Fires In Wichita River Bottoms Destroy Acres Of Valuable Timber

FARM OWNERS CHECK SPREAD OF FLAMES

Dry Grass and Underbrush Provide Ideal Fuel For Blazes

HUFF TIMBER BURNS

Big Grass Fires Near City Also Prove Menace To Property

Fires burning over a wide area in the Wichita river bottoms had destroyed several hundred acres of valuable timber Sunday afternoon and were still burning at isolated points early Sunday night, according to reports received by The Record News.

Pecan Trees Burned

The most serious blaze was reported in the bottoms about 10 miles northeast of Wichita Falls where the fire threatened fences, feed stacks and outbuildings of farms during the day. Farmers were compelled to set back-fires at several points to protect their property. Most of the timber burned was on land owned by Judge R. E. Huff and included a number of fine pecan trees. The absence of wind late in the afternoon prevented the spread of the flames.

Origin of the blaze in the Huff timber was unknown, but was believed to have started from fires seen burning on the opposite side of the river Saturday. The river bottoms are filled with dry grass, underbrush and thickets and the unusually long fall drouth has made it easy for fires to spread.

Grass blazes near the city limits of Wichita Falls also presented a threat to property Sunday, units of the Wichita Falls fire department spending two hours in controlling two prairie fires. The first blaze was reported at 2:45 o'clock from the Henrietta road, two and one-half miles east of the city. Several telephone and telegraph poles were damaged. A booster tank manned by fire department members finally brought the blaze under control.

Fire Chief Warns

A second alarm sent the trucks to the polo field on Pocahontas street at 3:30 o'clock. A light breeze whipped the flames across the field with the dry grass as ready fuel for the fire. The blaze was controlled without damage.

Assistant Fire Chief Grover Habern again warned Wichitans Sunday of the danger from grass and trash fires, which he said might result in serious blazes because of the continued drouth. He urged that every precaution be taken for the control of trash fires, particularly where dry grass and weeds might furnish fuel for a rapid spread of the flames.

Lawton Youth Dies In Air Crash

LAWTON, Okla., Nov. 20. (AP)—George Cease, 19, of Lawton, was killed and Henry Stannard, 22, licensed pilot, was injured critically today when Stannard's plane crashed about five miles southwest of here. Farmers who saw the crash said the plane went into a spin at a height of about 300 feet.

A GAME OF CHANCE vs. BIRD'S EYES

NO intelligent man would place his business "on the corner" in "A GAME OF DICE" or any other kind of "A GAME OF CHANCE." He wouldn't throw his means of livelihood into the pot and yell, "COME ON SEVEN. THE BABY NEEDS A NEW PAIR OF SHOES."

There's too much danger of looking straight at "BIRD'S EYES" . . . and doom.

Of course, it's a grand and glorious feeling to view a five and a deuce on the FIRST THROW, but a business can't be successfully run on CHANCE.

Yet, too many people as a whole throw a sizeable advertising appropriation into the pot and pray for "A SEVEN." Now and then, THEY happen to strike; far too often THEY lose. A carefully-planned, well-rounded advertising program, based on a logical reason for its existence, will carry any good business through a period like the present—with profit.

Advertising in the Classified Columns of these TWO Daily newspapers isn't a gamble to the man or woman who views it intelligently. Nor is it a force to be applied spasmodically. There are more things to do TODAY—more things than there were 50 years ago. There are more things to occupy one's thoughts, more to distract one's attention. Thus, due largely to THIS changing tempo, SUCCESSFUL CLASSIFIED ADVERTISERS must plan THEIR advertising and carry it out.

THEY who wait no gifts from "THE GAME OF CHANCE" have conquered fate. But THEY who watch and use the Classified Section while waiting for opportunity usually find success.

EVERY DAY IS A LUCKY DAY FOR CLASSIFIED READERS AND USERS!

Youth Confesses To Orgy Of Crimes With Boasts Of Insanity

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP)—A youthful terrorist, James Varecha, confessed today, police said, to an orgy of crime that embraced at least three slayings, a dozen robberies, several attacks upon women and seven unprovoked shootings.

Varecha, a former inmate of a Dixon (Ill.) institute for mental defectives, was arrested yesterday for the slaying of Frank Jordan and an attack upon Miss Lilliam Henry, 20, niece of John Alcock, deputy police commissioner. Authorities said he admitted those crimes, and told in addition of killing an old man and a Mexican in robberies here. Police were checking tonight to determine their identities.

Declares He's Insane

"But I am insane," he shouted after signing the confessions which climaxed 14 hours of questioning. "You can't do anything to me."

Crimes police said Varecha confessed included:

A holdup Aug. 31 in the new city district which he and a companion kidnaped a girl from her escort and attacked her; the wounding of James F. McElligott, who resisted Varecha's attempts at robbery while he sat in a car with Miss Sophia Dobson; the shooting of seven Mexicans "because they tried to hog the sidewalk."

Members of Varecha's family assisted police, psychiatrists and representatives of the state's attorney's office in the questioning. It was only when his sister and her husband, Daniel Minski, said that Varecha possessed a pistol and was not at their home Wednesday night when Jordan was killed as Varecha asserted, that he confessed.

"All right," he said, "if my sister says that, I'll talk."

Relates Details

Varecha then confessed, Alcock said, how he shot Jordan, former municipal court bailiff and widowed father of a 12-year-old boy, as he leaped from his parked automobile to defend his companion, Miss Emma Dahnke.

"Then I ran away," Varecha said, "and went for about seven blocks. I found the Henry girl there in a car with a man."

Miss Henry's escort, James Guisinger, was forced into the rumble

Wooed By Ballots

Two ardent courtships aided Miss Anne Brancato (above) in becoming the first Democratic woman legislator in Pennsylvania. When she started campaigning one suitor loaned his motor car and chauffeur to her efforts. Another suitor went about ringing doorbells and telling people about the candidate. The election was a landslide for Miss Brancato.

ROBINS DOESN'T KNOW HIS WIFE

Dry Crusader Still in Grasp Of Amnesia

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 20. (AP)—For the second time in as many days, Col. Raymond Robins, noted prohibition advocate, peered at his wife out of blank eyes today and apparently failed to recognize her.

Mrs. Robins said not a glimmer of recognition followed her second visit to a hospital where her distinguished husband, stricken with amnesia, is seeking to recover his memory under the care of specialists.

Wearing overalls and heavy boots and his face covered with a shaggy beard, Colonel Robins was found at Whittier, a small village almost hidden away in the great Smoky mountains of western North Carolina.

He had been at Whittier virtually ever since his disappearance Sept. 3, when he dropped out of sight after starting to keep an engagement with President Hoover.

Appears Healthy

Today's meeting between Robins and his wife was at Appalachian hall, a sanitarium to which he was transferred from Norburn hospital this morning. Dr. M. A. Griffin, physician in charge of the case, is chief physician at Appalachian hall.

Mrs. Robins, who raced here by train and motor from Florida upon learning that her husband had been found, smiled bravely when she left the sanitarium. As for Robins' inability to recognize her and remember events happening before he reached Whittier, Mrs. Robins said he appears well and healthy in every way.

"We had a pleasant, friendly chat, but he did not recognize me," she said.

"The colonel seems to have benefitted from the rest he has been able to receive because of his being protected from unwelcome visitors.

"We spoke together only a few moments, but one could see that aside from his inability to recall events beyond the time he reached

Real Estate Dealer Burns Up Huge Sum In Unpaid Mortgages

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 20. (AP)—Now that he has burned up $27,000 worth of unpaid mortgages and notes, W. A. Boyd hopes the friends who owed them will come around to his real estate office and talk things over.

His hands stuffed full of the papers ranging in amounts from $10 to $5,000, Boyd walked into the office of the Tuscaloosa News yesterday and after employes of the paper helped him burn them, inserted the following advertisement:

"Notice to the greatest majority of the people that I hold notes, mortgages and open accounts against:

"I am today destroying approximately $27,000 worth of this kind of paper, so, boys, you need not dodge me; come in and see me and let's talk things over and forget the past. I hold no ill will against any one. Thanking all of you for all past favors, I am, yours very truly, W. A. Boyd."

Smoke From Oil Fire Visible For 90 Miles

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—The cloud of smoke and fire roaring several hundred feet into the air above the flaming Perkins-Lagasse No. 1 wild gasser, eight miles west of Corpus Christi, was visible nearly 90 miles from the city tonight.

The well caught fire Friday night. Oil men said there was little possibility that it could be extinguished with explosives or be choked with mud because the fissure had cratered and gas was seeping through the ground for a radius of several hundred yards.

Presidents of the 16 state institutions of higher learning have been called to appear before the board to present their ideas on the proposed reorganization. Sponsors of the movement were hopeful a plan could be worked out that would increase the efficiency of the schools and at the same time reduce the cost.

JAPAN PLEADS SELF-DEFENSE IN MANCHURIA

Tokyo Government Replies To Indictments Made In Lytton Report

REFUTES CHARGES

Claims To Be Made Today At League Of Nations Council At Geneva

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (AP)—A plea of self-defense and a denial of treaty violation in her action in Manchuria are coupled in Japan's answer to the indictments of the Lytton commission, which she will make to the council of the League of Nations at Geneva tomorrow.

The report of the Lytton commission, which investigated the Manchurian situation, placed responsibility for the outbreak on the Japanese military element.

In a summary of the Tokyo government's observations as they will be outlined before the league, released here today by the Japanese embassy, the Japanese contend:

That the activities of the army were made necessary by the hostile action of the Chinese in various parts of Manchuria which, like China proper, long has suffered from a lack of proper organized government.

Protect Nationals

That the preliminary steps taken by Japanese soldiers in Manchuria were designed only to protect their own Nationals and properties under Japanese control by treaty rights.

That neither the Kellogg antiwar pact nor the nine-power treaty protecting the sovereign rights of China has been violated.

The Japanese summary at the outset presents the viewpoint that the Lytton report distinctly favors the Chinese in numerous instances to the disadvantage of the Japanese and contends that the document is filled with inaccuracies and misrepresentations.

"It is apparent on the face of the (Lytton) report that its findings are based on newspaper articles, letters of casual correspondents and private conversations, as well as authenticated official material, and right of elucidating the degree of credit which attaches to this miscellaneous evidence must be reserved," says the Tokyo summary.

The evidence all through the report, the Japanese assert, "is invariably against Japan . . . and leads to a complete misconstruction of the motives which actuated the Japanese armed forces," in the Mukden outbreak of Sept. 18, 1931. Then, continues the Japanese version, a portion of the Japanese-owned South Manchuria railway was dynamited by Chinese soldiers, which precipitated the occupation of Mukden by the Japanese and other zones outside the leased territory.

Defies Commission

Japan deals at length with the Lytton commission charges that she was responsible for establishment of the new state of Manchukuo, and clearly states that she has no intention of abandoning her interest there, regardless of the commission's attitude.

"Japan cannot afford to leave her relations with Manchukuo, in a state of instability," the Tokyo document sets forth. "She accordingly considers that the general recognition of Manchukuo, and a general cooperation of its development is

M'ADOO ASSAILS FARM TARIFFS

California Senator-Elect Would Aid Agriculture

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20. (AP)—William Gibbs McAdoo, senator-elect from California, believes the United States may have to "forget some hoary formulas" of government in restoring the purchasing power of the farmer and bringing prosperity back.

Asked to name the most pressing subject to be considered by the next administration, the long, lean former secretary of the treasury answered without hesitation, "agriculture."

The first Democratic senator California has had in 12 years disclaimed any thought of speaking for the incoming administration.

"I am convinced that legislation in behalf of the farmer is possible," he said. "We attempt to take care of other business, why not agriculture?"

McAdoo said that when the farmer's dollar is given back to him he

Court Fight Opens on Beaumont's Tax Rate

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—Hearing on an injunction suit brought to halt permanently the levying and collection of a $3 tax rate set by the city commission on Oct. 25, will be heard tomorrow morning in 16th district court. The suit was brought by Max Feinburg, local merchant, against the city of Beaumont.

The injunction suit was filed on the same day the commission set the tax rate and alleges that contrary to the limitations of the city charter, the commission set a rate higher than was necessary in order to collect enough revenue to offset anticipated delinquencies.

Col. Zack Miller in Legal Difficulty Again

PONCA CITY, Okla., Nov. 20. (AP)—Col. Zack Miller of the 101 ranch, who has become accustomed to facing tribunals, must appear in district court next Tuesday to explain why he should not be cited for contempt in failure to pay a $100 attorney fee and $40 a month temporary alimony to his estranged wife, Margaret Blevins Miller, pending the outcome of her suit for separate maintenance.

Colonel Miller obtained a divorce in Louisiana but the case was appealed to the supreme court; the judgment was held in abeyance until the Louisiana court passes on the matter.

Louis J. Wardlaw Says RFC Loans Mismanaged

TEMPLE, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—Louis J. Wardlaw of Fort Worth declared here today that congress had in mind loans on frozen assets that would eventually "pay out," in setting up credit machinery, but that Texas officials of corporations connected with the Reconstruction Finance corporation were lending only on liquid securities.

"If the credit system of the government were exercised as designated by congress," he asserted, "livestock interests of Texas would now be on the road to recovery."

Arizona's New Chief Executive Won't Desert Medical Practice

Dr. B. B. Moeur, Who Spent His Early Life on Texas Ranges, Will Maintain Alliance With Stork

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 21. (NEA)—The telephone rings in the state executive's office. An urgent voice pleads, "But, Doc, she insists upon you. Won't you come—and hurry?"

A stocky, bald-headed man chews vigorously on his cigar, glances at his daily memorandum. No, there's no legislative conference or other important business scheduled for the next few hours.

"All right," he snaps into the telephone.

"Another baby at the Joneses," he mutters to his secretary, grabs a small leather satchel and strides out of the capitol.

That's what may take place in the office of Arizona's governor after Jan. 1.

Won't Refuse Call

For Dr. B. B. Moeur, the-country physician Arizona has just elected to her highest state office, has said he will not refuse to answer a call from a former patient, provided it does not interfere with the affairs of state.

"Lots rather be taking care of sick folks than chasing around to social affairs," he says. "Neither I, nor my wife, have ever cared about that. Never owned a dress suit. Just wear one kind of clothes. They're good enough to go anywhere."

Dr. Mouer entered politics to run for Arizona's Democratic gubernatorial nomination after 36 years of medical practice in the little college town of Tempe, nine miles east of Phoenix. Members of his family and many of his friends tried to persuade him against making the race.

Foes Took Him Lightly

In addition to Gov. G. W. P. Hunt, who was seeking an eighth term, and who had been elected governor more times than any other man in the United States, three other candidates were in the field. It was thought the doctor, unversed in politics, hadn't a chance. But Dr. Moeur was not to be dissuaded.

"The state needs a doctor," he said. "It has been suffering from extravagance and dominance of a political machine. Costs of government need to be operated on."

And when the primary vote revealed his large majority, the politicians gasped. "How did you do it?" they asked.

"Just got out and talked with folks," the doctor answered. "Never asked any one to vote for me. Never had to deny anything and never had to look over my shoulder while I talked."

Grew Up in Texas

After his victory in the primary, there was little question but that he would be Arizona's next governor.

Dr. Moeur, was born in Decherd, Tenn., Dec. 22, 1869, but with his family moved to San Antonio, Texas, when 4 years old. His boyhood and manhood were spent on the Texas range. He went broke in the cattle business and then decided to become a doctor.

At Arkansas Industrial Medical school he won every medal for which he was eligible and graduated in the spring of 1896. A few

GARNER CALLED TO WASHINGTON

Vice President-Elect Leaves For Conference

UVALDE, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—Abandoning plans for a hunting trip, Vice President-elect John Garner hurriedly left his home here before dawn today on a journey to Washington.

It was learned after he had gone that he received a telegram from President Hoover requesting his presence Tuesday at the conference between the president and President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt for discussion of the foreign debt problem.

Disclosing their plans to only a few persons, Mr. and Mrs. Garner drove by automobile to San Antonio, through which it was believed they passed about 8 a. m., later boarding a Missouri-Kansas-Texas train without being recognized by railway employes.

Visited Friends

Garner's departure from Uvalde was much like that from Washington recently. A few days before the general election he caught a train for Uvalde without telling any one of his intentions and appeared at his Texas home before even newspaper men expected him.

