Unocal reorganizes

Union Oil Co. of California employees are awaiting word on how a planned restructuring will affect the Midland office. Unocal has decided to combine the Oklahoma, Houston and Midland regions into one region, but area officials say it is too early to know what the impact on employment will be. Local managers are visiting with management in Houston and Los Angeles on the reorganization. Word on how restructuring will affect the Midland office should come no later than late May.

Crisis averted

MOSCOW — Russia's Communist-dominated parliament backed down Tuesday from a week-long clash with President Boris Yeltsin and passed a declaration that will allow him to continue his free-market reforms. The declaration preserves Yeltsin's power to rule by decree and directs the government to continue reforms. It apparently averts one of Russia's most serious political crises since the collapse of the Soviet Union. On Monday, Yeltsin's Cabinet threatened to resign. /5A

1992's warm start

WASHINGTON — Thanks in part to warming waters in the Pacific, the nation's weather year is off to the second mildest start on record, the government reported Tuesday. Temperatures averaged 39.9 degrees across the contiguous states for the January-March period, the National Climatic Data Center said. Only 1921, with an average of 40.2 degrees for those three months, produced a warmer start, according to records dating to 1895. Chester Ropelewski of the federal Climate Analysis Center in Camp Spring, Md., attributes the mild conditions in part to the phenomenon known as El Nino, a periodic warming of waters.

Death walk

LYNWOOD, Calif. — A pedestrian who survived being struck by one car was killed moments later when he was run over by three others, police said. Fred Patterson, 45, was struck by a hit-and-run driver as he crossed a quiet street in the Los Angeles suburb of Lynwood early Monday. A passer-by who saw the accident helped him onto a curb, said Lynwood sheriff's Sgt. Sam Silva. As the passer-by was calling for help, he looked back to see Patterson get up and fall forward into the street, where he was run over by three other cars, Silva said. None of the drivers stopped.

Second-place finishers in the March Republican primary, George D. "Jody" Gilles and Henry Goulet came away as winners in Tuesday's runoff elections.

Gilles took 62.6 percent of votes cast in the race against Robin Malone Sams for 142nd District Court judge.

Goulet captured 64.1 percent of the vote in his challenge of six-term incumbent Precinct 1

Commissioner
Durward
Wright.

"Obviously, we're pleased — extremely happy," said Gilles, accompanied by his wife, Jenness, at the Elections Administration Office.

School board votes 4-3 for pure feeder system

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

After hearing impassioned pleas from both sides, Midland school board trustees voted 4-3 to convert to a pure feeder system when Abell Junior High School opens in September 1993.

Included in the motion is that Goddard and San Jacinto junior high schools will feed students to Midland High School, and Lee High School will get its students from Abell and Alamo junior high schools.

Jack Hightower made the motion for the pure feeder system and it was seconded by Gary Willis at Tuesday night's board meeting. Hightower, Willis, Ken-Marks and Jackie Hamilton voted in favor of the motion. Adela Marmolejo, James Fuller and George Staley were

Man kills wife in north Midland, dies in gunfire

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff Writer

An Odessa man fatally shot his wife in a northwest Midland apartment complex parking lot Tuesday afternoon, seconds before he was killed — either by his own hand or by police, Midland police officials said.

Valentina Stead, 45, was shot once in the back and once in the right hip in the parking lot of the Santa Fe Apartments after her husband "came out of nowhere," grabbed her by the neck and knocked her down with a blow to the head from his .357-caliber Magnum revolver, police said.

Mrs. Stead had been loading her belongings into the trunk of her Volkswagen when she was shot. Police believe she was attempting to flee her husband, and neighbors said they overheard her screaming that she was going to the battered women's shelter.

Australian national Ian Neil Stead, 51, was shot and killed seconds after he shot his wife, but investigators have not determined whether the wound was self-inflicted or if he was shot by police. An autopsy is expected to reveal who fired the fatal shot.

Police were called to the apartment complex at Loop 250 and Rio Grande Street at 12:21 p.m. in reference to a "stand-by" situation. A family member, who asked not to be identified, said Mrs. Stead had called police to ensure she would be allowed to leave the apartment without resistance from her husband.

Mrs. Stead moved out of the couple's home in Odessa last week, police said. The couple had a history of violent marital trouble, causing Mrs. Stead to move in with several different friends and relatives during recent months, police said.

A friend of Mrs. Stead, who asked not to be identified, said she had taken Mrs. Stead to the battered women's center for help on Monday.

Two policemen arrived at Apartment 27F, located on the second floor, to monitor the situation while Mrs. Stead continued loading her clothes into her car.

While officers remained on the balcony, Stead parked his brown Mazda pickup behind the building and sprinted to the car, where he held his wife at gunpoint.

According to Jean Kaul, a neighbor who could see the officers but could not see Stead or his wife, the officers began shouting "Don't do it!" and "We're not doing anything!" moments before Stead struck his wife and opened fire.

"I had heard a lot of yelling going on and then police arrived and the yelling started getting louder," Mrs. Kaul said. "The man and woman were crouched down behind that car, but I knew someone was there because I could hear the woman screaming. I opened my gate and watched both policemen

Secret Service initiates probe of breach in Reagan's security

■ Federal magistrate releases protester pending May 4 preliminary hearing.

By Matt Quinn
Reporter-Telegram Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Secret Service is conducting an internal review of how a protester penetrated security, rushed onto a Las Vegas stage where Ronald Reagan was speaking Monday night and smashed a statue the ex-president had just received, a spokesman said Tuesday. Spokesman William Burch said Secret Service officials, in conducting their post-mortem, are replaying a videotape that captured the event for millions of television viewers.

"We are trying to find out what happened," he said.

Richard Paul Springer, 41, of Arcata, Calif., darted onto the stage at the Las Vegas Hilton during a speech by Reagan before the National Association of Broadcasters. The man wore around his neck what the NAB identified as a press credential.

He picked up a 30-pound crystal statue of an eagle that the NAB had awarded Reagan, raised it over his own head and smashed it.

"Excuse me, Mr. President," the man shouted as he pushed his way toward the podium. "Mr. President, there's going to be a nuclear test on Tuesday."

Three Secret Service agents tackled the man and led him away while another agent hustled an ashen-faced Reagan aside. Reagan, 81, dusted himself off and

WEATHER SUMMARY

The Accu-Weather® forecast for noon today.

Chance of showers to blow in

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and a high in the lower 80s with south winds at 10 to 20 mph and gusty. Tonight should be cloudy with a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms and a low in the mid-50s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be cloudy with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms and a high near 80.

After an overnight low of 56, Tuesday's high reached 72 compared with the record high for that date of 95 set in 1935. The record low for that date is 27 set in 1933.

STATE

It was muggy and hot across Texas on Tuesday. Southerly winds of 10 to 20 miles an hour pumped more gulf moisture into the state, causing widespread cloudiness.

Temperatures climbed into the 70s and 80s. Afternoon thunderstorms developed on opposite sides of Texas. Activity was reported in East Texas from the Red River near De Kalb to Beaumont. In West Texas, thunderstorms formed in the Panhandle-Plains and in the trans-Pecos. Hail the size of golf balls to soft balls was reported in Marfa by the Presidio County Sheriff's Department.

North Texas was expected to be partly cloudy through Thursday with an increasing chance of thunderstorms. Highs were to be in the lower 80s with lows in the lower 60s.

Forecasters said South Texas would have showers and thunderstorms through Thursday with partly to mostly cloudy skies. Highs were to be in the 80s with lows in the upper 60s.

West Texas was expected to have thunderstorms today decreasing Thursday. Highs were to be in the 80s with lows mainly in the 50s.

NATION

Cold air covered much of the East on Tuesday and rain spread across parts of the southwestern Plains.

Showers and thunderstorms moved over parts of western Texas during the afternoon. The rain was associated with an upper-level weather disturbance crossing the southern high Plains, the National Weather Service said.

A few showers also extended over the Rocky Mountains and the western Plains, and there were also showers in the lower Ohio Valley. Overnight temperatures dipped below the freezing point across much of the Great Lakes region and the Northeast, with lows in the teens in parts of Michigan, New York state and northern New England.

Alpena, Mich., chilled to a record low of 18 and Portland, Maine, had a record low of 21, the weather service said. Burlington, Vt., tied its record of 11.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

shooting down near the car after all the yelling had stopped."

Police fired at least five shots at Stead after he raised the gun in their direction. At least one bullet struck Stead but police believe he also may have shot himself.

At 12:56 p.m., officers on the scene radioed that a shooting had occurred and two people were hit.

Keller Thornton, 28, said he heard at least eight shots before he left his apartment to see what had happened.

"I saw two officers standing over the woman next to the car. I told them I was an EMT trainee at the college and asked them if there was anything I could do," Thornton said. "They told me to go ahead and try, but that it didn't look good."

"I looked at the two and could see that the man's wounds were severe and there was no chance, but the woman had a leg wound and another, and I thought maybe I could help," he said.

Thornton began CPR on the woman and continued for about three minutes until paramedics arrived.

"When I first adjusted her to open the airways, I picked up a breath sound. But that was all I got, so I guess she had just died," Thornton said.

Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe pronounced the two dead at the scene.

The names of the officers were withheld pending results of an investigation by the department. Both officers were routinely placed on administrative leave.

SECURITY: Secret Service begins investigation finished his speech. He was unharmed, a spokesman said, although he was hit by at least one chard of glass.

A federal magistrate in Las Vegas released Springer on his own recognizance Tuesday pending a preliminary hearing May 4 on a charge of threatening a former president.

Magistrate Lawrence Leavitt rejected a government call for bond and said Springer could participate in anti-nuclear protests this week that he had helped plan but said he'd be returned to jail if he violates any laws.

As a former president, Reagan is entitled by law to round-the-clock Secret Service protection for life. Burch declined to say how many agents are assigned to Reagan, who has lived and worked in the Los Angeles area since he left Washington in January 1989.

Burch said the Secret Service is studying the incident as it would "any type of unusual event." The agency will review the reactions of agents to the attack, the planning for the event and the security procedures followed, he said.

Chuck Vance, a former agent, said his impression from watching the video tape was that the incident "doesn't look good" for the Secret Service. But he said the agents "did what they were taught to do: grabbed the president and surrounded him, grabbed the assailant and got him out of the area," he said.

"A lot of hard questions will be asked," Vance added. "They are going to go through the preparations and planning with a fine-tooth comb and see whether errors were made as to what was prepared and how the plan was implemented."

Both Vance and Burch said that one major question is how the assailant managed to get a press identification tag for the event that he wore around his neck.

Doug Wills, spokesman for the broadcasters' group, said the NAB on Friday gave Springer a press pass to attend the gathering. He said Springer apparently approached the stage with a group of news photographers.

RUNOFFS: Gilles, Goulet emerge victorious old assistant district attorney, who picked up 3,858 votes.

Both candidates ran on the Republican ticket with no Democratic challengers to face Gilles in the November general election.

Gilles and Ms. Sams agreed after the final results were in that they expected a closer race.

"I expected it to be a whole lot closer. I thought it would be much tighter — to the last (ballot) box," Gilles said.

He credited his win to "the hard work by people like my wife ... (and) a lot of personal contact" in the community.

"It was a clean hard-fought race," Gilles added.

Ms. Sams made an appearance at election headquarters after the final count was released.

"I came down here to congratulate Jody," she said.

In the commissioner's race, "The people were ready for a change," Goulet, 70, said Tuesday night. "It's not what I have done that caused me to win this election. I worked at it. It's the faith of the people in me."

Of 2,509 votes cast in Precinct 1 in west Midland and west Midland County, Goulet garnered 1,579 votes. Wright drew 885. More than 11,000 voters were eligible to vote in the Precinct 1 run-off race.

Wright, 60, said he was "disappointed" in his loss to Goulet but was surprised at the vote margin.

"I thought it would be reasonably close," Wright said. "But then I was aware of the forces working against me."

Wright was alluding to strong support for Goulet from the Sheriff's Department and Midland County Tax Assessor-Collector Frances Shuffield.

"And those forces will have a very, very strong impact on the community for the next few years," Wright said, "and the Lord help us all."

Despite support from the Sheriff's Department and the Tax Office, Goulet pledged that he would be nobody's pawn.

"I am going to vote my own mind," Goulet said. "You might ask the question: 'Am I going to be the pawn of Joe Public out here?' And I won't," he said. "I will just do my level best to give everybody a fair shake and use some common sense."

During their campaigns for the bench, Gilles stressed his varied legal background and Ms. Sams emphasized her trial experience among qualifications to preside over the state court.

During the primary election held March 10, Ms. Sams received 44.9 percent of the vote, Gilles took 40.2 percent, and Thomas Bruner, who was knocked out of the race, the remainder. Present Judge Pat Baskin did not seek reelection.

Between now and January, when he takes office, Gilles will continue his private practice in general law, he said.

Before taking the bench, Gilles plans on getting together with the other judges to prepare himself to best serve the public, he said.

Gilles has practiced independently since 1980, and from 1976-80 was an associate with a Midland law firm. In 1975, Gilles was a law clerk with the U.S. Attorney's Office, Northern District of Texas.

He received his law degree from Texas Tech University and was admitted to the State Bar of Texas in 1976.

Gilles and his wife have two children, Leanna, 8, and David, 5.

In helping to balance the county's budget and in overseeing the county's departmental budgets, Goulet said he "is going to do the best I can with the help of the other commissioners on the court. This is not one-man court." Five people, the county judge and four commissioners, serve on the court.

Wright and Goulet gained spots into the run-off election following the March 10 Republican Party primary election in which Wright picked up 1,647 votes, 39 percent of the vote; Goulet, 1,523 votes for 36 percent of the vote; and Sheriff's Deputy Ron Harvel, 1,080 — 25 percent of the vote.

Harvel endorsed Goulet in the run-off election.

Goulet will run unopposed in the Nov. 3 general election because no Democrat ran for commissioner of Precinct 1.

BOARD: School trustees hear impassioned pleas opposed.

Boundaries and grandfather clauses are yet to be decided. But sentiment from board trustees and members of the audience Tuesday night indicated that grandfather clauses would create unbalanced junior high schools.

Willis said the junior high boundaries of a pure feeder system could be drawn up without disturbing the high school boundaries.

"I have reservations about a pure feeder system," said Joseph Barelli Jr., superintendent of Midland Independent School District. He said the system would emphasize extracurricular activities and could detract from academics.

All secondary-school principals — junior high, freshman high and high school — in the district disagreed, however.

San Jacinto principal Jack Ratcliff presented board trustees with a position paper saying that all principals were unanimously in favor of the pure feeder system. The paper said academics could benefit by implementing the system.

"Establishing a coordinated philosophy and effort within district parameters can best be achieved if students from one campus feed predictably into another," the paper said in part.

"It is our unanimous opinion that there are compelling reasons to take this opportunity to redraw junior high school boundaries in order to establish a feeder system for secondary schools in MISD. These boundaries should be drawn in such a way that equal high schools are retained and we have equal junior highs as well."

"This is the first time since I've been on the board that I've seen all the secondary principals come together on one thing," Ms. Hamilton said.

Fuller said the position statement "lacked specificity" and called for someone to explain how the feeder system would benefit academics.

Maridell Fryar, MISD executive director of instruction, said "Tech-Prep is the most obvious example." She said Tech-Prep, the new program that emphasizes math and technology, "is put into place at the seventh-grade level and culminates at the high school level."

Ms. Fryar said different seventh-grade populations could drive the focus of the program in different directions. For example, students in the MHS area may prefer different courses than students in the Lee High area and courses could be tailored to student preference.

"The pure feeder system can be a method enabling us to do better in terms of trying to achieve coordination in curriculum," she said. "It would give administrators at one campus the ability to see the 'big picture' and all of the students up and down the line."

"If we choose this system we need to totally and completely eliminate transfers and grandfathering," said MISD administrator

Alma Marshall. "This board is committed to equality. But a board down the line might not be."

Steve Buck, a Lee High teacher and coach, pleaded with trustees to poll secondary teachers before making a decision.

Trustees replied that the feeder system was an agenda item at the most recent series of community meetings and people had an opportunity to respond.

Ms. Hamilton said she had been questioning people in her district, but they were hesitant to commit to an opinion on the feeder system.

Ernest Angelo, a former Midland mayor, spoke in favor of the feeder system. "I'm in favor of it more strongly for academic reasons. ... It makes me feel good to see those in academics say it would be good."

One mother said the system would be divisive and she preferred her child sit in class with students bound for both high schools.

School-board candidate Michael Dobey said he kept tallies of opinions while going door-to-door on the campaign trail. "Out of 207 comments in District 7, 164 people were for the pure feeder system and 43 were against it," he said. He added that having grandfather clauses "would be a mistake and result in a mess."

Joann Luehring, a mother of school-age children, said she approved of Angelo's comments. "I'm not up here for athletics. I am up here for the child and academics. Kids need continuity and to stay with the same group of kids all the way through."

Jim Chase, a parent and Midland resident for 13 years, said, "We have an excellent opportunity before the board tonight that we have never had before with four junior highs."

Commenting on some citizen complaints that Midlanders would become obsessed with school football, like Odessans described in the book "Friday Night Lights," Chase said, "Comparing Midland to Odessa is like comparing apples and oranges."

Another mother admonished the board to "give both (high) schools a fighting chance. If you don't, we will settle for mediocrity and less than the best."

"If competition between the schools escalates, it will not be because of the students or the feeder system, it will be because of parental and societal approval," Mary Hahn said. "... Kids will survive any decision you make. They should not be given what they can withstand, however, but what is best for them."

In other action, school-board trustees approved the Midland Introspective Task Force on Children's request to establish after-school child-care programs at Bowie, DeZavala, Henderson and Long elementary schools.

The program was piloted at Anson Jones and Ben Milam elementary schools this year.

Perot accuses Bush of playing politics in Texas project

By Dave Montgomery
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Potential presidential candidate H. Ross Perot accused the Bush administration of playing politics over an airport project involving the Perot family and said that a decision to hold up federal funds for the project could hurt President Bush politically in Texas.

In a telephone interview Tuesday, the Dallas billionaire also responded to published reports that he investigated the claims of a Missouri inmate who says he flew George Bush to Paris on a secret mission in 1980 to discuss the U.S. hostages in Iran.

Related story/7B

The back-to-back controversies escalated animosity between Perot and the Bush camp as the Dallas computer magnate moves toward a full-scale challenge of Bush in Nov. 3 election.

Perot, interviewed from his Dallas office, accused the Bush administration of playing politics by holding up a $120 million runway expansion plan at Alliance Airport. And he predicted that the action will hurt Bush politically in Texas.

"They arbitrarily put it on hold because they want to try to teach me a lesson," said Perot, whose family owns most of the land around the airport. "The worst problem they have ... is that it will hurt them politically in this region and in Texas."

The Federal Aviation Administration overturned a recommendation from its regional office to approve the 3,400-foot runway extension and said further study is needed to justify the project.

Acting FAA chief Barry Lambert Harris, in a memo released Tuesday, said he will take another look at the proposal after the FAA works out a possible joint funding arrangement with two other federal agencies.

Harris described the project as "promising" and ordered his office to "keep this proposal moving forward expeditiously." FAA spokesman Fred Farrar said he released the memo to "shoot down any suspicion that this is politically motivated."

Perot, however, said the delay is unwarranted. "I can't see that it makes any sense," he said. "I guess it's just clutter that goes on in an election year."

Surgeons remove curtain rod from boy's head

NEW YORK (AP) — Surgeons on Tuesday removed a curtain rod plunged into the forehead of an 8-year-old boy in a mock sword fight with a playmate.

Julian Johnson was listed in critical but stable condition after the surgery, said hospital spokesman Tom Chardavoyne.

The accident happened Monday evening as Julian and his friend, Kenneth Irving, also 8, were pretending to duel using some rusted curtain rods.

"They were two little boys, playing around," said Detective Kim Royster, a police spokeswoman.

Kenneth was swinging his curtain rod around when it separated just as he thrust it at Julian's head. Police said the rounded edge that connects the rod's two sections became embedded in the boy's head.

U.N. to set Libya sanctions in motion

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council on Tuesday rejected a last-minute appeal and prepared to cancel all arms sales and airline travel to Libya because of its refusal to turn over suspects in the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103.

The council, armed with a World Court rejection of Libya's effort to bar the sanctions, said they would go into effect at 11:01 p.m. CDT Tuesday. After the deadline passes there should be no flights to or from Libya, nor sales of any military equipment, the council said.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater earlier said the sanctions would take effect 24 hours later.

In any event, the Security Council's first discussions on enforcing the sanctions were to be held today.

The council demands Libya turn over two men indicted for the 1988 bombing of the Pan Am flight over Lockerbie, Scotland, which killed 270 people. It also says Libya must prove it has renounced terrorism and cooperate with France in the investigation of four other Libyans suspected in the 1989 bombing of a French airliner that killed 171 people.

Morocco had appealed on behalf of the Arab League for a delay in imposing the sanctions after Libya offered to turn the suspects in the Pan Am bombing over to Malta for trial there.

The United States and Britain, which have issued warrants for their arrest, rejected that proposal. Among the five permanent Security Council members, only China supported Morocco's request.

The sanctions, approved in a council resolution March 31, bar all nations from allowing aircraft to use their territory or airspace for travel to or from Libya, unless the planes carry humanitarian supplies approved by a U.N. committee.

All states also must prohibit the supply of aircraft or aircraft components and weapons, ammunition and military equipment to Libya.

Countries were asked to expel most Libyan diplomats.

The sanctions do not include what would be the most crippling measure, a boycott of Libyan oil sales. Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Tuesday an oil embargo was under consideration.

Baker noted that the United States and its allies had gone to war with Iraq to ensure its compliance with U.N. resolutions.

Libya had hoped the World

The council demands Libya turn over two men indicted for the 1988 bombing of the Pan Am flight over Lockerbie, Scotland, which killed 270 people.

Court, in The Hague, the Netherlands, would bar the United States and Britain from taking any military or economic action.

But the court ruled the matter had properly been put before the Security Council.

Libya's Belgian lawyer, Jean Salmon, called the World Court's 11-5 decision "a very sad ruling."

Members of the crowd expressed defiance of the sanctions.

"We are not even worried about economic problems," said Islam Ahmed, a schoolteacher. "We will survive with what we have."

"Threats can never make us take a god besides Allah, and we shall not kneel except to Him," said a statement commemorating the bombing, released by Tripoli's embassy in Cairo.

Some of the 1 million foreigners in Libya have been preparing to leave, fearing reprisals. The foreigners include 500 to 1,000 Americans.

On Tuesday, Russia's Foreign Ministry said that 3,500 Russians, mainly military and technical experts, would be evacuated.

"I'll hold the line on spending"

For the past three years J.D. Faircloth has devoted countless hours in learning about our local government and finding ways to improve it. During that time he consistently worked to hold the line on taxes, voted against two budgets, and voted against more spending items than anyone else on the Council. He voted against the half-million dollar parking lot purchase.

He's not against everything. But he's against unnecessary spending in these difficult times. Here's what he's for:

- Creating new jobs for Midlanders
- Focusing our economic development activities on high users of natural gas and other petroleum products
- No property tax increases while holding expenditures to zero growth for at least two years
- Reducing the size of City government, particularly in non-public safety areas
- Restructuring and reorganizing City government to reduce bureaucratic obstacles and delays.

*We can't afford

Parliamentary declaration preserves Yeltsin's power

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's Communist-dominated parliament backed down Tuesday from a week-long clash with President Boris Yeltsin and passed a declaration that will allow him to continue his free-market reforms.

