480 to repair Housing Secretary Samuel Pierce's easy chair, the BGA said.

Reagan's job ratings show improvement

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan's job ratings have improved markedly following congressional passage of his economic program, the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

Reagan got good or excellent ratings for the job he is doing as president from 63 percent of the 1,601 adults selected in a scientific random sampling and contacted by telephone Monday and Tuesday.

Twenty-six percent of the respondents said Reagan is doing only a fair job as president, while 9 percent said he is doing a poor job and 2 percent said they are not sure.

In comparison, Reagan got only a 55 percent favorable rating in the AP-NBC News poll last month. The 63 percent favorable rating in the latest poll is Reagan's highest since shortly after he was wounded in an assassination attempt last spring.

The increase of eight percentage points in the president's overall job rating coincides with an increase in good or excellent ratings for the way he is handling the economy.

The poll said 52 percent gave Reagan favorable marks for his handling of the economy. Thirty percent said he is doing only a fair job with the economy, while 13 percent said he is doing a poor job and 5 percent were not sure.

The president's favorable job rating for his handling of the economy in July was only 45 percent.

Three of every four respondents said they had heard or read of Reagan's economic program, and those people gave the president higher marks both for his handling of the economy and for his overall job rating.

After guiding his tax-cutting and budget-cutting programs through Congress despite opposition from Democratic leaders, Reagan got his highest job ratings for the way he is working with the legislative branch.

The poll said 69 percent gave the president good or excellent ratings for the job he is doing in working with Congress, with 21 percent saying he is doing only a fair job, 6 percent a poor job and 4 percent not sure.

The passage of Reagan's programs, which he signed Thursday and which on Oct. 1 launch the biggest federal budget and tax cuts ever, may have also figured in a slight improvement in public opinion of Congress.

The poll said 35 percent think Congress is doing a good or excellent job, with 49 percent saying only a fair job, 13 percent a poor job and 3 percent unsure.

In comparison, only 29 percent last month gave Congress a favorable job rating.

There was speculation that the president gained support from lawmakers who feared a vote against the president would hurt them in their 1982 re-election campaigns, but the poll said 7 out of 10 respondents did not know how their congressman voted on Reagan's economic program.

The Democratic leadership opposed Reagan's economic package largely on the grounds that it would help the rich more than the poor. The poll said 53 percent agreed that it will help upper-income Americans and hurt those with low incomes.

Nonetheless, one-third of those who think Reagan's program helps the rich more than the poor still said they think he is doing a good or excellent job handling the economy.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,600 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of such chance variations. That is, if one could have talked this past week to all Americans with telephones, there is only one chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of additional reasons. Differences in the exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.

Doctor shot

CHELMSFORD, Mass. (AP) — A gunman walked into a psychological counseling center Friday and opened fire with a pistol, killing a psychiatrist and wounding three women before fleeing in a car. Police said they were looking for the son of a former police chief.

"He just walked in and started shooting," said State Police Trooper Roger Calderwood.

Police were seeking James Palmer, 28, the son of a former Chelmsford police chief, for questioning. Officer James Midgley said a .357 Magnum found at the scene was traced to Palmer, who worked as a security guard.

Midgley said police did not know a motive for the shootings. He said investigators were not certain whether Palmer had been under treatment at the center in this town 20 miles north of Boston.

The gunman, dressed in a light-colored suit, appeared calm as he entered the Stony Brook Counseling Center shortly before 10 a.m. and went into the office of Dr. Alan Shields, police said. There was an argument, followed by shooting.

State Police Detective Lt. Thomas Spartichino said the man continued firing at people in the waiting room as he ran toward the front door, then dropped the heavy pistol when it was empty. He fled in a car.

Shields, a child psychiatrist at the Stony Brook Counseling Center for two years, was pronounced dead at the scene shortly after the shooting, Calderwood said.

Medfly discovered in San Joaquin Valley

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — The Mediterranean fruit fly has spread to the San Joaquin Valley, the heartland of California's $14 billion-a-year farm industry, and officials said Friday they would begin aerial pesticide spraying in the area immediately.

Worried agriculture industry officials said winds could spread the fly over the entire valley within days.

The discovery of three of the crop-destroying flies in the town of Westley on Thursday represented the biggest setback yet in state officials' 14-month effort to keep the pest from spreading from largely residential areas to important commercial farms.

Authorities said aerial spraying of malathion would begin just after midnight Friday over a 30-square-mile area 12 miles southwest of Modesto.

Gordon Tween, deputy director of the medfly eradication project who flew by helicopter to the newly infested area, said the federal government would quarantine at least 81 square miles by late Friday.

"Quarantine is going to be tough in here because you've got commercial produce right next door that moves to other parts of the country and the rest of the world," said Tween, who called he lates discovery "a very grave risk" to the state.

Three counties near San Francisco — Santa Clara, Alameda and San Mateo — already are under federal quarantine, which requires produce be treated with chemicals or cold before being shipped from the area.

More than 500 square miles of Northern California have been sprayed with the pesticide malathion and more than $25 million has been spent on eradication efforts, but the fly has continued to spread.

The pest lays its eggs in 200 varieties of fruits and vegetables; Californian grows half the nation's produce.

On Thursday, three flies were found in traps in the town of Westley, 20 miles southwest of Modesto in the fertile San Joaquin Valley. They were confirmed as wild male medflies, said eradication project spokesman Richard Steffen.

Previous spraying has been done by helicopter, but officials said they may bring in fixed-wing military aircraft. Project director Jerry Scribner ruled out blanket spraying of the San Joaquin Valley, saying massive spraying would cost the state millions of dollars and "you're not guaranteed you're doing anything but pushing the fly down to levels that are undetectable."

Tween advocated a broader approach to spraying.

"I'm sick and tired of jumping around ... bit by bit. We need to think big," he said. "I just got a gut feeling inside of me. We're not giving proper consideration to the fly."

Richard Rominger, director of the state Department of Food and Agriculture, said the spread to the San Joaquin Valley "was really not unexpected. Entomologists have been predicting we'd be very fortunate if something like this didn't happen."

"We anticipated that it might happen, but we find it extremely devastating," said Clark Biggs, spokesman for the California Farm Bureau Federation, adding that prevailing southerly winds could spread the flies through the valley within a couple of days.

"It scares the bejabbers out of us," said Les Hubbard of the Western Growers Association.

State Assemblyman John Thurman, D-Modesto, chairman of the Assembly's Agriculture Committee, said the new find means "we must have immediate spraying of that area, and we must put out many more traps. And when we say immediate, we mean immediate. Today."

The summer harvest of peaches, apricots, tomatoes and grapes is under way in the valley. California produces 66 percent of the nation's peaches, 97 percent of its apricots and 92 percent of its grapes.

The state's aerial spraying program was ordered by a reluctant Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. when the federal government threatened a quarantine of the entire state, which farmers say could mean economic disaster.

The latest area to be aerial sprayed was Livermore, 14 miles west of the San Joaquin Valley. Three helicopters dropped bait laced with malathion on the city of 48,000 Thursday night after the discovery of a fertile medfly there Monday.

Project officials announced Thursday that an area north of Santa Cruz and outside the main quarantine area would be sprayed next week as a result of the discovery of a fertile fly there.

Brown assured USDA will protect other states

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Friday he had been assured by the U.S. Department of Agriculture they would protect other states from the spreading Mediterranean infestation in California.

Brown said he talked with Dr. Harry Mussman, director of Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, "and he assures me the USDA will take the steps necessary to protect other states' crops.

"Other Southern states are alarmed at the spread of the Mediterranean fruit fly and the seeming disorganization in the way the eradication program is bring run in California," Brown said. "However, there is really nothing Texas can do since the courts have stopped every effort we have made to require fumigation over and bove the present USDA quarantine.

Gov. Bill Clements signed a bill Friday, passed by the just complete special legislative session, giving Brown more authority to deal with situations such as the Medfly crisis. "We are ordering detection raps and will begin setting them out just as soon as they arrive in Texas," he said. Our contingency plans are drawn; we are ready if an outbreak occurs in Texas."

Honeymoon about over

HURGHADA, Egypt (AP) — The Prince and Princess of Wales relaxed Friday on a hideaway island off this Red Sea resort. Reliable British sources said they were swimming and diving on the last full day of their sailing trip.

The sources said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat would see the royal couple off Saturday from Hurghada for their flight to Scotland.

British officials declined to confirm even that the royal yacht Britannia was in the Red Sea. "It is confidential information. The royal couple are on their honeymoon," a British Embassy spokesman said.

This is the cover of the Thursday, Aug. 13 Daily News Tonight edition, which will be discontinued as of Aug. 28. The New York newspaper, which puts out two editions daily, announced Friday that the year-old edition will be discontinued as part of a cost-cutting program, which will include the layoff of 320 employees. The Daily News is faced with an $11 million loss this year.

Daily News folding its afternoon edition

NEW YORK (AP) — The Daily News admitted defeat Friday in its year-old effort to publish an afternoon newspaper. It said it was folding its Tonight edition and laying off 320 workers in a bid to save the nation's largest daily tabloid.

The shutdown adds to what has been a grim summer for afternoon newspapers. The 128-year-old Washington Star folded on Aug. 7, and The Bulletin of Philadelphia has said that unless its unions agree to $4.9 million in contract concessions, it will shut down Sunday.

Daily News Publisher Robert M. Hunt said the newspaper faced an $11 million deficit this year even with economies, which include a pay freeze for some employees, an end to executive bonuses and a 10 percent cut in salary for top executives.

The Tonight edition, which had sought to attract the generally well-heeled readers of the morning New York Times and Wall Street Journal, will cease publication as of Aug. 28.

The afternoon edition never reached its 200,000 circulation goal, and has been selling 70,000 copies a day in recent weeks.

"The health of this entire enterprise, with its nearly 4,000 employees, depends on the success of the program we begin today," Hunt said at a news conference. "Nothing less can assure the continued vitality and yes, survival of this newspaper."

Like the Star, the Bulletin and other struggling afternoon papers, Hunt said that Tonight suffered from competition with television's evening news programs.

Once Tonight is gone, the city will be back where it was a year ago — with one citywide afternoon newspaper, the New York Post.

Hunt said he thought Tonight was "an excellent newspaper," with its blend of hard news and lifestyle and trend features.

"We went out to produce the liveliest, most interesting editorial package we could and ... it didn't work. The market isn't there," he said.

News executives had thought that many Post readers were unhappy with that tabloid and would welcome an alternative, Hunt added.

"Tragically, the people who go up and put down their quarter ... are choosing the Post," he said.

The Post, with an average daily circulation of 688,000, publishes in the morning and afternoon. The New York Times averages 713,000 daily metropolitan circulation, all in the morning.

Hunt would not estimate the loss incurred solely by the Tonight venture. The Chicago-based Tribune Co., which owns the Daily News, said profits dropped 16.1 percent in the second quarter from the year before, partly because of overall News' losses.

The real worry, Hunt said, is the health of the News itself, which has an average daily circulation of 1.3 million, down from 2 million a decade ago. Hunt said he believed morning losses had "flattened out."

Though gross revenues last year were $330 million, third largest in the country, they have been outpaced by costs of energy, newsprint, ink and labor, he said, and more cost-cutting measures will be studied.

Some of the features and special sections that were introduced with the Tonight edition will be retained, Hunt said, but the early evening "Night Owl" edition that preceded Tonight will not be revived.

Deacon found guilty of enslaving youths

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A man described as a deacon of the Church of God and True Holiness was convicted Friday on charges of holding eight teen-age church members in involuntary servitude.

Jimmy Conyers, 39, who was also convicted of conspiracy, was to be sentenced later in the day. He faced a maximum prison term of 45 years and a fine of up to $85,000 or both.

After hearing the verdict, U.S. District Court Judge Hiram H. Ward told the jury, "I have no quarrel whatsoever with your verdict."

In the trial, several young people testified that Conyers enslaved them between 1974 and 1978, forcing them to work and pocketing the money they earned.

In closing arguments, Richard Roberts, one of two special Justice Department prosecutors handling the case, told the jury that Conyers helped hold the youths in "child slavery ... all in the guise of working in the name of the Lord."

Roberts said leaders of the church, which had congregations in Durham, N.C., Wilson, N.C. and in Florence, S.C., relied on fear, beatings and public rebukes to deprive members "of their normal life force" and of more than $100,000.

Steve Allen, Conyers' attorney, argued that his client, like other church members, did anything the leader of the church, Robert Allan Carr, told him to do. He acknowledged that Conyers was involved in beating church members.