Some time ago the speaker of the house of representatives said he would return to Washington shortly before the short session of congress begins and in the interval would hunt and fish and rest. Since his arrival in Uvalde he has been on several hunting and fishing trips, usually accompanied by only one friend.

On the first day of the hunting season, Garner killed a large buck deer. Previously he bagged numerous squirrels and doves, cooking them over an open camp fire, as he himself puts it, "to my own taste."

He also has visited with old friends about town and gathered pecans from trees at his home "just for exercise." Recently his pecan entry captured a prize at a county fair.

PRESIDENT TO OFFER SLASH IN EXPENSES

Executive Puts In Time On Proposed Pruning Of Budget

TIME IS LIMITED

$550,000,000 Reduction In Expenditures Is To Be Stressed

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (UP)—President Hoover, reported ready to veto any beer for revenue measure, in making his determined drive to cut the federal budget in the hope the short session of congress may avoid increasing taxes.

Those who have been urging legalization of beer, have been stressing the revenue angle. They were disturbd by reports the president would veto any such beer measure, for passage over his veto was considered impossible.

They interpreted Mr. Hoover's proposed $550,000,000 slash in the budget, therefore, as an effort to avoid forcing an increase in federal taxes through the short session of congress, and at the same time so balance the budget that the revenue from beer would not be a necessity.

Revision Up to Demos

Revision of the tax structure would be left to the new Democratic administration, if possible. There are reasons to indicate this course, in the end, may be found most practical.

President Hoover would have to initiate any move for a tax increase at the coming session. Responsibility for formulating a program would rest upon him and his secretary of treasury, Ogden L. Mills. It is natural for the administration to desire to end its career with an economy program that is not coupled with an increase in taxes.

Democratic leaders have been taking it for granted that a tax bill would be one major piece of business at the coming session. This would lift from them the responsibility for starting off their administration with an increase of taxes in the special session which appears certain will have to be called.

Deficit Growing

There are some factors which make postponement of a tax increase possible. The president pointed to a deficit which already has reached $700,000,000 and which Democrats claim will approach $2,000,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year next June 30. He ordered savings of $550,000,000 in next year's budget.

It is pointed out that tax collections for the last half of a year following a revision of rates usually

Houston Hunter Killed By Accidental Discharge

MATAGORDA, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—J. G. Ginn, 21, Houston hunter, was killed accidentally today at Devil's Elbow on the Colorado river when the gun of a companion was discharged in a boat in which he and several other men were hunting ducks.

Ginn died in a Gulf, Texas, hospital two hours after the shooting. D. F. Rutledge, 23, Houston, was absolved of blame in the shooting by Ginn's two brothers, E. Ginn and J. H. Ginn Jr., of Houston, who witnessed the accidental shooting. They said the tragedy occurred when Rutledge was reloading his gun.

Justice of the Peace J. J. Bellew of Matagorda returned an inquest verdict of accidental death.

Jimmy Walker Lands In France for Vacation

VILLEFRANCHE, France, Nov. 20. (AP)—James J. Walker, former New York mayor, landed at this Riviera resort today from the steamship Conte Grande.

Asked whether he intended to remain for a while, Mr. Walker said: "I haven't made up my mind, but you will find out in a couple of days."

Unconfirmed reports were that he received a $50,000 offer for his memoirs from an American magazine and may write them here.

He asserted he came to play golf and rest and he had nothing to say on public affairs.

Betty Compton, the actress, and her mother disembarked from the same liner.

One Month's Supply Of Water Remains In Lake Wichita, Official Reveals

Wichita Falls has one month's supply of water in Lake Wichita.

Unless the current extended drouth is broken and rains fill Lake Wichita, from which the city's water supply is derived, water will have to be obtained from Lake Kemp, Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the Wichita Falls water department, told The Record News Sunday night.

Lake Wichita is at the lowest level in many months, it was said, and unless rain in a very short period increases the supply, the lake will be unable to fill the ditch that leads to the purification plant south of the city.

Should it be necessary to use water from Lake Kemp, a stream from that body will be turned into Holliday creek, which will carry the flow to Lake Wichita, Dr. Douglass explained. The flow of water into Holliday creek would continue until the level of Lake Wichita would be raised to adequately supply the city with water. This process would be repeated as often as conditions warranted, it was said.

Water from Lake Kemp already has been turned into Diversion lake, G. A. Remington, irrigation district

Five Bears, 60 Dogs And 75 Hunters In This Story—But Bears Still Live

MARION, S. C., Nov. 20. (AP)—This is a story about the five bears.

It also is a story about five parties who went bear hunting in the mountains west of Lake Tahoma. It is told by J. Q. Gilkey, member of the state department of conservation and development.

The parties were on five separate bear hunts. There were 60 dogs all together.

As the day wore on, each party found a bear and each bear made his own dash for a certain cove where he believed he might be secure.

All might have gone well had not the five bears, the five hunting parties and the 60 dogs all met at the same cove at the same time.

The hunters dared not shoot for fear of killing one of so many dogs. The dogs were somewhat confused by the sight of so many bears. But the bears apparently ganged up and streaked out across the mountain.

Before guns could be brought into action, all had escaped leaving some 60 dogs and 75 huntsmen pretty much disgruntled.

Resorts to Prayer

While waging a battle against death, Dr. Moeur is apt to command assembled relatives of the stricken one, "Get down on your knees and pray. I've done all I can."

In 1917 when Tempe young men began leaving for war Dr. Moeur sent each of them a letter saying he was cancelling any bill they owed him and that he would care for their families without charge while they were away.

Perhaps children of some of these men may tell in future years that a governor rushed from the statehouse to officiate at their births.

seat at the point of a pistol and she was attacked.

"I drove Guisinger toward his home and let him off," Varecha said. "I kept the girl with me."

"And I shot seven Mexicans out in the territory near my home," he added. "Two of them died, I think. They get filled up with that Marijuana and push you off the sidewalk. It's awful out there.

"McElligott was just a tough Irishman, so I had to shoot him too."

"Fourth Degree" Used

Alcock said the confessions resulted by the use of a technique which he termed the "fourth degree." Doctors and police appealed to Varecha's exaggerated criminal ego, he said, encouraged his boastings, and the confessions followed.

Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler said the case would be given to the grand jury tomorrow and that indictments on charges of murder, assault to murder, robbery, attack and attempted attack would be sought.

"The prisoner says he is but 17, but I have reason to believe he is much older," Walker said. Several authorities also expressed doubt that Varecha was insane.

Caught in Theater

Varecha's capture came in a cheap downtown theater yesterday after an intensive manhunt. The arrest resulted when the youth tried to buy a revolver from a negro. The negro recognized him from descriptions published.

"I've made up my mind to plead guilty," Varecha said. "I told them everything and they ought to give me a break."

He was taken back to his cell after the confessions.

"Now for some sleep," he said as he rolled over in his bunk.

MODEL BOY SOUGHT IN GRANDMOTHER'S DEATH

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP)—Spurred by reports that Charles Bertrand (Bert) Arnold Jr., 16, "model boy," had been seen near Mount Carroll, Ill., police tonight pushed their search for him as they sought to solve the brutal killing of his 60-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Allen Saxe.

Authorities said they believed he was heading for Denver where he is reported to have relatives.

Frank H. Gibbs, owner of a Mount Carroll hotel, said a youth answering the description of young Arnold spent Saturday night at his place but left today before his identity was learned through newspaper photographs. The boy registered under the name of "Norton Jonathan," and listed his residence as Chicago. Norton Jonathan was a chum of the suspect.

Walter Moody, chief of the Illinois state police, detailed 35 of his men to take up the trail of the youth's automobile. Authorities in Iowa and Missouri were asked to cooperate in the search.

Mrs. Saxe was slain Friday night, her head crushed and her body jammed into a cistern at the rear of her home. Police said they had evidence that her slayer attempted to assault her. Also she had been robbed of a purse containing about $150.

Search for the youth was started Saturday morning when he failed to appear. His father said he feared Mrs. Saxe's slayers abducted the boy.

Money Called 'Divine Trust'

The use of money often provides an accurate index of character, Prof. A. F. Edwards told members of the Big Brothers class of the Grant Street Methodist church Sunday morning in his discussion of "Stewardship."

The speaker urged that money is entrusted to the keeping of an individual only by divine provision, and that such wealth must be regarded and used as a trust rather than funds for wilful dissipation by the holder.

"Prosperity in a material sense is obtained only as a gift from God," Mr. Edwards said, "through whom only our labors may bear fruit. The Bible tells us not only that a fair portion should be returned for the furtherance of human worship of God, but directs the amount that should be given—one-tenth."

The speaker declared that the individual is prone to recognize that every other man is apt to meet the end of his days at any time, but appears to regard himself as assured of a lengthy future experience on earth.

"The two greatest men recorded in Old Testament history were Abraham and Moses. Neither was a man of great wealth. Abraham had large flocks, but his being able to move them on frequent journeys from place to place proves they were not excessive in number. Moses might have had great wealth as a prince in the palace of Pharoah, but he renounced that offer to become leader of the Israelites.

"Possession of wealth is a stewardship and must be conducted in such a way that God may be pleased with our service."

A. T. Crump and H. A. Baker are side captains in a membership contest now being conducted by the class.

Wichita Hunters Secure Limit On Canadian Geese

That rare bag in the life of a modern hunter of wild fowl—a limit kill of Canadian geese—was reported by three Wichita Falls gunners at Lake Kemp over the week-end.

The hunting party was composed of Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney; A. D. Woodward and Roy Jones. The three brought down 12 of the big honkers, but managed to secure only nine of the kill. Three of the birds were dropped on a mud and silt flat and the hunters found it impossible to retrieve them. The limit of Canadian geese per person is four. One of the birds weighed more than nine pounds after it had been drawn.

The three Wichitans reported big flights of both ducks and geese Saturday and Sunday and said the number of each had apparently increased over last year. No. 2 shot loads were used in bringing down the big geese.

Denials Made To Charges Made In Report

the only means of stabilizing conditions in Manchuria and of bringing peace to the Far East."

The movement that led to creation of Manchukuo was "a genuine spontaneous, popular and natural one," says the summary, and sponsored by Chinese "who had been systematically 'squeezed,' oppressed and defrauded by their rulers."

The Japanese conceded that it may probably be true, as the Lytton report says, that such a movement in favor of a change of government could not have been carried through had it not been for the presence of Japanese troops. The troops the Japanese assert, were on hand "merely in the exercise of a lawful right of self-defense, and if the independence movement took advantage of the conditions thus created, that altered in no wise the spontaneity of the movement."

Fails to Specify

"There are many instances in other continents," the Japanese explain without mentioning specific names, "where independence has been proclaimed by the presence of foreign forces, and where that independence has never been questioned."

(An Associated Press Tokyo dispatch Saturday said that it had been officially stated that Japan would remind the Geneva council that Manchukuo was not the first state separated from its parent state and given independence through the action of another power. "I cannot affirm," the informant was quoted as saying, "the assertions in vernacular newspapers that our reply to the Lytton report will cite Panama and Esthonia in this connection, but certainly Panama is one of the incidents we had in mind. I can assure you, however, this portion of the document is nowise construable as derogatory to the United States.")

Regarding the nine-power treaty, to which both China and Japan are signatories, the Japanese contend that "if in the due fulfillment of her lawful rights, a signatory power finds herself in Chinese territory, she cannot be responsible for the consequences," and adds:

"If these consequences impair Chinese sovereignty or integrity, it is not she who is to blame. Even supposing, therefore, that Manchuria under Gen. Chang Hsueh-Liang (the deposed ruler) was really an integral part of China, still Japan cannot be answerable for the consequences of her proper and necessary action."

Plan Unacceptable

The Japanese government calls the special attention of league members to the restoration of peace and order in Manchuria. The only trouble makers remaining, the Tokyo brief contends, are several Chinese forces in the north which are being supported with funds of the Nanking government to nag the Japanese.

As for the Lytton commission suggestion that the Japanese withdraw in favor of an autonomous government to be created under the Nanking nationalists, the Japanese hold this "would amount in practice to a disguised international control, and could not be acceptable to Manchukuo or Japan."

Japan's argument in league circles will be that with an efficient Japanese administration, Manchuria will set an example for Chinese which eventually will clear the way for settlement of the far greater question of China herself as well as the Manchuria difficulties.

The Tokyo answer is the combined work of the foreign office and the war department, which have been at the task for weeks. It contains some 27,000 words. The text will be announced tomorrow in Tokyo and Geneva.

JAPAN DETERMINED IN HER STAND

TOKYO, Nov. 20 (AP)—General Araki, minister of war, asserted today Japan did not intend to refute the Lytton commission report on Manchuria, which the council of the League of Nations will discuss tomorrow.

"Japan's observations are not intended to refute the report," the general said, "but to supplement its deficiencies and to remove misunderstandings."

He added the Manchurian problem was disposed of as far as Japan and Manchukuo were concerned and Japan was determined to pursue a settled policy.

Meanwhile, a mass meeting of 10,000 persons called by the National Federation of Political Parties and Organizations, passed a resolution of grim determination to oppose any move calculated to run counter to Japan's national policy in Manchuria.

Count Uchida, foreign minister, voiced further official reaction to the Lytton report in an interview in which he said that "we have not sent delegates to the League of Nations to argue. We have sent them to lead the league to a true understanding of the complications of the situation in the Far East."

The resolution passed by the mass meeting was cabled to Geneva. It declared that as Manchukuo now is a fullfledged independent state and inasmuch as the League of Nations desires to contribute to enduring peace in the Far East, the league ought to recognize Manchukuo immediately and thereafter wash its hands of the Manchurian problem.

exceed those of the first half. A treasury report last week showed a pickup in the new miscellaneous taxes voted last session, though these still are running far behind their estimated yield.

Also, it will not be possible to tell anything about the yield of the new income tax rates, which were nearly doubled all along the line, until the March 15 collections, which are the first under the new law. What may be expected from them will not be apparent until after the short session is over.

Time Important Factor

Another factor involved is that of time. Congress spent seven months on the last revenue bill. Three months hardly would be sufficient to pass a measure, and the tax problem is even more complicated this year.

Congress scraped the field backward and forward in the long list of "nuisance" taxes it enacted last session. The sales tax seems to be all that is left. Reintroduction of this form of taxation is bound to stir up a controversy in congress.

The difficulty of reducing expenditures in such a time as the present is shown in the annual report of Budget Director J. Clawson Roop tonight, which reveals extraordinary expenses for the fiscal year ending last June 30 of $826,639,966, of which $500,000,000 was for the Reconstruction Finance corporation and $125,000,000 for expansion of the federal land banks.

The deficit for 1932 was $2,885,362,299 as compared with $902,716,845 for the previous year.

President-elect Roosevelt is expected to discuss the tax as well as the economy problem with Democratic leaders here this week when he comes to confer on the foreign debt problem with President Hoover, and later at Warm Springs, Ga., when he meets leaders there.

LABOR HOPES FOR EARLY BEER LAW

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20. (AP)—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor today reported "the indications are that favorable action providing for a modification of the Volstead act" to permit beer "will be taken at the short session of congress which meets Dec. 5."

It added that the council "will present an earnest appeal and a strong demand to the members of congress when the short session convenes to pass the necessary legislation without delay and at the earliest possible date."

The report prepared for presentation at the federation's 52nd annual convention here tomorrow urged higher wages and work-sharing as part of a program to restore purchasing power and prosperity, asserting "we are slowly starving nearly half our population."

On prohibition, the report said there is indicated "a genuine desire on the part of the membership of the American Federation of Labor to promote the cause of temperance, and in addition, through the rehabilitation of the brewing and related industries, create work opportunities for thousands of idle people."

At the last session of congress, it said, "an increasing number of members of congress votes in favor of a modification of the Volstead act" and "it must be clearly evident to all classes of people that public opinion has greatly changed upon this question."

DRYS DENY VOTE WAS "WET" EXPRESSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (AP)—A group of organized drys, in a statement tonight, said they "do not acknowledge the recent election as a verdict of the people on prohibition."

The statement was signed by F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league; Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, and Miss Ismra Scott of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. It said an informal conference had just been held by representatives of these organizations as well as the Association of Catholics favoring prohibition and the international reform federation.

Whittier, he is well and healthy in every way."

