L.A.P.D. arrests 4

LOS ANGELES — Four men with alleged gang ties were arrested Tuesday in the televised beating of a white trucker, an attack that symbolized police paralysis in the Los Angeles riots. Police Chief Daryl F. Gates personally made one of the arrests. Gates was harshly criticized for attending a political fund-raiser while Reginald O. Denny was being pummeled without any help from police or paramedics./4B

Indians draw line

FORT McDOWELL INDIAN RESERVATION, Ariz. — Indians in battered pickups and giant earth movers blockaded scores of federal agents inside a casino for eight hours Tuesday to protest statewide raids on reservation gambling. The standoff at this Yavapai Indian reservation ended when officials agreed to temporarily leave the seized machines locked in big truck trailers in the parking lot. Indian leaders said the raids would deprive their tribes of desperately needed jobs and millions of dollars for social programs./5B

CIA to open files

WASHINGTON — The CIA is releasing documents the spy agency gathered on Lee Harvey Oswald before the 1963 assassination of President Kennedy, the director of central intelligence said Tuesday. "I believe that maximum disclosure will discredit the theory that the CIA had anything to do with the murder of John F. Kennedy," agency director Robert Gates told a Senate committee./4B

Connally on law

HOUSTON — Former Texas Gov. John Connally called Tuesday for an end to the grand jury system and the abolition of plea bargaining as part of a fundamental overhaul of the nation's legal system. "I think it is fair to say that the prestige of the legal profession is at its lowest ebb in all recorded history," Connally said in remarks prepared for South Texas College of Law's commencement ceremonies. Connally complained to the 275 graduates heading into the legal profession that any state or federal prosecutor can go before a grand jury and get an indictment "against anyone, anytime, 99.9 percent of the time. Yet he hides behind the nameless, faceless grand jury to avoid any personal accountability," Connally said.

Bush, Democrats vow joint fight on urban ills

WASHINGTON (NYT) — President Bush and congressional leaders declared a ceasefire in their political battles and pledged Tuesday to produce a bipartisan strategy to fight the nation's urban ills.

Many specifics, including how to pay for the programs, remained unresolved. But spurred by the Los Angeles riots, Republicans and Democrats emerged from a one-hour session at the White House expressing optimism that they can move swiftly.

Shortly before the meeting, Bush unveiled his six-point plan, which includes long-proposed but never fully enacted ideas, such as enterprise zones to encourage investments in troubled urban areas.

City delays vacant-seat rules action

■ Council's 4-3 vote puts off review of appointment process until after June 1.

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff writer

With a vacancy less than three weeks away, the appointment process used to replace Midland City Council members won't be scrutinized yet.

In a close vote Tuesday, council members decided to delay discussing the process until after June 1. Then J.D. Faircloth, at-large member, will resign his post to be sworn in as mayor — leaving a vacancy.

But voters said strongly in a non-binding referendum May 2 that they weren't satisfied with the method used to choose replacement members.

Currently, the remaining council appoints someone to fill the seat. But 72 percent of those voting said they would prefer new members be chosen by elections.

Appointments came under fire earlier this year when Bill Morrow was chosen to replace John Castro in an at-large seat.

Castro was the first Hispanic to be elected at large, but Morrow is Anglo. Some felt a minority deserved the seat. Others said applicants should have been formally interviewed by the council.

The city's charter sets the appointment procedure, however, and can only be changed by citizen vote. A charter

New park plan gives contract to private firm

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff writer

City leaders agreed Tuesday to turn over the mowing and trimming of grass and trees in public parks, around buildings and other areas to a private company.

It's not the first privatization of city services, and some said it won't be the last.

Already, janitorial work in some city buildings, some vehicle maintenance, and work on the cooling and heating systems is privatized. Almost half of the Community Services department's $2.5 million budget, which includes parks, is in contractual services.

Officials said privatization is desirable because it often can save money without cutting services.

"We always have to be looking at the bottom line for public services," said George Logan, director of community services. "We've got to be responsible and responsive."

Trinity School unveils new building, features

At first glance, Trinity School's new upper-school building — boasting clean lines and soft muted gray, white and tan tones — looks like a typical high school building with a wall of lockers, classrooms, desks and chalkboards.

But on closer inspection, some of the classrooms have round tables instead of desks to be used in a new teaching format, and unusual chalkboards that serve as audio-visu-

PECOS (AP) — The gunman who killed his estranged girlfriend's parents and brother along with his own adored daughter had written rambling notes on a napkin saying he wanted to take his baby with him.

"The notes were written in a disorderly way," said Pecos police investigator Orlando Orona. "He wanted to take his girl with him and he didn't want the baby to suffer anymore."

Proximity to power is curse, blessing for Bush offspring

By Christopher Connell
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — While their father runs the country, President Bush's five children have pursued their own far-flung careers, buying a piece of a major league baseball team, owning a Blockbuster Video franchise or building water pumps in Nigeria.

The proximity to power has been both a curse and a blessing for the president's offspring.

The Democratic Party keeps dossiers on the Bush children. Family members complained that S&L regulators went after third son, Neil, particularly hard when the Denver thrift of which he was an outside director collapsed. And newspapers regularly scrutinize business deals of his older brothers, George W. and Jeb.

But daughter Dorothy LeBlond, 32, has found the family tie helpful.

She is a fund-raiser and special events organizer for the National Rehabilitation Hospital. Her father has turned out for the hospital's black-tie fund-raising gala and charity golf tournament; her mother hosted a tea at the White House for the nonprofit facility.

Both George W. and Jeb are prominent players in Republican politics in Texas and Florida respectively, and each is assumed to be considering a future run for office. George ran a respectable race for Congress in 1978.

But the fourth Bush son, Marvin, 35, of Alexandria, Va., speaks bitterly of his own "total aversion to politics."

"At one point it was partial. After seeing how ugly politics can be ... I have absolutely no interest," said Marvin, part-owner of a score of Blockbuster Video stores and a partner in a small investment advisory firm.

"Standing on the sidelines and watching my brothers get blasted unfairly ... has been like torture for me," Marvin said in a brief interview.

"Being the son of the president (has) been restrictive," said George W. Bush, the eldest of Bush's children. "There's a lot of things I can't do that I might have tried normally."

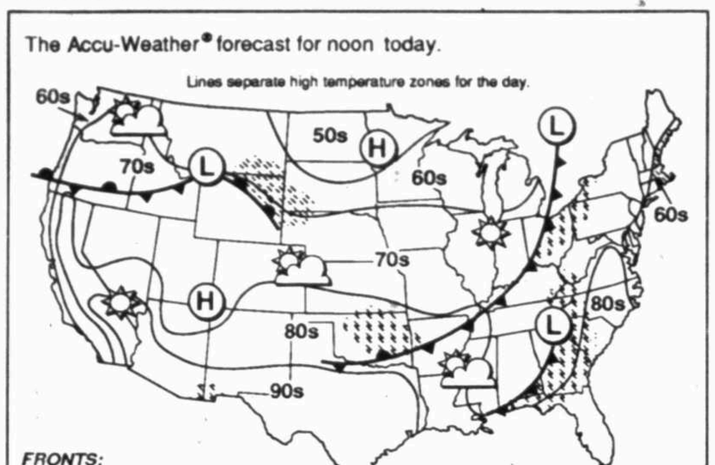

The president himself recently complained of the "ugliness of this campaign" and its impact on his children.

Jeb Bush, 39, a Miami real estate developer and former Florida secretary of commerce, said, "There's a standard set for members of the first family that ...

WEATHER SUMMARY

Mostly fair skies, 90s on tap

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for mostly fair skies with a high in the lower 90s and southeast to east winds at 10 to 20 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of showers and a low near 60, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of showers and a high near 90.

After an overnight low of 63, Tuesday's high reached 95 compared with the record high for the date of 99 set in 1963. The record low for that date is 39 set in 1971.

STATE

A building collapsed Tuesday night, causing several minor injuries, as a strong thunderstorm moved over a rural area near Waco.

Police said the utility building was apparently under construction. It collapsed at 7:40 p.m., officers said.

Raymond Keith Pierce Jr. of McGregor was in stable condition at Providence Health Center late Tuesday with cuts to his head, a hospital spokeswoman said.

She said Pierce would be released after treatment and X-rays of his head were complete.

Utility poles, including a high-tension line near a waste management facility, were also toppled by the storm, he said.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

DELAYS: City Council puts off review of process

election cannot be called until August 1993 because state law limits them to every two years and Midland had one last year.

But, with time running short, Faircloth asked for discussion Tuesday of the appointment issue.

"I wanted to start the process," Faircloth said. He said he expects a very different appointment procedure in coming weeks.

Among his ideas are written questions submitted to candidates, oral interviews and a period of time for public comment. Faircloth said he wants all voting, and even discussion of applicants, done in public.

At least one group of citizens will have its eye on the process.

"It will be interesting to see what they will do," said Isabel Jimenez, president of the Midland County League of United Latin American Citizens. "We will surely be watching."

She represents LULAC and other groups concerned with city issues at present.

Their main concern is changing the council from 4-2-1 to six single-member districts. A non-binding referendum to that effect failed narrowly, with 45 percent of voters for it and 55 percent against.

Ms. Jimenez said groups hope to meet with the council on that issue within a few weeks.

In the meantime, however, the appointment process is likely to get more scrutiny. Faircloth said the search for a new member needs to begin soon for several reasons.

"There's the budget process that's going to be going on (within a few months), and I think we need to give the new appointee ample time to prepare," he said. "I think we need to start now discussing the format and procedures we would follow."

Buddy Sipes, however, said the appointment process should not be discussed until the "new council" is seated after June 1.

Sipes was reelected to his District 3 seat, but District 4 representative Tom Johnston was not. Claudia Egan will replace him.

At the same time, Mayor Carroll Thomas will give up his seat to Faircloth.

"That's when the vacancy is going to be made, so I think we should discuss it then," Sipes said.

A vote to delay discussion — after some had already taken place — was 4-3.

Sipes, Thomas, Morrow and District 1 member James Devenport voted to delay. Faircloth, Johnston and District 2 representative Michael DeVaughn voted against waiting.

DeVaughn said he is concerned that a change to the appointment process — overwhelmingly favored by voters — would get lost in delays.

"I had hoped the council would go ahead and arrive at a process to choose a new member," DeVaughn said. "We can't have a charter amendment for so long, ... that I'm afraid this is going to be put off and put off.

"The voter's response was such that I think the council needs to go ahead and determine how they will fill vacant seats before we have another need to do so."

PARKS: New plan to reduce costs, officials say

(From 1A)

The park plan will pay $269,300 a year to Turf Specialties for mowing, edging, trimming, fertilizing, aeration and flower-bed work in city-owned areas. It is a two-year contract that could be extended three additional years.

District 3 Council member Buddy Sipes said more privatization is probably in the future for Midland — possibly at the city's effluent farm or in computer processing, for example.

"We can reduce costs, that's the benefit," Sipes said. "With our payroll and benefits burden, this makes a lot of sense."

Private companies can pay workers less or save money in benefits, but can invest in newer equipment — something the city can't often do, officials said.

"You have to look carefully at this as an option," said Bill Morrow, at-large council member. He thinks there is a possibility of privatizing in solid waste management.

"I don't have any particular agenda, but with the pressure on the budget we have to look at it," Morrow said.

Logan and assistant director Chuck Swallow designed a privatizing plan that saved $18,000 in the remainder of this year and should save $30,000 next fiscal year.

It also eliminated six jobs. Some of those workers have been transferred to other city departments, but there could be one or two layoffs, Swallow said.

Morrow praised the parks plan because it had "minimum impact" in terms of lost jobs, but saves money.

In connection with the June 1 contract date, Logan and Swallow will move from their building, 300 Baldwin Street, to City Hall's fifth floor. Park maintenance operations — now divided into two areas — will be consolidated and centralized, officials said.

The contract won't end the city's reponsibility for some park work, however. Irrigation, repair of equipment and other work will remain the job of city workers.

TRINITY: Public may tour school's new building

al screens as well as writing surfaces for ink markers, pencils — and yes, chalk.

Even the wall of gray metal lockers can be deceiving.

"The lockers are actually on the outside of the building against a special wall," said Max Goff, director of development and business manager for the private school.

The wall supporting the lockers has been covered and enclosed, but is designed to be incorporated into the next phase of expansion, which would be north of the new building.

Goff said the building — built at the cost of $640,000 — culminates Phase II of a five-phase construction campaign.

The public is invited to see the school's new features and tour the facility following today's 2:30 p.m. dedication ceremony. Members of the senior class will be conducting the tours.

The 7,800-square-foot upper-school building — which will house grades 9-12 — includes two science labs (a lecture-size lab and a smaller, working lab), three large lecture-size classrooms, a student lounge, teacher lounge, wall of lockers and display cases, offices, storage areas and four seminar rooms.

The labs — complete with work stations — have high-tech safety features such as a "kill" switch to turn off all gas and electricity in the building in case of fire, and an underground acid waste storage disposal system to keep toxic chemicals out of the city sewage system.

"Ecologically speaking, the building is state-of-the-art," Goff said.

The seminar rooms will be used for a new concept of round-table teaching, according to Emily Gifford, assistant director of development who will take the helm as director of development on July 1.

"The seminar rooms have round tables, which is more common in the east. It's best to use them with classes of five to 15 students," she said.

Goff said the upper-school building, constructed on the east side of the campus, is beginning the phase of construction to duplicate construction of the west building.

"We are starting to duplicate — on the east side of the campus — the configuration of buildings we have on the west side," Goff said. "To get a conceptual view of the symmetry, the school would have to be viewed from the air."

Floyd James, Trinity teacher and director of admissions, said the private school has had new construction every other year since 1986.

"In 1986, we built the computer center; in 1988, the fifth-grade building, in 1990, the fourth-grade building and in 1992, the upper school," James said. "Despite the economy, the school continues to grow physically."

Trinity's enrollment of 474 students (in preschool through 12th grade) includes 40 upper-school students, seven who are in the senior class this year.

"Our construction campaign is structured such that the evolving phase of each structure is decided by the needs of the school," Goff said. "The new building will allow us to accommodate an additional 100 students. Certainly that should last us for the next three to five years."

Campbell Construction Company built the upper-school facility, which was designed by Rhotenberry Wellen.

Margaret Simmons, Head of Trinity School, and Glenn Graham, head of student government, will dedicate the new building 2:30 p.m. today at the campus, 3500 W. Wadley Ave.

The Midland Chamber of Commerce M Squad will participate in the ceremony and the senior class will perform the ribbon cutting. Ruth Bell, chairman of the capital campaign responsible for the construction of the building, will dedicate the Lynn D. Durham Science Laboratory.

SLAYINGS: Pecos is stunned and feed her," Miss Garcia said.

A man who stopped by gunman Gilbert Dominguez's home to feed a penned dog would only say Dominguez considered his daughter, Deseray Hall, his life.

But Deseray's father shot and killed her with the same bullet that killed her grandmother, Gloria McIver, 49. Before turning the gun on himself, Dominguez also shot and killed Robert McIver, 27, and Deseray's grandfather, James McIver, 51.

The Mother's Day quadruple murder and suicide was triggered by a spurned proposal to Deseray's mother. Dominguez had asked Glenda Hall to marry him Saturday night and she had refused.

Dominguez had argued with Ms. Hall and police received a call that he had threatened to take Deseray.

"I guess he decided if he couldn't have her, no one could," said Margie Martinez, a convenience store clerk.

Authorities believe Dominguez walked from his home late Sunday carrying a high-powered rifle and knife. Miss Hall was at work when the shootings occurred.

While most residents on the quiet block of small homes slept, Dominguez carried out what he had plotted on dinner napkins.

Robert McIver's fiancee, Tamara McGinnis, said Dominguez had a history of violence toward Hall. She said he had beaten and threatened Hall. Dominguez had served 10 years probation for trying to kill his ex-wife.

Ms. McGinnis was present during the shootings. She was saved when Robert McIver pushed her back into a bedroom. Ms. Hall's 10-year-old daughter also hid in the home during the shootings. The two survivors saw little of the killings, said David Zavoda, 143rd district attorney.

After killing the four family members, Dominguez then went to a back bedroom and killed himself.

"It's really upset the whole town, said Barbara Hurley, a 22-year Pecos resident.

Bill Cole, chief of the Emergency Medical Service, said counselors were helping some of the volunteers cope with the tragedy.

Betty Stallard said her husband, an EMS volunteer for years, was sick to his stomach when he found the baby.

Although the town's name conjures images of lawlessness and Old West gun battles, it had been three years since the last murder in the community of 12,000.

And Orona said the Police Department receives more domestic violence calls then burglary calls.

Eleanor Josting, community relations coordinator for the Battered Women's Center in Odessa, said in the past 18 months the center has seen an increase the number of people asking for help.

"The violence is essentially ending in what you just saw in Pecos," she said. "We're seeing more serious cases than we saw in the past."

