Troops take Lithuanian deserters

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Soviet soldiers stormed two hospitals today to seize at least 23 Lithuanian army deserters and left behind a trail of blood in the first violent action by Moscow since Lithuania declared independence.

"They beat them with their fists," said a duty nurse at a psychiatric hospital where windows and iron beds were broken in the predawn raid.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis said he feared it could presage a full-scale crackdown on the Baltic republic, whose Parliament voted to secede March 11.

"It is obvious that the Soviet armed forces have been given permission to use violence," Landsbergis said.

The Soviet Union today also ordered all foreigners to leave Lithuania, Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said in Moscow. Last week diplomats and foreign journalists were told they could not travel to the republic.

In Washington, there was no immediate comment from the White House on today's developments. President Bush has urged Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev not to use force against Lithuanians.

At a news conference at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, Deputy Ambassador Sergei Chetverikov said the Soviet Union would continue to try to "find peaceful solutions" to the unrest in Lithuania but said certain steps by troops were necessary to protect law and order and Soviet installations.

About 4,000 opponents of Lithuania's independence drive attended a Vilnius rally today that Landsbergis had warned might turn violent and serve as Moscow's excuse to intervene.

A Soviet military helicopter dropped leaflets on Monday urging people to attend today's rally.

The rally lasted less than an hour and remained peaceful — protesters did not even trespass on the grass in the middle of the square near the parliament building. Inside, parliament officials, convinced the crowd might try to storm the building, had rolled out fire hoses to repel attackers.

In all, the official Soviet news agency Tass said troops seized 23 deserters in two hospitals.

Rita Dapkus, spokeswoman for the Lithuanian Bureau of Information, said Soviet troops beat 12 Lithuanian deserters "and the militiamen who came to defend them" at the psychiatric hospital before taking the deserters away. She said the 26 others at the hospital escaped.

A trail of blood led down the hospital steps and out the front door. There were no reports on the extent of injuries. Lithuanians have fled the Red Army, complaining of beatings and other abuse since their republic took

Effluent upgrades anticipated

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Rain for almost a decade has been only a partial blessing for Rita Cone, co-owner of the 3,200-acre Boone Ranch in southeast Midland County.

The bigger the rain, the more city of Midland effluent waste water that runs off a nearby ranch and flows down Johnson Draw onto her farm and pasture land.

Some sunny days are not much better. The equipment which uses treated city waste water to irrigate the neighboring ranch sometimes fails or goes unmonitored, causing the sprinkler system to spray too much in one area.

Ms. Cone said pools and sometimes lakes of smelly waste water have formed on her property and smothered the plants, leaving her with acres of useless mud.

But backed by the Texas Water Commission, environmental consultants and fellow ranchers, the days of Ms. Cone's land being turned into a stink farm may be over soon.

City councilmen were expected to discuss spending about $300,000 to upgrade its waste water disposal methods. The proposal is expected to go before councilman for approval in two weeks.

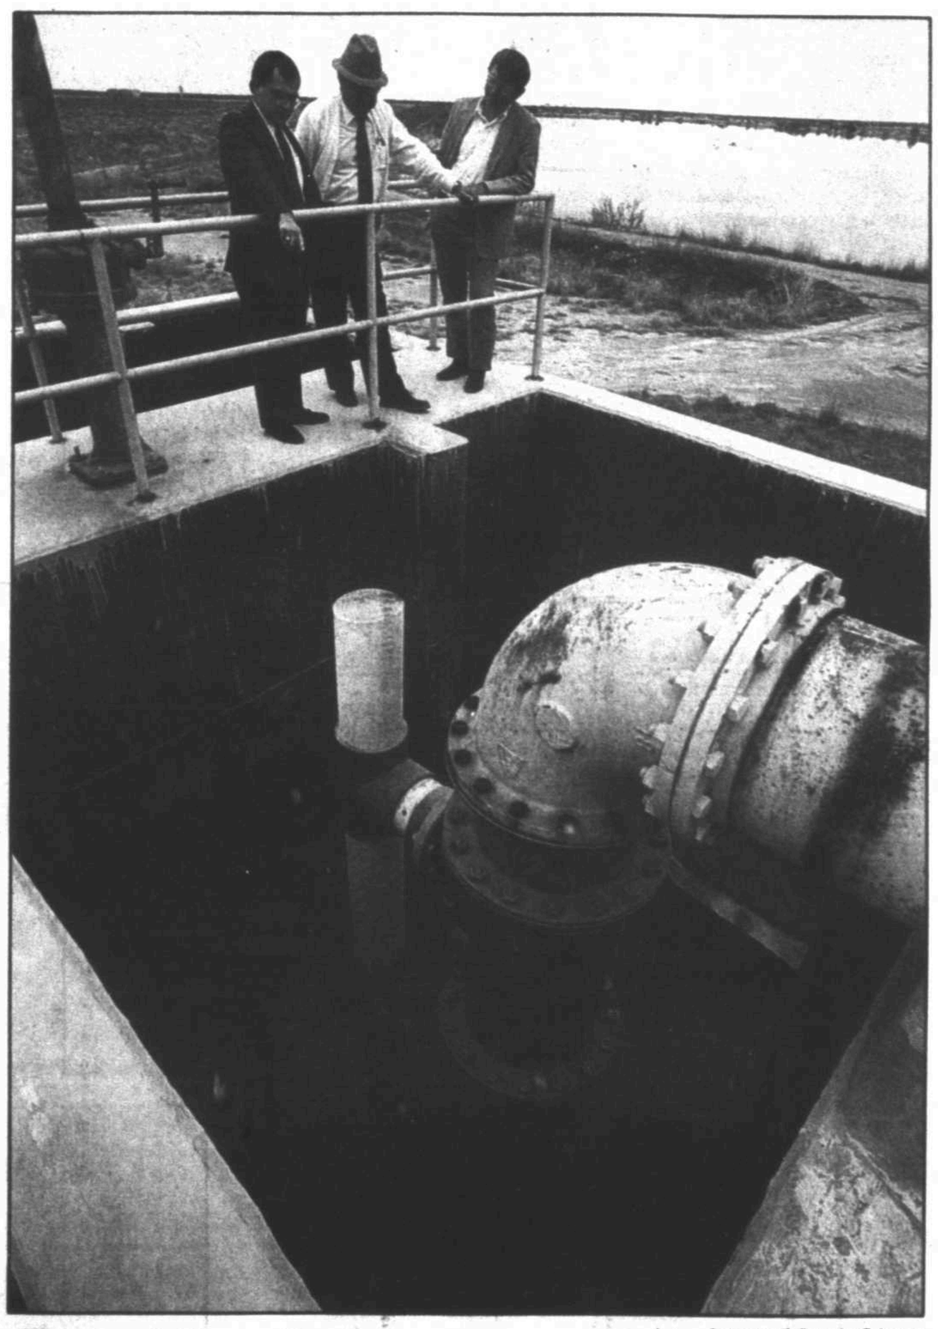

John Lowe, utilities director, said about 8 million gallons of effluent water a day flow through the city's treatment plant about 16 miles southeast of downtown.

The treated water has been used to irrigate about 2,500 acres of city land leased by the Gist Cattle Co. Cotton, alfalfa and wheat were grown on the land.

Some of the crops, which the state does not allow to be used for human consumption, were harvested for livestock feed, which state officials allow. Other sections of the ranch were used legally for grazing land.

However, not only was the Gist Cattle Co. not making a profit off the venture, but condoms and other items flushed through city lines sometimes became stuck in the giant sprinkler system, Lowe said. This

Oil demand may equal production

WASHINGTON (AP) — In as little as two years, the world could be using oil as fast as it can be pumped out of the ground, says former Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has been producing at more than 90 percent of capacity, while Soviet production has dropped, Schlesinger told the Senate Energy Committee on Monday. And he said that Iran and Iraq, despite ending their war, are marketing considerably less oil than had been anticipated.

"With the call on OPEC growing at over a million barrels per day each year, we are only a couple of years away from the point that demand would theoretically reach the level of present capacity," Schlesinger said.

John J. Easton Jr., an assistant energy secretary, gave the committee a more optimistic report, although he and Schlesinger agreed that U.S. oil production will continue to decline if present consumption and exploration trends continue.

In the long run, Easton said, "Through concerted efforts to find and produce more of our domestic resources, we may be able to slow the rate of decline in U.S. production, but it is unlikely under current conditions that we will be able to reverse the trend."

Schlesinger, who also has served as director of the CIA and as secretary of defense, said U.S. national security and economic interests are threatened by the growing demand for foreign oil.

"There is a strong possibility of a 30 percent or 40 percent increase in prices," he said. "That we will have a price surge in the decade seems to me to be beyond question."

U.S. demand for oil will grow by about 2 percent a year until there are steep price increases, Schle-

Joblessness jumps in Midland, Odessa

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Both Midland and Odessa saw sharp increases in unemployment in February, according to figures released today by the Texas Employment Commission.

According to the TEC, Midland's unemployment rate leaped 1.2 percent, from 5.4 percent in January to 6.6 percent in February. The rate a year ago was 6.5 percent.

Odessa's unemployment rate rose from 6.3 percent a month ago to 7.6 percent, but was well below February 1989's rate of 8.8 percent.

However, analysts emphasized that the jump was not unusual.

"This is nothing unexpected," said Johnnye Isbell, manager of the TEC's Midland office. "We're seeing layoffs after Christmas and inventory."

Lorna Biar, labor market analyst with the TEC's regional office, agreed, saying "February was a normal February. January wasn't a normal January." Experts were surprised by marginal decreases in January's employment rate, which traditionally reflects holiday-related layoffs.

Ms. Biar pointed out that all the metropolitan statistical areas

Williams also criticized by family

DALLAS (AP) — Republican gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams says even his own mother and two daughters criticized him for a weekend remark comparing foul weather to rape.

Williams, who has repeatedly apologized for the remark after initially saying it was only a joke, said Monday that he wasn't a sexist individual.

Williams told reporters and ranch hands on a cattle roundup at his West Texas ranch Saturday that the rain and fog delaying the day's event was a lot like rape.

"If it's inevitable, just relax and enjoy it," he said, drawing strong criticism from Democrats and womens' organizations.

"But let me tell you," Williams said Monday, "my mother and my two daughters gave me a working over this morning like you can't believe.

"My mother said, 'I didn't raise you that way,' " he said. "And my daughters talked to me a little more strongly than that."

Williams, speaking to reporters at Dallas Love Field before a dinner Monday night with former gubernatorial candidate Tom Luce, refused to repeat what his daughters said.

"You couldn't print that either," he said, smiling.

Asked what he could do to make up for the remark, Williams said: "I just need to tell all the people that I apologize and I was insensitive. And actions speak louder than words."

Williams repeated his apology Monday, saying "there's no question that I was insensitive. I didn't realize it at the time. I apologize for the remark. I regret the remark very much. ..."

But women's groups and political opponents didn't curb their criticism Monday.

"I don't care if it was made around the campfire, a living room or a formal speech," state Treasurer Ann Richards said. "It indicates a level of thinking that is an embarrassment."

Ms. Richards could face Williams in the November election if she wins a Democratic runoff against Attorney General Jim Mattox on April 10.

"It is within his character," Mattox said, "and it is within the way he normally deals with people and traditions and institutions."

SueAnn Crouse, who chairs the Austin Women's Political Caucus, said Monday that she was "both

GOP gubernatorial nominee and Midland businessman Clayton Williams Monday emphasized his support of a Midland violent crime prevention program in the wake of an "insensitive" weekend remark about rape.

"While I made an insensitive remark for which I continue to apologize, my actions show that I have been supportive of helping women to protect themselves," Williams told the Reporter-Telegram in a telephone interview from Dallas Monday night.

Williams said he was "one of the founders" of Innovative Solutions, a four-year-old rape and violent crime prevention course based in Midland.

Two window washers rescued from high-rise

HOUSTON (AP) — Two window washers were rescued from a dangling platform outside the 18th floor of a building after being suspended for over an hour.

The unidentified workers not injured.

The two men were cleaning the windows at the 3 Riverway building near the Galleria about 2 p.m. Monday when one side of the platform gave way.

Houston Fire Department rescuers dropped lifelines from the top of the building.

Then Sr. Capt. Frank Ratfa slowly rappelled down the side of the building and tied each man into a body harness. Through an interpreter, Ratfa instructed the Spanish-speaking workers how to walk up the wall.

"This is what we train for and it paid off," Ratfa said. "My mouth was a little dry but once I got into it, it all comes off like we do in training."

The rescue was completed by 3:20 p.m., said Becky Barnett, a spokeswoman for the fire department.

"This is my second time I have set up on a rescue operation, but this was the first time I actually had to go get someone," Ratfa said. "This doesn't happen all the time and I hope this doesn't happen again."

The workers were employed by Building Services, Ms. Barnett said.

Officials with Building Services could not be reached from comment.

moves to leave the Soviet Union.

Soviet troops also took over the republic's showcase Communist Party headquarters today, making it the fifth party building to be seized since Sunday in Moscow's bid to assert sovereignty in the republic.

Speaking to reporters today, Landsbergis denounced the "open acts of aggression" and accused Soviet authorities of fabricating stories of provocation to justify the use of force.

Lithuania's Communists broke with Moscow in December, but a pro-Soviet minority in the party has tried to rally against the pro-independence majority.

Until the weekend, Moscow had tried to intimidate the Lithuanians with non-violent tactics. The Kremlin paraded tanks through the capital and ordered Lithuanians to surrender firearms and not to attempt a takeover of Soviet-controlled enterprises.

The Lithuanians did not budge and Soviet troops began seizing Communist Party buildings. In official media, the Kremlin portrayed the small peaceful republic as in a state of anarchy and accused its leaders of planning to jail opponents of independence.

Tensions seemed to ease with the opening of negotiations between Soviet military representatives and Lithuanian leaders on Sunday.

But army helicopters later dropped leaflets inviting people to a rally today to protest the "abyss of independence." The move clearly was aimed at playing on the fears of Russian and Polish minorities, who comprise 20 percent of the state's 3.8 million people.

TRAINING: Williams' funds helped incorporate course

(From 1A)

Fred Lewis, Innovative Solutions executive director, said Williams' support has given credibility to the program.

"He did (help found it) in a way," said Lewis, who said he had been teaching the Innovative Solutions course for two years before Williams offered his assistance in 1988.

"He gave us the ability to provide a solid corporate image," Lewis said. "Before that, we were a good course of instruction without a jumping-off spot."

Lewis said Williams donates office space for Innovative Solutions at Midland's Claydesta Plaza, serves on the Innovative Solutions board of governors, and has contributed $1,000 in cash to the program.

Lewis described Innovative Solutions as a mental conditioning program designed to help people avoid rape and other violent crimes. He said it began primarily as a women's rape prevention course, but now about 30 percent of its students are men.

"What we do is teach people the type of actions that prevent crime ... how to placate a situation so that it doesn't get out of hand," said Lewis, who added that it is not a physical self-defense course.

Lewis said he based the curriculum on a course he developed for the U.S. State Department while a member of the Delta Force anti-terrorist team.

"It's definitely unique," Lewis said of the eight-hour, $40 course. "I would go so far as to say it's one of a kind."

Lewis said about 1,500 people have taken the course, which he teaches with the help of police and sheriff's department volunteers.

Williams said he paid for all his female employees to take the course two years ago.

"Too often women are the favored victim of violent criminals," Williams said, and need to know how to avoid attack and how to respond if they are attacked.

LaNell Honeyman, Midland Rape Crisis Center executive director, endorsed the Innovative Solutions course.

"I feel it is a good prevention program," she said. "It addresses a whole lot more than sexual assault."

Ms. Honeyman would not comment on Williams' weekend remark, in which he compared bad weather at a cattle roundup to rape and suggested that if rape is inevitable, one should relax and enjoy it.

Lewis, however, said that people are overreacting to Williams' remark.

"I find it difficult to believe that the statement he made was anything but a passing comment," said Lewis. "I am sure that it was not meant to encourage rape...I think that would be the farthest thing from his mind based on his association with us."

Kelly Fero, press secretary for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Jim Mattox, said Williams' support of the rape prevention program does not excuse his earlier statement.

"It does not detract from or mitigate or soften the impact of his remark," Fero said.

Spokespersons for Democratic candidate Ann Richards were not immediately available for comment today.

Mattox and Ms. Richards meet in a runoff to determine who will oppose Williams in the November general election.

astounded and saddened" at Williams' remark.

His remark also was criticized by representatives of the Texas Association Against Sexual Assault, the National Coalition Against Sexual Assault and the Texas chapter of the National Organization for Women.

Williams' campaign spokesman, Bill Kenyon, predicted the remark would not have any long-term effects on Williams' first run at political office.

He said Williams' apology will work to his favor "because people know that Clayton Williams doesn't have a mean bone in his body."

State GOP leaders said the controversy would teach Williams a lesson.

"Claytie is new to public life and he's learning some lessons along the way," said Beverly Kaufman, first vice president of the Texas Federation of Republican Women.

EFFLUENT: City considers $300,000 system caused the system to overwater in some areas, leaving pools of stinking water, he said.

In addition, the system was not properly monitored, which also caused overwatering in certain areas, he said.

"He (Gist) was doing the best job he could with the manpower he had," Lowe said.

Meanwhile, Ms. Cone and a group of other area ranchers began complaining that effluent water was running onto their property. After enlisting the help of the Texas Water Commission, environmental consultants and attorneys, the group finally got the city to listen two years ago.

"They (group members) spent a lot of money," said Jim Wright, an independent environmental consultant who represented the group. "Their goal was to make sure the city of Midland followed the state law."

Lowe said the city, responding to the complaints, spent $40,000 about a year ago to hire a group of Texas A&M University consultants to study how to make the ranch more profitable and less of a health hazard.

In early February, the consultants recommended upgrading the irrigation system, planting only alfalfa and using the land more for grazing than harvesting, Lowe said.

He said alfalfa is more efficient because it soaks up more water than other crops planted at the ranch in the past, and it only needs to be replanted every five years if not harvested.

The city also will take over monitoring of the sprinkler system and hire additional personnel for the the task, he said. If the system waters too much in one area, it can be relocated to prevent ponding, he said.

In addition, dirt will be hauled in to level certain areas of the ranch so that water does not form ponds, Lowe said.

Councilman John Castro said an upgraded system, if approved by City Council, should be in place before summer.

OIL: Schlesinger sees supply change singer said. In a recent month, he added, the United States had to rely on foreign sources to meet a record 54 percent of its oil demand.

(From 1A)

Schlesinger said that by 1995, U.S. imports should reach as much as 11 million barrels a day, compared with a net average of just over 7 million barrels a day in 1989.

"The oil import bill then will likely exceed our present trade deficit," he said. That would be in range of over $100 billion a year.

"That statement, if correct, is of profoundest concern to the U.S. economy," said Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., chairman of the Energy Committee.

While domestic demand for oil has been growing, Schlesinger said, U.S. production continues to fall. Drilling activity is low by historical standards and the giant Prudhoe Bay field in Alaska is in declining production, he said.

"We may as well acknowledge that over the past decade the United States as a practical matter abandoned the quest for energy independence — indeed, even the quest for low energy dependency," Schlesinger said. "If we are to limit our future vulnerability, either for national security or international financial reasons, we shall have to reverse course — and take vigorous action."

Schlesinger's formula for reducing imports includes increased conservation, more tax incentives for domestic producers and expanded drilling.

Relying on renewable energy sources — such as solar energy — will not solve the problem because those sources do little for transportation.

FIGURES: Unemployment rate reflects expected seasonal trend showed sharp increases in unemployment, as did the state.

Midland's total civilian labor force grew to 48,700 from 48,500, but was still below February 1989's total of 49,300. Total employment fell from 45,900 in January to 45,500 and from year-ago total of 46,100. Total unemployment rose from 2,600 to 3,200, the same level it was last February.

Ms. Isbell said the increase in the labor force was due to job-seekers returning to the market, which she characterized as steady, perhaps picking up slightly.

For her part, Ms. Biar predicted that "Unless something terrible happens, the market should start improving." She based her optimism on the fact that two new restaurants — Golden Corral and Casa Ole — are almost ready to open, as are some small manufacturers in Industrial Park.

Midland maintained its ranking among state MSAs in February, tied at 14th with Brazoria. Odessa also kept its January ranking, 18th among the state's 28 MSAs.

Bryan-College Station had the lowest rate in the state, 4.2 percent, while McAllen-Edinburgh-Mission had the highest unemployment, 23.7 percent.

The state unemployment rate was 7 percent in February, up from 5.8 percent in January, but down from 7.4 percent a year ago.

