Police detain 4 in school arson

Juveniles face charges following Monday's Airport school blaze

By LISA MUSSER
Staff Writer

Four juveniles taken into custody Wednesday in connection with Monday night's arson at Airport Elementary School may be charged with delinquent conduct in a adjudication hearing next week, said Margy Thompson, Howard County juvenile probation officer.

Two boys, ages 15 and 16, and two girls, 12 and 13, are being detained in city jail until the hearing, Thompson said this morning.

Thompson's office is attempting to set a date with the juvenile's lawyers for the hearing, she said.

One adult also is a suspect in starting the fire that gutted the library at the school, causing an estimated $30,000 in damages, arson investigator Burr Lea Settles said this morning. No arrest has been made.

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby decided in a detention hearing Thursday that enough evidence was present to detain the juveniles, Thompson said.

The law allows juveniles to be held only 10 days, she said. Another detention hearing would have to take place in order for the four to be held longer.

Settles said he plans to complete the arson investigation by Tuesday, at which time he will present evidence to Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby.

Settles said he had not determined whether Monday's arson and a fire earlier this summer in the teacher's lounge at Washington Elementary School were related.

Hamby said this morning, "assuming there is probable cause" for a case against the adult suspect, the information could be presented to the Howard County grand jury.

Although the fire department tentatively set damage at $30,000, the school district's insurance adjusters have not set an

Water woes

Broken water line saps C-City residents

By LUIS RIOS
News Editor

COLORADO CITY — The well went dry for city residents Thursday morning when they woke to find themselves with no water.

The city water supply tapped out at 5:30 a.m. when a break was discovered on a 16-inch main feeder water line leading from the filter plant west of town to the main water storage tanks in the north part of town, said City Manager Brenda Tarter.

The break, which was discovered on Highway 80 by a patrolling police unit, occurred at 2:30 a.m., Tarter said. The time was registered on the water log at the filter plant west of town, she said. Water was restored to residents at about 7 p.m., she said.

Meanwhile, Colorado City simmered under 100-degree temperatures for the sixth straight day, and local grocery stores had a difficult time keeping bottled water on its shelves as customers flocked in by the dozens.

Tarter said the city lost 2 million gallons of water during the two-hour period before the break was found. The treated water loss is estimated at $4,000, and repairs and labor will run about $3,000, she said.

A six-man crew worked 13 hours shutting off the water and repairing the damage, Tarter said. Helping the city crew was Mitchell County Utilities, a local construction company, she said.

City officials had hoped to restore water by 2 p.m. but were unable to.

The break came as a result of electrolysis, Tarter said. The chemical compounds in the soil ate through the pipe's metal casing, and the water pressure on the pipe caused it to rupture, she explained.

Local stores reported a booming business selling bottled water to thirsty customers.

Two of the town's three major grocery stores reported they had sold out of bottled water by 2 p.m. as people made a dash for the water display stands.

Safeway's acting manager Kathy Wright said Thursday that the water rush was from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., during which time the store sold more than 100 gallons of distilled water.

"We just weren't expecting something like this," Wright said. "It is something of the unusual."

Raymond Fuller, owner of Fuller Foods, said Thursday his store was well-stocked and he was not expecting to sell out before the crisis was over. He said he did not know how much water he had sold.

"We still have water, but we are selling it as fast as we can," he said. "We will have a truck coming in tomorrow, though."

A spokesman for E-Z Way Superette on Hickory Street said the store had sold 235 gallons of water and was sold out by 2 p.m. The spokesman was expecting a shipment of water Thursday and Friday.

The city will continue voluntary rationing through the summer, Tarter said. Colorado City does not have a water shortage, but the current water distribution process is slow, causing a slowdown in delivery to residents, she said.

Rebels release captives after one-day ordeal

SAN CARLOS, Nicaragua (AP) — Twenty-nine U.S. peace activists reportedly kidnapped by rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government arrived here safely today after their organization said they were held captive for a day.

Residents of San Carlos on Lake Nicaragua gathered on the dock as the activists' boat, also carrying 18 journalists reportedly kidnapped, prepared to tie up.

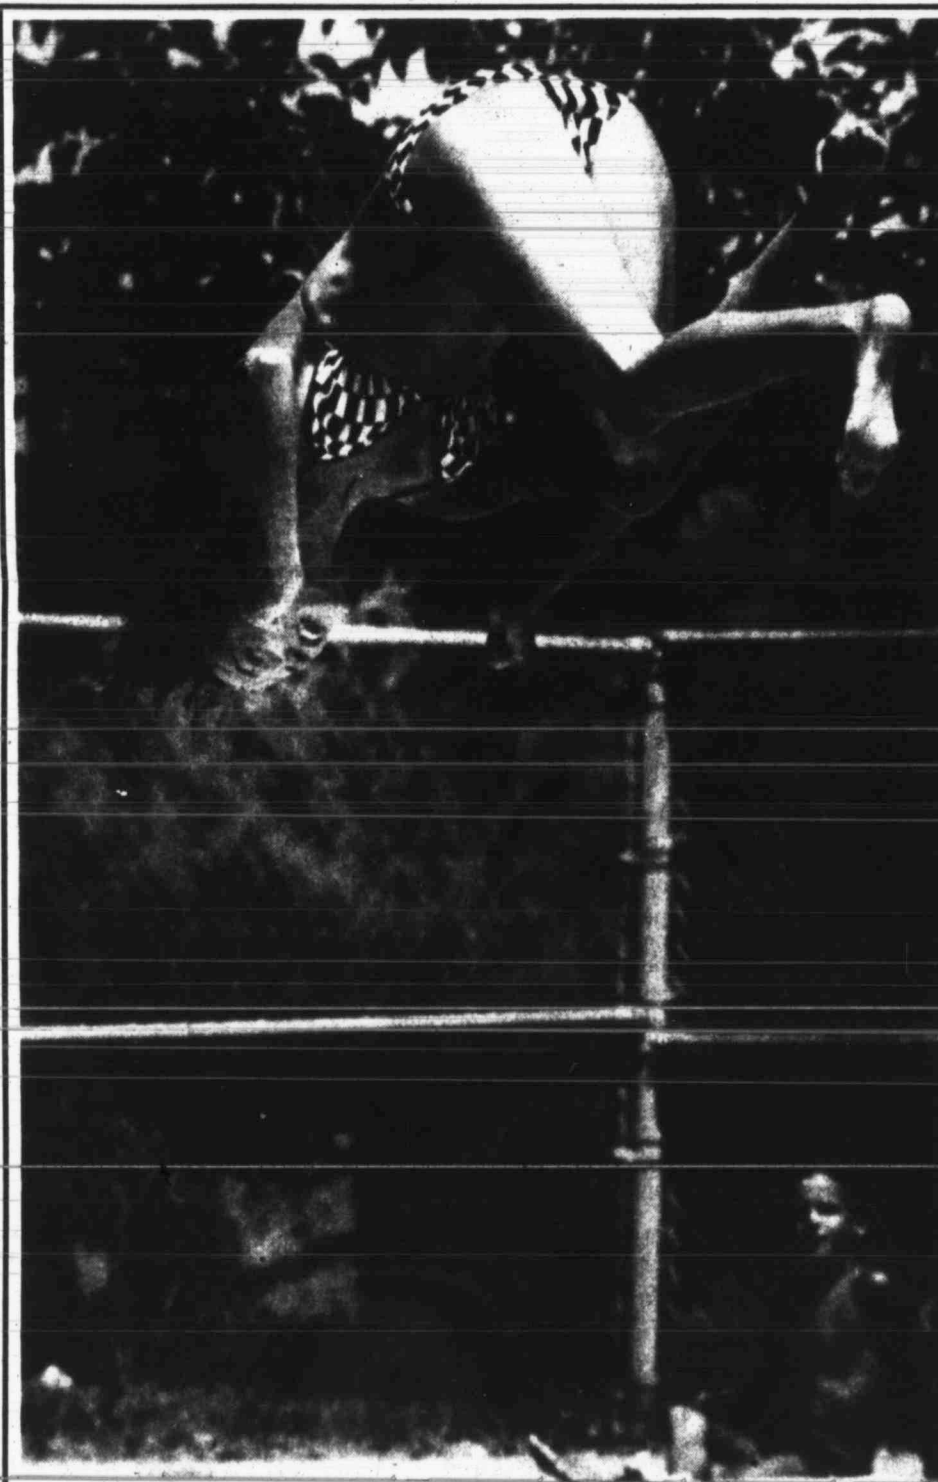

The Witness for Peace group claimed that "independent anti-Communist" rebels had abducted their members at gunpoint on Wednesday near an abandoned rebel camp.

They said the alleged kidnap had nothing to do with the second-largest Nicaraguan rebel force, which the group's Managua office originally blamed for the kidnapping.

Witness for Peace said the group was released Thursday after being taken captive on the San Juan River that divides Nicaragua and Costa Rica. They said it took a day to reach San Carlos, on Lake Nicaragua at the mouth of the river 125 miles southeast of Managua.

The Witness for Peace activists are in Nicaragua to protest Reagan administration support for the Contra rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government and to campaign for peace between the United States and Nicaragua, the group's Washington office said.

White unveils 'pass, play' tutoring plan

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White unveiled a strategy of tutoring and hard work Thursday to help coaches, parents and students live with what he calls the "pass, play" rule in school reforms.

White's proposed "Academic Eligibility Program," prompted by complaints about the rule, touts prevention and presents a system for teachers, parents and the community to aid problem students. Underscored academics is the main goal.

"We believe these procedures, if followed, offer a strong framework for the smooth and successful implementation of education reform," White said at his weekly news conference.

The rule, often called "no pass, no play," prohibits a Texas public school student from joining in extracurricular activities for six weeks after failing a course. A failing grade is 70 or lower.

"We are not going to retreat from the standards that have been set by this rule," White said, although he said last month he might consider some refinements. "No one ever said change would be easy."

Asked about the refinements remark, White deemed his proposed strategy a "refinement."

White met last month with 22 coaches, including Texas A&M University Football Coach Jackie Sherrill, about the rule and penned the plan in response to the session. White said he modeled it after one method used by an award-winning Houston high school basketball team.

Asked about his refusal to back away from the six-week penalty period as requested by the coaches, White said, "we're trying to address that just straight off by showing them that they won't have to worry about X if they will do Y."

A team of school staff should be identified to set up a student assistance program, according to White's proposal, and each school should pick an adviser to work with the students on the program.

White's objectives are to:

- Encourage positive attitudes toward academics.
- Learn academic requirements.
- Understand and accept academic responsibility.
- Identify problems areas.
- Provide careful guidance.
- Direct educational training.
- Cope with stress and develop team spirit.