She said the center expects to see an increase in calls as a result of the slayings.

An account has been set up at First National Bank in Pecos for donations to help the McIver family defray the cost of funerals and counseling. Donations also were being accepted at a local Wal-Mart where a relative of the victims worked.

OFFSPRING: Proximity brings both perils, pluses

(only) someone who was unambitious" could meet.

"You can't be overly successful, and certainly you can't fail, because it will be magnified," Jeb said.

The Bush children cannot be accused of lack of ambition.

George W. Bush, 45, is managing general partner of the Texas Rangers, the baseball team that he and 17 limited partners purchased for $46 million in 1989. Although his partners put up the lion's share of the money, Bush is the team's leading spokesman and salesman, and sits on major league baseball's ownership committee.

He also is a director of Harken Energy Corp., the Texas company that merged with Bush's own small oil company in 1986. Two years ago Harken won exclusive exploration rights off the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Bahrain, despite never having drilled a well overseas.

A Wall Street Journal investigation found no "evidence of wrongdoing or influence-peddling by George W. Bush or anyone else connected to Harken."

There has also been press scrutiny of George's sale of $848,560 worth of Harken stock in June 1990 at $4 a share shortly before the company reported poor earnings.

The stock price later tumbled further, although it has risen as high as $8.75 in the last year. It currently sells around $2 a share.

George W., who also is a senior adviser to his father's re-election campaign, said the attention paid to his business deals has been "just ridiculous. ... There is no 'there' there."

Jeb Bush is president of the Codina Bush Group, a real estate development company in Miami, and chairman of two affiliated companies, Bush Klein Realty, Co., and Bush Real Estate Management. His main partner is Armando Codina, a wealthy, Cuban-born developer.

"We're proud of what we've done in a horrible market," he said. "We've managed to hang in there."

But taxpayers picked up the tab for most of a $4.6 million loan that a Florida bank, Broward Federal Savings and Loan, made in 1985 toward the purchase of a Miami office building by Jeb Bush and Codina.

The loan went into default, the bank went under, and the government absorbed a $4 million loss while Bush and Codina were ordered to pay $565,000.

Jeb Bush is also a consultant to a water pump manufacturer, M&W Pump Corp. of Deerfield Beach, Fla., which operates internationally, and co-owner of a small factory in Nigeria that sells hand pumps in Africa and other developing countries.

Neil Bush, 37, was caught up in the savings and loan scandal as an outside director of Denver's high-flying Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan Association, which collapsed at a cost to taxpayers of $1 billion.

Regulators accused Neil Bush of conflicts of interest for voting to approve a $100 million Silverado loan to partners who were major investors in his Denver oil business. One forgave Bush a $100,000 loan.

URBAN: Bush, Democrats declare cease-fire

vowed to "push hard" for his own ideas, he also sounded a conciliatory theme. "What we want to do is find common ground," he said, calling for a "spirit of cooperation."

House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said "both sides want to respond." But he added that after their declaration of intentions, "Now we have to do the next step."

That includes melding the Bush plan with a proposal outlined a day earlier by Democrats and finding a method to pay for the program.

The two sides share several proposals, including a call for extending unemployment benefits. The White House announced Tuesday a $1.5 billion plan that would extend benefits to March 1.

Bush and Congress also seemed headed for accord on enterprise zones, a concept widely approved despite dickering over the specifics. The administration is urging eliminating all capital gains taxes for those who invest in depressed areas.

Both sides have urged more job training for youths.

However, Congress and the White House continue to differ over housing programs for the poor. Bush is urging a federal plan to help public housing tenants become homeowners.

Democrats have generally favored adding more publicly owned housing units instead. "It's a lot cheaper to do low-income housing that is rental," said Senate Finance Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

Amid the bipartisan harmony, participants have no agreement on paying for the urban programs.

Already moving through Congress with Bush's backing is an emergency aid package of $800 million for business loans and disaster relief for Los Angeles and flood-damaged Chicago.

White House budget director Richard Darman said that the president had designated at least $600 million of the disaster relief package for Los Angeles as an "emergency" expenditure that would be automatically added to the federal deficit.

The administration gave no total cost estimate for the rest of its urban proposals. However, the price tag is considerably less than the Democratic plan would cost, since Democrats are urging $3.6 billion for transportation projects.

The president served notice that a revenue increase is not an option to finance help for the cities. "The idea that you have to raise taxes at this time when the economy is just starting to recover, I'm sorry, I will not support that," he told reporters.

He insisted that his own proposals were already in his proposed budget for the year that begins next fall and so needed no additional finance scheme.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., proposed closing some tax loopholes to help pay the costs. He predicted that the two sides could reach an agreement soon on financing the program.

"It seems to me that unless a lot of people want to add things on that run up the cost, we ought to be able to do this in two or three weeks," said Dole.

Congress had no more than 30 days to act "because people do lose interest," he added. "And if we lose interest, it will not be done."

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Jack Kemp, who developed many of the Bush proposals for the cities, said, "There seems to be a sense of urgency and emergency" in enacting a package.

Rep. Maxine Waters, D-Calif., who represents the community torn by the unrest, said she was encouraged by the meeting. "This is a time when both sides of the aisle must rise above partisan politics in the interest of the country," she said.

CLINTON: Arkansas governor turns to fall race

turns counted from slightly more than half the precincts.

The Arkansas governor, with more than 80 percent of the delegate strength needed to capture the nomination, appears poised to clinch his party's prize when California and five other states close out the primary season on June 2.

President Bush, with a lock on renomination, won Republican primaries in West Virginia and Nebraska, where conservative rival Patrick Buchanan made little effort.

Texas billionaire Ross Perot monitored the weekly primaries from a distance, moving steadily toward an independent candidacy for the White House.

Supporters said he had submitted enough signatures to qualify for the ballot in 20 states. In Texas, thousands of supporters chanted 'Run Ross Run" on Monday as Perot dropped off 90 cartons containing ballot petitions.

Clinton spent much of his day in Arkansas before flying to Minnesota, where he renewed his criticism of Bush's leadership. "We've lost our economic leadership," he said. "We're coming apart as a nation when we ought to be coming together."

He also announced the creation of a panel to help him review vice presidential running mate possibilities "in as non-political way as possible," but mentioned no names. He tapped a campaign outsider, former State Department official Warren Christopher, to lead the search committee.

Bush campaign aide Mary Matalin hailed the president's "big wins in both states. . . . This is the time to put together your fall plans," she said.

Big didn't cover it, particularly given Buchanan's strong showing in the early primaries.

Bush was gaining 80 percent of the vote in West Virginia and 84 percent in Nebraska. Buchanan's support was in the teens.

With Perot not in any primaries and the nominations all but settled, it was difficult to gauge the depth of voter discontent. But not hard to find.

"There isn't a whole lot of choice," said Paul Nida of South Charleston as he turned out to vote in West Virginia. "Our country's gone to pot."

Clinton campaigned sparingly in Nebraska and West Virginia, and ran no television advertisements. It was the second week in a row that he decided against airing commercials in primary states.

The three broadcast networks and CNN bypassed using exit polls in either state contest because of waning interest in the primary season, said Warren Mitofsky, director of Voter Research and Surveys, which conducts the polling place interviews with voters.

But Clinton said voters in upcoming primary states were still heeding the campaign.

"I think for most people that it's just beginning. . . . We're only now beginning to get into a phase where you can raise voter interest," he said.

If the week's contests drew scant attention outside the primary states, that didn't mean there weren't hotly contested races.

West Virginia Democratic Rep. Alan Mollohan led fellow congressman Harley O. Staggers Jr. in a primary contest. They were thrown into the same district when population shifts cost the state one of its House seats.

West Virginia Gov. Gaston Caperton led two rivals who challenged his Democratic renomination. Ed ReBrook, trailed in his bid for the Democratic nomination for state attorney general. He filed a $20 million lawsuit against a television station that broadcast accusations by six woman that he had sexually assaulted or harassed them.

Nationally, the political rough and tumble revolved around the aftermath of the Los Angeles riots as both Bush and Clinton bid to show leadership in the wake of the unrest.

Clinton was leading for 45 delegates from the two primaries and Brown was leading for seven, and uncommitted for four.

Clinton began the night with 1,738 delegates out of 2,145 necessary to gain the nomination. Brown had 343. There were 56 at stake in Nebraska and West Virginia.

Brown got in a few last campaign licks in Nebraska. One interviewer invited him to invent a campaign limerick and the candidate obliged. "Get it down with Brown this time. It may not rhyme, but it's a chime you cannot forget."

Buchanan was in San Diego, where he called for using the military, if necessary, to stop the illegal flood of immigrants from entering the country.

Clinton was airing television commercials in Oregon, which holds its primary next week, an indication that he was more fearful of Brown's threat there than in West Virginia and Nebraska.

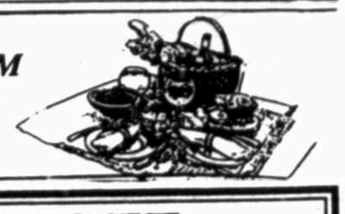

Oregon has been kind to insurgent candidates in the past, and has a strong environmental vote. Brown's candidacy appeals to the disaffected, and he also has scored well in states where the environment is an important issue.

Clinton's primary winning streak stood at eight as Nebraska and West Virginia voted, and the brutal and unpredictable Democratic political wars of winter had long since given way to a preordained result.

The governor took heart from a poll suggesting voters were viewing him more positively.

A USA Today-CNN national survey of 1,015 adults over the weekend showed Clinton was viewed unfavorably by 35 percent and favorably by 51 percent. The survey had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

EC quits Bosnia; U.S., Europe punish Serbia

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The last European Community observers burned their records and fled Bosnia on Tuesday as the United States and Europe further punished Serbia for its role in the ethnic civil war.

Washington recalled Ambassador Warren Zimmermann from Belgrade on Tuesday to protest what it said was Serb-led aggression against ethnic Croats and Muslims seeking Bosnian independence. The 12-nation European Community had withdrawn its envoys from the Serbian and federal capital on Monday.

But Bosnia's Serbs remained defiant, saying they would form their own army under a hard-line chief. The decision was taken by the parliament of the Serbs' self-proclaimed republic in Bosnia, Belgrade-based Tanjug news agency said.

The parliament offered some hope for peace. It called a unilateral five-day cease-fire. Tanjug, quoting a Serb news agency in Bosnia, said it would come into force at 6 a.m. Wednesday (Tuesday midnight EDT).

Serb forces "will respond only if threatened," Tanjug said. It said the Serbs also urged the EC to summon a conference on Bosnia that would sit until peace is achieved.

Repeatedly, truces agreed between the warring sides have broken down in Bosnia.

In Helsinki, Finland, the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe voted to exclude Yugoslavia — now comprising only Serbia and its small ally Montenegro — from all decisions on Bosnia until late June.

Its unprecedented action highlighted growing international condemnation of Serbia. The 52-nation group includes all European nations, the United States and Canada.

"Those leaders have driven themselves into isolation," the CSCE statement said of Serbia. "It is they who bear the prime responsibility for the escalation of bloodshed and destruction."

The CSCE will discuss possible economic sanctions on Serbia next Monday.

Before departing Belgrade, Zimmermann sought to arrange humanitarian aid for Bosnia, where fighting has claimed about 1,300 lives since Bosnian Croats and Muslims voted for secession Feb. 29.

Ethnic Serbs, who comprise about one-third of Bosnia's 4.3 million people, strongly opposed independence and boycotted the referendum. They have been backed by the Serb-led federal army.

At least six people were killed in new fighting in war-ravaged Sarajevo and Mostar, Radio Bosnia-Herzegovina said Tuesday. Shelling damaged a TV tower in northern Sarajevo.

The EC said it was too dangerous for its observers to remain in the Bosnian capital.

"I have no right to put my people in danger," said Antonio dos Santos, head of the EC mission in Sarajevo. "We have wives and children to think of."

The 12-man EC observer team left the Serb-held suburb of Ilidza shortly after dawn for the Croatian port of Split in four white vehicles fitted with blue EC flags.

The observers first burned documents taken from their hotel headquarters, where armed Serbs often crowd the dining room.

A 25-man EC team left weeks ago after a Belgian monitor was killed near Mostar in southwestern Bosnia, where fierce battles still rage between Serb forces and Croat and Muslim defenders.

Arab nations end talks with call for peace

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Arab delegates to Mideast talks said Tuesday that the Arab-Israeli conflict would have to be brought to an end before the adversaries can work for economic cooperation.

"The economic carriage cannot be put in front of the political horse," said Youssef Sayigh, head of the Palestinian delegation to the two-day discussions on development hosted by the European Community.

Jordan's delegation leader, Fayez Tarawnen, agreed. "We cannot just put politics aside and talk about regional cooperation," he said.

But Leonardo Mathias, a Portuguese diplomat who chaired the 39-nation meeting, said the talks would reinforce direct peace negotiations that began last October.

"We are creating the conditions for peace," he said, appealing to Israel, Syria and Lebanon to take part in the next round of talks in Paris in early October.

The three states boycotted the Brussels talks and were skipping talks on refugees that open Wednesday in Ottawa. Israel plans to participate in meetings opening Wednesday on water resources in Austria, and sessions on environmental issues next week in Tokyo.

Lebanon and Syria have said bilateral peace negotiations must progress before they will take part in the multilateral talks.

Israel is spurning Brussels and Ottawa because it opposes the participation of Palestinian delegates from outside the occupied territories.

Jerusalem contends its acceptance of the delegates would open the door to Palestine Liberation Organization participation in the talks.

But Itzhak Shelef, Israel's ambassador to Canada, said Israel may eventually take part in the refugee talks.

The issue of who represents the Palestinians at the talks is important, he said, because "once we agree to Palestinians from outside, the PLO is around the table, and once there they will immediately table this 'right of return.'" The United States has urged the Palestinian delegates not to raise their claim to a right to return to the homes and land they fled in 1948 after Arabs attacked the new Israeli state.

Dr. Elias Sanbar, the professor at the Sorbonne in Paris who leads the Palestinian delegation, said its members did not represent their home regions in Israel or the occupied territories, but rather the entire Palestinian people.

'The economic carriage cannot be put in front of the political horse.'

— Youssef Sayigh

"For us, the problem is not geographic," said Sanbar.

Thirteen Arab nations attended the Brussels meeting, including Saudi Arabia.

Mathias told a news conference that participants agreed to compile a list of problems hindering economic development in the strife-torn region, including high population growth, unemployment and scarcity of water.

"There was no reason to expect any resounding success," he said. "The initial aim of the exercise was to have a preliminary exchange of views."

Currently, all Arab nations except Egypt ban trade with Israel.

During the meeting, the European Community, the wealthy 12-nation trading bloc, held itself up as a model of how diverse nations can cooperate to improve their economies.

EC officials said the region's economies are so small that they could benefit enormously by tearing down trade barriers and creating a free trade area.

Melle May stood by county veterans

The U.S. and Texas flags flew at half-staff Tuesday for Evvy V. "Melle" May, Midland County's Veterans Service Officer who died last week at the age of 56. Her death was a staggering loss to armed service veterans here.

Following her death, tributes came from county commissioners, veterans' organizations and others who had been associated with Ms. May during her 14 years with Midland County. She had begun work with the Midland County Veterans Service Office on June 1, 1978 and became the county's Veterans Service Officer a year later.

In that capacity, "Melle" — as she was widely known — worked tirelessly for government benefits due veterans. She was a devoted spokesman for veterans' causes, a staunch defender who carried their banner flawlessly. She had a passion for her work that made it more than a job.

That devotion was reflected in the words of one county official who, in praising Ms. May's work, commented, "I don't think enough can be said about the overall attitude she had toward her job and the people she served."

Ms. May fought for Midland County veterans as valiantly and passionately as they fought for the United States of America on the battlefields around the globe — and as a result she developed an exceptional rapport with them and acquired their lasting respect and appreciation.

She was an outstanding spokesman for the veterans during a time when other considerations seemed to overshadow the needs of those who served this country in its darkest days. The veterans needed an unselfish friend and advocate, and they found those qualities in Melle May.

She will be missed.

CAFE standards cross buyers

An authoritative report ought to end demands for everrising federal automotive fuel economy standards. A National Academy of Sciences panel provides evidence that corporate average fuel economy (CAFE) rules are counterproductive. Modest improvements in gas mileage are offset by costly trade-offs.

House and Senate bills call for increases of 12 to 22 miles per gallon above the current 27.5 mpg CAFE standards. A panel of 12 experts determined that improving fuel economy by only five to seven mpg would add $500 to $1,250 to the price of a car and as much as $2,750 for light trucks. These figures don't take into account the estimated additional increase of $2,000 resulting from new safety and emissions requirements.

Transportation Secretary Andrew Card says the study "recognizes that this system is increasingly at odds with market signals, that it has perverse economic effects, that it does not apply equivalent challenges to all manufacturers and that it has operated to the detriment of the domestic auto companies." American motorists simply don't want to buy smaller, less-safe automobiles.