The state labor force was 8,375,400, up from 8,320,600 a month ago and from 8,272,700 a year ago. Total employment was 7,787,900, down from 7,840,000 in January, but up from February 1989's total of 7,661,600. Total unemployment in Texas was 587,500, up from January's total of 480,600, but down from 611,100 in February 1989.

Cuba jams VOA's TV Marti

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S.-financed television operation began sending signals to Cuba early today, but Cuban officials blocked the transmission 38 minutes after it began, a Voice of America official said.

The TV test operation began at 1:30 a.m. EST and was clearly visible on Channel 13 in the Havana area until the jamming began at 2:08, said the official, who asked not to be identified by name.

Cuban officials have been preparing for the operation, denouncing the experiment as a violation of national sovereignty and asserting they had the capability to jam it.

Official Cuban statements have said retaliatory measures besides jamming would be taken, but none was announced immediately, the VOA source said.

The station is designed to be a TV version of Radio Marti, which has provided news and entertainment to Cuban listeners since 1985. Radio Marti was not jammed this morning.

Cuban officials, in addition to jamming Channel 13, also blocked the signals on several other channels, the VOA source said.

He said that at 3:45 a.m. EST TV Marti switched from the test pattern to baseball highlights and musical programming but these signals were jammed as well.

The signal was sent from a transmitter placed aboard a balloon dangling 10,000 feet above Cudjoe Key off the south Florida Coast. Technical problems have delayed testing for months.

After the testing, the administration is supposed to make a legal and technical evaluation of the operation within three months, according to the legislation.

If the operation proves feasible on both counts, formal programming can begin for a two-year period.

But if the testing interferes with Florida stations or violates aspects of international law governing such broadcasts, the operation will be scrapped.

President Fidel Castro has reacted sharply to TV Marti. Americans, he said recently, "are not even capable of knowing how much they offend the hearts and sentiments of our people."

House celebrates Cold War's 'Ike'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower was remembered today as "a symbol of democratic opportunity" as Congress held a joint meeting to honor the man, born 100 years ago this year, who led Allied armies to victory and became the 34th president of the United States.

"No man did more to rid our planet of the Nazi scourge," Senate Republican leader Bob Dole, himself a disabled veteran of World War II, said in prepared remarks.

"No one gave more in the Cold War against human enslavement," said Dole, from Eisenhower's home state of Kansas. "And no one deserves more gratitude from a world waking up to its own potential."

"A century after his birth, we recognize the man from Abilene as a symbol of democratic opportunity in a world where old oppressions are crumbling like the wall that once artificially divided East from West," Dole said.

The Eisenhower Centennial observance in the House chamber was to be followed by lunch at the White House for participants including the president's son, John S.D. Eisenhower, and Winston S. Churchill, the grandson and namesake of the late British prime minister.

Eisenhower, who died 21 years ago Wednesday, was born Oct. 14, 1890, in a house that is now part of a state park in Denison, Texas. He was one of seven sons of David and Ida Eisenhower.

When Dwight was less than a year old, the family moved to Abilene, Kan., where the future president grew up and where the Eisenhower Presidential Library now stands.

After West Point and his rise to supreme command in Europe, Eisenhower was twice elected president by large margins in campaigns remembered for red, white and blue buttons reading "I Like Ike."

Judge rules former hostage may not testify

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Poindexter is bringing a U.S. senator and a onetime Navy colleague to the witness stand as character witnesses at his Iran-Contra trial.

Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., a former secretary of the Navy in the Nixon administration, was to appear today on behalf of Poindexter.

Poindexter, a retired rear admiral, worked under Chafee when he was Navy secretary.

Rear Adm. Lowell J. Holloway, vice commander of the Navy Space and Warfare System command, also was to testify for Poindexter.

U.S. District Court Judge Harold Greene on Monday said Poindexter may not call a House staff member and former Lebanon hostage David Jacobsen.

Greene said Jacobsen's testimony would "inflame" the jury with the "emotional" hostage issue. Jacobsen was held in West Beirut from May 1985 until November 1986.

Defense attorney Richard Beckler said he wanted Jacobsen to testify about a conversation with Poindexter on Nov. 21, 1986. That is the day Poindexter is accused of obstructing Congress and making false statements about the Iranian arms sales initiative.

Beckler said Jacobsen could testify about conveying to Poindexter serious concern that any inaccurate information about the initiative could result in harm to the hostages.

Poindexter is accused of concealing from Congress the U.S. role in a 1985 shipment of Hawk missiles to Iran and Oliver North's military assistance to the Nicaraguan Contra guerrillas, made possible with profits from the missile sales.

Greene also granted a motion of the House of Representatives to quash Poindexter's subpoena for staff member Victor Johnson. Johnson wrote a memo in June 1986 saying that inquiring into North's Contra-related activities would make a good political issue.

Poll shows business rejects health plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — An overwhelming majority of the nation's business leaders oppose a government-run national health plan, according to a poll commissioned by the Health Insurance Association of America.

The Roper Organization poll released Monday found that 94 percent of the business executives surveyed would reject a health-care system with a budget controlled by the states or the federal government.

A majority of the executives, 62 percent, said they favored improving private-sector efforts to control health-care costs and relying on the current level of government regulation, while 31 percent said they would favor more government regulation to control physician and hospital prices.

Two-thirds of the executives said that in the last year their corporate health care costs rose by 11 percent to 20 percent; one in six said their costs were up 21 percent to 30 percent.

The most popular option, chosen by three-quarters of them, was to shift more of the cost to employees by increasing deductibles and co-payments and the workers' share of premiums. Also, 62 percent said they have adopted managed care programs, such as those based on health maintenance organizations and referred provider organizations.

Before reading on, study the diagram carefully. Then decide which of East's cards is destined to play a crucial role in defeating South's heart game.

North-South were using a 15-17 point range for their one no trump opening bids, so North's four diamonds was a cue-bid showing a maximum opening and a good heart fit. However, South was not interested in anything more than game.

West's lead of the three of clubs looked suspiciously like a singleton. The instinctive reaction by most declarers would have been to win the club in hand and lead a trump at trick two, but that would have led to defeat. Sooner or later, West would get to East with a spade for a club return, and West's ruff would defeat the contract by a trick.

In an effort to avert fate's decree, declarer won the club opening and cashed dummy's three top diamonds, discarding a spade from hand. When the ten of diamonds was led off dummy, East signaled emphatically with the jack of spades and declarer parted with his remaining spade. West scored his jack of diamonds, but two trump tricks were all the defenders could collect, thereafter, since West's link to partner had been severed.

East was sleeping on the job. Instead of signaling an entry, the defender should have ruffed with his "useless" two of hearts. If he had, declarer would have no way to avoid defeat. Since he could not afford to let East gain the lead, declarer would have to overruff and hope for a fortunate trump position, or finding West with the ace of spades. Since neither situation existed, West was bound to get a club ruff for down one.

Rockefeller's grandson attacked by shark while swimming in Fiji

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — A 30-year-old grandson of James S. Rockefeller left Fiji Monday night, apparently after being bitten on a leg by a shark while swimming at an exclusive island resort.

The Fiji Times newspaper said Ola Stillman Rockefeller was injured on Saturday soon after he arrived at Laucala Island, about 120 miles northeast of Fiji's capital, Suva.

The isolated resort is owned by the estate of the late American billionaire Malcolm Forbes.

Rockefeller, a bachelor, told the newspaper he had been swimming alone in waist-deep water about 30 yards offshore when he felt his right leg being "pulled."

Looking down, he said he saw it had been lacerated, apparently by two bites from a shark.

He said he managed to swim to shore and crawl to his bungalow where he telephoned for help.

Resort workers applied first-aid before a nurse from a village health clinic could assist. A doctor from a nearby hospital was brought in by boat several hours later.

On arrival, Dr. Viliame Taoi said he found Rockefeller in stable condition, but he "appeared to have lost some blood." His Achilles tendon had been lacerated and required stiches.

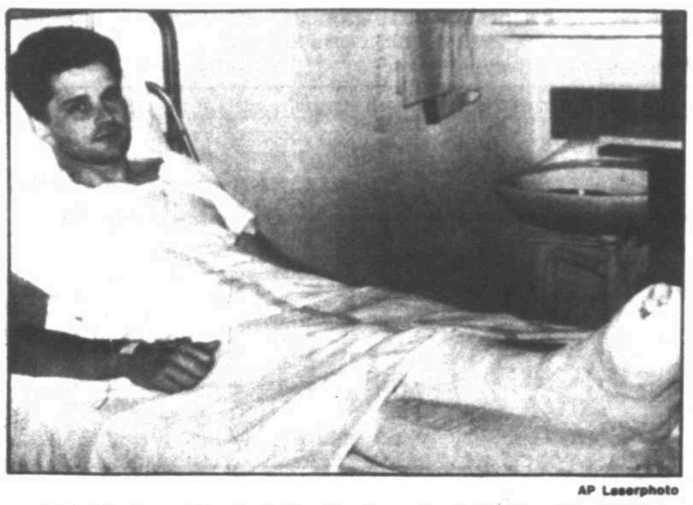

At dawn Sunday, Rockefeller was flown by the Forbes' private plane to a hospital in Lautoka, Fiji's second-largest city.

He left Fiji on an overnight flight to the United States accompanied by a medical team from Australia and with his right ankle in a plaster cast.

"I have not been discouraged by the experience," he was quoted as telling The Fiji Times newspaper before departing.

Rockefeller is the grandson of James S. Rockefeller, who was a chairman of the City Bank of New York, which became Citibank.

Michael Rockefeller, son of then-New York Gov. Nelson D. Rockfeller, vanished in November 1961, off Irian Jaya, an Indonesian territory that shares its island border with Papua New Guinea.

Ola Stillman Rockefeller lies in a hospital bed in Fiji Monday night after he was attacked by a shark at an exclusive resort.

Michael, then 23, disappeared while swimming from his capsized catamaran in shark-infested waters. The island of Irian Jaya and Papua New Guinea is about 1,000 miles west of Fiji.

NEW YORK (AP) — For better or worse or until billions do them part, says the lawyer for Ivana Trump, who thinks his client should get half of her estranged husband's fortune — which he estimated at $5 billion.

Trump

"Marital property is property gained by the husband and wife during marriage regardless of in whose name it is held," said Michael Kennedy.

Papers were filed Monday saying Mrs. Trump had no intention of seeking a divorce and had never waived the right to an "equitable share" of the money Trump made during their 13-year marriage.

Trump had no immediate response.

Trump's lawyers have sought to enforce a 1987 post-marital contract. But Kennedy said that contract "does not waive or release Mrs. Trump's right to such marital property."

Kennedy denied reports that the contract called for Mrs. Trump to receive $25 million in the event the marriage broke up.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Zsa Zsa Gabor hasn't completed half the community service she was ordered to perform for slapping a policeman but is organizing a charity auction instead.

Gabor

Municipal Judge Paul G. Rubin, who sentenced the hot-tempered celebrity to 120 hours of work at a shelter for homeless women and children, said he may hold a hearing to decide if Gabor's plans meet the court's order.

That suggestion left Miss Gabor fuming.

"That Judge Rubin, who I find utterly disgusting, thinks he was punishing me with this but he is not," Miss Gabor said recently at her Bel-Air home. "I have done more than he said I should — this auction has taken so many hours I can't count them."

Pressuring Castro a wise Bush move

President Bush is absolutely correct in setting a high price for U.S. recognition of Cuba. If Fidel Castro wants normal relations with the United States, he must hold free elections, establish a market economy and reduce his military.

In short, Fidel Castro must quit being a Communist dictator.

That may be too much for the bearded revolutionary who still acts more like a mountain man than the leader of a nation.

Castro has never been a man who was quick at reading the handwriting on the wall. He has always snarled at the United States.

He did not conceal his contempt of Mikhail Gorbachev when the Soviet visited Cuba approximately a year ago and tried to coax Castro into undertaking reforms similar to those that were beginning to sweep through the Kremlin and Eastern Europe. There would be no perestroika for Castro, who insisted there would be no softening of the Lenin-Stalin Communist approach in his nation, he told Gorbachev.

Even the actions of his fellow dictator, Danny Ortega, in permitting free elections in Nicaragua, seemed to have little impact on Castro.

If anything, the recent defeat of the Sandinistas at the polls is proof to Castro — who has a strange way of viewing the world — that he is right.

While Castro shows no sign of changing his position, there is certainly no reason for Bush to change his stance.

President Bush does not need to change his policy because he is right. It is not unreasonable for the United States to press Cuban officials to hold free elections and establish a market economy.

Another reason for Bush not to continue his current course is because time is on his side.

With communism crumbling so quickly throughout the world, Castro is becoming increasingly isolated from his former friends. With Lithuania pushing for independence and several other Soviet republics voicing pleas for freedom, Gorbachev will have little time, money or enthusiasm for propping up the belligerent Castro.

Without continued financial support from traditional Communist sources, Castro's economically crippled Cuba will continue to sink deeper and deeper into a financial quagmire. As things become worse, the possibility will increase that Castro will be toppled, just as were his counterparts in East Germany, Romania and other East Bloc nations.

With or without Castro, we expect Cuba to shed its Communist bonds. With the help of U.S. tourist dollars and other forms of financial investments, we fully expect the Cuba of the future to return to the firm financial position it once held.

Until that day comes, President Bush must continue to pressure Castro to make the reforms that other once-Communist dictatorships have undergone in recent years.

NRC's role still all bark and no bite

WASHINGTON — The nuclear power industry just ducked a polygraph.

In a rare show of teeth, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission drafted a letter ordering power companies to sign "sworn statements" that their safety plans for nuclear power plants are what they say they are.

Anderson

But the nuclear industry got wind of the idea, raised a fuss and forced the NRC to drop it.

The NRC's timid attempt to get tough with the industry followed revelations that some utilities were bluffing or taking shortcuts with their plans for providing backup power in the case of a plant blackout.

A power failure at a nuclear plant is considered a precursor to a meltdown because it hampers the ability to keep the reactor core cool. The NRC's safety division has determined that if a meltdown does occur, there is about a 90 percent likelihood that it would be brought on by a blackout.

Nine years ago, the NRC told Congress that developing emergency plans for station blackouts was one of its top priorities.

Apparently, top priority at the NRC doesn't count for much. The regulatory agency lumbered through the 1980s trying to figure out how best to draft safety rules. A regulation finally passed in 1988. Then, after giving the industry time to think about it, the NRC inspected several nuclear power plants last year. Our associate Jim Lynch has learned that the six utilities were: Brunswick, N.C.; Maine Yankee, Maine; Point Beach, Wis.; Turkey Point, Fla.; Millstone, Conn.; and Crystal River, Fla. The NRC would not say which plants raised concerns.

But the investigators found that some utilities chose the cheapest way out and avoided design changes or the cost of buying auxiliary power to survive a station blackout.

One utility's idea of an emergency plan, according to NRC documents, was to turn off the plant's control room and evacuate it to save power. Another proposed plan was transferring abbreviated controls to a panel outside the control room. Those schemes are about as smart as abandoning the bridge of the Starship Enterprise and flying it from a fuse box.

In a rare burst of regulatory indignation, the NRC drafted a letter to the industry ordering utility officials to sign statements verifying that their safety plans were legitimate and met NRC standards.

An industry group, Nuclear Utility Management and Resources Council, immediately hopped on its high horse and complained that the reason the companies were not satisfying the NRC inspectors was because the regulations were muddy.

The NRC buckled under pressure and abandoned its honesty test. It has now agreed to let the industry write its own guidelines for meeting NRC blackout regulations.

Paul Gill, the NRC's lead engineer for blackout planning, claimed that the agency decided on its own to drop the sworn-statement policy. He said the utilities did not "fully understand" the regulation.

Robert Pollard of the Union of Concerned Scientists, is a former NRC engineer. He thinks that the NRC just doesn't want to admit it caved in. Pollard said the utilities "don't want to spend any money to buy more safety equipment."

GREENSPAN STANDS FIRM — If Federal Reserve Board Chairman Allan Greenspan continues his quest for zero inflation, he may be doing it as a private citizen. Greenspan's term at the Fed runs out in August 1991, which is beginning to look like an eternity in the eyes of George Bush. Bush thinks Greenspan is being too tight-fisted with the money supply, which determines how high interest rates will be. No politician wants high interest rates, but politicians are supposed to keep their hands off the Fed. It was created as an independent agency to insulate it from precisely the kind of political pressure now being exerted by the White House.

Don't raise taxes!

The lieutenant governor recently suggested an increase in the cigarette exise tax to help fund the education shortfall Texas now faces.

The Texas cigarette tax is already too high. At $2.60 a carton, it is one of the highest in the region. Louisiana's is $1.60 per carton and New Mexico's is $1.50.

State Treasurer Ann Richards has stated that Texans are already losing $100 million a year in smuggled cigarettes. Can you imagine the shortfall this state would be under if Lt. Governor Hobby gets his wish to raise taxes another $1.40 per carton?

The last thing the people of Texas need right now is another tax increase. Gov. Clements has the right idea — if money needs to be found, it can be done by eliminating waste and operating more efficiently.

Texas is already in the hole on education. We need ideas that are going to raise money responsibly, not proposals that are likely to make a bad situation worse.

Exonerate learning

I agree with the complaint about the lack of enthusiastic support by the Midland Reporter-Telegram for the recent science fair held by the students of Midland schools. Had that been golf or tennis or baseball, an entire section would have been devoted to it like the "Boys of Summer."

When has any mention of the choice of math teacher ever been heralded like the flap when the coach leaves. In fact, often the coach takes on the duties of the math teacher to save money. It sure might but, generally, the math and science scores suffer.

What good are bodies if brains are not attached? We rate low in this town and in Texas in science and math, and these skills are critical for the present-day world. You claim to reach the community, why don't you exonerate learning as much as you do the playing of games and help to reverse this pitiful trend?

Keep a watchful eye

I just cannot bear to see another story in the news of someone beating a child to death. The kind of person who abuses these children should be sent to prison without a chance for parole.

We have to put a strong warning out to these people that they are not going to get away with it. We, as people, have to become more alert and if you have suspicions act on them. We must not let it get to the point of losing a child.

Please take time to care and keep a watchful eye out there.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Turner for sponsoring this outstanding event, and for the beautiful reception which followed for the entire audience.

CHARLEY REESE

American tax laws not the fault of the IRS

A letter from a young man in California reminded me how much I despise the so-called tax protesters.

This young man listened to these idiots, didn't file his proper returns, and has practically destroyed his life.

Reese

It's too bad there isn't someway to prosecute people who urge other people to violate the law.

The tax protest movement is a large crock of hog slop for three reasons: (1) its claims are false; (2) it gets decent people into bad trouble; and (3) its target is the wrong one. The tax laws are not the fault of the Internal Revenue Service. They are the fault of Congress. Congress writes the tax laws. The IRS just tries to enforce them.

Congress, of course, being composed in large part of lying, scheming politicians acts as if the IRS is the villain. For example, they passed a couple of years ago a thing called the Taxpayers Bill of Rights, as if Congress were the hero coming to the rescue of poor Miss Taxpayer who is being ravaged by that villainous IRS.

But wait a minute. Congress, not the IRS, writes the tax laws. Congress created the IRS. Congress funds the IRS. Congress passes the laws by which IRS conducts its business. Congress, not the IRS, writes in the penalties. IRS does not do one thing not authorized by Congress. The IRS is the creation of Congress.

Getting mad at Internal Revenue because of the unfairness or complexity of the tax laws is like getting mad at the traffic cop because the roads are congested. The traffic cop didn't create the congestion. He's just trying to cope with it the same as we are. IRS does not create the tax code. They just try to cope with it like we do. Sometimes they are not even sure what Congress means by its tax code, which is typically about 2,000-pages of fine print loaded with favors and exceptions.

Internal Revenue, like any other human institution, will have its faults — an occasional overzealous or incompetent or rude employee — but if you look at the millions of returns it handles, the vast majority without any problems, you have to say that on the whole it is very good organization. IRS, considering the powers Congress has given it, has been remarkably scandal-free. It certainly does not deserve the malicious slander heaped on it by the tax protesters. IRS does about everything it can to give you the information necessary to not pay a penny more than you are legally required to pay.

What tax protesters do is become a part of the con job that is played on the American people. If you don't like big government, that's not the fault of IRS. If you don't like how the government spends it money, that too is not the fault of IRS. The institution to direct your anger at in both cases is Congress. The only thing IRS does is try to enforce the laws Congress passes and to collect the taxes Congress levies.

Of course a lot of tax protesters are just trying to mask their own tax evasion in high-sounding political rhetoric. The income tax is constitutional. The tax laws are legal. As citizens we have both a legal and moral obligation to pay the taxes we are legally required to pay. We enjoy the benefits of government. We have to pay for them. I may not like funding welfare queens or foreign crooks but I sure as heck appreciate the Strategic Air Command and the Navy as well as other phases of government.