The declaration preserves Yeltsin's power to rule by decree and directs the government to continue the painful reforms that the lawmakers, who are mostly former Communists, oppose.

It apparently averted one of Russia's most serious political crises since the collapse of the Soviet Union last December.

On Monday, Yeltsin's Cabinet threatened to resign, claiming parliament's attempts to trim the president's powers would cripple reforms, raise inflation and block Russia's entry into the world marketplace.

After the 530-236 vote by the Congress of People's Deputies, Yeltsin's ministers happily clapped each other's shoulders and his parliamentary supporters burst into applause. Yeltsin was not present for the vote.

"This eliminates the need for our resignation," Yeltsin's right-hand man, State Secretary Genady Burbulis, told reporters.

Still, lawmakers will have a chance to change their minds and amend the document today.

Yeltsin had been at an impasse with the Congress since the legislative body opened April 6 in the Grand Kremlin Palace.

The declaration, a lopsided compromise worked out behind closed doors, was approved without debate.

The margin of victory was extremely narrow, just six votes more than the 524 needed for a majority of the 1,046 lawmakers.

Passage of the declaration came after Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady told reporters in Moscow the Congress was jeopardizing a $24 billion aid package by taking "steps backwards in ... world confidence."

The declaration tempers a resolution that the Congress passed last Saturday demanding the government lower taxes and raise wages to ease the pain of the reforms. That resolution prompted the Cabinet to submit a collective resignation on Monday.

Tuesday's declaration said the Cabinet should carry out the will of the Congress "taking into account real, evolving economic and social conditions."

That provides a loophole for Vice Premier Yegor Gaidar, the architect of Yeltsin's economic policy, who has argued that lowering taxes while raising expenditures would destroy the reforms and alarm the West.

The declaration also reaffirms a decision by the Congress last year to give Yeltsin power to issue economic decrees and appoint Cabinet ministers without legislative approval.

Lava from Mount Etna flattens deserted houses

ZAFFERANA ETNEA, Sicily (AP) — Lava from Mount Etna flattened two deserted farmhouses Tuesday outside this village on the slopes of Europe's most active volcano. By evening, however, the lava front appeared to have slowed to a halt.

"The situation appears now to be less dramatic," said Nicola Capria, the civil protection minister.

"But we must remember that the monster is extremely strong."

Civil defense officials said inhabited houses were not immediately threatened and delayed evacuating any of the 7,000 villagers from the 10,500-foot-high volcano.

Late Tuesday, military officials blasted the lava with about 400 pounds of explosives. They said the explosion smashed the side of a tunnel formed by lava that had tunneled the smoking black liquid toward the village. The soldiers conducted a similar blast a day earlier. That explosion apparently weakened the walls of a second lava tunnel, higher up on the mountain, that collapsed Tuesday.

Volcanologists said the stream then slowed, split into two branches and slowed to a virtual halt about a half-mile from the village after overflowing the 36-foot-high barrier built at the edge of town.

Franco Barberi, a volcanologist who has been supervising attempts to slow the lava's flow, said it was not certain the lava would reach Zafferana.

Army experts and volcanologists approved an operation to drop 50 concrete blocks, each weighing 2½ tons, close to the source of the magma in hopes of reducing its force and sparing the village possible destruction.

U.S. money must be concealed in 'impure places,' rabbi rules

JERUSALEM (AP) — How can an observant American Jew use his U.S. dollars without breaking the commandments?

The question arose in a letter to rabbinical authorities from a petitioner concerned that the phrase "In God We Trust" appears on U.S. currency. Misuse of the dollar, he reasoned, could constitute a violation of the commandment not to take the Lord's name in vain.

Mordechai Eliahu, chief rabbi to Israel's Sephardic Jews, has now ruled, Israel radio reported Tuesday.

Eliahu said the appearance of the word God — "even in English" — meant dollar bills should be concealed when entering "impure places, such as toilets."

He also commended the American people for their "warm relationship to faith and belief," the rabbi said.

Sephardics, who make up more than half of Israel's population, are descendants of Jews of Middle Eastern origin. There is a long tradition in Judaism of petitioning religious scholars on how to adapt biblical commandments to contemporary living.

New breakthrough helps people tune into voices, not noise.

Chicago - The new, American-made ClearVoice K hearing aid, recently introduced by Beltone Electronics Corporation, uses breakthrough technology to help overcome the problem millions of Americans have understanding voices and conversations in noisy places. The unique K-Amp™ microcircuit amplifies only the soft sounds. Loud sounds, like people shouting and dishes clattering, pass through without any amplification, as if there were no hearing aid present. And ClearVoice K circuitry can be contained in a hearing aid so tiny it fits hidden in the ear canal. People rarely notice when it's worn.

YES, I'VE HEARD OF GLENWOOD ...

What is Glenwood?

Glenwood is a 64-bed psychiatric hospital located between Midland and Odessa providing a safe, relaxed atmosphere in which to provide psychiatric and chemical dependency services to children, adolescents, and adults.

What services are offered at Glenwood?

Glenwood offers a continuum of services ranging from identifying specific needs to providing follow-along services once a patient has been discharged. These services include:

- Outpatient diagnosis and evaluation
- Emergency psychiatric services
- Psychiatric intensive care
- Partial hospitalization
- Rapha Christ-centered therapy
- Short-term psychiatric hospitalization
- diagnosis and evaluation
- short-term treatment
- Follow-along services

A patient may enter the continuum at any level and move to more or less intensive services as the patient's condition changes. For every patient the goals of treatment include returning to a less restrictive environment eventually leading to responsible community living. This usually involves resolving emotional conflicts, developing adaptive behaviors and acquiring independent living skills.

Who are the people of Glenwood?

Glenwood's physicians are highly trained and licensed professionals who work closely with other professionals trained in the areas of psychology, nursing, social work, special education, vocational rehabilitation, activity therapy, occupational therapy, expressive arts therapy, and speech and language pathology.

How does Glenwood know what kind of treatment a patient needs?

The services provided to each patient are prescribed by the attending physician or a team of physicians and professionals who develop a treatment plan based on the patient's needs and condition.

Can I afford care at Glenwood?

While financial responsibility lies with the patient or guardian, Glenwood's psychiatric and chemical dependency treatment programs are covered by most major insurance companies. We accept Medicare, Workman's Comp and work with Employee Assistance Programs. The staff at Glenwood will carefully assist patients and their families in implementing insurance coverage and making financial arrangements.

What is the environment like at Glenwood?

The treatment environment is designed to make available the same activities and experiences encountered in everyday life to make the patient's return to the community much easier. In a monitored and supportive setting, patients are encouraged to engage in social interactions and personal activities that will help them to develop more effective behavior patterns.

What about patient rights at Glenwood?

Consistent with the patient rights standards of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, Glenwood supports and protects the fundamental human, civil, and statutory rights of the individual patient.

Saddam shuffles military hierarchy

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Saddam Hussein has moved several trusted generals into key positions in a command shuffle that reflects his constant efforts to forestall a coup, informed travelers from Iraq say.

The sources, who include Baghdad-based western diplomats and knowledgeable Iraqis, say there is no sign that Saddam's regime is in any immediate danger.

But the feeling is that these changes in the hierarchy, the latest in a long line of shuffles over the past 18 months, reflect Saddam's insecurity more than a year after his Gulf War defeat.

The sources spoke to The Associated Press in Nicosia and Amman, Jordan, on condition of anonymity.

They said the Iraqi leader has ringed Baghdad with three of his five elite Republican Guard divisions to ensure his regime's security amid the continuing threat of Kurdish and Shiite Muslim unrest.

They said Saddam has named Gen. Hussein Rashid, a former chief of staff and hero of the 1980-

'88 war against Iran, the commander of the Republican Guard Corps, a pillar of the regime.

Rashid, who was chief of staff throughout Gulf crisis, commanded the Republican Guard in 1984-85 and oversaw its expansion from a brigade-size formation into an army-within-an-army of seven divisions with 120,000 men.

Saddam's command shuffle is the seventh major reorganization he has made in his military and political hierarchy since he invaded Kuwait Aug. 2, 1990. Rashid is the Guards' fourth commander in that period.

Kamel Yassin, a member of the ruling Baath Party's command, has been appointed to oversee party branches and security in the military, the sources reported.

The party's security apparatus reaches deep within the armed forces and has long acted as an early warning system for Saddam to spot unrest inside the military.

Yassin is Saddam's brother-in-law and cousin. His brother, Irshid, heads Saddam's personal security force.

Lt. Gen. Iyad Futeih al-Rawi, a highly decorated hero of the war against Iran and a staunch Saddam loyalist, is now chief of staff.

His deputies are Lt. Gen. Sultan Hashim, the former 6th Army Corps commander, and Lt. Gen. Salah Aboud, former commander of the 3rd Corps. Al-Rawi also once commanded the Republican Guard.

These generals are part of the handful of senior military commanders who have survived Saddam's repeated purges of the military since the end of the 1980-'88 war.

Rashid and Yassin are both from Saddam's hometown of Tikrit, north of Baghdad.

Most of those in Saddam's ever-narrowing inner circle are either relatives by blood or marriage or Tikritis whose destiny is irrevocably entwined with the Iraqi leader.

Rashid's deployment of the Republican Guard divisions that survived last year's Gulf War indicates Saddam doesn't want to use his best troops for offensives against the regime's enemies.

Apart from the defensive ring around Baghdad by three of these divisions, a Guards armored division has been deployed around the disputed oil center of Kirkuk in the north and a second armored division around al-Amarah in the restive, Shiite-dominated south.

Their mission is to block any rebel moves toward the Iraqi capital, or counter any revolts by disgruntled army units, according to diplomats.

Saddam's strategy appears to be to use regular army divisions and the Popular Army, the Baathist militia, to confront any new uprising in the south.

In the north, reconstituted battalions of pro-government Kurds now form the front-line forces facing the Kurdish rebels' enclave, the sources said.

The command changes reflect Saddam's increasing dependence on his family to protect his beleaguered regime.

U.S. rice off limits at food fair in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Hundreds of Japanese food industry executives munched on American specialties from beef to blueberries Tuesday, but one item was for eyes only: rice.

The U.S.-grown rice on display at the Great American Food Show was solely for "informational purposes" to avoid conflict with laws that forbid sale of foreign rice.

Last year, U.S. rice growers were forced to remove an unauthorized display at a food fair north of Tokyo.

This time, the growers secured the approval of Japan's agriculture ministry by promising that the exhibit was not aimed at selling American rice.

It was the first time such approval had been given for foreign rice, and Japanese news photographers crowded around for shots of a miniature American flag atop a display of varieties of rice.

Meanwhile, a few Japanese business representatives got a glimpse of the forbidden grain and some said they were even interested in buying it.

"For some uses and kinds of cooking, I feel American rice tastes good," said Sachiyo Sakamoto, whose company distributes food to Japanese department stores.

Suggesting that Japanese rice could find a market in the United States for use in special dishes such as sushi, Sakamoto added: "If we export and import rice back and forth, maybe Japan-U.S. relations would get better."

Japan has said the import ban is intended to maintain self-sufficiency in its staple food. The powerful farm lobby also has argued that farmers' livelihoods would suffer if they had to compete with cheaper foreign rice.

Proposals at world free trade talks would require Japan to lift its rice ban, but Japan has rejected the idea.

Pevehouse honor is well deserved

B J. "Joe" Pevehouse was honored by The Alexis de Tocqueville Society of Midland Tuesday evening in a special recognition by United Way for a very special Midlander who for more than four decades has been striving to make the community a better place in which to live.

Pevehouse is fully deserving of the honor. He was the first person to be so honored by the society and his name will appear on the national roster of the organization for 1992.

The Alexis de Tocqueville Society locally is an organization composed of individuals in Midland who have made "substantial" annual contributions to the United Way. The society is named for the 19th century French historian and political philosopher who wrote, among other treatises, a study of political and social institutions in the United States called "Democracy in America."

Pevehouse, who was born at Ranger during the 1920's oil boom, came to Midland shortly after receiving his bachelor's of science degree in geology from Texas Tech University in 1948. In the 44 years since, he has been heavily involved in the oil and gas industry, working for Bay Petroleum, The Permian Corp. and as vice chairman of the board and a director of Adobe Resources Corp.

Yet for all the successes he enjoyed in the world of business, Pevehouse was called to also serve his fellow man through community work and he has continually strived to do so. He has enjoyed noteworthy success in that regard, too.

He served as president of the United Way of Midland in 1978 and as a director at various times in the 1970s and 1980s. In addition, he further served the community and the area on the Midland College Foundation Board, Texas Tech University's Board of Regents as well as the President's Council, Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, the Petroleum Club, Midland Country Club and the Confederate Air Force.

Pevehouse fully deserves the accolades that have been heaped upon him by a grateful community. He saw a way to serve his chosen community and he did not flinch from the task.

High court lands blow for public's privacy

WASHINGTON — You are paying more for stamps these days to cover the salaries of postal inspectors who spend bureaucratic years — and hundreds of thousands of dollars — trying to induce innocent customers into committing a crime by buying porn.

Something is wrong when law officers are allowed to go into the temptation business.

Last year, the popinjay who passes for a U.S. attorney in the District of Columbia set up the mayor here with a sex lure. When the government temptress persuaded the target seeking sex to take drugs, the cops burst in to arrest the entrapped victim for accepting the Justice Department's invitation to a crime. The end was used to justify corrupt means; too many thoughtlessly applauded the "sting."

That loathsome example of entrapment must have been an inspiration to the prurient inspectors who were running up the price of postage stamps by dangling photos of nude teen-agers in front of a law-abiding Nebraska farmer. After two years of official titillation, he was ensnared; the Justice Department fought all the way to the Supreme Court for the joy of making an example out of the man the law turned into a criminal.

Last week, the court finally curbed the crime manufacturers. "Government agents may not originate a criminal design," wrote Justice Byron White for the 5-to-4 majority, "implying in an innocent person's mind the disposition to commit a criminal act, and then induce commission of the crime so that the government may prosecute."

That assertion of a citizen's rights seems so obvious that it is amazing that four justices approved anything-goes entrapment. Fortunately, the Bush appointees, David Souter and Clarence Thomas, voted with the majority to strike down the immoral prosecution, suggesting that Antonin Scalia may not be their Svengali.

The notion that entrapment is permissible if "predisposition" can be shown by mind-reading cops is an assault on the presumption of innocence, the bedrock of our liberty. A person's mailbox is part of his castle, which the king may not enter. The court struck a blow for privacy — personal freedom — in a week that the media thrice did much to undermine it.

In the Noriega trial, reporters zeroed in on the juror who held out against conviction. That's an abuse of the power of inquiry. An individual juror should not fear exposure of an unpopular stand inside the sanctity of the jury room. A decision is the whole jury's, and reporters should not try to single out heroes or villains.

In trial-by-exposure of Arthur Ashe, a public figure not running for office, USA Today's editors decided that AIDS is always news. If the Gannett organization forced out the story, as reported, it brought unnecessary pain to a family and discredit on itself.

In the frenzy to expose every rumor about a candidate's personal habits, ABC News trotted out anonymous testimony from police officers about Jerry Brown's "tolerance" of drugs in his home. If they are telling the truth, the officers are corrupt — guilty of suppressing evidence of a crime for 10 years.

Out-of-town seminar draws Labor execs

WASHINGTON — Last January, the Labor Department tried to scare up a dozen of its top executives to take a course on managing a culturally diverse workforce. The class would have been close to home in Washington. No out-of-town hotel, no expense account dinners — just doughnuts, coffee and information.

The response was a resounding, "Thanks, but no thanks." The department canceled the class when it couldn't get at least 12 warm bodies. And it canceled five similar classes scheduled in other cities throughout this year that would have taught employees on their home turf.

But the same class, more attractively packaged as part of a Labor Department conference at the San Francisco Hilton last month, drew 85 Labor Department executives from Washington and 15 field offices across the country. Why sit through a droning speaker in a conference room in Washington in January when you can fly to San Francisco, endure the speaker, have dinner at Fisherman's Wharf and bill the whole trip to the taxpayers?

How much was the bill? The Labor Department said it couldn't possibly figure out the total cost for us without wasting taxpayers' money doing the calculations.

This much we know. The class on cultural diversity was not free. A consulting firm was hired for $18,000 to present the course in San Francisco. Two Labor Department executives flew to Chicago to check out the consultants before hiring them. The taxpayers paid round-trip air fare for about 100 Labor Department bureaucrats to attend the four-day conference. Hotel rooms were $88 a night and everyone got $34 a day for meals.

It's important to note that the federal government did save the taxpayers some money on this conference. The rooms at the Hilton normally go for $170 to $225 a night.

The people who attended the conference were from the Labor Department's Pension and Welfare Benefits Administration, which normally spends its time chasing down the crooks who plunder the pensions of American workers.

A spokesman for the Labor Department told our associate Ed Henry that the seminar on cultural diversity demonstrates the agency's commitment to taking "the leading edge on work force diversity."

The hotel also features a heated swimming pool, saunas, a health club and four fine restaurants, including the elegant "Cityscape," on the 46th floor with a breathtaking view of the Golden Gate Bridge. Presumably, the conference attendees didn't have time for any of those amenities either, which begs the question, why didn't they stay in their own offices and learn about cultural diversity in the workplace?

Cultural diversity is government jargon for learning how to get along when not everyone on your staff is a young, able-bodied, white male. While the information is valuable, we wonder why the federal Labor Department, the agency that is supposed to provide the expertise for the rest of the country, has to hire outside experts to prep its executives on this subject. And if the bureaucrats have the need to know, why did it take a free trip to San Francisco to get them to bite?

Ruling frustrates psychologists

It was with great dismay that I read the editorial from "The Houston Chronicle" regarding admission privileges for psychologists.

For years, psychologists have been fighting the "great medical lobby" that maintains a monopoly on psychological/psychiatric treatment in hospitals. Only recently, psychologists had begun to obtain the rights due them by their profession and training. The decision by Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation to deny psychologists the right to admit patients to hospitals in Texas represented a major setback. This decision requires psychologists to defend their right to fully practice psychology. The Texas Psychological Association has therefore filed a lawsuit against the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Psychologists (Ph.D.'s) and psychiatrists (M.D.'s) treat psychological illness from radically different approaches. Both are doctoral level professionals (although the Ph.D. is considered the highest degree). At the risk of oversimplification: psychiatrists primarily treat with psychotherapy. Both methods of treatment are proven effective, and can be used in conjunction with one another. Thus, psychiatrists and psychologists often collaborate in care.

By the nature and extent of their training, both psychiatrists and psychologists are qualified to make the decision regarding admission and discharge of patients to and from psychiatric units and hospitals. However, psychiatrists have fought to control admission/discharge privileges. This is likely due to the fact that psychiatrists are well paid to admit patients to hospitals and to provide treatment there.

Although they are trained both within and outside of the hospital, psychologists generally emphasize out-patient care. They try to avoid hospitalization for their patients, recognizing hospitalization as disruptive to the patient's lifestyle. Therefore, when a psychologist recommends hospitalization, it is generally as a last resort. Psychologists' bias toward judiciousness in hospitalization may, in fact, make them the ideal professionals to admit patients to hospitals.

Kathryn W. Marchioni, Ph.D.
Psychologist
Midland

Desperation is the real culprit

Greed and desperation are the real culprits in the admissions abuse to private psychiatric hospitals in Texas. A steady stream of referrals meant high profits for successful hospitals.

Later, struggling hospitals began to take desperate measures to survive by contracting with "headhunter" organizations and individuals. Psychologists were only beginning to gain admission privileges when this problem became public. Not one psychologist has been implicated in an inappropriate admission to a hospital in Texas. All inappropriate or borderline admissions were completed by or with the consent of a physician.

The editorial from the Houston Chronicle, reprinted in the Midland Reporter-Telegram, suggests the cure for patient abuse is to exclude psychologists from the admissions process and allow admissions only by physicians. This logic was tried once before when the fox was put in charge of the henhouse.

Bangor residents offer thanks

On behalf of the Bangor, Maine, delegation (and having the privilege to represent the hundreds of volunteers in the greater Bangor area), I want to thank you for the warm reception and hospitality extended to us. Our visit to Midland was most enjoyable and unfortunately too short.

A special thank you to the awards committee for seeing fit to recognize the "welcome home" efforts that our area citizens put together. Additionally, to General Newton, it was our pleasure to meet you and have the opportunity to talk about your brief stay in Bangor.

On a more personal note, I want to thank the representatives from both chambers who treated us so warmly. Mayor Thomas and city officials, thanks. Linda Basham and Southwest Bell, we owe you a great deal for your generosity. And to Rick Menchaca, who had the task of seeing to our arrangements and that we got from place to place, we thank you for a job well done. I know there were others involved in the Community Spirit Award, and I thank each of you for your efforts.

To Jessica McClure and her family, I admire your strength and commitment to Midland. May the future treat you well.

If any of you ever make your way up here to Maine, please do not hesitate to call on us so that we might have the opportunity to return the favors you did for us.

Yeltsin needs to change the name of CIS

If Boris Yeltsin hopes to get any serious aid from the rest of the world he's going to have to change the name of his country to something else. The present one, Commonwealth of Independent States, will not play in Peoria — it won't even play in Smolensk. Calling his nation the Evil Empire II would be better. At least people could say it.

One of the reasons the present name doesn't work is that nobody has been able to write a national anthem for it — although, heaven knows, many have tried.

Another reason for the CIS to change its name is that the U.S. military cannot sell the American public on any new weapons if it keeps talking about the threat from the Commonwealth of Independent States.

It's impossible to convince our taxpayers there is a superpower named CIS that is prepared to bury us.

But the real urgency for the name change is not because of military considerations, but because of the upcoming Summer Olympics. The former U.S.S.R. has always produced gold medal winners, and sports commentators have never been able to say enough about the Russian athletes.

If nothing is done they will have to talk about the "splendid Independent States" high jumpers and the CIS shotputters. It will be very difficult for the viewers to differentiate between the CIS and the Commonwealth athletes from Australia or New Zealand, unless they are tested.

OK, forget the Olympics. For many years American politicians of both parties have been Red-baiting as a means of getting votes. It is impossible to introduce a Red menace into a campaign when the country you are attacking is called the CIS.

What we have to do is come up with a different name for the Commonwealth, one that can be put to music and emblazoned across a banner at a soccer game. It must have the stirring power of something like the United States of America, or Great Britain, or Sierra Leone.

Bush plays to Reagan Democrats

FRASER, Mich. (AP) — President Bush sought Tuesday to hold the political allegiance of Reagan Democrats in this economically battered state, casting himself as a champion of reform pitted against a paralyzed Congress.

"I'm the first to admit that I can't always count on Congress to act, no matter how great the urgency," Bush said, reciting problems with the economy, schools, health care, the legal system and government accountability.

Bush spoke before business leaders and workers at Giddings & Lewis manufacturing plant, a leader in automated machine systems. Later, he built up his campaign war chest at a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner that was sold out in nearby Dearborn.

"We have been trying since 1989, working for reform and change (and) I've often had to buck a Congress that frankly is resistant to change," Bush told the dinner audience.

"Our congressional system is simply not working. Over the years we've all seen the symptoms: gridlock on important legislation; unconscionable delays on nominations; failure to modernize our banking laws to reform our financial system, failure to strengthen our anti-crime laws... failure to pass fair and simple proposals to stimulate our economy."

In a state hammered by plant closings, auto layoffs and high unemployment, Bush boasted that his administration has landed trading victories over Japan, the increasingly successful rival to the Big Three automakers.