- Maintain eligibility for extracurricular participation.

To accomplish that, White suggests that:

- Students and parents be counseled on academic eligibility requirements and available resources.

- Activity sponsors, such as coaches, review students' programs for possible problem areas and set up preventive strategies, using tutorials, skills training and advisory sessions which involve the principal, adviser and activity sponsor.

- Teachers be notified of students involved in extracurricular activities.

- Students make regular contact with their teachers to monitor their academic progress.

Hollywood comes courting

Boat ride convinces man to make movie debut in 'Cocoon'

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — When Hollywood came courting at a retirement home, Wes Britt wasn't interested in "Cocoon." At age 83, he didn't care about making his movie debut. Then he heard there would be a boat ride.

"I love boats. I figured it would be a nice, one-day thing," he said. So he signed up.

"That was my first. And my last," said the retired builder from Lynn, Mass. "We were three nights in the Gulf of Mexico aboard a boat. But filming lasted eight, nine weeks."

Britt and a handful of other elderly residents from Sunny Shores Villas appear in crowd scenes. "Cocoon," which stars a cast of seniors led by 77-year-old Don Ameche, was shot in part at the life care facility on the edge of Tampa Bay.

It's a whimsical movie about oldsters, benevolent aliens, a pool that becomes a magical Fountain of Youth transforming the geriatrics set into cavorting adolescents. With new youth comes a choice: live for eons on a strange planet or live out remaining days in a humdrum earthly home.

Ethel and Guy Mitton, both 75, were paid $75 each to jump into the magical pool with their clothes on. Neither felt like a kid again.

"I don't think it had that effect on our crowd," said Mrs. Mitton.

Lundry, James Dixon, Dorothy Oswalt, Ethel Mitton and Guy Mitton.

"Rejuvenated? I was exhausted," said Mitton. "We were in and out, in and out, sometimes it was 12 to 14 times to do the same scene," added the retired Boston bank executive.

"I only felt wet and soggy," said Dorothy Oswalt, 74, a transplant from Charlotte, N.C.

Voters to consider Stacy Dam project

Voters in Abilene, Midland and San Angelo will go to the polls Saturday to consider a referendum that would involve them in the Stacy Reservoir project.

If the three cities give their endorsements, each would be responsible for paying 16.54 percent of the $68 billion construction cost of the reservoir in exchange for 15,001 acre-feet of water each annually.

O.H. Ivie, Colorado River Municipal Water District general manager, has spoken in Abilene and San Angelo and said he found enthusiastic support. The district is responding by accelerating physical and financial plans, he said.

District secretary Joe Pickle said the district does not anticipate the referendum being voted down, but even so the district will continue its construction plans.

"We'd find some way to continue. We'd have to. The project would have to be delayed some," Pickle said.

He said if voters approve the referendums, the resulting contracts will "give some good financial backing" to the project construction.

The contracts would act as collateral and save cities about half the cost of what they normally would pay for usage, he said.

Absentee votes tabulated Friday morning showed that Midland had 1,027 absentee votes, Abilene had 976 and San Angelo had 554.

District directors are expected to authorize action to finance the reservoir at their Aug. 15 meeting, regardless of the referendum results, Pickle said.

Geo-technical work on dam foundations has been finished, according to a release from the district. Surveyors are 40 percent complete in running lines for the lake basin. This week they are to furnish plans for the dam site, which may permit initial contacts with land owners by early autumn.

Once land for the dam and adjacent area is obtained, the remainder of the land may be acquired over a period of three to four years before the dam closure, the release said.

Freese and Nichols, Inc., project engineers, reported this week that plans and specifications already are 12.5 percent complete.

Arson, burglary suspect tells police of murders

MILTON, Fla. (AP) — Police say a 21-year-old Louisiana man, charged here with arson and burglary, has talked to them about the murders of six people, including one in Santa Rosa County.

Several vehicles had run over the body of Frank B. Powe, 26, of Mobile, Ala., by the time it was found on Interstate 10 in Santa Rosa July 15. Florida Highway Patrol troopers classified the death of Powe as a hit-and-run.

But when John Francis Wille, also known as John Francis Valentine, was charged with first degree arson and burglary, police began to connect him to the deaths.

"He's not volunteering a lot but if you tell him something about a certain crime then he'll tell you about it," said Santa Rosa Sheriff's Lt. Tom Perry.

In each of the incidents discussed, Wille said he was angry or taking out revenge, said Perry.

Jan and Jerry Wells of Milton say Wille tried to burn their residence, a bus-home, after they had him and his girl-friend, Judy Walters, evicted from a trailer on their property.

After the arson arrest, Walters, 36, told police that a similar incident in Louisiana had left a woman dead. Louisiana officials came to Florida to question Wille in that death and at least three others in their state.

According to Philip J. Bruzichesi, a polygraph examiner for the Escambia County Sheriff's Department, Wille was upset with the Louisiana woman because she had accused him of theft.

Besides Powe, officers are asking Wille about these deaths: Nicholas Lopatta, 8, of suburban New Orleans, found raped, strangled and beaten in a wooded area at LaPlace, La., on June 8.

Billy A. Phillips, 25, of Tickfaw, La., whose mutilated body was found that same day in a swampy canal about three miles from the Lopatta child.

Ida Boudreaux, in her late 70s, who died of smoke inhalation after her home was destroyed by fire about five years ago.

Investigators are also looking in to two other deaths whose details were not available.

One involved a report of a motorist killed when he was rammed by a truck near Lafayette, La. The other reportedly involved the beating death of a man near Houston, Texas.

Council OKs fund transfer

COAHOMA — The city council transferred $4,000 in a Thursday night emergency meeting from its general fund to the waterworks fund in order to meet an additional 2.5 percent fee added to the city's water bill.

The fee was added by the Howard County Water Control and Improvement District 1 and will be in effect from Aug. 1 until the city signs a new contract with the district, city secretary Cindy Langston said this morning.

The district added a 20 percent maintenance charge to the city's bill last April. The council voted in June to hold the charge in escrow on the advice of Austin attorney Pam Giblin, Mayor Eleanor Garrett said earlier.

The city is holding the charge in escrow, because it has not signed a contract with the district regarding the new charge.

Judy Jackson, council member, said at a June meeting that the contract the city made with the water district should be binding until 1988.

The 20 percent charge amounts to approximately $2,000 a month being held in escrow at the Coahoma State Bank, city clerk Jo Anne Keenan said in June.

Odessan wins talent contest

An Odessa woman claimed top spot in Thursday night's third annual Wrangler Country Showdown at Players.

The contest, sponsored nationally by Dodge, was organized and promoted locally by radio station KBYG.

Tami Jo Whitmire Casparis of Odessa will advance to the regional finals of the countrywestern musical talent show in Amarillo, after winning first place as a solo vocalist. The regional winner will compete in national finals at the Grand Old Opry in Nashville.

Second place was awarded to Brandi Rivers of Odessa, another solo-vocalist, and third place went to Joe Bob and Cindy Burris' Bar Grill Band from Luling.

Last night's 22 entries included band, solo and duet performances. Contestants were judged by a panel of four judges.

Tillery said lodging is being provided for out-of-town media personnel by the local radio stations. Dave Ziebell, owner of KWKK-KKIK radio stations, said Friday that reservations were continuing to come in. He expects attendance to be about 70, he said.

The day's activities include a golf tournament, which will have about 30 participants, Ziebell said. Tee-off time is set for 1 p.m.

Dumping laws to get stricter

The Howard County Sheriff's Department is adopting a stricter policy toward persons caught dumping refuse along county roads, Sheriff A.N. Standard said today.

Previously, the department's policy was to offer violators a chance to clean up their mess, said Standard, but now such persons will be subject to prosecution.

"In any cases we find persons dumping refuse along the roadway, we'll try to prosecute," he said, adding that trash dumped along county roadways "is very unsightly to say the least."

Anyone dumping refuse along state highways is subject to a maximum fine of $400. For county and city roadways, the maximum fine is $200, Standard said.

Chief Deputy William Shankles said the sheriff's deputies recovered an oil field rod stripper Thursday near Highway 87, south Big Spring.

Anyone missing a rod stripper, who can properly identify it, should contact the sheriff's department, Shankles said.

● Dawson County sheriff's deputies arrested Robert Arredondo, no age given, of Lamesa on a Howard County warrant charging him with theft of service. He was released on $500 bond.

● Big Spring Police transferred Benny O. Islas, 21, of Route One to county jail after he was arrested on a revocation of probation charge for a prior criminal mischief conviction. He remained in county jail Friday morning.

● Police transferred Steve Truitt Ayers Jr., 27, of Sterling City Route Box 75 on a peace bond warrant issued from Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin's office. He was released on $2,500 bond.

● Deputies released Glen Love, 27, of West Third Street to Texas Department of Corrections authorities who transported him back to the TDC Friday morning.

City and county law authorities had been issued warrants for Love's arrest Wednesday, after he overextended a five-day furlough from the penitentiary.

Consent for abortions

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A federal judge has cleared the way for Missouri to enforce a law that requires girls under the age of 18 to obtain a court order or the consent of a parent or guardian before getting an abortion.

U.S. District Judge Scott O. Wright on Thursday dismissed the latest challenge to the statute.

Its constitutionality was affirmed in 1983 by the U.S. Supreme Court, but the law was challenged again later that year because of a procedural misunderstanding between the Missouri Court of Appeals and the Missouri Supreme Court.

The misunderstanding centered on a provision for an expedited appeal from a state juvenile court to the appeals court, and finally to the state's high court if the lower courts denied a young woman an abortion.

The longest strike ends

NORTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. — Striking machinists at the Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Co. have lost the backing of their parent union, which has cut benefits to the strikers and decided the nation's longest-running major strike has failed.

The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers has informed the 350 union machinists still striking the North Kingstown company after almost four years that they will no longer receive $70 in weekly strike benefits.

Pesticide in the broccoli

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Residues of the same pesticide that forced the destruction of thousands of California watermelons have been found in a broccoli field, but none of the crop reached market, officials say.

Aldicarb sulfoxide in watermelons was blamed last month for nearly 300 illnesses, but no reported deaths.

Monterey County Agricultural Commissioner Richard Nutter said Thursday that residues of aldicarb sulfoxide were discovered in a field of immature broccoli south of King City. The crop was about 45 days from harvest.

Alleged spy won't testify

NORFOLK, Va. — After hearing Arthur J. Walker's admissions to the FBI and a federal grand jury that he obtained classified documents for sale to the Soviet Union, his lawyers said he would not testify at his espionage trial.