Dr. Griffin, who is in complete charge of the case, recommended the transfer to Appalachian hall, he said, because of the greater opportunity for activity Robins will have there.

Appalachian hall is surrounded by spacious grounds in which patients who are well enough may stroll or sit. It has specialized for many years in treatment of mental disorders.

Case Not Common

As yet Dr. Griffin has not been able to give members of the philanthropist's family any hope that he will regain his lost memory at an early date.

John Dreier, of New York, a nephew, who identified Robins at Whittier, said Dr. Griffin had refused to make any prediction with respect to Robins' recovery.

In his only public statement, the psychiatrist explained it will be several days before he would attempt to diagnose the mental abberation from which Colonel Robins is suffering.

Amnesia, he said, is a symptom, not a disease, and may be caused by any one of half a dozen things.

"His case is not of the usual type" Dr. Griffin said. "He recalls early features of his own personal history as Robins, but is under the impression, nevertheless, that he is 'Rogers.' It is not a common case. There is no way at all of telling how long the condition will continue, or when it will clear."

Iowa Park Home Destroyed By Fire After Alarm System Tampered With

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Nov. 20.—A well-laid plot of incendiarism was suspected here tonight after the home of W. H. Bagbey was almost completely destroyed by fire.

The facts that the Iowa Park fire alarm system had been tampered with tonight and put out of working order and that the Bagbey home was fired and robbed on a previous occasion, about a year ago, led investigating authorities to believe that the home was set.

A fuse had been removed from the electrically operated alarm system used to call the fire department together, investigators found after the fire had been reported. This delayed the assemblage of fire fighters to battle the blaze and the resultant delay is credited with the flames enveloping the home before apparatus could be rushed to the scene.

Jimmie Gonzalez, Wichita Falls police finger print expert, with Deputy Sheriff H. L. White, were summoned to investigate. Gonzalez was unable to obtain finger prints from the fire alarm system, as firemen already had handled the parts, erasing prints of previous handlers, and thereby destroying possible valuable evidence.

Since the apparent setting of the home a year ago a guard had been maintained on the place until a short time ago. Members of the family were attending church services on the previous occasion. Flames at that time did very little damage, although small articles were stolen.

Judge Cavin Muse, War Veteran And Former Football Star, Dies

DALLAS, Nov. 20. (AP)—Cavin Muse, 44, judge of the Dallas corporation court, died at his home here today after an illness of about two weeks. The immediate cause of death was a gall bladder infection, which developed after an attack of ptomaine poisoning.

The son of former District Judge E. B. Muse, Cavin Muse was a member of the Dallas bar 20 years. He was a veteran of the world war and a football letter man at three universities.

Born in Brenham in 1888, he was brought to Dallas with his parents in 1896. He attended Texas Christian university, Washington and Lee university and the University of Texas, winning a varsity letter at each school. He received a law degree from the University of Texas.

During the administrations of District Attorneys Mike T. Lively and Currie McCutcheon, Muse was an assistant district attorney. He was credited with winning 922 convictions out of 1,100 felony cases which he prosecuted.

In 1929, at the beginning of the administration of Mayor J. Waddy Tate, he was appointed judge of the corporation court, and was reappointed in 1931 when the council-manager form of government was put into effect.

He was a Scottish Rite Mason and Hella temple Shriner, a member of the Christian church and a past president of the Texas Christian University Alumni association.

Drouth Increases Demand In Irrigated Area

manager, said Sunday night. The level of Diversion lake had dropped two feet under normal, and to bring it up, Lake Kemp water was turned into it early Saturday morning. This stream was closed Sunday night at 9 o'clock.

RAIN RECORDS

Wichita Falls hasn't had a real rain since Sept. 1, a review of the monthly reports of the Texas Electric Service company weather bureau shows. The total fall for September was 2.57 inches, of which 1.27 inches fell on the first day of the month.

In October the total fall was 1.02 inches, of which .41 inch fell on Oct. 25. The remainder of the fall was scattered through the month. The city has been practically without rain in November. Traces of moisture were reported Nov. 18 and Nov. 12 of .05 recorded Nov. 4.

The necessity of raising the level of Diversion lake was occasioned by a heavy demand on its supply by the irrigation system which connects with the smaller lake, Mr. Remington said. The irrigation manager said that considerable water from Diversion lake is being turned at this time into irrigation ditches, as farmers of the valley are consuming large quantities of water for irrigation of young wheat and other grains, and alfalfa.

There need be no fear that Wichita Falls is facing a water shortage should rains not fall in the next few weeks, it was pointed out. The capacity of Lake Kemp is of such proportions that several years' drouth could pass and the body still could furnish Lake Wichita with ample water. The only difficulty likely to arise in the event rain does not fill Lake Wichita within a short time is that the quality of water being consumed in Wichita Falls will be lowered considerably. This would result from Lake Kemp water, which is hard, being turned into Lake Wichita and supplied to city consumers.

Men Resemble 'Dumb Sheep'

The characteristics of sheep—silly, simple, dumb, defenseless and helpless—are suggestive of the characteristics of man in his relationship to God, Dr. L. N. D. Wells of Dallas declared in his sermon at the First Christian church Sunday morning.

"If the Lord is the shepherd, we are the sheep," Dr. Wells declared. However, he took this description as a commendation of the providence and goodness of God, by which after the manner of a good shepherd, He knows every one, extends to every one His peculiar care and makes every effort to prevent even one from perishing. Peace and rest of heart depend not on the presence of nature's tranquilizing scenes, but solely upon the the shepherding of God, he said.

The visiting pastor spoke from the 23rd Psalm, which he styled the most beautiful literature in the world. He suggested that it was written out of the memories of care, battle and treachery experienced by the Psalmist in the picture field—the school of sheep.

The speaker suggested that the word "shepherd" is used as a forcible figure in view of the dangers of eastern shepherding. He stressed the fact that Christ sustains an individual relationship to every soul He saves similar to that manifested by the shepherd toward every sheep that he helps and saves.

The entire program contributed to the theme: "Loving Care of God." R. E. Shepherd sang a solo, "The Ninety and Nine." The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Wayne J. Holmes, gave a beautiful rendition of the 23rd Psalm in an anthem, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" (Wooler). Mrs. R. E. Strange was organist.

Jilted Guard Kills Girl and Suicides

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (AP)—Joseph Lounsberry, 31, a guard at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, shot and critically wounded Anna Dunn, 16, niece of his stepfather, and then shot and killed himself today after quarrelling with the girl because she had repulsed his attentions.

The shooting occurred in the ground floor hallway of the building, in which Miss Dunn resided.

An undirected note found in one of Lounsberry's pockets read:

"I know you will think I am crazy but I am not. I am in my right mind and know why I am doing this. It is for the best. I can't stand the thought of losing Anna. I love her. I can't give her up so I am taking her with me. Joe."

services at ancient Saint James Episcopal church and receiving visitors at tea in the spacious living room at Krum Elbow.

There were differences, however, in this Sunday "at home." Since his last Sabbath visit here he has been elected president of the United States. Tuesday he goes to the White House to discuss with President Hoover a pressing international problem, war debts.

Today, the distinction and the duty were set aside. Viscount and Lady Astor, overnight guests at the Roosevelt home, went to church with the governor and Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. James Roosevelt, the president-elect's mother.

Lord and Lady Astor left the Roosevelt home after luncheon for New York. During the afternoon, Basil O'Connor, the governor's former law partner and Mrs. O'Connor, called.

Mr. Roosevelt will leave for New York tomorrow afternoon en route to the White House conference. In New York he will meet with Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, the governor-elect who will occupy the chief executive's seat in Albany during Mr. Roosevelt's two weeks' absence in Georgia.

will spend it and all business will benefit.

"The farmers need everything," he said, "clothing, machinery and other necessities, and luxuries as well, but they can not buy for they have no money. Given reasonable prices for their products, their money will reach every avenue of business."

Taking wheat and cotton as examples, he said the situation is the same as would exist if the steel manufacturers had to sell their products in this country at the world price.

"If the producers of wheat and cotton were protected so that they could sell the amount of wheat and cotton consumed in the United States at remunerative prices, they could then take their chances, as manufacturers do, on the disposition of their surplus in the competitive markets of the world.

"There is a tariff duty of 42 cents a bushel on wheat, but it is ineffective, because the surplus wheat production and not the tariff controls the price. There is no tariff on short stapel cotton, but if there were it would be no more effective under present conditions than the tariff on wheat.

"The American farmer sells in an unprotected market and buys in a protected one. He is outside of our tariff walls when he sells and inside of it when he buys. He loses at both ends.

"That this situation must be remedied before we can have a return of prosperity is obvious and I am convinced we may have to forget some hoary formulas, but this, I believe, can be done.

"The salvation of the wheat and cotton farmers of the United States resolves around a tariff on these commodities sufficiently high to preserve for the producers the home market against outside competition. This must be accompanied by federal regulation which will enable the farmer to get the full benefit of the tariff protection awarded to them on that part of their crop consumed in the United States.

"The present tariff duty on wheat is merely a gesture. The farmer receives no benefit from it, for the simple reason that no means have been provided for transferring to his pocket the paper protection thus offered to him.

"To correct this will be the first duty of the new administration in my opinion, and I am confident, not only that it can be done, but that it will be done."

DEATH LAID TO GANGSTER RIDE

Dallas Man Found Dying On City Street

DALLAS, Nov. 20. (AP)—Dallas detectives tonight were investigating a theory of murder in connection with the death of P. J. Justice, 50, found fatally injured in east Dallas just before midnight Saturday.

It was believed at first he had been in a traffic accident but police later obtained evidence that he had been beaten and thrown from an automobile.

Before his death early today, Justice told radio squad policemen he was beaten and hurled to the pavement by two men who robbed him of some whisky. He was hysterical as he related the affair, calling for a man named "Bill" to get off his feet and murmuring "you've already beaten me to death" and "leave me alone." He gave the full name of one and the first name of the other man and said they were traveling in a coupe.

Both of his legs were broken, his wrists bruised, his face badly cut on one side and he was hurt internally.

Two men were arrested and held for questioning.

Investigators learned that Justice is survived by a daughter, Miss Edna Justice, employe of a cafe in Fort Worth; and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lula Fay Graves of Dallas.

WIFE CHARGED WITH SLAYING

FORT WORTH, Nov. 20. (AP)—Shot as he stood in the door of his bedroom, John D. Wilson, 40, died less than an hour later in a hospital today.

A complaint charging murder was filed against Mrs. Wilson, 38.

Prostrated by the shooting, which she claimed was accidental, Mrs. Wilson signed a $3,000 bond. She was permitted to remain at home.

Witnesses, including the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and domestic employes, were questioned.

Statements made to Assistant District Attorney Green revealed that the shooting followed a quarrel between Wilson and Mrs. Wilson.

One of the children, Ruby, 15, was the sole eye-witness to the incident. She, bidden by her mother to pack her things, was in the bedroom with her mother when her father appeared at the door.

Mrs. Wilson had just finished preparing breakfast for her oldest son, John Wilson Jr., 19, and for Sam Huff, elderly hired man. The Wilson boy related that he and Huff were at the table in the kitchen when his father entered and walked over to his mother, who was standing at the stove cooking eggs. The elder Wilson, related the boy to Green, jerked the frying pan from his wife's hand, threatening to throw grease on her. A moment later, however, he left the room and, after finishing the eggs, Mrs. Wilson left.

After the shot, the elder Wilson reeled into the kitchen into his son's arms, gasping, "I'm shot," the boy continued. The mother, followed, screaming "Oh, I've shot him."

Mrs. Lillie McCarty, Former Wichitan, Dies

Mrs. Lillie McCarty, 76, former resident of Wichita Falls, died at her home in Denver, Colo., Saturday night, according to word received here Sunday by Dr. Joanna Campbell. Mrs. McCarty and her family lived here about 15 years, leaving in 1919, Dr. Campbell said.

Mrs. McCarty is survived by a daughter, Miss Clara McCarty, one son, Arthur; and two grandchildren, Aubry and Eva Mae Cockrell.

In Wichita Falls the family resided at 705 Scott avenue in a house later replaced by a business establishment.

Junior Forum Presents Best Program Of Season

Reports from the T. F. W. C. conference in Houston, the Russian motif used in table decorations and in the gowns of the program members and peasant frocks worn by hostesses, combined with the unusually splendid program to make the monthly meeting of the Junior Forum at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Saturday, one of the most outstanding of its time. Approximately 100 were present.

Miss Mary Virginia Barron, president, presided at the tables rich with Russian Samovars, handsome scarfs, and many other unique pieces and presented Mrs. Wilson Gray, chairman of the hostesses, who explained each piece and expressed the thanks of the juniors to Mesdames Charles Hartsook and Sam Kruger for the samovars, to W. B. McClurkan & Co. for the many lovely things they allowed used, and to Mesdames Guy Rogers, T. T. T. Reese, C. W. Gilliland, Kenneth Bebb, Wm. Young, Wm. McKemie, C. Y. Tully, Walter Priddy and Miss Ruth Ferguson for costumes available.

To emphasize the effect of the report made at Corpus Christi, where reports were so beautifully given that the eyes of the state were turned toward Wichita Falls juniors, the luncheon scene was reproduced. Miss Jeannette Moore, in the charming voice that won her recognition in New York as a perfect radio voice, presented Miss Mary Virginia Barron, as Mrs. Jasperson who was hostess of the Junior luncheon at the federation meeting. Miss Marguerite Peery gave the report as given there. As only three minutes were allowed for each report and the juniors in Wichita Falls had accomplished so much, Miss Peery received many compliments on being able to report rapidly and briefly the outstanding work done.

Mrs. P. P. Langford when presented, stressed loyalty to the Junior Forum and to the senior group, but stated that the juniors, by their work have become not only a local body, but their influence has spread over the entire United States. The fact that the record of the body involves a great responsibility, was emphasized. Though one member individually may be unimportant, Mrs. Langford said, as a group the Junior Forum must live up to the good work it has already done and which in time they will exceed.

Program Opens

A beautiful musical number opened the program in the form of a piano sextet, Misses Patsy Conner, Ruth Lucile Crouch, Ruth Mary Conner, Joyce Craft, Mary Emily Scheurer and Mary Florence Cowden playing "Barcarolle," from "Tales From Hoffman" by Ossenbach.

"A World Can End," by the former Countess Irina Vladimirovna, now Mrs. Victor E. Blakeslee, was splendidly reviewed by Misses Jessie Lucile Raley, Mary Louise Staley and Lennie Mangum, who were beautiful in their aristocratic Russian costumes.

Jessie Lucile Raley opened the review with the story of the country home, giving a beautiful outline of Irina's early life; the luxury that surrounded her; her visit to Germany where she met the crown prince; her return to her home where she married the Count Vladimirovna. The story was carried vividly by Miss Raley up to the time the great war broke out.

The Diary

A vivid picture of days during the revolution was given by Miss Mary Louise Staley, who showed how affairs were becoming worse and worse. The diary told of the rise of Kerensky; of the time she spent in studying the medical profession. It concluded with the rise in power of Lenin, a man ugly, old and uncouth, but whose beauty of character drew people to him.

Miss Lennie Mangum, in telling of the victims of the revolution, gave a poignant picture of the mother, the father and the countess. In each review the author's delightful, refreshing humor came to the surface, even though she told masterfully of the terrible death and the burial of her father.

The remarkable fineness of the interpretation was proved by the rapt attention given by the large number of young girls.

Russian Motif

Masses of chrysanthemums and autumn leafs and grapes added to the brilliance of the Russian motif.

Hostesses included Mrs. Nelson Gray, Misses Jean Hunter, Sadie Shain, Sally Bancroft, Kay Cason, Mary C. Boone, Elizabeth Albritton, Lydia Cook, Fay Clemmer, Katherine Douglass, Janelle Eichelberger, Mary Lou Hull, Lucile Farley, Mildred Johnson, Dorothy Johnson, Maude Moller, Corrine Moller, Adeena Kouri, Kathleen Melat and Lois Corbin.