In testimony this week, Patricia Hilton, who is now 19, said that when she was 13 or 14, Carr forced her to marry a man who was in his 40s and who was a member of the church. Two young men, Curtis Mercer and Donnie Lee Mercer, said they also were forced to marry against their wills.

Terry Daniel Sauls, now 20, said that in 1977 he was taken from Durham to Florence, where he was made to live in a room behind the church with "quite a few others."

"Jimmy Conyers was there guarding the door at night so we couldn't get out," Sauls testified. During the day, he said, the youths were forced to do menial work for which they received no pay.

"I couldn't go back home to my family (in Wilson) 'cause I didn't have no money to get there," he said. "I knew if I struck off and they caught me, it would either be a whippin' or a fast."

Testimony described imposed fasts that sometimes lasted three days.

Robert Graham, now 23, said he and most of the others held during the four-year period were forced to work at Cross Poultry Co. in Raleigh, a chicken-processing plant.

DISEASE WARNING

OCCUPANTS OF THIS VEHICLE HAVE BEEN SEEN IN THE COMPANY OF STREET LADIES ALONG 14TH ST.

AP Laserphoto

Residents of the Logan Circle in the District of Columbia have begun attaching this warning sticker on cars whose drivers have been seen picking up prostitutes in that neighborhood to try and stop this type of business which they feel is a curse to their area.

Logan Circle declares war on prostitutes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven blocks north of the White House, a war is going on over some shaded streets where the only hint of miltary action is a bronze, equestrian statue of a Civil War general.

There, around Logan Circle with its Victorian houses, Barbara Rothenberg and her neighbors are battling to drive prostitutes off the streets and are employing tactics the likes of which Union Gen. John A. Logan would never have imagined.

They slap luminous pink stickers on cars belonging to prostitutes' customers. "Disease Warning," the stickers say. "Occupants of this vehicle have been seen in the company of street ladies along 14th St."

The residents are careful not to place the stickers on just any car parked along the street, Ms. Rothenbeg said. "We try to do it while the prostitutes are in the cars with the men, usually during the sex act," she said.

Residents also show up en masse at trials to plead for long sentences for prostitutes. After this tactic was publicized, one prostitute was sentenced to a year in jail.

"We're fighting for turf," Ms. Rothenberg said in explaining the battle. "We're fighting for the streets. We'll do anything that's legal."

She said she and other neighborhood women are tired of being approached on the street by men who think they are prostitutes just because they are walking in the Logan Circle area.

"I can't even go to the store without being propositioned," she said.

Ms. Rothenberg added that the drive is not only against prostitutes. She said neighborhood residents also were "allocuting" — pleading for lengthy prison sentences — at trials of drug dealers.

"We'll allocute every repeat offender, that's our goal," she said.

Last week about 20 residents showed up at the trial of one woman to tell the judge that prostitution brings more serious crime with it and should be punished accordingly. The defendant, who was 32 and pregnant with her fourth child, was sentenced to 75 days in jail and given a $100 fine.

"One hundred dollars. She'll make that in two tricks," one neighborhood woman said after the sentencing.

But this week, Assistant U.S. Attorney James N. Owens pleaded for a lengthy sentence at another woman's trial, saying the judge should send a message showing the courts "are serious about combating prostitution."

Superior Court Judge William S. Thompson sentenced the 30-year-old woman to a year in jail, noting that she had been arrested 25 times before and convicted eight times.

Owens, an ally of the Logan Circle residents, said Washington was regarded as "the easiest, safest place" for prostitutes to work because of light jail entences.

He said a typical sentence was $30 or 30 days. Says Ms. Rothenberg: "That's not a fine. It's a license fee."

No Logan Circle residents were at the hastily scheduled trial resulting in the year's sentence, but Ms. Rothenberg said they would have been there it they'd known about it. "I've got 75 volunteers ready to testify," she said.

The battle will not be easily won, however.

Little 'old' boy anxiously awaits letter from Pinocchio

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Postal workers in the mining town of Orkney are on alert for a letter from Pinocchio to one of his biggest fans — Fransie Geringer, an 8-year-old boy with a disease that makes him look like a little old man.

Fransie is bald and has wrinkled hands and feet because of the disease, which is aging him 10 times faster than normal. Doctors say he is likely to die within the next eight years.

He has been keeping watch on the mailbox since Wednesday when the characters department at Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif., announced the long-nosed storybook character had written to him.

Fransie's excitement about the letter is only a prelude to what may take place before the end of the year.

American and British readers have swamped the family with phone calls since The Associated Press carried a story about his struggle with the disease, progeria, and his dream of seeing Pinocchio.

There have been offers of gifts and contributions toward a trip to the United States for visits to Disneyland and to Disney World in Orlando, Fla.

His father, Herman, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from Orkney, a small mining town 105 miles southwest of Johannesburg, that the boy is exuberant about his new-found fame.

"Fransie likes it because everybody is paying attention to him," his father, then added quietly, "They're not passing remarks ... You know."

The Geringers, who primarily speak the Afrikaans language of the Dutch-descended Afrikaners, are excited about the possibility of visiting the United States. They have never traveled farther than the South African port of Durban on the Indian Ocean.

"I wish you could see him," said Geringer, who works in the Vaal Reefs gold mine in Orkney. "He can't wait. He's very happy, as always, and full of smiles. He doesn't know how America looks, but he thinks it's a fantastic place."

Since mail from overseas sometimes takes up to two weeks, none of the promised letters have been received yet.

Geringer said the post office had promised to let him know as soon as the letter from Pinocchio arrives.

"They have already organized so the whole staff will bring the letter to Fransie, instead of just the postman," he said. "The post office said we don't have to worry about all the letters and parcels. If they're addressed to Fransie, they'll be delivered."

Fransie has adored the ex-puppet who became a boy since a cousin gave him a 16-inch Pinocchio doll when he was five months old. He still has it.

The boy suffers no handicaps in his daily activities, despite his emaciated body. He is three feet, eight inches tall and weighs 40 pounds. Fransie does not attend school, however, to avoid teasing by other children.

Shirley Miller, a spokeswoman for the Sunshine Foundation in Philadelphia, said the group has set aside money to fly Fransie and his family to Disneyland for one week.

Geringer, 37, said the family is talking about making the trip to the United States in December if they can complete all the arrangements, including time off from school for Fransie's 10-year-old brother, Paul, and time off from work for himself.

A group in St. Petersburg, Fla., sprearheaded by the Sunshine City Jaycees is trying to raise money to bring the family cross country to Florida for a visit to Disney World.

Jaycees spokesman Scott Simmons said, "If there's any additional money, we'll try to set up a trust fund to defray future medical expenses."

J.L. Johnstone, a nurse who visits Fransie regularly in the dusty mining town, said the child's condition is "static," muscle degeneration is not marked at this stage, and he does not yet have high blood pressure.

Victims of the disease most commonly die of a heart attack.

Editors:

Contributions can be sent to the Sunshine City Jaycees, in trust for Fransie Geringer, United Southern Bank, P.O. Box 40750, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33743. The Sunshine Foundation's address is 2842 Normandy Drive, Philadelphia, Penn., 19154.

Fransie's home address is 22 Marlowe Ave., Orkney, South Africa.

Pacemakers aren't always needed

CHICAGO (AP) — Pacemakers, designed to control the human heartbeat in patients with cardiac problems, are being implanted in some people who don't really need them, a new study suggests.

At one hospital where an effort was made to limit their use, pacemaker implantations were reduced by half and the mortality rate substantially improved.

"A lot of pacemakers are being implanted in patients who shouldn't have them," said Dr. Howard S. Friedman, a researcher at Brooklyn Hospital in New York, where a physicians' committee was established to review potential pacemaker cases.

"Physicians need to be more critical about making a diagnosis that indicates implanting a pacemaker. If they did this, they would implant fewer of them," he said.

The findings by Friedman and his colleagues were published in the Aug. 14 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Pacemakers are small electronic devices implanted in the body and connected to the heart. They provide mild electric shocks to stimulate the heart muscles and make the organ beat regularly.

The number of pacemaker implantations in the United States increased by about 9,000 per year from 1973 through 1978 to an estimated 85,000 last year, the report said.

The Brooklyn Hospital study was undertaken, in part, because of acceleration in pacemaker use there. The number rose from eight in 1972 to 18 in 1976.

In 1977, when the peer review committee was established, implantations dropped to 22 and remained there the following year.

Before peer review, 57 percent of the patients receiving pacemakers were still alive three years later. After review, the figure jumped to 87 percent. Friedman said that was evidence that pacemakers had earlier been given to patients for whom they did no good.

Friedman aid some overuse resulted from shortcomings in medical knowledge. For example, in eight cases studied, patients taking a drug to lower blood pressure were given pacemakers because of slow heart rhythm. It was not known then that the drug could slow the rhythm.

In addition, six people with terminal cancer received pacemakers before the review process was established.

"The use of permanent pacemakers in patients with terminal illnesses raises ethical and legal considerations beyond the scope of this (study)," Friedman said.

The Brooklyn Hospital study is the second in recent years indicating overuse of the pacemakers.

Earlier research at Harvard Medical School revealed 10 patients out of 32 studied didn't need the units.

Dr. Peter Kowey, now director of the coronary unit at the Medical College of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, said his research at Harvard and the newer findings indicate that millions of dollars are wasted each year on implanting pacemakers.

He estimated the units cost about $15,000 each during the life of a patient.

Most builders now offer home warranty

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A small, but growing number of people are getting something extra when they buy a house — an insured warranty to protect them even if the home builder refuses to take responsibility for problems.

A recent study by the General Accounting Office showed that almost one fifth of the new homes built every year are covered by insured warranties. Most fall under the HOW — Home Owners Warranty — program set up in 1974 by the National Association of Home Builders.

In the past, the GAO said, protection for homebuyers was limited to the terms of the purchase contract, "and the courts adhered to the rule of 'Let the buyer beware.'"

The situation has changed gradually. Most builders now offer some type of written warranty. Courts have ruled that home buyers are protected by "implied warranties," which, in effect, promise that nothing is substantially wrong with a product when it is sold.

Enforcement of the warranties can become a problem, however, when builders "refuse to or cannot make repairs," the GAO said.

The HOW program provides a system for settling claims and insurance to cover claims which builders will not or cannot pay.

The HOW warranty covers a 10-year period and works like this.

During the first year after the house is built, the buyer is protected against trouble stemming from defective materials or workmanship, from major structural defects and from defects in the electrical, heating, cooling or plumbing systems.

The protection against major structural defects continues in the second year of the warranty, but workmanship and materials no longer are covered. The wiring, piping and duct work on the electrical, heating, cooling and plumbing systems are covered, but the equipment itself is not, unless there is a separate manufacturer's warranty.

The builder is responsible for paying repair bills during the two-year period. If the builder refuses responsibility or has gone out of business, HOW's insurance company covers the cost. A local HOW council arranges for any necessary work to be done.

Yarbrough extradition attempted

AUSTIN (AP) — District Attorney Ronald Earle said Friday that Travis County will attempt to extradite former Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough from the Carribbean island of Grenada.

Earle said in a statement that it would cost a lost of money but he did not think a person should be able "to slide away from a jury verdict like that just by going out of the country."

Yarbrough failed to show up Tuesday for sentencing on a 1978 perjury conviction.

Yarbrough's personal bond of $5,000 was revoked.

Pope John Paul II leaves hospital for Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II, looking pale and drawn, left the hospital Friday, waving to well-wishers and embracing his doctor. He returned to a warm Vatican welcome after three months' recuperation from gunshot wounds.

Doctors said he has completely recovered from the wounds suffered May 13 in an assassination attempt but still needs six weeks of convalescence.

"Welcome home, Pope Wojtyla!" Vatican Radio said, using the pontiff's Polish surname.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said in a front-page commentary: "With the return of the Holy Father to the Vatican, the time of fear and trembling hope is concluded, and one savors again the taste of normalcy."

The pope, wearing white vestments, waved and said "Arrivederci" — "Goodbye" — to the crowd of well wishers who broke into song as he walked slowly through the corridor of Rome's Gemelli Hospital. He embraced Dr. Francesco Crucitti, the surgeon who performed two operations on the pope, and climbed into a black Mercedes convertible for the brief ride back to the Vatican.

The 61-year-old pontiff prayed at the tomb of St. Peter in the grottoes beneath St. Peter's Basilica. The pope's three immediate predecessors — John XXIII, Paul VI and John Paul I — are among those buried there.

"I wanted to honor and thank St. Peter for having wanted to keep alive his successor. As I was praying over the tombs I thought there could have been an additional one, but the Madonna that May 13 thought differently," the Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Romeo Panciroli, quoted the pope as saying.