I get frustrated by complicated forms probably more than most because I'm a math dummy. But the forms are complicated because the tax code written by Congress is complicated. The tax code is complicated deliberately so those low-life politicians can better mask the favors they write into it for their paying customers.

It's not the tax collector who is your problem. It's Rep. Smiley Face and Sen. Slick.

Bush less sympathetic to Israeli concerns

WASHINGTON — Arabs and Jews who agree on little else can agree on this: George Bush is less sympathetic to Israel's concerns than any U.S. president in the four decades since that nation's birth.

President Carter harbored grudges at stiff-necked Israelis, but was constrained by the unity of our ally under Menachem Begin, the strong ties to the Democratic Party of most Jewish voters, and the reputation of Israel as a valiant ally under siege.

Safire

Those protections have been stripped away. Bush is dealing with an Israel paralyzed by parliamentarianism, with a voting group here that goes mainly against Republicans anyway, and with commentators holding Israel to wartime rules never applied to its neighbors.

Bush has long resisted America's special relationship with Israel. His secretary of state, James Baker, delights in sticking it to the Israeli right. His national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, and chief of staff, John Sununu, abet that mind-set.

The basic U.S. policy shift was noted last week by no less an authority than Yasser Arafat. "This administration is the first American administration that speaks of the end of the Israeli occupation," he said, hailing James Baker for telling Israelis "to forget the dream of a Greater Israel."

Arafat knows who his friends are; he accurately senses a historic change in White House support of Israel's right to decide its future.

That's why Arafat is so high on the Bush administration. That's why Iraq's Saddam Hussein, recipient of a fresh $500 million in U.S. loan guarantees, feels no restraint in building poison-gas plants and missiles, hanging anybody who dares to inquire.

No wonder that mainstream Jewish groups in America have belatedly come to the conclusion that Israel's friends are in the Congress, not the White House. And no wonder that Israeli diplomats are straining to build new ties in Central Europe, against the day Bush decides that Israel has lost strategic significance.

This administration's policy, grimly fixed on imposing a PLO state in the disputed territories and the Old City of Jerusalem, comes at the worst moment for millions of Jews in the Soviet Union.

Great political-cultural pressures are building in Russia. Forgive me for sounding alarmist, but if resurgent Russian nationalism turns anti-Semitic, as it so often has, no one can say how many scapegoats will be slaughtered.

Gorbachev, to gain American trade, opened the gates to let Jews out; Bush closed American gates, directing the refugees to Israel, which exists to receive them; but Arab leaders, emboldened by the Bush-Baker mind-set, have used terrorism and diplomacy to close off the escape route to Israel.

Come the first pogrom, which God forbid, who in the Bush White House will accept responsibility for failing to facilitate the new exodus while there was still time?

Who among supporters of Israel will step forward on some future Passover and admit they were so caught up with the "peace process" that they refused to confront the real possibility of a death process?

'Happy Land' arson suspect arraigned

NEW YORK (AP) — A Cuban immigrant accused of torching a club to avenge a romantic snub was under a suicide watch in a psychiatric ward today after allegedly telling police he set the blaze because "the devil got into me."

Julio Gonzalez, 36, was taken Monday from a city jail to Kings County Hospital after allegedly confessing to setting the fire Sunday that killed 87 people at the jammed Happy Land Social Club, an illegal Bronx nightspot.

District Attorney Robert Johnson is investigating the building's ownership and lease to determine whether the landlords or owner are liable for allowing the club to operate despite a shutdown order.

One of the landlords is entrepreneur Jay Weiss, husband of actress Kathleen Turner, newspapers reported today.

Weiss' attorney, Roger Boyle, confirmed his client's involvement in the building but said Weiss' company had tried to evict the Happy Land manager, Elias Colon. The eviction proceeding against Colon, who died in the fire, was to have gone to trial Wednesday, Boyle said.

Gonzalez was arraigned on 87 counts of murder committed in the course of arson. He entered no plea.

Johnson, the Bronx district attorney, said he hoped Gonzalez would get consecutive sentences amounting to 2,000 years in prison if convicted.

Johnson said Gonzalez had described the following sequence:

After arguing with Ms. Feliciano, with whom he sought to resume a relationship, he was ejected from the club.

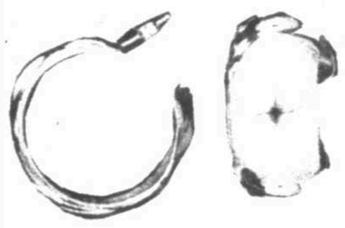

He bought $1 worth of gasoline at a nearby station, returned and faked making a telephone call when he saw someone. When that person left, he poured gasoline between the street and an inside door and ignited it.

Gonzalez watched it burn for awhile, making statements to at least two witnesses about his role in the fire. Then he went home, where police found him a few hours later, his shoes reeking of gasoline. He made a videotaped admission to police.

Mayor David Dinkins discussed Sunday's tragedy while addressing garment workers Monday commemorating New York City's Triangle Shirtwaist Co. fire, which occurred exactly 79 years before the Happy Land blaze. The 1911 tragedy claimed 146 lives and transformed workplace safety laws around the country.

"The sight of those bodies, lined along the walls like so many wax figures, and the realization of the panic and the pain they must have suffered in their last moments, will remain with me for the rest of my life," Dinkins said.

NATION IN BRIEF

AIDS expert protests law

SAN FRANCISCO – Top international AIDS scientists, including the man widely credited with discovering the deadly virus itself, may not attend this year's Sixth International Conference on AIDS in San Francisco because of U.S. restrictions on HIV-infected foreigners wishing to enter this country.

Dr. Luc Montagnier, the French virologist who isolated the human immunodeficiency virus in 1983, told The San Francisco Examiner that he would not come to the June 24 conference unless he saw "some further changes in the attitudes of the immigration authorities."

Fueling the boycott is a section of U.S. immigration law, passed by Congress in an amendment by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in 1987, that adds HIV infection to the list of diseases for which foreigners are excluded from the United States.

Because of international furor over the restriction, the Department of Justice has loosened the rule over the past year. Now, infected people can enter the country if they seek a waiver.

Training needed

NEW YORK (AP) — Sex education has come a long way in the last decade but remains underfunded and overly preoccupied with "disaster prevention" like halting AIDS and teen pregnancy, said a report released today.

The phenomenal growth in public support for sex education during the 1980s was spurred mainly by concern about teen pregnancy, sexual abuse and AIDS, noted the report, "Sex Education 2000: A Call to Action."

Twenty-three states now mandate sex education and 23 more encourage the teaching of sex education, according to the report. Only three states — Maryland, New Jersey and Kentucky — required it in 1980, along with the District of Columbia.

Thirty-three states now require AIDS education, and 17 others recommend it.

The report said the 50 states are spending an average of $648,500 on sex education and $5.1 million on AIDS education.

Such spending levels " clearly reflect the minimal importance this area receives as a public policy priority," the report said. It called for more funds for teacher training and curricular materials.

U.S.to help Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Americans plan to do a favor for the Libyans by bombarding their country with billions of green flies over the next few years to help wipe out a plague that threatens livestock and humans.

Researchers hope to wipe out the screwworm by releasing sterilized male Mexican screwworm flies.

The screwworm normally is transmitted from animal to animal, but in cultures where people live close to their livestock, the flies lay eggs in people's noses, and the worms eat their hosts' brains.

The U.S. Agency for International Development is sponsoring the project, and the actual aerial release of the sterile flies will be from planes flown under international auspices.

Donor pioneer dies

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The world's first recipient of a heart, liver and kidney transplant has died, nearly four months after the triple transplant, hospital officials said today.

Cindy Martin died Monday evening at Presbyterian-University Hospital, an administrator said. Mrs. Martin was 26.

Mrs. Martin underwent a 21½-hour transplant operation Dec. 2-3.

SPELLING BEE 1990

School spelling champions from Midland, Martin, Glasscock and Upton counties will compete for the top prize of an all-expenses-paid trip to the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C.

This daily column on words, their spellings, meanings and origins will be published through March 30. These words are typical of those used in bees but may not necessarily be used in competition.

pri-mor´de-əl

primordial (adj.) — One theory of evolution is that the sun, planets, and their satellites all originated from a "primordial" mass of gas and material. "Primordial" means earliest, first created or developed. The Latin word "primus" meaning "first" and "ordiri" meaning "to begin" were combined to form "primordial." The word can also mean primitive, crude, undeveloped, fundamental, or primary. "Primo," the root word, is used to describe something that is first or "number one."

New jail will open in 3 weeks

By Chris Van Wagenen
Staff Writer

Win Brown thinks taxpayers will get their money's worth when the Midland Detention Center opens its doors to certain administrative functions in three weeks. The new jail is expected to be fully operational by May 1.

"The cost per inmate is probably the lowest anywhere," Brown said of the 36,000-square-foot jail located off Front Street just south of downtown.

According to county officials, the $3.9 million compound is running about $100,000 over budget and about 35 days behind schedule because of late design adjustments.

Still, Brown and others said they were generally pleased with the work, which got a lot of attention Monday during a county inspection conducted by Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter.

Last week, state officials began inspecting the facility, conducting a number of tests. Painter said he expected to receive a certificate of operation sometime within the next 60 days.

"It's been designed for maximum view of prisoners," said Painter. "It's not going to prevent everything, but it is going to allow us to maintain a constant watch."

Guards will certainly have a bird's-eye view of things.

For example, control room design in each part of the jail gives deputies a clear view of each inmate's cell without ever having to physically walk on the floor.

Once opened, the detention center will house 202 inmates — including 100 federal prisoners which will help defray the costs of the facility.

"We feel we'll be full fairly quickly," said Painter. "That's the norm around the United States. They're (prisons) either filled to capacity or are overflowing."

Because of that, the sheriff and others foresee an almost immediate need for a jail expansion.

And that explains the modular design, which will allow the county to expand twice in order to accommodate as many as 576 prisoners.

Painter said the state inspector is expected to return Friday for final testing of a smoke purging system as well as to examine other electronic functions that control every segment of the jail.

Midland County has hired 52 new employees since the jail bond issue first passed two years ago. Many will be employed there.

Painter said the ratio of prisoners to jailers will be 48-to-1. "We'll probably have a little leeway, but we want to begin accepting (prisoners) by the (April) 16th.

In the meantime, the county is encouraging residents and civic groups to see for themselves just where their tax dollars have gone.

According to Capt. Richard Sexton the county has planned an open house on April 7 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on subsequent days after April 9. According to Sexton, there's no better way to "test out" the facility.

Sexton said interested residents can contact the sheriff's office to arrange a guided tour.

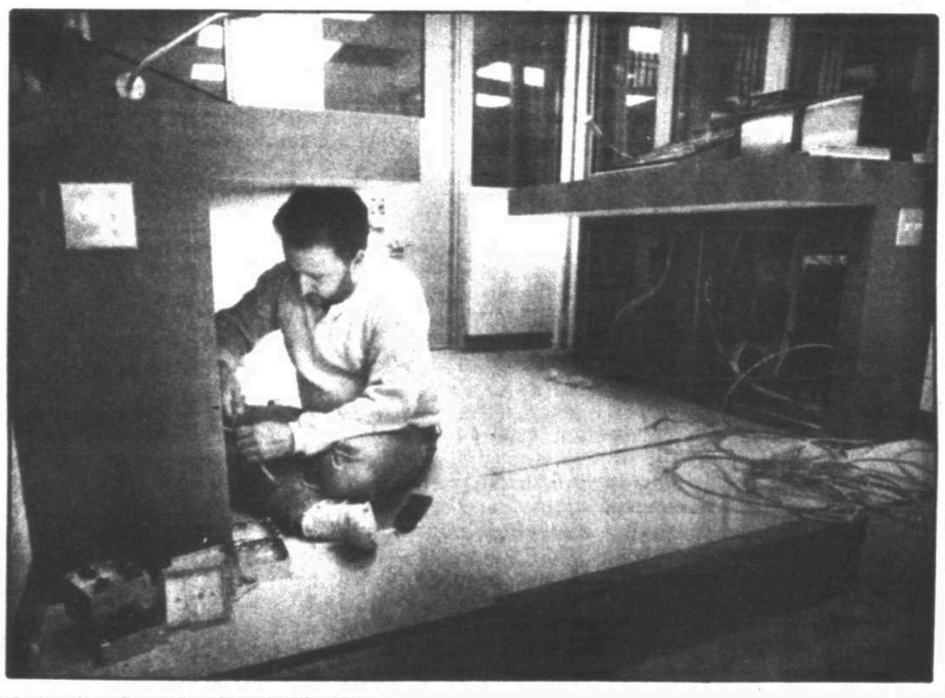

Painter said once the prison is fully functional, he expects to begin taking federal prisoners on June 1.

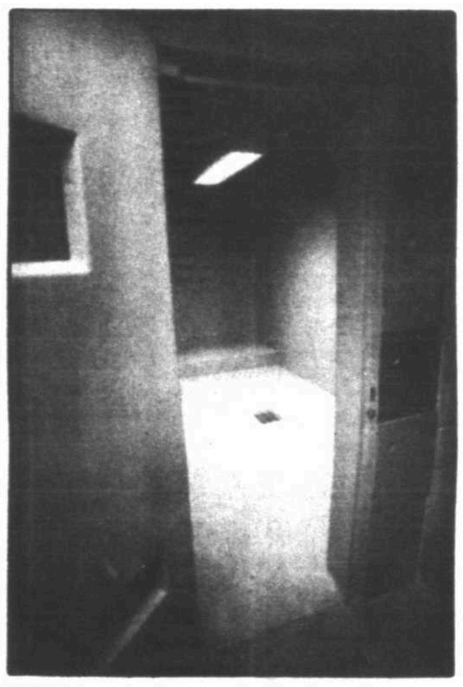

According to the sheriff, all pre-trial prisoners will continue to be housed at the county courthouse jail.

Minority enrollment at UTPB increases slightly

By James Cullen
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Minority enrollment at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin showed a slight increase over the past year, the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board reported Monday.

UT-Permian Basin enrolled 176 Hispanic students this past fall, an increase of five students over fall 1988 figures.

The campus enrolled 47 black students, up seven from the past year.

Hispanic students accounted for 8.3 percent of the total fall 1989 enrollment of 1,476, while blacks were 2.2 percent.

Statewide, Hispanic enrollment grew by 8.6 percent. There were 54,615 Hispanic students in fall 1989, an increase of 4,340 students from the previous fall.

Black student enrollment in public universities grew by 5.5 percent statewide. Black university students in fall 1989 numbered 33,287, an increase of 1,743.

Overall student enrollment increased 3.8 percent, to 399,948 students in fall 1989.

Minorities accounted for 42 percent of that increase, but their numbers are still far below their percentages in the population at large.

Hispanics made up 13.7 percent of the university enrollment and 24.2 percent of the population.

Blacks constitute 8.3 percent of the university enrollment, while they are 12 percent of the population.

More than half of the state's Hispanic university students attended campuses of the University of Texas System. The recently-annexed UT-Pan American led the state with 10,029 Hispanics, followed by UT-El Paso, 8,697; UT-Austin, 5,152; and UT-San Antonio, 4,058.

Of the two "flagship" universities, Hispanics were 10.3 percent of the enrollment at the University of Texas at Austin, while while Texas A&M enrolled 2,770 Hispanics, 7.1 percent of its total.

More than half of the state's black university students are clustered on five campuses: Texas Southern University, with 7,135 black students; Prairie View A&M, 4,937; University of Houston-Central Campus, 2,420; Lamar University, 2,055; and University of Houston-Downtown, 1,786.

Treaty Oak poisoning trial delayed

AUSTIN (AP) — The trial for a man accused of pouring poison around the historic Treaty Oak last year has been delayed at least one month.

State District Judge Bob Perkins granted the prosecution's request for a delay and rescheduled the trial of Paul Stedman Cullen for April 30. Jury selection had been set for Monday.

Perkins on Monday also denied a defense motion to release Cullen on personal bond, which has been set at $20,000. Cullen, 46, of Elroy, has been in jail for nine months since he was arrested June 29, 1989 and accused of pouring the herbicide Velpar around the base of the tree.

If convicted, Cullen could be sentenced to life in prison.

About half the tree is budding this spring, tree experts said.

The latest delay stemmed from a new indictment filed against Cullen, changing the charge he faces from damaging the centuries-old Treaty Oak to causing "damage and destruction" of the tree, a change Cullen's defense attorney disputed.

Travis County assistant district attorney LaRu Woody, one of Cullen's prosecutors, said the changes in the indictment were administrative and not intended to imply the tree is dead.

"The statute allows for proof of either damage or destruction," Ms. Woody said. "It's to keep our options open."

Defense attorney Terrence Kirk said he may file a motion to dismiss the new indictment because the state "can't possibly prove" the tree has been destroyed.

"At this moment, the tree is budding and it looks like it's going to live," he said. "I just don't see any basis for alleging that it's destroyed. There's no witnesses that will testify to that."

"I think some quacks have said that they saw the spirit of the tree leave last August, but I don't think the state's going to call them as witnesses," Kirk said.

City forester John Giedraitis said it would be possible to "argue on either side" of whether the tree had been de-

Grand jury considering 'vigilante' shooting

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas County grand jury is expected to decide Wednesday whether it will indict an Irving man in the shooting death of another man who had gunned down a woman in a shopping mall parking lot.

Todd Alan Broom was visibly shaken Monday after pleading his case before grand jurors. He has told police he did not mean to kill Eddie Edwards, 41, earlier this month, but fired at Edwards to stop him.

"I just want to go home," Broom said as he left the grand jury hearing room. "I'm just upset because I'm scared.

"It's not something that goes on every day in your life. I've never been to a grand jury before."

Edwards killed his ex-girlfriend, Demetria Yvonne Taylor, 28, in the Irving Mall parking lot March 12.

Police declined to charge Broom after interviewing him, but referred the case to a grand jury. A prosecutor's office spokeswoman said it is standard for grand juries to withhold making their decisions public until the next time they meet.

This grand jury meets on Mondays and Wednesdays.

Frank Jackson, one of Broom's two attorneys, said his client's defense rests on another state law. Jackson said a person who witnesses a crime is legally allowed to make a citizen's arrest.

"We think he shouldn't be indicted," Jackson said. "We think he will be no-billed (cleared)."

The shootings occurred March 12, but Broom fled the scene and turned himself in to police two days later. He told reporters he left because he was afraid he would be treated as a criminal.

Deaf lifeguard teaches lifesaving classes

AP Laserphoto

By ERIN BLAIR

BIG SPRING (AP) — In the pool area at the YMCA, Mike McCarthy straps a belt across his chest, demonstrating how it acts as a leash to keep the rescue tube with him as he dives into the water.

"It keeps your hands free for swimming," he said. And, in McCarthy's case, for signing as well.

The 25-year-old Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf student is teaching the first lifeguard training class at the YMCA. He said it's much harder than the advanced lifesaving classes the Y usually offers because it uses rescue equipment, including the tube, in addition to carry and assist lifesaving techniques. It teaches water safety for lakes, rivers and oceans.

He's been a lifeguard at the Y since September and has taught lifesaving classes for the past year there and at the State Hospital.

"I have no real problems teaching because I grew up with hearing people and I feel comfortable with them. I like this class right now, though I get a little emotional sometimes because I have to explain things again and again," McCarthy said.

"You can talk through body language and interpreters. Sometimes it's hard to get the communication straight, but you have to be a people person to teach," he said.

His sister Tara is interpreting for the class, which works well for her, since she's earning her lifeguard certificate at the same time.

McCarthy doesn't think what he's doing — working as a deaf person in a hearing world — is all that special or noteworthy.

"There's a lot of deaf people who teach sports — deaf people can do anything they're motivated to do," he said.

McCarthy's been swimming since he jumped off the high dive at age 3. He's rescued between 15 and 20 people in the past nine years.

"I remember the first victim I ever saved. I kept thinking, 'should I get the pole or the shepherd's crook, should I go into the water to save him or get him from the side, should I do an armpit tow or a cross chest carry?' So I jumped in and did a cross chest carry and it was just like class but more serious," he said.

McCarthy said about 20,000 people die of drowning every year, most of them in lakes, ponds, rivers and oceans, where it's harder to find them.

"We need a lot more lifeguards than we have," he said.

His pupils in the class say he's a good teacher. "It surprises me how good he does. He's deaf but he knows what to tell us," said Christy Webb, a Big Spring High School student.