Covers were laid for Misses Mary Elizabeth Hamlin, Billie Ralph Hyer, Mary Louise Staley, Lennie Mangum, Lucile Fraley, Jessie Lucelle Raley, Janelle Eichelberger, Frances Lauderback, Joan Fox, Mary Maples, Betty Hargett, Pauline Jane Art, Harriet Roberts, Sally Bancroft, Kay Cason, Christine McDonneld, Hallie Broday, Peggy Durkin, Evelyn Trimble, Laura Marie Marberry, Ida Catherine Neville, Audrey Ferguson, Roberta Lincoln, Jane Clayton, Beatrice Hathorn, Anna Katherine Howard, Gladys Stevenson, Mary C. PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

"It's a funny thing to me," said one of the group in our room, looking at a bowl of winter daisies on the table, "that a little old bush that has hung around looking dead and no account all through the summer, should cover itself with bloom when cold weather comes."

As an artistic success, we couldn't say much for the frost daisies in a bowl. The flowers might bloom only when the frost kissed them, but leaves and stem still had a wintry look. But our visitor went on: "There are people like that," he said. "They can rack along in everyday life and be among the unnoticed. But if trouble comes, they blossom. Kind o' pretty thought, after all," he added, patting himself on the chest.

An argument rose as to whether more praise should be showered on the blossoms that came only when others were gone and when biting winds had hit them, or on the flowers that made every little corner bright with color all through the summer season. "It's like eating strawberries out of season," argued a woman of strong views; "I like my strawberries and my tomatoes when they are supposed to be up in my home town.

To close the argument, we rose and carried the bowl out of the room. (To tell the truth, it did not have a very sweet odor anyway). But the same line of talk went on. As we re-entered, the first person who compared the winter blossoms, (which are really pretty when you look at them out of doors), with persons who shine out under trouble, was quoting poetry.

"Darkness shows us worlds of light we never see by day," he said complacently. "The stars are shining all the time, but you can't see them in the sunshine. When night comes, the sky twinkles with them."

Which led to violent argument. It seemed there were those who would far rather see sunshine and the flowers of the day than the moon and stars in the vaults of heaven.

Then we stepped in; (yes we did, dear enemy; we often do.) We remarked that the only thing we had ever seen in Texas that we could concede as more beautiful than the thing akin to it in our natal state, Tennessee, was the heaven above. Of course we know it is the same sky. But there's none we have ever seen in any place, quite equal to the blue night sky of Texas.

We have had a friend take us riding and call our attention to the perfect hour of the day—that when daylight is just melting into dusk—and we love it, but remember such hours on the Mississippi river. There is a little comparison almost always lingering back in our mind; we try to be polite enough not to mention it. Just lately, we have had several friends returning from visits, call us to tell us of the woods in Tennessee. The difference is that they die more bravely. They go out as the old Norsemen used to be placed on a blazing boat and perish in grandeur. So few Texas trees are gay as trees in the older states.

But Texas has more cows than Tennessee has; and then she has millions more acres of land and more varieties of vegetable and animal life. For one thing, Tennessee doesn't have tarantulas. But then she hasn't the magnificent poinsettias that Texas has. You see, one can praise Texas for so many more things than we can praise the dear old volunteer state for, though its very earth is dear to us. Still we are a Texas booster.

Crockett P.-T. A. Will Have Good Book Program

Carrigan P.-T. A. Operetta Proves Unusual Success

Praising the Carrigan P.-T. A. for undertaking the graveling of Blonde street in front of the school, H. D. Fillers assured a large and appreciative audience that attended the operetta, "Twilight Alley," Friday evening, that he thought the project an unusually heavy one and one that had seemed impossible for the organization, but that nevertheless, the work was going right ahead. Teachers of the school were commended for their loyalty, cooperation and untiring efforts in directing the operetta.

The stage setting for the opening scene of the operetta showed an old tenement, which, through many additions, had taken on the appearance of an old shoe. The occupants were such as one would find in the smoky slums of any large city.

Dame Needy, who lived with her large family in the tenement, was effectively played by Ethel Lee Jones. Bennie Wayne Nobles as "Lily," the well-to-do landlord's daughter, showed unusual ability.

The program was a success both as a show, and from the financial side, it was announced.

A. A. U. W. Group Has Saturday Program

Members of the international relations group of the American Association of University Women had their regular luncheon at the Wichita club Saturday at noon, with Mrs. Eleanbe D. Pace, chairman of the group presiding.

The feature of the program was an excellent address by W. A. Franklin, on "Our Trade Relations With the Orient." Mr. Franklin, who is a member of the high school and junior college faculty, made an interesting talk, following closely the facts as studied by the group.

The luncheon table, where chrysanthemums made pretty autumn decorations, had places laid for Mrs. Pace, Misses Elizabeth Bron, Lela Tomlinson, Mamie Raborn, Dora Raiborn and guest, Louise Kelly, Montague Thompson, and Mr. Franklin.

FATAL AUTO CRASH

STRAWN, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—Charlie Cox, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cox of Strawn, was instantly killed early today and Roy Eubanks, 27, of Graford, was injured slightly when their automobile struck a bridge one-half mile north of Strawn. They were returning from Medcalf Gap.

Marie Dressler's Double—Just For Fun

She's Marie Dressler's double—just for fun. And the fun of it is in having movie fans, theater men, even Hollywood acquaintances of the comedienne address her as Miss Dressler. Then Mrs. Elsie Southwick of Cleveland does her "Dressler-face-making"—and the Dressler fan goes away laughing, too. Here you see the resemblance. Marie Dressler and some of her "faces" are at the left. Mrs. Southwick, at the right, matches each expression.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

FORCED MANNERS

You can force a child to have fine manners. But you can never force him to carry the manner of a good mannered child. Manner is the expression of the directing mind, that is within. Manners are the veneer, the polish of the outside. A child can wear the manners of an adult but they sit on him as the clothes of the adult might sit. They are no better fit.

Little children do not understand grownup manners. They do not know why we say, Good morning, or, How are you? The sounds have no meaning to them because they have no roots in their experience. It is true the child can be forced to make these gestures of manners but what of it? What good comes of it? If a child looks up and smiles a greeting that is all that is needed. He speaks his own language of welcome and that is in itself good manners. If he ignores the presence of the adult let him alone. There is no need of making him conscious of the situation save by your example. You can do the greeting and speed the parting. By and by he will imitate you and later on the imitation becomes his own action.

The child who is busy building a house of blocks is not aware of the entrance of visitors save in the slight degree that they waken his senses. He is not sufficiently aroused to make him leave his play and say polite words. It is the height of folly to insist that he leave his play, come forward and greet the guests, shaking hands, bowing and saying, "How do you do." Far better to let him alone until his mind is free to note the guests. Then if he comes forward of his own accord, say for him the words he needs, and make the greeting as simple and as easy for him as possible. There is no pleasure for the guests in a painful lesson on manners with themselves as the object of regard and the weeping child as the victim.

The effort to force good manners, adult standards upon little children is not only wasted, it is directed in a wrong way for a bad cause. The child who is put into the straight jacket of adult manners is stunted. His way of growth is wild and free. He is noisy. He is careless of the feelings of others because he is unconscious of them. He is to be trained to gentleness and consideration by slow and patient methods. Instruction is polite behavior is to be given privately. Most of all the examples that are set for him must conform to the standards to which he is to be held. This background is what gives a child his manners and his manner. He takes it in with his daily bread. It becomes a part of him and remains a part of him for life.

The child who has been subdued to wearing the manners of the polite adult is a sad child. A sad child does not grow. The real test of any method of instruction is the happiness of the child. If he is happy he is growing. If he is unhappy there is something wrong and it must be changed.

I would not have this constructed to mean that children are not to be taught good manners. This instruction is essential. I am asking only that the method and the standards are to be closely scrutinized lest they do more harm than good. Terrible thoughts may lurk behind the polite mask of a little child. Force always breeds resentment and forced manners are no exception to that rule.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Royal Livestock Show Called Most Successful

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 20. (UP)—The American Royal Livestock and Horse show, which ended Saturday night with crowning of the grand champions, today was characterized by officials as the "most successful" in the exhibition's history.

Although attendance fell off almost 40 per cent from last season, the list of entries and amount of cash prizes exceeded any other in the mid-West, it was said.

Most of the entries were shipped from here to Chicago for opening of the international livestock show which opens Saturday.

Escaped Convict Suicides In Battle With Posse

MT. ORAB, Ohio, Nov. 20. (UP)—An escaped convict, sought in the murder of a sheriff, shot and killed himself here today after a furious gun battle with a posse of police authorities.

The dead man, identified as James Webster, 35, accused of killing Sheriff Ray Compton of Rushville, Ind., was found in the house where he had barricaded himself against the attack by the posse.

Capt. Lynn Black, head of the county police, and one of the score of police and deputies which formed the posse, was shot in the groin during the battle. He received his wound while hurling a gas bomb through a window. Black's condition was not critical. He is a former member of the West Virginia state police force.

Wichita Falls Writer Recognized Abroad

In a beautiful blue volume called "Principal Poets of the World," just issued by the Mitre press of London, with thin, exquisite paper making a large volume appear a small and handy one, there has just appeared a bibliography and poem by Pearle Moore Stevens, whose work is becoming recognized in America and abroad, according to honors conferred upon her.

Mrs. Stevens was recently appointed vice president of the International Writer's League for Texas, and at the same time, it has been announced, was elected to life membership. The International Writers League is composed of more than 2,000 members, poets, short story writers, musicians, artists and sculptors.

In November, her poems have been accepted by "Visions," "Twilight," "Expression," Amarillo News," "Poetry World," Stratford Magazine, the Houston Chronicle and the Tulsa World, it is announced.

The poem chosen by the Mitre press is "A Texas Sunset," from her volume, "The Singing Soul."

She has also appeared in "The New World Anthology," "Contemporary American Poets," "Spring Anthology, 1930" and "Autumn Anthology," 1931, and in "Who's Who Among North American Writers."

In her bibliography, Mrs. Stevens says "I have tried to see beauty everywhere and have made it my earnest task to create it in verse that others may enjoy it."

Few Wichitans have received as widespread recognition in the line of poetry as Pearl Moore Stevens.

A record of the colors of 3,900 bricks, collected from all parts of the country, has been made by the bureau of standards. Colors ranged from light buff to deep red.

How Does a Woman Champion Manage?

Women champions cannot have "off days." Day after day of practice and play, and matches that permit no postponements. Then how do they manage during menstrual periods when other women are sunk with pain? They meet these monthly emergencies with Midol, and they don't ever experience a twinge of periodic pain.

Harmless as it is, a Midol tablet blocks all possibility of periodic pain for hours at a stretch. It isn't a narcotic. But it acts in seven minutes, and lets you menstruate in comfort! Just ask the druggist for Midol.

Q.—Did Eugene Field's brother achieve any distinction as a writer?—D. L.

A.—Roswell Martin Field's career in many ways paralleled his brother's. He was a journalist, column conductor, and bibliophile. His column, Lights and Shadows, on the Chicago Evening Post ran for over 14 years. He was also a music and dramatic critic and an accomplished pianist. He was the author of several volumes, none of which attained the popularity of Echoes from the Sabine Farm, written in collaboration with his brother. Louis Untermeyer says "Overshadowed by his more dazzling and prolific brother Roswell Martin Field was by no means the less gifted of the two."

Q.—How long has the chrysanthemum been cultivated?—G. C.

A.—The chrysanthemum is the national flower of Japan where it has been known in cultivation for at least 2,000 years. The conventionalized symbol of the chrysanthemum is used as the national coat of arms, the 16-petalled form of which is used only by members of the Japanese imperial family.

Q.—What is the record time between New York and Washington by automobile?—T. C.

A.—No races over public highways are given recognition by the contest board of the American Automobile association or reputable organizations. Such races are considered a menace to public safety and are therefore discouraged.

Q.—Has there ever been a movement toward abolishing the electoral college?—M. T.

A.—There have been several motions in the house and senate looking for a change in the system of electing a president, one as early as 1803. In 1868 a motion was made for the direct election of president, again in 1874 and 1877. President Jackson included a recommendation for the abolishment of the electoral college and direct vote of the president in each of his annual messages to congress from 1829 to 1836.

Q.—Hasn't blue coal been adopted and trade-marked by one company?—P. S.

A.—While blue coal was employed for certain purposes some years ago, it is now trade-marked as an identification of the coal of the Glen Alden company.

Q.—What is the origin of the expression, "by the great horn spoon?"—K. O. L.

A.—Authorities differ in regard to the origin of the expression but the Cook Museum of Natural History has spoons made from the horns of big horn sheep in its collection and it seems probable that the expression was evolved from the horn ladles which were in common use by the Sioux and other tribes before trade utensils from the whites weer available.

Q.—What is the name of the heavy wood which can not be split?—N. T.

A.—Owing to the diagonal and oblique arrangement of the successive layers of its fibers, lignum vitae can not be split. On account of its hardness, durability and density it is much valued for the manufacture of ship's pulleys, rulers, skittle balls, mallets and similar articles.

Q.—How much does a dozen eggs weigh?—M. K. O.

A.—Eggs generally weigh from 23 to 25 ounces to the dozen, but may vary from 18 to 32 ounces.

Q.—What are the cobwebs made of which are used in old houses in the movies?—W. D.

A.—They are made of finely shredded asbestos.

The Tragedy of Divorce

A NEW YORK woman and her divorced husband got into court not long ago to squabble over the custody of their 8-year-old daughter.

Their divorce decree had ordered that the child stay with one parent for six months and then with the other for an equal length of time. The father, in this instance, was complaining that the girl was being kept from him; the mother was countering with the charge that the girl didn't want to stay with her father at all.

Taking the matter under advisement, the court remarked that "parental affection cannot be instilled by court orders"; and it is too bad that that remark cannot be impressed on the minds of all married folk, especially those who are making eyes in the direction of the divorce courts.

The increase in divorce in this country in the last decade or two is tragic chiefly because of the children involved.

A child whose parents cannot go on living together is robbed of something unspeakably precious, something to which it is by rights entitled; an undivided home in which it can draw affection and guidance from both its father and mother.

A man and a woman who decide that they must separate take a heavy responsibility on their shoulders when they agree to take that right from their child. Under the best of conditions, the child is going to suffer enough; but how much more tragic does it become when the father and mother can't agree on the child's custody and have to go to court again to have the matter straightened out!

And it is the welfare of the child that is usually lost sight of in the tussle. The bewilderment and loneliness that a youngster must suffer in such circumstances are hard to think of calmly; and it is hard to sympathize with the parents when they complain bitterly that they are losing the child's companionship and affection. Of course they are—and why not? They have done the child a profound wrong. What do they expect?

Utilities Securities Should Be Regulated

RESOLUTIONS urging establishment of a federal fact finding bureau to aid the federal government, the state and cities and the courts in dealing with public utilities and stricter regulation as between utilities and holding companies were introduced for study before the annual convention of the National Association of Railroads and Utilities Commissioners now functioning in the city of Hot Springs, Ark. Commissioner Hugh White of Alabama submitted the resolution. Speaking of the Insull failure he said: "The last 12 months have furnished a financial collapse in the case of the Insull companies which, in the magnitude of losses to stockholders, is unsurpassed in ancient or modern times." There are many units of the Insull companies now being salvaged. They are said to be dividend payers, and in time others, not dividend payers, may recoup their losses and become very valuable properties. Government regulation of holding companies as to the securities floated is one of the demands of the Chicago platform. Indeed, President-elect Roosevelt is committed to the regulation pledge and procedure.

What Happened to Them?

THE way in which the electorate moves to the polls—or, as the case often is, fails to move—seems to be a mystery-shrouded affair which is almost beyond solution.

Approximately 47,000,000 American voters were registered for the past election. An utterly unprecedented outpouring at the polls was expected. But it appears, now, that approximately 10,000,000 of these registered voters forgot to do anything about actually voting. This year's total vote, it seems, will prove when finally added up no greater than that of 1928, if indeed it is quite as great.

What happened to those lost 10,000,000? Did they decide that the fight was so one-sided that their votes wouldn't make any difference? They originally planned to vote, or they wouldn't have taken the trouble of qualifying. What came over them between registration day and election day?

A Point Worth Harping On

IN CONNECTION with the renewed negotiations over the war debts, a little remark recently printed by the London Daily Herald, organ of the British Labor party, is worth reprinting here. The Herald said:

"The United States would be much more ready to offer easement to Europe if the disarmament conference at Geneva is successful. What right have the debtor countries to plead inability to meet their obligations if they continue to squander money on armaments?