The pope will recite a prayer Saturday to mark the Feast of the Assumption and will lean out of his apartment window to greet the faithful in St. Peter's Square, the Vatican said.

Before leaving his hospital room, John Paul celebrated Mass and read a 10-minute message that was broadcast over hospital loudspeakers. He thanked God "for having saved my life and restored my health" and expressed gratitude to all who prayed for him.

"He is really cured," Crucitti told reporters. "Physically and psychologically, we will have a pope who is as he was before May 13."

He said the pope can gradually resume his regular work at the end of September, but long trips probably will not be possible for awhile.

The pope is expected to spend several days at the Vatican before returning to his summer home in Castel Gandolfo in the Alban Hills south of Rome.

Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca shot the pope in the abdomen at the beginning of his weekly audience in St. Peter's Square three months ago. Two American women also were wounded in the shooting.

In a 5½-hour emergency operation, doctors removed part of the pope's large intestine and performed a temporary intestinal bypass to give the wounds a chance to heal. Doctors said later the pope's life was in serious danger when he entered the hospital.

Solidarity celebrates first birthday

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Sirens wailed, traffic stopped and Solidarity leader Lech Walesa vowed to serve Poland, not try to take it over, as the free labor movement celebrated its first birthday Friday.

Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania and Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski flew to the Crimea, meanwhile, to try to reassure Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev the Polish situation was under control.

"We do not intend to seize power from anyone or become a political party. Our only aim is to serve the nation," Walesa told several hundred workers in the Baltic port of Gdansk, where a strike at the Lenin shipyard a year ago launched the first union free of Communist Party control in the Soviet bloc.

Walesa, sitting atop shipyard gate shaking with pictures of Polish-born Pope John Paul II and the Virgin Mary, also warned about union leaders more interested in politics than the labor situation.

"We have now arrived at the conclusion that we should follow a different path from a normal union, we should deviate from the purely union way in order to improve the economic situation," he said.

"There is very great lack of control now in the authorities in Solidarity and in the state."

Buses, streetcars and taxis ground to a halt for one minute in Gdansk to commemorate the Aug. 14, 1980, start of the shipyard strike, and sirens wailed across the city.

Inside the shipyard, workers placed a cross next to the statue of V.I. Lenin, father of the Bolshevik Revolution, and the Polish eagle.

Just outside the gates, workers placed wreaths at the stark, towering crosses that form a monument to the scores of people killed during food price riots in December 1970.

Solidarity placed an honor guard of workers wearing red and white armbands around the monument, where a Roman Catholic Mass was planned Friday night.

Kania and Jaruzelski were meeting with Brezhnev at his summer home in the Crimea, where the Soviet leader holds talks with East Bloc leaders every year. This year, however, the Warsaw Pact allies have grown increasingly alarmed over unrest in Poland, and several large-scale military maneuvers are in the works.

Although Solidarity has backed the Polish Central Committee's call for a two-month moratorium on strikes, officials of the Solidarity-sponsored Committee for the Defense of Prisoners of Conscience said they would hold rallies in several cities Monday through Friday.

And nearly 1 million workers in Solidarity's branch in the Silesian industrial heartland refused to go along with their national leaders' demand to work eight free Saturdays in order to boost Poland's sagging economy, already $27 billion in debt to the West.

Meanwhile, thousands of pilgrims converged on Czestochowa, site of Poland's holiest shrine, the "Bright Mountain" monastery, where Roman Catholic Archbishop Jozef Glemp is to speak Saturday.

Top Polish leaders meet with Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — Poland's two top leaders met with President Leonid I. Brezhnev in the Crimea on Friday for talks expected to deal with Poland's severe political and economic troubles.

The official news agency Tass said a communique would be issued later. It called the meeting of Brezhnev, Polish Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania and Polish Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski "a short working visit." A later, nearly identical, report described the mission as "a friendly working visit," but gave no further details.

Also "taking part in the conversation," Tass said, were Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko; Konstantin Chernenko of the 11-member ruling Politburo and a close Brezhnev aide, and two top experts on Eastern Europe — Konstantin Rusakov and Anatoli Blatov.

Gromyko and Rusakov — a secretary of the party Central Committee — met the two Polish leaders at Simferopol Airport.

It was the first meeting between Brezhnev and Kania since early March, when Kania came to Moscow. At that time Soviet leaders were believed to have repeated their warning to Polish Communists to bring the labor strife in their country under control.

The meeting could be regarded as routine because Brezhnev has held similar meetings this summer with leaders of other Soviet bloc countries.

Nuns turn to television for ministry

By DIANA SMITH
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Mother Angelica says those of little faith thought the 13 nuns at Our Lady of the Angels Monastery were "a little touched in the head" when they decided to produce the nation's first Catholic cable television network.

But she said that with hard work, determination and "a lot of help from Lord," the Eternal Word Network will bounce a signal off the Westar III satellite Saturday evening and debut a daily, four-hour broadcast.

"We're after the man in the pew, the women who is suffering from heartache, the child who is lonely," she said. "I'm hoping we can teach without teaching; enlighten the heart and relax the body."

"Television is a tremendous medium, but there are some bad programs. Perhaps we can reverse the trend," she said. "In some ways, TV has taken families and made them into individuals.

The network, housed in a concrete-block studio next to the monastery, will reach an estimated 300,000 cable subscribers across the country from 7 to 11 p.m. EDT, with Mother Angelica as its chubby, cheerful anchor.

RELIGION

"Most people think we're a little bit touched in the head," she said Wednesday. "They say, 'You've got to be joking. A network run by 13 nuns?'"

She said building and equipping the studio the past two years and struggling for a spot on the satellite hasn't been easy since the nuns were novices to the intricacies of cable television.

She compared the monastery's problems breaking into cable to the obstacles a female doctor might have faced 20 years ago. "But I don't resent it," she said. "I'd be skeptical myself."

She already has her own cable program — "Mother Angelica Presents," which she describes as a "nitty-gritty, sock it to 'em program" shot on location and in the studio.

The network, she said, will feature programs and movies for families.

An hour-long documentary on the Shroud of Turin will kick off Saturday's programing, followed by Mother Angelica's preview of the network's scheduled programs.

By 1984, Mother Angelica hopes to have a 24-hour network.

"The evolution of cable television will be tremendous by then. There are going to be so many changes. We're getting there just in time."

Controller wed

HOLLIS, N.H. (AP) — Nearly 300 striking air traffic controllers dropped picket signs and raised wine glasses on Friday to celebrate the wedding of a colleague in their secluded union hall.

Striking controller Jay Catland and Barbara McGirt said they had planned a simple ceremony, with 12 guests, at Catland's home in Hudson.

Instead, the couple was married at strike headquarters with the union local president escorting the bride and a striking controller who doubles as a justice of the peace performing the ceremony.

ABA's accreditation of law school criticized

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Critics say an American Bar Association amendment allowing church-supported law schools to use religion to discriminate in the admission of students and hiring of faculty will allow schools to bar Jews, Catholics, blacks or anyone else deemed to fail its religious requirements.

The ABA, at its week-long annual convention here, bowed to legal pressure this week as its House of Delegates approved the accreditation amendment 147-127.

Following the vote, Oral Roberts University's O.W. Coburn School of Law in Tulsa, Okla. was granted provisional accreditation, despite its requirement that students sign religious pledges and faculty members sign pledges and pass religious tests. It may seek permanent accreditation in three years.

Peter Langrock, a Middlebury, Vt. lawyer, said the amendment put the ABA in the position of telling most law schools they must have affirmative action programs to benefit blacks and other minorities — but that religious schools may discriminate as they please.

"Discrimination by any other name is still discrimination," he said.

The action took the ABA off the hook in a federal court case in Chicago in which the fundamentalist school sued the ABA, charging violation of the constitutional right of religious freedom.

Accreditation is a serious matter for a law school because lawyers maintain strong regulations, similar to a labor union's closed shop. In most states, graduates of non-accredited law schools cannot even take the bar examination for licensing as a lawyer.

The Oral Roberts matter was one of the more controversial proposal at the convention, which closed Wednesday. The vote came after more than an hour of debate.

Many backers specified that they didn't care much for the change in ABA standards, but that it was necessary.

Joe Stamper, an Antler, Okla. lawyer who argued for the amendment, said he could not subscribe to the Oral Roberts requirements because "I like a beer now and then." But he said religious organizations have a long history of superior education and only recently bumped into the "enforced secularization" of civil rights.

The law school, he said, would go down the drain unless it won accreditation. The first class is now in its third year and ABA rejection would force most students to switch schools, he said.

"Why does everyone who supports this amendment do so half-heartedly?" asked Dennis Archer, a Detroit lawyer. "Everybody has an alibi, an excuse. Well, Oral Roberts can do what it wants to do, but it does not have the right to come in here and blackjack us into giving them accreditation for it."

J. D. Ashcroft, attorney general of Missouri, said the only question was freedom of religion.

"When any of us exercise our freedom of religion, we exercise religious discrimination," he said.

To Whitnzy Seymour, a New York City lawyer, the issue was political tactics, not social philosophy. He urged passage of the amendment because an extended legal fight could create complications.

"I want to warn you against all the enemies lurking in the bushes who would try to deprive the council of its right to accredit law schools," he said.

The Newspaper BIBLE

DON'T MAKE THE SAME MISTAKE AGAIN!

This evil nation is like a man possessed by a demon. For if the demon leaves, it goes into the deserts for a while, seeking rest but finding none. Then it says, "I will return to the man I came from. So it returns and finds the man's heart clean but empty! Then the demon finds seven other spirits more evil than itself, and all enter the man and live in him. And so he is worse off than before. (Matthew 12:43-45)

Then Jesus stood up again and said to her, "Where are your accusers? Didn't even one of them condemn you?" "No, sir," she said. And Jesus said, "Neither do I. Go and sin no more." Later, in one of his talks, Jesus said to the people, "I am the light of the world. So if you follow Me, you won't be stumbling through the darkness, for living light will flood your path." (John 8:10-12)

And when a person has escaped from the wicked ways of the world by learning about our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and then gets tangled up with sin and becomes its slave again, he is worse off than he was before. It would be better if he had never known about Christ at all than to learn of Him and then afterwards turn his back on the holy commandments that were given to him. There is an old saying that "A dog comes back to what he has vomited, and a pig is washed only to come back and wallow in the mud again." That is the way it is with those who turn again to their sin. (2 Peter 2:20-22)

British Methodists favor covenanting

NORWICH, England (AP) — Methodists of Great Britain have given overwhelming appropval at their governing conference to proposals for a "covenanting" partnership with four other British denominations.

The proposals now go to district and local units for reactions, to be considered by the 1982 conference.

Other denominations involved, the Church of England, United Reformed Church, Churches of Christ and Moravian Church, are at various stages of the approval process.

The timetable points toward 1985 when, if all partners approve, a covenant would be signed providing that each denomination recognize the others' members and ministers, share fully in Holy Communion and develop methods for joint decision-making, looking toward eventual union.

Some businesses still exclude Jews

NEW YORK (AP) — Progress has been made in opening America's executive suites to Jews, but some corporate doors still are closed to them, a meeting of business leaders, academicians and management exeutives concluded.

Their assessments were offered as part of a project on the issue sponsored by the American Jewish Committee and the Federation Employment and Guidance Service.

Herbert T. Mines, chairman of the board of Business Careers, Inc., said that although job opportunitie for Jews were growing, Jews still were mostly excluded from executive ranks of the energy, heavy machinery and construction industries. Others said banking was among the most difficult professions for Jews to attain executive rank.

Priest's murder 'part of pattern'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the U.S. Catholic bishops says the murder of an U.S. missionary priest in Guatemala, the Rev. Stanley Rother, was part of a pattern there of "murder, intimidation and the denial of basic human rights."

Archbishop John R. Roach said that the priest's slaying, like that of four women missionaries in El Salvador last December, strengthens the bond between the U.S. church and the church in Central and South America where scores of bishops, priests, nuns and laity have been "killed in the service of the Gospel during the last 10 years."

Rother, 46, from Oklahoma City, was shot to death in his rectory in Santiago Atitlan July 28.

Lutheran youth given challenge

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — A gathering of 4,500 youths of the Lutheran Church in America ended a five-day gathering of workshops, Bible studies music and other activities at which they were given a blunt challenge.

"I wonder if you have any guts," said the keynote spekaer, the Rev. John W. Vannorsdall, Yale University chaplain.

"I wonder if you have the courage to stand for something. There comes a time for most of us when an answer is demanded — are you Christian? That is when the trouble and the joy begin."