Jet crashes into house killing 1; pilot ejects out

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An Air Force fighter jet crashed into a house Thursday and set the structure ablaze, killing at least one person, injuring one and leaving one missing, authorities said. The pilot ejected safely.

The single-engine, single-seat A-7D Corsair was on final approach to Tinker Air Force Base when it slammed into the house about 3 miles from the base, said base spokesman John Clabes.

Wilbert Range, a witness, said he saw the plane "going into a dive, going real fast like it was going downhill. Then I saw the pilot eject, and his parachute opened up."

Only a shell remained of the two-story house on a secluded wooded lot as firefighters sprayed foam. Wreckage from the jet, which apparently hit a row of trees before striking the house, was scattered about.

Firefighters searching the house found the body of one victim, whose identity was withheld, and looked for another until nightfall, said Gen. Richard Burpee, commander of the base. He said the search would resume at daybreak Friday.

Ann Nauman, 46, who also had been in the house, suffered burns and was in good condition at Midwest City Memorial Hospital, said a supervisor.

Ricky Lemaster, another witness, said that after he saw the plane crash into the house, "I heard this explosion, and found this lady trying to get out the back. I helped her out of the house."

Clabes identified the pilot as Maj. Denny D. Nielsen, an Air National Guardsman assigned to the 185th Tactical Fighter Group from Sergeant Bluff, Iowa, near Sioux City.

Nielsen, who was not injured, "realized he had a problem with the engine and was ordered to eject," Burpee said.

"He was headed north ... and looked for a clear area," said Burpee. "When he felt the plane was about to crash, he felt he had it in a clear area and got out — almost too low."

A warning or a threat?

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A Shiite Moslem extremist group believed to be connected with the hijacking of a TWA flight in June and the kidnappings of Westerners in Lebanon issued a warning to Kuwait today not to deport Lebanese Shiite workers.

Meanwhile, the independent Beirut newspaper an-Nahar said a new half-Christian, half-Moslem government would be formed soon to introduce political reforms aimed at ending the 10-year-old civil war. It said President Amin Gemayel and President Hafez Assad of Syria agreed on the new Cabinet during a meeting in Damascus.

The new Cabinet would have 24 members representing the Lebanon's main sectarian groups, the newspaper said. The current nine-man Cabinet has been unable to meet for the last four months because Moslem and Christian ministers are afraid to cross into each other's territory.

Groups claim bombing

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Leftist terrorist groups from West Germany and France today claimed joint responsibility for the car bombing of a U.S. Air Force base that killed two Americans and injured more than 20 people.

Following Thursday's explosion, Kurt Rebmann, West Germany's chief federal prosecutor, said the Red Army Faction, a West German extremist group, was suspected in the attack.

Police identified 12 terrorists being sought in connection with the bombing that killed a U.S. airman and the wife of another serviceman.

Explosives packed into a Volkswagen sedan with forged American license plates were detonated outside the headquarters building at the Rhein-Main base Thursday morning.

IRA member defies ban

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland — American IRA sympathizer Martin Galvin defied a British government ban against entering Northern Ireland and carried the coffin of a slain IRA man through a Londonderry street today.

Galvin, publicity director for the New York-based Irish Northern Aid Committee, or NORAI, suddenly appeared from the crowd and walked shoulder-to-shoulder with Martin McGuinness, an official of the Irish Republican Army's legal political wing Sinn Fein.

U.S. resumes aid to Nicaraguan rebels

PRESIDENT REAGAN signs foreign aid bill.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is preparing to resume direct aid to rebels fighting to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist government amid renewed allegations that White House officials never stopped assisting the insurgents even after Congress cut off funds a year ago.

President Reagan on Thursday signed a $25.4 billion foreign aid bill for 1986 and 1987, saying he was "particularly pleased" that the bill provides $27 million in non-lethal assistance for the estimated 15,000 Nicaraguan Contra rebels — an aid resumption cleared by Congress last month.

The bill signing came as White House spokesman Larry Speakes denied that officials of the president's National Security Council had violated "the spirit or the letter" of laws restricting U.S. military aid to the Contras.

According to published accounts by The Associated Press and The New York Times, NSC officials provided advice on how the rebels could raise money following the congressional cutoff. The Times also said advice was given on military operations.

Both reports said NSC officials began giving the advice last year after Congress refused Reagan's request for more military aid. Congress also barred any "agency or entity of the United States involved in intelligence" from helping the rebels militarily.

Administration officials have argued that the ban does not apply to the NSC, which advises the president on international and defense issues. But Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-Calif., a House Intelligence Committee member, challenged any NSC exemption from the ban, noting that CIA Director William J. Casey serves as an adviser to the security council.

"They're up to their ears in intelligence," Brown said of the NSC, although adding that it would be difficult for Congress to investigate the NSC's role because the principle of executive privilege prevents presidential advisers from being forced to testify.

But Brown said that despite that problem, the intelligence committee and the House Judiciary Committee might investigate the NSC role. He said the NSC's actions could involve "aiding and abetting violations of the Neutrality Act," which bars attacks on governments at peace with the United States.

Brown said the possible offenses "could be impeachable" if proven, but he doubted Congress would press an investigation that might lead to such a confrontation.

Military medics put on review

Military medicine suffers from some unattractive stereotypes, among them indifferent, assembly-line care and a surfeit of unqualified or barely-qualified physicians. In fact, military medicine is often much better than its reputation. But some recent, egregious examples of malpractice are focusing new attention on the need to improve the quality of health care provided to those in uniform and their families.

Defense Department officials acknowledge problems in the military health-care system. More to the point, they are doing something about them. Dr. William E. Mayer, assistant secretary of defense for health affairs, recently ordered rigorous, regular reviews of physician qualifications. These should help weed out the inept and the incompetent. He also ordered heightened screening to detect possible instances of malpractice.

Best of all, Dr. Mayer is taking what the Defense Department justifiably calls the "unprecedented decision" of putting the military health-care system under professional scrutiny by civilian physicians. Beginning next January, teams of civilian doctors are to review the care provided to about 15 percent of the patients admitted to military hospitals. Peer reviews should accomplish in the military what it does in civilian medicine — enforce professional standards and help identify unfit physicians.

Pornography fight censorship attempt

The attorney general's Commission on Pornography, which held two days of hearings in Chicago last week, has seen and heard a lot of strange things in its deliberations. I suspect none of them was adequate preparation for coming face-to-face with Catharine MacKinnon.

A leading feminist advocate of stamping out pornography by treating it as a violation of women's civil rights, MacKinnon put on a flashy rhetorical display. Biting off her words as if they were bottlecaps, she offered a lurid picture of an industry that she regards as an essential accomplice in the systematic subordination of women.

MacKinnon may not have won over the commission, but three cities — Los Angeles, Minneapolis and Indianapolis — have adopted ordinances that she helped to write. So, serious people are obliged to take her seriously. That isn't easy, given her fundamental absurdities. In the status quo, she claims, "the pornographers have credibility and rights and women do not." Pornography, she insists, merely "institutionalize(s) a subhuman, victimized, second-class status for women." Her approach will be found constitutional if, for a change, the law is applied "as if women are human beings" (her emphasis).

With assumptions like that, it's not surprising that MacKinnon reaches extreme conclusions. She wants to attack any words or pictures that feature "graphic, sexually explicit subordination of women." She would allow women to demand damages from anyone who does so much as sell such material. The point is to eradicate it.

MacKinnon's approach isn't aimed merely at the truly execrable depictions that she cites — grotesquely sadistic films set on antebellum plantations or in Nazi death camps — but also at milder publications like Playboy magazine. Her case rests heavily on the former, but they aren't exactly common fare. The greatest effect would be on the latter, whose photographs, by her lights, often place "women in postures of servility or submission." Books with explicit sexual scenes, even great books, also would be covered if they fail to accord women the status Catharine MacKinnon thinks they should have.

She makes much of the alleged coercion of women in the pornography industry, but this too misleads. To combat that, existing laws against assault and battery are perfectly adequate. Narrowly drawn remedies could be found for the circulation of materials produced against the performer's will. If the foisting of offensive material on unwilling women is a real problem, it too can be punished without this blunderbuss approach. The breadth of her proposal reflects not carelessness but design. These supposed concerns are a species of dishonesty, intended to distract from MacKinnon's real purpose: the banning of all sexually explicit material, except that which conforms to the ideological specifications of radical feminists. She thinks the ideas that pornography conveys about women are bad, and that people have no right to advance such ideas.

That is a manifesto for censorship. Her approach would make each person's freedom to think, speak, read and write dependent on its acceptability to the coercive majority. There is no logical reason to limit the anathematized category to the sexually explicit. Why not include all material that depicts women as subordinate? Nor is there any reason to limit it to women. Why should any group — blacks, Southerners, Yuppies — be subject to derogatory portrayals? The reason is that the right to express ideas and to be exposed to them is an essential attribute of personal autonomy. A society in which people can ban ideas merely because they find them objectionable is not a free society. Enemies of pornography, like enemies of other offensive ideas, have adequate means to combat it in their own freedom to advocate contrary ideas.

Catharine MacKinnon might understand all this if feminism, and not pornography, were the candidate for exclusion. If her approach prevails, someday it may be.

Fed chairman Volcker heads into the sunset next year

WASHINGTON — With a minimum of fanfare and funderol, the second most powerful man in Washington will walk off into the sunset early next year. And the White House crowd can't wait to see him go.

He's Paul Volcker, the rumped, oversized Federal Reserve Board chairman.

He spends most of his time, head in a cloud of cigar smoke, talking largely to himself. Few people can follow his rambling discourse. Behind his back, some associates call him "Mumbles." What makes it worse is that few can even decipher his hand-scribbled notes and memos.

Yet there is something intimidating about this 6-foot-7 banker with the condescending manner. Who else could send several Fed officials scrambling underneath the table at a board of governors' meeting, crawling on their hands and knees while trying to disconnect an intercom Volcker had accidentally kicked on with his gangly long legs?

White House aides resent the halo that Volcker wears with such hauteur. They think it's time he was asked to explain why the sky hasn't fallen, as he so confidently predicted it would.

The Fed chairman warned tirelessly that the budget deficits would abort the economic recovery in the short run. When this didn't happen, he predicted that the recovery would be weak. But the recovery turned out to be far more robust than he had expected.

Still, he has outmaneuvered his critics, including Vice President George Bush and White House chief of staff Donald Regan. Though Volcker has antagonized congressmen, infuriated White House aides and annoyed President Reagan, the meandering Fed chairman has dominated fiscal policy and exercised almost tyrannical power over the banking industry.