That is a point which has occurred to countless American citizens already, and it is worth harping on. The debts, from all indications, are gone forever. Well, we can stand it if we have to; but aren't we entitled to wonder how a Europe too poor to meet its obligations can continue to spend enormous sums each year on military preparations?

And Still We Will Not Learn

THE automobile age in this country is well past the quarter-century mark by now, and you would almost think that by this time we would have learned how to get over railroad grade crossings safely.

Evidently, though, we haven't. A minor item in recent newspapers was a dispatch from an Ohio town, telling how a speeding passenger train crushed a touring car and killed its four occupants; tomorrow there will be a similar article from somewhere else, and next year at this time there will be still another.

Where a crossing is protected by a signal, the most witness driver ought to be able to avoid all danger. Even where it isn't a decent amount of caution is all that is needed. No motorist will be hit by a train if he is willing to observe the most elementary rules of care.

SO THEY SAY!

Washington, the admiral, is a new term, yet that is the title which the navy's studies of his long struggle gives him. Though he never gained the title, there is no doubt as to his right to be so considered.—Secretary of the Navy Adams.

It's flattering for me to know
That I am utmost in your mind;
When I displease, you tell me so
In manner feminine and kind.

My tactless ways, my lack of poise,
Are driven home with subtle grace;
And I'm the luckiest of boys
To hear your sermons, face to face.

I realize that I've improved
A hundredfold since I've met you;
By your permission I've been moved
To drop the things I shouldn't do.

But now, since each obnoxious trait
Is parked forever on the shelf,
I really think it would be great
If you'd improve a bit, yourself!

Overheard

Al Brackman says he overheard it on a Bronx express. A passenger said to a Joosh jentleman: "I like the people in the Bronx. They are smart, energetic, hard workers. But—I can't understand—why is it when you ask them a question they usually answer you with one?"

To which the Mefoofsky replied: "So wot do you want from me?"

"Dear Winchell," writes Drut, "your detractors (everything else having failed) are now busily spreading the report that you give waiters nickel tips. As if you ever gave them that much!"

Wynn or Lose

Ray Mayer, who is a bit of a critic at heart and a gag writer for radio clowns, writes: "After hearing Ed Wynn's program last week I would suggest that they change the opening announcement from: 'Texaco presents Ed Dynn with Don Voorhees' orchestra to 'Texaco presents Ed Wynn with $5,000!'"

Good Pitcher, Tho'

Lefty Gomez, the star pitcher of the Yanks last season, and June O'Dea are going to middle-aisle it some day, or have they already? At any rate, Gomez, who is called "The Goofy Castilian" by his team mates, was being kidded.

One of the coarser players cracked: "Hey, Lefty. How about a coupla Annie Oakleys (passes) to the weddin'?"

To which Gomez replied: "Sure! I'll interdooce yuh to all the gals."

As If You Didn't Know

Miss Guinan (and what happened to her wedding plans?) wants to spoil today's column with: "Wives have beauty secrets and husbands have secret beauties."

Just for the Records

Far be it from us to proofread that swell writer and grand rhetorician, Mr. B. DeCasseres, but it simply has to be done, so that future historians won't be misled. In his article on "Jack's" for Mr. Mencken, DeCasseres sets forth that Sam Johnson said: "Beer for women, wine for men and brandy for the gods."

Now, DeCasseres can usually be depended upon to get a quotation correctly, only this is what Johnson said in his talks with Boswell: "Claret is the liquor for boys; port for men; but he who aspires to be a hero must drink brandy."

It seems to some of us that Ben has made a better job of it than Johnson did, but he was quoting Johnson. We mean misquoting him. And so long as we can't prevent an army from misquoting us almost daily, we get just as much fun stopping DeCasseres from misquoting another Boswell.

MYSTERIOUS STEEL BLOCKS—Shiny little blocks of steel, with dimensions so accurate that they reduce error in measurement to less than four millionths of an inch, are the keystone of this modern mass production age. The surfaces of these blocks are so smooth that when placed together with a sliding or twisting motion, which squeezes all air from between them, they actually adhere. The Johansson precision gauge blocks, when put together in this fashion, will support a weight of 200 pounds.

Princess Rules Land Of Make-Believe

Nursery Walls Still Bound Horizon of Little Elizabeth of England

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Though a half-year has passed since her sixth birthday made her "really a big girl," Princess Elizabeth still lives in the land of make-believe.

The little girl, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York and third in line of succession to the British throne, is the nation's idol. Only her bachelor "Uncle David," Prince of Wales, and her own father stand between her and the crown, but her horizon is still limited by the walls of her nursery.

Toy Pony Is Vicious

Just how true this is, is told by Anne King in bringing up to date the life story of "Lilabet," the first volume of which came out two years ago.

"Princess Elizabeth has a toy pony on wheels called Tommy, stabled behind the black and gold lacquer screen in the drawing room of her parents' home," the authoress now relates.

"When she is grooming or harnessing Tommy, no visitor may approach him till his mistress has whispered an introduction into his ears. For Tommy dislikes strangers and will bite. Furthermore, coming up behind Tommy within range of his flying heels would be simply suicidal."

"Grannie" Joins Games

Princess Elizabeth "loves going to Windsor," where she has her real pony, "Peggy," and where watching the soldiers' commands a goodly share of her time.

When she plays with her grandmother, Queen Mary, the authoress relates that seized with excitement, the little girl will cry out: "Oh, Grannie, you mustn't win, you mustn't win!"

Her grandmother's opinion of the princess was given in a few words: "I don't think any child could be more sensibly brought up. She leads such a simple life and she always is punished when she's naughty."

Most of the little girl's introduction to the world of affairs is coming through books, since she can read now though she still loves best for grown-ups to read stories and nursery rhymes to her.

She has a few short lessons in the morning—music, French and riding—and the rest of her time is passed quietly in the nursery with her baby sister, Princess Margaret, or with her parents.

"She knows nothing of that other side of her life, that aspect of herself as a nation's idol," the authoress writes. "She remains just a little girl, like any other girl playing with her baby sister, and passionately fond of her parents."

Among the princess' pets, besides the pony, is a small canary called "Sandy," after her small cousin.

Splashing sturdily through rain, Princess Elizabeth, 6-year-old idol of the British nation, strides toward the seats provided for her and her parents, the Duke and Duchess of York, when they attended a recent meet at Olympia, in London. The little girl, latest reports say, is still childishly ignorant of her possible future as queen of England.

"Did Sandy give him to you?" asked the duchess once.

"Yes," was the reply, "when he was an egg."

When, two years ago, the princess heard that she had a baby sister, Princess Margaret Rose, she was highly delighted and adopted the role of protectress.

"I'm going to call her 'bud,'" she announced soon after the baby's birth.

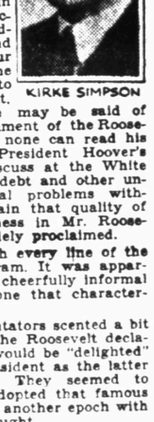

"Oh, but why 'bud'?" protested the duchess. "I don't think I like that."

"Well, she's not a real rose yet, is she?" said the princess. "She's only a bud."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Less than a week after his election as president, Governor Roosevelt was called upon to give the country—and the world, incidentally—an advance taste of his qualities.

KIRKE SIMPSON

He was called upon to formulate, what amounted to "No. 1" in the file of the records of his administration, and that nearly four months before he actually was to become president.

Whatever else may be said of that initial document of the Roosevelt presidency, none can read his acceptance of President Hoover's invitation to discuss at the White House the war debt and other unspecified national problems without sighting again that quality of political astuteness in Mr. Roosevelt now so widely proclaimed.

It ran through every line of the Roosevelt telegram. It was apparent even in the cheerfully informal and personal tone that characterized it all.

Some commentators scented a bit of mischief in the Roosevelt declaration that he would be "delighted" to meet the president as the latter had suggested. They seemed to think he had adopted that famous Roosevelt ism of another epoch with malice aforethought.

Purely Informal

What impressed the Bystander particularly was something quite different. Left often to surround himself with a battery of expert advisers of his own selection, Mr. Hoover having made his invitation wide enough for that, Mr. Roosevelt elected instead an informal cross-table talk with the president.

He neither committed himself in advance to any course of action or policy, nor did he embarrass in any way the personal problem he must so soon tackle of picking out his own cabinet. It looked like a neat escape from a possibly perplexing situation.

Then Mr. Roosevelt also suggested that "in the last analysis" responsibility in meeting the immediate issue raised by the debt notes rested with President Hoover "and legislative authority." That last phrase especially impressed the Bystander.

It appears to be a graceful recognition of present congressional leadership, including that of the Democratic house, from the titular head of the party whose own functions do not apply directly at all to the present congress.

Would Be "Helpful"

That idea is supported by Mr. Roosevelt's explanation to the president that he expected to hold conferences with party congressional leaders—that is leaders in the present congress—at Warm Springs and that what might develop in his talk with Mr. Hoover as to the president's views on the debt situation would be "helpful" in that connection.

Certainly no Democratic senator or representative now charged with responsibility could have his feelings hurt by this delicate suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt merely hopes to be helpful to them in reaching decisions that only they can reach.

The governor makes his first move in the game of national leadership in diplomatic fashion that suggests to political observers keen understanding of the human elements in the situation.

Book Translated By Hoovers Soars To $1,000 Value

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 20.—A book translated from the Latin by Herbert Clark Hoover and his wife, Lou Henry Hoover, has increased in value one hundred times in the 20 years it has been in the library of the state university of Iowa.

The book is "Agricola de Re Metallica," written by the historian Agricola and printed in 1556. It is regarded as the only complete treatise on mining and metallurgy up to 1625.

The translation made by Mr. and Mrs. Hoover in 1912 is the only English translation made, though the task was attempted by several others.

The university library paid $10 for the translation, which was missing from the shelves of the engineering branch for several years, later being located in the geology library.

Only a limited edition of the Hoover version was published, and when the library here tried to purchase a second copy in 1930, a London publishing house quoted a price of 45 pounds. Later, another copy was offered for sale for $1,000.

Sunset Pastor, 84, Minister 61 Years

Special to The Record News.

SUNSET, Texas, Nov. 20.—Rev. W. L. Crawford, who observed his 82nd birthday Monday, Nov. 7, is the oldest minister of the gospel in this vicinity. He has been a minister in the Baptist denomination for 61 years and during that time has done pastoral and missionaly work in Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas.

Rev. Mr. Crawford graduated from Mercer university, Macon, Ga., shortly after he began preaching. He was appointed as chaplain of the state penitentiary at Cole City, Ga., in 1874, and held that position for four years. During his services there many convicts were converted and a strong church was built up in the "pen." The convicts were marched to the water and were baptized under guard.

Prior to moving to Sunset four years ago, Rev. Mr. Crawford was mayor of Indianola, Okla., for 16 years and was pastor of an Indian Baptist church for several years of the time. Prior to his residence in Oklahoma he resided in this vicinity for several years and held pastoral positions in Montague and Clay counties.

Rev. Mr. Crawford has preached thousands of sermons and done a great deal of other religious work but he has retired from pastors' services and does but little public preaching now.

Truck Farmer At Sunset Makes $100 From Tomato Crop

Special to The Record News.

SUNSET, Texas, Nov. 20.—J. H. Moore, a farmer residing three miles northeast from Sunset, follows the plan of crop diversification every year and the most profitable product grown on his place is tomatoes.

Mr. Moore produced 10,000 pounds of marketable tomatoes on slightly less than an acre and a half crop this year. They were sold at an average of 1 cent a pound, bringing $100 for the entire crop. Last year he produced less tomatoes on the same amount of ground as that cultivated this year but succeeded in selling them for $200, twice the sum obtained for this year's crop. Year before last he sold $300 worth of tomatoes from his acre and a half crop.

Corn, cotton, peanuts, watermelons, cantaloupes, potatoes and several other products are cultivated on the Moore farm every year. The cash income from his crops is less than that which he desires, but he is making a good living on the farm for himself and family.

Petrified Forest Sold By Indian To Build Garage

ADA, Okla., Nov. 20. (AP)—Ada's celebrated petrified forest, long a subject of study by scientists, is no more.

The petrified wood has been sold by its Indian owner for use in construction of a commercial garage.

The "forest," with remains of giant trees of the long ago scattered where they fell, was described by geologists as the largest of its kind in the Southwest. Each year it attracted scientific observers from many institutions.

Geologists said it was a rare exhibit of remains from the Holdenville formation of the younger Pennsylvanian age.

Ada civic leaders had hoped to include the forest in a 20-acre park, but the petrified wood was sold and hauled away before they could obtain the land.

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

Wurry, Wurry

Well, according to the team's past record, the Coyotes are due to play a whale of a game against Abilene next Thursday. They seem to be able to play great football only when they know they have no chance whatever to win. But put them up against a team they can beat, like the Stripling boys, and they get so tangled up in haywire they look like a bunch of farmers.

About Those Officials

The officials at the Coyote-Stripling game here last Friday came in for considerable criticism, most of it deserved. The bad showing was largely the result of the referee's inclination to be too lenient with players of both teams. The referee in the game was Danny Lynch, former Oak Cliff High school star, and Friday's game was the first he had refereed this year. That may have had something to do with it.

Both teams made life miserable for Lynch by constant use of profanity. Lynch could have prevented this by letting the players know, at the very start of the game, that he was the boss and intended to be respected as such. Instead, he was lenient. When Lynch made a close decision early in the game one of the players called him something we would not dare print here. Instead of promptly penalizing that player's team 15 yards for use of profanity, Lynch let the matter drop. Seeing they could take advantage of the referee, the players abused him more and more as the game went on, and even feigned to be seriously injured after being tackled, in the hope that Lynch would penalize the other side for roughing.

In one way, the players cannot be blamed. It is human nature for young boys on the gridiron to scrap for every advantage when they see they have the referee "buffaloed" as Lynch was. Of course Lynch was entirely to blame, as we said before. He should have exercised the mailed fist from the very beginning. But the players had their part in it too. They showed mighty little sportsmanship in crying for advantages they couldn't make by playing straight football. And as for the use of profanity, show me a good football team and I'll show you a team that never even thinks of cursing an official or any person on the field; it is only the third rate teams that tear their hair and curse and make much noise. Both the Coyotes and the Yellowjackets of Fort Worth had better start mending their ways.

What About This?

Here's another question involving an official. A Wildcat fan from Crowell writes concerning the two points Burkburnett scored against Crowell in their district 4, class B, conference game recently. Crowell won the game, 13 to 2. The letter follows:

"Dear Rambler:

"In a night game at Burkburnett not long ago the following incident occurred:

"Dick Todd, playing safety for Crowell, stood practically on his own goal line and apparently intended to let a Burk punt roll over the goal line for a touchback. The ball, however, instead of bouncing straight over the goal line, bounced into Todd, then bounding on over the goal line. Todd managed to recover the elusive pigskin but was across the goal line and covered by Burk players when he did it. Referee ruled this a safety and two points for Burk. Please read clipping from Fort Worth Star Telegram of a like incident which occurred in the T. C. U.-Texas game wherein the referee called it a touchback, not a safety. What do you think, Mr. Rambler? Was there some mistake in one of these two rulings?"

The clipping from the Fort Worth paper referred to above follows:

"There was much discussion of the play just before the first quarter ended when the Frogs downed Hilliard in his own end zone after a punt. On the play Brannon punted from Texas' 40-yard line. Hilliard tried to catch the ball but it caromed off his fingers into the end zone. Hilliard raced back and recovered the ball but was smothered back of the goal line.

"Most of the crowd thought that a safety had been scored and the scoreboard so indicated. However, under the rules it was only a touchback. The rule states that if the force that put the ball back of the goal line is furnished by the attacking side, the Frogs in this instance, it is a touchback. Brannon's kick furnished the impetus that put the ball over the goal and the fact that Hilliard touched the ball in the field of play does not make any difference."

If the play in the Crowell-Burk game occurred exactly as the Crowell fan says it did, it seems to this writer it should have been called a touchback, not a safety. We suggest, however, that authorities of the two schools investigate the matter and question the official who refereed the game. It doesn't make much difference, but since opposite opinions on the matter are running around, it might be a good idea to settle it.

Bowie All-Stars Beat Henriettans

Special to The Record News.