Foursquare Gospel Church to show new Eareksen film

"Reflections of His Love," a new film highlighting the life and ministry of Joni Eareckson, will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Foursquare Gospel Church, 415 Alta Ave. There is no admission charge.

The color feature, produced by World Wide Pictures, the film ministry of the Billy Graham Association, tells of the transformations that have taken place in her life because of her willingness to accept all of the things that have happened to her.

Miss Eareckson, the victim of a diving accident when a seniorin high school, is paralyzed from the neck down. An earlier motion picture, "Joni," chronicles her struggles to piece together her life and her faith in God following this devastating accident.

Besides being the author of two books, "Joni" and "A Step Further," Miss Eareckson is an actress, singer and artist.

She has learned to draw and paint with a brush in her mouth. Her works have been displayed in major exhibitions, as well as on a number of network television programs. More recently, her illustrations and paintings have become the basis for a major line of greeting cards, plaques and framed prints.

"Reflections of His Love" introduces the viewer to Joni and her family and friends. It also contains insights into the thoughts of the actors who played major roles in the movie, "Joni."

The public is invited to attend.

Challenging Mt. Everest

Mayor's husband leads assault

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Everest.

Just the name means "mountain" to millions. The 29,028-foot peak, tallest on Earth, has lured adventurers for decades. Only a few have completed the icy climb to the top.

A new American expedition is already in China, getting ready to try to scale the mountain up a face so dangerous the route has never been attempted before.

The leader of the party of 14 men and one woman is Richard Blum, a 46-year-old attorney, a 10-year climber — and the husband of San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein.

Members of the expedition, organized by Blum, anticipate bitter cold, avalanches, sheer walls of ice and air so thin they will need bottled oxygen.

"Climbing Everest from the Tibetan side is a little crazy," said Sir Edmund Hillary, who made history in 1953 when he was the first to reach the top.

The New Zealander called the approach "simply terrifying, a much more difficult climb technically than the approach we used in 1953," up the Nepal side.

Hillary and a three-member ABC TV crew will accompany the expedition to the foot of the mountain. Base camp will be established at 17,500 feet.

Mount Everest lies between Nepal and Tibet in the Himalayas, the highest mountains in the world. The region was the setting for James Hilton's 1933 novel, "Lost Horizon," the story of a "Shangri La" where no one aged and travelers were rescued from death and cold.

Blum's group can expect no such relief. No air rescue will be available. Climbers in difficulties must rely totally on one another.

The most formidable problem, Blum said, will be carrying supplies up a 3,000-foot buttress from the base camp.

"We think this is kind of a tough go on ice and snow," he said. "But it doesn't look like there is anything technically difficult about it. We don't know what kind of hazardous conditions are going to occur in terms of ice and potential avalanche and so forth.

"What could take you four hours one time might take four days another time," Blum continued. "Conceivably we could do it in a month and conceivably we could be there three months and not make it."

His best guess — six weeks to the top from the day the climb begins. Those in the best shape, not necessarily those with experience, are the best candidates for the final thousand or so feet.

"There will be a certain amount of illnesses," Blum said. "A lot of whether you make it or not is luck in terms of being up high when the weather is good ... upon whether you are feeling physically fit. We all are now."

Swiss, American, Indian, Italian, Japanese, British and Chinese flags have flown from the top. A 35-year-old Japanese homemaker became the first woman to climb Everest in 1971. In that same year, a Chinese expedition reached the top, reportedly without oxygen masks.

Blum's group hopes to reach the foot of Everest by the weekend.

Tibet, under Chinese control, has been closed to Westerners since 1938.

Blum was able to get permission for the expedition with a bit of direct lobbying — he and the mayor mentioned his proposal to Chinese officials on a visit to China in 1979. He credits the change in policy with China's desire "to make friends with the Americans. I think this was one of the ways of proving it."

Nevertheless, Blum admits he was surprised when the Chinese accepted. He spent the ensuing months organizing a group of world-class climbers and planning the route to the peak.

The climbers are:

—Louis Reichardt, climb leader, San Francisco.

—John Roskelley, Spokane, Wash. Has climbed more Himalayan peaks than any other American.

—Henry Barber, Conway, N.H.

—Sue Giller, Boulder, Colo.

—Jim Morrissey, Stockton, Calif., leader of the 1973 American expedition up Dhaulagiri, a 26,810-foot peak in the Himalayas.

—Andrew Harvard, Olympia, Wash.

—George Lowe, Sunnyvale, Calif.

—Dan Reid, heart surgeon, Concord, Calif.

—Chris Jones, Oakland, Calif.

—Scott McBeth, San Francisco, a geologist.

—Bruce McCubbrey, San Francisco attorney.

—Eric Perlman, Olympic Valley, Calif., author of "The Man Who Skied Down Everest."

—Gary Bocarde, Kasilof, Alaska.

—Kim Momb, Spokane, Wash.

"We have a number of world class climbers with us, of which I am not one," said Blum. "But I will slug it out with the elements as best I can. I am good on endurance. I would love to get high up on the mountain. I will do what I can. I want to enjoy it all."

American Airlines to lay off workers

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines will lay off at least 1,650 employees at the end of the busy summer season as the federal government prepares guidelines for reduced air travel schedules.

The Federal Aviation Administration told domestic airlines earlier this week to hold operations to 75 percent through Labor Day while it devises a system that can be handled by new air traffic controllers.

American, which employs 36,000, will lay off 850 ground workers Aug. 29 and 200 pilots Sept. 14, said vice president David Frailey. He said 600 flight attendants would be asked to take voluntary leaves of absence.

Frailey added that more employees probably would be asked to leave.

Chisox already talking about throwing games

CHICAGO (AP) — Major league baseball, already rocked by a players strike that erased the middle of the season, was confronted Friday by the possibility that some teams might intentionally lose late-season games to keep their World Series chances alive.

In a copyright story, the Chicago Tribune reported Friday that more than 10 Chicago White Sox ballplayers conceded they would throw any or all of a four-game series against the Oakland A's in late September if losing those games provided their only remaining route to the post-season playoffs.

"HOW DO you define winning?" asked Manager Tony LaRussa in a telephone interview from Baltimore, where the White Sox were opening a three-game series against the Orioles. "The rules say you have to play to win. But the stated objective of every team is also to get into the playoffs to have a shot at the World Series.

"If you try to win a game, and that means you lose a chance to go to playoffs, are you winning or losing? I don't know how to answer that."

Because of the 50-day players strike, major league owners decided a week ago to split the season and grant the first-half leaders in each division berths in the playoffs. Should a team win both halves, the owners voted to force a playoff by reqiring that team to meet a division contender with the next-best record over the entire season.

Under that formula, Oakland captured the first half of the American League West race, leaving the White Sox and a handful of teams in the position where they could lose the second half and still gain the playoffs on the strength of total wins.

For instance, if Kansas City, which trailed the second-place White Sox by 9½ games after the first half, winds up in a close battle with the A's for the second-half championship, the White Sox could ensure their playoff spot by allowing Oakland to sweep next month's four-game series and take first place again.

Quoted in the Tribune survey were seven of the nine members of the regular White Sox batting order, three starting pitchers and several utility players. None of the players wanted to be quoted by name.

ACCORDING to the Tribune, one player said: "I'd lose, no doubt in my mind. My heart wouldn't be in it to go for it. Shoot, no! I wouldn't be swinging the bat as hard as ever."

Eddie Einhorn, president of the White Sox, having talked to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn about the matter, said Friday: "Bowie assured us that there would be administrative action if the situation — however remote — should come up. I don't know what action would be taken but it might be in the form of a forfeit or just simply not play the game.

But LaRussa said: "I think the only way we can approach every game to win is if the league sets up a format by which there are no possible questions, where there's no making the playoffs by losing. There has to be a formula that does that."

Ironically, Einhorn had proposed that no first-half winners be declared and that the second-half winners meet the teams with the best overall records in the playoffs.

"Although our plan could be interpreted as being selfish," said Einhorn, "there would be less chance for something like this to happen."

Bob Fishel, assistant to AL president Lee MacPhail, confirmed that the league would try to take steps to make sure no team could benefit by losing. He said the current playoff system is "not cast in stone. I'm sure some adjustments will be made if they are necessary."

"There are several ways of resolving these problems. It's most unlikely it would happen with Chicago because they don't play Oakland in the last week of the season," said Fishel. "More likely, if anything, it would happen with Baltimore and New York, who play in the last week. But it's pretty far-fetched."

"IT'S NOT very healthy to talk about it, that's for sure. It's not good," concluded Fishel.

The Tribune quoted LaRussa as saying: "It's clear to me that nobody is going to take care of us except ourselves ... My feeling now is that even if it would go against everything I've been brought up to believe in, under those circumstances I'd do everything I can to take care of my club and our fans."

But LaRussa later told The Associated Press that player response to the Tribune indicated that his team wants to win. "It's a recognition of the fact that the split season puts some clubs in an impossible situation," the manager said. "It would have been fair if the Tribune canvassed all the clubs in our position and had them comment. For it (the newspaper) to take the White Sox and show our guys wanting to get into the playoff at all costs is slightly unfair.

"Now, I don't know if our club will be reviled across the country for something that's on the minds of a lot of clubs."

One player questioned by the Tribune said he was in the process of reading a book on the "Black Sox" World Series scandal of 1919. After that series, a best-of-nine affair won by the Cincinnati Reds, eight White Sox players reportedly paid to throw the series were banned from baseball for life.

Despite a court finding that the eight were innocent, the players were suspended anyway by Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who was brought in as baseball commissioner to clean up the sport.

Networks wait with millions

CFA, NCAA prepare battle moves

An AP Sports Analysis
By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The last thing NBC-TV wanted, or probably expected, was to be linked to an alleged conspiracy which the commissioner of the Missouri Valley Conference says is bent on "athletic anarchy."

Yet, from where the MVC members and many other schools stand, that's exactly where NBC lines up. All three major networks, in fact, are caught up in the the emotionally charged battle between the NCAA and the College Football Association over who should control football television rights.

And although they aren't directly involved in the bout, CBS, ABC and NBC have millions riding on the fighters.

If the NCAA wins — and the venerable superstructure of college athletics has KO'd some heavyweights in its time — then CBS and ABC will share college football telecasts through 1985. And NBC will be left with little to offer in the way of major college sports programming. In addition, the NCAA Basketball Tournament, CBS's newest plum, will remain intact, worth the $49 million CBS paid to take it away from NBC.

But if the CFA prevails, NBC will score a smashing victory. It will have outmaneuvered its rivals in bold, imaginative strokes. NBC would be in virtual sole command of college football telecast rights, and CBS might be forced to seek an escape clause in its NCAA Basketball Tournament contract.

The next round in the battle will be Aug. 21 in Atlanta, where CFA schools will vote on whether to accept their separate television deal with NBC. The NCAA, which has reached agreement with CBS and ABC for the same period, and its other members insist they would begin disciplinary proceedings against the CFA. This would likely lead to an NCAA-CFA split, and, as Missouri Valley Commissioner David Price predicts, "athletic anarchy."

The issue may ultimately be resolved in the courts, or next January in Houston at the NCAA convention. There's plenty of time for in-fighting, since ABC's contract with the NCAA still has this season to run.

The issues in the CFA-NCAA struggle are blurry to most college fans, as well as to more than a few television executives. Essentially, a segment of the upper-level college powers formed their own organization, the CFA, five years ago, and now are forcing a showdown with the establishment over television rights. The 61 CFA schools are 17 independents, including all the top ones, and the Big Eight, Southwest, Southeastern, Atlantic Coast and Western Athletic conferences.

The Pacific 10 and the Big Ten, which include Ohio State, Michigan, Southern Cal and UCLA, have rejected CFA membership. And their absence tarnishes somewhat the CFA's claim of representing major college football interests, since the CFA counts among its members unsuccessful programs such as Kansas State, Rice, Vanderbilt and Virginia Tech.

If the CFA wins its fight, would the Big Ten and Pac-10 be forced to seek accomodation within the CFA?

Meanwhile, the so-called "second tier" of the NCAA Division I-A football schools say the CFA, if it succeeds, will force many to drop football, causing repercussions throughout their institutions. The CFA says its schools are entitled to do what they want with their property, and the smaller schools would be smart to quit pouring money into the impossible dream of reaching the top.

A television source who spent several years in athletics says it's unfair to hold NBC accountable for all the ire that's been raised.

"How could they know the affected institutions would be so worked up over this?" he said. "They couldn't possibly have known. And nobody at CBS or ABC understands exactly what's going on either. Their business is television, not football."

Art Watson, president of NBC Sports, says he did not make a deal with the CFA until the same basic offer, which includes the new wrinkle of Saturday night prime time football, was turned down by the NCAA.