"Since I took office, our exports to Japan have grown 10 times faster than our imports from Japan, and our manufactured products are leading this expansion," Bush said. "That boom has already created an additional 200,000 jobs here at home." He recalled that his trip to Japan in January won pledges from private companies to increase their purchases of U.S. auto parts by $10 billion.

Bush did not mention that Japan held a $43.4 billion annual trade surplus with the United States last year, which constituted 65 percent of America's trade imbalance.

The plant where Bush spoke is located in suburban Detroit's Macomb County, a mostly white, working-class area that is considered a hub of Democratic defections.

After casting the nation's highest margin of votes for John F. Kennedy in 1960, Macomb's voters have moved steadily toward the GOP tent, angered by higher taxes and what they felt were liberal welfare policies that favored minorities.

Macomb went for Ronald Reagan by 2-1 margins and helped put Bush in office. However, the economic downturn has clouded Bush's prospects this year.

Bush's campaign chairman, Robert Teeter, said Michigan would be "a close state" and tough to win because of the economic problems. But he added, "There's no reason to believe we can't carry it." Surveys show that voters are looking for alternatives to the status quo.

Seizing on the mood of voter alienation, Bush said, "If America is going to change, the government must change."

Portraying himself as a reform-minded leader, Bush recalled proposals he unveiled 10 days ago "to cure the paralysis that grips the United States Congress" — including a limit on congressional terms.

Playing to autoworkers, Bush said, "A reformed government knows its limits, refusing to impose undue burdens on business and consumers alike." He reiterated that he would veto any congressional effort to mandate an increase in auto fuel efficiency standards.

Bush also used the speech to flesh out the financing for previously announced jobs programs.

Helmsley to report to prison today

NEW YORK (AP) — Former hotel queen Leona Helmsley said Tuesday she was prepared to serve the four-year prison term she received for tax evasion now that an appeals court upheld it.

Mrs. Helmsley had been ordered to report today — the deadline for filing federal income tax returns — to a federal prison hospital in Kentucky.

"I accept the judgment, and I'm prepared to abide by the law," Mrs. Helmsley said.

Earlier Tuesday, the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals unanimously rejected arguments from Mrs. Helmsley's lawyers that the sentence should be reversed.

The lawyers said the "dramatic change" in her health since she was sentenced in 1989 has made it a virtual life sentence. Her ailments include hardening of the arteries and severe high blood pressure.

"We're arguing not that the original sentence was wrong, but that circumstances have changed," said defense attorney Alan Dershowitz. He asked the appeals court to let Mrs. Helmsley do community service work instead of going to jail.

But prosecutors argued that the 71-year-old hotel queen remains an active woman and letting her avoid prison would "make a mockery of the law."

"The end has come," assistant U.S. attorney Mark Hellerer said.

Defense lawyers said no time was set for her surrender. Convicts generally are required to report during regular business hours. They must arrange their own transportation to the prison.

"Mrs. Helmsley is very upset, obviously, about the prospect of going to jail and she is coping,"

Dershowitz told reporters later.

She left New York's Park Lane Hotel, where she lives, by a rear door at 8:15 p.m. and got into a limousine that drove her to her Greenwich, Conn., country house, said photographers who followed the limousine. It was unknown when she planned to leave for Kentucky.

Mrs. Helmsley was convicted in 1989 of evading $1.7 million in taxes by billing personal expenses, such as renovations on a mansion in Greenwich, Conn., to companies the Helmsleys owned.

A former housekeeper testified that Mrs. Helmsley told her, "Only the little people pay taxes." Mrs. Helmsley denied saying that.

UAW agrees to end strike, return to work at Caterpillar

HINSDALE, Ill. (AP) — United Auto Workers agreed Tuesday to end their five-month walkout at Caterpillar Inc. while contract talks continue with federal mediators.

Caterpillar will stop trying to hire replacements for the nearly 13,000 strikers under an agreement announced by Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service director Bernard DeLury.

The strike has drawn wide attention and provoked outrage among workers because Caterpillar's back-to-work ultimatum represented the first time a major industrial company had tried to replace UAW members with non-union employees.

The world's largest maker of construction and earth-moving equipment also is trying to break a union tradition of pattern bargaining — modeling its contract after those of other companies in the same industry.

The UAW wants Caterpillar to accept a contract like one with Deere & Co., a Moline, Ill.-based farm-equipment manufacturer. Caterpillar says it can't afford to.

The walkout began with a limited strike Nov. 4 and spread, idling 12,600 workers at Illinois plants in East Peoria, Aurora, Moline, Decatur and Mapleton.

"For now it is over," DeLury told reporters after both sides held two days of meetings at the service's suburban Chicago offices. "And it took a lot of guts and a lot of courage on both sides."

But disagreements remained. Caterpillar said strikers shouldn't report for work until they are called.

"We will be assessing our needs and we will notify our employees as to how many we need and where," said Caterpillar Group President Jerry Flaherty. Flaherty was asked several times whether that meant Caterpillar wouldn't be taking all the strikers back. He wouldn't elaborate.

More national news/7B, 10C

Earlier, the company had said management employees who worked in the factories during the strike had determined Caterpillar may need 10 percent to 15 percent fewer employees than had been used before the strike.

But the union insisted UAW members would return to work on their next regular shifts.

"We are following Mr. DeLury's recommendations," said UAW spokesman Karl Mantyla.

The agreement calls for Caterpillar to continue to implement its final contract offer, which had been rejected by the union and which the company put into effect last week when it told strikers to return to work or risk losing their jobs.

Two local organizations will share $15,000 in extra Community Development Block Grant money.

The Midland City Council decided Tuesday to split the extra money — forfeited by the Palmer Drug Abuse Program — between Citywide Community Services for the Aged and the Northeast YMCA.

The former, a cleaning program for the elderly and handicapped, will get $4,000. It needs money to continue its program this year, staffers said Tuesday. Northeast YMCA, meanwhile, will get $11,000 for a new youth program that plans activities both after school and during the summer. Targeting at-risk youth without other options for Confederate Air Force to receive $30,000 for advertising as part of the deal.

By Debbie Lincecum

Staff Writer

In a plan that hopefully will attract more visitors to the Confederate Air Force, a Midland water storage tower will join the cola wars.

Tuesday, the Midland City Council approved adding the familiar Coca-Cola design to the Midland International Airport water tower. The tower already is getting a new paint job with the CAF logo.

In return for a tower that reads, "Home of the Confederate Air Force and the Real Thing," the soft drink company will give the CAF $30,000 for advertising.

Cost of painting the tower has been estimated at $136,000 and is to be paid by the city. Officials were unable to say Tuesday if the logo painting — not a part of the original design — would increase the cost of the job.

Thomas Construction Co. of Chicago is working this week to get the tower ready to paint, city officials said.

Midland's tower will become one of three in the state with the soft drink company's slogan, Mullen said.

"It's part of a statewide marketing campaign," said Chris Mullen, division vice president for Southwest Coca-Cola. "We want to generate some additional traffic in this marketplace."

Mullen said that with an agreement to keep the Coke slogan on the tower for one year, the local division will qualify for money from its parent corporation — the money it plans to give to the CAF. After one year, however, the city could change the tower's face.

With the donation, the CAF is expected to purchase advertisements on six billboards along Interstate 20 — a plan officials said would attract visitors and generate money for the community.

City leaders said they are working on a deadline — needing to have the work complete in a month to 45 days so the tank could be used during the dry summer season.

But the time constraints caused tension for some. Airport advisory board members — citi-

Pevehouse earns Tocqueville honor

Staff Report

From the time he first set foot in Midland, B.J. "Joe" Pevehouse has been a strong supporter of the community. For those 44 years of dedication, he was recognized as the Midland Alexis de Tocqueville Society Award recipient during a ceremony Tuesday night.

Special guest at the annual Alexis de Tocqueville Society event was Mrs. Adele Hall of Kansas City, Mo., and a member of the National Alexis de Tocqueville Society board.

This marks the first time a Midlander has been recognized by the local society. "The Alexis de Tocqueville Society of the United Way of Midland has recognized Pevehouse with its first special award for outstanding continuous and dedicated service to his community," said Deane Stoltz, Midland Tocqueville Society chairman.

"Joe has always been a special person to his friends and to those he has worked with in various community activities as well as an inspiration and challenge to others to rise to the occasion," Stoltz said.

Pevehouse is a graduate of Denver City High School and Texas Tech University with a bachelor of science degree in geology. Following graduation, he moved to Midland to work for Bay Petroleum Co. He then worked as an independent geologist and for the Permian Corp. before founding Adobe Resources Corp., of which he was chairman and CEO since 1985.

Through the years, his civic involvement also has evolved. In addition to serving on the board of trustees for First United Methodist Church, he was the first president of the Midland College Foundation board, and served as president and director of United Way of Midland. He has been a member of the Texas Tech President's Council since 1973, and served on the board of regents from 1979-85, including one year as chairman.

Houston-area congressional race in dead heat

Associated Press

HOUSTON (AP) — Anglo state Sen. Gene Green and Hispanic city councilman Ben Reyes were locked in a virtual dead heat Tuesday in a runoff to select the Democratic nominee for a new Houston-area congressional district that was designed to virtually guarantee victory for a Hispanic.

Green, who has represented the area in the Legislature for 20 years, finished second to Reyes in the March primary but qualified for a runoff when neither man could attract a majority of the vote.

With 83 percent of the precincts counted, Green had 13,488, or 50 percent, to 13,295, or 50 percent, for Reyes.

The 29th District race was one of three congressional runoffs in Texas on Tuesday.

In the Republican runoff in District 16 in El Paso, former sportscaster Chip Taberski, 36, led former county judge and businessman Pat O'Rourke, 49, in a Republican runoff for District 16 in El Paso.

With early returns counted, less than 1 percent, Taberski had 1,877, or 73 percent, to O'Rourke's 696, or 27 percent.

In the Dallas-Fort Worth area, Phillip Bie-lamowicz, 42, and Steve Masterson, 30, were running for the GOP nomination.

With 62 percent of the vote counted, Masterson had 1,428, or 56 percent, to Bielamowicz's 1,102 or 44 percent.

The winner will face Democratic Rep. Martin Frost in the newly redrawn 24th District.

The new 29th District is one of three new seats given to Texas thanks to the 1990 census. It meanders through Houston's southeast side but also extends finger-like into northern and western sections of the city that were identified as areas where Hispanics live.

Two Texas House members retain their seats in runoffs

AUSTIN (AP) — One incumbent House member was defeated and two were victorious in bids for re-election Tuesday night as runoff elections were completing the November general election ballot.

Rep. Tom Cate, D-Lytle, who had held the District 45 seat but was moved into South Texas' District 44 by redistricting, was defeated by Richard Raymond of Benavides.

The seat is being vacated by longtime Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, who had chaired the House Public Education Committee.

In Fort Worth's 95th District, veteran Rep. Garfield Thompson defeated challenger Martha Redd Singleton in the Democratic primary.

There was confusion in a third House race, where results reported by the secretary of state's office first showed veteran Rep. Al

Price, D-Beaumont, losing — but later winning — in his District 22 runoff battle with Stella Morrison, a Port Arthur lawyer.

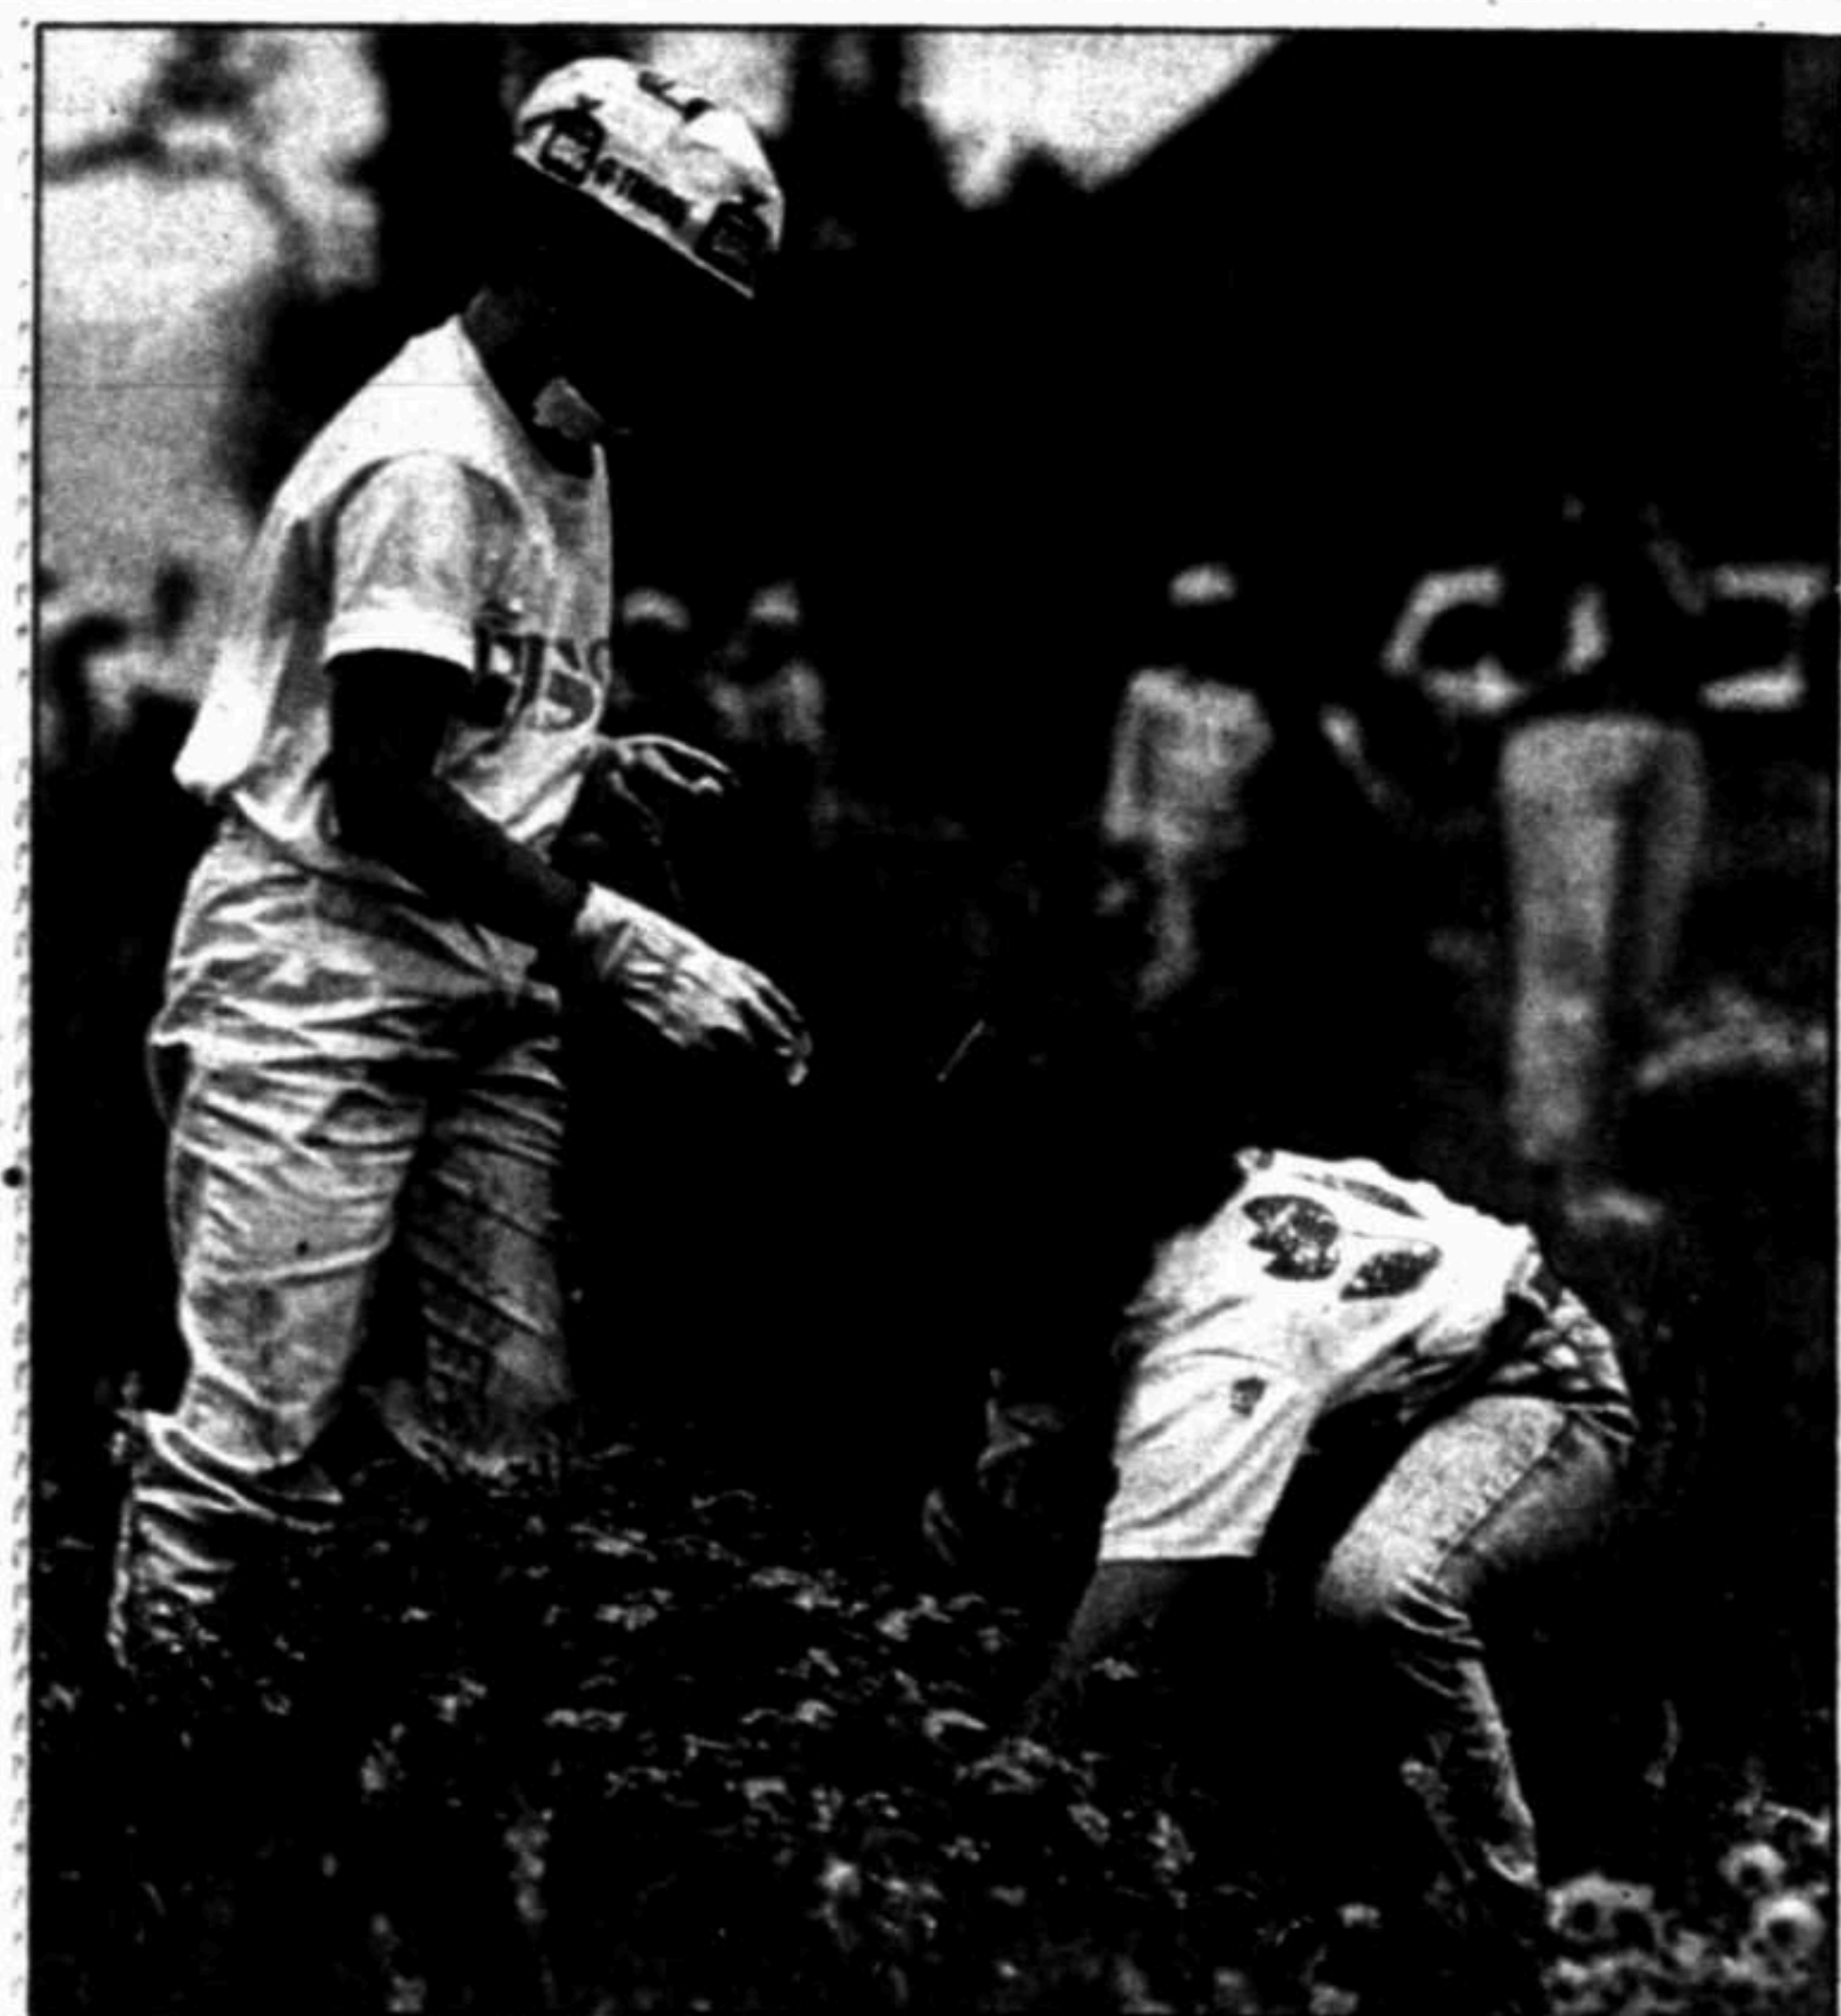

Unofficial final totals gave Price a narrow margin of 4,215 votes, 50.2 percent, to 4,174, 49.8 percent. Price, a retired airline pilot, has served in the House since 1977.

"We had a program problem," said Linda Scherbenske of the secretary of state's office. She said the vote-tallying computer mistake-only considered the race final when some precincts hadn't yet reported in.

In a key Senate matchup, Sen. John Whitmire, D-Houston, was seeking to hold onto the seat he first won in 1982. Whitmire's opponent in the 15th District was state Rep. Roman Martinez, D-Houston, who first won election to the House in 1982.

Midland College board candidates emphasize technology

By Myra Lee Salcedo

Staff Writer

Midland College should continue to emphasize technology programs, according to the panel of MC board candidates.

"The country with the highest technology is going to lead the 21st century," said Norma Viney Burke, candidate for Place 2 on the MC board.

She and other MC candidates participating on the panel gave their views on the institution to faculty and students Tuesday afternoon.

Kevin Skipper, a candidate for Place 1 who is challenging incumbent Steven Kiser, agreed with Ms. Burke. "As a board member of the Private Industry Council, I am aware of the college's role in industry and vocational programs," he said.