BOWIE, Texas, Nov. 20.—Led by Speedy Blanton, elusive offensive threat, the Bowie All-Stars defeated the Henrietta All-Stars here today, 19 to 0. Blanton, former captain of the Vernon High school football team, provided the big thrill of the contest in the fourth quarter when he intercepted a Henrietta pass and ran 70 yards for a touchdown.

Bowie scored again earlier in the quarter when Blanton circled left end for a 15-yard run that carried him across.

The first marker came in the opening period when Bowie recovered a Henrietta fumble on the latter's 30-yard line and marched down the field, Murphy taking it over from the 2-yard line. Murphy bucked the line thereafter for the only extra point of the game.

TEAMS CLASH TURKEY DAY

Vernon Meets Sherman If Winners Over Tigers

By FRED THOMPSON
Record News Sports Editor

The possibility of the Electra Tigers springing an upset victory over the Vernon Lions at Vernon Thanksgiving day, thus throwing the Lions and Quanah Indians in a tie for the championship, is the main subject for conjecture among followers of the district 5, class A, football marathon.

The "marathon" this season, as it was last, has been a race between Vernon and Quanah towards the championship, and a separate and distinct race between Electra, Wichita Falls and Childress towards the cellar. Wichita Falls almost kept up with their Electra and Childress brethren in the race for the bottom but wasn't quite bad enough, finishing with two victories and two losses. Childress so far leads the bleak parade with three losses, with Electra close behind, with one victory and two losses.

Tigers Sure to Fight

Whether the Tigers will turn about face and lace the Lions Turkey day depends apparently on the attitude of the Lions, and the fight of the Tigers. Should an over-confident Vernon crew take the field against Electra, a ringing upset might be expected, for the Tigers year after year have not failed to put up their best fight of the season against the boys coached by Heinie Weir in the Wilbarger county seat.

Only a complete lapse on the part of the Lions, however, would enable Electra to spring the upset. The fast Vernon backfield cannot be matched by the Tigers, and the hard-charging Vernon line is doped to rip holes in the Electra defense.

The Vernon-Electra game and the Quanah-Childress scrap will bring the district race to a close next Thursday. Childress is given no chance at all against Quanah, the dethroned champion.

If Vernon comes through with the victory over Electra, the Lions will start immediate preparations for their bidistrict game with the Sherman Bearcats, champions of district No. 6. Sherman last week whipped Denison, 19-6, to win its district crown.

Vernon authorities, it was understood, are making a strong bid to have the bidistrict game played at Vernon. If the efforts are successful the game will be played on the Lions' field some time next week.

Use Rockne Shift

If the two teams do clash it should be a highly interesting and hard-fought battle. Sherman, using the Notre Dame offensive tactics, is rated as a bang-up football team. The bidistrict clash would be all the more interesting in that it would feature the Notre Dame methods and the Pop Warner tactics that Coach Weir has implanted in his offense.

Vernon took a rest last week while the other four teams in the district were having no success whatever in practice games. Quanah made the best showing of them all in holding the mighty Pampa Harvesters to a 6 to 0 decision. Ordinarily Pampa would have been rated at least 20 to 30 points better than Quanah, but Dan Stallworth's Indians came out of the fracas with banners flying, even though the score went against them.

Electra, seeking experience before their crucial game with Vernon, went to Breckenridge, and got it. The score: Breckenridge 38, Electra 0. The Childress team met about the same fate at the hands of the class B Clarendon team, losing 21 to 0.

Same Old Pack

The Wichita Falls Coyotes, after making a pretty good showing against Amarillo the week previous, got back into their old losing habits and felt perfectly at home in dropping a 12 to 0 decision to a team it should have whipped by at least three touchdowns. The victor was the Stripling High school team of Fort Worth. The Coyotes made their worst showing of the season, despite the fact they twice held the enemy on their own one-yard line when Stripling had first down and the yard to make.

FOUR FOOTBALL RACES DECIDED

Mythical Championship Row Waxes Warmer

By HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (AP)—Sectional titles in half the nation's eight major conferences had been decided definitely today, but arguments over the mythical national championship rage more furiously than ever.

With some slight trepidation, however, the suggestion is ventured that when and if the dispute is satisfactorily settled, the nomination will go to one of a group including Southern California, Michigan, Auburn, Pitt, Army, Notre Dame, and either Brown or Colgate, depending upon the outcome of their Thanksgiving day game at Providence.

Four Races Settled

Several of these are certain to be eliminated in the next two or three weeks. Southern California, in addition to a conference game with Washington, must play Notre Dame Dec. 10, two weeks after the Ramblers' clash with Army. Pitt, conqueror of both Army and Notre Dame but tied by Ohio State and Nebraska, still has the Stanford hurdle to vault. Michigan has completed its schedule and Auburn has only South Carolina on the list.

Conference races already decided show the following new or repeating champions:

Big Ten—Michigan.
Big Six—Nebraska.
Rocky Mountain—Utah.
Missouri Valley—Oklahoma A. & M.

The leaders in the other four conference or sectional races, not yet definitely decided, were:

Southwest—Texas Christian.
Pacific—Southern California and University of California at Los Angeles.
South—Auburn.
East—Brown, Colgate, Pitt, Army.

Few Upsets Saturday

Yesterday's firing, one of the last big salvos of the waning season, offered few surprises except in the scores. All the leading favorites won although in some instances, by much narrower margins than had been expected. Weather conditions—a driving rain in the East and intense cold in the mid-West—were responsible for some of these surprises.

Michigan, co-holder of the Big Ten title with Northwestern and Purdue a year ago, assumed sole ownership of the 1932 crown by beating Minnesota, 3-0, on Harry Newman's placement field goal. Purdue, unbeaten but tied by Northwestern, wound up in second place, routing Indiana, 25-7, in its final contest. Ohio State also called upon a field goal to whip Illinois, 3-0, but Wisconsin trounced Chicago, 18-7, and Northwestern ran up a 44-6 count on Iowa.

Nebraska, although it still has Missouri to play, clinched the Big Six championship with a 5-0 victory over Oklahoma. Kansas upset Kansas State, 19-0, in another conference game while Iowa State defeated Drake of the Missouri Valley group, 34-13.

Utah Clinches Crown

Utah swept to its fifth successive Rocky Mountain title as the Indians turned back the Colorado Aggies, 16-0. Brigham Young, beating the Utah Aggies, 18-6, clinched second place.

Notre Dame, traveling the comeback road after its defeat by Pitt, ran into a stout-hearted Navy defense, but won, 12-0, yet the East countered this intersectional defeat with Fordham's 8-6 triumph over Oregon State. The mid-West chalked up two other intersectional victories as Marquette whipped Washing & Jefferson, 6-0, and Creighton handed Wyoming a 34-0 lacing, but suffered one reverse as Gonzaga beat South Dakota, 12-0.

The eastern program was featured by Yale's great show of strength in overpowering Harvard, 19-0. Pitt and Army eked out one-touchdown victories, the former beating Carnegie Tech 6-0, and Army turning back West Virginia Wesleyan, 7-0, but Columbia and Holy Cross found the muddy going too much of a handicap and played scoreless ties with Syracuse and Manhattan, respectively. Temple's undefeated record was marred by Villanova, 7-0, and Lafayette climaxed an otherwise dismal season with a 25-6 rout of its traditional rival, Lehigh.

Auburn Beats Georgia

Auburn all but made certain of the Southern conference titble by overcoming and early Georgia lead to win, 14-7. Tulane swamped Sewanee, 26-0, and Maryland, Duke and Georgia Tech won by one touchdown margins over Washington & Lee, North Carolina and Florida, respectively.

The University of California at Los Angeles knocked over Montana as expected, 82-0, but finds Washington blocking its path toward a share in the Pacific Coast conference title with Southern California. Stanford and California engaged in their annual "big battle" and wound up in a scoreless tie.

Texas Christian virtually clinched the Southwest title by overcoming Rice, 16-6, and now has only the much-beaten Southern Methodist Mutsangs to face. Texas, walloping Arkansas 34-0, Friday, faces Texas A. & M. in its final battle and gain a tie for the title only if the Mustangs upset Texas Christian. Southern Methodist, incidentally, suffered its third defeat in five conference games when Baylor romped to a 19-0 victory.

Oklahoma A. & M. ended an undefeated Missouri Valley conference campaign with a 27-0 victory over Grinnell Friday.

Steers May Play Bidistrict Contest With District 6 Champion At Graham

Herd Finishes Conference Season Undefeated; Nocona, Jacksboro and Bridgeport Tie for Second Place

Two games last week-end brought the district No. 5, class B, race to a close. One of them was Graham's 13 to 0 victory over Nocona; the other Jacksboro's 38 to 13 victory over Bowie. The Graham victory brought the Steers of Young county undisputed title to the championship of the district, not a single contender in which was able to stop the Graham onslaught.

The Steers will meet the tricky Chillicothe Eagles of district four at Graham on Thanksgiving day, but the game will have no bearing on Graham's quest for the title of region No. 2, which includes districts five, six, seven and eight. So far as the regional chase is concerned, Graham is forced to wait until two leaders in district No. 6 fight it out for the championship. The winner will meet Graham in the bidistrict game.

Playoff Scheduled Monday

Bonham and Commerce are at present tied for the district six lead, the teams having played a scoreless tie week before last. According to information reaching Graham, the two teams have conference games booked for Thanksgiving day. They are expected to win both easily, as their opposition isn't so hot. In such event, they will play off the first-place tie on Monday following Thanksgiving, and the winner will play the Steers the following Friday, probably at Graham, for Graham authorities have already made fat propositions to both Bonham and Commerce in the hope of getting the bidistrict game played at the Young county metropolis.

The winner of this bidistrict game will meet the champion of districts seven and eight in the regional final.

Noconans No Set-Up

The Nocona Indians bowed to the mighty Steers last Friday at Nocona, but in no such easy fashion as Graham had anticipated. The scrapping Indians did a truly noble job in holding the Steers to two touchdowns, and probably taught the Steers a lesson that might come in handy in their bidistrict contest. The Steers, it was reported, were a little over-confident when they invaded Nocona.

The Steers' inability to walk over the Braves, coupled with the early season loss of two of the team's main offensive threats, Quarterback Nicklas and Halfback Turney, throws Graham's chances in the bidistrict game into considerable doubt. Little is known in this section of the strength of either the Bonham or Commerce elevens, but a Graham defeat is within the realms of possibility if the Young county boys, minus their two aces, show any signs of over-confidence.

Turkey Day Classic

The Steers, however, are expected to wipe out all signs of this ailment in the Thanksgiving day game with Chillicothe. This game will be one of the highlights of the class B season in this territory. The fast Chillicothe outfit, with "Rat" Ramsey leading a deadly running and passing offense, stands a good chance of beating the Steers. A Chillicothe victory, however, would not indicate the superiority of the Eagles to the Olney Cubs, who were defeated by Graham in the opening game of the season. Nicklas and Turney were in the Graham lineup when the Steers beat the Cubs; the Eagles won't have to face them.

There will be one other Thanksgiving day game in the district, Bowie's invasion of Nocona. This is a traditional Turkev day battle. It will have no bearing on the district race. Nocona beat Bowie 6 to 0 early in the season in a conference game. The return bout has been booked simply to give the fans a last look at the teams, and it should be a good battle, although Nocona is clearly the favorite to win.

Three Tie for Second

Graham was the only team in the district to finish the season with a clear conference record of seven victories and no defeats. Below the Steers, the remaining seven members of the district staged a hot race, three teams finishing in a tie for second place. They were Nocona, Jacksboro and Bridgeport, each being credited with five victories and two defeats.

Nocona lost only to Jacksboro and Graham, while defeating Newcastle, Bellevue, Decatur, Bowie and Bridgeport. Jacksboro lost to Graham and Bridgeport while hanging up victories over Decatur, Newcastle, Bellevue, Nocona and Bowie. Bridgeport lost to Nocona and Graham but defeated Decatur, Newcastle, Bowie and Jacksboro. Their fifth victory came in the form of a forfeit by Bellevue.

Decatur, Newcastle, Bowie and Bellevue finished the conference season under the four leaders in the order named.

OLNEY NEARS JOURNEY'S END

Cubs Tackle Seymour In Final League Game

Chillicothe and Olney gave district 4, class B, followers plenty to talk about last week, and they again will hold the floor this week when Volney Hill's Eagles journey to Graham of district five for a Thanksgiving day test and Albert Acker's Cubs meet their last obstacle in the path to their fifth straight district championship, the Seymour Panthers.

Last week Chillicothe cinched third place in the district with a resounding 26 to 0 victory over the Burkburnett Bulldogs. The Dogs were expected to make a much better showing. Olney surprised the dopesters with a 14 to 0 victory over the Howard Payne freshmen.

Seymour will be the usual underdog in the Olney game, which will be the last conference affair of the season. Coach Acker, however, will take no chances on being tricked and doubtless will instruct his men to be on close guard. Seymour, ancient rivals of the Cubs, are expected to shoot everything they have against the Ackermen in hopes of throwing a monkey wrench in the title chase. They can do that very thing by only tying the Cubs, who already have been tied by Chillicothe. A second deadlock would throw Olney and Crowell into a tie for the top and would necessitate a playoff.

Other games booked for Thanksgiving are Matador at Crowell and Henrietta at Burkburnett. Archer City and Megargel are through for the season. They forfeited their league games last week with Crowell and Seymour, respectively.

A practice game with the Megargel All-Stars was substituted for the Seymour-Megargel game, the All-Stars defeating the Panthers 12-6. Earlier in the week the Panthers had received a 20 to 0 drubbing by the Throckmorton Greyhounds in a return game.

The conference standing:

Teams—	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Olney	4	0	1	.900
Crowell	5	1	0	.833
Chillicothe	4	1	1	.750

Eldorado Panthers Win Over Quanah Seconds

Special to The Record News.

ELDORADO, Okla., Nov. 20.—A hard fought battle on the local gridiron Friday afternoon between the local Panthers and the Quanah Palookas, second string of the Quanah Indians, resulted in a victory of 12 to 0 for the locals.

The Panthers were within 4 yards of the goal line for the third touchdown when the whistle sounded.

Raymond Jones, left halfback, made both touchdowns. Credit is also due the Panthers for hard line bucking netting sharp gains through the Quanah lines.

The Panthers are now doing some intensive practice for the Thanksgiving game, which will be played here against Gould.

It will be necessary for Gould to defeat the Panthers in order to tie them in the Cotton Belt conference. A tie between these teams next Thursday will give Eldorado the conference championship.

GAMES THIS WEEK END RACE

Frogs Face Ponies, Bears Play Owls Saturday

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Finis will be scrawled across the 1932 Southwest conference championship football marathon this week-end.

The final parade to the finish line starts Thursday at Austin with the traditional battle between the invading Texas A. & M. Aggies and the University of Texas Longhorns. It is the only conference combat on Thanksgiving. The University of Arkansas, a conference member, invades Shreveport Turkey day to battle the undefeated and untied Centenary college Gentlemen in a non-conference affair.

The complete conference fade-out will occur Saturday at Dallas and Houston. The pace setting Texas Christian university Frogs, undefeated on a straight season campaign and boasting five conference victories, will invade Dallas to battle the Southern Methodist Mustangs. Baylor goes to Houston to tackle the Rice institute Owls.

Indications are that the 1932 championship is the property of the Texas Christian Frogs, and that the final payment will be made Saturday.

There is still a chance for the University of Texas to finish in a tie with the Frogs if Texas beats the Aggies and the Frogs lose to the Mustangs. This absolutely is not expected to happen where the Frogs are concerned, although Texas rules a slight favorite over the Aggies.

Bears, Owls Out

The Baylor and Rice game means nothing, since both are completely out of the picture. Baylor stepped out last Saturday and beat Southern Methodist on passes, 19 to 0. Rice accepted a 16 to 6 drubbing from the powerful Texas Christian machine. The University of Texas played Friday and smothered the University of Arkansas, 34 to 0, when Hilliard, Stafford and Koy went on a touchdown rampage.

The largest conference crowd of the season is expected to witness the annual Turkey day battle between the University of Texas and the Texas A. & M. Aggies. For many years these two teams have played their annual game, and always it draws a capacity crowd whether the two teams are in or out of the championship race.