The government should forget about trying to impose rules that are clearly not in the interests of consumers or producers.

Testing method fires up nonsense

The New York Fire Department, apparently deeming certain minorities to be incapable of doing well on multiple choice tests, has revised its examination procedures. Instead of having to pick the correct answer, test-takers will have to rank their top three choices. Picking the correct answer as first-rank choice will be good for one point. But ranking it second will be good for a half-point.

Imagine how this would work in practice. Question: Which of the following can be used to put out a fire? A) water; B) gasoline; C) gunpowder. Someone who chose gasoline first and water second still would get half a point for the question.

Such an approach certainly does not foster public safety. Just as importantly, it is fundamentally racist in its assumption that minorities cannot score as well as whites on a fair test.

This is the sort of nonsense encouraged by federal civil rights laws which place more importance on equality of results for certain racial and ethnic groups than on old-fashioned merit-based equality of opportunity. Coming soon to a city near you.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, May 13, the 134th day of 1992. There are 232 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 13, 1981, Pope John Paul II was shot and seriously wounded in St. Peter's Square by Turkish assailant Mehmet Ali Agca.

On this date:

In 1607, the English colony at Jamestown, Va., was settled.

In 1842, composer Sir Arthur Sullivan, who collaborated with Sir William Gilbert in writing 14 comic operas, was born in London.

In 1846, the United States declared that a state of war already existed against Mexico.

In 1914, boxing champion Joe Louis was born in Lafayette, Ala.

In 1917, three peasant children near Fatima, Portugal, reported seeing a vision of the Virgin Mary.

In 1918, the first U.S. airmail stamps, featuring a picture of an airplane, were introduced. (On some of the stamps, the airplane was printed upside-down, making them collector's items.)

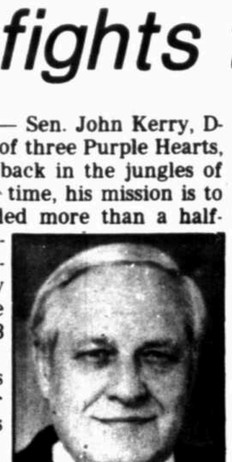

In 1940, in his first speech as prime minister of Britain, Winston Churchill told the House of Commons, "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

In 1985, a confrontation between Philadelphia police and the radical group MOVE ended as police dropped an explosive onto the group's headquarters. Eleven people died in the resulting fire.

Kerry fights to release POW/MIA files

WASHINGTON — Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., winner of three Purple Hearts, finds himself back in the jungles of the Vietnam War. This time, his mission is to achieve what has eluded more than a half-dozen previous investigations in the aftermath of the costly conflict: account for the uncertain fate of 2,273 American soldiers.

Anderson

Some of his friends fear he's waging a war that's as unwinnable as the first.

The political factions within the Senate Select Committee on POW/MIA Affairs rivals in rancor any debate that raged while the hot war was still on. Even Kerry told us "What Bob (Smith, R-N.H., vice-chairman of the Select Committee) and I are trying to do is walk our way through this political minefield with 10 other senators."

Some committee staff and senators, and many MIA activists, have been agitating for a decade over what they regard as irrefutable proof that there are living Americans being held in captivity in Southeast Asia.

One Senate aide compared it to MIA "McCarthyism." Those who dispute or show skepticism, are sell-outs to Hanoi or the Pentagon, or dupes of government disinformation.

They have staked out positions on the POW/MIA issue that will make reconciliation difficult. Kerry has pursued what might be called a big tent theory for achieving closure: Give every conspiracy theory a hearing, track down every lead, and examine every grainy photograph and live sighting.

But his gamble may backfire. The select committee's work, which winds up at the end of the year, could turn into a carnival, a shooting arcade in which the conspiratorialists throw up theories or targets faster than Kerry's investigators can shoot them down.

Some sources say that the "minimum demand" among the activists on and off the committee will be an acknowledgment of living Americans who were knowingly left behind and remain in captivity today.

Kerry told us: "There's lots of folks out there with big investments on all sides of this issue. DIA (Defense Intelligence Agency) has big investments, 20 years of saying X, Y and Z. And frankly there are documents that contradict their investment. Likewise there are people on the activist side who have big investments."

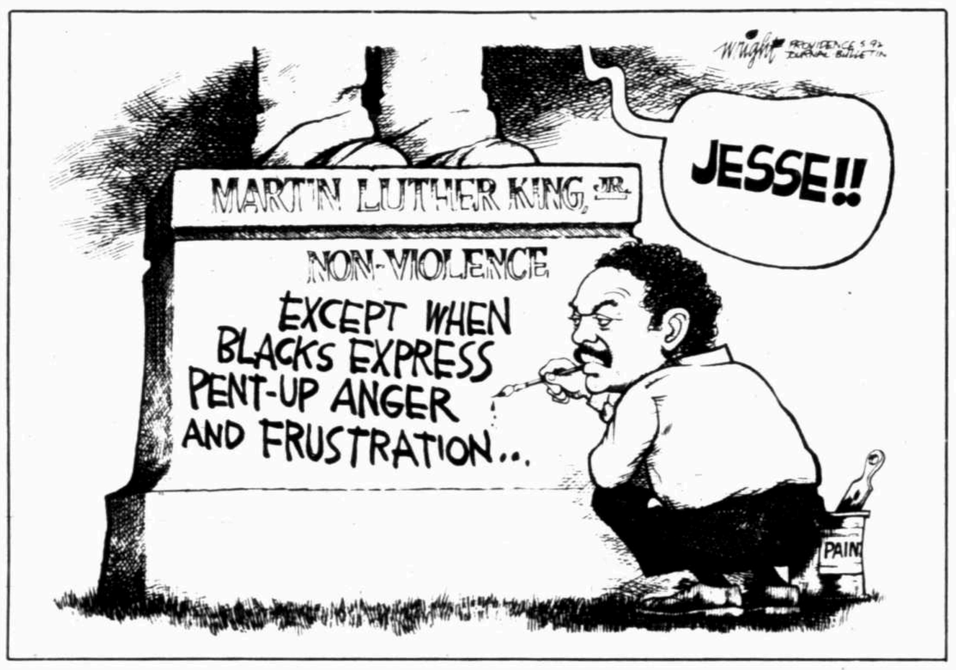

Kerry points out that all this is a recipe for things occasionally getting "wacky." Although he wasn't directly referring to a closed-door briefing before the Select Committee last month, some committee sources believe it stands as a perfect metaphor for the MIA muddle.

One of its architects was former North Carolina congressman Bill Hendon, who has waged a decade-long crusade to prove the existence of living MIAs, and government cover-up. Smith, a long-time MIA activist, recruited soulmate Hendon for work on the Select Committee.

Drawing on classified materials, the April 9 briefing promised to unveil compelling intelligence that Americans were held in captivity in Vietnam between 1973 and 1989, validating the darkest suspicions among MIA activists that there were living Americans left behind who had been forsaken or forgotten by their government, and raising the specter of a cover-up that would dwarf Watergate.

A political firefight erupted even before the approximately four-hour session was underway. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., and other Select Committee members wanted the Defense Intelligence Agency to attend and offer their input and possible rebuttal.

But the vice-chairman of committee, Smith, and Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, were staunchly opposed.

Yesterday's technology won't protect us

WASHINGTON — The world's espionage agencies are busily re-tooling. Military intelligence is no longer the hot model; technological trade secrets are what the customer wants.

Safire

You might think, with foreign economic spies intercepting our global data transmissions, faxes and phone calls, the Bush Justice Department and National Security Agency would be helping American businesses defend communications from prying eyes and ears of overseas competitors eager to steal our scientific advantage.

The opposite is the case. In a policy blunder ranking with the adoption of the Smoot-Hawley tariff as depression loomed, the Bush administration sent FBI Director William Sessions to Congress to argue for a weakening of the devices U.S. citizens use to encode and keep confidential the information our competition would love to see.

Why on earth would President Bush want a new law preventing Americans from using the most sophisticated techniques we can devise to stop economic espionage?

Because, you see, the new defenses against stealing information — coding software already available all over the world — work all too well. Our spooks and law officers are worried that they will no longer be able to listen to what Americans and their computers are saying to each other.

Therefore, say our lawmen, let's insist on a system of electronic locks that can't be jimmied by low-level thieves, but are not strong enough to stop the heavy hitters — "good enough but not too good." In that way, federal wiretappers and computappers supposedly can continue to break into data networks to help catch bookies, drug smugglers and terrorists.

This is a classic case of falling off the pace of change. In the name of law enforcement, we are making ourselves technologically vulnerable to international criminality. To preserve the huge investment in our old eavesdropping facilities, we are abandoning the field to modern organized crime.

Does anyone seriously think that state terrorism cannot afford the best encryption and penetration software, or that drug cartels cannot buy the latest encryption devices for their money movements?

Sure, old-fashioned wiretaps got Gotti. But not three years ago, with Federal Reserve computers whirring, and the NSA's Big Ear sucking up global telephone calls — and with no serious encryption working for him — Saddam Hussein was able to run $4 billion in 3,000 illegal transactions through an Atlanta bank to finance his nuclear missile development.

The trouble with both our federal law enforcement and intelligence services is that they have become hooked on yesterday's technology. Electronic surveillance for cops and satellite photography for spooks have become central to their lives; their reaction to the inexorable improvement in encryption is to say to the world of science: slow down.

It won't. In trying to sweep back the tide of change, King Canute-style, the FBI is the front for the intelligence community, which hates to be forced to go back to the difficult days of running human spies. The NSA (No Such Agency) is obsolescent because its expensive eavesdropping is an offensive weapon in the coming age of digital defense.

Wouldn't it be nice to know you can get a key that makes it impossible for anybody — your competitor, your spouse, your friendly revenoor — to read the faxes you send and receive?

Wouldn't it be useful for banks transferring money and people making contracts to be able to verify a signature on a document without needing an original copy?

Wouldn't it be a boon to competitiveness for American workers to be able to speed trade secrets through secure computer channels?

Bush is on the wrong side of this issue (and Ross Perot will take him apart on it in debate) because his mindset is toward old-fashioned spookery and against personal privacy.

In the end, that's what this futile scramble to stop the scrambling will come down to: not to stop the march of progress, not to take tools from counterspies, but to preserve business and personal privacy.

The coming Information Age threatens to be intrusive; the individual will be watched, examined, crowded. At the same time, to the happy tune of "I got algorithm," the computer-telephone complex brings us defenses against its own intrusion.

White House always must blame someone

It stands to reason that when there is strife in the land the White House must step in to blame someone for causing the trouble. So it came as no surprise when, several days after the riots in Los Angeles, Marlin Fitzwater, the President's loyal mouthpiece, took center stage and announced that the liberal programs of Lyndon Baines Johnson were the real villains for what happened after the Rodney King beating trial.

Buchwald

Marlin wasn't speaking for himself but for the Bush administration, which still doesn't know how to play the riots during an election year.

So it was decided to make "The Great Society" the scapegoat.

Here's how it happened: The President's Elite Fault-Finders Hit Squad went into their attack mode as soon as word of the looting came through.

They said to Fitzwater, who attends all their meetings, "Marlin, you have to go out there and dump the whole L.A. disaster on the Democrats' doorstep."

"I gotcha," Marlin said, taking notes. "I'll announce to the world that you can't have the kind of '60s and '70s poverty programs without pillaging and looting in the urban areas."

A political pollster applauded. "Our message should be that there would not have been any rioting in the ghettos if it wasn't for the liberals raising the expectations of the looters."

Marlin said, "Do I mention anything about President Bush's plans to help minorities?"

"What plans are those?" someone asked.

An aide responded, "The old Bush plans that the Democratic Congress refuses to pass. Let's not make any stupid new promises that we'll be stuck with once the country forgets about L.A."

"Can I say that welfare was the main reason for all the broken windows?" Fitzwater wanted to know.

"Sure you can. If people were doing honest work they wouldn't have time to throw rocks."

Another political adviser to the President said to Fitzwater, "If we don't turn the riot into a political asset the looting and shooting will all have been in vain. It would be a pity if the President sank in the polls because the public considered him gung-ho on poverty."

Marlin was excited, "I can't wait to get out there and trash the Great Society. If this doesn't play in Peoria, I'll eat Millie's Alpo."

"Don't overdo it," a re-election adviser cautioned. "There are some people in the country who still consider L.A. to be a national tragedy and not a political dilemma."

"I understand," Marlin replied. "Our story should be that there is no way of solving the urban problems of America if you have a Democratic Congress rejecting Republican conservative social legislation.

"The message is that nobody ever stopped a mob from torching buildings with welfare checks and day-care centers."

"Great," said a political hack, "but how do we fit it on a bumper sticker?"

Anti-corruption candidate leads in early vote returns

MANILA, Philippines (NYT) — An outspoken former official who campaigned on an anti-corruption platform continued to lead Wednesday in early returns in the Philippine presidential elections.

Even though Filipino electoral experts said it might be at least a week before the final results of Monday's vote were known, the front-runner, Miriam Defensor Santiago, predicted that she would emerge as the successor to President Corazon C. Aquino.

A tabulation compiled early today by the ABS-CBN television network showed that with about 10 percent of the vote counted, Mrs. Santiago, whose calls for clean government and fiery style kept her at the top of public opinion polls for more than a year, had received 669,075 votes, or about 26 percent of the 2.6 million votes tallied.

The television network gave 23 percent to her nearest rival, former Defense Minister Fidel V. Ramos, who was endorsed by Mrs. Aquino after she decided against a second term.

He was followed by Eduardo Cojuangco, a close associate of former President Ferdinand E. Marcos, with 17 percent. The leading vote-getter wins; there will be no runoff.

The other presidential candidates — Jovito R. Salonga, a former Senate leader; Marcos' widow, Imelda; Ramon Mitra, the Speaker of the House, and Vice President Salvador Laurel — trailed in the vote count.

Mrs. Santiago, an American-educated lawyer who is nothing if not self-confident and who has repeatedly referred to her opponents as "certifiable idiots," said in a television interview on Tuesday that she believed her lead was "irreversible."

"I articulate the deepest need of the Filipino people, which is reform of a corrupt culture," Mrs. Santiago said in explaining the early vote counts. "I don't necessarily believe people were voting for me so much as they were voting for change."

But rival campaigns scoffed at Mrs. Santiago's optimism over her election prospects, saying that a more complete vote count, especially one that included additional returns from rural areas where her support is thought to be weak, will show their candidates surpassing Mrs. Santiago.

Ramos, a West Point-educated army general whose 1986 mutiny set off the "People Power" revolution that toppled Marcos, said on Tuesday that he expected to win by at least 1 million votes.

An exit poll of 1,600 voters conducted by Reuters showed Ramos in the lead, followed by Mrs. Santiago and Cojuangco.

Mrs. Marcos, one of several candidates representing the old style of Philippine politics, was running fifth in the field of seven. Many of Marcos' lieutenants supported Cojuangco. But Mrs. Marcos' son, Ferdinand Jr., had a commanding lead in the race for a House seat from Ilocos Norte province, his father's northern political stronghold.

The poor showing of Mitra, who was running sixth, could signify a defeat for the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy, which wields great power in this heavily Catholic country. In a sermon last month, Cardinal Jaime Sin, the archbishop of Manila, issued a de facto endorsement of Mitra.

Many Filipinos were intrigued when Sin granted a private audience to Mrs. Santiago at his Manila residence on Tuesday. Asked his thoughts on the election results, the Cardinal told a local television reporter, "Whatever will come out, I believe it is the will of God, and if it is the will of God, it is good."

Thirty climbers crowd Everest's top

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A total of 30 mountaineers from five different expeditions climbed the world's tallest peak Tuesday, a record in the history of mountaineering.

Three members of an American Everest expedition, Skip Horner, 34, of Victor, Montana; Vernon Tejas, 39, of Anchorage, Alaska and Louis Bowen, 43, who now lives in Hong Kong, reached the peak Tuesday.

Immediately after the American conquest, four members of a Russian expedition, Ivan Doucharini, 42, Andrei Volkov, 32, Iliy Sabelnikov, 29, and Alexandre Gouerassimov, 39, also scaled the peak.

Earlier in the day, nine members of a New Zealand International Expedition had climbed Everest, accompanied by five Nepali sherpa guides.

Two Dutchmen and two sherpa guides from another expedition also made it to the top.

Among the others to reach the top of the 29,028-foot peak were three members of an Indian Everest expedition team. They were accompanied by two sherpa guides.

Everest first was conquered in 1953. With Tuesday's conquest, the highest peak has been scaled 384 times.

NASA plans three-astronaut space walk to catch Intelsat

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA agreed Tuesday to an unprecedented spacewalk by three astronauts to catch a slippery satellite that proved too much for one man to handle.

The third and final attempt by Endeavour's crew to capture the Intelsat-6 satellite is Wednesday.

"I have my toes, my fingers and my eyes crossed waiting for the mission tomorrow night," NASA Administrator Daniel S. Goldin told the crew in a telephone call piped up by Mission Control. "The one thing I ask you all to keep in mind is crew safety has got to be our first objective."