"The NCAA did not accept the concept of prime time," Watson said. "The CFA strongly felt that college football needed a new environment, a new showcase. And I don't think the issue is money. Money enters into it if you're in the same ball park, but I think there are a lot of other issues involved here.

"One is concept. One is their institutional control. Moving ahead, doing things differently, and that's what they decided," Watson said.

But other sources said NBC's presentation to the NCAA was disorganized and insincere. And Van Gordon Sauter, president of CBS Sports, said his network agreed with the NCAA that prime time telecasts were too risky.

"Our opinion is that it would not be effective for either the sport or the network," he said. "NBC differs. But the ratings history of college football in prime time has not been positive."

Everyone agrees an NCAA-CFA split would create havoc, and seriously damage non-revenue sports like track, baseball, tennis and golf.

With so many people potentially affected by the outcome, NBC has been vigorously denying published reports last week it had offered to help bankroll a CFA pullout.

Ali wants another fight?

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Three-time world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali says he'll come to Columbia next week to secure a boxing license and make a comeback by fighting a top heavyweight opponent in November.

"This'll really shake the world," Ali said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

Ali said he chose South Carolina because the state is one of three places in the United States to indicate it would grant him a license to box. Ali has had problems getting a license to box in other areas of the country since his last bout on Oct. 2, when he was beaten badly by World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes.

Asked why he would want to stage a boxing match in South Carolina, Ali said, "I want to make history here (America). I don't want to make it in a foreign land."

The history Ali was referring to would be a fourth heavyweight crown, if he goes on to take the WBC title from Holmes or the World Boxing Association crown from Mike Weaver.

Ali was reluctant to name a potential opponent, but said it would be one of the top fighters in the world. "We call names, the price gets too high," he said.

Ali, who will turn 40 in January, said he has been working out for about two months, and weighs about 240 pounds. He said he would like to get down to about 230 as a fighting weight.

Asked how he responds to critics who say he is too old and should retire from boxing once and for all, Ali said if he had listened to critics, he would have quit after his loss to Joe Frazier or would have quit after being forced out of boxing for 3½ years because of refusing military service.

"Ordinary humans can't judge me," Ali said.

Ali, referring to his problems getting a license elsewhere, said a fight in South Carolina would "show the world the real people, the true people who are really just, are Southerners."

"There's a lot of hypocrisy in the North," he said.

Chris G. Hitopoulos, chairman of the Richland County Boxing Commission, said Ali would be granted the license if he passes a physical examination.

"It is our understanding that Mr. Ali has taken three major physicals in the past nine months to satisfy himself that he is physically well, and also in efforts to secure a license for a possible return to boxing," Hitopoulos said.

The boxing commissioner said the examinations took place at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., the UCLA Medical Center and the NYU Medical Center in New York.

"It is the commission's opinion that if Mr. Ali applies for a license to box in Richland County and passes the physical by the commission's physician, we would not only grant him a license, but welcome his comeback against a formidable opponent at the Carolina Coliseum at the earliest possible date."

Hitopoulos said he believes there's an excellent chance Ali would carry through with plans to fight in Columbia.

"I don't see anything to keep it back," he said.

Schramm knows route to target

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Even in the most relaxed settings Texas E. Schramm's competitive fervor simmers.

Sipping on something cool recently in his Thousand Oaks, Calif., training headquarters, the Dallas Cowboys' president and general manager made Page One in every Pennsylvania newspaper.

He intentionally bounced his The Eagles Are Now No. 1 on the Cowboys' Hate Parade off a wire service reporter. Schramm is an old newspaperman who knows the quickest route to his intended target.

But Schramm said a few more things during the conversation that gives you an insight into his inner self where his fiery nature burns like the eternal Olympic torch.

For one thing, he said he lives in fear that the Cowboys' will some day come flying apart like the Green Bay dynasty of the late 1960s and the New York Giants after their glory years.

"It would eat me up for that to happen here," said Schramm, who has seen his team in the National Football Legue playoffs 15 of the last 16 years. "I don't know how I would handle it. I don't think I could stand getting kicked around again. I've been there once."

SCHRAMM WAS referring to the expansion Cowboys' start in 1960 when they failed to win a game and the struggle in the ensuing years.

If you get the feeling Schramm will die with his Cowboys' boots on, you're right.

"I'm never going to retire," he said. "They'll have to scrape me off whatever is covering Texas Stadium at that particular time."

Schramm's fate, of course, is tied closely to Tom Landry, the third winningest coach in NFL history. And, as the commentators love to say, the only one the Cowboys have ever had.

Schramm feels Landry is good for at least five more years but admits the coach might not be around long if the dynasty starts crumbling.

"I don't think Tom would retire if we had a bad year but I don't know how long he would be around if we got down and it didn't look like we were going to get back up anytime soon," Schramm said.

SCHRAMM DREAMS of the 1980s being painted clearly in the Cowboys' colors of Royal Blue, Metallic Blue and White.

"If we could put the '80s on top of what we did in the '70s it would be a big part of sports history," Schramm said. "People could look back and say that we were one of the most unique franchises in sports. We would have been on top or near the top for 25 years and that's a long time. I figure we will have to win the Super Bowl at least three more times...so we've got to keep winning."

Palms sweating now, Schramm addded "I'm a strong believer in history. I believe you need to have people around you who are motivated to leave some sort of a legacy...we've got to keep winning.

So now you've seen Tex Schramm on just a calm day in training camp weeks and weeks away from the regular season.

His game face is already taut. It's a shame he'e too old to play.

Diablos defeat Midland in ninth

EL PASO — A bases loaded double by El Paso pinch hitter Chick Valley lifted the Diablos to a 5-4 victory over Midland here Friday night, keeping the Cubs one-half game behind San Antonio in the second half Texas League standings.

Diablo right fielder Bob Skube led off the inning with a walk off Cubs' starter Mike Thompson and went to second base on DH Johnny Evans' single off of Phil Nastu. Both runners advanced when Midland catcher Mike Diaz caught a pop fly by the dugout and fell.

Pinch hitter John Skorochocki was intentionally walked to load the bases and with one out third baseman Al Manning popped up to Cub second baseman Javier Fierro for the second out. Valley then hit the winning single off of Eddie Moore.

Midland scored the major portion of its runs in the top of the fifth when right fielder Joe Carter singled and then scored on an RBI double by Dave Owen. Fierro came through with a double to score Owen and Mel Hall connected for the third run of the inning with an RBI single.

Cubs pitcher Phil Nastu suffered the loss while Jim Koontz collected the win.

Amarillo handed San Antonio a 6-2 defeat to keep the Cubs within a half game.

Switzer has best winning percentage

BIRMINGHAM,, Ala. (AP) — Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, whose .894 winning percentage is the best in the history of major college football, has jumped over Joe Paterno of Penn State, Bo Schembechler of Michigan and Bear Bryant of Alabama on the active "Top Twenty Coaches" list.

Because of the list's unique formula, Switzer is appearing for the first time. His record in eight seasons at Oklahoma is 83-9-2.

According to the NCAA record book, the winningest coach is Knute Rockne of Notre Dame with 105-12-5—.881. The NCAA guideline calls for a minimum of 10 years at a Division I institution.

However, Elmore "Scoop" Hudgins, information director of the Southeastern Conference and originator of the "Top Twenty" list in 1958, ranks the 137 Division I head coaches — a minimum of five years at a Division I school is required — in order of total victories. The top 20 are then listed in order of winning percentage.

For example, John Robinson of Southern California has an .850 percentage with a 50-8-2 record in five seasons but does not rank among the top 20 in total victories. The cutoff point this year was the 83-victory mark shared by Switzer, Lou Holtz of Arkansas and Frank Navarro of Princeton.

Paterno, who held the No. 1 spot on the list from 1974-80, is second this time with a 15-year record of 141-31-1—.818. Then comes Schembechler at 154-38-6—.793, with six years at Miami of Ohio before coming to Michigan in 1969. He is followed by Bryant, 306-79-16—,783, who needs nine triumphs to surpass Amos Alonzo Stagg's all-time mark of 314. Bryant is about to begin his 37th season as a head coach and 24th at Alabama.

Rounding out the top 10 are Tony Knap of Nevada-Las Vegas, 137-47-4—.739; Carmen Cozza of Yale, 105-37-3—.734; Bobby Bowden of Florida State, 117-46-0—.718; Vince Dooley of Georgia, 130-56-6—.693; Holtz, 83-42-4—.659, and Jerry Claiborne of Maryland, 134-70-4— .654.

The second 10 consists of Houston's Bill Yeoman, 132-70-6—.649; Wayne Hardin of Temple, 109-62-5—.634; Cornell's Bob Blackman, 161-99-7— .616; Jim Carlen of South Carolina, 101-63-6—.612; Dartmouth's Joe Yukica, 89-59-1— .601; Sark Arslanian of Colorado State, 95-67-6—.5833; Arizona State's Darryl Rogers, 99-70-6— .5829; Bid Elliott of Texas-Arlington, 96-72-6—.569; Virginia Tech's Bill Dooley, 86-70-2— .551, and Navarro, 83-77-5—.518.

Switzer replaces Notre Dame's Dan Devine on the Top 20 list. Devine retired after last season with a record of 172-57-9—.742, which would have been fifth percentage-wise and second in total victories.

Redskins roll over Minnesota, 27-13

WASHINGTON (AP) — Halfback Joe Washington ran for one touchdown and threw for a second to lead the Washington Redskins past the Minnesota Vikings 27-13 Friday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

The Redskin defense held the Vikings to 40 yards on the ground, while sacking Minnesota quarterback Steve Dils four times for 40 yards. The victory was Washington's second in as many preseason games this year, while the Vikings dropped to 0-2.

Washington, acquired in the off season from the Baltimore Colts for a second-round draft pick in 1982, scored in the first half on a 4-yard run and then tossed a 29-yard touchdown pass to Zion McKinney.

Washington's touchdown run, set up by a 23-yard pass from Joe Theismann to Lewis Walker, saw the 5-foot 10, 185-pound back hurdle safety Tonny Xannon and then drive past cornerback John Swain into the endzone.

The scoring drive followed a 73-yard touchdown pass play from Minnesota's Steve Dils to Sammy White.

Theismann, who completed 11-of-15 passes for 143 yards and one touchdown, marched the Redskins down the field twice in the opening half.

Moving from their own 20, the Redskins moved 80 yards in the first period to take a 7-0 lead. Terry Metcalf accounted for 19 of those yards, including the final six on a TD pass from Theismann.

Mark Lye reacts as he drops a birdie putt Friday during the second round of the Hartford Open golf tournament. Lye is in the hunt with a 12-under par score after two rounds.

Nielsen's 13-under par is lowest score this year

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Lonnie Nielsen shot a 5-under par 66 Friday to take a 1-stroke lead after two rounds of the $300,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

Nielsen, the first-round leader with a 63, had a 13-under total of 129 and a slim lead over three other golfers on the 6,534-yard Wethersfield Country Club course. His two-round total was the lowest this year on the PGA tour.

Bill Kratzert shot his second straight 65, Mark Lye shot a 64 to go with his first-round 66 and Mark O'Meara blazed through the course with a 9-under 62. All three tied for second place at 130. O'Meara's second-round score was the lowest for the first two rounds.

Fuzzy Zoeller, who finished second in last week's PGA Championship, Bobby Clampett and Lyn Lott were three strokes off the pace at 132. Zoeller shot a second-round 64, while Lott and Clampett had 65s. Twelve golfers had 133 totals.

The 28-year-old Nielsen, who held a 2-stroke lead after the first round, said he was not "fearful coming in as the leader," even though he has never won a tournament in his five years on the Professional Golfers Association tour.

"I didn't feel uncomfortable," he said. "In fact he was so confident that he made an adjustment in his backswing "just like the good players do."

After the first 13 holes on Friday, Nielsen said, he noted he was coming too far back on his backswing. He shortened the swing and finished with one birdie and four pars in his final five holes on the par-71 course, which many consider easy because of its shortness.

Stephenson's bird binge leads way

DALLAS (AP) - Jan Stephenson made three monster birdie putts from off the green and shattered the course record with a seven-under par 65 Friday to take the first round lead of the $155,000 Mary Kay Golf Classic.

The 29-year-old Australian who now lives in Fort Worth posted seven birdies over the water-infested Par 72 Bent Tree Country Club.

The round tied the tournament record held by Sandra Haynie who shot 65 in 1971 at Glen Lakes Country Club, now a housing development.

Two strokes behind Stephenson was defending champion Jerilyn Britz, who had six birdies and a lone bogey over the 6,274-yard course on a sweltering day with temperatures in the high 90s.