Approximately 18,000 tickets have been sold for this game with the big rush for ducats expected this week. Coach Matty Bell of the Aggies feels his team has a fighting chance to win even though he ranks the University of Texas backfield as the greatest in the conference. "But it can be stopped," commented Bell, "for Texas Christian proved that, and maybe we will do the same thing."

Southern Methodist is sure to play its greatest and most inspired game of the season against Texas Christian, but there is little on the surface to make the critics believe the Mustangs have a chance, especially since their poor showing Saturday against Baylor. The nearest they threatened was Baylor's 25-yard stripe.

Rice Favored

Rice, while favored, will have to watch Baylor's well developed aerial attack.

The University of Texas to beat Texas A. & M., Texas Christian to defeat Southern Methodist. It is the way the wiseacres have the only two important final conference game doped out. If their selections are right, Texas Christian will be Southwest conference champion Saturday at dusk.

Austin Scribe Gives Us His All-Conference Pick

AUSTIN, Nov. 10. (AP)—Six members of the Texas Christian university football team were placed on the all-Southwest conference eleven selected today by A. S. Hopkins, sports writer for The Austin American.

The University of Texas was given three places on Hopkins' selection and A. & M. and Baylor university were allotted one position each.

Following is Hopkins' team:

James, Baylor, left end; Boswell, T. C. U., left tackle; Vaught, T. C. U., left guard; Nolan, A. & M., center; Evans, T. C. U., right guard; Howell, T. C. U., right tackle; Pruitt, T. C. U., right end; Hilliard, Texas, quarterback; Spearman, T. C. U., right halfback; Stafford, Texas, left halfback; Koy, Texas, fullback.

Honorable mention was given to Earle, Texas, end; Wallace and McCauley, Riee, halfbacks; Hinman, Rice, tackle and end; Oliver, T. C. U., halfback; Cook, Texas, guard; Blanton, Texas, tackle; Murphy, Arkansas, quarterback; Brannon, T. C. U., quarterback; Salkeld, T. C. U., end; Domingue, A. & M., halfback; Spencer, A. & M., fullback.

SENATE FACES BIG SHAKE-UP

Democratic Veterans Will Direct Committees

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (AP)—A complete shake-up in senate leadership because of the change from Republican to Democratic control will mark the new congress beginning in March.

The transfer of senate organization to the Democrats, meaning a new lineup of committee chairmen, will see also younger faces taking over direction of the Republican side of the chamber.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, who has led Democrats through many lean years in the senate, doubtless will become majority leader despite suggestions of opposition from some quarters.

On the Republican side, Senator McNary of Oregon probably will be the new leader in place of Senator Watson of Indiana, defeated in the election.

New Chairmen

The most radical change will come, however, in committee chairmanships.

Borah, of Idaho, who has been chairman of the important foreign relations committee for eight years, will turn over this prized post to Senator Swanson, of Virginia.

Pat Harrison of Mississippi, long a spokesman for Democrats in fiscal matters, will take over chairmanship of the finance committee which frames tax legislation, in place of Reed Smoot of Utah.

Carter Glass of Virginia, former secretary of the treasury, is in line for the chairmanship of the potent appropriations committee in place of the late Wesley L. Jones of Washington.

If the Virginian should choose, he probably could have the banking committee, which has increased in prestige during the recent economic troubles, instead of the appropriations. Senator Fletcher of Florida is on top of the list for the banking committee post, but he may prefer the commerce committee, in which he also ranks.

McKellar Next in Line

If Glass should choose the banking committee leadership, it would leave Senator McKellar of Tennessee, chairman of the appropriations group.

Other committee assignments, generally less important, are difficult to forecast, because they depend upon personal preferences. Also the suggestion has been made that recognition in committee assignments might be given to those Republicans who supported Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Of these, Senators Norris of Nebraska is chairman of the judiciary committee; Johnson of California, the commerce committee, and La Follette of Wisconsin, the manufacturers committee.

Democrats are not expected to step aside, however, to allow the Republicans preference.

SOONER CRUDE OUTPUT FALLS

Operators Hold Oil Back Until Dec. 1

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 21.—The middle of the month usually finds that many producing companies in the state have taken the cream of their allowable production for the month, and the final half of the month finds an appreciable reduction in the oil output of the Sooner state.

The week from Nov. 13 to 19 inclusive is no exception and Oklahoma fields for that period showed a decline in daily production of 9,990 barrels of oil, totaling 387,310 barrels daily against 397,300 barrels for the previous week.

The prolific pool in Oklahoma City was responsible for the bulk of the decrease, although the rest of the state, with the exception of the Greater Seminole area, also showed a slight decline.

Here are the figures for Oklahoma:

	Last Wk.	Prev. Wk.
Oklahoma City	73,745	97,030
Seminole area	132,160	117,750
Rest of state	181,405	182,520
Totals	*387,310	x397,300

*To be revised. xRevised.

Two Pools Boost Kansas

The Ritz and Voshel pools were principally responsible for the slight boost of 960 barrels in the daily production figures for the Sunflower state, which averaged 96,610 barrels a day, against 95,650 barrels a day for the previous week.

The most active pools produced as follows:

	Last Wk.	Prev. Wk.
Ritz	16,810	15,500
Voshel	6,540	6,000
Sedgwick	10,375	10,550
Rest of state	62,885	63,600
Totals	*96,610	x95,650

*To be revised. xRevised.

Panhandle Fields Off

The Panhandle district of Northwest Texas registered a slight decrease of 358 barrels a day in the average production for the week, totaling 45,606 barrels against 45,964 barrels for the previous week. The report by counties follows:

	Wells	Nov. 12	Wells	Nov 19
Carson	249	5,380	249	5,081
Gray	803	28,582	804	29,025
Hutchinson	836	10,478	836	11,057
Moore	23	813	23	589
Wheeler	44	404	44	212
Totals	1,956	45,606	1,956	45,964

Production and pipe line runs from the pools of the Wichita Falls, Texas, district averaged 53,748 barrels a day the last week, an increase of 225 barrels compared with the previous week. The stepping-up of production last week was well maintained this week, and is chiefly responsible for the increase.

East Texas Gain

East Texas production increased about 4,000 barrels in daily average last week, when 8,890 producing wells supplied 355,900 barrels of crude oil daily. There was a slight increase in distribution, the movement advancing from 365,000 to 372,000 barrels daily. Tank car shipments amounted to 10,000 barrels daily.

Daily average production in North Louisiana and Arkansas rose 2,055 barrels during the last week largely due to a gain of 1,420 barrels in the output of Zwolle, Louisiana, field, which soared to a new high mark of 9,280 barrels. North Louisiana's average production gained 1,685 barrels of oil to a total daily average production of 29,605 barrels, while Arkansas's average mounted 370 barrels daily to a daily average of 33,480 barrels.

Daily average production for the last week in North Louisiana districts follows:

	Last Wk.	Prev. Wk.
Caddo, light	4,900	4,935
Caddo, heavy	1,790	1,840
Red River-Desoto and Holly	2,470	2,385
Homer	2,600	2,600
Cotton Valley	610	630
Urania	3,180	3,020
Pleasant Hill	275	260
Totals	29,605	27,920

Arkansas districts:

	Last Wk.	Prev. Wk.
Rainbow City El Dorado	5,690	5,705
Smackover, light	2,770	2,760
Smackover, heavy	23,590	23,380
Lisbon	430	440
Nevada county	650	730
Stephens county	150	100
Totals	33,480	33,110

Kansas Setback

While the Kansas oil fields look very promising for future development, and considerable work will be undertaken next year due to expiring leases, the prospects for the Ritz-Decker-Garrett area of McPherson county, one of the muchly touted areas of the Sunflower state, received a momentary setback last week when the potential tests were taken there.

Of the 194 Viola lime wells in the area, 68 of them on their 24-hour test were given a potential of 5,340 barrels a day, a decline of 33.3 per cent compared with their previous potential test.

Thirty-one of the 67 chat wells received a potential of 9,570 barrels a day, against 26,098 barrels a day the previous testing, and showed a decline of 63.4 per cent.

The tests were taken by producers under the direction of L. R. Pickrell, state umpire.

A surprise in the tests was the way that the George W. Dickey and associates No. 3-B Eva Decker, in the northwest corner of the southeast of 35-19-2w, has fallen off. It came in July 28, this year, in the chat formation at 2916 to 2948 feet, and made 7,162 barrels in 12 hours and was rated as a 14,300 barrel producer, and after being pinched was opened up and made but 700 barrels in the 24 hours.

G. B. Shaw to 'Look In' At America on Cruise

LONDON, Nov. 20. (UP)—George Bernard Shaw voiced a vigorous denial today that he will visit America soon, though he admitted he will "look in" at San Francisco and New York during his forthcoming world tour.

"You cannot go on a world cruise," the dramatist remarked, "without banging into America. But I'm not paying a visit to that country.

"I shall look in at San Francisco, go through the canal, then look in at New York."

Shaw said that the object of his cruise is to rest and work, and that the only place in which the two can be combined is aboard a ship.

Land values in Palestine, coincident with a large population increase, are approximately 50 per cent higher than the price average a decade ago.

John Galsworthy, Nobel Winner, Once Rejected English Knighthood

By JOHN SELBY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (AP)—Like Sinclair Lewis, John Galsworthy accepted the Nobel prize for literature with alacrity. Also like Mr. Lewis, he had done his refusing earlier.

Mr. Lewis, it will be recalled, refused the Pulitzer prize in 1926. Mr. Galswrth refused something worth by traditional English standards, far more. It was an offer of knighthood, made him in January, 1918. The Nobel award was about $31,000 last year.

By coincidence, Galsworthy's new honor came almost on the day his new novel was published, Nov. 11. And by an even happier coincidence, the new work, titled "Flowering Wilderness," is once again a study of upper class England.

"Flowering Wilderness" picks up some of the threads of "Maid in Waiting," which in turn inherited from its predecessors, particularly from "The Forsyte Saga." The latest novel is a careful evaluation of that inevitable British loyalty to tradition which bobs up in one or another shape in most English novels.

The upper class England of which Galsworthy writes is a subject that has fascinated him since his school days at Harrow and Oxford, and for the study of which he deserted the bar.

After deciding the law was not for him, Galsworthy set out to travel, and to forget everything he had learned at school. "Fine scholars are rarely imaginative writers of any force," he declared.

In the course of his wanderings he met (in 1893) the late Joseph Conrad, the Polish novelist, and was considerably responsible for the publication of "Almayer's Folly." Their friendship was continued later in London.

JOHN GALSWORTHY

The Galsworthy novels, most of them, fall into three groupings: "Worshipful Society," (earlier work, including "The Country House," "Fraternity" and "The Patrician"); "The Forsyte Saga" ("The Man of Property," "In Chancery," "To Let") and "A Modern Comedy" ("The White Monkey," "The Silver Spoon," "Swan Song" and the two "Forsyte Interludes").

His work includes some 25 plays and 50 or more shorter stories. He was 65 years old Aug. 14.

Wichita Teachers To Take Leading Part In State Convention Program

A glance over published programs just issued for the annual meeting of the State Teachers association to be held this week in Fort Worth shows the names of a number of members of the Wichita Falls teaching staff on various phases of the program. From Supt. H. D. Fillers and Principal S. H. Rider on down through the teaching ranks a number of Wichitans have each year had a prominent share of the leadership in the organization. Superintendent Fillers served as president of the state association two years ago.

Principal J. E. Park of Alamo school is chairman of the resolutions committee of the elementary principals section. Mr. Rider is to lead the discussion on classification of pupils for the high school principals section. Miss Mamie Raborn of the college and high school social science department is state chairman of the history section, receiving the honor of vote of the group at Amarillo last year. A. F. Edwards, head of the social science department, is to present the topic of teaching current history. Thomas F. Richardson, last year president of the local high school-college association, is to present to the social science section the topic of teacher insurance problems. Since Wichita Falls has one of the best teacher insurance associations in the state, his observations should be of new interest to members.

W. A. Franklin, former head of the Reagan Junior High school and now instructor in mathematics in the senior high school, is state chairman of the junior high school section, a position to which he was elected at Amarillo last year. R. A. Jonas is to give a report to the junior college section on the granting of degrees in junior colleges. Many other teachers are expected to participate actively in the various conferences and meetings of the association.

GOLD MINE GAS KILLS THREE

One Body Rescued From California Shaft

SONORA, Calif., Nov. 20. (AP)—Three men were killed by a carbon dioxide gas in the Saratoga Acres gold mine a mile north of here last night.

The victims were George and Reed Weston, brothers, and George Weston Jr., lessees of the mine.

Volunteer rescuers penetrated the shaft and recovered the body of Reed Weston, but the deadly gas prevented further progress into the shaft until a state mine rescue crew, equipped with gas masks, arrived from Jackson, 27 miles away, early today.

The three bodies were taken to Sonora.

Reed Weston's death was attributed to his attempt to save his brother and nephew when they did not return to their home last night after a day's work. Weston with Charles Weston, another brother, entered the shaft, was overcome and fell 100 feet. His neck was broken.

Charles fought his way back to the surface and called for aid. Miners said the gas apparently was formed by action of water on rock.

OIL LAND SUITS START MONDAY

Rich Field Involved In Litigation

AUSTIN, Nov. 20. (AP)—Arguments were scheduled to start tomorrow before the state supreme court in three land suits involving property valued at approximately $350,000,000.

The contested area, which includes the rich Yates oil field in Pecos county of West Texas, comprises approximately 4,000 acres. Within the Yates pool is said to be located the largest oil producing well in the world.

In addition to the land involved in the suits, there are approximately $50,000,000 in bonuses, rentals and royalties being held in escrow awaiting final judgment of the courts to determine to whom payments should be made. The state free public school fund has a large interest, both in the suits to determine title to the land in the escrow funds. In one of the suits there were 178 parties at interest.

Cases Consolidated

The three suits are known as the Smith-Turner; the R. B. Whitesides heirs and the California cases. Since all three grew out of controversies arising from surveys of blocks 194 and 178, the supreme court consolidated the cases and will dispose of all them in one opinion.

Four methods of locating the blocks were set up by the contending parties. The supreme court will be called upon to determine which of the four methods was correct. The boundary disputes arose from various discrepancies between tours and distance calls in the field notes of blocks 194 and 178 for adjoiners with surroundings senior surveys and the actual ground positions of the senior surveys.

In the Whitesides suit, the contention was set up that the eastern sections of block 194, where the sections adjoined the Pecos river survey, did not receive their full acreage allotment. Claimants under Whitesides alleged that had these sections been given their full acreage, there would have been no vacancy where the state claimed one existed and one which it issued a patent to Ira G. Yates.

Oil Discovered

The oil field was brought in several years after the Yates patent was issued.

The state patent was issued on the theory the land was vacant and belonged to the school fund.

The Smith-Turner suit involved section lines and corner markers of the two blocks.

Should the Whitesides claimants be successful the state would lose title to the minerals in the Yates field.

Should the Smith-Turner case go against the state, the school fund would lose many valuable wells from which it now is receiving heavy royalties. The state reserved the minerals in the even numbered sections of the blocks. Some of the most highly prized producers in the field are located along the section lines and would be forced over into the odd numbered sections, unless the state's contentions were maintained.

The California case involves a small strip of land that adjoins the Yates field on the north. This also concerns section line locations and the state would lose several wells if its position was not sustained.

J. H. Walker, commissioner of the state land office, estimated the value of the land involved at $360,000,000.

Autoist Hits Boy On Sled, Speeds Away

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20. (UP)—Eddie Costello, 11, went sleigh riding on a snow covered street.

His sled carried him under the wheels of a passing automobile. Witnesses saw the driver turn out his lights and speed away, with boy and sled pinioned under the car.

Police found Eddie's mangled body on a vacant lot today. The driver apparently had thrown the body there after dragging Eddie for several miles.

Kansas City Police Bare Huge Counterfeiting Ring

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 20. (UP)—Operations of a huge counterfeting ring, which specialized in bogus $20 bills had been uncovered today by federal agents.

A raid on a downtown hotel netted the arrest of Mike Copich, 37, and Kovaich, 39, and the seizure of $11,280 in counterfeit money. The men said they had brought the money here from St. Paul and denied that they had passed any of the spurious bills.