■ National news/ 4-5B

Endeavour's commander, Daniel Brandenstein, had argued that a third crewman was needed for the task.

To prove they could carry out the first three-man spacewalk, three of Endeavour's astronauts put on spacesuits earlier Tuesday and squeezed into the shuttle's airlock.

A major concern had been whether three people could fit at once in the airlock, which is the barrier between the cabin and the vacuum of space. They did.

Brandenstein said he wanted to send out three men — the three who crowded into the airlock — rather than two men and Kathryn Thornton, the only woman aboard. They are Pierre Thuot and Richard Hieb, who went out Sunday and Monday to try to capture the satellite, and Thomas Akers.

Those four of Endeavour's seven astronauts have trained for months to walk in space and each has a spacesuit aboard.

"It (airlock) worked with the three biggest folks, so I think since we're going to be man-handling the satellite we'll go with Tom, Rick and Pierre," Brandenstein told Mission Control.

Board tables issue of longer day for school

■ MISD trustees agree to receive teacher input on adding 30 minutes of school time.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

Is extending the school day the answer to improving students' TAAS (Texas Assessment of Academic Skills) test scores?

"It may not be the answer," said Midland school board trustee Gary Willis in Tuesday night's meeting.

His fellow board members agreed and voted unanimously to table the issue until further study.

"The core issue is that standards are higher and that is what we want," Willis said. However, he said, "on first blush" a proposal that would extend the current school day 30 minutes made sense in concept, "but not in implementation."

Several teachers addressed the issue saying students are tired already by the end of the day. Also, Alamo Junior High School teacher Jo Hayes noted that since the junior high has three staggered lunch periods, — with the first lunch served at 11 a.m. and last served at 12:45 — students from the first lunch would be hungry if school got out later in the day.

"Effective learning is not possible when students are hungry," she said. "You are confusing the length of time spent in the classroom with quality time."

Ms. Hayes suggested helping "teachers to teach" and improving parent involvement as an alternative to extending instruction time.

"You are saying we need to work longer, harder and smarter. Well, what about looking at smaller class size and better pay for teachers?" asked Steve Buck, Lee High School coach and teacher.

Trustee Jack Hightower questioned why the district improvement plan — which will affect teachers — had been proposed by a committee that didn't include any teachers.

Trustee James Fuller asked teachers to address what could be done to improve the quality of education "during the course of the school day" without extending it.

The board voted to table the matter and study the issue further "with (input from) all parties included."

In other action, Judge Pat Baskin swore in Michael Dobey and Fuller as board trustees. Fuller was re-elected to District 1 and Dobey replaced Ken Marks in District 7. Marks — the retiring school board president — decided not to run for re-election.

Marks received a plaque of appreciation from the board for his four years of service.

"I think we accomplished a lot for the kids in the community," Marks said, "... we are truly blessed to have such a school system with quality leadership in administration and some of the greatest teachers in the world."

Students winners from the "Just Say No" contest were honored. At the meeting, LHS student Jeramy Skaggs presented his first place speech "Stop the Pain," which offered solutions to curb teen alcoholic drinking. Julie Grandy of Midland High presented her award-winning essay on the dangers of drug use and a plan for educating students.

Trustees also heard an evaluation of the social studies curriculum.

5 eyewitnesses give conflicting testimony about fight

■ Testimony continues in murder trial.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

Five eyewitnesses testified at a murder trial Tuesday about a fight outside Bojangles bar in October 1990 that resulted in a man being fatally stabbed.

The result was five different stories presented to a 12-person jury in Judge John Hyde's 238th District Court.

William Allan Ross, 32, has been accused in the death of Timothy Robison, 26, who died from a stab wound to the heart.

Testimony indicated that about 11:20 p.m. on Oct. 19, 1990, Robison was in the parking lot of Bojangles, 3709 W. Wall Ave., visiting with Justin Holt, 31, Ronald Finnell, 26, and Finnell's girlfriend.

During that time, a car with four occupants stalled while pulling out onto Wall Avenue. In the car were Ross, his girlfriend, Katherine A. Hatfield, who was driving, and Sue Ann Aragones, 31, and Gary Filimon, 40, in the back seat.

Words were exchanged between the two groups and a fight ensued between Ross and Robison, who died as a result, testimony indicated.

Holt testified that he and Robison had been drinking and were leaving when they met Finnell and his girlfriend in the parking lot.

Robison yelled profanities at the passing car and Ross emerged with a knife, Holt said. Ross and Robison went for each other but Holt calmed the two down, he said. Ross got back in the car.

Ms. Hatfield then started cursing and "telling him (Ross) to get out and kick our ass," Holt said.

"He (Ross) never said anything. It was her doing all the cursing," Holt testified.

Holt said he was then cut above his left eye, apparently by Ross, who then got in a fight with Robison. He said the fight lasted less than a minute. The group in the car then left.

Finnell, who said he had not been drinking, gave a somewhat different version of the incident.

Robison did yell at the car but not to the degree to instigate a fight, Finnell said.

"We began to laugh about it (the car stalling) and I guess it got them mad," Finnell said.

When Ross got out of the car the first time, he snapped open a pocket knife and said "Ya'll want any (expletive)?," Finnell testified.

Finnell testified that after Ross

Town with a heart fights for hospital

■ McCamey Hospital & Convalescent Center comes back from near-bankruptcy to celebrate 25th anniversary.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

McCAMEY — It was the collective heart of local residents that pulled the McCamey Hospital & Convalescent Center out of near-bankruptcy and guided it back to health.

"They have the heart to fight for their hospital," Terry Townsend, president of the Austin-based Texas Hospital Association, said Tuesday in observing the 25th anniversary of the community's hospital. "They cared enough," to prevent the hospital from joining the ranks of the many rural Texas hospitals that closed down in the 1980s.

Townsend likened the community to the extraordinarily large heart of Triple Crown winner Secretariat.

"Secretariat had a big heart, and he ran, and, he won," Townsend said. "He was the greatest horse of all time — he had the heart. He had the capacity to deliver the blood and win that race."

And McCamey's people "had the heart to fight for their hospital," Townsend said.

The heart of the community and the support of tax dollars and the devotion of the hospital's board of directors, medical and administrative staffs and volunteers kept the hospital open, Townsend said.

Ed Todd/Reporter-Telegram

In the 1980s, 105 hospitals closed in Texas. Of those, 60 percent were, like McCamey's hospital, considered rural. Only eight of the 105 hospitals reopened.

Sixteen Texas hospitals closed in 1990, and 12 shut their doors in 1991. So far this year, two hospital closed, Townsend said.

Townsend indicated that McCamey's health-care center (16-bed hospital and 30-bed convalescent center) is thriving despite the hospital's burden of having to supplement the cost of Medicare and Medicaid patients.

"If the federal and the state governments paid just the cost of Medicare and Medicaid, you would never have any difficulties," Townsend said. "That's what's driving hospital prices up. It's becoming a hidden tax on you and me. Our insurance premiums go up because the government is not paying for its cost on Medicare and Medicaid."

Townsend, a lawyer and former Texas legislator from Brady said, 'I know what small towns will do to fight to save their hospitals."

Exhibitors, chamber declare that Expo '92 was successful show

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

Expo '92, the Midland Chamber of Commerce's annual trade show attracted more than 1,000 visitors and was hailed as a success by both exhibitors and chamber officials.

Bruce Partain, communications director for the chamber, said most of the 62 exhibitors at Expo '92, claimed to be getting higher quality leads than in previous years.

Exibitors also noted that there seemed to be a higher level of interest.

Dale Mercer of Mida Computers said he saw good response from visitors who were enthusiastic and showed good interest in his products.

"We were able to tell a lot of people exactly who we are and what we sell," he said.

Patrick Holeva of GMC Business Systems agreed: "Both the response and the traffic has been very good."

Phyliss Gonzales, who operates a modeling agency, said that a number of visitors told her they were glad she was at the Expo so she could explain what her business does.

"We have seen a lot of interest," she said.

Asked what benefit they derived from Expo '92, two Midland electronics firms said it gave them good exposure and gave them an opportunity to explain to the public who they are and what they sell.

"A lot of people were unaware that there was an electronics firm such as ours in Midland, that burns boards and manufacturers consumer electronics," said Janice Harissis of KESU Electronics. The firm manufacturers Follow Me, a call forwarding device and Friends Only, a call screening device.

Steven Bowen, national sales manager for Jacobs Electronics, said he was pleasantly surprised by the turnout and the response of the show. "It has been a great show for us, because it allowed us to answer a lot of questions about our company."

Lisa Kilpatrick, owner of Baskets & More, which sells gift baskets, said it was a good show for her because she would probably attract new business. "I made a lot of contacts and hopefully, I will pick up some corporate accounts," she said.

Janice Rogers of Pecans International sells flavored pecans worldwide, but noted that the show was good for her because she also sells retail locally.

DEATHS

Frederick Johnson

Frederick A. "Pete" Johnson, Jr., a former Midland petroleum geologist, died April 7, at his home in Littleton, Colo.

He was 68.

Johnson

Services were held at the Drinkwine Chapel of Peace in Littleton. Burial was at Fort Logan National Cemetery in Denver.

Johnson was born Sept. 8, 1923, in Pittsburgh, Pa. He graduated from Kane, Pa., High School in 1941 and received his bachelor's of science degree from Harvard University in 1943.

Commissioned through ROTC, he served aboard the destroyer USS Buchanan during World War II.

In 1946, he married Barbara A. Purdy of Rutland, Vt. He then attended the University of Chicago and received his master's of science degree in 1949 and his Ph.D. in 1951.

Johnson went to work for Humble Oil & Refining Co. in Midland in 1951 where he supervised the South Western Division Stratographic Group from 1962-'66. He was transferred to the Exxon Production Research Department in Houston in 1966 and moved to the Western Division of Exxon USA in Denver in 1968. He was a senior exploration geologist and a geologist adviser. He retired in 1986.

An accomplished cellist, he won many honors while in high school and at Harvard. He also played with the Midland Symphony.

While in Midland, he was active in the West Texas Kennel Club and was a co-founder of the German Shepherd Dog Club of the Permian Basin in the early '60s. He was president of the AAPG, RMAG, GSA, WTGS, SEPM, AAAS, Sigma Xi and and SAE at Harvard.

Survivors include his son, Frederick A. Johnson III, of Anchorage, Alaska; one sister, Elizabeth J. Ellen of St. Lucie, Fla.; three grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be directed to the American Heart Association or to the National Jewish Center for Immunology and Respiratory Medicine, 1400 Jackson St., P.O. Box 61269, Denver, 80206-8269.

Lela Saylors

Services for Lela Mae Saylors, 88, of Midland have been set for 3 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church of San Angelo with the Rev. Gerald McBride officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Saylors died Sunday at a local hospital.

She was born July 17, 1903, in Pumphrey and grew up in Winters. She received her degree from Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene.

She married Sims Saylors in Winters in 1927 and they moved to San Angelo that year. She was active in the First Baptist Church, teaching in all grades and classes of the various Sunday School departments.

Mrs. Saylors was a member of the W.M.U.L. and Training Union, and was a charter member of the '32 Club of which she was a founding member.

She was a sponsor of the '48 Club of San Angelo, a member of A.A.U.W., Book Review Club, "Leading Ladies" and was a volunteer worker at Baptist Memorials.

Her husband died in 1967 and Mrs. Saylors moved to Midland in 1990 to be near her family.

Survivors include one daughter, Ellen (Mrs. Steve) Helbing Sr., of Midland; and four grandchildren.

Pallbearers are to be her grandsons, Steve Helbing Jr., Scott Helbing, Ross Helbing and Rob Helbing, son-in-law Steve Helbing, George Crownover and Ralph Wilson.

The family requests memorials be directed to West Texas Boys Ranch in Tankersley.

Students plan chemical-free party for Midland graduates

Staff report

Project Graduation, Midland's chemical-free graduation party, will be held on the night of May 30, the evening the Midland High and Lee High commencements.

The party is to be held at The Midlander from 9 p.m. until 5 a.m. The doors will be locked at 11 p.m.

The event is free to all senior students in Midland, including those who attend Lee High School, Midland High School, Midland Christian School, Trinity School, Permian Basin High School, Midland Baptist Temple and the Alternative High Schools.

Seniors will be allowed to bring one non-senior guest for a $5 admission fee.

Born out of tragic circumstances, the Project Graduation tradition began 10 years ago in Maine as a result of more than 80 alcohol-related deaths in auto accidents over the graduation weekend.

It its fourth year in Midland, Project Graduation planners are expecting to accommodate 1,000 seniors and their guests. Security will be provided by the Sheriff's and Police departments. Officers at the door will insure that no one under the influence is admitted. Other officers will patrol the parking lots, which will be well lit and and kept under surveillance.

Students have selected the theme, colors, logo, food and games to be associated with the party. This year's theme will be Reggae Jam.

The party's colors are red, green, black and yellow. The Reggae logo was designed by Seree Scott Whitlow's group for the T-shirts that will be given out at the door that night.

Some of the activities will include movies, casino, bingo, mechanical roping, basketball, swimming and arm wrestling, as well as food, music and prize give-aways.

A cash or prize drawing will be held every 10 minutes. To encourage graduates to stay at The Midlander for the entire evening, winnings from the drawings or other games are not redeemable until 5 a.m.

Any interested person or merchant who would like to assist by volunteering or making a cash or prize donation, can call 682-8854, 697-2705 or 697-3037.

Tax deductible donations can be mailed to Project Graduation, P.O. Box 7663, Midland, 79708.

TRIAL: Witnesses give 5 different versions of incident got back in the car, Ms. Hatfield began yelling out. "She said 'Kill that son of a . . . " to Ross, Finnell said.

Ross got out, slashed Holt in the head then went directly for Robison, Finnell recalled.

Robison and Ross fought on the ground, and when Finnell tried to help take the knife away from Ross, Filimon got out of the car and motioned toward Finnell, Finnell testified.

Finnell said he got the license plate number of the assailants' vehicle as they fled.

During the incident, Ross was the only person with a weapon, Finnell and Holt testified.

Finnell's girlfriend did not testify nor has she been identified at the trial.

Ms. Aragones told jurors that she and the others in the car left Bojangles after being refused alcohol. The group had been drinking and smoking marijuana earlier, she said.

When they pulled out of the parking lot, they were yelled at, Ms. Aragones said. They returned a few minutes later because Ross had forgotten his jacket, she said.

As they pulled out of the bar parking lot, the car stalled and the men standing outside "started mouthing off at Willie (Ross)," Ms. Aragones testified.

Ross got out of the car but was subdued and got back in, she said.

Ms. Hatfield then began yelling at Ross because of the car, Ms. Aragones said. One of the men outside shouted profanities at Ms. Hatfield and told her to shut up, Ms. Aragones said.

"She (Ms. Hatfield) had told Willie (Ross) to go kick their ass," Ms. Aragones testified.

Ross and the three men then began arguing, and Ross "had taken his knife out . . . and he started walking toward them," said Ms. Aragones, who added that she could not see well because she was in the back seat of the small two-door car.

Ross waved the knife at one guy and then started fighting another guy, she said.

"Willie (Ross) got up and said (in the car) he had stabbed that guy . . . in the heart or in the chest," Ms. Aragones testified.

The group then went to Ross' uncle's home, where Ross told his uncle to hide the knife, she testified.

Ms. Hatfield then told the group to tell police — if they inquired — that Ross did not have a knife, that the knife was pulled by one of the men in the parking lot, Ms. Aragones said.

The two couples then went to another bar and drank shots of whiskey, Ms. Aragones said.

Ms. Hatfield testified that the group did not go to another bar after the incident.

She told jurors that after the car stalled the men in the parking lot told Ross to get out of the car and fight.

Ms. Hatfield said she then told her boyfriend to get out and push start the car. She said she also told him to go beat up one of the guys.

When Ross got out "these three guys came at him. One of these guys had a knife in his hand," Ms. Hatfield testified. "(I) guess they thought Willie wanted to fight."

Ms. Hatfield, who said she was certain one of the men had a knife, testified that she was in the process of getting out of the car to summon help but the fight ended.

"I didn't see that part" she said about the actual fight.

Ms. Hatfield said Ross pulled his knife after she warned him that one of the men had a weapon, she said.

Under cross examination by assistant District Attorney Teresa Clingman, Ms. Hatfield, on several occasions, contradicted Ms. Aragones' testimony. Ms. Hatfield denied smoking marijuana that night, going to another bar after the incident or devising a story to tell police.

Responding to several other questions, Ms. Hatfield said she did not recall particulars.

Filimon, who did not finish his testimony on Tuesday, testified that the group left, people were yelling in the parking lot, the car stalled and Ms. Hatfield got out and started yelling.

Ross then got out of the car and walked toward the men, one of whom began kneeing Ross in the ribs, Filimon testified.