Most of the panelists agreed, however, that no one program should be emphasized to the detriment of others.

One audience member at the forum asked if panelists agreed that faculty was "being short-changed" because they hadn't received raises since 1986.

Ms. Burke and her challengers for Place 1 — Joann Foster and Alan Bryant — all agreed that teachers were vital to the institution.

Ms. Foster suggested that salary increases could come from the endowment fund proposed by MC President David Daniel.

"At my alma mater, Southwestern in Georgetown, they increased salaries through the endowment fund. I don't know why we haven't done this before," she said.

"Salary should be a priority with trustees," said unopposed Place 3 candidate William Howard. "I have received several myself over the years and they were sorely needed."

"The faculty is the greatest asset this college has," Ms. Burke said. "And the faculty is not a depreciating asset."

Kiser, the only incumbent on the panel, said, "Every year since I have been on the board we have had cuts in (state) appropriations — as much as $500,000. If we have to cut programs to pay salaries which programs do we cut?"

Kiser said he is "pro-faculty" and has been outvoted on salary raises several times.

Bryant suggested the college look for financial resources in the form of donations. "Try for any kind of funding you can get," he said.

In response to a question on the college's role in diversifying a multicultural curriculum, the panelists offered strategies for recruiting minority students.

Skipper suggested marketing surveys could be used to get input on the college from students, teachers and the public. He also suggested the college could institute an elder hostel program and other senior citizen programs.

Charlene Romero Wurtz — who is running unopposed in Place 6 — did not attend the forum. Ms. Wurtz was appointed to fill Place 6 after trustee Gloria Hinojosa resigned.

Bryant has not formally announced his candidacy. The 25-year-old is an engineer for Exxon.

The election to select trustees for six-year, unpaid terms on the board will be May 2.

Robert Ross

ABILENE — Graveside services for Robert E. Ross, 85, step-father of Carma Lee Durham of Midland, were Tuesday at the Clyde Cemetery with the Rev. Jack Willoughby officiating.

Baily Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

He died Sunday in an Abilene nursing home.

Ross was born in Denton and moved to Baird from Idalou in 1980. He attended school in Grand Falls and Abilene. He was a member of the Baptist church.

Ross worked for Rogers Ford Market as a butcher.

Survivors include his wife, Cora Lee Ross of Baird; one daughter, Patti June McMurry of Everett, Wash.; two other step-daughters, Barbara Killingsworth of San Angelo, and Norma Jean Whitehead of Conroe; one step-son, Buzzy Sexton of Carsbad, N.M.; two sisters, Monica Williams of Baird and Gladys Steger of Abilene; one brother, Kenneth Ross of Abilene; four grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; 15 step-grandchildren; 26 step-great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Ora Bess

Services for Ora Lene Bess, 54, are pending with Thomas Funeral Home.

She died Tuesday at her Midland home following a lengthy illness.

Merrill Dryden

STANTON — Services for Merrill Wayne Dryden, 64, are set for 10 a.m. today at First United Methodist Church with the Revs. Milton Jochetz, pastor, and James Jackson of Lubbock officiating. Burial will follow in Greenwood Cemetery under the direction of Gilbreath Funeral Home.

Dryden died Monday at a Midland hospital following a brief illness.

He was born May 22, 1927, in Kansas.

He married Paula Green in July 1970 in Clayton, N.M.

They moved to Greenwood from Dalhart in 1982 and to Stanton in 1990.

Dryden was employed by Tamarack Petroleum and was a member of the First Methodist Church of Stanton.

"Do they feel the airport board isn't needed?" said Ed Vogler, chair of the board.

He said he's concerned that citizens have been bypassed as well.

"I don't think people in the community are cognizant of all the aspects of this."

Upon hearing of the plan on Feb. 25, Vogler suggested the city should take bids for the advertisement. Then, after not hearing more about negotiations, Vogler said he and other board members assumed the plan had been dropped.

organized games and activities, the program is hoped to begin this year.

Meanwhile, a street-paving project funded with another part of this year's CDBG allocation is ready to begin.

The council Tuesday authorized advertisement for bids for the paving of Eugene Street between Keith and Marienfeld avenues; Webster Street between Indiana and New York avenues; Bryant Street between Jax and Hart avenues; Garden Lane between Fort Worth and Dallas streets; and Pennsylvania Avenue from Jackson and Clay streets.

Morrow said he was unsure about the plan at first, but realized it is likely to have a positive economic impact.

"The end result is we come to the same place — for the benefit of the city," Morrow said. "Every dollar we get spent in the city is returned to the city."

But Morrow regrets, he said, that time was short and the council was unable to take the issue to the board.

City Attorney Keith Stretcher said the contract with Coca-Cola would probably be similar to a lease, adding that he expects the legal staff to negotiate with the company and bring an agreement to the council for approval.

Coca-Cola's initial investment will allow the CAF to put up the billboards and maintain them for about a year. But after that, the organization may be seeking another corporate sponsor.

"What they're doing is a start — seed money," said Norma Webb, director of marketing and communications for the CAF. "We may look for other corporate sponsorships. But I feel like once the community sees how many tourists these bring in, they won't let them go."

HOUSE: South Texas incumbent loses position

(From 1B)

Republicans in the sprawling 26th Senate District, from San Antonio to northwest of Austin, were choosing between two House members — Alan Schoolcraft of Universal City and Jeff Wentworth of San Antonio.

The second GOP Senate primary, for the 2nd District north and east of Dallas, lawyer Don Kent of Tyler faced Florence Shapiro of Plano, who is in the advertising and public relations business, and has also served as a city council member and mayor.

Other House races decided

Tuesday:

■ Larry Wright, a legislative assistant from Malone, defeated Lynda Bruner of Hillsboro in the District 10 Democratic runoff.

■ Tom Davis, a Fort Worth architect, defeated Paul Enlow of Fort Worth in the District 89 Republican runoff.

■ Nancy Moffat, a city administrator from South Lake, won the District 98 GOP runoff over Chris Hawkins of Coleville.

■ Joe Driver, Garland, defeated Bill Tomlinson, a Garland businessman, in the Republican runoff in District 113.

leum Geologists, Midland Wildcat Committee, Permian Basin Petroleum Association, TIPRO and Permian Basin Petroleum Museum.

The Alexis de Tocqueville Society of Midland was formed in 1988 to recognize local citizens who have rendered outstanding service and to foster voluntary community service. It is one of 131 local society affiliates that have been formed since the national society was formed in 1972. The society was named after French historian Alexis de Tocqueville, who admired the Americans' spirit of voluntary association and effort for the common good and about which he wrote enthusiastically in his historical perspective in 1835.

Pevehouse will be recognized with other local society award recipients by the United Way of Midland. Persons who have been awarded recipients in other cities include Walter J. Annenberg of Philadelphia; Sid and Jenny Craig of San Diego, Calif.; Janey and Dolph Briscoe of San Antonio; and Ruth Collins Altshuler of Dallas.

Reeves County sheriff loses after 16 years in office

Associated Press

PECOS — Reeves County Sheriff Raul Florez lost the office he has held 16 years in a close runoff race Tuesday that was one of five in which county voters booted out incumbents.

Florez grabbed 2,304 votes. Arnulfo Andy Gomez, a former deputy and jailer who had worked for Florez, won 2,525 votes.

"It's awfully close. I would rather been whooped by 2,000 votes than by a few. I feel like it's more easily accepted," said Florez, 54.

The election drew 208 more voters than were registered to vote before the March 10 primaries. The county has about 7,000 registered voters.

The phone at Gomez's home was busy Tuesday night. Gomez used a well-organized, grass roots campaign.

Florez said he believed he was a victim of an anti-incumbent trend. Two Reeves County commissioners and two constables also lost their runoff races.

"It's the time," Florez said. "I gave the people all I had for so many years. We've done so much in so many years, but it didn't seem like it was enough."

Florez drew four opponents in the primaries, which was the first time he was seriously challenged throughout his career. Erma Coleman, a widow of a Texas Ranger, threw the race into a runoff. Her campaign had accused Florez of not doing enough to stop drug trafficking.

Florez said he has not decided what he will do next, but added that he has had many offers, including some outside Pecos.

"There is a sadness. You hate to be whooped, especially this close. You hate to give up a dream you had so many years."

Officer wounded during scuffle

Staff Report

A Midland police officer escaped serious injury late Monday night after another officer's gun discharged when a car theft suspect attempted to grab it, police reports said.

Sgt. James Nettles was treated by paramedics at the scene for a minor wound to the head, reports indicate.

At 11:12 p.m., while patrolling in west Midland, officers spotted a vehicle that had been reported stolen a few minutes earlier. The ensuing chase through Midland ended when two men pulled over at the corner of Dakota Avenue and Marienfeld Street in south Midland, reports said.

As officers were removing the men from the vehicle, the driver attempted to take the gun from one officer, causing it to fire accidentally, reports said.

Manuel Hinojos Jr., 26, of the 1500 block of South Atlanta Street, remains in the Midland County jail on charges of theft over $20,000, two counts of aggravated assault on a peace officer, attempting to take an officer's weapon; and evading arrest, jail officials said. Bond on the five charges totaled $60,500.

Jose Hinojos, 41, address unknown, faces charges of theft over $20,000, aggravated assault on a peace officer and evading arrest. He also remained in jail late Tuesday night on bonds totaling $30,500, jail officials said.

The stolen vehicle, a 1987 Nissan, was taken from Danny's Automotive at 1503 Rankin Highway.

Three linked to casino robbery arrested in Beaumont

BEAUMONT (AP) — Three Texas men were charged Tuesday in connection with a daring $1.1 million casino heist at a Las Vegas Strip resort.

FBI agents arrested the trio early Tuesday in Beaumont. Two of the men are the sons of a former casino security guard who was arrested two days after the robbery at the Stardust hotel-casino.

Houston FBI spokesman Charles Kearney identified the men as Jeffrey Alan Hopper, 26; his brother, Bobby Lee Hopper, 22; and Wesley Edgar Carroll, 25. All three are from Beaumont.

The U.S. Attorney's office charged each of the three with violating federal law by transporting stolen money across state lines. Conviction on the charge carries a penalty of up to 10 years imprisonment and a $250,000 fine.

The three men appeared Tuesday before U.S. Magistrate Wendell Radford and were ordered held without bond. A detention hearing was set for April 20.

The Hoppers are sons of Royal Mayne Hopper Jr., who was arrested last week on charges stemming from the April 6 robbery, Kearney said.

The FBI declined to comment on whether money taken in the robbery was found or what evidence linked the three to the crime.

The elder Hopper is a former security guard at the Stardust. He resigned shortly after contending he was robbed of $150,000 at the casino.

Texas imprisonment rate for minorities shows increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas imprisonment rates for minorities, especially blacks, increased significantly between 1985 and 1991, according to a report presented Tuesday to a commission working on the state's punishment policy.

The incarceration rate for blacks increased from 683 per 100,000 black adult population in 1985 to 1,414 in 1991, according to the report given to the Texas Punishment Standards Commission.

The incarceration rate for whites in 1991 was 167, up from 122 in 1985; and for Hispanics, 293, up from 173.

"There indeed is some racism in the system... We can't avoid that. It hits you in the face," said Gary Bledsoe, president of the Texas State Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Bledsoe said economic and social factors also come into play, and that some fault lies with individuals. Education should be one major initiative in addressing the crime problem, he said.

The study does not give reasons for the disparity, noted Ellis Sandoz III, press secretary to Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall. Lyon is co-chairman of the Punishment Standards Commission.

"Sen. Lyon is against any type of disparity... He feels that the laws of Texas should be applied with the same firm hand, regardless of what the color of your skin is, or the geographic region in which you live," Sandoz said.

A more comprehensive study is to be released after June 1, and Lyon wants to have a crime summit after it is issued, Sandoz said.

The report said the percentage of black people sentenced to prison rose from 35.7 to 45.6 percent of all offenders sentenced, comparing 1985 to 1991; and for Hispanics, from 22.1 percent to 24.3 percent.

The percentage of whites sentenced to prison dropped from 42.2 percent to 30.1 percent.

The racial composition of the Texas population as a whole in 1991 was 12 percent black, 25 percent Hispanic, and 63 percent white, according to the report.

The report "raises more questions than can be answered with present information," said a note attached to the report from the council's executive director, Tony Fabelo.

Law students at SMU denounce racist flier

DALLAS (AP) — Law students on Tuesday overwhelmingly denounced as cowardly and racist a flier claiming blacks don't measure up at Southern Methodist University.

The flier, signed "Concerned Law Students for Merit and Academic Excellence," was placed in some black law students' campus mail boxes last week.

Dean Paul Rogers canceled classes Tuesday and invited students to an afternoon "town meeting" to quell tension. About 250 of the law school's 770 students attended.

The loudest applause came when speakers said the flier does not represent most white students' views.

But other speakers said racism flourishes — whether intentional or not — at SMU.

"It is an extremely difficult environment in which to be different, in which to excel if you are not the round peg that fits in the round hole," said Donya Witherpoon, a third-year student. About 30 students and administrators spoke up.

School officials and students had not heard of the group taking credit for the flier. Some suspected it might be a single student.

Clarence Glover Jr., director of intercultural education, said law enforcement officers were helping track down the author.

The flier read: "These poorly prepared, academically marginal students attend SMU law school on a free ticket on racist diversity scholarships which are not open to non-minorities."

"... And, furthermore, we're offended that minority student segregate themselves in the Black Law Students Association and not be apart (sic) of the general SMU law school community. There is no Caucasian Law Students Association and we'd be harassed for even considering starting one," the statement continued.

Boy, 15, stands on corner, rents guns to other teens

HOUSTON (AP) — Need some temporary fire power? Street corner entrepreneurs are renting guns by the hour, day or weekend to Houston teen-agers, police say. Houston Police Lt. Greg Neely says the trend began in New York and Los Angeles and has spread to Houston.

A 15-year-old boy who calls himself "Shadow" told The Houston Post he rents guns to younger children who usually take the weapons to school to impress friends. "Most of them ain't going to do nothing with a gun but show it," he said. "They're just kids. They carry it around, they show it, they get themselves a name."

Shadow made a deal with one customer recently, who told the entrepreneur, "I need a little noise for the weekend."

But when Shadow fished out a .25-caliber pistol from his jacket pocket, the young boy turned up his nose. "Man, I don't want no pop gun. I need me a big noise."

The two haggled over the price on a 9mm semiautomatic until the younger boy forked over $30 in five- and one-dollar bills to keep it over the weekend. Most of Shadow's customers pay $5 to $10 to borrow a gun for the day.

Shadow, who says he "finds" the guns for his small arsenal, isn't concerned about what the kids do with the guns after they pay him because it "ain't nothing to me."

"What's scary about it is that through him (Shadow), everybody in the neighborhood can have a gun now," said Neely, a homicide officer.

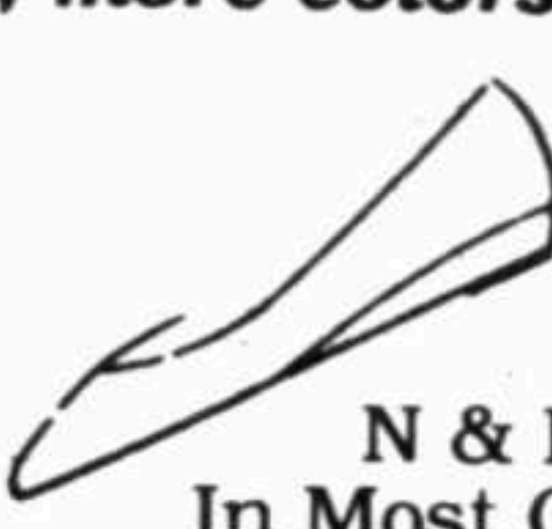

Youths are willing to pay for a temporary weapon, Neely said, because they're too young to buy one and paying someone like Shadow is easier and safer than trying to steal one.

"Most of the time they're not looking to shoot anybody," said Officer Mike Howard, who is assigned to the Houston Police Department's gang task force.

But once a child has a gun, troubles seem to follow.

"They don't know how to settle arguments," Howard said Monday.

Ex-sheriff faces extortion charge

FORT WORTH (AP) — Former Wise County Sheriff Leroy Eugene Burch was indicted Tuesday on federal extortion conspiracy charges, the U.S. Attorney's office said.

Also indicted were former Chief Deputy John Byron Yarbrough; bail bondsman David Lowayne Box of Decatur and a former employee of Box's, James Howard Conner Jr., U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins said.

Yarbrough is awaiting execution for his capital murder conviction in a slaying at a roadside park.

"I didn't extort any money from anybody," Box said before the indictments were returned. "That's not true."

Burch was expected to surrender today to federal officials.

The indictments allege Burch, Yarbrough, Box and Conner conspired to extort money from people arrested in Wise County between March 1987 and November 1988 by recommending Box's All Bail Bonds company and also offering to reduce or drop charges for additional payments.

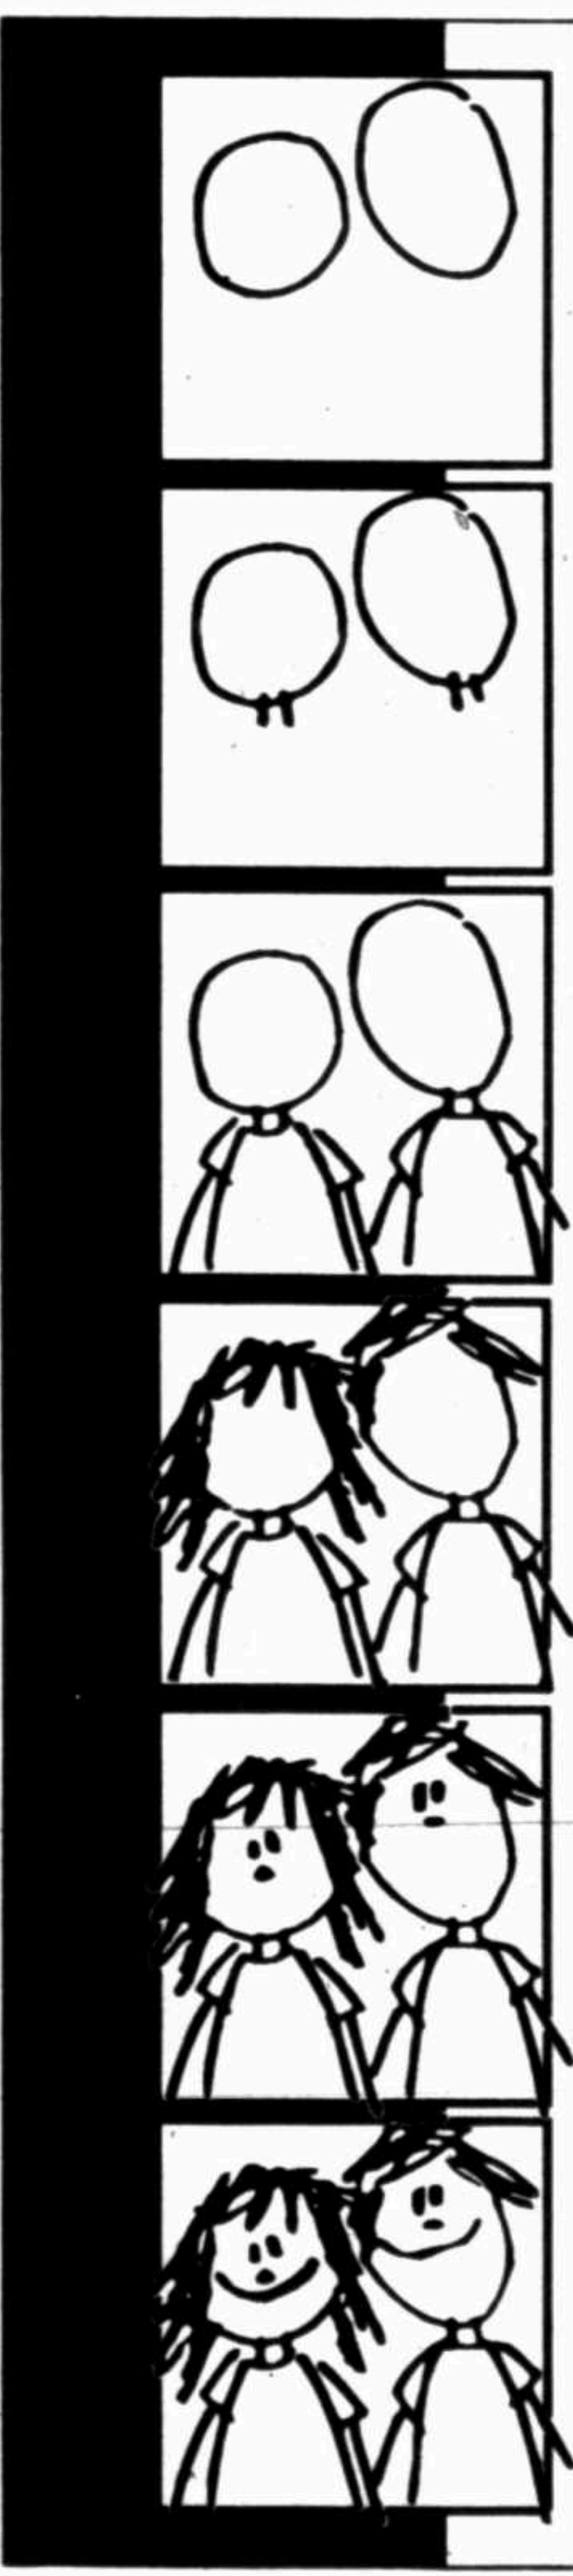

In an April 1990 interview, Burch blamed Yarbrough for any questionable arrests in the county.

"I should have been on top of it better," Burch told The Dallas Morning News, "but I trusted my chief deputy. I made a mistake."

Yarbrough, a former Fort Worth policeman, was convicted in the February 1990 slaying of Jerry Lee Shaw at a highway rest stop near Burleson.

If convicted of all nine counts against them, Burch and Yarbrough could be sentenced to a maximum 180 years in prison plus a $2 million fine, officials said.

Box, named in all 11 counts, could receive a sentence of 186 years and $2.2 million.

John Carley

President, Albertsons

Hello. I'm John Carley, President of Albertsons. In case you haven't heard, all Jewel Osco stores are becoming your Albertsons Food & Drug Stores. What that means...

Jewel Osco prices will be lowered to Albertson's Rock Bottom Prices.

We're lowering the price on over 17,000 items. We will complete that change in each Jewel Osco store over the next few days.

But just as importantly, we want to assure you that the Jewel Osco employees you've come to know and trust will still be there to serve you. The items you found on aisle seven will still be on aisle seven. And you'll find the same big selection, plus all service departments.

The change you will notice is in your total grocery bill. It's going to go down! With over 17,000 new lower prices coming, it has to. For Rock Bottom prices and Rock Bottom totals, come on in. Your Jewel Osco is now your Albertsons.

Houston wants to purchase riot armor for horses

HOUSTON (AP) — Police SWAT officers aren't the only ones making special preparations for this summer's Republican National Convention.

The Houston Police Department wants the city to spend about $163,000 to buy protective armor for mounted special weapons and tactics units assigned to riot control for the GOP gathering.

"We hope the majority of this stuff will be here by the time of the convention," Larry Yium, the police department's budget director, said Monday.

The convention is scheduled for Aug. 17-20 at the Astrodome, but demonstrations and preparations are expected for several days prior to the event.

If man and beast are both outfitted, the patrols should resemble medieval knights.