Class member Amy Weaver agreed. She knows a little sign language, but depends on the interpretation for lectures. "It works well. He signs it and she tells all of it."

Bob Coltrane, a SWCID recruiter, said there aren't many jobs open to the deaf in Big Spring.

"Part-time jobs are OK, like Don Newsom's or Wal-Mart — typical college jobs. But most of our areas of training don't have jobs here," Coltrane said.

SWCID teaches photography retouching and restoration and dental lab technology, among other technical programs.

"Howard College trains for jobs that will benefit the community, we do it more to benefit students who might otherwise not get an education," he said. SWCID's emphasis is on preparing students to work in a hearing world.

Graduates have a good chance of getting jobs outside of Big Spring, he said. "Dallas, Austin and Houston are good. Most deaf people have a tendency to move to high population centers like that because there are more government businesses there that are more likely to hire deaf people and give them a chance to prove themselves. And where there are more deaf people working, there's more social activities.

"The whole thing here in town is they're getting an education and getting out of here," Coltrane said.

McCarthy said he would like to get a full-time job with the Red Cross teaching handicapped children water safety.

Come summer, he'll show children how to swim, canoe and be safe in the water at the Lions Club Camp in Kerrville, where he has been a counselor for several years. This year he'll be the assistant waterfront director and Tara will be a waterfront counselor at the camp for deaf, blind, handicapped and diabetic children.

Area students to participate in UIL tournament

Staff Report

Abilene, Odessa and Midland high school students will be competing in the 4-5A University Scholastic League Academic tournament Friday and Saturday at Midland High School

Among the areas of competition are speech and debate, journalism, science and typing.

"Although the UIL is more often associated with athletic competition, more students compete in the academic contests," said Dr. Bailey Marshall, UIL director. "In fact, the League began as a debating league in 1910 and then later merged with a track and field association to form the basis for the current organization. Each year, more than a third of the total participation in UIL activities involved academic contests."

Texas has the nation's most comprehensive slate of adacemic contests.

"Long before the development of other academic-based competitions, the UIL was sponsoring contests in writing, speaking, mathematics and science," Marshall added.

UIL academic contests cover several subject areas including math, science, business, language arts, journalism, speech, and theatre.

Recently, accounting and literary criticism events were added, and contests in current events and computer skills will come into the program next year.

The purpose of the UIL academic program is to use competition to develop students' higher order thinking skills. "A primary objective for League directors is to maintain a high correlation between what is taught in the classroom and what is required of students involved in extracurricular competition," said Janet Wiman, UIL academic director.

"Consequently, as much emphasis is placed on the educational context of the contests as is placed on the contests themselves."

Students who compete at the State Meet level also qualify for Texas Interscholastic League Foundation scholarships. During 1988-89, the TILF awarded more than $460,000 in scholarship grants to 360 college students who competed at the UIL State Academic Meet. In 1989-90, the TILF expects to award an estimated 380 new and renewed grants, valued at approximatley $489,000. The TILF funds are made possible through grants from foundations, individuals and families. The TILF has over $1,900,000 in endowed funds.

stroyed in legal terms.

"When a tree loses 50 to 60 percent of the crown, it generally constitutes a loss," Giedraitis said.

"The tree isn't dead. It's surviving," Giedraitis said. He also said recent tests show the concentration of poison in the new leaves is very low.

"That's a good sign. If the concentration remains this low, I think we've got a good shot" the tree will survive, he said.

Kirk said his client will have a better chance of receiving a fair trial if the oak is revived.

Cullen faces a felony charge of criminal mischief. If convicted, he could be sentenced to life in prison, because the indictment alleges that he had a previous felony conviction for burglary.

Defense attorneys have argued that Cullen should have been charged instead with desecration of a venerated object, a misdemeanor carrying a maximum punishment of one year in jail and a $2,000 fine.

According to legend, the Treaty Oak was the site of a treaty-signing between Indians and Stephen F. Austin.

SHOOT: Man just wanted to help

(From 1B)

"I don't consider myself any sort of vigilante. I don't consider myself any sort of hero," Broom said at a press conference three days after the shooting. "Maybe just slightly a good Samaritan that wanted to help someone else."

The 25-year-old copy machine repairman, who also is co-owner of a pizza parlor, apologized for killing Edwards.

He said he watched in shock as Edwards chased Ms. Taylor through the parking lot. Edwards shot Ms. Taylor once, then shot her again in the back of the head as she lay mortally wounded.

Police said Ms. Taylor, an American Airlines flight attendant, had once lived with Edwards.

Broom said he was frightened when Edwards walked by his car after the shooting and looked at him. He said he fired his .44-caliber magnum revolver once at the back of Edwards' car and then a second time, "through the driver's door."

He said he watched Edwards drive off, hit a utility pole, come to a stop and crumple over the wheel.

"It was a judgement at that moment in my mind that I should help. If I ever saw something like that again, my mind would just have to make its decisions at that time."

Woman freed in drug case

Staff Report

ODESSA — A McCallen woman was free on $30,000 today following her arrest Monday for possession of 14 pounds of marijuana, Ector County Jail officials confirmed today.

Martha Alicia Aguilar, 23, was arrested about 1 a.m. Monday after a Department of Public Safety officer clocked her traveling 104 mph on eastbound Interstate 20 outside of Odessa, a DPS spokesperson said.

During a search of Ms. Aguilar's car, police discovered several bricks of what was believed to be marijuana and $7,577 in cash, the spokesperson said.

Ms. Aguilar was taken to the Ector County Jail and charged with possession of marijuana, a second-degree felony, a jail spokesperson said.

its total enrollment, while Texas A&M had 1,138 black students, 2.9 percent of its total.

Higher Education Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth said he was pleased with the efforts of some campuses.

"A review of the state's demographics confirms that there are schools within easy access of black or Hispanic communities which can do more to attract minority students," he said.

The Coordinating Board staff is examining the Texas Educational Opportunity Plans of campuses showing losses or small gains in the number of minority students so they can help those schools upgrade their recruitment and retention effort.

Greyhound offers reward in shooting incidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Greyhound Lines today offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to convictions for shooting at a Greyhound bus or terminal in the drivers' strike now in its fourth week.

"The terrorism must stop," P. Anthony Lannie, executive vice president and chief negotiator for Greyhound, told a news conference. "We hope the reward will bring an end to the violence and help lead to arrest and convictions."

Union officials said Greyhound was focusing on the violence issue "as a basic tactic to avoid going back to the bargaining table."

"We view it as a subterfuge," said Nick Nichols, a spokesman for the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions.

Greyhound said it was establishing a toll-free 800 number that will be in operation from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays starting at noon today.

Someone fired on a bus terminal in Texas and a bus was struck by gunfire in Florida Monday in the latest violent episodes. No one was injured in either of the shootings.

Meanwhile, a California judge ordered striking drivers in the Southwest not to threaten replacement drivers for the country's only nationwide bus company.

A Greyhound bus was hit by gunfire late Monday on Interstate 4 about 30 miles west of Orlando, Fla., spokeswoman Jeanne Fry said from Greyhound's Dallas headquarters Monday night.

The bullet destroyed the vehicle's right-hand mirror but none of the 32 passengers was injured, she said.

A shot was fired earlier from a passing car at the terminal in Amarillo, Texas, Ms. Fry said.

Workers and passengers initially thought the sound was a car backfiring, Ms. Fry said.

STATE IN BRIEF

Bush to address UT graduation

AUSTIN (AP) — President Bush has accepted an invitation from the University of Texas at Austin to speak at its 107th commencement on May 19, school officials announced.

Bush will be the second American president to address a UT-Austin commencement. In 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson gave the commencement address.

It also will be the second time for Bush to deliver the commencement address at UT-Austin. He spoke in 1973. At the time he accepted the invitation, he was U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. A few months before commencement, however, he left that position to become chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Bush's second son, John "Jeb" Bush, received a bachelor of arts degree with honors from UT in 1974. The president's fourth son, Marvin Bush, was a freshman at the university in 1975-76.

The university expects about 5,000 degree candidates this spring.

Insurance panels named

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance has appointed two advisory committees to study no-fault car insurance and the Texas automobile rate regulation system.

Both committees were asked to report findings by October.

Among items to be studied by the no-fault committee are research and analysis of the different no-fault systems in other states; a comparison between no-fault insurance and the tort system; and the effects, if any, of no-fault insurance on motorists' driving habits.

The other advisory committee will look at whether complete or partial deregulation of auto insurance rates and policy forms would benefit Texas policyholders.

The board, which appointed the committees Monday, announced its intention to study the subjects during its meeting last month to adjust automobile insurance rates.

Resolution adopted

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has adopted a resolution calling on Congress to approve a loan program that would make $30 million available for individuals and entities in distressed areas to build water or waste water treatment facilities.

The resolution noted that Texans on Nov. 7 had approved a state constitutional amendment that earmarked $100 million for basic water and sewer systems in the substandard Texas-Mexico border subdivisions called colonias.

But it said the U.S. Office of Management and Budget had announced it would not support funding of a $30 million loan program for building water systems in the colonias.

The resolution urged support of a proposal by the Texas delegation in the U.S. House of Representatives to provide a colonias loan program in the Rural Economic Development Act.

The House approved the measure last Thursday.

TED hearing scheduled

DALLAS (AP) — Congressman Solomon P. Ortiz, D-Texas, has announced that the subcommittee on Fisheries and Wildlife Conservation and the Environment of the U.S. House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee will hold a hearing to discuss the use of turtle excluder devices by shrimpers.

Ortiz, who has been an avid proponent of shrimpers, made the announcement in Washington, D.C., Monday. The hearing is scheduled May 1.

Second education session planned

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements is giving lawmakers a second 30-day special session to answer court orders calling for the reform of the school finance system and the method of electing state judges.

"We're not making any progress ... I'm going to have to call them back into another special session," Clements said Monday before announcing lawmakers will return to Austin for a session beginning April 2. The current session must expire at midnight Wednesday.

Clements called lawmakers into special session Feb. 27 — two weeks before the March 13 primary elections — after the Texas Supreme Court last year ruled the school finance system is unconstitutional and a federal judge said the system of electing state judges in several counties violates the federal Voting Rights Act.

Some lawmakers predicted then that political concerns could hamper the progress of legislation, but Clements said he has no regrets about the session's timing.

"I think it was the right thing to do," he said. "It brings a tight focus to the issues."

The Supreme Court gave lawmakers until May 1 to reform the school finance system after finding glaring disparities between property-rich and property-poor school districts. The $13.5 billion-a-year system relies on a combination of local property taxes, state aid and some federal funds.

On the judicial issue, U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland said the countywide method of electing state judges in the nine urban counties unlawfully diluted minority voting power.

Lawmakers have focused on school finance reform this session, but the issue stalled Thursday when the House rejected a plan to put $511 million more into public schools in 1990-91.

Senators earlier approved a $1.2 billion measure, and legislative leaders had hoped differences could be worked out in a House-Senate conference committee.

The House Public Education and Appropriations committees plan a joint meeting Tuesday, and Lewis said he would like them to come up with an agreement that could win House approval early in the next session.

"I think what you will see is that the House will address an education bill and some other matters in the first 10 days of the next session and be through with it," Lewis said.

Clements said he will keep lawmakers in session longer than the May 1 deadline, if that's what it takes to get a bill that doesn't require new state taxes.

The governor estimated that level at $250 million to $300 million, although Lewis said cutting that much money from other parts of the budget could be painful.

"There will be no tax increase. I don't think the Supreme Court is going to put me in jail," Clements said. "If we run past the deadline, we run past the deadline, but we're going to be here until we get a reasonable bill that the people of Texas will be happy with and that I can accept — and that means with no new taxes, period."

Thank-you messages planned for Gorbachev

HOUSTON (AP) — At the beep, please leave a message for Mikhail Gorbachev.

Tinsley

A Huntsville restaurateur wants 2 million Americans to join him in thanking the Soviet president for his work to advance peace in Eastern Europe.

John David Tinsley, who owns four restaurants in Huntsville and Waco, says he plans to deliver the recorded message to Gorbachev on July 4.

Tinsley is organizing the thank-you note through a non-profit 900-telephone number.

"The elimination of the Iron Curtain — the Berlin Wall — brought the prospects for a better means of communication, a better chance for peace throughout the world," Tinsley said at a Monday news conference. "I want to say thanks to Mr. Gorbachev and extend a hand and thank him for his efforts."

Tinsley said that by encouraging other countries' efforts toward democracy and freedom, Americans can ensure their own future.

The message to Gorbachev reads: "We the people of the United States of America have watched the recent events in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union with amazement, inspiration and joy. This is our personal and united message of support. For your courageous leadership which has brought life to hope for the future, we thank you.

"We offer millions of congratulations on your historic accomplishments and our prayers for world peace."

Callers who phone 1-900-988-TIME will have 30 seconds to record their name and address and possibly a short personal message for Gorbachev, Tinsley said.

Tinsley said he has donated about $30,000 in seed money to begin the project, but expects the effort to pay for itself.

UT acquires diaries, papers of suffragette

AUSTIN (AP) — The diaries of a leading Texan suffragette who was instrumental in getting women the right to vote have been purchased by the University of Texas.

The diaries of Jane Yelvington McCallum of Austin, are valuable because Ms. McCallum was one of the top women activists at the time, a university official says.

"She was in the thick of one of the most important events in Texas history, and that was getting women the right to vote," said Katherine Adams, assistant director of the Barker Texas History Center.

Her diaries, which offer a personal view of history in the making, were among a collection of her papers recently purchased by the center through a matching grant from the Foundation for Women's Resources.

"McCallum is as important to Texas history as Sam Houston, David Crockett and James Bowie," said Cathy Bonner, president of the foundation's board of directors.

On June 28, 1919 when the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was ratified, Ms. McCallum wrote in her diary: "It's all over — I cannot realize that this thing we've been waging a terrific fight for is now actually a matter of history.

"Somehow feel too thankful to be jubilant. We've a great responsibility and I pray God we may meet it squarely and successfully."

Ms. McCallum later became Texas' first female secretary of state from 1927 to 1933 and continued fighting for free mother and infant medical care, baby clinics and library books for all Texans.

The announcement was reported Monday, exactly 72 years after former Gov. William P. Hobby Sr. signed a bill into law granting women the right to vote in the July 1918 primary elections.

The collection includes diaries, correspondences, photographs and newspaper clippings. Ms. Bonner would not say how much was paid for the collection.

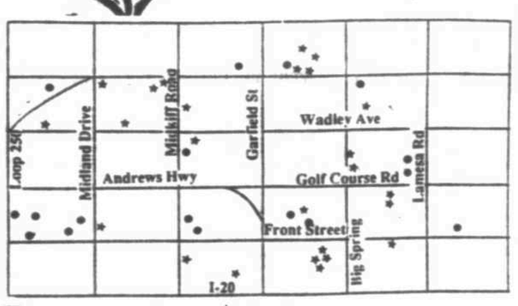

Ms. Adams said the first order of business is to organize the collection.

Daylight Donuts now baking daily at Big Spring location

Okley Beggs, left, and Ronda Bowman bake donuts and pastries daily at Daylight Donuts, 2910 N. Big Spring. Products are for sale 24 hours a day.

Daylight Donuts managers Ronda Bowman and Okley Beggs have recently graduated from baking school in Tulsa, Okla. They have wasted no time in producing delicious donuts and pastries in the new cooking facilities at 2910 N. Big Spring, in the Kent Kwik convenience store.

Ronda and Okley bake more than 40 dozen items daily. A large variety of donuts, as well as the popular Malsovit diet and health bread, are available for sale 24 hours a day.

Ronda's day begins at 1 a.m. She makes sure the icing is stirred, the glazes are ready and the fryers are hot. She cuts all of the raised products, rolls all of the cake products and then fries them. When the baking is completed, she runs the cash register.

Ronda, a single mother of four, has been baking for four years. She started out specializing in cheesecakes and progressed to donut making.

"I enjoyed training school, and the classroom hands-on experience," she said. Her favorite product to make for her customers are "do-knots" and honeybuns.

Okley, a former Pizza Inn manager, works a different shift than Ronda. He bakes and does the bookkeeping for the store as well.

He also enjoyed baking school and commented, "I thought it gave me lots of ideas and actually taught me about the product."

Daylight Donuts, 2910 N. Big Spring, as well as Happy Days Donuts, 315 N. Midland Drive caters to its own locale in different ways.

For example, only the Big Spring store offers "do-knots" and honeybuns. Both stores are now in the process of trying to identify their customers' preferences. Be sure to tell them what you like!

At both stores, all of the raised products are cholesterol free and all are fried in cholesterol free shortening.

Eddy Willmon, owner of Happy Days Donuts, recently explained about the donut and pastry offerings in his store.

On a typical day, he and his bakers make blueberry cake, apple spice cake, buttermilk sticks and old-fashioned sticks made with fresh buttermilk. Cake donuts with various icings and sprinkles are available.

The menu is enhanced on the weekends with a special, delicious double chocolate cake donut. Because coconut cream is used in the recipe, it tastes just like a German chocolate cake. Tasty!

Scrumptious yeast raised products, in addition to the cholesterol free items, include Bismarks (jelly-filled donuts) Long Johns, cinnamon twists, bear claws, pine cones, butterflies, cinnamon rolls and apple fritters.

Fried pies come in a variety of flavors such as cherry, apple, apricot, peach and lemon.

A product which is exclusive to Daylight Donut shops is a honey wheat raised donut. It is a yeast raised product flavored with honey and contains wheat bran or oat bran.

If you get too fat on donuts, try the healthy, fiber-rich Malsovit diet bread. Malsovit is now made with and without raisins. Future plans involve producing an apricot health bread similar to Malsovit.

Another future plan to be announced soon is the Happy Days-/Daylight Donuts brunch. Coming to the menu are fried meat pies that are a meal in themselves. Watch for smoked link sausage with cheese, a Cajun pie made of ham and cheese and a hamburger pie.

So stop by soon at either location for delicious, fresh-made donuts and breads that are mouthwatering! Try the Daylight Donuts store, open 24 hours a day, at 2910 N. Big Spring. Or try Happy Days Donuts at 315 N. Midland Drive, open from 6 a.m. to noon.

Adventure Travel: Sail away on a terrific cruise vacation

If you have never been on a cruise before, you probably have some questions about cruises. Patsy Welmaker and the staff of Adventure Travel would like to take this opportunity to answer some of those questions.

How much does a cruise vacation cost? Isn't it expensive?

A cruise is one of the best travel values on the market today. The price of a ticket includes all of your meals, your stateroom, daytime activities, nighttime parties and entertainment, plus transportation to some of the most popular ports in the world.

For once, you'll know what your vacation will end up costing before you go. Moreover, you'll find there is a wide variety of cruise vacation options from which to choose. Compare a cruise to the total cost of other vacation options. You'll be amazed at the value.

Can I book on short notice?

Even the most popular cruises sometimes have space available because of late cancellations. So, let Adventure Travel check. But, to get just exactly the ship, cabin and sailing date you want, you should plan and book early. Then just sit back and anticipate all the fun you're going to have!

Will it cost more if a travel agency makes the arrangements?

No. Though Adventure Travel takes all the headache out of your planning, it will not cost you any more than if you'd done the work yourself.

Can I travel alone?

Cruising is ideal for people travelling alone, because it's so easy to meet other people. In fact, most ships have parties just for singles — early on — so you can start to be involved right away. Most ships have single cabins as well as single rates for double staterooms. In many cases, a cruise line will even find you a roommate to share a double if you ask them.

Are there different classes on cruise ships?

Today's cruise ships are "one-class" ships. This means everyone on board has the freedom to take advantage of all the ship's facilities. The price of a stateroom is based on its size and location.

Whether you choose an outside stateroom, Promenade deck or a stateroom on a lower deck inside, everyone enjoys the same courteous treatment, menus, dining room service, activities and entertainment.

Can I share a stateroom?

Yes. What's more, since most ships offer accommodations for third and/or fourth persons sharing the same stateroom, additional passengers who share the same room benefit from reduced rates.

What's there to do on a cruise? Won't I get bored?

Hardly. Being at sea gives you a feeling of freedom few places can offer. There's plenty of room. In fact, it will probably take you two or three days to discover what's on board. On a cruise ship, you'll have the opportunity to roam and enjoy all the public rooms and deck space plus the added adventure of exploring new and exciting ports of call — either on your own or on a guided tour with your shipmates.

Cruise ships are like floating resorts, with all the things fine resorts have to offer.

What's there to do in port?

All kinds of things. You can go off on your own or take a guided tour. The opportunities are limitless. You can search ancient ruins, ride a raft over river rapids, climb a waterfall, see the birthplace of civilization, follow the footsteps of history, eat native foods, sun on some of the world's best beaches, sail, snorkel, play golf or tennis.