Ross and another man rolled around on the ground, Ross got up and came back to the car, said Filimon, who added that he did not see anyone with a knife.

Filimon will continue to testify today.

The trial, which began on Monday, is expected to end today.

McCAMEY: Hospital marks its 25th year

(From 1B)

What staged the hospital's turnabout from failure to success was "good management, good tax revenue, and a good doctor," said Doug Hopkins, the president of the hospital governing board.

The community's physician, Dr. Ernie Lamar Sandidge, is "fantastic," Hopkins said. "And we have a good (medical) staff." Sandidge opened his medical practice here in 1990.

Frank Beaman, the hospital's administrator since late 1989, said that in the late 1980s, the hospital was "just about bankrupt," and medical services were not up to standards.

But the "community wanted this facility," Beaman said, "and they supported it during the tough times — doing the things that were necessary to turn it around."

The hospital's board of directors is "business oriented," Beaman said, and "knows our ultimate goal is quality care."

Nancy Poage, the Upton County treasurer, cited the role perseverance played in making the hospital a medical and financial success.

"This is a hard land to live in, because you have to be a hard, tough person to live here," she said. "When we have something, we depend on ourselves and not on a handout . . . If it's something that's important to us, we take care of it."

Sandidge said he is fond of small communities and is attracted to the "quality of the people that run the hospital and work in the hospital."

McCamey is an oilfield-ranching community of about 2,500 people about 75 miles southwest of Midland.

Gladys English, who served on the hospital's board after the hospital was established in 1967, noted that the competitive neighboring communities of Rankin and McCamey started their community hospitals about the same time.

"If one had something, the other had to have it," she said. "If McCamey had a hospital, Rankin had to have one, too."

Man arrested for possession of methadone

Staff report

ODESSA — A 49-year-old man was arrested on a narcotics search warrant for the possession of about 40 grams of liquid methadone with a street value of $12,000, Odessa police said.

Robert R. Rios was arrested at 3:10 p.m. Tuesday in the 200 block of W. Olive Street. Police also discovered a small amount of marijuana, some drug paraphernalia and $315 in cash during the search.

Rios was charged with possession of a controlled substance with a bond of $7,500 set by Justice of the Peace J.E. Weatherly.

Boy, 2, dies in fire

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A 2-year-old boy apparently left unattended died Tuesday when the bed he was in caught fire, a fire department investigator said.

The fire heavily damaged the bedroom of the mobile home where the child had been left, said investigator Thomas Cowen.

The boy had been left with his grandfather, who could not be found, Cowen said.

LA police arrest 4 men in beating

N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Four men linked to a violent street gang were arrested Tuesday morning in the beating and stomping of a white truck driver that was witnessed live on television across the nation and helped touch off the Los Angeles riots two weeks ago.

Arrested Tuesday in their homes were Damian M. Williams, 19; Henry K. Watson, 27, and Antoine E. Miller, 20. Gary Williams, 34, turned himself in later; he is apparently not related to Damian Williams.

All four of the men have records for a variety of crimes including car theft, armed robbery, burglary and lesser offenses, Daedelow said.

Three of the men, described by the authorities as members of the Eight-Trey Crips gang, were defiant as they were led in handcuffs to a police car Tuesday morning, one of them shouting obscenities at "you white folks."

The charges against the men were sealed and there were no immediate details on them. Charlie J. Parsons, special agent in charge of the local office of the FBI, said about six other men were being sought in connection with the beating.

Like the videotaped beating of a black motorist by white police officers 14 months ago, the image of Reginald Denny being torn from his truck and assaulted by black men has become a symbol of the violence of the city's streets.

The assault on Denny, 36, came immediately after the acquittal on April 29 of the four officers in the beating of Rodney G. King.

Other young men in the South-Central neighborhood said the repeated showing of the Denny assault helped inspire them to join the looting and rioting that followed the acquittal.

Police officers who had been on the block earlier had retreated in the face of escalating violence and did not return to the scene for two hours.

Foley asks pay amendment hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas Foley called Tuesday for hearings into the validity of the just-ratified constitutional amendment, written by James Madison more than two centuries ago, to ban midterm pay raises for Congress.

Legal and political debate was swirling in Washington as Illinois became the 40th state to ratify the amendment, sent to the states without deadline by the first Congress in 1789. Michigan apparently put it over the top last week as the 38th state to ratify it. Three-fourths of the states are needed.

But questions have been raised about whether a ratification process that lasted more than 202 years is valid. All modern-era amendments have had time limits attached for ratification.

"It's ratified," insisted Rep. John Boehner, R-Ohio. "There aren't any ifs, buts or maybes. It's very clear."

But Foley said there are doubts to be resolved.

"It is not a question on the merits of the proposal," he said. "It is a question about whether an amendment this long delayed from its original submission will be considered as ratified. That is a matter for legal opinion and discussion."

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., suggested that states that ratified the amendment long ago be asked to verify their support.

"If all certify by their vote that this is their intention today, Congress should immediately vote to promulgate the amendment as a part of the Constitution," said Edwards, who chairs the House Judiciary subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights.

CIA kept tabs on Oswald, agency documents show

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA documents on Lee Harvey Oswald show that government agents used informants and face-to-face interviews to track the shadowy defector off and on for three years leading up to President Kennedy's assassination.

The 110-page file, given to a Senate committee Tuesday and made available to The Associated Press, comprises all the CIA documents collected before the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination in Dallas. CIA Director Robert Gates told the Senate Government Affairs Committee that the file will be available to the public "any day now."

Gates said he wants to clear the CIA of "this corrosive suspicion" that agency operatives were involved in Kennedy's assassination.

"The only thing more horrifying to me than the assassination itself is the insidious, pervasive notion that elements of my own government, including this agency, had something to do with it," Gates told the committee.

In a hearing on legislation to allow the release of thousands of assassination-related documents, Gates recalled driving to Washington as a college student to stand along Pennsylvania Avenue and watch Kennedy's funeral procession.

The file, which Gates brought with him to the hearing, consists of 33 documents, 11 of them originating in the CIA. They concern Oswald's defection to the Soviet Union in 1959 and his activities after returning to the United States in 1961.

Attorney James Lesar, who operates the Assassination Archive and Research Center, said, based on a quick perusal, that the material has been available to researchers. Many of the documents are FBI memos sent to the CIA and may be among those already released by the FBI in response to Freedom of Information requests.

Robertson to buy news service

RUTLAND, Vt. (AP) — A judge Tuesday approved the sale of United Press International to religious broadcaster Pat Robertson, who offered $6 million for the news agency at a bankruptcy court auction.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Francis Conrad accepted Robertson's condition that he be allowed 30 days to review UPI's finances, during which time he has the right to lower his price or back out of the deal.

Robertson emerged as a last-minute bidder for UPI, which has undergone decades of financial strain. He was the only one of four bidders who offered to buy the entire UPI operation.

"It's been a long day, a long day," Helen Thomas, UPI's veteran White House correspondent said as it became clear Robertson's bid would be approved.

Robertson's offer was made by his holding company, U.S. Media Corp., on his behalf and included a $900,000 deposit. He will get the money back if he decides not to buy the company.

Robertson was not in the courtroom when the decision was announced and he could not be reached for comment.

UPI requested the sale last month, telling Conrad it was running out of money to pay its employees and expenses. Its managers had said UPI would have to close Friday without a cash infusion. They said Tuesday they would be able to meet this week's payroll.

Indians end blockade around reservation casino after FBI raid

FORT McDOWELL INDIAN RESERVATION, Ariz. (AP) — Indians in battered pickups and giant earth movers blockaded dozens of federal agents inside a casino for eight hours Tuesday to protest statewide raids on reservation gambling.

Agents seized video gambling machines at four other Arizona reservation casinos without opposition. The standoff at this Yavapai Indian reservation ended when officials agreed to temporarily leave the seized machines locked in trailers in the parking lot for a 10-day cooling-off period.

Statewide, the raids yielded about 750 video gambling machines that were said to violate new federal regulations. Indian leaders said the raids would deprive their tribes of desperately needed jobs and millions of dollars for social programs.

At Fort McDowell, outside Scottsdale, Indians converged on the casino as word of the dawn raid spread. They blocked the only road out with cars, trucks and heavy equipment.

By noon, more than 100 Indians ringed the casino parking lot, watching a few FBI agents mill around eight moving vans loaded with more than 300 video machines. One agent stood on the roof of the one-story, warehouse-like building, an M-16 rifle and binoculars in hand.

Twenty-five to 50 agents and U.S. marshals were inside, said Pam Gullet, a spokeswoman for U.S. Attorney Linda Akers in Phoenix.

Ms. Gullet refused to comment on whether criminal charges would be filed against those who trapped the agents.

Tribal Chairman Clinton Pattea met at midday with Gov. Fife Symington outside the reservation and reached a compromise.

Under its terms, the locked trailers holding the video machines were left in the parking lot for a 10-day cooling-off period.

Protesters, shouting and cheering, moved the cars just enough to let the truck cabs and agents through.

Symington, who said Ms. Akers agreed to the compromise, promised to speed state unemployment payments to hundreds of Indians put out of work by the raids.

He also promised to negotiate with the Fort McDowell tribe about possible use of the machines in compliance with the federal rules. He indicated those talks wouldn't include the other tribes, because they have sued the state over the issue.

Indians on the blockade said they would set up a symbolic encampment at the casino during the cooling-off period, and expected to be joined by members of other tribes.

"We are looking for quite a turnout," said Gilbert Jones, vice chairman of the tribe and one of those on the blockade.

Clinton names vice president search panel

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton Tuesday named Washington attorney Warren Christopher, a veteran of three Democratic administrations, to head his vice presidential search committee.

Christopher headed a 10-member independent commission that called for replacement of Los Angeles police chief Daryl Gates following the March 1991 beating by white policemen of black motorist Rodney King.

Clinton, leaving Little Rock for a campaign appearance in Minneapolis, said he had no particular timetable in mind for selecting a running mate. He added: "I want us to look at a wide range of qualified Americans and I want an in-depth review process to go on and I want it done in as non-political a way as possible."

"The timeline will be when I feel comfortable making the decision."

Clinton was asked if he had any names in mind and said, "I think it is important not to play games with people's names." He added that when the campaign agreed on a list it would probably be made public.

His announcement came as voters in Nebraska and West Virginia voted in primaries in which Clinton had an overwhelming lead. Former Vice President Walter Mondale introduced Clinton to the Minneapolis rally as "Mr. President."

"We welcome you as our Democratic nominee," said Mondale, the party's 1984 nominee. "We welcome you as a spokesman for hope and opportunity. ... We welcome you as a voice of hope and change from a government that blames Lyndon Johnson for Los Angeles."

Clinton also scoffed at the Bush administration's citing of Great Society programs as an underlying cause of the Los Angeles unrest. "They have been in too long when they have to go back 25 years for somebody to blame."

Still, he said, "As mad as I get at this administration, at some point I just don't care whose fault it is anymore. I just want to turn this country around."

The Clinton campaign issued a statement saying Christopher would be assisted in the vice presidential search by former Vermont Gov. Madeleine Kunin and Vernon Jordan, a one-time president of the national Urban League.

Christopher was deputy secretary of state in the Carter administration, deputy attorney general under Lyndon Johnson and a trade negotiator under John F. Kennedy.

GOLF CLUBS
HANDMADE TO FIT YOU

No two golf swings are exactly alike. Within this fundamental axiom lies the Kenneth Smith difference.

Each of our clubs is handmade to fit one, and only one golfer - you.

Every aspect of your clubs is unique, precisely fitted to your swing, and yours alone.

From the grips, each meticulously sized to fit your hands exactly, to the36 shaft flexes (instead of just 3 or 4), to your choice of four shaft materials, to various club head designs, to choice of wood stains...and the list goes on and on.

The perfect fit for you... and only you. Because they fit better, they play better.

That's the Kenneth Smith difference - and your key to lower scores.

Since 1919, the company's clients have included such notables as Clark Gable, Bing Crosby, baseball greats Ty Cobb, Mickey Mantle and Bret Saberhagen, professional golfers Gay Brewer, Horton Smith and Babe Didrikson Zaharias, King Hassan of Morocco and King Leopold of Belgium, President Dwight D. YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MAY 13, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Striking out on your own has enormous appeal. Success will depend on your ability to make the most of your opportunities! Learn from others' mistakes. Going back to school next fall could turn your whole life around. A Christmas celebration will put you in touch with a potential romantic partner. Making exercise a regular part of your life will lead to new vitality.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Bea Arthur, theater critic Clive Barnes, superstar Stevie Wonder, boxer Joe Louis.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Quiet persistence will help you attain your goals. Even if you lose something, try not to worry. By afternoon, you will have an entirely different outlook! Study and research are favored.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friends or a special group of people will help you handle a difficult problem. Focus on common likes and goals and the best way to pool your resources. Your style is widely admired.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some of you may feel like dropping out of the race today. But as the hours roll by, your initial enthusiasm returns. An original idea wins VIP's approval. Fame and fortune could follow!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep your sights on the future. Both long-term and long-distance arrangements can benefit you. Expending all your energy on career matters could cause domestic trouble.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Although you want to trust people, especially your friends, it is not safe to rely on anyone but yourself now. Homemakers and computer experts have an especially rewarding day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Try using different tactics at work. Your versatility will impress someone who can give your career a big boost. Play your cards right and answer letters promptly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Bear with any difficulties that arise early today; by lunchtime, everything will be under control. Welcome a change in your routine. Your productivity improves as a direct result.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your persuasive powers are exceptionally strong now — you can win just about anything you want. Private channels provide a swift means to profits. Once you settle on a game plan, go for it!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The go-ahead signal continues to flash concerning your love or social life. A poetic message may arrive, sending your spirits aloft. Take more initiative at work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): When resistance arises to some of your plans, you may have to revise them. You may have been too heavy-handed with someone. Evening hours are excellent for making new business contacts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Business backing may be available from a source you never considered. Your plans are aided by your ability to keep a secret. Participating in a church or community project proves very fulfilling.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Having a heart-to-heart talk with someone who has your interests in mind could prompt you to raise your romantic sights. Be careful not to take too much for granted. Go slow.

TODAY'S CHILDREN show a knack for setting priorities for themselves, even at a young age. In fact, they are usually quite serious about their studies and decide on a career before finishing high school. Because of their intense dedication to school or business, these Taureans seem wise beyond their years. However, as they approach middle-age, they may start acting younger and younger! They tend to be fickle in romance and should postpone marriage until truly ready to settle down.

Opening lead: Two of ♡

At the recent Spring North American Championships in Pasadena, Calif., an underdog team won the premier event, the Vanderbilt Knockout Team Championship. Originally seeded 14th, the squad led by Andy Goodman of San Francisco, upset four highly fancied teams on its way to victory.

This deal is from an early round of the event. South's one-club opening was artificial and strong, but the next few rounds of the auction were natural. Four no trump was Key-Card Blackwood, in which the king of trumps counts as a fifth ace, and five hearts showed two "aces" while denying the queen of diamonds. As the cards lie, six clubs would have been unbeatable.

Against six diamonds, West dutifully led a heart, as requested by East's double. With the king of clubs onside and guarded only once and a friendly trump position, it might seem that 12 tricks are laydown—and would have been with passive defense.

Sitting East was Brian Glubok of New York, who wasted no time in scuttling the contract. After rising with the ace of hearts, Glubok returned a club!

There was no way for declarer to get two discards on the clubs. If declarer continued clubs, West would ruff the third round. If declarer drew trumps first, there would be no entry to dummy to use the good clubs. Down one.

Wynette in stable condition after operation on intestine

ST. LOUIS — Tammy Wynette was recovering Tuesday after 14 hours of intestinal bypass surgery to cure an inflamed bile duct, and the 50-year-old singer expects to be back on stage July 4, a spokeswoman said.

The operation Monday at Barnes Hospital took so long because of complications from scarring left by previous surgery, said Beth Torroll, a spokeswoman for Wynette.

Her condition was listed as serious but stable.

"A full recovery is expected in three to four weeks," Torroll said. Ms. Wynette has canceled all personal appearances through July 3. She will resume her tour on July 4 in Nashville, Ind., the spokeswoman said.

Wynette, 50, was hospitalized a week ago after the painful infection struck during a Canadian tour, her fourth recent episode of the illness.

LOS ANGELES — Sean Young, sultry star of such films as "No Way Out" and "A Kiss Before Dying," can sing.

Miss Young makes her musical theater debut this weekend in the Wilshire Theater production of "Stardust," also starring Toni Tennille and Hinton Battle.

"I heard that one of the producers on this show said, 'She sings? She dances?' I expected that reaction, but I think I've proved myself," the actress said during a recent break in rehearsals.

She concedes she wasn't prepared musically when she started rehearsals, but it all came back to her.

"I dreamed of singing and dancing in the movies," she said. "I didn't dream of just being in the movies. Through a twist of fate, however, I've become this serious actress."