Now he has told intimates, whom he invites to his Washington apartment for spaghetti dinners, that government service has drained him personally and financially. His wife has a serious form of arthritis, which keeps her in New York City, and Volcker commutes constantly between Washington and New York.

When he walks out of his Fed offices for the last time, he will leave behind some nettlesome problems. The most serious will be a monetary system that he's been holding together with string and glue. He has used the power of the Fed and the force of his personality to coerce bankers into extending loans to governments that probably will never be able to repay them.

If these governments form a debtors' cartel, as Cuba's Fidel Castro is urging them to do, or if a major government defaults, the monetary system could collapse, with frightening consequences.

Yet Volcker has never wavered in his support of the debt-ridden countries. In August 1982, for example, he worked an entire weekend putting together a bailout for the Mexican government, which could no longer pay the interest on its $90 billion debt.

He warned his free-market adversaries at the Treasury Department that there would be a global economic crisis if they didn't approve the bailout.

Footnote: The recent rash of terrorist incidents caused the Federal Reserve Board to take extra security precautions. Two security guards, with ear-plug walkie-talkies and all, were stationed outside the chairman's office door to protect him from possible kidnapping. But kidnapping Volcker strikes his critics as a bit like O. Henry's "The Ransom of Red Chief." How much would Reagan demand that the kidnappers pay him to take Volcker back?

FEUD OF THE WEEK: Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., is exchanging vituperation with a Republican constituent, Joseph Durber of Jacksonville, who formed the Bipartisan Committee for Tax Reform. Durber sought Bennett's support for the group and its bumper sticker: "Politicians Who Vote No — Must Go — Vote Tax Reform." Bennett declined, figuring it would conflict with his proposal for a minimum 10 percent tax on corporations and wealthy individuals. Durber says Bennett has questioned his "Americanism."

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: Are there budget crises in Havana and Prague? Could be. Since last November, Byte magazine, the bible of the microcomputer industry, has been getting postcards from two government research organizations — one in Cuba, the other in Czechoslovakia — requesting reprints of various articles that appeared in the magazine. Byte replied, explaining that it honors only requests for 500 or more copies of a given article, adding that it would be happy to provide the relevant back issues for $4.25 a copy. But this apparently is too much for the Czech and Cuban groups' budgets: Byte hasn't heard back.

Playing shell games with stadiums

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — The baseball players' strike may be over, but there is no baseball in Washington today, and there will be no baseball for the foreseeable future in the nation's capital.

That is, unless the National League decides to expand or a franchise is snatched from unfortunate fans in the San Francisco Bay area or someplace else where attendance is slipping.

The odds are long, and the Sun Belt cities — places like Tampa Bay, Fla., and Phoenix, Ariz. — beckon. They would be new to big league baseball, and before the novelty wore off, skyboxes stretching to the outfield would sell like hotcakes. An enterprising owner could turn a handsome profit, fast, even with a subpar team.

What can Washington offer? A real ballpark, with real grass, and a pretty good subway system. It would be easy to get to the game. But RFK Stadium appears destined to remain the exclusive domain of the Washington Redskins, the National Football League team that has undisputed possession of the city's soul.

All the gimmickry, including escrow funds and special committees, and promises by ex-commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who operated the scoreboard as a boy in old Griffith Stadium and swore he would never permit his hometown to be abandoned, have not brought baseball back.

One night every summer, the likes of Early Wynn, Harmon Killebrew, Hank Aaron and Sandy Koufax are rounded up to stumble through a good-natured Old-Timers game.

Ticket prices are high, so are the concessions, and the stands are barely half-filled. But the old ballplayers and the fans have a good time.

Like a number of other cities, Washington is a victim of the entrepreneurs, the big-buck boys who move franchises around like pizza parlors, working the new neighborhoods, reaping the tax breaks and then selling out for huge profits.

The aftertaste is bitter though. The Cracker-jack Game and the nostalgia are aching reminders of what was lost — probably forever — when the Senators headed for Texas following the 1971 season.

Like a number of other cities, Washington is a victim of the entrepreneurs, the big-buck boys who move franchises around like pizza parlors, working the new neighborhoods, reaping the tax breaks and then selling out for huge profits.

Boston, New York, St. Louis and Philadelphia — all old cities with traditions wrapped around the Braves, Giants, Dodgers, Browns and Athletics — lost those teams too. Never mind the haunting spirits of John McGraw, Mel Ott and Christy Mathewson, Dizzy Vance and Babe Herman, Pete Gray, Connie Mack and Jimmie Foxx.

When it came time for the owners to pack up and seek their fortunes elsewhere, they moved on. Coogan's Bluff was turned into a housing project.

New Englanders rallied round the Red Sox, the Mets took up some of the slack in New York, and luckily for old Browns and A's fans the Cardinals and Phillies have been pennant contenders often enough to ease some of the Football, the relief game

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
The perfect solution was waiting in the wings this week for bewildered sports fans who were threatened with the possibility of another suspended baseball season.

Who cares about baseball anyway. Go ahead — let 'em strike and argue for more money. It's a boring game that moves too slow.

Intrepid men like Donald Trump and Harry Usher had a perfect chance to act quickly and seize upon the opportunity, but they failed to do so. It saddens me deeply.

We diehard fans could have been offered another version of the United States Football League.

The league should have relaunched another season this week and believe me, no one would have cared about that silly game of baseball played by poorly paid men and controlled by struggling owners.

Sure the USFL just finished its third season (who played in the championship game anyway and when was it?), and the players are currently nursing bruises and bumps. Who said anything about tackling or suiting up in pads?

I'm talking flag football. A sure bet with the networks who would eagerly use the money ante to contract with the league.

Why? Well the possibility of zooming a camera lens in for a head shot of a helmetless Doug Flutie or Jim Young would certainly be the key ingredient of success. Herschel Walker could run faster without any pads. The violence aspect of football would certainly not be an issue here.

Unlike those conniving guys over in the NFL, a warmhearted and charitable USFL owner such as Trump, could have offered a helping hand to the tragic story of Tony Dorsett.

Poor Dorsett and his $3 million debt. Worse yet, the man is without a job. For those who participate in it on the professional level, football is work — not a game.

Well, I hoped and I prayed but it didn't happen. We'll continue on to the World Series, the Super Bowl as always.

What a sports fan like myself has to learn before being disappointed over a failed possibility like relaunching the USFL, is that some professional athletes do not get paid enough.

If you don't believe me, ask Dorsett or any major league baseball player.

Prize-winning mule is Denton girl's pride

DENTON (AP) — He's got long, pointed ears and a hairy black tail. Big brown bug-eyes peer out from an elongated head. He stands 14½ hands (58 inches) high. He goes by the name Texas Lightning and has a face only a mule owner could love.

Lori Ann Wilson, 11, is one of those mule owners who says mules are some of the most appealing and good-natured animals on God's green earth. But then, most all animals get more than a fair turn in her book, she said. "I just like animals."

The youngster, along with her grandparents Seb and Sue Wilson of Denton, has been raising the hybrid animals since she was 5 years old.

Her first two mules were both males, named Pete and Suki. "I just loved them to death. They were just so sweet," she said.

But now Lightning — who was born during a terrible rain storm — is the light of her life. For the past three years she has been showing and riding the mule in mule shows and horse shows.

Horse shows? A mule in there with all those fancy quarterhorse types? Just how does a mule fare against its higher status relatives? With young Lori Ann riding, very well indeed.

In her years of competition, she has won numerous trophies, ribbons and a silver tray. Some of the wins have been in competitions against full-blood horses.

But there really is no disadvantage, her grandmother said. "A mule is more sure-footed and smarter than a horse."

Another reason the pair does so well at the shows is that they have been together since the mule's birth.

"She has handled him since he was 30 minutes old," Mrs. Wilson said. "Lori started showing him as a foal back in 1981."

Lori, a 4-H member, has two other mules she shows in competitions. She already has won a few high-point awards on Lightning. This year she is going to go for the high-point prize riding Joker II, a 2-year-old male.

In the driving competition, where mules pull drivers in little buggies through an obstacle course, she uses Miss Kitty.

During the year, there are six shows around the state sanctioned by the Southwest Donkey and Mule Society. The circuit includes stops in Fort Worth, Alvarado, Whitewright, Bowie, Sulphur Springs and the State Fair of Texas.

Getting all three mules ready for a show takes her around an hour and a half. "You have to give it a bath and clip it. You should do it every time you go to a show. And keep it in a grassy area, so they don't roll around and get dirty again."

She also competes in other shows such as the Roy Durie Donkey and Mule Show at the Heart of Texas Fair in Waco. It was at that show last year that she won what she and her grandparents consider her prize achievement. She was presented the Roy Durie Sportsmanship Award.

Competing in the shows has benefited the youngster, her grandmother said. "It's helped her learn sportsmanship. She has learned how to compete. She comes out smiling whether she wins or loses. She has learned how to get along with people."

Lori said she isn't nervous while competing in one of the many events of a show competition. She is too busy making sure her mule is doing what it should be doing, she said.

"I'm really thinking about how I am doing, if I am doing the things I'm supposed to be doing, if mine is set up like he's supposed to be."

Lori Ann Wilson enjoys a ride on her mule, Texas Lightning. Lori, 11, has won numerous competitions riding and showing off her 4-year-old mule.

Trashy art

Professor-turned-artist carves new way of life

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Early each morning Danny O'Dowdy unlocks his studio and the feeling of loneliness descends on him. He drinks a cup of coffee. Sometimes he stretches it to two. Then he starts to work "and suddenly, once I get my hands on the wood," he said, "everything is all right."

Last year O'Dowdy was a tenured professor of art at Corpus Christi State University. But he resigned his post and has since been among the small number of local artists who make their living entirely from their art.

O'Dowdy summed up the period since he left CCSU as, despite hard moments like those in the mornings, "good."

Earlier this year he was among the 125 Texas sculptors selected to exhibit in the fifth annual Texas Sculpture Symposium in Dallas.

O'Dowdy, 46, has turned away from teaching several other times in his career but said, "When I quit this time, I felt it was real. So I geared myself. I said I'm not even going back out to the university, and I'm not even going to think about it. And I haven't."

By available accounts O'Dowdy was well-liked by CCSU art students, in large part because he is said to have respected their varied points of view.

"For years while I was at CCSU I was able to keep my own art and my teaching separate," O'Dowdy said. "I didn't talk about my art to the students, and I didn't try to influence their images."

"But after a while it got to the point where I couldn't take my mind off the studio," he said. "It just reached a point where I had to decide one way or the other.... Anyone can become dead weight if you don't have your heart in what you're doing."