Betsy King shot a 3-under par 68, and Haynie and Cindy Chamberlin each posted 2-under 70s to stay close in the 54-hole tournament.

There were three one-under par rounds which included Vicki Tabor, Beth Daniel and Dot Germain.

Texas has new AD

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas regents Friday selected DeLoss Dodds to serve as men's athletic director at the Austin campus.

Dodds is now the athletic director at Kansas State University, where he has been in charge of mens' and womens' sports since 1978.

Dodds, 44, will replace Bill Ellington, who will retire Aug. 31 after serving as athletic director since January last year.

Dodds served as head track coach at KSU from 1963 to 1976. After that, he spent two years as assistant commissioner of the Big 8 conference.

The new UT athletic director was joined at a campus press conference by his wife, Mary Ann, and three children. He said the move to UT was "a tough decision emotionally, but an easy decision professionally."

Rams, Cowboys take grid war to TV

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys and Los Angeles Rams, who have a history of playing games with a lot on the line, meet tonight in a nationally televised National Football League preseason contest.

The pair of National Football Conference rivals, who have clashed in the playoffs five of the past six years, both looked less than awesome in their 1981 exhibition openers. The error-prone Rams suffered a 34-21 defeat at the hands of New England, while Dallas was beaten 21-17 by Green Bay.

Coach Tom Landry, whose Cowboys mauled the Rams 34-13 in the first round of the playoffs last December, said he watched rookies in action against Green Bay, and he plans to use veteran reserve players more in the game against the Rams.

"We want to think down the line to when it comes time to cut the squad," he said. "After this week, the starters have to play the next two games.."

The Cowboy regulars are expected to play the first half of the game, scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. CDT start, with Danny White and backup Glenn Carano sharing the quarterback duties.

The Rams' spotlight will once again be on quarterback Pat Haden, who regained his starting job by default when Vince Feragamo wen to the Canadian Football League.

Haden, plagued by injuries in recent years, was rusty in the loss to the Patriots, throwing four first-half interceptions.

Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi was quick to point out, however, that Haden should recover his sharpness with more game duty, adding, "I've seen Joe Namath throw six interceptions in a game and I've seen some of the greatest throw four or five."

Haden will probably play extensively against the Cowboys, since backup quarterback Bob Lee is out with a sore arm and third-stringer Jeff Rutledge suffered a neck injury against the Patriots .

Skeet shoot starts today

The Midland Shooters Association will hold its club championship skeet shoot today and Sunday with competition over 400 targets.

The competition will be held at the Trap and Skeet Range, located ½-mile north of the Andrews Highway on Holiday Hill Road.

Miller gets chance to face Bills

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland Browns, to Terry Miller's way of thinking, are in line to pick up a bargain. "Really," he says, "they're getting a four-year veteran mentally in a two-year player physically."

That's because Miller, the scourge of the National Football League in 1978 when he carried the ball 238 times for Buffalo, pretty much languished on the Bills' bench the past two seasons.

"Terry was one of the top running backs in the entire league," Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano said of Miller, whose 1,060 yards in '78 was the sixth-highest ever for a rookie. "If he can come anywhere close to the running back he was three years ago, we've got ourselves one of the better backs in the league."

They got him from Buffalo in exchange for a couple of draft choices. Now he's fighting for playing time with Greg Pruitt, Calvin Hill, Charles White and Dino Hall. "I just want a chance to prove what I can do," Miller said. "All I want to do is contribute in any way I can."

Miller, who carried the ball six times for 20 yards in Cleveland's 35-31 loss to Pittsburgh last weekend, gets another chance to show his stuff tonight to the team which let him go when the Browns venture along the Lake Erie shoreline to visit Buffalo.

Also on tonight it's Houston at New Orleans, Dallas at Los Angeles, Pittsburgh at Philadelphia, Cincinnati at Detroit, New England at Tampa Bay, the New York Jets at Atlanta, Oakland against Green Bay at Milwaukee, Baltimore at the New York Giants, Denver at Miami, Chicago at Kansas City and San Diego at San Francisco.

The Saints, coached by Bum Phillips, have on their roster Guido Merkens, a reserve quarterback who also can play defensive back and wide receiver. He was acquired by them after he was waived by the Houston Oilers ... when the Oilers were coached by Bum Phillips.

Says Merkens' once and former coach: "I don't know of any player who can help you in as many places as Guido. I'm tickled to have him on my team again." Merkens would love to show some of his stuff in the Saints' exhibition against the Oilers.

The Rams and Cowboys will be renewing in their preseason game a ferocious rivalry which began in earnest in the mid-1970s.

In '73 Dallas beat Los Angeles 27-16 in a National Conference divisional playoff. Two years later Dallas humiliated the Rams 37-7 in the NFC title game. The next year it was Los Angeles' turn, a 14-12 divisional playoff winner. In 1978 the Cowboys came back with another solid conference title victory, 28-0.

In 1979, in Roger Staubach's final game for the Cowboys (and one of Vince Ferragamo's finest moments for the Rams), Los Angeles knocked Dallas out of the playoffs 21-19. And last year, with Tony Dorsett running roughshod over the Rams, the Cowboys were 34-13 winners.

Davis predicts 'fight to the end'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Al Davis, Oakland Raiders managing general parnter, said today he had expected his court battle with the National Football League to be conducted by "the law of the jungle" and confirmed his determination to pursue the fight no matter how long it takes.

A mistrial as declared Thursday night by U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson after jurors deadlocked 8-2 in favor of the Raiders' move to Los Angeles after deliberating 13 days.

"We didn't win this time, but there'll be another time," Davis said at a packed news conference at the hotel where he stayed during the three-month trial. "Our attorney, Joe Alioto, said this game is going into overtime, so we're going to win it in overtime."

Davis said there were a number of irregularities in the trial that, if Alioto or Los Angeles Coliseum attorney Maxwell Blecher had pursued them, could have caused a mistrial earlier.

"We didn't want that," he said. "We wanted to win."

Davis alleged that juror Thomas Gelker, one of the two holdouts, was "planted" by the NFL, but did not disclose how he thought it was done.

During deliberations this week, it was discovered that Gelker is a cousin of Bruce Gelker, founder of the Portland Storm of the now-defunct World Football League.

Burroughs hits fences

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Jeff Burroughs became the first Seattle player to hit three home runs in one game Friday night, driving in six runs as the Mariners clobbered the Minnesota Twins 13-3 for a split of their twi-night doubleheader.

In the first game, Gary Ward had a pair of run-scoring singles and Rob Wilfong homered to pace the Twins to a 6-1 triumph.

Burroughs' three-run blast in the first inning of the nightcap capped a four-run burst by the Mariners. All the runs were unearned after right fielder Dave Engle dropped Tom Paciorek's two-out fly ball for a two-base error.

Richie Zisk singled Paciorek home and, after Dan Meyer singled, Burroughs unloaded his sixth home run of the year deep into the left field seats.

Paciorek started the fifth inning with a solo homer and, after Zisk singled, Burroughs drilled a two-run shot 420 feet to straightaway center. Burroughs then added a solo homer with one out in the seventh inning.

Tigers blank Yankees

DETROIT (AP) — Milt Wilcox limited New York to three hits with last-out help from Kevin Saucier and Alan Trammell singled home the only run as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Yankees 1-0 Friday night.

The victory was Detroit's first over the Yankees in eight games this season and New York's second setback in five games since the end of the baseball strike, both by 1-0 scores.

The lone run came in the third inning when Lou Whitaker beat out a chopper between first and second, went to second when New York starter Rudy May, 1-6, walked Al Cowens and scored on Trammell's sharp single to center.

Wilcox, 7-5, who went six innings in the first game of the second half of the season, was never in trouble and his fork ball — a new pitch for the stocky right-hander this season — kept the New York hitters off balance.

Jones wins one for KC

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rookie left-hander Mike Jones posted his first major league victory and Willie Aikens and Hal McRae cracked solo home runs to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 4-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians Friday night.

The 22-year-old Jones limited Cleveland to one run on seven hits over the first six innings. Jones made three appearances for the Royals in 1980, losing once, and had pitched once in relief since being recalled from Omaha on Aug.6. Renie Martin came on to hurl three scoreless innings, allowing one hit, to pick up his fourth save.

Kansas City took a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Willie Wilson led off with the first of his four singles, stole second and continued to third on catcher Ron Hassey's throwing error. U.L. Washington grounded to first baseman Mike Hargrove and Wilson beat the throw to the plate.

The Indians tied the game in their half of the first. Miguel Dilone singled and was forced at second base by Alan Bannister. Bannister then stole second and scored on Hargrove's single.

Jays nip Brewers, 5-4

TORONTO (AP) — Ernie Whitt doubled home Al Woods with the winning run as the Toronto Blue Jays rallied for two runs in the seventh inning and defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 Friday night in a game delayed more than an hour by rain.

Lloyd Moseby led off the inning with a triple to right-center and one out later pinch hitter Greg Wells drove in the tying run with a single off Jamie Easterly, 2-2.

After Wells was caught stealing, Woods and Barry Bonnell walked and Whitt followed with his double off Rickey Keeton, the third Milwaukee pitcher.

Gorman Thomas supplied the muscle in the Brewers' offense, slugging two solo home runs to increase his American League-leading total to 17.

Thomas gave Milwaukee a 1-0 lead in the second inning with a towering home run. The Blue Jays tied it in their half of the inning when Damaso Garcia doubled to score Whitt, who had walked.

The Brewers took a 3-1 lead in the fourth. Ted Simmons drew a leadoff walk and moved to third on Robin Yount' single. Paul Molitor followed with an RBI single, moving Yount to third, and Jim Gantner's long sacrifice fly scored Yount.

Toronto came back with two runs in the fourth after Whitt and Garcia hit consecutive singles. Danny Ainge followed with a run-scoring single and Garcia, who took third on the play, scored when Alfredo Griffin grounded into a double play.

Sample makes up for earlier mistake

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Billy Sample atoned for an earlier mistake by scoring the winning run Friday night as the Texas Rangers edged the Boston Red Sox 3-2 Friday night.

Sample, the Texas left fielder, had dropped an easy fly ball to let Boston tie the game in the top of the ninth. But he opened the bottom of the inning with a single, was sacrificed to second by Leon Roberts and was breaking for third with the pitch when Jim Sundberg singled him home.

Jim Kern, 1-0, won it in relief. Boston reliever Tom Burgmeier, 2-4, was the loser.

The Rangers nicked Boston starter Frank Tanana single runs in the first and fourth innings.

In the first, they scored on consecutive singles by Al Oliver, Buddy Bell and Bill Stein. In the fourth, Bell walked, Stein singled him to third and Tanana walked Sample, loading the bases with none out. Bell scored on a sacrifice fly by Roberts, but the rally ended when Stein was nailed trying to steal home and Sundberg grounded out.

Florida State loses two players

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Football Coach Bobby Bowden of Florida State dismissed one player who had been charged with burglary and announced the loss of another Friday because of poor grades.

Dismissed from the team was Gary Henry, 21, a senior from Orlando, Fla., who had been slated to start at strong safety. Tallahassee police charged Henry with burglary and theft for allegedly stealing stereos from parked cars on Aug.4.

Offensive tackle Herbert Harp, a sophomore from Orlando, was bounced for failing to make passing grades. He also had a run-in with the law in March as one of six Seminoles charged with aiding and abetting the theft of stereos and televisions from a local department store, but he remained on the team after pleading no contest and getting a probation sentence.

They are the second and third potential starters that Florida State, already facing big graduation losses, has crossed off its roster this week. Wide receiver Hardis Johnson, a junior from Tampa, Fla., was declared academically ineligible.

Bowden ordered Henry's dismissal and recommended revocation of his athletic scholarship "based on what I feel I must do for the future of our football team.

"This decision is not made on whether Gary is guilty or not guilty," Bowden said. "This is my decision. We didn't vote on it. It won't be popular, but this is the way it will be."

In addition to Henry and the six players charged in connection with the department store thefts, starting fullback Michael Whiting was charged with battery for a fight outside a Tallahassee bar.

"We have done everything in our power to educate and warn," Bowden said.

MONTREAL (AP) — Sixto Lezcano drove in a pair of runs to help starter Joaquin Andujar record his eighth career decision without a loss against Montreal, as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Expos 3-1 Friday night.

Andujar, 3-3, who got his seven previous triumphs over Montreal while a member of the Houston Astros, allowed only two hits over the first five innings to earn the victory. He received relief help from Bob Shirley, Mark Littell and Bruce Sutter, who worked the final two innings for his 14th save.