You can go to a nightclub, try your hand at a casino or take a cable car to the top of the mountains. You'll find there's ample time in each port to get a taste of its unique flavor.

Is there anything for children to do?

If your children enjoy swimming, sports, deck games, movies and the adventure of seeing new and exotic places, they'll love cruising. During the summer and holidays, many cruise lines offer supervised children's programs. Best of all, children generally travel at a substantially reduced rate.

If you've never been on a cruise, now is the time to call Adventure Travel at 683-4211 or stop by 16 Oakridge Square. With Adventure Travel to take care of all the arrangements, you'll have the time of your life. If you have already experienced the wonder of a cruise vacation, maybe it's time for another one.

MIDA computers make perfect graduation gifts, business boosters

The future's so bright...for MIDA Connecting Point Computer Center, for graduating seniors and for the micro computer industry. Come in and take a look at the future as it relates to your home and business at MIDA, located in Midland Plaza at 3001 W. Loop 250.

Now is the time to begin planning for the perfect graduation gift. The needs of college students have changed dramatically over the past few years. Today, computers are considered a necessity in a college environment.

A computer can be used for writing reports, calculating scientific equations and analyzing business financial statements. Traditional word processors or typewriters don't offer the flexibility of typefaces, editing abilities and other applications.

So, why not get the graduating student a personal computer from MIDA Connecting Point Computer Center. MIDA offers both IBM and Macintosh systems that would be just perfect for a dorm room, such as the IBM Personal System/2 Model 25 or the Macintosh Plus. Both are great, affordable and versatile first computers.

Whatever major your student chooses, his work can be enhanced with a computer.

Computers are becoming more of a household item. A home computer can benefit individuals seeking flexible job schedules, such as a new mother returning to work or a business owner who works out of the home.

Personal computers have become smaller and more affordable over the past few years. Some even come with carrying cases for portability.

With computers becoming more established at home and in the workplace, it makes good sense to put your trust in someone who knows and understands the industry and its products.

MIDA is the oldest retail computer dealer in the Permian Basin, and has been serving the area continuously since 1978. They strive to keep themselves, as well as their clients, abreast of the fast-paced computer world.

MIDA is committed to providing every client with quality service, support and competitive pricing. Keeping this goal in mind has been instrumental in MIDA's longevity while other computer stores have come and gone.

MIDA's staff represents the largest wealth of computer knowledge in the Permian Basin. Owner Ray Messinger has more than 18 years of computer experience. Vice president Bill Kersh and Ron Bolin, sales/educational specialist, each have eight years experience working with personal computers.

Scott Hudson and Bob Armistad lead a four-man service department which provides unmatched quality control and speed.

Shelby Marshall, office manager, has 20 years retail experience. Her expertise in all office management areas means all questions and problems are handled quickly and efficiently.

Sales and marketing director Susan Houdyshell provides marketing direction for MIDA Corporation, as well as sales support for the MIDA sales team. Sales representatives Bryan Baker, Michelle Jackson, Marc Jacobsma and Karl Schmidt are continually being trained in the newest technologies and products in the microcomputer industry.

Other staff members are Ron Leigh, Justin Colley, Chris Hendricks and Irma Villa. The dedication and uncompromising standards of these individuals and the rest of the MIDA team ensures that no one in the Permian Basin is better qualified to fulfill your computer needs.

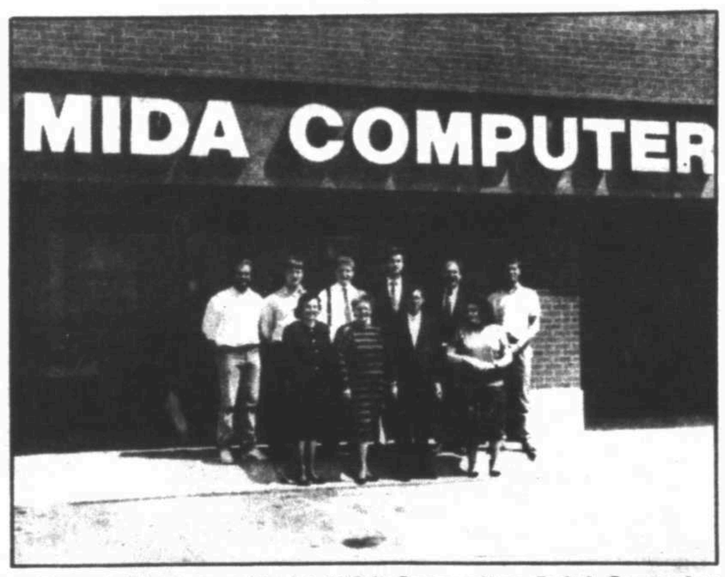

MIDA offers sales and service on IBM and Apple computers, plus a large inventory of supported software. MIDA is an IBM Advanced Products Business Partner and an authorized Apple dealer. MIDA has recently obtained the Novell products GOLD authorized reseller status.

This means that MIDA can provide both sales and service for Novell networking products. MIDA is also authorized to sell many IBM compatible lines, including NEC, Epson, Hewlett Packard and Hyundai.

With the purchase of a computer system, you have access to training in DOS to familiarize you with your new machine. MIDA is dedicated to helping you learn to use your computer more efficiently and addressing your software support needs.

MIDA is the Permian Basin's only authorized Microsoft Training Center. They also hold training classes on other software products. Training is conducted by staff members fluent in each application. MIDA's dedication in maximizing the potential of your investment allows for a smooth and total transition into your new system.

MIDA employees look forward to helping you with all of your computer needs. Call 699-3078 or stop by the store Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. or Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. for more information.

The staff of experts at MIDA Connecting Point Computer Center represent the largest wealth of computer knowledge in the Permian Basin. Stop in and see for yourself at MIDA, located in Midland Plaza at 3001 W. Loop 250.

Cross-currents make fashion fun, fanciful

By Mary Hellman
Copley News Service

Springs's soft looks invite individual expression. Start with simple shapes in neutrals and earth tones. Then select from the many fashion cross-currents that make this season fun and fanciful.

THE GOLD RUSH

"I think we've been conditioned to think of gold for evening only. But gold should be thought of as just another color to be put on during the day," said designer Delores Campbell.

Fashion designers around the world couldn't agree more. And they offer plenty of ways to add the burnish of precious metals to your spring looks.

Linen blazers top lame skirts and gold gauze tunics slide over gold lace skirts.

Rebecca Moses gilds linen suits with sun-catching gold pinstripes and crafts pants from gold twill. Charlotte Neuville uses metallic fabric for her important shirt-jackets.

For a less dramatic, but still fashionable statement, pick metallic flats in burnished gold or bronze, or wrap your waist with a sheer gold scarf.

And a gold bathing suit will let you challenge the sun at the beach.

LACE LEADER

There was so much lace shown by New York designers that a group of fashion journalists hand-lettered the back of their programs and held them up cheerleader-style to spell L-A-C-E whenever it appeared on one runway.

Still, the fabric seemed a very fitting addition to spring's soft line. Rebecca Moses handled it best, crafting it into shirt jackets, skirts and jeans. Isaac Mizrahi favored lace cardigans and body-skimming lace chemises. Charlotte Neuville showed a lace shorts suit with a matching lace undershirt.

To update your existing wardrobe, try a lace top under neutral linen suits from seasons past or slip into lace flats. Avoid any use — in appliques, for example — that seems fuddy-duddy.

DRESS UP

Oh-oh, Jackie O. Her '60s style has been updated for the '90s, and a key look is the perfect little dress for the perfect little lunch.

A dress with a jacket or coat combines in a new suit. The most modern are curve-hugging sheaths, short and sleeveless. Bare slip dresses and chemises that caress hips also are strong. Even strapless dresses make the rounds during the day under a concealing jacket.

Look for dresses in lace, youthful plaids, supple suedes and even clear sequins appliqued on cotton. Keep accessories simple — a drop earring, nude hose and flats — or go Jackie O. with white gloves, a little bag, pumps and big round sunglasses.

SHEER SYNERGY

At first, see-through blouses, skirts, pants and even trench coats seem contrary to the refinement of the season. But these sheer components that shadow curves and drift with the breeze fit right in — when paired with the right undergarments.

"Some women may be a bit wary of these clothes, so we're offering nude body stockings in all of our stores," said David Cardoza of Neiman-Marcus. Other options are matching or contrasting tank or tube tops. Sheerness also can be muted by opaque toppers such as a long vest or jacket.

A best buy is a sheer, short, swingy skirt, like the ones Karl Lagerfeld did for Channel. For a light touch, pick a chiffon scarf, instead of one in the traditional twills.

A SHORTS STORY

Think of them as short pants or split skirts, but think of them as an alternative to skirts this spring. Every design line from Chanel to Mizrahi featured shorts.

Some, including Louis dell'Olio's for Anne Klein, flowed like flippy short skirts. Other designers opted for more tailored looks, such as Gordon Henderson's "clean-front" shorts and Isaac Mizrahi's plaid ones.

Lengths generally were well above the knee, in contrast with the walking shorts of seasons past. Mizrahi showed the shortest, but paired them with short wrap skirts.

For office wear, team shorts with a long jacket or sweater set, neutral hose and flats. Keep accessories simple to avoid a starlet-by-the-pool look.

Shift dresses with a '60s flair are back.

Saint Laurent closes shows in absentia

N.Y. Times News Service

PARIS — In the best Hollywood tradition, the show did go on — but without Paris fashion designer Yves Saint Laurent.

For the first time in 32 years, Saint Laurent — one of the world's most famous designers — did not take his customary end-of-show walk down the runway. He was in the hospital suffering from "complete nervous exhaustion."

Saint Laurent's show, traditionally held on the last day of the Paris ready-to-wear collections, is always anxiously anticipated, and especially so this time. What the audience got Wednesday was deemed so-so by some retailers. But it was still classic YSL, including the designer's interpretation of several new trends — the folkloric look, short skirts and luxe fabrics. Saint Laurent, however, snubbed the slouchy look and stuck with his strong shoulder pads.

The first model was wildly applauded when she appeared as a "rich" peasant in an outfit that endorsed the Paris trend of mixed patterns and fabrics reminiscent of Eastern Europe. This has been a favorite look in the past. Saint Laurent designed similar looks during the '70s.

Although many European designers, including Emanuel Ungaro and Christian Lacroix, presented ethnic looks, "It took Yves Saint Laurent to put the stamp of approval on the look," said retail consultant Bernie Ozer.

Other peasant looks showed by Saint Laurent were fringed skirts and shawls, dangling earrings, embroidered jackets and tapestry print dirndls in cheerful combinations of red, blue, green, pink and purple.

Not all was velvet, brocade, patchwork and geometric patterns. Saint Laurent included many of his traditional menswear flannel pantsuits, worn with simple crepe shirts and matching ties. Jackets still had bold shoulders, and skirt lengths ranged from knee-length to several inches above the knee.

Don't Drink The Water!
Long-term drinking of chlorinated water appears to increase a person's risk of developing bladder cancer as much as 80 percent, according to a major new study.
"Your water supply could be loaded with contaminant, including bacteria, pesticides, industrial runoff and lead. It is expensive to test for all the possible contaminant, so installing a basic Charcoal-Activated filter acts upon the most common ones.
Ralph Nader states that the approach has got to be Prevention at the Source. (Tap water in the home.)

Clipping foul called on scissors-happy stylist

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've read your column for years, but I've never seen this problem addressed before: Last week, I went to the beauty shop to get my hair cut. I am a very conservative person and don't like unusual haircuts, so I gave my beautician (he calls himself a "stylist") a few instructions on how I wanted him to cut it. Well, he didn't seem too pleased with me and my instructions; then he turned my chair so that my back was to the mirror, and I couldn't see what he was doing.

Van Buren

After he finished and I saw what he had done, I nearly cried. My hair was so short, I looked like a man!

This is not the first time I have been "sheared" by a beautician. After talking to my friends, I learned that every one of them has had a similar experience.

Abby, why do beauticians do this? And has anyone ever sued a barber for a lousy haircut? — SHEARED

DEAR SHEARED: Some beauticians get scissors-happy for a variety of reasons; first they cut off a little too much, then they try to "even it up." Others get carried away, or want to give the customer his/her money's worth.

I doubt if anyone has ever sued a barber for a lousy haircut. By the time the case would get on the court calendar, the plaintiff's hair would have grown long enough to sit on.

DEAR ABBY: My wife insists on total privacy when she gabs on the telephone. None of her conversations are less than 45 minutes, and a two-hour gabfest is all too common.

If I want to talk to her, I must wait until she hangs up the phone. This waiting has irritated me for all 27 years of our marriage.

Am I selfish to think my wife should put her telephone gabbers on hold while I steal a minute of her time to tell her something before I forget it altogether? Or is she rude and inconsiderate for ignoring my need to talk to her? I signal for her to please hang up, but she just turns her back on me.

I know she reads your column. Which one of us needs straightening out the most, Abby? Please help. I'm signing my name, but if you print this, call me ... FRUSTRATED HUSBAND

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Your wife is indeed rude and inconsiderate, but if you've been putting up with it for 27 years, you have my profound sympathy. Next time, try slipping your wife a note while she's talking. Also make a note to yourself to remind you of what you wanted to talk to her about.

DEAR ABBY: In response to letters about discrimination and humiliation suffered by exceptionally tall people, I was reminded of a 6-foot, 7-inch acquaintance of mine. He got so tired of people he hardly knew asking him if he played basketball, he got a shirt on which is printed, "No. Do you play miniature golf?" — J.K. IN LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: You were asked, "What is the difference between SAYING you will do something and PROMISING to do it?"

You replied: "If the person's word is good, there is no difference."

Abby, I submit, if the person's word is NO good, there is no difference, either. — DONALD REDDY, LAKE ORION, MICH.

Service with a smile is revolutionary concept

By ERMA BOMBECK

I read a story the other day about trends, which said that in order to bring more business to the marketplace, salespeople are going to focus on being more polite and giving good service.

What will they think of next?

Bombeck

Speaking as a consumer, it's been a while since merchants wanted our business badly enough to smile for it. Gone are the days when banks used to give us blenders for opening a new account and gas stations seduced us with matching glasses when we changed our oil. Some of us even remember furnishing our homes in Early Green Stamps.

Then it all went away. Deregulation turned the skies into freeways; you had to put your name on a list for a car of your choice; you pumped your own gas; and a band of nomads called "shoppers" wandered from counter to counter dragging their purchases and shouting, "Is there anyone here who can wait on me?" Self-service entered our lives.

When I was in high school, I sold thread in the afternoons at a department store where the employees told an incredible story about the founder. At the turn of the century, he would stand at the curb in front of the store and greet each carriage. Then he would personally escort the shopper through the store. We took pride in perpetuating his style and reputation for making shopping a pleasurable experience.

The rule books on merchandising are slowly being rewritten. A Seattle chain recently instituted a treat-your-customer-as-royalty policy. To the tune of a piano tinkling in the background, salespeople approach you, stay with you to put you in your proper size and follow up with a thank-you note. I received a teaser the other day about a new chain starting in my state that would offer all of the above plus free women's alterations. (Be still my beating heart, which pumps inside this 5-foot-2 frame with short arms and pygmy legs.)

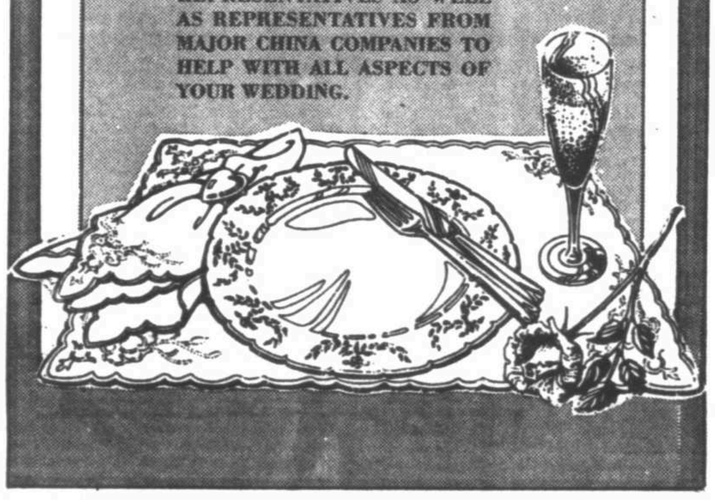

Like most shoppers, I yearn for the day when we can enter a fitting room with garments over our arm and not be treated as an escaped felon. Surely there must be some subtle way to cut down on thefts without alarms going off, security trellises to walk through and a plastic clamp dangling between my knees like an anchor.

The door swings both ways. As long as we're discussing courtesy, shoppers could shape up and adopt a few rules. For starters, they could stop treating salespeople like personal handmaidens.

I will always remember the woman to whom I had just sold a 10-cent spool of black thread. "Charge it," she said absently. I couldn't believe she said that. Over my shoulder, the assistant buyer said, "Could we send it for you?" If that customer is deceased, she probably still comes back for the sales.

Orange is 'in' by other names

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — It's spring, and the color orange is busting out all over.

A walk through several New York retailers in the last week turned up enough orange clothes to do several remakes of "Klute." But, curiously, the word itself is nowhere in sight.

Among the taglines: "cinnamon," "tangerine," "mango," "papaya," "gold," "tea," "terra cotta," "coral" and, even, "creamy tomato."

In America orange clothing has not been especially fashionable, except perhaps in life vests, since the mid-70s.

"Orange simply doesn't sound like an upscale word," said Leatrice Eiseman, executive director of the Pantone Color Institute in Los Angeles, which researches consumer tastes in color.

The French are less shy about it. The March cover of French Glamour proclaims "La mode passe a l'orange," or, Fashion goes for orange.

And back in New York, Fendi has moved from being a thorn in the side of Bergdorf Goodman to a regular bramble bush. The Italian fashion house earlier this month lured away Jack Cohen, the longtime managing director of Bergdorf Goodman's fur salons, to become managing director of Fendi's fur operations in the United States.

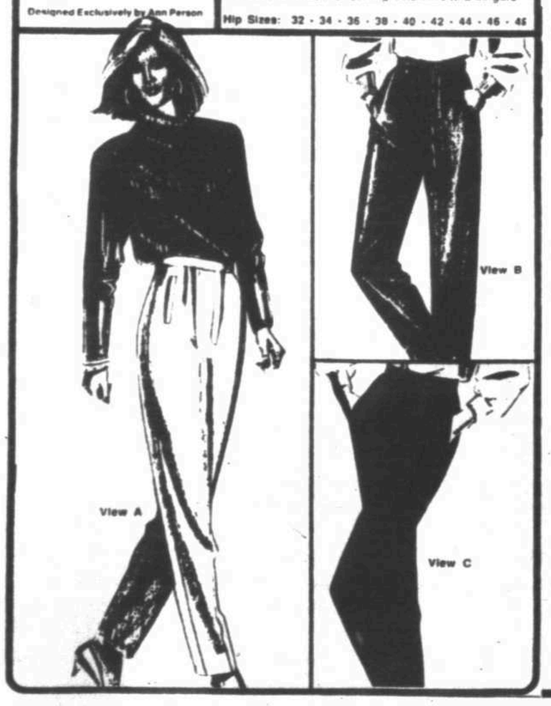

Fendi, once one of Bergdorf Goodman's principal vendors of furs and accessories, was essentially thrown out of the store two years ago.

Bergdorf executives had complained the Italian company was distributing its merchandise, particularly its accessories, too widely in New York City. Fendi responded by opening a large new shop at 720 Fifth Avenue, one block south of Bergdorf's Bergdorf executives declined to comment on Cohen's defection; he officially left the store March 3. For Bergdorf Goodman, whose roots are deep in the fur business, the hiring away of Cohen reflects the continuing turmoil in the fine fur business.

"The only people who are going to survive are the ones who give the customer something new," Cohen said.

Kansas City's Bo Jackson slides into third base for a triple, while Boston's Wade Boggs takes the late throw from the outside. Monday was the first day of exhibition games.

Lockout becomes a distant memory

Associated Press

It didn't take long for the players — and the fans — to get back to talking baseball.

For most of the winter, the talk was about lockouts, arbitration eligibility and minimum salaries. On Monday, it was time to play ball after a long delay because of the 32-day lockout while the players and owners negotiated a new contract.

"I couldn't sleep last night, I wanted to get here so bad," San Francisco manager Roger Craig said. "This sure beats doing everything else we were doing."

After the Giants' exhibition opener with Cleveland, Craig's contract was extended through the 1992 season.

"I'm 60, but as long as I feel healthy and enjoy what I am doing, I'll keep going," Craig said. "It was fun just to be back managing again today."