Clinical psychologist becomes 'Dear Abby' of byte brigade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John M. Schuster is a clinical psychologist who still makes house calls — but only if the house is equipped with a computer.

Schuster, 40, who has practiced for 10 years and also teaches at Pepperdine University, delivers advice and counsel nightly to computer buffs who seek his guidance through a telecommunication information network called The Source.

"For some time, I had been feeling that I had more to say than I could get across in a day's worth of patients in the office," Schuster, a graduate of the California School of Professional Psychology, said recently.

He started his computer counseling about two months ago, after making arrangements with officials of The Source, one of a number of such networks that computer users can reach by use of a device called a modem that transmits data across telephone lines.

"I wrote to The Source and told them I would be in their area on business in April," Schuster said. "I told them my profession and suggested they might want having a psychologist on line who could talk via computer to other members."

Jo Anne Montgomery, a spokeswoman for The Source, which is based in McLean, Va., said 62,000 computer users subscribe to the service. It offers access to such things as weather reports, sports scores and other information as well as a message service for other users on the system.

Schuster is paid for his services, but members pay no other fee than normal charges for using the system, Ms. Montgomery said. Computer users with problems can either make contact with Schuster while he is working with his Apple II at home, or leave him a message on the system.

He also offers a weekly column on The Source called "Focus on Psychology" or a feature Schuster has dubbed "The Mail Bag." It provides anonymous or first-name-only samples of problems and advice already dealt with.

Schuster makes himself available for terminal-to-terminal communication at 7 p.m. PST each night.

"So far, we are experimenting with what times are best for me to be on line. It seems to be early evening ... because of the three-hour time difference with the East," he said.

Indians, blacks clash; African death toll rises

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Fighting between Indians and blacks erupted today at the Mohandas Gandhi memorial complex in Durban's black townships, witnesses said, as the unofficial death toll in the Durban riots rose to 38.

Gandhi's Phoenix Settlement became a battlefield when Indians attacked blacks temporarily living at the center, said director Mewa Ramgobin.

The settlement was set up by Gandhi, the Indian independence leader, during the 21 years he lived in South Africa developing his theories of non-violent resistance and campaigning for Indian rights.

The Indians were apparently enraged by black attacks on Indian houses in three days of rioting in the Indian Ocean port city.

Ramgobin described the fighting at a community dedicated to Gandhi's memory as a "terrible tragedy."

He said he narrowly escaped death in the fighting when he arrived at midmorning. He said children as young as 5 or 6 were trying to carry furniture and other belongings away from the fighting.

"Whether Gandhi's house was burned, I cannot say. But a large number of buildings have been burned down" at the settlement, said Dr. Farook Meer, a leader of the Natal Indian Congress founded by Gandhi in 1894, the year after he arrived in South Africa as a young lawyer.

About 70 blacks, driven from their homes in previous unrest, were living in Gandhi's former printing press building at Phoenix. They were the target of the attack by Indians from the area, said Ramgobin. The complex also included a clinic, a library and a large homestead as well as Gandhi's own modest house.

Meanwhile, in Austria a top aide to President Reagan reportedly urged the foreign minister of South Africa's white-minority government to open a dialogue with all black leaders. Foreign Minister Roelof F. Botha met with U.S. officials Thursday and today.

Botha concluded his talks with American officials and flew to West Germany for contacts there, diplomatic sources said.

The United States has withdrawn Ambassador Herman Nickel, and South Africa has called home its ambassador designate in Washington in response.

South Africa's law and order minister, Louis Le Grange, met with Gatscha Buthelezi, the conservative chief of the Zulu tribe, in Durban on Thursday and announced that police reinforcements were being sent to the city's black townships.

24,000 mark bombing of Nagasaki

NAGASAKI, Japan (AP) — Under rainy, lowering skies, 24,000 mourners and visitors fell silent for a moment this morning to mark the 40th anniversary of the second atomic bomb attack.

The pause at 11:02 a.m. commemorated the instant the bomb virtually leveled this western Japanese port city on Aug. 9, 1945.

Christian and Buddhist priests, and political leaders appealed for peace and prayed that Nagasaki never again be subjected to the horrors of nuclear weapons.

On that summer day in 1945, "Bock's Car," the U.S. Army Air Force B-29 that carried the plutonium-based bomb, was originally to strike Kokura, a city to the northeast.

But poor visibility sent it to its secondary target — Nagasaki.

Even here, cloud cover threw the bomber off course and the bomb, nicknamed "Fat Man," missed its exact target. But the blast, heat and radiation was enough to kill 27,000 to 70,000 people in the northern half of this mountain-ringed city.

It exploded directly above the Urakami Valley, one of the largest Catholic communities in Japan.

The number of people living in Nagasaki at the time is unknown, but among the victims were 9,000 of the 12,000 members of the Catholic community.

Just three days before, Hiroshima had been laid waste in the first nuclear attack. There, 70,000 to 140,000 people died in the attack. Less than a week later, Japan surrendered and World War II was over.

"Nagasaki must be the last place on earth subjected to the horror of nuclear weapons," Mayor Hitoshi Motoshima said in a speech that was to be sent to the leaders of all the countries of the United Nations.

He asked of both superpowers: "It is my fervent hope they will make this... a joyful year in which the dark postwar history of the nuclear arms race makes a sharp turnabout."

The day began with some 1,000 Catholics holding a daybreak Mass for the victims of the bomb. Before the Peace Memorial Ceremony, Buddhist and Shinto priests chanted in front of the Peace Statue, a stone figure holding his right arm to the sky and his left palm down.

Aged and young relatives of atomic bombing victims Friday prayed during the 40th anniversary of the bombing of Nagasaki.

The rhythmic monotone prayers blended into the background drone of crickets, a familiar sound in Japan's hot summers. Rains triggered by a typhoon off the coast drenched much of the crowd as the ceremonies began with the bang of smoky firecrackers.

Ends August 17!

Dr. Donohue

Ovarian cancer a silent invader

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My wife has ovarian cancer. About 20 years ago she had her uterus removed. She is now 62. I would like to know what kind of test, if any, is available to find ovarian cancer after a woman has had her uterus removed. It's too late for my wife, but other women in my family would be interested in knowing, certainly many of your readers as well. — I.B.C.

Cancer of the ovaries is not the easiest malignancy to detect. There is a paucity of early warning signs. I am sorry to tell you that there is no specific test to discover it.

The absence of a uterus does remove the site of one of the signs, for in some women there may be menstrual irregularities associated with ovarian malignancies. A pelvic examination in which the doctor palpates the ovaries remains the key to discovery. He is feeling for enlargement.

Yet, not every enlargement indicates cancer, especially in a younger woman. It's estimated that 50 percent of all ovarian cancers occur in post-menopausal women.

The real problem, then, is that such cancer most often gives us only vague symptoms. I am referring to things like unexplained lower abdominal discomfort. Often, that is not sufficiently dramatic to get the woman in for a timely pelvic examination. Other signs in some women are diverse, running from vein inflammation to growth in abdominal girth. Many of the signs, in fact, are those common in a host of other conditions, and the chance of anyone being due to ovarian cancer is slim.

So it is for good reason that cancer of the ovaries is often called the silent cancer. All I can suggest for the other female family members (and all women) is to have periodic pelvic examinations and to become suspicious if they notice some of the signs I mentioned here. I wish the very best of outcomes for your wife's problem.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have had bulimia for the past four years. I have tried to stop, but I just cannot. I have never put my finger down my throat to vomit. If I don't vomit I just keep burping purposefully until I can't stand it any longer and I end up vomiting. I know I should see my doctor, but I am so ashamed and embarrassed. I have been having short jabs of pain in my chest, and I'm worried about them. I read once that there is a medicine that helps bulimics. I would like to know if this is true. — Anon.

It's estimated that between 10 and 12 percent of all women have had episodes of bulimia, so you need not feel alone or particularly odd. Most doctors have either encountered it personally or have colleagues who have. And medical literature discusses the problem regularly, suggesting methods of treatment. One doctor has been using Dilantin, a drug normally used to control convulsions, but that therapy is not at all widespread.

I don't know what to tell you about your chest pain except that with or without bulimia it warrants an investigation. In vomiting the great amounts of corrosive digestive juices can get into the esophagus and cause pain that can be referred to the chest area. It is sort of like "heartburn."

Let me advise you on a very personal level: Perhaps depression is part of the picture. It usually is with bulimics. And that is no more a thing to be ashamed of than the bulimia itself. And there are medicines a doctor might want to prescribe to control depression. Often that's the answer.

Continuing the way you are now can only be counterproductive, and eventually it's all going to catch up with you. Why not let that happen now, so that treatment can get underway that much sooner.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What do the initials T.I.D. mean on a prescription medicine bottle? — D.L.H.

They stand for "ter in die," or three times daily.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Blood Pressure and Your Health." Write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.25.

Dear Abby

Origin list lengthens in 'OK' controversy

DEAR ABBY: Begging to differ with your correspondent who stated that the term "OK" originated with Martin Van Buren, our eighth president, who approved bills by marking them "OK" — the initials of his nickname, "Old Kinderhook," after his birthplace of Kinderhook, N.Y.

This is pure folklore. It has been similarly termed an abbreviation of the semiliterate expression "Oll Korrekt," slanderously ascribed to President Andrew Jackson.

Scholars, however, have established that "OK" had been used as far back as the American Revolution — long before anyone had heard of either Jackson or Van Buren (Martin or Abigail).

The source was likely one of the West African expressions such as "Yaw kay," meaning all right.

It is a major irony that this American term should derive neither from English nor from any other European tongue, but from the lips of slaves preserving a bit of their native language.

PRECISE AT PRINCETON

DEAR ABBY: With reference to "OK," Charles Berlitz, the famous linguist, thinks "OK" came from "Aux Cayes," a port in Haiti, famous for its rum. His theory holds that American sailors were so fond of the rum, that "Aux Cayes," which later became "OK," became their expression for approval.

J.McK., BALTIMORE

DEAR ABBY: The origin of "OK" has nothing to do with Martin Van Buren's nickname, "Old Kinderhook."

It comes from "Olla" and

"Kalla" — the first letter of each word — which means "All Good," or "OK" in Greek.

JACVK KRUSH, AURORA, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: I submit that the term "OK" originated in the early days of shipbuilding on the East Coast.

In building a ship, the first step was laying the keel. Subsequently all other parts were measured and installed, based on the keel. If a part was installed correctly, it was said to be "On Keel" — hence the term "OK."