The Cardinals moved ahead 1-0 in the second inning when Lezcano hammered his fourth homer of the season, off Expos starter Scott Sanderson, 6-3.

St. Louis added a pair of runs in the fourth. Dane Iorg reached first on a fielder's choice grounder and moved to third on a single by Steve Braun.

Lezcano then drilled a sharp grounder that got past shortstop Chris Speier for an error, although Lezcano was credited with an RBI, as Iorg scored and Braun took third. Gene Tenace drove in Braun with a sacrifice fly.

Montreal scored its run in the fifth. Cromartie singled for the first hit off Andujar, took third on Tim Wallach's double and scored on an infield out by Larry Parrish.

Moreland drives in five

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Moreland drove in five runs and Mike Schmidt and Pete Rose each reached career milestones Friday night as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the New York 8-4 in the Mets second-season home opener.

Moreland hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning, his third, and ripped a two-run single in the first inning. Schmidt hit a two-run homer in the third, giving him 17 for the season and 300 for his career.

Rose, who surpassed Stan Musial as the National League's career hits leader Monday night, scored two runs, giving him 1,881 and tying him for seventh place on the all-time lfst with Tris Speaker.

The Mets opened before 34,136 at Shea Stadium, their second largest crowd of the season. Besides being their home opener, the Mets gave away hats. Their largest crowd of the season was on May 8, a month before the players strike, when they drew 39,848 in a 1-0 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers and Fernando Valenzuela.

The Phillies led 4-1 after Schmidt's third-inning homer, and after New York cut the margin to 4-2 on a home run by Dave Kingman, his 16th, in the fourth inning, Philadelphia broke it open with three runs in the fifth.

Reds, Giants pull split

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sam Mejias' infield hit scored George Foster from third base with two out in the bottom of the 10th inning, lifting the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-6 victory over the San Francisco Giants and a split of their twi-night doubleheader Friday.

Ed Whitson tossed a complete-game four-hitter and Jack Clark homered and scored twice as the Giants took the first game 4-0. San Francisco's Darrell Evans was 3-for-8 with four RBI for the night.

The winning second-game rally started when Al Holland, 3-4, hit Dave Concepcion with a pitch and walked Foster. After two fielder's choices erased Concepcion and moved Foster to third, Mejias hit a soft grounder to shortstop Johnnie LeMaster off reliever Greg Minton and beat it out, giving Tom Hume, 5-2, the decision for one perfect inning of relief.

The Giants scored three times in the first two innings off Mike LaCoss, but Foster rapped a three-run homer, his 16th, into the upper deck to tie the game for Cincinnati in the third.

Ray Knight's double, an error by LeMaster putting Mejias on second, and Mike O'Berry's double in the fourth put Cincinnati ahead 5-3.

Evans doubled home one run and Jeff Leonard followed with a two-run single to give the Giants a 6-5 lead in the seventh. Cincinnati tied it in the bottom of the inning when Ken Griffey walked, took second on a sacrifice, went to third on Ron Oester's single and scored on the play when Evans' throw in the dirt skipped past catcher Bob Brenly for an error.

Whitson, making his first appearance since the end of the strike, pitched his first shutout of the season in the opener. Whitson, 3-5, walked one and struck out one while allowing four harmless singles.

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys Friday released nine rookies, including fourth-round draft choice Derrie Nelson.

Nelson, a Nebraska linebacker, was placed on waivers along with quarterback Gordon Adams of Southern Cal, punter Don Birdsey of Kansas State, defensive tackle Owen Dockter of Northern Iowa, center Mark Flood of Connecticut, running back Sam Platt of Florida State, cornerback James Smith of Northwestern Oklahoma, wide receiver Cedric Thomas of West Virginia and tackle Ben Utt of Georgia Tech.

The Cowboys' roster now is down to 70 players, including 25 rookies.

Tidwell, White win GTCC invitational

The first annual Green Tree Country Club Spree Ladies Invitational golf tournament was held at GTCC this week with 120 two-woman teams competing for the top prize in two flights and two additional contests.

Carol Tidwell and Joy White of Odessa won the A Flight title with a handicap score of 135 to claim $215 worth of merchandise while Patty Stoltz of Midland and Marylin Daniel of Amarillo finished second at 138 for the $160 prize.

Third place in the A flight went to Margaret Vann of Midland and Lenny Barry of Odessa with a 139 after a playoff victory over Finnie Seale and Anita Talbott of Snyder. Third place received a $100 prize with $60 going to fourth.

In the B flight, Alice Dial of Monahans and Evelyn Clement of Andrews won the top prize with a 131 score followed by Carolyn Weston and Barbara Mathis of Kermit in second at 132, Desi North and Jane Webb of Andrews in third with 134 and Glenda Howard of Midland and Kay Braden of Ozona in fourth at 136.

In the tournament putting contest, Johnnie Rowaldt of San Angelo and Jane Webb were the winners with 29 putts each over the 18-hole course.

Myradell Sorrels of Alpine won the closest to the pin contest on the 16th green while Evelyn Clement hit the nearest shot on six.

Lendl rips Teacher in Canadian Open

MONTREAL (AP) — Defending champion Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia whipped Brian Teacher, 6-1, 6-1, Friday to gain a berth in the semifinals of the $200,000 Canadian men's Open tennis championships.

The fourth-seeded Czech demolished the seventh-ranked Teacher with blazing passing shots and a devastating serve that Teacher simply could not handle.

Lendl, 21, will face Israel's Shlomo Glickstein in one of Saturday's semifinal matches. Glickstein advanced with a 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 win over India's Ramesh Krishnan.

The other semifinal will pit sixth-seeded Eliot Teltscher against 10th-seeded Vijay Amritraj of India.

Teltscher, who has rocketed to 10th place on the computer rankings, eliminated Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland 6-4, 6-2, while Amritraj ousted Steve Denton, 6-2, 6-2.

"I think this was my best match of the tournament this week and I just hope I can play as well tomorrow," said Lendl, who won last year's title at Toronto by beating Sweden's Bjorn Borg.

Teacher, currently ranked 11th on the Association of Tennis Professionals world computer rankings, said Lendl did not give him a chance to get started.

"His ground strokes were just a joke," Teacher said. "Every one was a winner. He was playing too well. "It's discouraging, because I know that I could play Borg or (Jimmy) Connors and not get beat that bad."

Asked if he expected to handle Teacher as easily as he did, Lendl replied: "You'd have to be out of your mind to think before a match that you expected to beat a player ranked as high as he ms so easily."

Glickstein, seeded 15th in the championship and 43rd in the world, got off to a slow start against Krishan, but settled down after dropping the opening set.

Burdick's baseball cards are a collector's dream

NEW YORK (AP) — It is known among the cognoscenti as simply The Burdick Collection, and to see it you must make an appointment with the curators at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The late Jefferson R. Burdick, whose albums full of baseball cards reside on the musty shelves of the Met, has become a cult hero for collectors. And why not? Collecting has become a profitable hobby for baseball fans, and the cards never go on strike.

Burdick began assembling his cards when he was 10 years old in 1910. By 1947, his collection had reached impressive proportions and he decided to turn it over to the museum for safekeeping. That was no simple task, and for the next dozen years, he periodically shipped cartons of cards from his home in Syracuse, N.Y., to the Metropolitan's print archives.

The Met needed someone to assemble and catalogue the vast collection and Burdick, suffering from arthritis and forced to retire because of the ailment, volunteered for the job. For the next several years, he dutifully reported to the museum each morning and worked over the collection, organizing the 306,353 items into 394 numbered albums and boxes.

It was a labor of love made more difficult by arthritis. Eventually he came to rely on cortisone doses to ease the pain. He seemed in a race with the ailment, working at a feverish pace on the cards. Finally, on Jan. 10, 1963, he completed the job. He put on his coat and told the museum staff, "I shan't be back."

The next day, he entered a hospital and two months later, he died. The Burdick collection at the Met lives on as his legacy.

If Burdick was card collecting's Babe Ruth, then Barry Halper is the hobby's Joe DiMaggio. Halper is a limited partner in the New York Yankees — Houston owner John McMullen once said

"There is nothing quite so limited as being a limited partner of George Steinbrenner's" — and indulges himself in collecting memorabilia.

Halper owns more than a million cards, some worth as much as $15,000.

Tests to begin on people who hear disturbances beforehand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists say they are increasingly interested in serious research on people who claim to be able to detect disturbances like earthquakes and volcanic eruptions before they happen.

Technically, the suspicion is that some of these people may be sensitive to extremely low-frequency sound or weak electromagnetic fields.

Research in this area could yield important findings on whether the unusual auditory and other sensations they experience may be associated with geophysical events, according to a report presented at a scientific conference here this week.

Christopher H. Dodge of the Science Policy Research Division of the Library of Congress said a preliminary study has pointed to a "tantalizing coincidence" between seismic and volcanic activity along the West Coast and symptoms reported by a Salem, Ore., woman.

Dodge, in a paper given at a conference of the Bioelectromagnetics Society, said officials of various federal agencies agreed at a recent meeting that the Oregon case others similar to it "deserve the attention of the scientific community."

Richard A. Tell, acting chief of the Nonionizing Radiation Surveillance Branch at the Environmental Protection Agency facility in Las Vegas, Nev., was a co-author of the paper.

Tell has urged that EPA establish a special task force to map detailed plans for investigating what he termed "strange phenomena" involving abnormal hearing sensations.

In a June 12 memorandum to senior EPA officials, Tell cited the same Salem, Ore., resident, Charlotte King, a 35-year-old housewife, along with 10 other people living in Oregon, Washington state, California, Montana, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

"These reports could represent a 'tip of the iceberg' expression of a generalized, but virtually undiscovered phenomenon associated with a very small fraction of the population," Tell wrote.

Dodge told the scientific meeting that a research program called "Project Migraine" has been set up to systematically gather data and conduct laboratory tests on Mrs. King and others.

'Little Whorehouse' villian a big hit

HOUSTON (AP) — A year after television reporter Marvin Zindler's coverage forced Fayette County Sheriff Jim Flournoy to close the famous "Chicken Ranch" brothel in La Grange, Texas, 6-foot-5 "Big Jim" was still mad.

So mad, in fact, that when KTRK-TV's consumer affairs reporter showed up again, Flournoy, then 71, threw Zindler's toupee into the mud, broke two of his ribs and told him to "get the hell out of town."

The two eventually settled out of court for an undisclosed amount, but to this day lots of folks in La Grange, 90 miles west of here, resent the big city newsman whose expose did in the 120-year-old institution which inspired Larry King's play "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

For that matter, there are people right here in Zindler's hometown who don't care much for him. But he is nevertheless the most recognized local television celebrity in Houston, and many regard him as an angel of mercy.

Either way, no one accuses him of being conventional.

His singsong signoff — "MA-A-A-A-R-VIN ZINDLER, E-Y-Y-Y-E-WITNESS NEWS!" — at the end of each night's broadcast could drown out a jet whine. It is the loudest part of what may be the noisiest two minutes on any evening news show.

His voice is not the only thing that's loud. Beneath Zindler's white toupee are a white suit, a white shirt, a white tie, white socks, white shoes — and purple tinted glasses.

Zindler isn't used to being cast as the villain, as he was in King's play. The formula for his stories always involves victims and villains, says Dave Davis, producer of the station's 10 p.m. news. And Davis says KTRK takes pains to ensure that Zindler is always on the right side in consumer disputes.

"We take the victim first, then waste no time in getting to the guy in the black hat," says Davis. "When we do, there's usually not much he can say. The best thing he can do is say that he appreciates Marvin's calling the problem to his attention and that he'll do his best to correct it."

The formula also calls for lots of indignation.

On a recent show Zindler was furius becaus an elderly woman (the Victim) was starving. Se had been unble to get an appointment through the Harris County Hospital Board (the Villain) to be fitted with dentures.

"An inequity is an inequity," he says.

The mail supplies Zindler with stories. His secretary, Betty Barry, reads more than 50,000 letters a year and gleans from them about a dozen candidates a day for Zindler to choose from.

All of this has made Zindler — with the possible exception of Earl Campbell — the most widely recognized man in Houston. He draws a crowd every time he gets out of his car. Kids shout his name and imitate his signoff.

In some circles, Zindler may also be the most respected man in town. A score of people gather around him at a low-income housing project, hoping to touch him, some daring to shake his hand. Others stand with their eyes upturned as if to receive a blessing.

"Mr. Zindler, what's the chances of getting some security guards out here?" pleads an elderly man walking a dog. "It's terrible. You can't even walk outside at night."

"I know," Zindler says, his eyes full of compassion. "Maybe we can get some of those Guardian Angels out here," referring to a New York-based volunteer citizen force organizing in Houston.