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Britain's Princess Diana on Tuesday toured the Giza Pyramids and the Sphinx, which she pronounced "breathtaking."

Princess Diana

She asked questions, but no riddles, about the 4,600-year-old limestone statue that experts are trying to save from falling apart.

Diana's visit is part of a five-day tour of Egypt at the invitation of first lady Suzanne Mubarak. Earlier, Diana met with President Hosni Mubarak. She also visited a welfare society for mothers and children and the institute of polio and rehabilitation.

Her itinerary Wednesday and Thursday calls for touring ancient Egyptian temples and tombs. She returns home Friday.

The London tabloids, the BBC and some American newspapers reported last week that Princess Caroline had asked her father, Prince Rainier, for permission to marry a French actor, Vincent Lindon.

The princess was widowed in 1990 when her husband and the father of her three children, Stefano Casiraghi, was killed in a boating accident.

Prince Rainier was reported to have said he would give his blessing, provided that Lindon agree to some stringent prenuptial conditions:

Convert from Judaism to Roman Catholicism; agree in advance never to make any claim to the throne; and support the family to the best of his ability.

A spokesman for the royal court in Amman denied last week that King Hussein would divorce his American-born wife, Queen Noor, to wed Rana Nejem, described as an employee in the court's press office.

King Hussein married the former Lisa Halaby, a Princeton graduate, in June 1978. Before that he had been divorced twice and widowed once.

The Jordan information bureau, an arm of the Jordanian Embassy in Washington, seemed put out when it issued this statement: "Any and all of the reports on the subject of His Majesty's alleged plans to marry Miss Nejem are untrue, and based solely on empty gossip and malicious rumors, something which Jordan and its leadership have always been the target of, particularly in the recent past."

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — King Harald V and Queen Sonja of Norway arrived by train for a state visit Tuesday, their second since Harald took the throne last year.

King Carl

Swedish King Carl XVI Gustaf and Queen Silvia met the Norwegian royal couple at Stockholm's central station. There they climbed into horse-drawn carriages and rode through the capital, waving to spectators on their way to the palace.

The schedule for the three-day visit includes a boat excursion on Lake Malaren, trips to museums and airplane factories, the Royal Swedish Academy of Science and a state dinner.

King Carl Gustaf made King Harald a Knight of the Order of the Seraphim, an honor presented to foreign heads of state.

Oilers sign six

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have signed six free agent rookies to participate in a rookie mini-camp next month.

The signings Tuesday included: guard Jeff Kiziah from Lenoir-Rhyne College in North Carolina; safety Kevin Long of Villanova; tackle John Nee of Elon College in North Carolina; Charles Pharms, a safety from Miami, Fla.; Curtis Reed, a wide receiver from Millikin University in Illinois; and Texas A&M linebacker Jeroy Robinson.

The rookie mini-camp is scheduled for June 1-12 in Houston. Mini-camp for the NFL team's veterans is set for May 18-29. Training camp for rookies begins July 14 in San Antonio.

Johnson hired

WACO (AP) — When Darrel Johnson accepted Baylor's head basketball coaching job Tuesday, he spoke of installing an up-tempo style of play that he believes could put the Bears into contention for a national championship.

"Every year there's a Cinderella team in the Final Four. It might as well be Baylor. It can happen," said Johnson, who compiled a 73-3 record at Oklahoma City University while winning the past two NAIA championships.

But school officials insist Johnson's hiring is not a "quick fix" to repair a program that has averaged less than 12 victories per season the last four years.

Instead, the 37-year-old coach was given a five-year contract to lead the program into the future.

"We want to fix it as quick as possible, but ... more important to me is building with a foundation that is solid and sound," said incoming athletic director Grant Teaff.

Lester

MCC's Lester gears up for Byron Nelson

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

They don't come much more laid back than Terry Lester.

An assistant golf professional at Midland Country Club, Lester is enjoying the highlight of his professional career this week.

After winning last fall's Northern Texas Sectional PGA Professionals tournament, Lester automatically qualified for this week's GTE Byron Nelson Classic. He has been in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex all week to participate in pro-ams and other events leading up to the 72-hole tournament which starts today at Irving's Las Colinas Country Club.

Asked how he felt about this the chance of his lifetime, Lester wasn't exactly overboard with glee.

"Excited," he said. "That's about it, really."

Not that he doesn't mind rubbing shoulders on the links with some of the finest golfers on the PGA tour, it's just Lester has everything in persepctive.

"The Byron Nelson field is a great field," Lester said. "All the top players will play."

Already committed to the event are 1992 Masters champion Fred Couples, '91 PGA Champion John Daly, past Nelson champions Ben Crenshaw, Ray Floyd, Nick Price, Craig Stadler, Payne Stewart, Lanny Wadkins and Tom Watson. Also playing will be Midlander John Adams, Abilene's Bob Estes and Mike Standly, and Fort Stockton's Blaine McAllister.

Lester said the only thing he did did differently last week to prepare for the tournament is play a little bit more than he usually does.

"I played three or four times last week," he said. "That's a liitle more than normal."

In winning the Northern Texas PGA last September, Lester shot a 65-72-67—204 at Green Tree Country

Lady Chaps repeat

■ Midland College captures its third straight women's national tennis title.

Staff report

TYLER — The Midland College women's tennis team won its third consecutive National Junior College Athletic Association team title Tuesday with a 5-1 victory over host Tyler Junior College.

The national championship is MC's fifth in seven seasons in team competition, and the 8th and final honor as the tennis program folds its tent with the completion of this season.

The Lady Chaps won yet again in what has become their well known, run-of-the-mill domination. The top five MC singles players all won in straight sets, with the only loss coming in the No. 6 spot.

"We've got half of our goal accomplished," MC tennis coach Joe Williams said. "If our men can do it, I'll feel good.

"I think the Tyler girls played above themselves, and they were pretty pumped up. I told the girls to read the article in the Tyler paper this morning, where their coach had made a comment like his girls felt like they could win, and how he wanted to have a real rock-and-roll crowd out there. I told our girls to be ready to win, that (the Tyler fans) were going to try to intimidate them, and that we cannot lose to these girls on our worst day, so it was how they handled themselves mentally (that made a difference)."

Only at the No. 5 spot did a Tyler player win more than five games in an entire match won by MC. The Chaps' Caroline Reynolds, though, eventually did do away with Kristi Benson, 6-4, 7-6, after falling behind 5-1 in the second-set tiebreaker.

MC's Myriam Berthe, widely hailed as one of the best collegiate players on any level, defeated Tyler's No. 1 player, Maribel Amadeo, 6-1, 6-4.

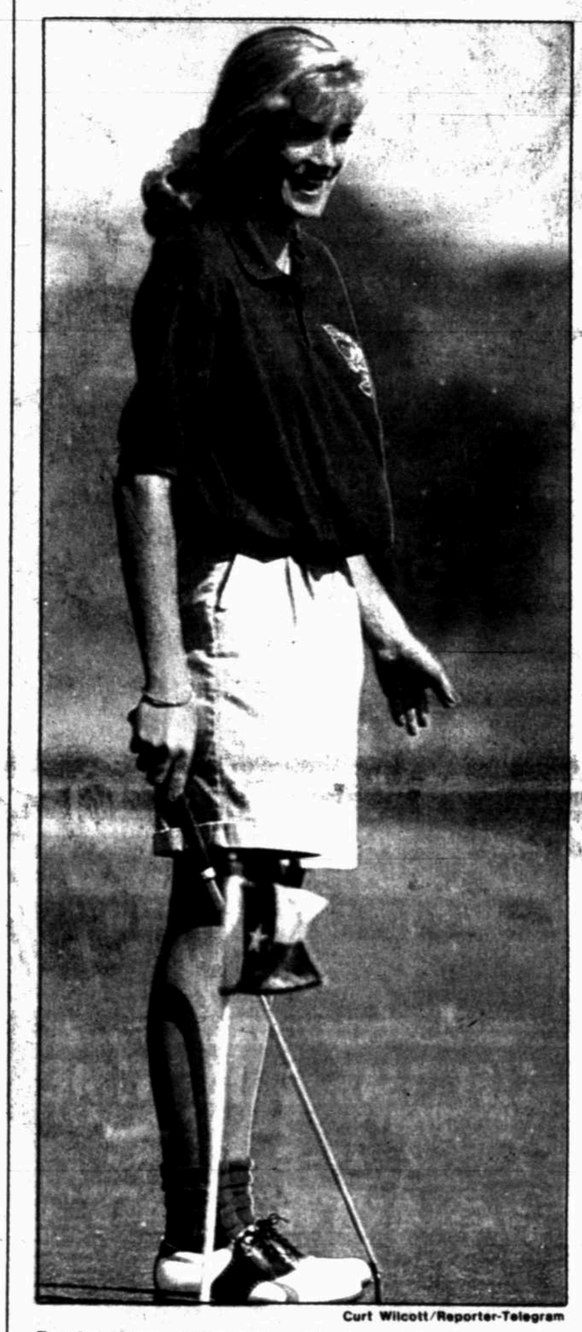

Lucie Ludvigova, MC's No. 2 single player, defeated Ana Golubovic, 6-2, 6-3.

In the No. 3 spot, MC's Boba Tzvetkova downed Midland High graduate Elizabeth Ameel, 6-3, 6-1, and at No. 4, Adriana Isaza defeated Tyler's Priya Jayaraman, 6-2, 6-1.

MC's Amy Richter, in the No. 6 spot, fell to Debbie Poole, 6-1, 6-2.

Women's play in the individually flighted tournament begins at 8 a.m. today in Tyler with the finals Friday morning. The Lady Chaps are expected to bring home numerous individual titles.

The men's team tournament begins May 24.

Paula King sets out after a girls state golf championship when she hits the Jimmy Clay Golf Course, Thursday in Austin.

Paula King seeks state golf trophy

■ Midland Lee junior takes her first trip to Austin as the Region I girls golf titlist.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff writer

Paula King is making her first trip to the state capital this week, and the reason for the journey has her just a wee bit edgy.

King, a Midland Lee junior golfer, will be competing in the Girl's State Class 5A Golf Tournament, Thursday and Friday on the Jimmy Clay Golf Course.

"I've never been there (Austin) before, and right now, when I start thinking much about it at all, I get nervous," said King, who captured the state berth when she won the Region I championship May 2 in Lubbock.

"The state tournament is a whole lot bigger than the regional tournament, but once I get there I think I'll settle down," she said.

King, the District 4-5A titlist, took regional medalist honors with a sterling performance on the Reese Air Force Base golf course in Lubbock. She grabbed the first-round lead with a fine 74, then overcame winds in the upper 40-miles-per-hour range on the second and final day to score an 83 and beat runner-up Sonya Perales of El Paso Andress by four strokes.

Perales, who won the 1991 regional title — when King placed ninth as a sophomore — returns to Austin as the runner-up. And Abilene Cooper's girls team grabbed top regional honors and also will be on hand at the state event.

'The state tournament is a whole lot bigger than the regional tournament, but once I get there I think I'll settle down.'

— Paula King

The team from Odessa Permian missed the trip to Austin by 16 strokes, finishing third in team play to Lewisville Marcus.

"It'll be good to have some faces down there that I know," admits King, who battled 4-5A runner-up April DeVries of Cooper throughout the district season. "But the main thing I'll be concerned with is my game.

"It will probably take rounds in the real low 70s to win state."

King, who was the runner-up last summer in the Midland Women's City Golf Championship, says her fellow members of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes have done a great deal to encourage her as she has prepared for her biggest prep tournament to date.

"I'm obviously real excited about going to state, and they're excited for me," she said. "They all signed a sort of good luck thing for me.

"Just having them all there to encourage me is so nice. Now I'm just going to go down there and do the best I can and see what happens."

Chicago's John Paxson (5) drives on Mark Jackson of New York.

Jordan guides Bulls past Knicks, 96-88

Associated Press

NBA Playoffs

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan scored 26 of his 37 points in the second half, including a clinching three-point play with 35.9 seconds remaining, in leading the Chicago Bulls to a 96-88 victory over New York Tuesday night for a 3-2 lead in their Eastern Conference playoff series.

The defending NBA champions can close out the series Thursday night at New York. A seventh game, if needed, would be played Sunday at Chicago.

The Bulls went ahead 20-18 in the first quarter and didn't trail again, but were unable to shake off the Knicks. New York kept coming within one point only to be held off by Jordan through most of the third quarter.

Xavier McDaniel led the Knicks with a playoff-high 26 points and Gerald Wilkins had 19.

Patrick Ewing finished with 14 before fouling out with 3:33 to play and the Bulls leading 84-78. The closest the Knicks came after that was 89-86, and Jordan responded with his telling three-point play.

Twice in the first half the Knicks were charged with flagrant fouls but the Bulls failed to get a single point.

With New York ahead 10-6, Charles Oakley was charged with a flagrant foul against Bill Cartwright. Cartwright missed both free throws and Pippen missed the shot after the inbounds pass.

With the Bulls leading 43-40 late in the first half, Mark Jackson was charged with a flagrant foul but Horace Grant missed both free throws and Jordan the shot on the inbounds pass.

New York led 14-8 in the first quarter but a 14-4 run gave the Bulls a 22-18 lead at the end of the period.

Two 3-pointers by Craig Hodges at the start of the second period gave the Bulls a 30-19 lead, but Wilkins and Ewing helped cut it to 35-30. McDaniel scored the next 10 points to pull the Knicks within 41-40 before the Bulls finally grabbed a 47-44 lead at the half.

Jordan scored 13 points in the third period and John Paxson had 7 as the Bulls took a 71-67 lead after three quarters. Six times during the period the Knicks had pulled within one point.

Cubs end Jones' no-hit bid, edge Astros with run in 9th

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Luis Salazar's sacrifice fly scored Andre Dawson in the ninth inning and lifted Chicago to a 3-2 victory over Houston Tuesday night in a game where neither club had a hit after five innings.

Houston starter Jimmy Jones, making his first start since Aug. 12, 1991, pitched 7⅓ hitless innings and Mike Morgan held the Astros without a hit for 5⅓. Both got no decisions.

Paul Assenmacher (1-1) pitched two scoreless innings for the win. Joe Boever (0-1) allowed the winning run as Chicago improved to 4-11 on the road.

Dawson led off the ninth with a double and took third on Dwight Smith's bunt single. Salazar then lofted a fly to right center to score Dawson.

Jones, who gave up two runs on two hits, had retired 17 straight before Joe Girardi singled in the eighth. Doug Strange's single moved Girardi to second and Al Osuna came in for Jones.

Osuna walked pinch-hitter Hector Villanueva, bringing in Joe Boever. After Boever struck out Sammy Sosa, Mark Grace had a two-run single to tie it up.

Braves 4, Pirates 2

ATLANTA — Atlanta's Tom Glavine became the National League's second six-game winner as the Pirates lost their second straight for only the second time this season.

The Pirates lead the NL East with the best record in baseball (21-10). The Braves snapped a three-game losing streak.

Glavine (6-1) allowed six hits, didn't allow a walk and struck out six over eight innings as he joined San Francisco's Bill Swift as the only six-game winners in the NL. Marvin Freeman pitched the ninth for his second save.

Mets 5, Padres 3

NEW YORK — Dwight Gooden pitched 6⅓ strong innings and drove in a run as New York beat San Diego.

Gooden (3-3) had lost his previous two starts to fall below .500 for only the second time in his career. Against the Padres, he gave up three runs on six hits to improve to 77-24 lifetime at Shea Stadium.

Padres third baseman Gary Sheffield was 1 for 3, a fourth-inning single, in the matchup against his uncle Dwight. It was the first time Gooden faced his nephew in a major-league game.

Giants 7, Phillies 5

PHILADELPHIA — Darren Lewis got three hits and scored twice as San Francisco came from three runs down to defeat Philadelphia.

Bill Swift, San Francisco's unbeaten right-hander, failed to win his seventh game and trailed 4-1 through four innings.

Bryan Hickerson (2-1) pitched two scoreless innings for the victory and Mike Jackson went two innings for his first save.

Barry Jones (1-2) was the loser in relief of Tommy Greene, who had been sidelined two weeks with tendinitis in his pitching shoulder.

Dodgers 2, Expos 0

MONTREAL — Darryl Strawberry hit a towering two-run homer in his first at-bat following a four-game absence and Kevin Gross pitched a three-hitter.

Strawberry, who had been out with a back strain and a viral infection, homered to right center, a drive that almost reached 200-feet at the top of its arc.

Gross (3-1) struck out a career-high 13 and improved to 13-4 against the Expos with a 2.52 ERA. It was his 12th career shutout and first since June 11, 1990, against Philadelphia.

Cardinals 6, Reds 4

ST. LOUIS — Felix Jose went 3 for 3 and broke a seventh-inning tie with a two-run single as St. Louis got its fourth consecutive victory.

St. Louis, which has rallied from behind in three of the last four, has won eight of its last 11.