Good looks help business men

NEW YORK (AP) — Being attractive may hinder a woman's business career while it helps a man's career, two New York University psychologists report. They asked more than 100 working men and women to evaluate some business executives based on resumes and other information, which included a photo of the executive. Successful women who were attractive were evaluated more negatively than less attractive women executives. Attractive men, however, were evaluated positively, leading the psychologists to conclude that being attractive is beneficial only to men.

Tewell fires record round

DENVER (AP) — Journeyman Doug Tewell leads the PGA Championship, but an aching back and a trio of the game's greatest players were stalking him in today's second round.

Tewell, who hasn't won on the professional golf tour since 1980, erased a 25-year-old course record with a 7-under-par 64 Thursday for a two-stroke lead after the opening round over the 7,089-yard Cherry Hills Country Club layout.

Lurking just off the pace, however, were Jack Nicklaus, a five-time PGA titlist, and defending champion Lee Trevino, both at 66. Tom Watson, who needs this crown to become the fifth player in history to complete a career sweep of golf's Grand Slam events, was at 67.

Peter Jacobsen and Corey Pavin also shot 66s, and Hubert Green and Danny Edwards joined Watson at 67 as Cherry Hills, playing short because of its mile-high elevation, yielded 31 sub-par rounds. That was already more sub-par rounds than were shot in the entire U.S. Open here in 1978.

Temperatures in the 90s and little wind contributed to what Watson called "ideal scoring conditions."

Morris Hatafsky, who eagled the difficult 491-yard, par-4 18th hole, was at 68, while 1983 PGA winner Hal Sutton, Masters champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany, Calvin Peete, Tom Kite and Gil Morgan were in a group at 69.

Pre-tournament favorite Seve Ballesteros of Spain opened with a 2-over 73. Arnold Palmer, whose only U.S. Open title came on this course in 1960, had 75, and the tour's leading money-winner, Curtis Strange, slipped to a 77.

Tewell's 64 broke the competitive course record of 65 set by Palmer in the final round of the 1960 Open. But Tewell likely spent a sleepless night pondering the giants who were chasing him.

"It was probably the best round I've had all year from the standpoint of hitting the ball," said Nicklaus. "It was certainly a step in the right direction."

Trevino recovered from a double bogey at the 16th hole with an eagle at 17, his approach shot skipping across the water onto the green. "I'm very enthused about my game," he said. "I didn't expect to play this well."

Watson likewise had struggled coming into the PGA, but said he was "closer to finding that perfect swing." He missed only one green, had four birdies and no bogeys, and said he had "good touch on the greens."

DOUG TEWELL ...breaks Palmer's record with 64

Tewell, 35, of Edmond, Okla., birdied six holes and eagled the par-5 17th to go 8-under, then suffered his lone bogey at the 18th when he drove into the rough and hit his approach shot into a green-side bunker.

"With the exception of one or two drives, it was a marvelous day for Doug Tewell," he said.

He said the turning point may have come at the 15th hole, where he was merely trying to get close to the pin from out of a bunker and instead holed the shot for birdie.

"After that, I knew nothing wrong was going to happen to me."

Tewell was diagnosed earlier this year as having a herniated disc, and said he had planned to make the PGA his last event of the year.

"I've had a lot of pain, and I wanted to take some time off to help it heal and try to avoid surgery," he said. "I take aspirin to dull the pain. But today I didn't feel a thing out there."

Tewell, whose best finish this season was a tie for second at Phoenix but who has missed the cut in three of his last five outings, said his putting has plagued him because of a tendency to recoil instead of accelerating through the stroke.

"I've worked very hard on that this week," he said.

Besides his sand-trap birdie at 15, Tewell made birdie putts of 20, 8, 15, 15 and 18 feet. At 17, he hit a driver and 2-iron onto the island green, and sank the 15-foot putt for eagle.

Howard baseball gets new recruits

Howard College head baseball coach Bill Griffin announced the signing of six more high school graduates to list of prospective players for the Hawks 1985-86 season. The six new recruits brought the number of ball players signed up to 21.

Of the six new players announced, five hailed from San Antonio, which in the past few years has become Griffin's undisputed recruiting domain.

Here is a quick review of the Hawk's newest prospects.

- Mike Silva — Jefferson HS, San Antonio; OF; All-Dist., All-City; .271; 13 stolen bases.
- Jeff Schulte — Clark HS, San Antonio; OF; All-Dist., All-City; .281; 23 stolen bases.
- John Wiles — Clark HS, San Antonio; P-OF; All-Dist., All-City; .373; 29 RBI; 9 HR; 6-2 pitching record.
- Bubba Walters — Clark HS,

San Antonio; C; 2nd team All-City; .427; 31 RBI.

• Adrian Arevalos — Jefferson HS, San Antonio; IF; 2nd team All-City; .332; 11 stolen bases.

• Cameron Clark — Clear Lake HS, Houston; C-OF; All-Dist.; .540; 38 RBI's; 9 HR.

Griffin plans to start his fall workouts with a team meeting on Wednesday, August 28 and two-a-day workouts until school starts. Griffin plans to have around 45 players including 12 returning players, during the twelve weeks of fall workouts before cutting the squad to 25 before the start of the regular season.

"The competition for starting positions is liable to be fierce this year," commented Griffin. "We have some real quality ball players coming in as freshmen who are going to push the sophomores right to the limit."

Jager nips Biondi in 50 meter free

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Tom Jager ended Matt Biondi's reign over the freestyle sprint races Thursday night at the Phillips 66-U.S. Swimming Long Course National Championships.

Jager, 20, scored a narrow victory over Biondi in the men's 50-meter freestyle, defeating the rising star by 22.63 seconds to 22.71.

The victory was Jager's third straight over Biondi this year. The native of Collinsville, Ill., defeated Biondi at the NCAA championships and the short course nationals this spring.

Biondi already set a world record in the men's 100 freestyle and an American record in the 200 freestyle.

"I came into the meet with a goal of winning all three freestyles and that will still be a goal," said Biondi, of Moraga, Calif. "I'll work hard to achieve it."

Jager interrupted a summer's vacation away from swimming to take a try at the 50.

"I've been swimming a long time and needed a break," Jager said. "I just decided last week to swim here. I just wanted to come and enjoy the competition."

The best run at the record book Thursday night came from Pablo Morales of Santa Clara, Calif., who won the men's 200-meter individual medley.

Morales, 20, a silver medalist at the 1984 Olympics, was ahead of the world record pace for the first 150 meters, but tired and finished in 2:02.96, the second-best time ever recorded by an American.

The American mark of 2:02.68 was set by Bill Barrett in 1983.

Chris Rives of Houston finished second in the 200 IM with a time of 2:04.71.

Kim Brown of Mission Viejo, Calif., won her second title of the competition. The 15-year-old came on in the final 150 meters to win the women's 400-meter freestyle.

Brown, who won the women's 800-meter freestyle Monday, touched the wall in 4:11.74, with Diane Williams of Honolulu finishing second at 4:12.22. Debbie Babashoff, the younger sister of Shirley Babashoff, came on to finish third at 4:13.48.

Mary Wayte, an Olympic gold medalist last summer and winner of the 200-meter free Wednesday night, led for the first 200 meters before fading to fourth.

The long course nationals began Monday and continue through Friday. Swimmers finishing first or second in an event earn a berth on the Pan Pacific swim team that will compete in Tokyo, Japan.

Matt Cetlinski of Lake Worth, Fla., successfully defended his title for the second straight year in the men's 400-meter freestyle.

Cetlinski, 20, held off John Mykkanen of Placentia, Calif., in the final meters and finished with a time of 3:53.26. Mykkanen was second at 3:53.85.

Mike Heath, a silver medalist at the 1984 Olympics, finished third at 3:54.14. Heath placed second in the men's 100- and 200-meter freestyles earlier this week.

Michelle Grigione of Alexandria, Va., won the women's 200-meter individual medley, posting a time of 2:17.42, the second-best in the world this year.

The night's only upset came in the women's 50-meter freestyle when Lisa Dorman came on in the final meters to score a narrow victory.

Dorman, 17, of Walnut Creek, Calif., was clocked in 26.20. Olympic gold medalist Jenna Johnson of La Habra, Calif., was second at 26.24.

Marino's holdout riles Miami fans

By The Associated Press

The game's most celebrated holdout, Miami's Dan Marino, will be missing when the Dolphins host Minnesota, and his refusal to report to camp is ruffling some feathers among even his most ardent admirers.

Most fans said they think Marino deserves to be paid in the same range as San Francisco's Joe Montana, who gets nearly $1.3 million a year. What they object to was his leaving camp with two years left on a four-year contract worth $2 million.

Ten-year-old Paul Gerber, despite his youth, eloquently summed up the anti-Marino sentiment: "He's wrong for walking out. He better be back," Gerber said during the Dolphins' annual Fan Appreciation Day at the Orange Bowl. "He better, or lots of his fans are going to walk away from him. When he comes back and starts running through (the goal posts) he won't hear much. He'll just hear 'boo.'"

Marino is back in his hometown of Pittsburgh and was unreachable by telephone at his parents' house. Meanwhile, Joe Ferguson will be staring across the line at some old friends. Ferguson spent 12 years as the starting quarterback for the Buffalo Bills, so it may seem strange tonight when he breaks the huddle with the Detroit Lions and looks over at defenders wearing familiar uniforms.

That they will be Buffalo uniforms is of no particular significance to him, however. Lions Coach Darryl Rogers has said he would wait until game time to select his starting quarterback — probably Ferguson or veteran Eric Hipple.

The game at the Pontiac Silverdome kicks off the first week of the National Football League's preseason schedule. One game, the annual Hall of Fame event, was played last Saturday, with the New York Giants beating the Houston Oilers 21-20. Chicago is at St. Louis in the only other game tonight.

In New Orleans, meanwhile, quarterback Dave Wilson, saying he doesn't believe he has a future with the Saints, was demanding a trade. A No. 1 draft choice out of Northwestern State (La.) in 1981, Wilson has played little for the Saints while backing up Archie Manning, Richard Todd and Ken Stabler, who retired last year.

The Saints, meanwhile, have signed United States Football League star Bobby Hebert, who figures to be their starting quarterback.

On Thursday, first-round picks Eddie Brown of the Cincinnati Bengals and Duane Bickett of the Indianapolis Colts reported to camp. The Bengals' coaching staff said that Brown, a wide receiver from Miami, wasn't likely to play in the exhibition opener against the Kansas City Chiefs.

"He'll come in and run his patterns and be fine," said veteran receiver Cris Collinsworth.