Not everyone was smiling, though.

"It was a flat-rat, dull piece of junk," Milwaukee manager Tom Trebelhorn said after watching his Brewers lose 7-0 to the Seattle Mariners at Tempe, Ariz. "It surely wasn't worth waiting 30 days for. We fulfilled our obligation to be here. That's all you can say about that game."

The major league umpires, however, stayed away.

The umps are upset that baseball did not consult them before revising the regular-season schedule, and are threatening to stay away until opening day. They say they lost money during the lockout and contend the changes will mean fewer days off.

Dan Wickham is one of the minor league umpires working at spring training while major league umps are away in protest. And he had just settled behind home plate for the Cleveland-San Francisco game at Scottsdale, Ariz., when Rick Reuschel threw the first pitch.

Mitch Webster took. Wickham called ball. Catcher Kirt Manwaring held his glove in place, challenging.

"Open your eyes, ump!" a fan shouted. "You're missing a great game."

Baseball was indeed back.

The first day of the exhibition season also gave ESPN a chance to start televising games instead of negotiation updates from the sidewalks and hotel suites of New York. The cable sports network's first game was between the Giants and Indians.

"I was up at 4 a.m. this morning to do a three-hour talk show back home," ESPN annoucer Norm Hitzges said."I just stayed up, I was so anxious."

So, after much consternation, bring on the season.

Giants 4, Indians 3

At Scottsdale, Gary Carter made his debut in a Giants uniform and blooped a double to score the winning run with two outs in the ninth inning to lift the Giants past Cleveland.

Carter, signed as a free agent by the Giants, is trying to make a comeback after an injury-plagued season with the New York Mets. Last season, he hit .183 with two homers and 15 RBIs. The Mets chose not to resign him after the season.

Red Sox 2, Royals 1

At Haines City, rookie Mickey Pina's eighth-inning home run off Mark Davis, last year's National League Cy Young Award winner, gave Boston a victory over Kansas City.

Pina's home run cleared the left-field bleachers and spoiled the debut of Davis, who signed as a free agent from the San Diego Padres for $13 million over four years.

Dodgers 13, Twins 6

At Orlando, Hubie Brooks and Eddie Murray each hit solo home runs during Los Angeles' seven-run eighth inning as the Dodgers beat Minnesota. Brooks was signed as a free agent during the winter after five seasons in Montreal.

Gary Gaetti hit two home runs for the Twins.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 3

At Bradenton, Barry Bonds and newcomer Don Slaught homered as Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis.

Geronimo Pena had a two-run triple in the sixth off rookie Stan Belinda to cut the Pirates' lead to 4-3, but Slaught homered in his first at-bat in a Pirates' uniform in the bottom of the inning. The Pirates obtained Slaught from the New York Yankees in December for pitchers Jeff Robinson and Willie Smith.

Yankees 5, Braves 4

At Fort Lauderdale, Steve Balboni's two-out, two-run double highlighted a four-run sixth inning to help New York beat Atlanta.

Former TL ump steps in for walkers

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — He sounded like a major league umpire and, except for the "PCL" on his cap, looked like one, too.

That was on the outside. But on the inside, former Texas League umpire Hank Schwarz was feeling the jitters of his first big league game, just like any rookie.

"I'm a little shaky," Schwarz said before Cleveland played San Francisco in an exhibition opener Monday. "I'm a little nervous, I guess."

Schwarz is one of many minor league umpires working this spring while major league umps are away in protest. The major league umpires are unhappy they weren't consulted when baseball revised the regular season schedule after the lockout, and have threatened to stay out until opening day.

In the meantime, the umpires' union has given its OK for minor league umpires to work exhibition games. So Schwarz, Dan Wickham and Tom Mellor took the field before a crowd that included an ESPN

Hogs hope to wear Duke down

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson looks to the late Vince Lombardi, longtime coach of the NFL's Green Bay Packers, for the rationale behind the style of play Richardson calls "40 minutes of hell."

"Our press is not so much to get steals as it is to put wear and tear on the body and mind of our opponents," Richardson said Monday. "That's a stat that doesn't show up on the boxscore. Like Lombardi said, 'Fatigue makes cowards of us all.'"

So Richardson commonly plays at least nine players a game. His bench includes two players averaging double-digit scoring — sophomore center Oliver Miller at 11.4, and junior forward Ron Huery at 10.1. Miller is also grabbing 6.3 rebounds a game.

Richardson's Razorbacks (30-4) will try to wear down the Blue Devils of Duke (28-8) when the two schools meet Thursday at Denver in the first game of the NCAA Final Four. But Richardson, in his fifth year at the Arkansas helm, isn't imagining that his team will be the only one trying to exhaust its opponent.

"Duke puts a lot of pressure on the wings and on your guards," he said. "That will be an important part of the game. Our guards will have to be ready for their pressure. We have to be concerned with their big men."

Lee Mayberry, the sophomore guard for Arkansas who played with a strep throat in Arkansas' 88-85 victory over Texas that sent the Razorbacks to Denver, said he should be fine for Thursday's game, although he still has a bit of a cough.

Mayberry, averaging 14.6 points and 2.9 rebounds, said he's looking forward to playing against Duke's Bobby Hurley. The two were at the Olympic Festival together, along with Arkansas' sophomore forward, Todd Day.

"Bobby Hurley is a good player. He and Todd were on the same team," Mayberry said. "I think he and I could be a pretty good matchup."

Day, Arkansas' top scorer with a 19.3 average, is heartened by his team's play against North Carolina in the semifinals of the Midwest Regional at Dallas. The Razorbacks won 96-73, and he sees similarities between the Tar Heels and Duke.

"Our best game of the year was North Carolina, I think," Day said. "We did what we had to do on offense and defense and we did it against a very good team."

Miller is hoping he'll be underrated by Duke.

Johnson brings Rebs close

LAS VEGAS (AP) — After coaching former Odessa College star Larry Johnson and the United States team to a gold medal in the World University Games last summer, Purdue's Gene Keady contemplated the impact the junior college transfer would have at UNLV.

"I don't want to put any pressure on Jerry (Tarkanian) but I sure wish I had him," Keady said. "Whatever team he plays on has a chance to win the national title with him."

Thirty-eight games later, UNLV is two wins away from that national title. The Runnin' Rebels returned a talented class of four starters, but it is Johnson who turned another perennial Tarkanian top 10 team into a Final Four team that oddsmakers here favor to win it all.

"He's everything I thought he would be, plus more," Tarkanian said Monday. "Larry puts us to that level where we can compete and win a national championship."

Johnson's play on the court has been rock steady and at times spectacular. The 6-foot-7 junior averaged 20.9 points and 11.2 rebounds a game, leading the Rebels to a 33-5 record and becoming the university's first All-American.

Perhaps more importantly, though, Johnson has stood above the turmoil that swirled around the team. UNLV has endured suspensions for fights and academic problems .

Could this be the year for Tark, UNLV?

Reflections on the almost-concluded college basketball season:.

The NCAA tournament began under a cloud in the wake of Hank Gathers' death, but Gathers' Loyola Marymount Lions made quite a tournament run without their best inside player. I would even argue that the Lions would have gone no farther than the final eight even with Gathers.

Grimes

The Lions became America's Team for about three weeks. I bet the moneymaking machine at CBS is sorry Nevada-Las Vegas knocked off the Lions. A NCAA final with Loyola would have probably been the highest-rated tourney final ever.

I have mixed feelings about UNLV beating Loyola Marymount. Running Rebel mentor Jerry Tarkanian is undoubtedly one of the top coaches of his or any other generation, and as such, deserves at least one national championship. (After all, even Dean Smith has a national title.).

Nevertheless, there was a certain amount of finality to the Loyola loss, and that was sad.

Do you realize that not only will there be a new NCAA champion, but that this year's champ will be on top for the first time ever.

There's something to be said for tagging Duke as a sentimental favorite, since the Blue Devils have been so close so many times, starting when Coach Vic Bubas' team lost to John Wooden's first UCLA national champions in 1964.

More recently, Duke rode to the Final Four on the broad shoulders of All-American Danny Ferry, who could become the Larry Bird of the '90s if he decides to return home from Italy, where he opted to play his first season of pro ball.

Now Coach Mike Krzyzewski (how they get "Shu-she-ski" from that, I'll never know) has fashioned a balanced attack based around an optimal mixture of veterans and quality underclassmen. Look for the Blue Devils to again contend for a Final Four berth as long as Christian Laettner and Bobby Hurley are in the fold.

But look for them to come up short again this year.

Duke's Final Four foe, the Arkansas Razorbacks, is a tough team to figure. Coach Nolan Richardson has silenced the nay-sayers in Fayetteville with three fabulous seasons in a row.

Like Duke, Arkansas shouldn't feel like it has to win this year or else, because most of the key Razorbacks are returning next season — and probably the season after.

Todd Day??? He's a sophomore.

Lee Mayberry? Sophomore.

Oliver Miller? Yep.

The Hogs will miss Lenzie Howell a lot next year, but Miller will become the best post in the SWC without having to compete with Mario Credit for the starting nod on his own team.

If the Final Four was played three-on-three, Georgia Tech would be the odds-on favorite. Kenny Anderson is the best point guard in the Final Four (sorry Hurley), Dennis Scott is the most prolific scorer and Brian Oliver mops up wherever he is needed.

The Yellow Jackets have had a lot of talent in the last six or seven years since they shed their Atlantic Coast Conference doormat's role, but this is their first Final Four trip since Whack Hyder's day — 1960 or so.

We will have a new national champion at this time next week. That much is certain.

But so much can happen before Monday night.

For one thing, there will be a couple of dynamite semifinals on Saturday night, or at least one.

Duke and Arkansas seem so even on paper. The guards match up evenly; Duke's Alaa Abdelnaby should offset Miller; and Howell is a mirror image of Duke's Robert Brickey.

The Hogs could have trouble with Laettner, who poses matchup problems unless Credit and Miller play in the same lineup a lot. But that eliminates the potent scoring threat posed by either Howell or Day.

At any rate, this should a triple-overtime, buzzer-beating thriller. My heart says Arkansas, but my head says Duke wins.

In the second semifinal, Georgia Tech's Lethal Weapon 3 offense will be mortally wounded because Anderson won't have anybody to pass to.

UNLV's Johnson will take Scott out of his game, while All-American Stacey Augmon will eat Oliver's lunch. Since neither Johnny McNeil nor Malcolm Mackey are viable entities on offense, UNLV post David Butler will have plenty of opportunity to clog the lane and keep Anderson from penetrating for the layup. UNLV wins in the closest thing to a blowout since...well, the Loyola game.

The final may come down to the skills of Duke's Thomas Hill, Greg Koubek and Billy McCaffrey against UNLV backups Scurry, Stacey Cvijanovich, Barry Young and Travis Bice. The starters for both teams should cancel each other out, but nobody will go 40 minutes at 5,200 feet, I don't think.

When it's all said and done, chalk one up for the Shark — his first national title. UNLV wins.

Vanderbilt, St. Louis vie in NIT finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Vanderbilt, which found success with its first big-man assignment in the NIT semifinals, faces an even bigger test in the championship game against St. Louis.

The Commodores held Penn State's leading scorer, Ed Fogell, to six shots and eight points Monday night and advanced to Wednesday's NIT final with a 75-62 victory over the Nittany Lions.

In the other semifinal, St. Louis got 24 points and 19 rebounds from 6-foot-8, 225-pound Anthony Bonner in an 80-73 victory over New Mexico.

Lobos coach Dave Bliss sounded a warning for Vanderbilt before the championship game.

"Bonner is the real McCoy," Bliss said. "That's what a basketball player should look like. I told my recruiters to get me one of those. He's a man playing a man's game."

St. Louis, looking for its first NIT championship in 42 years, also got a career-high 19 points from Jeff Luechtefeld, including five 3-pointers.

Luechtefeld hit five of 10 from 3-point range, while Vanderbilt (20-14), making its first appearance in the semifinals of a postseason tournament, got a 5-for-9 3-point performance and 20 points from Scott Draud.

"Draud got us off to a great start with his 3-pointers," Vanderbilt coach Eddie Fogler said. "Eric Reid and Steve Grant did a great job inside on Fogell. He's hitting 60 percent from the floor, he can pass and handle the ball, but we kept the ball out of Fogell's hands as much as possible."

Draud, who made three 3-pointers in the first six minutes of Vanderbilt's victory over the Nittany Lions, said his early hot streak "threw them out of what they wanted to do. When we shot well from the perimeter, it opened things up inside."

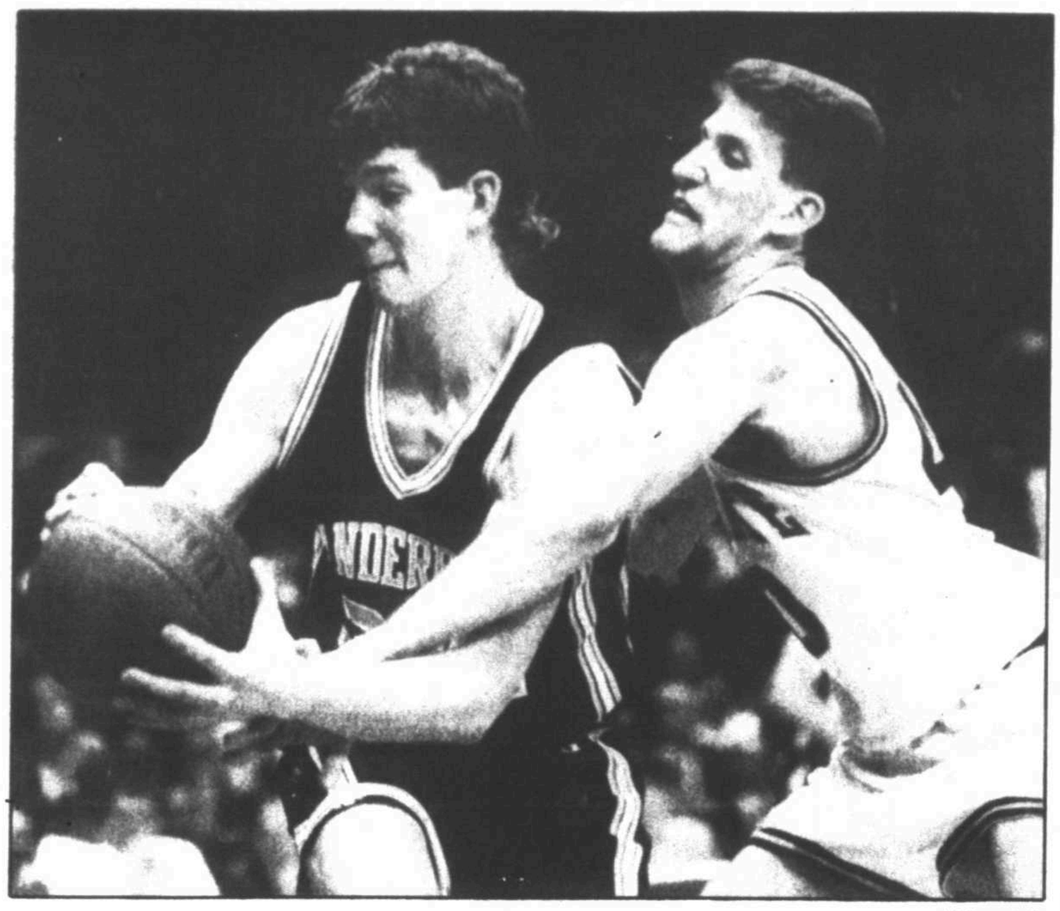

Draud said the team is well aware that the NIT "is not the big dance. But we're proud to be a national championship."

Vanderbilt's reserves outscored Penn State's 29-9, including 13 by Morgan Wheat and 10 by Todd Milholland.

Penn State (24-9), runnerup in the Atlantic 10 Conference, was led by Freddie Barnes with 18 points and James Barnes with 12.

"Vanderbilt made it tough for us on both ends of the court," said Penn State coach Bruce Parkhill, whose team was outshot 54.2 percent to 42.6 percent. "They knocked us around a lot.

Bonner, the nation's leading rebounder with 13.7 per game, scored eight points in the final six minutes for St. Louis (21-11), which lost to St. John's in last year's championship game.

third with one out in the sixth tied the score 1-1 and sent Steve Sax to third. After Don Mattingly lined out to second, Balboni doubled to left to make it 3-1. Jesse Barfield followed by lining a run-scoring single.

Expos 5, Orioles 3

At Miami, Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd made his debut with Montreal with three scoreless innings as the Expos beat Baltimore. Rookie Delino DeShields had three hits and an RBI and Tim Wallach drove in four runs.

Montreal starter Dennis Martinez pitched three scoreless innings, giving up three hits, for the victory. He struck out four and walked one.

Mets 7, Astros 2

At Kissimmee, Mike Marshall's two-run single put New York ahead in the eighth inning and the Mets went on to beat Houston.

Marshall was acquired by the Mets along with reliever Alejandro Pena in an offseason deal with Los Angeles for center fielder Juan Samuel. Marshall is in a battle with Dave Magadan for the first base job.

Reds 4, Blue Jays 1

At Plant City, Lou Piniella made his managerial debut for Cincinnati a success as Paul O'Neill singled home two runs. Toronto managed just four hits and committed three errors, one of them setting up the Reds' four-run fifth.

Reds starter Jose Rijo allowed one hit over two innings — a 425-foot homer by Glenallen Hill.

Rangers 9, White Sox 4
Rangers 2, White Sox 0

At Sarasota, Kevin Reimer's three-run double in the fifth inning rallied Texas past Chicago. Reimer, a non-roster player, is expected to start the season with Texas' Class AAA team in Oklahoma City.

Monday night, the teams shifted to Port Charlotte and Kevin Brown and Brad Arnsberg each pitched three scoreless innings for the Rangers. Mike Stanley had a two-run double in the second.

Rockets keep playoff bid alive with big win

Associated Press

The Houston Rockets are looking toward next season — the NBA playoffs.

"If we can get in the playoffs, we can wipe our slate clean," Houston guard Sleepy Floyd said. "It will be a new season then.

"We're a game and a half out with 14 games to go. I know there are a lot of teams that respect us, especially the better teams, because for some reason we play them better."

The Rockets played one of the league's better teams Monday night, San Antonio, and defeated the Spurs 113-95.

Houston is 8-2 at home against the top six teams in the league. However, the Rockets are only 33-36 overall and 1½ games behind Seattle in the race for the last of the eight playoff spots in the Western Conference.

The Spurs are 3½ games behind Midwest Divison leader Utah.

Clippers 101, Timberwolves 96

Danny Manning scored six of his 26 points in overtime as the Los Angeles Clippers snapped a five-and had a 12-2 spurt in the second period, leading at the half 63-49.

San Antonio managed to get to game losing streak. Tony Campbell, who led Minnesota with 27 points, missed a potential game-winning 18-foot jumper at the end of regulation, then missed two of four free throws in the final 68 seconds of the extra period.

Charles Smith led the Clippers with 28 points, including the team's final six points in regulation.

Cavaliers 116, Kings 95

Chucky Brown scored nine of his 15 points in a 3½-minute stretch of the fourth quarter as Cleveland defeated Sacramento for the Cavaliers' eighth straight home victory.

With Cleveland ahead 87-82, Brown led a 13-4 Cavaliers spurt. John Williams scored the other four points during the rally to put Cleveland ahead 100-86 with 4:44 left, and the Cavaliers were never threatened after that.

Brad Daugherty led Cleveland with 26 points, while Rodney McCray paced the Kings with 27 points.

Hawks 113, Nuggets 102

Dominique Wilkins had 36 points and Moses Malone 25 points and 18 rebounds to lead Atlanta over Denver as the Hawks beat the Nuggets for the first time in their last five meetings.

Hornets 97, Nets 83

Armon Gilliam scored 13 straight points in a 16-1 Charlotte run early in the second period and the Hornets went on to hand New Jersey a team record-breaking 24th consecutive road loss.

Bulls 121, Suns 92

Michael Jordan, playing only the first three periods, scored 28 points and Scottie Pippen added 27 as Chicago snapped the Phoenix Suns' five-game road winning streak.

UMP: Rookie arbiters make tough calls crew televising its first game.

(From 1C)

It didn't take long for the fans, who already were impatient enough over baseball's delayed spring, to practice one of the game's oldest rituals — heckling the boys in blue.

In fact, this time it took only one fastball.

Rick Reuschel's first pitch of the game was slightly high, and Mitch Webster took it for a ball. Catcher Kirt Manwaring, unaccustomed to a new umpire's strike zone, held his glove in place for an instant, checking the call. The crowd took its cue.

"Open your eyes, ump!" a fan bellowed. "You're missing a great game."