Cincinnati took a 4-3 lead in the seventh on Reggie Sanders' RBI single off Donovan Osborne, but St. Louis came right back.

McDonald stops Texas to capture fifth straight victory

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Ben McDonald raised his record to 5-0, and Leo Gomez and Cal Ripken homered Tuesday night as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Texas Rangers 5-1.

Baltimore won for the 10th time in 13 games as McDonald became the first starter in Orioles history to open two seasons with victories in his first five decisions. He allowed the one run and five hits in 6⅔ innings, struck out three and walked one. Todd Frohwirth got six outs for his second save.

Bobby Witt (3-4) gave up three runs and six hits in 6⅓ innings, walked five and struck out none as Texas dropped to 5-11 at home.

Gomez, who has homered only in games pitched by McDonald, hit his third of the season in the seventh to put Baltimore ahead. Mark McLemore singled, Brady Anderson walked and McLemore scored from second on a sacrifice fly by Mike Devereaux off former-Oriole Jeff Robinson, a ball caught by Juan Gonzalez on the warning track in center.

Ripken, who entered the game in a 1-for-21 slump, hit his fourth home run of the season for a 4-0 lead.

Royals 3, Indians 0

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mark Gubicza pitched a four-hitter for his first shutout in three seasons, leading Kansas City over Cleveland for his 100th career victory.

Gubicza (3-2) hadn't pitched a complete game in 39 starts since May 24, 1990, three months before he had rotator cuff surgery. This was his 13th career shutout, his first in 67 starts since June 23, 1989, against the New York Yankees.

Gubicza, who won his third consecutive decision, was 9-12 last season following the surgery. He is 100-88 since coming up to the majors in 1984.

American

Yankees 3, Mariners 1

NEW YORK — Mel Hall, a last-minute addition to the lineup, hit a two-run single and New York took advantage of Randy Johnson's wildness to, stopping a six-game losing streak.

Seattle lost for the 11th time in 13 games, while the Yankees won following a 1-6 trip to the West Coast.

Johnson (3-3) lost his third straight decision. He had walked 13 batters and hit two in his previous two outings, and once again wildness hurt him. Johnson has led the majors in walks the last two years, and leads this season with 29 in 46⅔ innings.

Twins 6, Red Sox 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Greg Gagne and the Minnesota Twins continued their hot-hitting homestand, and Kevin Tapani got his first win since the home opener.

Gagne doubled home two runs in the second and beat out a bunt to key a three-run fourth. He is hitting .643 during the four-game stand, raising his average from .247 to .308.

Blue Jays 3, Athletics 0

TORONTO — John Olerud hit a two-out, two-run homer off Dave Stewart in the sixth inning as Toronto stopped the Athletics' five-game winning streak.

Jimmy Key, Duane Ward and Tom Henke combined on a seven-hitter for the Blue Jays, who won for the seventh time in nine games.

Dave Stewart (2-3), who openly questioned manager Tony La Russa when he was relieved in his previous start, was allowed to finish this time. He pitched a five-hitter for his first complete game in 26 starts since July 3, 1991, allowing just one earned run.

Brewers 6, White Sox 2

MILWAUKEE — Jaime Navarro pitched eight strong innings and Robin Yount hit a two-run double as Milwaukee beat Chicago.

Navarro (3-3) allowed one run and eight hits, struck out five and walked none. The White Sox got their second run in the ninth when pinch-hitter Mike Huff drew a leadoff walk from Jesse Orosco and scored on Craig Grebeck's two-out double off Doug Henry. Tim Raines followed with a single, but Grebeck was caught in a run-down between third and home for the final out.

LOCAL SPORTS

COM scores 2,000

CANYON — The City of Midland Swim Team won an amazing 67 events over the weekend to win the Amarillo Swim Team Invitational with 2,027 points at West Texas State University.

Midland swimmers also dominated the high point categories with wins in six of the eight divisions, including all four girls categories.

Erin Irons won eight events for top honors in the 10-under girls while Amber Goodwin also took eight titles to win the 11-12 girls. Monica Stroman won four events to capture the 13-14 girls and Alison Owens won three events to win the 15-18 girls.

Greg Strauss, with five wins, took the 10-under boys title and Adam Jimenez won eight events to win the 11-12 boys.

Other COM winners were Shannon Conkey, 5 events; Greg Brink, 3; Ellen Brown, 2; Scott Carnett, 2; Susie Carnett, 2; Terah Sisolo, 2; Curt Kieffer, 1; Scott Strauss, 1; Robin Hill, 1; Catrian Kieffer, 1; Tami Campbell, 1; and Will Childress, 1. COM also won nine relays.

Amarillo was a distant second with 925 points while Lubbock Swim Club was third with 347 points.

Tourney nets fish

The Couples Association of Sport Tournaments (CAST) recently held a fishing tournament at Brownwood Lake with Bob Heck and Arleen Hilburn of Hobbs, N.M., taking top honors with five fish, weighing in at 12.89 pounds.

They were followed by Robert Brown and Becky McBride of Brownwood, 5 fish for 11.83 pounds; Freddie and Bonnie White of Abilene, 5 for 11.11; Clarence and Carolyn Lovell of Brownwood, 5 for 10.57; and Richard and Margaret Kleinhans of Midland, 5 for 9.78.

The big bass catch (5.36 pounds) went to Bill and Wanda Young of Christoval.

The club's next tournament is at Twin Buttes on May 17.

Trinity netters advance to state

Four Trinity School tennis players recently reached the state TAPPS tennis tournament, and one — LuciaLea Crump — got all the way to the semifinals in singles.

Jeana Cuny and Kristen Kimsey qualified for state in girls doubles, and Paige Duncan joined Crump in singles play.

NEW YORK — Petroleum prices fell back Tuesday as traders cashed in on a rally Monday that left home heating oil at a five-month high.

Market analysts also attributed the drop to speculation that the American Petroleum Institute's weekly survey of oil supplies would show a buildup in oil stocks. The survey, released after the close of trade, showed mixed results, with heating oil and gasoline stocks falling and crude inventories rising.

In crude oil trading, West Texas Intermediate for June delivery fell 4 cents a barrel to $20.96. Lower-quality sour crude for June delivery also declined 2 cents a barrel, closing at $18.48.

Awards luncheon

The Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce will hold its Small Business Awards Luncheon Thursday as part of its Small Business Week activities.

Mayor Carroll Thomas proclaimed the week during the regular council meeting Tuesday.

Dillard profits

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Dillard Department Stores Inc. on Tuesday announced that sales and profits were up for the quarter ending May 2.

Net income for the 13-week period was just over $45 million, an 18 percent increase over the $38.1 million reported for the same quarter a year ago.

Sales for the quarter totaled just over $1.03 billion, an increase of 17 percent over the $886 million in sales reported for the same period of 1991, the Little Rock-based retailer reported. Sales in comparable stores were up 9 percent, the company said.

Dollar loses

NEW YORK — The dollar declined in hectic trading on world currency markets Tuesday, registering its biggest losses against the Japanese yen.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 132.60 yen, down 0.57 yen from Monday's close.

In London, the British pound rose to $1.8135 from $1.7935 late Monday.

Stocks retreat

NEW YORK — Stock prices declined Tuesday in active trading despite Monday's record high and a better-than-expected inflation report.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 12.46 to 3,385.12. Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 4 to 3 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Guerrero defends natural-gas rule

■ New prorationing regulations to restore 'fairness, balance, equity,' state energy regulator says.

By James R. Owen
Reporter-Telegram Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Lena Guerrero, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, Tuesday defended new state regulations on natural-gas production and said members of Congress who accuse the agency of trying to curb output and drive up sluggish prices are "talking nonsense."

At a luncheon with energy executives, Guerrero said the new "pro-rationing" regulations will restore "fairness, balance and equity to the system."

The new rules will replace a decades-old system governing "allowables," or the quota of natural gas that producers can drill from their wells and bring onto the market. Under that method, production was geared to purchasers' monthly estimates of how much gas they would buy in Texas, a formula that often resulted in large gaps between supply and demand.

Beginning July 1, the commission will set production limits based on the agency's own statistics and the production history of each field. Texas gas producers will be asked to tell the commission how much gas they think they can sell each month.

The new formula is also designed to ensure that joint owners of natural-gas fields get their fair shares of the field's production, Guerrero said. Under existing rules, a single producer can manipulate the system to produce more than his share of the field's quota.

Oklahoma has gone further than Texas, however, enacting a production formula that state officials openly acknowledged was created to curb supply and push gas prices up.

Lawmakers from energy-hungry states such as Michigan, Indiana and New York, have been critical of the new rules, however, questioning their effect on a competitive gas market.

Led by House Energy Committee Chairman Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., and Senate Energy Chairman Bennett Johnston, D-La., politicians say they will study the consumer impact of the regulations and possibly draft federal laws to counteract the state laws.

In a letter to Johnston drafted last week by New Jersey Democrat Bill Bradley, 30 senators wrote, "We will not countenance efforts that directly threaten a competitive marketplace for gas."

Guerrero said the pro-rationing issue is "easily misunderstood," and insisted that the new formula is not designed to drive up natural-gas prices, a result that most producers nonetheless would embrace. Between 1984 and 1990, wellhead prices for gas plunged 36 percent nationally.

"Despite what you may have heard or read, talk of creating a domestic cartel to make gas scarce is nonsense," she said. "The Railroad Commission cannot and will not do anything about the price of natural gas."

"I don't blame them for being concerned about consumer natural-gas prices, because I am too," she added. "But I get the sense that some people are operating without a whole lot of facts."

She declined to predict the wellhead price of gas next year, calling that exercise a "silly thing."

But she said commission studies show that under the new formula, Texas natural-gas production is likely to be "about the same" as the 1992 output and possibly exceed it, a level she said was unlikely to affect prices.

Texas is the nation's leading natural-gas producer, drilling nearly a quarter of the country's annual supply, followed closely by Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Guerrero, the first woman and the first Hispanic to head the Railroad Commission, will discuss pro-rationing with financial analysts in New York on Wednesday. She will return to Washington for two days' of meetings with lawmakers, including sessions with Dingell and other key energy panel members.

FDIC defies pressure, raises banks' insurance premiums

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Defying heavy pressure from both the Bush administration and the industry, federal regulators voted Tuesday to raise the premiums that banks and savings associations pay to their insolvent insurance funds and to make fundamental changes in the way those premiums are assessed.

The 3-2 decision by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. would raise premiums an average of 22 percent starting in January. And for the first time since 1934, when the initial fund was set up in the wake of the bank collapses of the Depression, weaker institutions would pay a bigger increase than stronger ones. In an effort to encourage prudent banking practices, Congress last year gave the regulators until 1994 to end the 58-year-old system of having all banks pay the same rate.

The increase, which the administration had hoped until the last minute to be able to block, would have a broad economic impact, making banking more expensive for customers, who will have to pay more for loans and receive lower yields on deposits.

It would also hurt the stockholders of about 14,500 banks and savings associations, reducing the industry's after-tax earnings by more than 4 percent. Some of the premium costs are also borne by taxpayers, because institutions are permitted to write off a percentage of their premium payments on their corporate taxes.

Supporters of the increase say it is intended to protect confidence in the economy by strengthening the insurance fund, which is deeply in the red and at its lowest level since its creation

William Taylor, the chairman of the insurance corporation, said that the bank insurance fund lost about $11 billion last year, giving it a deficit of about $7 billion that it has had to borrow from the Treasury. He said that even greater annual losses could be posted in the next two years. The proposed changes would raise an additional $1.25 billion annually.

The increase, to an average of 28 cents for every $100 in deposits from the current 23 cents, is expected to be approved after a 60-day comment period. The weakest banks, those with the least capital and the most problem loans, would pay an additional 3 cents for every $100 in deposits, and the strongest would pay 3 cents less.

Regulators said that the new risk-based system may take longer to put in place, but that any delay would not postpone the premium increase.

JCPenney profit soars in 1st quarter

DALLAS (AP) — JCPenney Co. said Tuesday it earned $136 million, or $1.09 a share, in the first quarter, a 70 percent increase over last year due a better mix of goods and improving economy.

The nation's fourth-largest retailer earned $80 million, or 61 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1991.

Revenue in the quarter ending April 25 was $3.79 billion, up 10.5 percent from $3.43 billion.

Penney chairman William Howell said the economic turnaround has generally helped retailers.

"JCPenney has the right merchandise and a strong value message for today's consumers and we expect our performance will continue to improve as the year progresses," Howell said in a statement.

The company's selling, general and administrative costs rose 2.9 percent in the quarter compared with a year ago. JCPenney also spent slightly more on advertising.

However, those costs declined as a percentage of retail sales to 31.5 percent from 33.8 percent a year ago.

Wholesale prices rise slightly in April, government reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices posted a tiny increase of 0.2 percent in April as a big drop in vegetable prices helped offset higher gasoline costs, the government said Tuesday.

The Labor Department said that through the first four months of this year, its Producer Price Index, which measures inflation before it reaches the consumer, was rising at a modest annual rate of 1 percent. April was the third straight month the index crept up 0.2 percent.

The performance of wholesale prices was better than expected. Many analysts had worried that a spurt in energy prices would push the overall index higher.

Energy prices did rise, but the 0.5 percent increase was less than half the 1.2 percent surge of the previous month. And that advance was offset by the 10th drop in food costs in the past 12 months as vegetable prices continued to retreat following a huge February runup.

Economists said that the small increases in producer prices this year and moderate inflation at the consumer level as well reflected lingering weak demand following the recession.

"Inflation is going nowhere fast in this economy," said Ron Schreibman, vice president of the National Association of Wholesaler-Distributors, whose members pay the prices measured by the PPI survey.

The Labor Department was scheduled to report on consumer prices Wednesday and economists were looking for a similar pattern of higher energy costs being offset by falling food prices to produce an overall CPI increase of around 0.3 percent.

A continuing good inflation performance has heightened speculation that the Federal Reserve will soon move to cut interest rates further.

The Bush administration, worried about a subpar economy in an election year, has kept up pressure on the central bank to act and many analysts believe at least another modest easing move is on the horizon.

LESTER: MCC pro laid back

(From 1C)

Club.

"The time's flown by rather quickly," Lester said of the eight months that have passed since his win. "I wasn't thinking of this (qualifying for the Nelson) when I was playing in that tournament. This is just an added prize."

Midland Country Club tennis professional Derek Edmonds will serve as Lester's caddy.

Lester grew up in Rankin, and played on the Red Devils' team that won six straight state titles. Collegiately, he played at Midland College.

He played the Las Colinas course at a sectional event in 1986; he remembers the course as being "not real tight, with a couple of water shots on it. It's not as tight as our course (MCC)."

Even though six years after playing Las Colinas Lester remembers No. 14 as being the most intimidating hole on the course, it's likely he won't lose too much sleep over it.

"I'm just happy to be going down," he said. "It'll be a nice little vacation and I'll get to see some great players."

Marino rebuts Noll's remarks

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Miami Dolphins quarterback Dan Marino assailed former Pittsburgh Steelers coach Chuck Noll for saying rumors about recreational drug use by Marino spooked the Steelers before the 1983 NFL draft.

Noll's comments came Monday during an appearance on a radio talk show in Pittsburgh. He answered a question about why the Steelers selected defensive lineman Gabe Rivera over Marino, who played at Pitt.

"These rumors have always been totally false and I'm extremely disappointed that Chuck Noll would even bring them up," Marino said in a statement issued by the Dolphins.

"I feel Noll has been irresponsible to comment on something that in fact has no truth to it."

Marino was the sixth quarterback selected in the draft that year. He has since broken numerous NFL passing records and could become the most prolific passer in NFL history before he retires.

The drug rumors were never substantiated.

Noll told WTAE-AM that the rumors about Marino were scary because "this was a time when no one (in the NFL) knew anything about drugs at all."

Marino was considered the top quarterback prospect in the nation as a junior, but his production dropped significantly as a senior in 1982. Pitt lost three of its final five games that season after being rated No. 1 nationally in the preseason.

Jim Kelly, John Elway, Tony Eason, Ken O'Brien and Todd Blackledge were all selected ahead of Marino.

America3 commands 2-1 lead in America's Cup finals

SAN DIEGO (AP) — America3 recovered from the closest loss in America's Cup history and crushed Italy's Il Moro di Venezia by 1 minute, 58 seconds on Tuesday for a 2-1 lead in the final.

The U.S. yacht flew away early, showed tremendous upwind speed and confirmed its claim to be the faster boat. Unlike Sunday, when poor sail handling negated that advantage in a 3-second setback, the American crew avoided costly mistakes.

America3 (America Cubed), which led at every mark, can become the 28th American winner in 29 Cup competitions by winning Thursday's and Saturday's races in the best-of-7 series.

In the challenger finals, Il Moro got out of another tight spot by winning the last four races against New Zealand and taking the best-of-9 series 5-3.

Il Moro, the first European finalist since 1964, won the start for the first time in the finals, leading by 2 seconds. But on the first of the eight legs, into the wind, America3 caught a favorable wind shift and blasted into a 47-second lead.