MARTIN URGES AID FOR NEEDY

Proper Use of Wealth Made Subject of Talk

Giving of all that one can give to charity in this season of "drives" for such funds was advocated by Judge P. A. Martin before members of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning as a means of obtaining "the approbation of the Master."

Speaking on "Stewardship" the speaker pointed out that not only the Bible, but life itself, teaches that one can be no more than a steward of material wealth of which he becomes possessed. Since one can take no money with him at the end of life, Judge Martin asserted, he can accumulate money only for heirs who survive him. Judge Martin also stressed the fact that money is a valueless and useless thing unless one spends it for some good purpose.

Discussing the uses of wealth, he said:

Power of Wealth

"But let us not disparage the power of wealth, for it is powerful in the estimation of some people. And whether we know it or not, we are all holding what we have, little or much, in trust. And we are doing either good or evil with it every time we spend a cent of it. Great wealth is an awful responsibility. I sometimes think one of the reasons we are blessed with so little of it is that God knows it would spoil us by making fools of us like it did with Dives of old. We probably could not stand the temptation. I have known many men who couldn't stand it. There are men we all know who have gone down under the strain of suddenly acquired riches; decent, good citizens absolutely ruined morally and spiritually by an oil strike or some other run of luck. And wealth in the hands of an unclean man is a menace to all who associate with him, male or female. Yes, it is a power to be reckoned with and feared.

"On the other hand it is one of the world's greatest powers for good. All honor to the man of the woman who has the gift of making money and the grace to spend it for the betterment of humanity. It has been my good fortune to know such men and such women and know the good they were doing with their money. I have seen them pick up aspiring boys or girls thirsting for knowledge and pay their way through college, giving them a chance in the world they would otherwise never have. I have known them to endow a room in a hospital, a scholarship or a chair in a university with their money and their 'works do follow them.' Some of them have passed away long ago, but there are strong men and women all over the country who owe their usefulness to them and they are still carrying on in the name and place of their benefactors now long gone. And I have walked in the shadow of great churches, great museums and great schools and libraries donated by the great-hearted rich men of this and by-gone days and felt the mighty surge of the inspiration of their generosity welling up in my own bosom as I contemplated what they had done for humanity. Let us never get the idea that all men who acquire great wealth are selfish sinners like Dives, for they are not. One of the most favorable tendencies of the times is the growing practice of the rich to do good with their money. The evidence of their benevelences are to be found in every city in the land, including our own.

Age of Drives

"We are living in an age of 'drives.' Public and private charity is being touched by this, that, or the other call. The press, the social organizations, the churches and the radio all echo the call to American generosity and charity. The winter is coming with its promise of much human suffering. We are all financially depressed, fearful and anxious for the future. We fear to spend our little mite lest the wolf will howl at our own doors. But let me tell you we must remember the fate of the steward we spoke of last Sunday who hid his Lord's money through fear. In this time of great need the pennies as well as the dollars must get busy or the nation's life will be in jeopardy before the coming of spring. And the life of the church is already in jeopardy. In one of our Texas conferences I note the fact that the preachers on missionary charges got only 12 per cent of the paltry sum they were promised when they went to work last fall. In our own conference the showing was but little better. In a very short time we will be called upon to help these faithful preachers on our home missions fields. The question is coming close to us all, whether we are stewards of God or Mammon.

"Our love of the church as well as our love for humanity is going to be tested out before this thing is over. Yes, and so will our love of God and native land be also tested out before long. Soon we shall all be called upon to give an account of our stewardship.

"The size of one's contribution to the uplift of the world is a secondary matter to the Master. The widow's mite cast into the treasury at the temple was what attracted the attention of the Man of Galilee, who called it the greatest gift of all. It made this unknown woman one of the four greatest women of the Bible, as they are classified by Bruce Barton, one of our modern writers, not only because of the Master's approval of her gift, but because her example has enriched the coffers of thousands of charitable and religious institutions ever since with its pathetic appeal.

"Although we are all poor, we can meet the approbation of the Master by cheerfully giving to the extent of our individual ability, even though it be but a 'widow's mite.'"

'No-No' Bird Big Handicap To Texas' Development, Says Col. W. E. Talbot

Wichitans Spend 18 Millions Annually For Products Which Could Be Made Here

Editor's Note—Genial Col. W. E. Talbot of "Use-it-made-in-Texas" fame, has just pictured a queer sort of bird. The object of bringing the attention of Texans to this bird is to endeavor to make the people of Texas realize the fact that now is the time to "about face" and look toward the future instead of to the past, which cannot be changed. Colonel Talbot's comment on the "No-No" bird and its application to Wichita county follows:

By COL. BILL TALBOT

There has been a recent discovery—a new kind of bird. It is the No-No bird and flies backward. The bird doesn't want to see where he is going—just wants to know where he has been. There are a lot of us right now in Texas that can be compared to the No-No. We know where we have been but do we know where we are going?

The only sure indication of a return to normal is when commodity prices increase in value. The uptrend started in July and with few fluctuations has continued to improve. If we could face the situation sanely and determine to do something about it, we could materially hasten recovery in our own state. The time has come when we must stop thinking of our individual prosperity and think of our people as a whole because we can only be prosperous in proportion to their prosperity.

THIS IS THE "NO-NO" BIRDY

The foolbird doesn't care wherehe's going he only wants to know where he's been.

The condition we have passed through was occasioned by the curtailment of buying power of millions of our people. This naturally was reflected in their inability to purchase the commodities we have to sell. Therefore, isn't it logical if we can create buying power that it will return to us in proportion to our efforts? But if there is no buying power, the best efforts we can make are useless.

Texas produced last year $415,000,000 worth of agricultural products and the biggest part was sold at prices below production cost. This condition cannot continue, as you well know. You have in your power the means of producing a greater value to Texas than all agriculture. It would cost nothing but your determination to help your neighbor and yourself. We must manufacture our raw materials to the finished products and give that difference in wages to our people, and quit sending our multiplied millions for products from far flung communities that can be produced right here.

On a basis of past performance Wichita county will spend $18,000,000 a year for food, clothing and furniture. It is about one-eleventh the total wealth of the county. With very few exceptions every single one of these items could be manufactured right here in Wichita Falls. It is pitiful the small amount of our manufactured goods that is actually consumed by our own county.

Our people, by specifying our own products, could conservatively increase to wage-earners alone $2,500,000 a year which would mean around $25,000,000 a year in purchasing power and credit. As I said before, this would cost you nothing. You are going to buy these items anyway, and it would mean you merely requested your merchant to furnish you with Texas-made products. Your money remains in your own community; you have a chance to get it back.

Texas, today, by manufacturing the finished products on ore, cotton, wool, beef, and mutton could increase her wealth approximately $750,000,000 annually, which is one and three-fourths times our agricultural crop. In the past we made gold our master. Let's make gold our servant. Remember, Uncle Sam puts 100 cents in the dollar when he makes it. "Let's put common sense in our dollar when we spend it.

AIR TRANSPORT BUSINESS GAINS

Western Express Points To Trade Revival

Business recovery, indicated by increased traveling by business men, is reflected in traffic figures of Western Air Express, Inc., showing transportation of 6,048 passengers on its connecting transcontinental and Rocky Mountain divisions for the first 10 months of this year as compared to 2,664 for the same period last year. This increase of 3,384 passengers amounts to 127 per cent.

In October, when a drop in air passengers was expected because of the impending election, 634 travelers were flown as compared to 450 last year, and 96 per cent of the air passengers were on business trips according to information cards, announces Arthur G. Beggs general traffic manager.

Since establishment Nov. 1, of the new multimotor one business day transcontinental service via Salt Lake City, passenger business increased 40 per cent, said Beggs. In addition 80 per cent of Western Air Express passengers chose the night service, bearing out convictions of Harris M. Hanshue, president and general manager that night flying will be popular with the public.

The volume of express amounted to 2,347 pounds in October, or more than six times the 367 pounds for October, 1931. Total poundage for the 10 months this year aggregated 13,239 pounds or more than double the 5,307 pounds carried the first 10 months of 1931.

Flying efficiency last month over all divisions was 99.95 per cent, compared to 98.12 per cent for October, 1931. For the 10 months this year, operation efficiency was 99.25 per cent as compared to 98.75 per cent for the first 10 months of last year, said Jimmy James, Pacific coast operations manager.

Poultry Industry 'Booming' In Floyd

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Texas, Nov. 20.—Farmers of this section continue to raise poultry despite the low prices which have prevailed this year, according to records of local hatcherymen. Approximately 85,000 baby chicks were sold to farmers of Floyd county by hatcheries the past season, and possibly another 50,000 chicks were hatched for customers from their own eggs. In addition, thousands of chicks were hatched under hens and from home incubators. Poultrymen report unusual success in raising the young chicks this year.

The number of hens on the farms of the county is probably greater than at this time last year, and a large crop of pullets are maturing for winter laying.

An abundance of grain feeds produced this year is enabling the poultrymen to feed their stock at a very low cost and though prices for poultry have been low, a fair margin of profit has been realized from sales, and farmers concede that without the regular weekly income from their poultry they would be greatly handicapped in carrying on their other farming operations.

Coats and Pistols Popular With Thieves

Police activities in Wichita Falls were at a minimum Saturday night with a series of minor thefts reported for investigation. Search for four automobile tires and rims taken from the car of Jake Roberts of Iowa Park Saturday moved to Wichita Falls with a report that an attempt to sell the stolen property here had been made.

Two winter coats and two .38 caliber pistols were reported stolen Saturday.

J. O. McDaniel, Kemp Kort, said his overcoat was taken from a car parked at the apartment house and J. R. Monaghen, 1628 Elizabeth, said a sheep-lined coat was taken from a car in the 1900 block on Scott avenue Saturday night. W. S. Langford, 2812 Tenth, said his pistol was taken from his Staley building office and M. Blackman, 1907 Keeler, reported a pistol taken from his desk at 1009 Ohio.

Vests are a popular item in the secondhand clothing markets of the natives of India while there is little demand for trousers because the Indians are not accustomed to wearing them.

Premier Herriot And Official Party Escape Death As Rails Dynamited

NANTES, France, Nov. 20. (AP)—Premier Edouard Herriot and a large official party escaped possible death at Ingrandes, 15 miles from here, today when the railroad track over which their special train was to pass was dynamited.

Track guards heard two explosions and rushed to the scene in time to stop the premier's train.

M. Herriot and his party were on their way to Nantes for the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the union of France and Brittany.

Appears as Scheduled

Unruffled by the incident, the premier made his public appearances as scheduled.

Seven Breton autonomists were arrested in Nantes last night, but so far they have not been connected with the criminal attempt. They were suspected of having come here to conduct a manifestation in favor of separation from France.

Autonomists were charged with wrecking a monument at Rennes last August on the same day that Premier Herriot spoke at Vannes at another Franco-Breton fusion celebration.

Police tonight had not established responsibility for the crime, but Premier Herriot said he believed the criminals had international political affiliations.

Criminals Misled

Rails in both directions at Ingrandes were blasted. The explosions occurred more than an hour before the premier's train was due. Police were inclined to believe an erroneous schedule of the premier's train published in Nantes newspapers fooled the criminals.

Traffic on the right of way was immediately stopped and repair gangs were rushed to the scene. The special train was stopped some distance away and the premier, who was asleep, was unaware of the reason for the delay until he reached Nantes.

Vague threats reached official ears recently that a train was to be blown up, but police investigators tonight were baffled by discovery of red-warning lanterns at considerable distance either side of the break in the tracks. This led some investigators to the belief that the affair had been staged by Breton autonomists who were more interested in attracting attention to themselves than they were in threatening the life of the premier.

Seeks Conciliation

In his address at the unveiling of a plaque commemorating the union of Brittany with France M. Herriot pledged himself to continue the work of conciliation among peoples begun by the late Aristide Briand, who began his political career in Nantes.

The premier characterized the French disarmament plan which now is before the disarmament conference in Geneva as calculated to reinforce peace. He told his audience that circumstances are not always favorable for "we are in the midst of powers who do not always aid us as much as they might."

BRIDGE ROAD IS GRAVELED

Oklahoma Highway Division Completes Work

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Nov. 20.—The state highway department last week completed graveling of highway 36 to a point within three miles of the free bridge near Burkburnett. The completion of this project now gives a graveled road from Lawton to Grandfield and from Grandfield to the bridge, with the exception of the three unimproved miles.

The short strip leading to the bridge will be graveled in the near future. This section of the road is a part of the federal routing, but a contract for its improvement already has been let to Witt & Tatum of Grandfield.

Explosives and coal tar are cited as chemistry's chief contributions to highway progress.

CIVIC MUSIC CARDS READY

600 Wichitans Listed By Association

Membership cards are to be mailed Monday to all members of the Wichita Falls Civic Music association by Mrs. Walter Robbins, secretary, along with announcements and programs for the opening concert of the association's local season, to be given next Monday, Nov. 28, by Coe Glade, contralto.

Distribution of membership cards to approximately 600 persons completes preparations made last spring for bringing outstanding musical talent to Wichita Falls henceforth without some local organization having to underwrite such performances in the face of uncertain attendance figures. Admission to civic music association concerts is limited to those who procured memberships in the annual membership campaign. An unnamed committee has selected three concerts for this first Wichita Falls season, the number made available by the membership subscriptions.

Besides the Coe Glade recital next Monday, the London Singers, an internationally renowned male ensemble of five voices, will be here on Tuesday, Jan. 10, and on Feb. 13, Mischa Levitski, pianist, will be heard here in concert.

Information being mailed out by Mrs. Robbins along with the membership cards stipulates that all association concerts begin at 8:15 p. m. in the auditorium of the Junior college building, and that the membership card must be presented at each concert. Members will be allowed to secure single concert admission tickets for out-of-town guests only at $1.50 each.

Persons who have paid memberships, and who have not received their cards by Wednesday should call Mrs. Robbins, she announced.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (UP)—A film booking deal involving several million dollars was signed by Warner Brothers Pictures and Columbia Pictures corporation today, whereby all new pictures produced by Columbia will be shown in about 650 Warner theaters. Chicagoan Thanks Gunman For Shooting Off Corn

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (UP)—Blaine Slavin takes this opportunity of expressing his thanks to the gunman who shot him during an attempted holdup.

The gunman was nervous, his aim was bad and so his bullet grazed the little toe of Slavin's left foot.

"And I'd had a corn on that toe which had bothered me for 25 years," said the happy victim. "He gave me relief at last."

Red Cross Call $1,500 Short Of Goal For County

"The 1932 Wichita County Red Cross roll call will continue until we reach our goal of 3,800 members," Chairman Linton H. Estes said Sunday. Reorganization of committees with enlistment of added man-power for the campaign wind-up was nearing completion late Sunday. The drive will officially close Wednesday night but campaign leaders hope to end the work Tuesday.

Approximately $1,500 is needed to put the roll call over the top in this county. The communities of Iowa Park, Burkburnett and Electra will also complete drives this week and a quota of 750 members has been assigned the three cities. Wichitans who have not secured Red Cross memberships for 1932 are requested to call at headquarters at 705 Scott or to telephone the office, 2-5929, and a worker will be sent, Mr. Estes added.

Wichitans To Attend Trinity Homecoming

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Nov. 20.—A large number of Wichita Falls residents who are former students of Trinity university are expected to attend home-coming exercises at Trinity university Thanksgiving, according to Lester Jordan, president of the alumni association.

The feature entertainment of the day will be the football game between the Trinity Tigers and the Austin college Kangaroos, gridiron rivals for 30 years. Following the game a reception will be held in honor of the exes at Drane hall.

A pep rally is being planned for the eve of the game when Max Morrison of Tulsa, Okla., will be the principal speaker. Morrison was quarterback on the 1922 eleven which will hold a reunion here Thanksgiving. That eleven won a 9 to 0 victory over one of the strongest teams ever produced at Austin college.

Assisting in arranging the homecoming entertainments are the Blue Key Honor society and the senior class.

Among Trinity exes who now reside in Wichita Falls are Mrs. Leila Boyd, W. S. Brown, Frances Dashner, A. F. Edwards, Mrs. O. R. Hartt, Mrs. L. B. Holland, Mrs. J. D. INTO THE VALLEY OF DEATH

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by John Charlton, after the famous painting depicting the heroic Charge of the Light Brigade in the face of a withering fire at the battle of Balaklava in the Crimean War (1854). "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette.