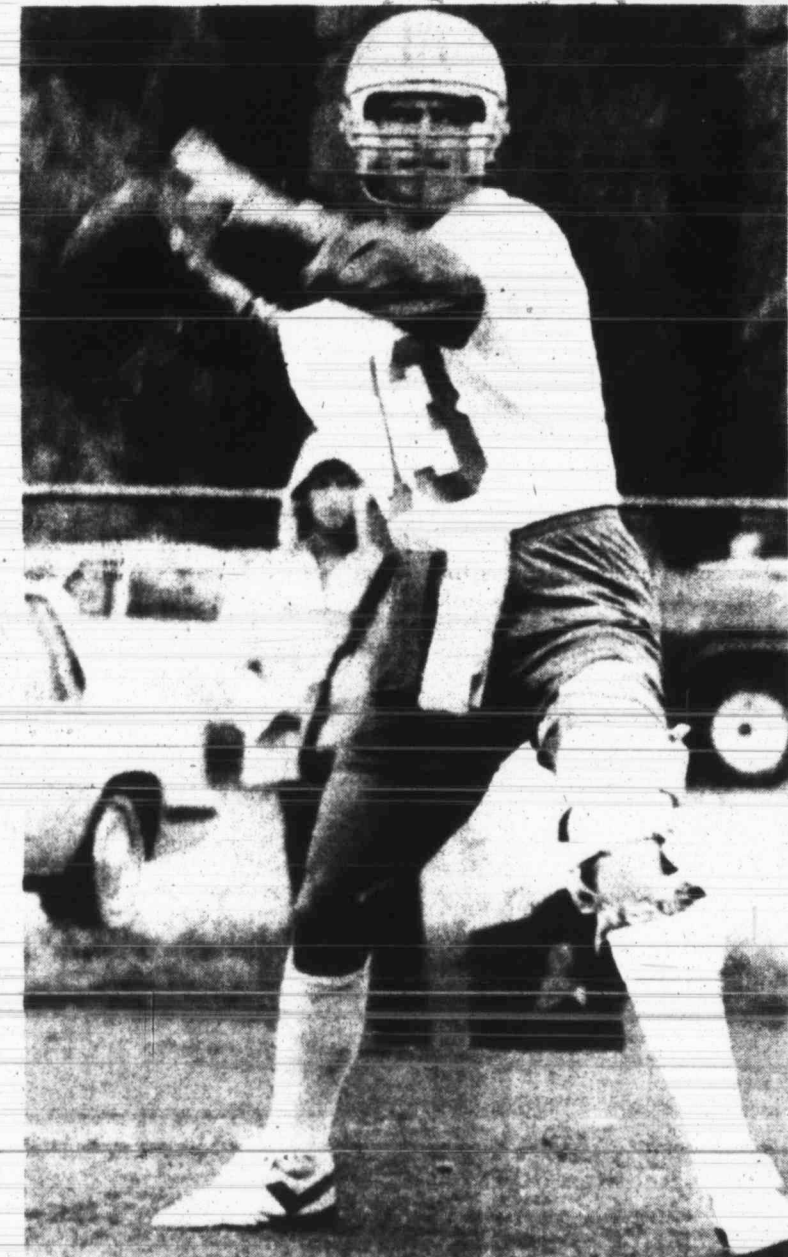

Bickett, a linebacker from Southern California, won't play against Seattle. Indianapolis Coach Rod Dowhower said he hoped to have the 6-foot-5, 235-pound Bickett ready for the Chicago Bears' game next week.

Washington signed veteran defensive tackle Dave Butz to two one-year contracts worth an estimated $975,000, leaving fullback John Riggins as the team's only holdout as the Redskins opened the preseason in Atlanta.

"Nobody won and nobody lost, but it's time to get back in a Redskin uniform and start playing ball," Butz said.

Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, trying to come back from a knee injury, will get a look-see in the game for the Falcons.

"We'll use him as a designated punt returner — kind of saving your big pinch hitter (until) the ninth inning of a (baseball) game,"

DAN MARINO, the record setting quarterback for the Miami Dolphins, has not reported to training camp because team owner JOE ROBEY will not renegotiate his 4 year, $2 million contract.

Coach Dan Henning said.

The New York Jets will be without nose tackle Joe Klecko when they entertain Philadelphia. Klecko is sidelined for at least two weeks with a strained muscle around his ribs.

Los Angeles Raiders' Coach Tom Flores says tight end Todd Christensen (bruised ribs) and center Dave Dalby (groin pull) will be held out against San Francisco.

Flores said Jim Plunkett and Marc Wilson would see the bulk of action at quarterback, but that he'd like "to find some playing time" for rookie quarterback Rusty Hilger, the team's sixth-round draft choice from Oklahoma State.

McEnroe in top form at Vermont Masters

STRATTON, Vt. (AP) — John McEnroe woke the quiet Vermont countryside with his world-class game and world-class temper during the Volvo International Tennis tournament.

The world's No. 1 player on Thursday zeroed in on an umpire and a linesman, but managed to control his temper long enough to advance to today's quarterfinals in the $315,000 contest.

In today's matches, McEnroe was to meet No. 12 seed Paul Anacone of West Hampton, N.Y.; No. 2 Ivan Lendl of Greenwich, Conn., was to face seventh seed Brad Gilbert of Danville, Calif.; and third-seed Jimmy Connors of Sanibel Harbor, Fla., was to meet Tim Mayotte of Springfield, Mass.

Unheralded doubles specialist Robert Seguso was to play No. 6 Scott Davis of Bardmoor, Fla.

McEnroe on Thursday defeated John Sadri 6-4, 7-5 in the third round of the Volvo. His fireworks began after Sadri evened the match at 3-3 in the first set.

After several close calls, McEnroe turned to linesman Robert Wright of Boston and told him to "get the hell off the court." Wright stood, took two steps toward the player and then walked to the linesman's chair at the other end of the court.

McEnroe appealed to umpire Charles Beck of New York City, requesting Wright's removal. Coincidentally, tournament officials were in the process of removing Wright because of "highly questionable calls," said Ken Farrar of the Men's International Professional Tennis Council (MIPTC).

Later, McEnroe said he has had problems with Beck and Wright in previous matches and repeatedly asked the MIPTC not to have them assigned to his matches.

"People think this just happened today," McEnroe said at a news conference on Thursday, "but this has gone on for months." He said Wright "has an attitude problem" and was "ready for a confrontation."

Wright and Beck made no comment, governed by unwritten rules that prohibit them from speaking out during a tournament.

McEnroe said the pro tour was infected by "amateurs" calling matches and the MIPTC "should save these guys for exhibitions when you need some laughs."

Sadri broke McEnroe's service three times but McEnroe came back in the next game each time to break back. McEnroe said the wind gusts "made it a crapshoot. I'm glad there wasn't a third set."

McEnroe won all 10 matches against the hard-serving Sadri, of Charlotte, N.C.

In other action Thursday, Lendl bounced 13th seed Tim Wilkison of Asheville, N.C., 6-4, 6-4; Connors fought off unseeded Brian Teacher, 6-2, 7-5; Mayotte edged Bob Green of Boston, 6-3, 6-4; and Davis ousted 15th seed Peter Fleming of Seabrook Island, S.C., 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

Connors and Teacher jockeyed through the second set before Con-norrs broke in the 11th game and served out for the match. Earlier, Teacher, of Los Angeles, broke Connors in the fourth game only to have Connors break back in the next game.

"He missed a few too many first serves," said Connors, who defeated Teacher in three sets last week in a tournament at Stowe, Vt.

Although he had trouble with his lob later in the match, Connors kept Teacher off-balance with his returns and passing game.

"I'm lobbying to keep him honest, to keep him away from the net a little bit," he said. "I want to make an opening somewhere for my passing shots."

He said the wind and Stratton Mountain's 1,900-foot altitude affected his play and forced him to keep pushing.

Seguso defeated Britain's Colin Dowdeswell, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4; Anacone surprised No. 8 David Pate of Las Vegas, 7-6 (7-3), 6-3; and Gilbert knocked off No. 11 Jimmy Arias of Jericho, N.Y., 6-2, 2-6, 6-3.

'Yanks, Blue Jays take doubleheader wins

By The Associated Press
Without their sparkplug, the New York Yankees had no trouble getting started, while the Toronto Blue Jays kept their engine purring right along.

AL Roundup

Both teams swept Thursday two-night doubleheaders as baseball resumed following the two-day players' strike. The Yankees, despite the absence of leadoff man and center fielder Rickey Henderson, who was absent without leave, pounded Cleveland 8-1, then edged the Indians 7-6.

Even with Henderson AWOL, the Yankees' offense was in high gear. Dave Winfield homered twice in the opener and drove in six runs, then Don Mattingly had two home runs in the second game.

Mattingly went 2-for-3 with two walks in the opener, then put the hosts ahead in the nightcap with a two-run homer in the first. He followed that with a solo shot in the fourth to increase his major-league-leading RBI total to 90.

Blue Jays 7-7, Orioles 2-4

Toronto continued its charge atop the East as Jesse Barfield went 6-for-6, including four runs scored and two stolen bases, and Tony Fernandez contributed four hits and five RBIs.

The visiting Orioles fell to just one game over .500, 14½ games behind.

Royals 10-4, Tigers 3-4
Detroit hadn't known that losing feeling in Royals Stadium for almost two years. Now, they've had a double dose.

Bret Saberhagen's nine strikeouts highlighted the first game, in which he tossed a seven-hitter.

Brewers 7-3, Rangers 4-1

At Arlington, Texas, Ben Oglivie's two-run homer and RBI single paced Milwaukee's first-game triumph. Oglivie's homer in the seventh inning padded the Brewers' lead to 6-3. Milwaukee broke a 3-3 tie an inning earlier when Earnest Riles singled and scored from first when relief pitcher Greg Harris threw wildly past first on Paul Householder's sacrifice bunt.

Twins 4, Angels 2

Bert Blyleven won his 100th game as a Twin — his first since rejoining Minnesota in a trade with Cleveland on Aug. 1 — allowing seven hits while striking out four and walking none over 7 1-3 innings. He got relief help from Pete Filson and Ron Davis, who earned his 16th save.

Blyleven, who played his first seven years with the Twins, is 205-179 lifetime and 100-90 as a Twin.

White Sox 7-1, Red Sox 6-6

Both teams used the longball. Ron Kittle powered a pair of homers in the opener, including one over the roof at Comiskey Park. Wade Boggs and Rich Gedman turned on the power in the nightcap as Boggs drove in three runs with a homer and a pair of singles and Gedman homered and doubled.

A's 11, Mariners 2

Dusty Baker scored two runs and drove in two in an eight-run fourth inning for the visitors, who won for the first time indoors this season.