There figures to be plenty of that in Florida and Arizona this spring. For just how long, no one knows.

Baseball owners have gone to court, seeking a temporary restraining order that would force the major league umpires back to work. The owners say the umpires' protest breaks a no-strike pledge in their contract.

Today, umpires' union chief Richie Phillips, National League president Bill White and American League president Bobby Brown were to meet in the courtroom of U.S. District Judge Norma Shapiro in Philadelphia.

"Obviously, we'd like to work out some kind of settlement," Phillips said Monday. "We thought we were close last night."

Phillips said he and White agreed in principle on terms for the umpires to return, but said Brown nixed the idea.

So while they try again, so will the minor league umpires. Triple-A and Double-A umps are being used, including many from the Pacific Coast League. They're the ones with "PCL" on their black caps, in place of where the "AL" or "NL" would be.

Bob Engel, Jim Quick and Paul Runge, all veteran NL umpires, were originally scheduled to work the Indians-Giants game

OSCARS: Human dramas on center stage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Cruise can start looking for another Oscar role.

One of the most conspicuous campaigns ever for an Academy Award fell short Monday night when Cruise and his "Born on the Fourth of July" lost at the Oscars to "My Left Foot" and "Driving Miss Daisy."

Cruise's advertising and interview blitz couldn't propel enough Oscar voters to cast their ballots for the man who juggled tequila bottles in "Cocktail" and flew a fast plane in "Top Gun."

Instead, the 62nd annual Academy Awards honored less calculated efforts, including Daniel Day-Lewis, who starred in "My Left Foot" as Christy Brown, an artist with cerebral palsy.

The winner of the best actor, Day-Lewis is the veteran of the acclaimed films "My Beautiful Laundrette," "A Room With A View" and "The Unbearable Lightness of Being."

Showing similar affection for a performer whose career has been guided more by artistry than commerce, the Academy honored Jessica Tandy for best actress.

Her "Driving Miss Daisy," about a widow's growing friendship with her black chauffeur, won four Oscars, the most of any in the Academy Awards on Monday night. It took best picture, screenplay honors for Alfred Uhry's adaptation of his Pulitzer Prize-winning play, and the makeup Oscar.

A surprised Miss Tandy wondered aloud why the producers of "Driving Miss Daisy" chose an actress whose career has mostly been on stage to play a lead in a movie.

"I think I'm very lucky they trusted me with such a wonderful part," she told reporters backstage at the Music Center. "I never thought of myself as a movie actress."

Day-Lewis, in his acceptance speech, spoke not of his agents and publicists but of the man upon whose life "My Left Foot" is based.

"For everyone involved in the film, all our desire to make the film, all the strength that we needed, all the pleasure that we took in making the film came from Christy Brown," Day-Lewis said.

Oliver Stone, who won a best directing Oscar for 1986's "Platoon," took the same award for this year for "Born on the Fourth of July," his most recent Vietnam project.

The account of Ron Kovic's passage from patriotic soldier to disabled anti-war protester won only one other award, for editing.

Other top moneymaking films also fared badly with the Academy.

The award for art direction went to "Batman," the top moneymaker of 1989 at $251 million, which failed to win a nomination in any other category. Another top box-office draw, "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," picked up an Oscar for sound effects editing. The Oscar for visual effects was given to the $60 million underwater thriller "The Abyss."

"Driving Miss Daisy," on the other hand, had to slash its production budget almost in half — to $7.5 million — because film studios feared it would not be the commercial success it is. "My Left Foot" was made for a paltry $3 million, and distributed by independent Miramax Films.

"Miss Daisy" was dropped by MGM-UA and picked up by Warner Bros., which provided only part of its budget. Producers Richard and Lili Zanuck finally located foreign financing and slashed their costs to get the film made.

Brenda Fricker, who co-starred in the film as Brown's selfless mother, collected the best supporting actress honor.

While the Civil War epic "Glory" drew three prizes, another high-priced war film, "Born on the Fourth of July," won only best director for Oliver Stone and best editing.

Denzel Washington, who played a runaway slave turned soldier in "Glory," was chosen best supporting actor. The film also gathered trophies for cinematographer Freddie Francis and for best sound.

"My son said he was going to make one of these out of clay for me, now I've got a model for him," an exultant Washington said as he held up his gold statue, first award of the evening.

"We're up here for one simple reason," said Richard Zanuck, son of film pioneer Darryl Zanuck. "And that's the fact that Bruce Beresford is a brilliant director."

Beresford wasn't even nominated for an award, a fact lamented by several award winners and presenters. In his opening remarks, show host Billy Crystal described "Driving Miss Daisy" as "the movie that apparently directed itself."

"My Left Foot" also had a man behind it who was not eligible to receive an award — Christy Brown.

The Dublin-born Miss Fricker gave thanks to "Christy Brown, just for being alive, and to his mother, Mrs. Brown. Anybody who gives birth 22 times deserves one," she said, referring to the Oscar.

Italy's "Cinema Paradiso," a reminiscence of growing up in a Sicilian village, was named best foreign film.

LOS ANGELES — Backstage was a different world from the show, with far less glamour and excitement. But when Jessica Tandy, best actress, stood before the adoring press, her glow lit up the room.

When she said she's "walking on air," you believed it.

Someone shouted that at 80, she is the oldest person to have won an Academy Award.

"Am I?" she squeaked, her thin, beautiful face, shining. "Well good for me."

Tandy, a veteran of the stage, said she felt lucky to have landed the starring role in "Driving Miss Daisy."

"I never had a film role this good. They could have given it to an actress with more experience in film."

Tandy attributed the success of "Driving Miss Daisy" to its subject matter.

"It's about people and their relationships. It appeals to a young people who can recognize the older people in their families. And older people can go and say, 'Well that's us.' "

Why has her marriage to Hume Cronyn lasted about as long as her career? "Because I like him. We've had a lot of laughs."

Another octagenarian to win the golden statuette was Akira Kurosawa, who turned 80 recently. Steven Spielberg, who presented Kurosawa with an honorary award, brought up that fact when someone asked if he was upset that he has never won an Oscar. When pressed on the subject, he spouted: "Frankly, that question bores me."

One of the highlights backstage was Brenda Fricker's appearance.

"I think I'm the first Irish actress to win," said Fricker, who described herself as "shocked and delirious" that she won. "I would have bet on Lena Olin."

Is it true she was rooting for Angelica Houston to take the trophy?

"Yes," said Fricker, blushing, but obviously overjoyed. "I don't have a mantelpiece to put this on. I guess I'll have to buy a new house."

Meanwhile, Anton First, who won for best art direction on "Batman," said it was "very, very embarrassing for me to have this, and not Jack Nicholson."

Denzel Washington was predictably low-key in his acceptance of best supporting actor for "Glory."

"A lot of people told me I'd win this and that put a lot of pressure on me," he said. "The film told me a bit of history I didn't know anything about. I was stunned that I wasn't taught this in school. Now I hope the picture will inform kids about this slice of history."

Here are some winners in the pre-Oscar categories:

Most low-key: Michelle Pfeiffer wore a navy blue sheath, little makeup and her serene smile — and, of course, stole everyone's thunder.

Most overlooked: Although nominated for best actress, Isabelle Adjani, in black and white and hidden behind dark sunglasses, discreetly searched for cameras to snap her picture before someone finally recognized her.

Best imitation of a bride: Kim Basinger, dressed in a wide white gown with only half a jacket; the blond Southern beauty was the bell of the arrival ball, unable to journey three steps without an assault by the press.

Best arrivals without their former mates: Anjelica Houston came in scarlet and sans Jack Nicholson. Jane Fonda dressed her 10 body into a size 4 blue sequin knockout, but ruined the outfit by accessorizing herself with Ted Turner at her side. (Guess her liberal politics doesn't apply to her romantic life.)

Most embarrassed: Candice Bergan winced as someone asked her why Murphy Brown wasn't covering the Oscars.

Fan wants to see 'just one star'

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — Tom Musser clutched his pocket camera tightly to his chest and stood on his toes to get a better glimpse beyond the heads in front of him.

"I just want to see one star," said Musser, of Portland, Maine, jockeying for a position in front of the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion on Monday afternoon before the 62nd annual Academy Awards. "That's all. Just one. Somebody."

And Musser wasn't even too particular which star he'd like to see. Cher would be nice, he said. But Oliver Stone — now there's a director. Musser wouldn't mind seeing Stone, the director of "Born on the Fourth of July."

"He's good. 'Born on the Fourth of July' — it just touched me," said Musser, who left Maine Wednesday for Los Angeles, a trip he planned for a year.

"Last year, I watched this at home with my father. I told him next year I'm going to be here. He said, 'Who'd want to be there with all those people?' " recounted Musser. "Well, here I am."

While Musser was an admirer of Stone's work, an informal query of the crowd waiting outside the Pavilion for the luminaries to arrive had the star of "Born on the Fourth of July" in mind. Tom Cruise. Make that, TOM CRUISE!

Why?

Because he's a cute guy, said 15-year-old Kimm Mayer of Huntington Beach, Calif., who was teaching her friend Erin Kennedy, 15, how to play gin rummy.

Stocks edge up

The stock market managed a small gain Monday on the strength of early buying encouraged by a rally in Japanese stock prices and a drop in domestic interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about 20 points in the early going, settled for a 3.38 gain at 2,707.66.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 5 to 4 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 826 up, 664 down and 491 unchanged.

Gold plummets

The dollar fell against most major foreign currencies in early European trading today.

Gold prices were mixed, but dealers said the markets were recovering following Monday's record drop.

Dealers predicted little action for the dollar, saying it was caught in a narrow range. The U.S. currency was supported by tensions in Soviet Lithuania but blocked from rising too far by fear of central bank intervention, traders said.

Gold dealers said the markets were licking their wounds after what they said was the sharpest single-day drop in recent memory.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $367.40 a troy ounce, down from $368.50

Interest rates expected to head lower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer and business interest rates are unlikely to go lower in coming weeks despite political pressure on the Federal Reserve to abandon its tight-money policy, private economists say.

These analysts are forecasting that the prime lending rate offered by banks will stay at 10 percent, where it has been since early January.

The prime rate is used by many banks as the benchmark in setting about half of their business and consumer loans, including adjustable-rate home equity loans.

Mortgage rates, which are currently averaging 10.26 percent nationally for fixed-rate loans, will remain close to that level at least until fall, when they might start falling slightly, analysts say.

This forecast is based on an assumption that Federal Reserve officials, who were in Washington today to set monetary strategy, will decide that inflationary risks make it unwise to reduce interest rates further.

"The economy is growing, although weakly, while at the same time inflation is unacceptably high. We have a tug of war between those two factors and that will produce no change" by the central bank, Allen Sinai, chief economist of the Boston Co., said Monday.

David Jones, an economist with Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a government securities dealer, said that while there were indications that economic growth is rebounding and inflationary pressures are moderating, it is too soon for the Fed to know for sure that these favorable developments are occurring.

"The Fed is going to have to wait for at least a couple of months to get a true reading on where the economy is right now," Jones said. "For that reason, I see no change coming out of this meeting."

Federal Reserve policymakers, including board members in Washington and presidents of Fed regional banks, meet eight times a year behind closed doors to review the economy and revise their interest rate targets.

Private economists said they believed the central bank would stand firm against Bush administration pressure to move quickly to reduce interest rates as a way of boosting economic growth.

The Fed last eased credit conditions just before Christmas and has resisted repeated urgings by the administration to make further changes.

A published report earlier this month quoted an unnamed presidential adviser as saying President Bush was "mad as hell" and would not reappoint Alan Greenspan as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board next year because of Greenspan's refusal to heed pleas for a looser credit policy.

As the year began, many analysts were looking for quick action by the Fed to lower interest rates in an effort to keep the country out of a recession, given the fact that the economy in the final three months of 1989 had turned in its poorest performance in three years.

However, business activity picked up early this year, leading Greenspan to say that he believed the danger point for a recession had passed.

Real estate loans worse than stated

N.Y. Times News Service

Bankers knew their problems with real estate loans were mounting, but federal examiners now suggest the problems are far more serious than the bankers have admitted.

At bank after bank, groups made up of 150 or more examiners are sifting through records on construction and commercial real estate loans.

In most cases, the result has been a recommendation for a sharp increase in the reserves banks set aside to cover bad loans.

And those increased reserves cut into profits, making bankers more wary about making new real estate loans.

Last week, large losses from real estate lending led Shawmut National Corp. in Hartford to announce a $128.9 million loss for 1989 and Southeast Banking Corp. in Miami to announce a first-quarter loss of $53 million to $57 million.

A week earlier, Barnett Banks Inc. in Jacksonville, Fla., and Hibernia Corp. of New Orleans announced real estate losses after visits from examiners.

Indeed, some real estate experts assert the tougher examinations are aggravating the downturn in real estate prices by causing bankers to cut off the supply of credit for new projects, even those that are creditworthy.

Charles Cranmer, an analyst at Shearson Lehman Hutton, said a general cutback in lending was already noticeable.

If continued, he warned, it "could mean slower economic growth — in effect, a credit crunch induced by regulatory pressures."

And Andrew J. Singer, president of Ackman Brothers & Singer, a specialist in arranging financing for commercial real estate projects, said, "Bankers who committed themselves to lend a year or so ago are now finding ways to not go through with the commitment, because they know it would automatically result in a loan that runs afoul of the new policies."

So far evidence of a squeeze on credit for business borrowers is scanty.

Home sales down

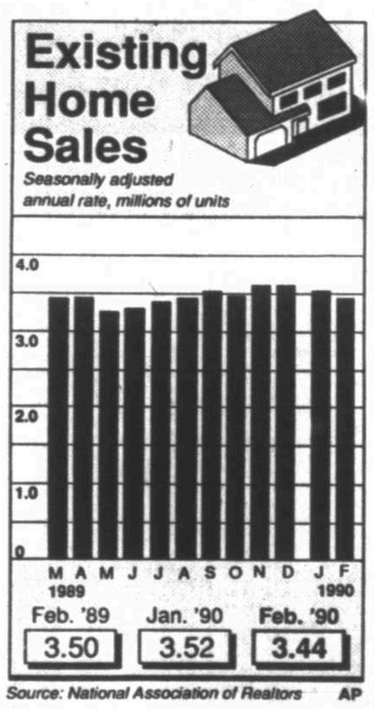

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of existing homes dropped 2.3 percent in February as mortgage interest rates continued to rise, a real estate trade group said Monday.

The National Association of Realtors said resales of single-family homes totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.44 million units, down from 3.52 million units in January. It was the lowest since a 3.38 million rate in July, although it matched last August's 3.44 million pace.

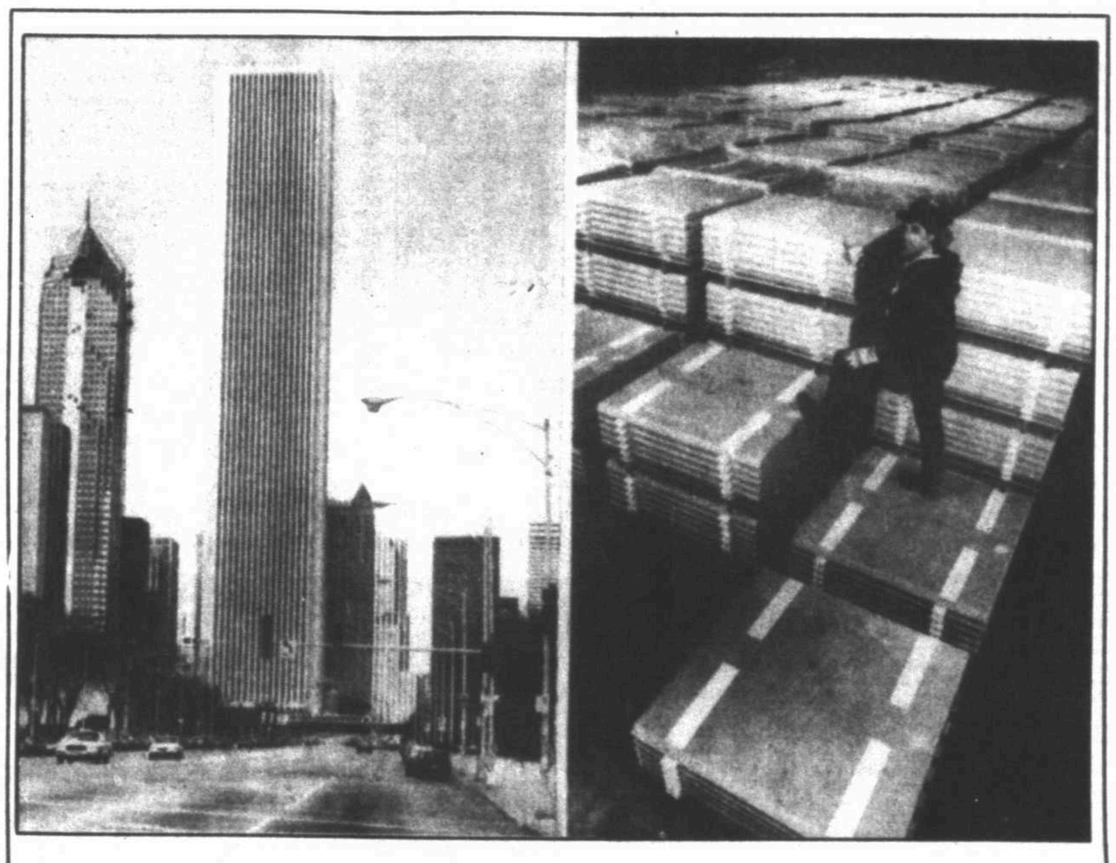

Despite the decline, Realtors president Norman D. Flynn said the sales pace "shows considerable market strength and sets the tone for a healthy sales year."

John A. Tuccillo, Realtors chief economist, also predicted increased sales as rates decline in the months ahead. He said the trade group expects existing-home sales to total 3.44 million units this year, down just 0.1 percent from 1989.

A warehouse worker stands among granite slated to replace the Italian Carrrara marble covering the Amoco building in Chicago. The marble proved too soft for Chicago weather and is being replaced.

Italian marble is no match for Chicago's hard weather

CHICAGO (AP) — Michelangelo valued Carrara marble for his masterpieces. But the pricey stone has turned into a big headache for the owners of the world's fifth largest building, where it's being stripped off the outside walls for safety's sake.

Requests for the white Italian marble that covers the Amoco Building have proved too problematic, and company officials say the stuff prized by the Renaissance master likely will end up in a landfill, or be chopped into gravel.

"We're down to those final two" options, Amoco spokesman Mike Thompson said Monday.

"Everybody I've talked to says it's such a shame," said Paul Peterson, one of hundreds of people whose requests were rejected by Amoco. Peterson, an attorney and former artist, had tried to persuade Amoco to donate the 16 acres of stone veneer to a venture using handicapped people to make marble mementos.

Another offer came from a homeowner "who wanted to see if he could get some marble

Airlines head warns about regulation

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The chairman of American Airlines warned again Monday against trends toward re-regulating the airline industry and pushed for expansion at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

"Bad ideas, for some reason, often seem to have a life of their own. And airline re-regulation — a truly bad idea — is somewhat in vogue these days on the Potomac," Robert L. Crandall told the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

Crandall is a major proponent of a deregulated airline industry.

He warned of a return to inefficiency in the nation's airline system if the airlines are re-regulated.

"I'll be the first to admit that the airline industry isn't perfect — no industry is," Crandall said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Are T-bills protected by FDIC insurance?

By Bill Doyle

Doyle

Q. When I purchase a U.S. Treasury bill through my bank, all I get is a piece of paper saying a $10,000, one-year T bill has been bought for me at auction at a certain price plus a fee. It also says the bank will hold the T bill for me in safekeeping.

How safe would my investment be if the bank should go bankrupt? Are T bills included in the $100,000 Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage? I was always told T bills are the safest investment a person can make.

A. What you have been told is true. Because they are backed by the full faith and credit of our federal government, T bills, as well as U.S. Treasury notes and bonds, are the safest securities in the marketplace, assuming you own them until their maturity dates. At that point, they are paid off at face value — no ifs, ands or buts.

However, if you sell a T bill, note or bond before it matures, you might get less than face value. Or you might get more, depending on market conditions.

Along with all fixed-income securities, the market prices of Treasury securities go in the opposite direction of interest rates — down when interest rates rise and up when interest rates fall.

But the market price changes of Treasury securities will affect you only if you sell before maturity. That won't hurt or help you as long as you keep T bills, notes and bonds until they come due.

Your investment remains safe even if your bank goes bust. In that situation, the bank's creditors could not touch your Treasury holdings, which would be transferred to another bank's safekeeping arrangement.