Some $14,919 worth of leather horse armor being requested includes 30 sets of visors, nose guards, visor bags, front and rear cannon bone guards, knee guards and bell boots.

The gear will protect the animals from people who may throw rocks or other objects at them, Yium said.

The department also is requesting $147,719 worth of riot vests and helmets for the mounted officers. Yium said the protective gear being used now is outdated and needed to be replaced anyway.

Audit: Officials made 1,440 political calls

AUSTIN (AP) — An internal audit released Tuesday by the Texas General Land Office says 1,440 long-distance or local telephone calls were made to political offices by Land Commissioner Garry Mauro and a handful of agency employees.

Mauro, who is Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton's Texas campaign chairman, said, "Despite these errors, the report shows conclusively that there has been no 'systematic abuse' of state resources for political — or personal — purposes at the Land Office."

But state GOP Chairman Fred Meyer called the audit, which covered several months of phone records, "a joke." He said he still wants a thorough review by state and federal prosecutors.

"This is ... Garry Mauro saying, 'Garry Mauro, you're all right,'" Meyer said. "On the basis on which he exonerates his office, there would not be one criminal in our prisons."

The audit has been given to the Travis County district attorney's office, agency officials said. The district attorney did not immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press.

Mauro said the audit also showed to be false allegations that state aircraft had been used for the Clinton campaign or other political purposes.

The agency said long-distance telephone costs were reimbursed, and that employees would be asked to give up part of their vacation time to make up for time spent on questionable calls. That was estimated at 40.4 hours, or $1,092, for 19 employees.

The time spent by Mauro was estimated at 36.8 hours. Agency spokesman Ron Calhoun said, "He is totally and solely answerable to the voters."

Many of the calls were for less than a minute each. The agency said that means a connection may not have been made.

Twelve of the workers made fewer than 30 calls each. Calls to political offices were not only to Clinton's headquarters, but to the Mauro's campaign office, state Democratic headquarters and others.

One of the employees — Tucker Sutherland, special assistant to the commissioner — was shown to make 363 total calls, including 66 long-distance calls to Clinton's Little Rock headquarters. He was required to give up his state mobile phone, the audit said.

Sutherland said he did no wrong and would contest a number of those calls. He said he paid reimbursement for the Clinton headquarters calls and thought he was following proper procedure at the time.

He said that others also had access to his phone lines.

INTRODUCING CLEARVOICE K

Tune into the soft voices, not the noise.

Sometimes, in this noisy world, it's difficult to hear the soft sounds like people's voices. Beltone's continuously self-adjusting ClearVoice K amplifies only the soft sounds, so you'll hear more clearly no matter where you go.

With the K-Amp™ microcircuit, annoying loud sounds like shouting, doors slamming and dishes clattering pass through without any amplification as if there were no hearing aid present. The result is crisp, clean, natural high-fidelity sound.

If it's a problem when people speak too softly, call Beltone today. ClearVoice K can help you recapture the treasures of the human voice.

ClearVoice K microcircuitry can be placed in hearing aids as tiny as this.

Perot under scrutiny for investigating Bush story

WASHINGTON (NYT) — H. Ross Perot, the Texas billionaire who is considering a bid for the presidency, has found himself under scrutiny for investigating the story of a Missouri inmate who claimed that President Bush was part of a 1980 plot to delay the release of American hostages in Iran.

In a telephone interview from his office in Dallas, Perot acknowledged Tuesday that he had recently sent aides to interview the Missouri prisoner, who said he had flown Bush back from secret meetings in Madrid in 1980 on an SR-71 Blackbird, a United States aircraft generally used for spying. Perot denied, however, that his motivation was to uncover potentially embarrassing information about the president. Instead, he said, he was responding to an appeal from a person who said he had been unjustly imprisoned.

Later in the day, Perot, in a speech to a convention of natural gas producers in Nashville, asserted that Bush was more interested in publicity stunts like visiting schools and reading to children than in solving the country's domestic problems.

"Just think how goofy that is," Perot said in the speech. "But that's Washington, that's free TV. Millions of Americans think he cares. But my idea is that if he cares, why doesn't he do something?"

Perot stepped up his attacks on the president on the same day that newspaper reports suggested the Texas businessman was seeking information linking Bush to an alleged scheme in 1980 by Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign to delay the release of American hostages in Iran until after the November election.

This "October Surprise" has been hinted at for more than a year, but so far, there has been no independent evidence verifying reports that the Reagan-Bush campaign tried to stall the release of the hostages. Republicans have denied that there was any such conspiracy, although the Democratic Congress is investigating the allegations.

The Wall Street Journal reported Tuesday that Perot had recently dispatched three aides in a private jet to investigate the claims of the Missouri prison inmate, Gunther Russbacher.

In the telephone interview, Perot said he did not dispatch his employees, which included two experienced pilots and the general counsel of his company, Perot Systems Corp., to confirm the existence of a plot to delay the freeing of the hostages.

"It was a simple surgical check on his credibility," Perot said.

Russbacher, was described Tuesday by Missouri officials as a veteran con artist who has a record of falsely claiming to be associated with high-profile news events and impersonating military personnel and Central Intelligence Agency agents.

He is currently serving 21 years in the Missouri state prison in Fulton, for selling fraudulent stock investments. Authorities say Russbacher's scheme included telling potential investors that the money they invested would help finance anti-communist rebels in Nicaragua.

First-graders face rape charges

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rape charges are pending against two 7-year-old boys who allegedly attacked a first-grade classmate in a public school restroom.

"It is hard to believe, isn't it?" said Gary Chavers, a deputy prosecutor who heads juvenile investigations.

Authorities believe the incident is the first involving suspects so young. "I think our youngest was a 10-year-old charged a couple of months ago with rape," Chavers said.

The boys, whose names were not made public because of their age, were arrested Monday, appeared in juvenile court and were released to their parents for formal home detention during further court proceedings.

No trial dates were set. The alleged attack occurred during school hours March 26 at a school in a working-class neighborhood on the city's east side. The prosecutor said the 6-year-old girl "was able to give what we feel is a very clear statement about what happened."

Verda Bowman, who is in her first year as principal at the school, said Tuesday that all three children were undergoing professional counseling. She declined to say if the victim was back at school, but said the boys were not.

Substance abuse

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Raiders quarterback Todd Marinovich, who is nearing the end of a drug diversion program, was tested positive by the NFL for a banned substance, ESPN reported on Tuesday.
ESPN said Marinovich refused to be interviewed but denied the report through his agent, Tom Condon.
ESPN, citing sources within the NFL, said the league-conducted test which came back positive was taken shortly after the Raiders lost to the Kansas City Chiefs 10-6 in an AFC wild-card playoff game last Dec. 28. The cable network said it was not known what drug was involved.
Condon was unavailable for immediate comment and there was no immediate comment made by anybody connected with the Raiders. A team spokeswoman said those who might comment were out of town and unavailable.
Marinovich, 22, was arrested on Jan. 20, 1991, on charges of cocaine and marijuana possession in Newport Beach, Calif. Earlier that month, he was suspended indefinitely from the University of Southern California football team for missing a meeting and failing to register for classes.
He later passed up his final two years of college eligibility for the NFL draft, and was taken by the Raiders as the 24th selection of the first round last April.

All-injury club best in game?

Baseball's disabled list contains all-star lineup after first week

By Ben Walker
AP Baseball Writer

The best lineup in baseball is not in Toronto, Texas or Pittsburgh. Nope, the best team is the one that can't play.
Just look at the all-injury club, only one week into the season: Kent Hrbek at first base, Julio Franco at second, Walt Weiss at shortstop, Chris Sabo at third, Lenny Dykstra, Dave Henderson and Kevin Bass in the outfield, Carlton Fisk catching and Nolan Ryan, Bob Welch and Rob Dibble pitching.
And, the injuries are increasing at alarming rate. There's one every few games, with Vince Coleman going on the disabled list Monday, a day after Chuck Finley and David Justice went out of action.
"I think everyone is surprised, everyone I've talked to. That's one of the first things they bring up," California Angels vice president Dan O'Brien said. "I don't remember anything like this before and I don't know why it happens. It's just one of those years. I hope it doesn't continue. I hope this is the end of it for the season."

So do the St. Louis Cardinals. They lost first baseman Andres Galarraga, second baseman Jose Oquendo and pitchers Bryn Smith and Donovan Osborne in the first week, and those players joined teammates Felix Jose, Joe Magrane, Scott Terry, Frank DiPino and Geronimo Pena on the sidelines.

In a play that symbolizes the season so far, the Cardinals and New York Mets each lost someone on the same play last week. Coleman beat out a bunt but strained his hamstring, while Osborne sprained an ankle trying to field the ball.

"I certainly don't have a reason as to why, but I really can't recall the beginning of a season, the first two or three days of a season, where there have been as many injuries to as many significant players," Los Angeles Dodgers general manager Fred Claire said. "Seldom are we hit with anything like this."

Only one team has not been hurt by injuries, the Kansas City Royals. They're the lone club without a player on the disabled list, but so much for good health — the Royals did not win their first game until last night, when they got by the A's 3-1.

So, why are there 88 players on the disabled list already?

Well, 69 players were out of action before opening day, an increase of 11 from last year. Some of them, like Ted Higuera (rotator cuff), Nick Esasky (vertigo), Dave Stieb (shoulder), Ken Howell (shoulder), Scott Garrels (elbow) and Mike Witt (elbow) have long-term contracts and long-term troubles, and have been carried on the disabled list, as has Bo Jackson (hip), padding the count.

Others have been victims of freak accidents. Carlos Quintana was hurt in a car crash at home in Venezuela, Dykstra sustained a broken arm when he was hit by a pitch from Greg Maddux and Toronto rookie Derek Bell fouled a ball off the plate and sustained a fractured wrist.

Midland High's Jimmy Stanton, right, is tagged out by Abilene High second baseman Ronald Haynes during a steal attempt Tuesday at Angels Stadium. But the call did not matter as the game was postponed due to rain with MHS leading 2-1 in the bottom of the third inning. The game has been tentatively rescheduled for 4:30 p.m. today at Angels Stadium.

Colts ponder first two picks

■ Indianapolis will land a pair of top collegiate stars when it uses the first two choices in the NFL draft.

By Hank Lowenkron
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — Jim Irsay says the Indianapolis Colts plan to use the first two picks in the NFL draft on Steve Emtman and Heisman Trophy winner Desmond Howard. For now, anyway.
Plans have been known to change, though, and by draft day on April 26, the Colts' general manager may end up with a new strategy.
Which is why new coach Ted Marchibroda is keeping an open mind.
"We know what direction we're going, but nothing is etched in stone," Marchibroda said Tuesday. "Anything can happen between now and the 26th."

For weeks, there had been reports that Emtman, the defensive tackle from Washington who won the Lombardi Award and Outland Trophy, did not want to play for the Colts. But his stance softened after a weekend visit to Indianapolis.

Howard, the flanker from Michigan, is among the top offensive players in the defense-heavy draft.

The Colts do have contingency plans. They also are interested in Indiana running back Vaughn Dunbar, Texas A&M linebacker Quentin Coryatt, Wisconsin cornerback Troy Vincent, Pittsburgh defensive end Sean Gilbert and Stanford tackle Bob Whitfield.

The Colts gained the No. 1 pick for finishing with a league-worst 1-15 record. They got the No. 2 pick from a 1990 trade that sent quarterback Chris Chandler to Tampa Bay, which finished 3-13 last season.

"We have not made an iron-clad decision on who one and two's going to be,"

Irsay said Tuesday. "Everyone's speculating Emtman at one, and that's pretty accurate."

Marchibroda said the Colts are still looking at players.

"We got all the film on each of these guys, all 11 games. We've evaluated them and met with most of the players. Some of them are still scheduled to meet with us. The decision on how we use the picks is still to be decided," Marchibroda said.

"Basically, we're going to sit down over the weekend and talk about it and get some sort of negotiating strategy in line," Irsay said. "Right now, it's too early to say that's our picks."

Irsay says he doesn't plan on trading away the top two picks, choosing instead to bring two new players into the program right out of college. And Marchibroda says each of the players being considered is capable of starting this season.

Grahe snuffs potent Ranger attack

■ California defeats Texas for the second straight night as Hubie Brooks drives in five runs.

Associated Press

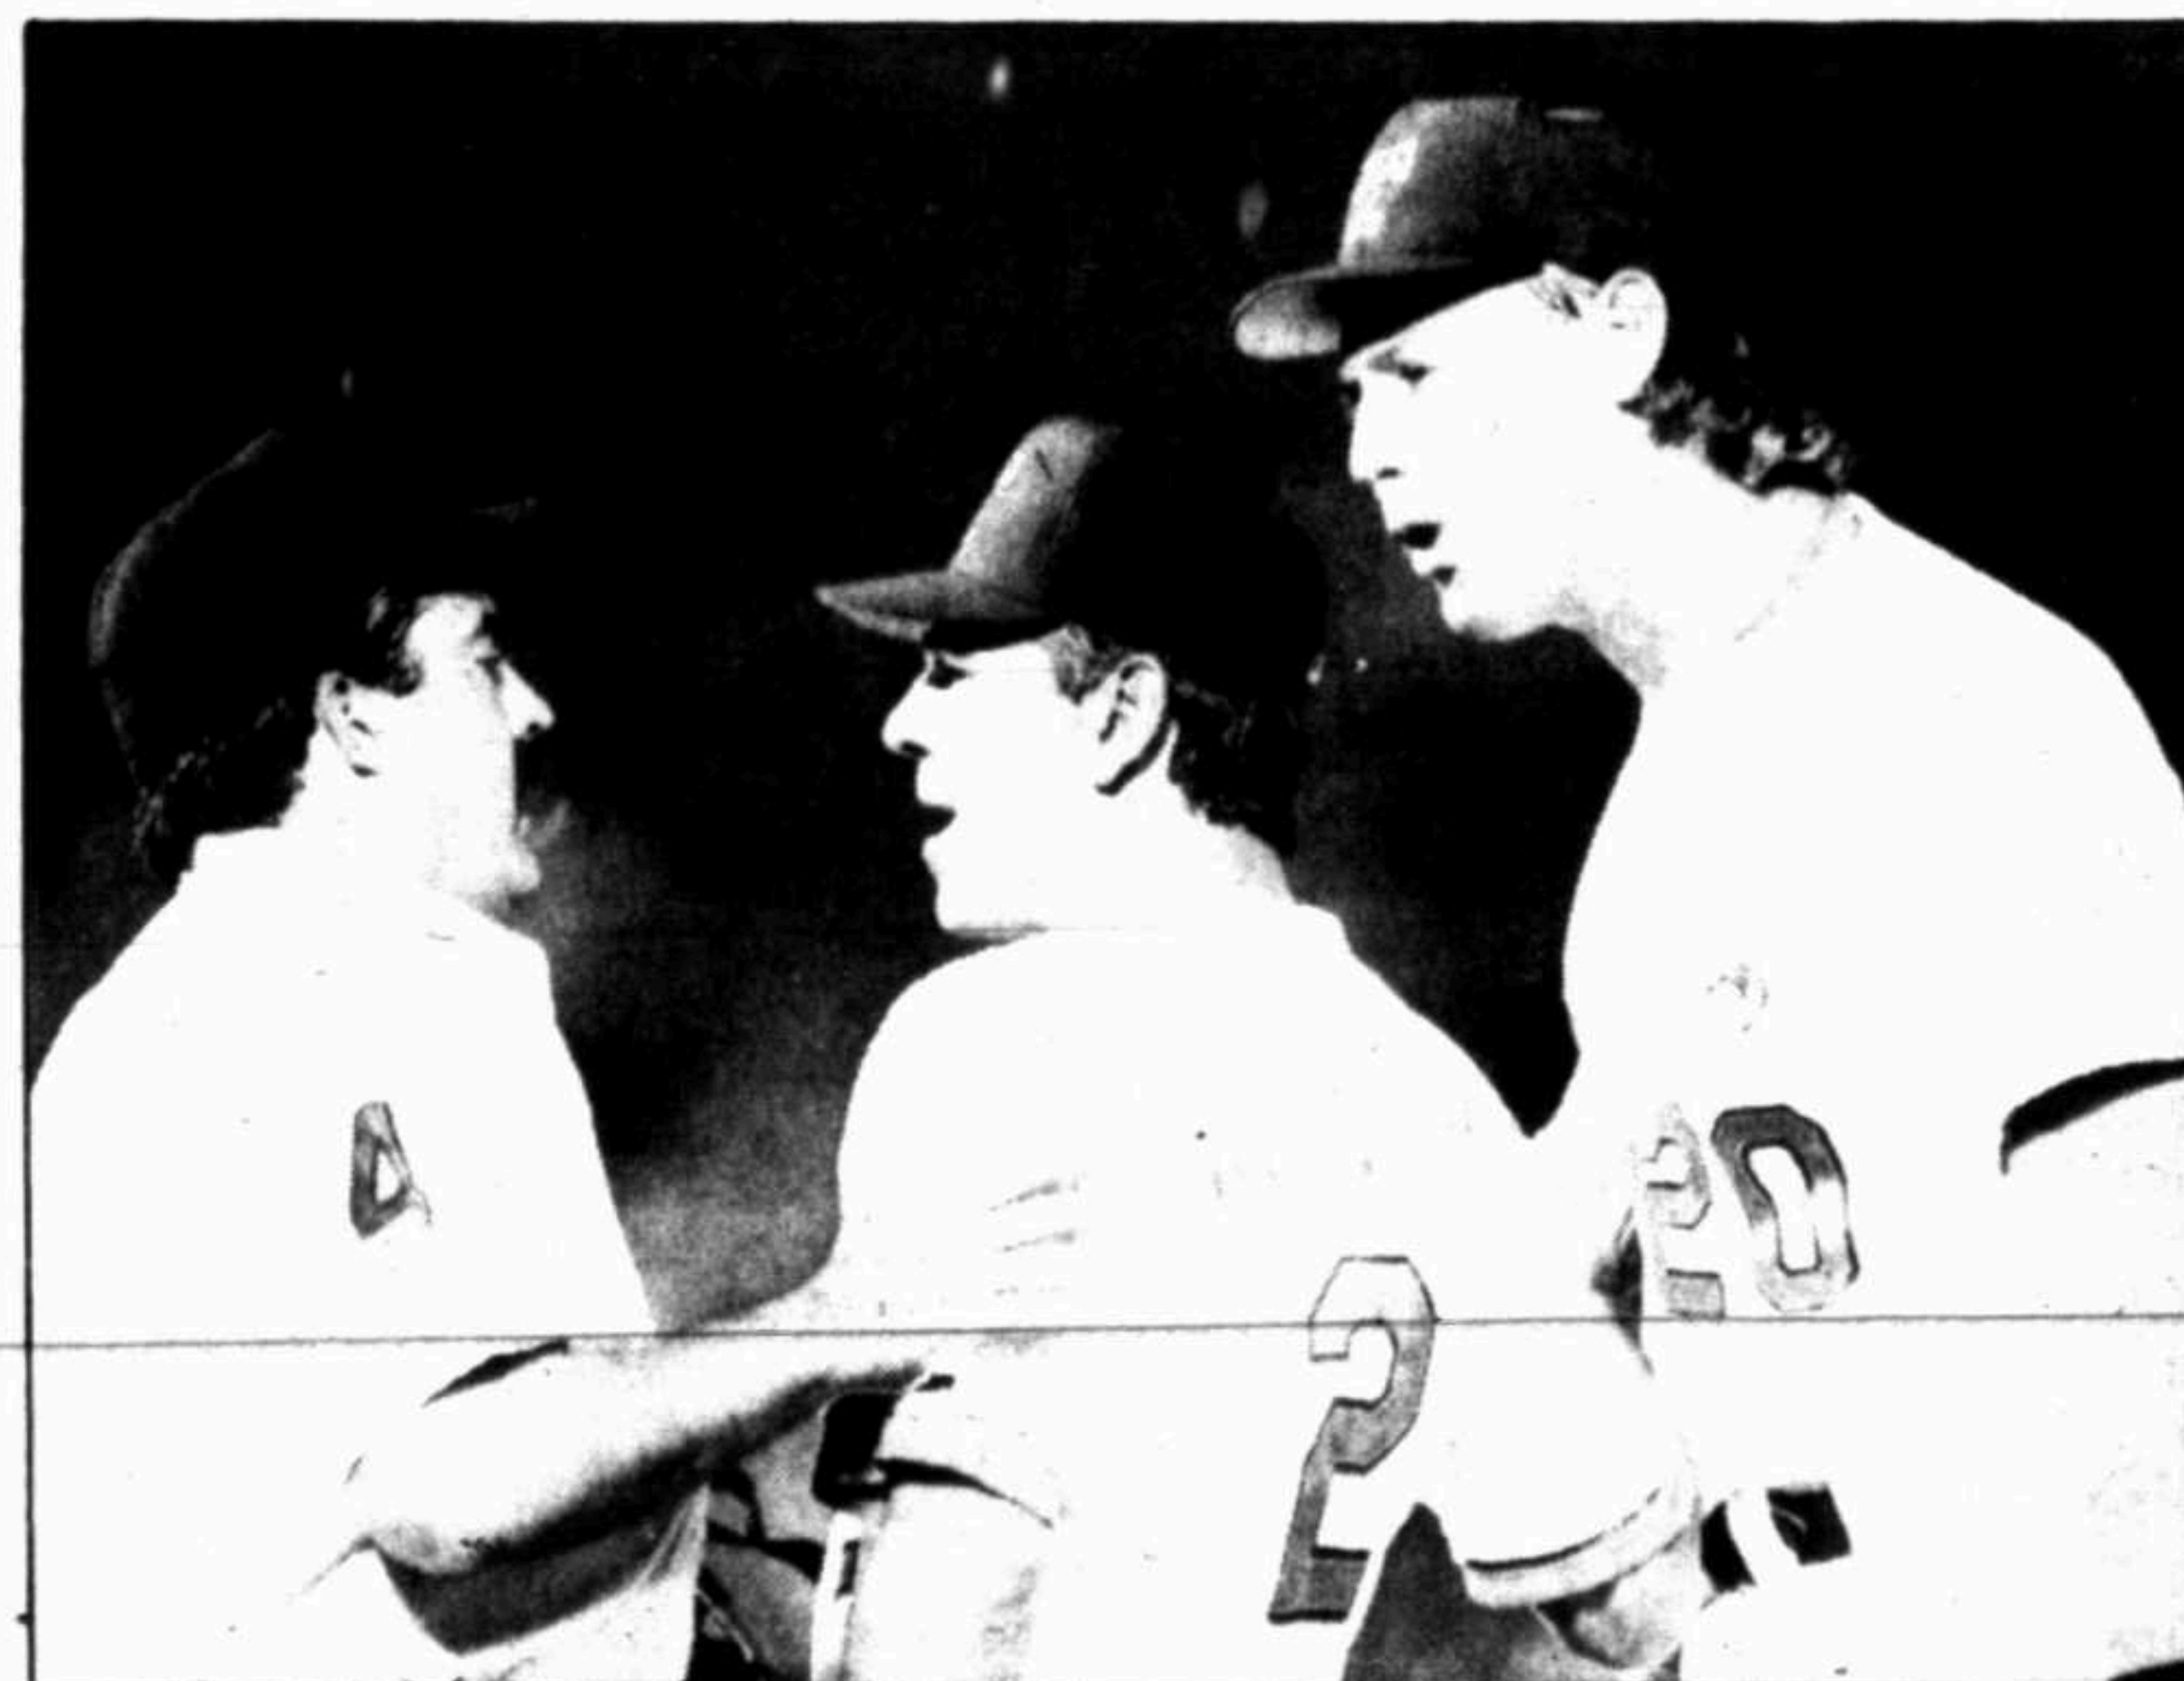

ARLINGTON — Hubie Brooks had a three-run homer and five RBIs Tuesday night as the California Angels won their fourth straight, 8-1 over the Texas Rangers.