The A's opened the 1985 season with three straight losses to Seattle. They also lost all four games they played in the Minnesota Metrodome in April.

Tudor gives Chicago a lesson

AP Sports Writer

With Dwight Gooden and Joaquin Andujar making headlines virtually every time they pitch, and Fernando Valenzuela generally accepted as the National League's top left-hander, John Tudor hasn't had much ink.

But the 31-year-old St. Louis Cardinal left-hander's anonymity can't last much longer unless the Chicago Cubs can be persuaded to forget what he did to them Thursday night and once in June.

NL Roundup

"He's probably the best left-hander I've faced all year," Chicago's Gary Matthews said after Tudor blanked the Cubs 8-0 on one hit to win for the 13th time in his last 14 starts.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Philadelphia 7, Pittsburgh 2; Atlanta 2, San Francisco 0; New York 14, Montreal 7; San Diego 6, Houston 5; and Cincinnati 6, Los Angeles 5, in 13 innings.

Tudor at one point retired 14 straight batters and faced just 29 in the game. The only Cubs to reach base were Leon Durham, with a fourth-inning single, and Matthews, with a walk an inning later.

The Cardinals made it easy for Tudor. Andy Van Slyke's first home run in nearly two months, a two-run shot, followed by Terry Pendleton's solo shot, keyed a five-run St. Louis first.

The shutout was the sixth of the year for Tudor. That broke a three-way tie with Gooden and Valenzuela for the major-league lead.

Phillies 7, Pirates 2

It didn't take long for Pittsburgh, the league's worst team, to find itself in a familiar position — Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt hit a three-run homer to overcome a 1-0 deficit and highlight a four-run first inning against loser Don Robinson.

Schmidt has six home runs, 15 runs batted in, 12 walks and 14 runs scored in his last 14 games. He's hit in 15 of the past 22 games and raised his average from .214 to .253.

The homer was the 18th for Schmidt. Ozzie Virgil added his 14th for Philadelphia in support of John Denny, 7-8, who pitched seven innings. Don Carman got his fourth save before 18,142 in Philadelphia.

Braves 2, Giants 0

San Francisco gave the home crowd — all 3,557 of them — nothing to cheer about as Atlanta's Rick Mahler handed the Giants their 12th shutout loss of the season.

Mahler, 16-9, pitched a four-hitter and drove in one of the Atlanta runs. Atlanta supported Mahler, who was knocked out by the Giants in three innings last Saturday, with four double plays.

Mets 14, Expos 7

New York assaulted Montreal pitching for 20 hits as it remained a half-game ahead of St. Louis in the NL East, much to the dismay of Diego.

Keith Hernandez had five hits and drove in three runs, Darryl Strawberry and George Foster both hit their 16th homers and Gary Carter had his 14th.

Wally Backman had two hits and three RBIs as the Mets ripped four Expos pitchers.

Padres 6, Astros 5

Pinch-hitter Jerry Royster singled in the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning to cap a four-run San Diego rally built on four hits and three errors by Houston, which wasted a 14-hit effort. Steve Garvey and Carmelo Martinez each hit his 14th homer for San Diego. Martinez, who had homered an inning earlier, preceded Royster's hit with a with a two-run single off loser Dave Smith.

Reds 6, Dodgers 5

Pete Rose's two-out bunt single in the top of the 13th inning drove in Cesar Cedeno with the winning run and brought to an end a marathon that lasted 4 hours, 14 minutes before 37,479 in Los Angeles.

Batting right-handed, Rose bunted down the third-base line. Diaz fielded the ball, but his throw to first just missed retiring Rose.

Rose's single off Diaz, 2-1, was the second of the night for the 44-year-old switch-hitter, and the 4,170th of the player-manager's career. Ty Cobb holds the all-time major-league career record with 4,191.

Cedeno, pinch hitting for winning pitcher Ted Power, 4-2, started the winning rally with a one-out single. Cedeno then stole second and went to third as Eddie Milner grounded out.

Cubbies pull off triple play

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Chicago Cubs pulled off bizarre triple play, the first in the National League this season and first against St. Louis in nearly five years.

Terry Pendleton of St. Louis rapped into the rare defensive gem with teammates Jack Clark and Andy Van Slyke on base. Pendleton started the play by lining to Chicago first baseman Leon Durham. Durham, in attempting to force Clark off second base was too late with his throw to shortstop Chris Speier.

As Van Slyke retreated to first, Speier's throw to Durham hit the Cardinal outfielder on the helmet. But Van Slyke passed Clark near second base and Clark was subsequently trapped in a run down.

The official play as determined long after the game ended, went from Durham to Speier to second baseman Ryne Sandberg to Speier to third baseman Ron Cey and finally to center fielder Bob Dernier.

It was the first triple play against the Cardinals since the Montreal Expos accomplished the same feat August 12, 1980.

Children get glance at life in 29 A.D.

Children of First United Methodist Church learned how people lived during Jesus' time this week. They learned trades such as brick making, money making and basket weaving.

Religion roundup

DENVER (AP) — Regional leaders of the United Methodist Church say they've been stymied at handling a grievance against an avowed homosexual minister because the rules about it weren't adequately defined.

Consequently, a committee has been assigned to determine just what is meant by a "self-avowed, practicing homosexual," which church rules bar from the ministry.

"The public may feel a definition is easy," says the Rev. Keith Watson, chairman of the regional board of ordained ministry, but he said definitions contained in the complaints "were not ones we could accept."

"We had no other definitions to go on," he added, so the committee was set up to clarify it.

The complaint against appointment of the Rev. Julian Rush as a part-time pastor of St. Paul's United Methodist Church cited media statements by him acknowledging his "same-sex orientation and his relationship with another male person." The complaint said that disqualified him under the church rule.

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — A message from the president of U.S. Catholic bishops was delivered to their counterparts in Japan this week on the 40th anniversary of the U.S. bombing of that city.

Bishop James W. Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, said the world's nations have an "immediate obligation" to "move away from nuclear deterrence with all its risks of failure and with its morally debilitating assent to the possibility of repeating Hiroshima and Nagasaki."

Archbishop-designate Roger M. Mahony of Los Angeles was designated to participate in the Hiroshima memorial service and deliver the message.

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopal Presiding Bishop John M. Allin has cabled South African President P. W. Botha, urging him to change his mind and meet with Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu of Johannesburg, a leading voice for blacks. He "has shown striking restraint and has indicated his willingness for creative dialogue and reconciliation," Allin told Botha, saying such a meeting would show "your willingness to deal courageously with political reality" and to move "towards substantive reform."

The Rev. Arie R. Brouwer, general secretary of the National Council of Churches, telegraphed President Reagan urging sanctions against South Africa, saying his policy of "constructive engagement" supports apartheid laws.

Those laws viewing "the majority of South Africa's people as subhuman cannot be reformed" but "must be abolished," Brouwer said.

Leaders of the American Jewish Committee urged the South African government to lift its state-of-emergency restrictions, calling them a "cruel repudiation" of efforts for non-violent change.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham says he has accepted an invitation to preach in communist Romania Sept. 7-17, probably in six or seven cities, including the capital, Bucharest.

He has just concluded a 10-day crusade at Anaheim Stadium in California where 33,750 were reported to have committed their lives to Christ.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Church and other anti-gambling leaders figured in staving off a wave of pro-gambling legislation in many states this spring, says a survey by Baptist Press.

It says Iowa's legalizing of a lottery was the only case in which a state adopted a new form of gambling, while in many states, legislation in support of lotteries, pari-mutuel betting and casino gambling failed.

Iowa is the 22nd state to adopt a state-operated lottery. Montana decided to submit the issue to a statewide referendum in 1986.

It's 9:30 a.m., time to go to synagogue. After a lesson from the tribe mother about Jewish home life, a horn sounds and the market is open.

This Jerusalem 29 A.D. scene was recreated this week by the education department of the First United Methodist Church to show children how people lived during Jesus' time.

The village was staged Monday through Wednesday at the home of J.W. and Nancy Dickens in Silver Heels. They are members of the church.

The children went from tent to tent, learning various trades and occupations at the market place. Some shops included: the weaver's tent, the carpenter's tent, the money maker's tent and the stone cutter's tent.

The shopkeepers at each market place told the children how the occupation related to Jesus' time, said Marcie Lykken, project director.

Pam Mitchell was the other director.

Patterned after the 12 tribes of Israel, the 45 children were divided into five tribes with each tribe having a mother.

The tribe mothers taught about Jewish home life.

At 11:30 a.m. each morning, the older youth of the church did five-minute mini dramas on Bible stories. Twenty youth and 20 adults from the church helped in the program.

The children, in 1st through 6th grade, also learned Jewish songs and dances.

On Wednesday night, the parents went to the village to see what their children had made and learned. The children then taught their parents the Hora, a Jewish dance.

Attendance up at First Church of the Nazarene

Convinced that the summer doesn't have to be a "wash out," First Church of the Nazarene, 1400 Lancaster, is observing a month-long emphasis, "Advance in August."

The thrust began Sunday with a 14 percent increase in attendance over August of last year.

Cotton Mize, chairman of Christian life, said that the Sunday School classes are striving to keep their attendance up in spite of vacations and summer attractions.

In connection with the emphasis, the 10:40 a.m. worship service will have Dr. Earnest Armstrong as guest speaker, according to Dr. Carl Powers, pastor.

Armstrong is a well-known speaker in the denomination, having served as pastor, president of Canadian Nazarene College and as a featured speaker at Nazarene International Retreat of Golder Agers for many years.

His wife, Miss Pearl, accompanies him and sings.

The Rejoice Choir, directed by Otis Thompson, will provide music with Jerry Scott as soloist.

Children's Church sessions meet in Kid's Korner during the 10:50 a.m. service.

A "Celebration of Praise" will begin at 6 p.m. with congregational participation in singing, prayer time and testimonies. The Rejoice Choir will sing, and Bill and Vanessa Burchett will be featured in a duet. Powers will preach at the service.

SMU football under fire

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University is facing one of the severest penalties ever handed out by the NCAA, including a two-year moratorium on football scholarships, television and bowl appearances, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

The newspaper quoted a source "familiar with the NCAA's case against the school" as saying SMU also has been put on probation for three years.

SMU coach Bobby Collins was in a staff meeting and other school officials were unavailable for comment early today.

The penalties were handed out by the NCAA committee on infractions, the Times Herald said.

They come in the wake of a 26-month investigation into the school's athletic program, that focused on the role of Mustang boosters and allegations that recruits were offered cash, cars and jobs for their relatives if they would attend SMU.