In the 163 races during the trials that selected the two finalists, boats rarely won after falling behind by that margin. Only a serious equipment failure or major wind shift in Il Moro's favor could have threatened America3.

Neither happened. The wind blew steadily from the west at about 10-12 knots in two-foot swells throughout the race.

America3 made its biggest gains on the three upwind legs, adding 49, 14 and 37 seconds to its lead.

In the first race, America3 led wire-to-wire for a 30-second win. In the second race, Il Moro went ahead midway up the first leg and led at every mark on the 20.03-mile course off Point Loma.

IOWA CITY, Iowa — "Never eat at any place called Mom's," counseled Nelson Algren, a writer who spent his life chronicling the travails of the lost souls of America in books like "The Man With the Golden Arm."

It's the kind of snappy aphorism (with its corollaries "Never play cards with any man named Doc" and "Never sleep with anyone whose troubles are worse than your own") that suited Algren, who won the first National Book Award, in 1950, and who died in 1981 at the age of 72.

He was known for his gambling, drinking and womanizing as well as for his novels, which also included "Walk on the Wild Side," and numerous short stories.

They were peopled by prostitutes, drug addicts, con artists and the like. It's a piece of advice that, to date, is probably Algren's most public association with food.

But on May 5, the University of Iowa Press published, for the first time, "America Eats," a short work that Algren wrote in the 1930s for the Works Progress Administration.

It is a portrait of Midwestern foodways, and includes recipes for international foods from apple pie to zabaglione. In "America Eats," he brought to food the same attention to detail he used in describing Frankie Machine shooting heroin in "The Man With the Golden Arm."

OF AN OLD Settlers Picnic in Nebraska, he wrote: "Heaping bowls of ripe sliced tomatoes are placed every few inches across the table; other bowls are laden with fresh sliced cucumbers. Sweet pickles, dill pickles, bread-and-butter pickles, pickled peaches, pears and crab apples by the gallon wait in crocks. Then there are coleslaws, mixed-vegetable salads, fruit salads and gaily colored pickled eggs. Plates piled high offer hot rolls, hot corn bread, plain white bread, Swedish rye, Russian rye packed with caraway seeds, Swedish twist with a garnish of poppy seeds, whole wheat bread, and the popular sweet raisin bread."

Instead of the cheap whiskey and cheaper beer that permeate most of Algren's fiction, "America Eats" is infused with the warm, kitcheny scents of blinis, goulash, Portuguese walnut pudding, breakfast scones and polenta.

The university acquired the 86-page manuscript — neatly typed on yellow copy paper with the words "Am. Eats Algren" scrawled in pencil at the top of the first page — as part of an astonishing collection of more than 11,000 cookbooks and culinary writings that date back to 1499 and cover an enormous range of subjects from cannibalism and Antarctic cookery.

The collection was donated two years ago by Louis I. Szathmary, a cookbook author and chef in Chicago. The Algren book, available from the press for $22.95, is the second in the Iowa Szathmary Culinary Arts Series. The next, due out next fall, is a Persian cookbook from 1839.

Szathmary (pronounced SAHT-mah-ree), a Hungarian, first met Algren, whom he calls "that most American of writers," in the early 1960s in Chicago, where the writer lived for much of his adult life. He frequented Szathmary's restaurant, the Bakery on the Near North Side of Chicago. Algren often looked "like a bum," Szathmary recalled in a recent telephone conversation. But, "he had excellent manners," and, Szathmary said, "he knew good food and enjoyed it."

"DO NOT FORGET that he was the lover of Simone de Beauvoir, the dining companion of Jean-Paul Sartre," Szathmary said. "On some level, he was an elegant bon vivant."

But Algren hardly had a typical bon vivant's approach to life. On meeting de Beauvoir for the first time, in 1947, Algren took her on a tour of Chicago which included psychiatric wards and an electric chair; their affair took place in both Chicago and Paris.

In his preface to "America Eats," Szathmary writes of his first visit to the writer's apartment: "Even blindfolded, I would have been able to recognize Nelson's home by its smell. It was an odor typical of a bachelor's apartment inhabited by one who stored huge amounts of magazines and papers for a long time, who chain-smoked with other chain-smokers over the poker table set up in the kitchen, who kept his clothing clean but never threw anything out. The undertone of beer, bourbon and wine mixed in with the cold, stale smoke. The kitchen faucet dripped, perhaps for years, into some foil pie dishes piled in the sink. Yes, the odor of dripping water was also a part of the general aroma, as were the shaving cream and soap smells from the bathroom."

It was in this apartment, in 1975, that Szathmary first laid eyes on the "America Eats" manuscript, which was on view as Algren auctioned off many of his possessions to finance a move from Chicago to New Jersey.

"That apartment depressed me," Szathmary said. "One of the greatest American writers living such a life! It was clear he needed money, but he would never take it if I offered to give him some."

INSTEAD, SZATHMARY bid on the manuscript, offering a generous sum which he declines to disclose. "Nelson thought I was sheer mad," he said.

According to Szathmary, the author told him, "the recipes in it are lousy." Algren explained: "It was a government writer's project. I did it because I needed the money."

Algren had been desperate to join the WPA, according to his biographer, Bettina Drew. In "Nelson Algren: A Life on the Wild Side" (University of Texas Press, 1991) Ms. Drew wrote of the writer's depression over the financial and critical failure of his first novel, "Somebody in Boots," published in 1935, a suicide attempt soon after, and an enforced stay in a mental hospital.

Penniless and unemployed, she said, Algren pulled every literary string he could to get hired on at the Illinois Writers' Project, a branch of the WPA.

As a project member, along with other future literary stars like Saul Bellow and Richard Wright, Algren helped write travel guides and collect folk tales.

David E. Schoonover, curator of rare books at the University of Iowa, said Algren's writing on Midwestern eating habits was part of a national project to record regional foodways.

These manuscripts, he said, were filed away as the federal government turned its energies to mobilizing for World War II.

ALTHOUGH FOOD was not Algren's usual subject, "America Eats" comes alive with the same vivid writing and feeling for the underclass that illuminate his fiction.

Recipe is from Algren's WPA book

GOULASH AND SPATZLE
(Adapted from "America Eats")

FOR THE GOULASH:
2 teaspoons salt, plus more, to taste
1 tablespoon sweet Hungarian paprika
½ teaspoon fresh ground pepper, plus more, to taste
⅛ teaspoon garlic salt
2 pounds beef chuck, cut into 1-inch cubes
½ cup lard or chicken fat
2 large onions, peeled and chopped fine
1½-2 tablespoons flour
3 cups beef broth or water
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 teaspoon caraway seeds

FOR THE SPATZLE:
4 large eggs, lightly beaten
1 cup milk
3 cups flour
2 teaspoons salt
6 tablespoons butter, cut into small pieces
1 cup minced parsley

To make the goulash, combine the salt, 1 teaspoon of the paprika, pepper and garlic salt in a small bowl. Season the meat with the spice mixture. Set aside.

In a large casserole, heat the lard or chicken fat over high heat until it begins to smoke. Add the pieces of meat in one layer and, while stirring constantly, quickly fry the meat until evenly browned, about 2 to 3 minutes.

Add the onions and cook until wilted, about 3 minutes. Sprinkle the flour over the meat and stir until blended. Add the remaining paprika, reduce the heat to medium low, and stir for an additional 2 minutes.

Add the broth or water, tomato paste and caraway seeds. Cover, and simmer over low heat until meat is tender, about 1 to 1½ hours. Set aside to cool, cover and refrigerate overnight.

Reheat the goulash over low heat and season with salt and pepper to taste.

To make the spatzle, combine the eggs and milk in a large glass or ceramic bowl. Set aside. Combine the flour and 1 teaspoon of the salt in a separate bowl. Slowly add the flour mixture to the eggs and beat until smooth. Set aside at room temperature for 30 minutes.

Preheat oven to 200 degrees. Bring a large pot of water to a boil, and add the remaining salt. Reduce the heat to a simmer, drop ½ teaspoons of the dough into the water and simmer until cooked through, about 2 to 3 minutes after they rise to the surface. Drain, rinse under cold running water, drain again and transfer the spatzle to an ovenproof baking dish. Add the butter, stir, and keep warm in the oven until ready to serve.

Divide the spatzle into individual bowls, spoon the goulash over, and garnish with parsley.

Yield: 6 Servings.

New frozen dinners made for children

By Linda Anderson

Anyone who ever visits the supermarket with a child soon learns the reason food manufacturers cater to kids. Members of the younger generation tend to use their wiles to con their parents into buying them stuff, and if the product claims to be made "for kids" and have pictures or super heroes, sharks or dinosaurs, so much the better.

Anderson

Being no fools, the Swanson people have recently begun marketing a line of frozen dinners "for kids." Called Swanson Kids Fun Feast, these meals have the usual kid-pleasing foods, including pizza and fried chicken, as well as vegetables and/or fruits, and a dessert. Here's where it gets different — some Fun Feasts come with desserts that are unusual for frozen dinners. My littlest taste tester chose to try a "Chillin' Cheese Pizza" Fun Feast with a little container of what was called "Vanilla Artic Freeze (dairy dessert)" — in other words, ice cream or something close to it. I had never seen a frozen dinner come with a dish of ice cream.

A single-serving of Chillin' Cheese Pizza Fun Feast (which also included apples in sauce and seasoned corn) cost $1.89, which is considerably cheaper than many other frozen dinners.

Label advertising is about what you'd expect: "Hey everybody! Swanson has meals just for kids.

"Hi kids! I'm Sammy the Shark. (There's a cartoon shark on the box, you understand) Join me and the rest of the gang to feast on your favorite foods. Fun Feast meals are loaded with lots of awesom tasting foo and non-stop fun. (What does that mean?) Inside every package you will find a SURPRISE PACK and a special LIFT-OUT DESSERT. You'll want to tell your friends about Swanson Fun Feast."

Then it gets into information for parents: "Parents, Swanson is committed to providing you and your children with high quality foods. Fun Feast meals have been specially designed for your child with great taste in mind. This Chillin' Cheese Pizza meal also is: A significant source of protein, 3 vitamins and calcium."

Nutrition information lists the pizza dinner as having 350 calories and 10 grams of fat (which means 90 calories from fat).

The taste-test was about as successful as I thought it would be. The young taste-tester loved the pizza and the ice cream-type dessert, but refused to touch the corn or the apples. (In fact, she offered them to me — generosity can be a sure sign of a kid not liking something, you know.)

Will we try the dinners again? Probably. The price was right, the pizza part was right, and how can you top ice cream (or a reasonable fascimile thereof).

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Price at other locations may vary.

DEAR ABBY

Lack of money is reason for lack of teeth

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Will wonders never cease? First they tell me Santa Claus is a phony, then Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy was a liar, then the Soviet Union is gone. Now the cruelest cut of all is that Dear Abby is off her rocker.

Van Buren

Just because I have a couple of gaps where I used to have teeth has nothing to do with neglect, ignorance or lack of pride. It could be that I am poor, have always been poor, and probably will always be poor, unless I hit the lottery.

When I had teeth, I took care of them (no neglect); when they got cavities and needed fillings, it was cheaper to have them pulled — so it wasn't ignorance; it was lack of money. Pride? What is pride — combing your hair to cover a bald spot? Having silicone implants to make your breasts bigger?

Bull. If God wants me to have teeth, he will make them grow back. Or maybe you will send my dentist the $1,000 he wants up front to make me a bridge.

I am 68 and can eat what I want and have been married for 33 years, so I am not looking for a new girlfriend. True, I would probably look better when I smile if I had more teeth, but be assured that it is the lack of money — not lack of pride — that's standing in my way. — ROY L. PARK, SEATTLE

DEAR ROY: I just received your letter and got back on my rocker. Call your dentist and ask if he would consider accepting his fee in several more affordable installments. It's worth a try. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Anonymous Merchant," who complained about thoughtless people who walk into his store and don't even say hello, reminded me of my situation.

I am a woman who uses a wheelchair, and I would like to remind people that I am still a person! Some suggestions:

1. Please, say hello to me. I am not just a wheelchair.
2. Make sure I can get through your door. Many times, I would like to cross your threshold, but your door is heavier than I can open. (The current standards: 8.5 pounds pressure for an outside door; 5 pounds for an inside door.)
3. Please remember that merchandise placed on shelves out of my reach limits my choices.
4. Please provide a dressing room that my wheelchair can enter. Almost every store has one spacious dressing room that is the favorite of nearly all your customers.
5. Please talk to me, not to the person who is with me. A typical experience: At a recent visit to a resort hotel, we entered one of the shops and the salesperson asked my husband, "Is your wife looking for something?" And on a plane, the flight attendant asked my husband, "And what will the lady have?"
6. Please do not try to "help me" without asking, "May I assist you?"

Thank you, Abby, for listening to me and all the other persons in the U.S.A. and Canada who use wheelchairs. — NORMA IN BOTHELL, WASH.

By popular request, Abby shares more of her favorite prize-winning, easy-to-prepare recipes. Put 'another shrimp on the barbie' with this recipe

Associated Press

This recipe for Shrimp with Seafood Butter Sauce is among the recipes featured in the Kansas City Barbeque Society's "Passion of Barbeque" cookbook.

SHRIMP WITH SEAFOOD BUTTER SAUCE

2 pounds jumbo shrimp, unshelled (tails left on)
Cooked long grain rice
Melted butter

FOR THE MARINADE:
1 cup olive oil
1 cup dry sherry
1 cup soy sauce
1 clove garlic, minced

FOR THE SEAFOOD BUTTER SAUCE:
¼ pound butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon soy sauce
⅛ teaspoon hot pepper sauce

Combine all marinade ingredients. Marinate shrimp, about 45 minutes.

Combine and melt seafood butter sauce ingredients in a pan. Keep warm, stirring occasionally.

Grill shrimp on a skewer for 10 minutes. Serve on a bed of rice with melted butter on the side. Serve with sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Ground turkey makes a burger that's lower in fat

Associated Press

If you want to take the fat out of your summer barbecue, switch from regular ground beef to ground turkey breast. One turkey burger has just three grams of fat. Serve with the traditional add-ons: sliced cucumber, tomato, onion and lettuce.

TURKEY BURGERS DELUXE

1 pound ground turkey
¼ cup prepared chili sauce
¼ cup chopped green onions
¼ cup finely chopped celery
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Non-stick cooking spray

In a medium bowl combine turkey, chili sauce, green onions, celery, salt and pepper. Shape turkey mixture into four burgers.

Spray cold rack of grill with non-stick cooking spray. Grill burgers six inches from heat, turning once, 10 to 12 minutes or until completely done. Makes 4 servings.

KENT OIL, INC.

KENT KWIK
CONVENIENCE STORES

WHY KENT OIL COMPANY?

Kent Oil (operating Kent Kwik convenience stores) is a West Texas-based company, thirty five years old and still growing. We offer many benefits to our employees. These benefits include:

- Company-assisted medical, dental and life insurance
- Paid vacations
- Sick pay program
- Tuition reimbursement program
- Special incentive programs for all employees
- Profit-sharing and retirement plan
- Intensive new hire training
- Structured continual management training
- Flexible scheduling
- Full and part time hours available
- Work close to home
- Affiliation with Odessa 66 credit union

We attempt whenever possible to promote from within. All of our current store managers, middle and upper management started with the company at the entry level. It is possible to move up quickly based on your experience and level of education.

Working in a convenience store is both exciting and challenging. You have to be outgoing and enjoy serving the public, while at the same time be a self-starter, as you receive very little on the job supervision.

If you are considering a career in the retail industry, give Kent Oil your consideration. Apply at your nearest Kent Kwik.

FIRST TIME BUYER??? WE'VE GOT THE ANSWERS!!!

CHERYL WILLIAMS

We are pleased to introduce our newest Associate, Cheryl Williams. Cheryl and her family have been residents of the Permian Basin for the last 10 years. Her family of four is happily settled in Greenwood with their 3 horses, 2 cats, 3 dogs and a parrot. Cheryl particularly enjoys working with suburban real estate. She is always ready put on her boots and go. She also enjoys computers, quilting, crafts and good old fashioned family outings. Give Cheryl a call and let her help you buy or sell your little piece of West Texas.

OWNER TRANSFERRED and company is offering $3,000 Buyer Incentive Program. This gorgeous house was great without the incentives, but with this great deal it is TERRIFIC!! Racquet Club area...3 bedrooms...2 baths...2 living areas...Beautifully re-done. You need to hurry on this one...$73,000.
LAST CHANCE TO BUY this great duplex at this price. It will be rented soon and taken off the market. If you want to make a move at the right time, NOW IS THE TIME. $67,500.
PRICE REDUCED. This is a great opportunity for someone. In a area where the prices are twice this much. Anyone who knows...knows...location is everything...$53,000.
CUTIE IN THE COUNTRY...Give Cheryl a call on this one. This three bedroom is as clean as can be and in tip top condition...$40,000.