Brooks hit the first pitch to him by starter Jeff Robinson into the left field stands for his second homer of the season, staking starter Joe Grahe to a 3-0 lead.

Grahe, a former member of the Midland Angels, yielded four hits in 6½ innings against the most potent lineup in the major leagues. Grahe was 3-7 with a 4.81 ERA last season, and he entered the game with a 12.60 ERA in his only start this year.

With staff ace Chuck Finley on the disabled list and Mark Langston slowed by a hip injury, the Angels needed an effective start from Grahe. He retired 11 consecutive batters at one point. Overall, he walked two and struck out four.

He left with two outs in the seventh after diving to catch a line drive by pinch hitter Geno Petralli. Grahe speared the shot, then threw to first from a seated position to double up Dick-

Grahe, who bruised an index finger on his right hand but was not seriously injured, was removed in favor of Chuck Crim after the play. And Thon, who never tagged up on the line drive, was ruled

King earns girl's 4-5A golf crown

Staff Report

SAN ANGELO — Midland Lee's Paula King will make a return trip to the Region I golf tournament, as she claimed the District 4-5A girls medalist title here at the Bentwood Country Club course Tuesday.

King, a junior who was the district runner-up a year ago, shot an 81 in the fourth and final round of the district girls golf tour. That gave her a four-round total of 327, good for a six-stroke win over Abilene Cooper's April DeVries.

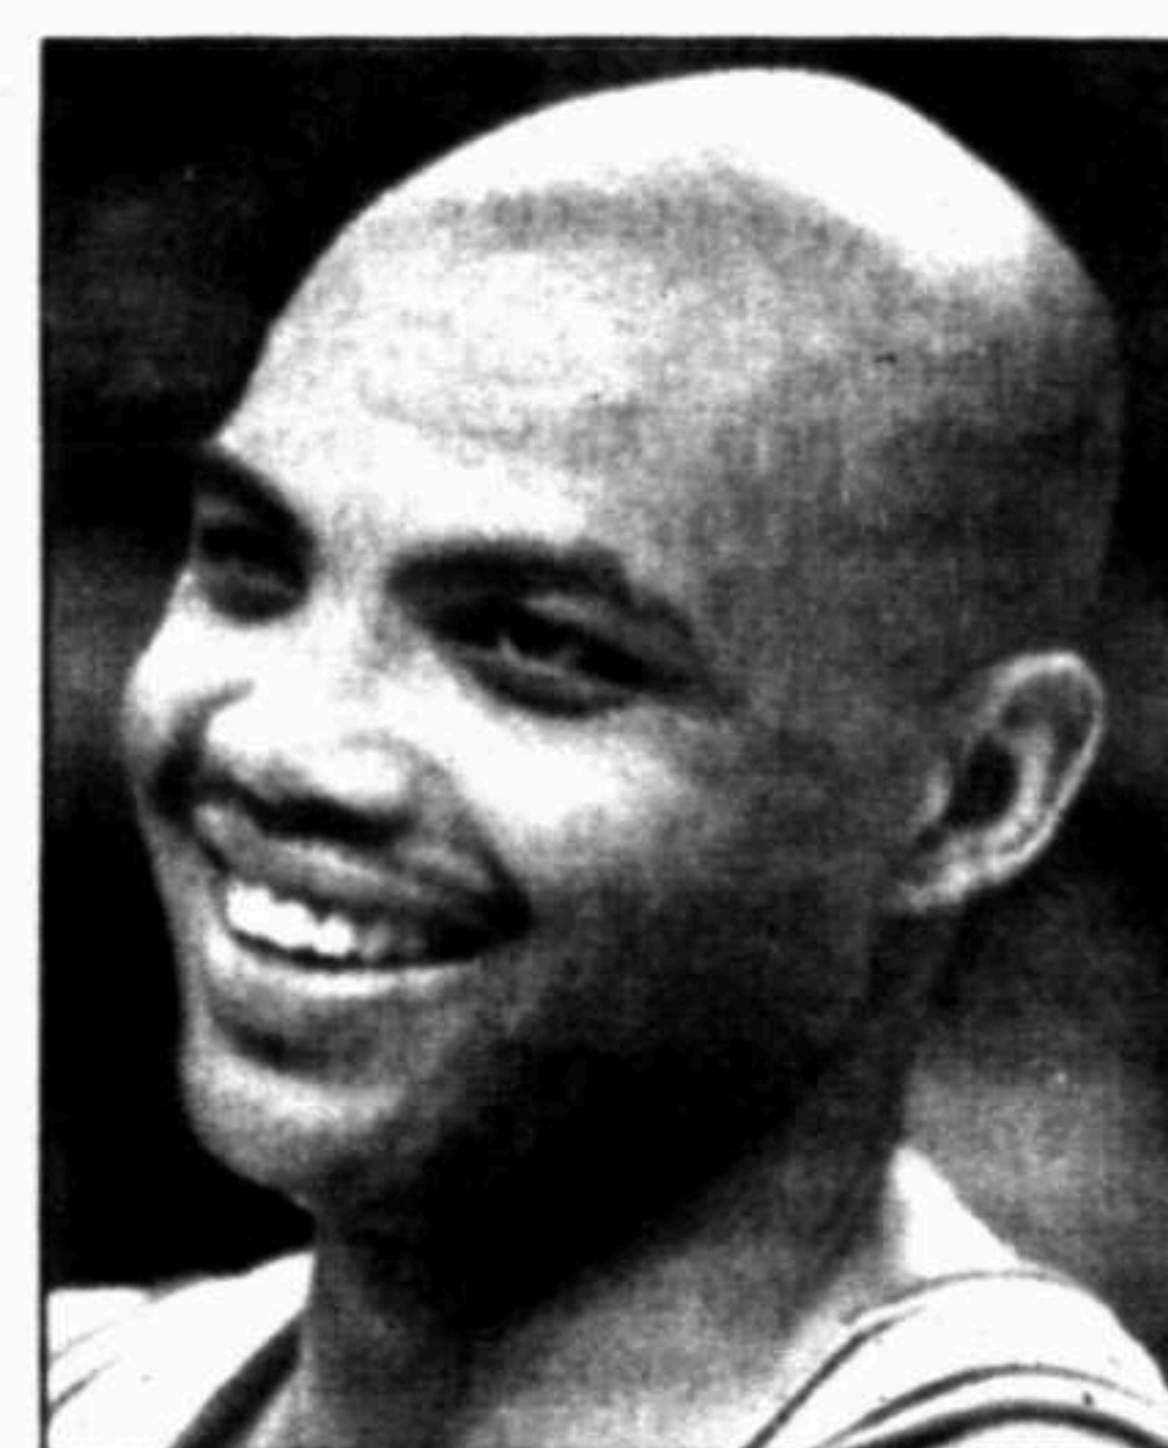

DeVries and King were tied for the lead entering Tuesday's play, but DeVries faltered with a round of 87. Tiffany Ashley of San Angelo was third with a total of 334.

Abilene Cooper's No. 1 squad claimed the team title while Odessa Permian's No. 1 team was second. There was also a tie in the team standings as Tuesday's play began, but Cooper out-shot Permian 344-373 on the last day, as all four of Permian's individual scores were 91 or higher.

As a team, Lee ended up in third place while Midland High finished fifth.

"We made up a lot of ground, about 12 strokes, on Permian but it was not quite enough. But we have all of our players coming back next year," said Lee coach

Barkley feud continues as 76ers ousted

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Barkley makes one thing clear: He doesn't like Philadelphia 76ers general manager Gene Shue.

But it's unclear which team official called Barkley a selfish superstar who doesn't play defense.

Barkley's feuds with the front office have intensified this season as the 76ers neared elimination from playoff contention. Their 99-94 loss Tuesday night to Boston, during which Barkley scored 19 points, made that official.

The team's owner, Harold Katz, said Monday night that Barkley's comments "are not worthy of me responding. I don't think it's fair to Gene. It just shows him in a bad light."

Katz had even less to say Tuesday night when he saw six reporters waiting for him outside the team's dressing room. "No comment," he said, lowering his head and walking by the group.

Shue has been out of town since the team's leading scorer began criticizing

Dodgers make Astros knuckle under

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Eric Davis hit a long three-run homer and knuckler Tom Candiotti pitched a six-hitter as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 6-2 Tuesday night.

Candiotti (2-0) won his second National League game in as many starts, walking three and striking out seven.

Brett Butler led off the third with a walk off loser Butch Henry (0-1) and advanced to second on an infield single by Mike Sharperson. Two outs later, Davis hit his third homer as a Dodger, a 420-foot shot into the fourth-seating level of the Astrodome.

The Astros scored a run in the bottom of the third on Steve Finley's RBI single.

Mike Scioscia greeted reliever Rob Murphy with a single in the eighth inning, advanced to third on a double Jose Offerman and scored on a single by Candiotti, the pitcher's first major-league hit. Offerman scored on a groundout by Butler to make it 5-1.

The Astros scored in the eighth when Craig Biggio tripled and scored on Finley's grounder.

The Dodgers added a run in the ninth with the help of a two-base error by shortstop Andruw Cedeño, who dropped a pop fly by Darryl Strawberry. Strawberry advanced to third on an infield groundout by Davis and scored on a passed ball.

Reds 5, Braves 4

CINCINNATI — Paul O'Neill led off the bottom of the ninth inning with a home run off Marvin Freeman to give Cincinnati a win over Atlanta.

O'Neill pulled a 2-1 pitch from Freeman (0-1), about 30 feet inside the right-field foul screen for his second homer, giving Cincinnati its second straight win over Atlanta.

Scott Bankhead (1-0) pitched one perfect inning in relief of starter Greg Swindell for the victory.

The Reds got a career-best game from rookie infielder Freddie Benavides. He hit a two-run homer in the fifth off Steve Avery — his first in 66 major-league at-bats — and drove in a run with a suicide squeeze in the seventh to put the Reds up 4-3.

Francisco Cabrera, called up Sunday from Triple-A Richmond to replace the injured David Justice, tied it with a pinch homer leading off the eighth. It was only his second at-bat of the season.

Deion Sanders extended his hitting streak to eight games and manufactured a run with his speed in the third. He singled, stole second and third, and came home on Joe Oliver's passed ball.

Mets 8, Phillies 5

NEW YORK — The Mets won their first home game of the season as Dave Gallagher's two-run double snapped a seventh-inning tie.

The Mets lost their first four games at Shea Stadium, their worst start at home since 1962 when the club played at the Polo Grounds.

After blowing a 4-0 lead, the Mets scored three runs in the seventh inning to snap a 5-5 tie. Gallagher had the key hit off losing Cliff Brantley (0-1) and Eddie Murray added an RBI double.

Murray also had a two-run double off Danny Cox in the Mets' four-run first inning.

Cardinals 3, Expos 1
MONTREAL — Pinch-hitter Rex Hudler's solo homer in the eighth inning broke a tie as the St. Louis Cardinals beat Montreal, snapping the Expos' five-game winning streak.

Rookie Donovan Osborne, who had to leave his first start with an ankle injury on April 9, gave up six hits and struck out three in the seven innings before Hudler pinch hit for him. It was the first major-league victory for Osborne, the Cardinals' first draft pick in June 1990.

Pirates 3, Cubs 2

PITTSBURGH — The Chicago Cubs, the only team in the majors without an error entering the game, committed four in the first six innings to help Bob Walk and the Pirates to a victory.

Walk (1-1) improved to 12-3 lifetime against Chicago by allowing three hits over seven innings and Tom Prince drove in two runs following errors as the Pirates won despite managing only three hits.

Cooper defeats Rebs 6-0 in rain-shortened game

Staff Report

ABILENE — Midland Lee fell back to the 500 mark in District 4-5A baseball play here Tuesday, as the Rebels lost 6-0 to Abilene Cooper in a rain-shortened, six inning official game.

Lee is now 4-4 in league play, 10-9 overall, while the Cougars stayed in the 45A lead and improved to 7-1, 16-4. The Rebels now trail second-place Odessa Permian (5-2 in district) by 1½ games with four games remaining, including a contest against the Panthers Saturday at Johnson Field.

Tuesday's other district play saw San Angelo beat Odessa High 10-0 in five innings, while Abilene High at Midland High was postponed because of rain. Permian was scheduled to play at non-district night game at Monahans.

For Lee Tuesday, pitcher Jimmy Patton went 2-for-2 from the plate, as the Rebels garnered six hits. However, none of those got out of the infield while Cooper got home runs from Carey Paige and Jude Roberts.

Paige threw all six innings for the Cougars, striking out eight while walking none, improving his record to 6-1.

Angels move to 2-3 with 7-1 win at San Antonio

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — The Midland Angels came away from the season's first five-game series with a 2-3 record, defeating the San Antonio Mission 7-1 here Tuesday night.

The Angels now move on to El Paso for five games beginning tonight. The game tonight will start at 7:30 p.m. (CDT), while the remainder of the series games will have an 8 p.m. (CDT) start. Midland will play its home opener Monday, April 20 when it hosts San Antonio.

On Tuesday, 24-year-old right-hander Steve Peck (1-0) went eight innings on the mound for the Angels, not allowing an earned run, striking out three and walking one Mission batter.

fielder Tony Brown hit his first home run of the season and drove in three runs, while leadoff man and centerfielder John Jackson went 3-for-5.

Texas A&I to add baseball

KINGSVILLE — Texas A&I University officials have announced they will add baseball to their intercollegiate athletic program.

President Manuel Ibanez and athletic director Ron Harms on Tuesday said the Javelinas will begin competing on a non-scholarship basis in 1993. Athletic scholarships will be added later.

Texas A&I becomes the fifth Lone Star Conference school — along with Abilene Christian, Cameron, Central Oklahoma and Eastern New Mexico — to field a baseball team.

The Javelina baseball team is expected to play its home games at Dick Kleberg Park in Kingsville.

AL: Kansas City finally wins with just one hit out on an appeal play at first.

Texas, which dropped its second straight after opening the season 6-1, entered the game leading the majors in runs with 53, even after being shut down by California's Jim Abbott and Bryan Harvey on Monday night, 3-0.

Robinson (1-1) walked Luis Polonia, the game's leadoff batter, on four pitches. One out later, Von Hayes had a hit-and-run single, then Brooks homered.

Brooks added a two-run single in the seventh against Steve Fireovid.

Texas struck back for a run in the second on Juan Gonzalez's double and two grounders.

Royals 3, Athletics 1
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Royals, held hitless through seven innings by Ron Darling, scratched out three runs on three sacrifices, two wild pitches and their only hit of the night to beat Oakland for their first win of the year.

Darling took a no-hitter into the eighth, but Keith Miller grounded to deep shortstop and beat Mike Bordick's throw to the bag. A's manager Tony LaRussa then brought in Rick Honeycutt (0-1), who threw wildly to first on Chris Gwynn's sacrifice bunt. Terry Shumpert then laid down another sacrifice, but Honeycutt's throw to third was late, loading the bases.

Miller and Gwynn then sped across the plate on consecutive wild pitches. The Royals finally got the ball out of the infield when Gregg Jeffries scored Shumpert with a sacrifice fly.

Kansas City had dropped its first seven games, the worst start in team history. The Royals were the only winless team in the majors.

The victory went to Neal Heaton (1-0), who relieved Mark Gubicza starting the eighth. Jeff Montmery pitched the ninth for his first save.

Darling, who snapped a personal seven-game losing streak by beating Gubicza 5-2 in Oakland last Thursday, threw 105 pitches, 62 for strikes. He walked three before yielding the infield hit to Miller.

Jays 12, Yankees 6
TORONTO — The Yankees lost their first game of season as Dave Winfield drove in four runs with a two-run homer and two singles.

The Yankees entered the game 6-0 under new manager Buck Showalter and were trying to equal the club's best start ever set in 1933.

After Pat Borders walked and Turner Ward doubled off loser Jeff Johnson (0-1) in the second inning, Randy Velarde's throwing error allowed Borders to score before Roberto Alomar homered.

Indians 8, Tigers 7

CLEVELAND — Brook Jacoby hit a three-run homer and drove in the go-ahead run with a single in a four-run Cleveland eighth, leading the Indians over Detroit.

The Indians got RBI singles from Sandy Alomar, Mark Whiten, Jacoby and Kenny Lofton as they battled around against three Detroit pitchers in the eighth.

Carlos Baerga led off with a single, chasing starter Walt Terrell.

Les Lancaster (0-1) gave up a single to Albert Belle and a fielder's choice by Paul Sorrento. Alomar singled in Baerga and Whiten singled in Sorrento to chase Lancaster.

Jacoby and Lofton singled off John Doherty to score Alomar and Lofton's single drove in Jacoby for an 8-6 edge.

Brewers 11, Twins 1

MINNEAPOLIS — Darryl Hamilton and Paul Molitor combined for six stolen bases, including Molitor's steal of home during a seven-run third inning, as Milwaukee routed Minnesota.

It was the seventh career steal of home for Molitor, who scored easily against Twins starter John Smiley (0-1) on a 1-1 pitch with two outs.

The Brewers, whose 20 stolen bases top the American League, tied a club record for steals in one game, set in 1968 and again in 1990.

Hamilton, who also drove in three runs with a pair of singles, tied Molitor's single-game record of three stolen bases.

INJURED: Royals only healthy team so far

(From 1C)

"It's been a funny year because some of these injuries have not occurred because of a lack of preparation or a lack of being physically fit," San Diego Padres assistant general manager John Barr said. "There have been broken bones and separated shoulders."

"A lot of the injuries have not been preventable. If you pull a hamstring or injure something because of a lack of stretching, you can point to that," he said. "But with Oquendo, how can you prevent a broken shoulder? With Dykstra, how can you prevent a broken hand?"

O'Brien and other executives, however, do not buy the reason that many hard-liners like to sell, that today's players will miss games because of hangnails while old-timers played through hernias.

Joe Carter's streak of 507 consecutive games, second-longest to Cal Ripken's run — stopped when he missed a game last week because of a sore back and Ken Griffey Jr. did not start Monday because of a bruised foot.

Shawon Dunston and Rob Deer are among the many others who have sat out, but none of them wound up on the disabled list. Cold weather, a cause for hamstring and muscle pulls, is a usual early-season culprit.

"I think, by and large, players are competitive and it's their nature to want to play. Playing is what makes this whole thing go round," O'Brien said. "By and large, a lot of players would prefer not to go on the disabled list and instead wait it out two or three or four days to see how much a certain injury improves."

With the price of talent zooming and the pool of talent dwindling, players sometimes do go on the disabled list quickly. Teams often shut down a player and let his injury heal, rather than rush him back and watch the problem linger.

The New York Yankees put infielder Mike Gallego on the disabled list on opening day. He was signed as a free agent to a three-year, $5.1 million contract, and even though he might've been able to play, the Yankees did not want him re-aggravate his bruised heel.

Because of all the injuries, some players have gotten to star. Ruben Amaro Jr. has filled in nicely for Dykstra in Philadelphia, Mike Bordick has done well for Weiss in Oakland and Mo Vaughn has replaced Quintana for the Red Sox.

"I think more than anything, it shows the importance of the depth of talent of ballclubs," Claire said. "Normally, when a team comes out of spring training, a lot of times it will be looked at that these are the only players we're going to need over the course of a season, and that never proves true."

FEUD: Barkley calls Philadelphia GM 'a clown' ing him Sunday and won't comment, a team spokesman said.

(From 1C)

76ers officials "don't want to turn this into a war of words because they'll lose," Barkley said Monday.

"I've been really nice to the Sixers organization, and I haven't told the true story about what's happening around here," he said. "I've been really nice."

The spark for the latest outburst was an article in Sunday's Philadelphia Inquirer that contained unflattering quotes about Barkley from teammates. The story contained a quote from an unidentified team official saying Barkley "plays for himself," plays hard only on offense and "doesn't play to win."

The Philadelphia Daily News reported Monday that Shue "percei-ves" similar feelings about Barkley, but did not quote the general manager.

"No one knows who made that statement," Katz told the Philadelphia Daily News. "The only one I can absolutely say didn't make it is me."

At practice Monday, Barkley was led to believe that Shue said it.

"Gene Shue is a clown whose only ambition is to caddy for Harold Katz," Barkley said. "Shue has done nothing to help the situation here."

"He should not be making comments when he wasn't here and we were good enough to win the division two years ago. Then we started making changes."

"I've no respect for Gene Shue. He's just a robot who does as he's told."

Barkley has been more outspoken than usual this season. And a run-in with a Milwaukee fan early in the season — he broke the fan's nose — didn't improve Barkley's standing with front office.

He has repeatedly said he doesn't want to play for the 76ers if they don't make personnel changes.

Asked about an all-star trade for Houston's 29-year-old Hakeem Olajuwon, who also is quarreling with management, Barkley said, "Hakeem is better than me. He's going to be playing a lot longer than me."

Barkley, averaging 23.2 points, admits he is not the same player who joined the 76ers in 1984.

"I'm 29 years old," he said. "My body is broken down."

"I'm not as good as I was two years ago. I'm not capable of carrying a team every night."

He'll help with the pass rush. He plays every play. He's relentless in pursuit.

On Howard, the coach said "he certainly would lend credibility to our offense. He's an outstanding receiver. He's very fast and he's got great hands. He's a home run hitter."

DRAFT: Indianapolis has first two choices

(From 1C)

"We're not going to aim to fill any specific need in the draft," Marchibroda said. "This is only the second time in NFL history that a team has the first two picks and we're looking for the two best athletes that we think will help the Colts the most."

"We're not seriously considering any trades, but we are still willing to listen to offers," the coach added.

On the 6-foot-4, 280-pound Emtman, Marchibroda said "in addition to talent, we've been looking at character — and Steve is up at the top of the list in both areas."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Avoid pushing too hard for resolutions and completions; steady pressure works best. Career matters will dominate your thoughts in August. Business trends you spot then will continue through late fall. A long-sought reunion could take place during the Christmas season. Seek fresh challenges early in 1993. The key to greater public recognition is better self-promotion. The family circle will be enlarged by next spring.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Julie Sommars, singer Roy Clark, rock star Dave Edmunds, actress Claudia Cardinale.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Brainstorming with your co-workers creates better rapport. An office romance begins to heat up. Go that extra mile for a friend who is in trouble. Finalize business deals.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Travel could help you land new business now. Meet prospective clients face-to-face. Family life improves if you make certain compromises. A reconciliation attempt meets with success.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Working closely with VIPs could bring new financial rewards. When push comes to shove, be decisive. A festive mood helps you shine at a social event. Put your best foot forward.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Romance is in the air. Do not let a feeling of discontent get the best of you. You win approving nods from your peers and higher-ups today by saying exactly what everyone feels.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Base a decision on hard facts. You need to weigh your options carefully before changing jobs or making a new investment. A professional relationship gets off to a terrific start.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Move boldly into new territory. Rich business gains await. Innovative ideas attract the attention of influential people. Be very clear when giving instructions or directions to subordinates.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Curb a tendency to lock horns with your co-workers. You can have a great time if you become part of the gang. Catch up on world events. Overseas contacts hold rich promise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The emphasis today is on being a good listener. Avoid sounding critical.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are natural leaders who want to be part of the team, too. Wise parents will encourage these youngsters to develop a give-and-take attitude. A tendency to flit from one project to another must be reined if these Aries are to achieve the success their hard work deserves. Energetic and competitive, these children make excellent athletes.

cal. A teen-ager volunteers some interesting information. Do not betray this young person's confidences.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hatch a get-rich-and-famous scheme now and you could lay an egg. The focus is on fun and romance, not on who is top banana. Postpone signing a binding agreement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Developing your creative talents should be a top priority now. Speculative financial ventures are not favored. Friends may want to participate in family activities; include them if it is convenient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can make real headway in financial negotiations today. Inquiries yield valuable findings. Explore the world of music, dance or photography for a change of pace.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You feel most comfortable on your own ground. Conduct as much business as possible over the phone. A loved one may be unwilling to compromise on a major issue. Rethink your position.