"That'd sure be good," the man says, his face suffused in happiness, although he does not look certain he knows what a Guardian Angel is.

"I can relate to the Guardian Angels because I used to ride with the police back when I was a kid," Zindler says later.

Davis says that's a key to Zindler's style.

"He sees the world as being made up of good guys and bad guys," Davis says.

Zindler agrees.

"I do the same thing now with a camera as I used to do with a badge," he says, recalling his days as head of the Harris County Sheriff's Department consumer affairs division.

Whatever he does, it works.

Special tags cost more than car

HONG KONG (AP) — Movie mogul Sir Run Run Shaw paid about $55,000 for his Rolls Royce in 1979. He paid $66,000 for his license plate — the number 6.

Getting a special license plate in this British colony is an expensive proposition and the demand for them is so high that the government auctions them off.

Sir Run Run wanted the number 6 because he was the sixth born son in his family. Also the number, when pronounced in Cantonese Chinese, sounds like the word for happiness.

Ruy Alberto da Silva, senior executive officer of licensing, said those who want special plate numbers are mostly Chinese, perhaps a carryover of their superstitious tradition.

Many Chinese consider the numbers 3, 6, and 8 as lucky but 4 is "deadly." They also like round and small numbers.

A license plate bearing CM1, for example, brought the equivalent in Hong Kong dollars of more than $42,000 U.S. early this year — $12,000 more than the current listed price of a Cadillac Seville here and $7,000 more than that of a Mercedes Benz 280SE.

The numerals 3 and 8 also are considered lucky because 3 in Cantonese sounds like the word for "life" and 8 the word for "prosperity."

License No. 10 (a small round number) was auctioned for $41,000, CH8 for $40,000, CC1 for $32,000 and 8888 for $31,000.

Although most Chinese dislike the numeral 4 it is not without favor. A tag bearing that number was sold to an investment company for about $29,000.

Da Silva said he was surprised that number fetched such a big sum. "Maybe the buyer is not superstitious," he said. "He just wants a small number."

However, when 4 is connected with other numbers, it could be valueless.

For example, the government, according to licensing officials, has not even tried to auction off tags bearing numerals 1414 because in that combination the number sounds like "definite death, definite death."

Yet, a tag with numerals 48 brought $21,000 because that combination, when pronounced rapidly, resembles the words: "definite prosperity."

Da Silva said the government has auctioned off 1,010 car license numbers since May, 1973, bringing in $3.35 million.

Final edition of The Star a hot item

AP Laserphoto

A large group of people line up outside the offices of The Washington Star to purchase copies of the paper's final edition.

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — You'd think if 640,000 copies of something were made a week ago, it could hardly qualify as a rare "collectable" to be offered for sale at 3,750 times the original price.

But that's not so about The Washington Star.

The Star doubled its normal press run, to 640,000, when it went out of business a week ago today. Copies grabbed up on the streets of Washington for $1 or even $5 last Friday now are being offered for sale at prices ranging from $20 to $750.

Copies are being peddled nationally, too. Thursday's Los Angeles Times had three classified advertisements offering the Star. One Times advertiser said he had 2,000 copies and would entertain "best offer over $50 each."

In The Washington Post, between ads for washing machines and water beds, were 34 classified ads offering copies of the Star — in "mint condition," "in original bundles," "in plastic wrapper" and at all sorts of prices — $20, $50, $100, even $750.

All this angered executives of the defunct paper and on Thursday they got revenge: They put up for sale 20,000 remaining copies of the paper — at 20 cents apiece, the old price.

The Star had held those copies back for subscribers who did not get their paper last Friday. It advertised the papers in the Post — at 20 cents each and one to a customer. Customers lined up all day, spilling out of the Star building and into the street.

"I think it's just terrible, just awful," said Frank Anderson, circulation director of the Star, who told how bundles of the final Star, left for delivery boys, had been stolen.

"Kind of sneaky," said Peter Hause of the Star's tactic. "That'll really blow the collectable market."

Hause, a research analyst with Globe Perspectives Institute, a think tank, said he had managed to buy five bundles of 30 copies each of the Star at the newspaper plant.

His offer to sell them at $1,000 a bundle has had no takers yet, but he did manage to sell three copies at $100 each.

Mike McClory said he bought a bundle of Stars from a vendor on a whim last week and now offers them for $40 each, or "name a price."

"The competition is fierce," he says, "and getting worse every day."

Presidential humor a show business trait

WASHINGTON (AP) — Question: "What, Mr. President, would you have done differently in the last six months?"

Answer: "I wouldn't have gone to the Hilton Hotel."

The line is pure Ronald Reagan humor, referring to the scene of the March 30 assassination attempt.

The president of the United States, with the polish gained from a lifetime in show business, delivers his one-liners in small groups, in interviews, before audiences of thousands. More often than not, he is the butt of his own quip:

"Mr. President ... Is there a lot of homework involved, getting ready" for a summit conference?

"Yes, yes. Since I just crammed when I was in college and didn't study, I was used to that."

Foreign policy can be humorous, Reagan demonstrated, with this ditty he recited as a message to the Soviet Union:

Roses are red.
Violets are blue.
Stay out of El Salvador
And Poland, too.

Reagan can be spontaneous, although he is not above using cue cards.

During last year's presidential campaign, a balloon popped, sounding like a gunshot, during a speech in an airplane hangar.

"Missed me," Reagan interjected in mid-sentence.

Reagan passed up the royal wedding in July in London but got his tax bill passed in the House.

A day later, in Atlanta, he said: "I don't know who's happier about yesterday's events, me or Prince Charles."

At the end of an interview with editors of The Washington Star, in the final days before the paper went out of business, one questioner offered Reagan a necktie. After being worn by the president, the questioner said, the tie probably would end up in the National Archives.

"Probably with a gravy stain or two," Reagan added.

There is a series of jokes based on Reagan's inability to control how he spends his time.

When Spanish Foreign Minister Jose Pedro Perez Llorca visited the White House last month, Reagan was invited to visit Spain.

"You know I never know at night what I'm going to be doing the next day," Reagan replied. "I'm still looking for that office that tells me what I'm doing."

An hour later, chatting with James Cheek, the president of Howard University, in the Oval Office, Reagan was invited to tour the university campus. He said he didn't know who schedules his day.

"You're the commander in chief," Cheek said.

"I know, but it doesn't seem to count, where scheduling is concerned," Reagan said.

And last May, when he spoke at a White House reception for members of the Advertising Council, the president complained that he knew very little about first lady Nancy Reagan's schedule.

"I used to just come home and open the front door and say, 'I'm home.' And now I come home, look through 132 rooms, and then look at her schedule to know where she is."

As an after-dinner speaker, Reagan musters the aplomb of a Henny Youngman, spinning out tales — albeit longer than Youngman's mini-jokes — with perfect timing.

Take, for example, this little lecture to an audience honoring his father-in-law, who had just been made an honorary fellow in the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland:

"I know there are many experiences men in the medical profession have, and they have some sounding very familiar to some of you tonight. There are so many of us who are not of that profession who hear the word 'doctor' and automatically start telling them about what symptoms we have.

"We had a man in the theatrical profession, a great playwright named Moss Hart, who had that habit. One night he was introduced to a Dr. Jones at a cocktail party and he immediately started to tell him about a lower back pain that he had. And the man who introduced him was embarrassed and said, 'Moss, Dr. Jones is an economist,' and Moss didn't stop for a second. He said, 'I bought some stock the other day ...'"

Being the No. 1 resident in the nation's capital hasn't stopped Reagan from poking fun at Washington.

He told a Chicago audience last month he was sorry to go back to Washington:

"It's just a case of from one windy city to another, only Washington doesn't have the excuse of a lake.

"That isn't all we have in common," he added. "Your mayor moved into public housing, she said, to draw attention to the conditions there. Well, Nancy and I have done the same thing and for the same reason."

At a dinner for former Treasury Secretary William Simon, Reagan insisted he wasn't practicing voodoo in his congressional victories over House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. "I have not spent the last several weeks pushing pins into a Tip O'Neill doll," he said.

Reagan will, on occasion, taunt a reporter or two.

When a deputy White House press secretary kept reporters from asking questions at the end of a photo session in the Oval Office, Reagan called out to the departing group: "Shut you off, didn't they? And that's too bad because I had a good answer for you, but you'll never hear it."

Housing prices may continue up

NEW YORK (AP) — According to the rumor, prices of houses have to drop sharply because of the "extraordinary" inflation that has persisted in the housing market for the past decade or so.

So popular is the notion in some circles, among investment analyst groups, for example, and even among some commission-starved real estate agents, that it has become a cult with its own dogma.

And it's scaring the daylights out of homeowners.

When you sit down to examine the so-called extraordinary figures, however, you may be surprised to learn there may be as much yeast in the rumors as there is in the prices.

An analysis by a housing group, for example, observes that "from the end of 1974 to the end of 1980, the median price of new homes sold increased 81 percent, from $37,400 in 1974 to about $67,800."

Sounds alarming, until you consider that housing isn't the only thing affected by inflation. Had the median home price rose in step with the consumer price index, the 1980 price would have been close to $62,600.

It suggests that during that six-year period the median home price seems to have risen about $6,000, a sizeable sum, but small in relation to the inflated figure. What's extraordinary, is the rise in the CPI.

Moreover, some of the homes erected in that period have more built-in value.

Diann Riebling, a US Air ticket agent who was laid off because of the strike by air traffic controllers, joined 13 other ticket agents Thursday outside the Greater Cincinnati International Airport to tell picketing PATCO members what they think of the strike.

General aviation traffic about same

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Corporate pilot John Gerbas flew his company's jet from Miami to Detroit shortly after thousands of air traffic controllers walked off their jobs. "Not a problem at all," he said Friday. "Right on schedule."

Gerbas, chief pilot for Knight Ridder Newspapers, said that the illegal strike has had little effect on general aviation traffic — the thousands of small planes and corporate aircraft which take off and land every day. An Associated Press spot check showed that others in the field agreed. Some said there were a few minor problems, but some said flights were even safer and smoother than usual.

The pilots of many general aviation planes often use VFR — Visual Flight Rules. They do not rely on instruments — or specific instructions from controllers — unless there is bad weather and, so far at least, the weather has been good.

Most general aviation traffic — and that includes everything except regularly scheduled commercial flights — operates in and out of small airports. The busiest of these is Van Nuys in California which handled 583,000 takeoffs and landings last year. "Things are pretty normal, status quo," said Norm Norton, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman at the Van Nuys control tower.

William Biggio, the tower chief at the Essex County Airport in Fairfield, N.J., said: "It's pretty much business as usual."

Members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization struck on Monday, Aug. 3. They defied court rulings and ignored a back to work order from President Reagan. The FAA started firing all the controllers who weren't working and the government says it won't rehire them.

Commercial air traffic has been cut at major airports, but the FAA has kept the system running with supervisors, non-striking controllers and some military personnel. The biggest snarl came earlier this week when Canadian air controllers temporarily refused to handle flights to and from the United States, forcing cancellations of many trans Atlantic flights and causing long delays.

There hasn't been that kind of trouble with general aviation traffic.

"We've got some problems, sure," said Dan Meisenger Jr., president of Executive Beechcraft Inc., of Kansas City, Mo. But Meisenger said the problems have been minimal — 15 or 20 minute delays in getting clearance for takeoff, for example. "The strike hasn't had the disrupting effect we thought it would have," he said. "It's been an inconvenience more than anything."

Herbert Hortman, the chief pilot for Hortman Aviation Inc., of Bristol and Doylestown, Pa., said he had no problems at all. "It's as safe as it was before — in fact a little more so," he said, explaining: "The people working in the towers are more courteous and a little more cautious."

Jerry Young, chief controller at the Long Beach (Calif.) Municipal Airport, which is operating with eight controllers instead of the usual 21, said: "We have had about 200 compliments from pilots who said our people in the tower are doing a super job. Traffic is running about normal."

We have had no problems to speak of."

Phil Botang, general manager of Burlington Northern Airmotive, which provides hangar facilities and support services for private planes at the Minneapolis St. Paul International Airport, said: "The little aircraft and the large corporate planes are all coming and going pretty much at will."

Les Case, the control tower chief at the airport, agreed, although he said there could be a cutback in general aviation "if we get inundated with larger aircraft."

And Lee Gillilgan, president of Crystal-Shamrock Inc., a charter service operating from Minnesota's Crystal Airport, said good weather has helped prevent trouble. "They struck in the middle of the nation's best weather. If the idea was to put everybody out of business, they should have waited until late fall."