The Treasury securities in your bank's safekeeping are not included in the federal deposit insurance coverage of $100,000 per depositor per depository institution. They are separate from that and as safe as safe can be.

Q. We have $200,000 in Treasury notes in various amounts and with various maturity dates. These are in a safekeeping plan with our bank, where there is a $50 charge whenever a note is purchased or rolled over to make a new purchase.

We are told this is not exactly the same as dealing through "Treasury Direct" with the Federal Reserve Bank. Is that correct?

A. Yes. When you have your own Treasury Direct account, you deal with the district Federal Reserve Bank serving your area. Everything is done by mail and you avoid the fees local banks levy.

All U.S. Treasury securities issued since 1987 are in the Treasury Direct system. No certificates are issued. Everything is in "book-entry" — recorded on computers.

After you buy a new T bill, note or bond by submitting a "tender" — an application to purchase — through a Federal Reserve Bank, you receive a Treasury Direct statement of account showing your holdings. Another statement is mailed to you when a security matures or is rolled over to buy a new bill, note or bond. And you get a statement when interest or a discount is paid.

Interest, discounts and proceeds from matured securities go by wire to the bank account you designated when you opened your Treasury Direct account.

Roughly the same thing happens when you buy Treasury securities through your bank or a brokerage firm. But the bank or brokerage receives the Treasury Direct statements and holds your Treasury securities in its Treasury Direct book-entry account. Your bank or brokerage then sends its statements to you.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he can provide answers only through the column.

AT&T enters credit card business

N.Y. Times News Service

The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. entered the credit card business Monday with a combination telephone-calling card and general-purpose credit card affiliated with Visa and Mastercard International.

In doing so, AT&T decided not to issue a card on its own, as did Sears, Roebuck & Co. when it introduced the Discover card in 1986.

Although the Discover card has posted small profits in the last two years, it has not yet reached the targets set for it by Sears.

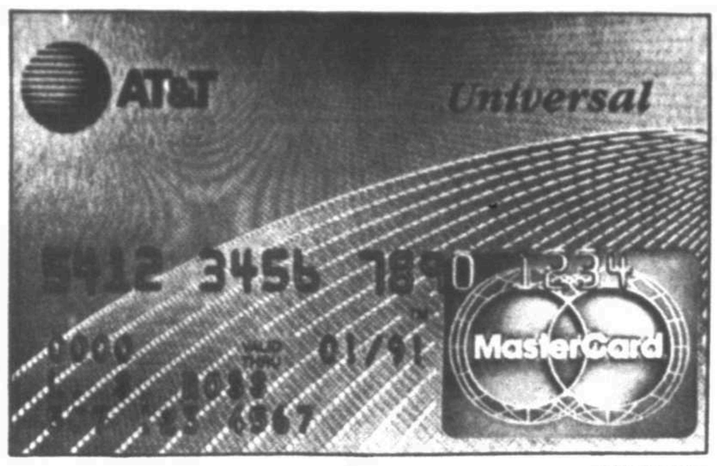

The new cards bear AT&T's name and corporate logotype but will be issued by the Universal Bank of Columbus, Ga., and will be called the AT&T Universal card.

The card is a so-called affinity credit card, which carries the name of a company or organization that helps promote its use in return for a share of the profits earned by the issuing bank.

The banks say such cards offer new marketing niches in an industry that is quite profitable, but which analysts say is approaching the saturation point.

Banks already issue similar cards on behalf of many airlines, university alumni associations, professional athletic teams, charitable groups and other organizations.

AT&T officials said the company was sponsoring the card to strengthen its position in the long-distance telephone market and to meet a perceived desire among consumers to carry fewer credit cards.

The new AT&T credit card serves a dual purpose for phone and credit.

The US Sprint Communications Co., a rival of AT&T's in the long-distance market, started offering a combination calling card and Visa credit card last November.

Another rival, the MCI Communications Corp., reached agreements in the last few months with a dozen banks to allow the billing of long-distance MCI calls to Visa accounts at these banks.

AT&T attached a variety of services to the new card to make it competitive with so-called gold credit cards.

Customers who charge telephone calls to the AT&T Universal card will receive a 10 percent discount off regular calling-card rates.

Those who apply for the card this year will pay no annual fee if they use the card for at least one purchase a year.

The card's intitial annual interest rate will be 18.9 percent, which was higher than most analysts had expected.

The interest rate is equal to the prime rate plus 8.9 percentage points, and will be adjusted automatically every three months.

Most of the 70 million American households that have AT&T long-distance service will be offered the card, said Paul Kahn, the president of AT&T's new credit card division.

A three-year research program by AT&T found that consumers were abandoning single-purpose oil company and department store cards in favor of general purpose cards, and this also gave AT&T an incentive to replace some of its 40 million calling cards, Kahn said.

Best Western tapes in Moscow

PHOENIX (SWN) — This week Best Western International will videotape two television commercials in the Soviet Union with celebrity spokesperson Yakov Smirnoff.

The comedian traveled to his native country to tape a special for the cable channel SHOWTIME. While in Moscow, Best Western Advertising will tape two commercials featuring Smirnoff in Red Square.

One script has him scouting for new hotels for Best Western, while in the other he discovers "Yakov Loves America" graffiti he apparently left behind when he and his parents gained exit visas in 1978. He became a U.S. citizen on July 4, 1986.

This is the second year Smirnoff has been the advertising celebrity for Best Western. The $11 million 1990 advertising plan includes cable television, network radio and pri[illegible].

Best Western will open its first Eastern Bloc property when the Hotel Korona is completed in Budapest, Hungary, this June. The world's largest lodging chain has more than 3,300 independently owned and operated hotels in 38 countries and anticipates adding properties in the Soviet Union by 1995.

SALES: Existing home sales down 2.3 percent

(From 5C)

Flynn said many buyers selected less expensive homes as their purchasing powers slipped when rates rose.

Fixed-rate mortgages rose from 10.17 percent to 10.31 percent during February, according to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

The Realtors survey found the national median price of an existing home to be $95,400, $900 below the median for January and reflecting a larger volume of less-expensive home purchases.

The median means half of the homes cost more, half less.

Sales declines were posted both in the Midwest and South, while sales in the West rose. The Northeast sales rate remained unchanged.

Sales in the Midwest dropped 1.1 percent to 930,000 units at an annual rate while those in the South totaled 1.30 million units, down 6.4 percent.

In the West, sale rose 14 percent to 650,000 units and were flat at 560,000 units in the Northeast.

The median price for a home was $73,800 in the Midwest, $85,600 in the South, $143,000 in the West and $143,400 in the Northeast.

showed bankers said they were becoming more cautious, but other Fed data show both real estate loans and business loans have continued to increase this year among large banks that report data weekly.

Karen J. Wilson, deputy comptroller at the Northeastern district office, disputed the suggestion examiners were causing credit to be curbed.

In markets with office vacancy rates of 20 percent and 30 percent, and with many bank loans already troubled, "is it any wonder that banks are not taking on significant new risks," she said in a speech to analysts last week.

Officials at the Comptroller of the Currency's office say their standards have not changed.

"We are not holding banks up to a new list of commandments," Ms. Wilson said, "we're simply applying our old standards to a changed environment."

RATES: Fed also watches dollar's value overseas

(From 5C)

credit policy is the fact that inflationary pressures increased significantly in recent months, driven upward by crop-killing freezes and a spurt in energy costs.

In addition to domestic concerns over inflation and growth, the Fed is keeping an eye on international markets, where the dollar has been climbing, especially against the Japanese yen.

The dollar's strength so far this year concerns the administration and is one reason the White House has been pressuring the Fed to lower interest rates.

Lower U.S. interest rates serve to push down the dollar's value because they mean lower profits for foreign investors. A lower dollar improves America's trade fortunes because it makes U.S. goods more competitive on overseas markets and raises the cost of imports to American consumers.

David Wyss, chief economist of DRI-McGraw Hill, said that while he was not looking for any immediate action by the Fed, a small move toward lowering interest rates could occur later this spring if the central bank remains concerned about the dollar's strength.

MATCH: Outside of Amoco building gets new face for a pool-decking," Thompson said. But the marble quarried from the Carrara Mountains in north-central Italy is super slick when wet, and Amoco didn't want to be held responsible for any accidents.

"There's serious liability questions here," Thompson said.

The marble covers the 1,136-foot downtown building in 45-inch long panels about 1¼-inch thick, each weighing 275 pounds. That amounts to 43,000 panels and 5,900 tons of glossy white marble, which helped make the 17-year-old building a landmark among the city's skyscrapers.

But planners didn't foresee the effects of Chicago's mercurial weather on the panels.

Overturned beds at a psychiatric hospital in the Lithuanian capital of Vilnius are graphic evidence of the violence used by Soviet paratroopers in a pre-dawn raid against army deserters today. The soldiers took two dozen men into custody.

Leaders urge Moscow to end show of force

LONDON (AP) — European leaders today urged the Soviet Union to end its military show of force in Lithuania and to hold talks with leaders of the Baltic republic.

At NATO headquarters and in capitals across the continent, leaders warned that today's storming of hospitals sheltering Soviet Army deserters, as well as the weekend display of military might, could slow democratic reforms in Eastern Europe and damage East-West relations.

Poland's Solidarity leader Lech Walesa sent a letter to Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev expressing the "greatest anxiety" about events in the Lithuanian capital of Vilnius.

"Violating the sovereignty of Lithuania is an action directed against the process of constructing a new democratic order in Europe," Walesa said.

"I turn to you, Mr. President, to abandon the practice of military pressure and undertake political dialogue with the Lithuanian government," he said.

Norway's Prime Minister Jan P. Syse called Moscow's parading of tanks and order to confiscate firearms "a shockingly unwise step. They have made an already tense situation dangerously acute."

"Monday's cautious hope for negotiations and dialogue today emerge as a tactical game, a completely destructive course, from which we sharply dissociate," Syse said in a statement.

"It is now crucial that Soviet leaders express willingness to negotiate before the situation gets entirely out of control. Continued use of power will not solve any problems, but can seriously jeopardize the results recently achieved in East-West relations."

At NATO headquarters in Brussels, senior officials monitoring events in Lithuania fear "adverse developments" there could hurt the improved East-West climate, an alliance official said.

"If the situation is not solved peacefully through negotiations, it could derail a lot of other things," said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

He said senior political officers of the 16 nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met in a special session Monday and continued their talks today.

After Monday's closed-door discussions, the official said: "There was a sense of the people at the meeting that talks between Gorbachev and the Lithuanians should take place in an atmosphere free of intimidation or pressure of any kind."

He said it was also the feeling of those at the meeting that "any adverse developments in Lithuania would have consequences for positive, international political trends."

He declined to elaborate on the possible consequences.

The Dutch government issued a statement expressing its "worry about the increasing pressure ... that is being exacted on the Lithuanian population through a military show of force."

The Dutch urged Moscow to use "maximum restraint" to "peacefully solve the conflict with Lithuania along political lines."

The British Foreign Office had no comment today, referring reporters to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's statement in the House of Commons last week.

Israel's Labor may seek early elections

JERUSALEM (AP) — Labor Party leader Shimon Peres today said if he fails to form a new government, he will push for early elections rather than give the rival Likud bloc a shot at putting together a coalition.

Peres spoke a day after he failed to pick up a crucial endorsement from Rabbi Eliezer Schach, the spiritual leader of two small ultra-Orthodox religious parties. Labor needs the parties' support to secure a majority in the 120-member Parliament.

In his speech Monday night, Schach sharply attacked the center-left Labor Party, saying it had failed to keep Israel on the path of Judaism.

"Labor has severed the link, severed itself from the Torah, from the Sabbath and the past," the 93-year-old Schach told 12,000 cheering black-hatted followers in an enclosed basketball stadium in Tel Aviv.

Political analysts said Schach's remarks made it unlikely the ultra-Orthodox Degel Hatorah and Shas parties loyal to Schach would leave the Likud camp and join a Peres-led government.

"If it is true what the commentators are saying, we basically have to hold new elections," Peres told Israel radio.

He added, however, that he would continue his efforts to form a new government.

Both Labor and Likud claim the support of 60 members of Parliament. To break the tie, Peres needs to win over at least one of the six legislators from Shas and two from Degel Hatorah.

Caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, head of Likud, told reporters today that he felt his right-wing party stood a good chance of forming the next government and that he opposed early elections.

"I don't think it's healthy for a country to hold elections in such short periods of time," Shamir said. "The last elections were a year and a half ago."

Peres has five more weeks to try to put together a coalition. If he fails, President Chaim Herzog could then ask Shamir.

The coalition negotiations began after Shamir was toppled by a no-confidence motion in Parliament earlier this month over his refusal to accept U.S. peace proposals.

The plan has provisions that would allow preliminary peace talks to include Palestinians deported by Israel or living in east Jerusalem.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviets tell foreigners to leave Lithuania

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today ordered foreign journalists, businessmen and diplomats to leave Lithuania, in another move by Moscow to assert more control over the Baltic republic.

"Foreigners have been asked to leave the borders of Lithuania and temporarily refrain from entering its territory," Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh told a Moscow briefing.

Diplomats, including two Americans, had already been banned from the republic late last week, and journalists were told they could not travel there.

Gremitskikh said foreign reporters currently in Lithuania would be allowed to stay until their previously announced departure dates, but "Those who have not yet entered will not be allowed to enter Lithuania."

Poland seeks refugee aid

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The government is appealing for international help in dealing with a growing number of refugees — mainly from Arab and African countries — who have sought shelter in Poland after being deported by Sweden.

The refugees have topped 700 and are stretching the means of municipal authorities in the Baltic port of Swinoujscie, the PAP news agency said.

The official news agency said the refugees first began arriving by ferry from Sweden Thursday and that at least 300 had been denied entry by that country. It said Poland's government has appealed to the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in Geneva for advice on how to deal with the situation.

The Polish government, in the midst of implementing radical economic reforms that are seriously taxing the Polish people, has nevertheless decided to grant funds to take care of the refugees and has assured them free medical treatment, the agency reported.

'Witchhunt' trial begins

PAPEETE, French Polynesia (AP) — A court Monday began trying 25 residents of a South Pacific atoll who are accused of torturing to death six islanders in a hunt for demons and sorcerers.

Testimony in the trial, described as the largest ever in French Polynesia, is expected to focus on how a small number of people could terrorize a larger group in the name of religion.

Archbishop Michel Coppenrath, the Roman Catholic leader in French Polynesia, said the case involves "simply a religious perversion due to an abuse of trust and a lack of authority on the island."

The defendants, representing about an eighth of the population of the South Pacific atoll of Faaite, are accused of murder, inciting violence and other offenses during two horror-filled days in 1987.

ANC leaders denounce police after five deaths

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Black leaders today denounced police as having used unnecessary force in firing on a protest march with shotguns, killing at least nine blacks and wounding more than 400 others.

African National Congress leader Walter Sisulu said black leaders would complain about Monday's incident when the ANC meets government leaders April 11 to try to clear the way for talks on ending white-minority rule.

Police officers, who declined to be named, said five blacks were killed Monday when police fired the march in the black township of Sebokeng south of Johannesburg. The officers, who were commenting on the event for the first time, said about 260 people were hurt, half of them by police.

But officials at the Sebokeng Hospital said today that nine people were killed and 447 treated for injuries, mostly from police shotgun fire.

It was the worst confrontation between police and protesters in recent months. Police also clashed with protesters in several other townships near Johannesburg Monday, using shotgun, rubber bullets and tear gas to disperse crowds. No deaths were reported.

The Mass Democratic Movement, which organized Monday's protest against high rents in Sebokeng, claimed police "excited" the situation and started the violence. It urged blacks to be calm and disciplined.

"In most of the marches our people have been conscious of the need to keep order and discipline, and there is never any need for the police to take the kind of violent action they took," the group said in a statement.

In another development, police reported today that nine blacks had been killed during the past 24 hours in factional fighting, including seven men hacked to death by a mob armed with knives and machetes in an apparent revenge killing in Natal province.

And in Cape Town today, police used tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse some 150 squatters who tried to stop municipal workers from demolishing shacks at a squatter camp. Police said they intervened after squatters attacked the workers with rocks, bottles and sticks. One worker was injured.

Thousands of blacks marched today in Kwathema township near Johannesburg to protest against high rents. Police monitored the peaceful march and made no move to intervene, witnesses said.

Sisulu said the violence in Sebokeng and other black townships may stem from efforts to derail negotiations with the government on sharing power with blacks. Government officials have made the same charge.

Hundreds of people have died in recent weeks in a wave of political unrest.

Police said they were forced to fire in Sebokeng after protesters armed with stones, bottles and clubs attacked police and injured two officers. Two protesters were killed when police opened fire with shotguns, and three were killed later when police broke up a mob looting a liquor store, officials said.

Blacks in Sebokeng had claimed the march was peaceful and police opened fire without provocation. The blacks also claimed up to 15 people died, but were unable to substantiate the claim.

Fighting intensifies after Contra disbandment pact signed

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Three days after the U.S.-backed Contras signed an agreement to disband by mid-April, rebels were streaming into Nicaragua Monday and there were reports of intensified fighting.

International observers and witnesses said Contra bases across the border from Nicaragua in Yamales, Honduras, were practically empty.

They "have become ghost camps. There's just a few of them left there," said one international observer, who spoke on condition of anonmity.

Journalists who visited the camps last week had similar reports.

The Contra leader who negotiated the demobilization pact, Oscar Sovalbarro, said 2,000 rebel fighters have returned since the accord was signed Friday.

He said a 2,000-person "insurgent military contingent is already back in Nicaragua ... and its numbers could increase at any moment."

The movement of rebel fighters into Nicaragua could undermine hopes raised by the accord, which establishes a demobilization deadline only for the Contras in Honduras.

In Miami, the top Contra military commander, Israel Galeano, insisted the fighters in Nicaragua would not disarm until the Sandinista army does.

"We are speaking of total demobilization — that includes both ourselves and the Sandinistas," he said.

Sandinista leaders have said their party will not turn over control of the army to the new government unless the U.S.-backed Contras demobilize.

Galeano, who did not sign the accord, said it was unrealistic to expect the Contras to demobilize immediately. "An eight-year process cannot be decided by the dismantlement of an organization in 15 days," he said.

The Defense Ministry says there have been at least two clashes between the army and the Contras since Friday in which 16 people died.

The ministry also said about 100 Contras seized a truck Sunday night, robbed the passengers of cash and jewelry and made the owner pay a $500 ransom to get the vehicle back.

All the incidents took place near the provincial capital of Jinotega, 100 miles northeast of Managua on the Honduran border.

International observers say there appears to be a split among the Contras over the pact.

PART-TIME $$$$$ AVAILABLE APRIL 1

Effective April 2, the Midland Reporter-Telegram will become a morning newspaper instead of an afternoon newspaper. As a result we have several routes which will need to be re-filled with qualified, responsible individuals. Due to this one-time large number of routes becoming available, now is the best time ever to obtain a route in your area!

Often asked questions:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current carrier force is already 50% adult and 50% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a part time job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- YOUTHS who are involved in afternoon school functions, but want to work!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

How much money can I make as a carrier?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $150 to $500 monthly! Some motor routes make even more, although currently none are expected to be available. Depending on your service record, you may qualify to move up to a motor route later!

How long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the route(s). Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carriers choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Some collecting in person will be necessary though.

When do the papers have to be delivered by?

6:00 am Monday - Friday, and 7:00 am Saturday and Sunday.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!

RESERVE YOUR ROUTE NOW! CONTACT:

The offer which best serves the interest of VA will be processed for acceptance. The name of the successful offeror and sales broker will appear in subsequent publications. VA will accept cash offers up to 10 percent below the advertised term sales price. VA also will pay reasonable loan discount points and buyers' closing costs on cash offers when requested on the Cash Sale Addendum to Offer to Purchase. However, the combined loan discount points, buyers' closing costs to be paid by VA and the discount for cash may not exceed 10 percent of the term list price. Purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing (Term Sales) must have VA Form 26-6705B, Credit Statement of Prospective Purchaser and Verification of Employment/Income, as outlined in Sales of VA-Acquired Properties Manual, attached to their VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale. All brokers are reminded to refer to PM letter #17-88 dated May 25, 1988, outlining these new procedures. Purchase offers not accompanied by the required employment/income verification WILL RESULT IN REJECTION OF THE PURCHASE OFFER.

Prior approval will be required by VA for the transfer of a property secured by a vendee loan if the loan is not paid in full as part of the transfer. Public Law 100-689 also permits VA to charge a one-half of 1 percent funding fee for the transfer as well as a fee for processing the approval of the transfer.