South bid the hand well. Once spades were supported the South hand improved enormously in value. Three diamonds asked North for help in the diamond suit for game, and that's certainly what North held.

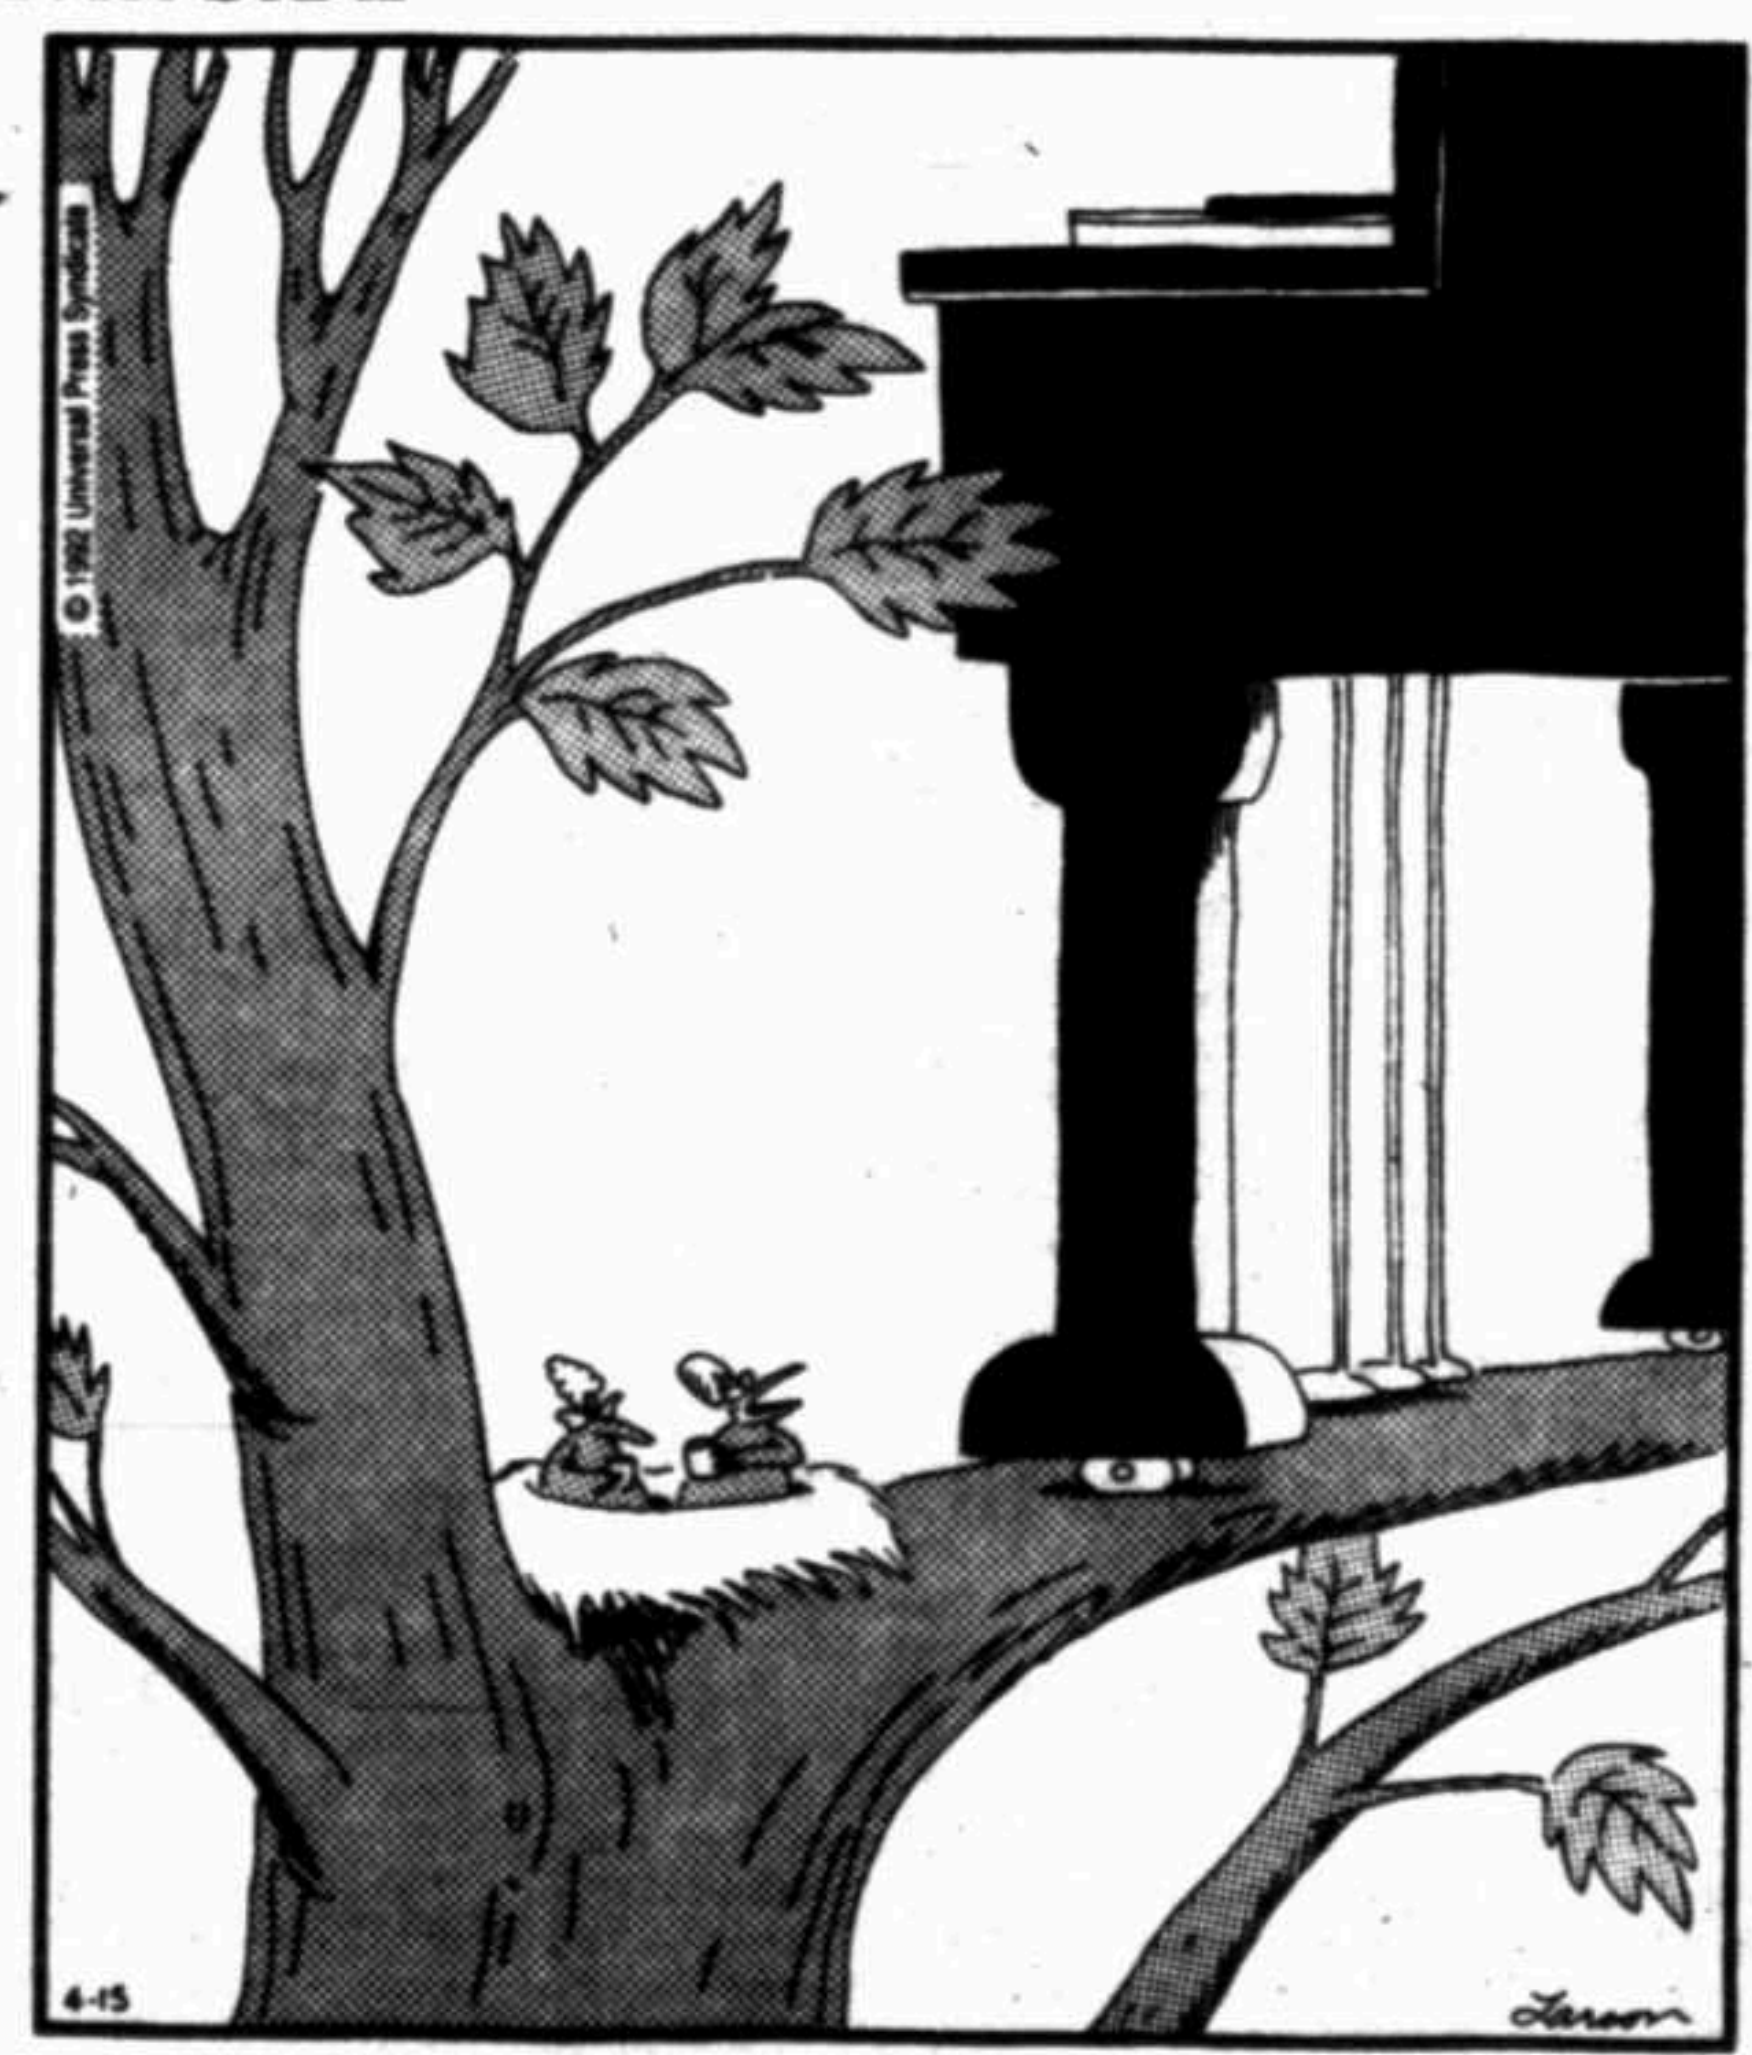

In an attempt to cut down on declarer's ruffing capability, West led a trump. South was quite happy with the contract. The primary line required only a 3-2 diamond split, a 68 percent shot. Declarer drew trumps and started on diamonds. Unfortunately, the break was disadvantageous and declarer could collect only nine tricks.

As long as trumps were 3-2, there was a second chance available, admittedly rather slight. But it could be adopted at no cost—always an attractive proposition. If diamonds were 4-1, declarer could still land the game if the player with the diamond shortage also had no more than two trumps.

After winning the opening lead, declarer should cash a second trump. If both opponents follow, the king and ace of diamonds come next. Should the suit break 3-2, declarer draws the last trump and takes three more diamonds. As the cards lie, however, East shows out on the second diamond, but can't ruff. Declarer cashes the queen of diamonds and ruffs a diamond on the table, and sooner or later will get back to hand with a ruff to draw the last trump and the long diamond is the fulfilling trick.

Stephen King, wife to donate $750,000 to pediatrics unit

BANGOR, Maine — Author Stephen King and his wife, Tabitha, said they will give $750,000 for a hospital pediatrics unit — but in three installments to encourage others to give, too.

The Kings donated $250,000 to Eastern Maine Medical Center on Monday and said they'll write checks for the rest as the fund-raisers reach their goal of $5.5 million.

King said he was confident of "the good will of the community, which never seems to fail, no matter how hard times get."

King, a Maine native who lives in Bangor, is the author of blockbuster thrillers such as "The Dead Zone" and "Misery."

Enriched by his novels and their resulting movies, King shares his wealth. His philanthropy helped build a Little League baseball field, maintain the University of Maine swim team and support political candidates.

JACKSON, Miss. — Writer Eudora Welty celebrated her 83rd birthday and was celebrated in turn as winner of the $25,000 Rea Award for the Short Story.

"I was amazed. It came out of the blue sky," Welty said from her Jackson home on Monday, the day the Dugannon Foundation announced the prize in New York. "I'm delighted. How could I not be?"

Welty's tales of small-town Mississippi characters brought her acclaim within years of her first published story, "Death of a Traveling Salesman," in 1936. Past accolades include the Pulitzer Prize, the National Medal for Literature and the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

The Rea Award was established in 1986 by book and art collector Michael Rea in 1986. Previous winners were Cynthia Ozick, Robert Coover, Donald Barthelme, Tobias Wolff, Joyce Carol Oates and Paul Bowles.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — An Arnold Schwarzenegger fan evaded security guards to kiss the muscular actor on a tour promoting fitness, and got a hug of a workout.

Margaret Cozart dashed across the basketball court at Vanderbilt University's Memorial Gymnasium on Monday to reach Schwarzenegger, skipping past the guards.

"I just wanted to get closer," said Cozart, 31. "I took my chance and ran down there. I kissed him and he hugged me so tight." After that, she returned to her seat.

Schwarzenegger, a former bodybuilder and Mr. Universe, is visiting every state as chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

The star of the "The Terminator" films and "Kindergarten Cop," advised youngsters in the audience to exercise regularly.

"Don't ever come to me and say you don't have the money to exercise," Schwarzenegger warned. "Do quick chin-ups, do quick sit-ups or push-ups. They are all free."

NEW YORK — Gregory Peck was rewarded for a lifetime of movie stardom by a tribute at the Lincoln Center Film Society.

"Every time I think about Gregory Peck, I know certain things do last, love does not go away, friendship remains," Liza Minnelli said Monday at the ceremony honoring the 76-year-old Peck. "I adore this man — always did, always will."

Also there to applaud Peck's career were Jane Fonda, Harry Belafonte, Audrey Hepburn, Roger Moore, violinist Isaac Stern and novelist Carlos Fuentes.

Stern said the tribute was deserved "because of the qualities he's exhibited in both his public and private life."

Peck, who made his film debut in the 1944 "Days of Glory," acted on his convictions, fighting anti-Semitism in "Gentlemen's Agreement" and racism in "To Kill a Mockingbird."

In 21 years of honoring screen legends, the Film Society also has paid homage to the likes of Charlie Chaplin, Fred Astaire, Federico Fellini, Barbara Stanwyck, Billy Wilder, John Huston, Laurence Olivier, Alfred Hitchcock, Bette Davis and Jimmy Stewart.

WASHINGTON — James R. Owen, the Reporter-Telegram's Washington correspondent, has won a Paul Miller Washington Reporting Fellowship.

The Miller fellowship is dedicated to regional reporting from Washington. Owen was among 15 Washington correspondents who won the award, according to Charles L. Overby, president and chief executive of the Freedom Forum, which operates the program.

The Paul Miller fellows meet two days a month for a year with scholars, journalists and government officials to study ways of finding and reporting regional news in the nation's capital.

The program was set up in 1986 with a $1 million grant from the Gannett Foundation, which later changed its name to the Freedom Forum, to honor Paul Miller, former chairman of the Gannett Co., Inc.

Owen, 37, graduated from the University of Iowa in 1977 and earned a master's degree at Antioch College.

Chaparral golfers second in state

DE SOTO — Midland College placed second to McLennan College in the Texas Junior College State Golf Tournament here Monday and Tuesday.

The Chaparrals shot a 293 team total in Tuesday's second round to take second place, but more importantly solidified their lead in the conference standings.

With scores in the state tournament counting toward the fourth of five Western Junior College Athletic Conference rounds, the first place Chaparrals took a 53-stroke edge with the last round being played as part of the Region V tournament next week at Odessa Country Club.

Results from the combined Texas Junior College State Golf Tournament and the fourth round of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference men's tour Monday and Tuesday at the Hill Creek course in De Soto: WJAC Scores: 1. Midland College, 304-293-597; 2. Western Texas College, 301-304-605; 3. New Mexico Junior College, 306-310-618; 4. Odessa College, 301-318-618. WJAC Standings (after 4 of 5 rounds): 1. MC, 2.356; 2. Frosh cap season

ODESSA — Midland Lee Freshman won eight of 15 events and Midland Freshman won three more in the Midland-Odessa ninth grade track meet here Monday afternoon, the final meet of the season for these teams.

The Lee 400 relay set a new record with a blazing 42.64, a time that would have won the Tall City Relays last weekend with Jerry Stamford, Trey DeWitt, Melvin Dunson and Roderick Mayfield. Mayfield also set a record in the 110 hurdles with a 14.47.

Mayfield won three events and Dunson won both sprints.

Daniel Hughes won the pole vault and Lance Brown took the shot put title.

Midland Freshman won the high jump with Michael Acree while Charlie Juarez won the 400. The Midland frosh also captured the 1600 relay title.

Blue Bruisers win

AUSTIN — The Midland Blue Bruisers took first place in the 12 & Under girls' division of the USA Spring Cup '92 soccer tournament here last weekend.

Goalkeeper Tori Watson and defenders Kaley Conway, Amanda Holguin, Julie Tiner and Marisa Hernandez led the way to shutout wins over Austin, 2-0, and Laporte, 6-0. The Bruisers, coached by Bill Tiner and assistant David Conway, lost just once in pool play at the event. But they entered the title tilt with a 19-point advantage, then beat Fort Worth 1-0 in the final.

Shiloh O'Donnell's third goal of the tourney was the game winner in the finale. Andrea Rodriguez scored twice at the event, and Myka Coder, Shelby Berry, Marisa Hernandez and Tamarah Scarbrough had a goal each.

Amber Vickrey led in assists. Other members of the team — which is undefeated in the Midland Soccer Association this year — are Maddie Coder, Sheryl Curtiss, Kim Elger, Kristen Faudree and Denise Price.

Golf heros reach PGA Hall of Fame

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Chi Chi Rodriguez and Hale Irwin were inducted into the PGA World Golf Hall of Fame at ceremonies Tuesday.

Rodriguez won eight tournaments in a 25-year career on the PGA Tour, and added 21 more in Senior Tour play since 1986.

Irwin, winner of 19 PGA Tour titles in a career that began in 1968, became the oldest winner of the U.S. Open at age 45 when he won his third American national championship in 1990. He is one of only five men to win that title three times or more.

Stock market sets new record

■ The Dow Jones average jumped 36.23 points Tuesday to close at 3,306.13.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market set a new record Tuesday as investors enthusiastically embraced a string of surprisingly favorable corporate earnings reports, led by IBM's better-than-expected showing.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 36.23 points to close at 3,306.13, its 17th record this year. It tops the record set precisely six weeks ago when the key index closed at 3,290.25.

Advancing issues overwhelmed declining ones by about 12 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 230.62 million shares as of 4 p.m., up from 143.12 million in the previous session.

Stocks opened in positive territory and climbed steadily throughout the session. At one point the Dow average was up more than 50 points, triggering restrictions on computer-driven program trading.

But analysts attributed the broad-based upward move to genuine demand for stocks rather than to computer-generated buying.

Investors were encouraged by a steady stream of first-quarter corporate earnings reports, which held some positive surprises. Among those most anticipated, IBM said it had an operating profit of $1.04 a share, far better than the 90 cents a share analysts had expected.

IBM rose 3/4 to 88 1/4. It was the most active issue trading on the Big Board, with more than 3.3 million shares changing hands.

"IBM helped to show that things aren't as grim as many people were thinking," said Richard Meyer, head of equity trading at Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.

"The disappointments were limited and the surprises coming in on the upside were better than expected," Meyer said of the earnings reports. That has prompted traders to question whether they underestimated the ability of companies to post profits as well as the strength of the economic recovery overall.

Indeed, "people were expecting cataclysmic numbers — rightly or wrongly — and when they saw that the numbers were not as bad as expected, you got a little pop going," said Dennis Jarrett, chief market analyst at Kidder Peabody & Co.

"When the market got above 3,300, it forced some people to sit up and take notice," he added.

Encouraging signs began to appear Monday, when Aluminum Co. of America jumped 5/4 after reporting better-than-expected earnings. Alcoa slipped 2 to 71 1/4 on profit-taking Tuesday.

Other issues spurred on by favorable earnings results included: GTE, which jumped 3/4 to 31 after reporting earnings rose from 21 cents a share to 47 cents.

General Electric, which said Monday its first-quarter earnings were up 7 percent from a year ago, added 1 1/2 to 76 1/4, and International Paper rose 2 1/2 to 72 1/2 on a favorable earnings report.

Procter & Gamble, which declared a 2-for-1 stock split and raised its dividend, soared 4 1/2 to 104 1/4.

Financial services issues rose sharply then receded as traders cashed in on the runup. Several brokerages reported extremely favorable earnings thanks to a robust stock market and brisk corporate debt and equity underwriting. Merrill Lynch, the nation's biggest brokerage, earned a record $227.5 million in the quarter. Its stock closed down 1/4 to 50 1/4.

PaineWebber was unchanged at 20 1/4 and Charles Schwab added 1/4 to 29 1/4. Both reported sharply higher net income.

Elsewhere on the Big Board, Chemical Bank, which cut its prime rate on Monday to the lowest level since 1976, jumped 2 1/2 to 34 1/4. Banc One, which announced it will buy Valley National in a $1.2 billion stock-swap deal, fell 1 1/2 to 45 1/4.

Merck added 2 to 155 1/4, and Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing was up 3 1/2 to 91 1/4.

Trading picked up following Monday's flood in Chicago, which closed the Chicago Board of Trade, where stock index futures and options change hands. That depressed activity on Wall Street, since many forms of computer-driven trading are linked to futures and options prices.

Prices slide

NEW YORK — Energy prices fell sharply Tuesday, weakened by an abundance of supplies and word that Iraq is unexpectedly close to selling oil under U.N. supervision, a move that could aggravate the oil glut.

Oil market strategists said they saw little to stem the price drop, which compounded weakness Monday and suggested the market has taken a psychological turn for the worse after reaching highs for the year last week.

The anxiety was raised further when the American Petroleum Institute, a trade group, reported after the market closed that U.S. crude stockpiles rose by 9.4 million barrels in the week ended Friday to 346.79 million barrels.

That increase was unexpectedly huge and could put further pressure on crude prices Wednesday.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, West Texas Intermediate for May delivery fell 36 cents a barrel to $19.86.

Local crude purchasers such as Scurlock Permian lowered their posted price 25 cents to $18.75. Texaco Trading and Transportation lowered its price 50 cents to $18.50 and Phillips lowered its price 35 cents to $19.10.

Lower-grade sour crude for May delivery fell 36 cents a barrel to $17.44. Natural gas, which often bucks the trend set by other energy prices, rose slightly, with the May contract up .06 cent per 1,000 cubic feet to $1.276.

Prime rate

Texas Commerce Bank, Midland, has joined parent company Chemical Banking Corp. in lowering its prime rate to 6.25 percent, it was announced Tuesday.

"We deal primarily with middle-level customers who have loans at the prime rate, and we wanted to give them a little relief," said Ed Jones, president of the bank.

Dollar flat

NEW YORK — The dollar was flat to marginally higher Tuesday against most major currencies, partly because of worries about political instability in Russia.

The dollar rose against the mark in New York Tuesday to 1.8535 marks from 1.8530 late Monday.

In New York, the dollar closed at 133.00 yen, unchanged from Monday's close.

Sterling in New York closed at $1.7640, up from $1.7625 late Monday.

Toll collection made easy

AT&T employee Michael Jacobs uses a prototype electronic toll collection system at AT&T Bell Labs in Holmdel, N.J. The system, launched by AT&T and Lockheed, uses a smart card that is inserted in a radio transponder near a toll-collection area. The amount can either be deducted from the card or a bill sent to the user.

Texas Commerce makes bid for First City

HOUSTON (AP) — Another bank has made an offer to buy First City Bancorporation of Texas, but federal regulators are not likely to accept it, according to published reports.

Houston-based Texas Commerce Bancshares submitted a bid that calls for regulators to close the bank first in order to wipe out potential liabilities, such as lawsuits that have been filed or that might be filed in the future against Houston-based First City, according to an anonymous source close to the deal quoted by the Houston Chronicle.

The Houston Post reported the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. officials were unhappy with the offers received. The agency had asked potential buyers to submit their best offers by last Tuesday.

An offer already made by First Gibraltar Bank, a thrift based in Dallas, conforms more closely to the proposal the FDIC was peddling for First City.

First City needs about $400 million in capital to survive. The FDIC has promoted an "open bank" sale of the bank, in which a buyer would take over First City's assets and liabilities with government providing limited guarantees against losses.

First Gibraltar, the largest thrift in the state, proposes to turn First City into a savings and loan — without first closing it — and merge it into First Gibraltar's existing operations. But the company would not reveal whether its proposal asks for more assistance than the FDIC has offered.

Albertson's completes Jewel Osco purchase

By Mella McEwen

ALBERTSON'S INC. has completed its purchase of the Midland Jewel Osco store.

The former Jewel Osco at 4706 Midkiff officially changed hands Sunday evening, giving Midland its third Albertson's. The other two are at 1002 Andrews Highway and 3317 N. Midland Drive. The Jewel Osco sign was taken down Tuesday and will soon be replaced with an Albertson's sign.

Albertson's purchased 74 Jewel Osco stores located in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Florida.

Midlander Angi Schneider has begun THE PARTY PROS, which helps organize, cater and put on parties and events.

She helps put on birthday parties with themes such as cowboys, space, ballet or safari, complete with theme cakes, or she sells do-it-yourself theme party packages.

She will also put on office parties, holiday parties such as Easter or Christmas, bridal and baby showers, weddings, graduation and confirmation parties.

Party Pros will take care of such organizational tasks as invitations, decorations, balloons, favors, table settings, set up and clean up, and even do the entertainment.

Party Pros can be contacted by calling 685-5025.

On the move is MODERN APPLIANCES, which will open May 1 at 2202 N. Big Spring, the former Sportsman's Den. Modern Appliances is currently located at 1107 N. Midkiff.

Manager Doug Leggett said Modern Appliances sells and services major household appliances such as refrigerators, freezers, washers and dryers, dishwashers and ranges. The store's specialty is unusual items such as ice machines or commercial washers.

Leggett said the new location will provide more display space in a nicer environment.

The West Texas distributorship of ZEE MEDICAL SERVICE CO. has been purchased by Ed McElroy of El Paso. His territory extends from El Paso in the west to San Angelo in the east.

McElroy has appointed Midlander Laurie Lindsey as customer sales representative to serve the Midland area and Jim Brown to serve the Odessa area.

Zee sells and services first aid and safety products as well as training in cardiopulmonary resuscitation and safety and an accident management survey.

Preparing to move is KPMG PEAT MARWICK, which will open April 27 in its new offices at 300 N. Marienfeld, Suite 300.

The accounting firm is currently located at 550 W. Texas, Suite 1000.

TEMPORARY RESOURCES has instituted a new program for its employees called "Elite Temps."

"Elite Temps" meet these requirements: Accumulate at least 160 hours with Temporary Resources and earn a Superior rating from a client on a performance evaluation on an assignment that is at least eight hours. Employees on long-term assignments can earn the designation by receiving a Superior rating every six months.

Three restaurant chains, each with locations in Midland, have received high ratings from consumers in the annual Restaurants & Institutions magazine "America's Choice in Chains" survey.

LUBY'S was named best chain overall and first in the cafeteria category.

LITTLE CAESARS was named best value in America and, in the pizza category, was first in service, tied for first in convenience and was second in overall customer satisfaction.

GRANDY'S was named first in the chicken category.

Retail sales drop steeply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail sales in March registered the steepest drop in seven months, the government said Tuesday in a report analysts took as a sign of an uneven, rather than a derailed, economic recovery.

The Commerce Department said retail sales fell a seasonally adjusted 0.4 percent from the previous month to $157.1 billion. The dip followed strong gains of 1.3 percent in February and 2.1 percent in January. The figures are not adjusted for inflation.

"It was inevitable those huge increases in January and February weren't sustainable," said economist Sandra Shaber of the Futures Group consulting firm.

March marked the first drop since October and the worst since August. Still, even with the decline, first quarter sales were up 2.9 percent from the previous quarter, the best in more than three years.

Shaber cautions that consumer spending could fizzle unless the recovery generates more jobs. The Labor Department said employers added only 19,000 jobs to their payrolls in March, and much of the gain was attributed to local governments hiring temporary workers for primary elections.

Panel negotiates Exxon settlement

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A tentative settlement has been reached in hundreds of lawsuits filed over a 1989 explosion at the giant Exxon refinery here, according to federal court documents.

The settlement still must be approved by 578 plaintiffs, according to records. The explosion on Dec. 24, 1989 killed two refinery workers and rattled houses and businesses throughout the Baton Rouge area. Lawsuits filed by relatives of the two workers were settled earlier for an undisclosed amount.

The proposed settlement has been negotiated by a committee appointed by U.S. District Judge Frank Polozola. More than 700 people filed lawsuits.

Exxon attorney Charles McCowan Jr. would not say how much money is involved, but added that the company considers the amount fair.

Mayor fires official over deluge

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard M. Daley on Tuesday fired an official he said failed to heed a warning that probably could have prevented the flooding that has paralyzed much of Chicago's business district.

"This morning I have requested and received the resignation of acting Transportation Commissioner John LaPlante," Daley said at a news conference at City Hall.

LaPlante denied any wrongdoing. But Daley said he ignored a memo April 2 that warned him to immediately repair a crack in a tunnel under the Chicago River. "The memo said the wall should be immediately repaired, citing the danger of flooding the entire freight tunnel system," Daley said.

On Monday, the tunnel burst, sending water through the turn-of-the-century tunnel network and flooding basements under the city's Loop district with millions of gallons of water. Electricity had to be turned off in the area.

Much of the Loop remained closed Tuesday, as city workers struggled to plug the leak and drain the water — and fish — that stood more than 40 feet deep in the bowels of some high-rises.

The mayor for the first time gave an indication of what may have caused the leak, saying new pilings installed last summer to protect a bridge on the river could have "added pressure on the wall of the tunnel and ultimately led to the collapse."

Daley said cable television company workers discovered a 20-foot-by-6-foot cracked area in the tunnel in January, and that subsequent inspections led the city's chief bridge engineer, Louis Koncz, to write a memo warning LaPlante that the wall should be replaced immediately.

LaPlante's department began getting cost estimates from two construction companies but decided they were too high and was weighing further action when the tunnel collapsed.

"The problem was brought to (LaPlante's) attention, but he failed to act, resulting in a major problem that could have been avoided," Daley said. "This was not a minor oversight."

LaPlante told WLS-TV on Tuesday: "I did a good job here. I don't have any apologies to make for that. This was a circumstance that was obviously beyond my control and may have been beyond anyone's control. Hindsight is real easy."

LaPlante, a city employee since 1962, became acting director of the Department of Public Works last Aug. 29, in January that agency was folded into the Department of Transportation and he became acting director.

Officials said Tuesday that divers would be sent into the river. One would be lowered into the water to check water flow around the breach; if he reported the area safe more divers would be sent in to survey the area and assess how best to plug the leak.

City workers and engineers continued to pour concrete into the river at the site of the leak, which was marked by a whirlpool Monday when the leak was at its worst.

Others worked to drill a shaft that would drain water from the tunnels into a huge new storm drain that lies some 240 feet below the surface.

Some 120 buildings remained dark Tuesday, officials of Commonwealth Edison said. Power was shut off to avert a threat of transformers shorting out and exploding in the flooded areas. Officials said they were not certain when power would be restored.

Gov. Jim Edgar declared Chicago a state disaster area and said he would seek federal aid.

Subway riders were forced to use buses or elevated trains to get downtown, uncertain whether their buildings were open. Police directed traffic at busy intersections where signals were blacked out.

Weather year 2nd mildest in history

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thanks in part to warming waters in the Pacific, the nation's weather year is off to the second mildest start on record, the government reported Tuesday.

Temperatures averaged 39.9 degrees across the contiguous states for the January-March period, the National Climatic Data Center said. Only 1921, with an average of 40.2 degrees for those three months, produced a warmer start, according to records dating to 1895.

Chester Ropelewski of the federal Climate Analysis Center in Camp Spring, Md., attributed the mild conditions in part to the phenomenon known as El Nino, a periodic warming of waters in the eastern Pacific.

"At least the northern tier of Western states tend to be warmer during the El Nino year. And this El Nino episode has been characterized by a broad expanse of warm temperatures over North America," he said.

The first three months have been the warmest on record in Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma and South Dakota.

Ropelewski pointed out that the mildness was not universal. "Spring was cold in the East, especially New England," he noted. "You'd have a hard time convincing people in New England it was a mild March."

Still, "Nearly one-half (49.2 percent) of the country has been very warm when compared to the normal, while none of the country had averaged very cold," temperatures over the first three months, the center reported.

Richard R. Heim Jr. of the National Climatic Data Center in Asheville, N.C., noted that the computations are preliminary and could change somewhat when final figures are in. Several other years are close to the 1992 figures, including 1953, 1986 and 1990, records show.

The December-February winter period was the mildest on record, also partly as a consequence of the El Nino phenomenon. While not fully understood, El Nino adds both warmth and moisture to the air, disrupting normal weather patterns over wide areas.

Almonds and other nuts, including walnuts, cashews and pecans, can be used to make nut butter spreads to be used as alternatives to peanut butter.

Bread spreads not just peanut butter anymore

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

Peanut butter lovers! Go for fresh flavor by making your own nut butters. Just give them a whirl in your food processor or blender. There's no rule that says you have to use peanuts. Almonds, pecans, walnuts and cashews can turn that ho-hum sandwich into a lunchtime splurge. Follow the easy directions below for each kind of nut. Then spread your choice on toast or bread and see if it passes the ultimate test — sticking to the roof of your mouth!

NUTS TO USE

■ Almond: Use two cups of blanched whole almonds. If only unblanched almonds are available at your store, blanch them this way: Place the almonds in a saucepan and cover with water. Bring to boiling, then drain. The skins should slip off easily when you press each almond between your thumb and forefinger. Dry on paper towels. Spread the dry almonds in a shallow baking pan and toast in a 300-degree F oven about 20 minutes or until golden. Cool for 5 minutes before processing or blending.

■ Cashew: Process or blend two cups of roasted cashews.

■ Peanut: Use two cups of cocktail peanuts. (Dry roasted peanuts usually give a grainier texture.)

■ Pecan: Use two cups of pecans. You can toast the pecans if you like. Spread the nuts in a shallow baking pan and toast in a 300-degree F oven for 20 minutes. Cool for 5 minutes before processing or blending.

■ Walnut: Process or blend two cups of walnuts. (This butter has the darkest color and strongest flavor.)

HOW TO MAKE IT

To make the nut butter, place the steel blade in your food processor work bowl or use your blender. Add the plain or roasted nuts. Cover and process or blend until a butter forms, stopping occasionally to scrape the sides of the bowl or blender a few times. Keep processing for three to five minutes or until all of the mixture is evenly blended. Process about two minutes more or until the butter is the desired smoothness. Store in a covered container in your refrigerator for up to two weeks. Bring to room temperature for easier spreading. Makes about 1½ cups.

Blue Bell introduces new products

Staff Report

Blue Bell Creameries, Inc., has created two new frozen snacks to help us all make it through the summer: a Homemade Vanilla Bar and the Double Fudge Bar. They also have added Double Chocolate Brownie to the 1992 line-up of ice creams.

The Homemade Vanilla Bar will combine Blue Bell's most popular ice cream, Homemade Vanilla, with a crisp, chocolate coating. This snack will be packaged in a special new metallic-backed wrapper.

The Double Fudge Bar contains approximately twice the cocoa of a regular Fudge Bar. This snack will be packaged in a slick, high-quality plastic wrap in a dark chocolate-brown color. Each wrap

"The rich taste and attractive new packaging of the Homemade Vanilla Bar and Double Fudge Bar will appeal to Blue Bell chocolate lovers all over," said Howard Kruse, president of Blue Bell. "These new snacks are Blue Bell's first super-premium bars. We think they will be welcomed with a lot of enthusiasm."

Double Chocolate Brownie is chocolate ice cream with chunks of luscious double chocolate brownies, filled with bittersweet chocolate morsels and chopped walnuts.

"For those Blue Bell fans who enjoy Chocolate Decadence and Triple Chocolate, Double Chocolate Brownie is sure to be a treat," Kruse said.

Poetry contest accepting applications

Staff Report

Sparrowgrass Poetry Forum's new "Distinguished Poet Awards" poetry contest is now accepting applications. Cash prizes totaling $1,000, including a $500 grand prize, will be awarded. Entering the contest is free.

Each poet may enter one poem only, 20 lines or less, on any subject in any style. Contest closes

May 31, but poets are encouraged to enter their work as soon as possible, since poems entered in the contest will be considered for publication in the winter 1993 edition of "Treasured Poems of America," a hardcover anthology to be published in December.

To enter, send poems to Sparrowgrass Poetry Forum Inc., Dept. EB, 203 Diamond Street, Sistersville, W.Va. 26175.

Fruit juices pass taste-test in a breeze

By Linda Anderson

We have some of the neatest friends — not only are they great friends, but they help us out with taste-tests too. They told us about a new line of fruit juices from Chiquita. They loved the juices and wanted us to try them, so we did.

These juices come in several flavors — Caribbean Splash, Tropical Squeeze, Orange Banana, Island Orchard, Raspberry Passion and Calypso Breeze. As you can tell by the names, the juices are made from tropical and/or exotic fruits in different combinations. We tried Calypso Breeze.

The juices come in half-gallon cartons, just like milk cartons, and are priced at $2.69. They are even marketed in the dairy case at the supermarket, just like milk cartons.

Label advertising was pretty limited — it said "all natural" and "100 percent fruit juice" and "Quite possibly the world's most exotic fruit juices." The wordiest that label advertising got was: "There's an exotic taste sensation in the wind — discover the delightful refreshment of Calypso Breeze 100 percent Fruit Juice from Chiquita."

Most of the label was taken up with a tropical-looking picture of sunsets and palms trees and stuff like that — and let's face it, looking at a tropical-style picture is not a bad way to start a day.

Ingredients label was very interesting too. Our Calypso Breeze contained "white grape, apple, strawberry, passion fruit, kiwi, red grape and lemon juice from concentrate, red beet for color (RED BEET!!). Couldn't they have used something else for color??? At least you can't taste it.) and natural flavors." Also, what the juice does not have was listed: "No sugar or preservatives added."

The taste-test was a rousing success. All the tasters agreed that Calypso Breeze was wonderful — in fact, it was their favorite flavor of these juices (our friends have tried more than one flavor). I thought it had a definite strawberry flavor, which is fine with me because I love strawberries. The youngest taste-tester would finish the whole carton in one sitting if I'd let her.

The only problem I had with the juice was the cost. I know the juices used are exotic and the combinations are unusual, but it still seemed expensive to me.

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Price at other locations may vary.

Cookbook celebrates legendary cowboy through cookin', eatin'

Staff Report

A new cookbook celebrating the legendary cowboy through food has been created to help home chefs enjoy cookin' as much as people enjoy eatin'.

The book is titled "The Wild Wild West," and is published by the Junior League of Odessa, Inc. Proceeds from book sales will be used to support continuing projects of the League and the focus area "Support for At Risk Students."

The hard bound 9-inch square book has been designed to lie flat so users can easily follow the 288 pages filled with 630 triples tested recipes, including such favorites as Campfire Corn, Frontier Fritters and Texas Best Chick-n-Dumpplings. The book also has over 25 Southwest recipes including chimichangas, enchiladas, Chile Rellenos, tacos, flautas, guacamole, Margaritas and Sangria.

If you are a chocolate lover, this is the cookbook for you, boasting of 41 chocolate recipes. For those who the frozen delights, there also are 12 ice cream recipes. There is a special brunch section and a section on charcoal cooking, which includes such items as Grilled Dove, Ranch Grilled Rack of Lamb and Lone Star Spiced and Smoked Ribs.

As an example of the recipes included in "The Wild Wild West,"

DEAR ABBY

Couple expected siblings' gifts as well as presence

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "Jim" and I were married last October. After our honeymoon, we opened all the gifts and found nothing from Jim's brother and his wife, and nothing from Jim's sister and her husband. Neither couple is hurting financially. Thinking their gifts might have been stolen or misplaced, we phoned both couples and asked if they had sent anything.

Jim's sister said they didn't send a gift because they thought standing up for us at our wedding was enough. She also mentioned that they had spent a lot of money on their wedding attire and shower gifts.

Jim's brother said he couldn't imagine what happened to their "card"; he was "sure" his wife had one, and he was absolutely certain that she had put some cash in the envelope. We saw no card.

We've been with them several times since, and neither one mentioned it. We don't know how to bring it up again without appearing greedy for gifts. Abby, it's not the gifts we wanted — or even the cash; we just feel slighted because they didn't take any action to correct the situation.

Should I just not go to sleep? I get tired of waking up and finding that I am an old geezer. — YOUR SLEEPYHEAD, "RIP," SLEEPY VILLAGE, U.S.A.

DEAR RELATIVES: To bring it up again with either couple would be in the worst possible taste. A gift is never owed — it is (or should be) given freely with no strings attached.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about "recycled gifts"? I recall the time when my husband had been laid off for a year. We lost our home and we were taken in by my sweet sister-in-law. During this time, our daughter was invited to a birthday party to which she begged to go. She understood that we had no money with which to buy a gift for her to take to the party, so she took her best stuffed animal, made a card, and took it to the party.

You can imagine how touched I was when her friend told her it was her most favored gift.

After eight years of financial trouble, we are finally back on our feet, thanks to God and loving friends and family, but I will always have fond memories of the many times we couldn't give something new, so we gave from our hearts alone. — JUDI CASTRO, NEWBURY PARK, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I tried to teach my third-grade students how to write a letter. I asked them to pretend they were fairy-tale characters with a problem. Their letters were to be written to "Dear Abby" by the fairy-tale characters the students had chosen.

These are just a few of the samples the students handed in. — MRS. EHRGOTT, NIXON SCHOOL, LANDING, N.J.

DEAR ABBY: Hi, my name is Ted and I'm one of the three pigs.

I have a problem. There is this wolf that keeps trying to blow my house down. Before you know it, I won't have a house anymore.

What should I do? — TED IN OINKSVILLE

DEAR ABBY: My name is Little Red Riding Hood. My problem is the Big Bad Wolf. He just won't leave me alone. He is trying to eat both me and my grandmother.

He disguised himself in my grandmother's outfit and went into her bedroom. When I knocked on the door, he told me to come in. And when I did, he tried to eat me up. How can I solve my problem? — LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD, THE DARK WOODS, WOLF VALLEY, N.J.

DEAR ABBY: My name is Rip Van Winkle. My problem is that I am always sleeping. I am getting older and older. Would you believe I slept for 100 years?

Should I just not go to sleep? I get tired of waking up and finding that I am an old geezer. — YOUR SLEEPYHEAD, "RIP," SLEEPY VILLAGE, U.S.A.

DEAR ABBY: My name is Oliver, but people call me the Ugly Duckling. My problem is, I know I am not a duck, but the ducks don't like me. Even my own mother doesn't know that.

I went out yesterday and got bitten by a goose. He thought I was a duck. I made just one friend. The weird thing is, I was swimming this morning and some baby geese found me. Their mother showed me some pictures. She says she is my mommy!

I have to talk to you later. I have to check this out. — YOUR PAL, OLIVER

DEAR ABBY: My name is Rumpelstiltskin. I am going to get a girl's baby and I can't understand how to take care of a baby. I don't know if you put diapers on the bottom of the baby, or on their head. I tried to feed a baby once, and it threw the strained peas on me.

I have a month until I get the baby. She is saying her last goodbye's. Please help me. I'm desperate.

Thank you for your time. — RUMPLESTILTSKIN

WHAT! NEWSPAPER ROUTES?

That's right...one of the best part-time income supplements around. Doesn't conflict with your "day job." Doesn't require day care. And it's dependable income.

Fact: 95% of our Distributors NOW are ADULTS supplementing their income with Route Distributorships!

Fact: Our Distributors make from $400-$800 monthly AFTER expenses, some even more!

The catch? You've gotta be able to handle early mornings and weekends! And when you take a few days off, you'll need to find a substitute for yourself.

So...are you serious about MOONLIGHTING, or what? If you are, and you have dependable transportation and can put up a $100 deposit...

Call 688-2700 and start making that extra car payment today!

Say "Thanks" to Your Secretary

In recognition of the contribution professional secretaries make to businesses all over the area, we are offering something special on Friday, April 24. It's the perfect time to show your appreciation for the hard work and dedication that your secretary demonstrates each and every day. Do something extra special for your secretary this year. Send your secretary a Thank-you Ad. Here is what you will receive:

- 1.) A 2 Column X 2 1/2" ad (see sample)
- 2.) A red rose from Bob's Designs delivered to your secretary
- 3.) The rose in the computer as well as the border will be in red color

The cost is only $48. The page will be published on April 24 and the rose will be delivered the same day

To give your secretary recognition in this special feature CALL 687-8817
